Ingeborg Morris appears on the verge of tears as she is led away from her Longwood home in handcuffs to begin serving a 30-day jail term for keeping goats at her home in defiance of county law.

It's Off To Jail For 'Goat Lady'

By TENI YARBOROUGH
 Herald Staff Writer

A court order is nothing to "kid" around with, as Ingeborg "Goat Lady" Morris found out Friday. But she says she isn't kidding either where her goats are concerned.

Mrs. Morris, of 2331 Oak Drive, Longwood, is being held today in the Seminole County jail following her arrest Friday afternoon at her home on charges of violating a court order to pay $2,500 in fines and rid her home of 47 goats.

Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr., Wednesday ruled that if Mrs. Morris had not paid the fines for violating county ordinances and that if all goats were not removed from her home by 10 a.m. Friday, she would be arrested and begin serving 30 days in the county jail.

"They'll have to come and get me," was Mrs. Morris' reply to the judge's order.

They did. Two sheriff's deputies showed up at Mrs. Morris' home about 1:30 p.m., handcuffed her and carted her off to jail.

But Mrs. Morris' spirit remained unbroken. "This is a matter of principle. They want me to send my goats away. Without my care they'll die. I'd rather go to jail or die myself before I'll do that," she said.

Deputy County Attorney Robert McMillan had also asked that Mize allow the county's animal control personnel to pick up the goats left at Mrs. Morris' home following her arrest and to find adoptive homes for the animals. In addition, he suggested that the court records be sealed to protect persons adopting the goats from possible harassment.

"The goats will remain at her house to be cared for by whoever she has designated to take care of them for her," McMillan said.

"The judge did not address that part of the issue in his order so we have no authority to take action. I have a feeling, though, that the matter of what to do about the goats will be discussed at the July 15 hearing before Judge Mize."

According to Mize's court order, if Mrs. Morris decides to comply with the directive, she will be released from jail.

"The judge has set the July 15 hearing so that the case can be reconsidered," McMillan said. "If she's still in jail at that time, then the next thing he may choose to do is just have the goats removed and therefore, the violation won't be there."

Drunk Driving Florida's New DUI Law One Of Nation's Toughest

By TENI YARBOROUGH
 Herald Staff Writer

If you have a tendency to drink a little too much or are using drugs, legal or otherwise, you may want to leave the driving to someone else, or risk spending time behind bars.

Called one of the toughest laws in the country, lawmakers strengthened the state's driving under the influence (DUI) of drugs or alcohol law by passing the new statute which went into effect at 12:00 a.m. Thursday.

The law was passed in response to a public outcry to reduce highway accidents and fatalities caused by drunk or drugged drivers.

"It's long overdue," Seminole County Sheriff John Polk said about the new law.

"This department will continue to handle DUI arrests as we have in the past, but with the new law requiring, in some cases, mandatory jail time, the jails could become crowded."

The state legislators did not provide additional funds to expand jail facilities to handle the anticipated increase in prison inmates charged with DUI.

"Anytime you see the legislators providing stiffer penalties for violators, it's a good sign," said Sgt. Herb Shea, assistant to Sanford Police Chief Ben Butler. "We're for the new law and plan to continue making DUI arrests as we have in the past."

The new DUI law requires first-time offenders to perform 50 hours of community service, lose their license for at least six months, pay a minimum fine of $250, attend a substance-abuse course at their own expense and possibly serve up to 90 days in jail, as ordered by the judge.

In addition, a motorist arrested on a second violation of the DUI law will serve a mandatory jail sentence of 10 days and could be jailed for up to six months if the second conviction occurs within three years of the first offense. The person also will pay a minimum fine of $500, attend a substance-abuse course and have his or her license suspended for five years.

Motorists with a third offense will serve a mandatory jail term of 30 days expanding to one year if they are convicted three times within five years of DUI. They also will attend the substance-abuse course, pay the mandatory fine of at least $1,000 and face a license suspension of 10 years.

Violators of the state's new DUI law also will be required to submit to a breath test or urine sample if asked by the arresting officer and provide a blood sample in the case of an accident with an injury. Failure to comply with the officer's request will result in the loss of a person's license for at least three months.

Urine and blood tests are being required to help prosecutors establish the degree to which a person is intoxicated. Drivers intoxicated on drugs usually escaped convictions under the old DUI law because they could pass the breath tests administered during DUI arrests.

In addition, the new statute does away with the former practice of allowing persons

Drunk Drivers Best Beware, Area Police Are Watching

By JOE DeSANTIS
 Herald Staff Writer

With Florida's tough new DUI law just a few days old and a major holiday weekend at hand, most Seminole County officials say they'll be on the lookout more than ever for individuals driving under the influence of alcohol during the 4th of July weekend.

"We're damned sure going to be looking at it harder," says Altamonte Springs Police Chief William Liquori.

"As a new police chief here I'm concerned about the drunk driver problem and speaking for myself as chief and for the Altamonte Police Department, I'm in full support of the new law.

"We intend to do a bang up job on it," Liquori said.

Liquori said his department will set up a task force for increased DUI patrols and will be stricter in enforcing Florida's tougher drunk driving statute.

"Not only is the drunk driver a problem to himself, but he's an economic problem to his family and his actions cause tremendous hardships for other families he hurts while operating a vehicle under the influence," Liquori said.

"The actions of drunk drivers are enough to enrage anybody, and they should."

Liquori added that the Altamonte Springs department will continue using standard breathalyzer tests and video taping of suspected drunk drivers. However, the city doesn't have the equipment necessary to check urine samples of drivers suspected of being under the influence of drugs other than alcohol.

"Presently, we're not geared up for urinalysis," said Liquori.

"But we'll be looking harder at the drunk driver situation and I'll be taking a hard look to see how the judiciary enforces the tougher penalties of the new law.

Casselberry's assistant police chief Win Gates says although officers in his department won't be taking any extraordinary steps during the 4th of July weekend, patrolmen will be more alert for drunks behind the wheel.

"As always on this type of holiday, there's an increased chance of the drunk driver being on the road," said Gates.

While the Casselberry police official feels the tougher DUI law is needed, he didn't feel it was proper for the Orlando Sentinel Star to print a recent story about how to beat the new law.

"I'm quite unhappy that the state Legislature left loopholes in the new law and I'm just as unhappy that a newspaper would print what amounts to be a check list on how to beat the new law.

Gates said that Casselberry officers will be using standard breathalyzer units and video

Seminole Needs More Subsidized Housing: Wilson

By MICHAEL BEHA
 Herald Staff Writer

A man who helped direct both the Seminole County and Sanford housing authorities says several opportunities to increase subsidized housing in the area exist but it will require the initiative of county officials to get it.

Thomas Wilson III, who was part of the management team which directed the Seminole County Housing Authority since December 1977, said opportunities exist in today's period of shrinking federal dollars for additional subsidized housing projects.

Wilson announced Thursday he is leaving his post with the county authority to take a similar job in Phoenix, Ariz., where he will work as a project manager for federally subsidized housing.

"I will oversee housing development, Section 8 housing and turnkey projects in Phoenix," he said.

He said there is a need for much more subsidized housing in Seminole County.

"There are 16,243 people eligible for subsidized housing in the county. That may seem like a lot but anyone who spends more than 25 percent of their gross income would be considered eligible," he said.

Wilson said 737 subsidized units are available in the county but all but 30 of them are in Sanford.

"The city (Sanford) has more than pulled its weight," he said. Wilson was fired in 1980 as director of the Sanford Housing Authority.

He said the greatest need in Seminole County exists in the northern part of the county.

"We had not done a great job in providing new housing," he said. "We had attempted to get Farmers Home Administration funds to build more housing but in the rural areas there are always sewage problems."

Wilson said the county still has a great need for increased housing for the elderly in addition to rent subsidies.

He said proposals were due June 30 for $37 million in funding for Florida programs for subsidized housing for the elderly.

"I don't think anyone in the county applied," he said.

Wilson said the number of programs operated by the federal government for housing is staggering.

"The key is to know what you're doing before getting into them," he said.

Planning and development of housing projects is time consuming and expensive for a housing authority, he explained. Coming up with workable plans and then going through bidding processes for architects, developers and contractors is expensive and takes more time than turnkey projects in which the developers do most of the planning and then turn the project over to the housing authority when it is completed.

IN BRIEF

Unemployment Levels Off, But More Stop Seeking Jobs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The overall unemployment rate for June stayed constant at 9.5 percent, but the number of those discouraged they have stopped looking for jobs kept rising, to a high of 1.5 million during the second quarter.

The new figures, released by the Labor Department Friday, bore out President Reagan's forecast at his news conference that "unemployment may remain stubbornly high for a time."

The number of discouraged workers — those who have stopped looking for jobs — rose by 160,000. The discouraged workers are in addition to the 10.4 million officially considered to be unemployed by the government in the latest statistics.

Tax Hike Plan Praised

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration and Republican leaders heralded the Senate Finance Committee's approval of a $21 billion tax-hike package for next year — coming just one day after the latest tax cut — as the first step toward lower deficits.

About 40 percent or $8.5 billion of the increased revenue next year would be raised through tougher penalties, stiffer reporting requirements and automatic withholding of 10 percent of dividend and interest income designed to boost taxpayer compliance with current laws.

A smaller, but more visible portion of the package would raise about $1.8 billion in 1983 by doubling the current tax on cigarettes from 8 cents to 16 cents a pack, increasing the taxes on telephone service, and substantially reducing the current deductions for medical expenses and casualty losses.

Wealthy individuals would pay a stiffer minimum tax under the new package and upper-income professionals who incorporate their businesses would be allowed to shelter less income in private pension plans.

Cops Gunning For Speeders

United Press International

State police around the country beefed up patrols and brought out the heavy artillery in an effort to keep up with the nation's speed demons and hold down projections of 500 weekend highway deaths for the Independence Day weekend.

Last year, 578 people died on the highways during the holiday weekend, the National Safety Council said. The council predicted as many as 500 would die this weekend, which ends at midnight Monday.

Sex, Drug Probe Quickens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department has subpoenaed Capitol Police records in its investigation of alleged congressional drug dealing, a source says, and the probe reportedly focuses on two Senate and 10 House members.

The drug investigation by the U.S. attorney's office has been going on for several months, according to congressional sources, and apparently led to charges by several teenage pages they were involved in homosexual acts with members of Congress.

Issued False Odometer Statement

Used Car Dealer Gets A Year In Jail

A Maitland car dealer has been sentenced to one year in the Seminole County Jail for selling a Mercedes-Benz with a false odometer reading.

Eugene Gronewald, 58, was also placed on five years probation by Circuit Court Judge Robert MacGregor who said he wanted the public to learn a lesson from Gronewald's sentence.

Gronewald, who operated KA-EG Enterprises Inc. at 852 Woodside Road, was convicted in April of issuing a false odometer statement to Ray Griffith of Orlando when Griffith purchased a 1973 Mercedes-Benz.

Griffith bought the car in 1979 after reading an advertisement which said the car had low mileage. The odometer showed 53,087 miles, Griffith said.

After Griffith had some problems with the vehicle, he investigated and learned that Gronewald had purchased the car from another dealer, when the odometer showed the car had 95,911 miles.

BURGLARIES REPORTED

About 100 used car batteries were reported stolen from a shed adjacent to JC Penney's in Sanford.

Store manager Joe Marlett told police the batteries were taken from the shed between closing time on Wednesday and 8:15 a.m. Thursday. The batteries were valued at $260.

Ted Barker, principal of Sanford's Lakeview Middle School, told police tools were taken from a shop at the school.

Barker said a glass was removed from a window and a vent was forced to gain access into the shop.

He said a complete list of the stolen tools had not yet been compiled.

WOMAN REPORTS THEFT

Sanford police said a woman, who was staying at 5 Cowan Moughton Terrace, reported the theft of $93 while she was asleep.

Lillie Scott, 33, told police she had the money in her pocket before going to bed and when she awoke it was gone.

SILVER COINS SWIPED

About $200 worth of silver coins were stolen from a Geneva resident's travel trailer, which was parked in the yard of his home, between noon June 7 and 8 a.m. Wednesday.

Marion E. Roulerson, 35, of Jungle Road, reported the theft to deputies, reports show.

Lake Monroe At 3-Year High

Lake Monroe is at its highest water level in nearly three years, according to records kept at the Sanford Public Works Department.

A reading of the lake level on June 28 and again this past Thursday showed the level at 4.2 feet above sea level.

The last time the lake level was recorded at a higher level was on Oct. 5, 1979 just after Hurricane David struck. At that time it reached a peak of 5.0 feet above sea level.

Earlier this year in February, the lake was at a low point, recording a 2 inch above sea level. The level began rising in May when 1.4 inch was recorded.

On June 14, the level was 1.85; June 16, 2.1; June 18, 2.4; June 21, 3.0; June 22, 3.1; June 23, 3.2; June 25, 3.5; and then on June 28, 4.2 where the level is remaining.

There Is No ET, So Save Your Time

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A physicist says don't waste your time waiting for a close encounter with an extraterrestrial being because they don't exist. He's even willing to debate superstar astronomer Carl Sagan on the subject.

Frank Tipler, an associate professor of mathematical physics at Tulane University, says beyond the darkness there is nothing but more darkness. He claims the evolutionary process is just too complicated to produce two strains of intelligent life.

"We are most likely the only intelligent species that exists in this galaxy and ever existed in this galaxy, and possibly the only intelligent species in the visible cosmos," Tipler said in an interview Tuesday.

His theory rests on two points: intelligent life is too complex to evolve more than once and if such beings existed they already would be on Earth.

"The number of possible evolutionary pathways is so enormous the number which lead to intelligent species on our level is miniscule," Tipler said. "The vast complexity of human brain tissue we would expect to arise only once."

Tipler wants to debate the issue with Sagan, a leading proponent of the idea we are not alone. He is hopeful the two can exchange letters for a set period of time — say a year — then compile the correspondence in book form.

Tipler is not concerned that Sagan's position is vastly more popular than his own.

"I have the leading evolutionists on my side," he said. "The ball is in the other guy's court."

In other species, evolution has bypassed intelligence to develop other characteristics needed for survival, he said.

PRYING THIEVES TAKE TV

Thieves pried open a porch window at a Sanford woman's home between 8 a.m. and 11 a.m. Wednesday and stole her television from her living room.

After showing what now has been determined as a forged purchase ticket, four men made off with about $522 worth of lumber from Scotty's Lumber Co., at 700 French Ave., Sanford, at about 4:15 p.m. Wednesday.

Deputies said the men showed a store employee the forged receipt for the lumber, loaded the planks into a truck then drove away.

LION'S HEAD BRACELET STOLEN

A lion's head bracelet, bearing diamonds and emeralds, was stolen from a Maitland woman's home between 12:01 a.m. and 11 p.m. June 22.

Melodie Candice Berdoll, 37, of 116 Melinda Lane, told deputies she discovered the bracelet, valued at about $1,500, missing along with a $1,000 emerald ring.

THIEVES TAKE HANDMADE INSTRUMENTS

A handmade violin and guitar, along with a $200 rifle, were stolen from a Longwood man's home between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. Tuesday.

China Welcomes U.S. Investors

NEW YORK (UPI) — China welcomes foreign investment — but its new tax laws could make American oil company subcontractors investing there vulnerable to double taxation.

Chinese officials told a recent gathering of American businessmen they welcome foreign oil and gas investment and are working hard to clear up vagaries in still skeletal tax laws and accounting requirements governing foreign enterprises.

To this end the new laws "are designed to minimize tax burdens, simplify compliance procedures and afford tax benefits and lenient treatment to foreign investors," Chinese Commissioner of Taxation Liu Zhi-Cheng told the seminar on U.S. tax implications of investing in China, conducted jointly by China's Finance Ministry and Price Waterhouse.

Richard M. Hammer, head of international tax services for Price Waterhouse, told the group, however, taxation of foreign oil subcontractors on a "deemed profit" basis — with the profit set provisionally at 10 percent of the total contract price — could disqualify such firms from U.S. income tax creditability.

Although most foreign enterprises in China are taxed on actual profits, the "deemed profit" provision applies to firms unable to accurately account for expenses related to their operations, and to all companies undertaking engineering projects for the exploration and exploitation of seabed oil resources whether or not they can reasonably determine their costs.

The "whether or not" factor is what jeopardizes creditability for the subcontractors.

"An IRS private letter ruling just issued granted foreign tax credit to an oil company with a subcontractor operating in China, although we haven't seen the details yet," Hammer said, "so at least we have a favorable indication that other companies may not be tainted. But how the subcontractors will be handled is a very unresolved issue."

Some 20 American oil companies have applied to enter in bidding for petroleum exploration in China and now are looking over model contracts for the preliminary drilling phase. Foreign oil firms already have spent some $200 million for seismic surveys in Chinese waters and are expected to invest $30 billion to $40 billion in the next 10 years for drilling and production.

Of great interest to the IRS, according to Dr. Nian Tzu wang, director of Columbia University's China International Business Project, is whether the $200 million oil companies have spent in seismic surveys would be included in the drilling contracts to be signed.

"If not, the companies will deduct the amount from their profits and the IRS will lose some $50 million," Wang said.

China in the past two years has promulgated a number of laws governing taxation of foreign investors, including a joint venture tax law and a foreign enterprise income tax law.

"The laws are pretty primitive... They leave unsaid more than they say," an official of a major U.S. manufacturing firm attending the seminar said.

Hammer said U.S.-Chinese joint ventures structured as third-country corporations may in a large number of cases be best suited to reap tax advantages under the laws of both nations.

Among the tax incentives cited by Liu to attract foreign investment are the preferential treatment granted to agriculture, forestry and animal husbandry industries "since they require substantial capital outlays and a long period of time before there is a return on investment."

Inmate's Survey Claims Most Favor Gun Control

RAIFORD (UPI) — A convicted felon serving a life sentence in prison has embarked on an unlikely crusade for gun control, and says his own statewide survey found most people favored limitations on handgun possession.

Hank Gray, a 33-year-old inmate at Union Correctional Institute, entered prison in 1966 at the age of 17, and is serving a life sentence for sexual battery and other non-firearms offenses in Pinellas County.

Gray said he mailed out questionnaires to 3,000 Florida residents chosen at random from the phone books at the state's 10 largest metropolitan areas. He said results showed a majority favoring stiff penalties for handgun use and strong laws limiting possession.

Detering Illegal Aliens

MIAMI (UPI) — State officials fearing another influx of thousands of Caribbean refugees said they are relieved by a federal judge's ruling that the government can detain illegal aliens during the next 90 days.

U.S. District Judge Eugene Spellman Friday said he granted the government permission to detain aliens because there is a "meaningful concern" that thousands of Haitians may flood into Florida if there is no deterrent.

In making his ruling, Spellman said the three-month grace period should give the federal government time to write and properly refine a new immigration policy. It was the government's failure to follow proper administrative procedure in setting up the policy of detaining Haitians that prompted Spellman to order their release.

Graham Off And Running For 2nd Term

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham has finally announced his plans for reelection and set off on his first formal campaign trip of the 1982 political season.

He made it official in Tallahassee Thursday and wound up a four-day, 22-city series of announcements with a 12-hour day of campaigning Sunday.

Although the formal declaration of candidacy was long in coming, it was no surprise to anyone. He has had a campaign organization in place for some time and has been actively involved in fundraising.

His announcement surprised the rival Republican party least of all.

Republicans paid him an indirect compliment a full month before his announcement when a White House political advisor said Graham was to be one of two Democratic governors in the South to be targeted for a special campaign blitz by national Republican leaders.

Graham's campaign staff professes to be unconcerned about that and set off on the first political trip confident that the voters will give the governor another four years in Tallahassee.

In these early days of the political year, the most striking aspect of the Graham campaign is the difference between running as an incumbent and running as one of many Democratic hopefuls.

Four years ago Reuben Askew was winding up eight years as governor. The Democratic field was crowded. Republicans felt they had a legitimate chance to win the governor's mansion.

Graham announced early and ran hard, literally "working" his way to Tallahassee.

His campaign was characterized by his much-publicized work days. His resume of the campaign showed that he had worked as a truck driver, a reporter, a policeman, a farmer and on and on.

His co-workers from his work days were given a special place of honor on the cold January day when he was inaugurated.

Now he runs as an incumbent, and apparently a popular one at that. He has no primary to worry about and can look ahead to the general election and a Republican opponent expected to be Rep. Skip Bafalis.

He campaigns with a proven record of nearly four years behind him and all the advantages of incumbency.

While Bafalis must worry about getting his name known to voters all over the state, Graham's name has become a household word.

But incumbency can also carry disadvantages. In making his own announcement in May, Bafalis laid the blame for the state's crime and refugee problems squarely at the governor's feet.

Ironically, whether by coincidence or not, much of Graham's work in the days prior to the campaign was devoted to those very issues.

In the special legislative session prior to his re-election announcement, Graham was able to get a series of anticrime measures through the Legislature and signed into law.

And with a federal judge in Miami ordering the release of refugees in south Florida last week, he had the opportunity to give his ideas on the refugee problem wide play in the media throughout the nation.

Whether Bafalis will be successful in achieving the kind of recognition it takes to run a statewide campaign and whether he will be able to hang the state's problems around Graham's neck remains to be seen.

But for now the Graham campaign's optimism seems well founded.

Searching For The Key To Successful Farming

GAINESVILLE (UPI)—A university researcher is completing a study of small farms in Florida that may help determine what makes some farmers succeed, and others fail.

Klizia Washington, a 27-year-old food resource economics graduate student at the University of Florida, studied Jackson County farmers from 1969 to 1972 who had applied for loans from the Farmers Home Administration. She found that only 25 percent of the farmers were financially successful.

"Of the 60 farmers who took part in the study, 10 have graduated, five will graduate by the end of the year, 15 have been denied loans, and 30 still remain in the program," she said. A graduated farmer is one who had improved enough financially to obtain a commercial loan instead of relying on the federal government.

Ms. Washington found that, on the average, the farmer who managed to graduate from a government loan worked a 408-acre farm with a net income of $10,442, while the unsuccessful farmer tilled a 337-acre farm and had a deficit of $19,764.

Ms. Washington, who grew up on a farm herself, said the much publicized plight of the American small farmer is very real. Between 1979 and 1980, she said, the net income of American farmers dropped from $33 billion to $20 billion. During that same time, Florida farmers lost about $1.4 billion.

The slide in net income has resulted in a heavy reliance on borrowed money to finance production, slow loan repayments, higher rates of delinquency in repayments and loan defaults, and a decline in the credit rating of farmers, she said.

She recommended that small farmers in Florida put more of their land into vegetable production, which is more profitable than the traditional soybean and corn crops they currently grow.

Jackson County in the Florida Panhandle was selected for the study because of its large number of farmers growing row crops, such as peanuts and soybeans, she said. Livestock farmers were excluded from the study.

In addition to providing the FHA with mathematical data to judge the potential success of farmers who apply for loans, Ms. Washington said her study also could help farmers determine their own relative financial position.

The PLO In Beirut

The invasion of Lebanon by the Israeli armed services has now reached a deadly stage.

When the Israelis invaded Southern Lebanon and drove through the United Nations peace-keeping troops in the buffer zone, Israeli spokesman said the objective was to silence the Palestine Liberation Organization's artillery and rockets and to move them back 25 miles north of the Israeli border.

That invasion was said to be justified as an act of national self-defense, even though it violated international law and what little was left of Lebanese sovereignty and even though a cease-fire negotiated by the United States had kept the border relatively quiet since last summer.

But the Israeli troops, meeting little effective resistance from the PLO guerrilla army, kept on going beyond the 25-mile zone and are now laying siege to what is left of the PLO army in West Beirut, 50 miles deep into Lebanon.

The objective now seems to be the military destruction of the PLO and its leadership. If the Israelis enter West Beirut, it will be a fight to the finish, similar to the siege of the Warsaw ghetto during World War II. The Palestinians will fight in the streets, the houses and the sewers. And they will be wiped out.

That would be a tragedy for the Israelis and for Americans as well as for the Palestinians. It would not be a triumph for Israel, because the image of Israel would be stained with blood in the eyes of the world. And Palestinian nationalism would survive and would come back with even more bloody acts of terrorism in the future.

Peace would be even more distant in the Mideast than it is today. President Reagan and his foreign policy advisers must use every diplomatic means at their disposal to keep the Israelis from making Beirut a killing ground.

Industrial Spying

Espionage is most often thought of as one nation's efforts to discover another's military or political secrets. But industrial espionage is no less a fact of life in an era of intense international competition for high-technology markets.

The arrest of Japanese businessmen charged with attempting to steal trade secrets from the International Business Machines Corp. (IBM) underscores the bitter competition between American and computer manufacturers. At stake are foreign and domestic markets worth tens of billions of dollars per year.

The American computer industry still leads the world, but Japan's largest electronics manufacturers have become increasingly aggressive in challenging what was once almost an American monopoly.

Two of these Japanese companies — Hitachi and Mitsubishi Electric — have now been caught up in an FBI investigation intended to protect the American computer industry by exposing those who would steal its technological secrets.

The Japanese government promptly expressed its disapproval of any industrial espionage, and officials of Hitachi and Mitsubishi were called in by Japan's Ministry of Trade to explain the illegal conduct of their representatives.

A more convincing demonstration of the Japanese government's attitude toward industrial spying would be full and immediate cooperation in the extradition of Japanese nationals charged but not yet apprehended in the IBM case.

In the meantime, the FBI and the Reagan administration are to be commended for what was obviously a conscious decision to act against industrial espionage, that threatens vital American economic and defense interests.

Looking At Dad's Daughter

Lucky is the woman with a strong, supportive father who believes in her abilities. She could be tomorrow's captain of industry, famous artist... or U.S. president.

New studies link successful, achieving women with fathers who encouraged them to be that way. And lately there has been a rash of stories — in Business Week, The New York Times and other publications — about daughters following their fathers into family businesses.

Most notable, of course, is Christie Hefner, 29, recently named president of Playboy Enterprises by her entrepreneurial whiz father, Hugh Hefner.

What a vote of confidence! Especially since the firm has been plagued by management problems and declining revenues in recent years. If Ms. Hefner can triumph over two such big hurdles, it will certainly prove she learned more than "patty cake, patty cake" at daddy's knee.

Despite her youth, she has been grooming for the job almost from the moment she graduated summa cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa from Brandeis University. She's been working in the company, in its fashion boutiques and stereo magazines; she was made a vice president four years ago and a director a year later, and she is a member of the board's finance committee.

"She has a talent for leadership," said a former Playboy executive. Others call her an effective spokeswoman, able to define Playboy's role in society and defend its view of women — two debates I wouldn't dream of taking on!

Another daughter preparing to take over a family's prominent business is Doris Mattus. It was she who talked her father, Reuben, into letting her start a national franchise operation. Today, she presides over 125 Haagen-Dazs ice cream stores.

Donald J. Jonovic of the Cleveland-based Center for Family Business has said daughters are apt to work harder than sons to educate themselves for the job.

Some turn out to be more aggressive and business-like than their fathers. "She's smarter than I am, I hate to tell you," said one dad, whose 26-year-old daughter is vice president and heir in a perfume company.

Jonovic knows of 500 women already running family businesses and expects the figure to increase dramatically by 1990.

I recently met Sally Black of Albuquerque, who is leasing manager for her father's Chevrolet dealership, an operation that covers 16 acres and an inventory of at least 500 cars. Ed Black Chevrolet employs 156 people and tallies $27 million in annual sales.

A 1970 journalism graduate from Northwestern University, Ms. Black spent a decade at various jobs — working in a museum and travel agency and selling advertising. Two years ago, when she came home elated over a new job offer in marketing, her father said, "Why don't you come work for me?"

She was thrilled: "I certainly didn't have to toss a coin to decide between the two." A younger brother, incidentally, is more interested in becoming a doctor and is interning at a Memphis hospital.

It's an American custom for a proud father to add "& Son" to the name of the family business. Now it looks like more and more firms will be adding "& Daughter."

CD Program Offers Bizarre Elements

WASHINGTON — In 40 million households next year, Americans will find a new feature in their telephone books along with instructions for calling emergency numbers and inquiring about their phone bills. They can also study detailed plans for evacuation of their neighborhood in the event of nuclear war.

This alternative to Dial-a-Prayer is part of the Reagan administration's proposed $4.2 billion, seven-year civil defense program designed to show the Russians that we are capable of surviving the holocaust. The ambitious master plan represents the final departure from the idea that "mutual assured destruction" is the best deterrent to nuclear war.

The administration plan reportedly includes such bizarre elements as the rapid dismantling of essential industrial equipment for postwar reassembly, and a mobile presidential command post that would roam the supposedly intact interstate highway system disguised as a moving van.

Civil defense advocates argue that an ef-

Few people get a bang out of going to court and most get fired up over having to pay fines. But local law enforcers say they will issue citations requiring court appearances or levying fines against people caught selling, buying, or using fireworks in celebration of the Fourth of July.

"Unless you are a licensed user of fireworks conducting a professional display, it is against the law in Florida to buy, sell, possess or use fireworks," said John Spolski, Seminole County sheriff's spokesman. "The only fireworks allowed for use in this state are sparklers and caps used in toy cap guns."

"It'll be up to the discretion of the officer whether or not to make an arrest or to cite someone for the fireworks violation," said Sgt. Herb Shea, assistant to Sanford Police Chief Ben Butler. "But, it is a violation of state law and we do have a right to make violators jail-house bound."

Violation of the state's fireworks law is a first-degree misdemeanor, which carries a maximum penalty of one year in the county jail, Spolski said.

"We'll give people a warning and maybe take the fireworks away if they have a good attitude about it," Sheriff John Polk said. "If they have a bad attitude, well, they'll probably be going to court to face, at least, a fine."

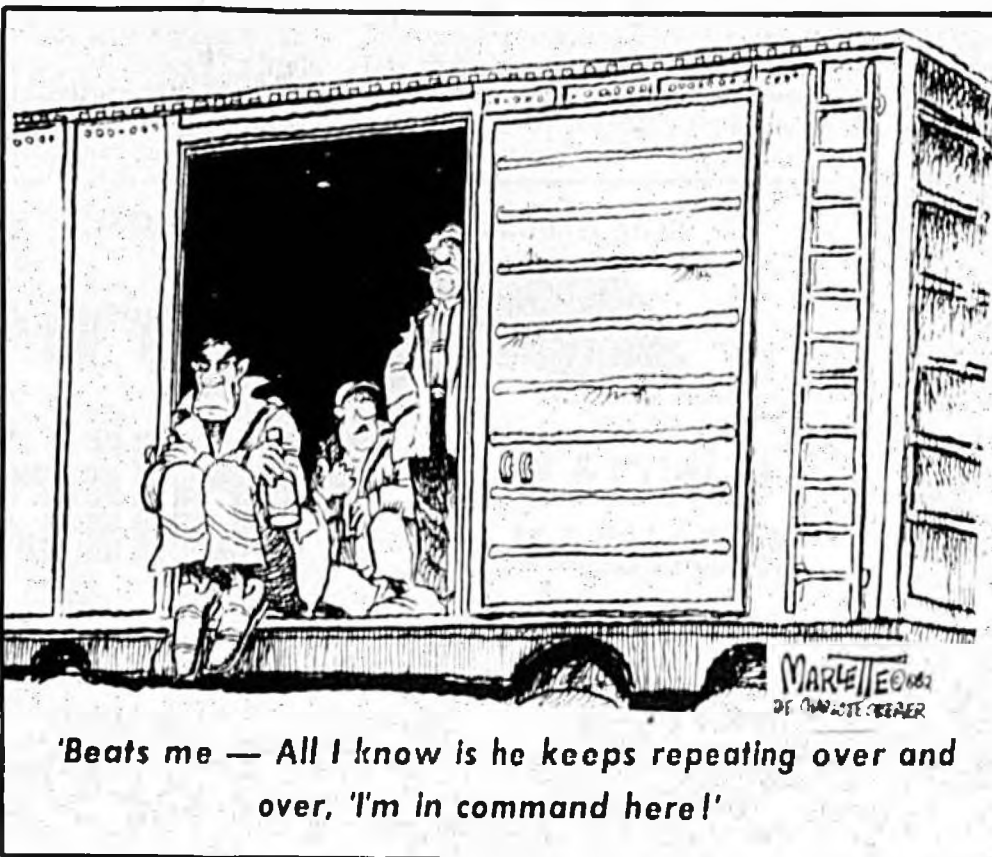

"If I were the parents of kids, I wouldn't even let them use the sparklers or firecaps that are legal," said Sanford Fire Chief W.C. Gailey. "Fireworks, even in the hands of professionals, are dangerous and children have no business playing with them. There are enough planned, professional displays around for children to see the fireworks."

According to reports from the National Society to Prevent Blindness (Florida Affiliate), fireworks injuries climbed 21 percent in 1981 over 1980 reported injuries. Of the 11,400 people who sought treatment in the state's hospital emergency rooms, 1,600 or 14 percent of them suffered eye injuries.

Recent studies of fireworks, reveal that a bottle rockets, sparklers, punks, firecrackers and the M-80s, cause the greatest amount of personal damage to people.

"Even seemingly safe sparklers — one of the most popular items — often burn in excess of 1,500 degrees Fahrenheit," one doctor said. "Popular with children, a sparkler can cause a severe burn — especially to the eyes."

South Atlantic Battle 2

The battle for the Falklands-Malvinas is over. But the battle for the South Atlantic will continue.

The struggle to militarize the ocean separating Africa and South America involves a tentative alliance of many of the nations that were at odds until Stanley fell in mid-June. Over the past few years, Paraguay, South Africa, Chile, Uruguay, the United States, Britain, Argentina and Brazil have entered into an unannounced treaty relationship to secure control of the South Atlantic for Western interests.

Every month 3,000 ships cross the South Atlantic carrying 80 percent of the oil supplies of the NATO member states and 70 percent of their strategic minerals. Thus, keeping the ocean open is of vital importance to military planners in the North and South Atlantic.

Under the proposed alliance, NATO would supply the navies of these friendly South Atlantic countries with the military hardware necessary to police the region.

Until recently the unsavory international reputation of South Africa and several of the South American states made such an arrangement politically untenable. Seven years ago, domestic objections forced the British to abandon the most sophisticated naval base in the region, Simonstown in South Africa. The alliance faced another threat in 1977, when the United Nations implemented an arms embargo against South Africa.

But international revulsion at South Africa's apartheid policies did not stop the growing military ties between South Africa, Chile and Argentina — with the apparent covert support of the Western powers.

Ronald Reagan's election changed the equation in the South Atlantic. The administration's emphasis on increased American military strength and improved relations with those three countries has given further impetus to the still-secret alliance.

In May 1981, military experts from Chile, Paraguay, Uruguay, Brazil, Argentina, South Africa and the United States quietly gathered in Argentina for a privately sponsored "inter-American symposium" on future military cooperation, an embryonic "South Atlantic Treaty Organization."

It is still too early to determine whether the battle for the Falklands-Malvinas has permanently damaged the alliance's chances for success. The Reagan administration clearly intends to do all it can to heal that breach and to foster strong military cooperation to protect the South Atlantic as an open passageway for the oil and minerals needed by the NATO states.

Meanwhile, it is certain that South Africa's ties with Argentina and her neighbors in the Non-Aligned Movement will continue to grow as they have for more than 15 years.

The Sunday Times of Johannesburg, for example, recently reported the existence of a secret 13-year-old treaty among South Africa, Argentina, Brazil, Uruguay, Taiwan and Israel. Argentina's charge d'affaires in Pretoria, Alfredo Oliva Day, admitted that there was a treaty but refused to divulge its details.

According to the Times, 38 high-ranking generals from the treaty states have visited South Africa in the past 12 months. Among them was Gen. Mario Benjamin Menendez, the operational chief of staff of the Argentine army and briefly the governor of the Malvinas.

Other South African press reports say that Pretoria supplied Argentina with missiles, ammunition and spare parts during its battle with Britain. The Johannesburg Star reported that spare parts for Mirage jets and Israeli-designed missiles manufactured in South Africa were flown to Argentina from Cape Town on Uruguayan planes.

In April, South Africa's minister of foreign affairs, Roelof Botha, told his parliament that "there is an understanding on the military level" between South Africa and Argentina, including an agreement on "joint naval exercises."

Finally, before the recent hostilities, the South African press reported that four Argentine military men stationed in South Africa as diplomats had been the chief torturers of the Escuela Mecanica de la Armada, which Amnesty International has blamed for the deaths of 4,000 Argentines between 1974 and 1978.

Hinckley Insanity Defense

What kind of message does the Hinckley verdict send out to the crazies across the country about the risks of taking a couple of shots at or even killing a public figure?

You can bet they are getting the message loud and clear: No, you will not be executed, of course, but you will very likely not even go to jail. You will receive treatment, i.e., be the object of lots of attention, and you will become very famous.

If from the standpoint of sheer civic prudence this verdict is a nightmare, from the perspective of law it is an intellectual disgrace. According to the applicable federal law, the burden of proof was on the prosecutors TO PROVE HINCKLEY SANE beyond a reasonable doubt — a very difficult order. The beleaguered jury had to resolve any doubt, any reasonable suspicion that Hinckley might be insane, in the direction of acquittal. Under the existing law, this jury cannot be blamed for the verdict it turned in.

But, sometime down the road — the minimum is 50 days — the prosecutors will have to reverse their field in order to keep Hinckley locked up in the mental hospital. They will then have to argue that Hinckley is INSANE!

Is there any wonder that the outrage is boiling up, from street corner to Congress, about this charade?

Not surprisingly, it has been the shooting of a president — plus the crippling of the noble James Brady — that has produced this firestorm of indignation, but the insanity plea has been on the ropes during the past several years, most notably over the verdict in the Richard Herrin case.

Herrin, a Yale graduate, jilted by his undergraduate girlfriend Bonnie Garland, sneaked into her bedroom and beat her skull in with a claw hammer. Instead of being convicted for murder, he received a manslaughter sentence — because he had acted under mental stress — which will allow him to be out in five years.

It is the Herrin-Garland case that is the subject of a thoughtful new book on the insanity plea and on the entire role of psychiatry in legal proceedings, a book very timely now in view of the Hinckley case. It's by a professional psychiatrist connected with Columbia Medical Center, Dr. Willard Gaylin, and it's called "The Killing of Bonnie Garland" (Simon and Schuster).

Dr. Gaylin sees, as we all do, that there is a conflict between psychiatry on the one hand and the goals of the law on the other, but he correctly, I think, believes that it is not a conflict between truth and falsehoods.

Psychiatry and law have different purposes. Therefore they posit different models of human behavior, both to an undeterminable degree feticitous.

According to the psychiatric model, all human behavior — benevolent as well as criminal — emerges from and is heavily influenced by past experience. This is useful as a model for therapy, but it obviously tends to erode individual responsibility.

The legal model is quite different. It assumes, with Aristotle, that "what was done, might not have been done." It stresses choice and responsibility.

No society can survive without the legal model. It protects the interests of the community.

What Is Right With America

As Independence Day of 1982 is here, in a time in which we hear so much of what is wrong with our country and its people, so much that is cynical and pessimistic, may I suggest and encourage all those in positions of public responsibility to take time to discover and publicly emphasize what is right with America.

We, as Americans, are well aware of our shortcomings, both as a nation and as individual citizens. News commentators, politicians, clergymen, educators constantly reiterate the areas of American life where changes need to be made, shortcomings corrected, abuses remedied. We are concerned about social injustice, economic inequality, prejudices of many kinds. Our concern causes us to consistently seek and consider ways of improvement, that ours might be a better America.

However, in our zealotry to correct and improve the various facets of national life — political, economic, educational, cultural, social — we have to often emphasized what is wrong with America and have completely overlooked some of the more positive aspects of our national background and heritage. We have neglected or forgotten those things which flourished in her beginnings, that have aided in her development, that have contributed to her maturity, and give best promise for her ongoing future, — the things that are right with America.

Our American heritage has been one of courage, initiative, and imagination in forging out of an uncivilized wilderness of a great nation, the richest, most powerful and most magnanimous in this world's history. Scientific achievements have moved our people from the frugality of a frontier existence to the abundance and prosperity of a technological civilization.

While we are apt to criticize the imperfections of our political system, yet it has granted a fuller measure of freedom to more people than any other system man has devised, past or present. While her boundaries expanded, her shores embraced untold millions seeking escape from oppression in many lands to find refuge and a new way of life in this land we call America. Our "minorities" have been such a marked improvement in their economic, political and social status in the past few decades that they are now far better off than the citizens of most every nation on the face of the earth.

In an age when religious prejudice is still widely prevalent, erupting into violence and riots, and even war, by contrast in America there is more genuine religious understanding, tolerance, and true freedom to worship as one's conscience leads than can be found in practically any other sector of the globe.

In a period of unresolved internal tensions of many kinds, America still has the fortitude, courage and initiative to recognize her weaknesses and failures, and then take steps within the framework of democratic government to develop, to correct, to improve, to mature as a nation to meet successfully the challenges of our times.

While we must continue to publicize the negatives in order to enlighten our population and takes measures to remedy our failures and errors, let us take time on this Independence Day to emphasize those things which are right with America, to emphasize those things which have made her a great nation, to emphasize those things which have given her people the full measure of freedom, those things which have made her great in courage, in compassion, in humanitarianism, in defense of human rights and dignities. Then, perhaps, we can regain some of our unresolved problems, — and with Divine guidance and help, in the coming generation, make everything right with America!

Legal System Questioned Following Hinckley Verdict

Joe DeSantis

Herald Staff Writer

agree whether Hinckley was sane at the time of his actions.

In federal cases dealing with insanity defense, it is the prosecution that must prove "beyond a reasonable doubt" that the defendant was sane at the time of the crime.

The prosecution failed to do so in the Hinckley case, and despite later expressing personal anger and uneasiness about their verdict, many of the jury members stated they were compelled to cast their innocent votes by the guidelines of the law instead of the guidelines of their consciences.

Said one juror, "If the psychiatrists can't decide whether or not Hinckley is sane and guilty, how can we?"

To fairly place the insanity defense in perspective, it should be pointed out the plea of innocent by reason of insanity is submitted in only one out of approximately every 1,000 cases.

That figure probably seems out of proportion because the insanity plea more often than not is invoked in sensational trials such as Hinckley's.

Historically, insanity acquittals have taught the judicial system some bitter lessons, lessons that for the most part have gone unheeded.

Michael Hightower, a Vietnam veteran who raped two Idaho women and was declared not guilty of both crimes by reason of mental illness was confined for psychiatric treatment for less than a year. Six months after his release, Hightower was arrested again for shooting a nurse and was finally convicted of assault with intent to kill.

In 1973, Charles Meach kicked to death a retarded Alaskan Indian youth, but was acquitted by reason of insanity.

Meach was released a short time later on a work-furlough program after psychiatrists concluded that his mental illness was in remission. So much for psychiatric opinions. Meach is now charged with slaying four teen-agers at a state park in Achorage.

Immediately following his acquittal, Hinckley was whisked away to St. Elizabeth's Hospital to be confined for psychiatric treatment until psychiatrists say he is no longer a threat to himself or society.

Hinckley's affluent parents say they will take no immediate action to have him released. Hinckley's smug lawyer said he won't seek any ruling on Hinckley's mental state in the near future, either. But how long will John Hinckley Jr. stay confined? Six months, a year, five years?

Somewhere in the future, and I suspect before this decade has expired, John Hinckley Jr. will walk the streets again.

If there is a blessing in disguise over the frustrating Hinckley verdict, it is in the fact that many states are now re-examining their insanity defense procedures; some states are making moves to abolish the insanity defense completely.

No doubt there have been and will be in the future criminal acts such as Hinckley's, committed by individuals who are indeed, by reason of mental illness, not responsible for their actions.

But wouldn't it make more sense to streamline a jury's duty, and for that matter a judge's duty, to strictly determine guilt or innocence based solely on facts presented in a case? If an innocent by reason of insanity plea is to be invoked, the judicial system might regain respect and authority by submitting the insanity defense after the verdict. We should not place jurors and judges in the impossible position of determining mental health. But we should give judges the discretion of incorporating insanity pleas in considering sentences for those found guilty. Consideration of a convicted individual's mental state at the time of his crime is necessary. But that consideration should come only after a verdict is rendered; it shouldn't dictate the verdict.

Tell me that John Hinckley Jr. was more than a little off his mental wagon when he tried to kill our president!

But don't tell me that John Hinckley Jr. is innocent.

Military Spending Check Needed

In 1957 C. Northcote Parkinson wrote "Parkinson's Law." In the book he cites the activities of a budget review committee and makes the point that groups of people tend to discuss ad nauseum things they understand and to approve complex and difficult items and issues with little or no debate. These procedures have applicability to the Congress and the public at large.

Military budgets are regularly approved by large margins in both the Senate and the House of Representatives. The public, wishing to have the best possible defense establishment, routinely applauds these actions as being in the best interests of the nation. It is past time to take a hard look at this situation.

Specific examples of the way the Congress reviews and approves military budgets are found in the following facts. Recently, an aide to a Western senator listened as a visitor questioned the ability of our proposed military establishment to fight and win a conventional munitions war on the Eurasian land mass. The man expressed the view that to have any chance of winning such a war there would be a need to have readily available stocks of war equipment and trained manpower to a strength above anything put forward by this Administration. The costs of procuring and maintaining such a force would be astronomical. At the conclusion of the conversation the senatorial aide asked pointedly, "Why are you telling me, we are not on the Armed Services Committee?"

In another story of what seems to happen to military budgets in the Congress a recently retired top aide to a well known senator was asked to give his estimate of the percentage of Senators and House members who knew in any detail what they were voting on. His estimate, based on years of experience, was that no more than 5 to 8 percent of the members, exclusive of the two Armed Services Committees, had detailed knowledge of what the bills contained.

Dr. Harold Brown, secretary of defense under President Carter, complained that the same Congress that bewailed the lack of efficiency in Defense kept him from closing obsolete facilities.

These examples, while not conclusive, tend to show that this Parkinson's Law is in effect on Capitol Hill as related to military affairs. While members sound off loudly about food stamps, housing, medicare, transportation, public health, interest rates, etc., they offer almost total obedience to the actions of the Armed Services Committees.

The leading advocate for change, the "Congressional military reform group" motivated by Senator Hart of Colorado, feels that Defense priorities must be brought into line with what history tells is important in winning and therefore deterring wars. The senator, a leader of this group, in an article in the "New York Times" magazine in February, states his belief that the current "fire power-attribution" strategy first used in World War I is the choice of Defense in fighting wars of the future.

The group feels this is wrong because success depends on superiority in numbers of both equipment and manpower and the United States possesses neither when compared to the USSR. The group believes that to win a war with the USSR we must develop the strategy of "maneuver warfare."

The outlook for change in Congress is not bright. Over the years the Defense Department has developed a cozy relationship with the Armed Services Committees and the Appropriations Committees of both houses. These people do not encourage other members of Congress to play the role of overseer.

An informed public can force an examination and the media must assume the role of educator. People must realize that Defense budgets are not sacrosanct. The public must insist that military budgets be more thoroughly examined by Congress. It would be tragic if the nation spends $1.5 trillion for Defense over the next few years only to learn that the nation prepared for the wrong war.

Uniform Underwear Coming?

It is absolutely delightful that Mr. Kaiser and his supportive County Commissioners have approved the concept of coed sleeping wear for Seminole County firefighters. One must wonder now, will the lady firefighters be supportive in their costume also, or we will reach a sexual discrimination, much as our Florida bicycle paths?

Does he or doesn't he? Does she or doesn't she? A clear profile of "he" and "she" will certainly tell.

Kaiser and his committee deserve the taxpayers everlasting thanks for resolving a unisex sleeping costume although Ann Landers might disagree.

Appreciates Lyman Sports Coverage

I would like to take the opportunity to express my sincere gratitude for the time and support sports editor Sam Cook gave to me and to Lyman High School this year.

His interest and support of our school, its students and its programs, are genuinely appreciated. This type of leadership and generosity is a source of inspiration and credit to our community.

I would like to thank him once again for the role he played in making the athletic programs at Lyman a success this year.

Hinckley Decision Is Opposed

The decision by the jury to find John Hinckley Jr. not guilty of shooting President Reagan and three others with a gun loaded with devastator bullets is a national disgrace. The Washington Legal Foundation deplors the use of the insanity defense which allows violent criminals like John Hinckley Jr. to escape punishment for their crime.

Hopefully, the verdict will spur legislative efforts to repeal the use of the insanity defense.

Under current law, if John Hinckley Jr. is found not to be a danger to himself or society, he must be set free within 90 days, and conceivably could then appear on talk shows or write a book about his attempt to kill the President which left the Press Secretary James Brady permanently disabled and seriously injured a District of Columbia policeman and Secret Service agent.

As part of its Crime Victims' Program, the Washington Legal Foundation is representing the injured Secret Service agent in a civil lawsuit against Hinckley for money damages.

Although Hinckley's expensive lawyers are also raising the insanity defense in the civil lawsuit, our research shows that the law does not usually excuse an insane or incompetent person from liability for compensatory damages in a civil suit, an issue which the Foundation intends to pursue. Unfortunately, the law allows violent criminals to spend all of their money for their lawyers with no assurance that any will be left to begin to pay the medical bills for the victims.

The Washington Legal Foundation is a nonprofit public interest legal center with 80,000 members and 120,000 supporters and donors nationwide, which promotes individual freedom, limited government, a free market economy, and strong national defense. Unlike the ACLU, we promote the rights of the victims rather than criminals, and support victims' restitution, the use of a Victim Impact Statement in sentencing criminals, the death penalty, preventive detention, and the curtailment of parole, all of which we believe to be the true public interest.

Facing Death Is Difficult

By CLAUDE PEPPER
Chairman, House Select Committee on Aging

Q. My grandmother has terminal cancer. She is very depressed, of course, and my mother has begun to fall apart due to the stresses facing the family.

I think both of them need help, and I don't know where to turn.

A. Each of you is facing a very difficult situation always fraught with powerful emotions and concerns. Fortunately, there are resources to help individuals and families cope with the prospect of death.

Your family may wish to involve a member of the clergy in helping to ease your burdens. Spiritual guidance may offer your grandmother and mother the perspective they need to adjust to this powerful and personal event.

The concept of hospice care, which originated in England, has also begun to gather strength and attention in this country.

Hospices provide social, medical and psychological support to patients and their families, while helping individuals to remain free from pain and to maintain dignity through the last days of life.

Home care is the central concept of the hospice, so families are generally able to remain together and benefit from the assistance of professionals and volunteers who understand their needs and feelings.

Hospice services of a skilled medical nature may be covered under Medicare, and pending legislation would provide more comprehensive Medicare coverage for a broader range of hospice care.

You may wish to contact the National Hospice Organization, 1311-A Dolly Madison Blvd., McLean, Va. 22101, telephone (703) 358-6770, for more information about hospices to your area.

Q. The company I work for is in financial trouble but still operating.

To tell you the truth, the Braniff collapse has me worried. If the company goes down, what happens to all our pension money?

A. Your concern is justified. One of the first programs to suffer when an employer meets financial difficulty is the pension plan that covers the employees.

In many cases, financially pressed employers apply to the Internal Revenue Service for a waiver from the requirement that they contribute to the pension plan.

Other companies simply decide not to contribute within a given year because their profits or earnings are low or nonexistent. This increases what is called the unfunded liability of the plan — that is, the total amount that the employers is obligated to pay to meet his promise of future retirement benefits to employees, less plan assets.

With Unemployment High And Summer Ahead, Officials Fear Stage Is Set For Trouble, Protests

By CINDY McAFFEE
United Press International

Those jobless blues young blacks are singing on Southern street corners may turn into howls of protest if unemployment gets worse as summer wears on, government and civil rights officials predict.

With jobless rates for young blacks hitting as high as 50 percent in some areas of the seven-state region, officials say the stage is set for trouble.

Most expect an increase in crime at the very least. Many warn that racial unrest is heating up due to high prices and little money as July comes to the South.

But none would come right out and predict violent protest. "I don't want to be quoted as saying we are going to have riots," said Tony Ojeda, assistant Dade County manager in Miami. "But one can fairly easily say, with large numbers of black kids on the streets with nothing to do, the chances for an increase in crime and unrest would increase."

"Clearly anytime you have unhappy kids with all kinds of economic, social and psychological problems during the summer months, you'll have some unrest," said Ojeda, director of a shrinking summer jobs program in a city staggered by a racial uprising in May of 1980.

In Chattanooga, a city ripped by riots after three Ku Klux Klansmen shot three black women and were declared innocent of attempted first-degree murder by an all-white jury in July of 1980, "Everything seems under control," said George Key, local NAACP president. "But it might break loose due to joblessness and unrest on the part of black teenagers."

"We certainly have a restive feeling," said James Wright, director of human relations for the City of Greensboro, where five Communists died in a shootout with Nazis and the KKK in November of 1979. "We have to monitor it but I don't see the kind of out-and-out violence that possibly could happen."

Most officials interviewed said racial anger and frustration will continue to steam below the surface unless something happens to make it boil over onto the streets.

The Rev. William R. Johnson, president of the Memphis NAACP, said it wouldn't take a major event — like the shooting of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in 1968 — to set off riots. "All of the fuel is there for unrest," he said. "Anything could set it off."

"I am apprehensive about the situation because I see a lot of frustrations," said Jack Bullard, director of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg County (N.C.) Community Relations Committee. "It's a generalized feeling, and unless and until some specific incident or some specific individual problem becomes the focus of the negative feelings I would not expect overt action." Greensboro's 1979 slayings were the focus of simmering racial tension nationwide that erupted the next summer, most noticeably in Miami and Chattanooga.

This summer, between 40 and 50 percent of Miami's 63,000 young blacks are unemployed, according to official estimates. In some neighborhoods, the jobless rate hits 70 percent.

On top of that, two-thirds of CETA's former 10,000 summer jobs were cut due to lack of funding.

Although Miami's refugee problem is being eased by a $31 million federal grant delivered last week, a U.S. Civil Rights Commission study released in June said the 1980 Miami-Liberty City riots could recur unless something is done about the problems in black communities.

United Way released a five-year racial tension forecast for Dade County last week, which predicted youth unemployment will lead to "a potentially explosive situation for the summer months of '82."

Without jobs, young blacks in Chattanooga have little to do but "stand around," said Key. "When you don't have anything to do, the devil goes to work. With dope running around and narcotics, anything can trigger anything."

Mississippi's CETA program was cut 25 percent this year, and officials there expect a big increase in crimes like shoplifting and vandalism.

But unemployment isn't the only sour note in black communities. Complaints of inadequate housing and the near impossibility for any black to break into the Southern business world also roll from black tenements and shanties.

"The young people can look at TV and see how wealthy Americans are, then they can look at the poverty they live in and think, 'Why do I have to live this way?'" said Louis Armstrong, chairman of the board of Mississippi's Operation PUSH.

Armstrong, who is also with the Mississippi Legal Services Coalition, said he is hearing more and more blacks grumbling about problems in getting food stamps. He said several have told him that they were laid off and whites were hired in their place, but his office is helpless to act on the complaints.

Civil Rights Commissioner Clarence Pendleton blamed "lack of access to job training and advancement, inadequate housing, an insensitive justice system and the absence of equal educational opportunities" as well as high unemployment for frustration in Miami's black neighborhoods.

Supreme Court

Limits Use Of The Death Penalty In Some Murder Cases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a major death penalty ruling, the Supreme Court Friday struck down 54 the use of capital punishment for criminals convicted of felony murder but who did not actually do the killing and never meant to kill.

The decision cuts back use of the death penalty as punishment for the crime of felony murder where intent to kill is not proven and there is no proof the person sentenced actually pulled the trigger.

It throws into doubt the death sentences of condemned inmates in at least nine states where the death penalty is provided for someone who simply participated in a felony, such as a robbery, in which a death occurs.

The decision specifically grants a reprieve for Earl Enmund, who was sentenced to die in Florida's electric chair for the robbery and slaying of an elderly rural couple in April 1975.

"We have no doubt that robbery is a serious crime deserving serious punishment," wrote Justice Byron White for the sharply divided court.

"It is not, however, a crime so grievous an affront to humanity that the only adequate response may be the penalty of death."

"It does not compare with murder, which does involve the unjustified taking of human life. Although it may be accompanied by another crime, robbery by definition does not include the death or even the serious injury to another person," White wrote.

"We have the abiding conviction that the death penalty, which is unique in its severity and irrevocability, is an excessive penalty for the robber who, as such, does not take human life," the court concluded.

Evidence at trial showed that Enmund drove the getaway car and was 200 yards from the couple's central Florida farmhouse when Enmund's accomplice shot and killed Thomas Kersey, 86, and his wife, Eunice, 74.

Paves The Way For Banning Of Child Pornography

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court forcefully attacked the "serious national problem" of lewd films and photographs using children, ruling 9-0 Friday child pornography can be banned even if it is not legally obscene.

The decision by the justices — delivered as they concluded their 1981-82 term — upholds laws in 20 states against material depicting children engaged in explicitly sexual conduct.

The justices found the social evil of child pornography is so great that states can prohibit its distribution, regardless of whether it meets the high court's standards for determining obscenity.

The result is a major victory for New York prosecutors, who persuaded the court to reinstate the conviction of Paul Ira Ferber, a Manhattan adult bookstore owner, for selling two films depicting sexual acts by young boys.

Writing for the unanimous court, Justice Byron White declared, "In recent years, the exploitive use of children in the production of pornography has become a serious national problem."

"The distribution of photographs and films depicting sexual activity by juveniles is related to the sexual abuse of children," he added.

The ruling declares that such anti-kidporn laws do not violate First Amendment free speech guarantees and states are entitled to "greater leeway" in regulating such material.

The decision comes at a time, according to witnesses at a House subcommittee hearing last week, that President Reagan's budget cuts are undermining programs designed to save children from being lured into pornography and prostitution.

New York and 19 other states have attempted to combat the problem of child abuse by barring dissemination of material depicting children engaged in sexual conduct, regardless of whether it is obscene in a legal sense.

The justices wrapped up their nine month term by postponing one of the top cases confronting it — a historic balance-of-power struggle testing the constitutionality of Congress' legislative veto. It will be heard again next fall.

In another crucial decision, the court unanimously upheld the right of citizens to stage non-violent political boycotts without fear they later will be forced to make up business losses.

The 8-0 ruling in the case from Port Gibson, Miss., saved the NAACP and a group of black townspeople from being held liable for losses suffered by local merchants when a civil rights boycott was staged.

In other actions Friday, the court: — Ruled 7-2 in a California case involving illegal aliens who witness crimes the government may deport aliens it thinks are not essential to the case.

— Heeding warnings that the nation's ground water supply is threatened by overuse, ruled 7-2 that states can prohibit people from transporting ground water to another state.

— Agreed to step into a bigtime college football controversy focusing on whether players can sue coaches for abusing them — mentally and physically — during practices and games. The appeal, to be heard next fall, involves former Arizona State University coach Frank Kush, now coach of the Baltimore Colts.

— Wrote the final chapter in a long legal battle between the Black Panther Party and the government, dismissing a case charging top federal officials conspired to destroy the group.

The Sun, DNA, And Cancer

DALLAS (UPI) — The next time you go out to soak up some of the Texas sun, keep in mind the phrase "deoxyribonucleic acid," warns a dermatologist.

DNA, the genetic composition of the human body, is what the merciless Texas sun destroys when the body is exposed to the elements for a long time, says Dr. Willis Cattel of Baylor University Medical Center's Sammons Cancer Center.

"The rate of skin cancer in Texas is almost 100 times higher than it is in northern states like Minnesota or Vermont," Cattel says. "The rate here and in places like Florida is so much higher because we're closer to the sun."

Cancer develops, he says, because sun's ultraviolet rays damage the DNA in the nuclei of the skin's basal cells. When the DNA fails to correct itself, irregular cellular divisions occur, creating a tumor.

Even those who don't tan themselves run the risk of skin cancer, says Cattel. This category includes those with fair skin, freckles and light hair.

"The exposure to the sun is an additive thing. It starts during childhood and increases with the years. The people who get skin cancer are ones who get the maximum exposure."

Cattel says skin cancer occurs mainly on the face around the eyes, ears and nose, which is especially difficult to treat because so many different facial planes can be involved.

Cattel relies on a 35-year-old technique called Moh's surgery to treat his patients.

The affected portion is locally anesthetized and the tumor is removed layer by layer. Cattel says as each layer is removed, it is stained and put under microscopic examination.

When no cancerous cells appear in the layer being studied, he knows he has removed all of the tumor.

Moh's surgery is performed on an outpatient basis and usually is completed in one day.

"Skin cancer can be quite deceiving in appearance," the doctor said. "Some tumors are like icebergs. What doesn't look like much more than a bump at the surface can extend quite a way underneath. It's important that all the tumor be removed."

convicted of DUI to obtain restricted licenses to drive to and from work until the substance-abuse course requirement is satisfied.

"We have been in the past using a six-man DUI task force which was funded under a federal grant to concentrate specifically on DUI violators," Polk said. "We are continuing that task force but it is now funded under our budget and not the grant, cutting out the federal paperwork. The team works from 8 p.m. until 4 a.m., seven days a week in shifts. We don't sit outside of bars and wait for people to come out but we do patrol high accident areas and areas the past has shown to be high DUI violation areas."

Polk said although his department has a DUI task force, "if our other deputies come upon the same situation they'll make the arrest."

Shea, echoing Polk's comments concerning the new law, said his department's officers "are all capable and able to make DUI arrests and will do so. From there, it's up to the courts and state attorneys to arrive at the punishment."

The courts will see "an increase for the next 18 months of people requesting trials on DUI charges, especially those people who can afford a lawyer." He added the caseload will diminish as more people become aware of the law and its penalties.

— Doug Cheshire

According to court records, about 620 DUI arrests have been made in Seminole County from Jan. 1, 1982 through June 22, averaging about 100 arrests per month. Records show that another 303 arrests were made charging people with driving with unlawful blood alcohol levels, which is a lesser charge than DUI and is often dropped when a plea of guilty or a conviction is obtained on the DUI charge.

State Rep. Dick Batchelor, an author of the new law, said the statute could be improved upon but that it will be a powerful tool against violators.

Batchelor, a Democrat from Orlando and candidate for Congress from the Fifth District, also used Thursday's joint press conference with Orange County Sheriff Lawson Lamar to blast Seminole State Attorney Douglas Cheshire for what he calls "a lousy job" of prosecuting cases. Batchelor said he is upset that Cheshire's office has allowed 16 felony cases to be dismissed because his office failed to prosecute within the state-required time periods.

taping equipment. Like most small municipalities, Casselberry isn't presently equipped to conduct urinalysis to detect drugs. Gates said those suspected of driving under the influence of narcotics will be taken to Florida Hospital North for a urine test.

Longwood Police Captain Joseph Palumbo indicated the Longwood Police Department wouldn't be taking any unusual steps to enforce the new law.

"We'll just be following suit with what Longwood has done in the past," Palumbo said. "Our department already has a pretty high arrest record against drunk drivers. We won't be trying harder."

Palumbo said like most police departments, Longwood is encouraged by the new, tougher DUI law.

"We'll still basically be using the breathalyzer and video taping to catch people under the influence," Palumbo said.

He added that he was waiting to see the specific wording on the urinalysis provision of the new bill before the Longwood departments takes any additional steps in putting the brakes on drugged drivers.

In Winter Springs, Police Lt. Bo Smart said that since drunk driving hasn't been a problem for the city in the past, his department plans to make no changes in its enforcement of the DUI law.

Provisions Of New DUI Law

"He should work on commission," said Batchelor, who on previous occasions has expressed his dissatisfaction with Cheshire's handling of a January case in which charges against a Seminole County man were dismissed because the state failed to prosecute in time. The man had been charged with striking and killing a 13-year-old girl with his car while she and her friends were walking to a nearby store, reports show. Police reports indicate the man had been drinking.

"I recognize the case he (Batchelor) talks about," Cheshire said. "The man has a credibility problem with me. I've spoken to the man once in my life for about three minutes although he claims he has talked with me at length about the speedy trial law and DUI issue. He is a political issue and in my opinion, Mr. Batchelor is nothing but Dicky-come-lately."

Cheshire said he feels Batchelor has done nothing to help the speedy trial situation and "I feel confident in saying that he knows very little about the problem or how to solve it."

"Mr. Batchelor is not a concerned person, but a political person," Cheshire added.

Concerning enforcement of the new DUI law, Cheshire said he feels the courts will see "an increase for the next 18 months of people requesting trials on DUI charges, especially those people who can afford a lawyer." He added the caseload will diminish as more people become aware of the law and its penalties. Cheshire's office employs three prosecutors of DUI cases and is expected to hire two additional attorneys within two months.

"I anticipate more trials but I don't feel they will clog the system so that we'll see a breakdown in the justice system," he continued.

He said he feels juries will be less tolerant of the motorist under the influence of drugs than the drinking driver because "so many people are inclined to take a sociable drink."

Their Faith and Courage gave us One Nation Under God...

Early two centuries ago, a small group of men with everything to lose and possibly nothing to gain stood firm in their faith and their convictions when they affixed their signatures to a document the like of which has never been seen in all the history of mankind. Disregarding fear for their safety and, in some cases, their children's safety, they literally pledged "their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor" in exchange for the many freedoms which you enjoy today, including the right to worship God in any way you choose. Avail yourself of this privilege for which they gave everything they had. Attend and support the Church of your choice!

DeLand Jumps On Chiodini

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

DeLAND — Don't blame Altamonte Springs Legion lefthander Doug Chiodini for feeling like a range ball after Friday's encounter with the host team of the Firecracker Tournament.

DeLand, a combination of St. Johns Junior College, Stetson University and area prep players, teed off on Chiodini like a Saturday afternoon at Gene Jones' driving range.

Thirteen hits later, DeLand remained unbeaten in the tournament with an 11-2 cakewalk past manager Bob McCullough's crew.

"We just ran out of pitchers," said an exasperated McCullough who turned to youngsters Jody Foster and Clint Baker after ace Kevin Brubaker failed to show for the third straight game.

Altamonte, 2-1 and defending champion, tries to regroup in the loser's bracket against Miami or Hialeah Saturday at 2:30 p.m. DeLand faces powerful West Tampa or Brandon in Saturday's feature game at 5 p.m.

Chiodini, who relies primarily on breaking pitches, breezed through the first two innings yielding a harmless single.

He was in immediate trouble, however, in the third. Darrell Badger singled and Robert Gregory reached when Mike Sawyer tried to nip Badger at second on Gregory's bunt.

Chuck Melton flew out to center field, but Steve Woide crushed a curveball over John Reich's head in right field to give DeLand a 2-0 lead.

In the fourth, Kenny Mullen doubled and Lane Ward blooped a hit to right to move Mullen to third. Ward promptly stole second and Badger followed with a long fly to center to make it 3-0.

Gregory then crunched a single to left which chased home Ward for a 4-0 lead. Melton followed with a shot into the left-field corner to plate Gregory for a 5-0 bulge.

Chiodini walked Todd Barfield to lead off the fifth inning and John Brenner ripped a liner over the left-field fence near the foul pole for a 7-0 lead.

This finished Chiodini and McCullough went to Foster. Foster walked three of the next four hitters to load the bases and bring on Baker.

Baker, a freshman standout for Lyman this year, was a bit overmatched, but showed a lot of poise by getting out of the inning with only one run scoring.

Altamonte, meanwhile, finally broke into the scoring column in the sixth frame. Kenny Brown singled, stole second and went to third when the throw went into center field.

In the sixth, some shoddy fielding helped DeLand register two more runs with the key hits a single by Barfield and a double by Mullen for a 10-0 lead.

Baker hurt himself in the seventh by throwing away the third out on an easy hopper to the mound. Barfield made him pay for a double over the left fielder's head.

Reich ripped his second hit over the shortstop's head to score Brown. David Martinez, 0-for-7 since a double in the opener, forced Reich at second.

Martinez stole and went to third on another catcher's overthrow. Tom Perkins rapped a ground ball to third base and Martinez scored the final Altamonte run.

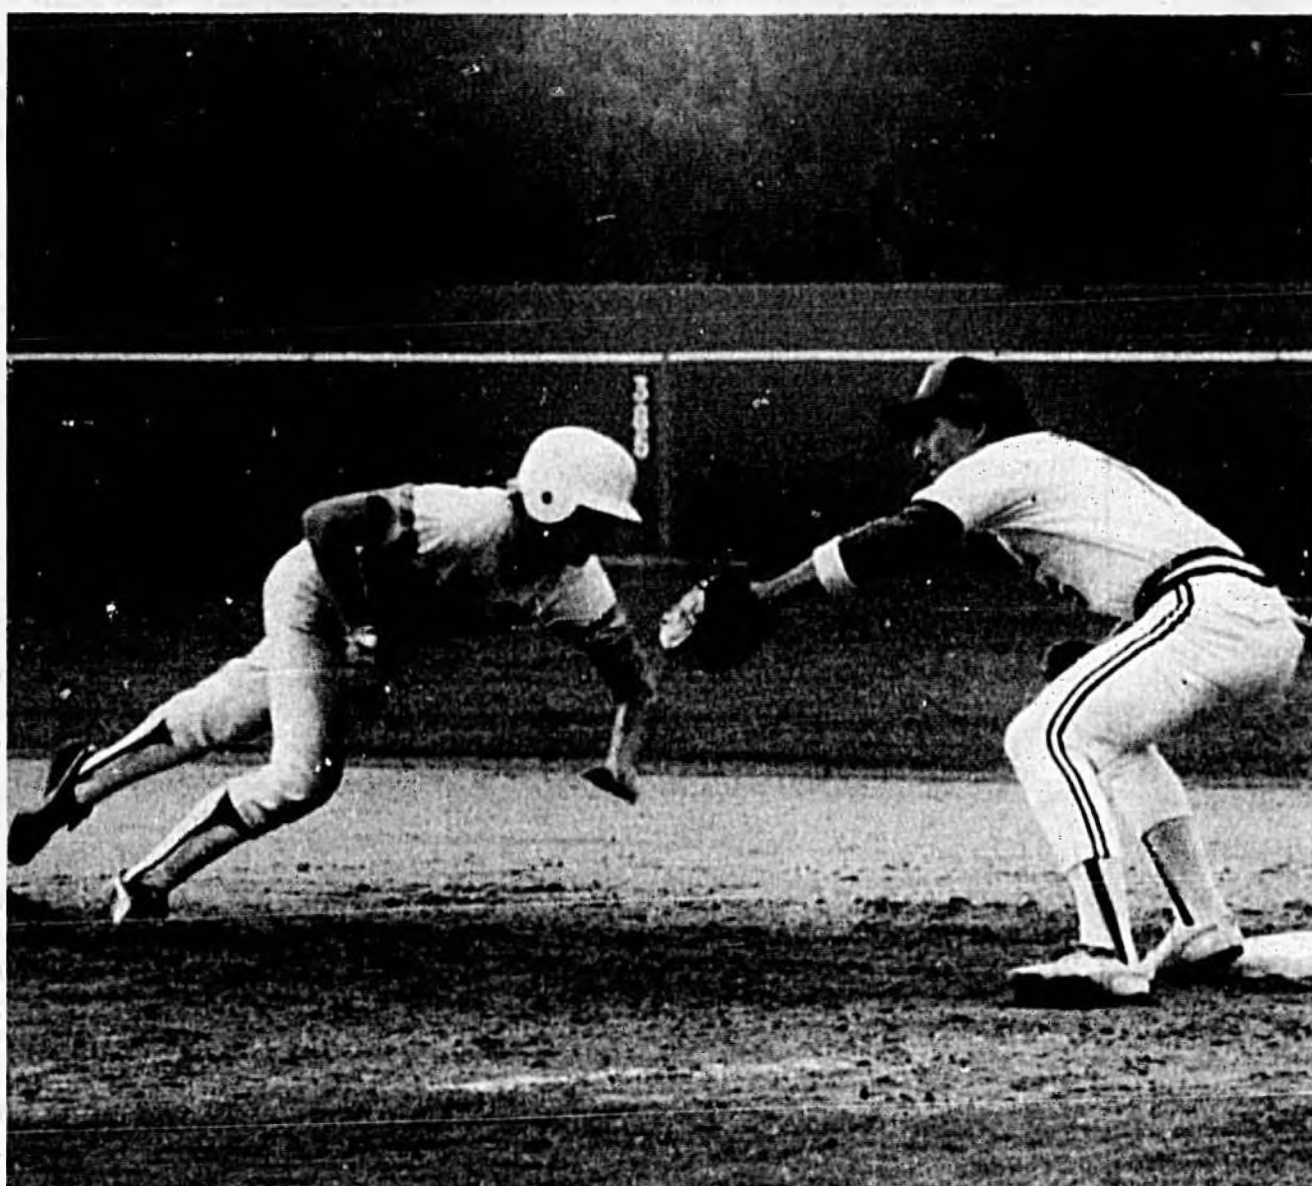

DeLand's Tommy Robertson had things pretty much his way on the mound. The tall righthander struck out five and didn't walk a man. He allowed just six hits.

Reich and shortstop Brent Smartt led the Altamonte hitters with two singles each.

DeLand Legion Post 6 did a good job of keeping Altamonte Post 183 at bay Friday night at the annual Firecracker Tour-namment. Altamonte right fielder John Reich bolts back to the bag as DeLand's John Brenner sets mound. Post 6 mounted a 12-hit attack to drop the Altamonte crew by a 10-2 margin.

Lorenz Hits Key Single

Barefoot Steps On Miami

Legion Baseball

DeLAND — A four run second inning, highlighted by Steve Lorenz's two-run single, enabled Altamonte Legion Post 183 to take a 5-3 decision from Miami Post 315 in Altamonte's earlier game Friday.

Jeff Barefoot went the distance on the mound to pick up the victory. Barefoot allowed seven hits, struck out two and walked only one.

Miami got on the board with a run in the top of the first. Jorge Gayhar led off with a single to left and Dickie Smith followed with a single. With one out, John Harvey blooped a single to left to drive in Gayhar and Smith went to third. Brian Feinstein then lifted a fly ball to shallow center field and Smith tagged at third. Altamonte center fielder, David Martinez, hauled in the fly and gunned down Smith at the plate to end the inning.

Miami took a 2-0 lead in the top of the second as Paul Cole led off with a double and scored on Rick Perkins' two-out single.

The roof caved in on Miami pitcher Jose Diaz in the bottom of the second. With one out, Mike "Duck" Sawyer singled, Doug Chiodini walked and Brent Smartt laid down a bunt single to load the bases.

Lorenz stepped up and ripped a single to left center to drive in Sawyer and Chiodini. With two outs, Ken Brown singled to knock in Smartt and, when Miami had no one covering third base, the left fielder threw the ball into the outgoing Lorenz to score.

Altamonte added a run in the fifth as John Reich reached on an error, went to second on a groundout, got to third on a wild pitch and scored on an error.

Miami responded with a run in the sixth after Barefoot had retired 10 men in a row. Mike Knight laid down a perfect bunt for a single and went to second on Harvey's shot up the middle. Knight scored on Cole's groundout.

Barefoot got out of the sixth without any further damage and set down Miami in order in the seventh to sew up the victory.

Sub-District

Little Major League tournament action picks up again in Sanford Tuesday when the Sanford Youth Baseball Association hosts the sub-district.

Ormond Beach was scheduled to hold the tournament but had to back off because some wires got crossed with its recreation department.

Since Sanford became the host, the Nationals and Americans flipped a coin to see who would get a bye into the district which begins July 19 in Sanford.

The Americans, coached by Larry Hawkins, won the flip and drew the bye.

The Nationals, coached by city champion Poppa Jay's manager Sylvester "Slick" Franklin, play Groveland Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Orlando and the Leesburg Americans open the subdistrict Tuesday at 6 p.m. Clermont and the Leesburg Nationals go at it at 8 p.m. The Orlando-Leesburg Americans winner will battle Tavares at 6 p.m. Wednesday.

The tournament is a double elimination with the winner advancing to July 19's district to take on Hawkins' Americans in the first game.

Bob Hartman, one of the few hard workers for the Sanford Recreation Department, has scheduled two activities for next week for local youngsters.

On Wednesday, Hartman will have the City Championship Pepsi Hoop Shoot competition at 10 a.m. at Fort Mellon Park. Robbie Robinson, who falls in the same category as Hartman, will bring his Westside gang over for the competition.

Rotten Sneakers

Hartman's next activity — set for 10 a.m. Friday — has a tattered appearance. But it's supposed to. Sanford's first "Rotten Sneaker Contest" is open to any Sanford youngster who signs up at the recreation center by 10 a.m.

Don Knight, owner of Knight's Shoes, will give the kid with the most beat-up sneaker a new pair of Nike shoes.

Hartman says a "Smelly Sneaker Contest" is in the works for next year.

Just kidding. I did hear Jim Jernigan would win feet down. Ha! Ha!

Showdown At Wimbledon

Chris Meets Martina; Mayotte Eyes McEnroe In Men's Semifinals

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — This hasn't been the best of seasons for Chris Evert Lloyd, yet the defending champion thinks she knows how to beat Martina Navratilova in the women's final at Wimbledon today.

"I haven't had a great year but I'll go out there tomorrow and go for it," Evert said after ending Billie Jean King's comeback bid Friday. "I won't wait for Martina to make errors."

Against King, "I hit a lot of balls in the middle of the court and Martina will eat them up — I've got to get more depth," she said.

Reaching the Wimbledon final for the fifth consecutive year — and the eighth time in 10 years — Evert defeated King, 7-6, 2-6, 6-3. It was the first time the 38-year-old veteran had taken a set from Evert since 1978.

Instead of talking about retirement after the match, King strongly suggested she expected to be playing on the historic center court until well into her 40s.

"I'm beginning to learn how to win again," she said.

Evert's confidence against Navratilova was not shared by the bookmakers, who made the world's top-ranked player a 2-1 favorite.

After needing only 50 minutes to eliminate Bettina Bunge in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2, to advance to her third Wimbledon final, Navratilova pointed out that in none of her five matches has she dropped more than four games in any set.

Asserting she is at the top of her form, Navratilova noted she has twice beaten Evert in Wimbledon finals.

"Nobody has got more than four games off me in any set so far," said Navratilova. "When I won the title before I had a couple of really hard matches each time. So I'm very pleased."

The women's final is the featured event of a day in which No. 1 seed John McEnroe defends his men's title in a semifinal match against an unexpected opponent, unseeded Tim Mayotte of Springfield, Mass., who eliminated three seeds in a row on his way to a berth against his idol.

Mayotte defeated 11th-seeded Brian Teacher in a 3-hour 47-minute marathon Friday in which the key to victory was Teacher's erratic play, including more than a dozen double faults. Mayotte eventually ran out a 6-7, 7-6, 7-5, 3-6, 6-1 triumph.

Mayotte, a former NCAA champion, said the match with McEnroe, "is the highlight of my tennis career ... it's great that everything should come together for this tournament."

McEnroe, who beat Johan Kriek Friday, 4-6, 6-2, 7-5, 6-3, was an overwhelming favorite to beat Mayotte. No. 2 seed Jimmy Connors was a 2-1 choice to beat Mark Edmondson of Australia in the other men's semifinal.

Pro Golf Tour

After Red Hot Scoring, Weiskopf Chases Gilder

OAK BROOK, Ill. (UPI) — The way Tom Weiskopf saw it, there really wasn't any chance for a runaway at the $350,000 Western Open — considering the toughness of the Butler National Golf Course.

Bob Gilder, who broke the Butler National record with an 8-under-par 64 Thursday, cooled to a 1-under-par 71 for a two-round total of 9-under-par 135 Friday. That broke the previous Butler 36-hole record of 136.

But Weiskopf shot a sizzling 5-under-par 67 for a two-round total of 136, one stroke behind Gilder, who is seeking his second straight wire-to-wire win.

"This is not the type of golf course anyone will run away," said Weiskopf, who avoided bogeys in fashioning five birdies, including three straight on the back nine.

For a time, it appeared Weiskopf might be wrong. Gilder, who has set the PGA tour ablaze the past two weeks, had opened up a five-stroke lead midway through the second round, but then faded slightly and Weiskopf caught some fire of his own, setting the stage for today's third round.

"I didn't score quite as well, I guess it's nice to know you're human," said Gilder, who broke the previous record held by Bob Dickson in 1976 and Ed Fiori and Greg Powers in 1981. "I didn't pull as well. I'll take 71 on this course any day."

Gilder conceded the 7,097-yard Butler National course, considered one of the most difficult on the tour, played tougher in the second round, played in stronger winds and intermittent light rain. Fewer scores were under par in the second round after 35 bettered par or better in the first round.

Larry Nelson, the 1979 Western Open champion, was alone at 6-under-par 138, three strokes back. Kermit Zarley fired a 68 to join Jim Booros at 5-under-par 139 while Leonard Thompson who shared the best round of the day with Weiskopf, at 67, was alone at 140 after 15, but had bogeys on the 14th and final hole to go nine under.

Weiskopf, who has won only one PGA tournament in the last four years, said, "It was a very satisfying round. I haven't played in a while. I felt I played as well as I did yesterday but I made two bogeys yesterday."

Fiori, the defending champion, skied to a 76 and was 13 strokes back. Scott Simpson fared even worse. He shot a 7-over-par for a two-round total of 150 and missed the cut.

Round Robin Play Continues

Forest City and Palm Bay registered victories in the National Round Robin Baseball Invitational Tournament at the Sanford Stadium Friday.

Forest City claimed a 6-3 decision over DeLand while Palm Bay came away a 4-2 winner over Smyrna, Ga.

Six games are scheduled at the Sanford Stadium Saturday as round robin play continues throughout the weekend. Game times Saturday were 11 a.m., noon, 6:30 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Four more games are on tap at the stadium on Sunday while the tournament wraps up Monday with two final games.

TORONTO (UPI) — Sheer exhaustion is not officially listed among the hazards at the Canadian Classic but in the minds of many LPGA pros it's right up there as a factor influencing play.

Having had plenty of rest may not guarantee a sound score, but it seems to be helping a lot of players.

Sandra Post, for whom a two-week vacation ended this week, fired a 3-under 69 Friday to take a three-stroke lead over four other players in the $200,000 tournament.

Her 5-under 139 was her best 36-hole total of the year and gave hope she may be ending a slump which has dropped her to 71st on the money list after eight consecutive seasons in the top 15.

Post was one of three recent vacationers among the top five players on the leader board. Beth Daniel, who bolted in front with a relaxed 67 Thursday, was tied with Dale Eggeling of Florida and Hollis Stacy who returned from a two-week rest with a second-place finish at Rochester, N.Y., last week.

Hall-of-Famer Sandra Haynie, the victor at Rochester, rounded out the group in second place.

Daniel's jolting 75 Friday suggests the vacation factor is not paramount, but Post argued the women stars are playing more tournaments than ever and paying for it with mental and physical weariness.

"I feel enthusiasm again," she said after her round of six birdies and three bogeys on the 6,071-yard layout near her hometown of Oakville, Ontario.

"I've been playing for 15 years and playing a lot of events. Our top players play more events than the top men's players ... we get tired."

Post was not exactly correct, but she was close. Last year's top PGA star, Tom Kite, entered 32 events at 31, while the top LPGA star, JoAnne Carner, at 42, entered 28 sanctioned tournaments.

Jack Nicklaus, 41, entered only 16 while Post played in 27.

Post, like Stacy and Daniels, did not complain that the LPGA tour has grown too exhaustive — it's purse has also grown to a pleasing $6.4 million.

Post and Daniels acknowledged the money and the growing intensity of competition simply makes it hard to stay away as long as they would like.

Post almost canceled her entry card to the Classic, despite the anticipation that surrounds one of her rare appearances in her native Canada.

"My swing just went crazy after 23 years of playing golf," she said. "If I get it back I would not have been here. I didn't get it back I would not have been here."

"I wanted to stay away longer," said Daniel, 25, whose "cure" may have seemed a bit short-lived after a triple bogey at the second hole.

"But with the competition on the tour these days and so many important tournaments, it's hard to stay away."

Haynie, 39, in her 21st season, also complained of exhaustion, though she has played well in recent weeks.

"I've been pumped up by the way I have played lately, but I think I am having a letdown now," she said, after following last week's win with a pair of 71s.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Rookie Bodine Sits On Pole For July 4th's Firecracker

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — Rookie driver Geoff Bodine and veteran Ricky Rudd hold the front row starting positions for Sunday's Firecracker 400. But both were looking in their mirrors for Buddy Baker.

Bodine, 33, won the pole position Friday with a record lap of 194.670 mph in his white and blue Pontiac, while Rudd won the outside position in a Pontiac with a speed of 194.565 mph.

Baker, a pre-race favorite, was the only other driver to crack the 194 mph mark, pushing his Pontiac to 194.053 and the inside spot on the second row.

A total of 20 drivers qualified for the starting grid Friday, with the rest of the spots to be decided during qualifying runs today.

The Firecracker 400 goes off at 10 a.m., EDT, Sunday.

"We thought we had a chance for the pole," Bodine said. "But Buddy Baker's car is notorious on this kind of track."

"We didn't expect Bodine to be up there but we beat the ones we thought would be, Baker, (Bobby) Allison and (Richard) Petty," Rudd said.

Allison qualified ninth and Petty 10th. "I figured we had a shot at the pole," Baker said. "Our speed was a little faster than our practice speed."

Bodine has been driving several years in NASCAR races for late model and modified stock cars but is in his first full season on the grand national circuit. He ranks second among the rookies, trailing Mark Martin, who qualified 15th.

"A lot of tracks this year are new to me, but I've raced here at Daytona before and feel comfortable here," Bodine said.

Tiger Cats Cut David Green

HAMILTON, Ontario (UPI) — Running back David Green, named the CFL's outstanding player in 1979, was cut by the Hamilton Tiger Cats Friday as the team trimmed its roster to meet the mandatory 34-player limit.

Among other Americans cut Friday by Coach Bud Reilly were rookie Mike Horton from Alabama A&M, linebacker Jeff Blanchard, wide receiver Keith Credit, defensive tackle Rick Isaac, and defensive backs Fred Stickney and Dennis Wylie.

Ump Brocklander Under Knife

NEW YORK (UPI) — Umpire Fred Brocklander underwent successful surgery Friday for ligament damage of his left knee, the National League announced.

Brocklander, 42, is expected to be released from Roosevelt Hospital today and will recuperate at his home in New York. The league said the umpire would be sidelined for a few weeks but hopes to return shortly after the July 13 AllStar Game.

Rivera Charges Dropped

ANGOLA, Ind. (UPI) — Child molestation charges against former Chicago White Sox pitcher Manuel James Rivera were dropped Friday by the Steuben County prosecutor.

Rivera, 59, who owns a restaurant near Angola, was charged in March with molesting a 14-year-old girl. Prosecutor David Henry said he dropped charges because Rivera submitted to a lie detector test that indicated Rivera had reason to believe the girl was older than 14.

Bird's Test-Tube Baby On Way

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Baltimore Orioles pitcher Mike Flanagan Friday said reports his wife is expected to give birth this month to a test-tube baby were "released without my knowledge."

Flanagan, reached at a hotel in Detroit where the Orioles were playing the Tigers, said he had "no comment on the matter. The information was released without my knowledge." The Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk, Va., the nation's first test-tube baby clinic, refused to comment "because of confidentiality."

Horner's Homer Haunts Seaver

ATLANTA (UPI) — Bob Horner drove in two runs with a single and his 14th homer and right fielder Claudell Washington made a game-saving catch in the ninth inning Friday night to help the Atlanta Braves to their third straight victory, a 6-4 decision over the Cincinnati Reds.

Horner's home run triggered a three-run sixth inning that put the Braves ahead. With Atlanta trailing 4-3, Horner led off with a home run off loser Tom Seaver, 4-9, and Chris Chambliss followed with a walk to knock out the Reds' righthander. A sacrifice by Bruce Benedict off reliever Jim Kern moved Chambliss to second and Rafael Ramirez then delivered an RBI single.

Third baseman Johnny Bench took the relay from outfielder Eddie Milner and threw wildly past second, allowing Ramirez to circle the bases.

Washington saved the game in the ninth when he leaped high against the right field fence to take what appeared to be a certain two-run homer away from pinch hitter Wayne Krenchicki. The Reds took a 1-0 lead in the second off starter Rick Camp when Dan Driessen belted his ninth homer and Cincinnati extended its lead to 2-0 in the fourth when Driessen, Larry Bittner and Duane Walker singled.

Atlanta scored three runs in the fourth. Terry Harper singled and Dale Murphy walked before Horner delivered an RBI single. Chambliss added an RBI single and Benedict followed with a single to left to score Horner.

The Reds took a 4-3 lead in the fifth when Seaver walked, moved to second on a single by Ron Oester and scored on a single by Dave Concepcion. Driessen then stroked a run-scoring single to right.

Atlanta reliever Ken Dayley, 4-4, went 1-2-3 innings to get the victory with Gene Garber getting the last out in the ninth to gain his 13th save.

Seaver struck out three batters to move past Bob Gibson and gain fifth place on the all-time strikeout list with 3,119.

Pirates Climb Back Into Race On Heels Of Sweep Over Expos

United Press International Aided by a bunch of castoffs the Pittsburgh Pirates are back in the race in the National League East.

Dick Davis, Jim Morrison and Larry McWilliams, three unwanted players the Pirates acquired during the last two weeks of June, made major contributions Friday night to a sweep of a doubleheader from the Montreal Expos, 4-1 and 7-2.

After Tony Pena's three-run homer sparked the Pirates to victory in the opener, Davis smacked a three-run homer and Lee Lacy and Morrison drove in two runs each to highlight the second-game triumph. McWilliams also was a key figure in the nightcap as he pitched six strong innings in his first start for Pittsburgh.

In completing the sweep and stretching their winning streak to a season-high five games, the Pirates moved two games over the .500 mark, for the first time since Opening Day.

While many might be surprised at the Pirates' recent surge in which they have won 11 of 14 games, Expos' Manager Jim

National League

Fanning is not. "At the beginning of the year, writers said it would be a two-team race — the Cardinals and us," Fanning said. "I tried to say don't count anybody out, especially the Pirates because they can hit the ball."

The Pirates do boast a powerful batting order, but it's the team's improved pitching that has been the keynote of their recent success.

Elsewhere in the NL, Chicago edged St. Louis, 4-3, New York topped Philadelphia, 8-4, Atlanta downed Cincinnati, 6-4, Houston beat Los Angeles, 4-1, and San Francisco defeated San Diego, 8-4, then lost, 3-2.

In American League action, Baltimore nipped Detroit, 5-4, New York defeated Cleveland, 3-1, Milwaukee crushed Boston, 14-5, Kansas City beat California, 7-2, Toronto topped Minnesota, 9-4, and Texas blanked Oakland, 7-0. Seattle at Chicago was rained out.

Brewers Long Ball Fireworks Send Boston Red Sox Reeling

United Press International The Milwaukee Brewers hope to live up to the baseball tradition that it's good luck to be in first place on the Fourth of July.

"I know this much," Brewers' first baseman Cecil Cooper said Friday night after Milwaukee pounded Boston, 14-5, in their latest outburst. "I'd be afraid to come to the ballpark and I wouldn't sit in the bleachers."

Gorman Thomas hit two homers, Ted Simmons added one homer and a double and Cooper belted a grand slam to lead a 17-hit attack. The victory pulled Milwaukee within one game of the East Division-leading Red Sox. The Brewers would land in first place July 4 if they took the next two games.

"I think the good Lord, when he picked the rosters, put my name on the Brewers," said winner Bob McClure, who went the distance and scattered eight hits to raise his record to 7-2. "The way these guys can hit, it helps a lot with your attitude when you go out there." "They're just hot right now," said Boston Manager Ralph Houk. "When a club gets hot, anything can happen."

In other AL games, New York defeated Cleveland, 3-1, Baltimore edged Detroit, 5-4, Toronto trounced Minnesota, 9-4, Kansas City trimmed California, 7-2, and Texas blanked Oakland, 7-0. Seattle at Chicago was postponed because of rain.

In the National League, it was New York 8, Philadelphia 4; Atlanta 6, Cincinnati 4; Chicago 4, St. Louis 3; and Houston 4, Los Angeles 1. Pittsburgh swept Montreal, 6-3 and 7-2, and San Francisco split with San Diego, winning, 8-4, and losing, 3-2.

Yankees 3, Indians 1 At Cleveland, Dave Winfield hit two home runs and Rich Gossage chalked up his 14th save, enabling New York to snap the Indians' four-game winning streak.

Four Yank Teams Earn Rowing Berths

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (UPI) — Four American rowing crews — Yale, Harvard, California and Georgetown — all won quarter-final berths Friday at the Henley Royal Regatta to defend the U.S.-held Ladies Challenge Plate against British rowers.

Yale's junior varsity had a close race against University College, Dublin, but put in the fastest time of the regatta of 6 minutes 36 seconds and is considered the best American crew thanks to the combination of power and finesse. Their opponent today is the California-Berkeley junior varsity which beat a strong British crew from Belmont Abbey and Hereford Cathedral School.

Georgetown comes up against Isis, Oxford's vaunted reserve rowing crew which beat California's Santa Clara Rowing Association in the second round.

Georgetown defeated Britain's Reading University to win its place in the quarter-finals.

Harvard, counting itself lucky to be on the easy side of the draw, beat Kings College, London, and faces a tight race against Pembroke and Corpus from Cambridge.

Besides the Ladies Challenge Plate for college and university eights, the United States is defending its title to the Thames Challenge Cup held by the Charles River Rowing Association. They easily moved into the quarter-finals and are the only non-British entry left in the Thames Cup races.

Holy Spirit High School of Absecon, New Jersey, holders of the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup for Schoolboys, won by 3 2/3 lengths over a British high school team and now faces only British competition. In the Visitors Challenge Cup for coxed fours, the Yale crew lost to a combined University of London crew, leaving Natal University of South Africa as the only foreign crew against a British field. In the Wyfold Challenge Cup for coxless fours, Harvard's crew lost to Durham College, after hitting a boom in the Thames.

South Africa's Trident Rowing Club "A" Team was forced to race its own "B" team because of a maddening quirk in the draw and the "A" team won, advancing to semifinals in the Wyfold.

The Yale-California junior varsity match-up promises fireworks. Although other rowers favor Yale to win, California is the Pac 10 junior champ and beat Yale in April.

Baker Will Be In Daytona Hunt

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — Rookie driver Geoff Bodine and veteran Ricky Rudd hold the front row starting positions for Sunday's Firecracker 400, but both will be looking in their mirrors for Buddy Baker.

Bodine, 33, won the pole position Friday with a record lap of 194.670 mph in his white and blue Pontiac, while Rudd won the outside position in a Pontiac with a speed of 194.565 mph.

Baker, a pre-race favorite, was the only other driver to crack the 194 mph mark, pushing his Pontiac to 194.053 and the inside spot on the second row.

A total of 20 drivers qualified for the starting grid Friday with the rest of the spots to be decided during qualifying runs today.

In Friday's qualifying for tonight's IMSA Paul Revere 250, a black Chevrolet

LoLa driven by Danny Ongals and Ted Field won the pole position with a speed of 127.058 mph, with a Porsche Turbo driven by John Paul Jr. on the outside front row with a speed of 125.901 mph.

The Paul Revere 250 will get underway at 10 p.m. EDT Saturday, with the Firecracker 400 starting at 10 a.m. EDT Sunday.

"We thought we had a chance for the pole," Bodine said. "But Buddy Baker's car is notorious on this kind of track."

"We didn't expect Bodine to be up there but we beat the ones we thought would be, Baker, (Bobby) Allison and (Richard) Petty," Rudd said.

Bodine has been driving several years

"A lot of tracks this year are new to me, but I've raced here at Daytona before and feel comfortable here," Bodine said.

Bodine got his chance to run full-time on the Grand National circuit after winning the Trans South race earlier this year at Darlington, S.C.

"That was probably the key to getting this ride. We ran a good race to show we could run consistently," he said.

Bodine's car qualified with the same engine it will use in the Firecracker 400. In most cases, drivers qualify with hotter engines which then are replaced to take the brutal beating

Sunniland, Krayola College Fireworks Explode Sunday

The home run champs of the Sanford Little National and Sanford Little American leagues will get another chance to test the Fort Mellon Park fences Sunday when Krayola Kollege and Sunniland Corporation square off at 6 p.m.

Baseball

Krayola Kollege finished second in the Sanford Little American League and Sunniland Corporation was runnerup in the Sanford Little National League.

Sunday's game, which highlights Fourth of July festivities at Fort Mellon Park, will decide third place in the Sanford Youth Baseball Association's little major league program.

The day's baseball activity starts at 3 p.m. with a Sanford Pee Wee League exhibition game. The top players from the league for 7, 8, and 9-year-olds will show off their skills in that game.

Krayola Kollege and Sunniland Corporation had identical 13-5 regular season records. Krayola Kollege improved its record to 14-5 when it defeated S&H Fabricating and Engineering in a single game playoff to break a tie for second place in the American League.

Sunniland holds the edge in hitting, bringing a .309 batting average into the game. Todd Revels, who led the league in hitting with a .686 average and home runs with 11, paces Sunniland. Tim Graham is batting a healthy .421, while Robert Milligan is hitting .383 and Dwight Brinson is batting .381.

Krayola Kollege is hitting just .247 as a team. The big bat belongs to Jason Heffington, a .413 hitter who led the league with 10 home runs. Harrison Hampton is hitting .367 and Travis Pickens is batting .345.

Ronald Cox (7-2) and Heffington (6-3) anchor the Krayola Kollege pitching staff, while Sunniland Corporation has a pair of unbeaten pitchers, Travis Brown (5-0) and Dwight Brinson (2-0). Graham is 3-1 as a pitcher and Revels is 2-4.

This is the second year a third place game has been staged. Last year Poppa Jay's, the current city champ, won the first such game.

Todd Revels anxiously awaits a turn at bat for Sunniland earlier this year. You'd be anxious to bat too if you had 11 home runs and a .686 batting average — both tops in the league. Revels and Sunniland play Krayola Kollege for third place Sunday.

Bowling

The Florida men's bowling association championship tournament was held in Seminole County from Apr. 24, 1982 to June 20, 1982. There were more than 7,000 bowlers who participated during the nine weekends. Team event was held at Fair Lanes Indian Hills, Fern Park, Fl. (1,336 teams), doubles (3,402) and singles (4,804) at Altamonte Lanes, Altamonte Springs, Fl. The 48th Annual State Bowling Tournament was the largest one yet — the Florida State Bowling Association and Seminole County Bowling Association would like to thank all bowlers in the state who help make this tournament the largest.

Prospect Or Suspect

Minor Leaguers Seek Positive Label

ROHNERT PARK, CALIF. (UPI) — Baseball scouts look over every kid in the minor leagues to see what he can or can't do, then label him either a "prospect" or a "reject."

A prospect is given a chance of making it all the way to the big leagues some day although that chance may be less than one in a thousand. A reject has no chance at all.

Al Romero of Long Beach, Calif., is a prospect.

He's a polite, husky 22-year-old converted outfielder now catching for the Redwood Pioneers in the Class A California League, affiliated with the California Angels. He makes about $700 a month.

On that, he's trying to support his wife, Mary Kay, and their 4-year-old son, Justin. And, along with attempting to make ends meet financially, Romero is trying to get into the big leagues.

"I wouldn't be here if I didn't feel I could make it," he says earnestly. "You can't make a career for yourself playing in A ball although I like it very much here."

"This is my first full year in baseball and for the time being I'm happy because I'm doing something I love. But I know I can't stay in A ball very long because there just isn't enough money in it. I'm married five years.

"I'm a reborn Christian. Whatever I do is to glorify the Lord."

The part of his job as a professional ballpayer Romero enjoys least is the daily routine. Too boring, he says.

"It's the same thing, day in and day out. You come in from a game that ends 11 at night and by the time you eat something, you don't get to bed until around 1 or 1:30. You get up 9 or 10 in the morning so you can at least have a few hours for yourself before you have to go out to the ballpark again.

"The ballplayers can play golf free here in Rohnert Park, and maybe twice a week I'll play 18 holes. I take my wife and son and they ride along with me. I go fishing with my boy once in a while up in Sonoma State where there's a little lake. They've got a swimming pool over at the place we rent and we all go in the water, or sit by the pool and get some sun. If the sun isn't out, I kind of lie around the house until 4 when it's time to go to the park."

If he wasn't playing ball, Romero would be finishing his education at San Diego State where he's only 40 units away from earning his degree as an electronics major.

"I can't get those units until I quit playing ball," he says. "I gave it a lot of thought before I interrupted my education, and the only reason I did was because I felt I could make it to the big leagues."

Romero's manager, Chris Cannizzaro, thinks he has a chance. Cannizzaro, who caught for the Mets, Cardinals, Pirates, Padres, Cubs and Dodgers, has worked with him on his receiving.

"Considering he originally was an outfielder, he's coming along well," says the Pioneers' pilot. "He reminds me of myself when I played. He has a tendency to get a little rednecked when things aren't going his way."

Romero doesn't argue that. He admits it. He has a low boiling point.

"I get mad," he says. "I guess I'm so anxious to do well that I'm too hard on myself. You know, the younger guys on this club, they imitate and I don't want to set a bad example by cussing, throwing my helmet, or doing things like that."

"You watch Steve Garvey. A lotta guys get on him about that clean-cut image of his. He's going through one of his poorest seasons in a long time but he never loses his professionalism. He doesn't swear or throw his helmet. He shows me a lot as a ballplayer and as a person. I'd like to be able to keep my composure as well as he does."

Robbie Says Drug Abuse Aided Dolphins' Dismal 1976 Season

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — Miami Dolphins' owner Joe Robbie says drug abuse among some of the players probably contributed to the team's dismal 1976 season, its worst under Coach Don Shula.

In a copyright story in the Fort Lauderdale News published Thursday, Robbie said several Dolphins were drug users the season the team slipped to a 6-8 record. He said those players have now left the team, either traded or released.

"There's a direct relationship, I feel, between drug addiction and lack of performance," Robbie said. "In the last couple of years, I haven't seen any indication of it and the fine record of the team would indicate that there hasn't been."

Robbie told the newspaper that several players were either released or traded following the 1976 season because they were suspected drug users.

"We shipped some people out after 1976 season. I'd never identify who they are because they might be totally rehabilitated by now," he said.

Robbie said there were drug abusers on the team other than Don Reese and Randy Crowder, the two Dolphins players convicted and sentenced to one year in jail in 1977 for possession and conspiracy to sell cocaine.

"That year there was a greater problem than Reese and Crowder," he said. "And I know the people involved and they weren't around for the 1977 season. And I have eased people off our team earlier than the Reese and Crowder situation because of my relationship with local law enforcement people."

Robbie said, "there were at least two or three directly involved and, among others we suspected, there were another two or three. But they were not necessarily cocaine sniffing cases."

The interview was the first admission by a Dolphins official confirming a drug problem on the team. Robbie reacted angrily to the claim by Don Reese in a recent sports magazine article that half the Dolphins used cocaine socially or otherwise. He said Reese received a large sum for the article and his statements were suspect anyway.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 4, 1982
Toward the end of this year something quite fortunate could happen to you which will end a long, trying cycle you've been experiencing. The event will mark the beginning of fun times ahead.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may have to work hard today in order to see that your family and relatives have a good time, but you won't mind it. In fact, doing for others is a labor of love. Find out more of what lies ahead for you for each season following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail #1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're likely to be a trifle restless today. It will do you good to get out and run around a bit. However, to top off a fun day, have friends back to your place.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There are a few mundane things which will require your attention today, but don't let this overlap into your fun time. Relaxation is equally important.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Whether this is a holiday or not for you, important matters should not be ignored. With a little thought you can schedule them comfortably.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You can be in for a pleasant surprise today regarding a situation which you feel could cause problems. Keep a cool head. All will work out well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're neither selfish nor looking to feather your nest today, yet it will seem material things will drift your way rather than go to others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This could be a very pleasant day if you'll relax and let your hair down a bit. The sooner you do so the more fun you'll have.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're likely to be a bit more serious today than your gracious manner or external behavior belies. This won't be a problem. You'll know how to laugh as well.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Because you'll view life philosophically today, it will take a great deal to disturb you. Your attitude is not only proper, it will enhance your luck.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Thoughtfulness not only generates a grateful response, but it could also set something up which might prove fortunate for you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If there is an important issue you wish to discuss with another today, don't jump into it immediately. First establish a base of understanding and cooperation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Although social topics are likely to be your priority today, someone at the gathering could present an idea to you which may have commercial value.

For Monday, July 5, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 5, 1982
Your role in the family will take on greater importance this coming year. Your ability to see things from all angles will have a most favorable influence on the clan.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's quite commendable of you to let bygones be bygones, but you had better let a cohort know about your change in attitude or he might feel betrayed. Predictions of what's in store for you for each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your Astro-Graph, Mail #1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be wary of building your hopes too high based solely on hearsay information. The situation involved is a bit more complex than surface appearances indicate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There is nothing wrong with going after a material opportunity you may hear of today, but take care that you don't step on anyone else's toes in the process.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your motives for doing something affecting another may be very good, but unless you make your reasons known this person may resent your interference.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your own reasoning faculties are the most dependable today. Don't let a know-it-all step in and influence you. He or she could upset your ap-plecart.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Hence, North's three-diamond response and South's three-heart reply.

At this point, West stuck in an unsound three-spade bid. Had he been doubled he would have been set two or maybe three tricks, but North went to four hearts and it was up to West to lead.

He played the queen of clubs. South won with the ace. Then he played the king of hearts followed by the jack to dummy's ace. After that he led dummy's nine of clubs and let it ride to West's jack.

Now West went into the reconstruction of a South hand that would allow a defense to beat the contract. He finally figured out South's exact holding with only 20 high card points instead of the 21 or 22 he should have held.

Then West cashed his ace of spades and led the king of diamonds. South could discard all dummy's diamonds on black cards. Unfortunately for South, East ruffed the first trick with the diamond queen.

South could have made the contract by simply ruffing out two low clubs, but as stated earlier South was not too good a player.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Today's hand took place in a high-stake rubber bridge game. South was a fairly good player who considered himself to be an expert. West was an expert who liked to take fairly wild chances in the bidding.

North and South were using Jacoby transfer bids.

Home Builders Group Remodels Facility For Blind

ORLANDO — Answering President Reagan's call for more "volunteerism" on the local level to offset federal budget cutbacks, a group of firms involved in the Central Florida home building industry rehabilitated a 34-year-old apartment complex into a learning facility for the blind.

The project was undertaken by member firms of the Home Builders Association (HBA) of Mid-Florida and its Remodelers and Home Improvement Council in conjunction with the Valencia Community College Foundation. More than 45 firms contributed labor, consultation time and materials to the project.

"We had tremendous participation from our membership," said Norm Schiff, chairman of the Remodeler's Council of the HBA. "The project began as a council effort but soon expanded to involve association members of all descriptions."

The HBA was approached by representatives of Valencia Community College's Center for Independence, Training and Education (CITE) to assist in the rehabilitation of a two-story apartment complex built in 1948.

CITE serves Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties.

Schiff and other members of the Remodelers Council decided to make the remodeling a council project. After making their preliminary inspections and drafting a scope of work report, the remodelers went to the Home Builders Association membership for contributions.

"The remodelers were overwhelmed by the response of the Association members," Schiff said. "It seemed no matter what the job description or material needed, there was someone to help."

The two-story apartment complex, although structurally sound, needed extensive repairs. To rehabilitate the facility for use as classrooms and office space, the remodelers had to completely rewire the building, install ductwork for central air conditioning and heat, enlarge doorway openings, install ramps for wheelchairs, tear down some walls and put up others, turn an outdoor porch into office space, clean and paint the building inside and out and restore the solid oak floors.

"We now have one of the finest facilities in the state for training and educating blind people of all ages," said Mara Schlosser, CITE program director. "The Home Builders Association and the remodelers did an outstanding job. Their contributions saved us about $40,000."

Prior to moving into the new CITE building, the program was operating out of two sites, neither of which was adequate to conduct the various programs.

The remodeled apartment complex includes classroom space for teaching every day living skills, a room where parents of blind children can learn to deal with their child's disability, a kitchen for teaching safety skills, a recreational therapy room, a children's room and a low-vision clinic.

"The remodelers and the Home Builders Association are extremely proud that we could assist the CITE program," Schiff said. "Federal budget cutbacks will effect many worthwhile programs. We feel people in the community must pitch in and pick up the slack."

BUSINESS

IN BRIEF

Consumer Bank Buys Realty World Company

Consumers Savings Bank of Worcester, Mass., has purchased Realty World Florida Region, Inc., Consumers President Ronald W. Haselton has announced.

Realty World Florida Region, Inc. encompasses 66 offices in eastern Florida, from Palm Beach to north of Orlando.

Haselton said the bank has acquired the Florida region "in large part in response to our customers. Many Massachusetts residents retire to Florida or buy winter homes there," he said. "Our Realty World acquisition provides a Worcester-Florida connection for them; it enables us to meet their real estate needs in another state through a firm which has a local base at Consumers."

Bruce S. Phillips, senior vice president and treasurer of Consumers, said that "Consumers currently own subsidiary leasing and second mortgage companies. The interrelationships between these firms and Realty World Florida will mean that we can go beyond the basic real estate requirements of customers to serve their leasing and financing needs, as well."

"A regional company normally provides training, advertising and financial services to the local real estate dealers who buy franchises. The connection with Consumers Savings Bank and our subsidiaries means that we can also offer them the packages of financing and leasing services, which we believe will offer a Realty World advantage that customers will very quickly see."

Seminole Machine Sold

Seminole Auto Machine, 301 E. 28th Place, Sanford, has been acquired from Roy Kennedy by Tony Nawrocki who took over the operation in February. Nawrocki is continuing to operate under the same name and phone number and is open Monday through Saturday.

Nawrocki has more than 17-years in the engine rebuilding industry and is expanding and updating with new equipment.

Firm To Move Into Altamonte

The Industrial Development Commission of Mid-Florida Inc. has announced a company will move into the area.

Roy Harris, IDC executive vice president, said Canadian Marconi, a company with $200 million in annual sales, has acquired Sun World Circuits based in Altamonte Springs. After only a year in operation, Sun World Circuits reached $6 million in annualized sales with a total employment of 90 people at the Altamonte Springs plant. Canadian Marconi announced it will build an additional 30,000 square foot plant on a two-acre site adjacent to the existing Sun World Circuits property.

The capital investment is between $3.5 and $4 million, including land and equipment. Some 40 to 50 people will be hired over the next five months and another 55 to 75 by the time the new plant is operating.

The capital investment is between $3.5 and $4 million, including land and equipment. Some 40 to 50 people will be hired over the next five months and another 55 to 75 by the time the new plant is operating in early 1983. Total employment upon completion of the expansion should be around 200 to 250 people, all hired from the local work force.

Canadian Marconi, which in turn is owned by GEC Ltd., an English company with about $3 billion in annual sales, manufactures multi-layer printed circuit boards. SWC will supply these boards for Canadian Marconi, but will also continue to supply U.S. and local firms primarily. Some of SWC's major customers are IBM and ITT; the firm also manufactures PCB's for Harris Corp. and others. Canadian Marconi supplies mainly manufacturers of military electronic equipment (radar jamming, flight systems and early warning systems equipment) and its major customers are the U.S. Government and the NATO countries.

According to the company's three to four-plan, Sun World Circuits' projected annual sales will be $30 million, and employment will be 525 people, more than five times its 1982 standing, according to SWC President Ernest Mander.

Mander also said the acquisition of SWC as a wholly-owned subsidiary of Canadian Marconi was finalized June 10.

"This is an important development in the growth of Central Florida's high-tech industrial base since an internationally known company like Canadian Marconi brings a great deal of exposure to the new areas they move into," Harris said.

Consumers Are Getting Smarter

NEW YORK (UPI) — To Raymond A. Gates developing and merchandising a product is "one of the most exciting things in life," and current business conditions don't seem to dampen the enthusiasm of the new president of Panasonic Co.

But becoming the first American chief executive of Panasonic, the consumer electronics sales arm of Japan's Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., at a time when trade frictions between Japan and the United States are at their height "puts me in a rather difficult position," said Gates, 62, a native New Yorker.

He joined Matsushita Electric Corp. of America, now the umbrella organization for all Matsushita operations in the United States, as sales manager when it was incorporated in 1959.

Some 190 trips to Japan during his 23 years with Matsushita have developed his understanding of Japan's need to export, he said. "If Japan doesn't export, really, they die."

But it's a "very delicate situation" under present economic circumstances here, he continued. "My instinct tells me Japan should be looking for something a little more than what has been done" in making its market more accessible to foreign imports.

Gates stressed Matsushita was the first Japanese electronics company to "establish a factory operation, long before anybody was talking about the trade friction."

Manufacturing started in 1965 with production of home stereo sets and clock radios in Puerto Rico. It now has several plants in Illinois and Tennessee, including a Quasar color television plant in Chicago, purchased from Motorola Inc. in 1974.

At the beginning of the year, Gates was budgeting a 15 percent increase in sales of Panasonic over last year's $1.6 billion, including products for industrial use, which will be marketed this year through a separate company, Matsushita Industrial Co..

With consumer market products hard hit in the current slump, however, he had to lower the 1982 targeted increase to 12 percent.

Nonetheless, Gates did not allow himself to sound pessimistic. "Let me tell you," he said, "that in our industry today, a 12 percent increase is pretty darned good. I believe most companies are talking about absolute decreases."

He expects industry-wide color TV sales will be down 5 percent in 1982, and black-and-white TV sales off 8 to 10 percent.

Sales of video cassette recorders — Panasonic is the second biggest after RCA in the U.S. market — totaled an estimated 1.36 million units in 1981. Despite a high level of inventory at the end of last year, VCR sales will increase to 1.8 to 2 million in 1982, Gates forecast.

As for video disc, he said its time probably would come "a little slower than most people thought" and there had to be an improvement in software.

Fireworks Funds Needed To Help All Have Bang

All civic clubs, organizations and individuals are being asked to send donations for the July 4th fireworks to the Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Drawer CC or to drop them off at the chamber office at 400 E. First St.

Only one-third of the $3,000 needed has been donated. The fireworks display will be on Sunday over Lake Monroe at approximately 9 p.m.

Festivities in Fort Mellon Park will begin at 11 a.m. and will consist of pony rides, a moon walk, dunking machine, games, food and other family activities.

Booths will be manned by participating civic club members. All proceeds will go for clubs, community projects and the fireworks display.

Donations have been received from the following clubs, businesses and individuals:

Over 50 Club, Junior Woman's Club, Lions Club, Military Order of Purple Heart, Southeast Bank, Rich Plan, Genevieve Brunley, Kiwanis Club of Sanford, Sisters, Katie Sandifer, Atlantic National Bank, Cake Arts Club, Humane Society of Seminole County, Beta Sigma Phi, Jaycees, AARO-NRTA, V.F.W. Ladies Auxiliary, Order of the Feather, Telephone Pioneers, Suniland Corporation, Stromberg Carlson, Rotary Club of Sanford, Tri-County Roadrunners CB Club, Fleet Reserve Association, Barbara Hughes, Communication Workers, Kappa Sigma Sorority, Downtown Business Association, Robert Daehn, First Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church, and the Woman's Club of Sanford.

Boyd Coleman, president of the Downtown Business Association, presents the group's donation of $100 for Sanford's fireworks display to Martha Yancey, good will ambassador of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

Robots Will Be Big Part On The Farm Too

GAINESVILLE — Can you picture R2D2 picking fruit or milking a cow?

Scientists at the University of Florida say the age of robotics may not be far off for the nation's farms.

Dr. G.W. Isaacs, chairman of the Agricultural Engineering Department at UF's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences (IFAS), says other nations are already developing intelligent machines to do routine farm work, and the next decade may see robots doing the chores on American farms.

"Robots have on-board computers so they can take measurements and make simple decisions," Isaacs explains. "Right now the Australians have developed a sheepshearing robot that senses the contours of the sheep — it's almost like doing a typographical map — and shears the sheep without hurting it or losing too much wool."

"The Japanese," he adds, "have a robotized combine that senses the side of uncut grain and harvests it. When the operation is done it stops at the end of the field and waits for somebody to come and get it."

Isaacs says robotics has enormous potential for Florida agriculture. "It's conceivable that we could put robotic arms on a head with an optical sensor and locate and pick oranges. Humans get tired, but a robot could work all day and all night," he said.

Isaacs says similar devices could be used in the greenhouse industry to water and pot plants and to cut flowers. Robots could also harvest vegetables, plow fields, and mow grass.

Isaacs says the U.S. has been lagging behind the rest of the world in development of robotic farm machines because the farm equipment industry is still reeling from the effects of the recession.

Holcombe Promoted

JO ANN HOLCOMBE
John Y. Mercer, vice president of Southeast Bank, N.A., Sanford Banking Center, has announced the promotion of Jo Ann Holcombe as head teller. Jo Ann lives in Sanford, and moved here from New Jersey in 1973. She graduated from Seminole High School in 1976. She began her banking career while a student at Seminole High in 1974. She became employed with State Bank of Forest City, Sanford, on Feb. 23, 1981.

Bank Buys Great American

Barnett Banks of Florida, Inc., and Great American Banks, Inc., of Miami have announced an agreement for Barnett to buy from ComBanks Corp. of Winter Park its controlling interest in Great American. The agreement calls for a merger of Great American into Barnett.

The agreement reached with both ComBanks and Great American calls for a recommendation by Great American's directors that shareholders vote their stock in support of the merger into Barnett.

Barnett would pay approximately $23.6 million for ComBanks' controlling position which consists of Great American common and preferred stock totaling 42.8 percent of voting securities as well as warrant which, if exercised, would represent nearly 56 percent of the outstanding stock.

In the merger, Barnett would offer all other Great American shareholders either cash of $17 per share or 10-year promissory notes with an approximate market value of $17 per share, at the option of the shareholder.

Cost of the acquisition would be approximately $47.3 million. The agreement is subject to approval by Great American shareholders and to regulatory approval.

Canada Opens Door To U.S.

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Canadian government imposed tough restrictions on public service wages and reluctantly nudged open the door to American investment in a dramatic bid to salvage its foundering economy.

The emergency budget Monday night came just seven months after Finance Minister Allan MacEachen's ill-fated November budget had made increased Canadian ownership of the domestic energy industry a major goal.

MacEachen Monday named persistent double-digit inflation and high American interest rates as the main culprits behind an unprecedented wave of bankruptcies and the weakest Canadian dollar in history.

In response, he slapped tough wage restrictions on more than a half-million public sector workers, holding pay hikes to 6 percent over the next 12 months and 5 percent for the following year.

The limits would apply not only to members of Parliament, senators, judges and employees of government departments but also to the Canadian Forces, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and all other federal employees.

More than 500,000 workers will be affected, MacEachen said, and private sector unions and employers were urged to follow the government's new pay limits.

MacEachen also promised to rein-in the government's controversial foreign investment watchdog and slow Canadianization of the petroleum industry to lure back jittery foreign investors whose exodus has driven the dollar to about 77 cents in U.S. currency.

"The government is aware international investors are concerned about the capacity of the Canadian balance of payments to absorb the pace of Canadianization in the energy sector under the National Energy Program," he said.

Girl Scouts Enjoy Day Camp

Brownies and Girl Scouts from Lake Mary, Sanford and Paola enjoyed a different theme each day at their recent day camp held at the Lake Silver scout camp.

Monday was Indian Day with the girls making costumes and beads. The Paola Boy Scout Troop taught the girls Indian dances.

On Fantasy Day, Tuesday, the girls learned scouting skills such as lashing and sending messages in the morning and utilized them in a fantasy version of the traditional "wide game" in the afternoon.

Wednesday was Pioneer Day with the girls learning folk painting, candlemaking, cross-stitching, weaving, bread baking, butter making and clogging.

Thursday was Circus Day when the scouts designed and made costumes and put on circus acts.

Friday was Horse Day and the girls were instructed by Wanda Kuester, who brought her horse, in horse care and safety, the parts of a horse and how to get off and on. The scouts then held a "Western Horse Show" using stick horses they had made.

Fancy lions (above) at Circus Day were Susan Flake, 14 and Michelle Tapscott, 10, while four-year-old Ben Daniel, (right) brother of Girl Scout Ginny Daniel was a snake trainer.

25th Reunion Brings Back Memories For Class

Tunes from the 50s blared from the "juke box" and the mood was nostalgic as the Seminole High School Class of 1957 gathered at the Sanford Woman's Club recently for their 25th Reunion get-together. There were 93 graduates that year and 53 of them made it to the reunion along with 29 spouses and guests.

Those attending wore their yearbook photos as reminders of "the way they were."

Winning the prize for the class member who traveled the longest way to be present for the festivities was Juanita Wynne Nakano, who came from her home in Kailua, Hawaii.

The "Early Bird" award went to Virgil

Gracey of Winter Park for being the first one to get his paid reservation in for the reunion.

Bill Thompson of Fort Lauderdale won the award for the class member with the youngest child as the father of a six-week old baby.

Jim Warner of Sanford had the dubious honor of being chosen the one with the least hair.

Pat Herrington Butler of DeBary, with five children, won the award for having the most children (although there was a tie for this title she won by having the oldest child). However, Evelyn Bennett Britton of Sanford, was the classmate with the oldest grandchild.

A special plaque was presented to Iris Hunt, chairman of the June 26 event, for her hard work in whipping everything (and everyone) into shape.

Those attending included class officers, Mary Grace Hobby Wright, secretary-treasurer; Brantley Schirrad, president; and Sylvia Price Stanley, vice president.

Members of the reunion committee included Dottie Bolinger Ramsey, Joe Russi, Jean Ann Nelson Russi, Vertis Spivey Sauls, Nancy Flowers, Joyce Hobbs, Shirley Higgins, Lois Metts, Dwight Flowers, Iris Hunt, Evelyn Britton and Bill Bishop.

Karen Rebecca Baggs and Kenneth Lamar Williams exchanged marriage vows in a candlelight ceremony which took place at 7 p.m. Saturday, June 12, at the Sanford Alliance Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B.D. Baggs of Route 2, Sanford, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson Williams of 2420 Chase Ave., Sanford.

The full A-line skirt traced with a ruffle of Schiffler lace and edged in Venise lace fell into a chapel length train. The Capulet headpiece of re-embroidered lace and pearls held a fingertip veil and was trimmed in Schiffler lace.

She carried a cascading bouquet of spring flowers.

Friends Pay Tribute To Eunice Wilson

A tribute to one of Sanford's greatest humanitarians Christian churchleader, community worker and businesswoman was held Sunday on the theme "Through the years with Miss Eunice Idella Wilson."

A dedicated, lovable humanitarian she is the owner and directress of the Wilson-Eichelberger Mortuary, 1110 Pine Ave. Sanford. The fourth child of the late Mrs. Gussie L. and Thomas Wilson Sr., as a youngster growing up in Sanford where she lived with her family of three sisters and three brothers, she attended Pearl's Day Elementary School and graduated from Croom's Academy.

After graduation Eunice enrolled in the New York School of Embalming and Restorative Art, where she received her degree in Mortuary Science. Her internship was under the late L.W. Eichelberger.

Eunice finds time even though she has a busy schedule to help others. She serves Seminole County and other areas in her business. Since 1955, she has served her community with love, dignity and respect.

June 27, was proclaimed by

Marva Hawkins

Mayor Lee Moore and the City of Sanford as Eunice I. Wilson Day at 6 p.m. at Allen Chapel African Methodist Episcopal Church, Sanford. A service of tribute was held with James G. Bouey, presiding. Words of joy, respect, and admiration for this great humanitarian, were shared with her and the over 250 friends, community workers, admirers, church workers, family and staff who gave to Miss Wilson the praise she so richly deserves.

The invocation for the occasion was given by her pastor, the Rev. John H. Woodard. Melodies in songs were sung by the sponsors of this Eunice I. Wilson Day, the Gospel group which Miss Wilson is founder. The Wilson Ensemble. A welcome from the ensemble was given by Mrs. Gloria B. Jones. Greetings came from Sanford City Commissioner Milton E. Smith.

Music from the beautiful voices of the Chordettes, and tributes to the honoree by Horace Orr, Executive Director of the Seminole Employment Economic Development Corporation (SEEDCO), from Professor Stephen C. Wright, instructor at Seminole Community College, on behalf of the Seminole County Educators and from Vic Arnett on behalf of Sanford Development Corporation (where Miss Wilson serves on the board,) and for the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, of which she is a member.

Words of love and admiration given by Mrs. Lillie R. Hall of the Wilson-Eichelberger Mortuary staff, and from the group of dedicated singers whom Miss Wilson holds so dear to her heart, the Wilson Ensemble. Miss Mary E. Liggins gave the tribute to "Boss Lady", as Miss Wilson is affectionately called by the Ensemble.

The melodious voice of Mrs. Patricia Merritt Hitchmon, filled the church as she sang a special dedication to Miss Wilson, "Sweet, Sweet Spirit," the audience proclaimed the glory and prepared to receive the inspirational message of love, thanks, devotion and admiration from the keynote speaker and long-time family friend, Mrs. Thelma J. Dudley, of Orlando.

Presentations to the honoree of plaques, gifts and roses came from those who honor and cherish her. Words of thankfulness and praise from Pastor Woodard and the closing melody by the Wilson Ensemble and benediction completed the program.

Rape Myths Get In Way Of Facts

DEAR ABBY: When I was 15, I was raped by a neighbor. We lived in a nice neighborhood and the man was married and had children. He was respected by everyone who knew him and was even a good friend of my family.

I never told anyone because I felt so guilty and ashamed. Years later that experience still haunted me, so I decided to go to my local rape crisis center for counseling, and it was the best thing I ever did for myself.

I regained my self-respect when I realized that what happened to me wasn't my fault. I am now a volunteer with the rape crisis center, and I hope you will print some facts that helped me recover fully from the experience. There must be thousands of your readers who are still suffering silently because they're ashamed to ask for help.

MYTHS AND FACTS ABOUT RAPE

MYTH: Rape is an impulsive act of sexual gratification.
FACT: Rape is a brutal act of violence and power — not one of passion. Men can control themselves. Sixty percent of all rapists are married or have regular sexual partners. Sixty percent of all rapes are planned in advance and 50 percent of all rapes don't end in orgasm for the man. Rapists are becoming more brutal, with an increasing number of rapists using a foreign object to commit the rape.
MYTH: Rapists attack strangers in dark alleys at night.
FACT: In 59 percent of all rapes, the rapist is known to the victim; he is a friend, acquaintance or relative. Fifty percent of all rapes occur in either the victim's or rapist's home.

Dear Abby

MYTH: A woman can't get raped if she doesn't want to.
FACT: A majority of women are not brought up participating in contact sports and are not accustomed to being grabbed or physically attacked. Therefore, they often react with a paralyzing fear, which is a totally understandable response. The victim should not be made to feel ashamed or responsible — it is the rapist's fault.

MYTH: Women ask for rape, provoke and enjoy it.
FACT: Rape is a violent and brutal act. It is preposterous to believe that a woman would ask for or enjoy a violent physical attack and risk VD, pregnancy, injury or even death.

MYTH: Women falsely accuse men of rape.
FACT: FBI statistics show that false accusations for rape are the same as for any other felony — 5 percent. Every victim who decides to prosecute must undergo an extensive medical exam, a thorough interrogation by the police and a difficult court testimony. The chances of conviction are 1 out of 8.

MYTH: "It can't happen to me."
FACT: As with any act of violence, any female can be a victim of rape. It does not happen just to beautiful women. Females aged 4 months to 96 years have been raped.

MYTH: Rape is a woman's problem.
FACT: It is a problem of the whole society when one-half of the population fears the other half. Most men in their lifetime will know a victim because one out of every three females will be raped in her lifetime. It may be his mother, daughter, lover friend or even grandmother.

RECOVERED VICTIM IN OREGON
DEAR RECOVERED: Thank you for an enlightening addition to this column. Local rape crisis centers provide excellent counseling for all rape victims — including those who were raped years ago and still feel guilty and ashamed. It's never too late to clean out an old wound and let it heal properly.

Meals-On-Wheels Needs Help

Central Seminole Senior Citizens held their usual business meeting June 24 at the Nativity Church, Lake Mary at 10 a.m. President Lil Kurzer introduced and welcomed two new members into the club, Mr. & Mrs. Harry R. Terry, of 389 Wilbur Ave., Lake Mary. Birthdays for the month of June were showed at the residence of Mrs. Patricia Spivey in Lake Mary. The party was given by Mrs. Pat Spivey and Mrs. Cynthia Galley. The party rooms were decorated with Tumbler Teddy Bears and Rainbows. Nuts and mints were served in napkins folded into miniature baby diapers. Cake and punch were served to the guests. Games were enjoyed by all present. Mrs. Brodie received many lovely gifts.

acknowledged, and celebrated Federation Director Virginia Mercer gave an interesting talk on future business within the club. Frank Joyce spoke about the "Silver-haired" Legislature of Senior Citizens having been cancelled. He said it was most important for all members to get behind this cause for continued improvement for all seniors throughout the state. Then on a lighter note, a drawing was held and one of the prizes was made by 93-year-old Grandma Shuster — a little pair of red booties. She is the mother of Grace Butheil.

With many members away vacationing etc., there was a very urgent call for a number of volunteers for the meals-on-wheels services. And mention of the upcoming bazaar to be held on Oct. 28 at the Nativity Church was made, so everyone will have time to get things in for selling.

The next meeting will be July 8, a pot-luck luncheon and new members are always most welcome.

The Forest resident Rarle Raerwin of 534 W. Plantation Blvd., had an unexpected call into the hospital on the morning of June 26. To date he is doing very well and hopes to be back home among his friends soon. Mrs. Lois Murdock, 537 Hickory Court, the Forest, died on the morning of June 27 after a very long illness.

Priorities For The Church

God consistently warns His people before destruction and offers mercy, usually right to the point of calamity. His nature is to extend mercy beyond the point required by His justice. Even in the midst of their sin, God called his wayward children like a loving father:

"Come now, let us reason together," says the Lord. "Though your sins are as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; Though they are red as crimson, they shall be like wool." (Is. 1:18)

Based on historical standards, America today is ripe for destruction. Our great concern should not be enemy domination or nuclear destruction, but the judgment of God against us. (Is. 8:12, 13) We are in a time of God's great grace.

The priorities of the Church should be four-fold in our present condition: Thanksgiving, repentance, cleansing of sin, and reestablishing the support structure.

THANKSGIVING: This involves acknowledging God's mercy as He upholds us. Without His mercy, our fate would be sure and it would be soon.

REPENTANCE: While we may not be personally responsible for much of the sin that engulfs our nation, we all carry a measure of responsibility. The Church has not been the purifying agent that we could have been, nor have we clearly pronounced the standards of righteousness required by God.

CLEANSING OF SIN: The impurities causing erosion of the pillars must be removed. (1 Peter 4:17) "It is time for judgment to begin in the House of the Lord." The church today needs to purge itself from sin and compromising standards. It must return it's people to a life of holiness, and righteousness, without this no one shall see the Lord. (Heb. 12:14).

Before we can turn America back to Godliness in which it was founded on. We (as individuals and families) must return to the standards set up for us in the Bible. Each "Born Again" believer must be trained in Spiritual Warfare. We must utilize the Power of the Holy Spirit in our lives. We must use the Wisdom and armor and weapons given us by the Holy Spirit (Eph. 6:12-18; 2 Cor. 10:3, 4). Without this, the best of elected officials, the best of social programs, the best military defense will all be for naught. It is up to the Ministers of the Gospel to equip and train the Saints for spiritual battle and the work of the Ministry. (Eph. 4:11-12).

Pastor's Corner

DAVE BOHANNON
First Assembly of God

Finally, to reestablish the support structure of America, we must work toward building families and building the Church. This is critically important. Strong families and a strong Church will produce the men and women, the ideas, the character, the commitment and the vision to rebuild America. There really is no other hope.

The Body of Christ must be the salt, with its cohesive as well as preservative quality. We must be the light, bringing the illumination of spiritual reality into a darkened world. We must be the "city set on a hill," providing models of community life with internal integrity and the ability to stand up under adversity.

It is sobering, but a tremendous encouragement, to realize that God is yearning, pleading with the Church to rise up in this critical hour. We're in a place where other options are exhausted, and unless we fulfill His destiny for us, another generation may not have the opportunity. It can be done, by His continued mercy, his loving grace, and our humble obedience and action. (James 2:26).

John Butler of Sanford carries his 50-pound cross on Highway 17-92.

Cross-Bearer Is On The Road Again

John D. Butler, Sanford man who has dedicated his life to carrying a 50-pound cedar cross as a witness to "remind people of the saving work of Jesus Christ that changes lives", was back in Sanford after taking his message as far away as the states of Washington, Oregon and California. Butler, 32, said he has logged more than 6,000 miles walking and carrying the 10-foot cross including a visit to the World's Fair.

Butler, who travels by camper truck the long distances between cities, returned home for a few days to get a little rest and pick up his wife, Susan, and new baby daughter for a trip up the east coast with his cross.

The ex-Marine took up his cross for the Lord two years ago, and since then has had his life threatened several times. During his walks, he said he's been spit upon, cussed at and physically threatened. Once while he was carrying the cross in front of some go-go bars and pornography shops in Orlando.

Some angry businessmen threatened to kill him if he didn't stop walking the streets with his cross, however, he kept walking for two weeks and no one harmed him.

Butler said the Lord has held back angry assailants who were trying to strike him, but stopped.

"I don't approach anyone," he said. "The Lord impressed me not to bother people. But everyone has a reaction when they see a man carrying a cross. People will either accept or reject you."

Although Butler said he never asks for financial help, it usually comes from unexpected sources. Often from strangers who tell him the Lord had impressed on them they should give a certain amount of money to him at the time he had only change in his pocket. Once when he was invited to speak in a church during his travels and needed new tires for his truck, a couple said the Lord had told them to buy new tires for his truck although he had not mentioned the need.

Church Leaders Building Opposition To Welfare Cuts

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

For 15 days later this month, a group of 16 religious leaders will visit nearly two score cities such as Baltimore, Omaha, Neb., Syracuse, N.Y., Cleveland, Charlotte N.C., and Seattle, for visits with 20 to 40 of each city's top religious leaders.

The purpose of the quiet, low-key meetings will be to build opposition to cuts in domestic spending that will hurt the poor when the next major battle of the budget unfolds in the fall.

Sponsor of the meetings is the Interreligious Emergency Campaign for Economic Justice, a coalition of 25 religious denominations that came together at the end of January to specifically concentrate on the Reagan administration's proposed 1983 budget and its impact on the poor.

Unlike other religious lobbying efforts, which generally take place on a day-by-day basis and in a low key fashion, the budget effort was specifically styled as a "campaign" by the United Church of Christ's Paul Kittlaus, chairman of the group's steering committee.

"There are two modes of work," Kittlaus said in an interview. "The bureaucratic and the campaign. I don't mean to be pejorative about bureaucrats — I am one — but when you're on a campaign, you stop being a bureaucrat."

Essentially that means a concentrated, full time effort to develop a four-pronged strategy involving Washington lobbying, targeted grassroots mobilization, media work and the development of "something substantive to say beyond the moral rhetoric to help policy makers."

The chief principle of the campaign can be — and is — summarized in a button and bumper sticker slogan: "The poor have suffered enough."

To back that slogan up, the religious group in phase one of its campaign, distributed some 30,000 copies of an analysis of the proposed budget, documenting the cuts impact on the poor, written by Robert Greenstein of the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities. It also began an intensive, targeted lobbying effort on Capitol Hill aimed at defeating the Republican-Bill Weevil budget plan.

It lost. "We did win a minor victory," said campaign general coordinator Ken Hughes, "in that the first time Latta (Reagan's proposal, sponsored by Rep. Delbert Latta, R-Ohio) was voted on, it was defeated."

Kittlaus thinks they might also have lost because the Democrats, for political purposes, allowed Reagan and the Republicans to win in the belief the economy will get worse and be translated into Democratic votes in November.

"If that is the case," he said, "that is the most immoral of all reasons for voting for the budget. Of the various things they could make a judgment on, that is the most immoral."

The campaign, scheduled to last only until the congressional session ends, now moves into phase two and a concentration on mobilizing outside of Washington while continuing to press members "to really hold the line on cuts," Hughes said.

"Our work now is in the authorizing and appropriating committees and in the tax committees," he said. "Our presence has to be continuously felt."

"Public policy decisions are made on a variety of value-based grounds," said Kittlaus. "We're trying to bring a moral perspective to the marketplace of contenting points of view."

Where Would Euthanasia Lead?

She is 93 years old and wants to die. She lives alone in a two-room flat. She has no family, almost no friends. She is sick and nearly blind. Doctors can do nothing for her.

It's just old age, they say.

Should she "qualify" for euthanasia — mercy killing? Doctors are not required to use extraordinary means to keep people alive. But they cannot voluntarily do anything calculated to end a person's life.

Yet, according to one writer, "a substantial body of Americans believe an enlightened society should authorize the termination of life by painless medical means when a person is suffering intensely from an incurable sickness."

What about the 93-year-old woman in our story? Would this "body of Americans" say she qualifies too?

After the questions of abortion and school prayer are disposed of (if ever), some people feel that euthanasia will be the next great debate. If so, the debate will focus on more than just the suffering aged.

If euthanasia is ever legalized, there are those who have visions of doctors going through the veterans hospitals where the mentally deranged, the blind and those with bodies little more than helpless torsos are housed — and "turning thumbs up or thumbs down on one case after another."

The efficiency expert — so goes another warning — might well suggest the economic wisdom of clearing out our country's insane asylums.

The Nazi practice of euthanasia in World War II conjures up more horror pictures.

Dr. Leo Alexander, who testified at the Nuremberg war crimes trials, says that even before the Nazis took over, "a propaganda barrage in Germany was directed at the traditional compassionate 19th Century attitudes toward the chronically ill and in favor of the adoption of a utilitarian point of view."

By 1936, state hospitals in Germany were required to furnish names of patients who had been ill five years or more and were unable to work. Such persons were often liquidated by order of the state.

Alexander says 275,000 persons were put to death "in charitable foundations for institutional care — the mentally defective, psychotics, epileptics and patients suffering from infirmities of old age. All those unable to work and considered non-rehabilitable were killed."

Saints And Sinners

George Plagenz

It all started, says Alexander, with the attitude, "basic in the euthanasia movement, that there is such a thing as life not worth living."

Could it happen here?

There are other worries which anti-euthanasia people have.

Dr. Willard Sperry, the late dean of Harvard Divinity School, said, in a book on the ethics of medicine that he had an uneasy suspicion that "the prospect of an inheritance or of release from an intimate relationship that has become irksome might well lead many relatives to suggest mercy killing in some moment when the patient's guard was down."

Even in families "where affections are still unimpaired but resources are limited," Sperry feared that the "prospect of release from an increasingly heavy load of expense might operate in the same way."

An even larger concern with Sperry, however, was what euthanasia would do to the public's confidence in doctors.

"The layman," said Sperry, "still believes his doctor will stand by him to the end. Once let that faith be shaken and the layman will approach the medical profession thereafter with his own skeptical reservations."

Rev. Joseph Fletcher, Episcopal clergyman and the best known proponent of euthanasia, is of course well acquainted with all the reasons people use in arguing against euthanasia. But he rests his case for mercy killing on the premise that "the well-being of persons is the highest good."

Our moral acts are right or wrong, he says, depending on the consequences aimed at.

"The consequences are good or evil," he says, "according to whether and how much they serve humane values."

What would he say about the 93-year-old woman in our story?

What would you say?
