Soviet Leader Meets With Thatcher Enroute

Gorbachev Arrives Today For Summit

By Sean McCormally And Anne Baker
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Amid pre-summit protests, polls and predictions already about arms control gains of the future, the nation's capital awaited today's historic arrival of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev with what President Reagan called "high hopes for new, forward steps."
 The American chief executive and the Communist Kremlin boss expect to sit down during the latter's first visit to the United States not only to sign a treaty erasing an entire class of nuclear missiles but also to work on cutting their overall strategic arsenals and making progress on other issues.

Gorbachev, after a brief stop in London to talk with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, was expected at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington at 4:40 p.m. EST, accompanied by his wife, Raisa, and an official delegation.

His mission in Britain was to win Thatcher's endorsement of his approach to the superpower missile accord.

The Intermediate Nuclear Forces treaty, the centerpiece of the summit to be signed at the White House Tuesday, would eliminate U.S. and Soviet missiles with ranges of 300 to 3,000 miles, the first time the superpowers have agreed to destroy existing atomic weaponry. Most of the warheads are in Europe.

By the time the third Reagan-Gorbachev summit ends Thursday, the two leaders hope to be closer to an even bigger step forward — the reduction by 50 percent of their longer-range strategic nuclear weapons. The president would like to sign

County To Consider 'Adult' Law

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer
 County commissioners will discuss recommendations for an obscenity ordinance at its Tuesday morning work session, and will be asked to condemn three vacant buildings when it meets in regular session Tuesday afternoon.

Deputy County Attorney Robert McMillan and Sheriff's Lt. Don Ealinger will present recommendations for a proposed ordinance regulating so-called "adult" entertainment in the county.

The present ordinance on obscene acts is included in the county's zoning code and requires a special exception to the zoning classification for adult entertainment. McMillan says when the ordinance was drawn up in 1981, there were no adult bookstores or topless dancing establishments in the county, so no ordinance to regulate them was considered.

A provision was included in the zoning code aimed at keeping such establishments out. However, the courts have held that special exceptions to allow adult entertainment cannot arbitrarily be withheld.

McMillan and Lt. Ealinger, who is a vice detective, have studied obscenity ordinances adopted by other governments, including in Orange County and Altamonte Springs, and will present recommendations for a possible Seminole County ordinance to the commissioners.

At its regular session, the board of commissioners will hear requests to condemn three vacant and deteriorating buildings. The recommendations for condemnation come from Thomas W. Williams, county condemnation inspector, and Joel Dean, county building official.

One building is located on Palma Springs Road south of North Street, one is on Right Way, and one at 1607 South West Road.

Williams says the building on Palm Springs Drive, owned by Shenandoah Square, Inc., is dilapidated and has trash and debris inside and outside and is a potential fire hazard.

The building on Right Way is owned by Coley Lumpkins and Sarah E. McMillon, according to Williams. His report says the building has been severely damaged by fire and is in a dilapidated condition.

The third building is on property owned by Lorenzo

Citizens Assail Commissioners Actions

Lake Mary Defends Park Takeovers; Commissioner—Land To Be Replaced

By Brian Hedberg
Herald Staff Writer
 While Lake Mary commissioners drew fire from residents Thursday for their consideration of building a municipal complex on land containing public parks, Commissioner Paul Tremel said today that the city certainly would compensate for the parks with other park land if such a building decision was made.

A unanimous vote of the commission also passed a motion to order appraisals of two land parcels under Florida Statute 166, an exemption to the state's public records law, which gives negotiators the option of keeping confidential the dealings for a new city hall site.

Commissioners reasoned that they have more bargaining leverage by keeping the landowners from knowing the land value and that using the confidential provision would speed negotiations.

A resident said the landowners could pay for their appraisals themselves and tack on the cost to their asking prices. She said that to keep the dealings in secret was using a "cloak and dagger" approach to obtaining a site for the new home of city hall.

City Attorney Ned Julian said law permits the city to negotiate in secret by receiving the appraisals on the sites, one on Lake Mary Boulevard and one on Country Club Road, and appointing a bargainer.

"There are no reluctant sellers," City Manager Bob Norris said. "They will all sell under a variety of conditions and rationale. It may be that we may have to take some action in threatening condemnation to make a sale work."

Norris said certain tax advantages exist for the seller when the threat of condemnation exists.

Earlier in the discussion of the city's municipal complex, an elderly resident confronted commissioners about their plans to consider land containing parks for the city's new complex.

Margaret Green Wesley read from a speech dedicating the parks that they were to be "dedicated to the public forever, to have and to hold for the use as set forth."

"Crystal Lakes Winter Homes was beautifully laid out with parks and alleys and wide streets," Wesley said. "Our only handicap was the narrow 33-foot lots, which in the past allowed houses too close together. Our parks helped compensate for this."

Sales Tax On Services Repeal Set

Bill To Set April 1 Cutoff

By Brad Church

 A bill repealing the controversial sales tax on services will be introduced in a special session of the Legislature tomorrow and passage, without any replacement taxes, is expected by both houses.

Senate President John Vogt, D-Merritt Island, said today that Legislators are expected to approve an April 1 repeal date, but that Gov. Martinez has offered no promise to sign a bill with that repeal date.

"It's been very difficult to get a commitment on anything concerning this tax, but I hope the governor agrees to the April 1 date," he said.

Martinez refused to commit himself to the repeal date until conferring with Republican legislative leaders, and his staff. Vogt said the April 1 date was

Consumer Price Index Increases May Prompt Action

Sanford Considers Raises For City Employees

By Nancy Simmons
Herald Staff Writer
 A possible 3.1 per cent cost of living raise for Sanford City employees will be one topic of discussion at the City Commission workshop today at 4 p.m. in the city manager's conference room, 2nd floor of the city hall building.

Retiree health insurance will also be discussed, along with several other topics.

A 3.1 per cent increase since January in the consumer price index (CPI) has prompted city officials to consider the cost of living adjustment, according to City Manager Frank Faison. In a letter to city commission members, in which he recommends review of the cost of living adjustment, Faison stated that should the adjustment be paid, starting in February 1988, additional funds needed would be approximately $187,204.

An adjustment was not included in the 87/88 budget, because at that time the CPI was "so insignificant," he said.

City retiree health insurance will also be discussed at the workshop. City administrative staff members have discovered recently that 25 city retirees are not participating in a health plan but are still receiving checks from the city, according to a memorandum sent to Faison by City Administrative Director Kim Smith. She stated that these employees need to know what options are available to them.

Oct. 1 the city began paying an additional 0.24 per cent per employee into the Florida Retirement System (FRS) to fund a retiree health insurance subsidy, from which employees participating in FRS will begin receiving, in January 1988, one dollar per month for every year of service, according to Kim Smith, Director of Administrative Services. In Oct. 1988, the city will withhold 0.48 per cent of salaries so that the FRS subsidy can increase to $2 per month for every year of service.

Smith said the city staff recommends that See RAISES, page 10A

POLICE

IN BRIEF

Orlando Man Injured During Traffic Dispute Friday

An Orlando man stabbed Friday in a traffic dispute in Longwood remained hospitalized today in Orlando Regional Medical Center.

David Youmans, 18, 3016 Sutton Drive, was listed in fair condition on his arrival at ORMC Friday afternoon. A hospital spokesman said, judging by the area of the hospital Youmans is in, he probably remains in fair condition.

Youmans received the wound to his lower left abdomen during a fight Friday in the parking lot of the Sabal Center.

Youmans was riding his motorcycle on Wekiva Springs Road, according to a Seminole County Sheriff's Department report.

The report indicates he pulled into the northwest parking lot of the shopping center and started to argue with an unknown number of persons over a traffic incident.

There's a possibility the subjects involved are students at Lake Brantley High School, the report said.

After receiving the injury, Youmans made his way to the back door of Applebee's Restaurant, at 220 Wekiva Springs Road, Longwood, where he was to report to work at 4 p.m. Friday.

The restaurant manager called the sheriff's department on discovering Youmans' condition.

When a deputy arrived on the scene, he found Youmans in the back of the restaurant lying in a pool of blood.

The SCSD is investigating the case, which it is calling aggravated battery.

Oviedo Man Arrested For Fraud

An Oviedo man, who was arrested for possession of stolen property, also has been charged with the use of fraud in obtaining prescription drugs after Oviedo Police found a prescription book under the back seat of the patrol car he was transported in.

Albert Jerome Wilson, 35, #3 Smitty's Grill, was arrested Friday after he was seen in the vicinity of Avenue B and Newton Avenue with what appeared to be a new radio.

The arrest report indicates that Wilson started walking towards a wooded area when he noticed the officer watching him.

When he was stopped and asked where he got the radio, Wilson said it was his, and that he had just bought it. A police check of the radio's serial number confirmed it was stolen in Georgia.

After Wilson was taken into custody, an officer checked the back seat of the patrol car he'd been transferred in. The officer found a brown paper bag hidden under the back seat.

The bag contained a letter addressed to Wilson and a prescription book from the Central Florida Community Clinic. Two of the prescription forms had been filled out.

After the signatures on the forms were proven to be Wilson's instead of the doctor's, whose name appeared on them, Wilson was arrested on the fraud charge.

Wilson was transported to the Seminole County jail, where his bond was set at $1,000.

Grand Theft Arrest Made

A Sanford man was arrested and charged with burglary, grand theft and dealing in stolen property Friday.

William Douglas Mayes, 28, of 1237 Pine Ridge Circle, allegedly entered an apartment at #239, 401 W. Seminole Blvd., Sanford on Nov. 30 and Tuesday, and stole items with an estimated value of $2,000.

Police reports indicate Mayes sold the property to Crown Pawn, a Sanford business.

Police recovered the property from the establishment on Thursday.

On the same date, Mayes allegedly made contact with the victim and admitted he took the articles from the apartment.

The Sanford Police Department report indicates Mayes made a full tape-recorded confession in the case.

Two Garbage Companies Are Major State Polluters, Newspaper Says

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — Two garbage firms who handle nearly half the nation's private rubbish removal have been cited over 1,000 times and fined $20 million since 1980 for pollution violations, a published report says.

Waste Management Inc., which is based in Oak Brook, Ill., and operates 102 dump sites, and Browning-Ferris Industries, with headquarters in Houston and about 90 sites, have left a legacy of contaminated dumpsites and nagging doubts about who will compensate pollution victims, according to a year-long review.

Together, the two firms operate in 22 states and have collected $3.4 billion through hundreds of allied firms in the last two decades, according to Sunday's Fort Lauderdale News/Sun-Sentinel.

The newspaper said the firms were cited more than 1,000 times for pollution violations at more than 50 landfills and fined more than $20 million since 1980 for acts such as illegal dumping, improper storage or waste spillage.

They have also been sued for billions of dollars on allegations ranging from cutthroat pricing to poisoning air and groundwater.

"I think the company's environmental record is excellent," said Hal Gerahowitz, a Waste Management senior vice president.

But he added, "This company is never going to be able to say there are no environmental issues."

Said BFI vice president Richard Oakley, "I don't know of any pollution problem we're not addressing."

In 1983, a series of lawsuits, government citations and news articles accused Waste Management of illegally handling waste at seven landfills from Colorado to Alabama.

Since then the firm has replaced dumpsite managers and hired pollution control experts, but has been accused repeatedly of violating pollution laws.

A News and Sun-Sentinel survey showed Waste Management had been issued 547 pollution citations between 1980 and 1983 and 632 since then.

The company has been fined $19.9 million for environmental infractions since 1980 — including a $12.5 million in fines for illegal disposal of chemicals and other infractions at a single site in Vickery, Ohio.

"They're so wealthy that it's just a drop in the bucket," said Wilma Kardotzke, a Vickery resident suing the plant for damages.

Peter Vardy, a Waste Management vice president for environmental affairs, said regulators often single out his firm because it is the nation's largest waste handling firm.

"We're in the fishbowl more than any other company," said Vardy. "They (the Environmental Protection Agency) get their Brownie points for picking on us."

BFI, the No. 2 waste disposal firm, was cited 196 times between 1980 and 1983 and 464 times since then.

The company was written up 38 times in three years for improperly operating its Willow Springs, La., dump. Two BFI employees are facing trial next summer on charges of dumping polluted rainwater into a Williamsburg, Ohio, creek upstream from the town's drinking water.

BFI spokesman Peter Block conceded the citations may be increasing. He blamed the firm's expansion, noting that many polluted dump sites had been purchased by the company. "We seem to be very good at buying these problems, rather than creating them," said Block. "Certainly the company's growth plays a big role in that."

Yet some of the company's most-cited landfills have been run by the company since the 1970s. Nationwide, the company has been assessed fines of about $1.2 million since 1980, the newspaper said.

"I really don't think that companies this large should be able to ignore the law for the pursuit of economic gain," said Sharon Rogers, an anti-dump activist in Missouri.

Couple Beaten To Death

PEMBROKE PINES (UPI) — An elderly couple was found beaten to death inside their two-bedroom home in a quiet retirement community and police said they had no suspects and no motive.

Gordon and Genevieve Irene Leland, both 75, were found Sunday after a neighbor saw the woman's body through a window of the couple's home.

"They were badly beaten about the head and shoulders, the face area," police spokesman David Belusko said. "There were some cuts and what appeared to be some bludgeoning."

The deaths stunned the residents of Sunswep, a community that Belusko described as "probably the quietest neighborhood in Pembroke Pines."

Neighbors said Gordon Leland was a golf fan and a retired piano tuner who usually went for a drive every day, while his wife rarely left the house.

"They never bothered anybody. I don't understand why anyone would do something this brutal to them," said Bruce Powell, 28, who lives next door.

Police found the woman's body lying in the dining room and the man's body in a hallway near the bedrooms, Belusko said. The couple had been dead between six and 12 hours when police found them, he said.

"We have no motives at this time. We don't know if burglary or robbery was the motive. We have no suspects," Belusko said.

Warming Trend Feels So Fine

By Fred H. Cooper
 Herald Staff Writer

Told you it would be a wonderful week-end, and it was. Of course, the pooping out of the wind Sunday put a damper on the regatta, literally beached the boats, but other than that it was great.

Remember late Saturday afternoon? That gorgeous sunset in the west, and equally gorgeous moon rise in the east. Radiant oranges in both. It was truly spectacular. Some of you watched the view from the lakefront, others from the football stadium in Orlando.

The UCF game was one of the ones you were cautioned about as to the wearing of sweaters. Though the temperatures remained in the 60s, the extra clothing proved comfortable. A couple of non-weather observations about the UCF game which remind us of the truth of the adage that those who ignore history relive the mistakes of the past.

The Knights crusade for the crown was defeated by a Turk, and Florida Senate President John Vogt was an honorary coach for UCF and proceeded to the middle of the field for the pre-game coin-toss. UCF won the toss but deferred the decision to the opponents. The opponents elected to receive, and won.

Now, back to the weather which, as you know by now, is in a warming trend. Lows in the 50s and highs around 70 will continue for a couple more days. Possibility of a little rain, but nothing serious.

Citizens elsewhere are not so fortunate. Another in a series of Pacific storms lashed the coast with rain and high winds today and dumped wet, heavy snow on the northern Sierra Nevada, chasing away skiers from at least one resort. Rain stretched early today from western Washington and Oregon south as far as Santa Barbara, Calif. Six inches of new snow fell in the Sierra Nevada with six more inches on the way, forecasters said.

High winds forced the Alpine Meadows ski resort at Tahoe City to close most of its chairlifts, resort spokesman Dan Nourse said. "It's very, very wet snow. It's not nearly what we were hoping for," he said. "It's also very windy. We've been telling people exactly what to expect and if they listen to us, they don't buy tickets."

Winter storm warnings were posted for Washington's Shasta-Siskiyou region, the northern Sierra and higher elevations of the Lake Tahoe Basin. Strong winds and heavy snow in the Lake Tahoe region combined to create near-blizzard conditions.

A high wind watch was posted over northern and central Nevada, where wind gusts around 50 mph were clocked Sunday afternoon at Pocatello, Boise, Idaho, also recorded 50 mph winds. Winter weather advisories for a combination of rain, freezing rain, sleet and snow were issued for parts of Ohio; and snow advisories were posted for much of south central and southeast Wisconsin, where six inches of new snow was reported at Madison.

A mixture of light rain, freezing drizzle, sleet and snow stretched across Minnesota and Wisconsin. Powerful thunderstorms raked eastern Texas and western Louisiana Sunday, spinning off a tornado that destroyed six houses and knocked down power lines 12 miles south of Palestine, Tex.

CNN Bureau Chief Arrested In Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) — Cable News Network bureau chief Peter Arnett was arrested and members of his crew were pushed and shoved as they were covering a demonstration by Jews seeking emigration from the Soviet Union, network representatives reported.

"We have informed the U.S. embassy of his arrest, and we have been trying to reach the foreign ministry and the police to find out what has happened," said CNN producer Gerlind Youns.

"People in civilian clothes staging a counter demonstration kept shoving their hands in front of our camera, shouting and pulling our microphones each time we tried to speak to a refusenik," said CNN sound engineer Benjamin Coyte.

"Peter was last seen in front of the foreign ministry, where the demonstration was taking place, being dragged by four big men and lifted into a bus. Just before they drove off with him, he held his U.S. passport to the window," Coyte said.

Arnett, 53, a veteran correspondent of the Vietnam War, won the Pulitzer Prize for International Reporting in 1966.

Jewish refusenik Nina Nadgorny, 53, who said she had been trying to leave the Soviet Union since 1981, said, "We planned this demonstration today to coincide with the eve of the summit between Mikhail Gorbachev and Ronald Reagan to emphasize our wish to emigrate."

"People who seek to leave the country should not be branded as traitors," said Nadgorny, a physicist.

The refuseniks gathered at about noon outside the Soviet Foreign Ministry building in central Moscow. About the same time, several hundred other people, mostly men, arrived in buses, displayed posters proclaiming "peace" and broadcasting music and slogans from loudspeakers they set up at the scene.

A number of men, some carrying small two-way radios, moved among the refuseniks, ripped their posters away and tried to prevent them from talking to Western reporters.

"They were not violent. None of us was physically punched. They pulled our cables and kept shoving, even shouting to make it difficult to get good sound or film," said Coyte, 24.

"Peter was trying to prevent the goons damaging our equipment, but they managed to separate me and our cameraman, Gary Shore, from him before he was shoved into the bus which then drove off," he said.

There were no immediate reports of any other arrests.

But other witnesses saw demonstrators Galina Khremen, Boris Chernobylski and his daughter Julia, 14, roughed up and put on a blue-and-white bus.

Khremen was last seen standing in the bus holding a cardboard placard which said, "13 years refusal. How long do we wait?"

The demonstration ended after about two hours.

Sandbox Support For Sheriff

Adin Renfro, 7, of Sanford, says he likes Seminole County Sheriff John Polk, right, as much as he likes the barbecue served at the sheriff's fundraiser Saturday in Casselberry. Adin and his mother Linda were among about 300 supporters of Polk who got a personal greeting, instead of a speech at the event. About 1,500, $15 tickets were sold, with about 300 ordering meals to go. Another 700 declined the meal and donated the ticket charge to the Republican candidate's coffers.

Four Die In Plane Crash

LAGRANGE, Ga. (UPI) — The pilot of a single-engine plane, sputtering and apparently out of fuel, tried to land on Interstate 85 but turned away to avoid cars and slammed into an overpass, killing the four people aboard, police and witnesses said.

No one on the ground was injured Sunday when the plane crashed into the bridge shortly before 3 p.m. and came to rest on a grassy median of Georgia 109 in a rest stop for interstate travelers.

Authorities were not certain where the flight originated or where the plane was headed when it crashed.

Col. T.L. Smith of the La-Orange Police Department said two women were in the back seat of the Piper Cherokee when it crashed, killing them instantly. The two men in the front seat were thrown clear, but one died instantly and the other died en route to West Georgia Medical Center.

"We had two passengers inside the aircraft and two passengers outside the aircraft," said Roger Reese, an emergency medical technician who was first on the scene. "We had one passenger outside the aircraft who was still alive."

such an accord next summer at a reciprocal summit in Moscow.

"We are moving closer together," Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov asserted during the weekend. "We are understanding more now ... that we are both partners in a suicide pact in a sense, that we can live together or die together and we must somehow solve this dilemma."

Despite such rhetoric, administration officials have been quick to note this is a meeting of "old enemies," and the harsh reminder of the collapse of the last Reagan-Gorbachev meeting just 14 months ago has tempered expectations.

At that summit in Reykjavik, Iceland, the two men walked away in dispute over "Star Wars," the Strategic Defense Initiative, after Reagan had surprised most observers and dismayed some of his own advisers by discussing the dramatic new proposal to cut strategic weapons in half.

Reagan has scheduled five sessions with Gorbachev this time around, beginning Tuesday morning and ending with lunch

Thursday, but each meeting this time will begin one-on-one except for two translators and two notetakers. In light of the Iceland surprise, there has been some public concern about the set-up.

White House chief of staff Howard Baker scoffed Sunday at such concern, which has focused basically on whether the 76-year-old president might be outmatched by the 57-year-old Kremlin leader.

"The president is a fully engaged, fully committed leader who knows where he wants to go. I have no doubt of his ability to handle it," Baker declared on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Of course, there is far more to handle than just arms control. Regional conflicts, from Afghanistan to the Persian Gulf to Central America, are high on the agenda, and Reagan issued a statement Sunday renewing his pledge to press Gorbachev on Soviet human rights policies.

Promising "undivided support" to the struggle of Soviet Jews to practice their religion freely and to emigrate, Reagan told a huge crowd protesting in the nation's capital Sunday. "If freedom is won through faith, dedication and perseverance, I have no doubt that your efforts will ultimately prevail."

He added, "The Soviet leadership has taken some limited, but positive, steps on the issue of human rights. ... There are more recent signs of stagnation, but I have high hopes for new, forward steps by the Soviets."

An estimated 200,000 demonstrators marched from behind the White House to the Capitol to criticize Kremlin policies toward Jewish "refuseniks" and other dissidents. More protests are scheduled throughout the week, and police barricades already were up Sunday to keep people back from the Soviet Embassy.

Officials were predictably tight-lipped about extraordinary security measures put in place — including a crackdown to shift the traditional location of the city's prostitutes, which is usually an area near the Soviet diplomatic post.

There also were reports that Washington's "street people" were being encouraged to clear the area around the White House and a nearby subway stop that has been a focal point for protests on behalf of the homeless.

In another related summit development, Newsweek magazine reported on what it called the first poll ever conducted simultaneously in both the United States and the Soviet Union. It found American and Soviet citizens generally feel good about each other but are wary of their opposing governments.

FLORIDA

IN BRIEF

Historic University Of Florida Building Destroyed By Fire

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Firefighters battled a two-alarm fire in Johnson Hall on the University of Florida campus for more than four hours Sunday night but were unable to save the historic building.

Officials said a grease fire sparked the blaze in the kitchen of Johnson Hall, a 57-year-old cafeteria and office building, at 4 p.m.

Firefighters had the fire under control by 8 p.m., but not before the building was declared a total loss. Damage was estimated at between $3 million and $5 million.

"We had made application to have the building placed in the National Register of Historic Places," said university spokesman Larry Humes. "It was one of our oldest buildings and it is a terrible loss in terms of historic value."

Fire officials said the only injury was to a firefighter who hurt his foot while fighting the blaze in the 38,000-square-foot brick structure.

The adjacent Arts and Sciences Building was slightly damaged. Classes there have been canceled for Monday and employees who work in the building also have been told not to report, Humes said.

Johnson Hall was built in 1912 and named after Richard S. Johnson, the University's registrar for 25 years before he died in 1985.

Southeast Manatee Deaths Soar

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — With the manatee migration season under way, wildlife experts are concerned over an unusually high number of boat-related manatee deaths in the Miami and Fort Lauderdale areas.

By mid-November, the start of the annual migration toward warmer waters, five manatees had already been killed by boats in Broward County — as many as in the previous four years combined.

The county had one manatee death in 1983, two in 1984, none in 1985 and two in 1986, said Pat Rose, Florida's manatee coordinator.

In Dade County, there was one manatee fatality in 1985 and one in 1986, but four already this year.

Booby-Trapped Bomb Presents

HIALEAH (UPI) — Police issued a warning against picking up stray packages after a gift-wrapped box found in a restaurant parking lot exploded in the hands of a curious employee.

Richard Halverson, 28, was unhurt except for gunpowder irritation to one eye when the booby-trapped package exploded Saturday.

"It was powerful enough to kill him," said Hialeah Police Lt. Lowell Coffin. "It just wasn't his time. He got his Christmas present early."

Halverson apparently was saved because only half the device detonated. It blew out the side of the package that was away from his body.

"Somebody up there likes me," Halverson said, shaken. Coffin described the package as "an anti-personal type device."

"Because of the way he was holding it all the fragments went out the other way," Coffin said. "Had he picked it up the other way it would have hit him in the chest and face."

The Metro-Dade Police bomb squad safely detonated the rest of the device.

No Splashing In Pentagon Pool

In Joseph Heller's novel, "Catch-22," one of the characters, Major Major, came up with a sure-fire method for avoiding bad news. If he was in his office, his underlings were to tell anyone who dropped by that he wasn't available. But if he wasn't there, they were told to usher the visitor right on in, where the puzzled gentleman would be seated before the major's empty desk.

The Pentagon sometimes seems to borrow a page from Heller's satire when it deals with media coverage of U.S. military operations. Dozens of American journalists applied to cover the action in the Persian Gulf, where naval warships were escorting oil tankers caught in the crossfire of the Iran-Iraq war. They wanted to go because the U.S. military presence in the gulf is a major news event. The public and Washington policymakers need accurate, in-depth coverage to determine the operation's strengths and flaws.

Yet, the Pentagon denied the journalists' requests, allowing access by only a small pool of reporters to Navy vessels there. Even the pool reporters complain the Navy hasn't brought them along on some major missions, such as the blasting of Iranian oil platforms in the gulf.

On the other hand, the Navy has been more than gracious in inviting the media to board ships practicing cold-weather maneuvers off the coast of Alaska. What is happening there? Nothing very newsworthy. Indeed, we wonder whether the Navy would send the reporters home if a real confrontation—perhaps with Soviet vessels—developed in the Bering Strait.

Under an agreement reached after the U.S. military invaded Grenada in 1983, the Pentagon was to let a pool of reporters cover its military missions. It has not functioned well in the Persian Gulf. News organizations complain of heavy-handed military censorship and delays in news transmission. Reporters have been left in their hotel rooms, while a Navy public relations man covered the action and provided them with grainy videotapes, bad photos and a couple of press releases.

Whatever its reservations about the media, the military should not be in the business of managing the news. It's vital that reporters have a freer hand to cover naval operations—in the hot spots where the news is really happening and not just in the frozen outposts of imaginary combat.

Sense Of Reality

Change is occurring in the Arab world, where politics were long dominated by anti-Americanism and hate for Israel. Participants in the 21-nation Arab summit meeting in Jordan not only endorsed U.S. policies in the Middle East and Persian Gulf but also opened the door to improved relations with Israel.

The pragmatism of Egypt's government, the steadfastness of the United States, and Israel's determination to survive have paid off.

Syria, which had emerged as Israel's most threatening neighbor in the 1980s, has been left relatively alone by the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty and the de facto peace that exists between Israel and Jordan. The Syrians, once considered pro-Iranian, are seeking accommodation with Iraq and Jordan.

The commitment of U.S. naval forces in the gulf has won respect in moderate Arab circles. Moammar Gadhafi has been reduced to a minor figure. Egypt, which has been an outcast since it unilaterally made peace with Israel, is too important to ignore, considering the growing threat of Iranian extremism.

No Arab meeting of past years was complete without its ritual denunciations of Israel and expressions of solidarity with Palestinian radicals.

But Israel cannot reasonably be considered the Arabs' chief threat. Iran with its warlike ways and its religious radicalism, poses a greater threat—not only to the peace of the region but also to the stability of Islamic society.

Nancy, Raisa Won't Greet Each Other Warmly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviets have torn a lot of pages out of the U.S. book in recent years when it comes to public relations.

And they are going full tilt in seeking to dominate the headlines and the air waves during the summit meeting between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater got together with Soviet chief spokesman Gennady Gerasimov to compare notes before the summit starts. They will brief reporters together, each giving a so-called "read out" on what happens during the head-to-head meetings between Reagan and Gorbachev.

Fitzwater said he got along fine with Gerasimov, who speaks English, and to prepare for his high visibility role, the presidential spokesman also has watched videos of Gerasimov in action at news conferences in Moscow. He found the Soviet spokesman "facile with the ability to turn a question" and quick with the quip. The same could be said for Fitzwater.

Summits are a competitive business and journalistic observers naturally will be looking for winners and losers. The White House is making sure that its top officials will be on all the major talk shows during the summit and in the summing up afterward.

A party of some 350 Soviets will be in Washington for the summit, including the official party, more than 100 journalists and more than 100 security agents.

They brought along a dozen of their Zil limousines and Gorbachev, who shuns helicopters, will be in many of the motorcades around town. For the Kremlin leader, it will be "strictly business" with no sight seeing. The usual tourist showcase stops were suggested, such as the Lincoln Memorial, Arlington Cemetery and some of the museums, but they were all turned down.

However, Gorbachev's wife, Raisa, who has aroused great curiosity, will take in some of the sights. Some 20 suggestions have been made for her to get around while the superpower leaders are in meetings. She did express a desire to take a tour of the White House and she will get that along with tea in the Executive Mansion with Nancy Reagan.

Mrs. Gorbachev and Mrs. Reagan got acquainted at the Geneva summit and sparred politically. Mrs. Reagan also felt upstaged when Raisa went to the Iceland summit and was followed everywhere by reporters. The White House abided by an agreement that it would be strictly business at Reykjavik and Mrs. Reagan did not accompany her husband.

It's not likely Nancy and Raisa will greet each other like long lost friends, but it will all be polite and hospitable when they meet again.

The demand for invitations to the state dinner in honor of the Gorbachev has been heavier than usual. But protocol and the size of the State Dining Room caused the White House to limit the guest list to 26. The presidential staff, the State Department and the first lady all contributed names to the list and personal friends who sought the coveted invitations are out in the cold this time around.

Some of those who asked to attend the dinner were "naive," according to an aide, when they cited the fact that their parents were born in Russia as a good reason to be invited.

ROBERT WALTERS

Reformers Honoring Business

NEW YORK (NEA)—Sustaining a tradition that dates back to the muckrakers of the early 20th century, contemporary social reformers generally confine their observations about corporate behavior to criticizing irresponsible companies.

Thus, activists like Ralph Nader invariably eschew praise, even of firms that share their commitment to a progressive agenda, preferring to emphasize the inadequacies they perceive in the corporate world.

Now, however, a New York-based public interest group with nationwide influence, the Council on Economic Priorities, is exploring a different strategy—lauding corporations that "make social responsibility a priority" while continuing to excoriate other firms for ethical or moral lapses.

Founded in 1969, CEP is an independent, non-profit organization whose mission is "researching ... and publicizing the facts behind corporate and governmental programs to reveal how they actually impact on people, progress and profits."

Earlier this year, it organized an elaborate New York ceremony, attended by more than 1,000 people to present the "First Annual America's Corporate Conscience Awards."

General Mills, Polaroid and Sara Lee were honored for generous charitable contributions, while IBM and Amoco were recognized for their commitment to community action programs.

Procter & Gamble was cited for "corporate programs to support the family concerns of its employees." Other firms rewarded for corporate responsibility included Johnson & Johnson, Avon Products and Ford.

There also were "dishonorable mentions"—awarded to Mobil Oil, A.H. Robbins, American Cyanamid and Litton Industries. Mobil's citation, for unsatisfactory corporate disclosure, illustrates some of the fundamental differences between corporations and their critics.

CEP Executive Director Alice Tepper Marlin says she seeks "to provide an alternative to the slick advertising that creates product distinctions which are trivial, artificial or just plain meaningless." Providing consumers information about corporate responsibility, enables people, she insists, "to shop for a better world at their offices, in the supermarket aisles and in their investment portfolios."

Mobil rejects that claim and says consumers' buying decisions should be based exclusively on product quality and price.

Indeed, when CEP sought information on corporate responsibility issues from Mobil, it was rudely rebuffed.

The President's Pet Weapons

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON—The primary reason Mikhail Gorbachev seems determined to engage in meaningful arms control negotiation—including the signing of a medium-range missile treaty in Washington this week—is fear of President Reagan's Star Wars research program.

He has good reason to be afraid.

The president is bent on pushing his Strategic Defense Initiative through the final hour of his administration in 1989, even if it means bypassing Congress and the 1972 Antiballistic Missile Treaty with the Soviet Union.

In a series of columns, we have revealed Reagan's personal approval of a secret program, code-named "Zenith Star," to test a chemical laser in space in the early 1990s.

"Zenith Star" was secretly

JEFFREY HART

The First Thanksgiving

Just before landing off the coast of what would become the Plymouth Bay Colony, the tiny Mayflower dropped anchor. The religious dissidents, fleeing England, then did nothing less than invent America. Together they signed the founding Mayflower Compact. This document should be read and re-read. It is an instrument of consensus and self-government, under God. All of American constitutional history can be inferred from it. Then they went ashore.

It is difficult to imagine what the country was like then. We know from diaries that the "great woods" still existed. Today we have in New England a lot of woods, second and third growth, but those were the original forests, giant trees presiding over a cathedral-like silence. There was little undergrowth, because the giant trees cut off the light. Just the giant original trees, with grass growing between them, where Indians hunted deer and wild boar.

After the first terrible winter, in which many pilgrims died, the little band came through. Their crops flourished. Their houses were caulked against temperatures colder than anything England knew. On the Mayflower, they had been Elizabethan English people, dressed in yellow, red, blue and green. About half of them played musical instruments. But by the First Thanksgiving, they were dressed in dark homespun. Popular history knows them as Puritans.

That First Thanksgiving represented a rendering of thanks to God. They feasted on wild turkey and Indian corn, but they believed that they were part of a Biblical pattern that was represented by the delivery of the ancient Israelites from Egyptian bondage.

They meant to build John Winthrop's "city upon a hill." And indeed they did. The hill is still there. The city around it is called Boston.

These serious people, designing a theocracy, also spun off something politically unprecedented. Out of their Protestant individualism came something historically very special, the longest-lived self-governing republic in human history. Those independent spirits on the Mayflower were saying, in effect, No King, No Bishops. They would govern themselves. It has been an imperfect but an enduring success.

The Celebration of Thanksgiving is not popular in our elite university circles these days, or any university circles for all I know. The course on colonization in an Invy League catalogue before me is called "The European Invasion of America." All the bad things our forefathers did to the Indians. And there were bad things done, but forget this guilt trip. The Indians came over from Asia and routed the then indigenous owners. The European landings at Plymouth and Jamestown were part of a great civilization thrust that encircled the globe. It may seem cruel, but lower forms of culture do give way inexorably to higher forms.

As the temperature drops to zero in northern New England, one feels a special kinship with those first colonists.

Unless there is a blizzard, my wife and I drive 50 miles north in Vermont, to a town called Island Pond, which is practically in Canada. There, at a restaurant called The Buck and Doe, we enjoy an old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner: turkey, sweet potatoes, mashed turnips, onions, cranberry sauce, popovers, home-baked beans, the entire meal surrounded with martinis and good wine.

Marrieds Who Are Ill Live Longer

By Larry Doyle
UPI Science Writer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Married people with cancer are diagnosed earlier, receive better treatment and live longer than their unmarried counterparts, researchers report.

Their study, based on nearly 28,000 cases, found that single, divorced or widowed patients were 23 percent more likely to die from their cancers than married patients. The reasons are practical as well as psychological.

"There's the old joke that married people don't actually live longer, it just seems that way," said Dr. James Goodwin, of the Medical College of Wisconsin in Milwaukee. "But they actually do. And it turns out there are some sound medical reasons for it."

Goodwin and his colleagues, reporting in the Journal of the American Medical Association, based their conclusions on information gleaned from the New Mexico Tumor Registry, which contains data on every cancer case in the state since 1969 and is compiled under the auspices of the National Cancer Institute.

The researchers followed 27,779 cases of cancer in 25,706 patients, determining marital status, how soon the cancer was diagnosed, treatment received and survival rate.

"We started with the knowledge that married people lived longer. That's been known for 100 years," Goodwin said. "But we were trying to find out why."

Unmarried people, they discovered, were 19 percent more likely to have their cancer diagnosed after it had already spread than those who were married.

Also, unmarried people were still 43 percent more likely than married people not to obtain a potentially curative treatment for their disease, even when the stage of the cancer and the age of the patient were similar.

"What this seems to say is, that if you're married you might be less able to run away from things," Goodwin said. "Your spouse won't let you ignore your symptoms, as people are wont to do, and you might be more inclined to seek a cure."

Overall, unmarried patients were 23 percent more likely to die from their cancer than married patients. Single people were 9 percent more at risk, widowed people 17 percent and divorced people 27 percent.

But earlier diagnosis and better treatment did not explain all of the increased survival, Goodwin said.

pushed by the president in an extraordinary Oval Office meeting a year ago, on Dec. 17. At that meeting were the president, then-Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, now-Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci, who was then the national security adviser, and the Pentagon's SDI chief, Lt. Gen. James Abrahamson.

The president, we are told, was slightly snookered. He thought he was walking into a simple briefing on different SDI programs. But Weinberger manipulated it into a decision-making session, securing firm presidential approval for various SDI efforts, including "Zenith Star" and a program to develop a "heavy lift launch vehicle," which would loft large SDI components into space orbit.

What Gorbachev surely knows by now is that Reagan admitted at the meeting that the "Zenith Star" test would break the 1972 ABM Treaty with the Soviets. That treaty bans the deployment, development and testing of ABM systems based in space.

Abrahamson pushed the president to notify the Soviets of a pending breach of the ABM Treaty, but Reagan wanted to keep the program under wraps—including keeping it a secret from Congress, which was already making the most of the embarrassing Iran/contras scandal.

It was not the first time the president dallied with the notion of breaching the 1972 ABM Treaty. As we have reported, Reagan signed a secret National Security Decision Directive in 1985 saying he had "re-examined" the treaty and gained "new insights into how this treaty can objectively be interpreted."

No creative interpretation was needed if Congress followed the president's script for the SDI program, the secret directive concluded.

On the eve of Gorbachev's arrival for the summit, the president continued his not-so-subtle program to undermine the ABM Treaty. At a speech before his conservative think tank, the Heritage Foundation, Reagan accused the Soviets of being poised to break the treaty with their own antiballistic missile system, which U.S. officials call "Red Shield."

On the same day, Gorbachev told a U.S. TV audience that Reagan and his scientists could "indulge" in any SDI research they wanted as long as it did not violate the ABM Treaty.

The two men are likely to spend much of their time this week tip-toeing around that treaty, trying to decide how far either side can go with imaginative interpretation.

NATION IN BRIEF

Gorbachev May Propose Chemical Weapons Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan probably will reject an expected proposal by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev calling for an immediate halt in chemical weapons production, administration officials say.

Aides have told Reagan to expect Gorbachev's offer at this week's summit and the president is planning to reject it as "a disingenuous public relations ploy," according to a senior U.S. official involved in summit preparations.

The administration opposes a chemical accord calling for quick compliance because there are too many unanswered questions about verification of a production ban, sources explained during the weekend.

"Unless there's a sudden change of mind by the president, there will be no statement putting a gloss on chemical disarmament," one official told United Press International, speaking on the condition of anonymity.

Poll: Soviets Still Not Trusted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most American and Soviet citizens feel pretty good about each other but are wary of their opposing governments, according to the first poll ever conducted simultaneously in both countries.

The survey commissioned by Newsweek magazine and the Soviet press agency Novosti showed 81 percent of Soviet respondents had a friendly attitude toward Americans and 63 percent of Americans feel friendly toward the Soviets.

But the poll released during the weekend found 58 percent of the Soviets questioned voiced negative feelings toward the U.S. government and 75 percent of American respondents expressed distrust of the Kremlin.

Most people in both countries want their governments to strive for military parity rather than superiority, but 71 percent of Americans and 80 percent of Soviets think the opposing government's policy threatens their own security, according to the survey.

Gale: Radiation Help Successful

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Victims of a radiation accident in Brazil are responding to a new medical treatment that stimulated their bone marrow cells to divide, raising hopes that the development also may help AIDS and cancer patients.

The treatment involving a genetically engineered hormone was tested for the first time on eight victims of the radiation accident in Goiania, Brazil, Dr. Robert Gale told a meeting of the American Society of Hematology Sunday.

Gale, a bone marrow expert from the University of California at Los Angeles, flew to the Soviet Union last year to perform bone marrow transplants on victims of the nuclear accident at Chernobyl. He joined radiation experts from six countries this fall to treat the Brazilian victims.

Brazil suffered its worst nuclear contamination accident in September after thieves stole an abandoned radiotherapy machine from a demolished hospital and sold it to a scrap metal dealer in Goiania, 650 miles northwest of Rio de Janeiro.

Reagan Attends Tribute

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Actress Bette Davis, singer Sammy Davis Jr. and three other entertainers were honored Sunday in a star-studded tribute that drew President Reagan away from final preparations for the superpower summit.

Less than 24 hours before the arrival of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, affairs of state ceded the Washington limelight for at least a few short hours to the achievements of the 1987 Kennedy Center Honors recipients.

"Others give us material goods, enact and enforce our laws, provide the countless other services that go to make up American life," Reagan said at a black-tie White House reception before the ceremony. "But these five, what these five have given us is joy."

Demonstrators of varied political stripes stood a chilly pre-summit vigil outside the White House as the president and the first lady helped honor the two Davises, singer Perry Como, violinist Nathan Milstein and choreographer Alvin Nikolais.

46th Anniversary Of 'Day Of Infamy'

Pearl Harbor: American Tragedy; Russian Relief

By Robert McNeill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mikhail Gorbachev comes to Washington on the 46th anniversary of "a date that will live in infamy" — the day the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor and threw the United States into World War II.

For the Soviet Union, it was also a day to remember. Pearl Harbor meant that the Japanese dictator, Josef Stalin, could safely move thousands of Russian soldiers from his eastern frontier, where they had been guarding against a possible Japanese attack, to his western front, where the Germans were battering at the gates to Moscow against a desperate Russian defense.

Until then, there had been speculation that the Japanese would strike westward in their imperial conquests, driving from Manchuria into Siberia against their old Russian enemies in Asia.

After Pearl Harbor, with the Japanese wholly engaged with the Americans, British, Dutch and Chinese to the east and south, Russia could relax its guard and release its eastern forces to fight Germans threatening to drive the Red Army across the Ural Mountains behind Moscow.

It's doubtful that Gorbachev, then a 10-year-old boy living with his family at Stravropol, 600 miles south of Moscow, recalls much about the events of that day, but he no doubt learned of them somewhere along his way to the leadership of the Soviet Union.

Whether young Gorbachev was told in school about the crucial role the Americans subsequently played in saving his country from defeat is doubtful. But Pearl Harbor set off a chain of events that helped ensure Russia's salvation through tons of U.S. war supplies shipped across the North Atlantic to Soviet ports in convoys hounded by packs of German submarines from Halifax to Murmansk. Many American merchant ships and seamen never survived the unrelenting attacks by U-boats and the Luftwaffe.

On the day of "infamy," so named by President Franklin Roosevelt when he asked Congress to declare war against Japan, the Russians were at their low point in World War II. The Germans had reached the outskirts of Moscow and likely would have taken it had not Stalin's erstwhile partner in conquest, Adolf Hitler, switched his main attack to the southern Russian front.

Russia's own "day of infamy" had come seven months earlier when Hitler turned on Stalin and sent his Panzers smashing across the Soviet border on June 22, 1941 — a blitzkrieg that surprised the Russians even more than the Pearl Harbor attack surprised the Americans.

Stalin, who had joined the non-aggression pact with Hitler in August 1939 that set the stage for Germany to start the war by invading Poland, was stunned. England warned Stalin the German invasion was imminent, but he could not believe that Hitler, who generously agreed to give him as part of the pact the eastern half of vanquished Poland, would attack his co-conspirator.

But even Pearl Harbor did not align Washington and Moscow as allies in war. It took a curious act by Hitler to accomplish that.

Congress, at Roosevelt's request, declared war on Japan Dec. 8. There was no mention of doing likewise against Germany and Russia was not about to create for itself a two-front war by declaring war on Japan.

But Hitler, in one of his monumental blunders, inexplicably declared war against the United States on Dec. 11, thus allying the United States, Soviet Union and Great Britain against Germany.

No one knows why Hitler did this; he was not compelled to do so by the Tripartite Pact he signed with Japan and Italy, and he certainly did not need to add to his woes the military and industrial might of the United States.

Historians have only guessed at his motives and wondered what course the war would have taken — indeed, what would have happened to Russia — had he acted with more circumspection.

Russia would not join the war against Japan until Aug. 8, 1945, two days after the atomic bombing of Hiroshima and two days before Japan offered to

After Pearl Harbor, with the Japanese wholly engaged with the Americans, British, Dutch and Chinese to the east and south, Russia could relax its guard and release its eastern forces to fight Germans threatening to drive the Red Army across the Ural Mountains behind Moscow.

Arms Talks Heads Summit Topics List

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The signing of a new arms agreement is the centerpiece of the Reagan-Gorbachev summit meeting, but the two leaders are expected to probe for common ground on a host of other issues, including regional conflicts, human rights and East-West bilateral problems.

A breakthrough on any of those fronts would be a plus for the new superpower detente, but much as he is seeking closer relations it is doubtful that Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev is going to throw in the towel with many concessions at the summit.

President Reagan, addressing a gathering of Jewish and ethnic groups as part of his drumbeat campaign to reassure conservatives he is not getting soft on the Kremlin, said:

"The goal of this visit and any subsequent visits is not simply arms reduction. Certainly, that's one priority, yet it remains on a par with solving certain bilateral issues, ending regional conflicts and, of course, improving human rights."

It is human rights, particularly the desire of Soviet Jewry to emigrate, that Reagan has put the spotlight on, and there is a chance that he may get Gorbachev to loosen up on the oppression of dissidents in the light of his "glasnost" policy of a new openness. A little progress has been made on that score with the Soviets permitting immigration of some prominent citizens.

The regional conflicts are the toughest nut to crack with the superpowers supplying weapons to opposing sides in these so-called little wars around the world, including Afghanistan, Central America, particularly Nicaragua, Angola, Ethiopia and other hot spots.

In addition, there is the perennial tinderbox of the Middle East, where the superpowers are strategically involved, including the Arab-Israeli conflict and the Iran-Iraq war. While not likely, there could be movement on a proposal for an international conference on the Middle East, which would include both the United States and the Soviet Union.

As for the Persian Gulf, the United States is still trying to get the Soviets in the United Nations to support sanctions against Iran. Moscow did go along with the U.S.-sponsored resolution calling for a ceasefire in the gulf area.

There appears to be some hope on the international front that the Soviets will withdraw from Afghanistan over a period of a year, and set a timetable.

The Kremlin, bogged down in a no-win situation in Afghanistan as the United States was in Vietnam, is apparently looking for a face saving way out.

It would like to strike a deal with Reagan with the United States halting the supply of weapons to the Afghan rebels in exchange for a phased pullout of Russian troops, who have been there for eight years.

Pre-Summit Protest Draws Huge Crowd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Among about 200,000 American Jews involved in a pre-summit protest in the nation's capital was Alex Fish, a Russian immigrant who carried a simple message for Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev: "Let my mother go."

Fish, 41, of Springfield, Va., joined other demonstrators Sunday on the eve of Gorbachev's arrival in the United States to urge the extension of his policy of glasnost, or openness, to 2 million Soviet Jews — including Fish's mother.

"My mother has been trying to get out of the Soviet Union for 15 years," explained Fish, a somber face in Sunday's mile-long Washington march who managed to immigrate to the United States in 1978 with his wife and son.

"They say she can't leave because her husband (Fish's stepfather) worked as a radio engineer and might have secrets," he said. "That makes no sense. He wasn't a scientist. He was a radio engineer — 17 years ago."

The weekend demonstration drew people from across the nation and overseas by plane, train, bus and car. Police estimated the crowd at more than 200,000, with the vast majority Jewish but scores of others from all denominations.

Morris Abram, whose National Conference on Soviet Jewry organized the protest with virtually every major and local Jewish group in the country, said, "We want to believe glasnost applies to Jews, but so far it has not."

Demonstrators marched from the Ellipse behind the White House to an area near the Capitol, where they called on Gorbachev to allow Soviet Jews to emigrate freely and to practice religious freedom.

They carried signs saying, "Let Our People Go," "Boston says freedom now," "Detroit says open the gates." None, however, surpassed the personal message borne by Fish, an auto repair shop owner: "Mr. Gorbachev, let my mother go."

Fish's mother is among nearly 400,000 Soviet Jews who have sought permission to leave. Many have waited more than a decade. Some, like Fish's stepfather, have lost their jobs; others have been jailed.

Last year, fewer than 1,000 Soviet Jews were allowed to emigrate. This year, the figure is up to 7,000, but far less than the 51,000 in 1979. Demonstrators called for a sharp increase in the number allowed to leave the country and demanded an end to Kremlin policies prohibiting the study of Hebrew.

A potpourri of anti-Soviet demonstrations are planned this week, including at least two today scheduled to coincide with Gorbachev's afternoon arrival. One was to protest the Soviet Union's 1979 invasion and occupation of Afghanistan and another was called against a Soviet crackdown on Ukrainian dissidents.

Just hours before Sunday's rally, police in Moscow broke up a protest by Jewish "refuseniks" and roughed up American television crews.

Saints Top Bucs, Clinch 1st Playoff Berth

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — For the first time, the New Orleans Saints are going to the playoffs.

"You bet we are," said a grinning Saints Coach Jim Mora, whose team clinched a playoff berth with a 44-34 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers Sunday.

"When you get there, you are a playoff team, and the New Orleans Saints of 1987 are a playoff team."

Last week the Saints clinched the first winning season in their 21-year history. They have now sealed at least a wild-card spot and New Orleans, 9-3, is one game behind San Francisco in the race for the NFC West title.

Linebacker Rickey Jackson, who recorded an interception and six tackles, said Sunday was just a beginning.

"Six-game winning streak?" Jackson said. "There's no reason we shouldn't have a nine-game winning streak at the end of the season."

Others like Stan Brock, along with Dave Waymer the only holdover from the 1980 New Orleans team that hit rock bottom at 1-15, were content to enjoy the moment.

"It feels good to finally have a winning season, and we're in the playoffs," Brock said.

With Rueben Mayes and John Tice each scoring two touchdowns, the party began early Sunday at the sold-out Louisiana Superdome.

New Orleans' triumph, coupled with losses by Philadelphia and St. Louis, assured the Saints at least a wild-card playoff berth. The Saints, who have won six straight dating back to All Saints Day, are 9-3 and a game behind the NFC West-leading San Francisco 49ers.

The 66,471 fans learned shortly after kickoff that the Cardinals and Eagles had lost. That, coupled with the Saints' 28-10 lead at halftime over the 4-8 Buccaneers, got the celebration going early.

Fans roared on almost every play as the team that for years was the joke of the NFL enjoyed its most significant victory ever.

Tampa Bay quarterback Vinny Testaverde, the 1986 Helaman Trophy winner and No. 1 pick in the NFL draft, made his first start Sunday. He fumbled on Tampa Bay's first two possessions, setting up touchdown passes of 8 and 6 yards from Bobby Hebert to Tice.

"I wasn't nervous or light," Testaverde said. "It was just mistakes. The first time the ball was slapped out of my hands."

The Saints added first-half touchdowns on a 7-yard run by Mayes and a 3-yard run by Dalton Hilliard after an 80-yard punt return by Mel Gray, the longest in New Orleans history. New Orleans added second-half scores on a 2-yard run by Mayes and field goals of 40, 24 and 32 yards by Morten Andersen.

Tampa Bay's first-half points came on a 1-yard run by Testaverde and a field goal of 37 yards by Donald Igwebuikwe. Testaverde threw TD passes of 37 yards to Mark Currier and 12 yards to Bruce Hill in the second half. Igwebuikwe kicked a 43-yard field goal and Bobby Howard scored on a 2-yard run.

Saints fans, starved for victory for two decades, stayed in the Superdome well after the final gun, chanting and shaking

SHS Seeks Advantage At Godby

Originally, Seminole fans, coaches, and administrators thought that Friday's state 4A semifinal game against Tallahassee Godby would be in Sanford. But Seminole was surprised to find out that since this is an odd numbered year, and Godby is the odd numbered section (1), Godby gets to host.

If either team would have hosted both the regional and sectional games, they would have had to travel. But since Seminole (9-3) and Godby (ranked first in 4A for most of the season) have both hosted and traveled for a game, Godby has been given the home site.

Upon first glance, playing at the state's top-ranked place may seem to be an overwhelming disadvantage.

As strange as this may sound, playing at Tallahassee Godby instead of playing in Sanford could be huge advantage for the Tribe. Seminole's best performances this season have been on the road. For some reason, the 'Noles seem to play better away from Sanford.

Two weeks ago, Seminole hosted Land O' Lakes, and played poorly in a lackluster 16-6 win. Last week, Seminole traveled to Satellite Beach and was as sharp as a tack in a 24-3 triumph.

Seminole used the bruising running of Jerod Jones (120 yards and two touchdowns) and Curtis Rudolph to ground out the win over the Scorpions. Even quarterback Jeff Blake picked up 33 yards, including an eight-yard touchdown run.

"We can throw it or we can run it," Blake said. "It doesn't matter to us how we get it done, just as long as we do." Blake threw for 91 yards as well.

Even in the regular season, Seminole played better on the road than it did at home. In what was supposed to be a close game three weeks ago, Seminole destroyed DeLand, 38-9, at Spec Martin Stadium before a huge homecoming crowd. That game was probably Seminole's best of the season.

The week before, Seminole came from behind to trip Lake Howell, 26-20, before a large homecoming crowd.

Seminole likes to play in front of large crowds at opposing team's stadiums. The 'Noles enjoy embarrassing opponents as their place, it brings out the best in them.

Except for the 'Noles first game of the season at home against Titusville Astronaut, Seminole has not had a great game at home. It lost to Lake Brantley, and slipped past Leesburg, Ovidio, and Lyman.

"I kind of like playing on the road," Seminole center Randy "Pork" Bryant said. "We seem to play a lot better away from home. I don't know what it is, but playing away doesn't phase us."

"It doesn't matter where we play," Seminole coach Emory Blake said. "We are going to do the same thing on any field."

"Sure, having the home field is nice," Seminole coach Roger Beathard said. "But once you get to this point in the playoffs, I don't know if it is any kind of an advantage."

For Tallahassee, this will be the second home game in a row. Godby got by Jacksonville Raines, 13-6, last Friday at home.

In Satellite, there were Godby scouts at the game, and even they thought this week's game was to be in Sanford. Seminole athletic director Jerr Posey was as surprised as everyone else.

No team in recent Seminole County history has ever made it this far in the state playoffs. Several teams have gone undefeated, but the current playoff system didn't start until the early 60's.

Seminole had a strong backing in Satellite last Friday. To those of you contemplating going to this week's game, don't think twice.

The Sunshine State's capital may just be a blessing in disguise for the 'Noles.

Carbia Sets Record

By Chris Fiater
Herald Sports Writer

Two of the main goals of Ivan Carbia before the end of 1987 were to set the state record in his weight division and generate more interest in the sport of weightlifting in the Seminole County area.

Carbia, a Lake Mary High graduate, may have killed both birds with one stone Saturday afternoon.

Competing in the 132 weight division, Carbia set a new state record for total weight lifted with 473 pounds in the Briar Open Weightlifting Championships at Lake Mary High.

Carbia, a Junior Pan-American Games medalist who currently attends the University of Central Florida, lifted 220 in the snatch and 253 in the clean and jerk to set the state record. Carbia, the Most Valuable Lifter in the tourney, took first place in his weight class in both the 16-20 age division and the overall open division.

Carbia, who will now prepare for the 1988 Summer Olympic Trials, was one of a number of lifters from the Rams Weightlifting Club who did well Saturday afternoon.

In the 16 and under division, Shane Hancock was first in the 132 weight class with a total of 343 pounds (143 snatch, 190 clean and jerk). At 146 pounds, Chris Spears was first in the open division with a total of 385 pounds (165

At 181 pounds, Ori Kantor was first in the 16 and under with a total of 385 (155 snatch, 230 clean and jerk) while Jason Gay was second at 330 (125 and 205) and Danny Ferris was third at 335 (135 and 200).

In the open 165-pound division, Spears edged out Dave Grosfee who lifted a total of 380 (160 and 220). Gay was third in the open 198 weight class and Ferris was second in the open 220 class.

Hurricanes Head To Orange Bowl 11-0

MIAMI (UPI) — Second-ranked Miami fought its way to a hard-earned 20-16 win over No. 9 South Carolina Saturday night and now can set its sights on another national championship game.

The Hurricanes, who finished 11-0 for the second straight season, will play top-ranked Oklahoma — also 11-0 — in the Orange Bowl Jan. 1 for the national title. Miami lost to Penn State 14-10 in the Jan. 2 Fiesta Bowl.

"I'm very proud of our players and staff to be 11-0," coach Jimmy Johnson said. "Playing for the national championship is a great privilege. We can now start thinking about Oklahoma. They're a great ball club."

Miami got a career-high 310 yards passing from Steve Walsh, who threw touchdown passes of 46 yards and 42 yards to Michael Irvin and 58 yards to Brian Blades. South Carolina came into the game allowing only 9 points per game and ranked second in the country in total defense and fourth in passing defense, allowing only 115 yards per game through the air.

But Miami's wide outs consistently got open deep on the South Carolina defensive backs, who were forced into man-to-man coverage by their blitzing scheme of defense. Irvin caught seven passes for 121 yards, Blades had two catches for 64 yards, and Brett Perriman had five catches for 43 yards.

Melvin Bratton also scored on a four-yard run for Miami, while South Carolina got field goals of 40, 48, and 28 yards.

Vandy Knocks Off No. 1

United Press International

If the first two weeks of the college basketball season have proved anything, it is that the No. 1 ranking and past national titles means nothing.

Syracuse, ranked No. 1 in the preseason despite the protests of Coach Jim Boeheim, two weeks ago lost its first game to No. 2 North Carolina.

The Tar Heels took over the No. 1 spot, again to the displeasure of their coach. North Carolina fell 78-76 Saturday night to unranked Vanderbilt.

"As I try to tell people, we're not the No. 1 team in the country, not even the No. 10 team," Tar Heels Coach Dean Smith said. "But I do think we're a good basketball team."

Smith will probably not have to argue about the top ranking much longer. No. 5 Kentucky became the top candidate to bear that burden, defeating No. 3 Indiana, the defending national champion, 82-76 in overtime. Earlier in the double-header at Indianapolis, No. 16 Louisville, the 1986 national champion, fell to unranked Notre Dame 69-54.

Basketball

At Nashville, Tenn., Will Perdue scored 23 points and snared 10 rebounds and freshman Charles Mayes hit five 3-pointers to pace Vanderbilt.

Vanderbilt coach C.M. Newton said he would celebrate for a few hours before starting preparations for Tuesday's game against Indiana. Vanderbilt, 3-0, meets Kentucky New Year's Eve.

"This is a very significant win," he said. "I don't know who the No. 1 team in the nation is, but North Carolina is one of the top teams in the nation."

North Carolina, 4-1, was led by Jeff Lebo with 21 points, J.R. Reid with 16 points and Ranzino Smith with 13.

At Indianapolis, Ed Davender scored 22 points and Rex Chapman scored 20, including a 3-pointer with 1:48 remaining in overtime, to lift Kentucky, 3-0.

"We were down one and I thought we needed to get something going," said Chapman, who hit just 6 of 18 shots from the field. "I got a good pick, came off the pick and let it go. It felt good."

Rick Calloway scored 26 points and Dean Garrett 20 for Indiana, 2-1. No other Hoosier reached double figures. Indiana forced the overtime on Jay Edwards 6-foot shot with one second to play, tying the score 71-71.

In the first game, David Rivers scored a career-high 32 points to lead Notre Dame, 1-1.

Pervis Ellison scored a team-high 23 points for Louisville, which never led in its season opener.

The other Top 20 teams in action Saturday won their games. No. 2 Syracuse routed Texas Christian 87-58. No. 8 Missouri edged Eastern Michigan 77-5 in double-overtime, ninth-ranked Duke routed Northwestern 79-57, and No. 10 Iowa pounded Cal-Irvine 124-88.

Raiders Blast Polk

By Mark Myrthe
Herald Sports Writer

Seminole Community College had six players reach double digits as it whipped Polk Community College, 93-72, Saturday night at the Seminole Community College Health Center.

The Raiders, 8-3, will return to Mid-Florida Conference action Wednesday when they host cross town rival Valencia Community College. The loss dropped PCC to 3-7 for the year.

Seminole took advantage of Polk's horrid 9-30 shooting in the first half to open a convincing 41-21 lead at the intermission.

"We played great defense and hit the boards well to build up that lead," Seminole assistant coach Dean Smith said. "We were able to get the ball inside and our inside players did the job."

Sophomore's Barry Dunning and Rob Williams have been playing strong as of late come through with another good performance to pace the Raiders.

Dunning scored 13 points, eight in the first half, and snatched down 12 rebounds. Williams scored eight of his 10 points in the opening half and ripped down 12 boards also.

Terrell Barnes and Vincent Emerson were involved in the middle play for Seminole as Barnes finished the night with 12 points and four rebounds. Emerson did a nice job coming off the bench scoring 12 points while grabbing eight rebounds.

Guard Malcolm Houston led the Raiders with 18 points as small forward Mark Hadden came off the bench to score 14 second half points.

"Hadden had a great second half," Smith said. "He had a couple of incredible moves."

Hadden had three second half dunks, two of which he picked up technicals for hanging on the rim, to ignite the Raiders and pace them to their fourth straight win.

"We put on a dunking show in the second half," Smith said. "Everyone got involved and they put on quite a performance."

Seminole will now gear up for a tough Valencia squad which is ranked eighth in the state.

Troy State, 8 Turnovers Eliminate UCF, 31-10

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

ORLANDO — Eight University of Central Florida turnovers were an instrumental part of Troy (Ala.) State's 31-10 NCAA Division II semifinal victory over the Knights, but there was one reason for UCF's loss that was as clear as the blue skies above the 14,379 fans at the Florida Citrus Bowl Saturday afternoon.

The Trojans were a much better football team, in all phases of the game. When opportunity knocked, Troy State answered with a bang. The Trojans turned three UCF first half turnovers into a 17-3 halftime lead and never looked back.

The triumph, Troy's 11th in a row, sends them into next week's national championship game in Florence, Ala. Troy will face Portland State, a 13-6 winner over Northern Michigan on Saturday.

UCF ended its season with a mark of 9-4, the best in school history. "Last season when we went 6-5, it was nice, but I wasn't happy with the record," dejected UCF coach Gene McDowell said after the game. "And I'm not happy with a 9-4 record either."

"Our goal when we learned that we made the playoffs was to win the national championship," McDowell said. "And we didn't get it done. Our program is definitely headed in the right direction, but there is no solace in losing."

The Knights dug their own graves, with the offense holding the shovels. Although UCF outgained Troy in total net yardage (471-325), the Knights made things easy for the Trojans as they gave Troy eight early Christmas presents.

In last week's 12-10 win over Indiana University of Pennsylvania, the Knights were guilty of seven turnovers. In the last four games of the season UCF scored a mere 60 points and turned the ball over 18 times. The 10 points was a season low for UCF.

The offense was like a stick of dynamite early in the season, but dwindled to sparkler in the last month. "What can I say?" McDowell said. "Once again the turnovers were really costly. If you take them away, it would have been a very close game."

The UCF defense bailed the offense out against Indiana time and time again, but the Knight defense couldn't bail the offense out against the Trojans. The defense, however, can not be blamed as it held Troy's creative Wishbone to 191 rushing yards.

"Our defense played very well at times," McDowell said. "But we put our defense in a hole several times."

UCF quarterback Darin Slack's rollercoaster season and career came to a shattering end. Slack, a senior who has rewritten just about UCF passing record in the book this season, threw three interceptions and fumbled. In the last two games, Slack was picked off eight times.

He was benched in the second half in favor of freshman Shane Willis. Although Willis sparked the fizzling offense at times, the move may have been costly for him in the future. Willis, who has not taken a snap from center all season, was to be redshirted. Playing in the second half lost a year of eligibility for him.

"I had to something to try and perk up the offense," McDowell said. "It wasn't all Darin's fault, I just thought that we needed to do something different."

McDowell, who heard fans chanting to put Slack back in in the final minutes, inserted the senior. On his final pass in a UCF uniform, Slack threw a 19-yard touchdown pass to Poe White.

"I heard all of the fans chanting to put him back in," McDowell said. "He had a great career here, and he deserved to play in the final drive." Slack threw for a school record 3,457 yards and 28 TDs.

One of the lone bright spots in an otherwise dark day was the play of sophomore tight end Donald Grayson. Grayson, who played for Harry Nelson at Lake Mary, caught a career high 12 passes for 153 yards. "I was happy with the way I played this season," Grayson, who improved as the season went on, said. "We have got a very bright future here. This was a tough way to end the season."

One thing that even astounded McDowell was that starting tailback Mark Glavone, a bruising freshman didn't even take the field. "That surprised me," McDowell said. "But that is up to offensive coordinator Mike Kruczek."

Troy State quarterback Mike Truk along with UCF's Bernard Ford are both up for this year's Harlon Hill Trophy. The award is the Division II answer to the Heisman Trophy.

Turk played like he was a deserving recipient of the award, as he ran for 96 yards and two touchdowns while passing for 131 yards and a score. "He is an excellent athlete," McDowell said. "He performed well when he had to."

UCF's dream of a national championship faded as rapidly as the crowd's enthusiasm. Although the official crowd was announced at just over 14,000, estimates had the crowd at being anywhere from 22,000 to 30,000. UCF has had problems with its turnstile counts all season.

The Knights got on the board first when kicked Eddie O'Brien booted a 41-yard field goal. O'Brien, a Kodak All-American, missed a 40-yarder early in the third quarter.

After a Slack fumble, Troy answered back to make the score 7-3 when Turk sprinted 54 yards up the middle on a quarterback draw.

On the ensuing kickoff, UCF's Reggie Edwards coughed the ball up. From there, Turk faked a reverse and hit wide receiver Mike Kelly with an 18-yard touchdown strike to make the score 14-3.

After a Slack interception, Troy kicker Ted Clem made the halftime score 17-3 on a 39-yard field goal.

Willis started at quarterback in the second half, and was intercepted on his first college pass. Troy didn't capitalize, however, as it fumbled the ball right back.

The Trojans lengthened their lead to 24-3 when Turk dove in on a one-yard touchdown plunge. Troy made the score 31-3 when running back Robert Carter hit wide receiver Greg Harris with a three-yard halfback option pass.

UCF score in the final second when Slack hit White with a 19-yard pass. "I'm still optimistic about our program," McDowell said. "But I really wanted this national championship. This is a tough way to end things. I wish we would have played a little better."

Montana Guides 49ers To Playoffs

United Press International

The New Orleans Saints have gained the first playoff berth in their 21-year history, joining more traditional powers Chicago, San Francisco and Washington as early post-season qualifiers.

The Saints are chasing the 49ers for the division lead, and San Francisco looks tough to beat. Joe Montana opened with 15 straight completions Sunday, running his string to a league-record 22 going back to last week.

Jay Schroeder threw two touchdown passes and ran for another to help the Redskins clinch their third division title in five years and fourth in seven years.

Shula, who said after the loss to Buffalo he cannot understand his team's lack of emotion in important games. Miami is 1-5 against the AFC East, and the Dolphins only hope of making the playoffs seems to be winning the division outright.

The Dolphins can overcome their defensive troubles — they rank 27th in the league — when quarterback Dan Marino has a big game, but he has struggled lately. Still, the Dolphins have the best record in December in the AFC the past five years (14-3), and have beaten the Jets six straight games in Miami.

"We're still alive mathematically, but realistically we're struggling," Shula said.

To win, the Dolphins will have to improve their play on both the offensive and defensive lines, and Marino must take advantage of a New York secondary thinned by injuries. Marino has 18 touchdown passes and just nine interceptions, but was picked off three times last week by the Bills.

The Jets will try to keep their defense off the field by controlling the ball. They lead the AFC in average time of possession (32:42).

If the Jets do see such a team, it will delight Miami Coach Don

Lyman's Mitchell Achieves Goal, Qualifies For Kinney Nationals

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

Lyman's Teddy Mitchell has had his sights set on the Kinney National Regional Championship meet since day one of cross country season. Now that he has run the meet, finishing sixth in the 5K race in 15:38 and qualifying for the national finals in San Diego, he hopes he can go out and compete with the nation's best runners.

Mitchell, a sophomore, has the opportunity to become only the second runner in history to make it to the Kinney finals three consecutive years with his performance. "People keep telling me to take it all in perspective and not get overconfident," Mitchell said. "I'm glad I'm here this year and honestly feel I can make it back."

Mitchell finished second this year in the class 4A state meet and dominated the area by not losing to a Seminole county runner throughout the season. The only runner to come close to beating Mitchell was teammate Nick Radkewich who just nipped him in the Kinney Regional meet.

Both Mitchell and Radkewich have helped each other all season and did again in the Kinney meet.

"We're really competitive," Mitchell said. "We also know that if one of us had not made it, the other one might not of either. We're so competitive we try our best to beat one another and that moves us up."

Mitchell and Radkewich are close friends as well as fierce competitors which helps them both throughout the race.

"One coach taking pictures at the meet said every picture he took of one of us had the other in it," Mitchell said. "He told coach (Fred) Finkle he thought it was good team work, but coach just said 'that's how much they hate each other.'"

Mitchell and Radkewich will have one race left and will duel together on December 12th in San Diego.

Cross Country

Though the course they were on for the regionals, held at McAlpine Greenway in Charlotte, N.C., was muddy and the race run in a torrential downpour both were able to position themselves and move freely throughout the race.

"I got a great start," Mitchell said. "I couldn't see for the first quarter mile because the ground was so wet and everyone was kicking up mud and water into my face."

Mitchell managed to escape the early going and surge to the front of the race. Mitchell held on to the lead until just after the mile mark where he was passed by two runners.

"I knew Travis Grindstaff was a great runner and I didn't think I could compete with him," Mitchell said. "I was leading at the mile when both he and another guy went flying by me. I was going as fast as I could and they just left me."

Mitchell hung tough as only a few runners could hold his pace and pass him. Mitchell surged with every runner who passed him to make them earn their position.

"Me and Nick wanted to be in the top eight after the second mile and hold on," Mitchell said. "We were able to, although I think if I had started my kick earlier I could have finished third."

The top eight runners qualify for the nationals and during the last 800 yards Mitchell had thoughts of not making it. He was in seventh place and heard runners right behind him.

"I was thinking at one point I might get ninth place and not make it," Mitchell said. "I heard coach (Finkle) yell and knew I had to pick it up."

Mitchell took awhile to get

Teddy Mitchell (No. 334) crosses the finish line in sixth place at the Kinney Regional Qualifying meet at Charlotte, N.C. Danny Green (Conroe, Texas) is ahead of Mitchell, a Lyman High sophomore, followed by John Massie (Newport News, Va.) and the final national qualifier Paul Stoneham (Waco, Texas). The Kinney National Championships, featuring the top 32 runners in the nation, will be held Dec. 12 at San Diego.

going but, once started, he passed two runners over the last stretch and just missed picking up a couple of other runners.

Nick passed right after the two mile mark where there was a small hill," Mitchell said. "He surged then and got a four to five second lead on me. I heard coach yell and waited about 100 yards then sprinted."

The kick enabled Mitchell to nearly catch back up to Radkewich and placed him sixth and giving him a spot among the final 32 in the nation.

"We've worked all season long for this," Mitchell said. "We said something about the meet every practice."

Mitchell is hoping he can finish in the top 15 in the nationals and continue to move up over the years to come.

"Last year the 32nd place runner went through the mile mark at 4:34," Mitchell said. "At the end of the race a lot of them were dead and running really slow."

"I just want to go out and hang on until the last half mile," Mitchell said. "I want to keep moving up throughout the race and have a kick at the end. I feel I can do really well if I run a smart race."

Mitchell will have an added advantage to do well in the Nationals as a revenge factor will be in the back of his mind.

"I know two runners from New York who will run in the meet," Mitchell said. "I was at a camp with them and we didn't get along too well."

"I want to beat at least one of them," Mitchell added. "One of them was an all-state runner last year and I'd like to beat them if possible."

Lions Rout Colonial

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

Oviedo's Lions, despite the loss of one of their top players, dominated Orlando Colonial Saturday afternoon and came away with a 4-0 victory over the Grenadiers in prep soccer action.

Oviedo, which lost Jim Guggenheim to injury last week, came up with a strong defensive effort, limiting Colonial to just two shots for the night while the Lions had 28 shot on goal. The Lions now stand at 3-0.

"We had a great defensive game," Oviedo coach Dave Jekanoski. "We've lost Guggenheim for at least two weeks so we had to change roles and everybody did great adjusting to the change."

Duncan Jones, who has provided a big offensive lift to the Lions so far this season, opened the score on a penalty kick with 33:53 left in the opening half. Oviedo held on to take a 1-0 advantage after one half of play.

The Lions took control early in the second half as Derek Bates scored on a corner kick. The pass came from Scott Wiesonen with Bates heading it in for the score and a 2-0 lead with 38:03 left in the second half.

Jones scored on another penalty kick to up the score to 3-0 with 13:40 left in the game. Rob Seltzer capped the scoring adding another penalty kick with 8:05 remaining.

WINTER PARK NIPS RAMS

In a rematch of last year's regional playoff game, Winter Park nipped Lake Mary in overtime, 3-2, in the finals of the Lake Mary Invitational soccer tournament Saturday at Lake Mary High School.

The Wildcats picked up a goal in the first half to lead 1-0 at the intermission. Pete McAvoy got loose just after the midway point to give them the lead.

Lake Mary picked up two second half goals as Ernie Broenne and Rod Bitterling scored.

SEMINOLE TOPS APOPKA

Darren Forde, Chuk Roll and Javier Falcon all scored goals as Seminole High downed Apopka Saturday, 3-1. The Noles improved to 2-1 for the season and return to action Tuesday at Lake Mary.

BRANTLEY, HOWELL LOSE

Mike Esterling scored two goals to lift Orlando Boone to a 2-1 victory over Lake Brantley Saturday. Scott Kirk scored the goal for the Patriots who now stand at 0-2.

Also Saturday, Lake Howell dropped to 0-1-1 with a 4-3 loss to Daytona Beach Seabreeze. The Hawks took a 3-2 lead after one half, but Seabreeze scored a pair of unanswered goals in the second. Carlos Cukier, James Abbott and Erik Bird scored for Lake Howell.

LADY RAMS ROLL

Lake Mary's Lady Rams rolled to their fifth victory of the season Saturday with a 4-0 rout of Orlando Bishop Moore. Michelle Mattingly, Donna Rohr, Dana Hoover and Teresa Gatewood all scored for Lake Mary, 5-1, while goalkeeper Tammy Scott came through with her fourth shutout of the season. The Lady Rams return to Seminole Athletic Conference play Wednesday at Seminole.

Suns End Road Woes; Blazers Crush Knicks

United Press International
The Phoenix Suns finally found polite hosts.

Larry Nance scored 26 points and grabbed 11 rebounds and James Edwards added 17 points Sunday night, helping the Suns notch their first road victory of the season with a 97-96 triumph over the Los Angeles Clippers.

"Hopefully we are over that winless-on-the-road feeling," Suns Coach John Wetzel said after Phoenix won away from home for the first time after five road losses. "It had gotten to the point where we couldn't help but wonder. Now I hope we will put that behind us."

The Clippers, whose two-game winning streak was snapped, were led by Mike Woodson, who scored 30 points, and Larry Drew, who added 17 points and a game-high 11 assists. Woodson, however, missed a 22-foot shot with three seconds remaining.

"We made the key shots we needed in the end," said Nance, who missed the first 10 games of the season with a broken bone in his right hand. "Now we've finally got a win on the road. It has been a really tough year with injuries."

Missing from the Suns' lineup Sunday was their top scorer, Walter Davis, whose back is ailing.

Basketball

Phoenix went ahead 97-91 when Alvan Adams hit back-to-back baskets for the Suns' final points. Los Angeles received baskets by Michael Cage and Benoit Benjamin to move within 97-95 with 47 seconds remaining.

Cage, who pulled down a game-high 19 rebounds but missed 8 of 12 free throws, converted the second of two foul shots to make it 97-96 with 25 seconds to go.

The Clippers had an opportunity to win when, with 10 seconds remaining, Jay Humphreys missed a pair of free throws.

Trail Blazers 117, Knicks 99

At Portland, Ore., Clyde Drexler scored 27 points to carry the Trail Blazers to their ninth straight victory. Jerome Kersey added 23 and Steve Johnson 22 as Portland moved one-half game ahead of the Los Angeles Lakers in the Pacific Division. The triumph tied a Blazers record for consecutive victories and marked the ninth time in a row Portland has defeated New York. Kenny Walker led New York with 18 points while Patrick Ewing had 15.

Ueberroth Speech Highlights Meetings

DALLAS (UPI) — Baseball commissioner Peter Ueberroth makes his "State of the Game" speech today to a winter meetings audience more inclined so far toward talk than action.

There was little more than talk Sunday at the meetings although more action was expected due to a variety of factors. Many clubs devoted Sunday to sending out feelers with the idea of narrowing down before Wednesday, when most organizations are scheduled to depart.

Stocks Open Higher

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 143.74 last week, was up 9.62 to 1776.36 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 438-346 among the 1,151 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 7,504,000 shares.

The market last week suffered the largest weekly loss in the Dow average since the index plunged nearly 300 points in the week of Black Monday.

"There is just no real spark for the upside," said Chester Pado, director of technical research at Jefferies & Co. in Los Angeles.

Pado said the market is "fairly oversold" and, provided the market declined to the lows of mid-October, there was some demand waiting in the wings.

The Dow fell 72.44 even after a decision by the Deutsche Bundesbank, West Germany's central bank, to lower its discount rate to 2.5 percent from 3 percent.

Dollar Drifts Higher, But Gold Prices Mixed

The dollar opened slightly higher today in light trading on major world money markets. Gold was mixed.

Earlier in the Far East, the dollar closed at 132.63 yen, up 0.03 yen from Friday's close of 132.60 yen in what traders described as slow trading.

Traders in Japan said the dollar came under some selling pressure and remained weak basically as selling outpaced buying.

Traders noted that most market players stayed on the sidelines, waiting for the October trade balance, scheduled to be released on Thursday.

In Europe, the dollar began the day stronger in Paris at 5.664 French francs, up from Friday's close of 5.625.

The dollar opened in Brussels at 35.065 Belgian francs, up from 34.94, in Amsterdam at 1.88 Dutch guilders, up from 1.8755, and in Milan at 1,227.50 lire, up from 1,220.70.

In London the pound weakened, opening the day at $1.7925, down from Friday's close of $1.798.

The dollar opened lower in Frankfurt at 1.6685 West German marks, down from Friday's close of 1.667, and in Zurich at 1.3625 Swiss francs, down from 1.366.

In early New York trading, the dollar was slightly lower against key foreign currencies in light trading.

Traders in New York noted they expected volume to remain light ahead of the release of the October trade data later in the week.

Gold opened 25 cents lower in Zurich at $482.25 and gained $1.75 an ounce in London to $482.25 an ounce.

The London morning gold fixing was $480.90, up 40 cents from Friday's close.

In earlier trading in the Far East, gold closed at $482 on the Hong Kong Bullion Exchange, off $5.50 from Friday's close.

Analyst: Price Cuts Possible

CHICAGO (UPI) — Retail sales around the nation were disappointing in November and retailers could be faced with overstocked Christmas inventories leading to price markdowns, an analyst said Monday.

"It's too early to write Christmas off for the retailing industry, but signs are concerning enough for us to pull in our projections for the year," said Rick Nelson, analyst for Duff & Phelps.

Exact sales figures for the month were not yet available, but interviews with major retailers and estimates showed sales were lagging behind expectations, Nelson said.

Sales were depressed by declines in disposable income and wages and a rising level of consumer installment debt, Nelson said.

"These factors are exacerbated by the Oct. 19 stock market decline," Nelson said.

employees, penalties, if any, for non-payment to the city to date, notify these retirees of such and schedule meetings with them.

●The Goldboro Community Development Block Grant Program will also be considered.

Richard Woods, Community Development Officer, said his office has been given a go ahead to proceed with the project. He wants to propose to the city commission two initial steps for implementing the program. He has recommended to the city manager, that a Community Development Block Grant committee be established to help establish policies and procedures for the Goldboro project, and has submitted a prospective list of members. Once the committee is formed Woods recommends that his office begin accepting applications for CDBG assistance from residents in the Goldboro area.

retirees be offered the same health benefit as present employees, that FRS retirees accepting this coverage would pay to the City the amount of the FRS subsidy, and that retirees not electing the benefit by the end of this year, not receive a Jan. 1988 check from the city.

If the City commission approves these recommendations, staff must move quickly, Smith said, to notify retirees not participating in the FRS plan, find out what they want to do, and then determine the amounts to be granted to these

Oviedo Man Killed In Accident

An Oviedo man was killed Friday after he was thrown from a four-wheel vehicle when it hit a pile of dirt in front of closed bridge.

Michael Allen Smith, 22, 1350 Freedom Trail, was riding a 1987 Honda four-wheel vehicle on Howard Avenue and Kansas Street at about 11:15 p.m. when the accident occurred. He died at the scene, according to the Florida Highway Patrol.

Smith was returning to his home alone after leaving a local fish camp when he tried to jump the pile of dirt in front of the bridge, according to his mother.

She described the dirt pile as "not being terribly high. I ride my horse over it all the time," she said.

"Evidently he (Smith) was going at a fast rate of speed," she said of a possible cause of the accident. She added her family hasn't seen an official report of the accident.

There's also a possibility Smith was drinking prior to the accident, according to his mother. She said several people at the fish camp said they saw him drinking "some" before he left. She added that none of the people said they would describe her son as being drunk.

An autopsy was performed on Smith Saturday, but the coronor's office won't know if Smith was driving under the influence of alcohol until the toxicology report comes back.

Smith, who was single, worked as an auto-body painter, according to his family.

Smith's mother said the media is trying to use the accident as an issue to argue the safety of three and four-wheel vehicles.

"On our particular street eight or nine families own them (three and four wheel vehicles), we all ride them," she said.

Smith's mother said they live in a "country" area, where riding such vehicles is very popular recreation. "There's not much else to do out here," she said, adding, we bought the vehicles for the boy's to keep them happy."

She said earlier local news reports that her son was riding a three-wheel vehicle were untrue, and that a four-wheel vehicle, in her opinion, was actually much safer to ride.

Smith's death brings the total number of traffic related deaths in Seminole County this year to 24.

Boy Recovering From Submersion

FARGO, N.D. (UPI) — A boy who was submerged 45 minutes in the icy Red River now seems to recognize his parents and shows no signs of permanent brain damage in what his doctor called "truly life back from the dead."

Strangers from around the nation have offered gifts and prayers for the recovery of 11-year-old Alvaro Garza since he was rescued Friday from the frigid river by firefighters in a rowboat.

Alvaro, hooked to a respirator and in critical but stable condition at St. Luke's Hospitals, had a body temperature of 80 degrees and no heartbeat for up to 10 minutes after arriving in the emergency room. But Dr. William Norberg said Sunday he believes the boy will recover completely.

"I'm proud to hear better about my son. I thank everybody for helping him," said Alvaro Garza Sr., 30, who is unemployed. "He's feeling better every day. I hope everything goes all right. Thanks to the doctors and God."

"One can't help but be very encouraged," said Norberg, a pediatric critical care specialist.

Trust Fund, no budget cuts will be required this year. Next April when the Legislature convenes again, we can take up the budget again."

Vogt, who said no consensus could be obtained on passage of a replacement tax, said he does not favor a one-cent additional sales tax, as has been suggested to replace some of the funds lost by repealing the services tax.

"Passing an additional one-cent sales tax would just be replacing one unpopular tax with another, and would only be a short term solution," he said. In another year or two we would be faced with the same problem."

Part of the proposal to repeal the tax, which Vogt and House Speaker Jon Mills agreed to Friday, includes the formation of a 21-member budget commission to study the budget and present proposals to the legislature when it convenes in regular session on April 5. "The commission will be made up of seven appointees by the governor, seven by myself and seven by the Speaker of the House," Vogt explained. Members will not be legislators, but members of the public, he said.

"From Mills' and my meetings around the state we heard a lot of comments that we hadn't established a need for the tax," Vogt said. "We thought the Zwick Commission, and the Chamber of Commerce support of the tax showed the need, since groups traditionally against raising taxes supported it. Part of the problem may have been the need wasn't publicized adequately. I think part of this new commission's task is to make sure the public understands the need that exists."

Vogt said another special session to deal with the state's malpractice insurance crisis is possible if legislators finish with the tax problem in a timely fashion.

"If we get done with the tax problem quickly there is a good possibility there will be another special session immediately following to deal with the malpractice problem," he said.

He noted that, at first the Florida Medical Association and the Bar Association both strongly disagreed with conclusions reached in the special malpractice task force report. "I have been told indirectly, but have not yet had direct confirmation, that the FMA is now willing to support the report with some minor modifications," he said. The attorneys still don't like it, but if the FMA can support it, there is a good possibility we will be ready to take some action."

Martinez is hopeful the concession on the services tax repeal by Mills and Vogt will prove to be the first step toward resolving an issue that has divided lawmakers for nearly a year and damaged his own political standing.

"A controversy is never a victory," he told reporters Friday. "The thing is to put it aside so we can deal with '88. The only way we can get there is, quite frankly, to bury this tax now."

Martinez said the April 1 repeal date might be acceptable, but that he would confer with his aides and Republican legislative leaders before committing himself.

The repeal bill would also kill higher taxes on diesel fuel adopted in the services tax legislation.

An increase in the documentary stamp tax on real estate transactions, also adopted in the services tax bill, would be retained with receipts pledged to the Infrastructure Trust Fund. The Legislature created the trust fund to show a commitment to building roads, bridges, schools, prisons and other facilities demanded by Florida's rapidly growing population.

The real estate tax would be retained to prevent the death of the infrastructure fund. The tax will amount to only $50 million — a fraction of the demand for facilities — but legislators are hopeful more money can be found during the regular session next spring.

The services tax was enacted last spring as the answer to state government's money problems into the next century. But Martinez turned against the tax after public opinion polls showed heavy public opposition.

Mills and Vogt held out for revisions to save the services tax during a hard-fought series of special sessions that dragged for nearly a month earlier this fall. But their efforts to win public support during a statewide series of public hearings failed.

Last Friday, they began meeting privately with Martinez to seek a settlement. They discussed repeal and an increase of one cent on the dollar — from the current 5 cents to 6 cents — in the general sales tax on goods to replace the money lost by repealing the services tax.

But it became clear Thursday during public negotiations by House members, senators and aides to the governor that a majority in both chambers would reject the higher sales tax.

Forty-five House Republicans and 36 Democrats were poised to reject the replacement levy, and the Senate was also likely to vote against a new tax.

Lower taxes at the state level might force lawmakers to shift the burden to local governments.

Next spring the Legislature is expected to consider raising limits on property taxes, and removing the referendum requirement for the one-cent local option sales tax.

Martinez refused to say whether he will support additional new taxes until he unveils his budget recommendations for the 1988-1989 fiscal year next February. He said he will create his own commission, in addition to the joint committee, to study the state budget structure and propose changes, and possibly new taxes.

Fan Of TV Soaps Annoyed By Mother-In-Law's Static

DEAR ABBY: I am the 30-year-old mother of three beautiful children. Every weekday while my eldest is in school, I put the two younger ones down for a nap, then I sit down and watch my favorite soaps on TV. I find it very relaxing after a hectic morning.

Dear Abby

My mother-in-law never misses an opportunity to tell me that she thinks the afternoon soaps are disgusting, a waste of time, and that I am a rotten mother because I've allowed myself to get hooked on garbage written for morons!

Abby, I am not a moron—I just enjoy having two hours a day to myself. It's an entertaining hobby, nothing more.

I was raised to respect my elders, so I have never answered "Mom" back, but she really hurts my feelings. What should I do?

LIKES THE SOAPS

DEAR LIKES: You are to be commended for holding your tongue when confronted with these insulting remarks. You need not apologize for enjoying the soaps—millions of people do. It's time you told "Mom" that she hurts your feelings when she puts you down as a "rotten mother." Then tune her out and enjoy your hobby.

DEAR ABBY: I have a message for those grandparents who tell their children who now have little ones: "I raised mine—you can raise yours."

When my husband and I retired, we moved near our daughter so we could care for her children while she worked. We loved our grandchildren, and felt we could give them better care than any day-care center.

Now that we are approaching our "second childhood" and will need looking after, we know that our loving daughter will be willing to give us the care we need.

GROWING OLD IN BIRMINGHAM

DEAR GROWING OLD: And what would happen to you had you not been in a position to look after your daughter's children? Would she then have no good reason for looking after you in your "second childhood"?

A true gift is simply that—a gift. And it never obligates the recipient.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 54-year-old widow. My husband died two years ago. We had a fairly good marriage, but it wasn't perfect. (Whose marriage isn't?) About a year ago I met a man 15 years younger than me. It was wonderful at first, and now I have to decide whether to stop seeing him or not.

In the first place, he has never introduced me to any of his friends or family members. He met my family and friends a long time ago. He seems to enjoy my company, but he never takes me anywhere. It's either my home or his apartment. I am beginning to think he wants me for just one thing (a bed partner).

Please tell me what to do.

FEELING USED

DEAR FEELING USED: If you want to find out if he wants you for just "one thing"—all you have to do is quit making that "one thing" available, and see how long he hangs around.

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't help but chuckle over the letter from the lady whose husband gets a headache during sex. I laughed because that's been my problem for several years now and I'm female!

I read somewhere that this was not unusual, especially if the person has problems with vascular headaches such as migraines. (I do.)

By the way, my husband always gets a stuffy nose from sex. It's become our little private joke that if his nose stops up and I have a headache, we must have had a real good time.

HEADACHE BUT HAPPY

CONFIDENTIAL TO THOSE INTERESTED IN SEPARATING FACTS FROM FICTION:

According to the Dallas Times Herald: In a recent survey of local teenagers about AIDS, 65 percent of the respondents thought they didn't need to use a condom if the girl was taking birth control pills. Sixty percent believed they wouldn't get AIDS if they had sex with someone they loved.

County 4-Her In Chicago For National Meet

Seminole County 4-H'er, Francine Huggins, Altamonte Springs, left Friday for Chicago, Ill., to attend the 66th annual National 4-H Congress. Francine received this award for placing first in the state 4-H Clothing recordbook competition. Her trip to National Congress is sponsored by the Florida 4-H Foundation and is based on her outstanding achievement in the Clothing Project.

Francine is an 8-year veteran of 4-H, and clothing has always been her favorite project. She sews most of her own clothes and even designs some of her own patterns. One of Francine's greatest honors was being chosen as one of the 40 National finalists in the "Sew-N-Sew" Simplicity Eastman Kodak Contest.

Francine has been involved in many other 4-H project areas including breads, recreation, home improvement, citizenship, and leadership. This past year she was part of the Florida delegation that attended Citizenship-Washington Focus, a National 4-H Citizenship Program. As an active member of Seminole County 4-H Government Club, Francine has attended Florida 4-H Legislature, serving this past year as Legislator and a bill sponsor.

"Four-H has helped me tremendously," said Francine. "Four-H has given me the confidence to be able to talk in front of people. Four-H demonstrations have taught me how to organize and prepare oral reports and talks. This is something that I know I will always use."

Francine's skills at demonstrations are evident by the fact that she has won two first and one second place awards in State 4-H Demonstration competition. The clothing project has helped Francine set a career goal of a job in the area of fashion design.

Christmas Store Set This Week

The 15th annual Christmas Store of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program of Seminole County will be held today through Friday at the Sanford Chamber of Commerce, 400 E. 1st St., from 9 a.m. to noon.

Approximately 50 volunteers will assist the little shoppers each day to ensure they have just the right gifts for each member of their families. During the fiscal year just ended, 589 RSVP volunteers donated over 104,000 hours of service in Seminole County.

CONTOURED BODY OF SANFORD OPENS TOMORROW

Over 700 boys and girls have been invited to shop for their families from a wide selection of gifts made by volunteers. The shoppers will come from Hamilton, Goldsboro, Pinecrest and Midway Elementary Schools.

Also shopping will be students from Rosenwald Exceptional Child Center, Hopper School and all of Seminole County's Head Start youngsters. Many of these children and their families would face a bleak Christmas without this golden opportunity to select gifts for their brothers and sisters, mom and dad, and even their grandparents.

Volunteers are creative in their gift-making with items being made from scrap, lumber, fabric, yarn and other materials. Beautiful sweaters, booties, slippers, hats and shawls have been crocheted or knitted by
