City commissioner injured

Sanford City Commissioner Lon Howell was injured in a construction accident near Richmond, Va., late last week. He apparently did not require hospitalization.

City Manager Bill Simmons gave the report Monday during the City Commission workshop session, explaining Howell's absence from the meeting. "What I have heard from one of Commissioner Howell's co-workers is very vague," he said, "but I do know that the injuries weren't serious, and he is being treated on an outpatient basis."

"Apparently, he was working on some type of historic site renovation project," Simmons said, "and was on a landing about half way up the building when he fell."

Simmons said he did not know if the landing collapsed or Howell fell for some other reason.

"I'm not even sure of when it happened," Simmons commented. "The call came to me late Sunday, and the man said it had happened recently, so I am assuming it took place possibly Saturday or early Sunday."

"I don't even know the extent of Mr. Howell's injuries," he added. "All I heard was that he was undergoing some tests at a hospital near Richmond, but had not been formally admitted."

McPherson named new coach

SANFORD — Assistant coach Eddie McPherson has been named by Seminole High School to serve as interim head football coach for the 1993 football season.

The announcement was made this morning by Jerry Posey, athletic director of the school.

McPherson will be taking over the position from Emory Blake, who has requested a transfer following a five day suspension earlier this month. Blake was suspended following a reported confrontation with a student in a gym class.

McPherson has been in charge of the Junior Varsity football team at Seminole High School.

SHAC meeting set

OVIEDO — Amelia Geuka, executive director of GoldenRule Housing and Community Development Corporation, Sanford, will be the featured speaker at the monthly meeting of the Seminole Housing Advocacy Coalition this evening. Geuka will discuss details of how GoldenRule can help low-income residents realize the American Dream of home ownership. The public is invited to attend.

The meeting will be held at Oviedo Christ Presbyterian Church in the Publix shopping center on Alafaya Trail. The meeting begins at 6:30 p.m.

Aviator will try to fly non-stop

MOSCOW — A Maine native landed safely in Moscow on Monday and celebrated by resting up for his trip home.

Charles Mack, 72, of Hollywood, spent most of Monday in his Moscow motel room after a 32-hour flight from Washington in which strong headwinds forced him to make an unscheduled stop in Iceland.

The stop foiled his plan to fly non-stop in his single-prop Bonanza A-365 Mack, infamously said he will try again.

"They always ask me, 'When are you going to do it again?' And I always say, 'Never again, that's enough.' And then I do it again," Mack told NBC News.

The retired Air Force colonel plans to take another stab at flying solo across the Atlantic by returning to Portland, Maine, on the Fourth of July.

Sanford plans to hike rate as much as 24 percent

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Utility rates are expected to be increased in Sanford by August. Depending on usage, bills could be increased by up to 24 percent.

The matter was discussed extensively yesterday during the Sanford City Commission workshop meeting. City Manager Bill Simmons presented three proposals for ways to fulfill bond payments due during the next fiscal year.

"We have to have the money to pay on our bonds," Simmons said. "We don't seem to have any other alternative but to enact some increases."

"Water and sewer revenues have run below projection as a result of wetter than usual weather for the past two years," he explained. Other reasons Simmons gave included interest earnings below projections, unexpectedly higher costs for relocation of utilities required by county road improvement programs, and slower than expected growth in the customer base.

"As it stands now, our existing utility rates will generate slightly over $6 million during this coming year," he projected, "but we will be needing $7,440,921 in order to meet our bond requirements for fiscal 1993/94."

"We need to obtain an additional $1.4 million," he said, "and I believe the block rate method is the best alternative."

The alternative provides a lower volume cost for both water and sewer for the first 2,000 gallons of consumption for all customers, and a slightly higher volume charge for that part of consumption above 2,000 gallons per month.

Under this plan, the water fixed charge would

Impromptu car wash

Sanford fire fighters Tim Gracey and Stacey Dinning performed an impromptu car wash this morning trying to remove roof coating from Daniel Bealy's car on French Avenue. Thirty-two five-gallon buckets of the rubber-like coating slid off a truck driven by John Valinaggi as he rounded the corner near Lake Monroe. Some of the coating hit Bealy's vehicle as he drove to work in the Seminole County Services Building. Valinaggi, who was making deliveries to area Home Depots, was ticketed for failure to secure the load. The fire department hoped to clean the water-soluble spill with detergent.

SANFORD — A man arrested for stalking a Sanford woman two weeks ago is being sought by Sanford Police for allegedly stabbing her to death Monday night.

Kimberly Walker Grace, 22, 82 Seminole Gardens, died at Orlando Regional Medical Center. She was stabbed several times at her apartment about 9 p.m. Police are seeking Darrick Gerald Taylor for questioning in the case.

Sanford Police spokesman Lt. Mike Rotundo said Taylor apparently went to Grace's apartment and stabbed her with a knife or sharp instrument. A murder weapon has not been recovered.

Rotundo said Grace signed a stalking complaint against Taylor "two or two and a half weeks ago. He made a statement that he would kill her, and

During a work session of the City Commission Monday afternoon, Chris Crantias, president of Sanford Main Street, explained the total operating budget and fund-raising efforts to date for the project, and supplied commissioners with the organization's present and proposed budget.

SANFORD — Cars are being waxed and steering mechanisms checked as 50 boys and girls from Central Florida prepare their vehicles for the fifth annual Sanford Soap Box Derby July 11. Local winners from the three car categories will compete for the national title August 7 in Akron.

Sanford Parks and Recreation Director Mike Kirby said the new race course at Derby Park will be ready by race day barring any major construction delays. The local race, which in the past was conducted on Hwy. 17-19 in front of the Winn-Dixie Plaza, will move to the new park near Oregon Avenue.

"The businesses were very helpful," Kirby said, when the race was conducted on the hill, "but it did block access to the stores in the Winn-Dixie Plaza."

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Former captain pleads not guilty

MIAMI — A former West Palm Beach police captain who federal prosecutors say used his position to collect $73,000 in bribes from drug informants pleaded not guilty.
Timothy Wagman, 42, who retired from the West Palm Beach Police Department in February, will remain free on a $250,000 bond co-signed by his wife, father and mother-in-law, U.S. Magistrate Linnea Johnson ordered Monday.
Federal prosecutors allege that Wagman used his position as vice squad commander to collect bribes from drug informants. Wagman is charged with racketeering, money laundering conspiracy, embezzling police property and income tax evasion.

Veteran sentenced to 10 years

WEST PALM BEACH — A veteran who had been court-martialed and convicted of killing a lieutenant in Vietnam was sentenced to 10 years in prison for bludgeoned three senior citizens with a sledgehammer in 1990.
John Wall, 42, pleaded guilty to three counts of aggravated battery with a weapon for attacking three people on Jan. 21, 1990. He received credit for time served and probably will remain in prison another 2 1/2 years at most, Assistant State Attorney Ellen Roberts said Monday.
Roberts took Wall's three victims — Audrey Wendland and Robert and Mary Susdorf — to lunch Monday to explain the plea bargain. All three suffered fractured skulls when Wall attacked them.
Wall originally was charged with three counts of battery on an elderly person. A jury convicted him in October 1990, and he was sentenced to three life terms, but the conviction later was reversed on appeal because Wall was denied the chance to face a witness.

5-year-old shot in the head

ST. PETERSBURG — A 5-year-old boy was shot in the head by a 12-year-old neighbor girl who found a gun in the carport, authorities said.
Devontee Works was in guarded but stable condition after undergoing surgery Monday afternoon at All Children's Hospital, police said.
The .22-caliber handgun belonged to the boy's uncle, 18-year-old Demoine Works, who is a convicted felon. Works was charged with being a felon in possession of a firearm and was held in the Pinellas County Jail on a $5,000 bond.
"It does not appear to be an intentional shooting," said Lt. Tony Potts. "We don't feel there was any malice on her part. It's just one of those unfortunate situations."
Police said the girl, whose name they did not release, found the gun shortly before noon. She aimed the pistol at Works, who was a few feet away from her on the house steps. The victim and the shooter were among several children outside the house, Potts said.

Motion made to imprison Hardy

WEST PALM BEACH — State prosecutors have filed a motion to put Nicholas Hardy in jail with no bond, saying Hardy has made "marked improvements" since allegedly killing a sheriff's deputy and then shooting himself.
Barry Kriischer, Palm Beach County's State Attorney, filed a motion Monday asking Circuit Judge Hubert Lindsey to "re-evaluate (Hardy's) current release on house arrest status" and deny him bond.
"It's been a marked recovery," Kriischer said of Hardy's progress since the Feb. 25 shooting of Palm Beach County Sheriff's Sgt. James "Rocky" Hill and Hardy's subsequent suicide attempt.
Hardy, who originally was given no chance to advance beyond a vegetative state after shooting himself in the head, can compose simple sentences and can solve basic math problems, according to Mike Edmondson, spokesman for the State Attorney's office.

Kennedy Smith lawyer dating trial juror

MIAMI — Attorney Roy Black, who won the acquittal of William Kennedy Smith on rape charges, is dating one of the jurors who cleared his client in that sensational West Palm Beach trial.
The juror, Lea Haller, was the most visible of the panel following the Dec. 11, 1991, verdict, even appearing on the "Donahue" show with Black. But the attorney said they were not an item then.
They didn't begin dating, Black said, until a year after the trial of Smith, who is Sen. Edward Kennedy's nephew.
"We certainly had no romantic interest during the trial," he said.
Haller has moved to Miami from Palm Beach County, taking an apartment not far from Black's office.
Black said that was a coincidence, and that Haller, owner of Lea Cosmetica International, moved to be closer to her company. They began dating only later, he said.
"We bumped into each other," said Black.
That was in December 1992. Black, 43, and Haller, 39, have been an item ever since.

Prisons can take 6,000 inmates

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Florida could take in 6,000 more inmates at its prisons, a fact that surprised some lawmakers in the wake of a $200 million plan to build 10,500 beds over the next two years.
"The Legislature should have known that," Senate Criminal Justice Chairman Robert Wexler, D-Boca Raton, told the Fort Lauderdale Sun-Sentinel.
But a spokesman for Gov. Lawton Chiles denied Monday that the 6,000 slots could have been filled without violating standards imposed by the federal courts after a 20-year, $20 million lawsuit.
"There are not now — nor have there ever been — 6,000 beds that we could fill legally," Jim McClellan said.
Chiles called lawmakers back into town for the special session last month after vetoing their plan to add 7,000 beds over the next few years. He said the Legislature didn't do enough during the regular session

The Legislature should have known that.

-Senate Criminal Justice Chairman Robert Wexler

that ended in early April.
Several times, legislators say, Chiles and Corrections Secretary Harry Singletary were asked if every available prison bed was in use. The answer was always yes, according to Senate Corrections Chairman Gary Siegel, R-Longwood.
But from mid-April through mid-June, the state's prison system consistently operated at more than 10 percent below maximum capacity, the Sun-Sentinel reported Sunday.
Capacity is defined in a variety of ways.
"Design capacity," what prisons were built to hold, is 55 square feet per inmate in dorms and one inmate per cell.
The prison system's "legal capacity" is set by law at 133 percent of design capacity.

And individual prisons — but not the entire system — are allowed to go beyond that to "maximum capacity" of 37.5 square feet per inmate or two inmates per cell. That's 150 percent of design capacity.
On June 16, the legal capacity of Florida's prison system was 51,347. Its maximum capacity was 55,578 and it actually housed 49,501 inmates.
Florida's standards for prison crowding were laid down by a 1980 federal court order resulting from a lawsuit filed in 1972 by an inmate alleging poor medical care and overcrowding.
State officials say expanding capacity could even put the state on shaky legal ground.
"The last thing we are going to do is jeopardize that agreement and expose the state to even more costly litigation," Chiles told the newspaper.
Singletary said the vacancies represent "bed capacity" as opposed to "real beds."
He acknowledged, however, that the state could "buy some beds and put them in."

Redistricting ruling could impact Florida minority districts

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Staff Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Congresswoman Corrine Brown of Jacksonville says she is unconcerned by a U.S. Supreme Court decision Monday that gerrymandered districts in North Carolina to increase minority representation may violate white voter's rights.
Brown, who represents the Ocala-Gainesville-Jacksonville-Sanford-Orlando District 3, said in a statement the situation in North Carolina are different than those in Florida.
"It is my understanding the decision will have no impact on the congressional lines in Florida or any other state other than North Carolina," said Brown, a Democrat. "The facts surrounding my district lines are completely different and I am not concerned about yesterday's decision."
A Florida lawsuit pending before the court claims the Democratic-drawn legislative districts in the state violate the Voting Rights Act, and asks that more Hispanic seats be ordered drawn in Dade County under the Voting Rights Act.

A divided Supreme Court ruled Monday the rights of white voters could be violated by districts drawn simply to elect minorities — an issue central to Florida's bitter 1992 redistricting fight.
"Racial classifications of any sort pose the risk of lasting harm to our society," Justice Sandra Day O'Connor wrote for the court. "They reinforce the belief, held by too many for too much of our history, that individuals should be judged by the color of their skin."
Brown's district, which has a minority population slightly greater than 50 percent, takes in portions of Sanford, Midway, Bookertown, Allamonte Springs and the areas west of Markham Woods Road in some places in North Florida. The district is only 50 feet wide.
Congressman John Mica, the Winter Park Republican who represents the other sections of Seminole County in District 7, said he doubts the decision will affect Seminole County districts.
"Our case is a little different," said Mica. "Our districts were created by the federal court. But I might add, there is always a risk of reverse discrimination."
Jim Purdy, chairman of the Seminole County Democratic Executive Committee, said he agreed with the decision.
"As many demographics as possible must be thrown into the mix to be close to the one man, one vote ideal," said Purdy. "Gerrymandering based solely on ethnic criteria is not the way to reprogram America."
Rep. Peter Rudy Wallace, a St. Petersburg Democrat who chaired the House Reapportionment Committee, said the decision shows a train of thought among the justices that districts shouldn't go to extremes.
"The Supreme Court is trying to reign in the federal courts that have been making extreme interpretations of the Voting Rights Act," Wallace said.
"There's a tone of pulling back from the extreme."
Bill Jones, who handled redistricting issues for the Common Cause public interest group, said the court's North Carolina decision could make it tougher for Hispanics or blacks to gain seats in Florida.
"I think it becomes more of a burden for minorities," Jones said. "It's going to become more difficult."
Others, however, said the North Carolina case didn't directly apply to Florida.
"We are very safe," said Rep. Miguel De Grandy, a Miami Republican who filed the lawsuit challenging the Florida legislative maps. "It's clearly distinguishable from our case."
The court said judges should give close scrutiny to "bizarre" districts drawn strictly to benefit minorities and should require proponents to come up with other solid reasons for designing districts that way.
Information from The Associated Press is contained in this report.

PSC commissioner marries Southern Bell girlfriend

By CURT ANDERSON Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The utility regulator under investigation for dating a Southern Bell employee has married her and agreed to step aside from any matters concerning the telephone company.
Public Service Commission member Tom Beard, 43, married 37-year-old Alma Paruolo, who is a Southern Bell administrative assistant in Miami, on Wednesday. He said Monday he won't sit on any Southern Bell cases.
"It is my hope that this action will finally bring an end to the intense scrutiny under which my family and I have been placed over the many months of these investigations," Beard said.
The attorney general and Florida Department of Law Enforcement began investigating Beard's relationship with Ms. Paruolo after Beard's ex-wife was charged with burglarizing his Tallahassee home in April. Some of Ms. Paruolo's clothes were taken.
Those probes later found that Beard had dated Mary Daudelin, a staff manager for Southern Bell's parent company BellSouth in Atlanta, in 1991 and 1992.
He met Ms. Paruolo at poolside during a June 1992 Florida Telephone Association convention at the Ocean Reef Club in Key Largo. The couple was introduced by Anthony Lombardo, Southern Bell's top regulatory executive.
Paruolo and Beard insisted they never discussed business when together, even though Beard stayed with her in Miami when PSC business took him there.
Attorney General Bob Butterworth sought to force Beard to step aside from any PSC consideration of Southern Bell cases.
Beard's announcement noted that neither Butterworth nor the pending FDLE probe have uncovered any wrongdoing.

Cops: Man claims he killed 17 prostitutes

By ALBERT DAVILA
Associated Press Writer

MINEOLA, N.Y. — A man who was pulled over with a decomposed corpse in the back of his pickup told police he killed 17 prostitutes and dumped all but the latest victim in three Northeastern states, investigators say.

Joel Rifkin, a 34-year-old unemployed landscaper was to be arraigned today on one count of murder as investigators tried to match details of his grisly confession with unsolved slayings during the last two or three years.

Rifkin told police he was on his way to dump his latest victim about 3 a.m. Monday when two troopers flagged him down for driving without license plates and running a stop sign. He led the troopers on a four-mile chase — speeds never exceeded 50 mph — until he rammed his beige pickup into a light pole.

The troopers smelled a rank odor from the back of the truck and found the body of a woman wrapped in a tarpaulin.

"I killed her. She was a prostitute," Rifkin was quoted by police as saying.

Rifkin said he picked up the woman in New York City on Thursday night, strangled her and hid the body for three days before loading it into his truck, police said.

During the next six hours, Rifkin confessed to a string of murders, recounting how he would first have sex with his victims, then strangle or suffocate them, then dump or bury their bodies, sometimes on Long Island but also as far away as Connecticut, New Jersey and upstate New York, authorities said.

The motive for the slayings was not immediately known.

State Police Capt. Walter Heesch said Rifkin gave approximate dates and locations for the slayings.

Rifkin has been linked to the slaying of another woman whose body was found on a highway in Southampton on May 9, Heesch said.

Neither she nor the woman in Rifkin's truck has been identified.

A New York City detective, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Rifkin appeared to know about one of two prostitutes found slain on Coney Island in Brooklyn in 1992.

Rifkin lived with his mother and sister in the Long Island community of East Meadow in a tree-lined neighborhood of $250,000 homes. His late adopted father had been a member of the school board.

Owen Smith, president of Friends of Planting Fields Arboretum — a public garden on Long Island's North Shore — told the Daily News of New York that Rifkin had been an intern there but just "drifted off" after about a month.

"He just didn't connect to his colleagues, and there was none of the love of nature that marks so many of our interns," Smith said.

A neighbor, Jon Julien, said that his son graduated from high school with Rifkin in 1977 and that he did not believe Rifkin ever moved away from home.

"I never heard anything bad about him," Julien said.

Iwo Jima studio liquidated

By JONATHAN MOORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — An auctioneer started the bidding at $100 and the white plaster model of the famed Iwo Jima Memorial went for that price.

"It's disgraceful," Felix de Weldon said of the bankruptcy auction to liquidate what once was his sculptor's studio. "In any other country someone like me becomes a national treasure. Except in the rich United States, they try to ruin somebody who created many heroic monuments."

Auctioneers on Monday sold de Weldon's dilapidated 19th century brick studio and its contents to pay off creditors after the artist filed bankruptcy. De Weldon had been unable to repay a $1.5 million loan he had taken out for the care of his late wife who had Alzheimer's disease.

De Weldon, whose talents once were sought by generals and presidents and whose works are found worldwide, watched as people in jeans and T-shirts loaded up their cars with bronze busts, plaster figures, clay models, broken or whole, finished or unfinished, famous or obscure.

Three buildings and land went for $30,000, and the various items inside for $25 to $1,000 each. A plaster scale model of the Iwo Jima Memorial, known officially as the Marine Corps War Memorial, went for just $100.

Whatever age, keep learning

People should not allow the educational processes to stop just because schooling has ended. There is no end and no limits on what is still to be learned.

We are indeed fortunate to have Seminole Community College in this area. In addition to regular college courses, there are other offerings for people of any age.

Beginning July 6, a new series of leisure programs will begin. They include exercise for seniors, "step" aerobics, firearm safety, assertiveness training, Spanish and golf.

There are a number of advantages for these courses. There is no age limit. Enrollees will find people of all ages at adjacent desks. There are no pass/fail problems, as the courses are offered for informational education rather than school credits.

Most require only a few hours, one or two nights a week, for a limited number of weeks. The costs are reasonable, with a lower rate for local residents for some courses.

Over the past years, practically any subject a person can think of, has been offered in the leisure time program, from basket weaving to radio and TV repair. If there is a sufficient number of persons inquiring about a specific topic, the school will attempt to establish a course.

With offerings such as these, people should be flocking to SCC in the evening hours. Yet, there is usually room for more. Too many people believe their educational process has ended and there is nothing more to learn. They are wrong.

Sitting on the rocking chair can be a waste of time when there is so much that can be done.

Contact SCC and learn of the leisure programs. Your future is bound to improve if you become involved.

Would one law enforcement agency work county-wide?

Several years ago the late John Polk came to my office at Cardinal Industries to pick up a check as a contribution to one of his campaigns for sheriff. As we were chin-wagging I asked John what he thought about a county-wide law enforcement agency instead of a sheriff's department and seven municipal police departments.

He said it could be done but he added that "we are seven or eight years away from even talking about it."

Well, the time has about arrived. John is gone but that doesn't mean we couldn't talk about it.

I did a little checking not long ago. I found out we are spending about $1 million a week for present law enforcement throughout the county. That includes Altamonte Springs, Casselberry, Lake Mary, Longwood, Oviedo, Sanford, Winter Springs and the Sheriff's Department. Folks, that's $52,000,000 for some 300,000 people, or about $17 a week or about $674 a month.

Don't get me wrong, I'm not proposing a unified police department. All I'm suggesting is that we talk about it to determine if a change should or should not be made to improve services and save money.

Right now the Sheriff's Office and Seminole County's seven municipal police departments are working on budgets for fiscal year 1993-94. No doubt the cost of law enforcement will rise again and thousands of us retired folks living on fixed incomes will have to take the belt in another notch. On the other hand, who knows if a unified law enforcement agency might ease the burden. Remember, all we've suggested is that we talk about it. And if each agency picked its own representative it wouldn't cost a dime.

Net fishing

If we were registered voters in Florida, we would let our legal voice be known that netting in coastal waters must be eliminated. We do own land on Big Pine in the Florida Keys and have planned to retire there; we come to the state once a year.

The people of Florida must stop the netters. We see the pictures of so much wasted fish, it makes no sense. We know we have no voice because we live in Washington; however, we have sent our hard-earned money to the "Save Our Sealife" committee so that at least our money will carry the message.

Your political leaders should realize what real cost the netters are causing. We are just two people, but each trip we would spend approx. $3,500. When you multiply that by all the people coming to Florida — that no longer come — that means a lot of poor times and lost jobs for the whole state, Sanford included. Florida should ban the nets now.

Unwed fathers due more attention

Olie Mann was only 17 years old when he got a girl pregnant. At the time, the Cleveland youth hardly fit anyone's idea of a model father. "I was in a gang," he remembers. "I sold drugs. I was very promiscuous."

The teen-age mother of his child was whisked away to Texas by her mother, who wanted to put as much distance as possible between her daughter and incorrigible young Olie. But Olie wanted to have his child near him.

He turned to the National Institute for Responsible Fatherhood and Family Development, a Cleveland-based organization that began 10 years ago as a local support program for teen fathers.

Since its inception, the institute has reached almost 2,000 young fathers like Olie. The program is built on expectations: That the young dads will legitimize their children by acknowledging paternity. That they'll finish school. That they'll hold down a steady job.

The caseworker assigned to Olie, who himself had been through a similar experience, encouraged the young man to clean up his act. Olie went back to school and earned his high-school equivalency degree. He dropped out of the gang. He gave up drugs.

Now, three years later, he is married to the mother of his child. The family lives happily in Cleveland. There are hundreds of thousands of young men like Olie in inner cities throughout the country. They want to be real fathers to their children, but most are unable to take advantage of the kind of program that helped Olie get on the straight and narrow.

While there are myriad public and private programs that provide aid and comfort to unwed mothers, there are precious few that support unwed fathers. That's because our culture tends to view the role of fathers in family life as less important than mothers.

Just look at television and film, says psychologist Jane Myers Drew, author of "Where Were You When I Needed You Dad?"

Olie Mann was only 17 years old when he got a girl pregnant.

"There often is such a sense of Dad being the fool, or not important, or that he's sort of a throwaway, or we can get along without him."

Ultimately, Drew says, the marginalization of fathers is detrimental to the development of children. "Dads have so much to do with building self-esteem, setting values, encouraging a child to find his or her place in the world," she says. "Without Dad there, it leaves a real gap."

This "gap" is probably even more pronounced in poor families. Not only are such families deprived of a breadwinner, they also lack a positive role model who can imbue poor young men, like Olie Mann, with character and a sense of responsibility.

The welfare system is no help. It tilts decidedly in favor of single mothers, at the expense of poor, young fathers. In California, for example, an unmarried mom may receive $500 to $600 a month through Aid to Families with Dependent Children, another $100 in food stamps, plus free medical care. If she has a man at home, she risks losing all of this.

The government's subsidy of single motherhood contributes mightily to the devaluation of fatherhood in poor families. In poor homes, the government acts as surrogate for the father, providing most of the family's material support. Poor children are virtual wards of the state.

Alternate route to college tuition

The following editorial was prepared by Richard Shaughnessy, Education Services Specialist, U.S. Army Recruiting Battalion Tampa

College financial aid advisors say a college education over a lifetime earns a graduate $1 million more than a person who does not get a college degree. Parents, however, may argue that it feels like it costs a million dollars over a lifetime to pay for that college degree.

Statistics show that persons who are now between 35 and 44 years old with a bachelor's degree report almost twice the monthly earnings of those who stopped going to school after high school graduation.

College costs are rising, and at the same time, money from federally insured student loans is getting tighter. Parents and students are looking for alternatives.

The U.S. Army has a path which can help students who have a career goal which requires a college degree. It gives its Army alumni a chance to enter the school of their choice with the experience and confidence to tackle the tough courses, as well as the funding to handle escalating college tuitions.

That path is the recently increased Army College Fund (ACF), which is available to applicants who enlist for four years, from $25,200 to $30,000, when combined with the Montgomery G.I. Bill.

This increase was initiated to restore the ACF's buying power to its 1985 origination level. We have found that college money is a potent enlistment incentive for the Army in attracting higher-quality recruits.

The new ACF provides qualified individuals opportunities to obtain guaranteed funding for college after separation from the Army. A soldier who successfully completes a four-year enlistment with the money for college option would have $833.33 per month for each of four years of college, based on a nine-month academic year. The money may also be used for any schooling approved by the Veterans Administration.

Army veterans who pursue full-time college programs following separation from active duty are usually very successful students. Several factors contribute to their academic preparedness.

Extensive training is a part of every soldier's experience. Most combine classroom and on-the-job instruction toward building proficiency in their military occupational specialty.

Many soldiers begin their college experience while on active-duty by taking courses through a local community college or university.

These courses are often part of the core requirements of a degree program. They build a foundation for more advanced courses and earn credit toward the soldier's degree.

A college education over a lifetime earns a graduate $1 million more than a person who does not get a college degree.

GUEST COLUMNIST

Individual qualities like discipline, maturity and motivation are generally enhanced by the veteran's Army experience and contribute positively to meeting the challenges of full-time enrollment in college.

Finally, almost all veterans have earned educational benefits that help defray the high cost of college today.

To qualify for the Montgomery G.I. Bill and the new Army College Fund, an applicant must have a high school diploma, achieve a score of at least 50 on the entrance aptitude test, enlist in a designated critical job skill, have no prior military service, and meet the other enlistment eligibility requirements.

Consumer choice key to success of health plan

WASHINGTON — The Clinton administration won't unveil its healthcare reform package until after Labor Day, but one prominent House Democrat has some words of advice for Hillary Rodham Clinton.

"If you mishandle (the consumer-choice issue), the health-reform effort is over — it's dead," said Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore. "That's the first thing people are going to ask about health reform: How does this affect me?"

The Clinton administration insists that its upcoming reform package will preserve the right of Americans to choose their own physician. But some House members are concerned that in the rush to mollify conflicting constituencies — doctors, insurers, hospitals and corporations — consumers may be left out in the cold.

That's why doctor choice will remain one of the biggest battlegrounds — a point driven home by the story of Milagros Pons. Pons, an ebullient woman of 65, suffers from a rare disease that causes her immune system to break down in cold weather. For several years, the Miami woman has been getting her blood tested on a weekly basis by the same doctor, and had her prescriptions filled at the pharmacy closest to her home. Pons relied on Medicaid to pay the bills for her treatment because she can't work.

One day she was waiting in line for food stamps when a solicitor for the Medicaid Plus program approached her. Having heard about it through a Medicaid advertisement, Pons asked the solicitor for more information and volunteered her name, address, and Social Security number. The following month, rather than receiving her usual Medicaid card in the mail, Pons received a Medicaid Plus card.

Pons soon found out that her new Medicaid service did not pay for her weekly visits to her regular doctor, nor did it pay for her prescription. The Medicaid Plus she was enrolled in was actually a Health Maintenance Organization that had contracted with state Medicaid officials as a carrier. Its agreement with the state allowed it to advertise for customers through the state Medicaid program, as well as to troll for customers in places like food stamp offices. Patients who sign up for the service are restricted to that company's clinics, and can only buy prescription drugs at a sanctioned pharmacy.

"I thought I was signing up for information about Medicare Plus. It turned out to be more like Medicare minus," Pons now says of the experience. A spokeswoman for the HMO that enrolled Pons, C.M.C. Ramsay, told our associate Jan Moller that her company has taken several steps to improve customer satisfaction in the 19 months since Pons accidentally enrolled in the program. She added that the state of Florida requires her company to market its programs at food stamp offices.

These are the kinds of stories that can sink a health-care reform agenda, even if they are not representative of the managed-care industry as a whole. Republicans have already signaled their eagerness to pounce on any proposal that tramples patient choice, and some Democrats are willing to break ranks with the White House on this one issue.

Wyden recently forged an alliance with a diverse coalition of 30 consumer groups representing more than 30 million people.

One prominent House Democrat has some words of advice for Hillary Rodham Clinton.

School board tackles equity

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County school board will vote on whether or not to approve the educational equity act for the district.

It is expected that the board will approve the plan that has been nearly a decade in the making.

The educational equity act became law in 1984. The planning process is conducted in three-year cycles. The district is presently in the last year of the third three-year cycle.

In the past, the district has reviewed policies, enrollment patterns, staffing patterns and athletics. They have made attempts to increase minority participation in higher level mathematics and science courses.

This year the district is continuing to work on the improvements made in the past and must update the state Department of Education on the advances once the plan is approved by the board.

Recently, the board approved policies designed to ensure equal employment opportunities, to prohibit sexual harassment of employees and students and to treat employees and students with AIDS fairly.

They have set goals for continuing to improve performance in the areas of recruiting minorities to math and science programs.

The board will meet Tuesday evening at 7 p.m. in the district headquarters, 1211 S. Mellonville Ave., Sanford.

Smith and Seminole County Dist. 5 Commissioner Daryl McLain, were both to serve as official voting members. The commission changed the designation to "Ex-officio" members however, which removes their voting rights.

"I feel much better about this," Smith said. "I was concerned over being put in that position when the membership list was originally proposed."

Three others were originally named to serve in ex-officio status. They included Marder, City Manager Bill Simmons, and Seminole County Planning and Development Director Tony VanDerworp.

Named to one-year terms on the committee were: Larry Strickler, president, Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce; Kay Bartholomew, St. Lucia Festival; Jack Wert, director, Seminole County Tourist Development Council; Connie Williams, chairwoman of Sanford Scenic Improvement Board; John LeRoy, Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission; Gary Briggs, comptroller, Roman-American River Cruises; Chuck Volk, Lake Monroe Marina, Inc.; and Laura Straehla, Sanford Main Street.

Regulators say home codes inadequate

MIAMI — Mobile homes are inadequate and new standards being proposed would require be increased from $2.14 to $3.14 per month for the first 2,000 gallons, but the water volume charge would be decreased from $1.42 to $1.20 per month.

For customers using over 2,000 gallons per month, the overall increase is estimated at 17 percent.

"What we tried to do here," Simmons said, "was to provide a minimum of impact for users below 10,000 gallons per month, which would cover most homes in the city."

Public Works Director Jerry Herman explained that the typical home in Sanford uses between 5,000 and 10,000 gallons per month. "This depends on how many people are in the home," he commented.

For users of 12,000 gallons per month or more, the proposal will produce an increase of approximately 24 percent.

Simmons said last night's discussion of the various proposals was a request for direction. "We want to know which way the city wants to go in this before we start fine-tuning the increase and preparing an ordinance," he explained.

"If it came up right now," said Commissioner Whitey Eckstein, "I would vote against it. I think the first thing we should do is check into all of our other bonds first, and see if there could be any way we could save money by refinancing some of them." He added, "The way I see it, the average family just can't afford any 24 percent increase."

Simmons responded that he had been unable to determine any bonds which could be reduced at this point, but would continue researching the matter.

"The commission gave me the approval to start work on preparing an ordinance," Simmons said this morning. "I hope to have it ready for presentation at the two commission meetings during July, and if it is approved, the additional charges would go out on utility bills beginning August 1st."

With the changes, a residential user of 2,000 gallons per month would have the total utility bill climb from $12.52 to $14.63. A 7,000 gallon user would see an increase from $31.37 to $38.43.

A 10,000 gallon user would have the bill increase from $42.68 to $52.71 per month. A 12,000 gallon consumer would see the increase from $50.22 to $62.33.

According to the results of a rate study, if the proposal is approved, Sanford's utility rates would be the highest in the county for users of 10,000 to 12,000 gallons per month, in the mid-range for 7,000 gallon consumers but well below average for 2,000 gallon users.

The matter is expected to be presented in ordinance form for first reading at the next City Commission meeting, scheduled for July 12.

Elected for two-year terms were: Andrea Farmer, Marketing/PR manager, Central Florida Zoological Park; Preston Perrone, chairman, Chamber of Commerce 17-92 Redevelopment Committee; Helen Stairs, Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association; Jerry Mills, Sanford Historic Preservation Board; Jami Meeks, Sanford Historic Trust; Lisa Neway, marketing director, Central Florida Regional Hospital; Eliza Pringle, resident; and Richard Fowler, Friends of the St. Johns.

Approval of the committee was adopted with a unanimous vote from the city commission.

the homes to be better able to withstand storms, housing regulators said after reviewing Hurricane Andrew's wreckage.

"Right now, the risk that mobile home owners are asked to take is unreasonable," said Edward Pfirng, director of the American Society of Civil Engineers, which provided the basis for the proposed rules. "The basic issue is, 'Should they raise the wind resistance of mobile homes?' The answer is yes."

The new standard more than triples some of the pressures a mobile home must withstand. It adds requirements to account for the intense forces when high winds lash at corners and edges.

It also abandons a labeling system under which mobile homes were approved by the federal government as "Hurricane Resistant."

About 1.3 million Floridians currently live in mobile homes.

Manufacturers and their lobbyists now concede that Hurricane Andrew exposed the need to make sturdier mobile homes. However, the industry says the proposed standard is too stringent, and will raise prices far beyond the reach of those who need inexpensive housing.

The typical price could jump from $28,400 to $38,340, the Manufactured Housing Institute said. But other engineers and preliminary government estimates suggest the jump would be no more than $2,000.

"We are more than willing to recognize the need for a stronger code," said spokesman Bruce Savage. "But we need to strike a balance between wind safety and affordability. This standard doesn't do it."

The Aug. 24 hurricane demolished more than 8,000 mobile homes in Dade County, Red

Coast damage figures suggested a mobile home was 21 times more likely to be destroyed than a conventional home.

The new construction standard does not require congressional approval. But before it can become final, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development must solicit comments from consumers, engineers and manufacturer. It must also conduct a study of expected mobile home price increases.

The period of comment ends July 9. A final decision is not expected until weeks later.

City agrees to pay in choke hold case

MIAMI — The family of a man choked by a police officer last year until he fell into a coma may receive $7.5 million from the city of Miami, a newspaper reported.

The tentative agreement with the family of Antonio Edwards is scheduled to be discussed by the Sources told The Miami Herald that the agreement was hammered out days before the case was to go to trial.

Since the Main Street inception in November of last year, Crutkins reported raising over $15,000 in investment memberships for the 1993/94 budget year.

He also reported raising $6,800 from the Fun-In-The-Park project, and receiving over $12,000 in in-kind services including donated office space, utilities and furniture.

"What we are requesting now," he told the commissioners, "is consideration of $20,000 in matching funds during our budget preparations, but more immediately a commitment resolution."

He explained the resolution would be included in documents to be sent to the state in the application for inclusion in the Florida Main Street Association. The papers are to be submitted in August.

"We would like to include a document of endorsement from the city," Crutkins said, "showing that you are backing us and will be willing to invest in the project."

"For what we want now," he added, "you don't have to include any specific money amount, just your endorsement."

Mayor Bettye Smith and the three commissioners present for the workshop, appeared to support the requests for both the endorsement and budget consideration.

"This is the most concentrated private effort I've ever seen underway since I've been in office," said Commissioner A.A. McClanahan. "I would be willing to examine how to go about giving them financial support."

"But with the tight money situation we have," he continued, "we'll have to look into where we can get the money. Maybe we can move the money from other projects."

At McClanahan's request, City Manager Bill Simmons reported the budget requests for the Scenic Improvement Board for the next fiscal year was $25,000, and the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce had requested between $23,000 and $24,000.

"As this is a project that will be a big factor in community improvement," McClanahan said, "I would suggest we consider shifting $10,000 from each of these budget requests, and give it to the Main Street project."

"This is the best opportunity for Sanford development in years," commented Mayor Bettye Smith. "We would be remiss if we didn't support it as much as we can."

Smith projected that no action should be taken until the city begins budget considerations, which are expected to start within three weeks.

"We are talking about big money," said Commissioner Bob Thomas, "but this is something which will be of big benefit to the city, and I have no problem with it."

No formal action was taken during the commission workshop meeting, nor was the matter carried over to the regular meeting last night.

"The next move," Simmons said, "will be for us to work in that direction (budgeting $20,000) during our budget preparation."

The commissioners agreed to pursue the financial request, and have an endorsement prepared for approval during the next city commission meeting.

Derby

The drivers, ranging in age from 9 to 16, compete in three car categories, stock, kit and masters. The stock class is primarily beginning racers, the kit class are drivers who build cars from kits purchased from the Soap Box Derby organization for about $200 and the masters division are usually veteran derby drivers. The new 30-foot wide, two lane race course will buzz with activity during the day-long race.

Two of the most often-asked questions about participating in the race Kirby said is "How much does it cost?" and "How do you build the car?"

Sponsorships to help pay for a car are available if a family cannot afford one. Workshops are also conducted on how to put a car together. The entry deadline for this year's closed last week.

Building the cars and preparing for the race become a family affair.

"I have never seen a better family oriented program than this one," Kirby commented. Sponsors many times are parents whose own children are too old to participate anymore in the derby, or individuals interested in working with youth.

One father told Kirby how much the derby had meant to his family and donated a $500 check for the program.

There is a handicapped program available with specially built, two-person cars to let physically challenged youth experience the feel of a race car. A celebrity competition featuring local officials and members of the media will also be conducted on race day, Kirby said.

Wheels for all the racers are provided by the parks and recreation department which sponsors the race. The competition features double elimination races and electronic timers clock the speeds.

The winners in all three divisions will advance to the national Soap Box Derby race August 7 in Ohio. All the contestants attend a week-long camp prior to the race.

There are four derby franchises in Florida: Fernandina Beach, Boca Raton, Ft. Myers and Sanford.

Report: Saddam directed plot to bomb Bush

By Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — U.S. intelligence concluded that Saddam Hussein ordered the attempt to assassinate former President Bush, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

President Clinton launched a missile attack on Iraq's intelligence headquarters in Baghdad over the weekend in retaliation for what he said was an Iraqi plot to kill Bush with a car bomb during a visit to Kuwait in April.

The Times quoted unidentified senior government officials as saying the evidence of Saddam's involvement was circumstantial but compelling.

"It is inconceivable that an operation like this, conducted by Iraqi intelligence, could have been done without Saddam Hussein ordering it," one senior official said.

A Clinton administration official, speaking on condition anonymity, told The Associated Press on Monday night that the government had no specific evidence that the plot was ordered by Saddam himself.

But the official said U.S. analysts assumed that nothing of that nature could be launched in so tightly controlled a country without Saddam's approval.

Clinton decided within a few weeks of the discovery of the plot against Bush that he would retaliate with missiles if he was presented with conclusive evidence of Iraqi government complicity, the newspaper said.

The New York Times reported today that administration officials conducted an extensive investigation, in which U.S. experts traveled around the world to examine bombs recorded in previous terrorist attacks.

"We just wanted to make sure that every 'i' was dotted and every 't' was crossed," a senior Justice Department official told the Times.

Two executed in Georgia and Texas

By Associated Press

A man accused of masterminding the slayings of his mother and three other relatives to get his hands on the family fortune was executed today in Texas, confessing at the very last moment.

In Georgia, an inmate was put to death in the electric chair late Monday for killing a fellow soldier by putting him in the trunk of a taxi and pushing the car into a watery pit.

In Huntsville, Texas, 46-year-old Markham Duff-Smith cleared his conscience just before he died by injection.

"I am the low animal of streets. I am responsible for the '75 and '79 cases," he said as he lay on a gurney, needles in his arms.

Duff-Smith was convicted of arranging the murder of his adoptive mother, Gertrude Duff-Smith Zaballo, at her home in Houston's exclusive River Oaks neighborhood in 1975. He was found guilty of paying $10,000 to Allen Wayne Janecka to strangle Mrs. Zaballo, 57, and make her death look like a suicide.

Authorities said Duff-Smith eventually squandered his $90,000 inheritance and in 1979 sought out Janecka again to kill his adoptive sister, her husband and their teen-age son so he could collect up to $500,000 of their inheritance.

Duff-Smith was charged but never tried in those slayings, and until today, he had denied any role in the crime.

"If someone confesses, it confirms the system worked," said Patricia Guillermo, a spokeswoman for the Texas attorney general's office.

Late Monday, the U.S. Supreme Court unanimously refused to block his execution.

In Georgia, Thomas Dean Stevens, 36, was put to death at the state prison at Jackson for killing Roger Honeycutt, a soldier who was moonlighting as a cab driver. Honeycutt was robbed of $16, sodomized and locked in the trunk of his cab. He drowned when Stevens and another man pushed the car into the pit.

The U.S. Supreme Court had rejected two late-hour appeals.

Stevens' attorneys had argued that Stevens' life should be spared because he was retarded. They also said a key prosecution witness now says he lied when he testified he heard Stevens say that he intended to kill the cab driver.

Tommy Morris, acting chairman of the Board of Pardons and Paroles, said the board gave little credence to claims of retardation because earlier tests of Stevens showed no evidence of that. He also said the board felt Stevens would have been convicted without the testimony of the witness who recanted.

Another soldier stationed at Fort Stewart, Christopher Burger, was convicted in the case and awaits execution.

Stevens became the first person executed in Georgia in almost two years and the 16th since the Supreme Court in 1976 allowed capital punishment to resume.

Duff-Smith was the 60th person executed in Texas since the high court ruling, the highest total in the nation.

The two executions brought the nationwide total since the Supreme Court ruling to 206.

Duff-Smith's attorneys had argued, among other things, that the prosecution had engaged in misconduct. And Janecka's lawyers said they needed Duff-Smith's testimony and insisted his execution should be delayed. But a judge ruled that the lawyers could take a sworn statement from Duff-Smith instead.

The Harris County medical examiner's office originally ruled that Mrs. Zaballo, who was strangled with a pair of pantyhose, committed suicide and that the family shootings were murder-suicide.

But a Houston detective, Johnny Bonds, pored over bank and telephone records to make the case that Duff-Smith paid Janecka $10,000 for the Zaballo slaying and between $11,000 and $14,000 for the other killings.

Janecka's murder conviction was reversed on appeal. He is awaiting retrial.

FDA issues recall of baby formula

By Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — The Food and Drug Administration recalled several brands of baby formula and other products made in a Minnesota plant because of possible salmonella contamination.

The federal agency ordered the recall Monday after Canadian authorities reported last month that two infants who had eaten Soyolac formula had developed salmonellosis, a disease that can be life-threatening for very young children.

The FDA said it wasn't aware of any illnesses caused by the products in the United States.

The recall includes medical foods, whole milk powder, non-fat dry milk, ice cream mixes, powdered milk for meal replacement and a powdered supplement used by lactating and pregnant women.

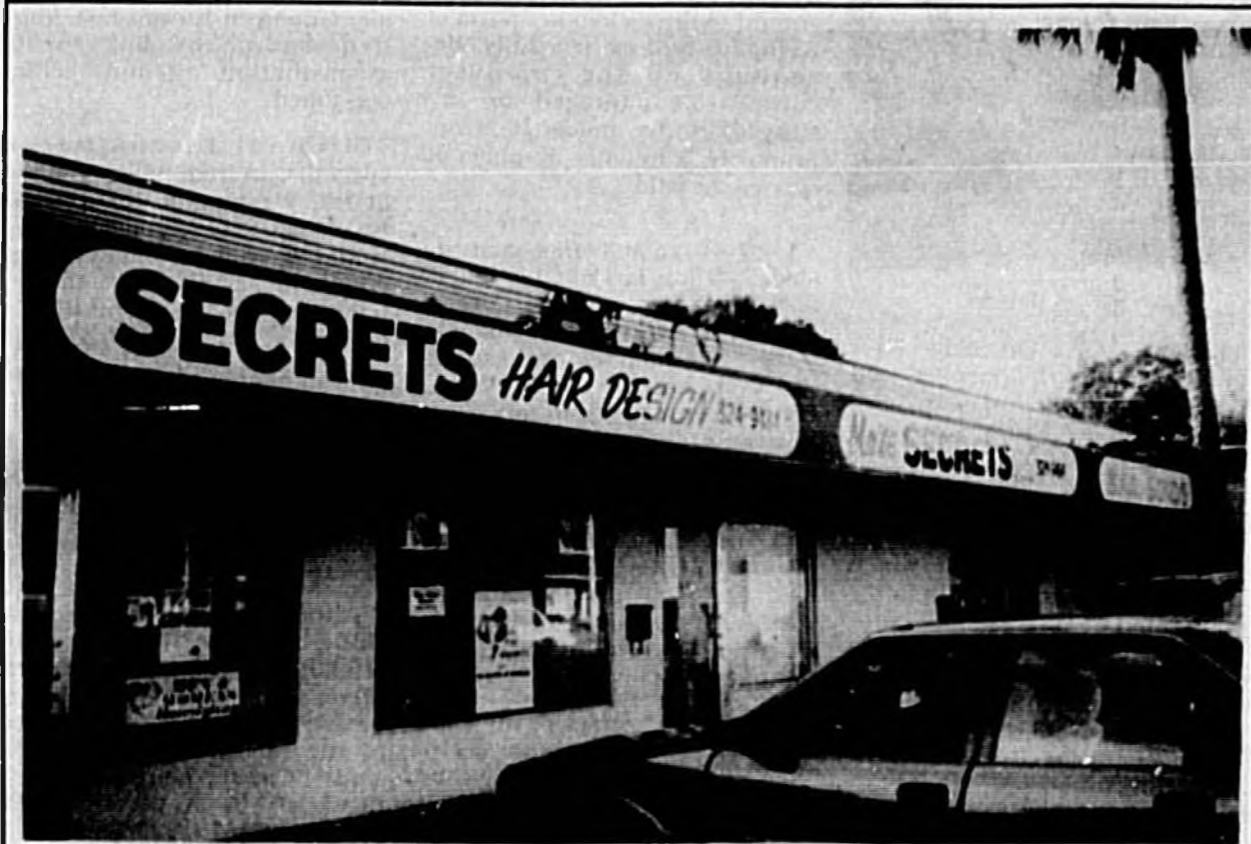

The FDA said the following companies' products were being recalled:

- Nutricia Inc., Mount Vernon, Ohio, which distributes Soyolac Infant Formula. The company previously recalled its powdered Soyolac products and was now recalling all lots of Soyolac powder in 14 ounce cans.

- Sherwood Medical Co., St. Louis, which sells Sumacal, a medical food supplement, and Propac, a protein settlement. The company was recalling Sumacal 14-ounce cans with lot numbers 964934 and 964935, and Propac in 12.3 ounce cans with the lot number 965064.

- Wyeth Nutritional Inc., Georgia, Vt., which sells Promil, a weaning formula; Enercal, a diet beverage; and Enercal Plus, which can be used for convalescing patients.

- Dean Distribution Inc., Burlingame, Calif., which sells Medibase medical meal replacement. The FDA was working with the company to determine which products to recall.

Alleged bomb plot ringleader once employed by World Trade Center

By Associated Press

NEW YORK — The alleged mastermind of a terrorist plot to blow up parts of New York worked as a guard at a World Trade Center bank several years before the complex was bombed in February, a bank official confirmed.

Siddiq Ibrahim Siddiq Ali is one of eight men charged in a plot disclosed last week to bomb the United Nations headquarters, a federal office skyscraper and the Holland and Lincoln traffic tunnels linking Manhattan and New Jersey.

An official of the Federal Home Loan Bank confirmed Monday that Siddiq worked as a private security guard there sometime in 1989 and 1990.

The New York Post initially reported that Siddiq listed the job on his resume.

The official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Siddiq guarded the door at the bank, which handles money for other banks, and was an employee of National Kinney Security Co., of New York. That company didn't return calls.

He has not been charged in the World Trade Center bombing.

The FBI would not say whether he was more involved that previously alleged in an FBI complaint, which said he told an informant he participated in a test blast for that attack.

U.S. missile attack Iraqi security setback said to be temporary

By ROBERT BURNS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Iraqi security compound hit by U.S. missiles was the nerve center of Saddam Hussein's intelligence network, but analysts say they doubt that Saddam's ability to carry out terrorism suffered more than a temporary setback.

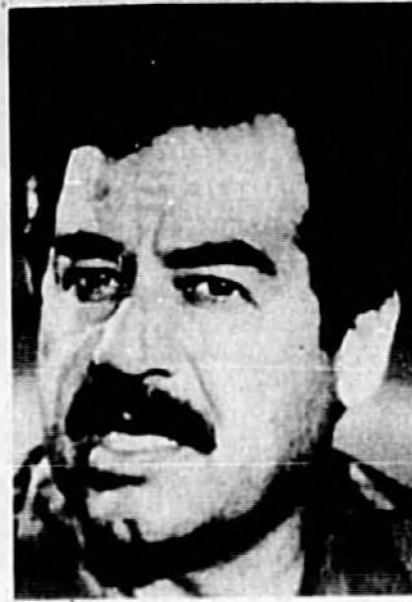

The headquarters wing of what the Defense Department calls the Iraqi Intelligence Service was heavily damaged in the nighttime attack by ship-launched Tomahawk cruise missiles. Auxiliary buildings with computer, record-keeping and communications equipment also were damaged, according to Pentagon estimates.

But the walled compound in downtown Baghdad is only one part of a far-flung Iraqi intelligence network that reaches into virtually every town and village in Iraq.

The key to Saddam's ability to use his intelligence system in planning and executing terrorist acts is the knowledge and experience of his intelligence officials, not the readily replaceable buildings and offices in which they work, the analysts said.

"You knock down their buildings, they just rebuild," said David Kay, who headed a United Nations special commission that inspected Iraq's nuclear program after the 1991 Gulf War.

"The strength of any in-

telligence operation isn't in a building, it's in the people," said Kay, who was shadowed by Iraqi security forces during his seven weeks in Iraq in 1991.

U.S. officials said they launched the attack at 2 a.m. Baghdad time because the fewest number of people would be expected to be working in the compound then.

President Clinton said Monday his national security aides had concluded that the missile attack "did in fact cripple the Iraqi intelligence capacity."

Private analysts said they believed "cripple" was too strong a characterization.

Anthony Cordesman, a leading specialist in Iraqi and Middle Eastern military affairs, said the attack "would not have seriously inhibited" Saddam's ability to use his intelligence services to carry out terrorist acts.

Cordesman said the Iraqi intelligence service targeted by Clinton has regional centers throughout Iraq, has underground facilities in other parts of Baghdad and is not fully dependent on the computer equipment damaged or destroyed in the attack. It is not primarily a military intelligence service, he said.

Cordesman and other analysts said Saddam has roughly a half dozen different intelligence services performing similar — sometimes overlapping and sometimes changing — security and domestic and foreign intelligence functions.

The intelligence service compound that was struck in the U.S. attack is well-known by ordinary Iraqis in Baghdad, Kay said, as the place suspected dissidents or others believed to be disloyal to Saddam are taken for interrogation.

"In the early days of my time there some Iraqis would say to us, 'We wish you had hit this site harder,'" during the Gulf War air campaign — reflecting their loathing of Saddam's smothering system of internal control, Kay said.

The intelligence headquarters compound was struck by missiles during the Gulf War, but Saddam rebuilt it.

Clinton said he targeted the headquarters building because it was responsible for plotting the alleged effort to assassinate President Bush in Kuwait last April. Iraq denies any link to the assassination attempt, which was foiled.

Michael Eisenstadt, a specialist in Iraqi military affairs at the Washington Institute for Near East Policy, said the attack would have had a more serious effect on Saddam if the intelligence leadership itself had been hit.

"You cannot cripple their ability to conduct terrorism," Eisenstadt said. "But you can cripple their will to do it," and that can be accomplished only if retaliation for an act such as the alleged plot against Bush is more severe.

Although he meant it as something of a joke, Rear Adm. Michael Cramer of the Pentagon's intelligence office may have best captured the real effect of the missile attack when he said: "Clearly there's going to have to be a lot of office redecoration."

Space station kept alive with House vote, White House lobbying

By KAREN BALL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The House beat back the second bid to kill the space station within a week, a defeat for critics of the costly project who said last-ditch White House arm-twisting proved too much to overcome.

The House voted 220-196 late Monday to maintain $2.1 billion in funding next year for the NASA project. The vote came just a week after House opponents who ridiculed its expense and scientific value missed scuttling the program by a one-vote margin.

The overall spending bill, set for final passage today in the House, will then go to the Senate, where the space station has enjoyed more support than in the House. House opponents said they'd try again next year.

Monday's vote margin was more comfortable for station supporters who capitalized on the absence of about 20 lawmakers who hadn't made it back from a weekend at home. A majority of the missing had voted against the space station last week.

But both sides said an intense lobbying effort by the White House and Democratic House leaders put the station over the top. Some critics of the station suggested that absentees may have been urged by the White House to just skip the vote.

"When you're up against the White House, the NASA administrators, the aerospace industry, it's tough," said Rep. Tim Roemer, D-Ind., who tried to strip out $1.2 billion for the project, leaving about $900,000 to shut it down.

"It was rank-and-file against the leadership," said Rep. Christopher Shays, R-Conn., another opponent. "It was a rank-and-file rebellion that almost won."

Vice President Al Gore worked the phones much of the day and invited a small group of undecideds to the White House as he pushed for a scaled-down version of the space station that President Clinton backed earlier this month. Clinton had made calls over the weekend.

Vote-switchers who sided with killing the space station last week, but voted to save it on Monday, included Reps. Ed Pastor, D-Ariz.; Cleo Fields, D-La.; Matthew Martinez, D-Calif.; Bob Clement, D-Tenn.; and James Moran, D-Va.

The overall bill spends $88 billion for the year starting Oct.

1 for the Veterans' Affairs and Housing and Urban Development departments, plus independent agencies such as the Environmental Protection Agency and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Space station opponents said the government already has spent $9 billion, and NASA has yet to produce hardware ready to fly. The money should be going to deficit reduction or domestic programs, they said, and they warned the project ultimately could cost as much as $100 billion.

"The price tag is out of this world," said Rep. Carolyn Maloney, D-N.Y. "One hundred billion for an orbiting motel for four astronauts, when we spend a fraction of that on affordable housing here on Earth."

But supporters urged their colleagues to look to the future, and keep America on the forefront of space exploration.

Killing the project will "waste more money than they would have ever dreamt of saving," said Rep. Jerry Lewis, R-Calif. "In the meantime, we will have cut off a very significant piece of America's vision for our tomorrow."

The NASA authorization bill of last week requires only that the station be designed to provide scientific and engineering research in low Earth orbit, that it be capable of being permanently occupied and that it be able to accommodate international partners who have spent $4 billion.

Earlier in the year, Clinton had ordered that drastic cuts be made in the space station construction and operating costs.

The plan he backed earlier this month would cost $16 billion by the year 2001. The White House proposed spending $2.1 billion a year for five years, a point when the station could be visited periodically by astronauts, and the remaining $5.5 billion to bring it to permanent occupancy by the turn of the century.

Babe Ruth teams fall short of state bids

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

LONGWOOD — Oh so close. The Sanford Recreation Department Babe Ruth Baseball League Prep 13 All Stars came within a single win of advancing to the state tournament as the Flagler All Stars pulled out two consecutive victories over the local team to claim the Florida District 2 Prep 13 Tournament at Candyland Park in Longwood Monday night.

The Preps had gotten two consecutive excellent pitching performances from Terrance Perkins and Bruce Carter Saturday to advance to the championship round of the tournament but Flagler came back to win twice to win the loser's bracket, then defeated Sanford Sunday afternoon to set up Monday's winner-take-all final.

In the championship contest, Flagler's Bart Clendenn tossed a complete game four hitter and his offense made the most of two hits to defeat Sanford 6-2 and earn a spot in this weekend's state tournament in Sarasota.

"We gave it our best shot," said Sanford Prep 13 manager Tom Martin.

The Sanford Babe Ruth 14-15 year old All Stars also saw their state tournament hopes dashed as they also were eliminated by the Flagler All Stars in the loser's bracket of the District 2 tournament at Laves.

Sanford manager Jeff Small's biggest worry before the tournament, a thin pitching staff, wasn't the problem as Alexis Acosta pitched well enough to win Saturday, but the defense again collapsed.

"The pitching was good," said Small. "It wasn't great, but the kids pitched good enough to win. But for some reason we couldn't field a ground ball or catch the ball behind the plate. We had looked good on defense during practice, but in the tournament we looked like we had never played before. It was frustrating.

Members of the 14-15 year old team were manager Jeff Small, coaches Tom Reiger and Brian Jones, players Detrick Quinn, Cedric Williams, Richard Badger, Cornell Daniels, Lloyd Dixon, Donnie Hanson, Robert Randall, Alexis Acosta, Ryan Colgate, Walter Bryant, Brett Counts, Gerald Bishop, Robert Dickerson, Tommy Rones, Ronnie McNeil and Kevin Butler.

The Daytona Beach All Stars, with an all 14 year old team, went through the tournament undefeated, but will not go to the state tournament in Live Oak because of a lack of funds. DeLand, which lost two tough games to Daytona in finishing as runners up, will be the District 2 representative at state.

The Prep 13 All Stars had opened the tournament Saturday with Perkins striking out six, while scattering five hits, and Sanford took a 6-0 lead into the bottom of the fifth inning before winning 7-4.

Providing the offense for Sanford were Mike Evans (three singles, run), Perkins (single, two runs), Clint Ford and Danny Harrison (one single, one run and one RBI each), J.R. Nobles (single, two RBIs), Robert Hampton (single, run) and

"Mice" trio lob opening shutout

From Staff Reports

WINTER SPRINGS — Different location same result.

With the Seminole Recreation Department Spring League completed at Red Bug Lake Park, the Paddy McGee's Mice women's softball team from Oviedo invaded the new Central Winds Park Complex in Winter Springs and took the place by storm, whitewashing the Bruiser's 10-0 in the opening game of the Winter Springs Recreation Department Women's Class C Summer Slowpitch Softball League.

A trio of Mice hurlers combined on five-hitter. Former Orlando Luther High School basketball star Brenda Davis worked the first two innings, former Lake Mary High School and Valencia Community College star Teresa Walburger worked the middle three innings and Walburger's mother, Connie Thomas, tossed the sixth and final inning.

The defensive play of the night was turned in by shortstop Jackie Janowiak. With a runner on second and two out in the sixth inning, Janowiak ranged far to her left behind second base and dived to field the ball in short center field. Unable to retire the runner at first, she got to her knees and fired a strike to the Mice catcher to nail the runner from second at the plate.

The play kept the shutout alive and allowed the game to end early by the 10-run rule. Janowiak was outstanding all night, recording five assists and four put outs on the evening.

Walburger, Thomas and Kathy Tollefson paced the offense with two hits apiece.

Janowiak also had a good night at the plate, leading the team with two runs batted in, but she had lots of help.

Walburger, Thomas, Tollefson, Terri Mann, Heidi Green, Lori Lingo, Tammi Chesser and Denise Levinson all contributed one RBI each.

Thomas and Davis led in runs scored as they crossed the plate twice each.

Walburger, Thomas and Mann are familiar names to Sanford softball fans as the trio also plays in the Sanford Recreation Department Women's Spring Slowpitch Softball League at the Ft. Mellon Park Softball Field on Tuesday nights.

The Mice will not play next week because of the July 4th holiday, but will be back on Monday, July 12th against old nemesis Most Wanted, at 7:30 p.m.

Seeds advance at Wimbledon

By STEPHEN WILSON
AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England — Tennis fans couldn't have asked for a better quarterfinal matchup. Pete Sampras vs. Andre Agassi — top seed vs. defending champion, big server vs. great returner, straight-faced Californian vs. flashy Las Vegas.

The matchup was determined Monday as all the men's and women's fourth-round matches were completed. The men's quarterfinals will be held Wednesday, the women's were held today.

Agassi, getting sharper with each match, rode his service return to a 7-5, 7-6 (9-7), 7-6 (10-8) Centre Court victory over hard-hitting Richard Krajicek — then delighted the fans by bowing, blowing kisses and tossing his shirt into the stands.

Sampras' victory came under much different conditions. He overcame a rowdy crowd on court 14 to beat local favorite Andrew Foster 6-1, 6-2, 7-6 (8-6), and stormed off with a few words for the spectators, setting off a row over exactly what he said.

Six of the top eight men's seeds advanced. The other quarterfinal matchups feature an all-German duel between former champions Boris Becker and Michael Stich. Sanford-born Jim Courier against Todd Martin and Stefan Edberg against Cedric Pioline.

Today's women's matchups were highlighted by defending champion Steffi Graf against Jennifer Capriati. In the other matches, Martina Navratilova faced Natalia Zvereva, Gabriela Sabatini played Jana Novotna and Helena Sukova was up against Conchita Martinez.

Magic will get good player in draft

By FRED GOODALL
AP Sports Writer

ORLANDO — With four outstanding prospects available, the Orlando Magic could flip a coin or draw names out of a hat and still get their man with the first pick in the NBA draft.

Whatever happens, it's going to be good, general manager Pat Williams says. "There's no way we can go wrong. We're going to get a good player."

Orlando has the top pick for the second consecutive year despite compiling the NBA's most improved record last season. Shaquille O'Neal was the easy selection a year ago, and Williams is believed to be leaning toward making Michigan's Chris Webber a happy man Wednesday night.

Keep cool while exercising

The trained staff at Riverside Park in Oviedo is looking for those of you who want to find a different way to exercise this summer. A way that will allow you to tone and strengthen muscles, exercise the heart and lungs and burn calories, all while staying cool and having fun in the sun.

The way is Water Aerobics!
"But I can't swim", you say. We say, "you don't need to". Aerobics is done in water at chest level and your feet stay on the bottom of the pool.

"But I'm not co-ordinated", you say. We say, "It doesn't matter". The water's resistance makes movement much slower than land so there is plenty of time to get arms and legs working. Who can tell in the water if you have two left feet?

The list of "buts" could go on, so let us say a few things first. You lose 90 percent of your body weight in the water, so there is little or no stress on your joints.

Because the water is about twelve times more resistant than air, you tone and strengthen muscles with each move you make. Water aerobics is said to be the exercise wave of the future because of all the built-in advantages. Catch the wave -- Hope to see you at the pool.

Uncle Sam wants you back

Were you, or was someone you know, involved with drafting men into the military service during World War II? Perhaps you were a volunteer draft board member or an employee of the Selective Service System. Maybe you worked for a local draft board in the early 1940s?

If so, Uncle Sam wants you back...but this time its not to serve; it's to say "Thank you." That's right, the Selective Service System wants to recognize you as part of the events commemorating the 50th anniversary of the agency's role in World War II.

In connection with scores of official observances of the 50th anniversary of World War II, Selective Service will honor those who served on the home front during those crucial years. This small federal agency which ran the World War II draft from October 1940 through the war's end is now searching for men and women who had any period of time, but not the draftees themselves.

"Our search does not include the 10 million men who were drafted during the war, because their distinguished service is being commemorated by the military and veterans groups. Instead, we're limiting our search to identify anybody still alive who worked for the Selective Service System itself, either as a volunteer or employee," explained Col.

Douglas R. Maddox, Sr., state director, of Selective Service for Florida. "These individuals may include volunteer board members, office workers, state directors, or reserve officers who served the agency in any official capacity. They worked for the draft system in virtually every city and town throughout America."

Maddox said that record showing who worked with Selective Service during the war were not kept. When identified, the agency's World War II volunteer and employees will receive letters of appreciation, commemorative posters, and distinguished Selective Service pins. They will also have the opportunity to share memories and contribute artifacts to the agency's growing historical collection.

If you think you qualify, contact Maddox, by calling (904) 656-6733, or write to 1300 Executive Center Drive, Suite 303, Tallahassee, FL 32301. The agency would like to hear from you before July 31.

Although the last man to be drafted in the U.S. entered service 20 years ago, in June 1973, the Selective Service is still charged with registering all young men once they turn 18 in case of a national emergency, and to ensure a fair and equitable draft if one is ever again needed.

Roses from dentist smell fishy

DEAR ABBY: I am shocked at your insensitivity to "Roses in Brooklyn," who was upset because his wife's dentist had sent her a dozen roses after numerous visits because she had been such a "great" patient.

How about knocking a couple hundred dollars off the bill

I agree with the husband — the dentist was, indeed, presumptuous — unless, of course, this "extensive work" was not of the dental variety. And shame on his wife for not being more sensitive to her husband's concerns. I wonder how sweet she would have been had her husband received roses from a female professional for being such a great "whatever"?

NOT SO NAIVE, EAST GREENBUSH, N.Y.

DEAR NOT SO NAIVE: Apparently, you were not alone to question my approval. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: We are appalled at your response to the letter sent in by "Roses in Brooklyn." It is, indeed, presumptuous of the dentist to have sent roses to a married patient for having been such a "great" patient. What would the dentist have sent a male patient for being such a "great" patient — whatever that means?

MINNESOTA READERS DEAR NOT SO NAIVE AND MINNESOTA READERS:

According to my mail, you were in the minority. Let's hear it from

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Southampton, Pa.:

DEAR ABBY: Shame on that husband who resented his wife's dentist for sending her roses for being such a "great" patient.

The husband was making a mountain out of a molehill. It was definitely a sweet gesture. The dentist was merely expressing his appreciation for bringing him the business. The wife could have selected another dentist. There is no shortage of them.

My mother recently had cataract surgery, and the following day, her doctor sent her a coffee mug filled with fresh flowers. On the cup was printed: "Thank you for being a great patient!"

My mother and I thought it was a very sweet gesture — so did my husband. My mom was so impressed she sent him a thank-you note.

SKIP OUR NAMES

DEAR ABBY: I am married, in my late 30s and the mother of two lively teen-age boys.

Everyone thinks my marriage is "ideal"; they have no idea of the turbulence in my marriage or the confusion I feel. Because of my husband's status in this community, there is no one I can confide in. A scandal could be damaging.

I would like to write you a letter but I don't want my husband to know, but I would like to get a personal reply from you. I seem to remember an address appeared in your column some time ago, but I haven't seen it for some time. Please answer soon. I am a longtime reader and never miss your column.

INTURMOIL IN PHILADELPHIA

DEAR TURMOIL: The address to write for a personal response is: Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Be sure to include a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your personal reply.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday my wife and I had lunch in a small cafe where our waitress was also the cashier. When it came time to pay the bill, I handed the waitress a $20 bill. When she brought my change to me, it consisted of a $10 bill and 31 cents in coins.

Whereas the 31 cents was not enough to leave for a tip, I was not about to give her the $10 bill either. I was about to leave the 31 cents anyway, just to teach her a lesson, but my wife dug into her purse and found a couple of $1 bills that she left instead.

Abby, please tell all waiters and waitresses who double as cashiers that they will make more money if they leave their customers a choice when making a tip. If you make it easy for customers to leave a reasonable tip, they will usually leave less rather than more.

RON HENARIE, BANANTONIO

DEAR RON: Your waitress who was doubling as a cashier must have been new at the job. An experienced server makes it easy for the customer to tip generously. They could not survive without tips.

DEAR ABBY: This letter is a first, but I could not overlook the letter regarding Mother's Day from the woman who signed herself "Forgotten Mom in Indiana." She signed off saying, "I haven't the courage to sign my name — it might embarrass my children."

Abby, she's the one who should be embarrassed. I hope she didn't break both her arms patting herself on the back!

Back in the early '40s, my late mother had her own opinion of Mother's Day, which was: "It's nothing but a commercial promotion to sell flowers, candy, greeting cards, lunches and dinners, or anything else to boost business." She told my late brother and me that if we didn't think of her more than just one day a year, we could just forget her! You may use my name.

JACK MC MILLAN, METAIRIE, LA.

DEAR JACK: Your mother was a wise woman. Thanks for writing.

Local students have new chance to study science

SANFORD — Hamilton Elementary School, the Orlando Science Center and the Sanford Rotary Noon Club are sponsoring a week of Science Adventure Programs during the week of July 12 through 16.

The cost for each student is $20 for the five days.

Students will work with other students of their same age in the following programs: Earthworks (age 4); Diggin' Dirt (ages 5-6); Mineral Magic (ages 7-8) and Crystal Clear (ages 9-11).

For more information, call 322-1984 or 896-7151.

According to Dave Scott, principal of Hamilton Elementary School, students from all Sanford area schools will be invited to take part in the activities.

The hands-on program will be held at Hamilton each day that week from 9 a.m. to noon.

'Last Action Hero' tagged colossal bomb

By JOHN HORN
AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES — "Last Action Hero," like "Ishtar" and "Bonfire of the Vanities," is about to become Hollywood shorthand for a colossal bomb.

Columbia Pictures executives and people close to the movie's production conceded privately that the $80 million Arnold Schwarzenegger action pic had fopped. It made a lackluster $15.3 million in its debut a week ago and dropped to $6.1 million over the weekend, Exhibitor Relations Co. reported Monday.

Even with potential for strong international and videocassette sales, "Last Action Hero" is on track to make no more than $50 million in North American theaters. Before the premiere, Columbia said the movie needed to gross more than $80 million at domestic theaters to stand a chance of making a profit in the long run.

"Columbia will take one of the largest write-offs in history over this movie," said a senior executive at a rival studio, speaking on condition of anonymity. He said Columbia would probably lose more than $50 million.

The former production chief at another studio also said the loss would approach $50 million. "It's just a disaster," he said.

The news was not entirely bleak for Columbia parent Sony Corp. The Japanese conglomerate also owns TriStar Pictures, whose romantic comedy "Sleepless in Seattle," starring Tom Hanks and Meg Ryan, opened at No. 2 with $17.3 million.

"The usual, big summer action movie — people get tired of it," TriStar chairman Mike Medavoy said. "People are clamoring for a kind of cleaner, no violence, no sex, no bad language kind of movie. And it certainly worked with 'Sleepless.'"

Schwarzenegger's career, meanwhile, will probably suffer no ill effects. His representatives continued to be inundated with movie offers.

"He has to have more than one bust to hurt him," said the president of a top production company, speaking on condition of anonymity.

One explanation given for the weak showing of "Last Action Hero" was that it was doomed by a confusing, uncommercial premise about a young movie fan thrown into a real movie. That concept, industry experts say, was further muddled by Schwarzenegger's input and a parade of screenwriters who revised the script.

Further, it was an action picture for young audiences, with not enough action for "Terminator" fans and too much violence for the "Home Alone" crowd.

Pets help produce a healing effect

DEAR DR. GOTT: We have an animal petting farm for handicapped children. Would you be good enough to plug this form of therapy for those affected with MS. Down's syndrome and autism?

DEAR READER: I'm glad to endorse close contact with animals. As I'm sure you know, however, the beneficial effects are not confined to the conditions you mention. Several studies have confirmed the astonishing value of pets for hospital patients and nursing-home residents. For many people -- especially those with health or developmental problems -- close contact with animals produces a salutary effect.

Some experts believe this is due to companionship, relief of boredom or the ability to take care of a helpless living thing. However, I believe that this touches a basic human need: to be nurtured by being in close proximity to a living creature with whom one can develop a relation. Regardless of the reason, it works.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there a relationship between trauma to the body and the onset of multiple sclerosis?

DEAR READER: This neurological disease, which is ordinarily progressive, is characterized by loss of the insulating material around nerves, leading to a vast array of symptoms, including numbness, weakness and visual difficulties.

Multiple sclerosis is believed to be an auto-immune disease in which the body inappropriately attacks its own normal tissues. Trauma is not considered to be a causative factor.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Multiple Sclerosis." Other readers who would like a copy should send

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Oliver Wendell Holmes claimed that many ideas grow better when translated into another mind. Sometimes, though, a thought in one mind doesn't need to be translated; it will be readily apparent to the party of the other part. And if this happens at the bridge table, it is usually detrimental to the party of the original thought -- as in this deal. It was declared by one of Australia's best female players, Barbara Travis.

To me, that South hand looks a little thin for a two-no-trump opening. If partner cannot respond to a one-club opening, it is unlikely there will be a good game available.

West didn't want to risk a diamond lead, though here it probably would have defeated the contract. Instead, she selected the club 10. East won with the king and returned a club to dummy's ace.

Declarer could now count seven tricks: one spade, two hearts, one diamond (once the ace had been dislodged) and three clubs. A successful spade finesse would bring the total up to nine, so Travis ran the spade queen.

West decided to duck, but only after a momentary pause. It was all the help Travis needed. She cashed her two club tricks, West discarding a low diamond. The diamond king went to the ace; West returned a diamond. Travis now exited with the ace and another spade. West cashed the diamond jack, but then she had to lead away from the heart queen into South's tenace.

If declarer takes a finesse that he is likely to repeat, it is often a good idea to duck. But you must duck without a flicker.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 30, 1993

Ventures or endeavors you personally create or direct have very good chances for success in the year ahead. There is a possibility you might become involved in several simultaneously.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Persons who are performing work or service for you today must measure up to your standards and requirements, and not to theirs. You're the guy/gal who is paying the bill. Cancer, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There will be enough for you to do today just taking care of your own affairs without trying to manage things for others. Operate within your limitations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Both you and your mate are apt to have very definite ideas of how you'll want certain things done today. Unfortunately, your concepts might conflict.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This might not be one of your more productive days and it may be even less so if you have to take care of tasks or assignments you think of distasteful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you cater to your impulsive whims today you could be very extravagant and wasteful. Keep in mind that what you think you now need does not have to be instantly gratified.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If anyone is able to perceive the other fellow's point of view it is usually you. Today, however, you might be so focused on your own interest you'll not be cognizant of the requirements of others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Harboring grudges could produce all sorts of avoidable complications today, so turn the other cheek and let bygones be bygones, and begin anew.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today you might get involved once again with someone you like but with whom collectively things never work out too well for either of you financially. Be wary.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There is a fine line today between being properly assertive or unnecessarily aggressive. It might be hard for you to distinguish where one ends and the other begins.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Persons who are usually helpful to you might not be around when you need them the most today. Rely upon yourself and not upon assistance that may not be forthcoming.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Complications could occur today if you become too involved in a friend's confidential affairs or if he/she begins to probe into yours. Each should keep the other at arm's length.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Guard against inclinations towards being too self-serving today. You might accomplish that what you set out to do, but you could lose an ally you'll be needing a bit down the line. (C)1993, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
