Sanford adopts marina charges

By Wayne Mize
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford City Commission Tuesday adopted a plan to charge non-residents for the use of the Lake Mary boat ramp, and to charge residents for the use of the Lake Mary boat ramp during the summer months.

The commission will begin charging non-residents for the use of the boat ramp during the summer months, from July 1 to September 30. The proposed $100 annual fee for non-residents was adopted on Tuesday.

City residents will be charged $100 for the use of the boat ramp during the summer months, from July 1 to September 30. The proposed $100 annual fee for residents was adopted on Tuesday.

The commission also adopted a plan to charge non-residents for the use of the Lake Mary boat ramp during the summer months, from July 1 to September 30. The proposed $100 annual fee for non-residents was adopted on Tuesday.

Mike Stubblefield, representing the Lake Mary Boat Ramp Association, told city commissioners Tuesday that a weekend survey of the boat ramp area by non-residents opposed paying a fee for the use of the boat ramp.

Stubblefield said the commission should consider the fee for non-residents as a way to generate revenue for the city.

Norris back at work on Lake Mary budget

Sanford City Commissioner Norris returned to work on the Lake Mary budget Tuesday. Norris had been absent from work for several days due to illness.

Norris said he will continue to work on the budget and will report back to the commission on Wednesday.

Visitors get taste of jail

Sanford City Jail Tuesday gave visitors a taste of what it is like to be in jail. The jail is a small, concrete building with a high security fence.

Visitors were taken to the jail and shown the various cells and the kitchen. The jail is operated by the Sanford Police Department.

Sewer agreement is reached with Longwood center owners

By Jane Caselberry
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — For nearly a month, negotiations between the city and Sanford Kay and his daughter, Rosa, owners of Fairmont Plaza shopping center, seemed about to end. City officials said they are pleased with the agreement.

The agreement, which is yet to be formally drawn up so the Kays can present it to their lawyer, Gary Massey, and the commissioners can study it prior to the June 20 meeting is based on the following:

- The city would purchase the shopping center at 1,000 gallons per day capacity at $4.00 per gallon.
- The city would sell them an additional 500 gpd capacity at the same price within two years or production.
- The Kays would raise 90 days transferred from a new $10,000 per gpd on adjacent development, which the city would apply to the cost of completing a partially finished lift station.
- The lift station would be transferred, as is to the city, along with pertinent pipes and easements.

IN BRIEF

Additional charges filed against accused jewelry store robber

SANFORD — One of two men charged in connection with the robbery of a Lake Mary jewelry shop faces another charge of armed robbery, this one in connection with the robbery of a Longwood video store.

Thomas Scott Miller, 22, of no address, was charged for a second time Monday by Seminole County sheriff's deputies, who reported he was identified by two victims of the June 6 robbery to Video Traks, 1235 S. U.S. Highway 17-92. He faces two additional counts of robbery.

Miller, and a co-defendant, Gary Alan Stoves, 22, had been arrested Saturday by Seminole County sheriff's deputies who charged them in the May 25 robbery of V.P. European Jewellers, Lake Mary Village Shopping Center, Lake Mary. Gold and jewelry valued at $38,000 was taken in that case and the shop owner was handcuffed and imprisoned in his shop, deputies reported.

Deputies report Miller allegedly had an accomplice in the tape shop robbery, in which gunmen stole $300 from a cash register, but the second suspect hasn't been identified. Both Miller and Stoves remain jailed without bond.

Burglary suspect surrenders

SANFORD — A man who allegedly burglarized Harecar Aluminum Products, Cornwall Road, and stole $550 and a payroll check has been charged in connection with the burglary and forgery-cashing of the check.

William George Andrews, 39, of 702 Sanford Ave., Sanford, who surrendered to Sanford police at the police station at about 11 a.m. Monday, remains jailed. He faces charges of burglary, grand theft, theft, forgery and uttering a forgery in connection with the April burglary. He is being held in lieu of $2,000 bond.

Car keys stolen

WINTER SPRINGS — Jeffrey Scott Hebley, 28, of Winter Springs, reported to police he looked out the window of his home and saw a woman reach into his car and steal the keys.

The woman ran, but witnesses reportedly helped police find a suspect at the Circle K, at E.N. Devon St., at about 5:25 p.m. Monday.

Linda Ann Sweat, 32, of 1046 U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood, has been arrested on charges of burglary to a vehicle and petty theft of the keys valued at $5.

Winter Springs police report they responded to a report of a fight in progress at Hebley's house at 173 Lori Ann Circle, when the burglary and flight of the suspect was reported to them.

Sweat has been released on $1,000 bond to appear in court July 11.

Driving under the influence

SANFORD — The following persons face a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

—Wanda Miser Payne, 42, of 112 Upsala Road, Sanford, was arrested at 11 p.m. Saturday at 119 W. 19th St., Sanford, after she allegedly drove from the scene of an accident on 19th Street. She has also been charged with reckless driving and driving with a suspended license.

—Aaron R. Hukason, 23, of Orlando, at 5 a.m. Saturday after his car with headlights on was seen speeding on State Road 436 at State Road 434, Altamonte Springs.

—Dimitre Olivera, 35, of 849 S. Wymore Road #33-A, Altamonte Springs, after his car was seen weaving on Lake Mary Boulevard and Interstate 4, Lake Mary.

—David Kenneth Shewan, 30, of Orlando, at 2:54 a.m. Sunday after his car was seen weaving on State Road 436 at State Road 434, Altamonte Springs. He was also charged with possession of marijuana.

—Karl Blair Schmuck, 24, of 221 Holt Ave., Winter Park, at 10:45 p.m. Sunday after his car was seen weaving on U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry.

Cyclist charged after chase

WINTER SPRINGS — Winter Springs police report pursuing a speeding motorcycle and arresting its driver on charges, including possession of marijuana.

Michael Todd Knighten, 23, of 1012 Wolf Trail, Casselberry, who was reportedly pursued by police from State Road 434 to Timberlane Trail, was arrested at 8:30 p.m. Saturday. Police said they followed him because his motorcycle was speeding. He has also been charged with reckless driving, fleeing to elude police and driving with a suspended license. Bond was set at $500.

Apartment burglarized

SANFORD — Master's Cove Apartments reported to police that $1,490 worth of property was taken from a storage apartment over the weekend.

According to the police report, entry was gained by cutting a square opening in the bedroom window. Police are still investigating.

State parks public hearings scheduled

LONGWOOD — One of three public hearings on the future of Florida's state parks will be held Wednesday at Wekiwa Springs State Park west of Longwood.

The meeting will be held from 10 a.m. to noon at 1800 Wekiwa Circle, Classroom Building, in Apopka.

The hearing is one of three to be held June 15 and 16 by the Department of Natural Resources, which includes the Division of Recreation and Parks.

The hearings are a result of a decision by the Florida Cabinet on April 12 to ask the DNR to conduct public hearings on what the future of the state's parks should be, and whether people are willing to pay increased fees to use them.

The proposal to raise fees was to be decided at the April 26 Cabinet meeting, but was delayed until August after a motion by Betty Castor, Commissioner of Education, to delay a decision and have the DNR conduct public hearings.

Castor said she wanted to deal with a conceptual approach to the development of recreational facilities and other issues before deciding on whether to raise park fees.

"We need to determine priorities, a philosophical approach and fee structure," Castor said. "The time has come for the citizens of this state to express their opinions on the direction we take in our parks."

Castor plans to attend the three hearings and four several state parks during the two-day swing through southeast, central and southwest Florida.

The Cabinet, on April 12, approved a motion made by Castor to ask the Department of Natural Resources to conduct public hearings.

"I believe the hearings will serve as an initial public thrust toward more citizen support for our parks system, which is badly needed," Castor said.

Disturbance in motel room leads to arrests; stolen car recovered

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A woman who reported to Altamonte Springs police she was attacked and robbed when she entered her motel room, was arrested along with her companion when they allegedly tried to drive away from the scene in a car that had been reported stolen.

Mary Patricia Slater, 24, of 102 Dellwood Drive, Longwood, said a man attacked her when she entered her room at the La Quinta Inn at about 1:15 a.m. Monday. Police chased the suspect but lost sight of him.

Officers returned to the area of the inn at 150 S. Westmonte Drive, at about 6:15 a.m. Monday to search for a policeman's eyeglasses, which were lost in the chase.

At that time, James Soots, of 421 Trinity Drive, reported to police a man was sleeping in his carport. Police found the man and identified him as the suspected burglar-attacker of Slater.

Rowland Kenneth Smith, 31, of 128 Peach St., Altamonte Springs, has been charged with burglary to an occupied dwelling. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Meanwhile, Slater and her companion had been jailed in connection with the auto theft.

Police became involved in the case when they responded to a report of a fight in Slater's motel room, where she was with Alvin Thomas, 29, of no address.

Slater reportedly told police when she entered her room at about 1:15 a.m. Smith was there. Smith allegedly broke an arm from a chair and several times hit Slater on the head with the arm and stole her $300 which before fleeing.

Police questioned Slater and Thomas, who allegedly said he and Slater had on Sunday taken about $60 worth of crack cocaine from Smith. He reportedly told police Smith may have been in the motel room to collect money owed for the crack, a police report said.

While police were questioning Slater and Thomas, Smith returned to the scene and when police identified themselves as officers, Smith reportedly ran.

Meanwhile, Slater and Thomas, who allegedly tried to drive away in a car that had been stolen in Orange County, had been jailed on charges of grand theft. They were arrested at about 3:40 a.m. Monday and remain jailed in lieu of $1,000 bond each.

Knife threats bring charges

SANFORD — In unrelated cases, a Sanford man and woman both face charges in connection with alleged knife threats.

Robert K. Daring, 35, of 105 Garrison Drive, Sanford, was arrested first. At 7:08 p.m. at his home Monday, Sanford police charged him with aggravated assault after he allegedly threatened Patricia Mess with a butcher knife. He was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

In the other case, at 7:57 p.m. Monday, Sanford police charged Patricia A. Williams, 22, of 2539 Ridgewood Ave., Sanford, with aggravated assault. She is accused of, at 7:40 p.m. at her home, threatening Frank Williams III, of 2812 S. Park Ave., with a knife. Two boys, ages 7 and 9 years, who were with Frank Williams III, were also reportedly threatened. The Williams had reportedly been arguing over personal property. The suspect was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Blind mosquitoes don't count as rain

By Fred H. Cooper
Herald Staff Writer

The wisdom of citing a percentage as a chance of rain has been proven by the experiences of citizens in Seminole County during the past 24 hours. Let's review. Yesterday, as your beloved avid readers all remember, the chances of rain for Monday afternoon and Tuesday were said to be 20 percent. This can be interpreted in several ways but the most logical method follows a cognitive line upon which all can agree: Seminole County is divided into five parts: 20 percent of one of five parts of 100; rain chances are one in five. Therefore, ergo, it will rain on one part of Seminole County. Don't you just love syllogisms? Love it or not, it rained on Altamonte Springs this morning. Not a lot, of course, but a little bit.

That was the only rain in the county. Those folks along the lakefront who listened to the pitter pat of seemingly dew drops on the window panes were hearing the collision of blind mosquitoes with glass. That doesn't count as precipitation.

Now for the future, at least the next 24 hours. The chances of rain will stay about the same — 20 percent — haze notwithstanding. Temperatures? They'll stay in the high 80s, except in Sanford which will not be that warm since it's so far north. Lows will range from about 68 degrees all the way up to 70 in the southern climes of Oviedo. Lord only knows what'll happen in Lake Mary. They got a drizzle today but really not enough to count. If you want real rain you must go down to Miami or surrounding areas.

Want a contrast? The thermometer at South Lake Tahoe dipped to 28 last night. If you don't remember your geography, South Lake Tahoe is just a few miles from Truckee, California. Highest was in the Nevada desert at Laughlin.

Thunderstorms spread over the Plains, where more than an inch of rain fell in South Dakota, while farmers in the Midwest waited anxiously for a downpour to douse their parched crops.

Showers and thunderstorms scattered across Minnesota and the Dakotas early today, with the most intense thunderstorms in eastern South Dakota and southwestern Minnesota, the National Weather Service said.

In a six-hour period ending early today, 1.3 inches of rain fell in Pierre, S.D.

Showers and thunderstorms lingered over south Florida, northeastern New Mexico, southwest Kansas, and the Texas Panhandle, where a flash flood watch was in effect in some of its southwest counties.

Dry weather prevailed across the rest of the nation. Forecaster Hugh Crowther said rain showers will extend over northern Maine and southern Florida during the rest of the day with showers and thunderstorms reaching from northern Minnesota across North Dakota, eastern South Dakota, eastern Nebraska and eastern Montana.

Since May 24, no measurable rain has fallen over Chicago — the longest such period ever for this time of year — and forecasters saw no immediate relief for the area.

Dry, hot weather dogged northern Illinois and Michigan Monday.

Cigarette makers suffer first courtroom setback

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — The tobacco industry's first defeat in a smoker death suit was narrow, but anti-smoking activists predict the landmark verdict will open a flood of new litigation against cigarette makers.

A jury awarded $400,000 Monday to the husband of a woman who died of lung cancer after smoking for 40 years, finding that Liggett Group Inc. falsely guaranteed its products were safe in its advertising for Chesterfield and L&M filter cigarettes.

But Liggett was cleared of several other claims, and the jury held two other companies blameless for Rose Cipollone's illness and death.

Marc Z. Edell, a lawyer for Antonio Cipollone and for plaintiffs in six other pending suits, conceded that the split verdict was not a clear-cut victory over the cigarette makers. But he said it was "a lot better than being another notch in their gun."

"This shows that they're not invincible," he said.

Lawyers for the cigarette makers played down the jury's decision.

"I'm confident that we will get the first verdict against us reversed on appeal," Liggett lawyer Donald Cohn said. Lawyers for co-defendants Lorillard Inc. and Philip Morris Inc. said the size of the award "pales in comparison" to the $3 million spent by Edell to try the case.

"In fact, this award doesn't even cover the plaintiff attorneys' witness fees," the two companies said in a statement. "This verdict sends a message to all plaintiff attorneys that these cases are not worth pursuing."

Laurie Morin, executive director of the Tobacco Products Liability Project in Boston, which helps plaintiffs and attorneys bring lawsuits against tobacco companies, called the jury's decision "a breakthrough."

"I think you'll see more cases being filed," she said. "A lot of attorneys and plaintiffs have been sitting around waiting to see what happens to this case."

Cipollone, 64, who filed suit with his wife and promised her he would press on after her death, called the verdict "a partial victory, but not 100 percent."

"It was worth it," he said. The case attracted wide attention from the news media, anti-smoking activists and industry analysts because of the barrage of previously unreleased documents Edell used in his case, including internal company memos going back 40 years. Because of pretrial rulings, Edell and other lawyers will be able to use them in other cases.

The federal court jury found Liggett Group partially liable for the 1984 death of Rose Cipollone, 58, of Little Ferry, N.J., who smoked the company's Chesterfields and L&M filters from 1942 to 1968.

The jury — composed of one smoker, two former smokers and three members who never smoked habitually — cleared all three cigarette makers of charges that they conspired to mislead their customers about the dangers of smoking.

Company lawyers argued that the jury's rejection of the conspiracy theory was a victory.

Jurors apparently believed that Rose Cipollone, who smoked a pack a day despite reading many magazine articles on the dangers of smoking, received enough information to make a free choice, the companies said.

They said Edell's "much ballyhooed documents" alleging the existence of a "gentleman's agreement" to suppress health research "were a non-issue in this case because they didn't reveal anything new."

"There is nothing of value in them for future plaintiffs," Philip Morris and Lorillard said.

But Morin, whose anti-smoking group held a news conference midway through the trial to publicize the documents, said the fight against the tobacco industry is "a process."

"Plaintiffs are learning from each other how to develop their cases," she said. "Sooner or later there will be a total plaintiff verdict, and once you get a total plaintiff verdict, I think you'll see a real onslaught of plaintiff filings and plaintiff verdicts."

Calvert Cray, litigation

analyst with the brokerage of Martin & Simpson, said the verdict would have little immediate financial impact on the tobacco industry. Cigarette companies make enormous profits on what Cray has called "the most profitable consumer product in history."

"But the psychological effect of losing a case and being found guilty of wrongdoing will have a considerable effect," he said. "They've already suffered a significant loss of their political base, and this will mean a lot more."

The jury decided that Liggett Group, knowing that cigarettes were potentially dangerous, falsely guaranteed in its advertising that its products were safe.

Those advertisements, published in national magazines that Rose Cipollone read and broadcast in radio and television commercials, included endorsements by celebrities like Joan Crawford, Arthur Godfrey and even Ronald Reagan. They also included what were purported to be statements from doctors that Chesterfields and L&M filters were safe and would not cause throat irritation.

In the deposition Rose Cipollone gave a few months before her death, she said she was attracted by the glamorous stars when she began smoking at the age of 16. She also said she switched to L&M filters in 1955, believing the filter would remove anything "bad."

She also said she had always believed the tobacco companies would do anything to hurt her.

Liggett, which sponsored extensive research in the 1950s, also failed in its duty to warn smokers of the health risk they were taking in using cigarettes until such warnings were legally required in 1966, the jury ruled.

Antonio Cipollone won $400,000 in compensatory damages on the express warranty claim. Because of provisions of New Jersey law, they gave him nothing on the failure to warn charge, ruling that Rose Cipollone was 80 percent responsible for her own illness and death.

The jury exonerated Liggett, Philip Morris and Lorillard of an accusation that they conspired with the tobacco industry to defraud smokers.

Excessive awards are real dilemma

The business community has been complaining for years that juries in liability cases have been awarding outrageously large sums in "punitive damages"—awards that are not based on the harm actually done to an accident victim but simply penalties for a business' behavior.

The other day — over the objections of Justices Sandra Day O'Connor, Anthony Kennedy and Antonin Scalia — the court refused to hear seven punitive damages cases, and the split suggests it will be a long time before the court reconsiders the matter.

The problem that the business community wanted the court to solve is real enough, but it's not the Supreme Court that ought to be solving it. Not everything that's troubling is a constitutional violation.

By asking the court to bypass such political deliberations and simply declare that the Constitution requires caps on punitive damage awards, the businesses were asking for an inflexible ban that would have been inappropriate now and quite likely harmful in the future, when circumstances and public priorities are sure to change again.

That is not to say that the nation's legislatures have done a particularly good job themselves with this issue. They have been, for the most part, torn between business pressure on the one hand and, on the other, pressure from lawyers to leave the liability laws as they are: the result has been more inaction than reform.

Two-rung summit

Knowing in advance that little of substance — meaning no strategic arms limitation treaty — would come out of their fourth summit meeting, Ronald Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev essentially wrote their separate scenarios. And despite some minor, annoying glitches, both had reason to take satisfaction from their respective performances in Moscow.

Gorbachev grumbled about the failure to achieve greater progress on arms control, a way of reminding the world that, for Moscow, arms control is the top agenda item. And he complained, with some justification, about Reagan's incessant sounding of the human rights trumpet.

Reagan, for his part, got to give the performance he has dreamed of for years, and if he overplayed his central human rights scene and stumbled in fielding some questions, he clearly impressed his audience with a sober, thoughtful speech to Moscow University students about the blessings of freedom and the necessity of reconciliation between two opposing systems.

What's finally important about the Moscow summit, however, is not the performances of its two principals: it's the extent to which it advanced the long and inevitably tortuous, evolution of Soviet-American relations which, as Gorbachev put it in summing up the proceedings, "have moved one rung, maybe two rungs, up the ladder. This is a momentous achievement in international politics."

Study AIDS epidemic; it's your fight, too

My oldest daughter and I were boogieing on down in an elegant New York City nightclub when a dim awareness slowly crept up on me. "Kris, you're the only woman on the dance floor."

Another stunning revelation followed. "We're the only heterosexual couple on the floor."

Kris never missed a beat. "Does it bother you?" she asked with an impish grin. I shook my head in the resolute way any middle-aged, middle-class, middle-of-the-road father would do if he were confronted with an invading force from Mars.

"You taught us that all people should be treated equally," Krishna reminded me.

I was proud of her. The tree is known by his fruit.

An aspiring actress, she has been professionally involved with many homosexuals. "They are beautiful people, Dad." She has also buried many of them.

My other daughter, Allegra, has been involved medically. A nurse, she worked on the AIDS floor of the Yale New Haven Hospital.

Why, then, haven't I written more about AIDS, a worried Krishna asked. (I wrote my last column on AIDS a year ago this week.)

I explained to her that the average American doesn't give a damn about AIDS. A few have compassion for the victims. But nearly all are uninformed about the disease.

In a binge of national ignorance, some Americans have discovered a new outlet for their lynch-mob mentality. As AIDS victims multiply, violence against homosexuals escalates at a frightening rate.

But AIDS is not a homosexual problem. For the benefit of the idiots who still believe that, 40 percent of AIDS victims are infected by contaminated needles. Heterosexual dope addicts are becoming the primary transmitters of AIDS.

There are, however, a few measures by which we can attack this modern-day plague without succumbing to a medieval brutality of the spirit.

(1) Establish an AIDS czar and give the President's Commission on AIDS more national authority to subsidize various anti-AIDS programs.

(2) Protect the integrity of the individual by passing a strong federal law that prohibits discrimination against persons affected by the AIDS virus.

(3) Institute mandatory testing for drug abusers when they are arrested or seek medical assistance and health workers who fall into certain sensitive categories. This isn't an invasion of privacy. It's a persuasion of civility.

(4) Make voluntary testing facilities as readily available to the public as cancer-producing cigarettes and health-destroying alcohol.

(5) Inaugurate a national educational campaign. Mailing the U.S. surgeon general's pamphlet "Understanding AIDS" to every household is a necessary small start. At least it refutes many of the myths about AIDS. For example, you can't get AIDS by donating blood.

Unlike the Middle Ages, our era is supposed to be enlightened, scientifically advanced and compassionate toward the suffering.

AIDS is not somebody else's problem. It's your problem, my problem, everybody's problem. My two lovely daughters, Krishna and Allegra, hope you will agree.

Pure evil hounds Zola Budd

Zola Budd is one of the world's great athletes, quite possibly the fastest woman in the world. If she were a tennis player, she would be right up there with Martina Navratilova and Steffi Graf.

Zola Budd is a kind of nature child. She began running almost as soon as she could walk, usually with one or two of her dogs. She ran barefoot, mile after mile, faster and faster. She is a solitary spirit, not talkative, apparently more at home with animals, like her dogs, than with other human beings.

But she won't compete in this year's Olympics in Seoul, South Korea, and she may well have been driven out of competition forever. Her problem is that she was born in South Africa.

When South Africa was banned from world competition because of apartheid, Zola Budd, in order to keep competing, moved to England in 1984 and became a British subject. The whole incredible and tragic story is recounted in a recent "Sports Illustrated." It is enough to make the very stones weep.

In England, Budd became a prime target for the British Left. She was picked, jeered, insulted. When she ran for practice, she would be ambushed, pushed into the bushes, tripped up. "I am just a runner," she would say, eyes down, voice barely audible. "I am not a politician." Or, "I have been made to feel like a criminal. I have been continuously hounded and can't take it anymore. I still don't know what I'm supposed to have done — who am I supposed to have hurt?"

For a moral education in the spirit of our age, study one of the pictures in Sports Illustrated. In the foreground is Zola Budd, running a cross-country race. Immediately behind her is a mob, their faces twisted with hatred, jeering and screaming and waving anti-apartheid placards. One placard says that "Zola Represents Apartheid Not Britain." Zola's running shirt has "England" written across her chest. I cannot remember a more hateful, evil, despicable scene.

In accordance with the ban on South Africa, Budd has not competed in her homeland. However, she found her life in England so unsettling that she did visit South Africa occasionally. The International Amateur Athletic Committee decided that her visits home violated the "spirit" if not the letter of the ban on South Africa.

Army whistle-blower fighting for job

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — George Schoenberg spent more than two decades in a civilian job for the U.S. Army. Along the way, he picked up several awards for catching costly mistakes and wasteful spending. And he was fired, twice.

In spite of Schoenberg's pluses, his bosses thought he was uncooperative, even combative, and said his work was unsatisfactory. The first time they fired him, he was reinstated through union arbitration. Once again, he is fighting for his job.

Schoenberg claims he was the target of harassment and reprisals because he was a cost analyst who did his job too well — pinpointing waste — and that angered superiors.

Schoenberg's employee union backs his claim, saying he was fired because he made things uncomfortable for management.

His is the whistle-blower's lament. He saw abuses, reported them and then earned a reputation as a curmudgeon. Regardless of how he aired his complaints, Schoenberg's

Cleansers ride high

Over the decades and the centuries, it has been the United States' attitude (most of the time) that the kind of government other countries have is their own business.

There have been, however, notable exceptions to this rule. One spectacular example was our military intervention in Guatemala in 1954 to overthrow the Communist regime of Jacobo Arbenz. Another, much more recent, was our invasion of Communist-dominated Grenada in 1983, partly to protect American students enrolled in a medical school there. And there are plenty of other cases.

As the two cited instances suggest, the exceptions have usually involved situations in which what we deemed vital U.S. interests were threatened. There are indications, however, that this policy of what might be called "preemptive overthrow" is getting out of hand.

The current rash of overthrows began two and a half years ago with the Philippines, which arguably presented a strong case for one of those "exceptions" to the rule. The Philippines are strategically located, and the site of two vital U.S. bases. The president, Ferdinand Marcos, was a notoriously corrupt old autocrat, in failing health and in some danger of being toppled by the Communist guerrilla forces infesting the islands.

So, when Marcos called a snap election and Corason Aquino (the widow of a popular anti-Marcos politician who had been assassinated) claimed victory, the United States threw its weight behind her and her military backers, and Marcos was ousted.

This outcome was almost universally hailed as a triumph for democracy and for U.S. policy. When, almost simultaneously, the United States engineered the ouster of Jean-Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier — the equally corrupt despot who ran Haiti (but whose existence certainly posed no problems for us) — admiration for the State Department's brio was widespread. Even Capitol Hill liberals joined in the chorus of acclaim.

Looking around for new worlds to conquer, the reformers' eyes next lit on South Korea, where a military junta was about to seek legitimation in free elections. As in the case of Haiti, a vital U.S. interest was difficult to see. Nonetheless, Washington leaned on the South Korean government to insure that the elections would be really free, and that the junta's severest critics would be allowed to run for office. Divisions in the ranks of the opposition resulted in less than total victory for it, but South Korea too can now be counted among the born-again nations.

Then it was Panama's turn. Its de facto boss, General Noriega, is probably no more corrupt, and no more deeply involved in drug-running, than three-quarters of the dime-store dictators in that neck of the woods, and certainly his country, where American troops are permanently stationed to protect the Canal, constitutes no more of a threat to us than Manhattan's Central Park.

But once the furor deposed and takes hold, it's hard to shake. Noriega was ordered to quit, and indicted for drug-running for good measure. When he stubbornly refused to leave, his country was put through a financial wringer and various strikes and riots were incited. At this writing, the Colonel is still hanging tough, but I doubt that Lloyd's of London would offer very long odds on his lengthy survival.

ANALYSIS

Mitterrand pushed his luck

By Brendan Murphy

PARIS (UPI) — If President Francois Mitterrand is suffering from a political hangover this week, he has only himself to blame. He really shouldn't have ordered those last two rounds of elections.

Five weeks ago the Socialist leader crowned his political career by gaining a second term in office in a sweeping victory. Now, through his own doing, he is the first president of the Fifth Republic to govern with a National Assembly that has no majority — left or right.

The result of Sunday's parliamentary elections, in which the Socialists won 276 seats — 13 shy of a majority — demonstrates that French politics are becoming more like the American version. The momentum is toward power sharing in a less ideological atmosphere.

Most likely the Socialists will have to make concessions to form a coalition with moderate elements of the right, which controls 274 seats.

Technically, Mitterrand, 71, could go back to Communist partners of 1981-84 and build a leftist majority with their 27 seats. But Communist Party chief Georges Marchais wants an extortionate price for support.

buoyed by his victory in spring's two-stage presidential election, Mitterrand, a consummate politician of Machiavellian subtlety, miscalculated when he dissolved parliament and called snap elections last month.

He seemed certain to win a majority, but France's willful voters refused to cooperate. They seemed to take him at his word when he said, magnanimously, "It is not healthy for one party to govern."

Former President Valery Giscard d'Estaing took Mitterrand's logic one step further Sunday after the elections.

"The French didn't want to give one party all the power," he said. "They tried to say to their elected officials and to French politicians: We want the two halves of France to work together."

Most likely Mitterrand will press on with "l'ouverture," or "the opening," this week's buzz word in Paris. It means a cautiously defined parliamentary coalition of Socialists and moderates.

A true sharing of power within the National Assembly would be a step toward the multi-party coalitions in neighboring West Germany and Italy or the bipartisanship sometimes seen in the U.S. Congress.

IN BRIEF

Sheriff decides against digging up back yard of funeral home

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — A state inspector being trained for his job was taken to a funeral home cited for violations last year, beginning the search that uncovered the remains of nearly 70 people, a spokesman said Monday.

The new inspector toured the Howell Morning Glory Chapel funeral home last week to examine a facility that was cited for violations in May 1987, said Jack Maynard, a spokesman for the Department of Professional Regulation office in Jacksonville.

All the problems had been corrected, which would normally exempt the home from another inspection the next year. Instead of waiting, the department decided to show the new investigator a funeral home cited previously, Maynard said.

"Needless to say, he got an eye opener," Maynard said.

A plan to dig up the establishment's back yard to search for more bodies was scrapped Monday by the Duval County Sheriff's Office. A spokesman said the department had received anonymous phone calls about corpses being buried in the yard, but decided to look for stronger evidence before digging.

An initial inspection last week turned up eight bodies, prompting the DPR to close the funeral home. Another 38 bodies were found Friday, many stacked in a closet, along with 26 boxes containing cremated ashes.

Immigration agency sued

MIAMI (UPI) — A program to help migrant farm workers become U.S. citizens has unfairly denied amnesty to thousands of field hands by creating requirements that are almost impossible to satisfy, lawyers for a refugee group say.

The Haitian Refugee Center, the Roman Catholic Diocese of Palm Beach and 17 farm workers filed a class action suit Monday against the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, seeking changes in the amnesty program.

Lawyers said the Special Agricultural Workers program requires non-existent or unobtainable payroll records, fails to correct deficient denial notices and deprives applicants of due process rights.

The deadline for most illegal immigrants to apply for amnesty passed in May, but farm workers have until November to prove they worked at least 90 days on a farm between May 1985 and 1988. The amnesty programs were established under the 1986 Immigration law.

"The INS has interpreted the law in such a way that it is virtually impossible for people who work on farms to establish their eligibility for the program," said lawyer Ira Kurzban, who represents the plaintiffs.

Shuttle booster test set today

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (UPI) — A full-scale shuttle booster was primed for test firing today in the first use of a new $22 million facility able to impart side-to-side forces on a shuttle rocket to mimic those found in a real launch.

Called qualification motor No. 7, or QM-7 for short, the 128-foot rocket was scheduled to be fired for a full two minutes at 1 p.m. MDT at Morton Thiokol Inc.'s Brigham City plant.

Only one more full-scale booster firing, planned for late July, is required before the shuttle Discovery is cleared for launch on the first post-Challenger mission.

Launch processing for the long-awaited flight is in high gear at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida where engineers worked Monday to close out paperwork in preparation for moving Discovery from its hangar to the nearby Vehicle Assembly Building, or VAB, late this week.

Once inside the VAB, Discovery will be picked up by giant cranes, rotated to vertical and attached to its external fuel tank and solid-fuel rocket boosters. Rollout to launch pad 39B is planned for around June 27 with blastoff planned for around the end of August.

The firing of QM-7, equipped with redesigned O-ring joints and other post-Challenger improvements, marked the fourth in a series of five planned before Discovery can be cleared for blastoff.

"This is a very important test for us of course," Royce Mitchell, a top NASA booster engineer, said Monday. "QM-7 is probably the highest fidelity, as far as the flight configuration, of any motor (fired to date). We do not have any deliberate flaws in it."

Previous boosters have been test-fired with built-in defects to make sure the new joints can tolerate failures. But because QM-7's firing marked the first in the new "T-97" test stand, engineers wanted a flawless rocket to provide a reference point for post-test analysis.

All previous shuttle booster firings have been "static" tests in that no external forces acted on the rockets during ignition. But in a real shuttle launch, a variety of forces push and pull on the boosters, and it is those forces the T-97 test stand was built to simulate.

In a shuttle launch, the orbiter's three liquid-fueled main engines fire up about 6.6 seconds before liftoff. Because the engines are offset from the shuttle's vertical axis, the entire vehicle bends forward and then rebounds. That bending energy is transmitted to the boosters by the attach fittings that anchor the base of the shuttle's external tank to the two rockets.

To simulate those pre-launch forces, the T-97 test stand, which cost about $22 million and took a full year to build, features three giant hydraulic struts connected to QM-7 at the external tank attach point.

The struts were built to push and pull on a booster during ignition to simulate the external launch forces experienced by the rockets during real launches.

100th execution carried out in Louisiana

ANGOLA, La. (UPI) — Edward Byrne Jr., dubbed the "gigolo murderer" for romancing, robbing and killing a gas station manager, early today became the 100th person executed in the United States since the Supreme Court lifted its ban on the death penalty in 1976.

Byrne, 28, went to his death without a final statement and drummed his fingers on the armrest of the oaken Louisiana electric chair as he waited for the first of four electrical jolts. He was pronounced dead at 12:12 a.m.

The execution was the 100th in the United States and the 18th in Louisiana since the Supreme Court lifted its ban on capital punishment in 1976. It was the third execution in the state and the seventh in the country this year.

When asked if he had any final statement, Byrne said, "Nope," and smirked at witnesses. He adjusted himself in the oaken chair and watched as leather straps were placed on his body and a hood was lowered over his head.

Byrne began a rhythmically tapping the fingers of his left hand on the armrest as the executioner checked the electrical connections. He continued until the first jolt of electricity hit him at 12:06 a.m.

On the initial jolt, Byrne's fists clenched. On the third jolt, the left index finger pointed toward his body in an apparent involuntary movement.

Byrne was convicted of murdering Roberta Johnson, a Bossier City gas station manager. Johnson was beaten to death Aug. 14, 1984, with a ball pen hammer, and $8,000 was stolen from the station, investigators said.

Byrne had romanced Johnson in order to set her up for a robbery after hearing her boast about how much money her station made, prosecutors said.

He fled the murder in a car stolen from a second girlfriend and drove to a Leesville motel, where he met a Korean woman and married her the same night.

"I called him my gigolo murderer," said Bossier Parish District Attorney Henry Brown.

Byrne's last-ditch clemency pleas to the Supreme Court, 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and state Pardon Board all were rejected Monday, with the high court rejecting the plea about two hours before the execution.

Byrne, of Tental, Fla., had evaded three previous execution dates.

The condemned prisoner was moved to the cinderblock death house early in the day Monday.

"He ate a last meal of a T-Bone steak with mushrooms, fried shrimp, cole slaw and Kool-Aid," warden Hilton Butler said.

Byrne had visits from his attorneys, Nancy Baumgartner and Amanda Poterfield, and Yusef Dancsch, a political science professor at Southern University who had befriended the convict.

Deportee arrives in New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mubarak Awad, a Palestinian-American advocate deported over his stand on non-violent resistance to Israel's occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip, arrived in New York to shouts of "Death to the Palestine Liberation Organization!" and "Zionism is racism!"

Awad, 44, a U.S. citizen, was scheduled to hold a news conference upon his 8:25 p.m. arrival Monday at the Trans World Airline terminal at Kennedy International Airport but failed to appear. A spokesman said Awad would speak to reporters in New York at 1 p.m. today.

Awad was ordered deported over U.S. objections by Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, who said Awad was in Israel illegally and had threatened national security by inciting violence in the Israeli-occupied territories.

He denied the charges and said he had the right to remain in Jerusalem, where he was born before the establishment of the state of Israel.

Israeli and Palestinians awaiting Awad's arrival at the airport erupted in an angry clash of verbal threats but no violence about a half hour before his jet touched down from Tel Aviv.

The Jewish group included representatives of the Jewish Defense Organization and Kach International, part of the Kach Party in Israel that is affiliated with JDL founder Meir Kahane, a spokesman said.

They shouted "Death to the PLO! Awad is Arafat!" and "Awad is a terrorist!"

The other group, which included members of the Palestinian Anti-Discrimination Committee, responded with "Israel No, Palestine Yes," "Death to Zionism" and "Zionism is racism."

Charles Kimball, director of the Middle East office of the National Council of Churches was on hand to greet Awad, would not comment on his failure to appear at the scheduled news conference, but it was believed he was hustled out of the terminal through a side door because of the presence of the demonstrators.

Kimball read a short statement from Awad in which he said it had been "a very difficult day" but that he "wished to express his happiness to be out of jail after 40 days." Kimball said Awad would continue to work for "a non-violent resolution" of strife in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank.

Awad was met at the airport by his American wife, Nancy Nye. Kimball said.

two Israelis have been killed in the anti-Israel uprising that began Dec. 9.

Also Monday, Israel deported Mubarak Awad, a Jerusalem native and Palestinian-American advocate of non-violent resistance to the occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip. The United States had urged Israel not to deport Awad and said if he was accused of any crime, he should be put on trial.

Awad arrived in New York Monday night.

The Israeli government said Awad, 44, lost his right to remain in Jerusalem as a permanent resident after becoming a U.S. citizen. A spokesman for Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said he incited violence during the uprising.

Israel has controlled the West Bank and Gaza Strip since taking the territories from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 Six-Day War.

Palestinians demonstrating against the occupation clashed with Israeli soldiers in at least 12 towns and refugee camps Monday in the West Bank, but no serious injuries were reported. The occupied Gaza Strip was relatively quiet.

In the West Bank village of Hebron, residents attacked three Arab mail carriers delivering letters and tax notices. The incident was believed linked to a Palestinian campaign against the payment of any taxes. Palestinian sources said the residents stole mail bags from two carriers and stabbed a third in the cheek who resisted the attack.

Israeli troops kill Palestinian man who couldn't hear shouts of warning

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli troops shot and killed a deaf Palestinian who ran from a field and could not hear warning shouts from soldiers searching for Arab suspects in a West Bank village, hospital and Palestinian sources say.

An Israeli army spokesman confirmed soldiers entered the West Bank village of Abwein in pursuit of Arab suspects but had no information on Monday's death of Deeb Mahmud Mohammed Hussein, 43.

Residents told officials of Ramallah Hospital that Hussein was working in a field when soldiers who entered the village to make arrests began firing. Hussein, who was deaf, began running as soldiers shouted for him to stop, the residents said. Hospital officials said he was shot in the forehead.

The army typically arrests people suspected of participating in violent demonstrations. It is not known whether Hussein was one of the suspects chased by the soldiers.

Seat belt law proves effective

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Florida experienced a 23 percent reduction in daylight traffic accident injuries in the first 18 months since the state's mandatory seat belt law took effect, a newly released study shows.

The analysis of traffic accident reports by the Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles did not confirm reductions in injuries or death at night, when young drivers, drunk drivers and others at high risk of accidents are more likely to be on the roads.

Such drivers are also less likely to wear seatbelts, Leonard Mellon, the agency's executive director, said Monday.

The figures showed 13 percent fewer daylight injury accidents per month since the law took effect July 1, 1986, dropping to 19 percent fewer per month since enforcement began six months later.

That works out to 6,174 fewer incapacitating daytime accidents — those requiring transportation of an accident victim to a hospital for treatment — through January 1987, Mellon said.

It stands to reason the law has also saved lives, even if the department cannot link any such a decline to the seatbelt law, the officials said.

Spot checks showed compliance rose sharply immediately after the law passed and again six months later, after enforcement began. Compliance is averaging 50 percent but the department plans to participate in a national "70 by 90" public awareness program that seeks 70 percent compliance by 1990.

Charlotte wins coin flip, gets 8th pick

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Charlotte Hornets won a coin flip Monday and will draft eighth, after the seven lottery teams, in the June 28 college draft.

The Hornets and Miami Heat, two expansion teams that will enter the NBA next season, took part in the coin flip at the NBA offices. Commissioner David Stern tossed a coin featuring the logos of both teams. The Hornets' logo landed face up, giving Charlotte the choice of picking eighth in the college draft or first in the expansion draft.

By virtue of Charlotte's decision, Miami will choose first in the expansion draft with the Hornets second.

The two teams were represented by their general managers. Charlotte by Carl Scheer and Miami by Lewis Schaffel.

"We have been scouting both the NBA for what we can get in the expansion draft and the colleges for the collegiate draft," Scheer said. "At this point, we will try to take the best player possible and go from there. We're not aiming at any specific position."

Shriver stages great comeback at tennup

EASTBOURNE, England (UPI) — Pam Shriver, making what she said was the final comeback of her career, Monday beat Isabelle Demongel of France 4-6, 7-5, 6-2 in the first round of a $250,000 Wimbledon tennup.

Advancing with far less trouble was Martina Navratilova. Playing on grass for the first time since winning Wimbledon for the eighth time last year, Navratilova routed French qualifier Alexia Dechaume 6-0, 6-2.

Shriver, who teamed with Navratilova to the doubles crown at the French Open eight days ago, lost the first set and trailed 5-0 in the second. She double faulted twice in the seventh game to come within two points of defeat.

SANFORD BASEBALL

SANFORD — Mike Dillon and Phil King teamed up to throw a one-hitter to lead Ball Motor Line to a 16-6 victory over the Kiwanis with the Moose-Rotary game ending as a double forfeit Monday night in Sanford Junior League baseball action at Chase Park.

Dillon and Tony Williams led the offense as each connected for three hits and scored three runs. Williams finished with a game-high seven runs batted in as he stroked a triple, a double and a single.

Ball Motor Line jumped out quickly with three runs in the top of the first inning, after an out Dillon singled followed by a Tony Holly walk. Williams then ripped a double to right center to plate both runners, after the second out David Dunn singled to left to score Williams and give Ball Motor Line a 3-0 lead.

Rotary came back strong and scored four runs in the bottom half of the inning to take the lead. Corey Bennett led off with a single. Rotary's only hit of the game, followed by walks by Mike Parker, Tony Inman, Sean Davidson and Alan Holt after the second out and a passed ball two more walks were issued to Bobby Hoops and Andy Thomas before another passed ball gave Rotary a 4-3 advantage.

Ball Motor Line then capitalized on walks in the top of the second with Brian Leach, King and Dillon all receiving walks to load the bases. Williams followed with a bases clearing double before stealing third and scoring on a wild pitch to give Ball Motor Line the lead for good at 7-4.

Ball Motor Line added one run in the top of the fourth inning and two runs in the top of the fifth inning before erupting for six runs in the top of the sixth inning to put the game out of reach.

Tony McGill led the top of the sixth off with a walk with King reaching on an error, Dillon then singled to score McGill and place runners on first and third. After an out, Williams connected on a triple down the right field line. Calvin Ferrell then drew a walk before Dunn singled up the middle. Willie Williams followed with a bases clearing double and came around to score on an error to give Ball Motor Line a 16-5 advantage.

Rotary placed one more run on the board in the bottom half of the inning as, after an out, Hoops walked, stole second, moved to third on an error and scored on a wild pitch to narrow the lead to 16-6.

LITTLE NATIONAL LEAGUE
SPBA and First Federal each came up victorious Monday afternoon with SPBA ripping the Railroaders, 14-8, and First Federal handling Sunland, 10-2, in Sanford Little National League baseball action at Ft. Mellon Park.

Andre Rawlings led SPBA with two triples and a double with four runs batted in and four runs scored. Erick Roberts added a double and a single with two runs batted in and three runs scored with lead off hitter Darvus Beamon ripping two triples and scoring three runs. Dante Johnson added a triple with two RBIs and two runs scored. John Harrison added two triples and a single with three runs batted in and two runs scored as Philip Reynolds connecting on a double with a run batted in and a run scored. Larry McIntyre, Andrew Amie and Joe Young all added a run scored to round out the offensive attack.

Michael Howard and Tony Lewis led the Railroaders as each connected for a single and scored two runs. Eric Johnson added a run scored. Rick Salmon added a single with two runs batted in and a run scored.

Thomas sore, but will play Game 4

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — A day after one of their poorest performances of the season, the Detroit Pistons practiced Monday without Isiah Thomas, who suffered a bruised back in Game 3 but says he will not miss any playing time.

Thomas fouled Mychal Thompson and fell with four minutes left in Sunday's 99-86 loss to the Los Angeles Lakers. He stayed in the game until 48 seconds remained but became more sore as the day progressed.

He told a pool reporter from his home in nearby Bloomfield Hills that he was unable to get out of bed.

"The sorest part is my lower back and tailbone area," Thomas said. "I tried to block the shot and when he released it my arm caught his arm and I was off-balance and thrown to the floor."

"I'm going to play. If we had to play today, though, I couldn't. But hopefully my back) will loosen up. This is the NBA finals and I'll play with a broken arm if I have to."

The Pistons, trailing 2-1 in the best-of-seven series, can ill afford to be without their captain and ace playmaker Tuesday night in Game 4 (9:05 p.m. EDT) at the Silverdome.

"It would be disastrous," Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said after Thomas missed his first practice in five years. "He had to create a lot of offense for us (Sunday) when we were struggling. We would have a tough time without him."

Most of the Pistons, though, expect to see their All-Star guard — who had 28 points and 9 assists in Game 3 — in the lineup.

"I can't see him not playing," center Bill Laimbeer said. "The day after a loss the injuries hurt more. Come game time the adrenaline will take over."

Should Thomas be unable to play, Joe Dumars would direct the Detroit offense with slumping Vinnie Johnson and 6-foot-8 Dennis Rodman receiving more time at off-guard.

In any case, Rodman probably will play more as a defender on Magic Johnson. The Laker guard has hurt the Pistons by posting up Dumars, who is 6 inches shorter.

Dennis is very rangy," said Johnson, who is averaging 23.8 points and 11.6 assists and is an early favorite to capture his fourth MVP Award of the playoffs.

On defense, the Pistons allowed the Lakers to run their fastbreak for the first time in the series, and were slow with their double-team, leaving low-scoring A.C. Green to net a career-playoff high 21 points.

Spurs hire Brown

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — Larry Brown, who two months ago led Kansas to the NCAA title, says it took him just 10 minutes to decide to leave the Jayhawks and accept a reported $3.5 million contract with the San Antonio Spurs.

Brown, who resigned Monday at Kansas to accept the Spurs job, said at an afternoon news conference he decided to return to the NBA after a brief meeting last week with new Spurs majority owner Red McCombs.

"We have everything in place," Brown said. "Now it's a matter of doing a good job and teaching the kids."

Brown, who inherits a young San Antonio team that clinched the last spot in the NBA West playoffs before being eliminated by Los Angeles, also said he wanted to escape recruiting and other pressures unique to the college game.

"If the NBA is all basketball," he said. "There's no recruiting. There's no administrative duties. You don't have to worry about kids going to class. It's all basketball."

Team officials said Brown signed a five-year contract but would not confirm published reports that he will be paid $3.5 million, which would make him the highest-paid coach in NBA history.

"I know Larry is the best coach in the business," McCombs said. "We've got the people. We're elated with where we are, with the whole package. We're ready to go."

McCombs, who Brown said talked him into taking the job in a 10-minute conversation last Tuesday, was one of the team's original investors and is a former owner of the Denver Nuggets. He purchased controlling interest in the Spurs two weeks ago and quickly fired Coach Bob Weiss.

The Spurs have had attendance and win-loss problems, but hope to rebound with the arrival of 7-foot-1 David Robinson of Navy. Robinson is expected to join the Spurs after completing a two-year Navy hitch.

"I think the important thing is they supported the team before," Brown said. "I hope we'll put the type of team out there that they'll come back."

San Antonio will be the fourth professional stop for Brown, one of basketball's more well-traveled coaches.

Brown, who in April accepted and then turned down the UCLA coaching job, said Kansas was a "very special place" and one of the best college coaching jobs in the country but that the San Antonio job was too attractive to refuse.

"The offer at San Antonio was

Wimbledon: Lendl, Graf top seeds

LONDON (UPI) — Ivan Lendl and Steffi Graf, last year's losing finalists, were seeded No. 1 Monday in their respective draws for the Wimbledon tennis championships June 20-July 3.

The Wimbledon referee's office has largely followed the world rankings list in determining seedings and bumped both defending champions from the top spots.

Men's defender Pat Cash of Australia was seeded fourth behind Lendl, Mats Wilander and Stefan Edberg of Sweden. Martina Navratilova eight-time champion and women's defender, was seeded No. 2 behind Graf.

Jimmy Connors, 35, and a two-time winner (1974, 1982), was the leading U.S. seed at No. 5 with Boris Becker of West Germany, winner in 1985 and 1986, at No. 6 and Henri Leconte of France No. 7.

Tournament organizers ignored the world rankings to make John McEnroe the No. 8 seed in his first Wimbledon appearance since 1985. McEnroe, champion in 1981, 1983 and 1984, is ranked only 19th in the world, but has shown increasingly impressive form since making his comeback in April.

Czechoslovakia's Miroslav Mecir, ranked sixth in the world, was dropped to No. 9, while American grasscourt specialist Tim Mayotte rounded out the top 10.

Championship referee Alan Mills said: "I can't remember any situation like McEnroe's since I became referee five years ago. We took the decision on his past record. It was a comparatively short meeting and it was a unanimous decision of the seven-strong committee."

Asked about Mecir's seeding, Mills replied: "He has not played for six weeks and has only just come back after a back injury."

Leading seeds behind Graf and Navratilova were Pam Shriver No. 3, Chris Evert, who is recovering from a heel injury, at No. 4, Argentinian Gabriela Sabatini No. 5, and Helena

Conditions rough at Brookline

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — As Mac O'Grady sees it, Darwin's theories hold an important place at the U.S. Open.

"A smooth sea never develops a skillful sailor," he said. "And that's what we'll see here — the survival of the fittest."

The narrow fairways and ever-present rough on The Country Club course demand that every shot be well placed. Distance is no advantage, direction is everything.

O'Grady admires The Country Club layout for its old-world features: "rolling topography, the rough, the visual aesthetics and slopes and bunkers."

Trouble, he said, lurks everywhere. "You've got to learn to adapt quickly," he said. "And the great players have that skill. After a bad shot, they are bleeding. After the next shot you see the scar forming; one more shot and the scar is gone. That's why you can look forward to the Europeans doing well, this course is the kind they play over there."

Tom Watson, winner of the 1982 U.S. Open and a five-time British Open champion, played the course for the first time Monday.

"I am here to learn — where to hit the ball and how to hit it," he said. "You won't make many pars from the rough on this course."

Temperatures in the high 80s Sunday and Monday dried the course. The greens are being watered to prevent them from becoming too fast.

U.S. OPEN GOLF

Hale Irwin, a two-time U.S. Open champion, says high rough near the greens is unfair to the chip shot players.

"Everyone goes into the hay and falls away," he said. "I'm in favor of the heavier rough, but not on every hole. What they have done is cut off the tops of the rough, so instead of resting on top, the ball settles right down in."

The Country Club built its first golf course in 1893 and revamped it in 1903 because of the development of a longer-flight rubber-core ball. Ten years later, Francis Ouimet became the first American golf hero by winning the Open title on the course, beating British stars Harry Vardon and Ted Ray in an 18-hole playoff. Julius Boros won the 1963 Open in an 18-hole playoff with Arnold Palmer and Jacky Coult.

"We're playing the same course they played in '63 and that Francis Ouimet did in 1913," Watson said. "That's tradition, that's heritage, that's culture."

"I'd hate to see a U.S. Open played at a TPC (Tournament Players Course), because those courses aren't ready for it," Irwin said. "There has to be some vintage quality, some prowess."

U.S. OPEN NOTEBOOK

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — An article in Golf Digest touched off such a furor in Boston this month that the author of the piece issued an apology Monday. Peter Dobertiner, a respected British writer, wrote a tongue-in-cheek item for the magazine about the role of Irishmen in creating The Country Club — site of this week's U.S. Open.

Mayor Raymond Flynn of Boston took offense and wrote a letter to the magazine demanding an apology.

An unknown number of truck drivers refused to deliver a Boston newspaper that carried a Golf Digest supplement Sunday.

"I deeply regret that a piece I intended as a satirical attempt to ridicule those people who lose no opportunity to denigrate and patronize the Irish community has been interpreted as an attack on the Irish," Dobertiner said.

George Shortridge, 44, a club professional from Becker, Minn., had a pleasant surprise as he began his first practice round at The Country Club Monday.

Shortridge and two-time PGA champion Dave Stockton were on the first tee and decided to wait a minute to see if anyone wanted to accompany them.

Suddenly a tall figure emerged from the crowd and strolled onto the tee.

"Hi," the player said to Shortridge. "I'm Greg Norman."

Norman, who lost to Seve Ballesteros in the four-way playoff at the Westchester Classic Sunday, joined Shortridge and Stockton for the entire round.

Chaney named Rockets' coach

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Rockets Monday named Atlanta Hawks Assistant Coach Don Chaney their new head coach. He replaces Bill Fitch, who was fired a week ago.

"I see a team with a lot of talent and potential," said Chaney, 41, a former star for the Boston Celtics and the University of Houston. "A team that is maybe a few players away from being a true contender. We plan to set high goals and obtain those goals."

"Under my leadership, I'm going to try to create harmony. That is the same word used with championship. I think every great team has its problems and we've got to work to overcome those."

The Rockets were 216-194 in five seasons under Fitch, who has three years at his contract, a year remaining on his contract. Chaney was an assistant coach in Detroit and Atlanta before compiling a 53-141 record as head coach of the Los Angeles Clippers.

"We took 30 days to evaluate the situation," Rockets owner

Charlie Thomas said. "After talking with Don, we felt this was the man who could take us where we wanted to go."

Fitch directed Houston to the NBA finals in 1986, but the team lost to Boston. The Rockets slipped to third in the Midwest Division in 1987 and fell to fourth this year following a controversial trade that sent Ralph Sampson to Golden State.

Houston also is searching for someone to fill the new position of player personnel director. Rockets Assistant Coach Rudy Tomjanovich is said to be the leading contender.

...Brown

Continued from 7A simply a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity, which I couldn't turn down," Brown said. "After I made the decision not to go to UCLA and stay at Kansas, I had no intentions to consider any other jobs, but the San Antonio situation presented itself and I didn't think it would be fair to my family not to consider it."

"I love this place (Kansas), the people and everything they did for me. It will always be special to me."

Kansas Athletic Director Bob Frederick said McCombs had told Brown "he was going to make him an offer he couldn't refuse."

"I think money was a significant factor, yes," Frederick said. "I think our basketball coach is compensated as well as any other basketball coach in the United States, but it's hard sometime for an educational institution to compete with a private concern like an NBA franchise."

Brown, 47, is the first coach to leave an NCAA championship team since John Wooden of UCLA retired in 1975.

"I felt on Thursday that this was about a 98 percent sure thing," Frederick said. "All of us are extremely disappointed to lose a basketball coach of this caliber."

Tettleton's bat keys Oriole win

United Press International
Mickey Tettleton considers Monday's performance against the Detroit Tigers one of his best.

The Orioles catcher hit home runs in consecutive at-bats, one from the left and one from the right side of the plate to lead Baltimore to a 6-4 victory over Detroit.

"This is the first time in my career I've hit two home runs in one game before," said Tettleton, who was signed to a minor league contract after being released in spring training by Oakland. "It's probably one of the biggest nights I've had in my career."

The victory was Baltimore's third in four games this season versus Detroit, their best record against any team. It also snapped a five-game Tiger winning streak.

Tettleton, who was batting right-handed, belted a 1-2 pitch off reliever Guillermo Hernandez for his fifth homer of the season in the ninth inning turning a 4-3 deficit into a 6-4 triumph. Batting left-handed, he slammed a solo homer in the fourth off Walt Terrell.

Tettleton was brought up on May 8 and is now playing in front of Terry Kennedy, who started the season behind the plate for the Orioles.

"We want to show we're not quitting," said Tettleton. "We have a lot of people who know how to play here."

"We aren't playing the Tigers tougher than anybody else," Orioles manager Frank Robinson said. "We just played three tough games against New York and we could have won all three. Early in the year we didn't play anybody tough."

"We're starting to put things

together. We have enough talent here to win some ball games."

Hernandez, 3-2, had not allowed a run since May 17th, a span of 10 innings.

In other games, New York outlasted Boston 12-6, Cleveland defeated Toronto 8-6, Chicago tripped Minnesota 4-1, Milwaukee nipped Seattle 3-1, and Kansas City edged California 5-3.

In the National League, it was Pittsburgh 8, Chicago 0; Philadelphia 5, Montreal 2; New York 2, St. Louis 1 in 12 innings; San Diego 7, San Francisco 3; Houston 6, Atlanta 5.

Yankees 12, Red Sox 6

At Boston, Jack Clark and Rafael Santana each hit a three-run homer to power Richard Dotson, 7-1, and the Yankees, Roger Clemens, 9-4, gave up nine runs and 15 hits, both career highs. Boston's Jim Rice hit his first two homers of the season.

Indians 8, Blue Jays 6

At Toronto, Cory Snyder and Ron Kittle homered, and Doug Jones earned his 15th save. Bud Black, 3-1, gave up five hits, struck out five and walked three over 5 2/3 innings of relief of Rich Yett, who suffered a rib cage injury. Jones struck out five over 2 1/3 innings. Jim Clancy fell to 3-8.

White Sox 4, Twins 1

At Minneapolis, Ivan Calderon and Gary Redus homered to back the combined seven-hitter of Melido Perez and two relievers. Perez, 6-2, allowed five hits, walked two and struck out four before being relieved in the ninth. Les Straker, 2-4, allowed four runs on nine hits over six innings.

Brewers 3, Mariners 1

At Milwaukee, Bill Wegman and Dan Plesac combined on an eight-hitter and Robin Yount drove in three runs. Wegman, 5-5, scattered five hits over eight innings. Plesac pitched the ninth for his 14th save. Jeffrey Leonard had two hits for Milwaukee in his home debut.

Royals 5, Angels 3

At Anaheim, George Brett collected three hits and drove in two runs helping Kansas City to their 10th victory in their last 11 games. Floyd Banister, 7-5, allowed five hits and three runs over five innings. Steve Farr pitched two innings for his fourth save. Chuck Finley, 4-8, was the loser.

Major Leagues: Touching some bases

By RICHARD L. SHOOK
UPI Sports Writer

Dick Williams: Turns out the fired Seattle manager's problem was not too little communication, but too much. He made a mistake when he announced last year this season would be his last. By becoming a lame duck manager, Williams encouraged mutinous thoughts among the sailors.

There's also a story making the rounds that Williams went to the Mariners' brass and said one of three things was needed: 1) fire me; 2) give me a contract extension; 3) make a major trade. Maybe Williams should have presented his views in a different order.

Woody Woodward: Philadelphia just fired a man who never made it through year one of a three-year, $150,000 contract. Reportedly Woodward went to his boss, Bill Giles, and said the Phillies' organization has become stagnant and is in need of new faces. Woodward was planning on bringing his own people into the organization.

Giles apparently agreed with Woodward — but not in the way the former Philadelphia general manager figured. Giles made Woodward's one of the faces to leave town.

Jim Baumer, the head of the Phillies' farm system, was also canned but observers note no scouts were dismissed. Pitchers batting: Yankees Manager Billy Martin used Rick Rhoden as his DH on a night he wasn't pitching. Martin made the move because he had several injured players and because Rhoden wouldn't embarrass himself at the plate. He's a decent hitter, for a pitcher.

It's not a bad idea in cases where pitchers are good hitters or good bunters. It gives you an extra pinch-hitter later in the game.

You won't see it, except for isolated incidents, because managers feel they would be showing up their counterparts by doing something like that.

Jeffrey Leonard: On the surface it would seem as though the San Francisco Giants gave up a starter for a reserve when they traded Leonard, last year's NL playoff MVP, to Milwaukee for infielder Ernest Riles.

But Riles is a valuable commodity. He can hit a little, has some speed, can play the left side of the infield and is a good fielder. Moreover, the Giants had Mike Aldrete waiting to take over."

For its part, Milwaukee gets a proven run producer. And even though Leonard is eligible to become a free agent at the end of the season, he might want to stick around when he sees how much young talent the Brewers have.

Ding Dongs: Imagine, Toronto fans booing George Bell? Talk about short memories. Or has it been more than a season since Bell was the AL MVP?

BASEBALL CENTRAL

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia President Bill Giles met with St. Louis Cardinals director of player development Lee Thomas Monday to discuss the Phillies general manager position.

Giles is seeking a replacement for Woody Woodward, who was fired last week as vice president of player development after only seven months on the job.

"Next step on the agenda is to interview other candidates," Giles said in a prepared statement. "There are several names on the list. While I'd like to fill the position soon, I'm not going to rush into anything."

Other candidates reportedly include acting San Diego manager Jack McKeon, Philadelphia vice president for baseball administration Tony Siegle and Baltimore GM Roland Hemond.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Veteran relief pitcher Kent Tekulve has been placed on the disabled list for the first time in his 13-year career.

The Philadelphia Phillies Monday placed Tekulve on the 15-day disabled list, effective June 11, with a strained right shoulder.

Tekulve, who is 2-4 with a 2.93 ERA and three saves this season, surrendered 45 hits in 34 1/3 innings and has noticeably struggled.

He said his shoulder began bothering him in early May but that he tried to pitch as long as he could because the team needed him since relief ace Steve Bedrosian missed the first six weeks of the season because of pneumonia.

Dr. Phillip Marone, the Phillies' team physician, said the stinger just needs time to rest.

Tekulve said he should be able to pitch in 15 days but Marone doubted that.

"But how much sooner thereafter, I can't say," Marone said. "He needs down time. He needs rest."

Combs, 21, was 7-6 as a junior at Baylor this year and was 9-1 last year.

Combs is among 40 players trying out for the United States team that will compete in the Olympics. If he does not make the team, Combs will be assigned to one of the Phillies' minor-league clubs.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies have decided to leave pitcher Mike Maddux at Maine so he can resume his career as a starter.

Maddux, a starter for most of his career, opened the season as a reliever with the Phillies but injured his right elbow on April 17 and was disabled.

After he recovered from his injury, Maddux was sent to the Phillies' Triple-A farm team at Maine, where he pitched once in relief and made two starts.

In his last start, Maddux gave up six hits and four runs, none of them earned, in eight innings, while walking four and striking out five.

Phillies Manager Lee Elia said the Phillies decided to leave Maddux at Maine so that he can get some work as a starting pitcher.

"At this point, for him and the way he could help the ballclub down the road, it would be as a starter," Elia said.

SEATTLE (UPI) — Seattle Mariners second baseman Harold Reynolds is one of 26 players nominated for Major League Baseball's 18th annual Roberto Clemente award.

The award is given to the player who best represents the game through his humanitarian and charitable endeavors on and off the field.

Mets use fake bunt to end skid

United Press International

The Mets needed a big break to halt their longest losing streak in almost three years and New York received it in the form of a fake bunt.

Lee Mazzilli chopped a high bouncer over the head of Cardinals third baseman Tom Lawless in the 12th inning to drive in Howard Johnson and lift New York over St. Louis 2-1 Monday night.

"I went up to the plate to go for it," Mazzilli said. "It was a fastball in. It would have been very difficult to lay down a good bunt. I saw them rotating and I slapped at it. It's easy to hit one on a bounce or a liner past the third baseman when he's doing that (charging)."

The triumph snapped a five-game losing streak, their longest since 1985. The Cardinals have lost four in a row.

Winning pitcher Randy Myers, 5-0, hurled two hitless innings after starter David Cone had scattered five hits over the first 10 innings.

Ken Dayley, 1-2, hit Johnson on the wrist by a pitch to open the 12th. Pinch-hitter Wally Backman popped up a bunt near the first-base line. Dayley dove for the ball, which deflected off his glove and into foul ground.

"If he (Dayley) lets it fall he's better off because Hojo was near first and he probably would have got a double play," Backman said. "But you don't think that when you're diving to get the ball. We needed a break and we got it."

Mazzilli chopped the next pitch into left field to give New York its fifth extra-inning victory at home in as many attempts.

"I don't want to put the winning run on base, but for me to be effective I have to establish the inside pitch," Dayley said of the pitch that hit Johnson. "It's still a long year, whether we beat them or other teams do. Everyone says the Cardinals are on the rise and the race will be between the Mets and the Cardinals."

Elsewhere, Pittsburgh blanked Chicago 8-0, Philadelphia downed Montreal 5-2, San Diego whipped San Francisco 7-3, and Houston edged Atlanta 6-5.

In the American League, it was Baltimore 6, Detroit 4, Cleveland 8, Toronto 6, New York 12, Boston 6, Chicago 4, Minnesota 1, Milwaukee 3, Seattle 1, and Kansas City 5, California 3.

Pirates 6, Cubs 0

At Chicago, Bob Walk pitched an eight-hitter and Bobby Bonilla hit a two-run homer and an RBI double to lift Pittsburgh, Walk, 7-4, pitched his first complete game of the season. Walk had five strikeouts and four walks. Chicago starter Calvin Schiraldi fell to 3-4.

Phillies 5, Expos 2

At Philadelphia, Chris James, Luis Aguayo and Mike Young each hit a solo home run to help end Montreal's four-game win streak. Shane Rawley, 5-6, struck out seven, surrendered nine hits and walked one in his third complete game of the season. Neal Heaton fell to 2-5.

Padres 7, Giants 3

At San Diego, Mark Davis stroked his first major-league home run and earned his career-high 10th save to lead the Padres to their fifth straight triumph. Padres starter Eric Show, 5-6, allowed four hits, struck out five and walked three. Mike Krukow, 4-4, yielded eight hits over seven innings.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Astros 6, Braves 5

At Houston, Denny Walling singled home Kevin Bass from second base in the eighth inning to lift the Astros. Bass led off the inning with a single off Jose Alvarez, 2-2, and stole second. Juan Agosto, 3-0, pitched one inning. Dave Smith pitched the ninth for his 11th save.

ANDUJAR STEAMED

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston pitcher Joaquin Andujar says "some big guy" in major league baseball is trying to drive him from the game and that he may retire, the Houston Post reported Monday.

Andujar, currently pitching for the Astros' Class A team in Osceola, Fla., also said he feels his life is in danger.

Speaking to reporters in Duneedin, Fla., Sunday night after throwing 74 pitches and allowing three hits, Andujar said he received a letter from the National League regarding an incident involving St. Louis catcher Tony Pena.

On May 31 in the Astrodome, Pena swung and missed at an inside pitch and reportedly yelled at Andujar in Spanish. Andujar claims Pena encouraged a confrontation, prompting the Houston pitcher to drop his glove and charge Pena.

Andujar, the last National League to win 20 games in back-to-back seasons, claimed the league said he would face an automatic suspension and fine for a second incident involving a warning or ejection from a game for hitting a batter or throwing inside with intent.

"I'll tell you what," said Andujar, who is from the Dominican Republic. "There is some guy, some big guy in the United States, baseball, he doesn't want me in baseball. He wants me out of the game."

"I don't want to play baseball again. If I throw like they are telling me I have to, if they're going to get on my butt, then I can't pitch like that."

"All my life, I have thrown inside," Andujar said. "That is how I make my living, that is the kind of pitcher I am. Now I am afraid to throw inside. I'm afraid."

Houston Manager Hal Lauer said he believed Andujar's comments were caused by frustration at his inconsistency this season.

Court says lawyers may advertise via direct mail

By Andrea Neal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court made it easier Monday for lawyers to advertise their services, ruling 6-3 they have a First Amendment right to send mass mailings to citizens known to face specific legal problems.

The ruling, which extends a lawyer's right to advertise first recognized by the high court in 1977, struck down a Kentucky Supreme Court rule prohibiting lawyers from sending targeted letters to potential clients.

"Admittedly, a letter that is personalized to the recipient presents an increased risk of deception, intentional or inadvertent," Justice William Brennan wrote for the majority.

"But merely because targeted, direct mail solicitation presents lawyers with opportunities for isolated abuses or mistakes does not justify a total ban on that mode of protected commercial speech. The state can regulate such abuses and minimize mistakes through far less restrictive and more precise means."

The case involved lawyer Richard Shapero of Louisville, who applied to the Kentucky Attorneys Advertising Commission in 1985 for approval of a letter he wanted to send to potential clients facing foreclosure suits.

The letter began by saying, "It has come to my attention that your home is being foreclosed on. If this is true, you may be about to lose your home." The letter then encouraged the recipient to call Shapero's office for a free consultation.

The commission did not find the letter false or misleading, but declined to approve it. The Kentucky Supreme Court agreed with the commission's decision, citing the state's blanket prohibition on targeted, direct mail solicitation by lawyers.

The justices, in reversing the Kentucky court, cited a series of earlier rulings that have recognized a lawyer's right to advertise in various media while allowing the state to place certain ethical restrictions on those ads.

"The record before us furnishes no evidence that scrutiny of targeted solicitation letters (by the state) will be appreciably more burdensome or less reliable than scrutiny of advertisements," the court said.

Critics of legal advertising say it is undignified and unprofessional and could unduly influence people not knowledgeable about their legal rights.

Among those critics are three justices who dissented from Monday's ruling and called on the court to re-examine its lawyer advertising cases.

"Like physicians, lawyers are subjected to heightened ethical demands on their conduct toward those they serve," said Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, who was joined in dissent by Chief Justice William Rehnquist and Justice Antonin Scalia.

"These demands are needed because market forces, and the ordinary legal prohibitions against force and fraud, are simply insufficient to protect the consumers of legal services from the peculiar power of the specialized knowledge that these professionals possess," O'Connor said.

The seminal lawyer advertising case, Bates vs. State Bar of Arizona, held that a total ban on lawyer advertising violated the free speech rights of lawyers. The case involved a lawyer's attempt to place a newspaper ad listing his services and their prices.

After that case, many states set rules allowing lawyers only to advertise their services and not to use promotional tactics. But in 1985, the court said lawyers could recommend themselves and use illustrations. That case involved a newspaper ad in which a lawyer offered to represent all women who had been injured by using the Dalkon shield intra-uterine device.

The court has not removed all restrictions in this area, however. In 1978, the court ruled that a state could ban in-person solicitation by an attorney because of the danger that a potential client would feel undue pressure. The case involved a lawyer who went to see two victims of an automobile accident at their hospital beds.

Japan's external assets may triple in 7 years

NEW YORK (UPI) — A study by Moody's Investors Service said Monday that Japan's net international capital surplus will nearly triple in the next seven years from $240 billion to $650 billion by 1995.

The study projected that as the Japanese look for new ways to use the surplus, direct Japanese investment in overseas business ventures will more than double in the same period.

Moody's estimated that at the beginning of 1988, Japan's gross international assets totaled $1.1 trillion, roughly the same as the gross external assets of the United States.

"This new dominance in global capital flows is not the result of an extreme foreign investment propensity," Moody's said. "It stems from Japan's high savings rate, coupled with its great success as an exporter."

Despite "decisive measures" to stimulate domestic demand and encourage imports, Japan's export surplus continued to grow until very recently, the study said.

Japan's annual foreign account surplus reached a peak of $48 billion last year.

Moody's study expects that the increase in the value of the yen against the dollar over the past two years "will continue to lessen Japanese cost advantages in world markets while the rapid expansion of Japan's domestic economy will help foreign companies penetrate its markets."

But the adjustment in capital flows will proceed slowly and Japan's next external assets will grow at a rate of $50 billion annually through the mid-1990s, Moody's said.

"Overall, the projected Japanese external asset portfolio of 1995 will be less liquid but more diversified and less exposed to near-term currency risks than it is today," Moody's said.

Japan's "external asset management will be more severely constrained by its cooperation with other major financial powers to insure international financial stability and to coordinate economic policies," the study said.

Pat Thibodeau, owner of The Runcible Spoon Tea Room, dips a cup of her delicious cold strawberry soup at one of her popular Patrician Saturday teas.

You're invited to tea at The Runcible Spoon

The Patrician Saturday Tea at The Runcible Spoon Tea Room in Longwood's quaint Historical District is a delightful experience to be savored. Served from noon to 4 p.m. in a Victorian atmosphere, the tea features culinary creations from some of owner Pat Thibodeau's prized recipes and the selection varies from week to week — everything from tea to trifles and then some.

As an added attraction on June 18 only, models will show high fashion jewelry in conjunction with the tea.

Each table has its own teapot with Twining's freshly brewed Earl Grey tea and the lace-covered tea table with its fresh floral centerpiece is laden with a variety of treats. Here are some of the things you may find: a tureen of cold strawberry soup, finger sandwiches, scones served with whipped cream and preserves (strawberry, quince or pumpkin butter), quiche, cheese crisps, muffins, lemon curd bars, peach trifle, raspberry walnut torte, chocolate shortbread, couler a la creme with cucumber hearts and freshly baked croissants.

As the Patrician Saturday Teas grow in popularity, reservations are recommended. For lunch and tea reservations call 332-1905.

The Runcible Spoon, which located in the Browser's Barn at 150 W. Jessup Ave. (turn at the first street off County Road 427 north of the post office), also serves continental breakfasts from 8:30-10:30 a.m. and luncheons from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. On the breakfast menu are fresh baked croissants, muffins, butter and preservative pastries, fresh fruit and beverage (coffee, tea or juice).

Luncheon menus include soups, sandwiches, quiche and a specialty each week. This week's specialty is Florentine tart (spinach and cheese in phyllo dough) served with salad. The Runcible Spoon is famous for its desserts such as Chocolate Hazelnut Mousse and Heavenly Fudge Pie.

The Runcible Spoon Tea Room caters to private parties, business and club meetings and receptions, evenings and Saturdays. Sixteen persons can be seated in "The Pantry" opened across the hall for private luncheons or breakfasts. The tea room can seat up to 40 for dinner. Between 20 and 80 can be accommodated at receptions.

If you are impressed and want to have a tea party of your own, you will find the necessary supplies at the Culinary Cottage on Church Avenue (behind Browser's Barn).

London hotel rates out distance inflation

LONDON (UPI) — Hotel prices in London have risen at more than twice the rate of inflation in the past year, a survey said Monday.

Average increases were about 10 percent but a single room in a three-star hotel at Heathrow went up by 12.52 percent and a two-star twin in town by more than 15 percent, said hotel booking agency Expotel.

Some single rooms in London cost more than $364 a night and the most expensive in the survey, the Hyatt Carlton Hotel, charges $394.03 for a single room with breakfast — an increase of 21.5 percent over last year, it said.

American tourists account for 30 percent of total hotel business.

Luxury hotels such as the Savoy had looked the most vulnerable to the strong pound as, surprisingly, American millionaires are more sensitive to exchange considerations than the U.S. tourist, one broker said.

"The main booking season is over, so a slight fall in sterling isn't going to result in thousands of Americans booking holidays to Europe," said Bruce Jones at the brokers of Kitcat and Atken.

"But it will mean that there will be fewer cancellations," he said.

Colin Ellwood, chairman of the British Holiday and Home Parks Association said hotels in Britain are too expensive.

"Hotels have priced themselves out of the British holiday market and created a boom in business for U.K. caravan parks," he said.

"Six out of every 10 holiday bed-nights were now spent in a caravan of similar accommodation," he said.

Entrepreneur cracks Maryland crab market

By Mary Gabriel

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Joseph Bernard was selling seafood seasoning out of the back of his van three years ago. Now, he calls himself the Frank Perdue of crabs.

He said he has done for Maryland's prized crustaceans what Perdue has done for chickens. Bernard tarts the crabs up, puts his Wye River logo on the package and watches the profits roll in.

But what Bernard has wrought, some might consider blasphemy. The renegade Eastern Shore resident is selling packaged, seasoned, and pre-cooked microwaveable steamed crabs.

A 24-year employee of Baltimore's Fattley's Fish Market shook his head at the mere thought of it.

Fattley's cooks crabs the way they've been prepared since the first brave soul discovered that the blue, hard-shelled creatures in the Chesapeake Bay would turn pink and tasty when steamed.

But he admits that Bernard is a "smart young guy" and said grudgingly, "If he wants to do it, he'll probably find a way to make it work."

Bernard, 34, now president of Wye River Products, began his crab empire in 1985 with $18,000. After working in the food business for 11 years, he decided to come up with an alternative to Old Bay Seasoning, which had a monopoly in Maryland's crab-rich market for about 50 years and had gone national in its distribution.

"When you wanted to steam crabs, for years you only had one choice," Bernard said. "If you want barbecue sauce you can get nine or 10 different kinds. I thought people were ready for a choice."

But in Maryland no one wanted to buck the standard Old Bay, which to many crab lovers is as much a part of steamed crabs as hot water.

"Nobody felt they could come out against them. It was like coming out with a new cola against Coke and Pepsi. But I did it," Bernard said. "I think people down here laughed about it when I started out. But they don't laugh anymore because now I'm successful."

"I feel like Frank Perdue," he said from his home in Queenstown on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

Bernard began selling his spice — which now comes in a black and red variety — in Baltimore from the back of a van. To his surprise, his stock sold out in a week and requests were coming in for more.

"I hit a big crab year. I was lucky. I was amazed. There is a lot of salesmanship to it but a lot of people gave me a shot at it," he said.

By the start of this year's crab season, Bernard's Wye River products were in 5,000 stores — nearly every major food chain — and gourmet shops spanning the East Coast. He also exports his products to Tokyo and is expanding into the Pennsylvania and Florida markets.

"Down here, they thought there's no way I could ever make it. I started in a garage with no plumbing and no heat. Now I have a 10,000-square foot building," he said.

Seeing the potential for more products, Bernard did not stop with spices.

Since his seasoning success, Bernard has branched out into crab soups, which have become his largest business and contributed to his $2 million annual sales.

For the soup he requires 25,000 pounds of crab claw meat a month.

"I'm the only one in the world that cans cream of crab soup. It's surprising because crab soup in Maryland is like chicken noodle soup in North Dakota. But people don't think they can sell crab soup in North Dakota. I'm going to try."

The soup is popular in Japan. Bernard has designed a 7.5 ounce pop-top can, which caters to hotel dwellers who use hot plates and cook the soup in the can.

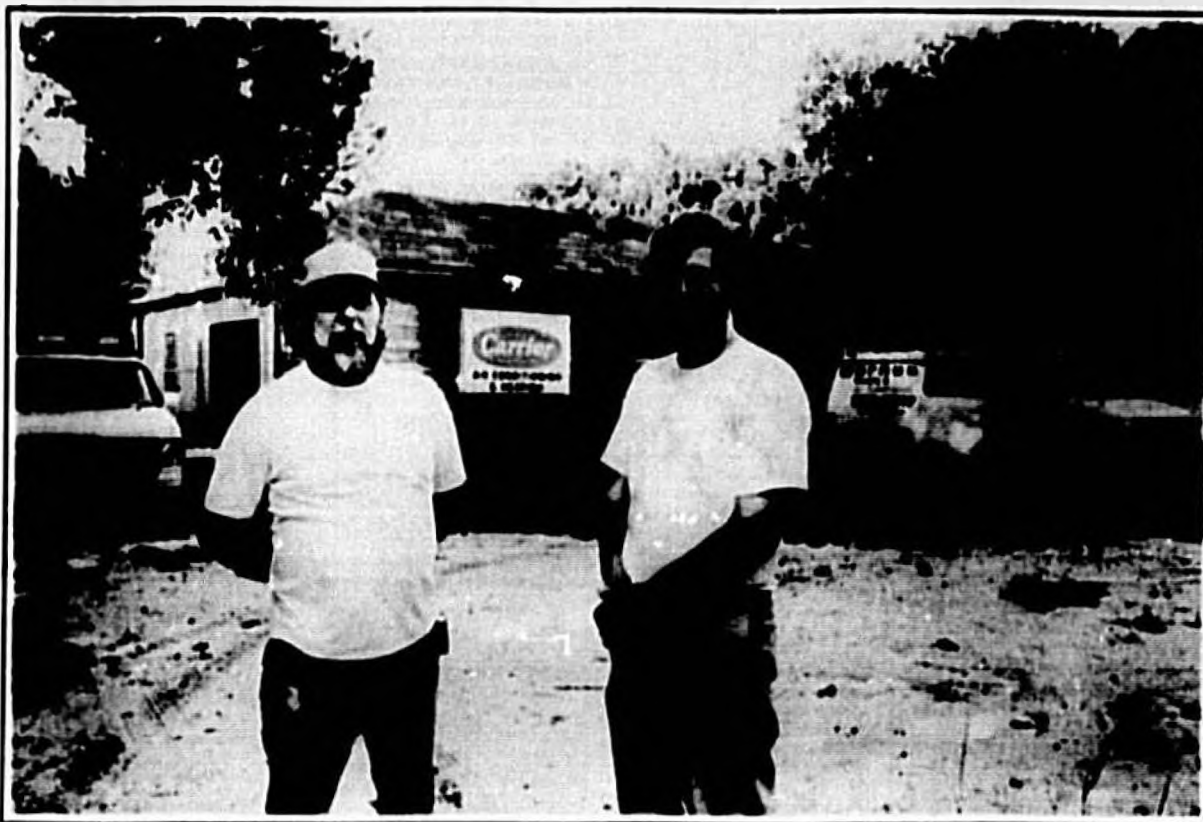

Last year was the first for the microwave crabs, which sell in packages of six for $9.95.

"It's not for everybody but it's for somebody who doesn't want to steam them for themselves," Bernard said.

What's next for Wye River? A brand of fresh back fin and jumbo lump crab meat, and a Silver Queen corn tortilla chip.

Bernard said he has had offers from larger companies who want to buy Wye River but he said he is not going to sell.

"I went into the business to be happy — not to be a millionaire. I have two young sons who I want to turn the business over to. I guess I'll be around for a few more years at least."

OPEC ministers accomplish little

VIENNA (UPI) — Oil ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries agreed today to retain their current production ceiling of 15.06 million barrels per day for the rest of the year.

The ministers, winding up their midyear meeting at OPEC headquarters, also agreed to reaffirm their commitment to an $18 a barrel price ceiling and named former Indonesian Oil Minister Dr. Subroto as OPEC's new secretary-general.

"We have reached final agreement to roll over the formal ceiling for the second half of this year," Venezuelan Oil Minister Arturo Hernandez Grisanti said as the ministers broke for lunch.

Iranian Oil Minister Gholamreza Aghazadeh said OPEC has reaffirmed its commitment to maintain an official goal of $18 a barrel, despite speculation in recent months that the cartel had unofficially abandoned the goal as unrealistic. Prices in recent weeks have hovered around $16 a barrel.

"Eighteen dollars is in the resolution, and a roll-over for six months," Aghazadeh said.

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Hisham Nazer was asked if the United Arab Emirates, whose minister walked out of the conference Sunday over the refusal of the majority to go along with production increases, would join the agreement. UAE Oil Minister Mana Saied Otaiba, who returned to Abu Dhabi to confer with his government, was on his way back to Vienna.

"Ask the minister when he arrives," Nazer said. "We have all agreed. As far as I am concerned, the meeting is over."

The ministers agreed to reconvene at 5 p.m. (11 a.m. EDT) for what is expected to be the concluding session.

"We want to hear from him, Otaiba," Ecuadoran Oil Minister Fernando Santos-Alvite said.

Grisanti confirmed that Dr. Subroto, who was replaced as Indonesia's oil minister in March in a government reshuffle and is highly respected within the cartel, would fill the vacant post of secretary-general.

Nazer said Saudi Arabia and the other Arab states of the Persian Gulf, who had been pushing for a production increase, consented to the will of the majority, who wanted to retain or even lower production to reduce prices. The Saudis are the cartel's biggest producer, with 4.3 million barrels a day.

"We would have liked to see an increase in production, especially in the fourth quarter, in view of the fact there is robust demand," Nazer said. "For the sake of consensus we agreed to roll over."

The ministers apparently made little or no progress on the difficult issue of a definition of crude oil.

Klan tapes first program

ALTA MONTE SPRINGS, Fla. (UPI) — The Grand Wizard of the Florida Ku Klux Klan said a production of Florida Klan News has been taped and is ready for broadcast on the public access channel on Storer Cable Communications in two weeks.

Tony Bastanzio of Apopka said he will bring the tape to the station Monday and pay the $200 required to air the program to a potential audience of 16,000.

Tony Pupo, operations manager at St. Lande Cablevision, serving Altamonte Springs, Lake Mary and parts of Seminole County, said no formal proposal for the show has been made.

Terry Binstock, an attorney for Storer Broadcasting in Miami, said as long as the program is not obscene, indecent, or defamatory there is little the firm can do to prevent the broadcast.

"I'm paying for my time. There is nothing they can do about it," said Bastanzio, 32.

Treat hypertension without drugs

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm male, with good health and not overweight. I do not smoke. Before my retirement at 60, my blood pressure was 160/90. My normal pressure is now 180/100 and goes higher under stress. A cardiologist does not feel that I need blood-pressure medicine, but my doctor disagrees. As a result, my doctor has tried numerous anti-hypertensives on me. They all give me terrible side effects and do nothing to lower my pressure. I'm in a dilemma, caught between feeling miserable and facing the risk of stroke.

DEAR READER: This is a hard question to answer. Low-grade hypertension in men over 60 is considered a "gray area": Some doctors will treat, others won't — for the very reasons you give. In my opinion, 180/100 is too high; therefore, I side with your doctor and disagree with the specialist. I think that you could try several non-drug approaches to your problem before resorting to medicine.

First, limit salt in your diet. Salt tends to elevate high blood pressure. Second, begin a program of exercise under your doctor's supervision. Physical activity often lowers blood pressure. Next, eliminate alcohol, which, in many people, may cause hypertension. Fourth, purchase a blood-pressure machine and learn to take your own readings. This way, you will be able to monitor your condition; your pressure at home may be significantly lower than the pressure in the doctor's office. In fact, you may not have hypertension at all; your elevated readings could result from stress. Fifth, try taking a calcium supplement, 1,000 to 1,500 milligrams of the mineral a day.

Any or all of these methods may help lower your blood pressure, without the use of drugs. Continue to check with your doctor and try to work with him — and, by all means, let me know if my suggestions are effective.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I drink a lot of mineral water. Lately, however, I have been hearing that some mineral water contains large amounts of lead, arsenic, fluoride and other toxic substances. How can we be sure the mineral water is safe?

DEAR READER: I don't know. These reports are preliminary and, as far as I can ascertain, have yet to form the basis for any public health recommendation. No reputable scientific study has shown that mineral water is superior to ordinary tap water.

Peter H. Gott, M.D.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

What a difference a lead makes! After South's four-spade bid closed the auction, West, who was on opening lead, had nothing particularly attractive to choose from. He finally hit upon the five of spades, a particularly good choice in our view. North did not figure to be rich in high cards, so presumably his spade raise was based upon shortness somewhere. If that was the case, the best defense would probably be to cut down on dummy's ruffing power. Declarer won the first trick and got to dummy with the ace of clubs to lead a diamond. West won the ace and continued with the ace and another spade. Ultimately declarer had to lose two more diamond tricks and his contract. Needless to say, with any lead other than a trump, South could easily make 10 tricks.

South could have gained in the bidding. Since he is accepting the game invitation in any event, there is no reason he should not offer an alternative game contract. Rather than bid four spades, he should bid four hearts. This is a simple message: "Partner, I am glad you could invite game. I have a good hand and I am accepting. However, I also have hearts, either four or five of them, and perhaps that will provide a more secure trump suit for us. What do you think?" Obviously, since North's heart support is better than his spades, he should be happy to pass four hearts. Incidentally, 10 tricks are there for the taking with hearts as trump, regardless of the defense.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
JUNE 15, 1988

Luck will play a role in your endeavors in the year ahead. Ironically, ventures you think are more promising might not finish as strong as the ones you feel are not as significant.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your normal channel of revenue could yield larger returns than usual today. Be alert for developments that could lead to a bonus or perhaps a raise. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph matchmaker wheel instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today, involvements where you'll have a free hand to operate in a relatively independent manner will have the greatest potential for success.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Situations where you can derive some type of side benefits, even though they may be nominal, are where you should concentrate your efforts today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something beneficial could result today through people with whom you'll be involved socially. However, it is not likely to be of a material nature.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Play hunches and follow intuitive leads in career matters. These ingredients, plus your common sense, can put you in front of the pack.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A contact who is in the position to help advance your present interests cannot be depended upon to call you. To be on the safe side, open the lines of communication yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The timing is right today to implement two changes you've been wanting to make that you feel will enhance your material security. Give them a try.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.

19) Today a person with whom you'll be involved has a long memory. The support and cooperation you shower on him/her will not readily be forgotten.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Multiple responsibilities aren't apt to intimidate you today. You'll be able to handle several important assignments simultaneously and still do a good job.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone with whom you will have to deal today could be in for a rude awakening when it is discovered you're the one holding the trump cards, not him/her.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Where personal interests are concerned you may only put forth nominal efforts today, but in matters that could benefit loved ones, your exertions will be more vigorous.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your greatest asset today is your ability to get along well with everyone you encounter. Your affable demeanor will be the key that opens doors.
