Patty To Testify Against Harris

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Patricia Hearst — kidnap victim, fugitive, and convicted bank robber — will assume a new role today as a grand jury witness testifying against her former Symbionese Liberation Army companions.

Miss Hearst's lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, says she will testify against self-avowed SLA members William and Emily Harris before an Alameda County Grand Jury investigating her Feb. 4, 1974 kidnaping.

The 22-year-old publishing heiress was sentenced Friday to seven years in prison on a bank robbery conviction.

Bell Aided FBI Taps

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Bell Telephone Co. employees did the wiring for FBI wiretaps and cooperated with the FBI for more than 30 years in setting up wiretaps without court orders, the Charlotte Observer reported today.

Observer said the telephone lines were put on the private telephone lines of such people as Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Muhammad Ali and Dr. Morton Halperin.

The newspaper said it based its information on unnamed sources and statements by retired Bell official Horace Hampton. Hampton testified earlier this year in a lawsuit against Bell filed by Halperin, a former aide to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger at the National Security Council.

UAW-Ford Talks Continue

DETROIT (AP) — The nationwide strike against Ford Motor Co. moved into its 13th day today after sporadic weekend bargaining sessions between UAW officials and the United Auto Workers and the nation's No. 2 auto maker.

There was no indication what time the two sides would meet again today.

Negotiations in the strike against Ford by 170,000 UAW members were marked Sunday by meetings of which both sides' presidents Woodcock and vice president Ken Bannan conferred with Ford officials. Neither side would disclose the specific issues discussed.

Commission Set To Hear City's Young And Old

By JACQUELINE DOWD Herald Staff Writer

Sanford's young and old — and their meeting places — will be discussed by city commissioners tonight at 7 p.m.

In a memo to city's policy group, Recreation Director Jim Jernigan said the city's policy of allowing senior citizens' groups to use the city center as a space available basis is beginning to cause problems.

A public hearing is scheduled to consider revoking an occupational license for Hot Foot's, an amusement hall and gathering place for Sanford youngsters at 2415 French Ave.

The agenda for tonight's meeting also includes: a contested rezoning that would allow for expansion of Guy's Bar-B-Que at 2101 French Ave.; a request from the Chamber of Commerce community affairs committee to erect "senior signs" at a fire department inspection of all structural buildings in the city, except private dwellings; formal approval of the city budget and tax rate for the fiscal year which starts Friday; and several other items.

The American Association of Retired Persons' Sanford Chapter has requested use of the civic center for its monthly meetings.

The chapter had built up a membership of over 150 members, President James B. Grant wrote. "But due to inadequate meeting room space at First Federal and also the Chamber of Commerce building, our membership has dropped to approximately 60 members. Even with this number we are cramped."

Jernigan did not make a recommendation to the commissioners, but said: "I feel there is going to be quite a few times there will be conflict of use between the two buildings. The official notice of hearing commitments on this date or on any other date in which they see

U.S. Still Hopeful On Africa Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, seeking to accept the positive, took an optimistic view of the declaration by five black African leaders that they reject some of Premier Ian Smith's terms for yielding power to Rhodesia's black majority but apparently accept some basic principles for such a transition.

The presidents of Zambia, Tanzania, Botswana, Mozambique and Angola, meeting Sunday in Lusaka, Zambia, turned down Smith's proposal for setting up a state council, with black-white parity, under a white chairman.

This council would, in theory, have powers to veto decisions of a black-dominated council of ministers serving as an executive agency while a new constitution is being shaped by five Rhodesia full statehood by 1978.

The presidents also reaffirmed their commitment to the guerrilla struggle against Smith's white minority regime and called on Britain to convene a constitutional conference to establish a black-majority government. Britain quickly agreed to that request.

Smith formally proposed his transition plan Friday after his details had been worked out by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and South African Prime Minister John Vorster.

Smith had called for a two-year transition period, an interim administration directed by the state council, a constitutional conference within Rhodesia to draft a new constitution and an end of the guerrilla war against the regime.

The State Department hailed the Lusaka declaration Sunday, saying "THE ROAD TO A NEGOTIATED SOLUTION IS NOW OPEN." U.S. officials described the declaration as an acceptance of the fundamental issues involved in Kissinger's recent shuttle negotiations in southern Africa, namely, the idea that the Smith government will yield power over a two-year period and that a conference will be convened to establish an interim government.

Furthermore, U.S. officials pointed out that President Julius Nyerere and Kenneth Kaunda of Tanzania and Zambia have both acknowledged publicly that guerrillas will cease firing as soon as a caretaker, or transitional, government is formed.

There also was speculation that African leaders were stalling because they could need time to try to gain support from the leading chiefs of Rhodesia's nationalist movements together to form a united front during the independence negotiations.

Dylova, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on Africa, said he doubted that such influence had led to the reaction by the five presidents.

Clark, speaking Sunday on CBS' "Face the Nation," also said Kissinger had assured him there were no secret provisions in the proposed Rhodesian settlement.

Powerful Lewis Aides Said To Carry 'Hatchet'

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Comptroller Gerald Lewis will quickly fire top officials of the Department of Banking and Finance if certain, tough-minded aides on his staff urge him to do it, the Florida Times-Union reports.

Quoting unnamed sources, the Jacksonville newspaper said Sunday that the "palace guard" was responsible for the abrupt firing of James Picola, former director of the Accounting and Auditing Division. That office disburses more than $6 billion a year.

Comptroller Vic Vickers, Deputy Comptroller Edward Mahoney and Ed Bishop, who recently resigned as Lewis' executive assistant.

"They can be mad at somebody, put a bug in his ear and in 30 minutes he'll be mad, too," the Times-Union quoted one source as saying. The newspaper said all its sources asked for anonymity because they feared retribution.

Tropical Storm Brewing

MIAMI (AP) — A tropical depression formed early today in the Atlantic Ocean, and forecasters said it could become the season's seventh tropical storm by Tuesday.

Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center said the depression, with highest winds of 35 miles an hour, was centered about 650 miles southeast of Bermuda and drifting northward. It posed no immediate threat to land.

"Conditions favor some strengthening during the next 24 hours and if this occurs it will become a tropical storm," a forecaster said. If the depression's winds exceed 39 m.p.h., the storm will be called Gloria.

Two of the season's tropical storms have become hurricanes. The Atlantic hurricane season began June 1 and ends Nov. 30.

Union Official Convicted

ORLANDO (AP) — Orlando Teamsters union local president Paul Parker has been convicted of three charges related to 1971 bombings of nonunion construction and trucking companies.

Parker, of Pine Hills, faces a maximum 15-year prison sentence on the Saturday conviction after a federal jury deliberated 7 1/2 hours.

The jury acquitted David Wingate of Winter Haven, a retired official of a laborers union. He had been accused of conspiracy to transport explosives.

A third defendant in the two-week trial, Ashley Burch Jr. of Winter Garden, earlier won a directed verdict of acquittal after his attorney argued that a five-year statute of limitations had expired in his case.

Florida Stunt Flyer Killed

WEYBURN CAVE, Va. (AP) — A Florida flight instructor who was stunt flying as a hobby was killed when his biplane crashed as it pulled out of a climb during an air show, officials said.

Witnesses said the single-engine aircraft piloted by Jerry Pressen, 35, of Miami Springs was nearing the end of a stunt routine at Valley Airport Sunday when it appeared to stall.

Pressen apparently restarted the engine, the witnesses said, but it stalled a second time and plunged into a field several hundred yards from the airport.

Pressen was dead when rescuers reached the demolished plane.

Mickey Upstaging Lions

WEST PALM BEACH (AP) — Mickey Mouse and his lovable friends at Disney World have upstaged the lions, giraffes, rhinos and other animals at Lion Country Safari as the prime attraction for the lines of tourists visiting the Sunshine State.

Once hailed as a promising investment, Lion Country Safari Inc. reported losses more than seven of the past 14 fiscal quarters.

The California-based firm that operates the 320-acre drive-through game preserve west of West Palm Beach and a similar park in Southern California lost $424,232 in 1975, $7.8 million in 1974 and $1.2 million in 1973.

Congressional Race

Newton: My Record Speaks For Itself

Miller Newton, an ordained Methodist minister and Pasco County Clerk of the Circuit Court, is opposing John Saunders in Tuesday's second primary election for the Democratic nomination for Florida's Fifth District seat in the U.S. House of Representatives.

A native of Florida, Newton, 38, was appointed to the circuit court clerk's post in June, 1973, to fill the unexpired term of a clerk who resigned.

Carrying Newton's campaign for him in Seminole County is High School Principal Don Reynolds, an unsuccessful candidate in the Sept. 7 primary.

Newton said today that another Seminole County resident candidate in that primary, County Commissioner Sid Vihlen Jr., has declared his neutrality in this election, but two of Vihlen's staff people have joined the Newton campaign line.

Newton sees a need for the district's congressman to deal with the major issues of unemployment, inflation and energy problems, for security for older Americans, including social security and Medicare.

He points to his experience as a consultant to the National Institute of Mental Health and as a delegate to the last White House conference on youth.

Newton has seven years higher education and a "record of strictly obeying the law and of honesty."

Newton and his wife, Ruth Ann, have a daughter and two sons ranging in age from 12 to 16.

Although an ordained Methodist minister, Newton does not serve a church regularly. However, he is the appointment rolls at the annual conference and is working outside the pulpit. He preaches occasionally and performs marriages.

He said the major contributors to his campaign are "literally" friends and neighbors.

"The problems of the people are increasingly difficult to solve on the local level," Newton said. They are increasingly pressed to the wall by higher gasoline and utility bills.

Answers Needed On Health Care

Sickness means pain and for too many Americans today the sharpest pangs are being felt in the pocketbook.

This comes as no secret to anyone who has had extended visits to a physician, a prolonged hospital stay, or undergone extensive laboratory examinations. A combination of those services cost Americans $118.5 billion last year, a 300 per cent increase in 10 years.

The U. S. Public Health Service wants to slow the course of that steamroller and a proposed five year National Health Care Plan makes two principal recommendations. Both should be pursued with diligence.

First is the problem of medical malpractice, the single largest factor in rising health care costs. Government bodies throughout the nation have failed to address this subject squarely, essentially because they have been too sensitive to pressures of diverse interests within the medical, legal and insurance professions.

To achieve the five-year goals of making a significant reduction in the cost of care, the malpractice situation must be addressed as a priority issue. Mashed with it is the need for extensive revision of service charges in Medicare and Medicaid programs. This is a sizable portion of the national health care expense because Medicare recipients alone now number more than 24 million persons.

Remedies for these problems are needed soon if costs are to be kept in anything approaching reasonable bounds. But equal consideration should also be given to another Public Health Service appeal for more expanded use of preventive health care programs. The theory is simple: Better individual health care practices which prevent illness can significantly reduce medical costs. The American people must use the full capabilities of our advanced medical technology. Stronger emphasis should be placed on antismoking programs, drug abuse laws, alcoholism, physical fitness, nutrition and mental health services. Immunization techniques for communicable diseases can be better utilized. Stronger efforts can also be made to control ravages of the environment which affect individual well-being such as air, noise and water pollution.

The Public Health Service has handed government leaders and the American people a tall order to meet in five years. We must be up to the task.

Hays Syndrome

Wayne Hays is gone but his syndrome remains. The arbitrary power of congressmen to hire and fire their personal staff, and pay them with public money, remains largely undiminished by a few reforms voted by the House in the aftermath of the Hays scandal.

There should be an annual audit of each congressman's payroll to show for what each of his employees is being paid.

The rules for the use of public employees on congressional staffs need to be reformed. What latitude is permissible in using tax-paid staff for private purposes?

The Congress has been lax when it allowed a man like Hays to become chief administrator of the lower house. He set a poor example, but he was following established tradition.

Gettysburg, Carter Fashion

GETTYSBURG, Pa. — It is November, 1863. The nation is at war. Jimmy Carter, President of the United States, steps to a crossroads in the obscure fields of south central Pennsylvania, and quietly delivers the Gettysburg Address.

"Can you hear me in the crowd? I want all of you to come forward and crowd round me so I can see your faces and look into your eyes. I love you all, regardless of race, creed or pigmentation."

"I believe it was 87 years ago, last July, that our good deities gathered together in mutual trust and decency to establish a new nation in this part of the world. It was a formidable task. And one that required all of the sacrifice and cooperation and spirit that God had generously given to the people of the colonies."

"Of course that nation was the United States. It was conceived in the idea that governments should only meddle in the affairs of men to a point, and it was dedicated to the proposition that all of us, whatever the misfortune of our birth, are brothers and sisters and should not therefore be separated by barriers of inequality."

"Now we are involved in this great civil disturbance, stretching from this great state of Georgia here to Pennsylvania and beyond, testing whether the notions and values of our kind shall continue."

"My position on this has, of course, always been very positive. While I understand the states' rights sentiments of those who may disagree with the Union as it is constituted, I am opposed to the extreme measures they have taken in the name of states' rights. The Constitution provides a better way for resolving domestic contradictions, though I would not be in favor of any amendment that would deny the black community the right to work for wages like everyone else."

"And so we have gathered today, in affection and reverence, on the ground where certain of our countrymen have argued violently regarding this matter. We are engaged in settling aside for posterity a portion of this fertile farmland as a final resting place for those who, well, lost the argument one way or another. I definitely support this endeavor, this monument, without any equivocation."

"But I should say, at the risk of detracting from our effort, that this soil cannot be dedicated, or consecrated, or hallowed by us."

"It is rather for us from Washington, and those of you from fine cities and towns throughout the land, to succinctly our address, carrying forth the great argument. All of us—scientists, farmers, military people, businessmen, and I know there are some who fit a combination of these descriptions—must reaffirm our dedication to the great task remaining ahead. We must have faith and belief, and take increased devotion to the cause these department men so nobly advanced."

Finger Lickin' Israel Deal Not Kosher

WASHINGTON — Kentucky Fried Chicken, which peddles Colonel Sanders' delectables around the world, would like to have its chicken and eat it too.

The corporate bosses, according to their confidential papers, would like to open a franchise in Israel. But if they should raise the colors' goaded visage in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv, they might be boycotted by the Arab nations and thus lose a lot of bucks.

So they were considering a scheme that would permit them to sell finger-lickin'-good chicken to the Israelis without offending the Arabs. The plan, as outlined in confidential corporate memos, calls for setting up an Israeli franchise, pretending it is illegal and laundering the proceeds, possibly through South Africa.

Kentucky Fried Chicken is now owned by the Heublein Corp., a billion-dollar firm that otherwise dispenses beer, wine and liquors. One of its executives, G.A. McNamara, is convinced that Colonel Sanders' Kentucky recipe would be gobbled up in Israel.

"We must be in Israel," he declared in a July 23, 1976, memo. But this could leave the Heublein Corp. with a lot of uneaten chicken on its hands from Cairo to Kuwait. He concluded, therefore, that "we cannot be there legally."

But there is more than one way to pluck a chicken. He had located a man who was "interested in becoming a pirate franchisee," confided McNamara. "With some sort of remuneration to us via South Africa or elsewhere. He understands that we could not condone nor service his operations in Israel, for cosmetic reasons might... have to bring litigation against him in Israel for usurping our mark."

While the company engaged in this legal charade, it would quietly collect its regular royalties under the table. The proposal has not been implemented, a Heublein spokesman told us.

The hope of selling fried chicken to both the Arabs and Israelis has occupied the Heublein hierarchy for some time. McNamara assessed the Middle East market in a July 18, 1976, memo stamped "personal and confidential." Deals were cooking, he reported, in Iran, Kuwait and Lebanon, as well as Egypt and the Arabian Gulf countries.

"In Jordan," he added, "we have just signed with a cousin of King Hussein. Price: All for a one-store option, and... the market looks like it could easily hold 10 to 15 units."

McNamara noted that Kenji Fry Fried Chicken had received a number of requests for franchises in Israel.

It could mean trouble with "U.S. and U.K. (United Kingdom) Jewish organizations," he warned, if Colonel Sanders invaded Israel and then retreated at the first Arab outcry. The company might even face "a very serious boycott on our beverage and food activities in major markets throughout the world," he cautioned.

Therefore, he concluded: "I feel that we should continue with our Arab world development and for cosmetic reasons continue periodically to discuss with interested parties in Israel so as to keep the file active. However, I do not seriously doubt whether we should ever, at least until we have a House committee about Philippine atrocities under Marcos. Mijares testified anyway."

We can find no evidence that Marcos has intervened with the United States to block Mijares' appeal for asylum. We can report, however, that the U.S. desire to get along with Marcos is a major factor in the delay.

For the record, the State Dept. refused comment on the case, saying it is still under consideration. In fact, most political asylum requests are resolved in less than six months.

Walking along a Sanford street Sunday afternoon, couldn't help but overhear a couple of guys talking. At first it sounded kind of strange, but after listening closer, it seemed natural enough. The two were standing in front of a house in a quiet, residential neighborhood. They seemed to be neighbors — at least their houses were next to each other...

"Good morning," said one of the men.

"What do you mean by that?" responded the second man, obviously taken aback by the greeting. And a bit abashed, at that.

"What do you mean 'what do I mean?' Just what I said. Wanted to wish you a good day — as all good neighbors should."

"Good neighbors?"

"Good neighbors? What are you talking about. Who are you, by the way?"

"Name's Howell," the man replied, extending his hand which just fell downward limply. Live right there; guess it's next door to you place."

"Oh? Interesting. How long have you lived there? Just move in?"

"Not exactly. Next week will be 37 years."

Guerrillas in Retribution

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The Syrian government hanged three pro-Palestinian guerrillas at dawn today in swift retribution for a bloody raid on a Damascus hotel just 24 hours earlier.

A fourth guerrilla and four hostages were killed and 34 hostages were wounded in a seven-hour battle for the Semiramis Hotel in the most daring Palestinian attack yet in Syria.

The three surviving terrorists were hanged in a public square facing the luxury hotel. Their bodies, clad only in white tunics, were left dangling in nooses for six hours as thousands of Syrians pressed around the gallows and climbed to balconies and rooftops to see the victims.

The guerrillas called themselves the "Black June" group and apparently were protesting Syria's military intervention that began last June in the Lebanese civil war.

Violation of Rights Charged

LONDON (AP) — Amnesty International claims that more than 100 countries, including the United States, have violated the human rights of prison inmates.

In a report released Sunday by the nongovernmental agency based here, it said Amnesty groups are investigating eight cases involving American prisoners.

"People are not officially imprisoned (in the United States) because of their political view or actions," the report said, "but in some cases it is difficult to avoid the suspicion that an individual's imprisonment may be due to his political actions, rather than to the crime which he or she is alleged to have committed."

Airmen, Executives Among Those Killed

35 Die in Separate Airplane Crashes

By The Associated Press
Fifteen Air Force men on a training flight and four pharmaceutical company executives en route with their wives to a meeting at a Virginia resort were among 35 persons killed in plane crashes during a deadly six-hour span.

The crashes Sunday in four states left at least 15 children orphaned — children of the Johnson & Johnson subsidiaries' officials who were in the Johnson & Johnson subsidiary's offices in Hot Springs, Va. Three crew members aboard the company-owned jet also were killed.

To Colorado, a lawyer and his wife returning to Denver from a meeting at a summer ski resort in Steamboat Springs were among six persons killed in the crash of a twin-engine Atec Piper which slammed into two propane fuel storage tanks and burst into flames.

Air Force officials said there were five survivors of the crash of a KC135 tanker jet which went down in a wooded area near Alpena, Mich., sometime after 4:30 a.m. Sunday. That's when Wurtsmith Air Force Base last had radar and radio contact with the pilot.

Two majors, nine captains, two 1st lieutenants and two sergeants died. Few Expected To Go To Polls

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Election officials, already disappointed at the dismal turnout for the primary, are predicting that even fewer people will vote in Tuesday's runoff with only one statewide race on the ballot.

The runoff primary features a statewide battle for a seat on the Supreme Court plus three congressional contests, two state Senate races and two House races.

State Elections Director Mary Singleton says her hopes for a 60 per cent turnout in the Sept. 7 primary crashed by a paltry showing of only about 31 per cent.

She said the turnout would be smaller this time but refused to predict a specific figure.

"We're just going to hope for the best," she said.

But some county election officials around the state, aware that the second primary historically has attracted much more turnout, are predicting that the turnout could fall to 15 per cent in the State's 3.6 million voters.

In the Supreme Court race, former state Sen. Fred Karl of Tallahassee is running against former Circuit Judge Charles Holley of Naples. At stake is the seat of retiring Justice B.K. Roberts.

In the hottest race of the runoff, Leon County Commissioner Travis Marchant is trying to displace legislative candidate of Senate President Dennis Barron, D-Panama City. Barron, who had finished first in every election of his career, trailed Marchant in the first primary. But Marchant's

Feuding To Go To Mediator

MIAMI (AP) — Neighbors feuding over barking dogs or noisy children can go to a mediator instead of court. There is just one rule: only one person may talk at a time.

"It's a time when it's so important that can be," says Mari Brauer, who works in the Miami mediator program, one of three under way in the state.

In Florida, petty disputes used to go to the justice of the peace, one step before the formal courtroom procedure. But lawmakers abolished the post in reorganizing the court system, and petty disputes wound up in county or circuit court.

Experts say that in minor or circuit courts many disputes receive low priority and sometimes get squeezed out of crowded dockets.

State Lotteries Promote Crime?

MIAMI (AP) — States that legalize gambling may only be setting up new customers and victims for the underworld's sophisticated gambling operations, FBI Director Clarence Kelley says.

"The various state lotteries around the country not only fail to compete with the underworld," Kelley said, "but may actually be creating a whole new influx of bettors who will someday switch their wagers to the hoodlum element as their addiction grows."

Speaking Sunday to journalists and police in a city where legalized gambling is a perennial issue, Kelley warned that some of the state's major crimes remain but must be phased out by January.

Experts say that in minor or circuit courts many disputes receive low priority and sometimes get squeezed out of crowded dockets.

"I can remember one case," he said, "in which a very persuasive argument was made. If you don't pay, you will be killed. There is something that starts to creep in to your attention. You will be killed."

Kelley, challenging the idea that gambling is a crime without victims, said that some big losers rob and steal to pay their debts.

Cale's Streak Remains Intact

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — It became obvious early in the Grand National stock car season that Cale Yarborough and the Junior Johnson crew were doing some major fiddling around with the car's Chevrolet.

On one thing, the cars didn't sound right. Instead of that deep, vibrating, unamplified roar, they had a high-pitched whine. That was from a new 180-degree exhaust system.

But there were things inside and underneath that didn't show — things that some of the other teams would dearly love to see now that Yarborough is on his way to winning his first

Don't Force Son To Get College Degree

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
 DEAR ABBY: My middle son, Andy, is a very intelligent young man of 19. He went to college for one year just to please us, then he quit, saying, "I don't want to waste any more of my time and my money."

His grades were fine, but he says he prefers working with his hands. He's now enrolled in a trade school and we're so disappointed in him!

I'm not putting down people who work with their hands, Abby, but it seems to me that people who work with their hands do so because they aren't smart enough to work with their minds.

Andy's father is a professional man, and both of Andy's brothers plan to enter professions.

Please say in your column that a college degree is absolutely necessary these days. After Andy graduates from college he can do anything he chooses, but we desperately want him to have a college degree first. Thank you.

Choraliers In Tune For Coming Season

Choraliers with the Central Florida Choral are getting tuned in for a season of the sound of music. And they can't wait to perform on concert in December for the Choral for no charge. The choral is accepting bookings through Irene Brown, vocalist or Betty Smith, director and accompanist.

According to Choralier Ruth Michelson, "We get together and sing because we love to sing and make people happy."

The Choral scored a big hit last year when they raised funds to make a musical tour of Poland. They are planning a tour again next year.

The talented group of women appears in colorful attire which they either purchase or make themselves. Their expenses are kept at a bare minimum through donations and their personal efforts.

Three new voices to be heard with the choral during the forthcoming season are Lois Sloan, Shirley Yon and Elizabeth Rich.

The remaining singers are Jenny Benz, Mary Jean Berrin, Sue Cann, Mary Ann Graham, Elizabeth Hall, Sylvia Henderson, Glynce Mann, Marilyn Meredith, Jean Morris, Bonnie Platt, Mary Reddick, Bobbi Robbins, Sue Rich and Dot Walker.

After writing, casting and directing a historical skit for the first meeting of the Women's Club on Oct. 6, the story begins with a reserved setting in 1913. On approaching the women's liberation and "go-go" era, I envisioned the cast of huffing, puffing and blowing clouds of smoke during the scene.

To my surprise not one of the cast smoked. So hats off to Pat Foster, DeLores Lash, Martha Vance, Pat Boers, Dora Lee Ruster and Bill Gilroy.

Are you a non-smoker? Did or write me your sentiments or kicking the habit or why you never smoked.

Speaking of DeLores Lash, one of Lake Mary's women for all seasons, she showed up at a coffee with a new short cut and a very New York red, white and black longer length frock.

Annie Russell Opens Bright New Run

The Annie Russell Theatre at Rollins College will present for the first time in Florida, three recent Broadway hits in addition to two time-honored classics.

The 4th season will open Oct. 21 with "Candide," the Leonard Bernstein musical based on Voltaire's 18th century satire on optimism.

Starting Dec. 2, "a slice of salami" will preview on the Annie Russell Theatre stage with a warm family comedy, "Saturday, Sunday, Monday."

The play deals with a typical Italian family in Rome. We see on three successive days, as with full Latin temperament, they love, squabble, laugh, make-up and eat their way through quantities of pasta cooked before the audience's eyes.

Dr. Robert Jaeger, director of the Theatre Rollins, will play the part of Willy Loman in "Death of a Salesman," scheduled to open in the Sanford's Women's Club Theatre on Jan. 27. This Pulitzer Prize winning play is now firmly established as a major American classic.

Hot Foot's Loses License; Sanford Closes Its Doors

Hot Foot's closed up for the last time a little early last night, after the last group of kids drifted away about 10:30. It was a quiet weeknight — and the last night of business for the amusement center on French Avenue near 25th Street.

Sanford city commissioners voted to revoke Hot Foot's occupational license shortly after 9 Monday night. Less than two hours later the last football game was over.

And it may not be long before the scene is repeated at Sanford's other game room, Blast-Off Amusements on South Sanford Avenue.

A 90-minute public hearing before a full house at Sanford city hall preceded the decision and highlighted the longest city commission meeting in at least six months.

After the four commissioners present unanimously voted to revoke Hot Foot's license, Mayor Lee Moore read several letters from neighbors of Blast-Off.

A public hearing on the revocation of Blast-Off's occupational license was set for Oct. 11. If Blast-Off is closed, Sanford youngsters will be left without any gathering place.

A half-dozen Blast-Off neighbors attended last night's meeting, but most of the crowd was there to complain about Hot Foot's.

County Will Help In Orienta Cleanup

Altamonte Springs Councilman Sandra Glenn won a surprise victory today when Seminole County commissioners agreed to participate in a $52,500 program to clean up Lake Orienta.

"Well, I'm elated," Mrs. Glenn said following a close 3-to-2 vote by the commission. "This represents a lot of hard work on the part of a lot of dedicated people."

Commissioner John Kimbrough said approval of the program was "almost like signing a blank check." Kimbrough and Republican colleague Dick Williams, who for the past year has fought unsuccessfully for a program to break the tie.

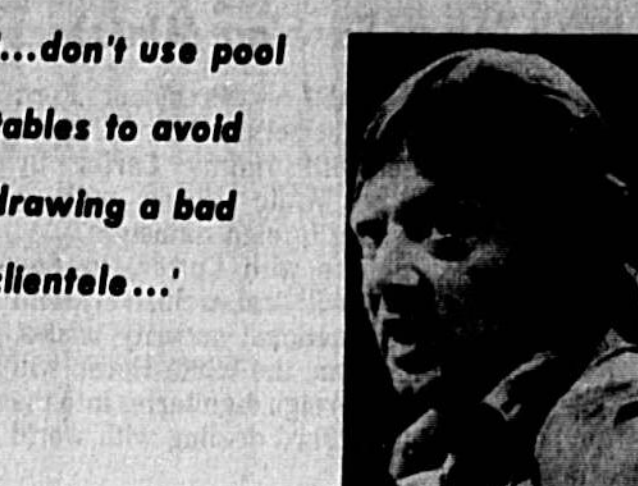

Williams' opposition centered around the fact that lake-side dwellers will not be required to contribute. The county's contribution of $17,500 will be either in cash or in-kind services. The remainder of the $35,000 will come from the city of Altamonte and the state.

Mrs. Glenn appeared last week to fight for funds to eradicate weeds in the 126-acre lake, and she attended a commission work session on Monday.

She stressed the fact that her program is "experimental." But she said that initial spraying of the weeds, which the hopes will be done by December, is "not a one-time shot."

Democratic commissioners Harry Kniakowski, Sid Vihlen Jr. and Mike Hartaway voted in favor of the program. At the first call for a vote, the commission split 4-to-2. The Hartaway was called in from outside commission chambers to break the tie.

Vihlen pointed out that Lake Orienta is a public lake and also one that is in dire danger of being overrun by noxious weeds.

(A) Pot In Every Chicken? TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — State officials say that a shopper bought a frozen chicken at a Tallahassee supermarket last week — and found the butt of a marijuana cigarette packed with the giblets.

Jane Robinson, director of the state's Consumer Services Division, said Monday that Leon County sheriff's deputies confirmed that the butt was part of a contraband cigarette and turned the evidence over to the Food and Drug Administration.

Mrs. Robinson said the federal agency handled the case because the chicken, which the supermarket replaced for the shopper, had been shipped in from outside the state.

"Herbert Hoover used to promise a chicken in every pot," she said. "Now we're getting pot in chicken."

IT'S ANCHOR'S (FAR) AWAY

By ED PRICKETT Herald Staff Writer Since time immemorial, the sea has beckoned man. No matter what the weather, Ernest Hemingway on his fishing expeditions, or Herman Melville's mythical Captain Ahab and his high seas quest to kill the legendary great white whale, Moby Dick.

Now the sea beckons another. This time it's Seminole County's Bill Dale, the director of environmental services. The lure of high adventure and far-away islands proved too much.

On Friday, Dale leaves his director's position to board the Lemon Twist, his 22-foot sailing boat. His final destination is unknown, but plans are to head toward the Bahamas, to Costa Rica, the Virgin Islands and then to Galveston, Tex.

Nice to have someone hand you beer...

in New Smyrna Beach and out onto the high seas. This time it will be different; he won't be coming back.

Dale's folks live out Texas way. And it was in Dallas in a pub called the Lemon Twist that his boat's name was born.

After a 24-day trip to the Bahamas, Dale will sail toward the islands. Doesn't the sea get lonely on calm nights when storms don't ride high and the waves are soft?

A sparkle dances in Dale's eyes, and a grin eases its way through the crevices of reddish beard that is beginning to grow well. "It's nice to have someone hand you beer," he quips. But are you sailing alone? Again the grin. "A couple of girls have asked to go. But I don't know. A lot could happen between now and Friday. "If you know any adventurous women who want to sail, tell them to call me." And with that plus a final grin, Dale leaves his perch on a ship's deck to resume his last few hours of duty with the county. But there's only one thing on his mind and that's a boat named the Lemon Twist and the prospect of a long-lasting voyage on the high seas.

Where Have All The Voters Gone? It was slim pickins at polls this morning, including at Pct. 19, Seminole High, where E. L. Drebert kept a patient eye on the door waiting for a voter — any voter. As of midnight, voting was low, with officials predicting a 10-15 per cent turnout.
