Feds Close '47 Season With 2 To 1 Win Over Solons

Bill Stanton Hurls 19th Victory And Limits Sens To 6 Well Scattered Hits

ORLANDO, Sept. 2. (Special)—Big Bill Stanton chalked up his 19th Florida State League victory here last night in the final contest of the 1947 season for the Sanford Celery Feds as he limited the Senators to six well scattered hits in the 2 to 1 battle.

Meanwhile, the Fed batters were combing the offerings of Manager Lou Bevil, Gene Major and Stan Zedalis for nine singles. Sanford scored both their runs in the initial frame from the offerings of Bevil.

Ralph Satterfield banged a single to left field, sending Don Murray across from third base and on the throw to the plate Walt Harrington crossed the plate when Don Ford, catching for the Senators, dropped the ball.

Orlando scored in the fifth on a fielder's choice, an infield out and a single by Craig Lybrand.

Today is an off day for all teams in the league, but the playoff series will begin tomorrow with the Orlando Senators invading Francis Field in St. Augustine and the DeLand Red Hots motoring to Gainesville for a tilt.

New Jersey Diamond Star Says Dieting Assisted Hitting

AP Newsfeatures
BLOOMINGDALE, N. J.—When the Bloomingdale Troopers of the Class D North Atlantic League returned home from a recent disastrous road trip, safely entrenched in last place and with hardly a mathematical chance of climbing high enough to gain a place in the post-season play-offs, one-fourth of the town was on hand to greet the club and attempt to cheer it on to victory.

When that many of Bloomingdale's 2,616 residents turn out for a game there must be a reason. There is—Carl (Butch) Sawatski. A native of nearby Mountain View, the 19-year-old, 216-pound Sawatski has been luring the fans to the Bloomingdale games, not only at home but on the road as well.

Rated a great prospect by the Philadelphia National League Club when he starred at their Pony League farm team in Bradford, Pa., in 1945, Sawatski was ridden the gate in 1946 by Schenectady of the Canadian-American league because he refused to keep in condition and blossomed to a 240-pounder—far too much for his five-foot line frame.

Turning over a new leaf after his unconditional release, Sawatski finished the season last year with Bloomingdale, and then busied himself during the winter in getting in shape for baseball this spring. As a result he weighed 220 pounds at the outset of the campaign and has since taken another five pounds off through hard work.

A third baseman initially, and an outfielder with Bradford, Sawatski is a catcher today by his own choice.

"I didn't know anything about the position," he admits, "but I wanted to play ball. I realized that to play I'd have to stay in shape. As I naturally have a tendency to put on weight, I figured the best where I'd have to work the hardest would be the best for me, so I asked for a trial behind the plate. The position was difficult at first, but I liked it from the start. If I can keep on catching I think I'll be able to stick to baseball. And that's my ambition today."

What has Sawatski got to do with the large Bloomingdale turnout? Plenty. The fans all come to see him hit homers. In the first 87 games this season—he was out two weeks early in the year with a split finger—he came to bat 310 times. He rapped out 119 hits of which 80 were home runs, four triples and 32 two-base shots. In addition he has compiled a sizeable number of intentional bases on balls, and his R.B.I. total of 103 is second by only a single run to the league leader. He leads the circuit in home runs by a sizeable margin, and the league batters with his 384 mark. In runs scored, total hits and two-base hits he is second in the league.

So much do the Bloomingdale owners, who have a working agreement with Cleveland, think of Butch that when the team was without a manager recently he was named as acting manager, at 19 probably one of the youngest in organized baseball. He also drives the team's bus on its trips from town to town, and his income is continually being augmented by handsome gifts from the fans who reward each of his home runs with a "bonus" spontaneously contributed from the stands during the home games.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Murrell Jones, Red Sox, drove in all Boston's runs with a single and 16th home run in second game 4-1 decision over the Yankees.

Larry Jansen, Giants, won his 17th game of the season and 10th straight with a four hitter over the Braves as Giants won the first game of a double header 2-1.

trophies. The Seminole County Chamber of Commerce trophy, which must be won three times in succession for permanent possession, was accepted by Al Lee for Jimmy Cowan. The Coast Guard Auxiliary trophy for fastest in-board motorboat, which was won by John Pope, was presented to his father H. B. Pope. And the Florida Outboard Association's trophy for high point winner, won by Bobby Reddy of Orlando, was also accepted by Mr. Lee.

Col. Willis E. Teale, U. S. Army district engineer, who was introduced by Manager Ed Higgins of the Chamber of Commerce as one who had been of great help on the St. Johns River project and without whose aid little could have been accomplished on the 12 foot channel, said that he had just made his first trip over the part of the channel which has been completed. He commended the work of the Chamber of Commerce in sponsoring the project and said that it had done more than could have been expected.

Senator Holland commended Sanford civic leaders for being on their toes as exemplified by the gala occasion celebrating Labor Day, as well as by the frequent appeals for aid to various community projects during his first year as senator. Admitting that the labor problem is not one on which all good citizens can agree, Senator Holland declared he was one of those who felt that new labor legislation was needed if America was to maintain its proper place in a civilized world.

He called attention to the fact that while he served as governor during four wartime years, not a single important plant for the production of materials of war was shut down by labor strife, and he praised the spirit of various factions alike which united during the recent session of the Legislature in working for a satisfactory state labor relations law for the utility industry.

He said he regretted that national labor leaders had not seen fit to co-operate with those seeking national laws to bring an end to industrial strife, but he expressed the hope that they might yet find the way to a moderate one and try to make it work. His position in the matter had been prompted by three motives he said, as follows:

- 1) The need for bringing an end to repeated industrial stoppages.
- 2) The necessity of preventing racketeering by a few labor leaders in some unions.
- 3) The creation of a better balance between labor and management so that collective bargaining might proceed without interference from selfish interests on either side.

Emphasizing the importance of bringing an end to internal bickering, Senator Holland declared that the existence of a strong United States commanding the friendship and respect of all the civilized nations of the world is the most important factor in the international picture at the present time. "We must have peace at home," he said, "if we are to have peace abroad."

Rev. J. E. McKinley pronounced the invocation. Charles Morrison led the singing with Harry Kudell at the piano. Following the benediction a dance was held in the Mayfair ball room.

DALLAS—Byron Nelson, the lean Texas rancher who in the not too distant past (it just seems a long time ago) was the kingly of all golfers, admits he has a feeling of nostalgia when you mention the glamor and the glory of the tournament trail.

But Byron just doesn't let himself become sentimental; he looks at it all from the practical standpoint.

It was just a year ago that he quit tournament golf. He didn't he says, because he had too much money although everyone knows he had a pretty good stake. Nelson was seeking contentment—and the headlines didn't bring the kind that raking in the cash ever could hope for it to be so.

"My game was as good as I had there was no way to go except back," he declares. "Besides, my nervous condition told me I had to quit the tension of the tournament trail. I had lost interest in the game itself; I was playing only for the money. I had lost my desire. Golf wasn't fun any more."

Nelson's views were aired in an interview obtained following strong reports that he planned to return to tournament golf. Lord Byron appeared to enjoy the attention—it was something from the glittering past. It must have made him feel that after all he wasn't forgotten, that his name still meant something in the game of golf. But he was emphatic in denying that he would go back to the weary trail that made him rich but filled him with discontent.

Nelson grimaced when he added another reason: "I am too old. How many golfers are on top when they get in the 35-37 bracket? Here, they used to win when they were 40 or past; but they had only four or five tournaments a year; now there are 40." Nelson is 35.

Nelson is playing plenty of golf but it's not the "pressure" kind. He is appearing in exhibitions over the country; he was in 35 in two months.

That he can still hit that little pellet is shown by the fact that he averaged 67 on his rounds. That would be winning golf along the tournament trail. But he is making as much money playing for fun as he could have earned in the tournaments.

Byron has plenty of interests. He still sells golf clubs for a manufacturer, is vice-president of an umbrella company at Toledo, O., does radio work and writes about golf, and owns a 630-acre ranch near Roanoke, Tex., on which he raises Whitefaces Herefords.

He will appear in two tournaments a year—the Texas PGA and the Masters at Augusta, Ga. That will be all except the exhibitions. The latter keep him quite active in golf and he meets the same people he did while he was a headliner on the tournament trail.

An elderly man elbowed his way to where Byron stood chatting with sports writers.

"You used to caddy for me," the man said. "Yes, you used to caddy for me and shoot so much better golf than I could I hated to go to the clubhouse and get kidded."

Richard Diaz, Tampa Driver, Wins Race

Richard Diaz of Tampa roared home just ahead of Speed Funderburk, a fellow Tampan, to emerge victorious in the Castleberry Sweepstakes, the ten mile feature of the Labor Day auto races at the Seminole Park Speedway.

Funderburk arrived too late to qualify in the initial events of the day, but was allowed to enter the final race by a vote of the drivers and owners.

The five event race card was not marred by a serious accident, and nearly 800 speedway fans screamed in excitement when cars would tangle in clouds of dust on the turns.

Winners of the opening races were Diaz, Herman Owens of Charlotte, N. C. and E. V. Murlock of Macon, Ga.

YES—USED FATS Are Still Needed

JOE CLEMENTINE PADDLEFORD, Food Editor of This Week

Here's the answer to you women who are wondering if you should still save used fats! Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson says, "It is still necessary to conserve every pound of fat, since the over-all fat supply situation is little better now than it was last year." You see, many things we use require industrial fats or their products, and there aren't enough fats in the world to go around.

Bigamist Has Matés In 6 Years

YETTE, Ga., Sept. 2, (AP)—A 37-year-old woman, who Sheriff Scroggins said, became a bride at 15 and in the next six years acquired five more husbands without benefit of divorce, yesterday after conviction by a jury.

Scroggins identified the woman as Emma Mae Tish, a tenant of a local textile mill village. He said she was about four feet tall and weighed about 75 pounds.

Scroggins said the woman admitted six marriages, but said she thought the first five had ended here. Most of the husbands were service men, the sheriff added.

She was convicted of five cases of bigamy, and Superior Judge J. B. Porter sentenced her to 10 years for each conviction, but allowed the sentences were to run concurrently.

The sheriff said the first five marriages came to light when the Scroggins said she was first married to Ben R. Fuller of Lookout Mountain, Ga., at Rossville, Ga., at the age of 15 and listed the other husbands in order as: Alfred W. Seales, a soldier; Emerson Hay, a soldier; Charlie Atkins, Frank J. Triplett and Warren.

He said he did not know the addresses of the husbands, but whether Atkins and Triplett were service men. All of the marriages occurred in the Rossville, Ga., area on the Georgia-Tennessee border.

FARMERS MUST EMPLOY ONLY BETTER METHODS TO MAINTAIN PROFITS

Economists and others who study the business side of farming are convinced that farmers must use only the best methods they know if they are to maintain a fair margin of profit in the years ahead. Efficiency in production has been increasing rapidly and must continue to increase, the economists say.

The cost of operating the average farm is nearly twice as high now as it was in 1911. Prices of services and goods farmers must have are still rising. Those goods and services which depend mostly upon the cost of labor are expected to continue rising in price for some months, perhaps.

Farm wage rates rose faster during the war than did the price of farm products. One-third more products of more are required to pay for an hour of hired labor now than in 1911. And wage rates are not apt to fall materially until there is considerable unemployment in the nation.

And when considerable unemployment does develop, prices of farm products drop faster and farther than the costs of operating a farm. The thing farmers sell will go likely come down in price before the things they buy.

The best way to be prepared to meet declining prices is to produce efficiently and reduce costs. During the war years, farmers produced from one-fourth to one-third more, with 10 percent less labor that they had before the war. Increased mechanization and improved efficiency were the answer.

The trend toward higher production per worker is likely to continue, and the outlook for the years ahead is bright. To be more optimistic for the farmer who can keep abreast of this trend.
