CHARADES

DUZZLING is only a hobby to C. B. Colby. Aviation is his profession, so the silhquette of the plane that is the solution of his latest "Foldie" puzzle is technically correct in detail.

To solve a "Foldie," which is a new version of an old puzzle that was once very popular, you cut out the entire boxed area above. Then, by folding and refolding it, you cause the splotches of black within it to meld into one design-the nothing and one is bound to silhouette of the plane at left.

The Encyclopedia of Puzzles and Pastimes says that after the invention of movable types and printing presses introduced literature to the European masses, but before censorships of the dictators of that time were torn down, the charade was a common form of political propaganda. It was difficult for censors to cope with it; for them to place the worst construction upon a charade was to admit allegations that it concealed. The acted charade was popular in older times, with guests dividing themselves into teams to endeavor to "stump" each other with words dramatized.

The light was off and I dozed off, then suddenly awoke with the startling feeling that something awful had happened. I called out to her to find if she was all right. She replied reassuringly. I guessed I had had a nightmare and decided I needed a cigarette. The instant I struck the match there was a loud report, as if I had set off an explosion, I heard my wife cry out and fall to the floor. I jumped up, and turned on the light was a loud report. on the light. My wife was lying by the window. I ran to her and saw she was badly hurt. As I tried to stop the bleeding and felt her pulse, she died. Terrified, rushed to the dining-room and called the police. Then I locked myself in the dining-room and barricaded the door, for I feared an assassin would fire another shot."

It was in the dining-room that the police found the doctor. They also found that the acreen in the bed-toom was intact—it had no bullet holes. The woman had been killed by a bullet from the gun that lay be-side her. The nature of the wound indicated the bullet had been fired from short range. The doctor said he had not seen or heard an intruder.

To the police, it appeared the doctor had killed his wife. The belief was strangthened when they asked him to look around and set if anything had been stolen. 5 Year Program For Western Hemisphere Calls For Standardized Arms

WASHINGTON, July 17 (P)-The House Foreign Affairs Committee today approved a $50,000,-000 five-year program for arms standardization and military cooperation between the countries of the Western Hemisphere, The legislation, however, probably will have to await consideration 'lry the House and Senate early in 1948, since it is not listed in important measures to be considered by Congress before its expected adjournment at the end of the next week. The program has been describ-ed as essential to the security of the Western Hemisphere by Secretary of State Marshall, Secretary of War Patterson, Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, Army Chief of Staff Dwight D. Eisenhower and Chief of Naval Operations Chester Nimitz.

Under the measure the United States would supply Latin American nations with modern weapons, ships, planes and training missions. In return, the military chiefs said this nation hopes to develop a series of air bases from the Arctic to the tip of South

· Learning To Swim

All sorts of theories have been advanced for teaching small children to swim, from throwing them into the water with the expectancy that they will show fish tendencies, to hiring the services of an expert teacher. The first system has too many elements of danger, and the second is not always practical. American Home Magazine, in its July issue, offers some good advice on teaching youngsters to enjoy the water, written by a father who has had experience.

Titled "Water Sprites", it is packed full of details that take children from their first experience paddling in a baby pool, to that momentous first dive. The author, Charles Sawin, emphasizes that all steps of the swimming lessons must be FUN. In that way, it is almost impossible for a child ever to fear water.

The Sawins' five-year old daughter led the way when swimming lessons began for three-year old Buddy. First of all the Sawins taught their boy how to hold his breath. The parents showed him how, out of water. Then they made a game of Buddy's picking up shells in his one-footdeep pool, and he quickly commenced to do this ducking

His next step was floating with face downward while holding his breath. By this time, Buddy was experienced enough to learn to kick. This was achieved by telling him to "kick like an engine". Soon, he was anxious to learn how to dive, and the momentous day arrived when he "dove" into the pool from a low step "with no form and plenty of splash". Thereupon Buddy was ready to tart learning strokes, and to eliminate the splash from his diving.

Gum Forwards Knowledge

Chewing gum, a habit which some people deprecate, has done something for the world. It has helped make known A thousand or more long-billed same the imposing ruins of the Mayas of Mexico and Central America. Just the other day eleven hitherto unknown temples were found in Chiapas, Mexico, near the border of Guatemala, just because of chewing gum. Gum contains the chicle, which grows in these semi-tropical American jungles.

The chicle companies have had to clear away the underproduct. In the process they discovered ruins, overgrown with vines, whose presence would never have been guessed.

The new temples are particularly interesting because of their wall paintings, the largest of the few Mayan specimens known, and brilliantly colored. Fortunately Giles G. Healey, who came upon them while making a documentary movie for his company, is a trained archaeologist, and if it seems wise to remove them to a museum, will see that they are not damaged in the process.

So friends of knowledge should be more tolerant in the when next they have to scrape wads of disused gum from

Southern Pacific Is Threatened By Strike

BAN FRANCISCO, July 17, (A) Threat of a strike by the Broth-erhood of Locomotive Enginee at 6:00 P. M. Monday hung today over the Pacific lines of the South-ern Pacific, one of the nation's major railways.

Unless 19 of 74 demands for revisions of working rules are met before the deadline, the union said, its 3,500 members will halt traffit over the major portion of the cora-pany's 16,000 miles of track. The strike call, issued late yes-sistant grand chief of the hrothers hood, and P. P. Peterson, the union's general healrman, camé as the shipping crush of the Western harvest approached its seasonal

The strike would affect also the Northwestern Pacific and the San Diego and Arizona Railroada, Southern Pacific subsidiaries. The three lines carry 150 passenger and 1,000 freight, trains daily. Operations involved would be from San Frameisco north to Port land, Ore.; east 'to Ogden, Utah, and south to Los Angeles, Thoson Aric, and El Paso, Tex.

Flood Continues In Everglades Section

CLEWISTON, Fig., July 17(P)

A request that the West Palis

TASTY, HEALTHY FIGS By Isabelle B. Thursby

The fig. one of the great fruits of the South, is one that man has always known. Throughout history he has given the fig an important place among the fruits he eats.

And certainly today the fig is still recognized as a valuable. southerners like figs and feel gratified when a big crop yield pre-sents itself, although it is always without cream, for breakfast or desert is only realized for a few short weeks in the year.

Berving fresh figs is a privilege only truly enjoyed by those people who grow their own, or who live by a generous neighbor who has an abundant, if short-lived, supply. Too, figs are poor shippers and they do not ripen further or improve in flavor after being harvasted.

For this reason, figs should be allowed to fully ripen on the tree.

They increase very rapidly at the or, immature. Instead, there will be sillowed to fully ripen on the tree. They increase very rapidly at the last in augar, gather weight and quality in general only on the tree. In favorable weather, and in the height of the season, ripe figs abould be gathered in the cool morning. There is no milky exudation from the stems when figs are full ripe, and when the skin at the blessom end begins to cruck, that's when figs are perfect, not only for sating out of band, but for freeze.

New "Parasite" Army Plane Is Announced

ST, LOUIS, July 17, (P)—A new type of fighter plane, designed to be launched in midair from the bomb bay of the Army's giant B-36 bomber and to return to it, is being manufactured for the Army Air Forces by McDonnell Aircraft Corp., at Lambert-St. Louis field, it was announced today.

The parasite plane, designated the XP-85, is a small, jet propel-lel craft which the Army said is expected to have a speed approach-ing the present world record, 623.8 miles per hour.

A spokesman for the McDon-nell company said he was unable to furnish any information about the XP-85 because the plan is still classified as secret. However, it was said the craft has not made a test flight.

The B-36 is the bomber which the Army previously had announced could carry the atomic bomb to any part of the world, drop it and return.

Electricity is being used now on 53 percent of the nation's farms.

Eggert's statement was submitted to the committee on the last day of a series of hearings to find out what can be done about stabilizing prices and the economy generally

The institute official cited these principal reasons for the rise in meat prices since January:

1. A seasonal, 10 to 15 percent decline in supplies.

.2. An increase in weekly wages in industry "to an all-time high."

3. A record peak of 60,000,000 persons employed, an increase of about four percent since the stars-

Contributing to the pressure on prices, Eggert added, is the fact that storage stocks of meat are smaller than the prewar average.

"Another complicating factor," he said, "is that the current outlook for grains, as compared with a year are is unfavorable, and a year ago, is unfavorable and there are prospects for large grain

Assuming these deterring elements develop, they may prevent the expected 1948 increase in meat production and could even result in some decrease, Eggert said.

It alf depends, he added, on the weather, the corn crop and grain exports. In connection with the latter, Eggert gave this example of the impact of exports:

"Had the grain, other than wheat, exported last year been fed to meat animals, the meat supply would have been increased by about 10 pounds per person."

Two other witnesses told the committee in separate statements that one of the most important preliminaries in stabilizing the economy is reduction of federal applications.
