Choral Festival

The 18th Annual Seminole Community College Choral Festival will be held in the Health Center on the college campus on Friday, April 18, 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend and admission is free.

The choirs of SCC and the concert choirs from each of the six high schools in Seminole County will perform separately on the concert program which will conclude with a festival mass number will all assembled.

Directors for the concert will be: Ted Douce, Lake Brantley High School; Vincent Palazzolo, Lake Howell High School; Alice Ann Nilsen, Lake Mary High School; Diana Campbell Lyman, High School; Joseph Ferrante, Oviedo High School; Robert Maguire, Seminole High School; and Dr. Huil Permechiel, Seminole Community College. Robin Lee Parker will accompany the massed number.

Academic tournament results

The districtwide finals for the Academic Tournament were held last month at the Educational Support Center, complete with an audience of parents and friends of the competitors. After two hours of grueling questions, the first place honors went to Lake Mary High, second place to Lake Howell High, and third place to Lake Brantley High. Following the match, the coaches compared student analysis forms from all six events and selected the All-Star Team to represent Seminole County Public Schools at the state tournament on April 24, 25 and 26. The following students will be competing at the Contemporary Hotel on those dates: Danny Hurley, from Lake Howell; Aaron Daviet, from Lake Brantley; Alan Jamison, Brian Stensrud and Chau Huynh from Lake Mary; and Anna Higgins from Seminole High.

Competitors merge

SANFORD - Florida Solar, the area's largest pool heating equipment and service company, has merged with its closest and largest competitor.

Florida Solar President Skip West announced that his company has merged with Solar-AV, a 10-year-old Longwood company that posted gross sales of $1.3 million last year. Florida Solar's sales were more than $5 million.

The merger increased the staff at Florida Solar to 56 people. The company was founded in 1982.

Celebration

An Open House Celebration is planned for the Christian Sharing Center, located in Fairmont Plaza at 600 N. Highway 17/92 in Longwood. Mark your calendars for Sunday, April 20 from 12 noon to 5 p.m.

Guided tours of the new Sharing Center food pantry, offices and adjacent Values Reborn thrift store will be offered. Planned activities include clowns, Christian music, food, games and lots of festive fun for the whole family.

Jazz concert

The Humanities and Fine & Performing Arts Department of Seminole Community College announces the SCC Jazz Ensemble in an upcoming concert. It is the Spring Jazz Concert and it plays tonight at 8 p.m. in the Fine Art Building Concert Hall. Directed by Christopher Dolske, the ensemble will feature traditional Big Band arrangements, along with some contemporary arrangements for large ensemble.

Featured guest artist will be Miami saxophonist Gene Smith.

The concert is free and open to the public. For more information contact Christopher Dolske at 328-4722 at extension 3018.

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS - Forget that getaway on a 100-hour train. Here's an opportunity to see the future of train travel in this weekend by hopping aboard a lightweight commuter rail vehicle known as the RegoSprinter.

From 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, the public is invited to inspect the RegoSprinter at the Adventure Train Station on Orange Ave. (approximately 1.4 miles south of the intersection of SR 44 and SR 406 in Altamonte Springs).

A handsome, 20-foot self-controlled vehicle, the RegoSprinter may be sprinting across and beyond Seminole County in the near future. It has been in service in Europe since 1995 and is currently being demonstrated throughout the U.S.

SANFORD - Beginning with the 1998-99 school year, Seminole High School in Sanford will be the home of the district's International Baccalaureate (IB) diploma program.

The IB program is an internationally recognized, advanced high school curriculum that is designed to meet the needs of the highly motivated secondary school student.

The school district is currently looking for the special kinds of teachers who are needed for the program, which is a step beyond the current Advanced Placement programs offered at all the district high schools.

The new teachers in the International Baccalaureate program are needed in the areas of English, math, science, social studies and Spanish. These teachers will develop the curriculum and participate in the International Baccalaureate teacher training during the 1997-98 school year in preparation for the in-

Cop in coma, husband asks for prayers

SANFORD - The husband of a Sanford Police officer who suffered a massive heart attack on Wednesday wants everyone to continue to pray for his wife.

Cpl. Sharon Sheater remains in a coma in the intensive care unit at Columbia Medical Center Sanford this morning, but is showing steady improvement, according to her husband, Rick.

She showed minute improvement overnight, he said this morning. But the doctor said that any improvement is good.

In March, Sanford Police Chief Joe Dillard recommended that Sheater be fired for her part in providing information to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) regarding the department's investigation of fraud against Rene Keith, the wife of police Cmdr. Aaron Keith.

Sheater's case had been appealed to the city, which upheld the department's right to impose punishment for her actions. Sheater was expected to appeal the decision further through the Fraternal Order of Police grievance procedure.

Dillard was expected to make a decision on the punishment this week.

The problems started when Sheater tried to "pump start" an

Top student to address Unity Day celebration

Special to the Herald

The theme of this year's Unity Day Service at historic St. James A.M.E. Church is "Unity, the Great Commission," and one of the activities leading up to this long-anticipated day is a banquet which will be held on Friday night, April 11 at 7 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center.

The program preceding the scrumptious meal has been planned to inform, inspire and entertain all those present.

A fashion show featuring members of the church in appropriate attire for various occasions will be presented during the meal.

Janice Williams, a very intelligent and highly motivated young lady, a senior at Lyman High School and an honor student who has maintained a grade point average of 4.0 or higher during her high school career will deliver the message.

Her goal is to attend Florida A&M University in the fall and major in chemistry. After graduation, it is her desire to pursue a career in some scientific field. Preparation for the realization of this goal has included a major in and the successful accomplishment of many science courses, enrollment in Internet Concepts, English Honors Gifter, Advanced Placement English Language Composition, four years of French language and Advanced Placement Chemistry and Calculus which she is now taking.

In addition to her heavy class load, Williams is also very active in extra-curricular activities.

She has held the positions of secretary, president and District IX historian in the Future Business Leaders of America organization. She is a blood drive organizer, a Teen Board member at Gayler's and has received first place honors at district competitions in public and in impromptu speaking.

As a result of her participation and oration in the Junior Achievement Mid-Florida Business Hall of Fame awards ceremony, Williams was invited by the Tupperware Corporation to present a speech on Brownie Wise at the Tupperware National Winter Distributors Meeting in New Orleans on Dec. 11, 1986.

Her parents, Joe and Jeanette Williams are obviously proud of their younger daughter's accomplishments, which also include membership in the National Honor Society, her recent debut to society at the Orlando chapter of the Links, Inc. and her active participation in her church, the Episcopal Church of St. John the Baptist, as an usher and as an active member of the youth organization.

Pastor Preston Adams and his assistants, ministers Caroline Shine and Robert Guy, and all the members of historic St. James A.M.E. Church look forward to greeting their friends at the Unity Day celebration.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or from any church member.

Cheers—Celebrate alcohol-free can lift your glass today. For those of you into numerology and quasi-numerology things, today April 4 (4-4) is Bonus Bottler Day.

Designed as an excuse to celebrate something (anything) and have a party at least once a month, this event is to commemorate when the number of the month is the same as the number of the date. Created by the late Elaine Fremont, the Bonus Bottler Day traditions are now carried on by her family.

No word on just exactly who (or what) Bonus Bottler is, but if you'd like an official button to commemorate the celebration, you can write to Gail M. Berger, 109 Matthew Ave., Poca, W.Va. 27403. For $1, including postage and handling, you'll get one of the coveted buttons.

You'll hate this... Today is the start of Hate Week. This celebration commemorates the day on which Winston Smith, the fictional hero of George Orwell's 1984, started his secret diary and wrote the words "DOWN WITH BIG BROTHER." While she predicted some of the nation's past work passed more than a decade ago, surely still believe we are headed toward the end of human privacy and the destruction of the individual that Orwell first described in his novel which was published in 1949.

This is also the 29th anniversary of the day that Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated in Memphis.

While controversy has begun to swirl around the circumstances of King's shooting and who might have done it, James Earl Ray is still serving a 99 year sentence for the crime he now says he did not commit.

On a happier note, this is the anniversary of the date that a woman was first elected to mayoral office in this country.

Susanna Medora Salter was elected mayor of Argonia, Kan. on this date in 1887.

She did not even know she was running for office until she decided to vote and found her name on the ballot. Her name had been submitted by the members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Salter won by a two-thirds majority. She served one year in office and earned $100 for her efforts.

And, finally, for those who are fans of subversive television, this is the anniversary of the date that CBS canceled the popular Sanctuary Brothers television series. Tom and Jerry were constantly at odds with the bunnies over what material could be presented on the air. Most of the banned material, including knockouts against the Vietnam War and the Nixon Administration, would probably be considered tame by today's standards.

Among those celebrating a birthday today are Maya Angelou, 69; Robert Downey Jr., 32; Kitty Kelley, 55; Richard "Dick" Lugar, 65; Nancy McKeon, 51; and Elizabeth Wilson, 72.

Don't grab for a beer this weekend when you're out relaxing in the back yard or recreating elsewhere. The National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence has declared today through Sunday as Alcohol-Free Weekend.

The makers of the various non-beers and sparkling grape juices are pleased to know about this date, I'm sure, but it isn't likely that alcohol sales will dip dramatically nationwide.

But, regardless of how you choose to celebrate, there are a number of events at which you

Heathrow C.C. fashion show to benefit the Lisa Merlin House

By SHARON BROWN
Herald Staff Writer

You could drive to the Heathrow Country Club on Wednesday, April 8, at 7 p.m., enjoy the gorgeous fashions and the sumptuous hor d'oeuvres and then fly home, first class.

"A Flight of Fancy," fashions to stir the imagination, is presented by the Heathrow Women's Club and Jacobson's of Longwood. It is one of the biggest fund-raisers of the year for the club that supports The Lisa Merlin House, a recovery center for women with addiction problems.

Headed up by the "dynamic duo" of Pam Collins and Mary Scuto, co-chairman of Ways & Means, "A Flight of Fancy" promises to be a great evening of fashion, food and incredible raffle gifts.

The top prize is two first class round-trip airline tickets to any major city in the contiguous United States, donated by AAA.

Also to be raffled is a custom-made men's suit, from Bill Auld Custom Made Clothiers; a ladies 14 Ct. gold wide mesh bracelet, from Orlando's Secret Jewelers; a special decorative accessory, donated by Scott Laurent Galleries; his and her rocking chairs, from The Cracker Barrel Country Stores; a divine dine-around package; a fragrance basket ($250 value), donated by Jacobson's; a summer pool membership ($550 value), from the Country Club at Heathrow and a distinctive collection of door prizes, including Vera Bradley luggage donated by Alice Pearl at The Inkwell.

Let's not forget about the champagne punch, hor d'oeuvres, coffees and desserts by Chef Ken.

Carrying the "flight" theme into the decorations, Mary Jane Barone and her committee will transform the country club with kites suspended from the ceiling.

Helping with the decorations for the fashion show are Carol Calvi (from left, front) and Claris Rogin. In back, Mary Jane Barone, LaVerne Rubenstein and Rose Betts. Andrea Lyon (far right) of Jacobson's will coordinate the fashions.

Kites, like one held by Mary Jane, will illustrate the theme of "A Flight of Fancy." They will be suspended from the ceiling of the Heathrow Country Club's main dining room.

The fashions, the main event, have been coordinated by Andrea Lyon, sales promotion manager for Jacobson Stores, Inc.

Jacobson's specializes in fashion apparel and accessories for men, women and children and furnishings for the home.

The first store opened in 1980 in Michigan with a clearly defined purpose, according to Lyon: "To present women with the most beautifully made fashion apparel available and to offer impeccable, unwavering customer service. Jacobson's has a strong commitment to the community and supports numerous charitable and philanthropic organizations," says Lyon.

The two Jacobson's in the greater Orlando area: one located in the Longwood Village at State Road 434 and the other on Park Avenue in Winter Park.

Beneficiary of the event, The Lisa Merlin House, is located on Pine Hills Road in Orlando, is "a safe place for new beginnings" for women recovering from drug and alcohol addiction. The director of the house, Lisa Merlin, is herself a survivor and fights everyday to keep the house open and operating for women in-need from Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties. The annual donation by The Heathrow Women's Club goes a long way towards making the operation of the house possible. Over the past two years, HWC has donated $16,000, Merlin said. "Before the Heathrow Women's Club chose to sponsor us, we virtually had no money. They are truly a gift from God."

Reservations for "A Flight of Fancy" can still be made by contacting Nancy de Boer at 333-9738. The tickets are $25 per person. Raffle tickets are one for $2, three for $6, eight for $10 and 20 for $20 and can be ordered by contacting Marion Good at 333-3850.

Clouded leopards spotted at the Central Florida Zoo

By VICKI BOGGS
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — They're only a few weeks old, but already the two newest residents at the Central Florida Zoological Park are celebrities.

The two male clouded leopards, born March 21 at 1:30 p.m., appear to be in good health.

Clouded leopards (Neofelis nebulosa) are an endangered species. The zoo is pleased to have two of the rare animals doing so well in captivity.

The boys will be hand raised by the experienced zoo staff, zoo officials said.

"Hand raising the cubs will acclimate them better to their captive environment," Fred Antonio, general curator at the zoo, noted.

While the Central Florida Zoo staff is very capable, veterinarians from the University of Florida will be monitoring the health of the cubs. UF veterinarians visit the zoo periodically to check over all the animals.

While they are still nursing and being weaned the tiny leopards will remain behind the scenes. The leopards will not be on exhibit until May 3.

In the meantime, officials at the zoo are hoping the public will help them name the little fellows.

They are looking for a pair of authentic Chinese names (with the meanings). The winning names will be revealed on May 3 along with the leopards and the person who submitted the winning names will have the chance to have his or her picture taken with the leopards.

The clouded leopard is an Asian cat whose range extends into China.

In captivity births primarily occur between March and August after a gestation period of about 90 days. Litters vary in size from one to five cubs, with two being the most common size.

The young open their eyes at 12 days, walk after about three weeks and run at full speed in about six weeks and are independent at about nine or ten months.

In captivity, cloudy leopards can live up to 17 years.

When full grown, the clouded leopard is a medium sized cat which is about 42 inches long, not including a 35 inch tail. It has very short legs and measures only about 21 inches at the shoulder. They may attain a weight of about 50 pounds.

There are currently about 200 clouded leopards in captivity worldwide.

To enter the naming contest, send your suggested Chinese (with the English translation), along with your own name, address and telephone number to: Central Florida Zoological Park, P.O. Box 470309, Lake Monroe, Fla. 32747-0309, Attn: Public Relations Department. Or, you can pick up an entry form at the zoo's admission window.

Unwanted

Each year, 5.7 million cats and dogs are killed in our pounds and shelters. There are not enough homes for these animals.

Do Not. Have your pets neutered! We Offer Low-Cost Spay/Neuter Programs

Our non-profit organization works with veterinarians near you to provide low-cost spaying and neutering.

Your expanded rights with IRS

By KAREN BRADBEER, EA, ATA, ASA
Special to the Herald

If you've ever worried about going head-to-head with the Internal Revenue Service, you may wonder what exactly are your rights. Congress recently passed the Taxpayer Bill of Rights 2, which expanded those rights. A Taxpayer Advocate has been established within the IRS, replacing the old Taxpayer ombudsman. The Office of Taxpayer Advocate is designed to assist taxpayers in resolving problems with the IRS, to identify problem areas between taxpayers and the IRS, and to propose changes to solve those problems. Congress gave the Taxpayer Advocate increased authority to act on behalf of taxpayers who might otherwise suffer from the way that IRS is administering the tax laws. In order to keep the IRS from taking an adverse action against a taxpayer, a Taxpayer Assistance Order (TAO) is required. Under the new law, only the Taxpayer Advocate, IRS Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner may modify or rescind a TAO.

If you currently are paying off back taxes through an installment agreement, the IRS now generally must notify you 30 days before altering, modifying, or terminating the agreement. IRS also must explain why it is taking any action.

Effective next year, the new law authorizes IRS to abate the interest imposed on outstanding tax liabilities where administrative delay or error on the part of the IRS (such as IRS losing your records, delays caused by IRS personnel transfers, extended illnesses, personnel training or leaves) causes the interest to accrue. If you request such an abatement of interest and IRS refuses, you can petition the Tax Court for relief.

Currently, IRS gives taxpayers an interest-free period of 10 calendar days to pay tax after giving them a payment notice. Effective in 1987, the new law extends the interest-free period to 10 business days, or 21 calendar days if the total tax liability is less than $100.

EDITORIAL

Kudos to AAA, art teachers and students

What a wonderful idea!! Some of the county's best high school art students, with a forum at the American Automobile Association national headquarters, will display their works soon at the Advanced Placement Art Students' First Art Show. Tuesday, April 8, from 6 to 9 p.m.

We can appreciate the strong push for technology in our schools, but we feel it is the arts that particularly distinguish us from each other. An outlet for our creative spirits, whether painting, sculpture, music, literature, or theater, the arts play a critical role in our schools and in our lives.

In our high tech, high stress world, many may debate that it is better to spend one's time as a student reading technical manuals rather than Shakespeare, or learning computer graphics programs rather than experience the smell of oil paints.

We don't agree. In one study for the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs, at-risk youths benefited from an arts program, becoming far less likely to commit crimes. Teaching the arts is teaching students empathy and respect for others, self-discipline and self-expression.

Students with works in the AAA show next week receive college credit through the Advanced Placement Program, department head and Lake Brantley High School art teacher Gail Rusankev says.

We commend the Seminole County Public Schools and AAA for collaborating on this exciting event. Equally nurturing individual talent, whether it be for geometry or the arts, is the most important gift our schools and businesses can give to students.

A page from our past came to mind as I read Russ White's article, "It's Time To End The 'I' in County Manager's Contract." Facts from that page tend to show that the $112,000 yearly salary offered Gary Kater is around $30,000 too much. That page in the Sanford Herald on June 27, 1985 contained an article under the headline, "Kater Won't Take Volusia Job." Let us examine the facts reported in that article for my conclusion.

Kater was informed that the Volusia County Manager position would pay $115,000 yearly to oversee 3,000 workers, one convention center and one airport. Failing in his efforts to control the Sanford Port Authority and Airport or get a convention center built for him to manage, Ron Rabun applied for the Volusia job. Why he decided to give up his $112,000 Seminole job to oversee 1,000 more workers plus the convention center and airport for $3,000 less money is no mystery. His failure to get the Volusia salary increased to $125,000 prompted the withdrawal of his application for it. He continued to receive his yearly inflated salary to manage 50 percent less workers than Volusia, no convention center, and no airport until he left.

The Volusia and Seminole County governments have not changed much in two years. Why is our SCC so intent on paying $112,000 yearly to do a job requiring a lot less work than the Volusia counterpart position? We will never know, will we? We will probably be told what Army leaders used to tell their troops: "No reason for it, it is just our policy."

How the government views itself

The real fun is about to begin. The County Commission has declared that formal education is not required to manage the County and its 2,500 employees and $380,000,000 budget, $480,000,000 road building program and the proposed $600,000,000 sewerage program. Okay! Now let's see what educational achievements they require for employees to replace the Safety Director, the Public Works Director and any other employees who are removed in the upcoming reorganization.

Will all new hires be from within these departments of county government so that educational requirements can be skirted? Or will there be education requirements for employees that exceed that required of their boss? It's an interesting dilemma that some of the Commissioners have presented themselves.

This is what happens when "THE GOVERNMENT" begins to view itself as the only entity that knows what is best for those poor unknowing souls who reside under its care. This attitude first became clear to me when many years ago, residents in my neighborhood campaigned hard for Fred Streetman for the County Commission because of a particular issue we were concerned about. After the election, the issue came up for a vote. We went to see Commissioner Streetman and reminded him that the majority of the voters had spoken on that issue...now all remained was the vote. Streetman dismissed us with the admonishment that we elected him to decide what was best for us...not to simply represent the majority view. He voted in opposition to our interest.

The People's Voice

BOB GOFF

Bob Goff is an elected member of the Seminole County School Board.

Some would say that Streetman forgot who he represented. Some would say that Streetman understood the responsibility of elected officials better than the people who voted for him. Is it the responsibility of elected officials to represent what's popular or what they feel is right? Should there be a way to control politicians--an override key, so to speak?

Ross Perot proposed a society in 1992 in which interactive television would allow for public referendums on issues affecting voters. While not quite that futuristic, there is a statewide movement to make it easier to place referendums on the November ballot. Locally, the City of Casselberry has seen three referendum petitions in just the last few months. It's the same one, but nevertheless, it points out that there is considerable interest in the issue. Enough to repeatedly ask that the voters decide the issue rather than the elected officials. Other cities have referendums on the ballot each election.

The interest by citizens in making their voice heard seems to be increasing. If you ask why, I would suggest that it is because the citizens are noticing more intrusion of government in their lives. Referendums offer the chance for citizens to put limits on their government as a whole. Just to throw the burns out takes 4 to 6 years to run through the cycle to get everyone. It's hard to keep up the momentum for that long...and the damage that can be done in the meantime can be enormous. The Everglades issue brought about three referendums on the ballot last November. Revolving door prisons caused by a bleeding heart appeals judiciary brought about other petition drives. Another petition lotto fraud is currently sparking another petition drive to place a referendum on the ballot.

But, back to that feeling the GOVERNMENT knows best. The government is made up of two parts. The staff and the elected officials. One we hire--the other we elect. The hiring part is shadowy. Employees work for the County--they don't really work for the people who pay their salaries--the taxpayers. It's a collective sort of thing. Off in the distance is a shadow that vaguely has substance...it's sort of like a beehive owner. The Beekeeper owns the hive and the honey...but none of the worker bees recognizes the Beekeeper. They just keep buzzing around making honey--until the Beekeeper smokes them.

ELLEN GOODMAN

LeBow is my wish come true

BOSTON--Not that Bennett LeBow is my wish come true. He isn't even my dreamboat. But when the head of the Liggett Group's holding company "toed up in public," I was reminded of that moment in "Liar Liar" when Jim Carrey finds himself transformed by his son's birthday wish. He is suddenly and hilariously unable to tell a lie.

It's now more than a week since LeBow came clean with his startling revelation of the obvious. Flanked by 23 state attorney generals, his company acknowledged that tobacco is addictive, causes disease, and is targeted to kids. The page one shocker was "Tobacco Company tells Truth!"

This wasn't an act of repentance but of survival. This "Liar Liar" had to throw some fire extinguisher on his pants in order to save the company. Like a small-time drug dealer, he essentially turned state's evidence against the other, bigger tobacco co-conspirators and cut a deal to protect Liggett from large liability suits.

Nevertheless, LeBow better have somebody else start his car for a while. Liggett's agreement to hand over documents of plotting tobacco execs talking about their "habit-forming drug" and "addicts" is likely to make a giant crack in the stonewall defense of the remaining companies.

Now a series of cases--from wrongful death suit in Florida to a Medicaid reimbursement suit in Mississippi--are all going to be piggy backing on the Liggett revelations. The Federal Trade Commission has hinted that they're ready to use this information to ride Joe Camel off into the sunset.

Even Dick Daynard of the Tobacco Litigation Project, who has seen the tobacco lawyers make lemonade of every lemon, agrees that this looks a lot like the beginning of the end.

And that raises the eternal question: What is the end anyway? What is the endgame? What does the Liggett deal have to do with finally stomping out the most serious health hazard in America?

The end is not to ban tobacco. Not even the most fervent anti-smoking activist wants to turn cigarettes into a new class of illegal drugs and turn smokers into criminals.

This fact is what has made the anti-smoking campaign the most complex public health issue since the surgeon general declared cigarettes were hazardous to your health. We have a product that kills people and can't be taken off the market. Every health strategy is devised around this conundrum.

What happens next? The endgame won't be played out with bigger and badder labels. We have been to that briar patch. At his point the only warning on a cigarette pack that might make a smoker pay attention would be full color reproductions of Jack Koverlian's ghoulish oil paintings.

The state lawsuits to get tobacco companies to ante up for the health costs also have a nasty flaw. Tobacco may save the government money by killing people younger and cheaper. In a true fit of chutzpah, tobacco lawyers have turned this into what is fairly called "the euthanasia defense."

As for, uh, moral suasion or the parish effect? Not even LeBow intends to quit the butt bit. As Daynard says, "There's almost no evidence that tobacco executives are capable of shame."

The public health campaign hasn't failed. It's succeeded--not just by sending smokers onto the window ledges--in getting us to this Moment of Truth.

But the only way to phase tobacco out is by cutting off access to new young customers. The value of the Liggett agreement is that if the tobacco companies can't lie, they can't win in court. If they can't win, they'll have to pay, that means cutting profits or raising prices. And one surefire way to cut teen smoking is by making it more expensive.

The real endgame now is to push the companies into a corner from every direction. As Daynard lays it out bluntly, "We want them to be able to supply the addicts, but there is no reason to allow the pushers to snare more people in their web."

This means plain packaging, a ban on marketing, higher prices, and keeping kids' hands off the cigarette packages. It also means getting the message across.

So far the anti-smoking efforts aimed at kids have often reinforced the alluring message that smoking is for grown-ups. The teen rate of smoking is actually going up.

We need a strategy, like the tough new California ads, to convince teens to rebel. Rebel that is, against manipulation by the tobacco folk. After all, as Harvard's William De Jong says, it's time the kids saw the tobacco folks as "the goats in blue suits."

JACK ANDERSON

On this day, the subject was public housing.

Jr's methods differ from dad's

WASHINGTON--Only a smattering of news media and a handful of lawmakers were present last month for a Capitol Hill clash between Jesse Jackson and a man named Farrakhan.

In your past, such a meeting might have led the evening newscasts. But the Jackson involved in this confrontation was Rep. Jesse Jackson Jr., D-IL, the son of the preacher-politician. And the Farrakhan he was confronting was not Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan, but Abdir Rahman Farrakhan, chairman of the Coosa Hill Brownsville Tenants Association in Brooklyn, N.Y..

The scene that transpired symbolizes the profound differences between the junior Jackson and his more famous father. The elder Jackson has shown a lifelong preference for soundbite politics that get his face on television. His offspring, meanwhile, is quietly tackling some important issues--ones that might make a greater difference in the lives of his constituents.

On this day, the subject was public housing. Farrakhan had been invited by Republicans to explain his belief that poor people are better off when the federal government stays out of their lives. He cited his own experience running a nonprofit organization that has helped thousands of public housing tenants get off the dole. Though Jackson Jr. is a liberal like his father, he paid close attention to what Farrakhan had to say.

It was a profound exchange views by two men whose goals are similar but whose solutions differ. It's also the kind of exchange that doesn't get much outside attention--though it should. In the next few years, Congress will decide what role the federal government will play in rebuilding America's crumbling inner cities. And the younger Jackson intends to have a voice in that decision.

To him, the issues are important, and whether cameras are there or not, he's been there. That's a Jackson Jr. staffer told us. That's his work ethic, and that's what he is interested in. Obviously, he would like the cameras to be there to get his issue out. But (the lack of cameras) is not something that I've ever heard him speak about.

This housing hearing came not long after Jackson Jr. in a characteristic move, shamelessly injected himself into the national debate about the homeless than Dennis Rodman. After the infamous rebounder earned himself an 11 game suspension for kicking a court-side photographer during a game, Jackson couldn't resist jumping in on Rodman's behalf to send those who attacked Rodman's dignity.

Jesse Jackson Jr. may not have his father's gift of gab. But his actions are already speaking much louder than his father's words ever will.

The Regio-Sprinter is powered by two ultra-low-emission diesel engines designed to meet the most stringent environmental standards. It was developed by Siemens Transportation Systems, Inc.

Congressman John L. Mica - Central Florida's "Wheel" on the Committee of Transportation and Infrastructure in Washington, has co-ordinated a weekend of RegioSprinter/Next Generation Rail activities in partnership with the folks at LYNX, Amtrak, Siemens, CSX Transportation, Florida Central Railroad and the Orlando Urban Area Metropolitan Planning Organization.

There's a demonstration run for the media and guests of Rep. Mica today and another one (including lunch) for the Congressman's special guests on Saturday. The RegioSprinter seats 77 with room for 100 standees. A year ago, Mica was the host for a Tri-Rail commuter train that was on loan from its regular service area of Palm Beach, Broward and Dade counties.

By keeping Central Floridians informed of the many technologies available, Mica believes that when the time comes the area will get a system that works.

LYNX and Florida Department of Transportation officials will exhibit their plans for the future - including plans for the I-4 corridor and light rail - during Sunday's demonstration to the public.

investigation into a complaint filed with the department by Roberta Keith (Cmdr. Keith's mother) against Renee Keith, charging her with 23 counts of fraud involving forged credit cards and checks.

The investigation had remained open, but stagnant, for nearly seven months, she contended, so she removed the file from the department and asked her husband to send it to FDLE. It was a matter of days after the FDLE investigation that State Attorney Norm Wolfinger filed charges against Renee Keith.

Police officials contend that it was not illegal for Sheaffer to remove the file, but that she violated city policy by giving it to her husband.

Until the time of her heart attack, Sheaffer contended she would be protected from any disciplinary action under the state's "whistle blower" law.

Rick Sheaffer said he attributed his wife's improvement to the prayers that have been made on her behalf. He hopes they will continue.

She is still in "very critical" condition, but he believes there will be steady improvement.

than $100,000.

New collection procedures are included in the Taxpayer Bill of Rights 2. Previously, IRS did not always disclose to one co-spouse the collection action it had taken against the other co-spouse with regard to joint liabilities from when the couple was married. Now, IRS must do so. Also, IRS now has more authority to withdraw a tax lien notice when the notice was premature or not issued in accordance with IRS procedure, if the tax-payer enters into an installment agreement to satisfy a tax liability, if withdrawing the notice would facilitate collection of the tax liability, or if doing so would be in the best interest of the taxpayer and the government. Similarly, the IRS now can return levied property for any of the same reasons. The amount exempt from IRS levy has been raised to $2,500 for personal property and $1,250 for books and tools. Finally, the law eliminates a layer of administrative review for offers to compromise a tax debt where the amount of the debt is less than $50,000.

The new law allows people to sue anyone who fraudulently files an information return (i.e. Form W-2 or Form 1099) with IRS claiming to have paid money they in fact did not. The person suing may recover the greater of $5,000, or actual damages plus costs, and in the court's discretion, reasonable attorney fees. The provision is intended to protect people who are harassed by the filing of phony 1099s.

If a taxpayer prevails over the IRS in a tax proceeding, IRS must now prove that the position it took in the tax proceeding was "substantially justified." The taxpayer will be awarded attorneys fees unless the IRS can satisfy this burden of proof. The new bill raises the amount of damages that a taxpayer can recover for actions caused by an IRS employee who recklessly or intentionally disregards provisions of the tax code from $100,000 to $1 million.

These new provisions should provide helpful relief for taxpayers who find themselves in trouble with the IRS. To make sure that your rights are being looked after, it is always advisable to consider the services of a tax professional. In Healthcare Matters... It Pays To Get A Second Opinion

The unions are pressuring the Seminole County Commission to "give" the ambulance service contract away, without the benefit of fair and open competition.

Doesn't it make good sense to consider all the qualified proposals that control costs and ensure quality service?

We commend those commissioners who support a well-designed, competitive bid process. It can only mean that the citizens of Seminole County will benefit from a proposal that will ensure them the highest quality EMS system provided in the most cost effective manner.

It's regrettable that unions have resorted to a campaign of misinformation in their attempt to stop the Commission from designing a state-of-the-art EMS system for Seminole County.

Shouldn't the provider who can do "the best job at the best price" be entrusted with a responsibility as important as your Emergency Medical Services?

Closing in on summer movie season with Saint and Abbotts

David Frazier

Screen Tests

We are getting close to summer movie season and anticipation begins to set in awaiting the potential blockbusters ready to burst on the screen. Yet there is already some hot movies to check out.

The Saint (PG-13): Undoubtedly, The Saint will be compared to the James Bond movies. Ironically, one of the five James Bond actors -- Roger Moore -- played The Saint in the 60s T.V. show. There are other reasons for the comparison. Yet, The Saint is not Bond. It is more smart than that. Where as the new Bond movies -- reliable as they are -- have become mirrored reflections of older adventures, espionage thrillers like The Saint and last year's Mission: Impossible keep breathing new life into the genre.

Scotland Yard is looking for a master thief that changes identity as much as the chameleon changes color. This thief has a penchant for taking on the name of Catholic saints. No doubt reminiscing to his youth at the strict Catholic orphanage he grew up in. Each child at the orphanage had the name of a saint and the reason for that was not complimentary. The thief always dreams of his childhood in the orphanage and of the girl he first loved as a boy. The girl who dropped to her death because of a mischievous act the boy was engaged in.

Simon, as the thief likes to be called, can not suppress the image of the fallen girl from his conscience. As a thief, Simon gets items to the highest bidder and his fees are not small change. He is propositioned by a revolutionary, evil Russian oil man that he stole a microchip from earlier. The deal is to obtain a formula that would enable a new energy source to heat a freezing Russia. To acquire this new energy source, Simon must befriend a beautiful scientist and steal the formula which she has invented.

Little does Simon realize but the scientist ignites a flame quenched when that little girl from his childhood fell to her death. Together, Simon and this scientist set out to expose the evil Russian who is trying to shift the balance of power in Russia back to its original U.S.S.R. form -- communist.

The Saint is a more sophisticated variation on the spy movie. Yet it still has the standard spy thriller devices. Astounding high tech gadgetry, the villainous Russians, secret identities and disguises, a befuddled police force, beautiful women, formulas of worldly consequence, car chases, etc. Yet screenwriters Jonathan Henleigh (The Rock) and Wesley Strick (Final Analysis) along with director Phillip Noyce (Patriot Games) bring a new shape to this old material. Crisp direction coupled with smart writing makes The Saint harmonize. And two leads like Val Kilmer (Batman Forever) and Elisabeth Shue (Leaving Las Vegas) doesn't hurt either. With Kilmer's care-free style of acting providing us with a sly but breezy hero and Shue playing a weak hearted -- literally, the poor thing has to take medicine for it -- but extremely passionate love interest, the screen sparks.

I can not over state how well written this movie is. The twists and turns indicative to thrillers are so smooth making beautiful transitions from one scene to the next. And the movie is not weighed by a complex plot either. Everything is pretty much straightforward. Thrilling is not the only thing that this movie does. A hot romance burns in the film and it is laced with intelligent humor. All perfect elements for a veteran thriller-meister like Noyce to develop into a top notch ride.

I'm trying to skate around the details of this picture so as to not give anything away. The ending, I have to say, is priceless and you may even recognize a familiar voice as the movie fades to black. That voice signifies a passing of the guard -- to speak. It also serves as a message to viewers that these filmmakers regard and respect their movie's roots. Three and a half stars (out of four).

Inventing the Abbotts (R): This is not a "date" movie. I can see how it could be confused as such. But Inventing the Abbotts is much deeper than that. Based on a short story by Sue Miller, Inventing the Abbotts is about two families in Haley, Illinois separated by class structure and linked by a secret.

Doug Holt is a young inventor. He is a genius, growing up in the post-war 50's. His brother Jacey is a resentful, vindictive teen that is dead set on getting back with the Abbotts. The Abbotts are the most affluent family in Haley. A party at the Abbotts is a social event that most of the Haley citizens wait for. And as Jacey says, the Abbotts have a party for just about anything including the Abbott girls' well, I can't say here.

Jacey has always thought that the elder Abbott, Lloyd, jilted his mother out of a patent that would have made the Holts just as powerful as the Abbotts. Rumor has gone around the town that during a weak moment in Helen Holt -- the widow bringing up the two boys -- Lloyd had an affair with her and coerced her into signing over the patent.

Jacey's only course of revenge is to sleep his way into the Abbott household through Lloyd's three daughters. Eleanor Abbott doesn't mind. She is the more openly sexual of the trio. Her sister Alice is equally sinful yet it is kept more in the closet. And innocent Pamela is the more passive. She wants to go slow and she learns valuable lessons from her sisters' philandering.

Lloyd sees what Jacey is doing and forbids Jacey from seeing his daughters. Yet Jacey will not. He refuses to. All the while, Doug watches as his brother's irrational vendetta against the Abbotts makes him blind to the true happiness that Doug eventually finds with the younger Abbott, Pam.

Director Pat O'Connor (Circle of Friends) and screenwriter Ken Hixon (Grandview U.S.A.) are able to capture the time period and the social attitudes toward love, sex and social status. The Holt boys want -- at least Jacey does -- what the Abbott girls have and the girls would like to live more normally which is why they are attracted to the Holt boys. An interesting reference is used late in the movie to describe the relationship of Doug and Pam. Doug's set design in college wins first place and the theater department is going to use it for their reenactment of Romeo & Juliette. In a sense, the love between Doug and Pam -- like Romeo and Juliette -- is torn between the two families' secret and the attitudes toward the other much like the Montagues and the Capulets.

There are some points of clarification as far as the script goes. The relationship between Lloyd Abbott and Helen Holt is never really explained. It was a social stigma that caused the Haley townsfolk to talk in whispers and I feel that they deeply cared for one another yet that really never comes out if only in certain places. I wanted to know more about Mrs. Abbott and her feelings towards the secrets. She only speaks in one scene and we don't know any more about her than that. The middle sister, Alice, never has enough time for us to even consider her. It is only when Jacey tries to seduce her that we even get to hear her speak. Why is she so attracted to Jacey? For the same reasons the rest of the girls' are? He brings out a sense of rebellion, of doing something devilish I suppose.

Aside from script points, Inventing the Abbotts is a wonderful film. O'Connor has compiled a wonderful ensemble each performance as good as the other. The cast includes Liv Tyler (That Thing You Do!) as the sweet Pam; Joaquin Phoenix (To Die For) as the inexperienced Doug; Billy Crudup (Sleepers) as the clever yet troubled Jacey; Jennifer Connelly (Labyrinth) as the naughty Eleanor; Joanna Going (Nixon) as Alice; Will Patton (Copycat) as the status happy Lloyd Abbott; and, Kathy Baker (Street Smart) as the widow Helen.

Inventing the Abbotts, narrated by Michael Keaton as the older Doug, is a story that you can find yourself easily caught up in. A romantic drama as good as any that you may see this year. It is a treasure. Three and a half stars (out of four).

Things to do and a few thoughts on other stuff

SANFORD — Okay Sanford, here's your chance to see the Seminole High School baseball hitting machine.

I have had several people over the past week ask me about the team because they could not go to a game because they had to work.

Well that excuse is gone as the Tribe will unveil their new lighting system on Monday night at Alumni Field in the Seminole High School Baseball Complex when they host St. Cloud in a Class 5A-District 6 game starting at 6 p.m.

Seminole head coach Mike Powers and assistant Rod Ferguson have been working very hard for the past seven or eight years to make the Complex one of the top baseball facilities in the state and this is just another step.

In the past year enclosed batting cages, improved clubhouse facilities and better seating, plus the lights, are just some of the improvements that have been made.

So take a run on out to Seminole on Monday evening and see the exciting baseball team play and take a look at the new digs.

•BIG TIME SOFTBALL IS HERE. Speaking of things to do this weekend, the Metro Orlando Amateur Softball Association will host the USA Softball Men's Super Slow Pitch National Qualifier sponsored by Worth, Incorporated tonight through Sunday at the Seminole County Softball Complex off Douglas Road in Altamonte Springs.

Sixteen teams from all over the United States will be vying for a berth and seeding for the USA Softball Men's Super Slow Pitch National Championship that will be held here at Sanford Memorial Stadium from August 14-17.

Also on the docket will be a Men's Slow Pitch Class C qualifier for teams looking to earn a berth in the Men's C Slow Pitch National Championship that will be contested at the Seminole County Softball Complex on September 25-28.

The event gets started tonight with a Home Run Derby starting at 7 p.m. The top three home run hitters in the nation last year, Wendell Rickard, Carl Rose and Ricky Huggins, will be among the competitors. The first game of the tournament will be played at 9 p.m.

Admission for the entire tournament is $5, so if you want to see some of the top softball players in the world play the game, this is the place you should be.

•CONGRATULATIONS ROCKY. Just a little slap on the back for Rocky Ellingsworth who has been selected to umpire fast pitch softball games by the Southeastern Conference.

This is just another feather in the cap for Ellingsworth, who has worked hard to become one of the top softball officials in the country, in addition to his hard work at bringing adult softball and youth baseball back to a high level here in Sanford.

•THE KING IS COMING BACK AGAIN. I have learned from Seminole High School head softball coach David Rogers that The King and His Court, the amazing four-man softball team headed by Eddie "The King" Feigner, will be making an appearance at the Seminole High School Softball Complex on Saturday, April 19th. Watch for more information next week.

•HURRY BACK TIM. I was almost in shock last weekend when I didn't see Tim Raines in the lineup against the Braves.

Now I come to find out that he had to go on the disabled list again with a slight hamstring pull, the same sort of injury that kept him laid up for a lot of the 1996 season.

It's such a shame too, because he was having probably the best spring training of his long career. In fact, he was in the top five of all hitters in batting average this spring.

I sure hope Tim gets back soon and stays healthy because he has a shot at several personal records that could assure him a spot in the Hall of Fame five years after he retires.

•MAGIC ON VERGE OF STAYING HOME. If the Magic don't wake up here pretty quickly, not only won't they be in the number seven spot in the playoffs, they won't even make the playoffs. There is only nine games left, but Washington (which beat Chicago Thursday night) and Indiana are playing well right now and Cleveland is still a threat.

I also heard an amazing thing on the radio on Thursday. Only three of the top 10 teams in salary payouts in the NBA are assured of being in the playoffs, and others like the Magic (No. 2 behind the Bulls) and Washington (No. 4) are struggling to get in, while teams like Sacramento and Golden State don't even have a chance to make the playoffs.

So I guess money is not the root of all success, in the NBA anyway.

•BASEBALL IS ANOTHER ANIMAL, HOWEVER. I know it is very early in the season, but it looks like the money the Florida Marlins spent on free agents is paying off handsomely. Moises Alou, Bobby Bonilla and Alex Fernandez have already contributed in a major way to the Marlins' 3-0 start.

If Florida keeps getting the pitching it did

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — They did it in different ways, but the Neth & Son Roofing Marlins and Fisher, Laurence, Deen & Fromang Diamondbacks nevertheless scored one-run victories Thursday night in the Sanford Recreation Department Babe Ruth Baseball Bambino League at Ft. Mellon Park.

The Diamondbacks (5-1) and Enterprise Trucking Braves (3-3) got hooked up in a pitcher's duel at Roy Hollar Field with the D-Backs surviving 2-1.

The Braves took a 1-0 lead in the second inning as Ryan Quinn singled and came around to score; but the Diamondbacks rallied with a run in the third inning by Roger Breum and then got the game-winning run in the fifth inning as Jeff Burkett singled and later scored.

The Braves very nearly tied the game in the top of the sixth inning as Quinn singled and tried to score on a single by Adonis Cain, but a relay from the Diamondbacks right fielder to the second baseman to the catcher to cut down Quinn at the plate and end the game.

Michael McKinzie and Fred Howard combined on the pitching win. McKinzie went the first four innings, striking out seven and allowing only one run on one hit, before giving way to Howard, who struck out three over the final two innings to get the decision.

Quinn suffered the loss despite giving up just two hits and striking out 13 over five innings. Burkett had a single and scored a run for the Diamondbacks, while Erik Breum singled and Roger Breum scored a run.

Quinn had a pair of singles and scored a run for the Braves, while Cain had the other hit, also a single.

Meanwhile at Lakeside Field, the Marlins (4-3) and Play It Again Sports Expos (2-5) got into a runoff.

The Marlins scored five runs in the second inning and led 10-0 before the Expos started their comeback, plating seven runs in the third inning and closing to within 10-8 after four innings.

The Marlins answered with two runs in the fifth inning, but the Expos came back with three runs and had the bases loaded with two out before relief pitcher Steve Bacak got a grounder for the final out and a 12-11 victory.

Contributing offensively for the Marlins were Ladarian Rudolph (two doubles, one single, one run scored, four RBI), Bacak (two singles, three runs scored, one RBI), Deon Casey (one home run, two runs scored, one RBI), David Thomas (one single, one run scored and one RBI), Kevin Kropl and Brody McKenna (two runs scored each) and Richard Nelson (one run scored).

Providing the offense for the Expos were Reggie Campbell (one home run, one triple, two runs scored, one RBI), Tommie Grey (one single, two runs scored, one RBI), Lyndon Merthle (one single, one run, one RBI), Marcia Perry (one single, two runs scored), Marcus Kendrick (one run scored, two RBI), Latorio Byrd (two runs scored) and J.P. Smith (one run scored).

Tire City strolls into lead at Chase

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Tire City cruised to its second straight victory, while Sanford Central Baptist Church and Lake Mary Nativity Catholic Church both took their initial wins in the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Spring Thursday Night Chase Park Slow Pitch Softball League.

Tire City broke a 3-3 tie by scoring 11 runs in the second inning and coasted to a 21-7, five-inning triumph over Sanford All Souls Catholic Church.

Sanford Central Baptist Church bounced back from last week's season opening loss by whipping Crazy Wings 17-5. But Central Baptist had to rally from a 5-0 deficit in the top of the first inning to claim the win.

After Crazy Wings' quick start, Central Baptist battled back to tie the game with three runs in the first inning and two runs in the second inning before taking the lead for good in the third inning by plating five runs.

The other game was a wild one with Lake Mary Nativity Catholic Church taking a seemingly comfortable 17-6 lead in the top of the third inning. But M.T. Mugga came to life, scoring the game's next 13 runs, including 10 in the fourth inning, and 15 of the next 17 runs to assume a 21-19 lead heading into the seventh inning.

Now it was Lake Mary Nativity Catholic Church's turn to rebound, using six hits, a walk and an error to score five runs and pull out the 24-21 triumph.

Tire City is now 2-0 and leads Lake Mary Nativity Catholic Church (1-0) by a game. Trailing the undefeated duo is Sanford Central Baptist Church and Sanford All Souls Catholic Church (both 1-1), Crazy Wings (0-1) and M.T. Mugga (0-2).

ICI, Franklin rule Pinehurst

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Only two weeks into the season and ICI Auto Color and Franklin Bail Bonds have taken control of the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Spring Thursday Night Pinehurst Park Slow Pitch Softball League.

ICI Auto Color finally broke open a defensive struggle, scoring four runs in the sixth inning to erase a 5-4 deficit, then adding two insurance runs in the seventh inning to defeat the Del-Dio Stars 10-5.

Franklin Bail Bonds didn't give Rich Plan much of a chance for an upset, scoring eight runs in the top of the first inning and going on to a 14-6 victory.

In the other game, the Del-Dio Stars won their first game of the season by edging Thompson PBE 8-6 in a spirited battle.

ICI Auto Color is now 3-0 and Franklin Bail Bonds is 2-0, giving the duo at least a two-game lead over the Del-Dio Stars (1-2) and Rich Plan and Thompson PBE (both 0-2).

The league plays every Thursday night at Pinehurst Park with a tripleheader starting at 6:30 p.m.

Providing the offense were:

Del-Dio Stars	120	00 0 - 0 - 0
Thompson PBE	000	000 0 - 0 - 0

ICI Auto Color	000	214 0 - 10 - 10

Magic Fan Appreciation Night leaves bad taste

By JEFF BERLINCKE
Herald Staff Writer

ORLANDO — The Orlando Magic hosted Fan Appreciation Night last evening at the Orlando Arena but, as time whittled away in the fourth quarter, their weren't many fans left to appreciate.

As fans raced out of the lower bowl last night, the ones who stayed voiced their displeasure. Loudly.

The reason was a putrid 113-94 loss to the Los Angeles Clippers.

Yes, the same El-lay Clippers that have been the laughingstock of the NBA for years and came into the game with a 32-40 record.

By the time the final gun sounded, seconds after Magic guard Darrell Armstrong slammed Clipper Darrick Martin to the floor in frustration, the Magic lost yet another regular in its rotation to injury.

After the game, the Magic boarded a flight leaving for New York for tonight's game against the Knicks but the passenger list didn't include Brian Shaw, Rony Seikaly, Horace Grant or Dennis Scott.

Grant is still suffering from back spasms termed by Orlando coach Richie Adubato as more serious that originally thought. He's out indefinitely.

Scott injured his knee in practice on Monday and was held scoreless the following night in a loss to Philadelphia. He didn't suit up last night.

Seikaly tried to play last night but, after scoring 18 in the first half, his sprained ankle made him ineffective and he limped through the second half, scoreless.

Shaw is the latest casualty, he suffered a neck injury last night and, like Seikaly and Scott, is day-to-day. He hopes to have all four back by Sunday when the Chicago Bulls come to town but, for now, he is left with eight players to suit up for tonight's game at New York including a sick Penny Hardaway (stomach virus) and the rarely-used Brian Evans and Amal McCaskill.

Last night, the Magic pulled out to a 58-48 halftime lead that dwindled when Seikaly had to sit.

"We did alright in the first half," Adubato said after the game before offering 10-day contracts to interested members of the media. "Once they started to pull away, we just didn't have any inside game. With our people falling by the wayside,

Orr, Cook win Late Model End of the Month Championships

Special to the Herald
BETHLO - In one of the best Late Model races in recent memory, Pete Orr made a triumphant return to Orlando SpeedWorld last Friday night by snipping Scott Bramlett at the checkers to win the premier division's 50-Lap End of the Month Championship for March. Orr survived nine caution flags and a slick track to take his first win here in two years. He started the race from the eighth spot in the field of 21.
Bruce Lawrence started from the pole and led the first four laps. Osteen's Marc Kinley took the lead from Lawrence on Lap 5 restart but set the pace for only three tours before Bramlett assumed the point on Lap 9. Meanwhile, Orr was using the many cautions to help him methodically work his way to the front, taking over second place on Lap 35.
The worst accident happened on Lap 37 as Tuffy Hester, David King and 13-year-old rookie B.J. McLeod crashed hard out of Turn Four. Hester and McLeod's cars were both badly damaged while King's sustained the impact but his car was getting loose in the corners. On Lap 43, Orr powered to the inside to take the point. A Lap 46 caution closed the field up again. On the restart, Bramlett took the lead with an outside move, but Orr did not give up and dove back underneath Bramlett in Turn Three on the last lap, getting just enough power to beat Bramlett by a nose at the checker.

Kinley drove a steady race to take third over Rusty Eberole and Bruce Lawrence.
It was much easier for Osteen's Bobby Sears in the Limited Late Models as he led all the way for his sixth win of the year. Earl Beckner, Tommy Johnson, Glenn Castro and Larry Osteen rounded out the top five.
John Lovelady topped a wild and wooly Modified race, holding off Hank Sanders and Tim Laurent. Dave Savicki and Darren Gould were fourth and fifth.
It was Mini-Stock win number seven for Conrad Grenter as he took the checker in front of Pedie Allison, Ron "Flirt" Abeles, Richard Newton and Seminole County School Board member Bob Goff.
The lucky number of the night was 57 as the Sportsman, Bomber and Run-A-Bout winners all had it on their doors.

Barbara Pierce was first in Victory Lane, holding off a determined Dan Zukowski in the Sportsman main. Russ Shaw, Bill Loomis and Rusty Edwards trailed.
Barbara's son Chad Pierce was next as he raced to his first career Bomber win at Orlando SpeedWorld. Jeff Wright, Gary Frost, Mark Schorer and Gary Lehman completed the top five.
John Stapanek then drove his Number 57 to the Run-A-Bout win, passing Brian Dusetta with two laps to go. Scott Stone, Kirby Bink and Ronnie Fortune followed.
Gary Ingram wrapped up the evening, winning the Four-Cylinder Bomber feature, the first of his career. J.D. Conrad was second ahead of Michael Carr, John Cook and James Harr.
Tonight the regular racing card of Late Models, Limited Late Models, Modifieds, Sportsmen, Mini-Stocks, Bombers, Run-A-Bouts and 4-Cylinder Bombers will run.
Racing starts at 8 p.m. every Friday night at Orlando SpeedWorld with kids 11-and-under free with a paying adult.
NEW SMYRNA ACTION
SANSULA - The Late Model End of the Month Championship was won by Jack Cook at New Smyrna Speedway last Saturday night.
After a spin on Lap 2, Cook came from the back of the field and took the checkers ahead of Friday night's winner, Pete Orr. Third went to Ronnie Roach with Bobby McClelland and Bill Koston fourth and fifth.
Bobby Sears made it back-to-back wins as he took the checkers at New Smyrna Speedway after winning Friday night in Orlando. Mark Tracey took second with third going to newlywed Chad Allman. Mike Freeman and Jeremy Pitch rounded out the top five.
After bad luck struck David Rogers in the Late Models, the Orlando pilot came back to win the Modified feature in front of Tim Laurent, Jerry Symons, Bobby Bink and Ron Eldridge.
The Mini-Stocks main went to Vic Vanlischer over Conrad Grenter, Bob Doxie, Pedie Allison and Bob Goff.
In the Sportsman feature, Russ Shaw took the lead at the checkers with Glenn Whelan, then they missed the bunny.

And in the second half, Kentucky missed at least five free throws, any one of which would have won the game in regulation.
But give Arizona credit, they made the big shots and almost all of their free throw tries, which was especially amazing for a team that barely hit 50-percent of their free throws in the regular season.
TURN YOUR CLOCKS AHEAD. Don't forget that the time changes at 2 a.m. Sunday morning. Daylight Savings Time is back, so turn your clocks forward one hour (Spring ahead, Fall back) and enjoy the extra hour of light.
Hardaway led the Magic with 27 points, followed by 21 from Nick Anderson.
Derek Strong had seven points while playing all 48 minutes.
The Clippers began their comeback in the third quarter. Trailing 67-56, Martin drained a three-pointer to start off a 9-0 run that gave the Clippers the lead.
It changed hands several times, but a jumper by Malik Sealy put Los Angeles up 80-79 as the third quarter expired.
The fourth quarter was all Los Angeles. The Magic tied it one final time at 83, then the Clippers went on a 15-4 run to seal the win. The frustrations showed at the end of the game when Armstrong scored his takedown on Martin.
With 10 seconds remaining, Martin held the ball behind the three-point arc, seemingly running out the game. With three seconds left, he made a move for the basket and Armstrong took offense.
"I told Derrick Martin that was a stupid thing to do with time running out," Hardaway said. "He told me teams do that to them all the time."
Hardaway said Miami's Tim Hardaway fired a meaningless three-pointer at the buzzer of a blowout over Los Angeles Tuesday night and emphasized it by sticking his tongue out.
Armstrong took the ejection and probable fine in stride.
"There's a first time for everything," Armstrong said. "I'll move on. It's my first fine, my first ejection, my first flagrant."
Look out below because Cleveland, the current number eight seed in the playoff race is in danger of being caught by red-hot Washington and Indiana. After last night, the Magic is only two games away from that eighth slot.

CONGRATULATIONS TO ARIZONA. BUT KENTUCKY BLEW IT. While I congratulate coach Lute Olson on finally getting a much-deserved National Championship, and the game was a great one to watch, you don't have to look very far to see how Kentucky let the championship slip away.
Late in the first half Kentucky missed three wide open layups. I mean, these kids were so open that when they caught the ball they were looking for someone to block the shot. And

It wasn't tough for the Clippers. They shot 54 percent for the night, led by Martin's 31 points, and a combined 27 from Charles Outlaw and Loy Vaught.

Guidelines to vacuum with vigor

Here are some Guidelines for getting the most out of vacuuming efforts.

When it comes to vacuuming, it's almost safe to say that too much is never enough! Frequent vacuuming will not harm carpets and furnishings, but if ground-in soil is not removed, it can dull, discolor and damage these textiles.

According to vacuum manufacturer's estimates one-third to one-half of all American households include an asthmatic or allergy-prone member. This adds up to a lot of people who have good reason to be wary of household dust. House dust may appear benovolent, but it actually contains chemicals from exhaust, lead and other sources — elements that can affect indoor air quality. Manufacturers are addressing this problem with a host of allergen-control floor care products, reports The Soap and Detergent Association.

CONSUMER FOCUS

Keep in mind that an excessive soiled carpet can hold up to one pound of dirt in each square yard. That's a lot of dirt to create a lot of damage.

If the choice is between a light vacuuming all over the room or a thorough vacuuming in heavily trafficked areas, choose the later. Most of the damaging soils, oily or gritty particles collect where there is the most foot traffic. In a residential setting, heavily trafficked areas should be vacuumed once or twice a week. For areas that receive little traffic, once every two weeks may suffice. In the commercial setting, carpets should be vacuumed thoroughly at least three to five times per week. In high traffic areas, the carpet should be vacuumed nightly.

To remove soil and improve carpet's appearance, vacuum against the nap. Six or even eight strokes over the same area constitutes a heavy vacuuming. Three or four overlapping strokes equals a light vacuuming.

Vigilant maintenance will affect the vacuum cleaner's performance. Never let the dirt collection bag become more than half full. Otherwise, the suction power will be reduced and the vacuum will operate less efficiently. Cloth dirt collection bags should be turned inside out and brushed off at least every third emptying.

An upright vacuum with a beater bar is the best choice for a carpet. Adjust the bar's height to match the pile height of the carpet. Carpets that have a high pile or are loosely textured may show shading marks that identify the vacuum's last pass. To create an even surface appearance, keep the final vacuuming strokes all in the same direction. A canister-style vacuum is preferable for upholstery, draperies, blinds and light dusting.

Enroll son in special education class

Dear Mary,

Our son is in third grade. He never has been a good reader, but we always thought he was just a "late bloomer" and would outgrow the problem. It's gone just the other way. He used to try hard to finish his school work and do it well; now he just says it's too hard and refuses to try.

He was tested recently to see if he needs special education, and now the school wants him to go into classes for learning disabled kids. We're not sure we want to do that. He's not dumb, he just has trouble reading. We worry that if we sign for him to go to these special classes, kids will make fun of him and he won't get a good education. We're caught in the middle—he's getting so frustrated as it is now that he is giving up. But we've heard some bad things about how kids in special education get left out of important parts of their education because teachers don't think they're able to learn.

Please help us figure out what is best for our son. Going in Circles

Dear Christine,

You can never give up monitoring your child's educational progress, but you know that they way it's going now isn't helping him feel good about himself or learning. If he were my son, I would give permission for him to participate in the learning disabilities program. You will be asked to participate in the planning and monitoring of his progress through annual Individual Educational Plans (IEPs).

Please don't confuse learning disabilities with a child being a slow learner. Nothing could be further from the truth. History is full of examples of brilliant people who had trouble in school because of specific learning disabilities, but there was no way to diagnose or remediate the problem until recently. If you son goes into an LD class, his assignments will be tailored to his abilities and learning strengths. This should help him overcome his frustration and help him catch up with his classmates.

Girlfriend can't handle nudist club

DEAR ABBY: I have met a wonderful, sweet, caring man who says he loves me. He's honest, pulls no punches, is a hard worker and has many other good qualities. We are

He spends one to two Sundays a month at his nudist club. He has invited me to accompany him, but he knows I'm very uncomfortable with this and will not go. He expects me to believe that he just enjoys the sun and is not going to look at other women. When I believe this, I'll show him my oceanfront property in Arizona!

Since we both work, it is difficult for us to see each other during the week. As far as I'm concerned, he's made it clear that he values his Sundays at the nudist club more than he values time with me. I love him, but I can't handle this nudist business, and I'm about ready to call it quits.

DISGUSTED IN FLORIDA

DEAR DISGUSTED: Contrary to what you believe, most nudists do not go to their clubs to stare at others. Nudist clubs have rules against gawking and other inappropriate behavior. Nevertheless, the lifestyle is not for everyone. If you are not comfortable joining your boyfriend on his Sunday visits to the nudist camp and are unhappy about his going without you, it is doubtful that you are headed for a happy relationship, no matter what wonderful qualities the man may possess.

DEAR ABBY: You printed a letter from Hugo Borreson who said that the civil rights movement in the 1960s "reminds us of how violent white Christians really are." He also includes some 5,000 lynchings that have taken place in history as a suggestive example of white Christians' brutality.

It is true that there have been atrocities committed over the centuries by those who call themselves Christians. It is also true that Christianity teaches nonviolence and love toward your neighbor (and your enemy, for that matter). But it is absolutely not true that simply calling yourself a Christian means that you are one.

The Bible says that we will know a Christian by his actions. The traits listed in Galatians 5:22-23 (love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control) are demonstrated in the Christian. Do you think that the so-called "Christians" responsible for the 5,000 lynchings in history fit this description? Those who call themselves Christians but do not live like it are often called hypocrites, and rightly so. However, the presence of hypocrites does not discredit the Christian faith. It is important to know those who sleep so low as to say one thing and do another.

VANESSA HARIKUL, 16, MOORPARK, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent response, you asked — perhaps cynically — "How do you say 'Your solution was better than mine' in Latin?"

Try: "Explicatio tua est melior quam mea."

LETHA COTE, PALM SPRINGS (FORMER LATIN TEACHER)

DEAR ABBY: We recently attended the wedding of a grandson of a very dear friend, and sent the couple a lovely gift of china and silver. Imagine our surprise when we received the following thank-you note, which I'm enclosing (I've changed the names):

"Dear Mr. and Mrs. Jones, Thanks so much for the beautiful gifts and for SFCP18. That was very kind of you. Love, Sue and George"

My husband thinks we ought to write Sue and George and ask them what they thought of the gifts or what they thought of the card.

We'd like to ask our friends for the couple's address, and I'd like to have to tell them about the card. Is this format acceptable knowledge or are we completely out of step?

DUMBFOUNDED IN NORTH TEXAS
DEAR DUMBFOUNDED: I, too, was dumbfounded as I called on the "L.A. radio" to "send me a card" for the anniversary of my mother's death. I was told to "send me a card" for the silver and china place settings you sent. I'm sure your gift was received, but whether the curtain had been opened and the contents examined at the time the thank-you note was written is debatable.

Don't embarrass the grandparents by calling the note to their attention. But let's hope the couple gain some experience in properly expressing their appreciation before it's time to send them a baby gift.

DEAR ABBY: Our father passed away earlier this year. All his adult life he wore a St. Christopher medal and his college ring, which he treasured and never removed.

After the funeral viewing, I wanted to keep these items (one for me and one for my brother) to remember Dad by. My brother felt that Dad should be buried with these items because they were so special to him.

After some trouble, we decided to have the jewelry, knowing how much Dad cherished them. Do you think we did the right thing?

Run and walk presented

SANFORD — The Seminole Christian 5-K Run & Walk, sponsored by First Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church, will be held on Sat., April 26 beginning at 8 a.m. at Lake Monroe Lakefront (across from the Civic Center). For further details contact First Shiloh at 700 Elm Ave., or call the church office 322-6466.

Pre-Passover happenings

LAKE MARY — "Pre-Passover Happenings," a four-part lecture series exploring the holiday's literature, traditions, tastes and customs will be presented by Congregation Beth El or Central Florida beginning today and culminating Sat., April 12 with model Seder. Today, following 7:30 p.m. Sabbath services at Lake Mary Community Center, 260 N. Country Club Rd., Rita Jaffe, series leader, will conduct a story hour reviewing Passover literature and audience participation in memories of family stories and anecdotes. Sunday school classes at Beth El's Learning Center, 1677 EE Williamson Rd., will include construction of Passover decorations. Brown bag lunches will be available followed by an afternoon teen and adult party, dancing and Jewish music and instruction from a professional musician. Gift shop orders will be filled for Haggadahs, Seder plates, Matsah covers and a variety of holiday items. Friday, April 11, following 6:15 p.m. Sabbath services at the Lake Mary Community Center, an open discussion entitled, "The Relevance of Passover Today," participants are invited to exchange favorite recipes, helpful hints and time-saving tips while tasting a variety of sample foods. Sat., April 12, following 9:30 a.m. Sabbath services, the series will conclude with a program on "How to Make a Seder Easy and Enjoyable for Adults and Children," and a model Seder lunch. The series is free and open to the public, the model Seder lunch is $6 per single person, $10 per family. Reservations are required and can be made by calling Rita Jaffe, (407) 686-4187 or Ruth Goldner (407) 684-7436.

More Bible study

SANFORD — Each Monday at 7:30 p.m. Sanford Christian Church is conducting a More Bible study. Presently the study is looking into the seven steps outlined in Promise Keepers. The study is open to all men in the area. Call 322-0260 for more information. The church is located at 730 Uppala Rd. in Sanford.

Save labels

SANFORD — Sanford Church of Christ, 1800 S. Park Ave., is working desperately to save Campbell soup, V-8 labels, Prigo spaghetti, Pepperidge Farms, Viscio and Swanson labels to purchase a church van. Members are short on funds so this alternative method can help provide transportation for youth activities, those unable to drive, running errands and visiting other church functions. Anyone wishing to help with this effort please send labels to the church office at the above address at the zip code 32771 or call the church office at 322-7781. Jeannette Bailey will also pick up labels for those desiring to contribute. Please contact her at 322-8834. One million labels are necessary so much help is needed to make this goal a reality.

Movement attracts thousands

'Women of Faith - Joyful Journey' in Lakeland

By SUSAN WILSON
Herald Staff Writer

LAKELAND — According to the radio broadcast "New Life Clinics" over 100,000 women are now registered for Women of Faith, the Joyful Journey, a spiritual two day conference that is sweeping the nation. On April 11 and 12 women from across Central Florida will join together and gather at Carpenter's Home Church, 777 Carpenter's Way, in Lakeland to be a part of one of the fastest growing women's movements of this decade.

A recent press release from Women of Faith headquarters noted that about two years ago, Stephen Arterburn, Chairman and co-founder of New Life Clinics which is the world's largest provider of Christian mental health care, had an idea that he wanted the clinics to do something for women in America. Designed to be inspirational, unique and fun, it would help women celebrate life and God's grace.

From this thought, the Women of Faith and Joyful Journey Conferences emerged. These events for women became a reality on January 1, 1996.

The conferences were originally scheduled for seven cities which included Los Angeles, California; Chicago, Illinois; Dallas, Texas; Seattle, Washington; Atlanta, Georgia; Detroit, Michigan; and Denver, Colorado. Additional conferences were also added in other cities as the demand grew.

Over 38,000 women attended the 1996 Women of Faith Conferences, and it is anticipated that more than 100,000 women will attend the 1997 conferences. This movement is both spiritual and emotional.

The mission statement says that Women of Faith is committed to helping women from all denominations, nationalities, age groups, and backgrounds grow emotionally, spiritually and relationally. Recognizing that women will play a variety of roles throughout their lives, Women of Faith's objectives are to help edify, encourage, renew, strengthen and unify women in their commitment to God. Women of Faith is dedicated to helping women experiencing life to its fullest as God intended them to do and equipping them to become vital parts of their churches and communities.

Interestingly, Women of Faith has been compared to "A giant Christian chamber party" in the "U.S. News." Numerous other publications such as "The Washington Post" says, "When men shoot, they cry. When women meet they laugh. That's one comparison being made between the Promise Keepers men's movement and a similar phenomenon for women, which by year's end will draw 28,000 of them together to celebrate life in the real world."

Noted for their humor, wit and wisdom each of the speakers will bring a different view of life that will challenge women to look at their circumstances and experiences from a new perspective. Sharing their comic genius and gift of laughter, they will inspire women to pursue the journey of life with joy.

Speakers include Patsy Clairmont, author of such books as "God Uses Cracked Pots," "Normal is Just a Setting on Your Dryer," and recently released "Sportin' a 'Tude." Barbara Johnson, author of "Stick a Geranium in Your Hat and Be Happy," "Spoken of Joy in the Cosmos of Life," "Where Does a Mother Go to Rejoice?" and newly released "I'm So Glad You Told Me What I Didn't Wanna Hear."

Other speakers include Marilyn Meberg, Luci Swindoll, Sheila Walsh and Thomas Wells. All recognized for their talent in writing and speaking to Christian groups across America.

The conference will take place from 7 to 10 p.m. on Friday, April 11 and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday, April 12. The cost is $99 per person at the door, $49 per person if purchased in advance and $99 per person for groups of ten or more if purchased in advance.

For more information call 1-888-WOMEN-2000 or 1-800-WOMAN-30.

Pastor speaks on the purpose of peas

SANFORD — A few years ago the "Biblical Archaeologist" reported that a small clay vessel containing dried peas had been found in an obscure Egyptian tomb.

The discovery of peas is to produce other peas. Yet these peas had been dormant and dehydrated for 5,000 years. Surely there was no life left in them.

An experiment showed that these peas, when placed in the soil and watered, sprouted and produced new peas. They still had life.

Many people view the Bible as the "dormant" and dehydrated peas. Yet the book of books has the source of new life within its cover.

Just as someone needed to discover the peas and give them a chance to bring forth new life, so you need to discover the Bible and let it bring forth its life in you.

The apostle John said, "In the beginning, was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was the light of men" (John 1:1).

Where is your Bible? Why not do some digging and discover a real life within its pages?

Pastor Wesley Esher

Watson travels on Belize mission effort

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

SANFORD — Lisa Watson was chosen to travel to Belize. The event took place March 21 through 25, as part of Olivet Nazarene University's CAUSE program.

CAUSE, College and University students Serving and Enabling, is designed and coordinated through the Nazarene Compassionate Ministries as a way of ministering to people in underserved areas of the world through students, using their various skills and talents.

While in Belize City, Belize, the ONU students laid blocks and began the framing of the floor of a district training center; distributed used clothing and toiletry items; and ministered through youth rallies, singing home - "Home - Sunday - Services" and Gospel messages in the Belize

Lisa Watson

Nazarene schools. Watson is a young professional and is currently a graduate student at Olivet Nazarene University in Lebanon, Mo. Watson and her husband, Joe, are Joe and Diane Watson. She graduated from Seminole Trinity Christian School in 1994.

Watson traveled with 11 other students and Donna Lovett, ONU regional coordinator and instructional student advisor.

Chronic fatigue needs diagnosis

DEAR DR. GOTT: My friend has just been diagnosed with chronic fatigue/Epstein-Barr syndrome. What is this and what can she do?

because it causes diabetes, cataracts, fragile bones, susceptibility to infection, and a host of other, unpleasant consequences.

DEAR READER: The Epstein-Barr virus causes mononucleosis, usually a disease of young people, marked by sore throat, swollen glands and fatigue. The disorder is diagnosed by a blood test that measures antibodies (protein fighters) against EBV.

The problem is that when the predilection is stopped, the dermatitis may reappear in a matter of days or weeks. Thus, most experts recommend topical therapy (which is relatively safe), reserving oral steroids for more complicated cases.

Although complete recovery from mono is the rule, many patients retain antibodies against EBV for years. It's no surprise, then, when these people are older, become fatigued (from some other cause), and undergo blood tests that the EBV test is positive.

The use of licorice root would not, in my opinion, be appropriate. This herbal food has not been shown to benefit patients with dermatitis; moreover, licorice has been identified as a cause of hypertension, an unwelcome problem that most patients would rather do without. I suggest that your husband see a dermatologist for further advice and treatment.

In the past, this test was considered proof positive of an ongoing EBV infection, sometimes called "yuppie flu" or "chronic mono."

© 1987 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISES ASSN.

Unfortunately, this was not true. Modern studies have proved that EBV antibodies are no more common in patients with chronic fatigue syndrome than in normal, unfatigued people. Consequently, the diagnosis of chronic EBV has been discarded by most authorities.

However, in severe or resistant cases, prednisone may be necessary. The drug works well to reduce inflammation and itching, but it should not be used for extended periods (for example, longer than a month), ally sufficient to manage the problem, and improvement usually appears within a week.

Therefore, I believe that your friend must look elsewhere to explain her chronic tiredness; the poor, maligned EBV is probably not a factor. To help your friend obtain more information, I suggest that she write the Chronic Fatigue Immune Dysfunction Syndrome Foundation, 965 Mission St., Suite 425, San Francisco, CA 94103; or telephone them at (415) 882-9988.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband has chronic atopic dermatitis for which his doctor prescribed prednisone. How harmful is the constant use of prednisone? Would he be better off using licorice root?

DEAR READER: Atopic dermatitis is a chronic skin reaction, of unknown cause, marked by weeping, crusting lesions on the face, scalp and extremities. This rash can be exceedingly itchy, so that patients with relatively trivial inflammation are prone to scratch constantly, leading to further irritation, in what is called by dermatologists an "itch-scratch-itch" cycle. The diagnosis is made by the appearance of the lesions.

Can your bank roll take the pressure?

By Phillip Alder

How would you approach playing rubber bridge for, say, eighty cents per point? Many couldn't take the pressure. But some authorities claim that playing rubber bridge for stakes you cannot afford is the only way to become a real expert.

bid an undisciplined seven diamonds. Having pre-empted, one should leave future moves to partner.

Finally, East made a Lightner double. It asked for an unusual lead. Both the suit East bid and trump were out. So, West had to pick a black suit. If East were void in spades (unlikely), West would probably still score a trick there. This makes the club two the correct lead.

As you can see, this defeats the contract by one trick. But when West led the spade ace, declarer trumped in the dummy, ruffed a diamond back to hand, and finessed in both hearts and clubs to land his doubled grand slam.

East and West each lost about $8,000 on this deal. I wonder if East suggested that West pay his tab!

If playing bridge for these sums would frighten you, remember that you can afford to win at any table.

Something special that you've been hoping for has an excellent chance of being realized in the year ahead. It is the fulfillment of an expectation you have consistently nurtured.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Where your material affairs are concerned, things should work out rather well. However, there is the possibility of an abrasive development in your social life today if you're not careful. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10158.

TARRANT (April 20-May 20) Have fun and enjoy yourself today, but know when to leave the party. If you wear out your welcome, it could leave a lasting stigma you'll not want.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) What you hope to accomplish today will seem to grow in difficulty. However, success will be predicated upon your perseverance, so go all-out.

CANCER (June 21-July 20) Your ideas and suggestions might not impress everyone today. However, if you convince the people who really count, the naysayers won't matter.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Do not rush to conclusions in your financial affairs today; situations which look good up front might have hidden impediments.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Protect your personal interests in a partnership today, but also look for ways to support your ally. The union will prosper if both are committed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Others might find you a difficult person to read today where your commercial inclinations are concerned. You can be prudent and extravagant simultaneously.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Conditions are ripe for launching a project you have originated. Do not jeopardize your success by moving prematurely with the wrong people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone is watching you today to see how you further your ambitions, but if this observer thinks you're too impulsive, he or she might back out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might regret it later if you leave something undone today that can be done with relative ease. Time is not an ally that still prolongs positive conditions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You are in a good cycle for increasing your earnings, provided you operate on familiar turf. Moving to completely new arenas today could hurt you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) If an important decision is required today, make it yourself instead of leaving it up to the discretion of a committee. You know best what is good for you.
