The start of Sanford's First Annual Road Race

Onlookers Cheer As Runners Pant To Finish First Sanford Road Race

By GEOFFREY POUNDS
 Herald Staff Writer

"Like a thundering herd, 197 runners dashed through the six miles of the Seminole Boulevard starting point of the first annual 10,000-meter Sanford Road Race at 8 a.m. Saturday.

"Two miles later, the herd turned into a multi-legged caterpillar strewn 800 yards along Palmetto Avenue. At the head were the serious runners, the lean, competitive striders. At the rear were the morning joggers, those enjoying the company but having little concern over where they were in the crowd.

"Five-sixths of the way through the event, a few dropouts could be seen, like beached whales resting on the curb.

"Nineteen-year-old Steven Hubbard of Longwood completed the race ahead of the pack with a time of just over 34 minutes. In rapid succession about 50 other runners passed through the finish chute, including Rosie McGuire. The attractive, 24-year-old Orlando was the top female finisher, coming in 35th overall. Her time was under 40 minutes.

"But the six-mile run, to most participants and spectators, was as much a happening as a contest. There was constant encouragement from the onlookers, many of whom pulled out their lawn chairs and cheered as the runners passed their homes. Good natured chatter among participants continued through the six miles.

"I love it," said 65-year-old Dick Lels of Auburndale, the oldest runner in the race. "I'm getting better with age. Next month when I hit 66, I should be breaking 40 minutes for the six-mile event."

Lels said he runs in about 60 races a year. Today he crossed the finish line in about 31 minutes, prompting him to say, "I'm going to have to step up my workouts."

The entire George Kelly family of Orlando started the race together. George, his wife Barbara; Kim, 12; Shannon, 10; and Erin, 9, all made the distance.

Nearing the three-mile, half-way point, more than a few of the runners cast a despondent eye on a nearby swimming pool as the morning sun added to their discomfort. "Looks inviting, doesn't it?" said a middle-aged Orlando man.

Several minutes later the man was cooled by on-looker Bob Sherman, who took it upon himself to offer runners a blast from his garden hose when they passed his front yard on Summerlin Ave.

As the leaders were approaching the finish line, the bulk of the pack was about a mile behind. When each participant neared the final stretch, race official Gary Zadow called out the times and told them there was only one mile to go.

"The first ones past this point made it in about 29 minutes and they looked in good shape," Zadow said. The appearance of the last-runners was less than chipper, he admitted.

The race was monitored by units of the Sanford Police Department and a rescue unit from the fire department. But neither police nor firemen reported any emergency or call for assistance.

The event, co-sponsored by the Sanford Recreation Department and the Sunrise Kiwanis Club, attracted runners from as far away as Jacksonville.

"I came down here from Jacksonville when I heard about it," said Bob Herron. "The race was a real treat. I've never lived in Sanford, Florida, but I had to try to win the event."

"There are a lot of people like me here today. I'm 48 and 200 pounds. It's a big victory to finish. It's an individual thing," he said.

The six-mile race was preceded by a two-mile fun run in which about 80 runners competed.

ROSIE MAGUIRE...first woman to finish

These Moms Are All Outstanding

By SHARON CARRASCO
 Herald Staff Writer

Everyone has his own unique concept of what a mother is supposed to be. Recently those personal thoughts and concepts were shared by readers in the search for the outstanding mother of the year conducted by The Evening Herald.

The Herald had asked readers to submit a letter telling about a woman considered to be worthy of recognition as an outstanding mother.

The response was overwhelming, and the task of selecting one person to be interviewed was enormous. After the selection was made, Herald editors decided to share with readers some of the thoughts expressed in letters for some of the other nominees.

The names of the nominees precede the passages excerpted from the letters sent in on their behalf.

LOUCE F. BAKER
 Our mom doesn't belong to any clubs — she isn't active in politics or the PTA, and she and dad don't get to go out often with their friends but that doesn't mean she isn't outstanding. Outstanding to us means always being there when things go wrong and you need someone to talk to.

Outstanding is doing without so we could have something special.

Outstanding is love, trust, faith, hope and charity without ever asking why or expecting anything in return.

Outstanding is raising nine children and Peggy Hardin, an outstanding mom, Page 19 home late, but boy does she worry. She shouldn't worry too much since she won't hardly even let us cross the street, but I guess it's okay because it just shows how much she loves us.

SHIRLEY MOAK
 What would I do without my mother for she's the one who is there when I need her and the one who helps solve my problems and many, many other things.

She takes my sister and I out every once in awhile. Even though she would probably have more fun with another adult, she is willing to make the sacrifice for us and even though we don't do everything just right she brings us home treats.

One of the best things about my mother is that she is always reliable in anything she does and you can always count on her.

If a family was suddenly left homeless, they'd come to her for help and she'd see that they found another home. If a family was hungry and without any money, she'd see that they were fed and would help them find a job. If you were burdened and didn't know which way to turn, you could turn to her. She'd be there.

I sit back and wonder sometimes how one woman could be so many things at once. A mother to her family, a wife to her husband, an arm to lean on, a shoulder to cry on and a friend to her community.

MARIE WARE
 She is a very understanding person. If you need to a pair of shoes and she wants to buy a dress, she would buy you those shoes first. If she is mad or tired, she never shows it. I wouldn't mind walking in her shoes anytime. She is so graceful.

MRS. A. J. SHEPPARD
 As the mother of 14 children, she has acquired many excellent qualities in her years that are not imaginable.

"Mama Betha," affectionately known by everyone who has had the opportunity to know her has been employed at the Sanford Child Care for several years. In 10 years of child care experience, I have never met anyone so dearly loved by the children.

META KRAMER
 Mother is 70 plus (she admits to 39) and still goes out and does housework for two of her friends a couple days a week. She is always ready to lend a helping hand when someone needs her.

In the 30 years I have been privileged to be her daughter, I can recall very few times when she was down or low in spirit. The past year has been a difficult one for mom. She had a bout with arthritis, she lost her youngest daughter very suddenly and learned that I had cancer and had to have major surgery.

With God's help, the love of many beautiful people and her own positive attitude she has come through it all with a smile and stronger than ever, encouraging me and helping me through a very difficult time.

The Case Of The Missing Carts: A Food Price Factor

By JANE CASSELLBERRY
 Herald Staff Writer

"Theft of shopping carts is becoming progressively worse and the loss to merchants is contributing to the rising cost of food and other items to the consumer. Local stores are no exception.

"We have lost eight shopping carts in the last three months and they cost us about $60 apiece," said L.H. Goodman, manager of the Wm. Dixie store on French Avenue and 26th Street in Sanford. "I have ridden around the streets, but haven't been able to locate them."

"Some customers ask to take them across the street or down the block," said Goodman. "When they don't bring them back, we have to retrieve them from a truck from a five or six-block area. Sometimes people will come in and report seeing one of our carts and we can locate it."

"Some people see them along the streets and will take them home," he added.

"It's something we've been working on, but we haven't been able to solve it. I read that up in the paper that some stores are equipped with such a conveyor system which delivers groceries to the customer's car. "The most important thing is to give service on the front," said Mark Hollis, vice president for public affairs and public relations for Publix Markets. "Those stores which do not give good carry-out service can have a big problem. It's an expensive problem with replacement of lost carts costing between $60 and $75 apiece."

"Certain areas are more critical than others," said Hollis. "Where there are lots of apartments within walking distance, the package boy can't go home with them so people take their groceries home in the cart. We try to encourage them to bring them back, but sometimes we have to send a truck around to the apartment complex to pick them up," Hollis added.

"When customers do this, they are adding for higher grocery costs as storeowners have to include the expense of the missing carts in the cost of food," he asserted.

According to Bill Weaver, president of the Retail Grocers Association of Florida, Inc. (RGA), a grocer has to sell about $7,000 worth of groceries just to make enough profit to replace a stolen cart. Weaver heads one of the largest state grocery trade associations in the country representing 5,000 grocery stores in Florida.

According to Ralph Morrison, director of Retail Operations for AllMart of Florida, Inc., a Tampa grocery store cooperative, new shopping carts cost from $60 to $70 apiece.

"A grocer's net profit ranges from 2 percent to 3 percent. It's easy to see why the theft of a $70 item could really hurt a grocer," said Weaver.

The grocery store in the residential neighborhood where customers usually walk to the store is where these type thefts are most frequent, or where most shoppers use them, then abandon them. Weaver said.

Food Barn in Sanford is one exception.

Do they have trouble with customers taking shopping carts home with them? "We certainly do!" said a spokeswoman for the store.

"Two years ago when we opened we had 60 carts and only 12 are left now."

"They just carry them home and forget to bring them back," she said.

The grocery stores are not the only ones who have trouble with disappearing shopping carts. Drug stores and department stores which use carts are also passing their losses on to the customers.

Don Moss, manager of the Sanford Zayre store, said the problem was not as severe in his store as in other locations.

"Thank goodness!" he added. "Most of our customers ride in cars."

"There is a problem though, we lose some every year," he said. "Sometimes I find carts along Airport Boulevard and bring them back to our shopping center, or the one across the street (Sanford Plaza). I expect if we looked in some of the laundry rooms of apartment complexes in the area we'd probably see some."

"We try to bring them all in at night, but sometimes we miss some," said Moss. "Our biggest loss is caused by drivers running into carts left on the parking lot by customers."

"It is one of those things that goes into the cost of business but we have to have them for the customer's convenience," said Moss.

"People seem to think it's a privilege they should have — to take these carts home and then keep them," said Morrison. "We sell shopping carts to grocers nearly every week to replace stolen and missing carts. Because they've worn out — like it's long past the funny stage," said Morrison. "They're expensive and the theft problem must be solved."

Some store owners have gone to elaborate methods to protect their carts. A few have installed long iron bars on the carts that prevent people from leaving the store with them. Others have erected concrete post barricades or fences around the store to prevent carts from leaving the premises.

"I don't know if shopping cart theft will ever be controlled, unless it's through an educational process-informing consumers that taking shopping carts is theft, a crime, nothing less," said Weaver.

Carts have been cut up and used as barbecue grills, for transporting laundry and as playthings for children. "But it's long past the funny stage," said Morrison. "They're expensive and the theft problem must be solved."

Hattaway Meets On Overpass Funding

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer
State Rep. Robert Hattaway, D-Altamonte Springs, in Seminole County this weekend from a visit to the House of Representatives appropriations committee over Orange County legislators said he will offer an olive branch to the neighboring county's delegations.

Hattaway at a meeting of the appropriations committee late Thursday wrestled $11 million from a proposed Orange County road project and had the money reallocated by the appropriations committee of which he is a member to the Center Street project in Altamonte Springs.

The Center Street project includes an overpass of the Interstate 4-state Route 436 intersection and 436 by-pass roads.

Hattaway said during his trip from Tallahassee to Seminole County by private plane Friday he discussed the issue with Sens. John Vogt, D-Cocoa Beach, and Sen. Clark Maxwell Jr., R-Melbourne, both members of the Seminole delegation and others and decided on the meeting in Tallahassee the first of the week.

Hattaway said he prefers avoiding a fight on the House floor when the appropriation committee's recommendations are considered this week. He warned earlier that a fight on the House floor could endanger both of Orange County's projects — the airport interchange and an interchange at Buena Vista near Disney World.

Meanwhile, Altamonte Springs city officials who have been pushing for the Center Street project for years were elated at the new funding proposal.

Altamonte Public Service Director Donald Newnam said construction of the overpass and Center Street bypass of state Route 436 from Palm Springs Road west and from Montgomery Road east could relieve the congested highway of as many as 20,000 vehicles per day.

"There is still more work to do, particularly mending fences with Orange County," Floyd said. He added that both of Orange County's projects qualify for federal funding and that source can be tapped if additional money is needed there. "I think the way it was handled was fair. Orange County people also hold about 436 traffic."

He noted the Metropolitan Planning Organization (MPO) has included the Center Street project in its long-range planning program for the year 2000. "It's hard, however, to tell John Q. Public we are doing something in the long range plan for 2000 when he wants to see some immediate relief for the traffic problems on 436."

"This is a real breakthrough," Floyd said. "It's something I've fought for with different agencies — with everyone whose ear I could bend. I've been working on this project for four years continuously," Floyd said.

Some $3 million in federal and state money has already been allocated to rebuild the I-4-436 intersection, apart from the Center Street funding. Of the approved sum, $25,000 is designated for planning, $2.3 million for construction and $23,000 for inspection fees for the state Department of Transportation (DOT). This project and Center Street are not related.

Police Find Woman Poisoned 2 Husbands

CHARLOTTE, Tenn. (UPI) — Ada Wittenmyer, wanted in Oklahoma in the poisoning death of her fourth husband, Friday was indicted for allegedly administering a fatal dose of arsenic to a previous husband in Tennessee.

After hearing four hours of testimony, the Dickson County grand jury in Middle Tennessee returned an indictment charging Mrs. Wittenmyer, 33, with first-degree murder in the death of William Clifford Hayes, who died five years ago in Charlotte, Tenn.

District Attorney W.B. Lockhart said he would ask the U.S. Attorney's office in Nashville Monday to seek a fugitive warrant for Mrs. Wittenmyer.

Francisco, the Tennessee medical examiner, showed that Hayes died of arsenic poisoning, Lockert said.

Mrs. Wittenmyer was charged May 1 with first-degree murder in the arsenic poisoning of her latest husband, who died at his home near Bartlesville, Okla., March 28. Wittenmyer was found dead the day after she signed a handwritten will leaving the bulk of his estate to his wife.

Mrs. Wittenmyer told police she found her husband dead at home when she returned from a shopping trip to a nearby town. Wittenmyer was presumed to have died of a heart attack, but an autopsy was ordered when Mrs. Wittenmyer disappeared.

Rats Trapped

NEW YORK (UPI) — Exterminators are confident they have trapped a small army of rats that attacked a woman and injured two others last week in a two-block area of New York City.

A police spokesman said the rodents wrapped themselves around the woman's leg Thursday night and began nipping at her. A bystander helped beat off the rats and she fled "in a state of hysteria," he said.

The attack occurred on Am Street, where there is a garbage-strewn lot — all that remains of a bar that was destroyed nine years ago in an explosion that killed 11 people. The street was closed off Friday.

Dr. Alan Beck, director of the Health Department's Animal Affairs bureau, said the rodents were Norway or Brown rats, known as "Super Rats" because of their size and resistance to normal poisons.

By evening, Deputy Health Commissioner Jean Cropper declared: "We have them trapped." "Rats are everywhere," she said. "They are very successful urban animals. They are king in New York."

The men were arrested just three minutes after the armed robbery at Perkins Cafe and Steak Restaurant, 215 W. state Route 436, Altamonte Springs police said.

Robert Winkelmann of Taylor Rental, 1550 E. state Route 436, Altamonte Springs, told deputies he rented the machine Thursday to an Orlando woman.

Morrison, according to the Seminole-Brevard state's attorney's office, solicited $25,000 in funds from 300 Florida friends for wreath-making booklets. On Balancing Our Resources

Last year an Alaska land preservation bill cleared the House of Representatives by a 277-31 vote.

But the House bill failed to pass the Senate, and the issue of Alaska lands is back before Congress

Many members of Congress are having second thoughts about how much of the still undesignated federal land in Alaska should be locked up, and to what degree.

None of the three bills strikes us as a blatant surrender to either the conservationists or the would-be developers.

We are impressed by the argument behind the Breaux bill that the cutback in Iranian oil production and the resulting squeeze on oil supplies

The bill provides for a seven year study of the Arctic Range to assess both its energy potential and the possible impact of oil and gas drilling on the caribou herd.

This may not make a case for the entire Breaux bill, or a case against the others, but we think it represents the kind of compromise that is necessary to get a bill through Congress that is reasonably satisfactory to everyone and in the national interest.

Rep. Udall and his conservationist backers may seem to be on the side of the angels, because most Americans have a soft spot in their hearts for Alaska and would like to see as much of it as possible left as a pristine wilderness.

Congress can lock up a generous amount of the Alaska wilderness without throwing away the key to fuel, metal, timber and other resources that must remain accessible in the future.

BERRY'S WORLD

Japan's corporations are quickly gaining financial control over one of the most valuable fishing grounds in the United States—the Gulf of Alaska.

The Japanese are allowed to fish Alaska waters because the 30-mile limit law, passed in 1953, permits fishermen to catch fish in U.S. territorial waters that American fishermen are unable to harvest.

A study by the Alaska legislature obtained by our reporter Scott Hester details the strength of Japanese investment in the Alaska fishery.

The Japanese, for example, have not up a joint venture that calls for U.S. fishermen to supply pollock to a Korean factory ship in Alaskan waters.

There are mothers... and other mothers... But the grandmothers of them all — by their own admissions and omissions — are grandmothers.

All grandmothers, regardless of economic or social status, race or creed, have the same thing in common — grandchildren to pet, pamper, protect and — in other words — just plain spoil.

With her grandmothers, a third grade student said, in part, "grandmothers are fat, take their guns and teeth out at night to sleep, have plenty of time, and will read you the same story over and over."

Grandmothers are all that — and more. Although she may be a slick, chic chick who was graduated from a fancy finishing school, a grandmother can have boorish and unpardonable manners where her grannies are concerned.

And this mother of her children's children, who may have 20-20 vision, as blind as a bat when those minor children are in sight. She sees nothing wrong that they do!

How's that again?

And this grand lady who would normally bear a pin drop on a battlefield, becomes deaf to the noise the gramma make and what they say.

When this grand lady was only a struggling mother and money was probably scarce, even for necessities, her children may have learned her as a stingy old meanie and said "... but you don't understand" hundreds of times before their adulthood.

By the way, if you should ever disagree with the usually refined Mrs. Grande Dame over her grandsons, be prepared for a severe lashing from her razor sharp tongue.

Now, isn't she a "Grand Mother?"

Organization, Expansion At Hand

Hospital Board Should Act Quickly, Candidly

Memorial Hospital board members and Seminoles County Commissioners should act quickly, candidly in an impartial manner in any plans to reorganize and expand the existing plant on First Street.

It is the advice of the board of the hospital and the viceminister of the board of Alachua General Hospital in Gainesville, which experienced a lot of alternatives not being weighed.

In 1958, the halls of Alachua General were filled with patients. The facility seemed to be expanding, but the board did not know how to finance the expansion.

With the help of Congress and a reorganization of the board, Alachua General was able to expand the plant and a golf course on campus.

Compounding the difficulties, according to Fletcher, was the county commissioners' decision to place two of its own members on the hospital board.

Politics In The Judiciary

When Jimmy Carter signed the Omnibus Judgeship Act last October, he said it created a "disturbing feature of the federal judiciary: the almost complete absence of women or members of minority groups."

The anti-establishment protesters also wanted to free these appointments from their traditional establishment ties — the old-boy network of college chums and political pals that insured nearly all federal judges would be male and pale.

The Atlanta-based Southern Regional Council, a respected interracial group of Southerners active in race relations since 1944, has just issued a report on the Southern process for selecting federal judges.

The council's conclusion: political patronage still reigns supreme in judicial appointments. The Omnibus Act created 192 new judgeships. Fifty-nine — almost 40 percent — will be in the South. Only one black and two women out of the southern federal bench now, and as the council reports, "Blacks will be appointed to eight percent of the positions, and women to two percent. After the appointments are made, the representation of blacks, women and other minorities sitting on the federal bench in the South will remain extremely low."

Statistics alone cannot convey what the continued intrusion of politics and racially and ethnically restrictive selection processes will mean in the South.

It is here that the federal bench has given a boost to minorities stifled and stymied by the local bench and bar. It is also here where redneck and racist judges have delayed and equivocated at every opportunity.

Veterans of the South's "We divide the bench into the good guys and the bad ones: the Eisenhower and Kennedy judges.

Party politics — or common callousness — forced Kennedy to appoint such stalwarts as Judge Harold Cox, who once said, from the bench, that the NAACP stood for "Niggers, Eggs, Alligators, Pussies and Coons."

Eisenhower, prodded by his attorney general, William Rogers, appointed men like Frank Johnson of Alabama, chosen by Carter to head the FBI until illness caused him to decline. Johnson and a small group of Republican judges made the white South an national law, while men like Cox wrote law all their own.

The New Naderite Scapegoats

It was inevitable. The Naderites ran out of gas with their "Consumer Protection Agency" legislation after several years of trying to get it passed, so they had to find another horse to bestow it's America's business, specifically corporations.

Naderite Mark Green has teamed up with Ohio Sen. Howard Metzenbaum to dream up a bill which would drastically change the way corporations and government; that is, the way their boards of directors are composed. The bill, if passed, would almost certainly make the decision-making process in American business and industry slower, less efficient and more costly.

The Green-Metzenbaum theory seems to be that people who know nothing about, say, the widget business will be a whole lot smarter, fairer and more level-headed making decisions than will the professionals who now populate the majorities of most boards.

It all started, according to sources close to Metzenbaum, in February 1976 when the good senator, acting on "his concern about abuses of management and lack of shareholder control" in corporate government.

Green seems to have been the chief inspiration behind the idea, and he joined the committee. But, Metzenbaum pulled together a diverse group, even including American Tel. & Tel. Chairman John DeBatts. The Metzenbaum idea was, presumably, to bring the professional, managerial, labor, representative and business people together to come up with a consensus that could be converted into a bill.

But, it didn't work that way. Metzenbaum met with the committee on April 11 to learn that it had failed to reach agreement. No matter, the Metzenbaum source told one of my associates the day before the meeting that Metzenbaum would go ahead with the bill regardless.

"The senator is VERY serious about this issue," the source said. "There will be a May 15 congressional recess. I expected to be among the first to bring along my own special food."

Encounter On A Beach: Will Black Disc Ever Return?

By TOM TIEDE
Special To The Herald
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — (NEA) — It was a fine blustery morning, and the tides of the night before had left the sand of the beach hard and unblemished. The temperature was just below 70 and the wind was from the ocean, blowing salt and some mist against the shore.

I was out early, shoesless and in walking shorts, proceeding north of the resorts. Already, spring tourists were laying down blankets near the surf. Kids were burrowing for sea crabs. Fishermen were casting about and college couples were emerging red-eyed and suspect from sleeping bags.

It was no day for scavenging. The beach was clear for miles. I had hoped to find flat rocks with rings around them, which I'm certain are nature's armlets, but the sea had done its cleaning. The only items for an hour's walk were Budweiser bottles, which the prophets say will be the last survivors.

Black disc had a personality of its own

Then, just below Flagger Beach, where suburban sprawl gives way to primeval Florida, I saw a black disc in the sand. Surely it was the wheel of a UFO, I thought, or the emblem of office of a far-away prince. That's what's marvelous about beachcombing: expectation. A black disc? The blood warms. Alas, it turned out to be a piece of roof sheathing, or colloquially, tar paper. It had been cut in a four-inch circle, for what purpose I do not know. It was smooth on one side, and grained on the other. It was lying well above the reach of the surfside foam, and was therefore warm and dry.

I was naturally intrigued. And so I tried to imagine the disc had hidden meaning. Do people from other worlds paper their roofs? I recalled the lost tribes of antiquity that used wafers for currency. But it was no use. I sighed, resigned, and tossed the black disc toward the ocean.

Then I raced to a dune, to scree a pelican, and afterward I established an record for the shodless boyard dash. As I stood to catch my breath, gloating at my victory over illusion, something rolled up its edge and began to roll with the wind along the beach. It went another 40 yards, and stopped only when it came to a small depression.

I was delighted now. And I tried it again and again. I found

But I did start a conversation. I felt I should explain what I was doing on a beach on a workday; it seemed to appreciate the indiscretion.

As we talked, or as I talked and the disc listened, I invented a rationale for the tar paper's behavior. I concluded that it could not fall flat when I threw it because the wind engulfed it with a stability that kept it upright. And it rolled in a straight and steady line for much the same reason.

Eventually, willynilly, I decided to test the rationale. Why can't we leave well enough alone? I dipped one side of the black disc in the Atlantic, altering the balance of its weight, and the magic ended. When I threw the disc this time it dropped with a smack, heavy for the play of the wind. I had wounded it — curiosity. I tried to wet its other side, to restore equal weight but by now the disc was in no mood for coaxing. I set it in the sun, to dry, and continued by myself along the beach. When I returned later, on the way back, the disc was gone, most probably washed to sea.

And now I miss the thing. No doubt I could make a replacement, with scotch sand tar paper, but my heart wouldn't be in it. I prefer to believe the black disc will return to land again someday, to wait for me on a beach, and I will welcome it with proper woe, and ask no other questions.

It will be necessary for all owners of commercial vehicles (trucks, cars, whether owned or leased) to provide the tag of insurance when they are registering in June (June is registration month for commercial vehicles), according to G. Troy Ray Jr., tax collector.

This is the same requirement which privately owned vehicles have been required to provide. The type of insurance required is either PIP (Personal Injury Protection) or liability type insurance.

Graham Considers Rationing Alternatives

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham is willing to impose gasoline rationing to get Florida through this summer's expected energy crunch, but he doesn't believe it has to be necessary.

Graham said Friday he is considering limiting the number of hours service stations can remain open, restricting the number of gallons a motorist can buy at a time or adopting California's "odd-even" rationing system. He believes "voluntary re-

Amtrak Heading Towards A Banner Year

By ANDREW A. YEMMA
United Press International

Amtrak, the much-subsidized and more often criticized national passenger railroad system, appears headed for a banner year because of the energy situation and the strike at United Airlines, officials say. That assessment is backed up by the stock market record of Amtrak, a rail-shuttle service between Washington and Florida on which riders can ship their cars. The company's stock was the second most active on the American Exchange Thursday. Analysts said the firm stands to benefit from the gasoline shortage. The strike that hit United Airlines, the nation's largest domestic carrier, on March 31 appears to have increased Amtrak ridership as well. Vranich said rail routes that parallel United routes—such as San Francisco to Bakersfield, Calif., have experienced huge increases in riders. Still, he pointed to the New Orleans-Los Angeles

"Sunset Limited" run—"That happens to be the No. 1 one sellout train on Amtrak right now and there are no United flights along the way." A similar surge in Amtrak ridership occurred during the last gasoline crisis in 1974. But Vranich said figures so far this year make those increases look puny. "You may wonder if I'm drunk or not, because of the congressional debate that has been going on," he said. "But that has obscured the fact that we're headed for a record year. I would give my paycheck for our April ridership figures."

Vranich acknowledged the ridership increases can't hurt Amtrak's standing with Congress, which is considering proposals to drastically reduce the size of the rail service. "Our position is the government has always decided where Amtrak would run," he said. "All we are is the railroaders who try to run good trains."

"The main reason I believe my mom is the best is because, not only did she raise all of us and very well, I believe, but she has helped to raise so many others," Gayle wrote. Mrs. Hardin explained she has been both a school teacher (eight years) and a counselor (12 years) at Sanford Middle School while her husband, Bill, worked as a janitor. She recalled a special visit her daughter made to her counselor office. "Gayle came in one day and asked how can I tell my mother I failed my algebra test?" She and her husband, Bill, were married in 1964, and raised their children on a

Outstanding Mom:

'... Epitome Of Caring, Loving, Sharing'

By SHARON CARRASCO
Herald Staff Writer

"I feel I have truly been blessed by being able to be a mother," says Peggy Hardin, mother of three children now in their 20s. "I can't imagine how my life and my husband's life would have been without children."

Then she pauses, gathers her thoughts and says candidly. "Now it's hard to be a mother because they are on their own. I want to tell them what they should do and have to back off. I am not the main one to do those things anymore."

Mrs. Hardin, a teacher and counselor at Sanford Middle School for 20 years, was nominated as an outstanding mother and was still exhilarated by the news a day later when she was interviewed.

'Outstanding Moms' candidates receiving honorable mention are listed on Page 2B

The outstanding mother was selected from among several letters of nomination. In Mrs. Hardin's case, her daughter Gayle, nominated her as the "epitome of caring, loving and sharing."

Mrs. Hardin was handed a copy of Gayle's letter and her eyes just raced down the page. She chuckled at an outstanding mother and an outstanding daughter. "It makes me look a lot better than I am," Mrs. Hardin said.

"The main reason I believe my mom is the best is because, not only did she raise all of us and very well, I believe, but she has helped to raise so many others," Gayle wrote.

Mrs. Hardin explained she has been both a school teacher (eight years) and a counselor (12 years) at Sanford Middle School while her husband, Bill, worked as a janitor. She recalled a special visit her daughter made to her counselor office.

"Gayle came in one day and asked how can I tell my mother I failed my algebra test?" She and her husband, Bill, were married in 1964, and raised their children on a four acre farm in rural Sanford, Mrs. Hardin says. Her husband had grown up in the same farmhouse as a boy along with eight brothers and sisters.

"We wanted to raise our kids the way we wanted to, Mrs. Hardin says. "I don't have a lot of outside influences on them."

Someone was always growing some vegetables or colorful flowers in the garden she says. The family were natural-born animal lovers.

"Dogs were our big crop. We had so many dogs you wouldn't believe it," Mrs. Hardin reminisces. "At one time, we had 22 dogs and everyone I tried to give one away, he would always come back."

Mrs. Hardin began her second full-time career after her youngest child was interviewed.

keeps you in touch with the young. It helped me as a mother to be right in the middle of things because I knew what was going on. I know what they were thinking and what music they were playing."

While her two sons attended the middle school, Mrs. Hardin was a teacher there but she never taught her own children. She was a counselor when her daughter attended the middle school.

"When you marry a railroad man, you have to learn to set a routine for your family," Mrs. Hardin explains. Especially when the meals are to be served and he has another schedule. "A lot of his work was done at night so he would get up in the evening. So while you are feeding your own family dinner, you're feeding your husband breakfast."

Her husband's steady career at the railroad plus her own as a teacher at the middle school has created a stable environment for her children who have benefited from it, she says.

"It's hard on children to move around a lot, I see them come in and they don't have a chance to make friends before they are gone again. I'm glad we had jobs where we could stay in one spot."

As the years rolled by, the family became a close-knit unit who shared the holidays together as well as the chores. Holidays were always a special time for the family,

Mrs. Hardin says. Stockings were always hung for the children on the hearth and that tradition was kept until last Christmas.

"I told them this is the last Christmas we will do this here. You have your own families. Have your own stockings because your babies are getting to know Santa Claus."

"It was sad but it is truly necessary to establish your own family tradition."

At the very beginning of the interview, Mrs. Hardin candidly said she felt strange being chosen an outstanding mother.

"You just don't expect to be given an award for something that means so much to you to begin with."

Moms Play Ball

Moms are more than cooks, laundresses, chauffeurs, breadwinners and disciplinarians. In fact, a mom is one of those incredible creatures who can do just about anything. At least, most moms will attempt any feasible feat in the interest of youth. Thus, about two dozen moms (including several professional career women and homemakers abandoned their desks and kitchens and headed for the ball park in the interest of helping youth on Seminole County Youth Day. How did the women make out against a team of all-star girls in a softball game at Chase Memorial Park? Not too badly. The women went down 8-5.

In And Around Sanford Mothers, Daughters Turn Models

Mothers and daughters just sort of go together like peas in a pod — like fathers and sons. The community has been alive with mothers and others either celebrating Mother's Day, or getting prepared for this occasion. A fashion show highlighted a mother-daughter banquet this week at the First United Methodist Church with the United Methodist Women in command of the annual fete. The Friendly Circle was in charge of the program. Mrs. Scott (Patsy) Harris, program chairman, coordinated the fashion show with the latest styles from J.C. Penneys on parade by several mothers and their daughters. Nancy Terwilliger led a great job as the fashion coordinator. The Friendly Circle members and their mothers or daughters modeled an array of exciting fashions for the warm weather days ahead. The models included Gail Hobbs, circle chairman, Lucille Echols, Tracey Cranmer, Patsy Harris and daughters, Amy and Beth; Ruthe Leggere and daughter, Michelle; Alice Merrifield and daughters, LaDonna, Kristen and Jennifer and Becky Rannels and daughter, Michelle. Also Colleen McFadden and her mother, Joanne Brubaker; Mary Blair and her daughter, Laurie; Florence Granger; and Marcy O'Brien and her mother-in-law, Grace O'Brien. TV Personality Carole Nelson spoke on the influence her mother and grandmother had on her life. "Special" mothers in the limelight were Mrs. Cindy Errett, youngest mother attending, and Mrs. Louise Tillis, oldest mother. Readers have inquired how the softball game turned out when Seminole Community Leaders took on a girls all star team on Youth Day (see Page 2B). Several women (including this one) chickened out for one reason or another. Showing up to play on the big day were the following: Connie Majors, Madelyn Papa, Peggy Moore, chaplain of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs, was in Sanford this week. Mrs. Moore and Rubye are from the same area — and am told it was like "old home week." Just in case you haven't seen Martha Yancey doing her civic thing in the community, it's because she underwent surgery this week at Seminole Memorial Hospital. Her room number is 231. Congratulations are in order to Dr. and Mrs. Norman A. (Liz) Helfrich on their sixth wedding anniversary May 12 — my birthday. And by the way, at their elaborate wedding reception six years ago at The Forest, Liz gave me her wedding bouquet. I think she was trying to tell me something. According to Jim Smith, president of the Lake Mary Christian Men's Club, the block party in Lake Mary on Youth Day, was a "howling success." About 300 teen-agers attended the party, who, according to Jim, "score an A plus from the men's club. We hear so many negative reports from large parties, and we want to go on record for their excellent behavior." Incidentally, Mrs. C.C. Moore, chaplain of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs, was in Sanford this week. Mrs. Moore and Rubye are from the same area — and am told it was like "old home week." Just in case you haven't seen Martha Yancey doing her civic thing in the community, it's because she underwent surgery this week at Seminole Memorial Hospital. Her room number is 231.

Adoptive Mom Praises Mothers

DEAR ABBY: I hope you will use my letter on Mother's Day as a tribute to all those brave, unselfish mothers who gave up their babies. I am a new mother whose heart is overflowing with gratitude to a 15-year-old girl I have never seen. I understand that she is a beautiful, intelligent person who became pregnant accidentally and decided on her own that her baby should have a better life than she was able to provide for it, so she put it up for adoption. As soon as our son is able to understand, I shall tell him about his "real" mother and what a courageous person she is. In the meantime, I pray daily for her well-being and good fortune. Sign me: BLESSED IN NEW JERSEY DEAR BLESSED: Thank you for an appropriate letter for Mother's Day. I agree that giving up a child for its own good is the ultimate in selflessness. God bless those mothers who did. My father died so long ago I don't even remember him, but Mom has a man living here at our house. He has been living here for about a year. Most all my friends know that my Mom is a widow, but what do I say when someone asks whose car is parked in our garage. NO ANSWER IN ELGIN DEAR NO ANSWER: Don't lie. Tell them the car belongs to a friend of your mother's. It does, and he is.

The Church... A look at life

"Look at the red kite up there! See how high it's flying! The little boy follows her finger, and she is warmed and gratified by his smile of appreciation. It seems as if mothers are eternally anxious to make sure that their children get all there is to get out of life—that they miss nothing. Mothers would, if they could, show their children all that there is to see and give them everything—time for fun, time for play—new clothes, new toys, a television to watch cartoons, endless red kites and bright yellow balloons and, later, skis and sports cars.

Yet, in this eagerness to show and to give, aren't they in danger of overlooking some of the most important things of all? What of beauty, of serenity, of joy—the knowledge of God's goodness, His love, and familiarity with His house on earth... the Church?

In Catholic School Judaic Roots Taught

United Press International For years, the Rev. Michael Carroll has shown his classes of junior high students a film depicting the horrors of the Holocaust. The film is graphic, including piles of skeletal remains of the Jews who were victims of Nazi concentration camps.

But in 1973, in one of his classes, Carroll said, the students reacted in disbelief, telling him the film just "wasn't true. It couldn't happen." For Carroll, assistant superintendent of schools for religious education in the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Philadelphia, the reaction sparked an idea—an idea now coming to flower in Philadelphia's Roman Catholic schools.

Summer Mission To Alaska

Alaska, a land of moose, bears and 23-hour daylight, will be home this summer for Jacques Thompson Sanford, a Southern Baptist Theological Seminary summer missionary. Thompson and club President Winifred (Bill) Gledow (right) introduced the speaker, who is chaplain of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs and a Bible study teacher.

Accompanying her will be another Religious Education major, Angela Church, of Louisville. They have been forewarned to watch out for fierce "critters" by Valeria Carrara, archdiocese supervisor and a 27-year veteran of mission work among Eskimos and Indians.

"We've heard that Alaska has 23 hours of daylight during the summer, with twilight beginning at 3 a.m. and lasting a couple of hours," said Jacques. Many of the people they will be working with do not get up until about noon.

During their Alaskan adventure, they will be working with all age groups in camps, vacation Bible school, Sunday school, Bible studies, census-taking and visitation.

The day camp will take place about 50 miles from Fairbanks, their home-away-from-home and summer headquarters. That camp will have hours that would seem strange to counselors and campers alike in the lower 48 states... to 10 p.m., daily.

Bible study will offer them an opportunity to get field experience. Literally. They plan to pick berries in the fields with the adults who attend Bible study groups.

Visions of snow and igloos quickly vanished for the two when they learned that temperatures range from mid-80s and 60s to the mid-90s. Both are sure their summer will be anything but dull.

Sin A Problem Through The Ages By REV. WILLIAM ENNIS All Saints Catholic Church. Modern society is said to have lost a "sense of sin," but is in reality no different from any other age in the sense that history shows that no age has been free from destructive tendencies. The history of mankind is one of constant capitulation to weakness; it is a series of broken promises and unfulfilled goals. And what we are in the history books is merely a mirror of what goes on in the life of every individual.

slam because he couldn't refuse a gift at trick one. East couldn't beat dummy's nine of hearts, so South let it hold the trick. Later on the combination of the 4-2 club break and the misdeal, South's diamonds let him one trick short. South should have won the first trick with his ace of hearts, led a club to dummy at trick two, ruffed a low club at trick three, entered dummy with the king of spades at trick four, ruffed another low club, drawn trumps, entered dummy with the king of hearts and discarded three diamonds on the last three clubs. Of course, if he were a hog he could have made seven. He would take the heart finesse and get four diamond discards. A Kansas reader asks if it is ever worthwhile to risk a slam contract in an effort to score an overtrick. Today's hand is a possible example. Playing in a match point game, South might well take the heart finesse to pick up a match point or so, but in rubber bridge he would be downgrading. Finally, North hit upon winning action. He went to five spades. His purpose was to tell South that he, North, didn't want to use Blackwood because he held a worthless doubleton in one of the red suits, but that otherwise his hand was rather sound. South went to six, but then proceeded to blow the

Measles Vaccination Mandatory Next Fall

By SHARON CARRASCO
Herald Staff Writer

Most Seminole County high school students who declined voluntary vaccination this week against Red Measles will be unable to escape the needle next fall.

That was the word today from Marion Snell, consultant coordinator of health education and health services for the county's school district.

Mrs. Snell said she received word Friday from the county health department that beginning next fall, high school students must be vaccinated against measles, unless they can show they were vaccinated after 1969, or that they have had measles.

Florida health officials have become concerned over the dramatic increase of measles cases reported throughout the state at the high school level. Hence, an effort to this week immunize as many high school students as possible against measles on a voluntary basis.

"We have had a 400-percent increase in measles cases this year in Florida, compared with the same time last year," said Tom Cook, area immunization coordinator for the state department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS).

Approximately 928 students at Lake Brantley and Lake Howell high schools rolled up their sleeves this morning to be voluntarily immunized against red measles.

As a preventative measure against an outbreak, HRS is sponsoring the voluntary immunization program this week for students in grades 9 through 12 in Seminole County.

"The compulsory immunization guidelines from the state Department of Education pertain to all children to be enrolled and admitted to grades 10 through 12 in the 1979-80 school year."

"Students must either have proof of immunization certifying they were previously vaccinated with live measles virus vaccine or previously infected with natural measles, Mrs. Snell said.

Students who were vaccinated prior to or in 1969 would be required to be vaccinated again since that particular vaccine did not provide a lasting immunity, Mrs. Snell noted.

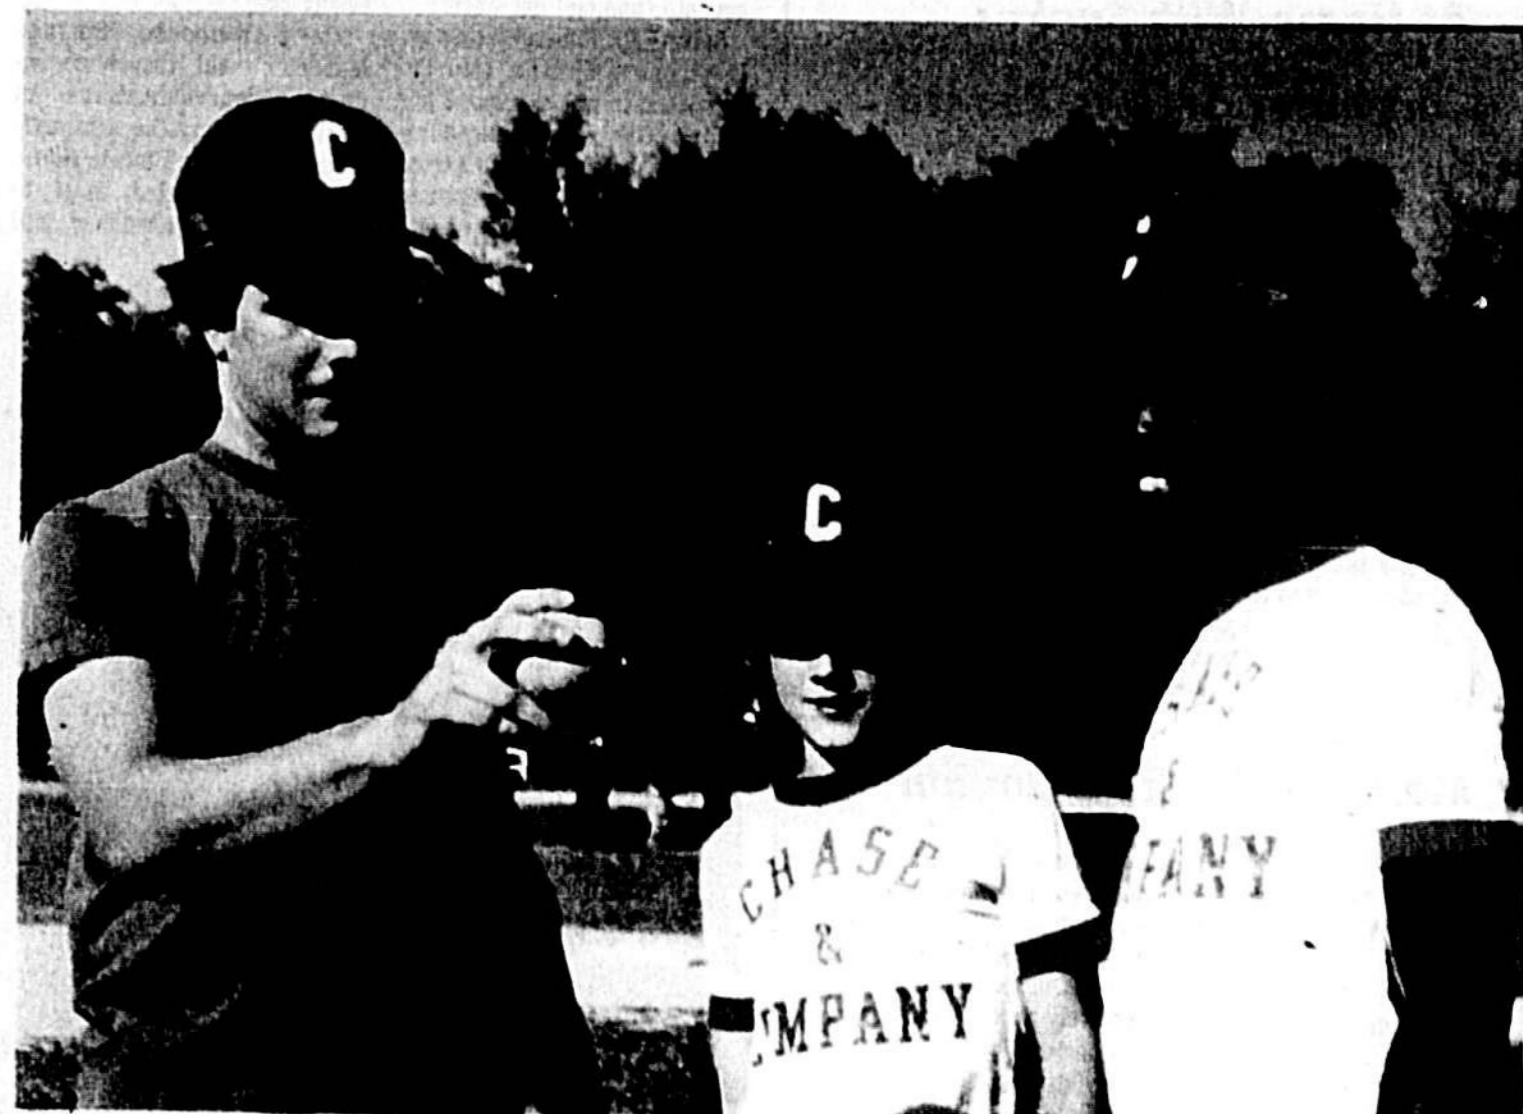

The HRS is sponsoring a three-day vaccination program beginning today for approximately 11,500 students in grades 9 through 12 in Seminole County, but by Friday, only about 1,700 students had signed up. The schools and the number volunteering are: 63, Crooms; 790, Lake Brantley; 146, Lake Howell; 260, Lyman; 160, Oviedo; and 291, Seminole.

"All these schools tell me students are still bringing in their consent of immunization form," Mrs. Snell said. "They expect to get them up until the day of immunization."

Students were immunized free of charge from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. today at Lake Howell and Lake Brantley high schools. The vaccination program will be held the same time at Lyman and Seminole high schools and Wednesday at Oviedo and Crooms high schools.

Referring to the 1,700 students who are participating in the program, Mrs. Snell said:

"I would say that is a pretty good turnout because we don't know how many have been immunized since 1969 or how many have been taken to their private physicians."

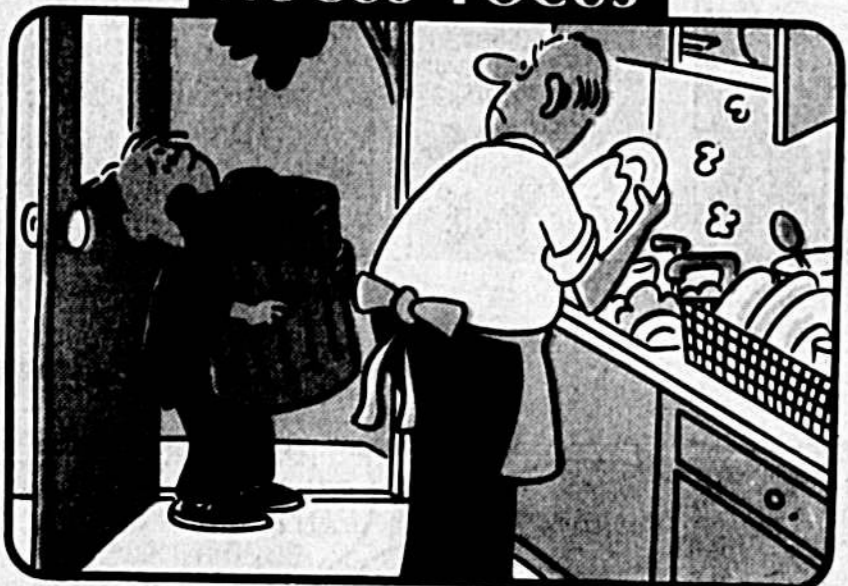

LEADING THE LEAGUE

Okay, guys, this is a baseball! That isn't actually what Chase & Co. coach Tolle Frank is telling Clint Byington, center, and Darrel Merthie. But whatever he has been telling them has been good advice, because Chase leads Sanford's National League with a 9-1 record to date, and Byington and Merthie top the club in both hitting and pitching. Chase continues its quest for division domination today with a 5 p.m. contest at Bay Avenue Park against second place Clem Leonard Shell.

HERE'S ONE FOR MOM!

Hey, Mom, here's one just for you. Try it on family members or friends on your special day.

Form a square with 12 buttons or coins (see above), with four coins on each side. Now, challenge bystanders to remove two coins (leaving 10) and still have four on each side. Here's the secret (for Mom's eyes only): Remove coins 2 and 11. Place coin 4 atop coin 4, and 9 atop 10. There are still four coins on each side.

Dr. DeJu As Seminole Health Director Assured?

It's all but settled, Dr. Jorge DeJu M.D. of Tallahassee will become the first person to serve in the dual role of director of Human Services-Health director for Seminole County and assume the duties of those offices in early June.

The final details before the move into the $45,000 annual position remaining to be accomplished are formal approval by the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) of Dr. DeJu's eligibility for the health director post, and for the creation by Seminole County of the dual position and Dr. DeJu's formal acceptance.

However, Dr. Lucy Hady, HRS district director, said Dr. DeJu is listed by the state department as eligible already.

"We do not foresee any problem," she said. As far as the dual role is concerned, Mrs. Hady said, "There is plenty of precedent for that," citing Orange County specifically where one man holds both the office of health director and social services director.

"I think the approval will go smoothly," she said. "We are not talking of only a matter of days for the formal approval to be granted," Mrs. Hady added, noting the approval should come by Friday. "HRS has been working with the county diligently for months to fill the position of health director."

HRS approval is necessary because DeJu as health director will be technically a state employee and 60 percent of the salary for the health director post is funded by the state.

Dr. DeJu said today he must wait for formal HRS approval before accepting the Seminole County job. He said he and County Administrator Roger Neiswender will be meeting in Seminole County Saturday.

When HRS approval is in hand, he and his family—wife and two daughters — will begin planning to move into Seminole County by early June, he said today.

The eldest daughter of the 49-year-old physician is a student in college while his 18-year-old daughter is a high school student.

The permanent health department director post has been vacant in Seminole County since last September when Dr. Hamida Battia resigned. Dr. William O. Fowler, a retired physician from Orlando, has been filling in.

The human services director position has been vacant since Troy Todd, the county's first director resigned the post in March and received at his request reassignment to another county job. Budget

Dr. DeJu, currently in private practice, told county commissioners last week he prefers the public health field over private practice.

A native of Cuba, Dr. DeJu has been an American citizen for 15 years. He received his BS degree from Viloria Institute in Cuba, his MD from Havana Medical School and a master's of public health administration from the University of Berkeley in Calif. He served his residency in his specialty of obstetrics and gynecology at Deaconess Hospital, Buffalo, N.Y.

He has served in public health positions in the states of Kentucky and Florida and with the U.S. State Department. — DONNA ESTES

Sanford Couple's Stolen Dog: 'He Was Our Eyes In The Night'

A little over a year ago, John W. Benson, 65, decided he had to do something to keep out the burglars and prowlers who continually stalked his home at 1384 Pomegranate Ave. So he bought a dog. Some time early Saturday, Jack, the 1-year-old huskie pup who provided Benson and his wife with the protection and security they desired, was taken from the front yard of the couple's home.

"Somebody tried to get in my window once when I was here and we got scared. At our age what could we do if someone broke in," said Mrs. Benson, 74. "We bought Jack for protection." Benson said he placed Jack on his chain line Friday night before going to bed. When he awoke Saturday, the dog had been unfastened from the chain and was gone. "We loved him, and him real good and played with him. He wouldn't have run away," Mrs. Benson said. Mrs. Benson described the dog as "our eyes in the night." She said the trees in the surrounding lots make their home very dark in the evening and easily approachable to prowlers.

But in the year they had Jack, they did not experience the repeated visits of late-night intruders like the ones who broke into a shed next to the home and stole all their gardening tools before Jack arrived.

"We slept well at night," Benson said. "If anybody got close to the house, Jack would start his barking and they wouldn't come any closer."

Benson said he has been in the house since 1962, but did not start having serious problems with prowlers until the last few years.

'At our age what could we do if somebody broke in?'

Last summer, he said, the situation grew worse. The night his shed was broken
