Alford steps back

SANFORD — Steve Alford, who has undertaken a private fund raising drive for July 4th fireworks displays for the past four years, is throwing in the towel.

"I just can't continue doing this," he said this morning, "but I'll be glad to help someone else if they want to handle the drive."

Alford started his fund raising after city and Chamber of Commerce funding for the annual July 4th fireworks display was withdrawn. Most recently, he attempted to obtain support from a number of organizations including the Sanford/Seminole Jaycees.

"Every year people promise to support the drive, then it ends up going on my shoulders," he said, "it's just too much for me to do any more."

Alford said if any club or organization wishes to attempt raising funds for this year's July 4th fireworks, he would be happy to turn over all of his paperwork.

"I don't want anyone else to have to go through what I have," he said, "and this may be of big help."

Alford's phone number is 321-8727.

"One thing I want to do," he added, "is give a very heart-felt thank you to all the people and businesses who have helped me raise money for the fireworks in the past. It couldn't have been done without them."

Grants help combat youth crime

By NICK PFEIFAUH

SANFORD — It's grant application time. If the grants are approved, the money will be directly used to combat juvenile crime. The City of Sanford will go after $100,000 from the state to combat juvenile drug and school problems. The Sanford Housing Authority plans to seek a grant from Housing and Urban Development to continue the community patrol officers.

During Monday night's commission meeting, approval was given to apply for the $100,000 grant. If obtained, the money would go to help continue two major programs, Drug Abuse Resistance Education, (DARE) and School Resource Officers, (SRO).

The money has been allocated by the state from the motor vehicle trust fund, and has been set aside as an incentive to foster a reduction in

Cops mull curfew for juveniles

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

SANFORD — Imposing curfews as a way to stem juvenile crime is being discussed in the legislature and also by Sanford Police.

Last week, deputy chief Joe

Dillard told members of the Westside Community Association the police are looking at a curfew ordinance from Dallas, Texas to present to local officials. Dillard said the constitutionality of the Dallas curfew had been upheld by a U.S. Court of Appeals.

Sanford City Manager Bill Simmons said there is a 33-year old curfew for minors on the books but it is not enforced. The lack of police manpower along with possible legal challenge of the curfew are two reasons the old law is not enforced. The city curfew calls for anyone under 17 years of age to be off the

Reprimand for firemen

Stripper may press criminal charges

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — A Winter Park stripper says she may pursue criminal charges against six Seminole County firefighters accused of battering her during a performance in November.

"We're weighing that option very, very heavily," said the woman, who's name is being withheld due to the nature of the incident.

The woman said she will meet with prosecutors at the State Attorney's Office this week to discuss the complaint.

Last Monday, county Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser issued written warnings to the six firefighters after an investigation confirmed they were on stage with the woman. The internal investigation conducted by the Sheriff's Office could not confirm whether the firemen touched the woman or poured beer on her as she alleged.

Kaiser said the woman's allegation was unsubstantiated, so stricter punishment could not be meted out to the six men. But after conferring with the county's labor attorney, Kaiser said he decided they had violated the county Code of OVIEDO — Randall Edward Boston is in jail this morning, charged with one count of lewd and lascivious activity with a child under the age of 16.

According to Seminole County sheriff's investigators Boston, 19, has on several occasions fondled a 13-year-old neighborhood girl.

The laborer's address was listed as 455 McLain Drive in Geneva.

Investigators said, however, that he was no longer living at that location.

After a period of homelessness, they said, he was taken in by a family in another part of Geneva.

"About two or three months ago, the family (who has taken him in) met Boston in church," Ed McDonough, public information officer for the College's auction adds to scholarship coffers

SANFORD — It went well. Very well.

Seminole Community College's annual Dream Auction on Friday evening brought out the best in many people who gave generously to the college's scholarship foundation.

The 10th annual fundraiser sold out as it has the last few years. Each of the 420 seats in the ballroom of the Sheraton Orlando-North in Maitland was filled by philanthropists who had paid $75 apiece for dinner and the chance to bid on a variety of items.

"I think we got more than 60 percent of the retail value on most of the items on the list," said Alex Serraes, project coordinator of for the college's department of student services.

Serraes said that several items on the auction block brought at least 100 percent of their retail value.

As always, the most popular items to be auctioned off were travel packages.

A trip to Alaska and a cruise through the natural beauty of that state brought $4,000.

The trip, donated by Holland American Cruise Lines and Continental Airlines went for the full retail value, Serraes said.

Nordic Cruise Lines donated a package deal for those who wanted to "Choose A Cruise" to the destination of their liking (or to no place at all).

Coming in a close second in the bidding wars, that travel package fetched close to $4,000 as well.

Other popular items on the auction block included a trip to EuroDisney and two weeks in Paris

Former AAA manager charged with fraud

ORLANDO — A former manager at the American Automobile Association has been charged with defrauding banks in Florida and Virginia out of more than $167,000 in an insurance money, a prosecutor said.

Michael A. Cintron, who headed AAA's foreign motoring insurance unit until May, has been charged with bank fraud, Assistant U.S.

Attorney Thomas W. Turner said Monday.

Cintron, 50, of Lake Mary, is accused of preparing and approving phony cancellation and refund requests on behalf of more than 100 AAA customers who bought temporary policies after buying cars overseas between 1986 and 1993.

According to prosecutors, Cintron forged the customers' signatures on refund checks issued by Barnett

Federal experts find new virus in rats

MIAMI — Health experts investigating the cause of a rare respiratory illness of a Dade County man have discovered what they believe is a new species of hantavirus in one of the county's most prevalent rats.

Federal disease experts have trapped and tested 90 local cotton rats and found 12 carried what appears to be a new kind of hantavirus, a rodent-borne virus which has killed 32 people in 14 Western states.

Testing of the rats began after Kenneth Spence, a North Miami mechanic, became seriously ill last fall. His was the first case reported of the hantavirus east of the Mississippi River. He has since recovered.

Experts told local health authorities Monday there is no definitive proof the new virus caused Spence's illness or that it can cause any human illness.

Anita Bock, chief of health and social welfare for Dade County, said while other hantaviruses do cause disease and death, such illness is uncommon.

"People should take this very calmly," Bock said Monday. Tests confirmed Spence had been infected by some kind of hantavirus. Further tests must be conducted to show whether the strain that infected him is the same as the suspected new virus.

Escaped prisoner crushed to death

IMMOKALEE — A prisoner who escaped from Hendry Correctional Institution by stowing away in a garbage truck was found crushed to death in a landfill, authorities said.

Collier County sheriff's detectives identified Anastasio Figueroa, 41, of Miami, using his fingerprints, said Jesse Jenkins Jr., the prison's assistant superintendent for operations.

Figueroa had been out in the prison's recreation yard Monday morning when the truck came to pick up trash bins. He apparently stowed away in a container or climbed into the truck, Jenkins said. He had been in prison since Dec. 23, 1992.

Figueroa, who was serving a life sentence for an attempted kidnapping with a deadly weapon, was reported missing after a head count of prisoners. Officials then noticed the garbage truck's schedule; it had left about 45 minutes before Figueroa's absence was noticed.

Corrections officers drove the truck's destination, the Immokalee Landfill in Collier County, where they found Figueroa's remains. He apparently had been crushed by the truck's compactor, Jenkins said.

An autopsy by the Collier County Medical Examiner's Office is scheduled for this morning.

This was the third escape from the isolated prison in the past two months. In January, two prisoners escaped but were recaptured the same day.

600 remember slain superintendent

FORT MYERS — Students and colleagues remembered former Lee County School Superintendent James Adams as a visionary and a risktaker one week after he was shot to death by a former teacher.

"He walked the talk, stood by it, and dared you to disagree when it came to the equality of all people," Charles Dailey, the county's coordinator of equity and desegregation, said at a memorial service Monday.

More than 600 educators, children and politicians packed the McGregor Baptist Church in Fort Myers to say goodbye to Adams, who was killed by Larry Shelton outside his office. Shelton then killed himself.

"Franklin Roosevelt said, 'Every friend's life is a part of ours, and every friend's death diminishes us.' We've been knocked down, but James Adams trained us well, and we have gotten back up," said Fort Myers Mayor Wilbur Smith.

Florida Commissioner of Education Doug Jamerson said Adams would be "missed by not forgotten."

Acting Superintendent Bobbie D'Alessandro said the students are Adams' legacy. "He believed our children were the stars, so even in this dark time the children will continue to shine."

Adams was buried Saturday in his native Kentucky.

Four die in fiery collision

BLOUNTSTOWN — Four people died in a fiery collision near this Florida Panhandle town despite efforts of a state road crew to pull them from the wreckage.

The accident happened Monday morning on State Road 71, about 10 miles south of Blountstown in Calhoun County.

State troopers said a 1994 Ford Bronco passing other southbound traffic in a no-passing zone crashed head-on into a northbound 1987 Chevrolet pickup. The Bronco then overturned and burst into flames.

Killed in the Bronco were the driver, Thelma Patricia Register, 45, of Bristol, and her passenger, Pam Cox, 18, also of Bristol, said Trooper J.W. Karanza, a duty officer at the Florida Highway Patrol's Panama City post.

Security tightens amid threats

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Security at the state Capitol has been tightened after two bomb scares last week and personal threats against some legislators who supported an assault weapon ban.

Authorities have been on heightened alert since Friday when a bomb threat emptied the Capitol complex for about 45 minutes.

A second threat later that same day caused officials to close the Capitol complex to the public Saturday when several thousand people rallied against proposed gun control laws.

"Anytime someone calls in and says they're going to blow up the Capitol you take a close look at it," James McPherson, director of the Capitol police, said Monday. "As a rule, it is someone either ticked off at a law being considered or somebody there they're ticked off with."

The most visible target of personal threats has been Rep. Ron Klein, the sponsor of a bill to ban dozens of semiautomatic assault weapons. Several other lawmakers who supported the bill also have received threats.

Klein, who withdrew his bill last week and reintroduced a narrower version of the legislation, has received extra security following the threats.

King says state nonviolence institute can be national model

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A new institute promoting nonviolence could serve as a national model if Florida comes up with $1.3 million to get the program rolling, said the widow of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

"Florida needs this training," Coretta Scott King said Monday. "With your rich ethnic diversity, and as one of the nation's most important immigration points of entry, the potential for conflict in your state is as significant as is the opportunity for building a vibrant multicultural community."

The Legislature last year passed the law establishing the Martin Luther King Jr. Institute on Nonviolence to provide education, research and training in conflict resolution methods.

Senate President Pat Thomas, D-Quincy, attended Mrs. King's news conference but could not say whether the Legislature would approve the $1.3 million request.

The institute received $200,000 from the state last year and it started operating last October in Miami with an interim director but no staff.

Supporters of increased money said the money would allow the institute to hire support staff, hire a fulltime director and begin to expand its programs to other cities.

"I believe you could become the model state for showing the rest of nation how this can be done, how we can lessen the violence," said Mrs. King, who held the news conference in the governor's office at the Capitol.

The Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Nonviolent Social Change in Atlanta already has trained 58 law enforcement officers, community leaders, teachers and others in nonviolence techniques, said Mrs. King, who is president of the King center.

Those trainees from Florida now are training others across the state.

The institute has conducted four-hour orientation sessions in Miami, Fort Lauderdale, Tampa, Jacksonville, Tallahassee, Pensacola and Opa-Locka as the first step toward establishing satellite operations around the state, said Rep. James Bush.

MADD wants lower alcohol limit for under age drivers

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — People too young to drink would be too young to drink and drive under a bill proposed by Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

"They're not allowed to drink, so therefore they should not be allowed to drive with any measurable amount of alcohol," MADD national president Beckie Brown said Monday.

The bill would limit drivers under 21 to a blood alcohol content of .02 percent. Twenty states already have limits that low, Brown told a news conference on the group's 1994 legislative priorities.

MADD also backs bills to require jail time for a second driving-under-the-influence conviction in 5 years, and another bill to prevent anyone under 21 from preparing or serving drinks.

The Senate passed a bill to lower the blood alcohol limit for minors last session but it failed in the House.

"We think we'll be able to pass it this year. It's common sense legislation," said Sen. Mario Diaz-Balart, R-Miami, co-sponsoring the measure (SB 152) with Sen. Ginny Brown-Waite, R-Spring Hill.

"It is ironic that the legal drinking age in all 50 states is 21. Yet in most states, if a minor is stopped for suspicion of driving under the influence, he must have a BAC equal to that of an adult who can legally drink," Brown said.

Florida lawmakers lowered the limit for adults from .10 to .08 effective Jan. 1.

Teenagers who violated the .02 limit could have their drivers' licenses suspended.

Backers originally wanted a zero blood alcohol limit for drivers under 21 but raised it slightly to allow for traces of alcohol such as that in some cold medications or religious ceremonial wines. Brown-Waite said.

- An estimated $2,950 in damage was reportedly done Thursday at a vacant residence in the 1700 block of Sunset Drive near Lake Mary. Deputies report paint had been splattered on walls, window shades and a vanity, a hole was broken in the bedroom wall, and toilet covers were broken.
- A burglary was reported to Sanford police early Friday at an apartment in Lake Monroe Terrace. Police said $800 in items were missing with a CD player and telephones found in a bag near the front door.
- Sanford police said five tires and rims were removed from one truck, and the spare tire was taken from another Thursday, in a fenced compound in the 1200 block of Cornwall Court. The tires were valued at $750.
- Video equipment valued at $2,100 was reported stolen Thursday from 48 Castle Brewer Court.
- A leather handbag with a reported $1,000 in cash and various credit cards was reportedly stolen from a pickup truck Thursday parked in the 1400 block of W. 1st Street in Sanford. Police said entry was made through an open window of the truck.

Support for 'messy' people

By DENISE LAVOIE
Associated Press Writer

GREENWICH, Conn. — A walk through Judy's house used to mean stepping over piles — piles of magazines, piles of catalogs, piles of letters and piles of things she couldn't even identify.

Judy had become a "messie." So Judy started a chapter of a support group — "Messies Anonymous" — for slobbers ranging from those who are unable to balance a checkbook to those who have had their children taken away because their homes were a disaster.

Every Tuesday morning, Judy and about a half dozen other people meet at the Greenwich Civic Center to discuss what it means to be messy. The meetings are closed to protect the anonymity of participants.

Judy said during a typical meeting, members share their messy problems from the previous week and set goals for cleaning up during the coming week. They also read from "Meditations for Messies — A Guide to Order and Serenity," by Sandra Felton, the guru of messiness who founded Messies Anonymous in 1981.

"You learn that there are people who have the same problem," Judy said. "I used to think it must be laziness, but I know that's not true. Now, I kind of think of it as a learning disability, only it's a cleaning disability."

Messies Anonymous is not a joke — though in an age when there seems to be a support group for every problem, it is not always taken seriously.

Judy once encountered a man who criticized the group for using the 12-step program advocated by Alcoholics Anonymous and other self-help groups. He "was incensed. He was involved in a 12-step program for drugs or alcohol, and he said, 'You're not going to die from a piece of fluff.'"

"I thought he had a good point," she said. "(Being messy) is not a life-threatening problem, but if it's a serious problem for you, then it's a serious problem."

Felton started the group after growing frustration with her own messiness. After 23 years of marriage, she had so much junk that one bathroom was unusable because it had become a storage room. Her three children were afraid to have friends over because the house was in such disarray.

Only a dozen people showed up near her home in Miami for the first meeting. But after the group was written up in The Miami Herald, "I got 12,000 letters saying, 'Help!'" Felton said.

The group does not keep membership statistics. Felton, who has written six books on the subject, defines a "messie" as "a person who lives a more or less chronically disorganized life and doesn't want it that way."

"It doesn't have to be someone who's terribly disorganized. It just has to be disorganization to the point where it makes the person uncomfortable and they just aren't able to control it on their own," she said.

Some are only slightly perplexed by their messiness. Others have been evicted from their condominium association, gone through a divorce or been unable to sell their home because of its messy condition.

"It's sort of like weight. For some people, if they're 10 pounds overweight, they become alarmed, and other people don't become concerned until it gets much further down the line," she said.

Judy, a 37-year-old church secretary, said her low point came about five years ago, when the constant clutter in her house led to tension with her husband. One day, her father-in-law dropped by unexpectedly and found the house in its usual state of disarray.

"He privately confided to my husband that the place was a pigsty, and that's when I knew I had to do something," she said Judy.

Since starting the support group, she's made progress.

Before, when people dropped by without calling, she would make a frenzied dash to shove as much junk as she could fit under the couch. Now, almost everything has a place in her modest home in Old Greenwich. She keeps a lone three-tier organizer on the kitchen counter, where everything from bills to catalogues are neatly stacked.

"The whole general atmosphere of our home life is so much more peaceful and contented," she said.

Focusing on the good news

Some people reflect on only bad news. Unfortunately, there are those who seem to thrive on looking at the dark side of the happenings in Central Florida.

While we admit there are many items which deserve serious concern, there are also many heart-warming stories. People are doing good things to help others, and they must not be ignored.

Terry Cook, a Lakeview Middle School teacher has been enjoying her recently named title of Middle School Teacher of the Year. Greg Register of Oviedo High School is the county Teacher of the Year.

They weren't selected because of longevity or public appeal, they were chosen because of excellent work in helping our children improve in their educational skills.

People who put together the All Souls Catholic Church Mardi Gras celebration also deserve high praise. For 1994, they once again held an outstanding event which drew thousands of visitors into the area. It not only helped in fund-raising for the All Souls school, but drew many visitors into the Sanford area.

The YMCA is planning an expansion program. Again, this isn't being instigated because the "Y" wants to impress someone. It is aimed at helping more children and adults through an expansion of services.

People who do good things for other people on a personal level also make good news. Almost 50 family members gathered at Meridian Nursing Center in Longwood Saturday for Carra Ryan Whitmore's 100th birthday. D. "Slim" Galloway and his wife Ina were recently honored for their 65th wedding anniversary by members of their family.

How pleased the Galloways and Ms. Carra must be to know they have not been overlooked by members of their family. They raised their youngsters well, and are enjoying the rewards of their work.

By all means, read reports on crime, disasters, government conflicts and the serious news of the day. In doing so, we hope there are people who will be able to learn from others' mistakes.

But read the good news of the day as well. There are many outstanding individuals, clubs, groups, families, and events in this fast-moving modern age. Let's be concerned about the bad, but let us never forget to honor the good.

Loss of flood insurance

Wake up, Florida! We could end up without flood insurance. There are bills in both the House (HR3191) and the Senate (S1405) of the United States that you should know about. These bills would deny flood insurance to new construction in "erosion hazard areas" (proponents have long suggested that barrier islands and coastline are by definition erosion hazard areas and most construction after a hurricane will be new).

This legislation is obviously important to everyone who lives or makes a living in or near any coastal area. It may not be so obvious, but it is certainly important to those who live or make their living inland. One of the effects of these bills would be reduced property values for coastal and near-coastal properties, which will reduce property tax revenues from those properties and require more from everyone else. Another effect would be a reduction in the number of coastal hotel/motel facilities, and the enjoyment, employment, and tax revenues provided by them. You can obtain more information from Coastal Advocate Inc. (Fax 609-494-5335, P.O. Box 475, Ship Bottom NJ 08008) and from Long Island Coastal Alliance (Fax 212-929-3746, 263 W. 20th Street, New York NY 10011).

Sen. Mack (Fax 202-224-8022, 517 Senate Hart Office Building, Washington DC 20510) has recognized the defects of S1405 and will present an alternative; Rep. Peter Deutch-FL (Fax 202-225-8456, 425 Cannon House Office Building Washington DC 20515) is a cosponsor of the House bill, and Rep. Jim Bacchus-FL (Fax 202-225-9039, 432 Cannon House Office Building Washington DC 20515) actively and aggressively opposed the House bill as it was and is proposed.

This legislation will affect every Floridian, one way or another. Your elected officials need to know that you are aware, and that you have an opinion. They have to find that out from you.

Clinton plan: Choice without options

Let me confess up front that I have not read all 1,364 pages of the so-called Health Security Act. President Clinton's wondrous plan to remake America's health care system. But I have read enough of it to wonder if maybe the medicine Dr. Bill is peddling is more like snake oil.

The president advertises the attractive elements of his plan. It would provide universal health coverage, for instance, extending insurance to the 15 percent of Americans who are uncovered during the course of a given year. It would make health insurance "portable," meaning that coverage would be uninterrupted if a person changed jobs. And there would be no denial of insurance, or imposition of higher premiums, for people who happened to have pre-existing medical conditions.

But that's the good stuff. It's like the spoonful of sugar you swallow before downing a particularly bad-tasting tonic. Before Americans swallow whole the Clinton health plan, they should be aware of the elements that may not be entirely to their liking.

There will be less consumer choice. Three-quarters of Americans would be steered into regional health "alliances," for purposes of buying health insurance in bulk. The government-controlled alliances would decide which health plans consumers are offered.

The president says that there will be several choices of plans but, in fact, the plans will vary little. That's because government diktat — rather than consumer demand — would determine what package of medical benefits health insurers provide.

It's the same kind of "choice" consumers would have if the government imposed a standard menu on all fast-food chains. Sure, consumers could pick among McDonald's or Taco Bell or Kentucky Fried Chicken. But it really wouldn't matter because the food would be same.

Medical care will be rationed. The aim of the

I have read enough of it to wonder if maybe the medicine Dr. Bill is peddling is more like snake oil.

Clinton health plan is to enroll most Americans in HMOs, which will be under considerable pressure to limit health spending by insurers. HMOs will do the dirty work of rationing for the government. The fine print of the Clinton health plan says that, while basic medical coverage is guaranteed to all, patients may be denied certain treatments that are not considered "necessary."

This provision will enable HMOs to employ various cost-cutting practices. Elizabeth McCaughey, a fellow at the Manhattan Institute, writes in the current issue of The New Republic.

For instance, she notes, many of the larger HMOs "withhold" up to 25 percent of a doctor's pay until the end of the year. The doctor recoups his or her money only if he or she has met goals for limiting patient tests, referrals to specialists and hospitalization.

Particularly loathsome is the so-called "utilization review," a method commonly used by a number of HMOs. Writes McCaughey: "A sick patient must wait while a doctor telephones a utilization review company, describes the symptoms and medical history to a nurse or clerk seated at a computer terminal and hopes for an OK to proceed with tests and treatment."

The Clinton bill considers this a "reasonable restriction."

In Silence, we may learn to win

WASHINGTON — Sitting in the stands at the Washington Bullets game on Sunday, I witnessed two massacres.

In the more publicized slaughter, the Golden State Warriors trounced the Bullets 106-84 before thousands.

Few saw the other, more entertaining wipeout. In it, professional sports pest Robin Ficker — a lawyer locally famous for using his season-ticket seats behind the Bullets' opposing bench to heckle the enemy — took on the Warriors' Chris Webber.

Ficker's game plan was to flail rookie Webber with the player's worst career moment: when last April the then-University of Michigan hoopsster mistakenly signaled an illegal timeout that ensured Michigan's loss of the championship.

Even on TV, it was excruciating, watching a gifted 20-year-old's agony over costing his team the ultimate prize.

On Sunday, it was equally intolerable listening to Ficker spend two hours hammering at Webber, bending over and yelling through a bullhorn into his inches-away ear. "Hey hold it — Webber wants a timeout!"

Over the months, I've seen players curse or obscenely gesture at Ficker. Not Webber.

First, the player blew kisses at Ficker. Then he helped pummel the Bullets. Finally, Webber turned, grinning, to the still-screaming Ficker — and gave him a "timeout" hand signal. Didn't say a word.

Crowd members loved it. As a writer, I know words' inadequacy. I understand the frustration of giving birth to an idea, watching it gain clarity and vividness, and then trying, vainly, to write it.

At such times words seem too small, too limiting, too...human to do the job. I've learned that some truths, born in silence, choose largely to remain there.

Today, silence and its truths fascinate me. Because these days we are drowning in words. "Racism." "Anti-Semitism." "Dirty old pope." "Wetback." "Ethnic cleansing." "Bloodsucker." "Genocide."

And the more we speak, the more I wonder if, truly, we are hearing each other.

Everybody has his or her push-button words. For each group, there are phrases that best characterize its suffering, confirm its worse suspicions. Each of us knows an epithet that encapsulates centuries of hurt. And that some people delight in making up new ones.

When the words of others push our buttons — accidentally or with cruel intent — there can be hell to pay.

Khalid Abdul Muhammad, a little-known spokesman for the Nation of Islam, in November gleefully said all manner of nasty things about Jews, Catholics, feminists, black scholars and leaders and others. A flood of outraged words later — including a unanimous reputation by the U.S. Senate — Muhammad was fired by his boss, Minister Louis Farrakhan, whose announcement of the action was couched in words that only angered some further.

At the same time, the NAACP and the Congressional Black Caucus pointed out that one of the lawmakers who reprimanded

Muhammad, Sen. Ernest F. Hollings (D-S.C.), has survived a history of ugly remarks about minorities — most recently a "joke" about prominent African leaders — without suffering official reprimand.

These men's crimes are not the same, but are linked by the wielding of words that jab people's tenderest places. I don't know these men any more than I know anything about Webber or Ficker, other than their public lives. I have no clue why Muhammad and Hollings spoke the hurtful words they did.

I'm interested in the clamor surrounding their words. In what it stirred up, for so many, from the silence.

It is in our individual silences that our visceral responses are shaped. And despite speculation about "longtime rifts," it is in the silence that black folks and Jews — and everyone else — are most similar.

In the silence from which many Jews operate is a knowledge of the death and devaluation that hateful words can galvanize. Always, I'm told, there's the echo, "Six million."

Flowing wordlessly through the consciousness of many black people is the awareness of slavery, Jim Crow, ongoing racism — and the resulting self-hatred that leaves children bleeding on city streets.

In our deepest Silence — where we go in prayer and meditation, where our best selves reside — we are even more the same.

And it is into that silence that we must go to begin to heal America's endless war of words. To explore our own culpability; to acknowledge that in a prejudiced world, people will make mistakes.

Sometimes you have to forget the words. The thing is to win.

In the Silence, we may even learn to do it together.

Offer hope to lost generations

In eloquent prose that won him applause even from some conservatives (and you have to admit, he can almost out-Reagan Reagan in the use of anecdotal symbolism), President Clinton has mapped out the state of our union. Among the prescriptions are two he hammered away on in his campaign: We must get much tougher on crime and reform welfare as we know it. Only this time, Clinton seems to at least have part of the answer (read, even if he isn't quite ready to point "I urge you to consider this: As you demand tougher penalties for those who choose violence, let us also remember how we came to this sad point," he said.

"In our toughest neighborhoods, on our meanest streets, in our poorest rural areas, we have seen a stunning and simultaneous breakdown of community, family and work, the heart and soul of civilized society."

As we say 'no' to crime, we have to give people something to say 'yes' to.

The president went on to say that as we say "no" to crime, we have to give people something to say "yes" to: "We have got to stop pointing our fingers at these kids who have no future and reach out our hands to them." Although he didn't draw the connection between cause and effect as strong as it merits, he doffed his hat to a major part of the solution: "Many of our initiatives, from job training to welfare reform, to health care, to national service will help to rebuild distressed communities, to strengthen families, to provide work...."

Finally, acknowledgment that things won't improve in the inner cities until we offer young people jobs with a living wage. In his book "Streetwise," sociologist Elijah Anderson studied the causes of inner-city decay and came to the same conclusion. Anderson, a professor at the University of Pennsylvania, says the young men he interviewed can't find "family-sustaining" jobs, the traditional mark of manhood, and instead make a costly substitution: "Partially in response, the young men's peer groups emphasize sexual prowess as a sign of manhood, with babies as evidence."

The service-industry jobs available to these men don't pay enough for them to support families; crime does. To rise above this dynamic takes a whole of a will and belief, something hard to inherit from a generation that already feels hopeless.

You doubt? The majority of this underclass is black, and it doesn't take much study of American history to follow the generations that came from slavery: set free, possessing nothing. Struggling to survive in separate-and-grossly unequal Jim Crow social conditions. State laws denying them basic civil rights, employment and education. A slow three decades of legally enforced opportunity that many non-blacks see as a time of unbridled favoritism toward blacks.

Still, it is unfair and useless to try to visit the sins of the fathers on the sons. This generation of white Americans can in no way be held responsible for the slavery that ended over 130 years ago. But what slavery did in this nation was to start a chain reaction, whose consequences are still being visited on all of us. To ignore those consequences is stupid, and to do something about them means a much better society for all of us.

In Nashville, Tenn., the Dollar General Corp., in conjunction with the Metropolitan Development and Housing Authority, has taken advantage of federal funds to build a center to help residents train for and find jobs.

Rolling pleads guilty of murdering five students

By RON WORD
Associated Press Writer

GAINESVILLE — Danny Harold Rolling surprised a Gainesville courtroom today by pleading guilty to the murders of five college students in 1990.

"There are some things you just can't run from. This being one of those," Rolling told Circuit Judge Stan R. Morris.

Prosecutor Rod Smith read a chilling account of each of the five murders, telling how Rolling entered the homes, raped three of the four women victims, turned them over on their stomachs and stabbed them to death.

Family members of at least two victims quietly wept during the plea and as the prosecutor recounted each of the crimes.

"After having murdered Sonja Larson, the defendant returned downstairs where he found Christina Powell still asleep," Smith said, describing the first two murders. "He pressed a double strip of tape over her mouth and taped her hands behind her."

Rolling then cut off her clothing, raped her and stabbed her five times in the back, Smith said.

The only male victim, Manuel Taboada, was stabbed as he slept, but still put up a brief fight, said Smith.

Rolling's plea covered 11 counts — five first-degree murders, three sexual batteries and three armed burglaries.

The judge, saying Rolling knew the consequences of his actions, accepted the plea and adjudicated him guilty.

Rolling could face execution in Florida's electric chair, and the judge said he would empanel a jury beginning Wednesday to recommend death or life in prison without parole for 25 years. Under Florida law, the judge has the final say.

The plea came just as the court was preparing to pick a jury, a process expected to take weeks. The trial was expected to last another two to three months.

The prosecution had planned to call some 100 witnesses to prove its case against Rolling, a 39-year-old singing drifter and career criminal from Shreveport, La.

The primary evidence against Rolling was DNA, the genetic blueprints left behind by blood and semen. Authorities also will be able to place Rolling in Gainesville at the time of the killings because he robbed a First Union branch during the killing spree. In addition, he gave statements to investigators about a year ago at Florida State Prison through inmate Bobby Lewis.

Investigators found evidence at a Rolling campsite, including a public hair from one of the victims and a cassette tape in which Rolling sings about being an outlaw.

Public defender Rick Parker had planned to call about 10 witnesses in Rolling's defense.

The murders occurred in late August 1990. The mutilated bodies of Powell, 17, of Jacksonville, and Larson, 18, of Deerfield Beach, both University of Florida students, were found Aug. 26, 1990, in their townhouse at Williamsburg Village Apartments. The decapitated body of Christa Hoyt, 18, of Archer, a student at Santa Fe Community College in Gainesville, was found early on Aug. 27. The bodies of Tracy Paules and Taboada, both 23 and from the Miami area, were found in the apartment they shared at Gatorwood Apartments on Aug. 28.

An 18-year-old college freshman Edward Humphrey, suffering from manic depression, was the initial suspect, but investigators turned to other suspects when his DNA did not match that found at the murder scenes.

Rolling, who was wanted in Shreveport, La., for the attempted murder of his father, turned up as a match. He also is suspected in three murders in Shreveport.

streets between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m.

Generally, curfew laws are challenged on the basis they violate freedoms guaranteed by the constitution. Dillard is still reviewing the curfew provisions and court decision.

"I really haven't reviewed the whole document yet," Dillard said. "I've still got it, in addition to all the other activities that I'm going through right now. So I really couldn't tell you specifics."

"There's definitely a concern for this juvenile problem," the deputy chief added. "We're looking into certain avenues from where we would be able to do something in reference to curbing this type of problem."

Curfews won't fix the juvenile crime problem because crimes committed by juveniles occur throughout the day. However, Dillard added if the youths were off the streets at night, at home, they obviously wouldn't be committing crimes.

"The biggest problem is the frustration. When police do apprehend a juvenile," Dillard said, "not being able to actually do anything with him." Juveniles are handled under Chapter 39 which outlines when the youths may be detained. A great deal of paperwork and notification procedures are involved in juvenile cases, he added.

Simmons said the police chief has not approached city officials about a new curfew. The old curfew is still in the city code.

"It is one paragraph on one page," Simmons said about the curfew, approved in June 1960. "It's not a real long one, and that's probably part of the problem. It doesn't necessarily define and limit and all of the other things you have to do anymore in the legal world."

The Dallas ordinance is one and a half pages long.

The old ordinance makes it illegal for "Anyone under 17 years to loiter, wander, stroll or play on any street, alley, parkway (etc.) or any public building, public amusement or vacant lot between the hours of 11 p.m. until 6 a.m." The penalty for violating the curfew was a fine from $1 up to but not exceeding $100. Parents or guardians could also be assessed similar fines for allowing their children to be on the street alone. The curfew did not apply if the children were with their parents.

Grants

juvenile crime. Applications are due in the office of the Attorney General in Tallahassee, by 5 p.m. March 1. Announcements regarding who will receive the grants are expected by June 30, with the grant period to run from July 1, 1994 through June 30, 1995.

Commissioner Whitley Eckstein said he was concerned about what would happen when the grant money eventually ended and was not renewed. "If we don't get the money for this second year, we'll be back off on the project?" he asked. "I want to be sure that you (Police Chief Ralph Russell) haven't committed yourself to something we can't continue."

Russell replied, "If the money runs out we may have to absorb it. But if we can't, we'll just see what we can do working with other grants."

Russell will be assisting in completing the application.

At the same time, the city also approved paying for the Community Policing Team, (CPT), until another grant can be obtained.

The previous grant of $178,383, expires on March 8. It is not automatically renewed.

During last night's work session, the commissioners mullied the financing of the four officers in the CPT unit after the grant expires. Following discussion, it was agreed that the city would pay for the officers out of general funds until a new grant is obtained.

"With this however," Russell said, "we would expand the patrol of these four officers into other areas, as they would be paid by the city which requires a full city-wide service from its officers."

Community Development Director Charles Rowe will be working with the Housing Authority in preparing the application for the grant. The deadline is in June of this year, with awards to be announced in August, and available beginning in September.

In informing the commission about the application, Rowe commented, "It is important to note that this is a competitive grant process, therefore application submissions does not guarantee award."

Russell noted that having the four officers in place in the specific housing areas has had a noticeable effect on the level of crime.

"Those items all brought in nearly all the retail value," Serraes said. "And nearly everything else on the list brought in at least 50 percent of the value."

Serraes said the final earnings from the auction won't be known for about a week.

The SCC Dream Auction is a fundraiser for the college's scholarship foundation.

The college provides scholarships for deserving students with the money raised at the Dream Auction.

"We were very pleased with the success of this year's event," Serraes said.

Seminole County sheriff's office, said. "They found out that he didn't have a place to live and asked him to come live with them."

Investigators are still trying to determine the full extent of the fondling with the 13-year-old. They are not sure how many times such contact occurred nor how long it has been going on.

According to McDonough, the parents of the 13-year-old called the sheriff's office at about 8 p.m. on Monday after they became aware that Boston had fondled their daughter.

Investigators are continuing their inquiries and believe that another child may have been fondled as well.

The investigation is continuing and other charges may be filed.

In the meantime, Boston will appear in court this afternoon at 1:30 in the jail courtroom.

Conduct by behaving in a manner which brought "discredit" on the department and county.

"They were identified with collaborative testimony that they were on stage which presented the opportunity for the accusation to occur," said Kaiser. "I met with each of them privately and in a group and I told them if they had just remained in the audience and created a ruckus, there would not have been a problem."

The woman said she's not being treated fairly.

"If they had come back and said the accusation was sustained, then there may be no more need to take additional action," said she. "There was plenty of evidence it did happen."

The woman alleged that during a November holiday party for area firefighters at Cabaret Internationale in Casselberry, up to a dozen men got on stage during her performance, grabbed her breasts and body and poured beer on her. She complained to Casselberry police, but agreed to allow the county to investigate the matter before pursuing criminal charges.

The sheriff's investigation, released in January, confirmed six firefighters were on stage with torney extended the matter to now.

"There was no threat he was going to flee," said Turner.

Cintron agreed in a signed plea agreement Friday to plead guilty when the case goes before a judge. No hearing date has been set before U.S. District Judge Patricia C. Fawcett in Orlando.

Cintron's attorney, Ted Doss, would not comment.

Cintron faces fines of up to $1 million and a possible prison term of up to 30 years if he is convicted of the charges.

Another death at Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH — Rodney Orr, from Palm Coast, was killed at Daytona International Speedway in a crash that NASCAR director Gary Nelson called "the worst I've ever seen."

Orr's Ford Thunderbird went out of control and flipped in turn two on the high-banked 2.5-mile oval and smashed into the concrete wall at the top of the banking, the roof over the driver's side of the car taking the initial impact.

Orr, 31, defending champion of the Goody's Dash series and a regular at Orlando, New Smyrna and Volusia County, was taken to Halifax Medical Center, and pronounced dead from massive head and upper body injuries.

Hardwood heaven

Lions, Tribe, Hawks, Pats, Raiders all in action

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — It's a small world. At least as far as the Lake Howell girls' basketball team is concerned.

Once you advance out of your district playoffs, you would figure to play someone you have probably never seen before. Such is not the case for the Silver Hawks, who will play a 5A-Sub-Region 1 game against Terry Parker High School in Jacksonville tonight, a team they beat 72-46 in the opening round of the Evans Christmas Tournament back in late January.

That will be just one of six basketball games with Seminole County interest that will be played tonight.

Also on tap tonight in girls' high school action will be another 5A-Sub-Region 1 matchup in Altamonte Springs with 5A-District 4 champion Lake Brantley hosting 5A-District 3 runner-up Jacksonville-Sandalwood; the Seminole High girls traveling to Titusville for a 4A-Sub-Region 2 game; and Orangewood Christian hosting Pine Castle Christian in Class B-Sub-Region 2.

The winner's of each of tonight's Sub-Regional games will advance to the Regional championships on Friday and Saturday night. Friday's winners will play on Saturday night, with those winners then advancing to the state championships in Tallahassee next week.

But the girls do not have a monopoly on the hardwood as the Oviedo boys' team will be hosting Deltona in a 5A-District 4 opener and the Seminole Community College boys' team will be hosting Deltona in a 5A-District 4 opener and the Seminole Community College boys' team will be hosting Deltona in a 5A-District 4 opener and the Seminole Community College boys' team will be hosting Deltona in a 5A-District 4 opener.

SCC women to face Valencia CC in MFC

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Writer

ORLANDO — It may seem like old home week in Orlando tonight in the opening round of the Florida Junior College Activities Association Mid-Florida Conference Womens' Basketball Playoffs.

When the Seminole Community College Raiders of head coach Ileana Gallagher and assistant coach Ken Patrick take the court at Valencia Community College at 7 p.m. it will look a lot like a Seminole County all-star game as several local girls dot the rosters of both teams.

The Raiders are led by former Seminole High School all-state player Sheri Reddicks. The 6-foot, 2-inch sophomore center, is third in the state in scoring at 20.3-points per game and fourth in rebounding at 13.5 per game. She is also seventh in blocked shots at 1.5 per contest and is shooting 52.4-percent.

Carrying a lot of the load for the Matadors is freshman point guard LaShawn Merrick from Lake Mary High School. The diminutive jet is ranked second in the state in steals with 4.8 per game and tied for third in assists at 6.32 per contest. She is also doing well with the long bomb, making 21 of 46 tries, good for 45.7-percent, the sixth best percentage in Florida.

Another local player showing up in the VCC statistics is Lyman's Latisha Smith, who is eighth in the state in steals with 3.6 per game.

Seminole (15-14 overall, 4-6 in the MFC) and Valencia (20-9, 6-4) have split a pair of games this season, both on each other's home court.

The Raiders won the most recent meeting, edging the Matadors, 49-48, in Orlando back on Feb. 2nd.

The winner of tonight's game will play the winner of the other game tonight in Ocala between No. 2 seed Central Florida Community College and whoever won Monday night's elimination game between Lake City and Santa Fe for a spot in the state tournament on Thursday.

Florida Community College at Jacksonville (25-0 and ranked No. 2 in the nation) has already won the automatic bid to the state tournament that will begin play on February 28th in Ocala.

Freshman point guard Jennifer Coble from Ft. Pierce will be looking to lead Seminole Community College past Valencia Community College in the Mid-Florida Conference Playoffs in Orlando tonight.

Pair of undefeateds top Lake Mary

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — Bamboo Cafe and Florida Manor have streaked to the head of the pack after four weeks of the City of Lake Mary Department of Parks and Recreation Men's Polar Bear Softball League.

Bamboo Cafe improved to 4-0 in the Thursday Night League with a 17-4 trouncing of Horbal, while Florida Manor also got to 4-0, but had to work a little harder in the Friday Night League, scoring a pair of runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to edge previously unbeaten PRISM, 9-8.

In other games played on Thursday, February 10th, Allstate whitewashed Executive, 12-0, and Suncrest mauled Team 6, 14-2, in five innings.

Trailing Bamboo in the standings are Allstate and Suncrest, both at 3-1, Team 6 and Executive, both standing at 1-3, and Horbal, still winless at 0-4.

In the beating of Horbal, Kevin Julian ripped a pair of home runs, Dunn had a home run and a double, Billy Doyle had four singles, Jones had three singles, Stu Selock had a double and a single, Marcello and Manny Silvia had two singles each, Bill Marino tripled, Duane Towery doubled and Jay Johnson singled.

In the other Friday night games from February 11th, Cheers dumped Griffin Construction, 14-5, and Briar Corporation won its first game of the season by withstanding an eight-run bottom of the sixth inning to defeat Lazar Data, 14-12.

Following Florida Manor in the standings are PRISM at 3-1, Cheers and Griffin Construction, both at 2-2, Briar Corporation at 1-3 and Lazar Data still looking for that elusive first victory of the season.

This Friday night, Florida Manor plays Lazar Data at 6:30 p.m.; PRISM battles Griffin Construction at 7:30 p.m.; and Cheers challenges Briar Corporation at 8:30 p.m.

PRISM took an immediate 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning against Florida Manor, but Florida Manor scored the next seven runs to lead 7-3 entering the top of the seventh inning.

PRISM looked like it might remain undefeated as the bats finally awoke to score five runs in the seventh. Kendall Galloway, Chris Lubinkas, Don Basti, Tim Duffy and Art Besch each had a single in the uprising.

But Florida Manor came back to get the win as Kevin Lavigne led off with a single and scored on a double by Kevin Brubaker. Johnny Haddock then lifted a fly to right to move Brubaker to third. After a line out to the pitcher, Jerry DiBartolo then singled in the winning run.

Jordan starts official baseball try today

By BEN WALKER AP Baseball Writer
SARASOTA — He's worked mostly behind guarded gates, out of sight from all those who want to doubt him and dismiss him.

Chicago Bulls teammate Bobby Hansen, now working for WHO-TV in Des Moines.
"If I had to ask him one question, it would be, 'Why, Michael, why?'" Hansen said.

Jordan, wearing No. 45, has been working out almost every morning since his arrival last Wednesday. His daily routine includes running the bases, hitting in the batting cages and against White Sox staff members and shagging about 300 fly balls.

Jordan's presence does not disrupt camp. They are the AL West champions and want to prepare to try to win the AL Central.
They plan to treat him like any other new player, although Jordan gets some benefits.

Kiwanis inducts Beaulieu

At a recent Sanford Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting at the Sanford Civic Center, Gary P. Beaulieu, HealthCare administrator, was inducted into the local club by Bill Fraasa.

Originally, Beaulieu came from Presque Isle, Maine. And it is a small world because Beaulieu's Kiwanis sponsor is Roy Vinson, HCA Central Florida Regional hospital administrator who came from another small Maine town 20 miles away from Beaulieu's hometown.

Beaulieu is a retired Army pilot, secretary of Florida Health Care Association, and state Ombudsman and Advocate for nursing home care. No stranger to Kiwanis, Beaulieu was secretary for the Titusville Kiwanis Club during the early and mid 1980s and was a member of the Greater Orlando Kiwanis Club until the early 1990s. He currently lives in Oviedo.

GOP women to meet

The Suburban Republican Women's Club will hold its next meeting at the Sweetwater Country Club on Wednesday, Feb. 16. The first program for the new year will be an informative subject on crime in Florida by Dr. John W. Cooper from the James Madison Institute for Public Policy Studies. The institute is located in Tallahassee; it is a think-tank dedicated to economic freedom, limited government, and individual responsibility. Dr. Cooper will speak on "Eleven Steps to a Safer Florida: How to Stop the Violent Crime Epidemic."

The Suburban Republican Women's Club plans to address issues and invite input from the many candidates in this year's election. They are off to a great start with this vital topic to life of every citizen in our state and area. Please come and join the group to make a difference in your government and life. Last month the Suburban Republican Women's Club held a very successful membership coffee. If you are interested in becoming a part of the group and being an informed and effective woman in the area, please call for a reservation. Reservations are required. Please call 788-7532 and ask for Beverly. They are not a social club, but a group of women who are involved in making a difference in government on the local, state and national levels. Come and join the fun in sharing your ideas and being involved.

Childless couples angered over satire

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the pathetic attempt at humor by the author of "The Childless Couple" I reply with a different perspective.

I've been married for 11 years and have had 10 miscarriages. My heart has been broken so many times that I'm surprised that I still have a heart. My spouse and I don't sun ourselves in Florida as the piece suggested. We can't afford to — we've spent all our money on fertility testing and surgical procedures, trying to correct the problem that prevents us from being parents.

So, here's the author's kind of humor back at him or her: May all your children die in a horrible accident on their way to visit you. Then you, too, will have a glimpse of the heartache of childlessness. You think that's morbid humor? Touche.

A CHILDLESS COUPLE IN OREGON

DEAR CHILDLESS COUPLE: I'm sorry you were offended by the tongue-in-cheek piece about the advantages of being childless. It was not meant to be taken seriously.

Good luck in your efforts to become parents — as parents everywhere will tell you, the joys far outweigh the sacrifices.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

READERS: Read on for letters from other couples who find no joy in being childless.

DEAR ABBY: What made you think your readers would appreciate a piece as cruel as the one you published titled "The Childless Couple"?

Abby, there is nothing sadder than a childless couple, especially a couple who desperately wants to have a child but cannot — or a couple who is childless because their only child has died.

We who have children may find humor in the scenarios, but what about those who did not choose to be childless? They would welcome the sleepless nights, diaper rash and never-ending crises most parents have experienced. If you haven't walked in their shoes, you can't possibly understand the pain of praying for a child and never having that prayer answered.

COMPASSIONATE PARENT WHO ACHES FOR THOSE LESS FORTUNATE

DEAR COMPASSIONATE: The piece was intended to be humorous. Of course my heart goes out to those who yearn to be parents but cannot. Please forgive any inadvertent pain it caused you.

DEAR ABBY: There are many of us who are childless not by choice. Have you ever stopped to think of what our lives might be like? Yes, you might see us "relaxing around swimming pools in Florida or trotting off to Europe like lonesome fools," but have you ever stopped to consider that we might be attempting to escape loneliness — the loneliness that the void of childlessness has created in our lives?

It is very easy to cast judgment on others, but I suggest before you do that, you "walk in our shoes." The saddest part of my day is when I hear the endless complaints some people make about their children. This is the injustice of it all: You are blessed with gifts from God — your children — yet you do nothing but complain of the responsibility, cost, problems, etc.

Well, be thankful for your blessings, because you might just raise children who will be childless by choice — because of your actions as parents.

CHILDLESS IN HOUSTON

permitting her to stay on family farm for the entire life. Nephews who had not seen aunt in 20 years contested the will. Result: $100,000 settlement with nephews.

All of the above could have been avoided by keeping relatives informed as to respective wills, trusts and assets of the parties.

OHIO ATTORNEY AT LAW

DEAR ABBY: You obviously believe that the contents of one's will should not be disclosed to the heirs until after death. That's what my parents believe: They have their life savings hidden in shoe boxes and coffee cans around the house. I have no idea how much is hidden, except for the $15,000 I stumbled across in a shoe box behind the cat litter bag.

The facts about frequent blushing

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: How can I conquer the problem of blushing every time I talk to someone? I've been bothered by this for years and have missed out on many jobs because of the weakness. I'm considered intelligent but this is my downfall and I can't afford professional help.

from somewhere. In an ex-smoker, of course, I'd worry about a tumor in the throat and surrounding area - or you could have a chronic sinus infection. You say that you've been checked out by specialists; I hope these included otolaryngologists.

DEAR READER: Blushing is caused by dilation of blood vessels in the skin of the face and neck, triggered by stress or embarrassment. Although everybody blushes once in awhile, some people seem to be exceptionally prone to this tendency.

I have heard of some blushing folks who were helped by counseling and support groups to increase self-confidence. However, there may be a quicker and more direct way to handle this problem.

Non-habit-forming beta-blocking drugs, such as Inderal, are used to treat heart disease and hypertension. The medicine also blocks the nervous impulses that cause extreme nervousness. This is the reason thousands of healthy people take low doses of Inderal before speeches, concerts, recitals, and so forth. Ten milligrams of Inderal taken an hour or so before a job interview might reduce your tendency to blush, without sedating you or affecting your intellectual capabilities.

Because Inderal is a prescription drug, you'll have to discuss your problem with your family doctor, who - I'm certain - would agree to a trial of the medicine.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I awaken with the back of my mouth and throat coated with bloody mucus. This has been going on for two years since I quit smoking. I've been to several specialists who have come up with negative findings. Can you offer any insight?

DEAR READER: The blood and mucus must be coming

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

There are some problems that sound difficult to solve, but if you come up with the right ideas, they are actually simple. For example, suppose 93 tennis players enter a knockout tournament. How many matches will have to be played to decide the winner?

The same situation can occur at the bridge table. If you think of the right move, you will realize it is correct. In today's deal, East has a critical play to make in trying to defeat South's contract of three no-trump. West leads the heart five; three, jack, two. How should East continue the defense?

Clearly East must plop on with hearts, but should he lead the king or queen next? It seems not to make a difference - but it does. The correct card is the queen.

Let's move into the declarer's chair. If the hearts are 4-4, the contract is safe. But if they are 5-3, he is in potential peril. If East leads the heart queen at trick two, South will surely assume that he started with Q-J-x. South will duck, hoping that East also holds the club ace. Then a third heart kills the contract. West having the entry to his established heart winners.

Now suppose East leads the heart king at trick two. Could this be from K-J-x? No, of course not. With that holding, East would play the king at trick one, not the jack. East must have the king, queen and jack. So South will grab the second trick and lead a club, making his contract.

The answer to the initial problem is 92. At the end of the tournament, how many losers will there have been?

Readers are invited to send card-play questions to Phillip

Alder, in care of this newspaper. They can be answered only through the column.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Feb. 16, 1994

In the year ahead you may do considerable weeding out of unproductive ventures and endeavors. This will give your new projects room to expand and grow.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your probabilities for personal gains are strong today. However, for some reason you might feel you're entitled to more. Be gracious, not greedy. Aquarius, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Self-defeating thoughts are the only things which could hold you back today. Be optimistic and think positively, instead of worrying about what might never happen.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Friends who need your help will be treated with consideration by you today, yet someone to whom you're really indebted might be unintentionally overlooked.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try not to spend too much time today on things you enjoy rather than serious matters that require your attention. Take care of your responsibilities first.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Objectives you hope to achieve are reachable today, but even after you attain your goals you might still have some doubts as to whether you handled things properly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Before requesting a favor from someone you recently met, it might be wise to first try to build a foundation of good will. If this isn't done, you could scare this individual off.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're likely to be very self-sufficient today and this should enable you to do what needs doing on your own. In fact, dragging associates along might slow you down.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today if you consummate an important agreement, be sure all of the terms are exactly what you want and put in writing. If not, you could regret it later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll be industriously motivated today, but only up to a certain point. If you feel you've been at something too long, you might stop before the assignment is completed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Friends will find your charm and winning ways extremely appealing today. However, be careful to treat everyone equally or else you might offend a sensitive pal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Companions will be willing to help you today, but you mustn't expect them to do things for you which you should be doing for yourself. Too many demands could chill relationships.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might be in a fun mood today and this is well and good, but seek enjoyable activities that cost you little or nothing. Your extravagance mustn't get out of hand.
