Patriots defend softball title

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Lake Brantley will attempt to begin its return trip to the Class 4A state softball tournament when it play its first-round game of the 4A-District 4 tournament.

The tournament is being played at Lake Brantley.

With a record of 19-3, the Patriots earned the top seed in the tournament and will play the winner of last night's Lyman/DeLand game at 8 p.m. this evening.

Little major league roundup

SANFORD — The two leaders in the American Division, the Disabled American Veterans Royals and the First Union A's, were pressed but came out victorious in Sanford Recreation Department Little Major Baseball League action at Roy Holler Field Tuesday.

The Seminole Ford Red Sox came from a 7-0 deficit to go ahead 10-9, but the Royals used a two-run, sixth inning rally to win the opening game 11-10. The A's used a four-run fifth to come back after trailing 3-1 to pick up a 6-3 victory over the Sun Bank Orioles in the nightcap.

Medfly spraying planned

MIAMI — State agriculture officials announced Tuesday an aggressive campaign of chemical spraying and more benign biological controls to combat an outbreak of Mediterranean fruit flies in south Florida.

Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner said aerial spraying of the chemical malathion will begin Thursday and last for four weeks over a 16-square-mile area mostly north of Miami International Airport.

County still needs a manager

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners want to look at more candidates for the county manager's job. Tuesday, they directed County Attorney Bob McMillan to direct their executive search firm, M&N Inc., to send one or more candidates for the position.

Their top choice, Greg Fehrenbach, city administrator of New Brunswick, N.J., declined to pursue the position last week after it was offered him. Fehrenbach said he had several commitments at his current position that he felt he could not leave incomplete.

Commissioners were impressed by their second-place choice, Dora Harrison, chief assistant Pinellas County administrator, but she is currently earning more as an assistant than commissioners want to pay for their manager. Harrison currently earns $90,000 a year. Commissioners decided they didn't want to pay more than $100,000 annually for the manager.

Commissioners will keep Harrison as one of their top finalists, but said they wanted to consider at least one other candidate before offering anyone else the job.

Boat commercials approved

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners unanimously approved spending $12,000 of tourism development tax revenues Tuesday for advertising production and television broadcast expenses for the Sanford Coors Light Super Challenge power boat races May 12 and 13.

The commercials, which will become the property of the county Tourism Development Council, will feature Seminole County attractions, recreation spots and hotel and motel accommodations. They will become the first "spots" to promote features of the county produced from tourism revenues.

Local lawmakers vote to increase gasoline taxes

From staff and wire reports

TALLAHASSEE — Two Seminole County legislators joined a majority in the state House Tuesday in approving a transportation bill that would raise gasoline taxes.

The two legislators are Rep. Frank Stone (R), Casselberry, and Rep. Art Grindle, (R), Altamonte Springs.

The Florida House voted 81 to 35 to approve the $4.7-billion transportation measure. The margin of the vote is enough to override a veto, which is exactly what Governor Bob Martinez has vowed to do when the bill reaches his desk. The Senate already has passed the measure. Martinez said he would veto

Budget advisors say property taxes 'almost certain' to go up next year

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A county property tax increase is almost certain for next year due to a budget stretched beyond its limits, advisors have told Seminole County commissioners.

"The bad news is we'll have an extremely tight year for the rest of the year and next year will be the year we have to address the property tax," Roger Neiswender told the commissioners on Tuesday.

"We're stretched too tight. If we continue to maintain the view the citizens have that this county is a quality place to live, then we're going to have to address this."

Although a mid-year budget adjustment Tuesday shows the county is about $1.5 million in the black, revenues for general county operations and building permit fees are off steeply, requiring commissioners to delay the scheduled $250,000 renovation of the old county commission chambers and to deplete several county reserve funds.

The entirety of the $1.5 million surplus can be traced to the expected repayment of that amount in a county loan with interest by the Seminole County Expressway Authority this August. If the payment is delayed, other projects may be delayed this fall. SCEA is expected to sell $158.3 million in bonds to build the tollroad to Sanford. The county loan will be repaid from the bonds.

The depletion of county reserves was of the greatest concern to Neiswender, the county's management consultant.

"You're extremely tight on your contingency and cash balance forward," Neiswender said. "You're at a level that if you go below it, you're in trouble." See Property, Page 5A

Local music class gets nationwide exposure on NBC's 'Today' show

By WENDY BOGARDUS

APOPKA — Since classes at Bear Lake Elementary School don't begin until 8:45 a.m., students in Artie Almeida's music class weren't able to get together to see themselves on the NBC Today show this morning.

They didn't even know until just before the close of school yesterday when they would be on the show.

"I got a call late this afternoon," Dick Hofmann, district coordinator of community relations and public information said yesterday. "They didn't give us much notice. I don't even know when they will be on during the show."

On March 27, a film crew came to Seminole County to videotape the youngsters in their music class.

"They were looking for teachers who have a unique way of teaching music," Hofmann said.

"Chee Chee Williams from the Today show called me out of the blue and asked me about this thing I do with jazz," Almeida said after seeing the show. "I couldn't believe it. I really didn't believe it until I saw them at school."

She said she does not know how the Today show reporter found out about her music classes.

Almeida, who was one of the 10 finalists in the Seminole County teacher of the year competition, has been teaching jazz and blues music to second through fifth graders at Bear Lake for four years.

"I piloted a program developed by (jazz musician) Willie Thomas," she explained, "and it has worked." See TV, Page 5A

Everyone not pleased with chamber move

By MARK POPPANO
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Days after the Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce opened its new offices just west of Lake Mary's city limits at 3821 Lake Emma Road, critics have voiced complaints about the move.

A group of chamber members, who identified themselves only as "Interested Members of the Lake Mary Chamber," said in a letter to the chamber this week they opposed not only the move of the headquarters outside the city limits, but an increase in membership dues to help finance the new offices and its services.

One member, who is a former chamber officer, has dropped out of the chamber to protest its move from her storefront.

Cindy Brown, the chamber's corresponding secretary and newsletter editor, submitted her letter of resignation from the chamber following a recent chamber board meeting. "The move was never brought up for a vote by the membership," Brown said. She also said she is "against having the chamber office located outside the city limits."

Brown is part of the family that owns and operates Lippincott's Ink Spot, Inc., at 165 Country Club Road, where the chamber headquarters was located from 1979 until the move last week.

Brown said she is not the author of the letter criticizing the chamber.

Chamber President Mike Curasi said the actual move was voted on by the Board of Directors from the previous administration. In keeping with the chamber's bylaws, See Chamber, Page 5A

Crew of Discovery begins deployment of space telescope

CAPE CANAVERAL — The shuttle Discovery's robot arm gently plucked the $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope from the ship's cargo hold today for launch on a 15-year mission to probe the secrets of the universe back to the dawn of time.

the 50-foot space crane from Discovery's flight deck, grabbed the giant 24,330-pound telescope at about 7:05 a.m. EDT.

Four latches holding the satellite in Discovery's cargo bay were released around 8:36 a.m. and after unplugging a shuttle power cord, Hawley carefully lifted the costly instrument for five hours of work in bringing the electronic observatory to life. Release into orbit was scheduled for 1:57 p.m.

Live television beamed down from Discovery showed the nose of the telescope. See Telescopes, Page 5A

Inmate struck by car

Seminole County jail trustee prisoner Jerome Anhut, 30, is loaded into an ambulance after a bizarre accident in the parking lot of the sheriff's department at 1:30 p.m. Monday. Anhut was reading, lying face down on the lawn chair shown in the background.

The chair was in front of the parked car of deputy James Virgin. Virgin didn't see Anhut and drove his car over Anhut's back when driving away, Sanford police said. Anhut was treated for cuts and bruises at a Sanford hospital and was back in jail by 5:30 p.m.

Pot, cash, gun confiscated

MIDWAY — A man arrested Monday afternoon on a Seminole County violation of probation-battery warrant, also faces narcotics and weapons charges.

A sheriff's deputy reports finding six envelopes of marijuana in the man's possession. When his car was searched the deputy found 13 more packets of pot and a .357-calibre Magnum handgun. The man also had $145 cash confiscated.

The arrest was made outside the Cool Breeze bar, 3341 Sipes Ave., Midway. Abraham Moses Jr., 38, 3300 Hughey St., Sanford, is charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute and carrying a concealed firearm.

Gunman robs produce stand

MIDWAY — A gunman robbed A-1 Produce Eastside, 387 E. State Road 46, Midway, at about 3:30 p.m. Monday, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

The clerk said the man brandished a gun when she opened the cash register to make change. He demanded and took $67 before fleeing in a waiting truck occupied by another suspect. The robber also stole a bag of cajun peanuts, the report said. The getaway truck traveled east on State Road 46.

Worker battered saving cigarettes

LONGWOOD — An Albertson's worker who was one of three who stopped and detained a man accused of stealing cigarettes from the store on State Road 434, Longwood, told Seminole County sheriff's deputies the suspect hit him in the chest and knocked him down.

That led to a charge of battery, along with strong arm robbery against Wayne Andrew Cribbs, 23, of Apopka. Cribbs was arrested shortly after the incident at 7:30 a.m. Monday, after he ran from the scene and was caught in a yard on Oak Street, rural Altamonte Springs.

Man accused of hitting wife

SANFORD — City police here charged Robert Donald Knott, 29, 115 Mayfair Circle, Sanford, with battery-spouse abuse, after his wife alleged he hit her with his hands during an argument. The arrest was made at about midnight Monday at Knott's house.

Man charged with spouse abuse

LAKE MARY — Diana Marie Hernandez told Lake Mary police her husband shoved her into a door and to the floor, and smashed her face against the door, during an argument.

The victim said she was injured at home Monday morning after she told her husband she wasn't going to work. Danny Anthony Hernandez, 19, 419 Dorchester Square, Lake Mary, was charged with spouse abuse at home at 9:08 a.m., police reported.

SEA to lobby for Seminole

By Vicki Poppeham
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Representatives of the Seminole County school board, various parent groups and members of the Seminole Education Association will be in Tallahassee this afternoon and tomorrow to let legislators know about the concerns of the Seminole County district.

Board Chairman Ann Neiswender said the focus of the trip will be much the same as it was last year.

"We are still very concerned with the equity issue," she said. "Seminole County is still 65th out of 67 districts as far as funds go."

The Seminole County contingent will argue that lawmakers should give priority to those districts, like this one, which are experiencing the greatest amount of growth.

Neiswender noted the group will be doing "a lot of walking" around the capitol and meeting with as many key legislators as possible. She said it is "essential" the state give greater assistance to those districts who have "tightened their belts" as far as they will go.

On the agenda for today are visits with Rep. Art Grindie, R-Altamonte Springs, Rep. Stanley Bainter, R-Eustis, Sen. Richard H. Langley, R-Clermont, and Sen. Toni Jennings, R-Orlando.

"We'll only meet about a half an hour with each," Neiswender said. "But it'll be a very focused time."

In most cases the group will meet as a whole to visit each representative, but they will occasionally split up to make more contacts during the day.

"We have a very short time in Tallahassee," Neiswender said. "We want to make the most of it."

The group will begin tomorrow morning with a breakfast with Gov. Bob Martinez from 7:30 to 9 a.m.

There will be meetings tomorrow with Sen. W.W. "Bud" Gardner, D-Titusville, Rep. Tom Drage, R-Winter Park, and Rep. Frank Stone, R-Casselberry.

Neiswender promised to make the needs of Seminole County heard in Tallahassee. "We need the cooperation of the legislature in funding the basic needs of the district," she said.

In addition to sending several representatives to Tallahassee Seminole UniServ, the governing body of the school district's employees' unions, will join with their counterparts in Orange and Osceola counties in a rally on May 3 at the Lake Eola bandshell in Orlando to protest the proposed level of funding for education.

Goard gets no answer

SANFORD — Sandra Goard, county supervisor of elections, has received a wait-and-see reply to a request for an advisory opinion from the state division of elections on the special act allowing Seminole County to have non-partisan school board elections.

"They told me that they did not have the authority to make a decision on the special act or on the constitutionality of the law," she said.

The request was forwarded by the division of elections to the department of legal affairs at the state attorney general's office. She said she hopes to have a response to her request within a week.

The promise of Pegasus

The commercial exploitation of space has received a giant boost with the successful flight of the first new rocket launcher since the space shuttle program began in the early 1980s.

The space booster, called Pegasus after the winged horse of mythology, provides an inexpensive launch vehicle to attract private companies and universities that need an inexpensive way to put satellites aloft.

The 49-foot Pegasus is launched from an airplane about eight miles up instead of from the ground. At that height, there is less gravitational pull because the vehicle is above most of the earth's drag-inducing atmosphere.

After being dropped, Pegasus flaps briefly on stubby wings like a jet before its rocket motor kicks in to propel it into space. This system makes it possible to put small satellites weighing up to a few hundred pounds into orbit for less than a third of the cost of alternate launching techniques. Pegasus can lift a payload into orbit for about $6,000 a pound, compared with about $20,000 a pound for ground-launched rockets.

The Pegasus developer, Orbital Sciences Corp. of Fairfax, Va., and two prime competitors yet to fly hope this technique will usher in the microcomputer era in much the way the Apple II helped open the age of the microcomputer.

Because of more compact electronic packages, small satellites are becoming attractive for a variety of missions, ranging from battlefield communications to providing automatic navigation systems for cars. Pegasus deployed two such satellites, a space agency atmospheric probe and a Navy communications relay, on its maiden venture.

On its next flight, Pegasus is expected to deploy a suitcase-sized observation satellite called Dazzler, weighing just 25 pounds. The mini-satellite will collect water quality information from buoys in the Chesapeake Bay at a launch cost of only $210,000. One company, Ball Aerospace Systems Group, is developing a varied line of such mini-sats. Ariannospace, a European launch consortium, plans to market Pegasus in Europe. American Rocket Co. of Camarillo and Space Services Inc. of Houston are developing launch vehicles akin to Pegasus.

Thus, Pegasus and other airplane-launched rockets in the planning stages promise to put space technology within the budget of many companies, research institutions, local governments and schools.

It is encouraging and appropriate that a private venture has turned the tide against the historic trend toward bigger, more complex and costlier space projects.

Tobacco haters far from perfect

SAN FRANCISCO — The city and state of New York, from which I fled last September, have elected to fight the battle against smoking by subjecting smokers to as much inconvenience and social abuse as possible.

In New York City, a smoker is made to feel like a criminal, and indeed is treated as a criminal in a large variety of situations: in almost any enclosed public space, for example. This doesn't have to be the case — and isn't, in many civilized jurisdictions.

In London last year, the headwaiter at an elegant restaurant inquired if I would care for a cigar to top off my dinner. Actually, I had one in my pocket, for smoking outside, but his suggestion amazed me. "Do you realize," I asked him, "that I could be arrested in New York City for what you are suggesting?" "But not here, sir," he persisted genially. I compromised by lighting my cigar at my table, but then skulked guiltily out the door to continue smoking it on a stroll through Mayfair.

My adopted state of California has taken another tack in the matter of smoking. First, the legislature obtained the voters' approval of a 25-cent-a-pack tax on cigarettes, on the understanding that part of the revenues would be devoted to an advertising campaign against smoking. The tax is expected to generate $1,470,000,000 — an incredible sum even for California, but that's what it says in the newspapers. Of this figure, 2 percent, or $29,400,000, is being devoted by the California Department of Health Services to a 18-month attack on smoking, through newspaper, television and radio ads. The groups targeted in the ads are the young and minorities — the very groups the department says the tobacco companies themselves are targeting.

The tobacco companies, incidentally, speaking through the Tobacco Institute in Washington, deny that they are trying to induce vulnerable youngsters and minorities to smoke their weed, and insist that their ads are largely designed to persuade already-devoted smokers to switch to another brand. They also express regret at the tone of the ads, calling them "cynical" and "satirical" in their depictions of tobacco company executives. The institute's spokesman predicted that the ads "may amuse anti-smoking zealots, but they are not going to reduce smoking."

One may wonder why, if the California legislature is so deeply convinced of the harm that smoking does, it didn't simply outlaw it altogether. The answer, obviously, is that the legislators didn't think they could enforce the law if they passed it — any more than Prohibition could be enforced in the 1920s. So, they took the more cautious route of moral suasion.

The first full-page ad appeared, among other places, in the California edition of The New York Times for April 11. "WARNING!" a boxed slogan read. "The tobacco industry is not your friend."

Elsewhere on the page, the industry was accused of "the selective exploitation of minorities, the seduction of the young, the selling of suicide." It is not hard to imagine the intoxicating sense of virtue and vengeance that an ad of that kind will generate in the breasts of many Californians.

JACK ANDERSON

Iraq leader even victimizes family

WASHINGTON — The first family of Iraq gives new meaning to the term "family feud." President Saddam Hussein, who is quickly gaining a reputation as the emerging mad dog of the Middle East, carries that work ethic home with him.

The most recent victim may be his brother-in-law, who died in a mysterious helicopter crash after he objected when Hussein took a second wife.

We put together the details of the story on a trip to Baghdad and through review of several highly classified reports by the Central Intelligence Agency and the Defense Intelligence Agency. We reported some details of the family feud last year. Since then, it appears there has been a new victim.

The story began nearly two years ago when Hussein had signed a truce after an eight-year war with Iran, and was ready for more mundane matters, like love.

He set his cap for the beautiful wife of an Iraqi air force officer and told the man he could name his salary and his assignment anywhere in the world, in exchange for the wife. The frightened officer understood the real offer — divorce or death — and he wisely chose the former. The marriage of Hussein and the newly divorced woman was kept secret from Iraqis.

Islamic law allows a man as many as four wives, under certain circumstances. But the way Hussein procured this second wife upset some of his Moslem allies, including King Hussein of Jordan, who personally chastised him.

But the temporary pique among Moslem leaders was nothing compared to the rage of wife No. 1, Sajida, and her family. She risked several arguments with her mercurial husband and then backed off.

Her son, Uday, took up the cause and quickly fell out of favor with his father. So Uday turned his temper on a young aide to Hussein who had facilitated the romance. At a party, Uday picked a fight with the aide, hit him with a club and killed him.

Hussein threw his son in prison and ordered his execution. But Sajida begged for the life of her son, and Hussein exiled them both to the Iraqi U.N. delegation in Geneva.

Then it was the brother-in-law's turn. Sajida's brother, Iraqi Defense Minister Gen. Adnan Khairallah, sided with his sister and protested the second marriage. Khairallah disappeared from the public spotlight for months and then was allowed to resume his duties, but only briefly. Last May, a helicopter in which he was riding crashed in what Hussein called a "crazy storm," and Khairallah died. Oddly, the two escort helicopters emerged without a scratch.

Crazy storms appear to be a chronic problem in Iraq. According to secret U.S. intelligence reports, nearly a dozen of Hussein's past opponents in the Army have died in similar freak accidents.

Hussein publicly lamented the death of his defense minister and brother-in-law, calling him a "sparkling star in Iraq's sky."

But, at least one of Hussein's Arab allies put two and two together. After Khairallah's death, Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak sent a carefully worded, secret letter to Hussein asking that this helicopter crash be the last.

ELLEN GOODMAN

First lady not just Bush's wife

BOSTON — There won't be a boycott this commencement day. There won't be boners or banners strung across the Wellesley campus. It isn't that sort of a place or that sort of a protest.

But when it was announced that Barbara Bush would talk at commencement, it turned out that the first lady was not every senior's dream speaker. A petition circulated by the 130-year-old woman's college and 150 members of the class of 1990 said they were "outraged by this choice."

"Wellesley teaches that we will be rewarded on the basis of our own merit, not that of a spouse," read the petition signed by this dissenting quarter of the class. "To honor Barbara Bush as a commencement speaker is to honor a woman who has gained recognition through the achievements of her husband, which contradicts what we have been taught over the last four years at Wellesley."

With those words, the speaker became the subject of a college debate about women's roles and role models: Barbara Bush or Mrs. George Bush, Woman of Achievement or Wife of Achiever. The wife beside the husband or the woman behind the man. Can anyone check all of the above?

Whatever this says about college etiquette and "outrage," I don't think it's bad to end an academic life on a women's campus with such a final exam. The women are leaving this environment debating who they admire, what they respect and why. The last multiple-choice question of their college career is also the first in the rest of their lives. As the college President Nanteri Koehane put it, "It's at the fulcrum of the kinds of issues we've all been wrestling with."

The petitions were right in one respect. The best and the brightest of our young women, like their male counterparts, have indeed been rewarded on the basis of their own "merit." At the core of academic life is the notion of individual achievement. Students rise and fall on their own. They have been encouraged to know and speak their own minds, plot their own lives.

But in their peripheral vision, young women see ahead a year or ten, to the time when their lives won't be exclusively their own. They will be made in concert with others, especially husbands and children. It's still not clear whether you can own a life and share it, whether the compromises sure to come will include ambition.

So there may be more anxiety than disrespect in the protests. On the way to becoming a first woman, could they be diverted to becoming someone's first lady?

Barbara Bush, of course, grew up in another era. She left Smith with an MRS., not a B.A.

She made a life as wife, mother, volunteer. She moved with her husband from Maine to Texas to China, from the inner circle to the White House. Her mother had taught her that you have two choices in life. "You can like what you do, or you can dislike it. And all my life, I have chosen to like it."

Times have changed since then. Our daughters are handed a much longer list of choices and a much harder list of decisions. We tell them to like what they do or change it. We value acceptance less and change more.

But Mrs. Bush has lived within certain constraints and also stretched them. As first lady there are limits to what one can say and she has stayed within them. There are also depths to what she can do and she has plumbed them. If Barbara Bush has "gained recognition through the achievements of her husband," no one can say that she has rested on his laurels.

This may be something to share with a generation that hasn't yet assumed any title more circumscribed than that of student. Eventually they too will make choices and feel constraints. How will they take a role and make it larger?

"Every role comes with certain circumscribed notions of what it means," says President Koehane of first ladydom. "We take them and pummel them into our own." This is equally true for the young Wellesley graduate when she becomes a doctor and when she becomes a wife. In our era of change, none of the titles quite fit, the definitions of mother and CEO, volunteer and lawyer all need a bit of pummeling to fit our lives.

So in many ways, this may be a proper match for a commencement day. In the audience, a class of women with diplomas as fresh as a new deck of cards. Each holding 52 options, wondering which once to play, how many at once and whether it's easiest to solitaire. On the podium, a woman who took some of the cards that were dealt her and rearranged them into the best order. A woman who has played her hand with grace and character.

Our daughters are handed a much longer list of choices and a much harder list of decisions.

giant, bus-sized telescope filling the field of view as Hawley slowly hoisted the instrument out of its cradle.

"Everything continuing to look very good," said NASA mission commentator Jeff Carr as the telescope, operating on the power of its six high-tech nickel-hydrogen batteries, slowly moved out of the cargo hold.

Operating from a record 381-mile-high orbit above Earth's light-smearing atmosphere, the Hubble Space Telescope is expected to revolutionize humanity's knowledge of the creation and fate of the universe, ushering in an astronomical renaissance unrivaled since the days of Galileo 400 years ago.

"We're ready for release. Things have been going just like clockwork," said Ron Schlagheck, Hubble's director of orbital verification at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md.

Hawley, 38, McCandless, 52, and Sullivan, 38, were assisted by commander Loren Shriver, 45, and co-pilot Charles Bolden, 43, throughout the deployment.

The telescope's deployment was to follow a detailed procedure to wean the instrument from Discovery's electrical system and to unfurl the observatory's high-tech European-built solar panels and communications antennas.

The telescope cannot operate without the electricity-producing solar arrays and McCandless and Sullivan were on standby for an emergency spacewalk to make repairs if the telescope's fragile appendages failed to work properly.

With the telescope poised at the end of the robot arm 27 1/2 feet above the shuttle's cargo bay, Hawley planned to rotate the 43.5-foot instrument end over end, pointing its nose down toward the base of the shuttle's tail fin. After opening the solar panels and antennas, Hawley planned to gently release the instrument into space, kicking off eight months of checkout and calibration by engineers at the Goddard Space Flight Center.

Capable of seeing stars and galaxies formed shortly after the big bang explosion thought to have created the universe, the Hubble Space Telescope will look deeper into space and time than ever before, possibly allowing astronomers to discover how the universe evolved into its current form.

The first image from the telescope, an engineering photo of a non-descript star cluster known as NOC 3532, was scheduled to be beamed down to Earth early next week. The photo will be used as a test of the optical system's focus.

The space telescope, named after the American astronomer Edwin P. Hubble, originally was scheduled for launch in 1983 but it was delayed by a variety of technical problems and, ultimately, the 1986 Challenger disaster.

The telescope finally began its planned 15-year space odyssey Tuesday with a picture-perfect launch aboard Discovery, which thundered to a record 381-mile-high orbit above Earth's hazy, light-scattering atmosphere.

For the hundreds of men and women who nurtured the telescope through its tortured development, Tuesday's launch was a stirring emotional milestone.

"I was thrilled beyond belief," said William Jeffreys of the University of Texas. "I've been working on this project so long. That was the moment of actual liftoff that we've been waiting for 12 years."

Operating high above Earth's obscuring atmosphere, the Hubble Space Telescope's near-perfect 94.5-inch mirror and six sensitive instruments will be able to study planets, stars and galaxies with 10 times the clarity, or resolution, of ground-based instruments.

Designed to operate 15 years in the harsh environment of space, data from the observatory's five primary instruments will be beamed back to earth at up to 1 million bits per second, fast enough to transmit the contents of a 50-volume encyclopedia every 43 minutes.

Among the telescope's primary objectives is to refine the age of the universe to within 10 percent.

with the by-laws of the organization that do not require a membership vote.

"The Board entertained several offers before making a final decision," said Curral, adding that while the Board had hoped to obtain the old City Hall building, that did not come about.

Of the offers, Curral said only one was within the city limits, and that was found to be too costly. He said the new location, in Lake Mary Centre, was the most economical of all the offers.

Regarding the anonymous letter, Curral said he hoped the writers would come forward so differences might be discussed.

The letter also complained about a Business After Hours chamber gathering held April 19, that asked for an office product as the price of admission. The chamber has requested donations of office products and furniture for the new office at Lake Mary Centre, near the intersection of Lake Mary Boulevard and Interstate-4.

"Is this to imply the chamber is too poor to purchase a box of paper clips?" the angry chamber members wrote.

you're marginal. Historically, this is money you've set aside for an emergency such as a big hurricane which you haven't experienced. You've been using it for unfunded requests."

The county began the fiscal year last October with $900,000 in reserves for general government operations. Only $333,404 remains in that reserve to back up county needs for the next six months as it spends the remaining half of its nearly 193 million annual budget.

Coupled with the estimated $211,503 shortfall in revenues by the end of September, a number of county expenses have increased. The county's cost to provide clerical service to circuit and civil courts will increase by $175,700 to an annual total of $1.9 million due to increased numbers of cases, Netewender said.

Another major concern was the projected 13 percent drop in building permit fee collections. Netewender said a 5 percent increase had been expected for the year and actually about 6 percent more permits have been issued. But the value of the work being permitted has decreased by about 13 percent, leading to a $199,967 decrease in permit fees paid.

The Building Department is operated as a separate entity, meaning permit fees and other revenues from construction pays for the department's operation, not property taxes.

Zoning application fees and other building department revenues are also down, dropping the expected annual development fee collections from about $3.4 million to $2.9 million.

The shortfall led commissioners to delay the planned $330,808 renovation of the old commission chambers, eliminate a $15,000 vacant employee position and to deplete three reserve accounts totaling $174,578 to meet department budget demands.

Commissioners also told Netewender to determine if any purchase contracts can be cancelled, including a $75,000 order for several replacement trucks. They also directed Netewender to determine if any current staff can be reduced without affecting inspection schedules or if there are other vacant positions that can be eliminated.

Officials with the Home Builder's Association of Mid-Florida urged commissioners not to use the renovation fund to make up the shortfall. But they also warned any increases in fees to make up the shortfall could lead to a slowdown of construction.

"We are greatly concerned as you are about the continued economic activity of this county," HBA president Bill Miller warned.

"You made a commitment to us that the money would be spent for the renovations," said Cheryl Taubenase, HBA governmental affairs director.

"Had it not been for the building fees, (the renovation money) would not have been there in the first place," Netewender said.

Commissioners bumped the overall county spending package up slightly, from $191.3 million to $192.7 million. On Sept. 19, commissioners adopted a $187.2 million operating budget, which has been steadily increased during the last six months through transferring of revenues to different funds.

beautifully with the kids."

The students who performed on the Today show used Thomas' system of colored dots to play instruments they had little or no experience playing.

"They were wonderful," Almeida said after seeing the two-minute segment.

Since the piece aired just as the opening bell was ringing, the students did not get to see themselves, but a teacher who videotaped the segment at home was planning to bring a copy of the tape to be shown throughout the day.

"Boom of us got to see it in a faculty meeting," she explained. Almeida said she uses children's "street chants" to teach them about synchopation and blues rhythms.

"It's neat," said one student on the show. Others expressed a similar affinity for a type of music not often appreciated by elementary students.

Almeida, who plays the saxophone, said she feels very comfortable with the kind of music she presents to the children and thinks that helps them to be at ease with their music.

"They were pretty nervous when they saw the film crews," she said. "But I told them to just let it all hang out."

She also said the television cameras rolled an hour and a half to get enough footage for the segment.

"By the end, they were pretty relaxed," she said.

Almeida, who taught in Orange County for seven years before coming to Seminole County, credits the district's support of the arts for the success of her program.

"I have a music pavilion and enough instruments for all the students to play all the time," she said. "It's wonderful."

Almeida said Bear Lake has never received national recognition for any of its programs, but felt it should. She was glad to be the one to get that exposure for the school.

"Everyone around here is singing the blues today," she said. "The happy blues."

Gas Tax

ments the option to impose the tax, but both indicate public support for the 4-cent tax is growing.

Stone said today that there were some parts of the bill he didn't like, such as the Mass Turnpike portion. But he said, "I would rather vote to take the whole package."

He also said, "The bill will do a lot for Seminole County, not particularly during the first year, but in the second year, when it would help finance the Expressway."

The House package is similar to one approved by the Senate last week, calling for a gas tax increase of 4 cents a gallon plus a variety of fee increases to raise $800 million a year for six years for the state Department of Transportation. About 85 percent of the total would go to pay for roads.

The gasoline-tax and sales-tax increase combined would raise Florida's overall gas tax from about 9.7 cents a gallon to 15 cents.

Automobile title fees would jump from $3 to $24, the surcharge on rental cars would go from 50 cents to $3 and the cost of bringing new wheels on the road would jump from $30 to $100.

The increases would take effect Oct. 1 and raise $315 million the first year, increasing to $3.6 billion by 1995. The plan also includes the sale of $600 million in bonds for highways, purchase of right of way and additional borrowing against Florida's Turnpike tolls for a total debt of $1.1 billion, to create an Interstate Highway system of limited access roads.

The bill also contains performance assurances to monitor DOT's spending.

Even its supporters agree there are problems with the bill, but its approval by both chambers in the fourth week of the 60-day regular session leaves time for further bargaining with the governor.

The bill nods in Martinez's direction by pledging that the $276.4 million raised through the gasoline tax increase would be spent within the transportation districts where the money is collected.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Nuclear plant nominee withdraws

WASHINGTON — After 10 months of controversy, Victor Stello asked President Bush to withdraw his nomination to oversee the government's troubled nuclear weapons plants, the Energy Department announced.

In a letter Tuesday to Bush, Stello said that despite three hearings on his nomination since last July, he still faced long delays in winning Senate confirmation to the post of assistant energy secretary for defense programs.

In the job he would directly supervise day-to-day operations of 17 major weapons plants in 12 states.

"My experience over this past year has led me to the conclusion that final action by the Senate on my nomination will not take place in the foreseeable future," Stello told Bush. "In my view, it is in the best interest of our country for you to identify another nominee for this critical position."

Stello also cited health problems, specifically a broken leg suffered in a skiing accident last winter.

San Francisco may honor accordion

SAN FRANCISCO — The humble accordion is only one squeeze away from being designated the official musical instrument of San Francisco.

"The first piano accordion made in America was made in San Francisco," Norma Kaline told the Board of Supervisors Monday before it voted official status to the instrument.

If the squeezebox makes it — only the signature of Mayor Art Agnos is needed — it will join the songs "I Left My Heart in San Francisco" and "San Francisco" on the city's list of things official.

Agnos was expected to sign. "How could he object to the accordion?" asked spokesman Scott Shafer.

Jesse James fails robbery attempt

DOUGLASVILLE, Ga. — Jesse James has the name but not the ability of the Old West bandit.

Police said Jesse N. James, 47, a house painter, walked into the Commercial Bank at the Cedar Mountain Village shopping center Monday and demanded money under threat of a fake bomb.

A teller gave him some cash and her car keys but he fled after trying unsuccessfully to force her outside into the car.

Jumping into the car, he couldn't start it and fled on foot. Detective Michael Zachery cornered him in a patrol car.

James was charged with bank robbery and kidnapping. Police said James apparently was no relation to Jesse James, who achieved fame by robbing some 25 banks, trains and stagecoaches a century ago.

U.S. trained suspects in priests' death

BOSTON — Congressional sources said the Pentagon has admitted that nine Salvadoran soldiers charged in last year's slaying of six Jesuit priests had American military training, published reports said Wednesday.

Four of the nine soldiers charged in the Nov. 6 slayings were trained at Fort Benning, Ga., and at Fort Bragg, N.C., according to a letter from Carl Ford, acting assistant secretary of Defense for International Affairs, to Rep. Joseph Moakley, D-Mass., sources told the Boston Herald and the Boston Globe.

The rest were trained in El Salvador by American troops, the April 10 letter said.

Report: 100,000 refugees

WASHINGTON — Dramatic changes in Eastern Europe will pose threats as well as opportunities for the world's 15 million refugees, according to an annual report by the U.S. Committee for Refugees.

The report was released Tuesday by the non-governmental committee and examined the plight of refugees worldwide in 1989.

In Eastern Europe the apparent end of the Cold War will have mixed results on the world's refugees, the report said.

"The committee also said that major donor nations, including Western Europeans and the United States, are backing away from their responsibilities to fund the U.N. High Commission for Refugees, the major organization in the world coordinating refugee relief.

Senate divided in budget debate

WASHINGTON — A divided Senate Budget Committee opened debate on its version of a fiscal year 1991 spending plan with most senators demanding serious deficit reduction but with no agreement in sight on a specific plan.

"We're all over the lot," Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., said Tuesday when asked to characterize committee division on the non-binding congressional budget plan for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Committee Chairman James Baker, D-Tenn., acknowledged his panel "speaks with many voices" and that "nobody is happy with various budget proposals" pending before the committee.

But Baker predicted the committee eventually would pass "a plan in the neighborhood of $40 billion in deficit reduction."

Sobbing Milken pleads guilty

By ELLEN WOLFENORF
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK — Tears streaming down his face, disgraced junk bond wizard Michael Milken admitted cheating some customers and rigging the price of some stocks and bonds, saying in an emotion-choked voice that he was "truly sorry."

But the fallen Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. star, who until pleading guilty Tuesday to six felonies and securities and tax law violations had steadfastly maintained his innocence, defended the volatile junk bond market he created.

In Washington, Securities and Exchange Commission Chairman Richard Breeden portrayed the 43-year-old billionaire as a master of fraud and deceit and urged a lengthy prison term for the dethroned junk bond king.

"Mr. Milken has been portrayed as wrongly accused and as having simply devoted himself to the financing of small or emerging businesses," Breeden said. "Despite the efforts to mold public opinion, Mr. Milken's admissions today demonstrate that he stood at the center of a network of manipulation, fraud and deceit." "Mr. Milken admits that he conspired, among other things, to manipulate securities in order to enrich himself and his associates," he said. "As a result, investors were cheated and exposed to substantial economic risk."

Milken, who agreed to pay fines and penalties totaling a record $800 million and faces up to 28 years in prison, was overcome with emotion, his face reddening, and forced to pause while reading his statement in U.S. District Court in Manhattan.

His lawyer, Arthur Liman, rose and placed his arm around Milken. Then, the man who helped finance the takeover frenzy that swept corporate America in the 1980s paused, sat down for a moment, drank from a cup of water and composed himself before continuing.

As part of the plea agreement, prosecutors said they will not seek the maximum penalty. With his mother, Fern, his wife, Lori, and his father-in-law sitting in the front row of Judge Kimba Wood's packed courtroom, Milken elaborated on violations he had committed with stock speculator Ivan Boesky

Nicaragua aid stalled by child care

By GARY SILVERMAN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate Appropriations Committee approved $720 million in aid for Panama and Nicaragua, rejecting a Democratic plan that would have spent more money in Eastern Europe and less in Central America.

The $2.3 billion emergency spending bill approved by the committee Tuesday also includes $10 million to build an embassy in Lithuania in the event the United States recognizes the breakaway Soviet republic as an independent state.

President Bush had sought $500 million for Panama and $300 million for Nicaragua — a total of $800 million — and hoped to have the money approved in time for Violeta Chamorro's inauguration today as president of Nicaragua.

However, Senate action was stalled as Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine held up the bill to win Republican cooperation on child-care legislation. Mitchell said

Ortega to U.S.: Leave us alone

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Daniel Ortega, in one of his last acts before Violeta Chamorro succeeds him as president today, urged the United States "to leave Nicaraguans to resolve their own problems" once the new government takes power.

Vice President Dan Quayle and 11 heads of state were scheduled to attend the inauguration of Chamorro, the U.S.-backed candidate who despite her lack of political experience was elected Feb. 25.

He wanted to begin action in the Senate today on foreign aid, with a vote Thursday.

The House earlier this month approved $430 million for the fledgling democracy in Panama, put into power after U.S. troops invaded in December, and $300 million for Nicaragua, where Chamorro won a surprise victory in elections Feb. 25, defeating Sandinista President Daniel Ortega.

Sens. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., Appropriations Committee chairman, and Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of the foreign aid subcommittee, wanted to authorize only $300 million for Panama while providing $157 million for Eastern Europe.

But the committee voted 15-14 to approve an amendment offered by Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Wis., providing the same levels of financial support for Nicaragua and Panama as the House, while cutting aid to Eastern Europe, among other differences.

Kasten said he had been told by Secretary of State James Baker that the Bush administration "could live with" $420 million for Panama. Kasten said spending less would be a "crime," sending the wrong message to struggling democracy.

But Leahy said Panama would be unable to use so much of the money so quickly without waste.

Mental patient shoots shoppers

By G.W. SHIFFRIN III
United Press International

ATLANTA — A man discharged from a mental hospital walked into a crowded mall and emptied a six-shot revolver at lunch customers, killing one man and wounding four others about 24 hours after his release, police said.

Authorities said the gunman, dressed in a gray suit and carrying a briefcase, entered the food court in Perimeter Mall in Atlanta's affluent northern suburb shortly after noon Tuesday, drew a .38-caliber revolver and began firing at random into a crowd of about 300 panicked shoppers.

DeKalb County Police spokesman Tom Brown said documents found on the gunman, who calmly surrendered outside the mall, indicated he had been released Monday from Georgia Regional Hospital, a mental institution. Police Col. M.F. Ferguson confirmed the documents said the gunman had been released from the hospital and that he had been diagnosed as homicidal and suicidal.

The hospital, citing patient confidentiality, declined comment.

Police identified the gunman as a 30-year-old Reginald Moreman of Anniston, Ala., but he also carried papers identifying him as James Calvin Brady, 31, of Atlanta.

One of the victims of the shooting rampage, 34-year-old Michael Gregory Musick of Norcross, died at Northside Hospital of a chest wound.

Three other people wounded in the attack were hospitalized in serious to critical condition, but were all expected to survive. A fourth victim, a Federal Express employee, was treated and released for a leg wound.

Half of smokers light up without asking

United Press International

BOSTON — Nearly half of the smokers in a survey of 22,000 Americans say they light up cigarettes without asking if anyone minds and almost no non-smokers will tell them not to, a government study said.

Dr. Ronald Davis said he was surprised to learn that the proportion of non-smokers who will ask someone to put out a cigarette has remained at only about 5 percent since 1974, despite growing evidence that second-hand smoke is harmful.

"Most non-smokers are reluctant to confront a smoker, even though they say they are annoyed by the smoke and believe it to be harmful," said Davis, of the federal Centers for Disease Control's Office on Smoking and Health.

Although the proportion of smokers who said they do not smoke in indoor public places increased from 5 percent to 33 percent between 1974 and 1987, Davis said 47 percent do smoke in public — and without asking anyone's permission.

Tobacco source of high-protein, says professor

United Press International

BOSTON — Tobacco can be reduced to a high-protein, calorie-free powder for use in a variety of foods and could provide a valuable nutrition source for areas of the world where protein is scarce, a researcher said today.

Shuh Sheen, a researcher at the University of Kentucky, said tobacco leaves actually are a better source of protein than eggs, cheese or milk. Processing can remove nicotine and other toxins and turn what is left into a 100 percent pure source of amino acids — protein that is essential to life, he said.

A tasteless powder could be added to meringue, jellies, whipped desserts and even baby food to increase protein content, he said. But he harbors no illusions about Americans rushing out to buy tobacco-laced jams and pudding.

"In this country, we have no shortage of protein, so there is no need to use it as food," he said during a meeting of the American Chemical Society.

But he believes tobacco could become a valuable food crop in Third World countries where sources of protein are scarce.

IN BRIEF

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Clemens carrying Red Sox

And on the fifth day the Boston Red Sox had Roger Clemens. Before that, who knows? The Red Sox, who entered the season without a qualified fifth starter are searching for anyone to follow Clemens this season. Five other starters have combined for a 1-3 record to back up their ace righthander's fast start. Clemens, 4-0, improved on his perfect record Tuesday night, by pitching 6 1/3 innings in leading the Red Sox to a 4-2 triumph over Mark Langston and the California Angels. Elsewhere in the American League, Milwaukee beat Kansas City 7-3, Minnesota walloped Detroit 16-4, New York sunk the Seattle 6-2, Toronto edged Cleveland 4-3, Oakland grounded Baltimore 7-1 and Texas overran Chicago 5-4.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Scott off to horrid start

Mike Scott, the 1986 Cy Young award winner, has yet to go six innings this season, and his earned run average is now 7.32. Scott, 0-2, was the loser Tuesday night when Montreal defeated Houston 5-3. "This is probably the worst I've pitched all year," Scott said. "We were behind 3-0 before we ever got to swing and they hit the ball hard in every inning. I was probably lucky to go as far as I did." Scott was pulled after five innings. Tim Wallach homered and drove in three runs. Kevin Gross, 1-1, allowed one run and five hits over six innings for the victory. Elsewhere in the NL Tuesday night, Pittsburgh stopped San Francisco 4-1, New York edged Atlanta 2-1, Philadelphia got by Cincinnati 6-3, San Diego stomped Chicago 13-3, and Los Angeles blanked St. Louis 3-0.

Lake Mary plans fund-raiser

SANFORD — A four-man scramble tournament to raise funds for the Lake Mary High School boys' and girls' golf team has been scheduled for Saturday, May 5, at Mayfair Country Club. Entry fee is $80 per person, which includes greens fee, cart, drinks on the course, door prizes and a hamburger buffet following the tournament. Play is scheduled to begin at 7:30 a.m. It is requested, although not mandatory, that each team be made of an A-rated player, one B-rated, one C-rated and one D-rated. On the par three No. 7, Orange Buick will be awarding the free use of a new car for one year to the first player sinking a hole-in-one. At the par three No. 10, Longwood Toyota will be giving away a new car for the first hole-in-one. Among the door prizes that will be given away are passes for four at local golf courses and country clubs. For more information, contact the Lake Mary High School athletic department.

Oilers wrap up sweep of Kings

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Joe Murphy scored at 4:42 of overtime Tuesday night, helping the Edmonton Oilers complete a sweep of the Smythe Division final with a 6-5 victory over the Los Angeles Kings. After Reijo Ruotsalainen's slap shot was blocked by goaltender Kelly Hrudey, Murphy pounced on the rebound and blasted a 25-foot shot over the glove hand of Hrudey for his third playoff goal. Edmonton has won four of five overtime playoff games with Los Angeles. Edmonton advanced to the Campbell Conference final for the sixth time in the last eight years. The Oilers, who will meet either Chicago or St. Louis, have won seven straight games since falling behind Winnipeg 3-1 in the opening round.

'Hawks even series with Blues

ST. LOUIS — Wayne Prealey and Michel Goulet scored 36 seconds apart early in the second period, lifting the Chicago Blackhawks to a 3-3 victory over the St. Louis Blues and deadlocking the Stanley Cup quarterfinal series at two games apiece. The teams travel to Chicago Thursday for Game 5 of the best-of-seven Norris Division finals. Prealey, who leads the Blackhawks with seven playoff goals, opened the scoring at 2:06 of the second period, writing a shot from the top of the left circle above the blocker of befuddled Blues goaltender Vincent Riendeau. Riendeau was screened and did not react to the shot.

4A-Dist. 4 softball opens

Michelle Davis (right), Jennifer Masciarelli (center) and the rest of the Lake Brantley Patriots will start their quest for a return trip to the state playoffs when they open district play today at Lake Brantley.

From staff reports

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Lake Brantley will attempt to begin its return trip to the Class 4A state softball tournament when it plays its first-round game of the 4A-District 4 tournament. The tournament is being played at Lake Brantley. With a record of 19-3, the Patriots earned the top seed in the tournament and will play the winner of last night's Lyman/DeLand game at 8 p.m. this evening. Play begins in the tournament at 2 p.m., when No. 3-seed Spruce Creek plays No. 6 Lake Weir. At 4 p.m., No. 2 Lake Mary meets No. 7 Mainland before No. 4 Oviedo takes on No. 5 Lake Howell at 6 p.m. In Thursday night's semifinals, the winners of the Lake Mary/Mainland game will play the survivor of the Spruce Creek/Lake Weir clash at 6 p.m. The other two Wednesday night winners will play at 8 p.m. Thursday. The championship game is set for 6:15 p.m. Friday. "There are as many as five good teams in this tournament on any given night," said Lake Brantley coach Debbie Frank. "Whoever wins this tournament should make it to the state tournament. All of the top four seeds could make it to the state championship game." If the tournament advances the way the seeds are set up, then Lake Brantley and Lake Mary would face each other for the fourth time this season, this time with the district championship on the line. Lake Brantley won the first game between the two, beating the Rams 3-1 in the Early Bird Classic. Lake Mary took the second contest, a 6-3 decision in a mid-March Seminole Athletic Conference clash. Then, just last Thursday, the Patriots topped the Rams 3-1 to claim the SAC championship.

Pats, Lions, Hawks, Greyhounds advance

LAKE MARY — There will be no Lake Mary-Lake Brantley III. Lake Howell scored four runs in the sixth inning and Dwayne Clark scattered six hits as the No. 5-seeded Silver Hawks upset the No. 4-seeded Rams 4-3 in the opening round of the 4A-District 9 tournament at Lake Mary Tuesday night. In the other games, Daytona Beach Mainland opened the day with a 5-1 decision over Spruce Creek, sixth-seeded Lyman upset No. 3-seed Lake Weir 4-3, No. 2 Oviedo ousted No. 7 DeLand 2-0 and No. 1 Lake Brantley blasted Mainland 16-2. The semifinals will be played at Lake Mary Thursday evening. At 5 p.m., Oviedo will square off with Lyman and at 7:30 p.m., Lake Brantley will face Lake Howell. Lake Mary entered the sixth inning with a 3-0 lead, pitcher Scott Davidson handcuffing the Hawks on three hits. But Lake Howell got to Davidson and reliever Chris Jackson for six hits and four runs in the inning. Ed Smith led off the inning for the Silver Hawks with a single. After a fly out, Pete Gaffney singled Smith to second. Chris Heath then forced Gaffney at second, Smith advancing to third. Malcolm Cepeda then singled to score Smith with Lake Howell's first run. Mervyl Melendez rifled a double to score Heath and Bobby Coleman. See upset, Page 2B

KISSIMMEE — After one of the most hard-luck years in memory, it was only fitting that Seminole High School's baseball season ended Tuesday night with one more tough-luck loss. Playing in the first round of the 3A-District 6 tournament at the Ocoola Sports Complex, the Seminoles were victimized by a couple of bad breaks in a 6-3 loss to the Edgewater Eagles. Seminole ends its season at 7-19. In other first-round games Tuesday night, Kissimmee-Gateway shut out Leesburg 2-0 and St. Cloud embarrassed Jones 17-1 in a game called after five innings. This evening's semifinals, Edgewater plays St. Cloud at 6 p.m. and Gateway takes on top-seeded Kissimmee-Ocoola at 8:30 p.m. Seminole's first — and worst — bad break came in the top of the See Tribe, Page 2B

Royals, A's win close ones in Little Major League

From staff reports

SANFORD — The two leaders in the American Division, the Disabled American Veterans Royals and the First Union A's, were pressed but came out victorious in Sanford Recreation Department Little Major Baseball League action at Roy Holler Field Tuesday. The Seminole Ford Red Sox came from a 7-0 deficit to go ahead 10-9, but the Royals used a two-run, sixth-inning rally to win the opening game 11-10. The A's used a four-run fifth to come back after trailing 3-1 to pick up a 6-3 victory over the Sun Bank Orioles in the nightcap. The Royals lead the division with an 8-1 record followed by the A's at 5-4, the Red Sox at 3-6 and the Orioles at 1-8. Saturday morning, DAV will challenge the Orioles at 9 a.m. and at 10 a.m., the A's will take on the Red Sox. Thursday night will be National Division action with the Sunland Pirates squaring off with the Railroaders Cubs at 6 p.m. and the Rinker Dodgers facing the First Federal of Seminole Cardinals at 8 p.m. The Royals scored six runs in the top of the first inning en route to a 7-0 lead before the Red Sox scored eight runs in the bottom of the second. It turned into a pitchers duel after that with relievers William Wynn of the Royals and 10-year old Terrance Perkins of the Red Sox giving up only two runs each until the sixth. Alexis Acosta of the Royals blasted the first pitch of the sixth inning for a home run to tie the game. It was the fourth time this season that Acosta had hit a home run late in the game to either tie the game or put his team ahead. Kevin Butler followed Acosta's shot with a single and went to second on a Davion Hampton walk. Donnie Hinson then grounded to short to force Butler at third. Hampton and Hinson moved up a base on a wild pitch as the next batter struck out. With a 2-2 count, Hampton stole home to put the Royals ahead. A walk to Perkins and two wild pitches put the tying run on third with no one out for the Red Sox in the bottom of the sixth, but Wynn settled down to strike out the next three batters to end the game. Providing the offense for the Royals were Acosta (home run, single, two runs scored, three RBI), Hampton (two singles, three runs scored), Butler (two singles, two runs scored), Lloyd Dixon (two singled, run scored), Hinson (single, run scored, two RBI) and Chris Giovanelli and Marcus Beasley (one run scored each). Doing the damage for the Red Sox were Perkins (double, two runs scored), Henry Taylor (double, run scored), Robert Randall (single, run scored, two RBI), Jason Bertrand (two runs scored) and Antonio White, Trellis Smith and James Thomas (one run scored each). The second game saw the Orioles score one run in the first and two in the fourth to take a 3-1 See Majors, Page 2B

Orr notches fourth straight Late Model victory at New Smyrna track

Special to the Herald

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — Pete Orr drove the Fountain Auto Mall Oldsmobile to his fourth consecutive Late Model feature win on Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway.

Finishing a close second in the beautiful D.J.'s Auto Sales Chevrolet Lumina was Jimmy Sills. Early leader Joe Middleton, who spun out of first place early in the race, finished third ahead of Tim Fuller and race car builder Nick Smith, who has been having his share of problems lately.

Von Crews led the Sportsman feature until the halfway mark. Outfoxing Crews once again, Ricky Marshall took over first place and went on to win. Steve Latham came out on top of a spirited battle for third, beating Troy Hall and Joey Warmack.

Using his dirt-track savvy, Sanford's John Ripley led every lap but the first to score his seventh "B" Bomber win of the season. The extra distance/extra cash event started with wild, three-car-wide racing for first place. Ripley, sideways, drifted all the way up the wall as he outpowered the competition and moved up on the point in the second lap.

With six laps to go, second-place runner Rick Johns lost a wheel but came back to finish fifth. Second through fourth were Ted Head, Tommy Peters and Dick Lee.

Davey Allison-lookalike Craig Reynolds led all the way to score his first career feature win in the Mini Stock division. Reynolds, who has been trying so hard for so long, finally made it at the wheel of the John's Auto Electric Pinto.

Barely beating Bentley Mead, Donnie Narmore won the "A" Bomber final.

Mike Fitch took the Florida Modified feature for the 13th time this year.

In Powder Puff action, Lori Loomis was extremely excited after scoring a spectacular last-lap victory over Bonnie Fowler and Debbie Santo.

at Orlando Speedway

ORLANDO — Malabar's Ricky Marshall wrapped up a wild night of FASCAR-sanctioned stock car racing action on Friday at Orlando Speedway by winning the "Snap-On Tools" 30 for the Sportsman cars.

After setting the fast time, Marshall started seventh in the 23-car field and quickly worked his way up to the second spot behind early leader Von Crews. At that point, Marshall outmaneuvered Crews in lapped car traffic just before a wave of caution flag fever started taking its toll, nearly slowing Marshall.

When all the smoke had cleared, Marshall had scored an easy win, his seventh of the year, over Crews, Mike Todd and Steve Latham.

Fifth-place finisher Mike Franklin Jr. was involved in a backdraft altercation with fellow Miami-area driver Colin Lamb. The mishap led to some lacerations, resulting in Lamb's disqualification from the event.

Marshall claimed the $500 top prize from race sponsor Snap-On Tools while Franklin received an extra $50 fifth place bonus from Todd Brothers Landscaping.

LeRoy Porter continued his winnings ways as he scored his sixth Late Model feature win in a row on the semi-banked third-mile paved oval. Once again, it wasn't an easy win as he started next to last and managed to avoid much of the leader banging and mechanical ills that cut the field in half by the midway point.

After challenging early leader Ed Meredith for several laps, Porter made a successful inside move to take the point. Sid Sikes attempted to duplicate the move but collected Meredith and several others in the process. Sikes was out for the night while Meredith went on to finish fifth behind Porter, Pete Orr, Jim Sill and "Tiger" Tim Fuller.

The 30-lap "A" Bomber Special was slam-bang affair that saw many more cars severely damaged. Malabar's Donnie Narmore drew the outside front row position and led all the way, holding off a hard-charging Bentley Mead, who had set a new track record in time trials.

Dale Howard scored a strong third-place finish while Dave Savicki (who started last) spun twice and still managed to finish fourth ahead of Jimmy Johns, who rounded out the top five.

West Virginia's Harris says he's surprised he was drafted at all

United Press International

NEW YORK — Major Harris, selected in the final round of the NFL draft, Tuesday said he was only surprised that he was drafted at all.

Harris nearly led West Virginia to a national title as a sophomore and finished among the top five Heisman Trophy candidates the last two years, but was the 19th quarterback selected. The Los Angeles Raiders spent the $17th pick of the 331-selection draft on him.

Harris said he is sure he can play in the NFL, but sensed a lot of doubt among the 26 teams.

"I didn't think I would get drafted, I could just tell," he said. "I never got a phone call from an NFL team in my life."

"It's kind of ironic, a guy up for the Heisman two years in a row, who they said did everything, could get all this negative press all at once ... that he couldn't make it. After three years of starting there, all I heard was I don't belong."

NFL scouts say Harris' style is better suited to the wide open Canadian Football League, where he might end up. The British Columbia Lions own his CFL rights.

Harris applied for the NFL draft as a junior. He was the second player in NCAA history to pass for 5,000 yards and run for 7,000.

"I did that in three years and if I stayed another year, I would have done something else that no one's ever done," he said. "I knew it wasn't going to be based on ability but it's so funny — I'm getting the most publicity. If I wasn't good enough to go higher than 13th, then how come everyone's talking about it so much?"

The Mountaineers lost to Notre Dame in the Fiesta Bowl following the 1980 season when Harris was a sophomore and finished fifth in Heisman voting. He was third last year.

"He took a team that was not even on the map and made them TV's darlings," said his agent, Ed Abram.

Before the draft, all Harris heard was negative. He is considered short for an NFL quarterback at 6-foot and his powerful arm was knocked as inaccurate. The free-wheeling that made him so exciting in college makes him a liability among structured NFL coaches.

"All I know is you give him the ball and points go on the board," West Virginia Coach Don Nehlen said.

Despite that endorsement, Nehlen and Harris have been perceived to be at odds. Harris and Abram said they heard that Nehlen gave NFL scouts poor reports on Harris. Nehlen denies that, and Harris and Abram say it doesn't matter.

"A lot of people say he hurt me but I didn't dwell on it," Harris said. "He's probably mad because I didn't stay."

Harris says losing until the 12th round did not shake his confidence. But he takes no pleasure in getting drafted by the Raiders, a team known for taking chances on players other NFL teams pass on.

Also, the Raiders' Art Shell is the only black head coach in a league that is known for trying to turn black college quarterbacks into defensive backs and receivers.

"I don't look at it like a last chance — what difference does it make what round a guy goes in — and I don't look at it like I need a team that gives last chances," he said. "I kind of look at it like whoever wants to win will give me a chance and whoever gives me a chance, will win."

"It was probably a smart move on their part — they got the best available player in the draft on the last round."

Even British Columbia Lions spokesman Doug Grilling said "We're aware of their (Raiders) history."

"Of the 26, they're more apt to give a 12th-round choice a shot than other teams."

Harris said he had no contact with anyone from the NFL until Raiders Coach Art Shell phoned Monday night to tell him he was drafted. Harris said he would be happy to go to the Raiders' mini-camp but expects to play in Canada.

"If I had dreams, it was to play football," said the Pittsburgh native who grew up a Cleveland Browns fan. "It was never for what team."

The Raiders would hold Harris' NFL rights for four years if he plays in Canada, but it sounds like Shell is keeping an open mind.

"All this guy has done is win," Shell said. "He stayed on the board for a long time and we felt this guy was deserving to go higher than we picked him. We feel he is a quality individual who knows how to win football games. He's a winner, he has escape ability and a strong arm."

Abram said he was expecting to talk with the Raiders next and in negotiations with the Lions was looking for $1.5 million over three years.

First inning. With runners on first and second, Edgewater's Chad Wagman singled to left, where Willie McClellan flied the ball and threw a perfect one-hop strike to catcher Jeff Derr, seemingly in time to nail the lead runner.

But the umpire called the runner safe, putting Edgewater up 1-0 and depriving Seminoles of a crucial out.

After a walk loaded the bases, Seminoles starting pitcher Mike Seneshek got the next batter to pop up for what would have been the third out. Instead, designated hitter Eric Davis follows with a two-run single and Seminoles commits an error to let in a fourth run.

The Tribe closed the gap to 4-3 with two runs in the bottom of the third. Ricky Schaefer driving in one run with a sacrifice fly and freshman Jeremy Chmest ripping an RBI triple. But Edgewater answered with a pair of unearned runs in the top of the fourth inning.

Seminoles had one last chance to get back in the game, loading the bases with one out in the bottom of the sixth inning. Jeff Derr singled to pitch-runner Embree Howerton with the Tribe's third run but Jeff Bergman was thrown out at home on the play, all but killing the rally.

On the positive side, Seminoles' group of underclassmen played well in the loss.

"We look good for the future," said Seminoles coach Mike Powers, who used a starting lineup that included three freshmen and a pair of juniors. "We have some good young players, some guys who can hit the ball."

"We're down in the seventh inning and Chmest hits the ball the opposite way for a single. David Schaefer hit the ball hard three times. Robbie Morgan allowed a lot of hits, coming in with bases loaded in the second inning and retiring the side without giving up a run."

Now Powers will spend the summer working with that group, getting them ready for next season.

Acne treatment can pose some risks

DR. GOTT: My 17-year-old son has an acne problem — on his face, back and chest. He's under the care of a dermatologist, takes Minocin and uses Retin-A — all with little improvement. A second dermatologist wants to put him on Accutane for three to four months, and I'm reluctant to try this procedure. What do you think?

DEAR READER: Accutane (isotretinoin) is a logical next step in the treatment of your son's recalcitrant acne. Most patients tolerate the prescription drug well. However, the manufacturer warns that in rare cases, the drug causes pressure to build up in a patient's brain (intracranial hypertension), leading to visual disturbances, headache, nausea and vomiting; such a reaction means the drug must be immediately discontinued.

Also, about 25 percent of Accutane patients show an increase in the blood fat called triglycerides; this may require adjustment of dosage or special low-fat diets. Finally, about 15 percent of patients exhibit signs of liver inflammation, which disappears on lower doses. Also, women who are pregnant or are planning to become pregnant should not use Accutane because of the risk of fetal abnormalities. If your son has exhausted the usual methods of treating acne, he may wish to consider using Accutane, under the doctor's close supervision. Acne is not life threatening; therefore, you should carefully review the risk/benefit ratio with the doctor.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In a recent column, you mentioned that Cholacol, a digestive enzyme that acts as a laxative, is no longer commercially available. However, it is available by prescription through some health clinics.

Cholacol is manufactured by Standard Process Laboratories, Palmyra, WI 53156. Perhaps interested readers may wish to write the company to find out how they can purchase the

DEAR READER: Thank you for the tip. Cholacol is a safe, effective and natural medicine that patients used to be able to obtain without prescription. I doubt the manufacturer is permitted to fill orders for individual patients. However, perhaps Standard Process Laboratories can refer interested

Cook's push for more dough gets a rise out of owners

DEAR ABBY: I am a cook in a small but very popular restaurant. At the end of our shifts, the waitresses count their tip money, and believe me, it's a healthy "take." Add this to their hourly wage, and they do very well.

I make an hourly wage that is slightly over the so-called poverty level, yet nobody seems to remember where all the excellent food came from. Good service is important, but if a reduction in help is necessary, the waitresses would be the first to go.

Abby, is there some way to enlighten the public to share their tip money with the cooks?

LETTERS TO ROLL IN THE DOUGH

DEAR LIEBS: I sent your letter to the owners of three of the most popular restaurants in the Los Angeles area. Their responses:

DEAR ABBY: Every restaurant—large, small, plain or fancy—pays its waiters, waitresses, bartenders, etc. the minimum wage required by law, simply because it is understood that this amount will be supplemented by tips.

I feel that because the dining public is aware that the price of the meal includes the cost of the labor to prepare it, there is no need to leave a gratuity for the kitchen.

Although I am sure the restaurant business was not upturned in the mind of Harry Truman when he said it, it fits this situation best: "If you can't stand the heat—get out of the kitchen!"

BRUCE VANDERHOFF, LE RESTAURANT, LOS ANGELES

DEAR ABBY: As a general rule, cooks are paid far more than waiters and waitresses whose wages are supplemented by tips. Chefs who are talented and reliable are always in demand and are handsomely paid by the management. Sometimes, when the chef makes an extraordinary effort for a private party, the host will present him with a gratuity in appreciation.

I suggest that your correspondent who signs himself "Let's Roll in the Dough" takes steps to perfect his craft so that he can "roll in the dough." JAMES SHERIDAN, JAMES'S IN SEVERLY HILLS

DEAR ABBY: With regard to the cook who felt that he was entitled to a portion of the waitresses' tip money, no way! I am reluctant to express my opinion on the subject of tipping because I am expert at putting my foot in my mouth. If I had my druthers, tipping would be abolished altogether since it makes the recipients feel like second-class citizens.

In most European countries, the gratuity is included in the cost of the meal. This covers the preparation as well as the serving. I feel quite certain that if the choice were up to the diners, they, too, would prefer to do away with tipping.

Thank you for including me in your survey. I respectfully prefer to remain anonymous.

LONGTIME RESTAURATEUR DEAR BRUCE, JERRY AND LONGTIME RESTAURATEUR: If I had my druthers, I, too, would do away with tipping waiters and waitresses—unless, of course, a special service had been performed.

Each time I make this suggestion, a howl goes up from service people who say, "If we were paid a decent wage, we wouldn't have to depend on tips in order to survive!"

And the restaurateurs scream, "If we had to pay our waiters and waitresses what they were worth, we couldn't stay in business."

Cooks bake and break bread together

By JEAN KING
Herald correspondent

BANFORD — Our Cook of the Week works six days a week.

Connie Bracero waits on customers and contributes her expertise as a helpmate to husband Joe, her partner in the family business, House of Bread Bakery in Sanford.

Their three children, Benjamin, Ariene, and the youngest, Anna Maria who are young adults, work with their parents in the family business.

While the family works together, Connie sees to it that they also eat together. She cooks a big meal for her family every day at the bakery.

Bracero was born in Puerto Rico and came to this country at age four. After living in New York briefly, she moved to California, where she stayed for the next thirty-five years, meeting and marrying Joe along the way. They celebrated twenty-eight years of marriage last December.

Bracero puts her customers first.

"Sometimes, like tonight, the customers want to stay and talk," Bracero says, after apologizing for arriving home a little late. "You know, you can't be rude to them. Even though we were closed for the night, we are still polite to our customers."

This gracious lady is very comfortable in her lovely home that is beautifully furnished and decorated.

Daughter Ariene is also a gracious hostess who attentively serves refreshments and makes great coffee, strong and black.

Across the room looking into the foyer, one can see Connie's collection of dolls sitting on shelves in a glass-front cabinet. They represent twenty years of collecting. The first was a gift from Joe when their youngest child, Anna Maria, was born and the collection has grown from that day. Every doll sits prim and quite proper in their best dressed fashion. Some look as though they have private thoughts of their own while others appear to be dreamily gazing into a blissful doll world unknown to any human. Included are several clown dolls. One is a two-inch crystal and a special favorite of Bracero's as it was a gift from a dear friend. Several are made of paper-mache and others are musical.

"I like the clowns," Bracero

Connie Bracero and her treasured doll collection

explains, "because every face and expression is different." With her Puerto Rican heritage Bracero cooks and prepares food differently than other Americans might. This adds an exciting flavor to her recipes and for this knowledge she readily thanks her grandmother who taught her to cook.

One of Bracero's favorite recipes is Baccala Salad.

"It's a different way of serving cod. The kids won't eat it," she laughs. "They don't like the smell of codfish."

"We use the dry salt cod from Iceland," Joe adds. "It's difficult to find sometimes and it's expensive but we like it."

Joe does most of his cooking at the bakery.

"Joe used to do some of the cooking at home before we bought the bakery," Bracero reveals. "He could make flan," (a custard-like dessert) she says. While prodding Joe to give the flan recipe, Bracero admits, "I never learned to make it. I always let Joe do it. If I made the flan then I'd have to do it all the time."

Joe reluctantly admits that he has forgotten the recipe.

"It's been so long since I made it, I forgot," he says.

Bracero admits to her own forgetfulness in the kitchen. During one family meal when she had prepared Salchicha, a favorite of the Braceros, she was getting odd looks from around the table.

"Everyone looked at me. I didn't know what was going on," she says.

"She forgot to put the Vienna sausage in the Salchicha," Joe chuckles. "That's tantamount to having a roast beef dinner without the beef," he explains. Later this month twelve family members will be coming for a visit including sisters and brothers.

"We'll have a whole roast pig," Bracero states. "I won't cook it, we'll have it done professionally," she adds.

"There isn't enough time to cook at home when we work long hours six days a week!"

BACCALA SALAD

- 1 lb. dried, salted codfish
- 4 hardboiled eggs
- 2 fresh medium tomatoes
- 1 medium avocado
- 1 medium onion
- Olive oil

Boil salt codfish to remove excess salt. Rinse in cold water until it runs clear. Cut eggs into wedges. Cut tomatoes and avocado into wedges also. Slice onion into thin rings. Place all ingredients into a salad bowl and gently toss with olive oil.

SALCHICHA (Rice with Vienna Sausage)

- 1 onion, chopped
- 1/2 green pepper, cut into small pieces
- 2 or 3 cloves garlic chopped
- 6 cilantro leaves
- 1/4 to 1/2 lb. salt pork, cubed
- olive oil
- 1/2 can tomato sauce
- 1 to 2 cans Vienna sausage
- 4 cups white rice

Wash the starch off the rice in running cold water until the water runs clear. Bring to boil about 30 minutes in a large pan. Add a pinch of salt to the boiling water. Carefully add rice, stir and cover. Lower heat to medium and cook for 35 min.

Heat oil in pan just enough to cover bottom of pan. Fry salt pork and vegetables. Place salt pork, vegetables and cilantro into a blender and mix well. Pour all into a pan with 1/2 can of tomato sauce. Fry Vienna sausage and add to mixture. Serve over rice or mix with rice and top with Vienna Sausage.

RED BEANS

(serves up to 4)

- 1 cup dry red beans
- pinch salt
- Cover beans with cold water, add salt, bring to boil. Reduce heat to medium and continue to cook until tender.
- 1 green pepper
- 1 can tomato sauce
- 1 can water

Fry spices and green pepper, add tomato sauce and water, bring to boil. Simmer 30 to 30 minutes. Add red beans. May be served with rice.

Note: The latter is a basic sauce recipe. This sauce can be spiced up with your own favorite spices. Add cayenne, chili powder and red pepper flakes for a spicy hot sauce. For an Italian flair, use oregano and red pepper flakes with a generous sprinkling of garlic powder.

This red bean recipe is great rolled up in a flour tortilla. To make a red bean taco, use taco shells, fill with red bean mix and add fresh chopped onions, tomatoes and cheddar cheese on top.

Home-grown vegetables are tasty fruits of labor

Do you have a question or suggestion about microwave cooking? Midge Mycoff will use her column to answer. Address letters to: Midge Mycoff, Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, 32771.

Soon, many of us will have fresh peas, new potatoes, tomatoes, and other vegetables right in our own gardens or we will be able to find them at local produce stands. To help prepare these "fruits of our labor" so that the color, texture, nutritive value and flavor are preserved, I've collected microwave recipes that are easy, healthful, and interesting. For peak flavor, it's best to prepare produce as soon as it's picked and proper storage helps retain the nutrients and freshness from garden to microwave. Peas are sweetest when freshly picked and can be refrigerated up to 3 days. New potatoes should be stored in a cool, dark, dry place (not refrigerated).

The microwave is the best method for cooking vegetables. Little water is used in cooking the vegetable, more of the nutrients and color are retained.

Combine two of the best that a garden can offer...small new potatoes and fresh peas. If you use frozen peas the tiny spring peas are the ones closest to fresh.

When you buy your groceries that day, 5% of the total sales from 4 p.m. til 8 p.m. will be donated to American Cancer Society for the benefit of the Winn-Dixie

Hope Lodge, a home away from home for cancer patients and their families who must travel to Shands Hospital and other facilities in Gainesville for treatment. The WINN-DIXIE Hope Lodge is free of charge, but it needs your help to continue providing a caring, supportive environment for cancer patients. So come out, meet a few stars, have some fun and join us in the fight against cancer. Thank you from the American Cancer Society and WINN-DIXIE, America's Supermarket.
