Harry S. Benson
...stepping down after 11 years as police chief.

Police Chief Quits, Looks To New Career

By Paul Schaefer
Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary Police Chief Harry S. Benson will trade his badge for a pendulum.

Having resigned as chief effective March 1, he is set to become a staff hypnoterapist for Associated Health Professionals in Maitland.

Benson said he has used hypnosis "several times" in his police work, and has studied hypnotherapy for 10 years.

His work will not primarily involve police cases, "but hopefully we'll be able to assist police departments when needed," he said.

Benson will also pursue career opportunities, and possibly school in West Orange, New Jersey during the summer months. The family of Benson's wife, Marion Neubert, lives in that city.

His letter of resignation, dated December 27, 1985, was accepted "with regret" by the Lake Mary City Commission during Thursday night's regular commission session.

Benson, 64, has been the Chief of Police for the City of Lake Mary for 11 years.

The Chief's letter of resignation read:

Due to personal family related plans, I am tendering my resignation which will become effective on March 1, 1986.

"I have enjoyed the past 11 years working for the city, and will carry many fond memories away with me.

"Respectfully, Harry S. Benson, Chief of Police"

Mayor Dick Fess and City Manager Kathy Rice each said the resignation wasn't a surprise, as each had understood Benson was considering retiring. They didn't know when he would leave the department.

Benson's says his biggest accomplishment was building the Lake Mary Police Department from scratch with limited funds. He said he didn't expect to be with the department and city for 11 years, "but I fell in love with the people here. We have an excellent governing body, and it has been a pleasure working with them."

The commission also accepted the resignation of Police Department dispatcher Gail Cook, who had been with the department for three years.

3rd Body Removed At Prison

MOUNDSVILLE, W.Va. (UPI) — A third inmate's body was removed today from the maximum security West Virginia Penitentiary where rioting inmates still held seven hostages pending a grievance-meeting with Gov. Arch Moore.

A unidentified body was removed from the prison in an ambulance and taken to a hospital this morning. Authorities declined to reveal the inmate's name until relatives could be notified.

Meanwhile, a woman employee in the prison's medical services section said she believes up to 10 inmates and possibly more are dead.

"If they let these guys get away with this, they ought to fire the whole administration," said the Wheeling woman, who declined to give her name.

"I'm angry about the whole thing. They (prison officials) knew it was coming."

State police Sgt. Larry Henry said it would be "speculation" for anyone to say more inmates were dead.

"We don't have any way of knowing at this time, until we get in there," he said. "That is something that is being weighed and considered."

Prison spokeswoman Nancy McDowell said there was no information that more inmates had died.

The seven remaining hostages were expected to be released today when several inmate leaders meet with the governor. But at mid-day prison officials said no definite time had been set for that meeting.

Convicts who took control of the prison's south wing in a New Year's day riot originally took 17 hostages, but they released four prior to the signing of an agreement Thursday that resulted in six more being freed.

Another convict was removed from the prison after suffering an asthma attack.

The body of 38-year-old Kent Sile, who was serving a life sentence for murder and kidnap, was released early Thursday. He died of slash wounds during the uprising in which 17 hostages were seized when about 200 convicts took control of the 740-inmate prison at 5:30 p.m. EST Wednesday.

The second dead inmate, who died of stab wounds, was identified as 31-year-old kidnapper Harold Dean. There was no indication when he died.

"It could have been anytime during the disturbance," said prison official John Massie.

The agreement promises corrections officials — not police — will oversee the reopening of the prison, that inmates Danny Lehman and Alvin Gregory will handle media coverage and that there will be no retaliation against convicts who participated in the uprising.

"Nobody wanted this thing," Lehman said. "We tried to avoid it for a long time."

U.S. Eyes Further Sanctions

Libya Launches Anti-American Demonstrations

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI) — Libya today geared up for anti-American demonstrations following Col. Moammar Khadafy's warning that the United States and Israel face retaliation if they avenge the Palestinian terror attacks at two European airports.

Organizers of the state-sanctioned demonstrations were reportedly alerting people in Tripoli to turn out for the protests. Small groups of young people gathered on the city's Green Square.

State-run Libyan television reported that some protests had erupted late Thursday outside the capital.

In Washington, responding to Khadafy's assertion that the attacks were justified, a State Department spokesman charged Thursday the Libyan leader was "making excuses for the indiscriminate slaughter of innocent men, women and children."

The State Department said current economic and diplomatic sanctions against Libya — including travel restrictions, a ban on exports of high technology and a 1982 oil embargo — have been effective.

But department spokesman Charles Redman said further tactics are under consideration.

"We are looking at other things we could do," Redman said. "These measures, of course, would be more effective if they were undertaken more widely by the international community. There is no doubt about that."

He declined comment on possible military retaliation. But CBS News, quoting unnamed sources, reported

American forces in the Mediterranean were being built up and that the Soviets were monitoring the developments.

Demonstrators in Tripoli "are requisitioned," said one Western diplomat. "They often don't know why they are demonstrating."

"There are often demonstrations," said another Western diplomat. "But this time, I feel a tension I have not felt previously."

The diplomats said cars were cleared Thursday from a square close to the Belgian Embassy, which represents U.S. interests in Libya. Washington severed diplomatic ties with Libya in 1980 after the U.S. Embassy was attacked.

The diplomats said the 1,500 Americans in Libya would probably not be harmed during the planned protests because of Libya's need for U.S. technical assistance. U.S. companies are deeply involved in Libya's oil industry.

Preparations for the protests came a day after Khadafy warned that Israeli or U.S. retaliation for the Dec. 27 Palestinian terror attacks in Rome and Vienna would spark a cycle of violence, with Libyans harassing "American citizens in their own streets."

Khadafy said any attack against Libya to avenge the airport attacks that left 19 people dead and more than 115 people wounded would trigger outright war in the Middle East and Mediterranean. He said he would welcome U.S.

One More Time

Re-elected in December to their seats on the Longwood City Commission, Harvey Smerilson, left, June Lormann and Harold "Ed" Myers are sworn in by City Clerk Don Terry, right, in city hall

Thursday afternoon, the first working day after the New Year as required by the charter. The commissioners will meet to elect a mayor and deputy mayor at 7:15 p.m. Monday.

No Contact With Space Beings

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet scientists have been searching for extraterrestrial life for the past 10 years, but have so far found no evidence intelligent beings exist in space, a leading journal said.

The Literary Gazette reported Thursday that Soviet research has centered on scanning the galaxies for incoming signals from intelligent extraterrestrial beings and, at the same time, sending messages into space.

In the past, Soviet scientists have said very little publicly about their research into possible extraterrestrial life.

"A program was worked out about a decade ago for research into this problem," the magazine said. "Unfortunately, only a small portion of the program is being implemented."

So far, it said, "among the numerous signals from the most remote corners of the universe, there have been none which could be considered as signals sent by beings with some specific intelligent purpose."

In a separate report Thursday, the official Tass news agency said scientists at Kharkov University have been sending radio signals to an area of the galaxy containing 50 stars, but without positive results. A similar program has been carried out by U.S. space experts who have been beaming a complex

Lake Mary Delays Vote On Meetings Rules, Waits To Hear More On Baseball Fields

Lake Mary's City Commission discussed, then delayed a decision on adopting new rules governing the conduct of their meetings, which include a provision for informal public "workshop sessions", until January 16. Also delayed until that date was further discussion of the use of city owned property surrounding the new water plant on Rinehart Road for practice baseball fields.

The commissioners disagreed with one point of the new meeting rules resolution. The provision for informal workshop-style meetings in advance of each regular scheduled formal session, held twice monthly, was the center of conversation.

Commissioner Russ Megonegal said he was "concerned that something would be tabled at the workshop, altering the published Thursday night (formal session) agenda," even though formal or binding decisions cannot be made at a workshop, according to the rules resolution.

Commissioner Ken King said he thought the workshops, proposed for 4 p.m. at City Hall each Tuesday prior to the formal Thursday sessions, should be held "only when necessary." To meet in a workshop to discuss only regularly scheduled Thursday night material, "would be a waste of time," King said.

Commissioner Buzz Pestos pointed out that the workshops would not necessarily be mandatory, but the opportunity to conduct a workshop "should be available" if an issue in need of in-depth conversation should arise.

"We've been improving our meetings alot lately," Commissioner Charlie Webster said.

Commission meetings have sometimes dragged on until after midnight. Thursday night's meeting was called to order by Mayor Dick Fess shortly after 7:30 p.m., and concluded just before 10 p.m.

The commission will again consider the rules resolution at their next meeting on January 16.

Their champagne glasses filled with fresh water, Lake Mary Mayor Dick Fess right, and former Lake Mary City Commissioner Harry Terry toast the new $1.4 Harry Terry Water Treatment Plant at its dedication this morning. The plant, off Rinehart Road, was named in honor of Terry, 77, who served on Lake Mary's governing body from 1973 until 1985. Terry is a longtime advocate of the city's drive to provide it's own water. For many years the city's water was purchased from Sanford.

Fog greeted early morning motorists in Sanford today. Expect more tonight and Saturday morning.

Gemayel And Assad Meet Amid Renewed Fighting By Militias

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Concern over fierce fighting between Israeli-backed and Moslem forces in southern Lebanon dominated a summit meeting in Damascus between Syrian President Hafez Assad and his Lebanese counterpart, Amin Gemayel.

Gemayel traveled to the Syrian capital Thursday to discuss details of a Syrian-sponsored peace accord among Lebanon's three main militias to end nearly 11 years of civil war and establish ways to implement the agreement.

But at the four-hour summit — the 10th between Gemayel and Assad — talks focused on clashes and shelling in southern Lebanon between two militias who were not parties to the accord, officials sources said.

At least one person died and three were wounded in Sidon Thursday when the Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army shelled the port city for two hours.

Fighting erupted at the same time between the SLA and Moslem militiamen east of Sidon but despite the ferocity of the battles there were no territorial gains by either side, reports from the city said.

Thousands Mourn Crash Victim

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — An estimated 20,000 black mourners bid farewell to one of South Africa's most popular white civil rights campaigners, Molly Blackburn, who died in a weekend auto accident.

Leading anti-apartheid activists attended the church ceremony Thursday while in the streets outside many mourners, wearing colorful tribal dress or the colors of the outlawed African National Congress — gold, green and black, sang black nationalist songs and prayed.

An estimated 20,000 blacks attended the service at St. John's Methodist Church in Port Elizabeth — watched by police armed with shotguns and police dogs.

Blackburn, 54, one of South Africa's most respected civil rights leaders, was married to a local doctor and was the mother of seven children. She died Saturday in a car crash.

She had become increasingly active in the past year in exposing police brutality against blacks, including the shooting of 20 funeral-goers in Uitenhage last spring.

Leftist Group Calls For Boycott

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — A leftist alliance today called for a boycott of February's presidential election, saying President Ferdinand Marcos will "ride roughshod over the people's will" to remain in power with U.S. support.

While the left-leaning National Alliance for Justice, Freedom and Democracy called for a boycott, a larger group, Bayan, today offered to support the election and swing its claimed 2 million members behind opposition candidate Corazon Aquino in return for 16 concessions, some affecting U.S. military bases.

The Alliance claims a grassroots following of 500,000 and is the dominant force in Bayan, with claimed membership of between 1.5 million and 2 million people in 1,000 organizations nationwide.

Reagan: 'Twin Evils' Threaten West

By Ira R. Allen
ANGELES (UPI) — President Reagan, heading for his fourth meeting with Mexican president Miguel de la Madrid, says Soviet-backed drug trafficking and terrorism pose today's "most insidious and dangerous" threat to the West.

Reagan will be in Mexico about four hours today to meet privately with de la Madrid in the border town of Mexicali, followed by a meeting with aides and a formal luncheon. Afterwards, Reagan flies back to Washington.

At the top of the agenda for the meeting is de la Madrid's economic austerity program, supported by the administration. Mexico faces a staggering foreign debt of $96 billion and inflation of 60 percent.

Despite the harm to Latin American stability posed by economic crises, Reagan said in an interview Thursday with the Mexican news agency Noticias de Mexico that communist subversion is the region's biggest problem.

"The link between the governments of such Soviet allies as Cuba and Nicaragua and international narcotics trafficking and terrorism is becoming increasingly clear," Reagan said.

"These twin evils — narcotics trafficking and terrorism — represent the most insidious and dangerous threats to the hemisphere today," he said.

A U.S. diplomat who will be part of today's meeting said Mexico's drug problem "parallels the beginning of the narcotics problem in Colombia" and could "become a critical danger" to Mexico's stability.

"That can be something that could bring them into difficult straits even before the economic problems, which we may be able to solve," the diplomat told reporters at a briefing in Los Angeles.

The same official said Mexico has not fully lived up to its 1982 commitment to make "structural reforms" in its economy as a condition of being eligible for more loans from world lending institutions and U.S. banks.

"There has not been a great deal of movement," said the official, who asked not to be named. He said some American bankers are complaining to the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City that "the situation is not going as well as it should."

But he said Mexico is in no danger of defaulting and that the United States, through a restructuring plan offered by Treasury Secretary James Baker, would not hold the reforms over Mexico's head.

"We recognize that Mexico is critical to our security, and we would like to see Mexico progress. If Mexico does not progress, its problems will be visited upon us," the official said.

Reagan and de la Madrid have met three times before, most recently in May 1984 in Washington. Reagan also met three times with de la Madrid's predecessor, Jose Lopez Portillo.

Former U.S. Ambassador to Mexico Julian Nava, said Thursday that the meeting between Reagan and de la Madrid would be an important one, in terms of Mexico's ailing economy.

Nava, who served as U.S. ambassador during the Carter Administration, said, "President Reagan is going to have to strike a very careful balance between getting what we want and getting Mexico what Mexico needs."

"Mexico has been a first-class trading partner, and yet it is asking for some form of release, probably a considerable reduction in the rate of interest payments (on U.S. loans)," he said.

Heart Patient Out Of Coma

By William Fox
MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Artificial heart patient Mary Lund woke up from a light coma, sat on the edge of her bed and was started to learn she had received the bionic pump a week before Christmas, doctors said.

The marked improvement shown by Lund, the first woman to receive an artificial heart, led doctors to upgrade her chance of survival to better than 50-50.

But doctors did not predict when she would be well enough for a human heart transplant, noting her kidney function still is not normal and she continues to need a respirator to breathe.

She is listed in critical but stable condition.

Lund, 40, Kensington, Minn., came out of a light coma Thursday, sat on the edge of her bed at Abbott Northwestern Hospital and moved her hands and feet.

She was surprised to hear a mini-Jarvik-7 heart was implanted in her chest Dec. 18 after a virus suddenly destroyed her heart.

"She was startled when we told her," Dr. Frederick Gobel, hospital spokesman, said at a news conference. "She opened her eyes quickly and widely."

He said the mother and nursing home secretary was told before the surgery but probably has been suffering from amnesia and did not remember.

Gobel said Lund sat up for five minutes and was aided during this time but did move her arms and legs on her own.

He said doctors now put her survival chances at better than 50-50, but he declined to speculate how much over this mark. A week ago doctors put her chances at less than 50-50.

"On Wednesday she shook her head 'No' when asked if she was bothered by the tube in her throat and if the incision in her chest was bothering her," Gobel said, explaining that she has been gradually coming out of the coma during the past couple of days.

"She is still very fatigued and spends much of her time sleeping, but she arouses quickly at the voice of her husband" and to that of the doctors.

Gobel said doctors are continuing their efforts to wean Lund from the respirator.

"She has been off for 15 minutes at a time, but she gets tired and is put back on," he said.

Shuttle Launch On Tap Monday

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — After a break for the holidays, space agency engineers are back at work readying the shuttle Columbia for its twice-delayed blastoff Monday to kick off the year's 15-launch shuttle schedule.

Columbia's seven-member crew, including Rep. Bill Nelson, D-Fla., was to fly to the Kennedy Space Center from Houston late today for the start of the countdown early Saturday and blastoff at 7:05 a.m. EST Monday. Landing is scheduled for early Jan. 11 back at the Florida spaceport.

Engineers also are preparing Challenger for blastoff Jan. 23 with New Hampshire school teacher Sharon Christa McAuliffe on board.

If all goes well, the second shuttle tracking and communications satellite will be loaded aboard Challenger Saturday. The ship's crew plans to participate in a practice countdown Tuesday to set the stage for blastoff.

Columbia, which has spent the past two years at the factory for major modifications, had been scheduled to take off Dec. 18 but unfinished work at the launch pad forced a 24-hour delay.

The shuttle's countdown on Dec. 19 stopped just 15 seconds before blastoff when ground computers detected high speeds in a turbine that provides hydraulic power for the shuttle's right-side solid rocket booster steering system.

Launch then was set for "no earlier" than Jan. 4 and it later was rescheduled for Jan. 6. The steering system problem was traced to a tiny electronic component that gave ground computers improper data.

The suspect steering system and its electronic control assembly were replaced and successfully tested before Christmas.

Prudential-Bache Is Censured Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Securities and Exchange Commission has censured Prudential-Bache Securities for securities violations in its Atlanta and Jacksonville, Fla., offices.

The SEC issued an order Thursday censuring Prudential-Bache for "deficiencies" in its supervisory procedures in the branches. Prudential-Bache of New York, one of the nation's largest brokerage firms, has been censured four times since 1982, an SEC spokesman said.

Prudential-Bache settled the charges without admitting or denying wrongdoing by agreeing to hire an independent consultant to review the procedures and recommend improvements.

The SEC charged that two brokers in the firm's Atlanta office during 1982 and 1983 misled customers about speculative stock in Crab House, a Miami seafood restaurant, and Capt. Crab, a Miami franchiser of fast food restaurants.

David Scharps, whose father was chairman, co-founder and president of Capt. Crab and Crab House, was one of the brokers.

According to the SEC, Scharps forecast without "any adequate basis" dramatic price increases for Capt. Crab stock, telling one customer during the summer of 1983, "I think this stock could double within a year."

A second broker, Robert Scarmazzo, also told customers that he had learned of corporate developments that would push the price of Capt. Crab stock "substantially higher," the SEC said.

The SEC said Prudential-Bache's division for overseeing compliance with securities laws earlier had recommended restrictions on the trading of Capt. Crab stock because of their salesman's relationship to the head of the firm.

But branch manager Richard Saccullo "repeatedly ignored the trading restrictions and sales of Capt. Crab and Crab House securities continued unimpeded," the SEC said.

Scharps, who no longer works for Prudential-Bache, is challenging the SEC's charges while Saccullo has agreed to settle the allegations by accepting a 45-day suspension and being barred from supervisory work for 18 months. No settlement has been reached with Scarmazzo, who also left the firm.

Telephone Outage Explained

A wet underground Southern Bell cable was responsible for the interruption of telephone services to 250-300 customers, including the police department, in Lake Mary Wednesday according to a Southern Bell spokesman.

The telephone outage was reported at about 7 a.m., and was restored to the area by 3:30 p.m. Southern Bell Operations Manager Bill Amidon said crews found the trouble spot in an underground cable at the intersection of Lake Mary Boulevard and Country Club Road.

All calls to the police department were routed through the Lake Mary fire department offices, and a dispatcher there used a radio to relay information to police headquarters.

The Seminole County Sheriff's Department was also notified of the situation, and if Lake Mary callers were unable to reach their police and called the Sheriff, they could also relay information to Lake Mary via radio.

Lake Mary police officials said they were able to receive calls at all times during the day, and no emergency situations occurred during the outage.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: A wet snowstorm that dropped as much as 12 inches of snow in Iowa and strafed the Plains with nearly 80-mph winds blew toward the Northeast today, while another blast of freezing rain and snow coated the Pacific Northwest. Warmer weather prevented a 40-mile ice jam clogging the Snake River along the Oregon-Idaho border from expanding, but water still washed across low-lying farms. About a dozen families have been forced from their homes by flooding. Snow and sleet fell today from the Dakotas and Minnesota to Michigan and Ohio as the storm that dumped a foot of snow on Iowa and a half foot in Wisconsin pushed east, prompting winter storm warnings in New York and New England. "We had numerous cars in the ditches, and roads were blocked," said a dispatcher with the Grundy County, Iowa, sheriff's department in Grundy Center, where about a foot of snow fell Thursday. "It came down extremely fast, and we had thunder and lightning during the snowstorm. I never saw anything like it before." Two deaths were blamed on the storm in Nebraska. A 36-year-old woman was killed when her car went out of control on icy Interstate 80 near North Platte, and a 69-year-old woman died when her car left the interstate in 50-mph wind gusts.

NRC Proposes Major Revisions In Nuclear Exposure Limits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is proposing the first major revision of its radiation exposure limits in nearly 30 years, saying it was time to incorporate improved knowledge about radiation's health effects.

The proposed changes, updating radiation protection standards first issued by the agency in 1957, would apply to nuclear power plants, nuclear fuel manufacturers and all other activities regulated by the NRC.

The proposals are geared mainly toward safeguarding nuclear industry workers by lowering exposure levels for some radioactive materials — such as uranium — in the workplace.

Exposure limits for the average American, however, would remain the same — roughly one-tenth of the allowable exposure for a nuclear industry worker. The revisions are subject to public comment until April 21.

Experts estimate the average American receives 100 millirems of radiation each year from naturally occurring elements, such as radon gas released from underground uranium deposits. The average dental X-ray equals about 10 millirems.

Search For Bodies Continues

TORONTO (UPI) — Canadian police plan another search for victims' remains at the site in Newfoundland where a chartered DC-8 crashed Dec. 12, killing 248 U.S. soldiers and eight crew members.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police Chief Superintendent Dale Henry said Thursday the U.S. Defense Department asked for the search because pathologists at Dover Air Force Base in Delaware had trouble identifying many of the soldiers killed.

Positive identification has been made on only 102 victims and "we're hoping this will assist," said Col. Gary Sorenson of the U.S. Army Military Personnel Center in Alexandria, Va.

The Arrow Air DC-8 slammed into the ground and exploded after takeoff from the airport at Gander, Newfoundland, where it had refueled. The 248 U.S. soldiers were on their way from peacekeeping duties in the Sinai Peninsula to Ft. Campbell, Ky., for Christmas.

Cabin Fire Caused Crash

DE KALB, Texas (UPI) — The ill-fated plane carrying singer Ricky Nelson and his entourage made a good emergency landing with a fire on board and came to a complete stop before flames consumed the craft, federal officials say.

Nelson, his fiance and five members of his band who died in the accident succumbed to smoke inhalation and burns, the Dallas County medical examiner's office said.

But, a spokesman said, "It is not known whether they died before or after the plane" touched ground.

The DC-3 was carrying Nelson and his band from Alabama to a New Year's Eve concert in Dallas Tuesday when the pilot radioed for help — saying that choking smoke was filling the cockpit — and put the craft down in rural east Texas.

Surveillance Of Store Results In Burglary Arrests

Two Sanford men were arrested after an officer on surveillance watched them enter a business and carry away several boxes of power-driven tools.

According to an Altamonte Springs police report, the manager of Scotty's, 1029 E. Altamonte Drive, told police the business was missing tools.

An officer was hiding near the business Wednesday at 10:47 p.m. when two men in a car with its headlights off drove past the store and parked on nearby Leonard Street.

The officer reported that the men walked back to the store, scaled the fence, and approached the building. They then went out of sight near the business' showroom area and reappeared 10 to 15 minutes later carrying several boxes each.

The men reportedly set the boxes near the fence, climbed the fence again and returned to the car. The car was then driven to the fence. One man hiked himself over the fence again and tossed the boxes, nine in all, to the other man.

They then got in the car and drove away but were stopped by officers around Leonard and Marker streets, according to the report. Nine boxes of power-driven tools were recovered.

Charged with burglary to an unoccupied commercial building were LeRoy Lee, 29, of 6 William Clark Court and Roger James Smith, 24, of 1210 W. 11th St.

Both men were being held Wednesday in the Seminole County jail in lieu of $1,000 bond each.

The pharmacist called other Eckerd Drug stores checking on the prescription then called the listed doctor who said he did not prescribe a refill for the cough syrup. The incident occurred New Years Day around 6:57 p.m.

An undercover officer was at the store when a man came in and purchased the prescription. The man was then placed under arrest for possession of Tusseno without a prescription.

Being held Thursday on $3,500 bond in the Seminole County jail was Edward Martin West, 38.

OWNERSHIP SPAT
Two men were arrested after they fought apparently over the ownership of a Longwood bar.

According to a Longwood police report, officers were dispatched to Javia Pub, 600 U.S. Highway 17-92, and found two men fighting. One of the men reportedly had hit his opponent and a third person with a bar stool prompting attention by paramedics. The officers reported that they were pushed and grabbed when the stopped the fight. Cause of the argument was reportedly over the bar's ownership. The incident occurred New Years Day at 7:51 p.m.

Charged with aggravated assault was Jose Javier Zudare, 36, of 4200 Orlando Dr., #17, Sanford. He was released Thursday on $5,000 bond. Arrested and charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest without violence was Gary Allen Ball, 25, of Orlando. He was being held Thursday in lieu of $5,000 bond.

THREATENED OFFICER
A Caselberry man was arrested after he refused to stop leaving an area on which he was accused of trespassing.

According to an Altamonte Springs police report, officers were called to Eastern Station, 1385 E. Altamonte Drive, in reference to a trespasser. The man reportedly was leaving the area and did not stop when ordered. After several such orders an officer physically stopped the man who then reportedly resisted and spit in the officer's face as they struggled on the ground. He then reportedly told the officer he would be killed for the way he was treating him. The incident occurred at 8:47 p.m. New Years Day, just hours before the suspect's birthday.

Arrested and charged with resisting arrest with violence, disorderly conduct and threats to corrupt a public servant was Otis J. Peterson, 22, of 325 Salina Drive. He was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond in the county jail.

HOOD COVER TAKEN
A Longwood man told a deputy that someone took a $70 bra off the front of his car.

John McGurr, 18, said the theft occurred between 3:15 and 4:45 p.m. New Years Day while his car was parked at Albertson's, State Road 434 and Montgomery Road. McGurr works at Albertson's.

A co-worker told McGurr he saw two men near his car before the theft discovery.

Bodies Recovered From Air Crash

PUNTA ARENAS, Chile (UPI)
Chilean air force officers recovered the bodies of eight American tourists killed when their chartered plane crashed into an Antarctic glacier and were flying them back to Chile, officials said.

The charter group's twin-engine Cessna Titan 404 lost height and plummeted into the ice Tuesday as the pilot prepared to land at a Chilean air force base on the South Shetland Islands at the northern tip of the Antarctic Peninsula. Chilean Air Force helicopters located the wreck of the 10-seater plane and confirmed there were no survivors. Officials said poor weather conditions were apparently responsible for the crash.

The eight tourists had planned to spend New Years Eve in the Antarctic. The owner of the Chilean charter firm Aeropretel, who was flying the plane, and his mechanic were also killed.

The Americans were identified as: Ben Callis, 34, of Key West, Fla., a travel agent and organizer of the excursion; Irving Lambrecht, a retired Californian from Los Angeles; Wayne Riddle, an engineer from Buchanan, Mich.; Tim Lang, a petroleum engineer from Carmichael, Calif.; James Jasper, a librarian from Oxnard, Calif.; Walter Michael, of Columbus, Ohio; James Howell, from Yellow Springs, Ohio; and Paul Cox, from Brooklyn, N.Y.

Michael, Howell and Cox all were university professors.

The Hercules was due back in Punta Arenas at midday today and scheduled to fly on to Santiago, 1,250 miles to the north. A U.S. Embassy officer had been sent to Punta Arenas to direct the recovery operation and arrange for the repatriation of the bodies.

The accident occurred Tuesday at 5 p.m. as the plane approached the Teniente Marsh Air Force Base after a four-hour flight across the icy waters of Drakes Passage from Punta Arenas.

"The plane climbed suddenly before landing, apparently to give the tourists a panoramic view, and then lost height, crashing into a glacier," a company spokesman said.

"Air force helicopters found the wreckage and confirmed the death of all aboard," he said.

"Weather conditions are very unpredictable on the Antarctic and must have been the cause of the accident," he said. The spokesman said the charter firm's owner, Ivan Martinez, 34, was an experienced pilot.

The 10-seat Cessna took off Tuesday at midday from Punta Arenas carrying the tourists who were to spend New Year's Eve on the icy continent.

The two-day excursions for groups of up to 10 people include lodging at the Chilean Air Force base, visits to penguin and sealion breeding pens and a view of Cape Horn, the southernmost point of the South American continent.

The twice-monthly flights, which are booked months in advance by groups of Americans and Canadians, occur during the Antarctic summer between November and March. The charter trip from Punta Arenas costs about $7,000 per group.

Aeropretel began flying tourists across to the Antarctic two years ago.

Rome Airport Workers Strike For Protection

By Charles Ridley
ROME (UPI) — Some 3,000 airport and airline workers brought Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport to a standstill for three hours Thursday as they walked off their jobs to demand greater protection against terrorist attacks.

The brief strike was the first concerted reaction by airport employees to the attack last Friday by four Palestinian extremists at the El Al Israel check-in counter at Leonardo da Vinci.

That attack and a coordinated one at Vienna airport's El Al counter 25 minutes later left a total of 119 people dead and more than 115 wounded.

The death toll in Rome's attack rose to 16 Thursday when a Greek woman, Efrosini Mediant, 56, died in a Rome hospital after being shot in the head and lapsing into a coma. Three people died in the Vienna attack.

Mohammed Sarham, 19, the only surviving terrorist in the Rome attack, underwent an operation for a bullet wound in the leg Thursday at the Cello military hospital, where he has been held since he was captured. Three of his compatriots were killed when security officers fired back.

Authorities have said the Palestinian attack teams were members of a Palestinian terror group headed by Abu Nidal, who once worked alongside Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat but later split with him, claiming Arafat was too moderate.

Some 3,000 airport and airline workers at Leonardo da Vinci walked off their jobs for three hours, forcing hundreds of passengers to wait for service. Most morning flights were delayed.

The strike and a meeting of the workers were called by the communist-dominated federation of Italy's three mainstream unions.

Several communist and socialist politicians attended the meeting, which ended with a unanimously approved motion calling for:

—Use of more airport renovation funds for security measures.

—Inclusion of union representatives on the airport's security committee.

—Tightening of controls of people entering airport buildings.

After Friday's attack, the government ordered metal detectors set up at the airport entrance doors.

Airport officials said Thursday they had received a favorable preliminary report from a delegation from the International Air Transportation Association, which found after a December inspection that the airport had "high standards of security."

In response to Israel's vow to avenge the attacks, Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy warned Israel and the United States against retaliating. Khadafy is believed to be supporting Nidal.

Kuwait on Thursday also warned the United States that any strike against Libya in revenge for the attacks would lead to "more destruction" and would not stop terrorism.

Crossing Guard Removed

A school crossing guard will be removed from an Oviedo intersection due to a study by the Seminole County Sheriff's Department.

A Sheriff's Department study of the school crossing at State Road 434 and Magnolia Avenue found that no students enroute to Lawton Elementary School were using the crossing. The department notified the school administration that the crossing guard will be removed as of January 6.

Lawton school Principal Michael Mizwicki was assured by the Sheriff's Department that if children move into the area and wish to walk to school, the crossing guard will return.

Notice of the guard removal was sent home with students on December 20, prior to the holiday break.

Court Defines Forcible Rape

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A woman who consents to sex but changes her mind during intercourse and is violently forced to continue cannot charge she was raped, the California Supreme Court ruled in a divided decision.

The state's highest court by a 4-3 vote let stand an appellate court interpretation of the rape law defining for the first time the legal limits of forcible rape. The appeals court exempted from forcible rape instances when a woman agrees to sex but objects in the midst of the act and is physically forced to continue.

Straitjacket Law Only Alternative

There was a noticeable lack of enthusiasm on Capitol Hill when Congress approved the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings budget-reduction plan. Nor was there much rejoicing at the White House when President Reagan signed the bill sans ceremony.

The somber moods at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue reflect the blunt truth that Congress and the president have been unable to contain a spiraling federal deficit that threatens this nation's prosperity and its security. Now, they will be compelled to make deep budget cuts because of a legislative directive born of desperation.

Simply stated, the controversial measure mandates a succession of $36 billion cuts in the deficit until the budget is balanced in 1991. The law binds Congress to a series of budget targets beginning with a $144 billion deficit ceiling in fiscal 1987.

By Aug. 20 of each year, the Office of Management and Budget and the Congressional Budget Office must jointly forecast whether the budget for the coming fiscal year will meet the targets. If Congress cannot agree on spending limits to achieve the deficit-reduction goals, the General Accounting Office must compile a list of across-the-board cuts. These must be split evenly between domestic and military programs in order to bring the budget into compliance with the target. That list then goes to the president who, except for limited discretion in defense and domestic items, must follow it exactly. Congress, meanwhile, has until Sept. 30 to reach the deficit target by enacting its own program of budget cuts, tax increases or a combination of both. Otherwise, across-the-board cuts commence Oct. 15.

This meat-ax method of reducing the deficit has been roundly criticized. But the critics offer no credible alternative. They still believe that Congress and the president will somehow find a way to bring federal spending under control. Recent history, of course, denies this possibility almost completely.

During the last four years, the federal deficit has risen from $78.9 billion to a staggering $211.9 billion. This despite a conservative president committed to fiscal restraint and a Congress supposedly concerned about the dangers of deficit spending.

These same lawmakers, however, recently approved a Labor Department appropriation that is 12 percent above the president's budget request. They authorized an Education Department appropriation that is 20 percent more than the president asked for. The farm bill is $2 billion over budget. And the $498 billion omnibus spending act is laden with pork-barrel projects. In fact, this is the same Congress that presided over an 11 percent increase in federal spending last year, despite a robust economic recovery and low inflation.

If Congress were serious about reducing the spiraling federal deficit, it would exercise some self-discipline and, moreover, give the president a line-item veto so he could make selective cuts. Instead, the lawmakers have given him a meat cleaver and limited discretion as to its use.

Notwithstanding its numerous faults, the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings formula forces Congress and the president to bring federal spending in line with revenues. The law has been likened to a straitjacket, inasmuch as it severely restricts the budget process during the next five years. Yet, such budgetary restrictions are clearly warranted, given the insane spending spree that have pushed this nation to the brink of a breakdown.

Free People Outnumbered But Gaining

A higher percentage of the world's people lived in freedom during 1985 than in any year since the start of the decade.

But before you get to feeling too good about that, listen to the rest of it: An even higher percentage of people were not free.

The information comes from Freedom House, the New York-based organization that charts freedom's gains and losses. It recently issued a report on the state of the world press during the past year that noted continuing restrictions on the free flow of information in much of the world and a significant increase in violence directed at journalists.

The follow-up survey of political liberties makes somewhat more encouraging reading. While free peoples remain in the minority, the worldwide trend is in their favor.

Specifically, Freedom House judged 36.27 percent of the world population to be free in 1985, up from 34.85 percent the previous year. The only point in the 14-year history of the survey that free peoples have scored higher was in 1980, with 37 percent. A few countries then rated free, according to Freedom House, subsequently slipped a bit.

But the free remain runners-up to the not free — 40.43 percent of the world in 1985. The remaining 23.29 percent were rated partly free.

In people terms, it works out to 1.75 billion living in 56 free countries and 32 related territories, 1.95 billion in 55 not-free countries and 2 territories, and 1.12 billion in 56 partly free nations and 19 territories.

Freedom House ranks countries on the basis of some two dozen criteria relating to political rights, civil liberties and popular participation in government.

Good news:

— Latin America in general. In 1985, democracy was further consolidated in Brazil. Elections strengthened the popular support of El Salvador's civilian president. Uruguay re-established civilian democratic government. Grenada held an election judged free and fair. And late in the year Guatemala elected a civilian government that, however, "must still walk a narrow path between chaos and a coup."

— Elsewhere, Pakistan went through with a long-promised parliamentary election. Bangladesh experimented with elected local government. Communist Hungary, judged partly free despite its Soviet satellite status, held parliamentary elections that allowed voters some choice.

Bad news:

— Most of Africa, where "the condition of freedom was regarded as unpromising as ever" in 1985. The only country rated truly free on the entire continent was Botswana, a black-ruled neighbor of partly free South Africa. In Zimbabwe, also in that neighborhood, elections that initially raised some hopes were followed by repressive measures against the losers. In Sierra Leone, an uncontested election strengthened military control. In Burkina Faso, labor unions were suppressed and news media turned into government mouthpieces.

— In an exception to the Latin American rule, Panama's elected president was dismissed by the military, and local Mexican elections were rigged to the advantage of the governing party.

— In Greece, the government took unfair advantage of news media under its control to ensure its own election victory.

So it went, a decidedly mixed picture. Or, as survey director Raymond D. Gastil observed in summary: "We must not forget that in spite of certain positive trends, most of the world continues to live in non-democracies, or what at best might be called semi-democracies. As more and more people realize, however, that they need not live under repression, maintaining repressive systems in many countries appears to require ever more violence."

It's difficult to say exactly what that last is — good news, more bad or some of both.

THONY HARRIGAN

Nation Is Optimistic For 1986

With a new year ahead, Americans are wondering what it will mean for them and for their country.

Perhaps the most encouraging thing is that there isn't much pessimism in the land, despite the existence of tremendous, basic problems. The mood of the country is generally upbeat. This is in pleasant contrast to a few years ago when recession gripped the United States. Many people then feared that the recession would deepen and become a Depression on the 1930's scale.

One of President Reagan's continuing contributions is his cheerful, optimistic spirit. He isn't one to be crushed by worry. His bright spirit seems to have carried over to the American people. While recognizing the many problems which exist, Americans seem convinced that they can manage them successfully.

A cheerful spirit counts for only so much, however. National problems have to be tackled in an intelligent, responsible way if they are to be solved. Unfortunately, the management of public business leaves much to be desired.

On the administration side, things are stable in the defense and foreign policy areas. The administration has stood firm on the Strategic Defense Initiative and on negotiations with the Soviets, though there have been the usual pressures to practice appeasement.

Management of domestic matters has been much less sure, however. The White House staff failed the President in pushing the spurious "tax reform" that was a design for recession in the year ahead.

The "tax reform" proposed by Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski would deindustrialize the United States by destroying incentives for investment in plant and equipment. The White House stand against needed restrictions on the flood of foreign imports also has been wrong-headed. The danger there is a trade-induced recession.

On the congressional side, there has been unfortunate weakness in the House of Representatives. The House has attempted to play a role in the conduct of foreign affairs which the Constitution doesn't envision. It also has been reluctant to come to grips with the necessity for the United States to live within its means. One hopes that the 1986 elections will increase the responsibility quotient in the House.

Agencies 'Bugging' The Great Outdoors

WASHINGTON — Is Smokey the Bear hiding a transmitter in his hat and using that famous shovel for an antenna?

Could be. Incredible as it seems, hikers, campers, climbers, anglers, hunters and other Americans who like to get away from it all in the National Park Service — those benign folks may not be getting away at all. No matter how remote the site, they may be well within range of federal employees using sophisticated surveillance systems.

In fact, according to a recent congressional study, some of the unlikeliest federal agencies are enthusiastic users of super-snooper devices. The National Park Service, National Forest Service, even the Fish and Wildlife Service, all make extensive use of electronic-surveillance technologies.

WASHINGTON WORLD

A Working Vacation

By Ira R. Allen

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — The desert valley where President Reagan escapes at the end of each year bears place names such as Palm Springs, Palm Desert, Rancho Mirage, Indian Wells and Cathedral City.

His residence is a walled estate owned by multimillionaire publisher Walter Annenberg, situated at the corner of Bob Hope and Frank Sinatra Drives, not far from the Eisenhower Medical Center and the Betty Ford center. It's not far, either, from Fred Waring Drive or Gene Autry Trail.

The social news, apart from the annual black-tie party for Reagan and his old business and new Cabinet buddies was the return for the holiday of Liberace, Macdonald Carey and Ginger Rogers.

Reagan uses his New Year's vacation to play golf on the Annenberg estate, which includes a nine-hole course, built after Annenberg could not get the tee-off time he sought at one of the dozens of country clubs in the valley.

The Annenberg's water bill for turning his 250 acres of desert lush green is reported to be in the neighborhood of $40,000 a month.

The neighborhood is light years away from the forgotten millions whose home is on a steam grate outside the White House, an inner city tenement without heat or an Iowa farm near foreclosure.

Let it not be said that Reagan was totally oblivious to others not so fortunate as he.

During his stay in the 28th-floor penthouse of the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles, far above the Iowa Rose Bowl boosters in the lobby, the president approved a decision in Washington overruling plans by the Health and Human Services Department to forcibly evict Washington's homeless from a shelter that he had promised to have fixed up for them just before last year's election.

And from his room, he phoned a national telethon and made an unspecified pledge of money to the United Negro College Fund.

He also taped a New Year's Day greeting to be broadcast in the Soviet Union moments after exhorting the Kremlin for barbarous acts in Afghanistan and on the same day a few hundred miles to the east a U.S. nuclear device was set off underground as part of "Star Wars" testing.

The contrasts go to the heart of administration policy in recent weeks on a variety of issues.

Take the terrorist attacks in Rome and Vienna. The administration favors restraint at the same time it is telling Israel to "go it 'ern."

Take the new antideficit measure he worked for in Congress. His Justice Department claims the key provision is unconstitutional, yet asks the Supreme Court not to hear the case.

Take affirmative action. A decision is looming on whether to gut the 1965 executive order that has required thousands of businesses to make an attempt to hire and promote blacks and women.

Physicians Require A Computer

By Al Rossiter, Jr.
UPI Science Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite the great variety of technological marvels available to doctors today, two researchers say there is one area in medical practice that hasn't changed in a century or more — the physician's record keeping.

Like the practitioner of the 1800s, the private doctor still records by hand, sometimes illegibly, his or her diagnosis and other pertinent observations during examination of a patient.

Drs. Daniel Essin and Stephen Steen of the University of Southern California Medical Center in Los Angeles said this traditional way of keeping records has several notable weaknesses.

They said in an editorial in the Archives of Internal Medicine, a journal published by the American Medical Association, that the failure or inability of doctors to organize increasingly complex data into a comprehensive plan of diagnosis and treatment "has undoubtedly resulted in suboptimal care."

And even if treatment is not affected, they said such handwritten and often incomplete records "can result in legal catastrophes."

Essin and Steen said it is the doctor's responsibility to prepare and maintain patient records, even if part of the task is delegated to others.

Yet, they said, "There is a common perception, reinforced daily by practicing physicians, that the mechanics of maintaining the medical record are beneath them and should be relegated to ancillary personnel or simply ignored."

As a result, Essin and Steen said, most developers of computer systems and medical programs are making few attempts to design systems to help doctors document their encounters with patients.

"Computer-aided data management has the potential to resolve the problems of legibility, completeness, retrievability and organization, all of which are so difficult to accomplish by hand," they said.

Doctors already use computers for administrative purposes such as billing, payroll and inventory control, but Essin and Steen said physicians have been reluctant to use computers for traditional record keeping.

shared by rangers many miles away without your knowledge.

The congressional Office of Technology Assessment did a study of federal agencies that have electronic-surveillance systems and found that their use has begun to encroach on citizens' privacy. Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wis., wants to bring legal protections into the high-tech age. Some of what the congressional investigators told him was puzzling. For example:

— The National Park Service — those benign folks who run the guided tours, answer your kids' questions and keep the traffic moving — use nine different electronic-surveillance technologies to keep track of who does what on the 79 million acres under its control, according to the OTA report. The devices included: radio scanners, miniature transmitters, night-vision systems, vehicle trackers, satellites and hidden sensors.

An official of the Rangers Activities Branch told our associate Donald Goldberg that many of the gizmos were used for building security and law enforcement functions. But he added candidly: "I can't imagine an application for some of these."

— The Fish and Wildlife Service, with more than 90 million acres to oversee, including wildlife refuges, fish hatcheries and research areas, uses or plans to use nine surveillance systems, and will probably add six more to its observation arsenal. The ones already in use include satellites, telephone taps, miniature transmitters and vehicle-tracking devices. Officials also want to use "pen registers," which monitor numbers called from targeted telephones, and voice-recognition apparatus. ("Hello, that you, Bamble?")

— The Forest Service favors eight snooping systems for its 229 million acres, including mail interception, telephone taps and closed-circuit television. Most are used for law enforcement, the service told congressional investigators. In addition, sensors are used to monitor forest land where "costs of physical protection are excessive."

— The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration uses six different electronic surveillance technologies, including the dial-reading pen registers, body wires and telephone taps.

— The Agriculture Department has other sub-agencies besides the Forest Service that use electronic surveillance systems. Its Inspector general uses nine technologies, including satellite interception, mail monitoring and the ever-popular telephone taps. The Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service, "in support of ongoing criminal investigations," uses nine techniques, including satellite interception, electronic mail monitors, pen registers and closed-circuit TV.

Veeck: Body Might Have Been Wreck But Mind Was Cadillac

bb-veeck 8:25 a.m.

bb-veeck 1st add 8:49 a.m.

That's how the wire service index read Thursday morning. The index is a long list of United Press International stories which can be used for the day. Yet, this first listing caught my attention more than any of the bowl games I would use Thursday.

Bill Veeck, former owner of the Chicago White Sox and Cleveland Indians, always caught one's attention. He was the Barnum Bailey of major league baseball.

Empty ballparks were his line of work. It would only take him a couple seasons of gimmickery — and once in a while a good team — to put people back in the seats. Those people were usually laughing and having a good time.

Veeck loved to talk baseball anytime of the day or night and he never forgot the importance of the fan in baseball, which made him loved by the everyday baseball observer, if not his fellow owners.

So when I first saw the wire index, I thought to myself, old Bill must be having troubles again. He's probably back in the hospital. That leg of his must be bothering him again. I hope it's the stub and not the good one.

Courage was another quality of Bill Veeck. He served with the U.S. Marines during World War II. During his tour, he was hit in the right leg with a recoiling artillery piece while on Bougainville, an island in the Southwest Pacific.

In 1946, the leg had gotten so bad, it was amputated. He was fitted for an artificial leg. When one undergoes this process, the stub has to be toughened up to "accept" the prosthesis. Veeck used to soak his stub two hours every morning just to be able to walk that day.

It was a handicap, all right, but not one that could keep baseball's best salesman down. One year, 1976, he celebrated the nation's 200th anniversary by pulling on a patch and playing a flute while marching around the field before Opening Day at Comiskey Park. Needless to say, that drew a crowd. It wasn't uncommon for him to jump behind a concession stand when sales were brisk. He was always pitching in.

Veeck would do anything to promote. His book about operating a major league team was entitled "Veeck. As In Wreck." Wreck is a good way to describe how he found the White Sox for the last time in 1975.

The previous ownership had run the club into hard times. The fans were coming dressed as empty seats. There was talk of moving the White Sox to Milwaukee or Seattle. Veeck would hear nothing of that. He mortgaged his savings and bought enough interest to run the show. He stocked the minor leagues. It was his idea to make Harold Baines the No. 1 pick a decade ago. Pretty wise choice. He rent-a-player method with Richie Zisk and Oscar Gamble produced 90 wins one year for the White Sox.

Yes sir, Bill Veeck saved the White Sox franchise for Chicago. He saved it by making baseball fun to watch. Promote, promote

Rumler Saves 41, But Irrepressible Lyman Wins 32nd

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

The way the balls kept coming at her, or whizzing by her, Seminole High goalkeeper Sherri Rumler must have felt like the main target in a shooting gallery Thursday night against Lyman High's Lady Greyhounds.

The relentless Lyman offensive attack pumped 57 shots at the Seminole goal of which Rumler saved an incredible 41. However, Rumler had little help from the Seminole defense, which was playing without most of its best people, and Lyman put 10 goals into the cage for a 10-0 victory in the quarterfinals of the Burger King Tournament at Lyman High.

Lyman, 8-0, advances to tonight's semifinals against Lake Mary's Lady Rams at Lake Mary High. While Lyman meets Lake Mary at 6, Lake Brantley and Vero Beach square off in the other semifinal at 8. All games tonight and Saturday will be played at Lake Mary High.

The victory was the 32nd in succession without a loss for the Lady Greyhounds, who were 24-0 en route to a state title last year and have won all eight this season.

Seminole has a shot of equalling its fifth place tournament finish of last year. The Lady Tribe opened the tournament with a 3-1 win over Winter Park early Thursday morning.

"Rumler always plays a real fine game and she was outstanding tonight," Lyman coach Tom Barnes said. "But our mid-fielders did an excellent job controlling the game. And we had eight different people score goals which was nice to see."

Of the 41 saves Rumler made, at least half of those were on good chances for the Lady Greyhounds. And the only thing Seminole had that even resembled offense was Rumler's long goal kicks.

"Sherri played a tremendous game," Seminole coach Suzy Reno said. "I can't say enough about her. Lyman might have scored 20 goals if we didn't have Sherri in there because our defense wasn't helping out very much."

Lyman, the defending tournament and state champions, first got on the board with less than a minute gone in the game when Kim Mitchell booted in a loose ball that the Seminole defense failed to clear.

The Lady Greyhounds made it 2-0 four minutes into the game when Alyson Barnes gathered in a loose ball, took two touches, and launched a nice shot over Rumler's head and into the box from about 20 yards out.

Soccer

Lyman ran its lead to 3-0 with still just seven minutes gone in the game. Sheila Mandy fired a shot on which Rumler made a nice diving save. The ball deflected out and, before Seminole's defense could clear it, Bonni Steeves controlled it for Lyman and lofted a shot over Rumler's head from 30 yards out.

Mandy made it 4-0 moments later when, after the ball deflected off a Seminole defender, she left-footed a nice shot over Rumler's head. Mandy scored again with 14 minutes left in the half when she got a rebound off the crossbar and put it in for a 5-0 lead.

Lori Ocasek closed out the scoring in the first half with 11:06 remaining when she put in a nice shot on an assist from Nancy VanVoorhis to make it 6-0.

Ocasek turned in an excellent performance Thursday as she continually beat the Seminole defense and set up scoring opportunities.

"She looked really good tonight," Barnes said of Ocasek. "She's a real skilled player and a real good athlete."

Mandy completed her hat trick three minutes into the second half when she scored on an assist from Dawn Boyesen to make it 7-0. Karen Abernethy got into the scoring column six minutes into the second half when she drilled a shot that went off a leaping Rumler's hands and into the goal.

Lyman then substituted the remainder of the half and its players off the bench did an outstanding job. The ninth goal of the game came with 8:04 remaining when Linda Schultheis kicked in a loose ball. The Lady Greyhounds made it an even 10-0 with 50 seconds left when Lisa Tooke headed the ball to Randi Huddleston who stuffed the ball into the cage.

While there were a multitude of goal scorers for the Lady Greyhounds, there were also some fine efforts by players who didn't score including dangerous Dawn Boyesen who set up a number of scoring chances and Diana Boyesen and VanVoorhis who helped control midfield.

Another player who had an outstanding game was Laura Russell, a fleet-footed player who moves as fast dribbling the ball as many players run flat out. Russell's all-around hustle put

Broen, DelRusso Display Different Skills While Leading Wins

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

Lake Mary's Kelley Broen and Lake Brantley's Julie DelRusso are two of the most dangerous offensive players around. Thursday night, Broen showed that a player can be a threat without scoring while DelRusso showed she can be a threat whenever she touches the ball.

Broen, a junior, assisted on Lake Mary's first two goals and the Lady Rams never looked back en route to a 5-0 victory over Lake Howell. DelRusso, only a sophomore, poured in three goals before exiting early in the second half in Brantley's 6-1 victory over Plantation at Lake Mary High.

The victories earned the two Seminole County powers berths in the Burger King Tournament semifinals. Lake Mary tangles with tourney favorite Lyman tonight at 6 while Brantley meets Vero Beach at 8.

While Broen contributed a pair of assists, Lake Mary got goals from five different players.

"I liked the balance in our scoring game," Lake Mary coach Bill Eissele said. "And we were much stronger at midfield which helped us control the game. For us to play well against Lyman, we have to be aggressive at midfield."

Lake Mary took a 1-0 lead over Lake Howell with 13:14 gone in the game when Brooke Taylor scored on an assist from Broen. The Lady Rams made it 2-0 with 15 minutes left in the opening half when Leslie Hobek scored on Broen's second assist. It was the first goal of the season for Hobek who last year was the goalkeeper at Lake Brantley High.

"Leslie (Hobek) is a very versatile player," Eissele said. "She can play anywhere and does a good job wherever I put her."

The Lady Rams ran their lead to 3-0 early in the second half on a goal by Kristen Jones. Donna Rohr made it 4-0 midway through the second half when she scored on a penalty kick and Vickie Warner became the fifth Lake Mary player to score when she put in an unassisted goal with 16 minutes left to play to make the final 5-0.

Lake Mary's dominance at midfield was reflected in the shots on goal where the Lady Rams took 25 compared to Lake Howell's nine. Lake Mary goalkeeper Laura Hellegaard had

Dolphins Vow Not To Look Past Cleveland

MIAMI (UPI) — The Cleveland Browns go into the playoff season hoping to revive a dormant team tradition that the Miami Dolphins currently have a lock on.

The tradition is winning, and no one has done it better than Miami coach Don Shula and the Dolphins since Shula arrived in 1970. The Dolphins have appeared in five Super Bowls, winning two, and have had the best record in the AFC East the past five years.

Miami is 168-63-2 under Shula, and that record is one reason why the Browns are 10 1/2-point underdogs to the Dolphins in Saturday's 12:30 p.m. EST contest on Orlando's WESH-2. The Dolphins are 8-0 at home this season.

The Browns had a great winning tradition in the 1950s and 1960s, but fell on hard times in the 1970s. They have lost all four playoff appearances since 1970, including a 20-14 loss in the playoffs to the 17-0 Dolphins in 1972.

"Right now we are striving to establish a tradition of winning," said Cleveland coach Marty Schottenheimer, who guided the Browns to an 8-8 record and AFC Central championship in his first full year as head coach. "Winning breeds winning and that's the advantage the Dolphins have in they have a tradition of winning."

The Dolphins, 12-4, closed out the regular season with a seven-game winning streak after struggling to a 5-4 record in the first nine games. Being in the playoffs is nothing new for Miami, but there is a twist this year.

Because of the Browns' record, most Miamians are talking of a Dolphin-Los Angeles Raider matchup for the AFC championship game. The Dolphins say there is no way they will look past Cleveland.

"We certainly need this one bad," said All-Pro guard Roy Foster. "Cleveland's not an 8-8 team. I think it's going to be a tough ball game ... You can't look past anybody these days."

Shula said the Dolphins can't afford to look past the Browns.

"Now you get into a higher level of competition," he said. "Week in and week out, it's sudden death."

Both teams have record setters in the offensive backfield. Miami quarterback Dan Marino passed for 4,137 yards and 30 touchdowns, while Cleveland running backs Kevin Mack and Earnest Byner became only the third duo to rush for more than 1,000 yards each in one season. Cleveland quarterback Bernie Kosar completed 124-of-248 for 1,578 yards, eight touchdowns and seven interceptions.

Sooners Are No. 1

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University of Oklahoma, fulfilling its role as preseason favorite, was named college football's national champion Thursday by the UPI Board of Coaches.

It marked the fifth time since the UPI ratings were started in 1950 that Oklahoma has been crowned national champion. The Sooners previously won in 1950, 1955, 1956 and 1975. Only Southern California, which also has five national titles, has won as many titles.

The 11-1 Sooners, rated No. 1 in the preseason, were ranked No. 2 before they ripped previously top-ranked and unbeaten Penn State 25-10 in Wednesday's Orange Bowl.

Oklahoma was the only New Year's Day victor among the nation's top four rated teams, as Iowa and Miami (Fla.), the leading challengers, were soundly defeated in their bowl games.

Big Ten champion Iowa entered the Rose Bowl ranked No. 3 but was downed by UCLA 45-28. Miami (Fla.), which was ranked No. 4, was drubbed by Tennessee 35-7 in the Sugar Bowl.

That left Oklahoma as the obvious champion. The Sooners received 40 first-place votes and 614 points from the 41 coaches who participated in the final balloting.

"I'm fortunate to coach at a school that can attract the good players that allow you the opportunity to win conference championships and national championships," Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer said. "There are a lot of good football coaches who don't ever have that opportunity. There are only a few schools in the country that ever have that opportunity."

Switzer was the only coach who prevented his team from being a unanimous No. 1 choice. He gave his first-place vote to Fresno State, the nation's only undefeated major college team. Switzer's vote helped Fresno State balloting.

Switzer also voted Fresno State (11-0-1) the No. 1 team in the last regular season ratings.

"They are the only unbeaten team in the country," he said.

Each week, the coaches vote for the top 15 teams, with 15 points going to a coach's first-place selection, 14 for his second choice, etc.

Michigan, 10-1-1, moved from No. 5 to No. 2 after rallying past Nebraska 27-23 in the Fiesta Bowl on New Year's Day. Penn State, 11-1, finished No. 3.

"It was a good season for us, we just happened to lose to a great team (Wednesday) night, and we're glad that they finished No. 1," a Penn State spokesman said. "We can say that our only loss of the season was to the national champion."

The most dramatic climbs in the final ratings were made by Tennessee, UCLA and Texas A&M. Tennessee, 9-1-2, moved up four places to No. 4 after its thrashing of Miami; UCLA, 9-2-1, jumped seven places to No. 6 following its humbling of Iowa, and Texas A&M, 10-2, advanced four places to No. 7 after whipping Auburn 36-16 in the Cotton Bowl.

Air Force, 12-1, also advanced, moving up two places to No. 5 following a 24-16 triumph over Texas in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Miami, Iowa and Nebraska all fell off considerably in the final ratings after their bowl setbacks. Miami, 10-2, dropped four places to No. 8; Iowa, 10-2, fell six places to No. 9, and Nebraska, 9-3, dropped four places to No. 10.

Ohio State, 9-3, made the biggest climb among the second 10, advancing from No. 17 to No. 11 following its 10-7 triumph over Brigham Young in the Florida Citrus Bowl.

Quarterback
Bernie Kosar has struggled through his rookie season, while Dan Marino became only the second quarterback with back-to-back seasons with more than 4,000 yards passing by throwing for 4,137 in 1985. Marino closed out the season on a strong note and will be the starting AFC quarterback in the Pro Bowl. Kosar does not throw many interceptions, 7 in 248 attempts, but his fumbles have hurt the Browns.
Key stat: Marino threw 30 touchdown passes to Kosar's 8.
Edge — Dolphins

Running backs
Cleveland's Kevin Mack and Earnest Byner are only third tandem in history to each go over 1,000 yards rushing in a season, while Tony Nathan is Dolphins' leading rusher with 647 yards. Nathan was the Dolphins' leading receiver with 72 catches, many on third down, while Byner was Cleveland's second leading receiver and Mack was fourth in receptions. Cleveland's newly-acquired Curtis Dickey is expected to play a lot against the Dolphins. Miami rookie fullback Ron Davenport had 11 rushing touchdowns. Mack or Byner must have a big day for Browns to have a chance to win.
Key stat: Other than Mack and Byner, Cleveland running backs had 65 yards rushing in 1985.
Edge — Browns

Wide receivers
Dolphins may have best receiving corps in league. Mark Duper (35 catches for 450 yards) and Mark Clayton (70 catches for 996 yards) are deep threats, while Nat Moore (51 catches for 701 yards) is a clutch performer. Browns are weak at wide receiver, Brian Brennan is leading receiver with 32 catches for 487 yards, but is a possession-type receiver. Deep threats are Fred Banks (13 catches for 111 yards) and Clarence Weathers (16 for 449).
Key stat: Dolphins are 8-1 with Duper, who missed seven games with an injury, in the starting lineup.
Edge — Dolphins

Tight ends
Cleveland's Ozzie Newsome (62 catches for 711 yards) will be in the Pro Bowl, but the Dolphins' three tight ends — Joe Rose, Bruce Hardy and Dan Johnson — have caught 71 passes for 907 yards and 11 touchdowns. Browns will bring Harry Holt off injured reserve for the game. Because of the Browns' poor receiving corps, defenses have been able to key on Newsome, who is not the deep threat he once was but still has great hands. Miami's Rose is averaging 16.1 yards per catch.
Key stat: Newsome has caught a pass in 98 straight regular season games, 100 including playoffs.
Edge — Even

Offensive line
Dolphins have two All Pros in center Dwight Stephenson and guard Roy Foster, and are the best pass-blocking line in the league. Browns are a good run-blocking line, but injuries and inconsistency have hampered them. LT Paul Farren will miss the game because of an injury.
Key stat: Dolphins allowed 19 sacks, Browns 36.
Edge — Dolphins

Defensive line
Both teams play a 3-4 and success depends on nose tackles. Pro Bowler Bob Golic of Browns is one of the best, but Miami's Mike Charles has played good football in the Dolphins' seven-game winning streak and is team's leading sacker with 7. Miami DE's Doug Betters and Kim Bokamper were bothered by injuries during the year, but are healthy now, while Carl Hairston and Reggie Camp are the Browns' starting ends. Neither team has a good pass rush.
Key stat: Browns' front three has 18.5 sacks, while Dolphins' have 16.
Edge — Browns

Linebackers
Cleveland has one of the best linebacking corps in league, and OLB Chip Banks (25 tackles, 11 sacks) made the Pro Bowl. Cleveland's other OLB, Clay Matthews, was bothered by injuries, but should be ready for the game. ILBs Tom Cousineau and Eddie Johnson are solid performers. Miami linebackers have improved. Hugh Green is fitting into the defensive scheme and is one of the best. Miami's other OLB, Bob Brudzinski, has been weak against the run, while ILBs Mark Brown and Jay Brophy have improved.
Key stat: Banks and Matthews have 18 sacks between them, compared to 8 for Brudzinski and Green.
Edge — Browns

Quarterback
Both teams have problems here. Dallas' Danny White has had injuries to his ribs, hand, chest, neck, ankle, head, back and now has a bruised left shoulder. Still, the Cowboys led the NFC in passing yardage and White ranked fourth in conference in passing. Rams quarterback Dieter Brock has good numbers (39.7 completion percentage) but throws no high-risk passes. He finished third in NFC in passing rating but Los Angeles is the NFL's least productive passing team.
Key stat: Brock has been sacked 31 times in 416 passing downs. White, with 44 more pass plays, has been sacked 21 fewer times.
Edge — Cowboys

Running backs
Tony Dorsett and Eric Dickerson are both gliding running backs who rarely take clean shots. They had similar years: Dallas' Dorsett carried 305 times for 1,307 yards (4.3 per) and Dickerson ran 292 times for 1,234 yards (4.2). Dickerson scored 12 TDs compared to Dorsett's 7, but Dorsett had 48 catches to Dickerson's 20. Rams use one-back, Dallas plays FB Timmy Newsome mostly as blocker and receiver (48 catches).
Key stat: Rams have gotten combined 1,924 yards on 449 carries from Dickerson, Barry Redden and Charles White.
Edge — Rams

Wide receivers
Cowboys have more balance here with Mike Renfro and Karl Pove coming on strong late in season to join dangerous Tony Hill. Hill led team with 74 catches for 1,113 yards and 7 TDs. Renfro had best of eight pro seasons with 60 catches worth 953 yards & 8 TDs. Henry Ellard has 34 catches for 811 yards for the Rams, but next highest wide receiver is Bobby Duckworth with 23 catches.
Key stat: Renfro and Hill's 13 total receiving TDs are one less than entire Rams' team.
Edge — Cowboys

Tight end
Pro Bowler Doug Coakley's 64 catches give the Cowboys three receivers with 60 or more. They never had more than one before. Coakley had 4 TDs. Los Angeles' Tony Hill caught 30 passes for 562 yards and 4 TDs and Drew Hill added 29.
Key stat: Coakley broke Cowboys' tight end receiving record for third straight year.
Edge — Cowboys

Offensive line
Rams have four interior linemen in Pro Bowl, counting injured center Doug Smith. Guards Dennis Harrah and Kent Hill and tackle Jackie Slater are the other Pro Bowlers. Irv Pankey starts at left tackle of veteran unit and second-year man Tony Slaton replaces Smith. Despite reputation of "America's Team" Cowboys start unknown bunch of tackles Jim Cooper and Chris Schultz, guards Kurt Petersen and Glen Tilenor and center Tom Rafterly on offensive line.
Key stat: Rafterly will play in 16th game and has not missed a game in his 10-year career.
Edge — Rams

Defensive line
The Cowboys set a club record with 42 sacks, led by Ed "Too" Tall Jones with a career high 13. Jones also batted down seven passes. Jim Jeffcoat added 12 sacks and All Pro Randy White 10 1/2. End Doug Reed was Rams' most productive defensive lineman, with Gary Jeter coming in on passing downs to register 11 sacks. Nose tackle Charles DeJurnett sees the most playing time in his 10-year NFL career.
Key stat: Cowboys' linemen have 43 1/2 sacks compared to Rams' 30.
Edge — Cowboys

Linebackers
Rams have solid but unpublicized group here. Jim Collins is one of better inside linebackers and Carl Ekern is steady against run. Outside linebackers Mike Wilcher and Mel Owens have 12 1/2 and 9 sacks, respectively, and Wilcher has become one of NFL's best outside linebackers in first full year as starter. Dallas linebackers are weak link of defense. MLB Eugene Lockhart leads team with 126 tackles and four fumble recoveries but OLBs Mike Hegman and Jeff Rohrer have struggled.

Up-And-Down Cowboys Have Laundry Perplexed

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Tom Landry has been coaching the Dallas Cowboys for 26 years but each time he took the field this season was like a new experience.

Landry doesn't know what to expect from his up-and-down Cowboys. Nobody knows what to make of a team that finished 10-6 and won the NFC East but lost to Chicago 44-0 and Cincinnati 50-24.

"When you show up, it is kind of interesting to see what happens," Landry said. "That should be more so Saturday in the NFC semifinal playoff game against the Los Angeles Rams because the Rams also have a split personality. The Rams, 11-5, are the NFC West champs but suffered one-sided losses to lowly Atlanta and New Orleans."

"It's a new season," Rams cornerback LeRoy Irvin said. "We had a preseason, a regular season and now it's the postseason. I'll bet the Cowboys don't even think about those games (against the Bears and Bengals)."

"It's going to be a real brawl." The Cowboys and Rams have split eight playoff meetings — the most between any two NFL teams — and there are plenty of similarities between the current editions.

Both began the season underdogs to win their divisions.

NFC Playoffs

have problems at quarterback and running backs who can explode any time.

Landry drew heat in Dallas this week by saying the Cowboys' reached their goal by winning the NFC East. But at the start of the season, many thought Dallas would finish behind Washington, St. Louis and the New York Giants. The Rams had to knock off the defending Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers to win the NFC West.

Of course, the teams' goals have been raised. "I honestly believe that we have as good a chance as anyone in the playoffs," Dallas defensive tackle Randy White said. "There isn't a team that we can't beat, even the Bears. Without a doubt, we can beat the Bears."

The Rams have the NFL's least productive passing game although Dieter Brock ranked third in the NFC in passing. Dallas' passing problem is from injury rather than production. Danny White, who has had an assortment of injuries this season, enters the game with a bruised left shoulder.

Running backs Tony Dorsett of Dallas and the Eric Dickerson of the Rams had training camp contract problems and each has had better seasons in the past. But they remain among the league's top backs.

Dorsett, who had to renegotiate his contract because of tax problems, was fourth in the NFC with 1,307 yards on 306 carries. He is 231 yards shy of Franco Harris' playoff rushing record of 1,556 yards.

Dickerson, who held out to renegotiate after setting an NFL rushing record with 2,105 yards last year, gained 1,234 yards on 292 carries and scored 12 times. The Cowboys and Rams are coming off season-ending losses. Dallas was beaten 31-16 by San Francisco, and the Rams dropped a 16-6 Monday night decision to the Raiders.

"I think we're very eager for the Dallas game," Rams coach John Robinson said. "I think the rest (a week off) has been pretty good. Everybody's excited and rested, and ready to play. Of course, Dallas is in the same situation."

Using past games between the teams as an indication, the home field won't help the Rams much. Dallas is 2-0 in playoff games in Los Angeles. The Rams have won two of the last three playoff meetings with the Cowboys and three of the last four in Dallas.

The winner meets the winner of Sunday's game between Chicago and the New York Giants Jan. 12 in the conference championship game.

Tippett Is AFC's Top Defender

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Andre Tippett, leader of the New England Patriots' linebacking corps and the AFC's sack champion, is UPI's Defensive Player of the Year in the AFC.

Tippett, a fourth-year pro, had 16 1/2 sacks during the regular season plus an important one last Saturday: Tippett's tackle of the New York Jets' Ken O'Brien forced the quarterback out of the AFC wildcard game.

The 6-foot-3, 241-pound Tippett said he has attempted to emulate the New York Giants' Lawrence Taylor, who for several years has been regarded as the best linebacker in pro football.

"When I came into the league, I wanted to play the same style as Taylor," said Tippett, a 1982 second-round pick out of Iowa. "I saw in him what I wanted of myself as a pro — a player who combined size and speed and had a quick burst to the ball."

"I think I've developed my game to that level now," said the outside linebacker, who plays left defensive end when the Patriots use a four-man front.

Patriots defensive coordinator

Rod Rust said Tippett "has the size and quickness to be a great pass rusher and the speed and understanding to drop back and cover people in the open field. Tip's in exactly the right spot for him."

In balloting by sportswriters, Tippett narrowly edged defensive end Howie Long of the Los Angeles Raiders as the top defensive player in the conference.

Tippett, with fellow linebackers Don Blackmon and Steve Nelson, helped make New England's defense the third best in the AFC.

Some spark into what was otherwise a lopsided affair.

"Laura (Russell) has filled a vacancy at outside defender that we were worried about," Barnes said. "We're not worried anymore."

One player who was in for all 80 minutes of play but who saw little action was goalkeeper Lisa Chatman. Chatman touched the ball three times, all three coming on playbacks by Lyman players. Seminole did not have a shot on goal and rarely had the ball on Lyman's half of the field.

Although Lyman completely shut down Seminole, the Lady Tribe did have some offensive success earlier Thursday when they beat Winter Park, 3-1.

Winter Park got on the board first when Julie Peters scored 16 minutes into the game. Seminole came back to make it 1-1 before halftime when Christy Gonzales scored.

The score remained tied until midway through the second half when freshman Melissa Shuckman scored her first goal for the Lady Seminoles. Shuckman's goal, which was assisted by Rachelle Denmark, couldn't have come at a better time and it turned out to be the winning goal.

Seminole sewed up the win with 8-45 left to play when Vicki "Spuffy" Pakovic scored on a breakaway.

Rumler had another fine effort in the goal with 21 saves while Reno said Cindy Bengé, Angela Freeman and Jennifer Roberts turned in fine defensive efforts. Reno also said the midfield play of Jennifer Page and Shawna Cole was a key to the Seminole win.

"I was very pleased with the way the girls played against Winter Park," Reno said. "We

'(Sherri) Rumler always plays a real fine game and she was outstanding tonight.'

needed that win to stay in the tournament. I knew we couldn't beat Lyman because we had three big injuries and were playing five girls who had never played before."

In other games Thursday at Lyman, Vero Beach advanced to the semifinals with a hard fought 1-0 victory over Gainesville Buchholz. Buchholz was runner-up to Lyman in last year's tournament.

"That was a very rough game," Reno, who stayed for the last match, said. "There was a lot of bumping and pushing. And Vero's goal was kind of a fluke goal."

In a losers' bracket game, Winter Park rebounded from its loss to Seminole with a 3-2 victory over Bishop Moore that went to penalty kicks. It was the second loss of the day for Bishop Moore and both games went to penalty kicks. The Lady Hornets dropped a 3-2 shootout to Vero Beach Thursday morning.

five saves of which Eissele said a couple were on breakaway chances by Lake Howell.

Lake Howell had an excellent chance to score when it had a penalty kick but the kick hit the crossbar and was no good. Lake Howell goalkeeper Darcy Mistak turned in a strong game with 17 saves.

LADY PATRIOTS ROMP

Before Plantation knew what hit them, DelRusso scored just 31 seconds into the game off the opening kickoff.

"It was straight off the kickoff," DelRusso said. "I got into the open and got a good pass from Jennifer Josephs. That's the fastest goal I've ever scored."

The Lady Patriots couldn't add to their 1-0 lead as they had a number of near misses the rest of the first half. Lake Brantley though came out sizzling in the second half with four goals in the first 10 minutes.

Cara Marien got the second half off to a good start when she scored two minutes into the half on an assist from Colleen Lievertz for a 2-0 lead. Less than two minutes later, DelRusso fired a shot that deflected off the Plantation keeper and Kristin Paine knocked in the rebound for a 3-0 lead.

DelRusso then scored two goals in less than one minute to put the icing on the cake for the Lady Patriots. The first goal came on a breakaway when DelRusso waited for the keeper to commit herself, then zipped a left-footed shot inside the far post to make it 4-0. DelRusso completed her hat trick 53 seconds later when she made some nice moves in traffic and kicked the ball past the keeper for a 5-0 lead.

Plantation broke the shutout with 24:31 left to play when Charity Uman knocked in a loose ball. Lievertz got the goal back for Brantley with 18:48 remaining when she stuffed in a loose ball to make the final, 6-1.

While Brantley's offense dominated the game, the defense turned away Plantation just about every time it got something going. Pam Anderson, Reenie Deaver and Shannon Anderson, led the defensive charges for Brantley.

DelRusso, a transfer from New Mexico, said the passing game was the key to the offensive attack.

"Coach (Larry Kaskey) told us if we make good passes and keep calm we have a good chance to win," the articulate sophomore said. "If we can win our next one (against Vero Beach) we want another shot at Lyman. Lyman beat us 3-0 the last time, but didn't score on us the second half. If we can hold them like that again, I think we have a chance."

In one other game Thursday at Lake Mary High, Plantation upended Oviedo's Lady Lions, 2-1. In the morning session, Jenny Smith scored both goals for Plantation with both assists going to Maria Robles. Kelly Price scored for Oviedo.

led by Pro Bowlers Chip Banks at linebacker and Bob Golic at nose tackle. The Browns suffered through a late-season slump and finished ranked ninth defensively in the NFL, and allowed the eighth-fewest points in the league.

"We've just not performed the way we're capable of in the past few weeks," Schottenheimer said of his defense.

"They're both outstanding players," Schottenheimer said of the "Marks Brothers." "We need to do the things that we do best. You can't change your approach to a football game in a week or two. So we're not going to change anything."

The Browns will try to take advantage of a Miami defense ranked 23rd against the rush. Dolphin linebacker Jay Brophy

Miami wide receivers Mark Clayton and Mark Duper — nicknamed the "Marks Brothers" — had their picture taken with a white Porsche with the Miami skyline in the background.

Duper, who missed seven games with an injury, caught 35 passes for 650 yards, while Clayton caught 70 balls for 996 yards. The Browns like to play a lot of man-to-man coverage, and Schottenheimer said that won't change for Duper and Clayton.

"They're both outstanding players," Schottenheimer said of the "Marks Brothers." "We need to do the things that we do best. You can't change your approach to a football game in a week or two. So we're not going to change anything."

The Browns will try to take advantage of a Miami defense ranked 23rd against the rush. Dolphin linebacker Jay Brophy said Mack and Byner are the best running back tandem he's faced this year.

"They're the best we've faced all year," said Brophy, a teammate of Kosar at Miami and a native of Akron, Ohio. "They block well, they run well, and they make a lot of yards after they're hit."

Both teams have four players in the Pro Bowl. For the Dolphins, Marino, Foster, Clayton and center Dwight Stephenson will play, while the Browns placed Banks, Golic, tight end Ozzie Newsome (62 catches for 711 yards) and Mack.

The attitude of the teams on the playoffs varies slightly, with the Dolphins out to avenge last year's 38-16 Super Bowl loss to San Francisco and the Browns trying to prove they belong with an 8-8 record.

"It's a great feeling because we worked very hard to get where we're at today," said Cleveland's Rogers. "A lot of the critics said we weren't capable of beating out the Bengals, Steelers and Oilers — and we did it by a full game, no tiebreakers."

"Making the playoffs by winning out division championship is very gratifying," said Kosar, making his first professional appearance in the Orange Bowl where he played for the University of Miami.

Miami strong safety Glenn Blackwood missed practice Wednesday with an ankle injury and is listed as questionable for the Dolphins playoff game with Cleveland.

Blackwood has not practiced since spraining his ankle in the Dolphins' final regular season game, a 28-0 win over Buffalo. If Blackwood cannot play, Mike Kozlowski, who will be activated before the Cleveland game Saturday, will step in.

No Sell-Out, No TV

MIAMI (UPI) — The Miami Dolphins' AFC playoff game against the Cleveland Browns will not be televised locally because the game was not a sell-out 72 hours before the kickoff. It was announced Wednesday.

As of 4 p.m. EST Wednesday, there were about 2,000 tickets remaining for the divisional playoff game, which will kick off at 12:30 p.m. EST Saturday. The AFC East champion Dolphins, 12-4, are 10 1/2-point favorites over AFC Central champion Cleveland, 8-8.

Only one playoff game this weekend, the New York Giants at Chicago, is a sell-out thus far.

Hair Loss Cause Best Determined By Doctor

DEAR DR. GOTT — What would cause the hair on my head to start falling out? It comes out mostly by the ears and bottom half of the skull. The hairdresser called them "resting hairs." Could this be caused by poor circulation or injury? I'm 36, have no allergies, and have had a perfect blood workup. I did hurt my neck two months ago, but went for treatments.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Most types of hair loss are hereditary; some are caused by a condition called alopecia; others are due to infection, nutritional deficiency or certain underlying diseases. I doubt that circulatory problems or injury would be factors in a person 36 years old. If I were you, I'd see a dermatologist. Resting hairs or not, you may be developing a long-term problem.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My sister has Parkinson's disease and takes Sinemet, three-and-a-half tablets daily. Every morning her toes are all curled up. She can't walk, and it takes at least two hours before they get loose. Do you think Sinemet has something to do with this problem?

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is oral sex considered abnormal? I haven't been around, but my boyfriend wants to make a lifetime commitment, and oral sex is something he says he likes.

DEAR READER — The answer to the question of what is (or what isn't) normal sex depends on who's asking and who's answering. In my view, sexual preferences are private matters with a high degree of individual variation. I'll try to be as objective as possible in answering your specific question.

Most authorities acknowledge a normal spectrum of sexual activity between consenting adults. Oral sex is included in that spectrum. There is nothing physically harmful about oral sex, except that all venereal diseases can be spread through this kind of contact. Many people find it distasteful and their preferences must be honored by considerate partners. However, it is a valid method of sexual expression and, in the present climate of the 20th century, is considered normal, provided there is no exploitation on the part of one participant. I think it's fair to say that it is the motivation for a particular form of sexual activity that is normal or abnormal, not the act itself. I think the best approach in

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Here is a theme similar to one presented in this column three days ago. This time South is declarer in six spades — a reasonable contract. The slam seems to depend upon the favorable location of the heart king, but once again declarer can play the hand in such a way as to give himself extra chances. How is that done?

Declarer sets the stage by winning dummy's king of diamonds, drawing trumps, then playing ace of diamonds and ruffing his last diamond. He then plays king and ace of clubs and ruffs dummy's last club. Now South will lead the two of hearts from his hand. If West follows with the five, declarer can play low from dummy, knowing that East must win the trick and be end played. West, who should not be so obliging, will surely play the eight or nine. In that event declarer should not take the finesse. Instead, he should go up with dummy's ace, return to his hand with a trump and now lead a second heart toward dummy's queen. When West plays low, East wins dummy's queen with the king but now has nothing to lead but a minor suit, and a ruff and sluff for declarer brings 12 tricks.

The play principle was the finesse, but a little additional know-how and execution brought home the slam even though the heart king was in the wrong place.

Gardening

Wait Until Springtime To Assess Plant Damage

What can you do to help your plants recover from the freeze damage? This question is on the minds of all home gardeners. As you can tell just by looking, last week's freeze left many plants damaged.

One of the first things you may think of is taking out the pruning shears and cutting out the dead or dying leaves and branches. Don't be in a big hurry, pruning right now isn't a good idea. With many of our ornamental plants, you can't tell how much damage has been done until the plant starts new growth in the spring.

With some of the more tender landscape plants, you'll find that the cold has killed everything above the soil line. But, many of these plants may surprise you by sending up new shoots come springtime. Don't give up on them until warm weather arrives.

The freeze damaged some of the flower buds and stems of azaleas. You'll notice the bud damage for sure at blooming time when your plant produces few or no flowers. The stem damage will usually show up later in the spring and early summer when some of the branches will die.

On most of your ornamentals and home citrus trees, dead wood will be easily distinguishable from live wood when new growth begins in the spring. This will be the time to bring out the pruning shears and cut dead branches as you find them. Don't be in a big hurry, though. It may take longer this spring for new growth to appear.

When you do prune, make clean cuts back to living wood.

Alfred Bosseson
Urban Horticulturist

This means the cut should have a smooth surface, not a rough one that looks as if the tissue has been torn or pulled off. Care should be taken not to injure the plant around the cut, or rip or tear the bark above or below the cut. The layer of cells just below the bark, which is important in wound healing, is easily injured. Do not twist or turn the shears as you cut because you will injure the plant as well as your shears.

If your citrus trees are showing damage, it would be better to wait—there is no hurry to get this done. Suckers that appear on the tree should be left for a while until the extent of the damage is really known. Any suckers appearing below the bud union or graft should be removed as they will be sprouting from the under stock, which may be sour orange or some other variety grown strictly for root stock.

When palm fronds turn completely brown, they can be cut off. If any green is showing on them, leave them on the plant as long as possible as the green portion is still functioning and producing food for the tree. A little common sense in what should be pruned out of any plant is the rule of the day.

A light feeding of a balanced fertilizer, such as a 6-6-6 or 8-8-8, later this month will certainly help any plant recover from freeze damage. If the plant is still alive. Continue to provide moisture to the roots, too, as needed. Do not let the soil dry up completely.

Painting the pruning wounds with tree-wound dressing has become a controversial practice. The standard recommendation has been to paint all wounds over one inch in diameter with a quality tree-wound dressing. Supposedly, this protected the cut surface from wood-rotting organisms and "checking" or radial cracking upon drying.

Now, research has shown that upon exposure to the sun and weathering, the protective coating often fails and moisture enters the cracks and accumulates in pockets that may occur between the wood and the wound dressing. This situation is even more inviting to wood-rotting organisms than one with no wound cover. Where aesthetics are important, though, the practice may be justified.

If a pruning wound is to be protected, allow the cut surface to dry for several days before applying the dressing. This will improve the chance of a good bond. Examine the coating several times the first year. And, retreat if the coating has cracked.

If you lose one or two of your landscape plants, don't give up. Just think, now you have the chance to add something new and exciting to your landscape plant collection. With hundreds of plants from which to choose, and with mild weather most of the year, who can complain? Happy Gardening!

AKA was the highlight of the evening's festivities. As the evening progressed, the lovely ladies vying for the title were seen gracefully moving around the room in their beautiful pink and green gowns. The hour arrived to let the audience know who the Queen would be for 1986. The reigning queen, Juandolyn Elaine Adams Stewart, who has reigned and attended many of the AKA activities throughout the year, had the privilege of crowning the new Miss Pink and Green, Monica Sanders, who is presently a senior at Lake Mary High School, where she is an active member of the Order of the Golden Fleece, an honorary society, Tri-Hi-Y, and the New Comer's Club. Swimming is her hobby. She is a member of the St. Matthew Missionary Baptist Church, where she sings in the youth choir. Monica plans to attend Howard University and major in medicine. Mr. and Mrs. Willie Sanders, are the proud parents of Miss Pink and Green.

The first runner up is Sabrina Simmons, the daughter of Mrs. Martha Sue Simmons. Sabrina is a student at Seminole High School and will continue her education at one of the junior colleges of the area. The New Year was brought in with the band playing Auld Lang Syne and the "Happy New Years" echoing from the partying fun seekers at the AKA Grand New Years Ball. What a way to ring in the year 1986! Happy New Year to all!

Christmas Day was the setting for the Hattie Smith family reunion. Gathering on this occasion were her children, Margaret Smith Jackson, Camden, N.J., Otis C. Oliver, Lizzie Smith Foster, Sanford, Modestine Smith Rachel, Lueuain Frison, Rochester, N.Y. Grandchildren attending were Willie Mae Franklin, Cynthia Beacon, Paul Smith, Vincenza Smith, Sanford Over Lee Johnson, David Latson, Joseph Smith, Miami, son-in-law Samuel Rachel, Rochester, N.Y., grand son-in-law Sylvester Franklin, Sanford. Fifteen great grands and two great great grands attended and six grands and ten great grands were not in attendance. This happy day was the 85th birthday of the head of Smith family, Hattie Smith.

A very special celebration was held Christmas day. The Jackson/Moore families held its first family reunion. The local family members serving as hostesses were Mrs. Jewell Jackson and daughters Sheralyn Brinson, Christine Johnson, Sandra Jackson and Mary J. Fears.

Highlighting the program was the Family Awards of Merit presented to Theodore Roosevelt Jackson of Cleveland, Ohio. Mrs. Laverne Jones, of Washington, D.C., who presented the awards, gave an award of recognition to Nathaniel Jackson, Miami, the oldest relative present. Awards of appreciation were presented to Edward Ellis Goins, New Orleans and Loran Holton, Sr. of Miami. Creative moments were expressed in song by William Mac Franklin, Cynthia bers of the family was led by Doris Goins of New Orleans. Mrs. Jewell Moore Jackson expressed a prayerful meditation before the dinner.

Mary J. Fears, family historian, provided a very significant part of the celebration, the family roots. Relatives learned of their ancestors from a media presentation which told the family history, its roots and routes for five generations. A wall displayed the family tree and a map of the places where early generations lived. Mrs. Christine J. Johnson presided during the program. Many of the 50 guests attending departed for Ohio, Georgia, Washington, D.C., California and Louisiana, expressing the feeling of joy and appreciation for the pleasure derived from sharing family fellowship at their first family reunion at Christmas time.

Visiting the city during the holiday were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rachel, Rochester, New York, Dr. Clifford Huston, Arizona State University, Arizona, Mrs. Donna S. Mckinnon, Atlanta, Leroy Clark, New York City, Mrs. Mildred R. Brown, Fort Myers, Willie J. White, Albany, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. William Smith.

Estranged Parents Worlds Apart From Son Two Miles Away

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in our 70s and in poor health.

Ten years ago, our son borrowed $10,000 from us. He promised to repay it on a monthly basis (no interest) within three years. He needed it for his business. His business has been thriving. He and his wife have their own home and swimming pool; the two older children (in college) have their own cars, and his wife also has one.

We have not received one penny of the $10,000. Four years ago, this son literally walked out of our lives without one word of explanation. He lives two miles away. We have not had a telephone call, a card, a gift—nothing. This also applies to his wife and children. (The oldest is 21; the youngest is 11.) We know that they are well because we hear from others who see them and do business with our son.

Before Christmas my husband said, "Let's accept the fact that they don't want to be bothered with us, and stop sending them gifts. (Until this year, we remembered them on all occasions, but they never acknowledged anything—just cashed the checks.)"

What do you say, Abby? Where did we go wrong? We have never mentioned the $10,000 they owed.

FORGOTTEN PARENTS

DEAR FORGOTTEN: You say you live two miles away from your son, his wife and their children, and for four years you sent them gifts for all occasions, none were acknowledged, yet you continued to send gifts and checks. Something is drastically wrong. Have you ever phoned your son or written to him? Do you have a promissory note for the $10,000 he borrowed?

I would suggest that you initiate some kind of communication and try to find out why your son walked out of your life.

If you're reluctant to initiate it, how about a friend, relative, your attorney or clergyman?

There must be a reason why your son thinks you deserve this kind of treatment. This is a very bizarre and mysterious situation. I want very much to help you, but there are many unanswered questions. Good luck and God bless you. Please write again. I care.

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column from "Louisiana Libra," the 45-year-old unmarried secretary who didn't know what to say when asked, "How's your love life?" You suggested, "It's none of your business."

Well, I am also a mature unmarried female who has been asked numerous times (mostly by harmless men) how my love life is, and I have been able to answer without hurting anyone's feelings by simply saying, "Private, and I hope yours is, too."

It works every time.

COLORADO CRITIC

DEAR CRITIC: Thanks. Your answer was better than mine.

DEAR ABBY: What would you do about a guy who asked you to marry him before tax time so he can write you off?

MARSHA

DEAR MARSHA: If this is the only reason he wants to marry

Dear Abby

you, write him off.

DEAR ABBY: May I join the hordes of those who are undoubtedly writing about the gentleman who entered your column on the back of a mule to promote Mule Appreciation Day?

While I do not share his devotion to mules, I see nothing wrong with his premise that a day set aside to honor said animal could cover both bases and do for bachelors.

I do, however, take exception to his stating that George Washington was presented with a pair of jackasses by King Charles III in 1785. Charles of what country? It couldn't have been England; King George III was king at that time.

It couldn't have been France; Louis XVI was King of France.

It couldn't have been Germany; Germany was not unified at the time.

It couldn't have been Russia; Catherine the Great was the empress of Russia then.

So where did your correspondent dredge up this Charles III?

NANCY TORRES, SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR NANCY: "Hordes" did not write. One lone editor in Northampton, Mass., called to question the name, but the item had already gone to press. The writer undoubtedly meant Charles III of Spain.

DEAR ABBY: I am upset and disgusted by a recent experience and hope you can tell me how to cope with the hurt.

I am the mother of three daughters, ages 4, 2 and 6 weeks old. The youngest was just christened in the Catholic Church, as were her two sisters when they were 6 weeks old. All three wore the same christening dress, which was given to me by my husband's sister. (I'll call her, Dee.) Dee herself had been christened in that dress, and I was thrilled and honored when she gave it to me for my first daughter's christening. Afterward, I carefully put it away.

Last week, after the christening of my third daughter, Dee just plain took the dress off my bed and walked off with it!

I am hurt to the core because all three of my daughters were christened in that dress and I was saving it for them to use for their children one day.

If Dee had told me she was only lending me that dress, my brothers and sisters who were the godparents to all my children would have bought me one.

Who is wrong, Abby? Dee for repossessing the dress? Or me, for assuming it was mine when she gave it to me for my first daughter's christening?

HEARTBROKEN

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Dee should not have repossessed the dress without informing you. And since she gave you the dress without making it clear that she wanted it back, you had every right to assume it was yours to keep.

I advise you to call your sister-in-law and address your questions to her. Only she can answer them.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Child Slave Rings Abound In Italy

By Neabe Djuric BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Like something from Dickens or maybe the Dark Ages, young children are being sold, smuggled across borders and sold again into slavery and prostitution.

Early in December Yugoslav and Austrian police arrested 13 Yugoslavs and charged them with smuggling gypsy boys and girls between age 8 and 15 into another country for the purpose of prostitution, slavery or to be street beggars.

In Milan, Italy, three men and a woman, all Yugoslavs, have been charged with "induction into slavery." Police official Biagio Sivo, citing "dozens" of cases of child slaves in the Milan area, said the traffic had by no means been broken.

"It cannot be excluded that child slaves from abroad arrive and live in Italy," said Raffaele Costa, undersecretary of the interior.

"In 1985, 652 Yugoslav children, living without families, often victims of exploitation, begging and even committing crimes, were escorted to the border." Stories that surfaced after the Yugoslav arrests were horrific. An 8-year-old girl's face was burned by lighted cigarettes; a 10-year-old boy had his legs broken. The abuse was to make them more pitiable, and therefore more successful as beggars.

"This is the worst sort of criminal," said Inica-Bozinovska, an official at the social welfare center in Skopje, Yugoslavia.

"Those who smuggle and 'own' these children, mutilate them to draw more pity when they place these deformed children into the streets to beg."

In Milan, Sivo added, "If a child misbehaves or fails to bring in a good daily haul, he is treated viciously." He said most children who contacted Milan police "had been horribly maltreated."

No one can pin down the size of the traffic in child slaves. The Belgrade newspaper Politika guessed that 10,000 children had been sold to groups of Italian professional thieves since 1975.

Authorities say boys are generally more expensive than girls, and those already trained to be beggars or thieves are more expensive than inexperienced ones. Prices range from $300 to $700 each for youths of either sex.

But he and his aunt were sent to Rasadnik, a settlement of tin, cardboard and clay shanties where some 10,000 gypsies live on the outskirts of Titova Mitrovica, a town of 100,000.

Yugoslav authorities say all the children involved are gypsies. Most of Yugoslavia's estimated 170,000 gypsies live by begging, trading and selling things given to them or objects collected from garbage cans or waste dumps.

Many do odd jobs, but authorities say some, including many teenagers, pickpockets and prostitutes.

Bozinovska said about 30,000 gypsies live in the Suto Orizari suburb of Skopje, where living conditions are considered better than in other gypsy settlements. But even there, she said, some children "work" for their parents or are sold to others. Some children flee the country on their own, and frequently end up working for bosses in Italy, Austria or other West European countries.

"I know for sure two of my neighbors have sold their babies for big money in Sicily," a 40-year-old gypsy identified only as M.R. was quoted as saying by a Belgrade newspaper. Authorities said newborns can be bought for up to $2,000.

In Milan, Sivo said Milan police first became aware of the problem about three years ago when "the children themselves began to contact us."

"Only the courageous ones come to us," he said.

Yugoslav political organizations have condemned cross-border smuggling of children and demanded action. One has said the children should be "re-integrated" into Yugoslav society.

But even if action is taken, M.R. said a new method of child smuggling is emerging.

"In the past three to four years from our settlement in Titova Mitrovica, about 10 pregnant women left for Italy a month before they were to give birth."

"When they returned they said their babies had died in Italy. None of them has returned with a baby."

Campus Ends 'Dry' Semester

AMHERST, Mass. (UPI) — It's late afternoon at what was once the favorite drinking haunt on the University of Massachusetts' main campus.

But instead of cries for pitchers of beer or glasses of New Year's cheer at the Blue Wall, the calls are for fresh juice on tap or perhaps one of five herbal brews.

The school that developed a reputation for alcohol consumption has finished its first dry semester. While officials say there will be booze on campus again after questions over liquor liability insurance are cleared up, some students at the Blue Wall say they've found advantages to campus prohibition.

"It has its good points and its bad points, but I like it," said Lonnie Marshall, 23, a senior from Philadelphia. "Mainly, the noise level is not as high."

"I like the fact that the Blue Wall doesn't serve liquor, but I wouldn't want to have a dry campus forever," said Marshall's Blue Wall study partner, Michael Caswell, 21, a senior from Mattapoisett. "The school should have a liquor license, but it should do things on a small scale."

University administrators were notified last summer their liquor liability insurance policy would expire Aug. 1. They were also told it would not be renewed.

The problem was not unique to the school.

Companies said it was no longer profitable to write liquor liability insurance policies because of the number of successful lawsuits against bars linked to alcohol-related accidents.

"We tried every possible avenue we knew of, and it just was not available," said John Denyse, vice chancellor of administration and finance at the university. "We were told we could not get it at any price."

In an attempt to solve the problem, Gov. Michael Dukakis signed into law on Aug. 1 a measure that established a joint underwriting association to provide insurance to bars, restaurants and institutions that otherwise could not get it.

Denyse said the state has yet to come out with rules to allow the university to apply for insurance. "We are in contact with them constantly," he said. "We'd like to get moving as fast as possible."

The university's eagerness to regain insurance and reopen the flow of liquor on campus is not to satisfy student demand, but to keep the conference business going, officials said.

On several occasions during the past semester groups considering holding conferences on the campus have taken their business elsewhere, Denyse said.

According to Ashoke Ganguli, the school's director of auxiliary services, conference business and campus bar revenues were down $150,000 to $200,000 during the four months following Aug. 1.

But while lack of insurance has hurt economically, Art Clifford, public relations director at the university, said it does not seem to be a major issue among students.

The increase of the Massachusetts drinking age to 21 is a main reason for the perceived quiet on campus, he said. Roughly three-quarters of the school's undergraduates are not old enough to buy alcohol.

Also, the university has put more emphasis on alcohol awareness and education programs in recent years to shed its image as a party school. It banned alcohol at football games and — before relaxing regulations this semester — it had outlawed Halloween revelry on campus.

"It's more competitive and more expensive to go to school," Clifford added. "People coming here, for the most part, are not as likely to treat their educational experience lightly."

Amateur Astronomer Follows The Comet

By Ann Peters STEDMAN, N.C. (UPI) — Amateur astronomer Johnny Horne spends hours in the dark peering through a 12 1/2-inch telescope in his home-built observatory and watching celestial wonders.

The stars, planets, eclipses and other astronomical events have fascinated Horne for more than half his life. At age 14, he made a 6-inch telescope. At age 32, he photographed Halley's comet, once considered the harbinger of doom and death.

Although Horne's celestial adventures have not brought him worldwide fame, they have transformed his boyhood pastime into an almost full-time passion. Horne and chief photographer Ken Cooke persuaded the publisher of The Fayetteville Times and The Fayetteville Observer to foot the bill for Horne's trip to Australia and Tahiti next spring to witness the 76-year return trip of Halley's comet.

Horne is packing two suitcases and an oversized duffel bag full of equipment for his trek south of the equator, hundreds of miles away from where he began his hobby in Stedman, a rural community about 10 miles east of Fayetteville.

"For a amateur astronomers this is their Super Bowl," said Horne, a newspaper photographer for more than 12 years. "They've heard about it all their lives and now it is at hand."

His passion for the stars has even kept Horne in his unheated observation post when the temperature has dropped to 8 degrees. Horne said he just puts on thermal underwear, quilted overalls, a hat and warm shoes and "babysits" his film in the observatory he built out of plywood.

"10,000 gallons of glue and 3,000 screws,"

Exposures for his photographs can take up to 1 1/2 hours because minute adjustments must be made to keep the moving objects centered on his film.

"When you take your hands off the steering wheel (of a car), from time to time, you have to make minor adjustments and that's what you have to do with the telescope," Horne said.

"It can be very cold and very monotonous and you have to get it when it's good and that's not always when it's 80 degrees," he said. "When the opportunity presents itself, you have to be here."

Despite the slow process, Horne's passion for the stars never falters. The lower floor of his observatory serves as his astronomy library and miniature gallery of his photographic opportunities of capturing eclipses, planets and other celestial phenomena.

Magazines, books and newspapers have published his photographs. But Horne said they are not as much artistic efforts as they are technical endeavors.

Looking through Horne's telescope, Halley's comet is a fuzzy object in the sky near the constellation of Pegasus. A trained eye can see the comet without a telescope on clear nights at this point in its journey.

Horne is one of more than 900 amateur astronomers involved in International Halley Watch. But unlike most of the non-professionals, Horne had the equipment to see the comet early in its trek.

Wild Frat Party Damages Hotel

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A fraternity party described as "worse than 'Animal House'" spilled from a downtown hotel into the streets, causing up to $40,000 in damages and leaving a trail of broken glass and underwear.

Police made five arrests at the New Year's Eve bash booked at the Holiday Inn Riverfront by Alpha Tau Omega fraternity at the University of Missouri at Columbia. "It was disgusting," said police Lt. Richard Swateck. "Fourth Street was just littered with broken bottles, broken glass, broken ashtrays, broken plates, underwear, shoes and all kinds of windows were broken."

Swateck said the party converted the hotel into "29 floors of disturbances."

"It was worse than 'Animal House,'" said

John Tiemann, a front desk clerk. "It was just a mass of people everywhere. The girls were worse than some of the boys," he added. "They were trying to beat up the manager because he told them they couldn't take liquor up to the room."

Geoff Gannon, the fraternity's house manager, conceded the party "had gotten out of hand." He said the fraternity booked a conference room at the hotel for the party and 500 to 600 tickets were sold for $10 to $12 each.

About 1,000 people — some from other schools — showed up, officials said, and the hotel closed the party because of overcrowding. The revelers then moved into rooms and hallways throughout the hotel.

Hotel officials put the damage at $35,000 to $40,000.

FLORIDA

IN BRIEF

Environmental Group Threatens Suit To Stop Rape Of Keys

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A "scheme" to open part of the fragile Florida keys to development could destroy Florida's largest coral reef and threaten endangered wildlife, a south Florida environmentalist group has charged.

Susan Cohen, lawyer for the Friends of the Everglades, said a proposed conservation plan that would open part of North Key Largo to development could kill coral reefs at nearby John Pennecamp State Park, and would threaten four endangered species that live on the key.

Cohen said her group would "seriously consider" filing suit unless Gov. Bob Graham and several state, federal and Monroe County agencies stop work on the plan.

North Key Largo is home to four endangered species: the American crocodile, the Key Largo cotton mouse, the Key Largo woodrat and the Schaus Swallowtail butterfly.

Secrecy Shrouds Connie Francis

MIAMI (UPI) — Secrecy surrounded the condition and whereabouts today of troubled singer Connie Francis, who was hauled off to a mental health facility New Year's Eve.

Police went Tuesday to the Grand Bay Hotel to answer a report that a hotel guest was creating a disturbance. A Miami fire-rescue unit was requested by police, and paramedics removed Francis, 47, from the hotel at 4:15 p.m. and took her to the Miami Medical Health Center.

Authorities refused to say what prompted the hospitalization.

Health center employees said they could not reveal whether the singer had been released, admitted or transferred, but a supervisor said Thursday night there was no patient registered at the facility under the names of Connie Francis or Constance Franconero, the singer's given name.

Family Of Crash Victim To Sue

PENSACOLA (UPI) — A relative of a soldier who died last month when a jetliner crashed in Newfoundland says his "gung-ho" brother would want the family to sue the firm that operated the DC-8 — and they plan to do so.

The body of Sgt. Jeffrey Scott Kee, 22, arrived in northwest Florida under gray skies Thursday morning. The funeral was scheduled for 10 a.m. CST today with burial at Barrancas National Cemetery.

Kee was among 248 members of the 101st Airborne Division and 10 crew members who died Dec. 12 when a chartered Arrow Air jetliner flying them home for the holidays crashed seconds after takeoff at Gander International Airport.

Kee, who blamed the Arrow pilot for not having the four-engine jet de-iced during its fuel stop at Gander, said his brother "was a gung-ho type and he would have said get 'em and get 'em good and we're going to go after them."

or Israeli reprisal. "There is a kind of masochistic attitude," a diplomat said. "They expect and maybe even are hoping for an attack."

Khadafi justified the Palestinian attacks as revenge for Israel's Oct. 1 raid on the Palestine Liberation Organization headquarters in Tunis, Tunisia, that left 68 people dead. Israel said it carried out the attack to avenge the murders of three Israelis in Cyprus.

Authorities investigating the virtually simultaneous airport attacks in Rome and Vienna believe they were staged by the breakaway Palestinian faction led by Sabri al-Banna, better known by his code name, Abu Nidal.

Israel has vowed to avenge the attacks and together with the United States has accused Libya of backing Abu Nidal, who once worked with Palestine Liberation Organization chairman Yasser Arafat but broke with him, claiming Arafat was too moderate in his fight against Israel.

Khadafi Thursday defended Abu Nidal, saying there are "millions of Abu Nidals among the Palestinian people."

U.S. officials said they hope the terrorist attacks Dec. 27 at the Rome and Vienna airports will prompt international support for sanctions.

mission to consider allowing his group to build up to three practice baseball fields on property at the site of the new Lake Mary water plant on Rinehart Road. Suggs said he had estimates for fencing, sod, and grass seed for the three fields, amounting to $7,807. He said volunteers were available from his organization to provide labor and equipment.

Commissioner Megonegal said that before a ballfield could be put on the land, "massive earth moving" would have to be done to level the ground. He also pointed out that a committee looking into possible uses of the land has not yet submitted it's report and recommendations. The location may eventually be used for a new city hall, and land may also be needed for future expansion of the new water plant.

City Engineer David L. Wright said such grading and allowance for proper drainage would have to be given consideration if a practice field were put on the land. He also said there was a potential for expansion of the plant, as Seminole County has made "strong overtures" to begin preliminary discussion about entering into a water relationship. He indicated that the cost of grading the land for a practice field would be "substantially more" than the $7,807 figure Suggs estimated. In a July 29, 1985 letter to City Manager Kathy Rice, Wright estimated the rough and final grading of the site alone would be $70,000, according to his estimates, providing the construction was done by a contractor.

Suggs said that the league's fences and backstops could be removed and reused elsewhere if the field had to eventually be moved. "If we had it (the use of the land) for two years, we would be two years better off than we are now. Kids are better off playing baseball than walking the street."

Colin Keogh, a former Lake Mary City Commissioner who was once a league player, told the commission that the league now has 200 children playing in Lake Mary on 15 teams, and all use crowded playing facilities at Lake Mary Elementary School. He said that 15 percent of Lake Mary's population of 4,000 are involved in the league.

Fess told Suggs and Keogh that the commission was not opposed to the league or recreation in the city, and that the board wanted to help if possible. Fess said further checking into problems of putting at least one ball diamond on the water plant land is needed, and the two sides agreed to reopen the discussion on the proposal on January 16.

In other commission business, Dennis Barborika was appointed to the Board of Adjustment, replacing Norma Fertakiss who resigned. Her term was to end Oct. 31, 1987.

Two bids for equipment were also awarded. The city will purchase a 4x4 pick-up truck from Don Reid Ford for $8,940, and a backhoe from Hood Tractor for $28,357. Both were the lowest bid.

The commission's next meeting will be at city hall, Thursday, January 16, at 7:30 p.m.

Elvis Fans To Gather; Proceeds For Charity

Elvis Presley fans are gathering for the 7th annual Elvis Presley Memorial Convention 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday at the Sheraton Inn on Lee Road at Interstate-4 in Orlando, according to Wanice Blume, Forest City.

There will be auctions, raffles, records and dealers there, selling all types of Elvis Memorabilia.

The annual convention is hosted by E.P. Continentals, an Elvis fan club. The club is a non-profit organization with members nationwide. Club members work year-long at projects to make money to help area charities. Mrs. Blume said. During the past six years they have been able to donate more than $8,000. Last year, the annual convention netted enough to finance a new wing for Maitland's Krandle Karc, a center for severely handicapped children.

Sunday's convention guest will be D.J. Fontana. "I'm sure he can tell us many things about Elvis as he had known and worked with him since 1954," Mrs. Blume said. He was with the Jordanaires and was Elvis' drummer.

Anyone who would like to know more about the club or the convention or would like to make a donation may contact Wanice Blume at 788-1222.

"We just want to be treated like human beings," Gregory said, adding inmates had tried for years to seek prison improvements lawfully.

A state judge in 1983 gave the Department of Corrections five years to correct 13 unconstitutional prison conditions that included insufficient living space, residence and dining areas infested with rodents and vermin, food that did not meet minimum nutritional needs, inadequate outdoor exercise facilities, and "grossly deficient medical, dental and psychiatric care offered by insufficient and unqualified personnel in an inadequate and unhealthy medical facility."

About 400 inmates were held up in the south wing of the prison where the hostages were being held, but officials estimated only 200 of them took part in the uprising that began in the prison dining hall.

Shortly after the rioting erupted, an unidentified guard hostage was freed. Guard Michael Coleman was released before midnight Wednesday and Capt. Patrick Glasscock and Maj. Eddie Littell were released before inmates reached the Thursday afternoon agreement with corrections officials.

IN THE SERVICE

THOMAS MULLER

Air Force Reserve Airman Thomas Muller, son of Mary A. Muller of 311 Paces Court, Sanford, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force aircraft electrical repair course at Chanute Air Force Base, Ill.

During the course, students were taught to inspect, repair and maintain electrical systems and components in aircraft and related equipment. They also earned credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Miller is scheduled to serve with the 315th Military Airlift Wing at Charleston Air Force Base, S.C.

RONALD R. BOYER

Tech. Sgt. Ronald R. Boyer, son of Raymond D. and Ketha P. Boyer of 1109 Timberlane Trail, Casselberry, has graduated from the integrated avionics computerized test station and component course at Lowry Air Force Base, Colo.

ROBERT A. FERRELL

Army Pvt. Robert A. Ferrell, son of Elizabeth H. and Carey E. Ferrell of 200 Woods Trail, Sanford, has graduated as an armor crewman at the U.S. Army Armor School, Fort Knox, Ky.

The training was conducted under the one station unit training (OSUT) program, which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training into one 13-week period.

During the course, students received training in the duties of a tank crewman, including firing the tank's armament and small weapons. Instruction was also given in field radio operations, map reading, and tank maintenance and repair.

He is a 1985 graduate of Lake Mary High School, Longwood.

EDMUND J. COPPOLA

Airman Edmund J. Coppola, son of John A. and Louise A. Coppola of 620 Deron Court, Winter Springs, has been assigned to Keesler Air Force Base, Miss., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the air operations field.

His wife, Corinna, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Roberson of 1002 Raymond Ave., Altamonte Springs.

He is a 1985 graduate of Lyman High School, Longwood.

JAMES R. FELTER

Navy Fireman Recruit James R. Felter, son of Paul D. and Marie L. Felter of 1017 Wolf Trail, Casselberry, recently reported for duty aboard the aircraft carrier USS Enterprise, homeported in Alameda, CA.

He joined the Navy in April 1985.

symbol-language diagram of the human race into space.

Tass said, "for many years, radio signals have been sent from Earth," by scientists at Kharkov University, "and are being sent now, with a hope that they will be heard by intelligent beings."

The lack of a response from outer space might be due to the methods used in sending intelligent life, the news agency said.

One scientist was quoted by Literary Gazette as saying possible intelligent responses or original messages might have been turned into meaningless noise by interstellar radio interference.

Ms. Cook's last day on the job was December 31, and she plans to relocate to South Carolina.

The commissioners requested that City Manager Kathy Rice ask the Central Florida Police Chief's Association to act as a screening committee in the process to find a replacement for Benson.

The body also accepted the motion of Commissioner Russ Megonegal to ask the City Manager to draw up a job description, educational and salary levels, and staff functions before the city advertises the availability of the chief's position.

Chief Benson's annual salary is $28,000.

In other police related business, the panel also approved the hiring of two new department dispatchers. Hired at an hourly wage of $5.72 were Tammy Jones and Fred Matz.

Women's Soccer

Soccer is fast becoming one of the favorite sports among women in Florida as can be witnessed by watching the enthusiasm of the women who gather each Wednesday night to compete at the American Soccer Center in Sanford.

"I just love the game," said Linda Pratt of Altamonte Springs. "I look forward to each Wednesday, so I can just get out there and play."

Pratt said she has played soccer at the center ever since it opened 2½ years ago. "Women drive from DeLand, New Smyrna, Orlando, Daytona and other surrounding towns to compete. Some live an hour's drive away," she added.

Most of the women agreed they like the game because it is good exercise and a competitive sport.

The game, which originated in England in the middle of the 19th century, is a form of football played with a spherical ball. The object is for one team to force the ball — by kicking it or propelling it with their chest or head — past the goalkeeper and into their goal area. One point is awarded for each goal scored with the team scoring the highest number of points winning the game. The game got its name from its official English name Association Football. Players over the years altered the word association into soccer.

Bill Knotts, the center's major stockholder and president of the board, said soccer is the most widely-played team game in the world and the most popular spectator sport. "Although the game is relatively new in the United States, it has shown a lot of growth in the past 15 years, especially among children and women."

Knotts said the local center was built by soccer players, parents and fans in the area, and is now being used by approximately 100 teams a week. In addition to the women's league there are several men's and youths' leagues, as well as a co-ed

'Miami Vice' Rock Video

By Ethel Ann Vore

The hit single "Theme from Miami Vice" is the first chart topper of the year that doesn't have a promotional video clip in rotation. But then, Jon Hammer's song does have a whole show behind it.

Obviously, the synthetics of rock and TV works, whether you use a three-minute clip three times a day or a one-hour "clip" one time a week.

The "Miami Vice" sound track album has already been certified double platinum by the RIAA (2 million copies sold,) where no television sound track before has so much as gone gold.

(BU) Classic Beatles' albums, originally released from 1964 through 1966, will be re-released by Capitol Records, with new versions giving American buyers the complete British album package.

For the first time, all song lists, cover art and liner notes will be identical worldwide — not the case back then, when the Beatles had different record labels here, there and everywhere.

Capitol is waiting only for the current inventory to sell out before it presses the new LPs.

(BU) Some original "New Wave Theater" TV shows have become home videos.

It was one of cable television's first progressive rock shows, airing on the USA Network before the days of its "Radio 1990" and "Night Flight."

The show was considerably ahead of its time, featuring on-air performances by such then-unknowns as Black Flag, the Blasters and the Dead Kennedys.

When the world was catching up with "New Wave Theater," its creator-host Peter Ivers was brutally murdered (his assailant has never been found) and no new episodes were ever produced.

Now Rhino Video (a new arm of the eclectic Rhino Records) is distributing home videocassettes of the original "New Wave Theater" shows. Two one-hour tapes are currently on sale for $29.95 retail, and more will follow if the first are successful.

Women Are Getting A Kick Out Of Soccer league which plays each Saturday night.

"The women's league is composed of two age groups, one for women under 25 and another for those 25 and over," Knotts said. "Each women's team is made up of six players. The rules for the game are basically the same as for men."

The games are played throughout the year, with each competitive session lasting 10 weeks. At the end of the session, the winning teams are awarded plaques with their names engraved on them. The plaques hang in the hallway at the center.

Pratt said most of the women become interested in soccer after watching their children play. It is estimated that 99 percent of the women players have children who have played or are now playing the game. "The women suffer injuries, but refuse to quit," Pratt said. "During the game, we are here to play. Some even come when they are sick. We feel a loyalty to our team. The sportsmanship is good, but we all want to win."

Another team player, Renee Brunelle of Orlando, said a friend introduced her to the game, saying it was good exercise. "I started playing outdoor soccer, but didn't like it," she admitted. "But I just love playing indoor soccer. I have a great time playing and look forward to each game. I have been playing here since the center first opened."

Debra Jeck of Sanford said she started playing soccer to stay in shape. "I've always been a sports-type person," she said. "Most women have the same type of ego as men. We enjoy the thrill of competing and winning."

Jeck said she especially likes soccer because there is such a great team effort to win. "The pressure is not on one particular person."

"I started playing soccer so I wouldn't get fat," said Janet Glover Wright of Orlando.

A native of England, Wright said she always wanted to play soccer while she was growing up, but that girls weren't allowed to play in England. "It was a sport for boys only. I use to watch my brothers play and wish I were out there," she said.

Glover says that she plays both outdoor and indoor soccer and also referees for high school boys and girls teams. "I tell the new women who come here to forget you're a lady and just get out there and play," she said with a smile.

Terri Kendrick of Orlando says she really enjoys the game. "Once I started, I was hooked," she admitted.

As another bonus, Kendrick says she has lost 25 pounds since she started playing at the center. "I think it was due to all the running I've done," she laughed.

DeAnn Kavanaugh of Winter Springs said she has played soccer four years. "I just love the game," she said. "It is physical, but not too physical."

"I play as hard as I can," Kavanaugh said. "I always get a good workout."

Kavanaugh said she has also played on the men's league, and admitted that she liked it. "The men play a faster paced, more competitive game," she said. "It is a lot of fun."

Mary Dowling and a friend, Mad Messeguer, drive to the center each week from College Park. "We've played every Wednesday night at the center, non-stop, since it opened," Dowling said.

"This is something the whole family can enjoy," Dowling added. "We bring our children and husbands and just have a good time."

Messeguer agreed with her friend. "I always have fun," she said. "You know your team is depending on you and you can't let them down."

The two women said they recently joined the co-ed league and both agreed that it was as much fun as the women's league.

Knotts said that while the women are playing friends and family members with them can either watch or use the center's a pool table, dart games, video games or watch big-screen television.

He said women who are interested in playing soccer can sign up at the center.

Knotts also invites the public to watch the games. "There is no admission for spectators," he said.

(BU) The Fat Boys, the unlikely looking rap trio whose film personae in "Krush Groove" portrayed them as youngsters whose waistlines exceeded their IQs, will take starring roles in their next feature film.

Michael Schultz, director of "Krush Groove" (as well as the earlier "Cooley High" and "The Last Dragon") will co-produce the upcoming film — set to begin in April and as yet untitled. He calls it "a Three Stooges-like comedy." We call it typecasting.

(BU) On the subject of the movies, I have a serious bone to pick with the producers of "A Chorus Line: The Movie." They were so unsure of the commercial potential of the best Broadway musical in history that they found it necessary to splice in a disco dance number for use as a TV music video.

"Surprise, Surprise" — also the show's first single — is the travesty in question; and it's by far the weakest song in the original play's subtle rhythm.

"A Chorus Line" was — and is — a fabulous piece of musical and dramatic entertainment. The only places where the film version fails are where it veers from the stage production. Hey, guys: If it ain't broke, don't fix it.

(BU) Anna Maria & Tara, a pop vocal duo based in Greece, have applied to the Guinness Book of World Records for inclusion as the world's youngest recording group. Anna Maria is 7; Tara is 8. Their debut album on PolyGram/Greece is called "Beauties and the Beat" — not to be confused with the youthful (if less so) Go-Go's debut LP, "Beauty and the Beat."

Whoopi Goldberg: Welfare Mom To Star, Comedienne

By Deborah Brown

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two years ago, Whoopi Goldberg was a welfare mother. Today, she's a movie star.

Goldberg, 35, is making her debut as the lead in the film adaptation of Alice Walker's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel about black farm life, The Color Purple.

Directed by Steven Spielberg, in an unexpected departure from light entertainment, the film opened to rave reviews the week before Christmas.

She is already working on her second movie, a comedy, "Jumpin' Jack Flash."

Her one-woman show on Broadway last year, "Whoopi Goldberg," prompted flattering comparisons to comedians Richard Pryor, Lily Tomlin and Eddie Murphy.

The National Board of Review of Motion Pictures has named her as this year's best actress.

"I am an actor," said Goldberg, basking with a grin in that first flush of stardom in a suite on the 20th floor of the staid Carlyle Hotel. "Actors can do anything. Once you put the 'tress' on the end of it, then you're limited and can't play a male role." Playing male leads might be possible, especially for a black "actor" who con-

She can still turn the world on with her smile. Mary Tyler Moore, everyone's favorite gregarious girlfriend, has returned to television as consumer advocate Mary Brenner in "Mary," a new sitcom airing Wednesday on the CBS network.

siders herself "colorless" and "sexless." Her aspiration is to play a swashbuckling detective, like "Humphrey Bogart."

"I can do anything," she growled, as the smoke from her cigarette veiled her large brown eyes.

In The Color Purple, she tackles the role of the indomitable female protagonist, Celie, a woman reviled and beaten by her husband and rescued by a charismatic blues singer who becomes her lesbian lover.

But Goldberg said she had little in common with her character.

"Celie has a personality struggle. Her struggle is not knowin' she is in a bad situation," Goldberg explained, taking a puff of her cigarette. "She has no concept of life as any other way She's not stupid, she just doesn't know any better."

In contrast, she said, she has never lacked self-confidence and has always known where she was headed - onto stage and screen.

"I am good, I know I'm good In five years, I'm going to be great. In ten years I'm going to be fantastic. In 20 years, I just might be spectacular. I've known that. No one has ever told me any different."

Intoxicated by the romantic comedies of the 1930s and horror movies of the 1950s that she devoured as a teenager, Goldberg set her sights early on becoming a screen and stage legend.

She grew up in a Manhattan housing project and at the age of eight, she began honing her skills by acting in local theater groups. Then, in the carefree 60s, she dropped out of high school and into the Greenwich Village hippie scene.

"Things were happening then," she recalled, "LSD, the Fillmore was happening."

After a brief marriage dissolved, she trekked out to San Diego with her daughter Alexandra, 11, in 1975 and acted in local theaters. She changed her given name, which she declines to reveal, and adopted her current catchy moniker.

While on welfare, she took up odd jobs, including a stint as a beautician in a morgue. In the early 1980s she drifted to San Francisco and worked with an avant-garde theater group called Blake Street Hawkeyes and created mythical caricatures - known as eponymously acts.

On Broadway, her portrayals of an airhead surfer who performs a self-abortion, a junkie burglar with a Ph.D. in literature, and a little black girl who longs for blue eyes, blond hair and an appearance on the television series, "The Love Boat," gained her celebrity status.

In March 1984 Spielberg offered her a part in The Color Purple.

But how does a director motivate an "actor" who fails to identify with her character?

"The cat (Spielberg) gave me a lot of faith," she said. "Plus, we're both film fanatics. He would say something like, 'Okay, Whoopi, do Boo Radley right after the door opens in 'To Kill a Mockingbird.' Or he'd say, 'you know the scene where Indiana Jones finds the girl.'"

Although critics took issue with entrusting a white, male, director with bringing the poignant beastie to the screen, Goldberg said Spielberg was "the only one who could have made this movie ... He's the best, the top of the line."

Besides, she explains the movie is not about blacks or sexuality.

"It's about human beings in odd situations and it could have been cast with white people or Spanish people."

Even with her recent success, she cowers at suggestions she sex up her image.

"Putting me in a Danakin pinup is not going to do anything," she said. "People want to see what's under the baggy clothes. They're interested in finding out if there is a shape there It's nobody's business."

Also she hasn't gone Hollywood. She maintains a simple lifestyle at her home in San Francisco and attends PTA meetings faithfully. Her one extravagance has been the purchase of a 1980 "bright, blood red" Porsche, she says.

Born-Again, Gospel Era Hurt B.J. Thomas

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — B.J. Thomas has no regrets about going public with his story of drug addiction, but he concedes it has posed a problem for his singing career.

Thomas, who enjoyed tremendous success as a pop-country vocalist, was basically washed up by the time he was 30 because of drug addiction.

But he kicked the habit, became a born-again Christian, concentrated on gospel music and wrote a book about his experience.

"I personally believe now that big gospel exposure and the books and things virtually ended my music career," Thomas said in an interview.

"It's really been a hard struggle to just get back to a level and find an audience for my music. Once I did this in public, it really kind of turned a lot of people off — people I'd like to sing to. I have a lot of Jewish friends and Arabian friends and when I came out with this thing they thought B.J. doesn't like us any more."

But it may go deeper than that for B.J. (Billy Jo).

"Really it has been a struggle to overcome some of the misconceptions that are put on you when you do something that has a religious connotation. I've been struggling to just erase the religious feeling about me. I don't care if people know I'm spiritual, but I'm just a regular guy.

"I've been busted for pot since then (his born-again experience). I still have my problems. I guess I'll always be a drug addict. I have to work on that day to day. I found getting born again helped me turn my life around. The longer I was a Christian the more I found.

Nancy Sinatra's Love Letter To Father Frank

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — People don't agree about Frank Sinatra. Of course, the assessment of his musical abilities is almost unanimous — he is probably the finest entertainer of this (or maybe any) century. But as a man he arouses love or hate.

One of those who falls in on the side of love is his daughter, Nancy. That is fairly predictable, of course. If a daughter doesn't love her father, who will? So Nancy loves Frank and she tells about it in great, $50-a-copy detail in her new and lushly lavish book, "Frank Sinatra, My Father."

This is a biography. And it is a picture book. And it is a reference book about Sinatra. It is three books in one. And, as you might expect from such a large undertaking, it wasn't something that Nancy dashed off in a few weekends.

"I decided to do this book 20 years ago," she says. "But getting it done took a little time."

It all began, she says, in '64 or thereabouts. One night, she and Frank and his wife of that era, Mia Farrow, and the late publisher, Bennett Cerf, were having dinner together.

"Something unauthorized had just come out about my father," Nancy says. "It was one of those attacks on him in a column. I don't remember the specifics, but Bennett said to me, 'Nancy, you're going to have to write the true story because your dad will never do it.'"

"Bennett was right. My father has tried to write the true story, but when he comes up against the very personal stuff, he can't do it. The truth is that he's a very shy person. Most people don't understand that about him. They see him on stage in his tuxedo and in front of a band, and he seems so sure of himself, but he's really basically a shy man."

A few years later, Nancy actually began working on the book. She says she has been collecting material for 16 years, and it hasn't been easy. It's all those contradictory things.

"Most of the sources don't agree," she says. "He is so well documented — probably the most documented entertainer in American History — but each person who reported about him reported differently."

So she tried to go back to original sources, to the people he had worked with, played with, loved with.

"It took me a long time," she says, "to find two people to agree on things. Then I had to run everything past dad and if he corroborated it, then I knew I had some facts on my hands." She checked everything she wrote with her father. He made surprisingly few changes. The main things he deleted, she says, were references to his charitable gifts to people. She says he refuses to talk about that — that shyness again — but he did let her keep in stories about his gifts if those stories came from the recipients themselves.

She is somewhat annoyed at some of the reviews that call the book "biased." Her point is that, with the exception of some father-daughter intimacies, everything she reports in the book came from other people, not from her. So she believes she cannot really be accused of bias.

Still, she realizes that the book is "a kind of love letter" from a daughter to her father, and from dozens of others of her father's friends and admirers to him. She approached hundreds of those friends and admirers, asking them for reminiscences, and most of them responded.

Reader Bewitched By Lisa Hartman Roles

Dear Dick — Could you tell me if Lisa Hartman, who plays Cathy on "Knots Landing," and Tabitha, of "Bewitched," are the same people? I was told they were, but at the end of "Bewitched" they give the name of Erin Murphy as Tabitha. — D.O., Gering, Neb.

To straighten out matters, on the original "Bewitched," with Elizabeth Montgomery, Tabitha was just a toddler. Toddling twins, Erin and Diane Murphy, took turns playing the part. Later there was a series called "Tabitha," with a full-grown Tabitha. That was when Lisa Hartman played Tabitha.

Dear Dick — I have a son who has a cap collection. Could you please let me know how I could get a cap like the one Ernest Borgnine wears in "Airwolf"? It is red and it would mean a lot to him to have it. — Mrs. F.L., Galena, Kan.

I suppose collecting caps keeps him out of mischief. Anyhow, write to the manufacturer, PCA Apparel Industries, 18 East 34th Street, (Fifth Floor), New York, N.Y., 10016. Presumably, they will be able to direct you to a retail outlet in or near Galena.

Dear Dick — In watching my favorite soap, "Days of Our Lives," I've been wondering what happened to the character Maggie Hanson. She's turned up recently, looking different. Has she been ill, and is she all right now? I just love her and hope she's OK. — J.K.A., Santa Paula.

Ask Dick Kleiner

Call.

She's fine now. Her real name is Suzanne Rogers and she was ill. In fact, she was off the show for about a year, recuperating. But she's back now, looking a bit peaked, but otherwise on the road to full recovery.

Dear Dick — A while ago, you answered a question about who played the prince in the original "Cinderella." You said Jon Cypher. Are you sure? My sister and I swear it was Stuart Damon. That show is one of our fondest memories and we would love to see it again. — T.P., Katy, Texas.

Many people have written about my answer to that question. Yes, the original Prince Charming was Jon Cypher. He played it opposite Julie Andrews in the first production. Damon played the part opposite Lealey Ann Warren in a subsequent production. I think the chances of it being revived are slim.

Dear Dick — Please tell me the age of Grandpa Jones. — S.Y., Stuart, Fla.

Grandpa, bless his heart, turned 72 in October.

Dear Dick — What has become of the original Three Stooges, Moe, Larry and Curly? Which ones are still alive and how old are they now? — N.W., Rock Hill, S.C.

They're all gone. Curly died way back in 1962, and both Moe and Larry passed away in 1975.

Dear Dick — I would like to find out about a movie I saw in the middle or late 1950s. I think the name of it was "The Five Sullivans," but I'm not sure. And I don't know any of the stars of it. It was about five brothers and they were in the Navy. I think it was real. At the end they all ascended into heaven. I would love to see it again. — P.K., Amarillo, Texas.

That was "The Sullivans" (also called "The Fighting Sullivans"), which came out in 1944. If you saw it in the 1950s, it was a revival. It starred Anne Baxter and Thomas Mitchell; and (as the five brothers) five young actors who have not been heard from since. I doubt it will be shown again.

Dear Dick — What happened to Johnny Olson of "The Price is Right" show? At the end of one of the shows, Bob Barker said, since taping that show, they had lost Johnny. — N.H., Clinton, Tenn.

He died.
