Who will control our airport?

Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Without a doubt, the Orlando Banford Airport is growing both in flight activities and commercial business operations. Several major new airline operations have been or will soon be operating.

The airport however, has re-portedly had difficulty in connection with some contacts regarding developing and/or expanding opera-tions at the airport. At the present time, the airport is operated by the Sanford Airport Authority, but has been under the control of the City of Sanford.

Whether there will be any changes in who controls the airport operations or not is a question which is coming up for more and more discussion. The Sanford Airport Authority began discussion during its Nov. 6 meeting, attended by Sanford City Manager Bill Simmons. The authority however, decided to take no action and wait for further discussions between members of the two staffs.

Monday afternoon, during the Sanford City Commission work session. Simmons will bring the matter up for discussion.

SANFORD — It was the 11th hour, of the 11th day, of the 11th month, exactly 77 years since the signing of the armistice agreement ending World War I.

The voices of nearly 500 people singing "God Bless America" rose above downtown Sanford, lifting the spirits of veterans, family, and friends who gathered to pay their respects to America's veterans.

With the flag flying overhead, and heads bowed in respect, Seminole County residents paid tribute to the men and women who fought for America's freedom and liberty.

Hard work, good competition marks end of games

By Molt Prest Au Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The games have ended. The 21st annual Golden Age Games in Sanford came to a conculsion yesterday afternoon with the handing out of awards for track and field events held at Seminole High School, and sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Sanford.

Co-chairman Lisa Jones said there were approximately 1,500 people listed as entrants, with 2,300 participants. "The number of people we have determined were here to participate is 1,500," she explained, "but a number of them signed up for more than one event, which gives us the 2,300 figure."

This was a good year for the games. Only two events originally planned had to be dropped from the competition. Both syncronized swimming scheduled for Lake Brantley High School on Monday, and the knitting contest on Thursday, were not held because of a lack of participants.

Jones said no one signed up for the events, but they were listed until the last minute on the acheduled because for these, and several other events, sign-ups were allowed just prior to the competition.

Even with all of the often-strenuous activities.

no one reported any injuries directly attributed to participation in the games.

Each morning at 7 a.m., the members of the Over 50 Club held a breakfast. Jones said a local company which had offered to supply muffins for the breakfasts, dropped out at the last minute. We went to McDonalds though," she said, "and they immediately offered 1,000 muffins to us free of charge. They certainly came to our rescue," Jones added, "and the breakfasts wouldn't have been complete without their help.

McDonalds was one of the bronse sponsors for this year's games, along with Florida Power and Light, and T.G. Lee.

Other sponsors, in the major platinum category were Seminole County Convention & Visitors Bureau, and Ameri-Life.

The Over 50 Club was a Gold sponsor.
Silver sponsors included Kinghts of Columbus,

Community booster sponsors were listed as SunBank, McGuire's Canvas, CellTel, Marina Hotel, Colonial Room, Seminole National Bank, Stairs Realty, Gramkow Funeral Home, Lakeview Nursing Home, and Hirsh Chiropractic.

Jones said a number of local merchants and clubs must also be commended for their support and, such as the case with the Sanford Women's Club, donation of facilities. She said many of the businesses donated Heme used as door prices

They want Florida's trade

MIAMI - A Hollywood shipping organization is accused of setting unfairly cheap cargo fares from South Florida to the Caribbean that hurt other Gulf ports.

The Port of New Orleans and the International Freight Forwarders & Customs Brokers of New Orleans Inc., have filed a complaint claiming the rates should be equal since the distance to the Caribbean from Louisiana and Florida is relatively the same.

South Florida controls 12 percent of U.S. trade with Latin America, compared to 7 percent for New Orleans.

A first hearing on the complaint, filed with the Federal Maritime Commission against Hollywood-based Latin American Shipping Service Association, is scheduled for Monday in Washington. It is seeking a commission order to equalize the rates between the two areas and for damages.

'There is no validity in the charges at all," said Keith Pomkowski, executive director of LASSA. "The price of the cargo is based on the market conditions."

The complaint argues that the rates shouldn't be so high for Gulf ports, especially since trucking costs are cheaper to New Orleans and many southern textile mills are closer.

Rain in Spain grounds shuttle

NASA has just seven minutes on any given day to send Atlantis on the most fuel-efficient route to Mir. Sunday's liftoff time is 7:30 a.m.

The weather at Kennedy was perfect Saturday morning. But rain, low clouds or gale-force wind at all three shuttle runways in Spain and Morocco posed too much of a risk - a rare occurrence — and managers called off the launch.

"We're a little disappointed, but we understand how the rules work," commander Kenneth Cameron said, sighing,

The way we were: looking back at Christmas parties

This is a continuation of the Polly Pig Tail/Junior Miss Club saga. Yes, we know that some of the things we did were silly, but isn't childhood and adolescence a time for silliness and fun? Don't laugh at us too much because probably your childhood also was filled with similar incidents. I hope so, anyway, because we sure had a wonderful time growing up in Sanford.

Club Activities

I certainly can't remember all the things we did through the years, but I can give you an idea. We did several things for other people; the one I remember most was going to the Old Foks Home (now the Museum of Seminole County History) and singing and putting on some sort of program for the residents. We did this quite often. One Christmas, two little girls from a family that Mrs. Charles Park, Sr. was helping came to our Christmas party and we gave them gifts. We also made scrapbooks for the Children's Hospital in Umatilla, plus many other things I can't

When we were in the sixth grade, we marched in the Christmas parade. We wore red shirts and white biouses and carried a large sign telling who

For a couple of years at least,

we learned a craft or some such at each meeting. I'm not into crafts, so have forgotten all of these except for making dish gardens at Rosemary Garner's and decorating egg shells at Nancy Roundtree's. We had parties - hayrides. skating, scavenger hunts, follow the arrow, and canasta. We went to the beach, Sanlando Springs, and Blue Springs. We were continually planning parties, but several would fall through for various reasons such as not being able to get a truck for a hayride, no one's mother could drive us to the beach or springs. there would be a conflict of activities, we didn't have any money, etc. But we persevered and managed to have quite a few social events through the years.

There were no skating rink, so skating parties were held on the sidewalks at Seminole High School and nearby. I remember skating down French Hill on the sidewalk many times. We could usually get Mr. Roundtree's truck for hayrides, but there was the agony of having to ask a boy to those. I remember one time that Jeanette Cleveland asked two boys, saying we could always use an extra one! I recall that at one of the first havrides we had we came back to Sandra Dunn's where we sat around a bonfire and ate, and then played spin the bottle. That was about as daring as we got back then!

I know that we had a going away party for Lynn Raulerson at Sanlando Springs before she moved to Atlanta after the seventh grade. I have pictures of us eating at one of the picnic tables. and in one, Lynn is sticking her tounge out at the camera. Lynn now has her doctorate degree and is a biology professor at the University of Guam. She has traveled extensively in the Far East and has had all sorts of interesting adventures. I haven't seen her since we were about 15. but I receive a delightful letter from her every few years.

The Big Arguement I know we had little squabbles through the years as even good friends will have, but we had one arguement that everyone was involved in and feelings ran pretty hot. Of course it was really over something trivial, but See Parties, Page SA teenagers have a different perspective.

This is one thing I remember quite well, but I also have the club minutes. On Oct. 23, 1951, we voted to have a slumber party in Betty Anne Stiles' garage at which time we would have a christmas tree and exchange presents. I remember being a little concerned at the time the Christmas party had always been at my house. But I also knew that our parties didn't always materialize so I wasn't too upset.

Barb Cassube's house, Barb asked how much we were to pay for Christmas presents at Betty Anne's . Several people said that the Christmas party was always at Grace Marie's . Well, the minutes said it would be at Betty Anne's. The group voted to vote over and when we did the result was again at Betty Anne's. There was still dissatisfaction so we discussed it some more and voted to vote over again. This

Thank you, seniors...

The torch has been extinguished. Sanford's Civic Center, bustling with activity this past week, is quiet. Robust seniors visiting for the contests, are gone.

The Golden Age Games is a yearly reminder that seniors don't necessarily take to their rocking chairs and let the golden years pass them by.

We in the Herald newsroom are (for the most part) not yet old enough to compete in the games. But, in covering the events for photos and stories this past week, we saw about 1,500 seniors who inspired us to start practicing. We learned strength and vitality are not the privilege of the young, but the rewards of hard work at any age. We learned getting older is getting better. To all the senior athletes who converged on Sanford for the games: Thank you for showing us your collective vibrant spirit.

...and games' organizers

Kudos are in order for the tireless dedication of some local people who make the games a reality from behind the scenes. The co-chairwomen of the 1995 Golden Age Games were Lisa Jones, Kim Sosnowski, Roni Mott, and Yvette Hartsfield, who may be sleeping late this morning, now that the games have ended. The young ladies really worked hard and should be commended.

Honorary chairman Jim Gun an invaluable asset to the sames. Jones attributes the success of the sames to Ganster's input and support. He was involved in all aspects, from planning to erchestrating. Platinum appnears were Seminole County Convention & Vieitors Bureau, and Ameri-

Life.

The Over 50 Club was a Gold sponsor.
Silver sponsors included Kinghts of Columbus, Southland Corporation, Texaco Express Lube, Stement Stromberg-Carlson, Kiwania Club, RICH Plan, and First Union.

Bronze sponsors of the games were: McDonalds, Florida Power and Light, and T.G. Lee.

Community booster sponeors were listed as SunBank, McGuire's Canvas, CellTel, Marine Hotel, Colonial Room, Seminole National Bank, Stairs Realty, Gramkow Funeral Home, Lakeview Nursing Home, and Hirsh Chiro-

Jones said a number of local merchants and clubs must also be commended for their support including the Senford Women's Club members for their donation of facilities. Many area businesses also donated items used as door prizes during the various events.

LETTER

Code violations

On Oct. 6, we received a notice from the City of Sanford which stated that as property owners my wife and I were in violation of City Code. The violation was "Recreational (R.V., Boat) not allowed in the front yard." The notice also stated the violation must be corrected within two weeks or we could be fined up to $250 per day.

It would seem the City commission in March of 1995 changed the old code which allowed recreational equipment to be parked in a front yard if it had a up to date Florida tag.

I called City Hall and as it happens many times was met with an arrogant attitude. A neighbor (he also got a notice) on Oct. 9, spoke with the commission and got no relief. He was teld by Commissioner Howell and I was told by City Hall to park the equipment in the back yard. Well Mr. Howell and the arrogant person at City Hall, you cannot get into our back yards with a vehicle as the side yards are too narrow and there is no alley.

Next he was told to park the equipment at the storage yard on 17-92. This cost money we do not have and makes you wonder who owns part of the storage yard or is getting a kick back. Also units parked at storage areas are broke into, vandalised and items stolen. Who is going to pay for this? The City? We think not.

We don't know about the rest of the citizens of Sanford but we are sick and tired of the City of Sanford and a small group of people like those in the Historical District and see self-serving com-missioner like Howell telling us how we can use property we worked and paid for. We believe some members of the commission need to remember that they are elected to govern for the people not govern the people.

If you own recreational equipment such as a boat, motor home, travel trailer, pop up camper, etc. or you are just tired of too much government, you need to call your commissioner and voice your dislike of the new code and have it returned to the old code or you will get a letter from City Hall. Technicians are emerging as the basic employee of the digital information age. Technical workers have increased nearly 300 percent since 1950 to 30 million. Argentina received one resume in 1994. This year resumes have ranged between 8-10 month-ly. In 1989 6 percent of Stanford University's graduating class was interested in overseas employment compared to 14 percent in 1994. New York University's Stern School of Business experienced a 20 percent increase in students taking jobs of Americans working abroad as teachers, engineers, editors and small busi-

Technology has become a part of a significant number in American homes. In 1994, 37 percent of households had personal computers. Approximately 25 million beepers are in use and 50 percent of the users are between 18-29 years old. Five million cellular phones will be sold this year and by 1996 6 percent of households will have fax machines

Educational requirements for technicians varies from high school graduates with on the job training to those with college degrees. Economist Kristina J. Shelley suggest that "the number of college graduates who take jobs in the technologial fields will grow by 75 percent to 2.2 million, over the coming decade.

It is clear that employment in the 21st Century will require math and acience literacy. Consequently it is incumbent upon adults to encourage the children with whom they interact to become well acquainted with math and science. The challenge of the future is unclear because many jobs of the future are not yet known to us.

One Jew had killed another

BOSTON-The disbelief ran through the week of mourning like a chord in a minor key. It echoed throughout lerast as comberty as the prayers of the Kaddish. The prime minister had been assassinated. Yitzhak Rabin had been murdered by Yigal Amir. One Jew had killed another.

A men on a Jerusalem street talked about the "family shame" piled onto the searing national loss. A woman on a bus shook her head in shattered despair not just at death, but at the act of "fratricide." An American Jew gethered with others in sorrowful observance feld a reporter, "I couldn't believe it. I couldn't even report it to another person in the room."

It was as if the lerasits, as if the worldwide Jewish community, had retained some rem-nant of innocence until this moment. However common the violence of the Middle East—the bus bombings, the murders, the enmity between Jews and Arabe, the polarized rheteric of leraeli politics—they had believed that one line would never be crossed. Jews do not kill Jews.

This lingering innocence was surely the least of the long, unrelenting history of persecution. The state of least was, after all, founded on the conscience of a post-Holocaust world and on the Jovish light for survival. In Jewish history, the danger always came from t 'others'—from pagrens, from Hasia, from Arabs who from pagrams, from Nasis, fro and to push them into the sea.

When American Jove visited level over the past half-century, they came back bemuned and proud at the Jews in every role from farmer to general. But few over contemplated the job title of Jewish assessin.

Indeed when Araba committed acts of terror-iem, many levelis considered it business as usual. When an levelit killed 20 Araba at prayer in a manque, the same Jews, helding themselves to a high moral standard, anguished over the shame.

Wet the serry truth is that there is nothing unique about this interpretite horror.

We talk about a world of others strife, about one tribe or religion or nationality in conflict with another. Serbs and Croats and Muslims, Hutus and Tutais, Arabs and Jews. The list is important divide in this hard world is not over bloodlines or ways of worship. It's between those who pursue reason and those who dismiss it. It's between those who build and those who

We report that a town was "ethnically cleaned" by Serbs, a World Trade Center was bit by Muslims, a building in Oklahoma shattered by militants, a Japanese subway gassed by cultists. As if that said it all.

The clan of extremists, the culture of haters, the nationality of fanatics are our enemies even when they bear the markings of our own ancesbomb.

The disbelief ran through the week of mourning like a chord in a minor key.

This lesson is hard to learn. We tend to identify "our own kind" by genes, history and shared ceremony. People across the globe claim the superiority of their clan. The conviction that our way is right can be subverted to the belief that our own can do no wrong

When we huddle down in tribes/ it's easy to forget that we share the human condition—all of us born capable of reason or blind fanaticism, of creating or destroying. And when we forget that, we also forget the power of words to make the difference.

Yitzhak Rabin was a man who believed in reason. He was uncomfortable with the language of feeling. He rarely danced or sang, except for a peace aong on the last night of his life. He was a warrior who became a peacemaker. He availabled grown atom of the way to er. He anguished every step of the way to a handshake with his old enemies. He came a long, hard road to hope.

He was murdered by a sealot who wore a skulicap but came from the other side of the great divide. A man who named God as his co-conspirator in his attempt to kill peace.

I have no doubt that Yigal Amir believes he had the approval of these who called Rabin a "traitor," even a "Nast," who surrounded his home calling for his death. But did those extremists believe that someone would take them at their word? Or did they unlessh the vitriol thoughtlessly secure in the belief that, after all, Jews do not kill Jews?

Today a man whose half-smile lit up the life of his granddaughter is dead. A remnant of innocence has been shattered by the bullets that left bloodstains on the peace lyrics Yitzhak Rabin had folded and put into his pocket.

Arafat death would kill peace process

WASHINGTON The assassination of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin has made Yasser Arafat a marked man more than ever

The chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization is no stranger to danger. He has already survived more than 50 assassination attempts. But PLO sources fear that the Rabin killing has given Israeli and Palestinian radicals the impetus to finally put Arafat away for good.

"He is extraordinarily vulnerable right now," one PLO source told us.

The risk has multiplied because radicals on both sides realize that while the Rabin assassination has wounded the peace process, an Ararat assassination would kill the conciliation altogether. While Rabin has been succeeded by his partner in the peace effort, Shimon Peres, there te no clear successor to Arafat within the

"The Israelis

Liberation Organization is no stranger to danger.

would not negotiate with any Palestinian but Arafat," one PLO source told us. "The only way that Rabin made progress was by working with Arafat. Losing Arafat could lose the whole process."

PLO insiders have predicted to us for years that if Arafat was ever assassinated the deed would be done by a fellow Palestinian just as Rabin was killed by an Israeli. One source close to Arafat sees it as a game of one-upmanship between radicals on both sides. "The laraeli radicals are now saying to the Palestinian radicals, 'We did our part you do yours," said this source.

While radical Jews and Arabs see eye-toeye on virtually nothing, this source noted. their aims come together on one point: "They both would love to kill the whole peace process. Now all they have to do is kill one

The PLO has severely tightened security around Arafat in the last week, according to PLO spokesman Marwan Kanafani. "There is a security alert in the Gaza Strip." he said. "It to contagious. We saw this guy, supposed to be one of the best guarded men in the world, and he was killed."

Arafat aides have taken the unprecedented step of conducting no less than three body searches of all victors including journalists before they enter Arafat's office, which sits between a beach and a crowded street. The number of security guards outside PLO headquarters has also multiplied, and access to many of the roads leading to the building has been completely cut-off.

Arafat intimates say he was deeply angulahed by the fact that accurity concerns forced him to stay away from Rabin's funeral. But Arafat has been able to offer his heartfelt tributes by television, at one point referring to Rabin's widow as his "sister."

Palestinian terroriet Ahmed Jibril has previously told us in blunt terms that Arafat would be gunned down by an accessin's bullets. Although they once were comrades, Jibril and Arafat had a public split in 1986. And in the last few years, Jibril's hatred of Arafat has increased as the PLO leader has renounced terrorism, recognized largel and courted the United States.

During a 1989 interview in Syria. Jibril told us that assessmation by angry Palestinian fundamentalists is a "natural end" for Arafat. "We can figure that the end of Arafat is inevitable," Jibril said. "It will be a natural end. It is coming shortly. As similar as the end of Sadat."

The goal of the project is to provide a ray of hope for children living in war-torn Bosnia, Croatia and Rwanda. For the project, individuals take shoe boxes and fill them with small toys, school supplies, personal hygiene items and such.

The bottom of the boxes are wrapped and the top is marked with the childs gender and age. Participants are asked not to send any toy guns, knives or war related Items Most of the children receiving the boxes are refugees who have lost everything because of war. The combined goal of the Central Florida YMCA is 80,000

'I would say, from where I am," Jones said, "the two biggest and most popular events of this year's games were the talent show (Thursday night) and the the cruise on board the Rivership Romance (Tuesday night)."

She said approximately 300 persons were in the audience for the talent show at the Sanford

Monroe and the St. Johns River as the sun wound its way below the horizon ahead of the cruising As in past years, may individuals stood out as received similar honors last year, and some the obstacle race for women. She has done so for the past several years, being the only person over 100 to enroll for any competitive event.

Other participants who demonstrated a continuing number of victories in first, second and/or third places include Lake Mary's Harriet Boyd, Sanford's Katie Moncrief, Ria Ter-Haar, Bob Ashton, and many others.

Many of the persons who took ribbons at Sanford's games this year, will be eligible to go on to the State games, which will be held December 4 through 11 in Kissimmee. Next year's winners will also go on to state competition, with 1997 winners qualifying for the national games to be held in Tuscon, Arizona.

"It was a wonderful week," Jones concluded. "I believe everyone had a good time, and everyone concerned with holding these games is appreciative of the help people gave, as well as the cooperation shown by participants, their family members and guests. It was great."

This elopment created a new problem. Should Betty Anne still be in the Club? After much discussion, on Feb. 12, 1962, we voted her out of the club, mainly because our mothers were against having a married person as a member.

At the next meeting, we made a new rule that anyone getting married was automatically out of the club. We had a Coke Party for Betty Anne and gave her an iron. Joni Saunders was voted back in the club in her place.

They were thrilled with Cal Sternberg's stories of running away from home at 17 and joining the Army. Once he let his parents know where he was, they promised all would be forgiven if they could visit him at boot camp. At the conclusion of the visit she made him promise one thing.

Wood reminded those in at-tendance veterans are not just soldiers who fight for a living.

"Veterans are mainstays of our communities," he said. 'Veterans are the embodyment of America itself."

Wood said the ceremony was also a good opportunity to pay a special tribute to the veterans of World War II.

"This could be one of the last opportunities to honor so many veterans of that war at one time," Wood said.

After suggesting it was an appropriate time to honor World War II veterans, he added veter-ans of the Korean Conflict and the Vietnam war should also be recognized and honored.

"Their sacrifice and their suf-

Following Wood's keynote address, veterans, family members and friends bowed their heads in remembrance of America's heroes.

LAKE MARY— Although winning a district title was no longer an option, the Lake Mary Rams played with a much stronger motivation then titles and trophys evoke; pride. The Rams prevailed 13-7 over the Seminole Fighting Seminoles at Don T. Reynolds Field Friday night in a non-district football contest.

It was the last regular game of the season for both teams, and it was Senior Night for the Rams, all the makings of a must-win game, not for statistical goals, but, for personal ones.

"We were playing for a winning season out there tonight," Lake Mary coach Doug Peters said. "We've had a couple of tough weeks against some pretty high caliber teams, but I'm real proud of our team. They hung in there, and we had a lot of confidence going into this week. This really was an important win for us to cap off a winning season."

Friday night marked the first Lake Mary home game since October 6 when the Rama defeated the Lake Howell Silver Hawks 19-18 in district competition. After the Lake Howell game, Lake Mary went 0-3 during a three-week road trip against Edgewater, DeLand, and Lake Brantley, bringing new meaning to the phrase 'there's no place like home'.

Although the team's regular season is over, Peters is hopeful that the Rotary Bowl committee will come knocking on Lake Mary's door with an invitation to it's

"We would be real honored if that were to happen," Peters said. "We want to represent Seminole County in the Rotary Bowl."

In Friday night's game, the Seminoles capitalized on a Lake Mary fumble in the first quarter to go up 7-0. Davion Hampton capped the drive with a 1-yard dive. Joe Battista booted the extra point to finish the scoring for the Tribe.

The Rams capitalized on a Seminole fumble early in the second quarter to tle the score at seven, with Recolon Jumpp manuevering his way 4-yards for the score. Chad Kessler's extra point evened up the score.

Lake Mary took the lead on its next possession when Donnie Casey took a pass from Shaun St. Dennis S-yards out and scampered to pay dirt. The extra point attempt was blocked and the Rams led 13-7 with 1:14 left in the first half. The Casey touchdown would prove to be the last points scored by either team.

Lake Howell heroics claim District 4 title

WINTER PARK — In the not-too-distant past, Lake Howell High School enjoyed a run where it was a perpetual favorite to challenge for the district championship in football.

That may be, but just as Bisceglia had anticipated, the Silver Hawks found themselves locked in a furious battle with the equally underappreciated Lions Friday night at Richard L. Evans Field.

After 9 3/4 games, the Silver Hawks' and Lions' seasons had come down to one 12-minute period. Tied 2-1 in the district standings, the teams were tied at 14-14 on the scoreboard.

Dr. Phillips comeback spoils Lyman homecoming

LONGWOOD — For both Dr. Phillips and Lyman High School, the playoffs would start a week early. However this game would be different, both the loser and the winner would go home for the season. The Panthers, who going into the game had won five of their last six, took advantage of their last matchup by beating

Lyman 29-15 at Cariton Henry Stadium Friday

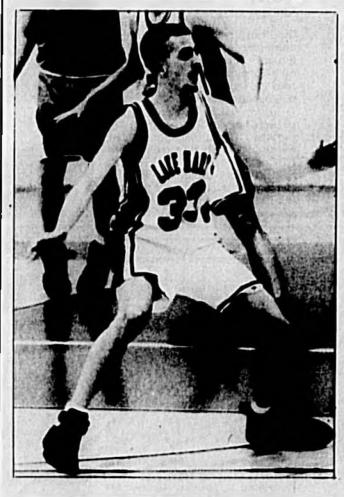

An estimated crowd of 3,000 fans, excited over the homecoming festivities, watched their Greyhounds take control early in the first quarter when Lyman recovered a fumble on the Papther eight-yard line. Seminole, which won the SAC in 1993 and 1994, has six returning players from last season's team that was 25-9 overall ands 8-2 in the conference.

Guards Nequal Bush and Ezekiel Seyumour. forwards Nate Hall and Tim McCloud, and center Chuck Smith return from last year's squad. Forward Reggie Holloway, who sustained a football injury earlier this year, will give the Tribe added depth once he heals. Seminole must overcome the loss of All-SAC, All-County and All-Countral Florida guards Braid Trains and Eric Maketts.

"Our main goals are to get experience and improve every day," said Seminole coach Bob Traina. "Lake Mary, Oviedo and Lake Brantley are the best teams in the SAC. We just haven't got enough experience this year, but we are going to be really good down the road."

Lake Brantley posted a 15-12 record last year, including a 6-4 showing in the SAC. Patriots coach Steve Jucker only lost forward Greg Tadd from last year's team that reached the 6A subregional playoffs, while six senior players return. Guards Dee Brown, Brian Whitman and Tim Pollack, forwards Jimmy Adamczyk and Joe Yamin, and center Kyle Becker should give Lake Brantley experienced leadership this season. The Patriots will be helped by the addition of sophomore forward James Gilchrist and senior tesses of Power Williams. transfer Deyon Williams.

"We have high expectations for this season, and we hope to do well," said Lake Brantley assistant coach Frank Gooch. "We are looking to our seniors for leadership this season. Lake Mary has the best team in the SAC, but we have the

has the best team in the SAC, but we have the talent to challenge them."

Oviedo finished 13-14 overall last season, but managed a third place finish in the SAC. The Lions lost guards Brian Buchanon and forward Joel Freund from last year's team, but won the AAU Tournament and placed second at the Sunshine State Games this past summer without them. Guards Seth Fowler and Chad Hill, and forwards Phillip Graves, Ben Knapp and John Harper return from last year.

"We have a pretty young team, but we have a chance to win the SAC," said Oviedo coach Ed Bolton. "That's our goal, and we're just going to take it one game at a time to try and get there."

Lyman managed a 13-13 overall record, and was 5-5 in the SAC last season. Unfortunately, the Greyhounds lost Charles Simons, Dwayne Bell, Brad Lewis, Luis Melendez, Phil Assing, Marion Dixon and Ian Vaz to graduation. Guard Pete Greenwood leads a group of six Lyman hoopsters that returns from last year's team. Seniors Tavarion Raymon and Hunter Marks. who will both see action at guard and forward this season, help give Lyman some depth. Forwards Lance Vas and Shawn Wade also return from last season, along with center brain Bradley. Norman Ready will also call upon freshman Alford Cleveland this season. "We lost a lot of people, so this will be a rebuilding year for us," Ready said. "We just have new kids who are learning our system. We have pretty good athletic ability, so we'll be all right.

Coach Steve Kohn and Lake Howell will try to improve on last season's 10-20 record, which included a 2-8 showing in the SAC. The Silver Hawks lost guard Paul Rovinsky, forward Xan Manning and center Brent Steele to graduation. To make matters worse, foward Anthony Bryson is ineligible to start the season. Senior guard Duane Greene is the only returing player from last year's team.

Guards Reggie Kohn and Robert Jordan, forward Cliff Rogers and center Ryan Smith will see their first season of varsity action this year. Kohn's main main goal for this season is to try to be competitive in every game, and added that Bryson's return would be a great help to the ylung Silver Hawks.

"Our young players are very skilled, but I will be able to better asses thing once Anthony comes back," Kohn said. "The true test will be what we can do in the fourth quarter of a close game. because sometimes games can get away from young teams."

"Greed Bomb" What's up in the NFL?....Browns hit with

Well here we are in Week Eleven, and we have some things to discuss. First on the list is last week's LOCK OF THE WEEK. Denver trounced Arizona, and in doing so preserved their playoff hopes. As my selection, I told you that the Broncos (-8) would win the game by multiple touchdowns. The net result? Elway led his team to victory by more than four touchdowns. Tony Guru wasn't sold on the game, but we both loved the Cowboys Monday Night and made a handsome profit. At my current pace, I should be financially prepared for my annual trip to the Super Bowl.

Football fans in Cleveland were the latest to be hit with the" Greed Bomb". To my dismay and diagust, Art Modell, owner of the franchise, announced he was moving the team to Baltimore.
Thousands of loyal fans were stunned at the news, and even the team suffered in a loss to the Oilers. This announcement has implications not only for the game, but for society as well. We as a people have forced our mayors and governors into a pursuit of professional sports teams at any cost. We build multi-million dollar stadiums an finance them with bonds and tax increase. We've allowed shrewd businessmen who own teams to become feudal football lords. Once the stadium gets a little rusty these "lords" threaten to move the team to greener pastures. This leads mayors to promise new facilities and even greater tax breaks. This madness must stop, but don't count on the owners to take the first step. If I owned a team I would probably do the same thing.

The only way to successfully combat this trend is for cities and far to stop allowing franchises to be such valuable hostages. Personally, I think Art Modell is a back-stabbing scoundrel. The Cleve-land fans have stuck with his Brownies through thick and thin, and what he has done to them is an absolute travesty. Trust me, the day is coming when the Super Bowl will be pay-per-view and they'll still make money, just ask Don King. I have no problem with supply and demand, capitalism, or the fact that the owners have the right to move their teams. I do however have a problem with the heartless and cowardly way that Modell went about his announcement. Enough lecturing, we'll just bet against them this

Focusing on Florida's teams, let's talk about Focusing on Florida's teams, let's talk about the Dolphins. Shula and Marino came up with a big win in San Diego and they needed it. Buffalo kept in pace with a win in Indianapolis, but with their injuries they're bound to lose soon. The Dolphins looked mediocre in the first half but came around in the second. San Diego looked terrible in this classic case of one team losing, rather than the other team winning. That won't be the case this week as the Patriots roll into town. This is a must win for Parcella and his town. This is a must win for Parcells and his young team. If they lose this game the Patriots are finished for the season. Bryan Cox needs to keep his big mouth shut as he continues to cost the team in penalties. I can't believe that Shula has put up with it this long. Maybe it is time for the old guy to make way for Jimmy Johnson.

Now let's discuss my team. Sam and the boys had the week off and as I mentioned last week, they needed it. As they travel to Detroit Sunday they'll need everything in the playook to get the win. I think the only advantage we have this week is the extra rest. Detroit is tough at home, and Barry Sanders is due for a big game. The Bucs will again have to count on defense, in other words Hardy "Hulk" Nickerson, to keep them in this one. I'm crossing my fingers that the offense can produce points, but I'm not at all certain. Remember, I'm not backing off of my presesson upset special, the Bucs will make the playoffs. I guess we'll have to do it with defense.

Let's look at Sunday's schedule and find some

Both of these teams have had their problems lately. Bledsoe and the Patriots need a win to survive. This is way too many points for a game I expect to be close. One thing is certain more than fifty points will be scored. Delphins 31, Patriots

OAKLAND (-6) at NEW YORK

The Bad Boys are going to pummel the Giants. I admire the fact that the Raiders are known for cheating and are proud of it. They could give up 200 yards of penalties and still win this one.

BUFFALO (-3) vs. ATLANTA It's tough to bet on any team with so many injuries, so I won't. The Bills continue to amaze me as they continue to win. Winter is here, which is good news for Buffalo at home. I just got a sick feeling in my stomach. Falcons 21, Bills 17.

GREEN BAY vs. CHICAGO

The bookies haven't set a line for this one yet. The reason is simple, the Packers don't know if they have a quarterback. Big Al has fled the Artic winds, but plans to make a cameo appearance Sunday. This will be a sub-zero battle of running games. Big Al pulls a Fonzie and tells Chicago to "Sit on it". Packers 17, Bears 13.

NEW ORLEANS (-3) vs. INDIANAPOLIS

The Saints earned by respect with their victory over the Rammies last week. They seem to have solved the teams drinking problem, and should be ready to Faulk and the Colts this week. Nevermind, the temptations of Bourbon Street will get the best of this team. Celts 28, Saints

DETROIT (-6) VS. TAMPA BAY Once again Coach Fontes and the Lions need a win at home. If they don't get it, there could be trouble with the fans. Break out the riot gear tough-guy, the Bucs roll Sunday. Bucs 17, Lions MOUSTON (-4) VS. CINCINNATI These teams hate eachother, and they will prove it. Fights and late hits will make this a great game to watch. The Oiler's big win over the Browns last week didn't fool me. They have a great defense but no offense. The opposite is true with the Bengals. Too close to call, so I'll go with the Hometown kid, Go Blake, go. Bengale 21,

JACKSONVILLE (even) vs. SEATTLE I can't believe the lowly Scahawks aren't getting any points. I think the Jaguars will win this one and put the Scahawks where the belong, right above the Jets. Jaguars 24, Scahawks 17. ST. LOUIS (-7) VS. CAROLINA

The Rammies will win this game, but only because the Panthers no longer have a running game. This will be the first game in the Ram's new $280 million stadium. Bruce will have 200 yards. Rams 24, Carolina 20.

DALLAS (-11) VS. SAN PRANCISCO When was the last time the Niners were an eleven point underdog? Put it this way, they're thinking of signing Gino Torretta, so they must have real problems. Cowboys will look much better Sunday than they did Monday night. I still think this is too many points for the defending Super Bowl Champ. No I don't. Cowbeys 31, Niners 17.

BAN DIEGO (-1) VS. KANBAS CITY Even Junior Seau can't do everything. Bono and the Chiefs should do fine, but watch out for the big game from Stan Humphries. Chiefs 27, Chargers 18.

MINNESOTA (-2) at ARIZONA I couldn't care less about this game, but know the Vikings will win. The Cardinals are so bad they should trade uniforms with Arizona State and start playing on Saturday. Vikings 27.

DENVER (-1) at PHILADELPHIA The Broncos filled my wallet last week and could probably do the same this week. I ain't betting against the Eagles at home. Elway doesn't like the artificial turf, but the Eagles had one less day to rest. I guess I would bet on it. Breaces 24, Eagles 17.

PITTSBURGH (-5) Vs. CLEVELAND The Brownies are a team with an identity crisis. What city are we from? Who's our quarterback? Why did we trade Bernie? Do we have to get beaten severely on national television? Yes, and the team that will do it is the Steelers. Steelers 17, Brownies 9.

Every week I issue what I consider to be the best pick against the spread in the schedule. This is the game that after research and contempla-tion, I feel most confident about releasing as my LOCK OF THE WEEK. Warren Moon and his Vikings (-2) will bring my record to an impressive 10-2. Many readers have accused me of fixing the games, and I'll admit that hurts. I guess there will always be people trying to tear another down. Good luck this week, and don't worry abut fixing the roof this Sunday, the rainy season is over!

Drawdown of Lake Kissimmee underway

With the drawdown of Lake Kissimmee started, the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission and the South Florida Water Management District (SFWMD) have made preparations to ensure public access to the lake during low water conditions.

The gradual lowering of the water level in Lake Kissimmee was begun on Nov. 1. The drawdown schedule calls for the lake to be lowered five vertical feet between Nov. 1. 1995 and March 1, 1996. The lake will be held at that level until June 1, 1996, at which time it will begin to refill. While the water level to down, there still will be 20,000 acres of fishable water.

The commission and SFWMD is conducting the drawdown to revitalise fish and wildlife resources and their habitats. The wildlife resources and their habitats. He lake is afflicted by tussocks (floating mats of vegetation), thousands of acres of dense hydrilla, thick smothering growth of shallow vegetation, and rapidly increasing organic sediments on the lake bottom. According to Commission biologist Ed Moyer, who will supervise the multi-million dollar project.

Fishing is good on Lake Kissimmee and with cool weather approaching, bass and crappie should provide anglers with plenty of action. Currently, bream flahermen are catching daily bag limits of bluegill and catching daily bag limits of bluegill and shellcracker by bottom fishing worms near Markers 5B at the south end of the lake.

Anglers should plan ahead for some great fishing during the drawdown. Crapple and bream fisherman enjoyed much higher than normal catch rates and harvest during the 1977 drawdown of Lake Kissimmes.

Largemouth beas catch rates also were excellent during the 1977 drawdown, so base anglers willing to release their catches this spring may experience a superb fishery similar to Farm 15 in Indian River County next year.

A trophy base rule will be imposed on Lake Klasimmee for one year beginning Nov. 1 to protect the largemouth base fishery during the drawdown. The rule allows angiers to keep only one fish over 34 inches per day, providing the opportunity to harvest or release that "once-in-a-lifetime trophy catch." All other bass must be diately released to the water un-

Now is the time to think about BIG bass. They will be on the move until March, and large shiners are the way to go for fish over eight pounds. My favorite tactic is to slow troll live shiners with an electric trolling motor around emergent weedlines.

Action in the river is still slow for base Action in the styler is still slow for base with record high water levels. Level lakes will have better action as base are confined by clearly defined banks. Shiners and plastice worms are top offerings for big base. Schooling base with 10-15 pound range, a few tarpon, and scattered redfish, jack crevalle, floundery ledyfish, and trout. Snook and tarpon are sheeties River. The also active in the Bo best action is taking place on th outgoing

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports very little offshore fishing due to high seas and dirty water. Inside the Port, expect shoepshood and flounder to provide plenty of action. Trout and redfish are rated a fair on the flots of the Basess and Indian column.

The Rumbleys wed 50 years; Selma turns 75

"Talk it out straightforward," is Thelma Rumbley's credo for a happy, long-lasting marriage.

And Thelma should know. She and her husband, John Thomas Rumbley, have just celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. The Rumbleys were married Oct. 21, 1945 in the First United Methodist Church of Sanford by the Rev. Ed McKinley.

Thelma is a firm believer in talking things out, no matter what, and then starting all over with a clean slate.

DORIS DIETRICH

Born in Windermere, the former Thelma Jones and her family moved to Sanford when she was a small child. She fondly recalls meeting her husband in the fifth grade when his father drove him to school with an injured leg. Thelma said John Thomas was on crutches as the result of a mule kicking him. She went on to graduate from Seminole High School in 1942 and has always been a homemaker.

John Thomas, a native Sanford son, who was born at the old Fernand Laughton Hospital and is a veteran of World War II, served his country for 20 years in the U.S. Navy. He is currently semi-retired after 25 years with Southern States Utilities in De-visit their children and other points of interest. They also enjoy gardening. Their three children are: Tommy Rumbley of Sanford; Mary Susan Chase, San Diego, Calif.; and Melissa Gilliam of Portsmouth, R.I. Their six grandchildren are: Tracie Rumbley, Lisa Campbell, Jacob Chase, Elice and Micah Gilliam and Stephen Chase, San Diego, who was unable to attend due to his school schedule. The three great grandchildren are: Amanada, Lindsey and Dylan.

In celebration of their anniversary, Theima's family enter-tained at a recpetion and family reunion at the American Legion building in Lake Helen. More than 80 family members and out-of-town guests were in at-tendance for the enjoyable event including a big barbecue cookout, complete with an anniversary cake. Guesta arrived from all-Florida as well as from North Carolina town according to Eilen Carpenter. In fact his chubby, round and bearded face lights her home all year round. SANFORD - Santa Claus has already come to Carpenter's collection has been about two years in the making. Beginning with old world Santas the numbers have grown to over 25.

Thelma said the celebration was great...great."

Although the actual collecting began with her son, she said, "I started getting them for him and then I started liking them so I decided to collect them too."

Just within the short time of four months that she has lived in Sanford, moving from Virginia, Carpenter has added six more jolly old men to her North Pole living space.

Porcelain, paper mache' and ceramic Santas from all around Virginia, and Sanford and states in between have found the Carpenter home to be a place to escape the hustle and bustle of little eives.

Since Christmas has always been "a big thing" to Carpenter, as she said, the upcoming holiday season will bring those snoring in boxes after her move out in the open to fascinate friends and

A favorite was mentioned as a Santa measuring 12 to 15 inches. "My favorite is a Santa that sits on a wooden pedestal. It has a porcelain head. He's carrying fruit and kindling wood."

Smallest of the collection measures only one inch high. Although still increasing in number. Santas in the Carpenter household even find residence on many of her mug collection.

Over 130 coffee mugs are still being unpacked.

This six-year hobby has solicted friends and loved ones to join in the fun.

"A friend that I used to work with would go to thrift stores," said Carpenter. "She would find me all kinds of strange and different mugs."

Mugs with logos from a Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Pennsylvannia all sit proudly on shelves. Carpenter laughed as she noted that although she resided in Virgina for 30 years she does not have a mug from Virginia in her collection. her collection.

she added that some were bought in the state such as a mug when tipped up to drink from has a pig snout. Anyone desiring a drink from this one resembles a pig for on-lookers.

Another unique mug was named as her half mug for a half cup of coffee. Not to forget a mug with a toothbrush for a handle and teeth at the bettern

Another favorite was a gift. "It says on the side it's a polish mug," she said. "There is no handle on the outside. The handle is on the inside."

Full size coffee mugs as well as minatures from the Hershey Chocolute Company in Pennsylvannia are all displayed. She now only collects unique and different mugs since the collection has grown so much.

Carpenter has three children, Danny, Laura and Greg and three grandchildren. She is the office manager at Tredway Allied Moving and Storage, Sanford, and is a member of the Sanford Church of Christ.

She was an active Girl Scout leader for three years and a volunteer for 15 years with the 4-H clubs. Since her move to Florida she has decided it's time for a break from a far too busy schedule. That just leaves more time to browse the stores to add to her hobby.

FDA proposes new rules for labeling fat content

WASHINGTON — Newly pro-posed federal rules on labeling milk containers may help con-sumers figure out what's low-fat and what isn't.

and what isn't.

Congress in 1990 voted that 2 percent milk could be labeled low-fat even though it is not. Federal law anys 3 grams of fat per serving is the most that every other faul can contain and still advertice as a low-fat alternative — but 3 percent milk has 5 grams per serving.

The milk industry agreed with consumer groups in May that that was confusing consumers — and on Thursday the Food and Drug Administration proposed new regulations to clear things tip.

The proposed rules say 2 percent milk now should be labeled "reduced fat," since it's better than whole milk but not as good as skim. Skim milk gets an advertising advantage — it can advertise as "fat-free."

The changes, which also apply to other dairy foods, "will make it easier for consumers to shop ... for healthier dairy foods," said Bruce Silverglade of the Center for Science in the Public Interest.

Space exercise may help earth people

By IRA DREYPUSS

WASHINGTON - Astronauta and invalids have something in common. Being off their feet - either in space or in bed — leaves muscles and bones weakened. So studies aimed at keeping astronauts strong when they don't even have the pull of gravity to fight may pay off for people on Earth. researchers say.

"What we are learning from bed rest and from actual space flight is what sorts of procedures are best for recovery of function after disuse," said Frank Sul-zman, chief of the National Aeronautics and Space Adminis-tration's research branch. He spoke in a teleconference after an Indianapolis meeting hosted by the American College of Sports Medicine in conjunction with NASA.

NASA's goal is to keep space travelers as strong at the end of a long trip as they were when they started. It's vital for

The Prototypes have been tested cosmonauts work out two hours by people who lie in a horizontal a day, three times a mark to the a day, three times a week in the early going, and double the number of hours toward the end, he said. Cosmonauts use exercise bikes and rowing machines to fortify their endurance; they also pull against elastic cords to simulate weight training in an attempt to preserve strength, he said. Even this, however, doesn't prevent some loss, Sulaman said. Cosmonauts lose about 1 percent of their bone density per month in such areas as the hip and lower spine, he said. Astronauts, whose time in orbit is far shorter than the cosmonauts', take aerobic equipment on space shuttle trips but are only experimenting with resistance equipment. Elastic cords were tried in the 1960s,

The space program also wants to cram as much exercise into the least time, said conference cochairman Timothy P. White of the University of California, Berkeley. "The most valuable commodity is an astronaut's time," and time spent exercising can't be used for other parts of the mission, he said.

The other cochairman, Kenneth Baldwin of the University of California, Irvine, has been experimenting on lab animals, using computers to add electrical stimulation to muscle. The goal is "maximal or nearmaximal force output," Baldwin

This could pay off for Earthbound exercisers. Stimulating more muscle cells to contract could result in doing as much work in two to five exercise repetitions as is done normally in 10-15 repetitions, Baldwin

This would take electrical atimulation beyond its current use in some therapies, such as strengthening knees after surgery, Baldwin said.

Some elite athletes hook themselves up to electrodes, hoping for additional training while they sleep, but there's no good evidence this works, White

And there are risks to playing with electricity. Baldwin said. 'in animals, if one stimulates just for the sake of sapping, you induce muscle atrophy." he

Also, electrical stimulation devices may not be all they are touted to be, Baldwin said. Quacks have often come up with electrical muscle-builders that just don't work, he said.

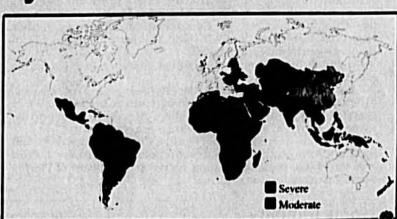

Vitamin A saves children's eyes and lives

Right now, we have the power to save the eyesight — in fact, the lives — of millions of children around the world by giving each of them a little pill.

The little pills are standard Vitamin A capsules in a therapeutic dosage of 200,000 International (IU). Providing one such capsule every four to six months can prevent xerophthatimia, a disease that leads to blindness, and also improve a child's resistance to pther potentially fatal diseases.

That's exactly what Helen Keller International currently doing in partnership with the world's largest vitamin company, Lanier Health Products, which has already donated 2 million vitamin A capsules and has already made the committ ment to wipe out xerophathalmia by the end of the century.

"It's simply not possible to overstate the importance of contributions to eliminate the shadow of unnecessary blindness and death from the lives of the world's most vulnerable inhabitants," said Susan E. Burger, PhD, Nutrition Director of the New York-based aid group.

Abortion-rights supporters call late term ban unconstitutional

Dy LAURIE Acces
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Partial-birth abortion is what some members of Congress call a late-term procedure they want to ban. But abortion-rights supporters have their own word for the lawmakers' plan - unconstitu-

The Supreme Court allows states to ban late-term abortions except when needed to preserve a mother's life or health. But there is no exception for the mother's health in the Housepassed bill that would make it a crime for doctors to perform a rarely used abortion procedure.

And that's where the opposing sides line up in this latest battle of the long-running war over abortion.

'There's nothing in this bill that violates the Constitution in any way," said Douglas Johnson of the National Right to Life Committee.

But Kate Michelman of the National Abortion Rights Action

League called the proposal "a direct violation of the constitutional right of privacy and choice" outlined by the Supreme Court in 1973 when it legalised abortion nationwide.

President Clinton opposes the bill "because it fails to provide for consideration of the need to preserve the life and the health of the mother," Attorney General Janet Reno said this week.

At issue is a procedure used in less than 1 percent of the 1.5 million abortions performed each year. Opponents call the procedure grisly and disgusting. Even abortion-rights supporters con-cede it's not pretty but say it is used when the health of the mother is seriously threatened.

The procedure, performed during the second half of a pregnancy, involves partly removing a fetus through the birth canal, feet first, and then collapsing the skull by suctioning out the brains to complete the removal.

The two sides even disagree on

Opponents call it partial-birth abortion; abortion-rights sup-porters say that's a made-up phrase and the true medical term is intact dilation and evacuation.

Whatever it is called, doctors convicted of performing the procedure would face a fine and up to two years in prison.

Women who undergo the procedure could not be prosecuted, but they could sue the doctors who performed it.

Even doctors who perform the procedure to save a woman's life could be estimated.

could be criminally prosecuted. But they could avoid punish-ment by proving at trial the procedure was necessary to save the woman's life and no other form of abortion would work.

form of abortion would work.

However, that defense would not be available to doctors who perform the procedure to protect a woman's health.

Northwestern University law professor Jane Larson said she doubts the Supreme Court would unheld such a law Pro-would uphold such a law. Protecting a woman's health, as well as her life, is "pretty much a trump card," she said.

The justices' interpretation of abortion rights has varied since the court's 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision. But the court always has said states cannot ban even late-term abortions when the mother's life or health are at

The court also said in 1986 that states cannot regulate abortions in a way that requires the mother "to bear an increased medical risk."

Opponents of the late-term procedure resist adding an exception to protect a mother's health, saying it could be interpreted so broadly as to make a ban ineffective.

On the same day the Supreme. Court issued its Roe vs. Wade ruling, the justices ruled in another case that an abortion patient's health can include emotional and psychological factors.

FDA eases rules for biotech drugs

By The Accodated Proce

WASHINGTON - The Food and Drug Administration is eliminating certain restrictions on biotechnology that could save the industry hundreds of mil-lions of dollars and speed the development of biotech drugs. The moves, announced Thursday, are part of an admin-istration package of regulatory reforms. "We're wiping away the cobwebs ... and bringing our partnership with the biotech industry into the 21st century where it belongs," said Health and Human Services Secretary

Donna Shalala.

Biotechnology uses living organisms to create everything from slow-ripening tomatose to complex gene therapy. When the field took off in the early 1960s, the FDA regulated biotech drugs more strictly than traditional ones because doctors knew so little about how these medicines would act inside people.

That has changed. The FDA has approved 32 biotech drugs and vaccines and more than 450 are now being tested in Americans. So the agency decided it's time to treat them the same as their traditional competitors.

Among the changes:

The 1,311 U.S. blotech companies will no longer have to get special licenses to operate manufacturing plants, sparing them thousands of pages of applications and months awaiting licensing inspections.

Now that companies have refined biotech manufacturing so precisely, the FDA will no longer examine each lot of a drug before it can be sold, significantly decreasing the time it takes a drug to get to market.

The FDA will respond within 30 days to new information submitted after it stops a clinical trial for safety questions, meaning testing of new drugs could be speeded up by several months.

The 21 different application forms companies now must wade through will be consolidated into one that is more user-friendly.

"It is a significant step forward," said Carl Feldbaum, president of the Biotechnology president of the mound industry Organization.

Shurgard welcomed to Lake Mary

From staff reports

LAKE MARY - Liberty Investment Properties of Altamonte Springs recently held a grand opening of its new $3 million Shurgard storage center in Lake Mary. The event was considered extra special.

It was called "special" because the award-winning Altamonte Springs commercial developer was one of 17 companies recognized by the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce and Seminole Community College, for its significant contribution to the country's economic growth in 1995.

Liberty, which teamed up this year with Seattle-based Shurgard to spearhead its Florida expansion, recently unveiled its 73,000 square-foot facility in Lake Mary, located on a five acre tract on Lake Mary Boulevard, just East of Rinchart Road.

According to Liberty President Mike Mikkelson, the facility features Shurgard's nationally registered trademark, a working lighthouse, and 621 individual storage units, 341 of which are climate controlled. Other features include 50 spaces for center, which was twice named America's Best New Storage Facility, Liberty has properties in Seminole, Orange, Volusia and Osceola counties.

Habitat for Humanity puts a roof over another family's head

Special to the Herald

SANFORD - More than 25 local contractors have donated their labor and material to help build Habitat for Humanity's newest home in Seminole County. The home, located at 2416 Bummerlin Avenue in Sanford, is to be officially dedicated this afternoon at 2 p.m.

This is the first time so many private contractors have come together in such an effort. The project was originated and coor-dinated by Brice Building Company of Orlando. Brice, a commercial general contractor, recently built the new J.C. Penney store at the Seminole Towne Center mall. Brice also provided volunteer labor for the Habitat site work, concrete work, carpentry and general clean up.

"This was an extraordinary effort by many people," said Marci Carter, executive director for Habitat for Humanity of Seminole County. "The people at Brice and all of the other contractors came together to do a very special thing. We're grateful for their involvement."

Bill McCorkle, project manager on the house for Brice, said his company decided to get involved after speculating that leftover construction material from a large commercial job might be enough to build a house. That wasn't the case however, and most of the material for the house was purchased new or donated by the contractors. "The whole project was done without any contracts and in the real spirit of working together," McCorkle said. "This project gave us the chance to see our effort directly benefit someone who needed it. We met the family that will live in the house, and we saw the condition of where they had been living. Now, we know they'll have a nice, new house with new floors and carpeting and air condi-tioning, and a solid roof over their heads. They'll be living in a much more positive environment.'

The family, a single mother and her teen-age daughter, have been living in a trailer.

The dedication of the new home has been acheduled for 2 p.m. this afternoon at 3416 Summerlin Avenue in Sanford. The public is cordially invited to attend and see for themselves what amazing accomplishments can be made when local bust-ness leaders and companies combine to support Habitat for Humanity in Beminole County.
