

Nearly Half Million Have Gout

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Nearly a half a million Americans today suffer from an affliction which has been a target for jabs down the centuries.

The disease is gout. Or gouty arthritis.

It is a red-hot mixture of all the agonies sketched in Dante's Inferno.

The cause is unknown, almost as baffling to modern physicians as it was to Hippocrates, the father of medicine, who prescribed burning flax near the afflicted joint 400 years before Christ.

There is no cure, but the end may be in sight.

Government scientists, working with multi-million-dollar equipment at the huge National Institutes of Health at nearby Bethesda, Md., believe they may be on the pain toward discovering a preventive to stop gout before it gets started.

The cure not banking on the so-called miracle drugs—corticosteroids, benzamide and butazolidin—which merely control gout with out curing it. Rather, they are hoping to short-circuit the chemical mechanism that produces gout.

Some exciting leads are being explored," says Dr. James B. Wyngaarden, a top expert on gout research at the institutes.

He cautions, however, that "overnight miracles" are not to be expected.

Mayo Clinic says "For centuries people have thought that gout is caused by 'rich living' but this is by no means the case. Even those who eat sparingly and never touch alcoholic drinks may develop the disease."

The clinic describes it as a "systemic disease which causes a patient to suffer at times and again with attacks of pain, swelling and tenderness in a big toe, ankle, elbow or some other joint. This disease is associated with a defect in the chemical mechanism by which our body handles uric acid."

Doctors say gout results when an over-supply of purines—a chemical substance which appears in some foods—causes an excess of uric acid. When the kidneys fail to throw off the excess acid, it enters the blood stream and forms crystals of sodium urate which are deposited in the tissue of certain joints.

Outwardly, nothing happens as the crystals silently build up. There is no pain—until the trigger is pulled. Then comes the explosion—the grotesque swelling—the searing pain.

The trigger may come in the form of a stubbed toe, a scarcely noted jarring of the knee or wrist or elbow.

Doctors point out, too, that although the exact cause of gout is unknown, attacks frequently develop after an over-indulgence of any kind—fatigue, excess eating or drinking, or exposure to cold weather.

For some reason, it generally hits hardest in the spring and fall. It usually strikes people in middle age, but there are recorded instances of the first acute attack developing as early as age 10 and as late as 90. Almost entirely a male affliction, it occurs from 45 to 50 times as often in men as women.

Gout is not contagious but it seems to run in families.

Patrice Munsel Compares Singing To Football Game

DALLAS (AP)—Singing opera "is like playing football" all afternoon and having to do all the running with the ball," says Patrice Munsel, slim, glamorous young soprano of the Metropolitan Opera.

And singing the title role in an opera such as "Naughty Marietta" at the state fair musicals is "fun—like having a party in my living room."

But the vivacious Miss Munsel is not ready to do a Broadway musical show next winter.

"Everything in opera depends on making the music perfect and beautiful," she explained to an interviewer. "It makes you do your best. That is why I like singing opera best of all. It gives me the feeling of greatest satisfaction."

"I am in love with Marietta. There is wonderful music to sing. I can be gay, sad and maybe a little wacky. There are beautiful clothes to wear. Two men chase Marietta and she gets her man. What more can a girl ask for?"

The Dallas show is her first appearance in opera.

"Do a Broadway musical?" Miss Munsel echoed the question. Her mood turned serious.

"I would love to do a musical comedy sometime," she said. "I thought about doing one this year. They brought me some beautiful music. But I feel I belong in opera. That is what I want to do."

"There is also the curious question of weather. I should endeavor my voice for opera by singing eight performances a week in a Broadway show. Most opera and concert people sing only two, three or four times a week."

In the most powerful atom smashers, atomic particles travel almost at the speed of light.

Nurse Lady

By ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE
CYNTHIA thought of the text of the sermon that morning. "God works in mysterious ways his wonders to perform." If that car had not run down the little Mancini boy, all this would not have happened.

"I shall enjoy it," Elizabeth Brandt dismissed any offer of gratitude with another smile. "If it meets your approval, my dear, I shall start all the balls rolling, as Norman would say. I suppose," she added, "you would like me to have a talk with the young doctor who, I understand, is now the head of your small organization, Dr. Sellars."

"I guess you'd better," Cynthia said. "This was another angle. She was not at all certain that Walt would be in favor of such a program for the clinic. After all, it was his clinic, not Cynthia's. Of course he had obtained some civic help financially, a few contributions from private persons now and then. But even Walt had never had a dream as big as this."

"I shall look forward to meeting him," Mrs. Brandt said. She may have guessed some of the thoughts going through the young nurse's mind. For now she leaned forward to rest a hand lightly on Cynthia's. "Leave him to me. And all the rest, too, won't you, my dear?"

"I'll be glad to," Cynthia said. "I know now what Norman meant when he told me how remarkable you are, Mrs. Brandt."

Norman's noiser smiled at this praise from her son. But she shook her head as she rose to end the interview. "It's not that, my dear. I expect Norman also told you about his father. He might leave us—just like that. He snapped her thumb and forefinger together. "I have to keep busy. I want to build something to my husband's memory, and this seems just what I've been searching for."

"One other request," she added in a lighter tone, again reminding Cynthia of the quicksilver change of Norman's moods. "I wish you would call me Elizabeth. My friends all do. And I know that you and I are going to be friends."

"Thank you," Cynthia said. She felt that Elizabeth Brandt would prove a worthy friend. "I'm the one who is indebted to you," she added. "I shall be proud to call you Elizabeth. And I shall be grateful to you, always. Not only for this wonderful plan for the clinic, but for this pleasant week and pleasant days."

"There will be many more of those," her hostess told her with a smile. She linked an arm through the younger woman's, and they left the study to join the men, who were enjoying a smoke before the huge fireplace in the living room.

On the threshold Cynthia noticed that another man was with Norman and his father. However, she could scarcely believe her own eyes when she saw that it was Walt.

The three men rose, as the two women approached, still near in arm. Their different expressions were a cause for speculation. Norman was smiling, as though he had known that the interview in the study would bring the two women more closely together. His father looked pleased, too, nodding his gray head appreciatively at the charming picture they made. Elizabeth so tall and regal, Cynthia so young and lovely. As for Dr. Sellars, his jaw dropped somewhat abruptly. That fierce count of his was more in evidence. His mouth was set in a stern and disapproving line.

He was the first to break the short silence. "I came to take you home," he said, taking a long step toward Cynthia.

He glanced at the others as though challenging any one of them to refute this statement. No one did.

Elizabeth Brandt removed her arm from Cynthia's and held out a welcoming hand. "I know you must be Dr. Sellars. I just told Cynthia I was looking forward to meeting you."

"But hardly this soon!" Cynthia thought.

Walt was obliged to shake Mrs. Brandt's hand, but he refused to give a pleasure to meet the lady of Pleasantridge. Instead, he addressed Cynthia again, still in that brusque manner. "I had quite a time finding this place. Miss Whiting gave me the address. She said you'd phoned to give it to her. I ought to be getting back, as soon as you're ready we'll get started."

Cynthia resented this brusque manner. She did not like his putting it as though it had been arranged for him to come for her. Why on earth had he come? And since he had, why couldn't Walt behave like other people?

"Norman was going to drive me back," she said. "You needn't have bothered coming for me, Dr. Sellars. However, since you have, I'll be ready any time now."

Though Mrs. Brandt and Cynthia had seated themselves. He stood back, as though admiring to the point he could carry Cynthia off.

"Oh, come now," Norman said lightly. "Surely you'll join dad and me in a Scotch and soda before you go. And, Cynthia, his eyes smiled across into hers, "you needn't rush away. I'll be glad to drive you back."

Before Cynthia could reply, Mr. Brandt added his invitation to his son's. "Yes, indeed. You must join us, Dr. Sellars. My own doctor only allows me this one Scotch at the end of each day. I look forward to head it with you. I enjoy it more, shared with friends."

"No, thank you," Walt returned again, if possible even more abruptly than before.

He might have explained that he did not drink, Cynthia thought. He might try not acting quite like such a big bear. She wanted to shake him.

Instead, she stood up. "I guess I might as well leave now," she said, smiling as graciously as was possible under the strained circumstances. "If you'll excuse me, I'll be ready in a few minutes."

Norman and Mr. Brandt got to their feet until she had left the room. Then Mr. Brandt sat down again, this time by his wife on the sofa.

Norman remained standing, since the other guest evidently preferred it.

"I want to have a talk with you, Dr. Sellars," Elizabeth said. "Perhaps this is not the most auspicious time. Suppose I make an appointment, say, Monday at two-thirty—would that be convenient for you?"

Bryant Says Regretful Court Picked Schools For Change

TAMPA—It is regretful that the U. S. Supreme Court selected the school system for the beginning of desegregation, C. Harris Bryant, speaker of the Florida House, said in a civic club talk.

Bryant said he had no solution to offer for the segregation problem and did not know just what would happen, although he believed the problem won't get out just the way the North wants it.

Florida citizens to "apply our hearts and minds" to the task, he said desegregation is "a tremendous problem facing Florida, and we will not solve it by harping our heads in the sand."

The Ocala lawyer said some areas probably would accept the court ruling and children of both races would go to the same schools with little fuss.

On the other hand, some states may drop their public school systems, as Georgia, South Carolina and Mississippi have threatened to do; some children may refuse to go to public schools, as in private schools; and in some places school boards may arrange districts so that Negroes would attend one school and white children in predominantly Negro districts to go to a white school as hardship cases.

Bryant said he feared the addition of a racial problem to others already existing would cause many teachers to leave this work.

WOMAN MAKES UNUSUAL APPLICATION Athens, Greece, (AP)—Niki Goulondris, 22, has the Greek foreign ministry all fussed. She filed an application for entry into the diplomatic service—and no woman ever has done such a thing before. There isn't any rule against it, but there's a regulation that says an applicant must have completed military service. And there isn't any military service for women in Greece.

High Medical Expenses May Bring Reduction In Income Tax Payment

WASHINGTON—If medical expenses are taking more than an incidental bite out of your pocketbook, you may get some help from another source: an income tax cut.

Larger deductions for medical expenses starting last Jan. were included in the giant tax revision bill just passed by Congress. They will show up in your 1954 income tax return.

Under the new law you may deduct from your income, before figuring your tax, medical expenses above 3 per cent of your income. It was 5 per cent under the old law.

only those drugs and medicines which exceed 1 per cent of your income. And remember you can't get any deductions for medical expenses unless you itemize all your deductions. You won't benefit if you take the standard deduction of 10 per cent of your income, which the government offers gratis to most taxpayers.

Because of the medical allowance and others, you may find you will benefit by listing your deductions next year although in the past you have been taking the automatic 10 per cent deduction.

Another change would be an especially big help if you run into really extraordinary medical expenses. Under the old law the $1,250 per person, for yourself or your dependents, or up to $5,000 maximum medical deduction was for a family. The new law doubles the maximum deductions to $2,500 per person and $10,000 for a family.

Here are typical examples of how the change from 5 to 3 per cent would work:

If your income is $5,000, you now can deduct allowable medical expenses that run above $150. Under the old law, you could deduct only those expenses above $250.

If your medical costs were actually $700, you could deduct $550 under the new law but nothing under the old law. If your expenses were $250 or more, you could deduct an extra $100 under the new law.

At the minimum 20 per cent tax rate, the extra $100 deduction would amount to a tax cut of $20. Your tax reduction would be greater if you are above the minimum bracket, or if your medical expenses were above the old maximum deductions.

American colleges and universities have nearly 31,000 foreign students enrolled.

President Of Pilot Club Describes Boston Parley

Mrs. George A. Stine, president of the local pilot club who served as a delegate to the 21st international convention in July in Boston reported on the convention at the meeting of the club held at the home of Mrs. Al Hunt last night.

Mrs. Stine described the colorful opening session at which time the colors were presented by the Girl Scouts of Greater Boston. The convention opened on Wednesday evening, July 11 with a formal banquet in the Sheraton Hotel with Mrs. Marguerite Dimerling prominent attorney from Beaumont, Tex., acting president presiding.

New international officers which include two from district four comprising 25 clubs in Florida are Mrs. Winifred Newman, president, Charleston, W. Va.; Mrs. Edith MacBride Cameron, Gainesville, Fla., president-elect; Mrs. Jean Conacher, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, first vice-president; Miss Billy N. Russell, Houston, Tex., second vice-president; Mrs. Nellie N. Vickers, El Paso, Tex., secretary; Mrs. Gene C. Dodd, St. Augustine, treasurer, and directors include Mrs. Eleanor Dahl, Oakland, Calif.; Mrs. Margaret I. Deschryver, South Bend, Ind.; and Mrs. Georgiana Havlene, Washington, D. C.

District four received its share of recognition, stated Mrs. Stine at a special recognition luncheon staged on Thursday. Out of 21 Pilot Clubs in Pilot International, it named as honor clubs by the Woman's Home Companion were two Florida clubs, the St. Augustine club and the Daytona beach club. The presidents of the two clubs accepted 25-25 rd. Two other awards of distinction received by district four were the National Safety Council "Caro Lane" Award and the National Committee for Traffic Citation for the district's part in establishing "Rural Mail Box Turnouts and School Bus Turnouts" throughout the State of Florida. The project was originated in the Orlando Club with Mrs. Sara Hughes as chairman. District Four was also honored for having organized the largest number of new clubs during the past year. This award was accepted by Mrs. Ruth Campbell of Daytona Beach, district governor.

Entertainment included a boat trip to Nantasket Beach where a clam bake was enjoyed as well as "Talent Shows" put on by the various districts.

Mrs. Stine reported that the convention body adopted for its international project "Friendship and Service to Children and Youth" to be conducted at the club level. This replaces a proposed "Girls Town" project introduced in 1931. The project was dropped in a view of the fact it did not have the approval of the group care division of Social Service and the Child Welfare League of America.

Each person in North Carolina consumes an average of 100 quarts of milk a year.

CHURCH ADDITION—Work is shown in progress on the auditorium of the new congregation of Christian Church at 21th St. and Park Ave. Shown in the inset are Ralph Lassing (left), chairman of the church building committee, and Gus Schmah, builder of the new church. Much material was salvaged from the old Congregational Church building at Third St. and Park Ave. when it was razed. The new structure is of concrete block construction and will have a stucco finish, according to Schmah, who said he looked at about 100 plans before one was decided upon. The church is being built, he pointed out, with the plan in mind of further expanding it. The church is set on a large plot, which provides plenty of space both for parking of cars and for further expansion of the building. The church when completed will be fitted with hearing aids, Schmah said, and a public address system and facilities for radio broadcasts. (Staff Photo)

Motorists Should Show Caution Toward Pedestrians On Streets

Did you know that a motorist is required to give the right-of-way to a pedestrian that is crossing the street at a marked crosswalk?

Not only is it common courtesy to wait for a pedestrian in such an instance, but it is the law.

According to City ordinances, "where traffic control signals are not in place or in operation, the driver of a vehicle shall yield the right-of-way, slowing down or stopping if need be to yield to a pedestrian crossing the roadway within any marked crosswalk or within any unmarked crosswalk at an intersection except as otherwise provided in this article" (Sect. 16-103). (An exception applies to traffic lights. Naturally a pedestrian is not to cross when traffic is moving on a green light.)

"Notwithstanding the provisions of this article, every driver of a vehicle shall exercise due care to avoid colliding with any pedestrian upon any street, and shall give warning by sounding the horn when necessary, and shall exercise proper precaution upon observing any child or any confused or incapacitated upon the street." (Sect. 16-108).

So, as a result, drivers should practice safe driving habits and show courtesy when it comes to pedestrians—this also means when a pedestrian is crossing the street while a motorist is turning a corner toward him—even downtown with the traffic lights.

Recently, a radio announcer in Orlando took a stance at a downtown corner as if he were going to cross the street. Eighteen cars went by before one stopped to let him cross. The same thing very well could happen here.

Let's not make crossing a downtown street or any other street for that matter a touch-and-go proposition for pedestrians—especially with school starting in a short time. Let's give pedestrians a break.

German Magazines

If France fails to act on ratification of the European Defense Community the West may find it necessary to grant sovereignty to West Germany on other terms. If that becomes necessary we must do it—but our eyes should be open to possible dangers if we do. If we are alert those dangers may be circumvented.

It would be wishful thinking to believe that the kind of nationalism and hate preached by Adolph Hitler is dead in Germany.

Rug Firm Is Making Millions

NEW YORK (AP)—"It takes a 2 x 2 good man to own a million dollars," said Eugene T. Barwick. It takes a pretty good fellow to go on from there and earn a million dollars, too. Both counts, says Barwick, are quite a guy.

Now only 40, Barwick in five years has parlayed $4,500 cash into a 30 million-dollar yearly business in tufted carpets. This has given him a reputation of being one of the top rug wonders of industry.

While some rug manufacturers were using their product to deaden the sound of their own falling tears, Gene has built his carpeting firm to a point where it is now the fifth largest in the world.

"But we believe there is room for a 100 million-dollar a year business in tufted rugs and carpeting," he said, "and we are willing to be the first."

Barwick figures he can do this if he can make wall-to-wall carpeting customary in the American home, and if he can mass produce carpets cheaply enough so that a housewife will feel she can afford to change them every time she changes her draperies.

Small tufted cotton rugs boomed during the war period, but many manufacturers thought housewives no longer would buy them when war was more plentiful.

"They liquidated," said Barwick, "and they were wrong."

In 1948, Gene, who had served as a naval lieutenant in the Aleutians during the war, quit his job with a Chicago mail order firm. He had been buying it carpeting for years and felt he knew the kind women wanted—inexpensive but durable.

Barwick, who had gone broke for $70,000, he said, "And I taught him how to make tufted cotton carpets."

"I had only $4,500. I invested $2,500 in a latex-coating machine that would keep the carpets from skidding. Then I took to the road and the other $2,000 went into selling expenses. Did it work? It had to work."

It worked so well that in mid-1950 the firm was doing a three-million-dollar business. The partner, deciding no good thing lasts forever, sold out to Barwick.

Gene kept right on expanding, went into debt developing new and more efficient machinery. Now he has five plants in Georgia, machines that can turn out a 9-by-12 tufted cotton, nylon or rayon carpet every 20 seconds. Weavers from Scotland and England come to study his new techniques.

"The worst thing a fellow can do is to worry about being exposed," said Barwick. "Why watch a parade if you can be in it? And if you get in it, you might as well try to lead it. But you have to be a member—it takes a 2 x 2 good man to own a million dollars."

Gene has an honest enjoyment in his success, his fine home in Atlanta, his three children. He likes to golf, too, but last year he traveled 140,000 miles himself selling his carpeting—although he has 30 salesmen on the job.

"I believe I talked to four times as many rug buyers and dealers as any other mill executive in the country," he said.

"Any man ought to work hard if he owns his own business. That's what is wrong with too many businesses today—they are run by professional managers who don't even own stock in their own concerns."

Barwick, who once played end at the University of North Carolina and still looks like he could get down the field under a long pass, flies about in his own plane.

"Riding in a plucked up airplane gives me the same kick some men used to get out of having a private railroad car," he said, smiling.

"I call my plane 'The Remnant'—because any good carpet man knows his profits are tied up in remnants."

The Sanford Herald:
Your editorial, July 29th, sent you by the Havana Post is very interesting, and to the point. It should be accepted as fact, as no one is more familiar with Latin America than the Havana Post which has been published in Havana a little over 54 years and is today the second oldest paper in Havana. The Diario de la Marina is the oldest and El Mundo is in third place, started in 1901.

The Havana Post was the first owned by Don Jose Casanova. His first manager was Dr. C. Fisher R. T. Tanner was advertising manager and the Rev. M. McPherson was a part of the editorial staff. Young Raul Marsans was in-terpreter and acted as circulation manager taking care of the news, mail, etc.

I got released from the U. S. Marine Corps to take charge of the pressroom.

Later H. H. Leavitt was made circulation manager.

About 1931, Dr. Fisher separated from the Post and started his own paper, The Havana American which lasted only a short while.

After Dr. Fisher separated from the Havana Post, Mr. Tanner took over as manager, but in a short time Mr. Casanova decided to close the paper. This is when the life of the Havana Post was saved.

Mr. Tanner, Mr. Leavitt and myself made Mr. Casanova a proposition to take over and carry on which Mr. Casanova willingly accepted. The news was spread and the advertisers and patrons gave us a helping hand. Business increased and we had no trouble.

We had no written agreement with Mr. Casanova, when a man named Demming came along and made Mr. Casanova an interesting proposition to take over the paper, offering to keep the whole force on. We agreed to Mr. Casanova's idea.

Demming's inspirations were short lived, so the Post reverted to the former hands.

Mr. Casanova financed, Mr. Leavitt became editor, Mr. Tanner manager, and I continued in the mechanical end.

The Post has gone over many rough roads, but is today on sound foundation. I wish them luck and

Demos Get Ready For New Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate is heading into another fight on a bill to speed up the law on atomic energy. The Senate recently finished a two weeks battle on the subject.

Democrats who made the first fight are lining up for the new one. Several points in the bill irritate them. One of them covers patents. This is an ABC on the patent dispute.

Briefly, the patent law says: An inventor—an individual or a firm—can get a patent on an invention for 17 years. During that time the inventor alone has the exclusive right to use that invention for his own profit. He can, if he wishes, sell it or let someone else use it also, either free or for a fee. At the end of 17 years the patent expires and the invention becomes public property and anyone can use it.

At this moment no private firm has atomic patents. Because of the secrecy involved and the terms of the 1946 atomic energy law, the government has had complete ownership of all atomic developments. It holds over 700 patents.

The government's AEC—Atomic Energy Commission—has only had its own atomic developing in government-owned plants but had the help of some big corporations working under contract.

Because they were working for AEC, those firms could not under the 1946 law get any patents on discoveries they made. But at least they got knowledge on atomic development, with the government paying the cost.

The bill the Senate is about to consider would allow private business to develop atomic energy not only for the good of the country but for private profit. President Eisenhower doesn't want a few firms, which had AEC contracts, to get a monopoly through knowledge gained while the government paid them.

So a bill, when the House passed July 26, let private industry develop peaceful atomic power for commercial use, said almost every thing.

The AEC would carefully examine any application for an atomic patent. If the AEC was convinced that the discovery was from work done for the government, no patent would be granted, and the discovery would become public property.

Some Senate Democrats argue this wasn't tight enough protection against eventual monopoly by a few big firms. After much debate the Senate voted this provision:

It's Up To You

By Howard E. Kishner, L.H.H.
Responsibility toward our fellowmen and the moral limitations of freedom which we must impose on ourselves is taught all through the Bible. Even the Old Testament, written in a period when Judaism recognized coercive powers, emphasizes the connection between personal freedom and responsibility.

Read Old Testament History with open eyes and you will find a most fascinating repetition of stories of the struggle between democratic and despotic ideals of statecraft. Consider one example.

King Ahab was a strong and wicked king, who rode roughshod over human rights. One day he admired a certain vineyard near his palace. He approached the owner, Naboth, and offered to buy it. Naboth refused to sell the land where his fathers had lived. It furnished his means of living and he had no desire to become a serf or a soldier.

According to Deuteronomic law, Naboth had his rights, and he did not have to sell. This tyrant king was up against a shielding democratic law. He went back to his palace and sulked like a spoiled child. He couldn't reconcile himself to not getting what he wanted. He dared not, however, so against Naboth's rights as a citizen and freeholder. The Kings ruthless wife had no such scruples. She had Naboth falsely accused and killed under a pretense of law, and then

Ways To Cure Insomnia

By HERMAN N. BUNKEIM, M.D.
INSOMNIA is one of our most common complaints. For most of us have been unable to sleep at one time or another.

There are three types of insomnia: an inability to fall asleep upon retiring; frequent or extended awakening during the course of the night; or waking before sufficient hours of sleep have been obtained.

Requirements Vary
The amount of sleep a person needs is determined by age, occupation, activity, temperament and general physical condition. Everyone has individual sleep requirements. The traditional eight hours are needed for most, seven hours are sufficient for some, and more than eight are essential for still others.

People who have been denied proper sleep may have inner tension and irritability. They may even develop a mental situation in which they misinterpret their environment or the people around them.

Emotional Causes
Most cases of insomnia are due to emotional disturbances. Other factors are excessive cold, heat, hunger, thirst, itching and pain. Constipation or a specific disease can be at fault.

A physician should be consulted in an effort to clear up the physical or mental disturbance. Then other remedies may be tried. These include making the bed more comfortable, frequent changes of linen, a dark room, good ventilation, absence of noise, a warm bath or something warm to drink before retiring.

Sedatives may have to be used in certain instances. They do tend to become habit-forming, however, and should not be taken constantly.

The underlying cause for the difficulty should be determined and treated.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
Q. V: Is there any way a person can determine if he has had mumps?
A. Answer: A new skin test to test mumps immunity is now available. A little bit of the serum is injected underneath the skin and if a red spot occurs within 24 hours, it means the person is immune to mumps.

Lakeland Muffs Another Chance For Loop Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Once again, Lakeland muffed a chance last night to take over the Florida State League lead.

Last-place Daytona Beach smacked front-running Orlando 5-3 but at the same time Jacksonville Beach blasted Lakeland 11-4, leaving the Cubs ahead by half a game—a situation that has prevailed since Friday.

Lou Tell was Daytona Beach's seventh victim. The Islanders, breaking a five-game losing streak, scored three runs in the third on singles by Glenn Present, Don Bartley and Bob Tucker, plus an error and a sacrifice fly by Ray Burns. The clincher came in the sixth when Ed Levy homered with no one on.

Jacksonville Beach pounded three Lakeland pitchers for 14 hits and breezed to victory. Tommy West led the attack with five singles in six trips and three runs batted in.

Deland, only 1 1/2 games off the pace, won their third straight, a 6-0 victory over Ocala which as a consequence now shares the cellar with Daytona Beach. Franchy LeBlanc set the Indians down on a three-hitter. His mates scored all their runs off Ricky Gallantes in the seventh.

New Stetson Coach Explains Philosophy About Passing

By H. R. McQUEEN

Our philosophy concerning the nature and the use of the forward pass may be different from that of other coaches. Many coaches in college treat the forward pass as an adjunct to a potent running game or as a weapon of desperation or last resort.

We use the forward pass simply to gain ground and consider the pass an integral part of our attack. In developing the passing game from the spread formation, the defensive area from the line of scrimmage and beyond the line of scrimmage, is divided into zones. The section from the line to about ten yards deep in the defense is called the "short" zone. Everything beyond that, is the "long zone or deep zone."

Each zone in turn is divided into left, middle, and right areas making six passing zones.

The theory on passing is to flood one or more zones with receivers so as to outnumber the defenders in that zone.

We use two types of passes behind-the-line areas from the spread formation. They are the shovel pass and the screen pass. The shovel pass invites all the rushers to come in on the passer and the ball is completed behind them. The shovel pass is thrown with regular block protection by most of the offensive team and by trapping the defending player behind whom the pass is to be completed.

The use of behind the line pass is to accomplish two things: The first is to gain ground. The second is to discourage hard and vicious rushing of our passer.

There are three phases of the forward pass play: first the passer; second the protection and third the receiver.

(1) The passer is of the greatest importance. We like tall boys who have speed, agility and intelligence who can easily see over the defensive rushers. He should have a keen eye with "split-vision", a good arm with a strong wrist and a sense of anticipation.

We teach our passer the following important points: First, try to complete the pass; second, if no-body is open, run with the ball, or throw the ball where it cannot be intercepted, and third, do not get jittery if caught for a loss, and fourth, the worst thing that can happen is an interception.

Good passers can be made with luck if hard work, agility and intelligence who can easily see over the defensive rushers will be open and how to maneuver behind the line.

(2) The protection for the passer is a fundamental element of the passing game. The thrower must have time to get the ball away. The nature of the spread formation causes the defense to spread out well so that few defenders are really in a position to rush the passer.

(3) The receivers are very important and we like rangy boys who have speed, agility and intelligence who can fake and catch the ball. Receivers must be taught to cut square corners, swing out, and swing in, change pace and do all the things that will help fool the defense.

Three elements make up the forward pass play. They are the passer, the receiver and the protection. At least three of them must be good if the passing game must function.

Tommy Jackson, before his recent flight at Madison Square Garden, explained why "708" was written in indelible ink on both his hands. "That's my hotel room number," he said.

Directors Of A's Given Two Offers To Buy Ball Club

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A board of directors meeting of the Philadelphia Athletics is faced today with two offers to buy the American League baseball club.

One comes from a Chicago businessman who wants to move the team to Kansas City. The other was presented yesterday by a syndicate seeking to keep the A's in the Quaker City.

Today's meeting follows talks between the Philadelphia group and Roy Mack, executive vice-president of the A's.

The "basis for settlement" by a group headed by financier Albert M. Greenfield and drug store executive Harry Sisk was the second offer for the club within a week.

Chicagoan Arnold Johnson recently said he would buy the club for a reported $10 million dollars and move the team to Kansas City.

The exact nature of the local syndicate's offer was not disclosed—possibly to allow Earl Mack and his father, Connie, now 91, to weigh the tax without the pressure of public opinion.

They want to keep the club here and maintain an active part in its affairs. Earle and his father have indicated they want out soon and that the club's financial situation is too precarious to continue operating much longer.

It has been indicated that the Johnson offer probably would mean a two million dollar cash split for the three Macks.

Greenfield, on the other hand, has estimated that it would take about $5 million dollars to "salvage" the club, of which only a million would go to the Mack family.

Cards Finish Home Season Tonight With Pinecastle

Locals Are Responsible For One Loss Of Airmen

In their final home appearance of the season, the Sanford Cardinals will encounter the league-leading Pinecastle Air Force Base Hi-Flyers in a Central Florida Baseball League tussle tonight beginning at 8 o'clock at Memorial Stadium. The CFL schedule will close Sunday for the Hi-Flyer time.

Pinecastle is the mathematical champion of the fast, six-team semi-pro circuit, having dropped only a lone game in its 30-titl schedule. That loss came a month ago at the hands of the Cardinals behind the expert one-hit pitching performance of Mel Fleischer in an abbreviated, rain-marred six-inning fracas. The Sanford club emerged with a 2-0 win.

Due to rain and the inability of their opponents to field complete teams, the Cards have not seen action in three weeks. The longest winning streak of the season has come in the last two weeks when the locals posted three wins via the forfeit route when the opposition failed to present complete lineups on time. Sunday, the Sanford club traveled to Clermont, but a rain-drenched field necessitated postponement of play.

In tonight's game against the highly touted Air Force entry, Sanford manager Buddy Lake has promised to "shoot the works" in an effort to salvage a dismal season with another win over the Pinecastle team. Lake figures that Pinecastle will oppose the Cardinals with Jim Conroy, a pitching sensation who has repeatedly silenced the booming bats of the league's best hitters. Conroy, a 22-year-old pitcher with an assortment of deliveries, has attracted the attention of professional scouts in this area and will present invigorating color to tonight's battle.

The Cardinal pilot had not decided early today upon his opening hurler but his entire mound staff is well rested and he is looking forward to the best crowd of the year tonight.

TOURNEY HEARS END
WEST PALM BEACH (AP)—Teams representing Sarasota and Key West meet here tonight in the Little League District Baseball Tournament.

The winner will play North Broward for the title tomorrow night and the Florida titleholders will go to Greenville, N. C., for the regional championship tournament.
