Woman denies allegations

SANFORD - A Sanford woman charged with robbery, claimed this morning after a court hearing she does not have AIDS and intends to sue several people who allegedly said she is HIV positive.

James Carlin, manager of a local discount store, alleges he was bitten by the woman when he attempted to stop her from leaving the store without paying for some merchandise Aug. 7.

Carlin asked the court to compel an HIV test be performed on the woman.

At this morning's court hearing, the woman's attorney, assistant public defender James Figgatt said the woman will submit the results of a previous HIV test to Carlin. Judge Vernon Mize Jr. denied a motion to increase the woman's bond. She has no previous felony convictions and is free on bond. The judge denied a defense motion to close the hearing due to rules on keeping test results confidential.

Airlines discounting fares

NEW YORK - Major airlines are cutting fares up to 45 percent for those who move fast.

The industry — led by Northwest — scrapped a $20 round-trip increase Monday, then went a step further by cutting some fares nearly in half.

American, United, Delta, Continental, USAir. TWA and America West said they would match the Northwest fares on nearly all their competi-

Passengers have to buy the discounted tickets by Friday but must travel at least two weeks after purchase. Trips must be completed by Dec.

Although the price cuts are steep, airlines have been slowly raising base prices. In addition, discounts are traditionally offered at this time of year.

TWA spokeswoman Trish Gaynor said the airline plans to try the $20 increase again on Saturday, after the sale ends.

Bad news: Another Barney character is about His name is BJ.

'BJ might best be described as a prehistoric version of Huckleberry Finn - always in motion, and always looking for new adventure!" cries the breathless press release from Barney's creators, the Lyons Group.

BJ will join the show when the new "Barney" season begins Sept. 27 on PBS stations nationwide. The 18 new episodes also feature two new human characters, Julie and David, joining the rest of the Backyard Gang — Tina, Min, Tosha, Shawn, Kathy, Michael and Derek.

Barney aficionados will note that Tina's older sister. Lucy, is missing from the cast. "I think she got too big." said Barney spokeswoman Iris Capiovitz, darkly.

Gun ban for minors?

Local police officials say wait and see

By MARK BARFIELD Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — The state's top police official says Florida should follow Colorado's lead and minors should be prohibited from toting guns unless they're hunting or target shooting under adult supervision, but two top Seminole County law officers says it's too soon to say whether the new law will be effective.

"It's going to be hard for any legislator to go home and say, 'I think it's the right of a juvenile to carry a firearm," said James T. "Tim" Moore, commissioner of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

"Anything we do that is aimed at deterring, preventing, crime is good," said Seminole County Undersheriff Steve Harriett. But Florida statutes already govern the possession and use of firearms.

Harriett said state laws already prohibit the possession or use of a firearm by persons under 16 without adult supervision.

"I'm not sure that's going to solve it," said Sanford police Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire. "I'd like to go back and look at the Colorado law in six months or even three months time and see if it's had an impact. If it has, I might be in favor of it here, but if it's just another law that doesn't do anybody any good, it's not worth our time."

Moore said he would ask the Violent Crime Council, which held its first meeting Monday in Bee Guns, Page 5A

Codes for historic district homes move to P&Z

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Architectural guidelines and standards developed for "Old Sanford" by Andres Duany, will be going before the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission.

The decision was made by the City Commission during a work session Monday afternoon.

Almost the entire board of Sanford Historic Trust was on hand as the guidelines were given to the commissioners. Michael Goeb made the presentation on behalf of the Trust.

"We have been working on this project with Mr. Duany for over two years," he said. "These regulations will be a big factor in restoring the historic district of our city to the outstanding residential area it can be.

"Although the original concept dealt with some of the downtown area," he commented, "these proposals only deal with the specific historic residential area. We believe that after the homeowners get enthused over this project, it will set a momentum for others to join in.'

Although the codes suggested by Duany deal with how homes are to be restored or remodeled. Goeb stressed, "All existing buildings will be ☐ See Codes, Page 5A

Schools may abolish psych specialist job

By VICKI DOSORMIER Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The Seminole County school board will be considering a proposal this afternoon to abolish the position of psychological specialist in district schools.

The district has for many years employed both school psychologists and psychological specialists and Supt. Paul Hagerty sees this as a duplication of effort and resources.

The job descriptions of the two positions are similar, he said. Both require a master's degree in school psychology and three years of classroom experience. Both report to the director of Exceptional Student Education.

Both provide student evaluations, confer with parents, couselors, teachers and administrators regarding student needs.

Both prepare formal written reports of interviews and make rec-

Main Street team to visit Sanford

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Stall Writer

SANFORD - A three-man team of officials from the state and national Main Street Program will be in Sanford Thursday to meet with city leaders as well as interested individuals.

Sanford was recently accepted as an official Florida Main Street community. As such, one of the first steps is obtaining input from specialists who have worked with other successful Main Street projects elsewhere in the state.

The team scheduled to visit Sanford Thursday Includes Bob Trescott, state coordinator; Doug Loescher, program association with the national Main Street Center in Washington, D.C.; and Philip Wisley, state architect. According to Loescher, the visit is an introductory service in which the National Main Street

Center gets to know the community and the local group gets to know the program and its consulting process. He said it also establishes an understanding of the community's needs.

The team will actually arrive Wednesday, meeting with the local Main Street group for dinner. They will also have a brief driving and walking tour of the program area.

At 8 a.m. Thursday morning. they will meet with members of the city and county commissions at the Main Street Welcome Center on W. First Street.

At 9 a.m. they will meet with representatives of various individual Main Street groups including Larry Strikler, Jami Meeks, Dave Farr, Andrea Farmer, Nanci Yuronis, Jack Wert. ☐See Visit, Page 5A

Fishing limits on agenda

NEW ORLEANS - Fishing limits for red snapper, shallowwater groupers, king mackerel and "live rock" are on the agenda this week for the group set up to regulate fishing in the Gulf of Mexico's U.S. waters.

The Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council will set the snapper and grouper limits after hearings Wednesday.

It is reviewing a draft proposal for king mackerel, and is just starting to put together a plan to regulate "live rock" — limestone or dead coral with anemones, coral or other living but stationary animals attached to it.

Hearings on those proposals probably will be held in December, Executive Director Wayne Swingle said.

About 400 tons of the coral and limestone was harvested last year for use in aquariums, raising worries that such a big haul could hurt coral reefs and the Florida coast.

MIAMI - Miami motorists have long believed they suffer the nation's worst drivers, and now the author of a book on driving in America has confirmed it. "It's a free-for-all in Miami ... pure chaos," said Kevin Berger. "I thought I was going to be impaled on someone's bumper."

Main Street: Ask questions

The approval of Sanford as a Florida Main Street Community has been applauded by many. Others however, remain cautious, not knowing what it will involve.

In order to revitalize the downtown Sanford area, it would appear that some existing structures will require improvements.

The major questions therefore are, what will have to be done, and how will it be financed.

Will each downtown merchant be forced to pay for his or her own business remodeling? Could this possibly lead to some form of tax increases if local government financing is required?

This Thursday at noon, officials from both Florida Main Street and Main Street U.S.A. will be on hand for a public meeting to answer questions. The meeting will be held at the entrance to the Sanford City Hall.

This is going to be the time for questions. The officials have already participated in Main Street programs in a number of other cities. They will be able to discuss concerns of local business people, and give examples of what can be accomplished through Main Street involvement.

The visit of two state and one national Main Street leaders is to serve several purposes. For them, it will provide an opportunity to see and study the Sanford area, and obtain data to be used in designing the services to be offered for the Sanford Main Street project.

It will belp local business people determine where they might want to be five years from now and how to get there. It will give the people an opportunity to meet with the leaders and clear up any misconceptions about the program.

The meeting at the covered breezeway area at the Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue, is important: Come. Ask questions.

This is an excellent place to start.

Abortion bill

"The sky is falling, the sky is falling!" cried Chicken Little, his heart appalled by this apparition of doom. He leaped into action and in earnest desperate cries set out to warn and save his neighbor. He thought the sky was falling and added action to his belief. But what if the sky were falling, would you do something?

Many have been crying the "sky is falling—they're killing the unborn babies!" But wait, unlike Chicken Little, this fear is reality. Won't you let your voice be heard to stop the newest outrage. The FOCA bill, deceitfully named the "Freedom of Choice Act," which would be better named "Fatality of Children Assured" is before Congress now. It is a radical abortion on demand bill which virtually nullifies all state limitations on abortion. It allows only the abortionist to determine what "viability" means and would prohibit "right to know" and waiting period laws such as those upheld by the Supreme Court in the 1992 Casey decision. No 24-hour waiting periods. FOCA also would require public hospitals to provide abortions. The National Right to Life Committee is asking everyone to call their senator and representatives immediately. They have even provided a toll-free number to call. Even if you don't know who your congressman is you can just give the operator your zip code. A pre-written telegram will be sent to your congressman and your two senators, when you call the "Stop FOCA Now" Hotline through Western Union. You will be billed $8.30 on your phone bill. Call today 1(800)258-2222, Hotline #9381 (available 24 hours a day).

These unborn babies won't even see the sky. Their voices will be the unheard tortured cries agonized in death within a womb. God's heart will hear, but men's cold hearts will not. For these little ones the sky is falling. Give your faith life that it may be seen and heard in your deeds (James 2:18-20). Won't you utter a human cry on their behalf. Send a message to Congress to put a stop to the falling sky of these unborn. Write or pick up your phone and shout "No" on FOCA!

GOP needs to get back to its roots

Jack Kemp. Bob Dole. Dan Quayle. Bill Bennett. Phil Gramm. Dick Cheney. William Weld. Pat Buchanan. Carroll Campbell. Lynn Martin.

Expect to see at least half of them stamping through cornfields in Iowa come 1996. All have been mentioned as possible standard-bearers for the Republican Party.

The GOP faithful are desperately seeking a hero to help the party overcome the ignominy of its crushing defeat last November. Not only did Republicans remain the decided minority in both houses of Congress, they also lost the White House for the first time since 1976.

It is quite a comedown from a decade ago, when the GOP had a man in the Oval Office and a majority in the Senate. Back then, Republicans were brashly talking about wresting control of the House (for the first time since Eisenhower was president). They quixotically thought they would complete the political trifecta that, ironically, the Democrats enjoy today.

Oh, how the best-laid plans of mice and men often go awry.

Over the last decade, the GOP has become less a party of ideas and more a party of personality. It almost seems these days that the party of Lincoln and Reagan is waiting for someone to come along, someone imbued with the same stuff as the 16th and 40th presidents, to lead the GOP out of the political wilderness into the promised land.

In the meantime, while the party waits for this messiah to magically appear out of the political ether, the Democrats continue to control the reins of power in Washington and in most of the state capitals. All the speculation on whom the Republicans will put forward to challenge Bill Clinton three years from now distracts attention away from the party's real problem.

That is: The GOP does not know what it stands for anymore. This ideological rift played out during 1992 when

The GOP faithful are desperately seeking a hero.

acrimony broke out between the conservative wing of the party and the so-called moderate

The "moderates" blame the conservatives for George Bush going down to defeat last November and for the party giving ground to the Democrats on both the national and state level. "If only the conservatives were not so divisive," the squishy Republican moderates say. "If only our party sounded more like the Democrats on abortion and gay rights and single parenthood."

Please.

History shows that it was a conservative Republican, Reagan, who won the White House in both 1980 and 1984 and a nominally conservative Republican, George Bush, who won in 1988.

That Bush went down to defeat in 1992 owes to the perception in the minds of a lot of people that he betrayed some of the conservative principles for which he stood in 1988.

Not, as both the Democrats and Republican moderates would have us believe, because of perceptions that he formed some kind of unholy alliance with the GOP's right wing.

In the same vein, the Republican Party did not get whomped at the polls last November because the party platform had a strong conservative tilt.

Soil loss and the grain harvest

Lester R. Brown, the respected president of the Worldwatch Institute, calls the 1990s a decade of discontinuities.

By that he means that for the first time in modern memory, assumptions and trends that most of us have considered unalterable are beginning to break down.

One of those assumptions has been about the economy. We had come to expect that economic output and the material quality of life that comes with it would double with each succeeding generation. But a persistent economic sluggishness has set in that no one seems to know how to shake off. Overall, global economic growth has decelerated from a high of 5.2 percent in the 1960s to 0.6 percent during the first three years of this decade.

Assumptions of boundless protein supplied by the sea and the capacity of the air and water to function as bottomless waste sinks no longer withstand scrutiny.

An assumption often cited as evidence of human progress is a continuously burgeoning grain harvest to feed the world's people and provide fodder for livestock.

Now, too, this assumption is breaking down.

From 1950 to 1984, total world grain production grew by 3 percent each year, as a Green Revolution kept a pace ahead of population growth. But over the last several years, that growth rate has declined to about 1 percent annually.

The true import of this new trend, however, becomes clearer when grain production is viewed on a per capita basis. While the total amount of land under tillage has remained basically static since 1981, every day brings a net increase of 250,000 people to the world population. As a result, for what is probably the first time in the history of human civilizations, per capita grain production is actually falling. Since 1984, the global per capita grain harvest has declined by 1 percent each year.

Part of this predicament is that, although acreage never before put to the till is constantly being opened to farming, an enormous amount of once-fertile land is being lost to soil degradation.

"A reliable estimate," according to a recent report by the United Nation's Food and Agricultural Organization, is that globally, an area roughly the size of Ireland, about 17 million acres, is being lost for farming each year because of soil degradation. The FAO estimates that a total of 750 million acres, an area the size of western Europe, has already been damaged by human-caused soil degradation. Unless this disturbing new trend is arrested, particularly in the poorer nations of Africa, "the alternative is famine," according to FAO director general Edouard Saouma.

The tragedies of human hunger so recently apparent in Somalia are evidence of the truth of Saouma's warning.

The need to protect productive land is all the more acute because only about 11 percent of the Earth's land surface is now suitable for farming, and once nutrient-rich topsoil is lost it only regenerates on century-long time scales.

The damage and exhaustion of fertile soils is not exclusive to lands distant from our shores.

"The United States has lost about one-third of its topsoil since farming began," the FAO reports. The emergence of low and no-till farming is a promising response American farmers are initiating to this problem.

Soil degradation is a hydra-headed threat. Irrigated lands can be lost to the buildup of salts that leach out of the water. Over-grazing can lead to denuding land of vegetation, compacting soils around watering holes into clay, and denuding egetation, ng soils vatering ay, and leaving land churned up by countless hooves open to wind and water erosion.

Wind and water are the handmaidens of soil loss. Land stripped of vegetation due to over-grazing or a relentless search for cooking fuel loses its binding root structure. A single acre of once-fertile land can lose up to 60 tons of topsoil an hour due to wind erosion alone.

Water erosion, however, is the most common problem, the PAO reports. Huge amounts of topsoil disappear in the runoff after heavy rains wash over plowed hillsides and down the gentle slopes of lower-lying fields. Each year, water erosion washes 25 billion tons of topsoil into the world's rivers and seas.

These problems are not intractable. But they may become so if the world community complacently relies on old assumptions that no longer work.

Teachers need parents' help

School's back in session and the talk-show discourse on what's wrong with American education has started in earnest. Angry parents are telling Phil, Sally Jessy and Sonya how poor the public schools are. Topics include curriculum, competency testing for teachers and tax vouchers to send kids to private schools since the public schools have failed them so dismally.

The one topic you can count on being absent is "Parents: What is Our Role in Our Children's Education?"

That's un. derstandable. because the parents on these programs tend to be folks who ARE involved in their kids' education. From their position they look outward to see teachers, principals and textbooks. not the two-thirds of parents who should be sitting in the desks next to them at open houses but aren't.

Teachers will tell you that the the scariest villain they fight today, more fearsome than the thought of a student with a gun, is parent apathy. Why? Well, imagine yourself trying to teach English or math to six or seven classes a day filled with 30 or so students of varying abilities, where half to two-thirds of them have no interest whatsoever in learning what you're supposed to teach them.

You despair for these kids that they have no more regard for something that can mean a lifetime of success instead of failure. You resent the fact that your performance and maybe your job will be judged on how well these same students do on achievement tests. You are exasperated that the parents of students who need you most provide them no encouragement to study and succeed, and give you no support when you turn to them for help.

A national MetLife survey of teachers taken this summer revealed that the majority believe the most pressing priority of education is to get parents more involved in their children's educations. They're darned if they know how to do it, though, especially when parents themselves are mired so deep in their own problems they can't even see their kids.

Thomas French, an education reporter and author of a book about students in a Florida high school, writes of an experiment a Pinellas County, Fla., school administration tried, hoping to strengthen the roles of parents with kids who were struggling: "The school chose a few troubled students and offered $50 to their parents if they would meet twice with their kids' teachers. ... Most of the parents didn't show up; those who did barely had a chance to talk about their children's problems because they were too busy talking about their own crises."

I look at the involvement of parents who are NOT troubled or economically disadvantaged, and hate to think how little some kids on the lower socioeconomic rung receive. Many parents in the middle and upper classes today have the attitude either that their kids' education is like a self-cleaning oven - all they need to do is set the timer, wait and come back when all the dirty work is over - or they believe it's simply "not my job, man." That's what they pay teachers for.

When I was teaching, trying to give something of value to many kids who had no motivation to take it, I used to comfort myself with the old supply-and-demand cycle I had learned in economics. I reasoned that I probably value education so highly because my parents were older when I was born, had almost no opportunity to go to school and so always made it a priority. My students' parents grew up in an era when education was plentiful and easy to get, and perhaps that's why it doesn't matter as much to them.

In the long run, my theory didn't console me much and I left teaching.

Another tourist killing on road this morning

By CURT ANDERSON Associated Press Writer

MONTICELLO - A British tourist was fatally shot and another injured when they were attacked in a robbery attempt at a rest stop on a major highway in North Florida, authorities said.

It was the second slaying of a foreign tourist in icas than a week in the Sunshine State and the ninth this year.

Details were sketchy, but the couple from Yorkshire. England apparently was attacked about 2:30 a.m. at the rest stop on Interstate 10, about 25 miles east of Tallahassee, said Jefferson County Sheriff Ken Fortune.

"They were sleeping in their car when approached by two black males." Fortune said. "They woke up and tried to back out and that's when they were shot."

The woman said the men demanded money before opening fire, he said. Names of the victims were being withheld until notification of next of

The man was shot in the neck and was dead at the scene and the woman was grazed in the chest by a builet and was in good condition at Tallahasace Regional Medical Center, said hospital spokesman Warren Jones.

"She still kind of in shock," said Jones, who added he expected the woman to be released

Fortune said an attendant at the rest area witnessed the shooting and saw the assailants get back into a red compact car. He said there possible was a third man in the car.

"According to the attendant, the suspects were roaming around the rest area," he said.

The relationship of the couple, who were in their 30s, was unknown, Fortune said.

John Joyce, spokesman for the Florida Department Law Enforcement, said the couple had rented the car in Orlando last Thursday from Dollar Rent-a-Car and were going eastbound.

He said the couple had stopped to go to the restroom and then decided to rest a while before getting back on the interstate 10, a major roadway which stretches from Jacksonville to Los Angeles.

"Both front windows (of the car) were blown out," Joyce said from the scene.

Joyce said the two assailants are believed to be 16 and 17 years old. A revolver is believed to be used in the killing, although no shell casings were found, he said.

Police have charged two men and a woman in the fatal shooting and in another tourist robbery. They said the trio stalked rental car agencies looking for their victims.

Mideast accord: commitment, and money, from all sides

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON - Planes for Israel. Billions of dollars in economic aid to Palestinians. These are among the items talked about to sustain the bright new shining hope for Middle East peace.

The success of the agreement signed Monday at the White House also depends on the outcome of continuing negotiations on such tough questions as the future status of Jerusalem.

And the factor that may prove most important of all is what Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres referred to as "the thickest psychological wall in the Middle East.'

"Everyone must understand that this agreement now has to be implemented," President Clinton told a meeting of Jewish and Arab Americans a few hours after the signing. "A lot of the complicated details are left."

All parties agreed that the White House ceremony witnessed by PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin was a remarkable first step toward ending a generation of hatred and violence.

With the agreement signed, the question is what happens now?

The World Bank issued a report saying that $5.5 billion in governmental and private assistance is needed over the next 10 years to upgrade the infrastructure in the West Bank and

Secretary of State Warren Christopher said the United States would "lead the way in trying to arrange some funds for the Palestinians."

Clinton received assurances over the weekend from King Fahd of Saudi Arabia that his government would contribute. The Saudis cut off funding to the PLO in 1991 after Arafat supported Iraq in the Persian Gulf War.

The United States also is seeking financial assistance from other Persian Gulf states and from Japan which is heavily dependent on Middle Eastern oil.

A senior administration official who briefed reporters at the White House on grounds he not be identified said discussion was under way about a new sale of fighter planes to Israel.

"I don't think the Israelis have indicated which aircraft it is they want to buy, and as far as I'm aware there's no delay or no problem involved there," he said.

He said the new agreement calls for creation of joint committees on security and economics, as well as a liaison committee.

There is the question of how you begin to implement what they've agreed to, how you begin to fill out some of the details," he said.

The official said both sides believe that "the kind of help they're going to need from the United States is even more than it's been in the past."

Clinton said that "even beyond the financial wes, the United States is perhaps in the best position of any country just to help with the mechanics of the election, with the mechanics of the law enforcement issue, with a whole series of complex, factual issues which have to be worked Rabin gave an indication of what those issues involve when he told a post-signing news conference that "the real test will be to what extent both sides will keep their commitments," particularly in the area of security.

"To what extent, when we'll try to hand over gradually responsibility for public order and security of the Palestinians in the densely populated areas, will the Palestinians be able to control it for their own sake?" asked the prime

He also spoke of the need to create "a hope" for the 750,000 Palestinians in Gaza with "all the miseries you can find there."

The status of Jerusalem is one issue that no one was predicting would be resolved easily.

Arafat talked of a day when the Palestinian flag would fly from buildings in the ancient city.

Rabin has made it clear he never expects to see

'Late Night' host handles pressure

By SCOTT WILLIAMS AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — Talk about pressure! Conan O'Brien pulled his head out of a noose to walk on as the new host of NBC's "Late Night."

The suicide attempt was a gag and O'Brien never came close to dying in his Monday night debut, but there were moments when he looked a trifle pained.

"How are you enjoying the show so far?" he rather desperately asked his guest Tony Randall. "Come on! I'm bobbing, I'm weaving! I'm in there! I'm trying? Huh?"

"I thought the leg wrestling was clever," Randall replied archly, after actors John Goodman and George Wendt got on the floor for some ankle-to-ankle combat.

O'Brien, an unknown 30-year-old Harvard.

O'Brien, an unknown 30-year-old Harvard alumnus, was a writer-producer for the Fox network's "The Simpsons" when he was chosen in May to succeed David Letterman, who'd quit for his own CBS show opposite NBC's "Tonight."
O'Brien received a reported one-year, $1 million

Monday night's opening sketch acknowledged the pressure. It showed O'Brien jauntily making his way to the NBC studios for his debut, only to be reminded by everyone of how tough he's got it.

"You'd better be as good as Letterman — or else!" growls NBC anchorman Tom Brokaw. crushing a handful of crackers and blowing away the crumbs.

Finally, a cheerily whistling O'Brien enters his dressing room ("New Host" it says) and has his head in a noose when the call comes that he's on.

So it went: Some things soared, some sank. His new band, the Max Weinberg 7, named after its music director. Bruce Springsteen's former drummer, had great chops; O'Brien's monologue was forced, but not unforgivable.

He lost the crowd for a half-second during his opening applause when he feigned an anxiety attack, shricking, "Something's wrong! Something's really wrong!"

LOS ANGELES - "Jurassic Park" could soon overtake "E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial" as the highest-grossing film in history.

Because of spectacular business overseas,
"Jurassic Park" has brought in more than $600 million — and it has still not opened in several major foreign markets. "E.T.," another Steven Spielberg production, took in $660 million at theaters around the globe.

Clinton enlists former presidents for trade agreement

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Trying to catching up with the critics, President Clinton is soliciting the help of three former presidents to wage a high-profile fall campaign for a free trade agreement with Canada and Mexico.

He was to sign environmental and labor side deals to the proposed North American Free Trade Agreement today with former presidents George Bush, Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford looking on.

Accused of spending too little time on NAFTA. the president planned to follow up the event with a visit to New Orleans on Wednesday to promote the pact. His Cabinet will be dispatched across the country to sing its praises.

Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen on Monday rejected suggestions that the administration was holding back its lobbying effort because of strong opposition from labor and environmental groups who had heavily backed Clinton's presidential "Traditionally, you have more opposition as you start until you get a chance to explain the benefits." Bentsen said. "We will win it."

Carter and Bush were spending the night at the White House after watching the consummation of a treaty between Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization. Ford came for dinner. All three ex-presidents were scheduled to make

The extra muscle will be needed. Opponents of the accord got a head start while Clinton concentrated on the budget and streamlining the government."

"NAFTA is bad for the working people,"
Candice Johnson of the AFL-ClO said Monday.
The union planned a news conference today with the Sierra Club and Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich., who also oppose the agreement.

Ross Perot, who is pushing a new book on NAFTA titled "Save Your Job, Save Our Country," claims 5.9 million American workers will be put in jeopardy by the agreement.

Opponents say the pact would make it easier for U.S. companies to move their factories to Mexico where labor is cheaper and environmental standards less stringent.

The White House argues that the side agreements address those concerns.

"NAFTA will increase the U.S. exports and create high-wage, high-skill jobs and make sure that the increased trade does not come at the cost of workers or the environment." Anne Luzzatto. press secretary for Trade Representative Mickey Kantor, said Monday.

The pact would create the world's largest free trade zone, stretching from the Yukon to the Yucatan, linking the three nations into an economic unit of 360 million consumers.

The main trade agreement would eliminate tariffs and other barriers to the movement of goods, services and investment among the three nations over a 15-year period.

Trade embargo relaxed on dealings with Vietnam

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - President Clinton is relaxing the U.S. trade embargo against Vietnam, allowing U.S. firms to compete for the first time for internationally funded development projects in that country.

The White House announcement Monday said the gesture to Vietnam was a reflection of Hanol's increased willingness to cooperate in providing an accounting of Americans still missing from the Vietnam War.

It also was aimed at encouraging future cooperation.

But Ann Mills Griffith.

director of a Vietnam MIA-

POW group, criticized the decision, saying Vietnam has been withholding from U.S. officials information on hundreds of MIA cases.

"They are continuing to manipulate this issue by not providing what they can readily provide," she told The Associated Press.

Presidential press secretary Dee Dec Myers said the overall embargo was being main-tained "to make clear to the Vietnamese that more needs to be done" on POWs and MIAs.

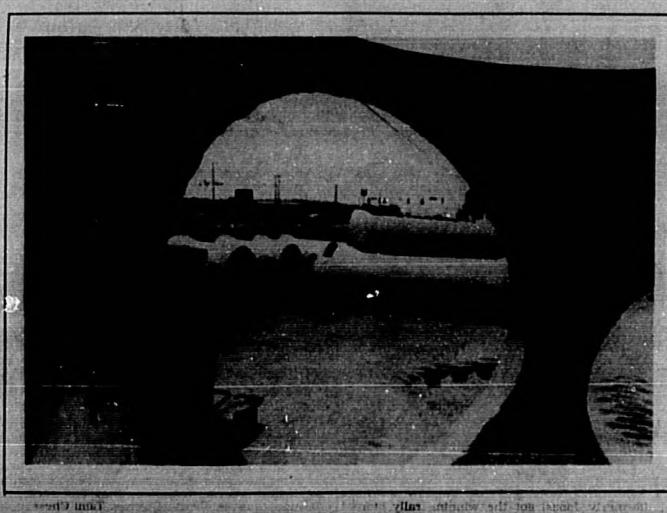

The action apparently would enable American firms to compete for World Bank and Asian Development Bank loans for Vietnam. It was not clear from the announcement the size or the type of projects American firms would be able to compete for.

Clinton's action extends his authority to impose and maintain existing sanctions affecting several countries, including Vietnam, Cuba and North Korea.

If he had declined to act, the sanctions against each of these countries would have lapsed

The sanctions against Vietnam were imposed in 1975 after the U.S.-backed Salgon government was de-feated by the communist North Vietnamese. Successive administrations have renewed the embargo each September since then.

Clinton has said he will not lift the embargo against Vietnam unless Hanoi cooperates fully in providing for an accounting of Americans.

Abortion in health plan, but few details

By KAREN BALL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - President Clinton's health plan includes abortion as a standard benefit. but groups on both sides of the abortion debate say the White House has been purposely stingy with details in a bid to limit any political fallout.

The 240-page draft of the Clinton health plan puts "pregnancy-related services" on the list of standard benefits every plan would have to provide. Those services presumably would include abortion, even though the document doesn't spell it out.

Yet, abortion rights advocates say they're worried about the president's commitment. They cite the lack of detail and comments by White House officials playing down the impact of abortion's inclusion and suggesting that Clinton wouldn't squawk if Congress takes abortion out of the package.

"They're trying in every way to be vague ... to avoid con-troversy." said Kate Michelman of the National Abortions Right League. "It's important that the president be clear and unambiguous. And everyone on his team needs to be saying the same thing. They're not at that point yet."

Anti-abortion forces also contend the White House is trying to straddle the fence to minimize any political damage from the president's stand on the emotional issue.

"We think they're trying to throw people off the scent with this doublespeak," said Doug Johnson of the National Right to Life Committee. "The White House is trying to have it both ways by misrepresenting the actual scope of this, and saying it's the status quo when it would be a dramatic expansion."

SANFORD - "The best laid plans of mice and men.....'

It may be a week later than planned, but the Sanford Church Softball League Fall Slowpitch Softball Season will get underway this Saturday morning at Chase and Pinchurst parks.

After several weeks of planning and meetings things are finally falling into place for the league. which has been a staple of Sanford adult recreational activities for the past 20 years.

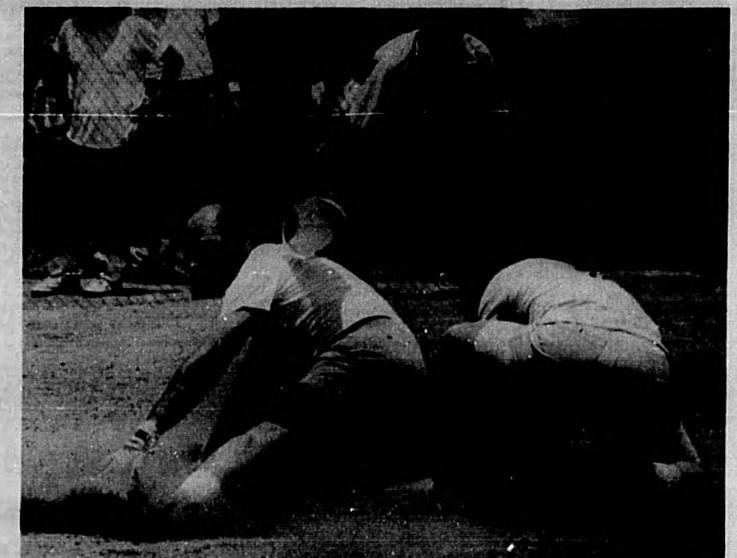

Most of the schedule for this Saturday is set, but a change is possible today, as another entry is expected to make a decision on whether to play this fall or not.

Eleven teams representing nine churches have committed to the league and at least 10 of those clubs will be in action this weekend.

As of the time of publication there was three games scheduled for the Fellowship Division at Chase Park and two games on tap for the Fun Division at Pinchurst Park.

Expected to make up the Fellowship Division are Majesty from Trinity Assembly of God in Deltona, Sanford Central Baptist, Sanford First Church of the Nazarene, First United Methodist of Sanford, All Souls Catholic of Sanford and one of the two entries from Sanford Christian.

Making up the Fun Division will be the other Sanford Christian team. Grace United Methodist from Lake Mary, the Crusaders from the Church of the Nativity Catholic in Lake Mary, the Disciples from the scason at Central Winds Park, the Paddy McGee's women's softball team from Oviedo returned to familiar surroundings and came away with familiar results.

Playing their opening game in the Seminole County Recreation Department Women's Mon-day Night Class C Fall Slowpitch Softball League at Red Bug Lake Park, where the team has won numerous league titles. Paddy McGee's ripped the ball for 23 hits and knocked off Pretzels, a rival pub of Paddy McGee's, 11-6.

After getting off to a slow start and falling behind early, the Mice railied to tie the score at 6-6 entering the seventh inning.

Former Lake Howell High School and Seminole Community College star Jaudon Mariette (formerly Jones) got the winning raily started consecutive hits for the winners.

"We finally capitalized in the last inning," said Paddy McGee's manager Mickey Norton. "We had 23 hits, but we must have left at least 12 runners on base the first six innings."

Connie Thomas was without a doubt the shining star of the game, hurling one-hit, shutout ball over the final five innings after giving up all six runs in the first two innings. She also starred at the plate, going four-for-four and driving in three runs, including the go ahead, and winning. run in the seventh.

Also contributing to Paddy McGee's offense were Heidle Green and Oviedo High School sophomore Carrie McAuliffe (three hits each). Jackie Janowiak, Phyllie Baynes, Tami Chesser and Allyson Hale (two hits each) and Lori Lingo (three RBI) and Denise Levinson (one hit each).

"I thought we did exceptionally well considering the three players who have been our best hitters in the past are not with us," said Norton. who has managed a team under the Mice banner for over 25 years. "Terri Mann is out after having surgery, April Stoner hurt her leg on Sunday and Theresa Walburger (a former Lake Mary star) is back in college at Florida Southern.'

The next action for Paddy McGee's will be next Monday night, when it takes on another local watering hole, Cheers, at 6:30 p.m.

DENVER - It's anowing in September. Welcome to baseball in Colorado.

Heavy, wet snowflakes swirled through Mile High Stadium on Monday. Sunday it was 92 degrees.

Snow had fallen since morning, and in an hour and a half the Rockies were supposed to open a homestand against Houston. Of the 5.3 inches that fell, only an still was warm from Sunday's balmy weather, when the Denver Broncos played at home.

General manager Bob Gebhardt tested the grounds, walking from the clubbouse to center field. He talked to Astros manager Art Howe, then signaled to the media there would be no game. The game was rescheduled for a Tuesday doubleheader at 5:05 p.m. EDT.

It was the Rockies' second cancellation because of snow during their inaugural year - the first was

Rockies spokeswoman Karen Barnarth said this latest postponement didn't cause much of a stir in the Rockies' clubhouse

If no changes are made today, the schedule for Satuday at Chase Park will have First Church of the Nazarene taking on Sanford Christian No. 1 at 9 a.m.; All Souls Catholic facing First United Methodist at 10 a.m.; and Central Baptist battling Trinity Assembly of God at 11 a.m.

At Pinehurst Park, Grace United Methodits will play the Nativity-Crusaders at 9 a.m. and the Nativity-Disciples will challenge Sanford Christian No. 2 at 10 a.m. Antioch Baptist has requested that they not play until next week (September 25th).

If a 12th team is picked up, there will be three games at both fields the rest of the season. If only 11 teams are still in, one team will probably have to play a doubleheader at Pinehurst Park each week.

The league is expected to be very strong as the champions from the three spring divisions, the Disciples, First United Methodist and Trinity Assembly are back, as well as the overall champion from last fall, Central Baptist.

A revamped All Souls squad as well as improved teams from the Crusaders and Sanford Christian also figure to keep everyone on their toes.

Tretham had started on the pole, but George powered his way into the lead on the very first lap, then raced on the edge of his seat for the rest of the 25-lap race.

George's strongest challenge came on lap six when Trentham started to cut inside on George coming through turn two. But George was stronger running the high groove and was able to hold off Trentham down the back stretch.

Trentham challenged a few more times in turn four, but each time George was able to power away, keeping clean air in front of his radiator, while Trentham continued sucking in hot air in the short track draft-

In other divisions Friday night at Volusia County Speedway. Chuck Bossinger of Jacksonville was the winner of the South Eastern Mini-Sprint Association feature, Brian Bales of Holly Hill claimed the Pro Stock 20-lap feature, Mike Schild whipped the Hobby Stock field and Bill Howard took the checkered flag in the Mini-Stocks.

Bossinger and Tommy Denton put on about the same show as George and Trentham in the SEMA mini-sprints, but in that 20-lap feature, it was Denton leading 18 of the 20 laps and Bossinger blowing by for the win after Denton came off the power with only two laps remaining.

"I think Tommy's car got little tight." Bossinger a id as he accepted his trophy. "I was able to get by and that was the race. I didn't use the brakes much running against Tommy. That's just radiator overflow (running on the ground). It's running a little hot."

Denton held on for second, just edging a hard-charging Nick Ramsey and Dennis Misuraca at the start/finish line. Otto Scrape completed the top five.

Bales chased Bobby Layman for most of the 20-lap Pro Stock feature, but ran inside on Layman on the 16th lap to set up a dash to the finish, which Denton rated as his biggest thrill

"This is the first time I've really outran Bobby Layman," said an excited Bales from the winner's circle. "This is the high of my life."

Following Layman across the line third through fifth were Larry Wilburn, Wally Arnold and Gary Fountain.

Schild paced the quintet of Lonnic Register. Ron Adams. Jeff Rhinehardt and David Ough to the checkers in the Hobby Stock feature, while Howard led a train of Monty Stratton, Mike Ponce, John Cooper and Joey Corbin across the line in the Mini-Stocks.

But after a game and a half, Butler had been held to 82 yards on 21 carries and no touchdowns. Not bad, but hardly what one would expect from a player of Butler's skills.

But that all changed on the very first play of the second half, as Butler went around right end for 68 yards and a touchdown to start the Patriots, and himself. on the way to a big night and a big district win.

Butler went on to carry the ball 15 more times in the final half and gained another 87 yards while also adding two more touchdowns on runs of two and five yards in the fourth quarter to give Lake Brantley a 31-6 triumph in its first home game of the year. Butler finished the night with

Parents lose appetite when daughter's boyfriend eats

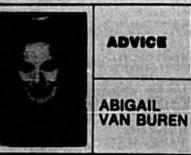

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is dating a nice young man (24 years old) who has appalling table manners. This bothers our daughter as well as her father and me. For a college boy who was raised in a metropolitan area by seemingly educated parents and who has traveled extensively in Europe, we are at a loss as to his terrible table manners. The worst thing of all is his smacking of his food. We can overlook the boardinghouse reach and elbows on the table. but the smacking drives my husband and me away from the table - as well as from extending any invitation to cat at restaurants. Our daughter is missing out on being able to eat at our club.

Can you or your readers offer any subtle hints without causing a rift in their relationship or ours? Is there a book on table etiquette for young busi-nessmen? He does read your NO TABLE MANNERS daughter would be doing the nice young man a favor if she told him in a private, nonconfrontational way that food should be taken in small bites. and chewed quietly with the mouth closed, which should end the smacking.

There are many excellent books on etiquette available, as near as your local bookstore. My current favorite is Letitia Baldridge's "The New Manners for the Nineties" - very readable and comprehensive.

DEAR ABBY: If a close friend or relative is unable to attend a wedding, isn't it proper etiquette and good manners to send a gift

I sent my cousin an invitation to my wedding and she said she would not be in town that weekend and could not attend. so she wasn't sending a gift. My cousin agreed to stand by your decision. Abby.

J.B. IN OTTAWA, CANADA DEAR J.B.: Letitia Baldrige, in her "Complete Guide to Executive Manners," says: "Recipients of wedding announcements are not expected to send gifts recipients of invitations who accept, are. However, many people who feel close to the bride and groom but cannot attend the wedding, send a gift - if only a small token, 'to show their pleasure over the news." Emily Post says: "In general, everyone who receives an invitation to a wedding reception or to a small wedding in a club, hotel or at home, sends a gift. An invitation to a church ceremony alone carries no such obligation.

Neither does a wedding announcement." I'm with Letitia.

Will tetracycline mask' syphilis?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I take 500 mg of tetracycline daily for acne. Will the antibiotic mask the symptoms of sexually transmitted diseases, such as syphilis and gonorrhea? Would the antibiotic eliminate the disease without my knowledge of being exposed? DEARREADER: Tetracycline, although a good antibiotic, is not an especially powerful one. It is primarily useful in treating skin disorders. such as acne, and mild respiratory tract infections, such as bronchitis. Tetracycline is not particularly effective against sexually transmitted diseases, for which stronger antibiotics are ordinarily prescribed. For example, tetracycline is not recommended for treating syphilis or gonorrhea, for which penicillin and its derivatives are more appropriate.

Nonetheless, tetracycline may, as you suggest, "mask" venereal diseases; the bacteria can be somewhat inhibited (making diagnosis by bacterial analysis difficult) without really affecting the contagiousness of these discases.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Should diverticulosis be surgically removed before it becomes diverticulitis? Mine is causing numerous problems, including diarrhea. DEAR READER: No. no. absolutely not. Most adults have diverticulosis (harmless outpouchings and sacs in the intestinal lining). which causes no symptoms other than infrequent diarrhea. On occasion, however, these sacs can become inflamed. leading to bleeding, pain or abscesses. This is diverticulitis and is treated with antibiotics -and, if necessary, surgery to remove the diseased portion of

No reputable study or authority has recommended surgery for diverticulosis (to prevent diverticulitis): the risks and consequences simply do not outwelgh the disadvantages.

To give you more information. I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Diverticular Discase."

Your lifestyle depends heavily on where you live and what job you do. In New York, stress and pressure are noticeable everywhere: you can feel them in the air. But on, say, a sheep farm in New Zealand, life lopes along a leisurely lane.

At the bridge table, though, you must find the pressure plays. Make your opponent guess what is going on.

Today's deal occurred during the Surfer's Paradise Congress, held on Queensland's Gold Coast last Feb-ruary. East was Ashley Bach, a young New Zealander who is furthering his bridge career in Australia. His opening bid wouldn't appeal to everyone. Yet here it gave the defense its only chance. By partnership agreement, North's two-diamond cue-bid promised length in both majors and some values.

West led the diamond king. The declarer, Hugh Grosvenor, who represented Australia in last vear's world championship, won with dummy's ace and called for a trump. No second-hand low for Bach, who went in with the ace, cashed the diamond queen and led another diamond. This put Grosvenor on the spot. There were only 14 points missing and West had already produced the diamond king. This suggested, even for a third-hand opening, that East would have the spade jack. But there were other considerations. Eventually, South ruffed with the spade queen and cashed the king. When the jack didn't drop. Grosvenor played on clubs. starting with the ace. He hoped. to discard all of dummy's heart losers. However, East ruffed in early and cashed the heart ace to foil that plan.
