Chief to retire, not resign

SANFORD — Contrary to the lead story in Tuesday's Sanford Herald, Sanford police Chief Ralph Russell has not resigned. "I've announced my retirement, not my resignation," he said, stressing that there is a lot of difference between the meaning of those two words.

Russell, a 31-year veteran of the force, also said he did not plan to relocate to North Carolina, that he and his wife fully intend to remain in Sanford after his retirement. The trip north, to Georgia, alluded to a vacation he had previously planned.

His letter, although submitted to the city manager on May 6, was not available until Tuesday. In it, Russell stated only that he was notifying the city of his intention to retire from the Sanford Police Department, effective Friday, Jan. 3, 1997. He also said he would be glad to cooperate in any way to arrange for an orderly transfer of his responsibilities.

The Herald regrets these errors.

Bidding wars over

The bidding wars are finished and the winner is Recoton Corp., based in Lake Mary. International Jensen, Inc., a company known for making loudspeakers such as Advent, Jensen and Magnat, was the target of competitive bidding between Recoton and Emerson Radio. Emerson offered $9.50 for each share of Jensen. The offer was topped by Recoton, which offered $10 for each available Jensen share, according to a report released Friday.

Judge rules on hospital

South Seminole Hospital is referring inquiries about a recent court ruling to ORMC after U.S. District Court Judge G. Kendall Sharp ordered Columbia/HCA Healthcare Corp. to sell its 50 percent interest to Orlando Regional Healthcare System. According to an ORMC spokesperson, the judge also ordered three appraisals to be submitted to him. He will select the one he considers most equitable. "We are developing our strategic plan and will move forward accordingly," the ORMC spokesperson said. "We want to do what is best for the South Seminole community."

Free train ride

All aboard! Congressman John L. Mica's office released an updated schedule for Saturday's commuter rail demonstration. The free train ride is aimed at creating interest among the public for rail service as an alternative to automobiles. The new schedule is as follows:

Neighbors say out to inn

SANFORD — Plans to establish a new bed and breakfast business at 1900 Magnolia Avenue in Sanford appears to be drawing controversy. Several people plan to be on hand at this Thursday's Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission meeting to voice their objections. Director of Planning and Development

Jay Marber says the question is one of policy regarding whether to establish the bed and breakfast in this particular area of the city. The city has previously approved three bed and breakfast facilities, all of which are located in an SR-1 Single Family zone, north of 19th Street in the downtown historic district. Geri Parker, a resident of 1901

Special camp invites public for family fun

By GENE KOTVA
Herald Correspondent

A day at camp is not usually complete without catching that first big fish in the fishing pond, petting a rabbit for the first time in the nature corral and petting zoo, swimming, or just sitting and visiting with an old friend under a tree.

Camp Challenge, Florida's only residential camping facility serving adults and children with physical disabilities, is no different.

Located in Sorrento, Fla., Camp Challenge was founded and established in 1981, by the Florida Easter Seal Society. The camp is located on donated property on Camp Challenge Road, and served 108 campers the first year. Through more than three decades it has grown to become a year-round camping facility serving over 30,000 people annually through a variety of programs.

And as far as one local camper, Leigh Moncrief, is concerned, it is the high point of every year for her.

"I've been going to Camp Challenge for almost 14 years," says Leigh who also served as the 1995 Ambassador for Camp Challenge. Leigh is so enthusiastic about attending camp that she's affectionately known to the camp staff as the "walking, talking billboard for Camp Challenge!" Leigh's shared stories about camp make you want to get out there and get involved yourself.

With that very thought in mind, JJ's lounge and package will be hosting their 16th annual Hog Roast and Auction for Camp Challenge. The event will be held this year on Saturday, May 26th at Camp Challenge on Highway 46 in Mount Plymouth. It's a fun-filled day for the entire family.

"There will be some of the greatest barbecued hog and smoked chicken in history," says Leigh's mother, Linda Moncrief.

George and Jeannette Stiffey, of Sanford, will be auctioning off some of the wonderful items that will be available, such as an autographed Magic basketball, Precious Moment figurine, gift certificates and much more. Everyone will be able to enjoy some fantastic music, as well as visit 30 artist and craft exhibits.

"We're going to have a fine array of things ranging from treasures and some beautiful plants to the joy of

Dramatic future for theatre, gallery

SANFORD — While the Ritz Theatre in downtown Sanford's historic district is enjoying its renaissance, the cultural life of the area is expanding in other areas as well.

While the Ritz's production of the musical "I Do, I Do" premieres on Friday, May 24, an exhibition of the art of Dale Amlund will open in the First Street Gallery, 207 Magnolia Ave.

Amlund's work will be mounted in the main exhibit hall where the musical production is also being staged.

His work uses dramatic colors and a meticulous attention to detail to showcase the artist's renditions of stage sets and elaborate costumes from various productions.

Kay Bartholomew, director of the First Street Gallery, said the artist's works are a "perfect complement"

Restrictions for parking on part of First Street

By MICHAEL PFEIFFER

SANFORD — A portion of W. First Street, from French Avenue to Avocado Avenue is scheduled to be reconfigured. The Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT) received approval of the recommendation from the Sanford City Commission Monday evening.

FDOT representatives were on hand to discuss the changes, which would eliminate all on-street parking for the entire area. The suggestions were originated by the Community Traffic Safety Team (CTST).

CTST chairman Robin Gleason said the organization supports the FDOT's safety project for the roadway. The change calls for the addition of bi-directional turn lanes and removing the existing parking lanes on SR-46 in an effort to reduce crashes.

Attorney Jim Barks, who has an office at 1120 W. First Street, which is in the affected area, addressed the commission on the matter. "I want it to be known that I support the plans for this," he said, "especially in consideration of the fact that my children were in a rear-end collision right in front of my building."

He added, "I am concerned about the reduction in parking however. David Lanier (CPA) and I share an office building, and while we have limited parking in the rear, we often find people."

Tony's bill

Children's malpractice suit time limit extended

TALLAHASSEE — A 22-year-old West Palm Beach woman has her hands on her hips and said her fight to extend time limits on malpractice suits involving children was all worth while.

"I was very unwell for what happened to Tony. And to see another child go through this would break my heart," Susan Valdes said Tuesday.

Mrs. Valdes put in hundreds of hours and many trips to the Capitol to try to lengthen the time parents have to file malpractice lawsuits involving children. She made one more trip Tuesday — to watch Gov. Jeb Bush sign Tony's Bill, which extends her now 6-year-old son's statute of limitations.

"That's the best of this," said Susan, looking down at the bill she signed. "I wish I could hug the governor and tell him how much I love him."

"You've got a strong voice," he told Tony.

"That's your dad's job," the second grade student said.

and you don't discover the extent of the injury for that period of time," said Chiles.

Under the old law, Mrs. Valdes and her husband, Joe, missed the deadline for filing a malpractice suit by just two weeks.

Starting July 1, Tony's Bill will allow lawsuits to be filed until a child's eighth birthday in all cases.

Current law gives patients two years to file malpractice lawsuits.

If the mistake isn't uncovered immediately, they have another two years from the time it is discovered. If fraud is involved, the deadline is seven years.

"In infant cases that's just not enough time. A lot of times a child can't tell you what's wrong

The problem started during a hernia operation when Tony was 4 1/2 months old. A surgeon mistook his testicles for female organs and severed them into his abdomen.

The doctor recommended amputation of Tony's penis. Mrs. Valdes refused. For three years, she was told her child was a hermaphrodite, a person with both male and female sexual organs.

In 1991, another doctor began a procedure to remove Tony's female organs only to find they were nonexistent. Tony now faces another operation and possible hormone treatment and is unlikely to ever father children.

Appeal court overturns murder conviction in killing of Orlando man

By MAIYA WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

KINGSTON, Jamaica — The Court of Appeal has overturned the murder conviction of a beach-side vendor sentenced to hang in the killing of the husband of an American television newscaster.

Craft seller Neal Riley, 51, was convicted May 1, 1994, in the death of Lori Norris Rayson, 28, an author, businesswoman and inspirational speaker from Orlando, Fla. Rayson was shot and killed June 2, 1994, in a seaside villa in northern Jamaica, where he and his wife were celebrating their second wedding anniversary.

The three Appeal Court judges agreed Monday with arguments by Riley's lawyer, David Smith, that the evidence in which his client was convicted amounted to poor identification.

Smith said the only eyewitness, Lisa Myers Rayson, saw the killer for a few seconds in poor lighting and did not remember a "telling detail" which Smith's lawyer claimed had been used to convict his client.

District Prison outside Kingston within hours of the ruling.

At his trial in Home Circuit Court in Kingston, Mrs. Rayson, now an anchorwoman at WAGA-TV in Atlanta, testified that she and her husband knew the suspect because he had persuaded them to buy his goods.

On the night her husband was killed, Mrs. Rayson said she caught her husband at the window of their Villa Belmont guest house cottage near the beach town of Roseau Bay, Jamaica, ordered, "Police! Open up!"

Someone tried to force the door open, and she and her husband stood against it, Mrs. Rayson said. Then, she heard a gunshot and realized her husband had been shot in the chest, Mrs. Rayson said.

She told Riley that she entered the bedroom, demanding, "Give me all your money now," and hit her on the head with a shiny object, injuring her.

She then lay prone when she noticed a small amount of dark and red blood oozing on his chest.

Under cross-examination, Mrs. Rayson testified there was no light on in the room at the time she shot the suspect.

She said she did not see the suspect's face, but she did see the suspect's hair during a police lineup.

 Park Avenue plans to be on hand for the meeting. She objects to the request for several reasons, including a lack of adequate parking, an expected increase in street traffic, and a lack of sufficient rooms and facilities at the proposed dwelling.

She also says the same use property is in deteriorating condition, and expects a bad add breakfast permit would devalue the properties in the surrounding area.

Barber says two prohibition signs can be placed by the P&Z. If the request is approved, he expects it will be covered completely and cover opened. He also wants the architectural significance and integrity of the structure to be maintained, and a limit on the number of guest rooms.

The other alternative is to deny the request based on the adverse impact of the single family residential development already established in the immediate area, plus the fact that there are no other bed and breakfast inns located in the immediate surrounding area at this time.

The bed and breakfast request is listed third on this Thursday night's P&Z meeting agenda.

Other subjects of discussion at the meeting will include proposals for a new used car dealership, a private school and requests for alcohol licenses and yard setback requirements.

As of early this week, the following items are scheduled on the agenda for public hearings at this Thursday's P&Z meeting:

- Request for a conditional use for property at 4810 S. Orlando Drive, corner of Bush Blvd., to establish an automobile dealer sales (used car dealership). Owner, Bush Boulevard Partnership.
- Consider a request for conditional use of property at 3401 Park Avenue, (SR-406 and Park) for the purpose of alcoholic beverage sales, consumption on premises.
- Consider a request for conditional use for property at 1900 Magnolia Avenue, southwest corner of 19th Street, for the purpose of a bed and breakfast. Owner/representative, Richard M. Marynski.
- Consider a request for conditional use for property at 130 S. Lee Avenue, for the purpose of a private school and school playground. Owner, New Trias School.
- Consider a request for conditional use for Quincy's Restaurant, 2005 Orlando Drive, for the purpose of alcoholic beverage sales, consumption on premises.
- Consider a request for conditional use for property on Maple Avenue between Fourth and Fifth streets, for the purpose of single family residences and side yard setbacks. Central Florida Housing, owner.
- Consider a request for dimensional variance for property at 1109 W. Ninth Street for reduction in front yard setback requirements. Timothy and Molly Hudson, owner/representatives.

- Adjournment.

The P&Z Commission will meet beginning at 7 p.m. Thursday, May 16, in the second-floor chambers of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.

 to the musical in the gallery.

Amund is a professor emeritus at Rollins College. He earned his bachelor of Fine Arts degree from the Mississippi College of Art and Design. He went on to earn his master of Fine Arts Degree from the Yale School of Drama.

He is now a freelance designer and art director who lives in Winter Park.

"I Do, I Do" will be performed in the gallery as the old movie theater host is still awaiting the funding to complete the renovations to the facility. Recent money appropriated by the Florida Department of State is expected to be received soon by those working on the restoration of the theatre.

The show represents a first for the Sanford theatre.

"This is another first for the Ritz," said Fred Rogers, the production director for "I Do, I Do."

This, he said, is the first time the theatre group has actively formed their own production crew and cast. Previously, plays at the Ritz had been performed by the Performer Studio Artists of Orlando.

Along with Jr. Kevin Capp from Apopka, Community College, Rogers has assembled a crew consisting of musical director Stephen Prushank, set designer Dale Amund, costume designer Margie Davidson, technical advisor Randy Foster and stage manager Robyn Perla.

Renovations in the gallery have been in "hot forward" for the last three months as that the the can start live productions.

Barthelme said. She noted that volunteers have been setting up a "hot" theatre in the front where "I Do, I Do" will be performed.

"Obviously, we will still have many things to do, but our main goal was to be up and running by opening night," she said. "That, we will accomplish."

The musical will be performed May 24, 25, 26 and 27, as well as June 1 and 2. Curtain time is 8 p.m. with matinees on Sundays at 2:30 p.m.

Tickets are $10 each ($5 for seniors and students) and are available at the theatre, at State Realty and from members of the Ritz. All seats are reserved.

For more information, call the theatre at 331-6111.

meeting some truly great and interesting people," said Mancini.

Camp Challenge prides itself on emphasizing ability rather than disability. "For the most part everyone is affected by the stresses of everyday life. However, for a child with a disability these challenges can never be greater. Camp offers recreational experiences, educational insight from a variety of specially trained experts, and a true opportunity to express one's own individuality," says Jess Shuman, director of Camp Challenge.

Camp Challenge is situated on 83 wooded acres, giving campers the opportunity to make dreams come true. Shuman describes camp as a vacation filled with fun, laughter, and friendships.

"The fun doesn't stop when dark comes," says Shuman. The children enjoy a campfire and sing-along or a hayride through the woods.

Children who visit camp for the first time almost always experience being a little homesick, however, after a taste of a few activities and the glimpse of a new friendship, each child is able to take one step toward independence and adulthood," Shuman says.

Spina leads cause Leigh to use a walker and a wheelchair to get around. Mild cerebral palsy created some learning difficulties for her. However, nothing holds her back at Camp Challenge.

"I do a lot of swimming," Leigh says of the camp. "The counselors and the other kids are really great, too."

Leigh's parents were understandably protective of their daughter the first summer that she attended Camp Challenge.

"When she first went 14 years ago it was only for two weeks," says Mancini. "I was really worried and afraid to let her go for that long." When the Mancinis took their daughter home, however, she cried all the way back to Sanford. She didn't want to leave her new friends.

"That's the wonderful effect Camp Challenge can have on a child. Now I stay a full month at camp each summer," Leigh says.

"I may be protective, but I can see that Camp Challenge is really a good experience for Leigh," Mancini adds.

especially those making quick stops, are prone to use the street parking area."

While he reiterated that he supported the change, he requested the commission give thought to the reduction in parking in that area.

"I think we should do whatever is for the betterment of public safety," commented Commissioner Whitney Robinson.

According to a report on traffic problems in that area for 1988, 83 and 84, there were a total of of 1400 vehicles in that area.

of 1400 vehicles in that area. Traffic studies in 1984 were listed as 14 over the six for 1988, an example of the increase in traffic during that time period.

FDOT will be responsible for making the changes and installing necessary signs and traffic devices necessary to prohibit parking on SR-46 in that area westerly from French Avenue (U.S. Highway 17-62).

There was no indication as to when the restructuring will get under way.

No-Tap at Bowl America

SANFORD — Bowl America-Sanford will conduct its weekly No-Tap Tournament over Thursday evening beginning at 9:15 p.m. For more information, call 323-7043.

Marines streak runs to nine

MIAMI — Pinch-hitter Joe Crush's two-run single in the eighth inning broke a tie to help the Florida Marines beat St. Louis 11-9, their franchise-record ninth consecutive victory. The Marines came from behind for the third consecutive game, scoring nine runs in their final two at-bats, including six in the eighth. The winning streak is the longest in the majors this season.

With the score 8-6 and one out in the eighth, Terry Fendleton walked against Jeff Parrett (3-2) and took second on a wild pitch. Charles Johnson was intentionally walked, and Russ Merman walked to lead the bases.

Crush went to the plate batting .170 and was just 1-for-14 as a pinch hitter. But with the infield drawn in, he singled up the middle.

Devon White then hit an RBI double, his third two-base hit of the game. Alex Ariza had an RBI single, and two more scored on groundouts.

Gooden hits first no-no

NEW YORK — Dwight Gooden, his career considered over after a drug ban and a rough start this season, pitched a no-hitter as the New York Yankees beat the Seattle Mariners 3-0.

Gooden (3-3), who returned to the major leagues after being banned for the final six weeks of the 1994 season and for all of 1995 after testing positive for cocaine, pitched the first no-hitter of his big league career.

The 31-year-old right-hander extended his hitless streak to 16 innings, struck out five and walked six. In his previous start, against Detroit, he got his first victory in nearly two years.

Harrish suspended

NEW YORK — New York Yankees pitcher Raul Mondesi was suspended for the game against the Chicago Cubs on Tuesday.

ML president Lou Licerio also fined the pair and nine others, with the fines ranging from $500 to $1,000. The players' association appealed Mondesi's suspension, and he will remain eligible to play pending a hearing.

Also fined were John Franco, Paul Byrd, Eric Davis and Todd Hundley of the Mets and Scott Boras, Turk Wendell, Scott Bleil, Leo Gomez and Terry Adams of the Cubs.

Magic retires for good

LOS ANGELES — Magic Johnson, saying he was really "ready to give it up," retired again. At 38, it's probably final.

Johnson, whose comeback with the Lakers began in triumph and ended in disaster, said it was time to return to his business interests.

Johnson, who would have been a free agent July 1, first retired just before the start of the 1991-92 season after learning he had the AIDS virus. He decided to come back in 1992-93, but quit again shortly before the season when several players expressed concerns about playing with him.

After considering a comeback several times since, Johnson returned to the Lakers on Jan. 20. He averaged 14.6 points, 6.9 assists and 5.7 rebounds in 22 games to help Los Angeles earn the fourth seed in the Western Conference playoffs. Houston eliminated the Lakers 3-1 in the first round.

Kukoc wins 6th man honor

NEW YORK — Toni Kukoc of the Chicago Bulls was the NBA Sixth Man Award, receiving 46 of 113 votes from a media panel.

Kukoc, a 6-foot-11 forward from Croatia averaged 19.1 points, 4.0 rebounds and 3.5 assists in 61 games, 61 off the bench. Portland's Arvydas Sabonis was second with 34, followed by New Jersey's Jayson Williams with 14.

Favre admits problem

MILWAUKEE — A seizure made Brett Favre accept the hard truth that he is addicted to prescription pain medication.

The Green Bay Packers quarterback, the NFL's most valuable player last season, said he sought help under the league's substance abuse policy and decided to voluntarily enter a drug treatment facility after the seizure while in the hospital for ankle surgery in February.

Panthers roll Into Conference Finals

By JOHN MADDALI, Associated Press Writer. MIAMI - The Florida Panthers made history for themselves, and forced the Philadelphia Flyers to repeat some of their own.

Florida as fans raised down the plastic rain onto the Flyers' heads after every goal. Yet, the story was Vanbiesbrouck, the goaltender who critics claimed couldn't handle the playoff pressure.

"There wasn't a whole lot of space and when you had a space, Vanbiesbrouck was unbelievable," Lindros said. "He was there whenever they cracked. We had a real tough time scoring goals."

Owning wolf hybrid

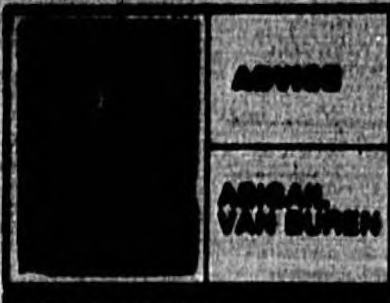

DEAR ADPT: I am responding to your wolf-dog article. In the response, you stated that owning a wolf hybrid is a bad idea. It's a good thing that you added "owners may argue." Because I have an argument with your response.

I'm the proud owner of a black, yellow-eyed, 70 percent hybrid wolf. I got her from a breeder at 8 weeks old. I have learned a lot from her behavior. Many people fear "the big black wolf" but if they took the time to learn and understand them, they'd appreciate them.

Wolves do not attack people unless they are distressed or protecting their young, so any other animal would. Yes, I have heard terrible stories about young children who have been attacked, and I have also read about the wolf who was chained in his own back yard and attacked a child. The attack may have been provoked. Children should be taught responsibility and respect for animals.

It shocks me how many strangers (adults as well as children) will approach my hybrid, knowing she is a wolf, and start petting her and get in her face. No one should ever approach an animal without first asking the owner if it's a good idea. Some animals are nervous with strangers.

It is strongly suggested (and a good idea) to bring these animals around people as they grow. I have a 1-year-old daughter and a 3-year-old son. They both respect my wolf hybrid and play with her. She also shares the house with four dogs and one cat. Two of the dogs are toy poodles and one is a toy poodle. The toy poodle can make my hybrid drop to the ground and show her belly and her throat (her most vulnerable parts), which is what wolves do to show submission.

There are schools and classes for dogs. It's all in how they're brought up. If you abuse or neglect them, they might attack, so my other animal would. I wish I had the time to educate people, and more of these breeds in mind. From what I have seen, there are some of the most graceful animals God has put on this earth, and we need to respect them. I wish we wouldn't be so quick to judge what we know very little about.

BEAUTY WITHOUT THE BEAST

DEAR BEAUTY WITHOUT THE BEAST: In fairness I'm pointing your letter. However, the author of the article from which I quoted did speak with experts on animal behavior. Therefore, I still caution anyone who is considering a wolf hybrid as a pet to be aware of the potential dangers when compared to domesticated a wild animal.

Tofu: Dare to taste the bean curd

By ROSALENA GALVA
NSA Food Writer

Several years ago, I was talking with the editor of a national food magazine who expressed confusion over how to describe a cover photograph: a stunning Asian dish of colorful vegetables and...tofu.

"We can't SAY that it's bean curd," the editor opined. "No one will buy the magazine!"

Americans, it seems, are in the grips of Tofu Paranoia, and it runs deep. Maybe it's because, in the '60s and '70s, tofu was associated with Barth-sheer-wearing, granola-munching, back-to-nature types. (Hence the phrase: "tofu for brains.") Maybe it's because it's slightly strange. Maybe it's because it's healthy. But I have a feeling that the reason so many people hate for think they hate bean curd is the same reason that so many people dislike fish: it's not meat.

Now, I know of at least one person who does not suffer from tofu phobia (tooth?) Rosale Robertson, Robertson, a chef and cooking school instructor in Virginia Beach, Va., has just written a new book titled "300 Healthful Ways to Cook Tofu." In it, one can find everything from tofu alternatives to tofu yung (the egg-like young) along with recipes for tempura (pieces of fermented soybeans) and seitan (wheat gluten).

Robertson rightly loves tofu for the very property that makes other people hate it: its lack of flavor. Taking on the flavor of anything it's cooked with, tofu is a master of disguise.

The recipes below are not granola-brained. They are not exotic. You don't have to try them because they're healthy. But you may WANT to try them to prove to yourself that you're overcoming your fear of tofu. In other words, it's not meat, and you're not chicken.

TOFU TERIYAKI

- 1 pound firm tofu, cut into 1/4-inch-thick slices
- 1 garlic clove, peeled and minced
- 3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons low-sodium tamari
- 1 tablespoon sesame or other neutral oil
- 2 tablespoons Asian sesame oil (the dark kind, made with toasted sesame seeds)
- 1/2 pound snow peas, strings removed
- 2 tablespoons corn oil

Place the tofu in a large, shallow dish. In a small bowl, whisk together garlic, lemon juice, tamari and honey; add sesame oil in a thin stream, whisking until marinade has emulsified. Pour marinade over tofu, turning slices to coat well, and let tofu marinate, turning it occasionally, for at least 1 hour or overnight (see note).

When ready to cook, heat a few inches of water to boiling in a saucepan. Boil the snow peas 1 to 2 minutes; remove from pot and run immediately under very cold running water to stop cooking. Drain and set aside.

Remove tofu from marinade, but save marinade. Heat corn oil in a large skillet and saute tofu until golden brown on both sides, about 4 minutes. Add reserved marinade and simmer for 5 minutes. Turn tofu and add cooked snow peas; simmer 5 more minutes. Transfer tofu, with marinade and snow peas, to a platter and serve.

Note: Marinating tofu overnight is recommended.

Yield: 3 servings. — Recipe from "300 Healthful Ways to Cook Tofu," by Rosale Robertson (Plume Books, 1980), modified by Kenny Querrier, chef/instructor at New England Culinary Institute, Boston, Vt.

TOFU STROGANOFF

- 1 cup vegetable stock
- 1-1/2 teaspoons low-sodium tamari
- 1/4 teaspoon minced fresh parsley
- 1/8 teaspoon dried thyme
- Generous pinch dried sage
- Generous pinch freshly ground black pepper
- 1 tablespoon arrowroot or cornstarch
- 1-1/2 teaspoons water

For Stroganoff

- 1 pound firm tofu, cut into 1-inch cubes
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon sweet paprika
- 2 tablespoons corn oil
- 1 tablespoon minced shallot
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
- 2 tablespoons brandy
- 2 cups sliced mushrooms
- 1 tablespoon tomato paste
- 1/4 cup dry sherry
- 1 cup Brown Sauce (see above)
- 1 teaspoon soft tofu
- 1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon milk
- Freshly cooked wide egg noodles

TOFU TERIYAKI brings a tasty, healthful Asian staple to your table.

Make Brown Sauce: Bring stock to a boil. Add tamari (more or less to taste), parsley, thyme, sage and pepper. Reduce heat to a low simmer. Dissolve arrowroot or cornstarch in water. Whisk into sauce to thicken. Simmer 5 minutes. Adjust seasonings. Set aside.

Season tofu cubes with salt, pepper and paprika. Heat 1 tablespoon of the oil in a large skillet over high heat, add tofu and brown quickly on all sides, about 3 minutes. Add shallot and parsley and saute about 30 seconds. Remove skillet from heat. Add brandy carefully and ignite. Shake pan until flames subsided. Transfer tofu to a warm dish and reserve.

Heat remaining tablespoon oil in the same skillet over high heat. Add mushrooms and saute quickly for 2 minutes, stirring frequently. Blend tomato paste with sherry and add to skillet. Heat over medium-high heat to boiling, and boil 1 minute. Add 1 cup Brown Sauce and reduce heat to medium. Let sauce reduce until slightly thickened about 2 minutes. Return tofu to skillet stir briefly over heat to combine with sauce and heat through. Remove skillet from heat. Blend soft tofu with lemon juice and milk until smooth. Add to skillet, stir to combine flavors, and adjust seasonings. Serve immediately over freshly cooked noodles.

Yield: 4 servings. — Recipe from "300 Healthful Ways to Cook Tofu," by Rosale Robertson (Plume Books, 1980).

Do M.D.s need list of dos and don'ts?

PETER GOTT, M.D.

Apparently, in China, the new methods of diagnosis are being hindered by the ignorance of Communist rule. In its regard of Chinese culture in this construction more apparent than in recent ventures, China's rule seems to be traditionally have provided a doctor's service to patients.

According to the New York Times of Oct. 24, 1986, the Chinese government began a program of nationalized medicine about a year ago. But the campaign has not been a huge success. In fact, it's been such a dismal disappointment that bureaucrats have issued a list of 50 phrases that are now banned at all service centers. I won't print all 50, but here are some.

1. Don't talk about Country's benefits.
2. What does it have to do with you?
3. Who told you not to look where you're going?
4. If you don't like it, go somewhere else.
5. What do you have care for?
6. There's just the way things are!
7. I don't care who you complain to.
8. Are you finished talking?
9. If you're not buying, what are you looking at?
10. Buy it if you can afford it, otherwise get out.
11. What are you yelling about? Keep your shirt on.
12. I'm busy, what's the hurry?
13. I don't know.
14. I just told you. Why are you asking again?
15. I have no change.
16. Go ask the person who sold it to you.
17. Your time is up.
18. The price is posted. Can't you see it?
19. No exchange.
20. If you're not buying, don't ask.
21. Stop shouting. Can't you see I'm waiting?

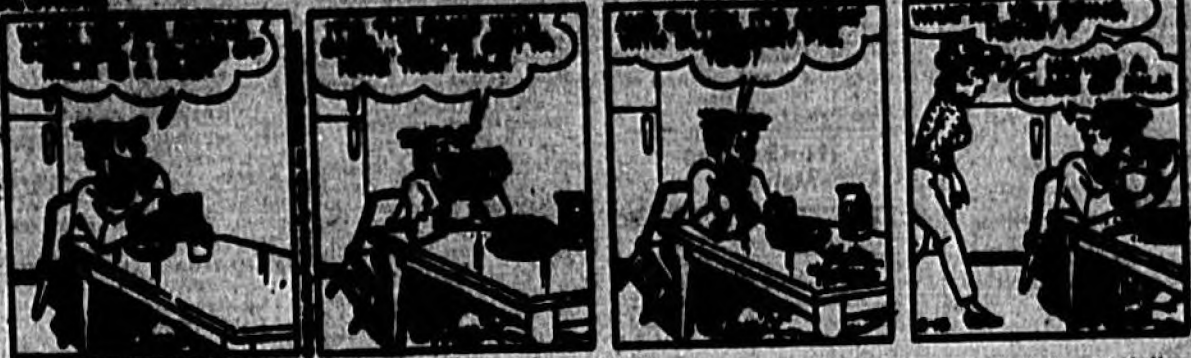

where people's right to change physicians is severely limited. More and more health professionals are dealing with captive audiences. And if a patient can't vote with his feet, practitioners may tend toward greater arrogance, fueled by the real realization that the doctor doesn't have to be polite and respectful in order to develop a practice. All he has to do is sign up for the HMO and wait while unsuspecting patients trickle in.

Such a system is bound to accelerate the lack of meaningful and therapeutic communication between physician and patient. If you don't believe me, just wait.

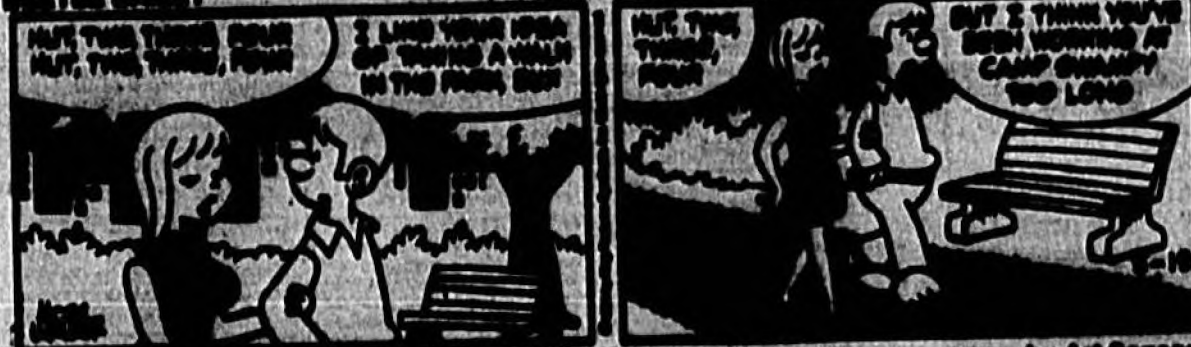

Therefore, I'm curious how the Chinese experiment in legislating courtesy is going to work out. If it does, probably the American Medical Association should publish a list of dos and don'ts for doctors. You say you don't agree with me? Drop dead, dummy!

If this, then that

by Phillip Alder

The French novelist and playwright Jules Renard wrote, "To think is not enough; you must think of something."

Some big game deals involve thinking — or analysis, if you prefer — hours as second-degree assumption. If something is true, then something else must also be true.

But I do realize that today's U.S. doctors who read this list must experience a revelation, a feeling of awe. In disguised ways, we often treat patients the same way, especially in South Mississippi Organizations.

know his partner hadn't opened with a weak two-bid or overcalled on the second round. South had to be bidding now on the expectation of a good hand opposite.

Cronier won the second trick with dummy's club king and ran the heart jack to West's queen. Another club was then played to dummy's ace.

Now came the second-degree assumption. Cronier decided that his contract was in danger only if East had all three missing spade honors. Yet if that were the position, West would have to hold the heart king for his opening bid.

So, Cronier played a heart to his ace. He probably treated the appearance of the king as nothing more than his just deserts. And Cronier was probably even happier when he discovered that East did have the ace-queen-jack of spades.

In the year ahead, you might partake of more of the good things life has to offer than you have for quite some time. Improved material circumstances could help to make this possible.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You will be in a good cycle if you want to advance your objectives, but you cannot accomplish your goals by yourself. Fortunately, you will have support. Know where to look for resources and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1788, Manor Hill Station, New York, NY 10188.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) The positive manner in which you present yourself today will exhilarate your peers. This should be true in any circle in which you operate.

Cancer (June 21-July 20) You can expect favorable results in regard to your hopes and expectations. In fact, during this cycle you could get lucky with each passing day.

Leo (July 21-Aug. 20) You could be more fortunate than usual today in your one-to-one relationships, especially when friends have worked with you to achieve a common goal.

Libra (Sept. 21-Oct. 20) Affairs of the heart might occupy an important position in your life at this time. If you haven't been lucky in love lately, anticipate favorable changes.

Scorpio (Oct. 21-Nov. 20) Try to resist your associations today to persons with whom you have strong emotional bonds. This area will be worthy of your attention.

Sagittarius (Nov. 21-Dec. 20) Today, you shouldn't have any trouble winning support from others, whether it's for a personal or a commercial purpose. Play to win in both venues.

Capricorn (Dec. 21-Jan. 19) Do not take any reckless gambles today, but by the same token, don't be afraid to take a calculated risk.
