Trash Pickup Rate Hike Asked; Hearing Set

Garbage collection fees to Seminole County homeowners will be going up by at least $2 monthly if the county commission approves rate increases to commercial haulers, recommended by Professional Engineering Consultants Inc. of Orlando.

The commission has set a public hearing for 10 a.m., Sept. 11, on the recommendation.

The rate hike is needed, said Ken Hooper, the county's director of environmental services, to pay the cost of an improved method of waste disposal demanded by the state Department of Environmental Regulation.

The department wants Seminole to stop toxic materials from garbage and trash buried at the county's sanitary landfill at the former Osceola Airfield near Geneva from contaminating nearby lands.

Test wells on nearby property have shown that moisture and toxins from the buried garbage and trash are polluting the ground water on adjacent lands.

The DER has demanded that Seminole "cap and cover" — surround compacted "solid waste" with an impervious material, described by Mrs. Glenn as something like a giant baggy — before burial to keep the water from the solid waste in and the ground water out, said

The process once begun will continue on a permanent basis.

Hooper earlier estimated a $2.50 per month increase in the rates to commercial customers would be sufficient to fund the improved method of refuse burial.

But Professional Engineering Consultants Inc., retained by the county to study the problem, says fees to commercial haulers using compact trucks must be raised from $9.75 per ton to $18 at transfer stations and from $7.75 per ton to $15 at the landfill.

Hooper estimates the annual cost of capping and covering the 200,000 tons of solid waste generated in Seminole County and buried each year at Osceola at $500,000 a year.

The county landfill at Osceola encompasses

1,000 acres. Hooper said the acreage is being used up for landfill at the rate of six acres per year.

The rate increases would pay the annual cost of the "capping and covering," and the upfront costs needed to purchase additional equipment to perform the task of capping and covering and other incidentals, Mrs. Glenn said.

Earlier in the summer, Hooper said he hoped the DER would grant a temporary permit to the county to operate the landfill while less expensive means of meeting the agency's requirements could be explored. The county's five year state permit to operate Osceola expired in November, last year.

'...Washed Out Zoo'

Rozon Defends Park Move Plans

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer

Al Rozon, executive director of the Central Florida Zoo, is a modern-day Noah — he is surrounded by animals and floodwaters are threatening.

And like the biblical character, he faces opposition from those who wonder why he wants to take his animal entourage away from Sanford to another promised land.

The zoo, having made Sanford its home for nine years, is looking for a higher and drier location to house its 506 animals, Rozon said.

Perpetual flooding at the 21-acre site just off of Lake Monroe has hurt attendance and made ground and animal maintenance difficult, he says.

"We've got a washed out zoo," Rozon said Tuesday, describing the flooding as "a swimming pool effect."

Above the southwest section of the zoo are fields which drain off through the zoo area toward the lake each time it rains, Rozon said. He says the area stays saturated in the summer months with standing water everywhere in the park.

To avoid the water, the animals find the few parcels of high ground, Rozon said, and share them with the ticks, fleas, termites and fire ants which also try to avoid drowning. This results in illnesses for the animals, he said.

The flooding has also kept the zoo from expanding its collection to include cheetahs, kudus and other popular animals, Rozon said, because those species cannot live in a swamp.

"You can't put a plains animal in a swamp and expect it to survive," Rozon said.

Consequently the zoo is limited in its growth and attendance because people tire of seeing the same animals, he said.

Rozon, who has been the zoo's director for 11 years, said he envisions a "state-of-the-art" zoo, that has about 1,500 species, located on about a 100-acre tract, divided by continental departments. He said the Central Florida Zoo's present location allows no room for this type of expansion, which he said was average size for a metropolitan area.

"If we want to have a small zoo, with a small collection and not very many people coming back to see us, we can do that here," he said.

While he said the zoo's board of directors are considering all offers for a new location, he said "by no means are we talking about emptying this place."

"There is certainly a probability that some sort of zoo will remain in this spot," Rozon said.

He said he understands how area residents "rightly feel an emotional kinship" with the zoo, but added that board members must think of the

City Attorney Says

Resign-To-Run Doesn't Apply To Volunteers

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Persons holding volunteer positions on advisory boards in Sanford who want to run for city commissioner do not have to resign their posts to run, according to Sanford's city attorney.

The opinion was issued after City Clerk Henry Tamm asked City Attorney William L. Colbert whether Sanford Airport Authority member John Mercer had to resign from that board to run for city commissioner. Mercer had asked if he had to leave the board if he decided to run.

The decision also affects Britye Smith, a Planning and Zoning Board member who has announced her candidacy for mayor.

According to Colbert, neither airport authority members or members of the Planning and Zoning Board have to resign to run for office.

While state statutes say that no individual may qualify as a candidate for public office without resigning from his other elective or appointive post 10 days prior to the first day of qualifying, Colbert cited statutory exceptions to the rule.

He said the statutes also provide that anyone serving on an appointed board or authority without salary does not have to resign to run and is not in violation of state statutes.

Colbert said two opinions have been issued affirming that position.

He said the attorney general of Florida, in Dec. 1973, issued the opinion that a commissioner of a housing authority, being appointed to office and serving without salary, is within the exception of the resign-to-run statute.

In June, 1982, Colbert said, the Florida Division of Elections determined that a non-salaried member of the South Pasadena (Fla.) Planning and Zoning Board was not required by the resign-to-run law to leave the appointed office in order to qualify as a candidate for the office of city commissioner.

"Based on the language of the (Florida statute) and the two opinions cited above," Colbert said, "I am of the opinion that unless it is judicially determined otherwise, that a member of the Airport Authority who is appointed to office and serves without salary is within the exception of the resign-to-run law."

Qualifying for city commission opens Sept. 4 and lasts until Oct. 30. The election is in December 4.

Besides Ms. Smith, City Commissioner Ned Yancey and attorney Thomas Speer are running for mayor. Sanford's mayor of 16 years, Lee P. Moore, is not seeking re-election.

Commission seats held by Eddie Keith and Yancey are also up for election this year. Robert B. Thomas Jr. has announced for Yancey's district 2 seat.

Probe of Ship Fire Begins

MIAMI (UPI) — Coast Guard investigators are checking the safety procedures taken by the Scandinavian Sun crew when an engine room fire billowed choking smoke through the cruise ship, killing two people and injuring 36 others.

The bodies of the victims, an unidentified crewman and a Florida teacher, were not found until Tuesday afternoon, 12 hours after the fire was brought under control at the Port of Miami.

Most of the 36 people suffered only minor cuts and bruises or smoke inhalation, but two Miami firefighters were treated for second-degree burns.

Both the Coast Guard and National Transportation Safety Board have begun investigating the fire — the second aboard a Scandinavian World Cruises ship in recent months.

A Coast Guard spokesman said investigators were trying to determine when the fire started.

Capt. Finn Hansen, the ship's skipper, reported the fire began about 11:15 p.m. Monday, shortly after the Sun had docked in Miami after a gambling cruise to Freeport, Bahamas.

But the Coast Guard spokesman said a communication received in the Bahamas, where the Sun is registered, indicated the vessel was afloat en route back to Miami.

The Coast Guard is also trying to learn whether the ship's sprinkler, fire alarm and smoke detector systems worked properly.

Sun passenger George Miller, 30, offered this

"Had it been a serious fire, you would have had a lot of dead people because it took seven to 10 minutes just to make an announcement," he said.

Rescue workers — some using specially trained dogs — searched the ship several times before finding the victims. Fire officials said the delay was caused by high temperatures and the loss of electrical power.

"When you get below deck, it's over 200 degrees and it's like a frying pan down there," said Miami Fire Chief Kenneth McCullough.

The body of Colleen Skantor, a 24-year-old elementary school teacher from Palm Beach, was found slumped in a cabin shower.

The crewman's body was found in a lower deck area where passengers can park their cars.

The Sun, had just tied up at the Port of Miami when a fire alarm was announced over an intercom at 11:20 p.m. EDT.

Two passengers said the announcement caused some people to panic.

"We didn't know if the ship was going to blow up or what," said Wilbur Moore of Richmond, Va. "We just started yelling, 'Just get us the hell out of here.'"

Passenger Tony Planas of Los Angeles said that "people got panicked and were breaking windows trying to get out."

Reagan Renomination To Be Star-Studded Affair

DALLAS (UPI) — Crafting a star-studded spectacular spiked with heavy doses of patriotism, Republicans will confidently renominate Ronald Reagan and George Bush by acclamation tonight to seek four more years of GOP reign.

With old rival Gerald Ford setting the stage Tuesday night with a pledge of support and a denunciation of Walter Mondale for "just peddling fear," Reagan arrives in Dallas today with an acceptance speech already written for delivery Thursday night.

Having completed their other chores Tuesday, including approval of a conservative party platform, the delegates now put their stamp of approval on the first unchallenged GOP presidential nominee since 1972, when Richard Nixon won re-nomination.

REPUBLICAN

The drafters of tonight's program have stocked it with personalities and hoopla — from actor Charlton Heston delivering the Pledge of Allegiance and entertainer Wayne Newton singing the National Anthem to the closing benediction, by the Rev. Jerry Falwell.

While the night belongs to the incumbents, the hearts of the delegates will be touched by the gladiator of an earlier presidential battle, Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater, crushed in his 1964 conservative crusade against Lyndon Johnson, addresses the mostly conservative delegates.

His remarks are expected to echo parts of his acceptance speech of 20 years ago, when he declared: "I would remind you that extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice. I would also remind you that moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue."

There reportedly has been pressure on the feisty Goldwater not to exactly repeat his defiant remarks, as the GOP tries to temper its conservative image heading into the general election.

Others speaking at the evening session include Illinois Gov. James Thompson, New Mexico Sen. Pete Domenici, former Dallas Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach and Texas Sen. John Tower.

To streamline the affair for prime time television, the delegates agreed to suspend their rules so Reagan and Bush can be nominated on one ballot. The roll of the states will be called once — with separate votes recorded for each candidate.

Ford, with his wife, Betty, at his side, told the party partisans: "We come to this convention as simple volunteers ... and we are going to campaign for our Republican ticket from now until Nov. 6."

The pledge, offered to show no residue of ill will after Reagan challenged Ford for the 1976 nomination, was followed by a blistering attack on the Democratic standardbearer.

IN BRIEF

Stepchildren Want Von Bulow's Two Convictions Reinstated

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The Rhode Island Supreme Court completely "ignored" Martha "Sunny" von Bulow's rights as a victim and should reinstate her husband's attempted murder convictions, the woman's two children said.

Annie-Laurie "Ala" Kneissl and Alexander von Auersperg asked the U.S. Supreme Court for permission to join the Rhode Island attorney general's effort to reinstate their stepfather's convictions on the grounds that the rights of both Mrs. von Bulow and her two eldest children had been ignored.

The state court threw out the verdicts in April and ordered a new trial, saying some privately seized evidence was illegally tested by the state without a warrant.

Mrs. Kneissl and von Auersperg are Mrs. von Bulow's children by a previous marriage to an Austrian prince.

Mrs. von Bulow, 55, heirless to a Pittsburgh utilities fortune, remains comatose in a New York City hospital. Doctors do not expect she will recover.

Grizzly Won't Be Trapped

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — A female grizzly bear who defended her cubs and attacked two people will not be trapped, said a spokeswoman for the National Park Service.

Park spokeswoman Michelle Marti said the attack occurred while the couple was hiking and came upon a fresh bison carcass.

Superintendent Robert Barbee said the Park Service will not try to trap or remove the bear and her cubs from this area because the bear's reaction was a natural one. He said the incident was a classic situation where the female bear was protecting her young and her food source from a probable threat.

It was the second attack by a grizzly bear in the park since a woman was killed July 30 while camping in the back country near White Lake, about 15 miles east of the attack on the Pettingas.

Engineers Still On The Hook

CLAYTON, Mo. (UPI) — The conduct of two structural engineers "fell below an acceptable level of performance," a judge said in refusing to dismiss negligence and incompetence charges for the walkway collapse at the Hyatt Regency hotel in Kansas City where 114 people died.

State Administrative Law Judge James B. Deutsch ruled Tuesday that testimony thus far supported the charges against the two engineers who designed the Hyatt skywalks.

The engineers opened their defense immediately after the ruling, and are expected to plead their cases for at least two weeks.

The July 1981 collapse of the overhead walkways killed 114 people and injured more than 200. The hearing is the first attempt at assessing blame.

Soviet Editor Barred As Spy

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — A Soviet editor who was to attend a conference of journalists at Brown University this week was denied a visa by the State Department for "internal security reasons," officials say.

Aleksandr L. Makarov, North American editor for the Soviet news agency Novosti, was denied his travel request under an Immigration and Nationalities Act section dealing with espionage and sabotage, officials said Tuesday.

Officials told American journalists attending the opening session of the 10-day program sponsored by Brown and the New England Society of Newspaper Editors they believed Makarov was linked to the KGB, the Soviet secret service.

IN BRIEF

Beach Tolls Remain In Effect ... For Now

ST. AUGUSTINE (UPI) — A circuit judge has refused a state attorney's request to temporarily ban beach tolls in St. Johns County.

Judge Richard L. Watson said in a written order Tuesday that state attorneys failed to prove they were entitled to a temporary injunction against the $2 county tolls. The tolls are collected from motorists at beach access ramps.

It was the state's second attempt to temporarily restrict collection of tolls. Watson refused to hear the first request, ruling the attorneys had not proved they were representing the state government.

The attorneys were seeking the temporary ban pending a final hearing on their request to permanently prevent the county from collecting beach tolls. The move is an effort to ban beach tolls statewide.

Girl Assaulted At Frat Party

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — A 16-year-old girl's complaint that she was sexually abused at a University of Florida fraternity party may spur yet another look at the fraternity rush system.

The girl, who is from Jupiter, has refused to press charges or discuss details of the case, a university spokesman said Tuesday.

It was the second time in a year that a sexual assault allegedly occurred in a university fraternity house. In the first instance last fall, a 17-year-old freshman girl told authorities she was coerced into sexual activity with six fraternity brothers.

No charges were filed in the case but it focused statewide attention on student behavior at the university. In its wake, a committee established by outgoing President Robert Marston recommended that behavior codes be tightened.

Plane Crash At Dock Probed

VERO BEACH (UPI) — Federal Aviation Administration investigators searched for clues Tuesday to the fiery crash of a Piper Malibu airplane that tore into a boat dock.

Bear B. Lemley, the pilot of the plane, was in fair condition with head injuries at Indian River Hospital.

Lemley, 27, a test pilot for Piper Aircraft of Vero Beach, was taking the six-passenger plane on its maiden flight about 1 p.m. Monday when a fire apparently broke out in the craft.

A Piper spokesman said Lemley attempted to fly the flaming craft back to Vero Beach Municipal Airport, but instead slammed into the 20-foot-long dock at Jack's Marina, about two miles east of the airport.

More Of Us Are Living Alone

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More Americans are living alone these days as the result of young people leaving their parents' homes sooner, postponing marriage longer and then getting divorced at a higher rate, the Census Bureau says.

The percentage of Americans living alone in 1984 is on the increase in a resumption of a trend that began in the 1970s but was interrupted by the last recession, the bureau said Tuesday.

The result is an increase in what the government considers separate households and comprises a gain of 1.5 million in 1984 after the trend nearly stood still in the 1982-1983 period.

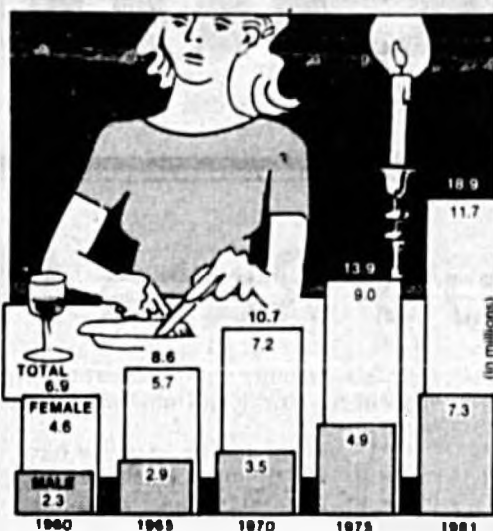

Within the overall trend are dramatic but less sweeping changes, mainly the increase in families headed by single women and in the number of young adults in their 20s and early 30s who have never married.

There was also an increase in unmarried couples, reaching a new total of about 2 million in 1984 of whom about 36 percent had been divorced. The total was only about 523,000 14 years earlier. Yet the unmarried couples accounted for only about 4 percent of all couples in the nation.

All the households in the nation, including those maintained by single people and married and unmarried couples, added up to 85.4 million as of March of this year.

The interruption of the process of household formation during the recession had been a surprise but, it turned out, not a lasting change in direction.

"Those people who concern themselves with household formation were a little shocked we got no increase at all," Census

The increase in single-person households reflects several changes in American lifestyles. Included are a later first-marriage age, an increase in the divorce rate, and a tendency by young people to leave their parents' homes earlier.

specialist Steve Rawlings said. "A lot of people started drawing conclusions that perhaps the trends were reversing themselves."

During the recession "a lot of young people seemed to be postponing departure (from the family) or returning home."

Ferraro Tries To Forget Financial Flap

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Geraldine Ferraro ventures back to the campaign trail today, hoping to dispel questions about her finances and concentrate instead on sparking enthusiasm for the lagging Democratic ticket.

For almost two hours, Ms. Ferraro fielded questions Tuesday and defended her decision to keep her husband's assets secret for the last six years. She said she and husband John Zaccaro disclosed more information about their financial status than "any other candidate in the history of the United States."

Ms. Ferraro hopes the tax returns and financial statements she and her husband filed Monday will be enough to satisfy questions on the subject. She acknowledged mistakes in her handling of the financial controversy and revealed at a news conference she will surrender her position as an officer in Zaccaro's real estate company. She said by her birthday Sunday — when she turns 49 — she hopes it will be "a whole new year" and she can begin campaigning in earnest.

Ms. Ferraro was scheduled to make a speech in Washington today to a convention of the American Federation of Teachers and planned to do some campaigning in Birmingham, Ala. on Thursday.

Democratic presidential nominee Walter Mondale said he called Ms. Ferraro from his home in North Oaks, Minn. shortly after her news conference and congratulated her for a "superb performance."

"I believe the Ferraro performance is a demonstration of strength, not weakness. A demonstration of a ticket that believes in candor and openness."

"I am even more convinced than ever that I made the right choice in making her my running mate, he said. Although polls after the Democratic convention showed their ticket neck-and-neck with President Reagan and George Bush, the Republicans have since widened the gap to between 10 and 20 percentage points.

Besides the financial furor that replaced initial euphoria over Ms. Ferraro's selection, the Mondale-Ferraro campaign has been dogged by a series of mishaps.

There have been complaints the Mondale organization is too insulated from Jesse Jackson and most recently, from Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young who called the advisers a bunch of "smart-ass white boys." There have also been reports Ms. Ferraro has balked at some of her marching orders from top Mondale aide Jim Johnson.

Ms. Ferraro's press secretary Patricia Barlo quit Tuesday night, saying she was frustrated with disarray during "two of the worst weeks any campaign has ever had." She called her resignation "another bump in the road when she doesn't need one."

Despite her troubles, Ms. Ferraro said any thought of her dropping off the Democratic ticket is only "wishful thinking" by the Republicans. She admitted by twice reversing herself in recent weeks on whether Zaccaro's tax returns would be released she had aggravated her problems.

"You're right. I probably did bring it on myself in promising more than I could deliver."

Ms. Ferraro said she was an officer in her husband's real estate company in name only although she owns a share amounting to one-third of the business. She said she took the post so she could maintain the business in case of her husband's death.

Long Driver's License Lines May Be Shortened

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles gave Gov. Bob Graham and the Cabinet a four-point plan Tuesday for shortening lines at Florida's crowded driver's license offices.

Leonard Mellon, director of the department, said turning four Dade County offices into "express" agencies — used only for renewal of licenses — had cut the average wait to an hour and 10 minutes in those offices last week. Until dozens of additional examiners are hired, however, Mellon said waits of several hours will be necessary in many Florida Highway Patrol licensing outposts.

Last year, he said, driver licensing offices handled 482,821 more applicants than they did in 1982, with only eight additional staff members. He said more than one-fifth of the examiners had been on the job a year or less, due to high turnover caused by "abysmally low" starting salaries.

Mellon's short-term plan for relieving the long waits called for:

- Designation of four of Dade County's 14 offices as "express offices" to be used only for renewal of licenses. First-time applicants and those requiring re-testing after a license suspension would have to go to regular offices.

— Assignment of 21 field examiners to licensing duties on day a week. The field examiners serve notices of license suspension and handle other paperwork duties.

— Assignment of some officers to check through the waiting lines, to weed out those awaiting renewal and those who do not have proper documentation for a license.

— Transfer of "organ donor" permission forms to areas outside the license-testing areas. Mellon said Lions Clubs in some areas were being contacted for volunteers to help drivers fill out their organ donor permits, thus saving time for the patrol examiners.

"Ultimately, we'll be looking for additional personnel," said Mellon.

He said some license renewal paperwork could be handled by volunteers in shopping malls and other public places. Mellon said volunteers could make sure each applicant's paperwork was in order, before sending the driver to a Highway Patrol office to take the test or get a license renewed.

For security reasons, the actual licensing and picture-taking would still have to be done by the patrol.

Mellon said the long lines have been caused by this year's renewal of thousands of licenses for Cuban drivers who came to south Florida in the 1980 Mariel boatlift. He said the two-year-old organ donor program has resulted in 150,000 drivers signing up to let their bodily parts be transplanted if they die in an accident.

Very often, he said, drivers do not begin filling out the renewal forms or organ-transplant permits until they get in line — and many of them then get it wrong.

Mellon said Graham's idea of having high school driver education instructors administer tests would not work because not all counties have driver training in public schools. Some counties only have classroom instruction, while others have both written tests and "behind the wheel" training, he said.

Arson Suspected In Caboose Fire

Arson is suspected in a Tuesday fire that destroyed an empty Seaboard Coast Line Railroad caboose.

According to a Sanford fire report, 10 firefighters in six units responded to the fire a 2:42 p.m. off Persimmon Avenue between an Amtrak terminal and McCracken Road. Firefighters were at the scene for two hours. No injuries were reported.

The rail car was gutted by the blaze and a state fire marshal is investigating the incident, the report said.

According to a Seaboard spokesman, the aging caboose was empty at the time of the fire and had just arrived in the yard on the end of a train of empty cars. When yard workers noticed the fire, they separated the car from 8-10 empty cars to which it was coupled.

ARMED ROBBERS

A gunman who brandished a sawed-off shotgun took an undisclosed amount of cash from two employees of Gulf Side Supply, 451 Plumosa Ave., Casselberry, in a holdup at that business at about 5:30 p.m. Monday.

Fred G. Caldwell and Neal J. Cumberland reported to sheriff's deputies that the robber entered the business, ordered Cumberland at gunpoint into Caldwell's office, tied Caldwell up, took money from both their wallets and fled.

The second bandit threatened Irma Bicio, 66, owner of Monticello Grocery, 1712 Southwest Road, Sanford, with a rusty handgun, but backed down from his demand for cash from the store's register when Ms. Bicio reached under the counter, deputies report.

A witness reportedly saw the suspect flee on foot, first going south and then turning north.

DOUBLE ROBBERY PLEA

An Edgewater man has pleaded guilty to robbing an Altamonte Springs gas station twice.

David Ward Hibbard, 34, entered his plea before Seminole Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis who set Oct. 21 for sentencing. Hibbard could receive a year in the county jail for each offense. He is currently serving two concurrent 4-year sentences in a state prison for two robberies in Orange County.

According to Seminole court records, Hibbard robbed a U.S.A. Petroleum gas station at 900 state Road 436 on Nov. 25 and 30, 1982. After the robbery on the 30th, Seminole County law officials broadcast his description and Hibbard was arrested by an Orange County deputy approximately 10 minutes later. He was also charged in Orange County for a restaurant robbery that occurred earlier the same day.

Man Sentenced For Trying To Gun Down Teacher Who Gave Him A 'D' In Conduct

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — A 26-year-old man pleaded guilty to trying to murder his grade school teacher because he had been given a D in conduct 14 years ago.

James Franklin Carey of Sunnymead, Calif. Monday accepted the sentence of five to 15 years in prison in return for a promise that he not be sent to a mental hospital.

Carey admitted shooting North

Syracuse school teacher Dennis Matyko, 36, four times when the teacher answered the front door of his home in the early morning hours of May 11.

Sheriff's deputies said Matyko was Carey's teacher 14 years ago at Holy Cross School in Covington, Ky. and that Carey had a long-standing grudge against Matyko for giving him his first "D" in conduct.

Matyko was hospitalized for 12 days following the attack.

Onondaga County Court Judge Norman Mordue said he agreed to the plea bargain because it was Matyko's first offense. Carey could have faced 12½ to 25 years in prison if he had a previous criminal record, Mordue said.

Defense attorney Ralph Cognetti said Carey spent two-thirds of his life in mental institutions and believes he can better help himself in prison.

Suspect Held In Dismemberment Slaying

CHICAGO (UPI) — A suspect in 19 homosexual-related slayings who had been freed on bond because of illegal search and seizure methods will be charged in the death of a man whose dismembered body was found in a trash dumpster, police said.

Larry Eyster, a self-employed house painter, was arrested after the body was discovered in a trash dumpster outside his apartment building.

"We are currently in conference with the State's Attorney's Office," Police Commander Edward Wodnicki said early today. "We anticipate at this time that we will have charges."

Eyster, 30, who had been sought in Lake County, Ill. and in Indiana for the homosexual-related murders and mutilations of 19 young men, was charged in October in the mutilation death of Ralph Callae, 28.

He was released earlier this year after his bond was reduced from $1 million to a $10,000 appeal bond by a Lake County circuit judge who ruled that evidence uncovered by Indiana authorities could not be used in court.

Officials in Chicago said the body parts of the latest victim, identified as Daniel Bridges, 18, were found stashed in large gray plastic bags in a dumpster at the North Side apartment building.

A janitor at the apartment building told police he saw a man carrying several large gray plastic bags tied with string to the dumpster on Monday.

The janitor, Joe Balla, said he usually knows the amount of garbage placed in the dumpsters and was surprised at the large quantity and had to move the bags to make room for garbage from his own building.

"It was a terrible scene. There were human legs and bodies. It was not a good feeling when I saw hair and skin," Balla said.

The Senator Stumbles

It seems inconceivable that Sen. Mark Hatfield is being investigated by both the FBI and the Senate Ethics Committee for allegations of influence peddling.

After all, the Oregon Republican has been a model of rectitude throughout his 36-year career in public service, including two terms as governor and 18 years in the U.S. Senate.

Yet the man many consider the conscience of the Senate is suspected of supporting the construction of a trans-African pipeline in return for $55,000 his wife received from a Greek entrepreneur who is proposing the $10-billion project.

Hatfield has said that his wife, a real estate agent, received the money from Basil Tsakos in exchange for showing him several apartments in Washington, D.C., providing his wife with decorating advice, and counseling the businessman on investment properties.

During the same time, however, the senator began promoting the pipeline that would start in the Sudan and stretch across Central Africa.

The coincidence may be circumstantial, but it clouds the senator's credibility.

Although Tsakos has not accused Hatfield of accepting a bribe as such, several of the financier's associates have suggested the payments were made with the expectation that the senator would use his influence to secure transit rights for the pipeline.

The awkward affair is compounded by the fact that Tsakos has a criminal record and is accused of selling arms on the black market.

Hatfield, moreover, saw intelligence reports documenting the entrepreneur's checkered past.

But the chairman of the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee disregarded the documents and continued to promote the project.

Hatfield insists there is no connection between his support of the pipeline and the money his wife received as a finder's fee.

And we are inclined to believe him. Still, he showed incredibly poor judgment by appearing to have sold his services for $55,000.

The senator conceded as much when he recently admitted "an error of judgment" in failing to realize that his support of the pipeline could be perceived as a conflict of interest.

Accordingly, the Hatfields have donated the money to charity and the senator's staff has turned over all correspondence pertaining to the pipeline to federal investigators.

We expect that the investigation will exonerate Hatfield by concluding that he believed a trans-African pipeline would serve U.S. strategic interests by providing an alternate oil route from the Persian Gulf.

At the same time, this affair should remind all public servants that even the slightest hint of ethical impropriety is sufficient to sully the reputation of one whose character has been above reproach.

BERRY'S WORLD

A "Seminole County History Fair." If you think that's a good idea and would like to get in on the ground floor planning of such an event that would include speakers, historical demonstrations and displays, craft booths, food and music, you might want to attend a planning session for such a fair.

The idea for a History Fair grew out of Seminole Community College's publication of a history of Seminole County.

Dr. Marvin H. Jones, coordinator of community instructional services for the college, said college officials decided that a fair would be a good way to give the public access to the information collected in that history.

It would also give the public and active historical societies a chance to display some artifacts that have been stored away.

"We would welcome displays from individuals of items that have been handed down to them. This might be the first opportunity for some of those things to be seen by the public," Jones said.

If you have bright ideas that would contribute to the success of this proposed fair, which would be a joint effort on by SCC and the Seminole County Commission, the public is invited to attend and participate in the first meeting of a steering committee for the project.

That planning session is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 28 in Room L-012 at SCC.

The Seminole County History Fair would be held on a weekend this fall if things go as anticipated, Jones said. But at this point the project is just an idea, which will need community support to become a reality.

For more information or to offer your assistance with this proposal attend the meeting or call Jones at 323-1450.

The Gay Cultural Agression

In a recent column I raised some public health issues as regards the homosexual political thrust, but there is another issue of a different kind as regards gay rights and it is about time to state it openly.

Much of the public behavior of the gay activists is offensive. In San Francisco, there is a prominent freak who goes by the name of "Sister Boom Boom." She was prominent at the site of the Democratic convention, and the media tended to treat her as a colorful eccentric. Variety, isn't it glorious. Sister Boom Boom is a transvestite who dresses in a caricature of a Catholic nun's habit. When Boom Boom ran for the San Francisco city government, she got 23,000 votes. Is the Catholic bishop of San Francisco pleased by all of this? What do the nuns, who work hard in the schools and hospitals, think of Boom Boom as a media personality? Catholics, including their bishops, have been all too passive recently in the face of cultural insult and outrage.

The media have until now been very discreet about covering the bizarre aspects of the various gay rights parades and demonstrations, but those bizarre details do tell us a lot about the temper of the movement itself.

At the annual Gay Pride march in Manhattan, for example, the demonstrators attempted to seize the steps of St. Patrick's Cathedral on Fifth Avenue and convert it into a part of the demonstration. During last year's demonstration they unfurled a large banner on the steps of the cathedral with "Intolerance and Ignorance Taught Here" written on it. In one parade, the main float featured a garbage can with a crucifix in it. Gay ridicule of Christ, the Virgin Mary and other religious symbols is routine.

All of this is being said in an article co-authored by journalist Patrick Buchanan in the August number of The American Spectator, and it's about time it's being said.

There is an organization called NAMBLA which is prominent in gay rights demonstrations but is never mentioned in the media and does not come up in the "sexual preference" clauses of the Democratic Platform. NAMBLA stands for North America Man-Boy Love Association and its principal political activity is to lobby for repeal of laws against sex with children. As Buchanan has found, "at a 1975 conference of the Campaign for Homosexual Equality in Britain, the question was put to a thousand gays as to how many would find child sex attractive. One-third responded in the affirmative, according to the Daily Telegraph."

Mr. Mondale and the Democratic Platform would amend the Civil Rights Act of 1964 to make any discrimination on grounds of sexual preference a federal crime. That may not be good politics in view of an escalating national awareness of gay cultural aggression.

VA Wants Plan To Help Vets

WASHINGTON — The White House is sitting uncomfortably on an ambitious Veterans Administration proposal for future health care of the nation's growing number of older veterans. The costly plan is something the Reagan administration would rather not deal with before Election Day.

The reason is simple: If President Reagan doesn't endorse the multi-billion-dollar proposal, he risks offending more than 28 million veterans who may need VA medical care as they retire and lose their employee health-insurance plans.

But if the president accepts the VA's fearfully expensive proposal to start spending now for future needs, it will make his stand against tax increases even less believable than it already is.

The VA, whose militant constituency and bipartisan clout on Capitol Hill have made it virtually untouchable among federal agencies, has timed its proposal shrewdly. No candidate for Con-

Capitalist Demographics

NEW YORK (NEA) — At the just-concluded UN International Conference on Population in Mexico City, the nations of the world stumbled dangerously close to a real understanding of the global population problem.

Ordinarily, the so-called "developing countries" of the Third World like to blame their poverty on alleged exploitation by the major Western industrial powers. As the conference's own final declaration pointed out, however, "families in developing countries tend to be much larger than elsewhere," thus contributing heavily "to the confinement of the wide disparity in welfare and the quality of life between developing and developed countries."

The declaration went on to estimate that 16 years hence, at the turn of the century, "some 1.6 billion women will be of childbearing age, 1.3 billion of them in developing countries."

When the U.S. delegation, headed by former Sen. James L. Buckley, warned that this country will henceforth withhold funding for family planning from any private organization that promotes abortion as a solution for population problems, many of the conferees concluded that Uncle Sam was riding an ideological hobbyhorse. When Buckley went further and told the conference that population control is best achieved by the encouragement of free enterprise, they thought the Reagan administration had simply taken leave of its senses.

And yet the connection between free enterprise and population control is well established, having been demonstrated most recently by Paul Johnson in his remarkable book, "Modern Times" (Harper & Row, 1983).

Johnson explains that: "Modern developing societies go through a cycle known as the 'demographic transition.' In the first phase, scientific medicine and public health reduce infant mortality and infectious diseases, thus cutting the death rate, while the birthrate remains high at its old replacement rate. So population rises fast. In the second phase, rising living standards cause the birthrate to fall. The rate of population increase slows down and eventually comes into balance."

In Europe, the whole cycle had been completed by the 1970s, with the birthrate below "the critical 20-per-thousand mark" even in Russia, Yugoslavia, and the Iberian Peninsula. Japan completed the cycle by the 1960s. Johnson believes that China entered the second phase of the transition in the 1970s, with India to follow in the 1980s. Elsewhere in Asia, as well as in Latin America and Africa, the transition has scarcely begun, and has much further to go.

The fascinating thing, however, is that a declining birthrate is, everywhere and always, the consequence of economic betterment. "The experience of the 1960s," Johnson declares, "showed that the point at which higher living standards began to affect the birthrate was when per capita incomes passed the barrier of $400 (at 1964 prices). The greater the acceleration in incomes, the more rapid the fall in birthrate."

The most spectacular examples were Hong Kong, Singapore, Taiwan and South Korea — all four of which just happened to boast thoroughly capitalistic free-market economies. In the decade of the 1960s alone, Hong Kong's birthrate slid from 36 per-thousand to less than the critical 20, and South Korea's dropped from 42.9 to well under 30. Singapore and Taiwan scored nearly comparable gains.

That splendidly illustrates the point that the United States was seeking to drive home at the Mexico City Conference. Let the developing countries of the Third World stop blaming their woes on others. Let them stop slaughtering their own posterity to assure for themselves a bigger share of the economic pie.

Let them, above all, abandon their sterile socialist dogmas for an economic philosophy that liberates the creative energies of their peoples.

ROBERT WALTERS

Trying To Get Balance

DALLAS (NEA) — California, the nation's most populous state, is home to almost 60 times as many people as Alaska, the most sparsely settled state — but the Republican Party refuses to acknowledge that disparity.

At the Republican National Convention here, California has 176 delegate votes while Alaska has 18. That ratio of less than 10-to-1 fairly reflects neither the population difference nor the party's relative strength (which also differs by a margin of about 60-to-1) in the two states.

That's hardly an isolated example. Indeed, systematic malapportionment of delegate votes among the states has become a hallmark of the GOP's presidential nominating conventions — and the party displays no interest in reforming the system.

As a result, the nation's 11 most populous states were allocated only 44 percent of this year's convention delegates even though they contain 57 percent of the country's population.

It's become a quadrennial ritual for proponents of equitable representation to make a vain effort to revise the delegate apportionment formula. This year the futile campaign was led by James T. Neal, a 63-year-old newspaper editor from Noblesville, Ind.

Neal is hardly a wild-eyed radical. He's a member of the Republican National Committee, a former chairman of Indiana's Republican Party and a longtime GOP loyalist who has supported conservative presidential nominees from Barry Goldwater to Ronald Reagan.

But Neal couldn't even get anybody to second his motion when he sought to raise the issue at a meeting of the party's Rules Committee prior to the opening of the convention.

"I thought I had a worthy suggestion that should be considered," he explained after being rebuffed. "But it's an issue they don't want to even discuss."

Neal's proposed formula would not have been implemented until the 1988 Republican convention and would not have deprived any state of delegate votes allocated to it this year under the current system.

Instead, he suggested adding 1,076 delegates to the 2,235 authorized this year, "enabling us to expand the number of delegates, who are from minority groups and who are young."

The additional delegate votes would be awarded to states based on their average popular vote for Republican presidential candidates during the three immediately previous elections.

That approach is preferable to the current system, which rewards the least populous states and penalizes the most populous one through a formula that awards "bonus" delegates without regard to either population or party strength.

U.S. Researchers Predict Gloomy Future For Hong Kong

By David R. Schwelberg

HONG KONG (UPI) — China will curtail much of Hong Kong's freedom and crack down sharply on its hallmark free economy after taking control of the British colony in 1997, a leading American research firm warns in a recent study.

The analysis contradicts assurances from China and upbeat forecasts by Hong Kong and American politicians and diplomats trying to maintain confidence in the world's third largest financial center.

The report, compiled by Data Resources Inc., a top economic forecaster, takes a gloomy view of the business outlook after China reclaims sovereignty.

More broadly, it argues that internal political conflict will force communist leaders to restrain the "decadent capitalism" of Hong Kong — and that because they will brook no interference in administering the territory after 1997, they will not be bound by an agreement being negotiated now with Britain.

"China will not provide ironclad guarantees of the spirit of the agreement," the report said. "Indeed, internal political pressure will lead to an erosion of the assurances contained in the negotiated settlement..."

"Though the agreement is likely to accommodate much of the economic and political institutions which exist in Hong Kong today, it sets the stage for the future erosion and transformation of political and economic life in Hong Kong."

The report, a 125-page study published in March by the data firm's Washington office and an affiliate, Policon Corp. of Ann Arbor, Michigan, is a political risk assessment designed for banks, industries and other prospective investors.

The researchers said the colony's business and political climate will remain "seemingly encouraging" through 1990 as China seeks to maintain confidence and stability — but "less optimistic" as 1997 draws nearer.

Confidence is critical to Hong Kong, whose 5.5 million people depend overwhelmingly on trade and investment.

Many fear their free-wheeling capitalist lifestyle will vanish when Britain hands back control of the colony it has ruled since the 19th century under treaties China views as illegal.

But Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping and other top Chinese officials have promised repeatedly that Hong Kong will remain autonomous under a "one-country, two-systems" policy.

Still, the 80-year-old Deng not likely to be at the helm in the 1990s, and the U.S. report said his successors may be forced by ideological purists — who have opposed his liberal economic reforms — to rein in Hong Kong.

"As the British interest and influence in Hong Kong wanes, policy formation will become increasingly influenced and ultimately dominated by political contests on the mainland," the report said.

"This, after all, is what sovereignty implies..."

"Our analysis indicates that the next generation of leadership will continue on the modernizing path adopted by Deng," the report said.

"However, it is likely they will not be as willing to adopt incentives or tolerate an independent Hong Kong as is Deng."

'I Can Cope' Offers Positive Outlook For Cancer Patients

"With hope, something wonderful happens...life." Stressing the positive, Central Florida Regional Hospital in cooperation with the American Cancer Society, Sanford-Lake Mary Unit, is again offering "I Can Cope."

This special program for cancer patients and their families will be held weekly on Wednesday from 2 to 4 p.m., beginning September 12 and continuing through October 31. All eight sessions will be held in the hospital dining room. CFRH is located on U.S. Highway 17-92 facing Lake Monroe, Sanford.

The course is free of charge. "I Can Cope" has three main objectives. The first two are to increase knowledge and control, and through these to decrease anxiety.

To do so, the faculty of health professionals focuses on specific areas of concern. The course covers up-to-date knowledge of cancer and its treatment, how to deal with daily health problems and how to increase communication effectiveness both with care givers and on a personal basis.

It also provides an opportunity to discuss sexuality and interpersonal relationships as well as explores ways to live up to total potential.

Speakers will include a physician, dietitian, physical therapist, nurses and social workers from CFRH staff, and representatives from various community resources for cancer patients. Pre-registration is required, with enrollment limited. Persons wishing to enroll are encouraged to attend all eight sessions. To register or for additional information, contact CFRH's Social Services Department, 321-4500 or 688-4441, ext. 760, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Program For Deaf Set

Education services for deaf or hearing impaired students will be offered in the 1984-85 school year by the Exceptional Student Education Department of the Seminole County School District.

This new program will serve children identified as deaf or hearing impaired with full time classes in grades preschool through fifth. Students in middle and high school requiring full-time classes are served at special schools in neighboring counties. Hearing impaired students preschool through 12th grade who require part-time services will receive those services in the county.

Preschool and elementary deaf-hearing impaired program will have three certified teachers in deaf education at Longwood Elementary. Some 18 students are eligible for these services now.

Eligibility is determined by an audiologist report by a certified audiologist who indicates that the student's hearing impairment adversely affects the student's academic performance, social-emotional development, language development or communication skills.

In the program, hearing impaired students are given special instruction and assistance to compensate for their hearing loss.

More information may be obtained by contacting Wylene Harness at 322-1252, extension 324.

Early Health Screening Clinic Set For Children

A twice monthly Early Age Screening Clinic for children from birth to five years old will be held by the Exceptional Education Department of the Seminole County school district beginning Friday at the new Hamilton Elementary School in Sanford.

The new school is behind the school administration office on Mellonville Avenue and Celery Street.

The purpose of the clinic is to help locate young children who have special needs in the areas of physical, emotional or language impairments.

Children found to have these impairments will receive educational services through the school district's Exceptional Education Department Early Age Program.

Centers for children 3-5, with these impairments, are located at Hamilton and English Estates elementary schools. Newborn to three year old children with these impairments will be served in the home by a teacher who works with the parents and child on development stimulation activities.

Those who have children who may benefit from the program may call Sharon Prescott, 322-1252, extension 295 to register for a screening appointment.

Once Every 2 Weeks Is Not Enough

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — One spoonful of peanut butter every two weeks is a cruel and unusual allotment to inmates at the Anne Arundel County Jail, who are willing to go to court to get more of the sandwich spread.

In a suit filed in U.S. District Court in Baltimore, a dozen prisoners complained that the jail's allotment of a spoonful of peanut butter every two weeks was simply not enough.

The inmates said they need more peanut butter because the food served in the jail cafeteria is starchy and they need another source of protein.

Youngsters Take To Gymnastics In Glow Of Olympic Victories

By John O'Brien

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — "Get on that belly. Now don't let your head touch. Use your hands. Now do a roll. Very good," said Instructor Allison Wiprecht to Danielle Booth, a 3-year-old gymnastic student.

Steadying preschoolers at the hips, Ms. Wiprecht was helping 3-year-olds perform a rudimentary move Wednesday morning: mount a padded barrel on your belly, slide down the other side toward the padded floor, plant your hands and roll off the barrel on your back.

It took place in Gymkhana Inc., which looks like a small warehouse full of gymnastic equipment and padding, in Pittsburgh.

It was just days after beaming gymnast Mary Lou Retton of West Virginia copped Olympic gold, silver and bronze and the U.S. men stunned the world by upsetting the Chinese for the gold in team gymnastic competition.

And the fervor burned once again for the once-ignored sport that was given life in the 1972 Olympics by the U.S.S.R.'s stunningly competent waltz with the magnetic smile, Olga Korbut and charged with enthusiasm by the technically perfect Romanian, Nadia Comaneci, in 1976.

"I'm ecstatic," said gym owner Elliott Sanft, speaking of the U.S. men's victory.

One of three facilities run by Ed Swerdlow and Sanft, a former University of Pittsburgh gymnast, Gymkhana schools kids 2 to 16 years old. The emphasis is on participation more than competition.

Since those medal-winning performances, calls inquiring about Sanft's programs doubled and 75 percent of them came from parents of boys. Most of his students had been girls, because "most boys preferred soccer, baseball or football where they can achieve success earlier," Sanft said.

Raleigh Amyx, executive director of the United States Gymnastic Safety Association, based in Vienna, Va., said he has heard from around the country that there is a "marked increase" in the number of inquiries for participation in gymnastic programs since the Olympic successes.

Sanft attributed the heightened male interest directly to the success of the U.S. men.

"The girls like Mitch Gaylord because they think he's cute," said Sanft. "I guess Peter Vidmar was the most covered. The boys don't have a real favorite. The reason the men won is because they were great throughout their lineup."

He speaks as Ms. Wiprecht and instructor Mike Scuro run the preschoolers, in two groups of four, through exercises on the trampoline, bar, balance beam and mats.

For 45 minutes, two girls and five boys clad in shorts and T-shirts and Danielle, in a white leotard, bounce, run, jump, roll, hang, swing, tumble, stretch and balance themselves. The instructors gently help and move them along, peppering the patter with compliments, please and thank-yous.

In a waiting area with a view into the gym, Danielle's mother, Martha Fidanque, says she signed up her daughter to channel the energy that had her "constantly running and jumping off the furniture."

"When she finishes an exercise, she puts her arms up in the air and sticks out her tongue," which shows me she is having a wonderful time," Ms. Fidanque said.

"The biggest attribute of our program is to increase self-confidence, balance and coordination," Sanft, 32, said. "No matter what they accomplish, they will benefit for the rest of their lives. The college scholarships that the few get is just icing on the cake."

Parents often tell Sanft the classes have prompted changes.

"The real young ones go home and pretend they are myself or Ed and boss their sister or baby dolls around," he said. "The older ones enjoy the physical superiority they feel in gym class when they do things."

Dr. Jack P. Failla, the orthopedic surgeon for the Pittsburgh Pirates, says children "even at an early age are pretty good tumblers because they are tumbling all the time."

But he said it is important to insure that the program a parent selects for a child is well run and supervised by people with adequate credentials because infants through about 5-year-olds simply "do not have muscular development to sustain gym routines."

Sanft said it is important that a good gymnastic program offer:

- brand name equipment that is in good condition and hasn't been altered;
- competent instructors of at least high school age;
- adequate student-teacher ratio: 8-1 is recommended, or even lower for the youngest students;
- cleanliness;
- ability to observe the program before enrolling a child.

One or two children die each year nationwide and fewer than 10 are paralyzed in gymnastic accidents that might be prevented by more competent coaching, Sanft said.

McDuffie Case Witness Cleared Of New Assault

...the incident just did not happen.

MIAMI (UPI) — A policeman involved in the death of a black insurance salesman that spurred one of the bloodiest riots in Miami history has been cleared of charges he kicked a murder suspect in a police department elevator.

A Dade County jury cleared Charles Veverka of assault charges Friday that were filed by state prosecutors last September.

"Thank goodness," he said. "This is the end of a long ordeal."

Veverka lost his Metro-Dade County police job after the brutal death of Arthur McDuffie in 1980.

Eighteen people died, 26 were wounded and $100 million in damage was done in race riots that broke out in predominantly black Liberty City after McDuffie's death.

He testified against fellow officers who were charged with manslaughter in the black insurance man's death. Veverka was later charged with violating McDuffie's civil rights, but was acquitted in U.S. District Court.

After the federal trial Veverka was hired by the North Bay Village police force. He was suspended without pay after being charged with kicking 19-year-old murder suspect Leon Lear in the groin while taking him to the police station last year.

Veverka will request back pay and reinstatement from North Bay Village, defense attorney Richard Sharpstein said.

The assault case against Veverka began to fall through shortly after it was filed.

Lear was convicted of second-degree murder and sentenced to life in prison plus 15 years. He refused to testify against the policeman, then changed his mind and said he would cooperate with prosecutors.

Metro-Dade police technician Eddie Stone was in the elevator with Veverka and Lear when the incident allegedly occurred. He told investigators he saw nothing and later testified that he saw what might have been a kick.

Shortly after his testimony he committed suicide.

John Pollart, a North Bay Village probationary officer, was also in the elevator. He said there was contact between Veverka and Lear, but later recanted and said other North Bay Village officers had forced him to testify against Veverka.

"We have always insisted that, in fact, the incident just did not happen," Sharpstein said.

Kemp Looks Ahead To 1988

DALLAS (UPI) — Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, a likely 1988 contender for the Republican presidential nomination, says the party must abandon the term "conservative" as part of an appeal to minorities and others who are turned off by the GOP image.

Kemp said this year's GOP platform shows Republicans are actually centrist, and sometimes liberal, on economics and foreign policy, but are conservative on traditional family values.

He said if one digs beyond the GOP image, Republicans more than Democrats resemble the Democratic Party of Franklin Roosevelt, because Republicans want to concentrate on creating jobs for everyone, including the hard-core unemployed who have not yet been touched by economic recovery.

During the week before the Republican National Convention, Kemp used platform committee drafting sessions to preach his own version of the power of positive thinking. As chairman of the platform panel's foreign policy subcommittee, and a key player in the economic section, Kemp repeatedly talked compromise and conciliation, and repeatedly moved to tone down inflammatory language.

At one point, he even defended the Democratic party, objecting to language using a common GOP slur — "Democrat Party" rather than "Democratic Party."

In effect, he attempted to carve out a place in the center of the political spectrum while maintaining his credentials as a leader of the right wing in the House.

Insiders said he largely succeeded with his balancing act. "He didn't make any mistakes," said a top GOP staff aide. "He didn't offend anybody. He kept his troops in line. He's done well."

A survey of 1,008 of the 4,470 convention delegates, by the Dallas Morning News showed Kemp running second in preference for the 1988 nomination — well behind Vice President George Bush. Bush polled 47.7 percent of the delegates, Kemp 25.6 percent.

Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, another possible contender who sat with Kemp on the platform committee, placed fifth with 5.4 percent.

Kemp, in a convention interview, made it clear he wants to reshape the party's image before he runs under its banner for a national office.

"I don't want conservatives to get boxed into a policy that excludes millions of people who do not as yet define themselves as philosophical conservatives," Kemp said.

"In other words, the word conservative I'm troubled with, in the pure sense of the word because it implies status quo. Status quo is static. Status quo implies privilege. Status quo implies stultification to a certain degree. Now, there are many good things that conservative means. It means preservation of heritage, defense of values and ideals, and things like that.

But the conservative philosophy, the conservative ideology for a party has got to, I think, be jettisoned for either a new word or new phrases that give a better appeal to blacks and blue-collar workers and inner-city minorities, folks that might consider themselves of a different political persuasion but who are yearning for bread and butter and jobs and education for their children, and a chance to buy a home in a strong America that can stand up to the Soviet Union without trepidation."

Kemp said that until Reagan was elected president, Republicans generally had a negative outlook that excluded vast numbers of Americans.

"Back in the old days when we used to talk about building coalitions, remember?" he said. "We were going to pick up the anti-this vote and the anti-that vote, and the anti-Northeast vote."

"But you can't run a country that way. You can get elected maybe for a year or two, but you can't run the country. You've got to be a party that reaches out to all people, even people who don't vote for you."

Kemp, 49, a seven-term member of the House, is considered one of the party's emerging golden boys. He is an ex-pro football player for the Buffalo Bills, and usually manages to make some reference to that fact in his conversation. He is intense and a self-proclaimed optimist.

"You know, you can't play pro football for 13 years and not be an optimist," he said. "I played up and down, and being traded, and I spent a couple of years with the Pittsburgh Steelers and never really got a chance to play, but never gave up."

Kemp was one of several GOP House members who tended to dominate the economic portion of the platform. He appeared as the leader of the group, but immediately put distance between himself and their activities. He made it clear that he could compromise with the administration while continuing to push his ideas.

That did not always sit well with his colleagues. At one point, Rep. Vin Weber of Minnesota pointedly told reporters he had nothing to do with a Kemp proposal on taxes.

"The platform is a massive document of centrist economic and international policies," he said.

"We picked up the challenge of Truman and Kennedy and (former Sen. Henry) Jackson," he said.

"Their (Democrats') new ideas are not new ideas. They're the old Republican ideas of the 30's under Hoover. I mean, I sound like I'm being harsher on the Republican Party. But they lost the key to prosperity."

Kemp said Republicans can't become a majority party simply by bringing economic recovery without making certain that everyone is included in the recovery. He said Walter Mondale is making that mistake in his campaign.

"It's Mondale, now, who is jeopardizing his own political future spending all of his time talking about taxing more and spending less, and balancing the budget and reducing deficits."

"If you're out of work, and one party offers you a balanced budget, and the other party offers you a chance to be entrepreneurial, or a chance to get a job in a small business or a chance to go to work and feed your family, or at least the opportunity to do so, I think you will choose bread and butter over fiscal hysteria. He's come close to sounding like Hoover."

Nicaragua Lags Behind Honduras In Air Power

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — The leftist government of Nicaragua, building an advanced military airport, lags behind U.S.-backed Honduras in military air power, according to U.S. government estimates.

Reagan administration officials charged last week that the new Carlos Ulloa airport, under construction about 13 miles outside of Managua, would be used as a Cuban-Soviet staging base to threaten the security of Central America.

While Nicaraguan officials did not rule out the possibility that Cuban advisers were helping with the construction of the airport — due to be completed next year — they dismissed Washington's charges as "absurd."

Nicaraguan air force chief Raul Venerio said the new airport would include 12,000-foot runways capable of accommodating any civilian or military plane.

But even with the completion of the airport, statistics from the U.S. embassies in both countries and U.S. congressional testimony indicate it is unlikely Nicaragua will be able to match the military air power of Honduras, whose air force is the most formidable in Central America.

Nicaragua has three U.S.-built jets acquired during the regime of dictator Anastasio Somoza. The country has 21 helicopters and 12 patrol planes supplied by the Soviet Union, North Korea and France and six Israeli-made reconnaissance planes that can carry bombs.

Nicaraguan military officials said the country is actively seeking MIG fighters from the Soviet Union and Mirage fighter-bombers from France, but it was not known how many have been requested.

Honduras has at least 12 super-Mystere B-2 jet fighters-bombers, 12 U.S.-made A-37B Dragonfly ground attack bombers and 20 helicopters.

The air force has at least 28 more combat planes, including eight Brazilian-made Tucan bombers, T-28 Trojan trainer bombers and American F-86 Sabre jets.

The United States also is sending $21 million to improve or extend 9,000-foot air strips at the Palmerol air base in Comayagua and the airport in La Ceiba.

The Honduran air force has two other major airports at its disposal in San Pedro Sula and the Toncontin airport in the capital, Tegucigalpa.

During the joint U.S.-Honduran military maneuvers, American engineers built or improved five airstrips capable of handling C-130 transport planes.

In addition, a U.S. Embassy spokesman told the newspaper La Prensa of San Pedro Sula that 20 UH-1H "Huey" helicopters, four "Chinook" helicopters and two UH1V helicopters arrived in Honduras over the weekend.

For the joint maneuvers and military intelligence use, the United States keeps 26 helicopters at the Palmerol air base as well as a OV-1 Mohawk reconnaissance craft for the 200 members of the U.S. military intelligence battalion.

Ads Might Be The Answer For Fla. Honey Industry

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Florida beekeepers and honey producers across the nation believe it might pay to advertise.

The honey industry, now heavily reliant on federal price-support programs and losing ground to less expensive imported honey, is considering a nationwide advertising campaign as a way to urge Americans to eat more honey.

Frank Robinson, secretary of the American Beekeeping Federation with headquarters in Gainesville, said his organization would like to come up with a catchy slogan like other farm groups have for their products. "The incredible edible egg," "Milk is a natural," and "Orange you smart" are just a few.

Robinson said Americans, on the average, use only about 1 pound of honey per person each year. He said there is ample opportunity to increase consumption because in Europe, for example, each person uses 4 or 5 pounds of honey per year.

"If the advertising works and we could double consumption ... then we would eliminate any surplus in this country," said Robinson.

The major worry for members of the honey industry is a deterioration of support for the price-supports program in Congress.

Last year, the government paid U.S. producers 64 cents a pound for their honey, and this year, a record 107 million pounds of honey is expected to be sold to the government.

The price-support program has kept many domestic producers in business and is used in such federal giveaways as the school lunch program. But bulging government honey warehouses have prompted some members of Congress to consider reducing the program's size.

"No one is naive enough to believe that the government will continue to buy this honey," said Robinson.

"The only alternative we see is to increase honey consumption so the country absorbs both imported honey and domestically produced honey," he said.

The beekeeping federation has endorsed legislation that would allow beekeepers to establish a central fund — supplied by mandatory contributions from honey producers — to pay for generic advertising and honey research.

The bill passed the U.S. House last month and is expected to be approved by the Senate.

Musselwhite Powers Altamonte

Albert's Defense Keys Victory

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor
WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. — It was a game of tenacity and intensity. An exhibition of the best in youth baseball.

The Altamonte Springs Nationals scored twice in the top of the first inning on a gigantic home run by Jimmy Musselwhite to dead away center field, and then made the lead stand up with a nearly flawless defensive display for a 2-1 victory over a superb nine from Los Gatos, Cal.

After scoring 42 runs while winning the Southern Region last week, Altamonte's bats needed a day off. The Nationals received one Tuesday afternoon as the defense worked overtime to pull out a hand-wrenching victory over the U.S.A. West before 10,000 fans in the first round of the Little League World Series at Lamade Field.

Altamonte, representing the U.S.A. South, plays the winner of today's 5 p.m. game between U.S.A. North (Bristol, Conn.) and U.S.A. Central (Southport, Ind.) on Thursday at 2 p.m. A victory Thursday afternoon sends Altamonte into the championship game Saturday at 4:45 p.m., which will be televised live on ABC television (WFTV channel 9).

In Tuesday's other game, Canada (Coquitlam, British Columbia) blanked Europe (Brussels, Belgium), 3-0. Victoria Roche became the first girl to play in a Little League World Series when she entered the game for Brussels in the fifth inning and walked as a pinch hitter.

Although the Altamonte offense was held to five hits by West righthander Ryan Lotz, the Nationals were able to push across two runs in the first inning on Jimmy Musselwhite's home run to provide the margin of victory.

With one out in the first, Jason Varitek slapped a base hit to center field. Aaron Iatarola followed with a one-hopper back to the mound as Lotz tossed to second for the force out. Iatarola, however, hustled to beat the relay to first base to keep the inning alive.

It turned out to be crucial. Musselwhite, who socked a homer in each of the three Southern Region victories, picked on a 2-2 pitch and deposited it over the center field fence for a 2-0 lead.

"It was a curve ball," the 12-year-old slugger said. "He (Lotz) was a real good pitcher. He wasn't real fast, but he had a pretty good curve."

Chris Radcliff, who paced the Altamonte attack with two singles, followed with a base hit to left-center. He moved to second on a wild pitch and went to third on a passed ball. Danny Albert, however, bounced back to the pitcher to end the inning.

Although Albert, a .400 hitter, didn't contribute any hits Tuesday, it was two outstanding defensive plays by the left-hander free-spirit which kept Altamonte in control.

The first came in the bottom of the first. With one out, Dominick Rugani singled to center and Musselwhite walked Bill Berk on four pitches. Musselwhite came back to strike out dangerous (six homers) Lotz on a fastball, but Steven Lane topped a roller down the third base line for a hit to load the bases.

Mike Fisher then picked on a Musselwhite fastball and hit a screamer at Albert. "I told (second baseman) Greg James before the play that he (Fisher) would hit it to me," said Albert. "Greg just said, 'be ready, be ready.'"

Albert was. Despite the baserunner leading interference, Albert gobbled up the wicked one-hopper and scurried to the bag for the inning-ending putout.

"The runner was two feet passed the ball, so I saw it all the way," said Albert about his first defensive gem.

After Altamonte's two first inning runs, Lotz went to work with his mystifying curve ball and retired eight straight hitters, five via strikeouts, before Radcliff broke the spell with an infield single in the top of the fourth.

Albert followed with a ground out to first base to move Radcliff to second. James then slapped a ground ball to the shortstop and when Lane's throw was wide, James reached on the error.

Radcliff, running on the grounder, rounded third and broke for home. Los Gatos first baseman, Rugani, however, quickly pivoted and easily tossed Radcliff out at the plate.

Musselwhite, meanwhile, was having trouble with his curve ball. He breezed through the second inning, but was nicked for a run in the third. "Jimmy just didn't have it with his curve," said pitching coach Greg Ebbert. "He wasn't getting his elbow up and he was releasing too early."

Thank God he had his hummer."

With one out in the third, Berk jerked a curve to left-center for a double. When Radcliff threw wildly to second base, Berk moved to third. Musselwhite then walked Lotz, but it turned out to be a blessing.

Lotz tried to steal second on the first pitch and catcher Jerrey Thurston cut him down with a perfect throw. Although Berk scored on the play, a subsequent single by Lane was wasted when Fisher hit a comebacker for the last out of the inning.

"We figured we could give up the run because we knew we could win a one-run ballgame," said manager Jerrey Thurston. "That's the reason we went after him at second. Jerrey made a good throw and we got the second out."

Musselwhite sailed through the fourth with two strikeouts before Albert and Varitek combined for the second defensive gem which demoralized Los Gatos in the fifth.

With one out, Rugani drew a walk before Berk lifted a short bloop in front of shortstop Varitek. The versatile 12-year-old snared the ball just before it hit the ground and hurried to his feet. He uncorked a quick throw to first base, and Albert took one step in the direction of the throw and flicked out his glove. He snatched the ball perfectly on one hop, which retired the side.

"That play broke their back," said manager Thurston about the twin-killing. "You couldn't ask for any better Major League plays then Danny made at first base today."

Albert said he wasn't too worried about stretching early. "I knew that Jason was going to catch it," said Albert. "He has the speed to get to those balls. His throw only hit an inch in front of my glove. I can get those because it doesn't bounce as much on dirt as it does on clay."

The double play seemed to pick up the Nationals as they tried to add an all-important insurance run in the top of the sixth. With one out, Iatarola scorched a liner to right-center for a double. A passed ball moved him to third before Musselwhite drew a walk.

Radcliff then lined the hardest hit ball of the day, but shortstop Lane, who earlier made a great backhanded play to throw Iatarola, managed to hold it as he was knocked down. Albert then grounded out to end the inning.

Musselwhite, with the help of Varitek and James, turned out the lights on Los Gatos in the bottom of the sixth. Varitek gobbled up a hard hit grounder by Lotz for number one before James snapped up a two-hopper for number two.

Musselwhite then caught Fisher looking at a curve ball for his eighth strike out to end the game. Musselwhite allowed just five hits and walked three.

"It's been so long since we've had close game that I've forgot what they're like," said manager Thurston. "I never dreamed we'd score 145 runs in 14 games (prior to Tuesday) so we knew sooner or later we would have a one-run game. It will make us a better team."

Thurston said Iatarola or Radcliff would pitch Thursday against the Bristol-Southport survivor.

Little League World Series Trip Is A Dream Come True

(Editor's note) Steve Wasula is a third baseman for the Altamonte Springs 12-year-old All-Star team which is competing in the Little League World Series this week at Williamsport, Pa.

For all of us, the Little League World Series is a dream come true. The big part for me is the trip itself. I want to win, but, if we don't, just being in Williamsport is big enough.

Just getting here was exciting. We left Saturday morning with a police escort from Altamonte Springs. It was neat. We had two motorcycles leading the way and we got to run all the red lights to Interstate 4.

We took a bus to Tampa where a lot of us took our first plane ride. It was the first time on a plane for me and I was excited about the ride. I was a little afraid it was going to crash, but I wasn't really afraid.

We landed in Pittsburgh and then had to take something called a commuter to Williamsport. It was a two-engine propeller airplane and it sounded like it was falling apart.

Everybody was laughing about it but Jason Varitek was scared the most. He said these were the kind of planes that crashed the most.

But Chris Martino, whose father owns an airline, knows everything about planes so he corrected Jason right away.

Even when we got to Williamsport and unpacked, and went to sleep, I just couldn't believe we were really here.

Last Summer, my family took a vacation to Buffalo to see my grandmother and grandfather. When

Steve Wasula

World Series Columnist

"we left Buffalo, grandpa said, 'well, when you play in Williamsport next year, just give us a call and we'll come and see you.' That all came true for both of us."

We sleep in bunk beds and there's a room on the right where the coaches stay. Everyone has a locker.

The first team we met was the Koreans from Seoul, South Korea. They came over and started saying, "changing," they meant to say change which means, I guess, they wanted to trade. We all enjoyed it and traded Little League pins with them. We didn't really talk but we used hand signals. We had some troubles communicating, but everything worked out pretty well.

I also found out that the Koreans are pretty shrewd traders. Jimmy Musselwhite offered one kid a dollar for one pin but the kid just put his hand up by his head and spun it around as if to say Jimmy was crazy.

When the game finally started Tuesday, against Los Gatos, Cal., all of us thought we'd have an easy game.

Especially when Jimmy Musselwhite hit that home run in the first inning. But, our bats cooled off.

Everybody was really nervous playing before 10,000 people. Nobody was concentrating on his hitting. The coaches said not to think about all the people so we tried not to think about it.

It seemed like the stadium was totally packed but the crowd was pretty quiet. It was almost like they weren't there.

I looked up at our fans once and they were cheering like crazy, but I could barely hear them. I guess it's because this place is so big.

Whatever happens the rest of the week and, I think we have the best team here, the trip itself will always stand out in my mind.

Andrews Injured, Will Miss Opener

ATLANTA (UPI) — With the start of the regular season just 12 days away, the Atlanta Falcons received a crushing blow Tuesday in the form of a severe knee injury to star fullback William Andrews.

Andrews, the most productive rusher-pass receiver in the NFL over the past five years, suffered the injury in practice and was scheduled to undergo surgery this morning.

"We don't know the extent of the injury at this time," said Falcons publicist Bob Dickinson late Tuesday. "We don't know how long he'll be out, but obviously he won't be in the lineup for the start of the season."

Andrews was cutting off the right side during a running play and was tackled by rookie linebacker Thomas Benson of Oklahoma. Observers said his leg apparently remained stiff as he was hit.

Andrews, a six-year veteran, was carried off the field and rushed to Piedmont Hospital in Atlanta, where he underwent extensive X-rays. The decision to operate came several hours later. Doctors said they would be unable to tell how badly the knee was injured until they operate.

Andrews averaged over 1,000 yards per season rushing over the past five years and caught an average of more than 50 passes per year. For the past five years, his rushing-reception total was 6,382 yards.

Last year, he rushed for a team-record 1,567 yards and caught 59 passes for 809 yards to become only the second player in NFL history to go over 2,000 yards in rushing and receiving combined twice.

In other news from the training camps on Tuesday, there were few "name" players dropped as teams reached the required 80-man limit. The final cutdown to 49 players must be made by next Tuesday afternoon.

Dallas placed All-Pro defensive tackle Randy White on the "did not report" list. White has been

Nettles Boosts Padres; Davis' 4 RBI Leads Cubs

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The San Diego Padres are not content to run away with the NL West race. Now they're turning the Eastern race into a joke.

The Padres, who lead the West by 10 games as they surge to the first division title in their 16-year history, beat the New York Mets 7-4 Tuesday night in San Diego. It was San Diego's second straight victory over New York and dropped the second-place Mets five games behind the Chicago Cubs in the East.

Chicago won its fourth straight game Tuesday, routing Houston 11-5 to open its biggest lead of the season.

Graig Nettles had three hits, including his sixth home run in his last five games, and drove in two runs to spark San Diego. Nettles, who now has 18 home runs, sparked a 15-hit attack against three pitchers, including starter and loser Ed Lynch. Lynch is 0-7 in his last seven starts and has not won since June 13.

Cubs 11, Astros 5

At Chicago, Jody Davis had trouble controlling his emotions during his 1-for-17 batting slump. But, as the Houston Astros have found out, the Chicago Cubs' catcher is learning to relax.

"There were a few times earlier that I went into the tunnel in back of the dugout and threw batting helmets, broke bats and pounded my fists against the walls," said Davis, who broke out of his slump Tuesday with a home run, a single and four RBI in Chicago's 11-5 win over the Astros.

Phillies 12, Giants 5

At San Francisco, John Russell, Juan Samuel and pinch hitter Sixto Lezcano had two hits each in a 10-run eighth-inning outburst that carried Philadelphia past San Francisco. The Phils, trailing 3-2, struck 14 batters to the plate in the eighth.

Reds 4, Cardinals 1

At Cincinnati, Wayne Krenchicki's pinch-single drove in Ron Oester with the tie-breaking run and Eddie Milner followed with a two-run homer in the seventh inning, lifting the Reds over St. Louis.

Pirates 5, Braves 4

At Pittsburgh, Marvell Wynne's bases-loaded, one-out single in the ninth inning scored Denny Gonzalez with the winning run and gave Pittsburgh its victory over Atlanta. Gonzalez led off the ninth with a double and went to third on a sacrifice. Gene Garber intentionally walked Dale Berra and pinch hitter Lee Mazzilli before Wynne, who went 3-for-5, singled.

Dodgers 4, Expos 3

At Los Angeles, Candy Maldonado singled home Mike Marshall with the tie-breaking run in the third inning, snapping the Expos' six-game winning streak. Fernando Valenzuela, 10-14, gave up three runs in the first inning and then blanked Montreal the rest of the way on a six-hitter to snap a three-game losing streak.

'Jolly Roger' Poisons Kansas City — Niekro Wins 15th

BOSTON (UPI) — Hoist the Jolly Roger. Roger Clemens is leaving them for dead.

The Jolly Roger, with its skull and crossbones against a sea of black, seems the perfect symbol for the hard-throwing rookie right-hander of the Boston Red Sox. His 94-mph fastball is pure poison to opponents.

Clemens struck out 15 and scattered seven hits Tuesday night in pitching the Red Sox to an 11-1 rout of the Kansas City Royals at Boston. Jim Rice drove in four runs and Tony Armas knocked in three to support Clemens.

The 22-year-old Clemens surrendered no walks en route to a victory in which he struck out at least one batter every inning. Clemens, 8-4, struck out the side in the fourth and six of eight batters between the third and fifth innings.

"I like striking people out," he said. "I threw 85 percent fastballs and was working the inside of the plate tonight. Also, I hit the corners better than I had in a while. Tonight I had the best fastball I've had since being up here (in the majors)."

Kansas City's Darryl Motley, who struck out three times and hit into a double play, said Clemens' speed didn't give hitters a chance to think.

"You don't have very long to make up your mind on whether to swing or not," he said.

A.L. Baseball

Clemens was throwing extremely hard and getting the ball where he wanted it.

Clemens threw just 118 pitches, a low number for such a high strikeout total. His 15 strikeouts tied him with Joe Wood for second on the Red Sox' all-time list for one-game strikeout totals. In 1961, Bill Monbouquette set the club record by striking out 17 Washington Senators.

Called up May 11 from the minors, Clemens has struck out 109 batters in 120 2-3 innings.

The Red Sox supported Clemens with 13 hits, including Rice's 23rd home run and Armas' 34th.

At Baltimore, Jack Perconte stroked three doubles and drove in two runs to power the Mariners. Salome Barojas, 9-4, got the victory by allowing two runs over 5 2-3 innings.

At Arlington, Texas, pinch hitter Alan Bannister singled in Larry Parrish from second base with two out in the bottom of the 10th to give the Rangers the victory. Tom Henke, 1-0, was the winner in relief and Bert Roberge, 3-1, took the loss. Marv Foley and Gary Ward homered for Texas.

and scattered five hits. Ernie Camacho pitched the ninth for his 17th save.

At Baltimore, Jack Perconte stroked three doubles and drove in two runs to power the Mariners. Salome Barojas, 9-4, got the victory by allowing two runs over 5 2-3 innings.

At Arlington, Texas, pinch hitter Alan Bannister singled in Larry Parrish from second base with two out in the bottom of the 10th to give the Rangers the victory. Tom Henke, 1-0, was the winner in relief and Bert Roberge, 3-1, took the loss. Marv Foley and Gary Ward homered for Texas.

Yankees 8, Angels 2

At New York, Phil Niekro was already pitching in the minor leagues by 1960, when New York rookies Bobby Meacham and Mike Pagliarulo were born. On Tuesday night, the unlikely trio combined to lead the surging Yankees to an 8-2 triumph over the fading California Angels.

The Yankees used a 14-hit attack en route to their fourth straight triumph as the Angels suffered their seventh consecutive setback. Pagliarulo and Meacham had three hits each and Willie Randolph drove in three runs with a bases-loaded single and a sacrifice fly to help Niekro to his 15th win.

Tradition At Arlington

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, ILL. (UPI) — One way or another, tradition will be front and center at Sunday's Arlington Million.

The tradition could come in the form of a repeat victory by John Henry, a 9-year-old gelding who won the first running of the Million in 1981. That dramatic victory — by a scant nose over The Bart — got the rich race off on the right foot.

Or tradition could be a victory by one of Europe's finest horses. Arlington's management has always envisioned the Million as an international race and last year's victory by Britain's Tolomeo made the race much more of a factor in overseas racing plans.

Relax, Have Fun And Enjoy Playing Mixed Doubles

Mixed doubles — another story altogether.

I recently overheard a conversation about the up-coming marriage of an avid tennis player in the area. It went something like that — "I'm really starting to have second thoughts about marrying him, we played tennis last night and he is really not a very good player. I'm really afraid that we would not be a very good mixed doubles team." "The guy on the court next to us was quite good, I wonder if he's married."

Of course I'm not serious but it's not too far from the truth. Mixed doubles and husband and wife mixed doubles is a serious business in the world of tennis. In the state of Florida alone many scores of tournaments are devoted to mixed doubles alone and many others include mixed as one of their divisions.

I have seen some of the most highly emotional and hotly contested matches that I have ever seen on the mixed doubles court. I have been involved in some of these matches. One that lasted over three hours. I have actually seen physical fights among partners — one man threw his racket at his wife, one woman poured Gatorade over her husband's head.

Marriage counselors would say that what happens on the tennis court is just the tip of the iceberg, that trouble has existed in the marriage even without the tennis. Well, I know couples who are the most compatible of all off the court. Once they get on the court to play, they both turn into Jekyll and Hyde. Tennis is funny that way — particularly mixed doubles. It can be great though and once a few ground rules are established many, many enjoyable years of mixed doubles fun is in store for you.

Here are a few guidelines that have helped me enjoy mixed husband-wife doubles more. Maybe they can help you, maybe even save your marriage.

Rule 1 — I'm talking to the men in this first one. Get rid of the machoing of the court attitude. I've seen men tell their wives, "Honey, you stand in this one spot, if a ball happens to come at you hit it, I'll cover the other 97 per cent of the court." This won't work. You'll be a bad team and your wife/partner will be humiliated. Play it straight. If the ball is hit to your partner's court let him have it. (I was very surprised at how good my wife was once I started letting her play.)

Number 2 — Please don't try to coach your partner while the match is in progress. I've seen some (men and women) even try to do it during the point. To discuss strategy is ok, but to try to change strokes, etc. is not. It will only frustrate your partner.

Number 3 — Don't glare, growl, hiss, cuss or generally act like an idiot when your wife/partner misses a ball — she doesn't want to miss and you are just going to make her more nervous with your acting up.

Number 4 — Never refer to the female player on the other team as being good or being steady or being a "great little player." This infers that if you were on her side you would be winning.

Number 5 — Don't bring off the court problems on the court with you. I heard a man tell his wife during one match that if she would be nicer around the house and keep it up nicer she would certainly be a better tennis player. What?

Number 6 — Do praise your partner's good shots and good efforts.

Number 7 — Do play a lot of practice matches.

Number 8 — Do have fun — it's not life or death to win just one little trophy. (I have known people who would sell their best friend for a $2.95 trophy.)

Number 9 — Do relax, have fun and enjoy mixed doubles — it is a great game.

Dye's Eye On 'Canes

AUBURN, Ala. (UPI) — Auburn Coach Pat Dye said Tuesday his main concern about next week's Kickoff Classic against Miami is the Hurricanes' offense and quarterback Bernie Kosar.

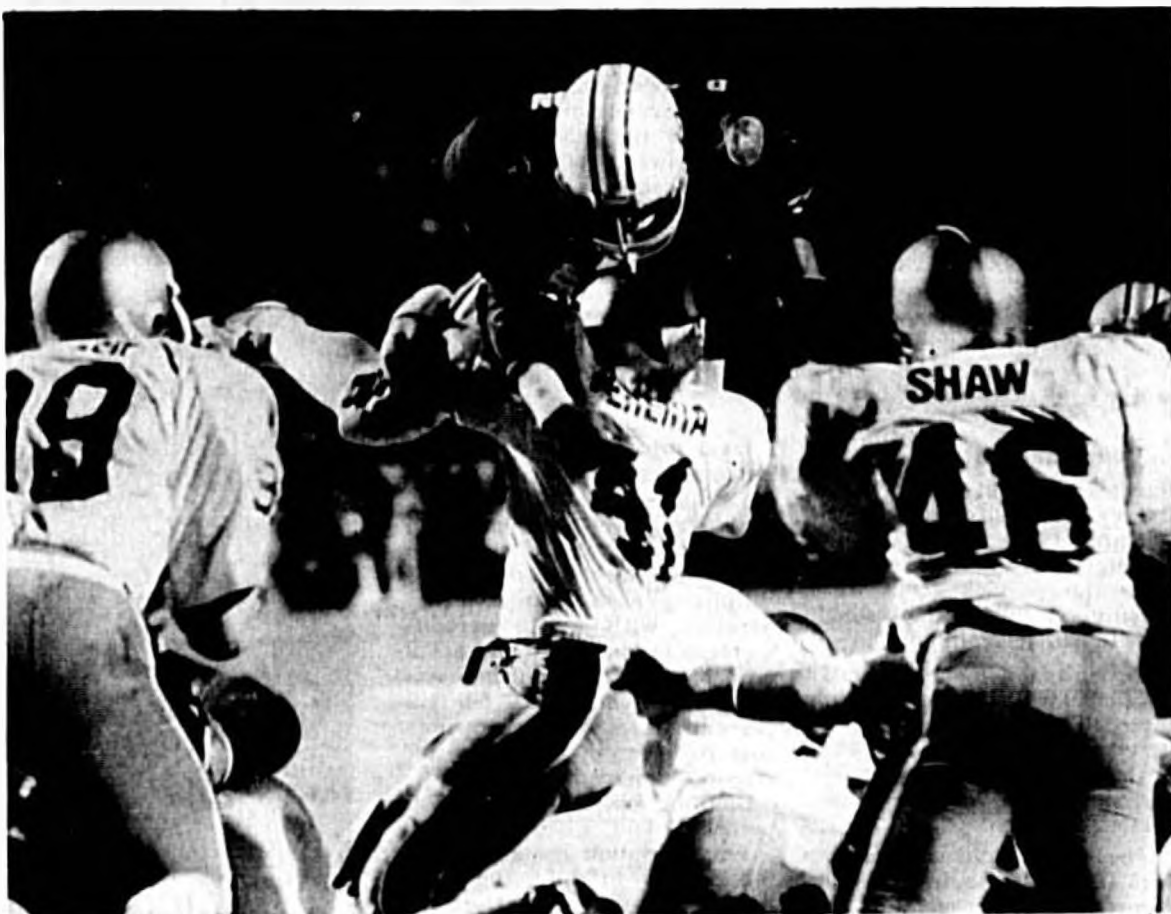

Dye, who may have to lead the Tigers into the season opener Monday in New Jersey without their top quarterback, said Miami is returning eight starters on offense and "their line returns intact from tackle to tackle."

"Their wide receivers return and, of course, quarterback Bernie Kosar returns," he said. "Very seldom did you see people get to Kosar last year. He is a master of reading defenses. He calls a lot of plays at the line to take advantage of the defense."

Dye also praised the abilities of Hurricane fullback Alonzo Highsmith and wide receivers Eddie Brown and Stanley Shakespeare.

The coach, whose Tigers were ranked third in the nation last season after Miami took the top spot with a win over Nebraska, claimed the Hurricanes are capable of throwing the ball "all over the field to open up the running game."

Any passing attack the Tigers may want to mount could be affected by Auburn's Auburn's Bo Jackson goes over the top of the defense for a touchdown in the 1982 Tangerine Bowl. Jackson has matured a lot since that game and is a big reason the Auburn Tigers are considered by many the top college football team in the country. quarterback situation. Starter Pat Washington was injured last week during a scrimmage and is uncertain if he will be in good enough condition to take the opening snap. If Washington cannot play, either Mike Mann or freshman Jeff Burger will get the call.

Moulton Posts Major Upset

MONTREAL (UPI) — American Alysia Moulton, ranked 34th in the world, posted a major upset in the Player's Challenge Tennis championships Tuesday when she eliminated second-seeded Hana Mandlikova 7-5, 2-6, 7-5 in second-round play.

Mandlikova, who will compete in the U.S. Open next week in Flushing Meadows, N.Y., seemed to lose her concentration after arguing several line calls in the third set. Mandlikova, however, said she lost because she hadn't played a singles match in more than two weeks.

"It's always difficult to get into a tournament when you haven't played singles for a certain period of time," she said. "I think if I had played two percent better today, I would have won. I don't think either of us played that well."

It was Moulton's second triumph in three career meetings with the Czechoslovakian star, ranked third in the world.

"Sometimes Hana is too good," Moulton said. "But she can crack under pressure. I play an aggressive game and the more I force her, the more errors she seems to make."

"Hana is not the best sport in the world, that sort of takes the fun out of it. But she likes to win and that's what this is all about."

In a minor upset, local favorite Helene Pelletier of Quebec City received a standing ovation from a sparse crowd when she cruised to a straight set 6-2, 6-2 triumph over Australian Elizabeth Sayers. Sayers is ranked 53rd in the world, while Pelletier, who will advance to third-round competition Wednesday, is 190th.

KRICKSTEIN UPSET

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (UPI) — Unseeded Shahar Perkiss of Israel scored a 7-6 (8-6), 6-1 victory over fourth-seeded Aaron Krickstein of Grosse Pointe, Mich., Tuesday in the second first-round upset of the $375,000 Association of Tennis Professionals Championship Tournament.

The week-long tournament is taking place at Kings Island, just north of Cincinnati.

Krickstein had double set point in the tie-breaker at 6-4, but Perkiss then scored four points in a row to take the first set. In the second set, he took a 5-0 lead.

"I was lucky to beat him," said Perkiss. "He hits the ball hard, probably harder than anyone in the world."

Krickstein said he has not been playing well during the past three weeks.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Harris Becomes Free Agent, Just 363 Yards Shy Of Record

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Former Pittsburgh Steeler Franco Harris Tuesday became a free agent by default, leaving the running back officially unemployed just 363 yards shy of his quest to surpass Jim Brown as the all-time NFL rushing leader.

The Steelers placed Harris, a training camp no-show involved in a contract dispute, on waivers Monday, making the 13-year veteran available to the rest of the 27 NFL teams for a $100 waiver fee and the cost of his old contract, estimated at $385,000 yearly.

But an NFL spokesman and the Steelers both announced late Tuesday afternoon that no team had claimed the burly 34-year-old player during the 24-hour period allotted for such actions.

That leaves Harris free to try to make his own deal with any team.

FAMU-BCC To Resume Series

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Florida A&M University offered Tuesday to resume in 1985 its bitter football series with cross-state rival Bethune-Cookman.

The series ended after the 1982 season when a five-year contract between the two schools and the Tampa Sports Authority expired and FAMU moved the Orange Blossom Classic from Miami to Tampa.

The controversy led to FAMU's withdrawal from the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference after the league levied sanctions and fines against the Rattlers.

SYSA Flea Market Saturday

The Seminole Youth Sports Association (SYSA) announces its upcoming Football Flea Market on Saturday, Aug. 25, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Eastmonte Civic Center in Altamonte Springs.

Sporting goods centers will be on hand with new equipment as well as having used equipment at discount prices.

Registration for the upcoming season will also be held at the Flea Market. The fee for the 1984 season is $40 and practice starts Monday, Aug. 27.

Coburn Captures LPBT Tourney

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Cindy Coburn of Buffalo, N.Y., captured the $25,000 Ladies Pro Bowlers Tour Greater Rochester Classic 205-204 when Jeanne Maiden of Solon, Ohio missed a single-pin spare in the 10th frame.

Coburn, who claimed her fifth career title and first of 1984, gave Maiden a chance to win when she left a 5-pin split in the 10th frame and failed to convert the spare Tuesday night.

Pony Baseball Holds Meeting

Seminole Pony Baseball Inc. will hold its 1984 organizational meeting Saturday, Aug. 26 at 2 p.m. at the Seminole Pony Baseball complex near Winter Springs. The meeting is open to anyone interested in the Seminole Pony Baseball program.

Maine Honors Benoit Olympics

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI) — The city got mountains of ticker tape ready for Wednesday's gala parade honoring three New England Olympians, including Maine running superstar Joan Benoit — the first Olympic women's marathon champion.

The parade will honor: Benoit, 27, of Freeport who has won the hearts of Mainers for her running courage; Billy Swift, 22, of South Portland, a pitcher on the silver medal-winning U.S. Olympic baseball team; and Harriet "Holly" Metcalf, 26, of South Hadley, Mass., a member of an eight-person rowing team that won a gold medal, whose parents live in Arrowsic, Maine.

The parade, sponsored by an association of Portland businessmen and City Hall, will wind its way through the downtown with the three athletes expected to ride in a convertible.

Organizers say they expect Gov. Joseph Brennan and Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, and William Cohen, R-Maine, to speak at the parade.

"We're getting a lot of confetti ready," said parade spokesman Bonnie Stringer. "We want a snowstorm kind of thing."

Organizers using shredding machines have made confetti to distribute to buildings along the parade route.

The three athletes will further be honored on Aug. 29 by the Maine Sports Hall of Fame, an organization that honors Maine athletes to promote sports.

Benoit will be inducted into the hall at a special dinner, joining about 60 other Maine athletes who went on to fame and glory in the Olympics and professional sports.

"We are inducting Joan Benoit and honoring the other two," said hall executive secretary Jack Dawson. "Ordinarily our induction dinner is in the spring but the whole country is involved in honoring these people."

"Anybody from Maine, whether they have been an athlete or haven't, certainly vicariously ran in the coliseum that day with Joan. It brings tears to some peoples eyes when they talk about it with what she had to overcome," he said.

'Colored' Voting Today; Blacks Still Left Out

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Twenty-eight years of political exclusion was to end today with voting by South Africa's mixed race population to elect a "colored" parliamentary chamber in a segregated government that would still exclude blacks.

Police Tuesday detained at least 35 members of the multi-racial United Democratic Front which waged a yearlong campaign to urge the nation's nearly one million "colored" voters to boycott the polls.

Voters today were to elect 90 legislators to a mixed-race House of Representatives. On Aug. 28, the nearly 900,000-strong Asian population will have an opportunity to elect 40 parliamentarians to the House of Delegates.

According to the new constitution to be formally adopted Sept. 3, Prime Minister Pieter W. Botha will take the post of state president and will use wide-ranging powers to oversee the business of the two chambers and the all-white House of Parliament, whose 178 MPs already have been elected and seated.

The chambers will look after non-political affairs involving their own race. Matters of mutual concern, such as foreign affairs, may be settled by consensus among the three houses.

Heavy Fighting Kills 90

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Grim-faced residents of Tripoli pulled bodies of neighbors and neighbors from demolished homes today after 22 hours of bitter fighting that left at least 90 people dead and hundreds injured.

Bodies were still being retrieved from badly hit neighborhoods, Christian Phalange radio said.

Calm was reported in Tripoli today furious cross-city shelling Tuesday between rival Moslem gangs, the anti-Syrian Islamic Tawheed organization and the pro-Syrian "Pink Panthers" gunmen who wear raspberry-colored uniforms.

The violence marred hopes for progress toward peace in a scheduled meeting today of Lebanon's national unity Cabinet.

The violence, for which there was no immediate explanation, shattered a 16-day-old cease-fire arranged by Syria. It was the worst fighting in Tripoli since at least 43 people died there in June in clashes between the rival Moslem militias.

Shamir, Weizman Meet

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir summoned former Defense Minister Ezer Weizman to a meeting today to try to change his mind about offering to join a Labor Party government led by Shimon Peres.

Weizman, in what Labor officials called a "breakthrough," announced that he would support a Peres government excluding Shamir's ruling Likud bloc if national unity negotiations on forming a government of both parties fail.

Hours after Weizman's shift toward Labor, officials of the two major political parties resumed their unity talks. They hoped to reach a compromise on the questions of Jewish settlements in the occupied West Bank and possible peace discussions with Jordan's King Hussein.

Weizman's Yahad (Together) Party won three parliamentary seats in national elections July 23, enough to make him a power broker because neither Labor nor the Likud won control of the 120-member Knesset, the Israeli parliament.

Did Libyan Ship Lay Mines?

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — French authorities seized a Libyan cargo ship hours after a senior Egyptian military official said the vessel probably was responsible for planting mines in the Red Sea and Gulf of Suez.

Officials in France said the Libyan freighter the Ghada was seized Tuesday in the Mediterranean port of Marseille where it had docked for repairs.

They claimed the action was in retaliation for the seizure of the French cargo ship Le Rove which has been detained in Benghazi, Libya since 1979, and was not related to the mining.

But the seizure came hours after a high Egyptian military official said it was a "near certainty" that the Ghada planted the mines that have damaged at least 18 commercial ships since July 9.

U.S. Jet Crashes On Carrier

TOKYO (UPI) — A U.S. Navy jet crashed while attempting to land on the aircraft carrier USS Midway in the northern Philippine Sea Tuesday, killing the pilot, the navy reported Wednesday.

The Midway was engaged in routine training operations about 240 nautical miles southwest of Tokyo when the accident occurred Tuesday afternoon, it said.

The Navy is investigating the cause of the accident of the A-7 Corsair light attack jet.

The pilot's identity was withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Soviet, East German Swimmers Break World Records At Games

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet and East German swimmers who boycotted the Los Angeles Olympics have broken two world records at Moscow's consolation "Friendship-84" games.

To the wild cheers of more than 8,000 spectators, the Soviet Union's Sergei Zabolotnov, 21, Tuesday shaved more than half a second off American Rick Carey's world record in the 200-meter backstroke with a time of 1 minute, 58.41 seconds.

It was the first world record in the 13 swimming events of the East-bloc dominated Friendship-84, staged by Moscow as a consolation for athletes from countries which joined its boycott of the Los Angeles Olympics.

East Germany's team in the women's 4x100 meters relay added another world record in the next race, clipping 0.3 seconds off the previous record which their compatriots set in the same pool at the 1980 Moscow Olympics. They finished with a time of 3:42.41.

cans, as Franklin D. Roosevelt did, that all we have to fear is fear itself. Mondale has embraced fear as enthusiastically as he embraces his pre-convention rivals." Ford said. "All he has to offer is fear itself."

Ford was followed by Kansas Sen. Robert Dole and Secretary of Transportation Elizabeth Dole — an unusual couple in which both partners are considered in the running for spots on the next Republican ticket.

Mrs. Dole won applause when she took on the gender issue. "The idea that the election could be won on the basis of gender insults our electoral purpose," she said.

"We are thinking women. No platitudes will buy us, no party will inherit us, no candidate will own us," she said.

Army Recaptures 3 Towns From Rebels

United Press International

The Salvadoran military intensified attacks to forestall a guerrilla offensive, regaining control of three towns near the Honduran border and killing 11 rebels — including a commander — officials reported today.

The rebels responded with a blitz of propaganda accusing the government and the U.S. Embassy of financing the roving "death squads" believed responsible for thousands of brutal civilian deaths.

Salvadoran Col. Domingo Monterrosa, chief of an eastern military zone, said 10 guerrillas were killed as 2,000 army troops, supported by air force bombing raids, regained control Tuesday of San Gerardo, San Luis de la Reina and Nueveo Eden de San Juan, all about 3 miles from the Honduran border.

In a separate battle in San Miguel, the army announced that guerrilla commander Mauricio Caceres, known as "Tono," was killed. The army said he was a political commander of the Farabundo Marti Liberation Front's southeastern front "Francisco Sanchez."

In another incident, civilians said an out-of-uniform soldier threw a grenade into a house where 30 peasants were watching television Monday, killing nine and wounding 19 others in La Paz province, a military source said. No further details were available.

The stepped-up fighting in the nearly 5-year-old civil war prompted the state-owned national railway to suspend service in El Salvador Tuesday because of inadequate protection from guerrilla raids, railway officials said.

The railway transports cotton and coffee to the nation's ports for export and carries food in the capital of San Salvador. It was not known when service would resume.

Although the rebels' clandestine radio did not report on the battles, it lashed out at what it called the "dirty war" on the country's popular and revolutionary movements.

"Radio Venceremos is presenting its investigation into the death squads and their connection with the (Salvadoran) oligarchy, army officials and the American Embassy," the broadcast said.

"This takes on more importance now that thousands of people are protesting in Dallas, site of the convention of the Republican Party of Ronald Reagan, against U.S. policy that supports a system of crime and injustice in El Salvador."

The rebel broadcast accused the Salvadoran ruling class, backed by the United States, of "organizing, financing and directing a dirty war or a war by assassination against the popular, democratic and revolutionary movements."

Military spokesmen said the army has begun a systematic attack on guerrilla strongholds throughout the country to thwart a guerrilla offensive timed to coincide with the coffee and cotton harvests.

Troops backed by reconnaissance craft combed the Pacific coastal zones of Usulután and San Miguel provinces after civilian reports that rebels were transporting men and munitions near Jucuarán, 69 miles southeast of San Salvador.

forecast inflation getting worse in the second half of the year.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said, "The figures look good. We're staying on the path of steady growth with lower inflation."

Telephone charges rose another 0.5 percent, making the increases in local service 14.1 percent since the AT&T breakup at the beginning of the year. The increase in long distance charges totals 5.2 percent.

The seven major categories measured in the index generally showed modest acceleration over June. The miscellaneous index, however, was up a strong 0.9 percent, mainly because of increasing cigarette prices.

Food prices, up 0.3 percent, reflected an increase in vegetable costs, especially for potatoes, hit hard by wet weather. Fresh fruit prices, which went up sharply in June, fell in July.

Housing costs increased 0.5 percent, with a 1.8 percent increase in electricity and a 1.2 percent jump in natural gas prices. Fuel oil prices fell 1.2 percent. Costs for homeowners rose 0.7 percent and those for renters 0.6 percent.

Clothing costs increased 0.5 percent.

Transportation costs dropped 0.3 percent in July, the third decline in five months. Used car prices were down 0.7 percent, the first decline of any size since June 1980 and the biggest decline since November 1979.

future and what is best for the zoo. He also said residents must remember the name of the zoo is the "Central Florida Zoo," and that it serves the area, not just Sanford.

Rozon said about 60 percent of the zoo's funding comes from private contributions "south of (State Road) 434."

He said groups who have threatened to pull their funding if the zoo leaves town, will look bad because their money mostly goes for feeding the animals.

"It makes them look like they're throwing rocks at Santa Claus," Rozon said.

The board is considering three potential sites in Orange and three in Seminole counties, Rozon said.

Cook Of The Week

Cookie Monsters Are In For A Luscious Treat

By Brenda Lowe
Herald Correspondent

If you have any "cookie monsters" in your house, then this week's cook, Marie Roche, is for you.

Marie was born in New London, Conn. on the Navy base where her father was stationed. He was a Navy chef and later an Institutional chef. Her mother made luscious home-brewed root beer. So Marie comes by her culinary expertise naturally.

Many of Marie's fondest childhood memories center around the large family gatherings at her uncle's farm. Aunts, uncles and cousins would come for Sunday dinner and soon the picnic tables were filled with an abundance of delicious food. Since Marie was an only child, she especially enjoyed having lots of cousins to play with, she said. There was an apple orchard there and she says it was a special treat to pick fresh, sun-warmed apples right off the trees.

As a teen-ager, she was a real movie buff. And while a lot of teen-agers wouldn't include school among their pleasurable experiences, Marie says that she enjoyed it very much. In high school, cooking was one of her favorite activities. After graduation, she worked as an executive secretary for a large perfume company.

She and her husband, Phil, have lived in Sanford since 1960 and have three children.

As a member of Holy Cross Episcopal Church, Marie has contributed much time and talent over the years as Episcopal Churchwoman's president, superintendent of the church school, vestry, and is currently serving as Director of the North Orlando Deanery. In addition to her service at Holy Cross, she is a member of the Pilot Club of Sanford.

As involved as she is, Marie still finds time to enjoy her hobbies of reading and baking. She says that she has fun baking for family and friends.

Her recipes are sure to please even the most discriminating cookie lover. Following are a few of Marie's favorites.

PUMPKIN SPICE COOKIES

1/2 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup solid pack pumpkin
2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 1/2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
1 cup raisins
1 cup chopped nuts

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cream shortening, gradually beat in sugar. Add eggs and pumpkin, mix well. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and spices together. Add to pumpkin mixture and mix well. Add raisins and nuts. Drop by heaping teaspoons onto greased cookie sheets. Bake about 15 minutes (until firm to touch). Remove from sheets to cool. Makes 4 dozen.

Lemon Icing: Combine 2 cups confectioner's sugar with 1 tablespoon each of lemon juice and grated lemon rind. Add just enough cream to make icing spreadable.

CHOCOLATE-KISSED BON BONS

3/4 cup Crisco
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1/4 cup packed brown sugar
1 egg
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 3/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour

Schools Set Open House

Two local schools have announced plans for open house prior to the 1984-85 school semester.

Rocklake Middle School, 250 Slade Drive, invites both students and parents to attend on the designated days, meet the teachers, familiarize themselves with the school grounds and pick up their new schedules.

On Aug. 23, students in grade 6 are invited, from 10 a.m. until 12 noon. Students in grades 7-8 are invited to attend on Aug. 24, 10 a.m. until noon.

This year's bus schedules will be posted at the school.

David Scott, principal of Longwood Elementary School, 830 East Orange Ave., invites students grades kindergarten through 5 to attend their open house on Aug. 24, from 1:15 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Students will have their class schedules posted as well as signs erected on the school grounds to help students locate the various classrooms. Parents and students will be given opportunity to meet with the teachers.

Mr. Scott added that a supply list will be sent home the first day of school indicating what school supplies the students will need. Bus schedule will be posted at the school the day of the open house.

Mr. Scott wishes to welcome aboard his newest staff member, Lorraine Offer, formally from Red Bug Elementary School.

Lorraine recently was chosen by the National Association of Elementary School Principals to attend a special seminar on "Current Trends in Education" held July 8-13 at Florida Institute of Technology in Melbourne. Being chosen is in itself quite an honor, only three or four assistant principals per state are chosen to attend the seminars.

Karen Warner

Lorraine will join the Longwood Elementary School staff this semester as an assistant principal.

Brad Freeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry "Bud" Freeman, of Longwood, has been accepted into Duke University School of Medicine in North Carolina.

Brad is a recent graduate of the University of Central Florida and the recipient of the prestigious Graeme Baker Award as the top senior chemistry student at the University.

He is a 1979 graduate of Lyman High School and will be leaving for Duke next week. Mrs. Nan Freeman will accompany her son up to North Carolina, and fly back in a few days to resume her teaching career in the new Hamilton Elementary School, Sanford.

Ballet Guild Calls Auditions

Conducting auditions for the Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole this year will be Christian Faust, the Balletmaster at Florida School of the Arts. He has choreographed for "Cross and Sword" as well as made-for-television modern dance, classical ballet and music theatre.

The Ballet Guild, now in its 17th season, will bring Faust to Sanford the open auditions on Sept. 23. He is a former dancer with the Ballet Metropolitan in Columbus, Ohio and with the Dallas Ballet. He also appeared in the Bob Fosse show "Cabaret" in Dallas.

The Ballet Guild, a non profit community organization will again be calling dancers ages 10 and up who have had a minimum of two years classical ballet training. They must be currently affiliated with a dance studio and should have strong training in ballet.

Broken Switch Ends On A Sour Note For Disabled Music Lovers

DEAR ABBY: We have three adult crippled children (our own) all in wheelchairs due to a rare genetic form of cerebral palsy. However, that is not the problem: I'm coming to that.

Our children love music, so we bought them a used jukebox and stocked it with their favorite records — mostly polkas, Irish ballads, golden oldies, etc. Last December the jukebox broke down. The dealer who sold it to us tried to locate the transfer switch that was needed to repair it, but he told us that since it was a 20-year-old Wurlitzer, he doesn't expect to find one because the parts are not being made anymore.

Abby, the model is 2801 and it only plays 45s. It had a beautiful tone before the switch broke.

Can you help me, or is this a hopeless case?

GERTRUDE B. IN WILKES-BARRE, PA.

DEAR GERTRUDE: There must be someone out there who has an old Wurlitzer transfer switch. Readers? Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood,

Dear Abby

Calif. 90038.

DEAR ABBY: How old do you have to be to find your real parents? I am adopted and do not get along with my mother. I would like to open the files and find my real parents, but I don't know how to go about it. Please help me. I am 14 years old.

A KID IN KANSAS

DEAR KID: There are many search organizations that will be happy to look for your birth parents — some charge a fee, others do not. The law states that a search cannot be started until the adoptee is 18, but he/she may register now.

My recommendation is: International Soundex Reunion Registry, P.O. Box 2312, Carson City, Nev. 89702. Write for Soundex forms, and enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. The organization's services are free.

It registers the adopted person, and if one of that person's birth parents also registers, a match is made with the assurance that the "match" is agreeable with all parties. Some parents (also some adoptees) prefer not to be found, which I believe is their right and should be respected.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 16, unmarried and recently had a beautiful baby boy, which I decided to place for adoption. It was a very painful experience. I never want to go through anything like that again so I considered going on the pill. If I do, I might figure that as long as I'm on the pill I'm well protected, so I can sleep with just anybody, and I don't want to be that kind of girl. On the other hand, if I don't go on the pill, I may say, "Well, just this once won't hurt," and I'll end up where I was a year ago.

I want the next time I have sex to be special, but I have a hard time saying no. I think the other kinds of birth control are gross. What do you think?

CONFUSED IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR CONFUSED: I think it's better to be protected and not need it, than not to be protected and regret it. And since you admittedly have a hard time saying no, avoid situations that put you to the test.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you can settle a difference of opinion between my mother and me. My husband and I received a wedding invitation, and in it was requested, "No gifts, please." My mother thinks it means, "Do not buy a gift; we prefer money instead." I think it means no gifts of any kind.

Abby, is a monetary gift considered a gift?

US IN BELMA, ALA.

DEAR US: A monetary gift is indeed a gift. "No gifts, please" means don't bring a present of any kind.

Joffrey Ballet 'A First'

The world renowned Joffrey Ballet will appear for the first time in Central Florida under the auspices of Southern Ballet Theatre on May 3 and 4 at Bob Carr Performing Arts Center, Orlando. # Reunion

Family Gathering In Miami Evokes Memories Of Cuba

MIAMI (UPI) — Marta Fernandez' two-bedroom apartment in Miami's Little Havana section is full on the Saturday night of a reunion of her tight-knit family. The family has lived in America for 25 years, but the talk, food and rhythms are still pure Cuba.

This meeting is special because one of Marta's sons, Virgilio, is visiting Miami from Madrid with his wife, daughter and her 7-year-old son. Other members of the family have taken U.S. citizenship, but Virgilio kept his U.N. refugee status.

The aroma of arroz con pollo, frituras de calabaza, y platanos maduros fritos (chicken with rice, fried pumpkin and fried plantains) mixes with the strong smell of Miami-made cigars. The food is placed buffet-style on the dining room table, next to several bottles of liquor.

Most of the women sit on one side of the room, on a beige couch covered with plastic. Many have not seen each other for months and their conversation ranges from family events to gossip.

They exchange opinions about the recent wedding of Spanish Prince Gonzalo de Borb'n.

"She looks very pretty and distinguished," said one woman, referring to the prince's 20-year-old bride. "I hope they'll be happy."

"I hope so too," said another woman, "but I can't help but be a little skeptical about it. I mean, you can't deny it is odd she marries a man 20 years her elder. She may be more concerned with marrying the title, and not the man."

Standing around the room, decorated with scenic paintings and family portraits, the men talk mostly about politics and pre-Castro Cuba.

"Those were the days. Remember when we use to all go to the Tropicana (a famous Havana nightclub) to dine and dance?" said one man. "The entertainment was always top-notch."

"Yes, and in those days it didn't seem possible that all that could one day end," said his brother. "There is no other country that even comes close to what we had in Cuba. It was unique."

They still hope one day to be led by Fidel Castro.

Mrs. Fernandez' grandchildren, all in 20s, mingle with their parents and uncles. They speak in Spanish to them, sprinkled with English. They mostly answer questions about what they're doing and their current interests.

The grandchildren at times go off to one of the bedrooms, where the sounds of laughter and loud conversation — in English — are muffled.

The talk in the living room, meanwhile, grows louder and the drinks more plentiful as the evening wears on.

Mrs. Fernandez, a small, gray-haired woman in her mid-80s, enters the room, her arms full of musical instruments. She hands out a guiro (a bottle gourd that is rubbed with a stick), a set of maracas and a pair of small bongos.

Mrs. Fernandez' sister-in-law goes to the kitchen and returns with two pots and a pair of spoons. One is a small pot and the other an iron skillet. She places the pots on the floor and sits by them. With the two spoons she begins banging out an infectious rhythm, similar to the sound of island metal drums.

An elderly man walks over to the piano and begins playing an old Cuban song familiar to all.

The players of the bongos, maracas, and guiro join in and soon family members clap their hands. The sights and sounds evoke memories of Cuba, the Tropicana nightclub and their long-ago parties.

Here are two recipes from Maria Fernandez' family reunion.

No Evidence Vasectomy Can Lead To Impotence

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband is 35 and in good health, but lately our lovemaking has almost dwindled down to nothing. He just doesn't have the desire any more.

He says that before we go to bed he thinks about what he wants to do and how it will be, but by the time we turn off the lights and set the alarm and climb into bed, he just doesn't feel like it any more.

We averaged about four times a week. He had a vasectomy about 11 years ago, and I read the other day that after a long period of time, this can make a man impotent. Is this true, and what can be done about it?

DEAR READER — The initial reports suggesting that a vasectomy may lead to impotence much later have not been supported by other, better studies. Put another way, there is no evidence that a vasectomy will cause a man to become impotent — so that is not your husband's problem.

In the past, many doctors would tell a patient with impotence that it was psychological; however, it is now pretty well known that impotence is frequently a symptom of a medical problem. Any man, particularly one as young as your husband, who develops impotence needs a careful medical examination — not just for impotence, but in the interests of his overall health. Unrecognized diabetes should not go neglected, if that should be the cause of your husband's impotence.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I own a motel and I do most of the cleaning of the rooms myself. Is it possible to get herpes from handling the dirty towels and sheets and cleaning the toilet and shower, especially if the customer has it and it is in the contagious stage?

DEAR READER — Studies have shown that the herpes virus can persist for more than four hours on moist surfaces. But that doesn't mean these live viruses can cause you to get herpes. To get into the body and start an infection, the virus must breach the surface of the skin. Just getting the virus on the surface of your skin is not enough. Friction erodes the skin surface's protective barrier and allows the infection to occur. That is why sex is such a good way to transmit genital herpes.

So if you don't rub yourself with the used towels and sheets, there is no reason to think you would get herpes.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1531, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Oswald and James Jacoby
In our bridge infancy we are told to exercise discretion in our overcalls. If we don't have a good suit, we may be doubled and set a horrendous number of tricks. Although that's good advice, knowing when to ignore this instruction is the mark of experience.

In the diagrammed bidding, East passed after the opening one-club bid by North. He had takeout-double strength, but he lacked spade support. When North raised to two spades, East then doubled for a two-suit takeout. Does anyone blame West for leading one of the two suits — diamonds — where he felt more tricks might be taken? Note the bad result.

Declarer could see that the contract would certainly depend upon the club finesse. He also saw a slight extra chance. After playing ace and king of diamonds, he trumped a third diamond in dummy. Now he led a spade, and poor East had to win the singleton ace. East cashed the A-K of hearts, but was end played. The lead of a red suit would allow declarer to discard a club while ruffing in dummy. A club lead would march into the jaws of A-Q.

What's the answer? We suggest that East adopt a philosophy of calculated risk and overcall with one heart. If the result is unfavorable, he can always plead that the diamond eight was mixed up with his hearts. After a heart lead, East will take two aces and a king in the major suits, exit with a diamond and wait to take the setting trick in clubs.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY AUGUST 23, 1984

Friends of long standing who have been loyal to you in the past will be of even greater importance to you in the year ahead. One in particular will help you achieve a dream.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Beware of tendencies today to put persons with whom you deal in two distinct categories. Don't be sugar and spice to one pal and ice to another. Major changes are in store for Virgos in the coming year. Send for your year-ahead predictions today. Mail #1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Unfortunately, you might not achieve all to which you aspire today. This could be due more to your mistakes than obstacles found in your path.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If your ideas are not practical and realistic in career situations today, they could end up costing you and others funds that need not be wasted.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In joint ventures today, do not take it upon yourself to make commitments or changes without first consulting the other parties involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do not permit your hunches or intuition to take precedence over your logic and reason today. Your flashes of insight might be inaccurate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You can best be helpful to a friend today by showing him ways he can do on his own what he is asking of you. It'll save his self-respect.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's wise to seek advice and counsel from others, but today if you talk to too many people, their conflicting answers may only create more confusion.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Co-workers could become agitated today if you try to foist untested ideas or methods upon them. Work them out first before presenting them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your curiosity could be at a rather high peak today, so you must be careful not to ask embarrassing questions of friends regarding things they wish to keep secret.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In financial matters today, respect the suggestions of a wise associate who offers you advice. Ignoring his or her counsel might prove folly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) When working today, stick to routines or procedures that you have carefully thought out. Mistakes are likely if you depart from your original game plan.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Strive to keep your financial affairs in proper balance today. There will be a time of reckoning if you spend more than you're taking in.

When working today, stick to routines or procedures that you have carefully thought out. Mistakes are likely if you depart from your original game plan.

PBS To Air Documentary On AIDS

By Julianne Hastings
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three years ago newspapers and TV newscasts were filled with stories about the deadly spread of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS), a publicity blitz which caused confusion, fear and sometimes hysteria.

There was television news footage of ambulance workers saying they did not want to touch people known to have the disease for which there still is no known cure.

There was publicity about police officers refusing to go near an AIDS victim who was being held in a local jail.

No one was sure at first how the disease was contracted.

First word was that it affected only homosexual men and intravenous drug abusers, a fallacy that prompted one New York newspaper to write an editorial about the disease under the headline, "Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, Nature Strikes Back."

The publicity went away. The epidemic did not.

There still is no known cure for the disease that destroys the body's immune system, although last April, the National Cancer Institute announced it had discovered the probable cause — a virus known as HTLV-III.

Next Wednesday, PBS will present "AIDS: Profile of an Epidemic," the first TV documentary to examine the history of the disease and talk to experts involved in the search to find a cure, as well as victims and their families.

Ed Asner hosts the hour-long program, which will be broadcast at 10 p.m.

Five of the 5,000 known victims of AIDS are featured in the series and they are representative of the people who are most likely to contract the disease — a male homosexual, a hemophiliac, a drug user, a Haitian and a drug user's child who was born with the disease.

Medical experts interviewed explain that the disease can only be contracted through blood or body fluids such as semen, not casual contact.

Born with AIDS, 6-year-old Amar Hamilton, who is featured in the film, is among the longest known survivors of the disease.

Doctors see hope in the survival rate of some children with the disease. The mortality rate for adults who contracted AIDS four years ago verges on 100 percent.

Ghost Au Naturel

A nude photo of Jennifer (Ann Jillian) is found in the house her ghost now occupies. Before she can retrieve it, it goes up for auction on "Jennifer Slept Here," airing tonight on Channel 2.

NBC's 'Peter The Great' Being Filmed In Russia

NEW YORK (UPI) — Robert Massie's Pulitzer Prize-winning book "Peter the Great" is being made into a 10-hour miniseries for NBC, with most of the independent American production being filmed for the first time in the Soviet Union.

Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC Entertainment, said the drama starring Maximilian Schell as the legendary czar of Russia will be broadcast during the 1985-86 television season.

The star-studded miniseries, which currently is being filmed in Vienna, Austria, also stars Vanessa Redgrave as Peter's half-sister Sophia, Laurence Olivier as King William of Orange, Omar Sharif as Peter's ally Prince Romodanovsky, Trevor Howard as Isaac Newton, John Mills as British admiral David Mitchell and Lilli Palmer as Peter's mother.

In addition, 21 of Russia's top actors trained in English will have roles in the film, which will be photographed over a seven-month period in Russia and Europe.

'Tightrope' Tops At Box Office

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Clint Eastwood's detective mystery, "Tightrope," debuted in first place at the box office, grossing $9.1 million and easily topping all competitors last weekend, studio officials announced.

The Warner Bros. suspense thriller stars Eastwood as a homicide detective investigating a string of sadistic sex murders in New Orleans.

"Red Dawn," an action adventure film about a Russian invasion of America that topped the poll last week, finished a distant second, grossing almost $5.6 million in its second weekend for a total of $18.5 million.

"Ghostbusters," starring Dan Aykroyd and Bill Murray, came in third with $5.58 million. After 73 days, the supernatural comedy has earned $171.6 million, making it the top grossing film of 1984.

"Purple Rain," rock star Prince's film debut, placed fourth, one notch lower than the previous weekend, with $4 million for a three-week total of $34.7 million.

"Revenge of the Nerds" was fifth with a gross of $3.6 million and a four-week total of $18.4 million; and "Karate Kid" dropped to sixth with $3.4 million and a two-month take of $59.5 million.

"Sheena," starring former Charlie's Angel Tanya Roberts as the legendary queen of the jungle, debuted with a disappointing $2.9 million for a seventh place showing.

"Dreamscape," another new film, also suffered a disappointing debut, opening in eighth place with a three-day gross of $2.2 million. The science fiction fantasy about a man who can experience the dreams of others opened last Wednesday, and its five-day gross was $3 million.

"Gremlins" fell three places to ninth, collecting $2.1 million and $129.4 million after 10 weeks.

"Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" dropped to 10th, grossing $1.6 million for an 89-day total of $161.8 million.

Falling out of the Top 10 were "Cloak and Dagger," a Hitchcockesque thriller about a boy chased by spies; "Jungle Book," the Disney re-issue of the 1967 animated feature; and "The Neverending Story," a children's fantasy.

SEC Football On WOFL TV 35

Central Florida's independent television station, WOFL-TV Channel 35, will broadcast a first of a kind preview of the upcoming college football season on Saturday at 4 p.m.

Titled "College Pigskin Preview 1984," the program was produced with the cooperation of the prestigious Football Writers Association of America, and features top coaches and players from across the country.

Hosting Pigskin Preview is Tom Brookshier, longtime network football analyst and sports broadcaster.

In addition to action clips of teams in each conference, the program includes interviews with coaches and players, appraisals of the teams and selections of dark horses as well as favorites.

WOFL recently announced plans to carry a schedule of 12 or 13 SEC football games this season, beginning with the Florida-LSU game on Sept. 8 at noon.

That contest will be followed with games featuring Kentucky vs. Tulane on Sept. 22, and Tennessee vs. Auburn on Sept. 29. The game to be broadcast Sept. 15 will be announced in the near future with the remainder of the SEC schedule to be determined as the season progresses. All games air at noon on Saturday with kickoff around 12:20 p.m.

This is the first year that individual colleges or conferences have been able to negotiate broadcast rights for their games. This follows a court ruling allowing colleges and conferences to bypass the NCAA's contract with ABC and CBS.

Partisan Politics Creeps Into Formerly Aloof Foreign Policy

Jim Anderson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two speeches by Reagan administration officials have lowered the traditional bars on opening up foreign policy to partisan politics.

The tougher speech was by U.N. ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick at the Republican convention in Dallas. She attacked Democratic candidate Walter Mondale for his part in the Carter administration's foreign policy setbacks — "It was not malice we suffered from: it was Jimmy Carter — and Walter Mondale."

Although the U.N. post is usually held by a political appointee, the occupant usually has remained aloof from the give-and-take of an American political campaign.

But more significant than Mrs. Kirkpatrick's offensive may have been a milder-sounding speech by Secretary of State George Shultz in Chicago to the VFW convention Monday where he tip-toed along — and possibly crossed — the line that is supposed to separate the leading cabinet officers from the hurly-burly of campaign politics.

A State Department spokesman said Monday, "It has been traditional for secretaries of Defense and secretaries of State to stay away" from partisan politics but that they will defend the national security policy that is part of their job to enunciate.

Shultz said, "In the past four years, this nation has taken the essential steps to restore its leadership of the free world. We have restored the confidence of our friends and allies around the world that America can be trusted to confront challenges, not wish them away."

The "wishing away" part of the Shultz statement was a clear reference to the Carter administration and its milder line on dealing with the Soviet Union, contrasting it with the Reagan administration's restoration of "our will and self-confidence."

The Shultz and Mrs. Kirkpatrick speeches were the opening guns, and now the other side will have its say. The obvious course will be to counter-attack.

Oil Firms Bidding On Arctic Sea

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — A vast expanse of the Beaufort Sea in the Arctic Circle may hold huge reserves of petroleum, and the federal government is offering the highest bidding oil companies the chance to develop the area.

The 1,400 tracts in the region, half again the size of Massachusetts, lie north of Prudhoe Bay and are considered one of the most promising U.S. exploration areas.

Twice before parts of the offshore Beaufort — a mostly ice-choked sea 700 miles north of Anchorage — have been put on the auction block to earn the federal government a whopping $2.6 billion in leases.

Drilling on those leases produced both the promise of success in Shell's recent Seal Island find and a stunning failure in Sohio's abandoned Mukluk well, considered the costliest dry hole in the U.S. industry's history.

While the oil industry has been tight-lipped on how it will bid in the current lease, interest is expected to be relatively strong, observers said.

"I detect there is a good interest just from the general observation of the number of people showing up in town for the sale," said Bill Hopkins, executive director of the Alaska Oil and Gas Association.

Alan Powers of the Mineral Management Service, Alaska manager of the Interior Department agency that oversees the sale, also rated interest as good and said he expected a lot of bids.

The bids were to be opened today, with the government making awards to the apparent highest bidders.

Both the government and industry have predicted onshore and offshore Alaskan tracts will produce between one-third and two-thirds of all the undiscovered U.S. oil. They state the offshore Beaufort high.

"It's been ranked by (federal agencies) as an area of high interest to the industry," Hopkins said. "In one survey done in 1978, it ranked second only to certain basins in the Gulf of Mexico."

The effect of the Mukluk failure on the bidding was uncertain. That loss was at least partially offset by Shell's 300 million-barrel discovery in June at Seal Island and an earlier marginal discovery in shallow shore waters at the Endicott field.

In turn, the Seal Island find and the Endicott field — thought to be roughly the same size — are dwarfed by Prudhoe Bay's original 9.6 billion-barrel pool, but both benefit from the transportation system in place for Prudhoe.

"Certainly the Beaufort is remote (and expensive to develop), but it is also relatively close to a massive infrastructure. It's at the end of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline," Hopkins said.

Little Hope For The Mentally Ill Living In 'Subhuman Conditions'

MIAMI (UPI) — Hundreds of mentally ill patients in Dade County are living in "subhuman conditions" at unregulated and unsupervised homes where, state officials say, they have little chance of improving.

The state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services conceded there is a problem. But HRS officials said they are doing the best they can in an overloaded and underfunded system.

HRS employees blame Florida's policy of putting all but the most dangerously insane back into the community rather than in institutions in the belief that the less restrictive atmosphere fosters mental health.

"The worst part about finding these warehouses is finding that the state put the mentally ill there. The state acts as if it has accepted that these people can live in subhuman conditions as long as they are not in institutions," said Dr. Irving Vinger, of the governor's Ombudsman Committee on Long-term Care.

The worst buildings, scattered through

Little Havana and the south end of Miami Beach, are littered with piles of trash and feces. HRS inspectors said. Half naked men wander through hallways. Others lie on dirty, neglected cots in fetid rooms, gazing vacantly at the ceiling.

In one instance, HRS released patients into a Little Havana house run by landlord Upliano Talavera, who had lost his state license to operate a group home three years earlier because of living conditions.

He did not apply for a license for his latest home, but used plywood sheets to divide the house into 12-foot by 14-foot rooms and then told HRS workers he would take in the mentally ill.

Many of south Florida's mentally ill are young, with alcohol and drug habits that aggravate mental problems, said Shirley Taxay, HRS coordinator of mental health. Others are right out of the South Florida State Hospital, where a spokeswoman said the population has dropped from 1,400 to 600 in the past three years and is expected to drop to 300 in the next two.

Because the state lacks an adequate number of adult congregate living facilities, the only alternative is putting mental patients on the street, health officials say.

"I've got more bodies than beds," said Mario Jarden, administrator of the Northwest Dade Community Mental Health Center, which has sent some patients to crowded, decrepit homes. "Sometimes my staff has to make an emergency referral. At least they had a roof and some food."

State health officials also blame small support payments by the state to indigent mental patients. The operators of legitimate homes say the $555 a month is not enough to pay for a high standard of care, and fosters unscrupulous practices.

Officials cited one south Miami Beach hotel that actively seeks such patients. The Sorrento Hotel, owned by Vincent Marando, has a history of housing and fire code violations.

"He'll take anybody," said Miami Beach Housing Authority Director Murray Gilman. "Vince asked me, 'Do you know any more people that have checks like this? Bring me as many as you can.'"

VA Has Employment For Vets In School

The Veterans Administration has part-time jobs waiting for veterans enrolled full-time in college degree, vocational or professional programs.

St. Petersburg VA Regional Office Director Carlos Rainwater says his office, VA hospitals and even national cemeteries can hire veteran students under the VA's work-study program.

Veterans attending school full-time under the GI Bill or Vocational Rehabilitation Program are eligible to work part-time up to 250 hours per semester for a maximum of 750 hours during any 12-month period at the rate of $3.35 per hour tax free. Schedules are flexible and there are several VA locations and schools with VA-related work to choose from.

An advance of up to 40 percent of the contracted hours is available as soon as the employment agreement is processed, and this can give a financially pressed student enough money to cover early school expenses. After the advance, the VA pays work-study students after each 50 hours of additional work.

For more information, contact the St. Petersburg VA Regional Office at 144 1st Avenue South, Room 150, or call your nearest VA office, 1-800-282-8821.

'Ultrasonic Pest Repellers Don't Work'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government researchers are warning consumers that ultrasonic pest repellers fail to drive away insects — and, in fact, mosquitoes bit more frequently when one model was turned on.

Agriculture Department researchers said that they ran tests on two brands of ultrasonic devices and "did not find a shred of evidence" that ultrasound repels household pests.

In one test, "mosquitoes actually bit more frequently when one of the machines was turned on than when it was turned off," entomologist Carl Schreck said.

The tests were conducted at the department's Insects Affecting Man and Animals Research Laboratory in Gainesville at the request of the U.S. Postal Service, which had received complaints from the public.

In a statement, the Agriculture Department said manufacturers generally claim that up to a certain distance, ultrasonic waves generated by the devices repel various pests, including roaches, flies, mosquitoes, rats and mice.

"None of the devices we tested was entirely ultrasonic," Schreck said. He said the lowest of three frequencies on each machine was clearly audible and the sound pressure level of one device even exceeded the safety level permitted by the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

Chicken

'Blue Ribbon' Entree A Classic Dish For Special Occasions

Some dishes made with substitute ingredients are better than the originals. Chicken Cordon Bleu may be one of them.

Certainly chicken is more widely used today in preparing this classic dish than the more expensive veal, which probably was first used in some version of this entree.

"Cordon Bleu" literally means "blue ribbon." And Chicken Cordon Bleu merits that distinction. Basically it is a boned chicken breast stuffed with cheese and prosciutto ham, then breaded and sauteed.

Cordon Bleu may have originated in Austria as a variation of the popular weiner schnitzel. Some credit Switzerland with its origin while others consider Chicken Cordon Bleu to be a French innovation. Undoubtedly the dish has a European ancestry and chicken there has always been a culinary delicacy, formerly eaten on special occasions only by those who could afford the luxury.

Chicken Cordon Bleu is still the choice of many cooks for entertaining and for out-of-the-ordinary family meals. However, it is so easily prepared it could become an any-day favorite.

The National Broiler Council suggests two Chicken Cordon Bleu recipes (below). One is classic, made with boned chicken breasts. The other uses boned thighs, stacked (instead of rolled) and baked in the oven. Either can be prepared ahead and refrigerated until ready to cook.

CLASSIC CHICKEN CORDON BLEU

4 broiler-fryer chicken breasts, halved, boned, skinned

- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 8 thin slices gruyere cheese
- 8 thin slices prosciutto ham
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/2 cup fine bread crumbs
- 1/2 cup grated parmesan cheese
- 1 egg, beaten
- 4 ounces butter

On hard surface with meat mallet or similar flattening utensil, pound each chicken breast half to 1/4 inch thickness. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. On each breast half, place 1 slice of gruyere cheese and 1 slice of prosciutto ham*. Roll chicken, tucking in sides to secure cheese and ham; tie at 3 intervals with cotton thread or string (wooden food picks may be used but are not as effective). In shallow dish, mix together flour, bread crumbs and parmesan cheese. Dip each chicken roll, one piece at a time, first in egg, then in flour mixture, dredging to coat on all sides. In large frypan, place butter and melt over medium temperature. Add chicken and cook, turning, about 20 minutes or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Serve hot with lemon wedges. Makes 4 servings.

*If cheese and ham slices are larger than chicken, fold to size slightly less than flattened chicken breast half.

BAKED CHICKEN CORDON BLEU

- 12 broiler-fryer chicken thighs, skinned and boned
- 6 slices gruyere cheese
- 6 thin slices prosciutto ham
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 egg, beaten
- 2 tablespoons water
- 3/4 cup flour, divided
- 1/2 teaspoon rosemary
- 1/2 teaspoon basil
- 1/2 fine bread crumbs
- 1/2 grated parmesan cheese
- 4 tablespoons butter, melted

On hard surface with mallet or similar flattening utensil, pound each chicken thigh to 1/4 inch thickness. On six of the thighs, place 1 slice of gruyere cheese and 1 slice of prosciutto ham (both folded or rolled to fit the size of the chicken). Place another thigh on top of each "stack." Sprinkle with salt and pepper. In small bowl, mix egg and water. In shallow dish, mix together 1/2 cup of the flour, rosemary and basil. In another shallow dish, mix together remaining 1/2 cup of the flour, bread crumbs and parmesan cheese. First dip each thigh "stack" in flour-herb mixture, then dip in egg mixture; finally roll in flour-crumbs-cheese mixture. Refrigerate for at least 30 minutes (or overnight). Roll in melted butter and place in baking pan. Bake in 350 degrees F. oven (turning after 30 minutes) for about 1 hour or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Spoon pan drippings over chicken. Makes 6 servings.

Chicken Cordon Bleu is a special-occasion dish that lives up to its name... 'blue ribbon.' Basically, it is a boned chicken breast stuffed with cheese and prosciutto ham.

A Grand Selection For Next Outdoor Festivity

Whether it's a picnic in the park, luncheon on the terrace, or a backyard barbecue, Americans young and old are in love with eating out-of-doors on the balmy days of summer and early fall.

A special treat for the barbecue is salmon from Alaska. And there's good news that this premium fish is now in good supply. Whole, dressed salmon, averaging 3 to 4 pounds, will offer a good value for consumers and they will be more widely available fresh or frozen nationwide.

Grilled to perfection over glowing coals, Alaska salmon is a grand selection for your next outdoor festivity. For a larger group, grill a whole fish or have it filleted. You can fillet the fish yourself following the basic directions shown here. For small groups, you may wish to purchase salmon steaks or individual fillets.

Suggested here is a recipe for a buttery basting sauce that is an ideal complement to the moist and tender flesh. Just remember not to let salmon overcook.

BARBECUED ALASKA SALMON

- 2 whole (about 1 1/2 lb. each) Alaska salmon fillets
- Salt and pepper
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 4 teaspoons grated onion
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1/2 teaspoon bottled hot pepper sauce
- Oil

Rinse salmon fillets and pat dry. Sprinkle each fillet with salt and pepper. Combine remaining ingredients except oil; brush fillets with butter mixture. Place each fillet, skin-side down, on a sheet of well-oiled heavy-duty aluminum foil*; place on grill over hot coals. Cover barbecue or make a tent of foil to cover each fillet. Barbecue 10 minutes per inch of thickness measured at its thickest part or until salmon flakes easily when tested with a fork. Baste frequently with butter mixture. Makes about 12 servings. Recipe can be halved.

POTATOES ROASTED IN COALS

- 6 (about 10 oz. each) Washington Russet potatoes
  - Oil
  - Salsa
- Scrub potatoes; rub with oil. Pierce several times with fork. Individually wrap potatoes in oiled heavy-duty aluminum foil*; seal securely. Place directly on hot coals; cook about 1 hour or until tender, turning every 15 minutes. Remove potatoes from foil. Cut or pierce tops of potatoes lengthwise; squeeze ends and push toward center to open. Spoon about 1/2 cup Salsa into each potato. Makes 6 servings. Recipe can be doubled.

Salsa: Combine 1 1/2 cups chopped tomato, 1/2 cup each chopped onion, chopped cucumber and diced green chilies, 1 teaspoon each chopped green onion and olive oil, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1/4 teaspoon garlic salt, 1/4 teaspoon crushed oregano and dash pepper. Makes 2 1/2 cups.

Tip: Top Salsa-filled potatoes with dairy sour cream or plain yogurt.

*Double layer of regular aluminum foil can be substituted.

In Salmon Vegetable Potato Salad, chunks of rich, moist canned salmon accompany a fresh vegetable-laden potato salad marinated in tangy Caraway Dressing. Select the best vegetables from your garden or supermarket.

SALMON VEGETABLE POTATO SALAD

- 1 pound warm, cooked Washington Russet potatoes
  - Caraway dressing
  - 1 cup each cut sugar snap peas, thinly sliced yellow squash and sliced, quartered cucumber
  - 1/2 cup chopped celery
  - 2 tablespoons each minced green onion and parsley
  - Salt and pepper
  - 1 can (15 1/2 oz.) salmon, chilled
  - Lettuce
- Peel potatoes; slice 1/4-inch thick. Marinate in 1/2 cup Caraway Dressing; cool at room temperature. Add sugar snaps, squash, cucumber, celery, green onion and parsley. Salt and pepper to taste. Chill if desired. Drain salmon; break into chunks. Arrange in lettuce-lined platter with potato mixture. Drizzle remaining Caraway Dressing on salmon. Makes 4 or 5 servings.
- Caraway Dressing: Combine 1/2 cup olive oil or oil, 1/2 cup white wine vinegar, 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard, 1/4 teaspoon each sugar, salt and chopped or crushed caraway seeds and dash pepper; mix well. Makes about 1 cup.

Variation: One cup Chinese pea pods, blanched peas, sliced zucchini, sliced carrots, broccoli flowerets, cherry tomatoes, olives, sliced green beans or green or red pepper strips can be substituted for sugar snap peas.

yellow squash and/or cucumber.

To Boil Potatoes: Scrub potatoes. Add potatoes to 1-inch boiling, salted water; return to boil. Simmer, covered, 20 to 30 minutes or until tender. Drain thoroughly.

To Bake Potatoes: Scrub potatoes; rub lightly with oil. Pierce several times with fork. Bake at 400 degrees F. 20 to 30 minutes or until tender.

Chunks of canned salmon accompany vegetable potato salad.

Eggs, Cheese Substitutes For Meat

Eggs and cheese, combined or separately, make good substitutes for meat because of their high protein content. Both are also high in fat content; however, if fat or cholesterol is a concern for you, you may use an egg substitute, or eat only the white of the egg. There are also available cheese substitutes and cheese made from low fat milk.

Souffles, stratas, quiches and omelets combine eggs and cheese in some of our most popular dishes. These combination dishes can be served at breakfast, lunch or dinner and if quantity controlled can be used in a diet program.

When using the microwave oven to cook eggs or cheese it is best to reduce the power to 50% power and rotate the container frequently.

A strata is a baked cheese sandwich. It is a good lunch dish that can be prepared the day before.

CHEESE STRATA

- 8 slices white bread
- 4 slices cheese
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1 cup milk
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 1 teaspoon parsley flakes
- 1/4 teaspoon paprika
- 1/4 teaspoon black pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- In 8x8 inch baking dish, place 4 slices bread. Top each with a slice of cheese and the remaining bread. In 2-cup measure blend remaining ingredients. Pour over sandwiches. Refrigerate 8 hours. Microwave uncovered at 50% power for 6 minutes. Rotate each sandwich 1/4 turn. Microwave 6-10 minutes longer, or until sandwiches are set.

Egg substitutes and low-fat cheese can be used in this recipe.

Spanish Omelet Plus has the usual ingredients plus mozzarella cheese. Notice the ingredients are similar to those found on pizza.

SPANISH OMELET PLUS

- 4 large eggs
- 1/4 teaspoon parsley flakes
- 1/4 teaspoon oregano
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 cup chopped green peppers
- 2 green onions, chopped

1 small tomato, chopped
1/4 cup shredded mozzarella cheese

Blend eggs and spices. Stir in green pepper, onions, and tomato. Pour into a shallow 1 1/2-2 quart container. Microwave 100% power 3 1/2-4 minutes, or until soft set, stirring 2 times during cooking.

Stir in mozzarella cheese. Cover and let stand 1-2 minutes until cheese melts. Serve immediately. Serves 4.

There are several methods of baking a quiche in the microwave oven. One is to microbake the crust first then add the egg mixture first and then add to a pre-baked pie shell. This recipe has an unusual crust that is easy to prepare.

MUSHROOM QUICHE

- 4 slices firm white bread
- 1 tablespoon margarine
- 2-3 tablespoons cold water
- 1 1/2 cups sliced fresh mushrooms
- 3 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1/2 cup evaporated milk
- 1/2 cup chopped green onions
- 2 teaspoons fresh chopped parsley
- 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

Crust:
Chop bread into fine crumbs using a food processor or blender. Blend in margarine. Add enough water to form moist dough. Press dough into pie plate to form crust. Microwave on 100% 1 1/2-2 1/4 minutes, or until sides appear dry. Set aside.

Filling:
Place mushrooms in 1 quart casserole. Microwave on 100% power 4-6 minutes. Stir once during this time. Drain well. Sprinkle in the crumb shell. Blend eggs and remaining ingredients in 1 quart casserole. Reduce power to 50%. Microwave 1 minute. Stir. Microwave 1-2 minutes or until hot but not set, stirring every 30 seconds. Pour egg mixture over mushrooms. Reduce power to 30% (Low), microwave 7-14 minutes or until soft set. Let stand 5-8 minutes.

How To Barbecue Brisket

By VICTORIA R. BOWLES
DALLAS (UPI) — The whole trick to barbecuing a beef brisket the right way is to cook it long and slow over a low fire.

West Texas rancher and oilman Cliff Teinert always uses a 3-foot-deep pit, but the same results can be achieved at home by a careful cook using a backyard kettle grill or smoker. This is Texas barbecue: sauce should NEVER be applied to the cooking meat. It is only for passing around the table.

Teinert suggests using a 5-pound to 8-pound beef brisket, figuring on one-half to three-quarters of a pound per person. Briskets larger than 8 pounds tend to be too fatty, Teinert says.

The brisket should be lightly salted and well-covered with coarse-ground black pepper patted into the surface.

Cooking time will be six to eight hours because of heat loss over the cooking surface, so count on using at least 10 pounds of slow-burning charcoal. Extra flavor can and should be added with savory wood chips — mesquite, hickory, oak or even pecan.

Unless you can get the meat 3 feet away from the fire, you'll have to build two fires — a small one in the cooker the meat will go on and a second fire from which you can transfer coals and wood chips as the cooking fire dies.

The cooking fire at all times should be cool enough that you can comfortably hold your hand near grill level for a count of five.

Place the brisket on a cold grill, fatty side up, and place grill over the cooking fire. Let it cook for about two hours without turning, adding new coals with a shovel every 30 minutes to one hour as needed to keep the fire going but not too hot.

After the first two hours, turn the brisket carefully with tongs or towels — not forks — so the surface won't be punctured and let out all the juices. Turn again after another hour to allow the melted fat to seep down through the brisket.

Teinert warns that cooking on a small grill may mean you need to turn the meat more often to prevent charring. We found a "two-hour, one-hour and then keep a close eye on it" schedule worked well in a standard meat smoker.

Check more often if using a regular kettle grill. The meat is ready when it visibly is ready to flake on the surface, or after at least six hours, or when the beer runs out.

less surgery and anesthesia, less time in the hospital with less cost. A major advantage is a much shorter recuperation time as compared to major bypass vascular surgery.

At CFRH, this procedure has been in use over the last two years for treating diseased arteries of the heart and kidneys.

"It should be emphasized," Dr. Dotson pointed out, "that not all patients are candidates for the balloon procedure and that often a x-ray of the affected arteries must be taken to determine which operation to perform. Patients must also be willing to accept the risk of complications which can occur with this procedure as well as any type of vascular surgery. Most of the patients who have had the balloon procedure have been rewarded with a high success rate and satisfactory relief of their symptoms."

"Balloon Surgery," a new technique in vascular surgery is explained by Dr. G. Garrett Dotson, a surgeon who performs the procedure at Central Florida Regional Hospital. The new bypass operation saves costs and recuperation time.

The Coffee Mug Tells The Story: Employees Make The Difference

There is a red and white mug that sits on Mike Potter's desk for all to see.

It is a coffee mug, but it is there for another reason. Its message is simply stated, "You Make the Difference."

The Assistant Administrator rarely uses it for coffee, and never points out the mug or its special message to employees. Its just being there is enough. Only months away from Army duty, Potter evidently ascribes to General Eisenhower's theory of leadership.

It is said that the former president used to demonstrate leadership with a simple piece of string. He would put it on a table and say: "pull it and it'll follow wherever you wish. Push it and it will go nowhere at all."

Potter's mug, like those given to all staff members about a year ago and to each new employee, is as mute and inanimate as the string. Yet it sends out a strong signal and demonstrates a belief that employees at CFRH "do make a difference."

That belief is strongly underscored in many ways at the hospital. Employees will find it echoed and re-echoed in their handbook. They will find it posted on bulletin boards, on small gifts to them, and on paycheck stuffers. There may be just a tiny new twist in the message, such as the recent red and white heart shaped key ring found in their paychecks which stated, "You are the Heart of CFRH." But the meaning is the same.

Another version of the message can be found on the desk of the Administrator, James Tesar. Perched in a prominent corner is a tent card. These were placed in every patient's room during the recent Nurses Week ob-

"You Make the Difference," however mute, is the message Mike Potter, assistant administrator at Central Florida Regional Hospital, wants employees to receive by using his coffee mug as a little billboard, rather than for drinking coffee.

ervation, and the wording and the graphic state, "Nurses make the difference EVERY DAY."

Such belief that employees make the difference is a strong thread that binds the more than 400 hospitals owned or managed by CFRH's parent company, Hospital Corporation of America, together in a common bond. Many employees transfer within the corporation without losing their benefits.

It also reflects the thoughts and words of Dr. Thomas F. Frist, a HCA founder, Chief Medical Officer and Chairman, Board of Governors. He emphatically says, "It's not brick and mortar and equipment that make a hospital. It's the warmth, compassion and attitude of good employees that leads to quality care."

The Companion is printed and distributed without cost to HCA or local hospitals due to the advertising it contains.

Written and using a format much like the airline magazines, The Companion is published to help "spice" up the reading of CFRH patients. Patients' families and visitors are encouraged to also take home a copy.

HCA is even interested in who you are, and what you think of the magazine. There is a questionnaire included for readers to fill out. It asks what stories you liked best, the least, how to improve and how much time you spent reading it.

COMMUNITY IN HEART

CENTRAL FLORIDA REGIONAL HOSPITAL

Dear Sir:

As a recent emergency surgical patient, I want to express my appreciation to each and everyone I had occasion to meet and be so wonderfully helped by, there.

Our region certainly is doubly blessed to have such a modern hospital, and excellent professional staff.

That, combined with the fine surgical, medical and allied teams, all of us are most fortunate to be so served.

Radiologic Technologist School A Hit

"A small school with a large impact."

Reflective, but with a great deal of pride, Pat Riley, R. T., noted a passing phase in the Imaging Department at Central Florida Regional Hospital of which he has been manager for some 26 years.

Karla Garrison had just received her diploma and school pin and became the 56th and last student to have completed the 24-month program of didactic and clinical instruction at the hospital's school for radiologic technologist.

"Time was passing us by," Riley said. "There are dramatic changes in medicine, and we are just keeping up with those changes. We are moving to a different modality, that's all. And that is why we have chosen to affiliate with the University of Central Florida which offers a program culminating with a baccalaureate degree in Radiologic Science."

The hospital-based school, which opened in 1966 at the old Seminole Memorial Hospital, was founded for the purpose of providing a career opportunity in the health care field for area residents.

It was accredited by the council on medical education of the American Medical Association, the American Registry of Radiologic Technologists and the American Society of Radiologic Technologists.

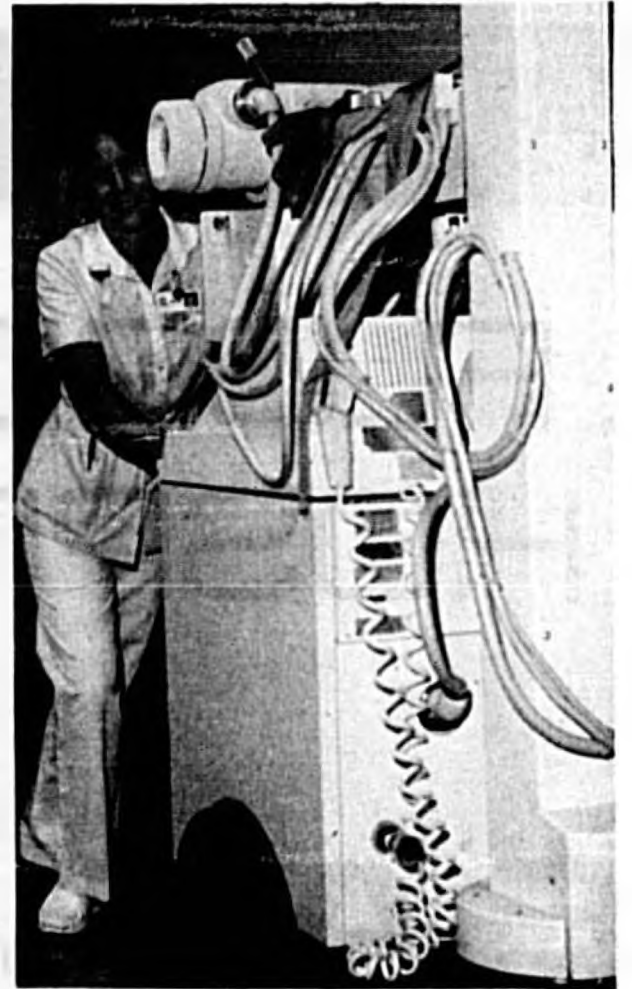

Under the guidance of John T. Johnson, M.D., and Charles S. Dexter, M.D., board-certified radiologists, and the full time supervision of Riley, the school has set an impressive record during the past 18 years. Students have consistently been awarded honors on a state and local level for their technical papers and exhibits. In 1975, the school ranked 2nd in the state of Florida and 6th in the nation for scholastic scores achieved on the National Registry Examination for Radiological Technologist.

Karla was immediately hired in the department as have many others in the past. Graduates are employed across the United States and in the Netherlands. One is with a major X-ray supply firm and one has gone on to medical school, while two have served as directors of the school. Thirty are presently employed in the Central Florida area, 16 of those in Sanford and nine by Central Florida Regional. Thus, the school has more than fulfilled one of its major reasons for existence.

Past graduates employed at CFRH include: Jane Cash, Candy Deal, Larry Houck, Joy Lambert, Rebecca Louwsma and Tamithia Winn as staff technologists. Sheri Chiroglanis is supervisor of the Ultrasound Department, John Lake is supervisor of Nuclear Medicine, and Carol Dennison is office supervisor for Imaging Services and served as the most recent program director.

With the affiliation with UCF, three students are currently receiving their clinical instruction in the department. Next year, three more students will start, while the present students will continue their studies.

"Our program more than served its purpose. It served our community well," Riley stated. "We are changing direction in order to continue to give our students the quality of instruction they deserve."

Last Student at Central Florida Regional Hospital's school for radiologic technologists, Karla Garrison, graduated recently but immediately found a spot on the staff of the Imaging Department where there are also nine other graduates of the 18-year-old school.

Extract Of Papaya Treats Back Pains

A treatment featuring injection of extract of papaya, also known as the chymopapain treatment or chemonucleolysis, was recently performed by Dr. Narinder Aujla for the first time at CFRH to alleviate lower back pain.

"It is a cost saving measure since it is a quicker surgical procedure and requires shorter hospitalization," Dr. Aujla said. A long needle replaces the surgical knife, with the chymopapain being injected in the ruptured disc with the guidance of a fluoroscope of the spine.

"Its use is advisable for selected patients where the discs are causing back pain and sciatica (leg pain) as there is a possibility of an allergic reaction," the orthopaedic surgeon pointed out. The treatment is not too successful if the problem is due to arthritis and bony thickening.

Clot-Dissolving Drug In Use At CFRH For Heart Attack Patients

Streptokinase, a new "clot dissolving" agent which was reported in 1981 in the United States, is being used at Central Florida Regional Hospital.

Dr. Nicholas Pastis, Chief of Staff at CFRH, said that, "Approximately 80 percent of acute heart attacks are believed to be precipitated by clot formation superimposed upon previously narrowed coronary arteries."

He pointed out that recent cardiac research has shown that the process of heart attack can be reversed by giving clot dissolving agents such as Streptokinase within the first four to six hours of a heart attack.

"By breaking up the clot within the coronary artery, the blood supply to the heart muscle is re-established, thus preventing the muscle from dying," he explained.

"Experience at various institutions has shown that about 90 percent of the patients have the blood supply to their heart muscle restored when Streptokinase or another such agent has been used.

"These results are very encouraging, especially when one views the alternative, which is extensive death of heart muscle in varying degrees with less chance of patient survival as a result," Dr. Pastis continued.

However, Dr. Pastis explained that selection of cases for such treatment must be individualized and closely supervised by a cardiologist because it is not free of complications.

Although not everyone is a suitable candidate for this therapy, it does offer great promise as a weapon in the battle against heart disease.

Once the cardiologist has decided to use this method and has obtained consent from the patient's family, the agent is given by vein, usually in the emergency room of the hospital.

The clot-dissolving process begins. The patient is then transferred to the Coronary ICU where he is monitored continuously by an excellent cardiac team of nurses.

According to the Chief of Staff, American medicine is winning the battle against the nation's number one killer, heart disease.

He noted that there is hope that this procedure will help reduce the 550,000 annual deaths from heart attacks in this country.

"We have seen very encouraging results from Streptokinase treatment, and we at Central Florida Regional are proud to have this program in our armamentarium in the fight against heart disease."

'Charlie' Keeps CFRH Records In Good Order

A new member has been added to the Central Florida Regional Hospital health care team. His name is Charlie and he came "live" late this spring.

Charlie is a Texas Instruments computer and is the heart of the computerized Materiel Management System, set up by Hospital Corporation of America, CFRH's parent company.

The name Charlie was selected because the local hospital, one of some 40 in Florida, was one of the first six HCA hospitals across the nation tapped for implementation of the system after completion of the pilot program. These six hospitals are dubbed "Charlie Sites."

After several training seminars for each phase, the final step which is distribution, is now completed. In fact, the department has just had its first audit under this new system.

"And we got a clean bill of health," Jewel Rose, Materiel Manager stated.

Rose pointed out that ordering supplies has changed drastically and time has been shaved through computerization of the system. She added, "All our employees are pleased to have 'Charlie' assisting them even though he took a lot of getting used to, caused a lot of headaches along with long hours during the conversion process." Frances Samuels, who has been in the department for over 14 years, quickly answered, "I love it. We have an accurate inventory record and it helps tremendously with reports."

But it was Stanley Venturini who not only believes in the old adage, "everyone needs at least three hugs a day," but practices it, to focus the department's sentiments. "I go by and hug it ever so often — well, at least pat it. Computers are probably like plants, they need affection too."
