TDC seeks 'fair share' of car fees

By Joe DeSantis Staff Writer

HEATHROW — Following spirited discussion this week, board members of Seminole County's Tourist Development Commission (TDC) voted to unanimously support two transportation funding initiatives spearheaded by Metroplan Orlando.

Metroplan Orlando is a consortium of 19 elected and appointed representatives in the tri-county region of Orange-Seminole-Osceola tasked with addressing the area's transportation needs and priorities.

At Thursday's session, the board gave

Region leads state in rental car usage, yet receives just 20 percent of the fees the green light to have Metroplan lobby for a larger cut of "Fair Share" dollars generated from a current $2 per day per vehicle surcharge on rental cars. Commission members also stamped their seal of approval on an initiative that would allow each county in the state to add an additional $2 per day per vehicle local surcharge on car rentals, with funds generated returning directly to the tri-county area, specifically earmarked for local transportation projects.

In making Metroplan's presentation before the TDC, Harry Barley lobbied for support to insure the Central Florida area got a bigger piece of the funding pie generated by the current surcharge enacted by the State Legislature in 1990.

"We have a 20-year regional transportation plan and we have a more immediate five-year plan that calls for $7.5 billion in improvements in this region," said Barley. "Central Florida is the largest car rental region in the state and we're not getting our fair share."

Barley said currently the Central Florida region gets only 20 percent of surcharge money generated by local car rentals while 80 percent goes into a larger state-wide transportation fund.

"Central Florida comes up short on the return by $18 to $38 million per year," Barley said. "We want back what is raised here for local transportation needs."

Pan Am begins flights from Massachusetts, announces new service to Puerto Rico

By Joe DeSantis Staff Writer

SANFORD — They left behind two-feet of freshly fallen frozen mush. They arrived to balmy 72 degree temperatures and sunny skies.

Tuesday afternoon the new Worcester, Mass. to Sanford flight looked pretty good to the passengers aboard Pan Am's inaugural flight from Worcester Regional Airport to the Orlando Sanford International Airport.

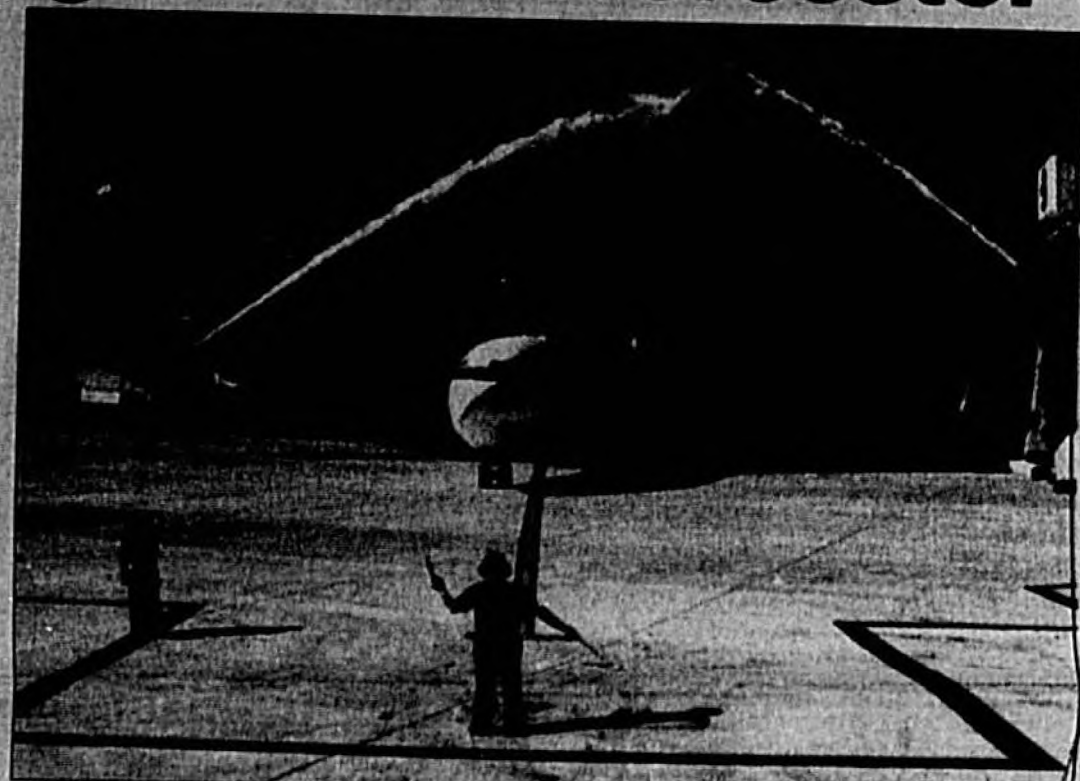

The flight marked the latest domestic expansion for Pan Am and brought with it company president Dave Fink who announced even more expansion plans that bring the Sanford facility into play.

"You left a snow-storm in New England and look what we have for you, sunshine and blue skies," said Sanford Airport Authority (SAA) Director Victor White in welcoming Fink and other passengers aboard the inaugural flight.

Ground crews at the Sanford airport direct a Pan Am jet into the terminal as fire trucks shoot streams of water during a welcoming ceremony. The jet's arrival was Pan Am's inaugural flight from Worcester, Mass. to Sanford.

"This is an awesome experience for us and for Pan Am," added SAA Board Chairman Bill Miller.

"You folks are among the first to walk through this new domestic terminal, and we've just begun. By selecting Sanford as its first southern port, Pan Am joins us in incredible growth opportunities."

Fink, who has helped guide Pan Am back from near defunct status in 1998, hinted Sanford would continue to play a major role in the company's future plans for domestic and international air travel.

"This is another step," said Fink during a brief press conference. "From Sanford its on to San Juan, Puerto Rico, then the Dominican Republic. We're going to fill up this terminal."

Coinciding with Tuesday's inaugural flight from Worcester, Pan Am officials confirmed they will begin a Worcester-to-Sanford-to-San Juan route on May 25. The new service will feature a daily one-stop route from and one daily return route.

Service will be aboard Pan Am's Clipper Class Boeing 727-200 reconfigured aircraft. The Clipper Service provides for additional legroom and overhead storage as well as the use of non-congested airport facilities like Orlando Sanford International.

Broadway performer tours Seminole schools

By Marva Hawkins Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Broadway performing artist Roz Burroughs is currently in residence at the Tajiri School of Performing Arts and Academics.

Burroughs' performances throughout the month at several Seminole County schools are designed to formulate social, cultural and educational values through the exposure of a variety of musicals geared for elementary through high school students.

On Friday, the performer was the star of the show at Hamilton Elementary School. She performed for students in pre-kindergarten through fifth grade.

The guest artist was introduced by Tajiri Director Pat Whitley. Sharing the spotlight with Burroughs were the Hamilton Singers, who were attired in their purple choir robes. The choir sang black spirituals, "Sing Low Sweet Chariot," "When I Get To Heaven," "I Got Shoes," and "How Sweet The Name Of Jesus." Tony Linguard performed a solo.

The choir is under the direction of Gracie M. Miller.

Burroughs led the students in a sing-a-long of "I Love Peanuts." She also complimented the students and teachers on

Heathrow resident made Navy history

Alene Duerk was the first woman to hold the rank of rear admiral

By Michelle Jerla Managing Editor

HEATHROW — Visitors to Alene Duerk's home may not notice the Navy medals and honors hanging on her bedroom walls. And, she is modest when talking about her 32-year career in the military.

But, listen carefully, and a hint of pride can be detected in Duerk's voice. The source of such feeling can be found in her resumé, which includes making U.S. Navy history.

In 1972, Duerk was the first woman to be appointed to rank of rear admiral in the Navy.

"The thing that was unusual is that the Navy was the last branch of the military to promote," Duerk said. "And, when they finally did promote a woman to a rank, she was the only one in that rank."

"So, in 1972, I was the first and only woman rear admiral in the Navy," she said. "But, things have changed since then."

Alene Duerk reminisces about her career in the U.S. Navy. Duerk made history in 1972 when she was the first woman to be appointed as a rear admiral.

Born March 29, 1920, in Ohio, Duerk grew up in the small town of Holgate. Following high school graduation, she entered the Toledo Hospital School of Nursing and received her diploma in 1941.

"In the 1930s, there weren't too many things to select from for a career," she said. "I had to find something I could afford and that I liked to do. And,

Lyons counts experience as key to candidacy

Editor's note: This is the fourth in a series of candidate profiles for Sanford's Mayoral and District 1 City Commission races.

By Joe DeSantis Staff Writer

SANFORD — Having previously served on the Sanford City Commission, mayoral candidate Kerry Lyons sees his experience as a key element that distinguishes his candidacy from that of three others seeking the office.

Lyons, a Postal Service supervisor, represented District 3 on the City Commission from 1995 to 1999. He is married, the father of one and holds a Bachelor's degree in Political Science and a Master's of Public Administration from the University of Central Florida.

Lyons is a member of the Sanford Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, has served on the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council, and served on the Seminole County Community Services Block Grant Board. Lyons chose not to run for reelection in 1999, citing a belief in self-imposed term limits and a need to spend more time with his family. A year later he changed his mind and challenged for the seat of deceased District 3 Commissioner A.A. "Mac" MacLanahan in a special election. He lost to the District 3 Commissioner Randy Jones by a 2-1 margin. During that special election, Lyons said he was also considering a run for mayor. When contacted in mid-December, Lyons said there was "no way" he would run for mayor, but changed his mind soon after.

SEMINOLE SUMMARY

A GLANCE AROUND OUR COUNTY

The headaches of Valentine's Day

There is always someone who wants to rain on your parade. Wednesday, Feb. 15, is Valentine's Day. Generally, people give gifts of candy, flowers or perfume to those they love, but even this observance of love has its downfalls.

Nick Pfeiffauf

Among them is the National Headache Foundation, an organization headquartered in Chicago. The organization is issued words of caution. They recommend avoiding chocolate, flowers and perfume. Chocolate, they say, contains various chemicals thought to trigger migraine headaches.

The also suggest that while various fragrances and flowers may smell and look beautiful, they can provoke headaches.

The foundation also recommends people avoid aged cheeses, citrus fruit, processed meats, red wine, and excessive amounts of caffeinated beverages.

Instead of these items, the foundation recommends giving gift certificates. I imagine that's so those who receive them can go out and buy their own chocolate, flowers, perfume, and food.

According to statistics, more than 45 million Americans experience chronic, recurring headaches. Certainly, these people know who they are, and no doubt, friends and loved ones know about their problems. Knowing someone will probably suffer from a headache by eating chocolates should automatically run up a red flag, and you surely wouldn't give them a box of chocolates. The same holds true that you wouldn't give perfume or flowers. Some people are allergic to certain perfumes or flowers and again, a loved one would probably know that and act accordingly in giving a gift.

But for those who don't have these problems, rest assured, your gift of love and appreciation will be well received. And remember, while gifts, candlelight dinners and sweet words are nice on Valentine's Day, the true spirit needs to last year-round.

On Wednesday, I will be explaining the origin of Valentine's Day, which had its origins back in the third century. Of course we haven't been observing it for that long, but Valentines, (yes, there were two of them), for whom the day has been dedicated, lived back then in Rome, Italy.

A room with a view

Fran Sullivan, administrative assistant for the Seminole County Convention and Visitor's Bureau; James B. Pitts, Pan Am Regional Marketing Director/Southeast; and Lini Moyle, Pan Am assistant station manager, await Pan Am's inaugural flight from Worcester to Sanford at the Orlando-Sanford International Airport.

Saved from the singing. During Tuesday's board meeting of the Sanford Airport Authority, chairman Bill Miller took a moment to publicly wish Sanford Mayor Larry Dale a happy birthday. Miller noted Dale shared his birthday with former President Ronald Reagan. Miller also noted for the hearing health of those in attendance, board members would refrain from singing. The motion passed unanimously.

Trouble in paradise? On the upside, ComAir wants to expand at the Orlando Sanford International Airport, almost doubling its flight training from 600 pilots to 1,200. On the downside, the company wants some extremely favorable tenant conditions surrounding issues like fuel costs and runway access included in any future long-term contracts with the Sanford Airport Authority. Look for delicate negotiations in the coming months as ComAir's current lease expires in just two-and-a-half years.

Heating up Hizzoner. Folks are licking their chops in anticipation of the March 10th Larry Dale Roast. The event takes place at the Helen Stairs Theatre at 8 p.m., preceded by a reception that begins at 6:30. For ticket information contact the Sanford/Seminole Chamber of Commerce at 407-322-2212. Just remember what PT Barnum said Mayor Dale. "When it looks like they are getting ready to run you out of town on a rail, get to the head of the pack and make it look like a parade." Good-natured barbs for the outgoing occupier of Sanford's Oval Office should be in plentiful supply.

They ain't got no rhythm. You would think with more pressing issues like urban sprawl, transportation gridlock, and dwindling water resources, the Orange County Commission would be tackling more meatier issues than its fool hardy attempt this week to ban dancing at new night clubs because of concerns over the party drug Ecstasy. Makes us wonder what they've been smoking. Perhaps we should dispatch Seminole County Commissioner Daryl McLain on a special diplomatic mission to Orlando. Maybe our guy could show their guys some of that fancy Country/Western line dancing stuff. With former Orange County Chair Mel Martinez off to Washington as part of the new Bush administration, have the inmates taken over the asylum in our neighboring county?

Are they scared? Political signs for the mayoral and commission races in Sanford are appearing almost everywhere. Many of them — many many of them, are relatively small signs appearing within one or two feet of the curbs. Sanford, as do most of our municipalities, has a zoning ordinance prohibiting political signs in the right-of-way, but these candidates, if elected, are people who would become the bosses of those who might pick the signs up under code violations. They may not be legal, but it may be safer to leave them there until election time.

Drama Department plans evening of entertainment

The Lyman High School Drama Department will begin the month of March by celebrating "Theater In Our Schools Month" with two one-act performances that will benefit the local charity, Covenant House Florida.

"Almost the Bride of Dracula" and "The Actor's Nightmare" will be performed consecutively on 7:30 p.m. March 2, in Lyman Auditorium.

The yearlong project has been produced entirely by the Drama IV class. The evening starts with "Almost the Bride of Dracula," a fast, delightful comedy depicting Dracula's uphill climb to find a suitable wife compatible to his lifestyle.

"The Actor's Nightmare" is a hilarious spoof that portrays the predicament of a stranger who is forced on stage to replace an indisposed actor.

All proceeds of the performance will be donated to Covenant House Florida, an organization that serves runaway, homeless and at-risk youth under 21, including teen parents and their babies.

Covenant House Florida is part of an international agency that was incorporated in New York City in 1972, formalizing a ministry to street kids started in 1969 by a small group of volunteers with a simple vision: runaway and homeless kids should not be alone and on the street.

Covenant House Florida currently reaches more than 300 kids a day on the streets, in crisis shelters and community service shelters throughout Florida. The organization provides a safe place to sleep, nourishing meals, clean clothes, schooling, counseling, case management, therapy and many other services dedicated to serving youth.

Lyman Drama's proceeds for the evening performance will be directed to the Orlando branch of Covenant House Florida.

March is recognized nationally as "Theater in Our Schools" month. The purpose is to expose the public to the positive aspects that theater can offer a high school student. The Lyman Drama Department offers the performance to not only entertain, but also to contribute to the community.

All seats are general admission and are $4. Pre-sale begins Feb. 27. Tickets will also be available at the door on the evening of the performance.

Recent troubles Former president Clinton's new high in lows

Most former presidents go gently into private life. Not Bill Clinton. He seems determined to bring further disrepute upon his irreparably tarnished reputation.

The latest controversy in which the admitted perjurer finds himself involves the looting of the White House when he and the mis- sis moved out of the Executive Mansion.

Along with assorted china, flatware, rugs, lamps, televisions, sofas and other household goods (which the Clintons claimed as "personal gifts"), the former first family made off with $28,000 worth of furnishings that had been legally accepted as government property in 1993 (as part of a White House redecoration project).

The former president and his wife, New York Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton, returned the furnishings to White House custodians this week, insisting they were blameless in what has been billed as "Sofa-gate." The real fault, they said, lay with the White House usher's and curator's offices for letting them get away with the property.

But of course.

Then there's the matter of Clinton's post-presidency office digs. The former president cut a deal to lease 8,300 square feet of office space at Carnegie Hall Tower, an ultra-luxurious building in midtown Manhattan. Clinton first informed the General Services Administration that his lease would set the taxpayers back a whopping $650,000 a year, more than double the figure he previously said he would need for post-presidential office space.

Now the second president in history to be impeached says that his lease will cost the government a staggering $811,000 a year, nearly triple what the taxpayers shell out each year for any other former president.

Clinton attempted to defuse the "Office-gate" controversy by offering to have his tax-exempt presidential library foundation pony up $300,000 a year to defray some of the cost.

But that's not nearly enough, said Rep. Jim Ishtook, R-Okla., chairman of the House subcommittee that approves spending for former presidents. "If you're still asking taxpayers to pay half a million dollars a year," he said, "it's exorbitant."

Indeed, if the former president were less profligate in spending taxpayers' dollars, he could have leased a ninth-floor suite of offices in the same luxury building for $58 a square foot. Instead, high-roller Bill commandeered the entire 56th floor of the luxury office building, at a steep $95 a square foot.

Which leaves a sour taste in Rep. Ishtook's mouth. "Clinton's excesses," he said, "may force us to put tighter standards in the law, where we didn't have to before because nobody had abused it."

Yet another black mark on the Clinton legacy.

Finally, there's Clinton's post-presidency speechifying. Like his appearance this week in Boca Raton at Morgan Stanley Dean Witter's high-yield bond conference.

The former president picked up 150 large (that's $150,000 to us low-rollers) for his hour-long remarks. That's par for the course for former presidents.

But no other former president had a wife serving in the U.S. Senate. So when Clinton gives speeches for pay to corporations like Morgan Stanley that have business before Congress, it poses a clear conflict of interest to his spouse, Sen. Clinton.

The only mitigating circumstance in Buckraking Bill's Morgan Stanley speech is that a female audience member, who clearly has more courage of conviction than Janet Reno ever did, strongly challenged the former president when he tried to explain away his 11th-hour pardon of fugitive billionaire Marc Rich.

"I pardoned Rich," the former president asserted, "because there was no controversy about the Rich pardon. I didn't pardon Michael Milken (the junk bond king) because the Justice Department, the SEC, because so many other people were against it."

"That's ridiculous!" said the one-woman truth squad. "Rich fled the country and never faced prosecution. There was no controversy about Rich because nobody even knew" that the fugitive was being considered for a pardon.

Morgan Stanley has spent much of this week trying to persuade investors not to close their accounts in protest of Clinton's appearance at its high-yield conference.

"Please don't make emotional decisions on your finances based on this event," reads the script that Morgan Stanley management has ordered its 13,000 brokers and representatives to read to irate clients.

Mark the brokerage house down as yet another party sullied by association with the disreputable former president.

Faith nothing new in social philosophy

President Bush's push for federal aid to "faith-based" social action has sparked a healthy, necessary debate over separation of church and state. No American should want Congress either telling clerics how to perform their sacred duties or giving them public money to carry them out.

Overlooked in this current argument over the mixing of funds is the beneficial role that faith-based social commitment has played in contemporary U.S. social philosophy.

Michael Harrington, a 1947 graduate of the College of the Holy Cross in Worcester, Mass., authored "The Other America" (Collier Books, 1997), the book that inspired Lyndon Johnson's war on poverty. Harrington was himself inspired, biographer Matthew Bierman has noted, by the Roman Catholic philosophy he learned from the Jesuits.

Like other students of his day, Harrington derived his life long work among the poor from the late 19th-century papal encyclical "Rerum Novarum," which warned against the excesses of unchecked capitalism. Men and women, the 1891 document instructed, were not to be treated as mere factors of production to be used when necessary and discarded when not. They were to be treated not as cogs in an industrial machine but as human beings.

This Catholic social philosophy grew in the early 20th century to a commitment to a whole range of prescriptions: old-age pensions, unemployment insurance and workers' rights to organize. Each of these goals would become, thanks to Woodrow Wilson and Franklin Roosevelt, the modern American social "safety net."

For Harrington and others of his religious training, "Rerum Novarum" would continue to animate the drive for even greater social progress.

The late Gov. Robert Casey of Pennsylvania, another Holy Cross grad, is best known for his opposition to abortion. For this position, he was crowned a "conservative" by the media. A fuller look at his eight-year record shows him to be anything but.

Casey enacted family and parental leave laws in his state before the rest of the country. He won child care for teenage mothers, health insurance for children, and a whole list of other advances. A "pro-lifer" to the popular press, he was in fact committed, in his words, to "protecting all the powerless."

Joseph Califano, yet another Holy Cross grad, was a top aide to Lyndon Johnson and a top Washington lawyer before giving it all up to devote his life to fighting drug addiction: "I've made money at (the law), but now I wake up every morning ready to roar."

Tony Fauci, still another, has spent two decades leading the fight against AIDS and HIV at the National Institutes of Health.

I cite this quartet because of unabashed pride for my college and because of my own belief in the values of "Rerum Novarum" — especially the still unmet need for each American worker to receive a living wage (and that includes health care).

I also want to underline the obvious point that some people are motivated by more than money. They share the belief voiced by John F. Kennedy the day he became president "that here on earth God's work must truly be our own."

There's a messianic strain at work in such lives. That, too, can be a public good. Even when his faith faltered, Michael Harrington held to his belief that life should be directed at some greater purpose than pleasure, security and survival.

"From the time I was a little kid, the church said your life is not something that you are supposed to fritter away; your life is a trust to something more important than yourself."

It's that kind of deep "social" commitment that we Americans might, in this early 21st century, find some safe way to assist.

Americans global gluttons going back for seconds

When I stop by my local coffee shop on my way to work these days, the talk is about California's Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (PG&E) bills. The usual $165 bill has jumped to $280, one woman says. Another says her bill for the last three months was $4,500, probably because she left her pool heater on. One man rails against PG&E's backroom deals. Another says the problem is Enron and the other energy wholesalers, as well as our stupid government.

Fingers are swiveling from one culprit to another faster than weather vanes in a storm. Yet in our justified haste to assign blame and find solutions, we tend to overlook the root of the problem.

Us. North Americans make up 7 percent of the world's population. But we use 33 percent of the world's nuclear, hydroelectric and other renewable energy, 32 percent of the world's natural gas, 25 percent of the oil and 25 percent of the coal.

Yet it's still not enough. As outrageous as our energy bills might be, they ought to serve as a wake-up call. We use way more than our share of Earth's energy. We use way more than our share of this generation's energy.

We're global gluttons going back for seconds and thirds.

Despite public-service campaigns and periodic the-sky-is-falling warnings, we leave the lights on by the front door all night. We keep the water heater on full blast when we're away on vacation. We have multiple televisions, plus VCRs, computers, video games, answering machines, dishwashers, washers and dryers, microwaves, gas fireplaces, heated pools, not to mention gas-gulping SUVs.

I have been as gully as anyone. We take our conveniences for granted, as though it were our divine right to have CNN murmuring on the television in the background and the CD player humming Santana and the computer delivering Dow Jones updates as the coffee-maker keeps our decaf hot for hours. And though our gas bills have skyrocketed, we're still protected from realistic electricity costs by the government's cap on PG&E's rates. (Electricity demand in California rose 7 percent last year.)

How high will prices have to go before we change our lifestyles? That was the question the Automobile Association of America asked motorists when the price of gas began to climb last summer. About half said gas prices between $1.75 and $1.90 would get them to stick closer to home. When we passed those thresholds in most places, people still didn't alter their travel plans, AAA reported.

How high will prices have to go before we realize we have willingly put ourselves at the mercy of the utility companies and the wholesale suppliers? By cutting back, we not only do the right thing for the environment, we undercut the power of PG&E to break our banks.

This is the bottom line: We give up a few conveniences in order to lower the demand for energy and thus drive down prices.

Or we can just pay the high prices, complaining that the greed-heads at PG&E and Enron and in Sacramento can't get their priorities straight.

From A to Z

Art Zielinski asks people what they think ...

I would like to have a week in a place you can see hula girls and the ocean. I'm not a traveling type person. Driving an RV isn't my idea of a vacation.

Clara Villegas, Sanford

I guess I would like to go to Hawaii. Several relatives had been there and said it was really nice. Hawaii is very scenic. It would be different seeing the volcanoes.

Joe Novotny, Winter Springs

I want to go to the Bahamas. I've never been there and I always wanted to go and see what it's like. I've heard it's a lot of fun there.

Willie Lawrence, Sanford

Now that I have kids all I could think of is a place that's fun and safe. I probably won't get to go on a vacation until the kids are much older. Without having kids, I would like to go to San Diego.

Carol Haddock, Sanford

Anywhere I can sit at a lake and fish, without having to travel. I spent 20 years in the military and I traveled all the time.

The Way We Were: Crippen recalls early Sanford

Sanford pioneer Herbert O. "Bertie" Crippen was interviewed for an article for the March 14, 1952 edition of the Sanford Builder, at which time he told what he remembered of Sanford in the 1870s. I have edited these memories for you today.

A very vivid memory of his was his involvement in former President Ulysses S. Grant's arrival in Sanford in 1860. Grant was here with his wife to drive the last spike, a silver one, in the completion of the only railroad south of Jacksonville.

Bertie Crippen was the drummer boy and mascot of the Sanford Band, also known as "Crippen's Pioneer Band". Bertie's dad, A.H. Crippen, Sr. was the leader.

President and Mrs. Grant arrived on the steamboat "Roosa" and were met by the band at the pier which was at the foot of Palmetto Avenue. Dressed in their Sunday best, they proudly marched out on the dock behind the greeting committee. Bertie remembered his heart pounded (he was only five) as the boat slowly came up to the dock. The band played "Hail to the Chief" and "Dixie."

Following the driving of the spike near the railroad station, the group boarded the train, which consisted of a combination of baggage and passenger cars, three flat cars and one little engine to pull it over the narrow gauge track.

The president and his party boarded the passenger car. The band jumped up on one of the flat cars and the train went chugging off to Orlando for a barbecue.

About five miles out of Sanford, the train tried to pass a couple of "crackers" riding two old mules. The crackers decided they wouldn't be passed, so they raced the train. The engineer gave it all he could, but the mules left the train in their dust. The train went bravely on, chugging along Central Florida's first rail link with the north.

The Sanford Band was organized in the early 1870s, and was composed of 14 members. Part of them had come from Europe and others from various states in the U.S. Many were professionals.

They had a band wagon in the shape of a swan, drawn by four black horses. The citizens of Sanford presented its leader, A.H. Crippen, Sr. with a silver cornet in appreciation of his service.

According to Bertie Crippen, General Sanford was just laying out the town at this time, and the Sanford House was only about one-third completed. The Sanford House, which faced Commercial street, eventually had spacious park-like grounds up to First Street where the former post office now stands. Lake Monroe came up past the present courthouse and the dock was built out over the water, beginning at Palmetto Avenue.

Crippen recalled that most of the businesses were centered around this dock. His father, A.H. Crippen was the representative of the Mallory Steamship Line which had offices there. There was a large general store where the dock joined Palmetto Avenue and across the street was the telegraph office. Out on the dock there was a warehouse and boat works.

There was another dock, at the end of Mellonville Avenue. That was where Fredrick DeBary, who represented the Clyde Line, tied his boat. In about 1880, these boats had quite a rivalry and would race from Sanford to Jacksonville. East First Street ended at Sanford Avenue and the section from there to Mellonville was nothing but cypress swamp, a good duck hunting area. The main street was nothing but sand, but the shell sidewalks saved shoes somewhat.

On the corner of Sanford Avenue and First Street was the DeMott Building and a few wooden stores on both sides of First Street up to Palmetto Avenue. On the southwest corner of Sanford and First was George Sawyer's building. He rented the bottom section of the store and lived upstairs.

Down where McCrory's used to be was M.J. Doyle's General Store. He was Ed Lane's grandfather.

Bertie explained that his business, piano manufacturing, had forced him to live in New York, Chicago and Louisville for the past 53 years, but he had always returned to Sanford for a few months each year. He said that he had been a voter and tax payer in Sanford for the past 60 years.

Next week, Bertie Crippen recalls Sanford's early social life.

A Moment of Joy and a Warm Summer's Breeze

Lyons

"I care about the community. Some people are drawn to public service. I'm drawn to it," Lyons said about his mayoral bid. "You have to reflect on the possibilities and wonder how many opportunities come along. After thinking about it, I consider this to be the best time to run. There are still a lot of things to complete."

Lyons has also changed his position on the development of a hotel and conference center proposed at Ft. Mellon Park. He supported the measure when previously on the commission but now says Ft. Mellon Park is not the place for it.

Instead, Lyons wants to set aside a land reserve along Lake Monroe to be used for targeted development.

"The hotel and conference center is driven more by government money than by private interests," Lyons said. "It's time to move on. Ft. Mellon Park remains a divisive issue and any developer coming in is going to face a lot of opposition. When the right project comes along for the lakefront, then we should move on it."

Lyons is basing his mayoral run on three key issues: Growth management; economic development; and the improvement and redevelopment of neighborhoods throughout Sanford.

Lyons advocates using state money in the form of Community Block Grants to help revitalize some of Sanford's neighborhoods, particularly the Goldboro and Georgetown communities.

"A lot of neighborhoods have not received the attention that others have," Lyons said.

"There needs to be greater equity in creating vehicles to deal with that. By the same token, the city has to be sure its efforts are met with the organized efforts of various communities."

Lyons said he is in favor of limited tax incentive programs to businesses, primarily light industry and entrepreneurship that would focus on redevelopment in Sanford.

"There has not been a lot of money spent on economic development in Sanford," he said. "But the tax incentive would depend on the project."

He said he feels it is important to incrementally decrease

Sanford's millage rate while keeping service levels in proportional alignment.

"As the tax base grows you can maintain current levels of service and still come out on the positive side," he said.

"A lot of neighborhoods have not received the attention that others have. There needs to be greater equity in creating vehicles to deal with that. By the same token, the city has to be sure its efforts are met with the organized efforts of various communities."

Kerry Lyons
Candidate for Mayor

the City. "There are mixed feelings about code enforcement out in the community," Lyons said. "We need more code enforcement officers and we need to enforce our codes in a professional manner. We could utilize the Nuisance Abatement board more to help in that area."

Lyons said he would not vote for special exceptions or variances like the controversial variance granted to Seminole Volunteer Enterprises for a soup kitchen that sparked a lawsuit against the city by Historic District residents.

"First I would try to get a compromise by everyone involved in that kind of situation," he said. "But we have laws on the books and you can't change them for one person or group and not for another."

Lyons also favors close cooperation with Seminole County in the ongoing development of State Road 46.

"That stretch is still developing and we have to have the county on board. I'm in favor of proper setbacks, the use of natural woods, scrub oaks and smaller business signs similar to Lake Mary's development of Lake Mary Boulevard."

Lyons said in the next 10 years he sees Sanford's varied neighborhoods progressing to where they need to be and a well developed lakefront that will showcase Sanford as a model city.

"I want to use my experience and maturity to help Sanford stay focused and get things done," he said.

Pan Am

Tuesday's expansion was the latest in an aggressive domestic expansion plan undertaken in the past 12 months by Pan Am. During that period the air carrier has developed domestic routes from New England to Allentown, Pa., Chicago/Gary, In., and MidAmerica-St. Louis.

New Hampshire-based Gullford Transportation

Industries acquired the New Pan Am in June of 1998, relocating company headquarters from Ft. Lauderdale to Portsmouth, N.H. at the former Pease Air Force Base.

Also during Tuesday's arrival ceremonies, Pan Am officials announced they will soon begin regional service within Florida utilizing Pan Am's new Jetstream 31, a 19-seat commuter aircraft.

Police officer resigns following FBI investigation

From Staff Reports

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Thursday, Sept. 28, 2000, Altamonte Springs police received word from the Federal Bureau of Investigation regarding an active investigation underway involving Patrol Officer First Class Mark S. Rosenberg.

The investigation was in reference to on-line Internet conversations Rosenberg reportedly had with undercover law enforcement officers he belted to be juvenile females. These Internet conversations occurred off-duty, using his home computer, over a period of time from Sept. 1998 through May, 1999.

Upon receipt of the FBI report, Rosenberg was suspended with pay.

Tuesday, Nov. 7, 2000, Chief William Liqouri received a letter from the FBI Tampa Division stating that no evidence to support a criminal allegation was found, and that the United State's Attorney's Office declined to prosecute Rosenberg.

An internal investigation was conducted by the Altamonte Springs Police Department, which reportedly determined, through what Liqouri determined was a preponderance of evidence, that Rosenberg did violate Department Regulation 200-1, regarding standards of conduct.

Rosenberg's immediate supervisor, the Department's Discipline Advisory Board and Deputy Chief Steve Garver recommended that he receive an eight hour suspension without pay for the violation.

On January 29, prior to Rosenberg being informed that the charges had been sustained and afforded the opportunity of a Show-Cause hearing to present any mitigating factors or new evidence in the case, Rosenberg resigned his position with the police force.

Boiler room calls scamming investors

From Staff Reports

Financial fraud costs consumers an estimated $600 billion annually. In an effort to combat economic crime, Florida's Governor and Cabinet proclaimed last week Fight Fraud in Florida Week.

As part of the program, the Department of Banking and Finance (DBFO) is alerting citizens about some of the latest scams being perpetrated in the state. Comptroller Bob Milligan, who directs DBF, wants all citizens to be aware of this crime, and armed with knowledge to avoid being a victim of financial fraud.

Every day, unwary investors find themselves taken in by promises of hot stocks and quick riches from slick-talking and persistent scam artists who make an estimated 40,000 calls each day from "boiler-room" telephone banks. The average victim loses around $3,000. Some lose their life savings.

The following checklist is designed to help citizens avoid problems.

- Ask where the caller got your name. If he says you were recommended, ask by whom. Be especially wary if you've made a bad investment before. Boiler-rooms often circulate lists of "easy marks".

- Ask what the risks are. There is no sure thing. All investments involve risks. If anyone tells you differently, hang up.

- Ask about commissions and management fees. Fees vary, depending on investment, and it can pay to shop around. Be wary of investments that have no fees.

- Ask the caller to send you a prospectus. Legitimate brokers will be happy to send you one. Don't buy the story that their prospectus is at the printers.

- Ask for a risk disclosure statement and an investment proposal. Risk disclosure is required by law.

- Ask to meet with the broker or a representative of the company. Most boiler-room operators will not want to meet with you. Better yet, ask if they could meet with your accountant or lawyer.

- Ask for references from the seller's bank and lawyers. Do not settle for references from other investors.

- Do not respond to pressure. If the caller tells you there is no time, you must act now, by all means, act by hanging up.

- Ask who regulates the seller's industry. Investments are regulated by a variety of agencies at the state and federal levels, and the caller should be happy to tell you who regulates their industry, and where to contact them.

- Check out the firm and the brokers offering the investment. The Florida Department of Banking and Finance regulates the securities industries in the state.

- Call the DBF Consumer Hotline, at 1-800-848-3792 to find out if the company, broker, and the investment are legitimately registered, and if they have a complaint history.

Keeping up with portable MP3 players

the Editors of Consumer Reports

Despite highly publicized legal wrangles involving the music-distribution sites MP3.com and Napster, odds are you'll continue to find plenty of online music to download, though it's likely as of it will be free. To keep up with the demands for downloadable music, electronics firms are developing new personal digital audio players. Battery-operated hand-held devices similar to portable CD players, they play music stored in their internal memory or on external memory cards or disks.

To use a digital audio player, you must initially install the player's jukebox software on your computer. With it, you can download music files from the Internet to your computer or convert audio CD tracks to MP3 files, a process called "ripping." The jukebox converts CD tracks into MP3 files and lets you organize the music and customize your playlists on the computer. You transfer the compressed music files to the player via a parallel port or high-speed Universal Serial Bus (USB) connection.

The Nomad Jukebox Player ($460) is among the highest-scoring players we've tested so far. Very easy to use, it's an excellent performer with very good playback quality. But given its size and price, it can't be directly compared with its pocket-sized rivals. Some notables among the more diminutive set include:

- Sensory Science ravemp 2200 ($240). Fairly small and lightweight, it offers the best combination of capacity (64-MB memory plus 64-MB SmartMedia card), quality and ease of use of the tested players. Its earphones are merely so-so, though.

- Compaq iPaq Personal Audio Player PA-1 ($250). No internal memory, but it comes with two 32-MB cards. In addition to MP3, it supports WMA and AAC formats.

- Rio 600 ($170). The cost of adding more memory via backpacks offsets this model's lower price. The Rio 600 can play MP3 and WMA files and comes with Mac software. Its earphones are mediocre.

Most players come with third-party jukebox software such as RealJukebox and MusicMatch. If you don't like the jukebox software that comes with your player, you can always download different software, including Windows Media Player, at no charge from numerous sites on the Internet.

from an early age, I knew I wanted to be a nurse."

Even though the country was in the final years of the Great Depression, Duerk found a job working as a nurse in a clinic of a large department store. She remained at the store until she decided to enlist in Navy.

In December 1941, the United States entered World War II. A year later, Duerk completed her application and physical for the Navy, and she was commissioned in January 1943.

"Many women were going into industry, but if you were a nurse, you entered the military," she said. "I felt that I was needed and that I was doing my patriotic duty."

She was sent to the U.S. Naval Hospital in Portsmouth, Va., where she worked as a staff nurse. In 1944, she was transferred to the U.S. Naval Hospital in Bethesda, Md., to work as a charge nurse.

"When I entered to Navy, I didn't know what to expect in a military hospital," she said. "There were huge wards with 40 to 50 patients. It was all together a different type of nursing than what I was accustomed to."

A year later, Duerk was once again transferred, this time to the U.S.S. Benevolence, a hospital ship in the Asiatic Pacific Theater.

"We were scheduled to participate in the invasion of Japan," she said. "But, while we were on our way there, the A-bomb was dropped."

When it reached Tokyo Bay, the hospital ship evacuated prisoners of war from two POW camps near Tokyo. According to Duerk, more than 1,200 patients were examined, clothed, fed and hospitalized in a 36-hour period.

Duerk returned to the United States in 1946 and was assigned to the U.S. Naval Hospital in Great Lakes, Ill., where she was a charge nurse. But, after a couple of weeks, she decided to go to inactive duty. She returned to Ohio and worked night duty at one of the local hospitals.

"But, I decided if I was going to be a nurse for the rest of my life, I had to get more schooling," she said.

She became a student at Frances Payne Bolton School of Nursing in Cleveland, Ohio, where she received a bachelor's degree in 1948 for ward management and teaching in medical and surgical nursing. As a civilian, she taught at a hospital in Highland Park, Mich. until 1951, when she was recalled to active duty.

During the Korean War, Duerk was assigned to the U.S. Naval Hospital and Naval Hospital Corps School in Portsmouth, Va., where she served as a charge nurse. She also began her career as a military instructor, teaching classes with between 60 and 80 students.

During the next 10 years,

Duerk served in numerous supervisory positions in various cities and countries, including the Philippines and Japan. In 1966, she became the special assistant to the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Health and Environment at the Pentagon in Washington, D.C., where her duties included serving as the liaison between Army, Navy and Air Force Nurse Corps and the assistant secretary regarding recruiting problems, nurse shortages and educational objectives for each Nurse Corps service.

During her final placement, Duerk was named director of the Navy Nurse Corps and chief of Nursing Service. As the director, she was responsible for more than 2,500 Nurse Corps officers.

Following 12 years as a lieutenant and then quickly moving up in the ranks, Duerk became the first woman appointed to rear admiral in 1972. She credits good assignments and hard work as the reason for such great achievement.

"I did have a lot of good assignments, which led to promotions," she said. "Personally, I tried to do the best I could do in the career that I selected."

After serving during three wars and traveling all over the world, Duerk retired from the military July 1, 1975. On the advice from some friends, she moved to Central Florida in 1981.

"I was living in Washington, D.C. Although it can get very hot there, it can also get very cold. I had some Navy friends in Florida, so it was just a logical place to move to."

Since retiring, Duerk has served as the director of the United Services Life Insurance Co., and the Visiting Nurses Association of Central Florida.

She is also a member of the local and national Navy Nurse Corps Association.

Looking back on her career, Duerk said she is glad she entered the military in the 40s. Although there have been numerous highlights in her career, it's the people she remembers most. "There were some bad days — some were worse than others. But, the part I liked best was the people I met along the way."

"Many women were going into industry, but if you were a nurse, you entered the military. I felt that I was needed and that I was doing my patriotic duty."

Fees

TDC members had no problem endorsing the Fair Share initiative, but some voiced concern and caution over a move to up the ante by tacking on an additional local surcharge.

"Don't you risk killing the goose that laid the golden egg?" asked board member Jim Pitts. "You are taking a little chunk here and a little chunk there."

Barley agreed that local car rental companies were understandably in opposition to the local surcharge but felt the industry would not be harmed because of market competitive rates. Altamonte Springs Mayor Russ Hauck agreed with that position.

"Our car rental rates are low compared to some destinations like Los Angeles," he said. "There is room for us to add the local surcharge without pricing ourselves out of the market or adversely affecting the car rental industry. Even with the increase we'll be at an average rate."

County Commission chairman Dick Van Der Welde weighed in heavily in favor of the local surcharge issue.

"Metroplan Orlando is a real regional breakthrough," Van Der Welde said. "Transportation issues no longer stop at county lines. I'm in full support of this. The County Commission has sent letters to numbers of homeowners associations.

"Given their choice of higher property taxes to fund roads or a rental car surcharge, they appear to be overwhelmingly in support of the surcharge. Property owners see it as a plus-plus-plus."

If ultimately approved by the State Legislature, the local option surcharge is expected to generate $40 to $60 million per year for transportation projects exclusively to the Central Florida region.

Also at Thursday's meeting the board gave unanimous approval to a $5,500 sponsorship request from the Central Florida Sports Commission for a host bid for the 2002 ASA Class B Girl's 16's Fastpitch Softball Nationals. The Sports Commission in conjunction with Seminole County Parks and Recreation will co-host the event scheduled for August 5 through 11, 2002.

The 96-team field is expected to contribute 5,000 hotel room nights and generate about $1.3 million in local economic impact.

The story of Sanford to appear on television

From Staff Reports

On Feb. 14, Seminole County Government Television (SGTV) will premier, "Gate City: The Story of Sanford Florida," a 60-minute documentary written, directed and produced by Seminole Community College's 1999 Governor's Summer Program students.

Under the direction of SCC television production instructor, Dr. Pat Fitzgerald, high school students, ranging in age from upcoming freshmen to outgoing seniors earn college credit through the four week summer program funded by the Governor's office. Each year, program participants produce a documentary video exploring an aspect of Central Florida's rich culture.

"Gate City: The Story of Sanford Florida" utilizes the voices of local historians to tell the story of Sanford, from pre-history to the present. The focus is primarily on the role of Sanford as a transportation hub that expanded the development of Central Florida. First as a remote river port, then later as a major train station, Sanford was the "gate" to the development of Central, West and South Florida.

SGTV is operated by Seminole County Government and can be seen on Time Warner Cable channel 9. The show is scheduled to air Wednesday, Feb. 14 at 8 p.m., with a repeat presentation Friday, Feb. 16 at 8 p.m.

Surprise!!! Rams, Bears girls in 6A-3 title

By Dean Smith
Sports Editor

DeLAND — The scores may be a little surprising, but the results were not as the Lake Mary and Winter Springs girls basketball team advanced to tonight's (Saturday) Class 6A-District 3 Championship Game with relative ease Thursday evening at the Dog House at DeLand High School.

The two-time defending state champion and No. 2 seeded Bears took a nine-point lead after the first quarter and never looked back in crushing No. 3

Winter Springs rolls over Oviedo; Lake Mary survives DeLand deep freeze to reach final seeded Oviedo, 66-32.

The second semifinal was an amazing game as No. 4 seeded DeLand decided to not just slow the game down, the Bulldogs brought it to a virtual halt, but the No. 1 seeded Rams ignored the inaction and coasted to a 28-10 victory.

The wins set-up a third meeting this season between the two state powers and Winter Springs (21-3) will be looking for revenge as they lost both regular season contests to Lake Mary (23-2), including giving away a 20-point halftime lead at home.

The Junior Varsity Championship Game will precede the district final with Winter Springs and Oviedo playing at 5:30 p.m. The varsity finale is set to begin at 7:30 p.m.

No matter who wins the championship, both teams will advance to the regionals, with the winner hosting the runner-up from District 4 (Orlando area) and the runner-up going to the District 4 champions home court.

Sally Johnston scored 19 points and the Winter Springs defense held a young Lions team to less than 10 points in three of the four quarters.

Jennifer Forst added 12 for the winner's, while freshman Whitney Tossie led Oviedo (12-14) with 13 points.

Winter Springs also advanced to the Regional Semifinals, getting past Edgewater on penalty kicks, 1-0.

Thursday evening the boys teams took their shot at advancement, and Lake Mary moved on, romping past Edgewater, 4-1, but Lake Howell came up short, being ousted 2-1 by Merritt Island.

The Eau Gallie Commodores (21-4-1) used the offside trap to successfully slow down Lake Howell's potent offense.

That is until senior Randy Holcomb got a pass from teammate Piper Seaman in the first half that created a one-on-one against the Eau Gallie goalkeeper. Holcomb See Soccer, Page 3B

DELTONA — It's been a successful week so far for Seminole County's three Class 5A girls basketball teams in district play.

Lyman and Lake Howell advanced to a third meeting this season when they both coasted past Volusia County foes in the Quarterfinals of the Class 5A-District 5 Tournament at Deltona High School Wednesday evening.

The Silver Hawks, the No. 3 seed, took an 8-0 lead and never looked back in stomping Flagler-Palm Coast (9-14), 53-29.

Stephanie Martinez led Lake Howell with 23 points, while Codrey and Brown chipped in with 12 points each.

The No. 2 seeded Greyhounds also took an early lead and never let New Smyrna Beach (11-14) get back into the game, rolling past the Barracudas, 52-37.

Jessica Fiorenza led the Lyman attack with 17 points. Katie Radcliffe added 14 for the winner's.

Lake Howell (17-14) and Lyman (21-8) were to have met in the semifinals on Friday with the winner advancing to tonight's (Saturday) 7:30 p.m. Championship Game against either No. 1 Mainland (23-2), a 65-37 winner over Deltona on Tuesday, or Pine Ridge (13-9), which ousted Spruce Creek 64-40 in the Quarterfinals.

The game will be played at Deltona High School with the winner hosting the runner-up from District 6 next week and the winner traveling to the District 6 champion in the Regional Quarterfinals next week.

Seminole (22-7) has already earned at least a runner-up spot in the Class 5A-District 6 Tournament after mauling Palm Bay, 84-34, in the Semifinals Thursday night at Satellite High School in Satellite Beach.

The game was relatively close, with the Fighting Seminoles leading 44-25 at halftime.

The Tribe then turned the game into a rout, outscoring the Pirates 23-1 in the third quarter and 40-9 in the second half.

All 12 players for Seminole scored with junior LaQueena Grayson leading the way with 21 points. Senior's Matia Mitchell (15) and Jamala Mitchell (14) also scored in double figures for the Tribe.

Seminole will take on Titusville in tonight's (Saturday) District Championship Game at 7:30 p.m. at Satellite High School.

SCC softball nine shuts out Brevard

Wood, Reeber pitch Raiders to season-opening sweep

By Dean Smith
Sports Editor

SANFORD — Jodi Wood and Oviedo's Sarah Reeber allowed only three baserunners and the Seminole Community College offense collected 17 hits as the Raiders swept a season-opening softball doubleheader, 8-0 and 4-0, over Brevard Community College at Raider Field on Thursday.

"This was a great way to begin the season," said SCC head coach Courtney Miller. "I felt we could win both games, but I didn't know we would dominate them like we did. We have some injuries, so we were down on numbers, but everyone stepped up and did their job in the wins."

Wood, a sophomore righthander from Colonial High School, retired the first six batters she faced before hitting the first batter she faced in the third inning.

By that time the Raiders were already ahead 7-0.

With one out in the bottom of the first inning, sophomore Kathy Noble (Boone High School) drew a walk and moved up on a wild pitch before Lake

Mary's Lindsey Manz began her college career with a solid single to center, advancing Noble to third.

After Manz stole third, freshman Blake Hoorlebeke ripped a two-RBI single to right field.

In the second inning, Oviedo's Lisa Field led off with a single, advanced to second on a wild pitch and moved over to third single by Kristin Hughes, who then stole second.

After a ground out, basketball star Yolanda "Yo" Johnson, who makes a very good impression of Ozzie Smith at shortstop, then reached on a throwing error, allowing Field to score.

Noble walked to load the bases and Hughes scored on a wild pitch ahead of another walk to Manz.

Hoorlebeke then grounded to short, but Johnson beat the throw to the plate and Rachelle Schmidt, another Colonial grad, slapped a two-run single off the third baseman's glove, making the score 7-0.

Following the hit batter, Wood retired the last nine batters she faced and SCC closed out the run-rule victory when Schmidt led off the fifth inning with a See Sweep, Page 2B

Wiggins helps St. Johns River edge SCC, 98-96

By Dean Smith

SANFORD — Sanford resident and Winter Springs High School graduate Marcus Wiggins was intent on making his return to Seminole County a huge success, but it was Seminole Community College's Matt Story that stole the show and very nearly the victory Wednesday night.

Wiggins scored the game's first five points, including a game-opening three-point shot, and was spectacular overall in scoring 27 points as St. Johns River Community College from Palatka edged the Raiders, 98-96.

But Story, a 6-foot-5 guard from Sarasota, was remarkable, hitting six three-point field goals and scoring a game-high 40 points.

The sharpshooter appeared headed to breaking Vernell Ellzy's school record of 43 points, scored way back in 1967 against the Stetson University Junior Varsity, as he nailed four three-pointers and had 28 points at halftime.

Wiggins, playing before about 20 of his Sanford relatives, was matching Story point-for-point before having to go to the bench with two fouls and 19 points mid-way through the first half.

The Vikings' scoring slowed with Wiggins on the bench, but it did not stop, as Lorenzo Lawrence and Spencer Ross hit two three-pointers each and scored 14 and 12 points, respectively, as the visitors led by as many as 12 points in the first half.

But SCC's freshman star, Jason Currington from Leesburg, caught fire too near the end of the first half, hitting two from 'downtown' and finishing with 10 points as the Raiders trailed by just one point, 53-52, at intermission.

Another amazing thing about the scoring was that in the first game between the two teams, at Palatka in January, SCC only had 18 first half points and finished the game with just 57 points total.

The second half began just like the first, as the Vikings built a 10-point lead behind the play of Wiggins, who got free for a couple of rim-shaking, crowd pleasing slam dunks.

But the Raiders refused to quit and kept coming back behind Currington and Story.

But every time the local quintet would get within a point or two, they would make a mistake and SJRCC would push the lead back out to double digits.

As the time started to run off the clock, it appeared certain that the Vikings would reach the 100-point mark and that the Raiders would probably get close.

With over five minutes left, St. Johns had 90 points and SCC had 84.

But that's when strategy started to take over as the Vikings tried to take some time off the clock.

SCC's defense finally started to work and the hosts closed to within two points, 94-92, with 28-seconds left and in control, of the ball.

But a questionable, especially from the Raiders coaches, three-point shot came up well short and an offensive rebound resulted in a travelling call.

SJRCC scored on a lay-up to lead push the lead back to four, but there was still plenty of time left.

But SCC went cold from the outside and Lawrence hit both ends of a one-and-one to clinch the victory.

Story scored at the buzzer to make the final 98-96.

Lawrence led the Vikings with 30 points to compliment Wiggins' 27. Ross finished with 16 points, while Brian Sanders was also in double figures with 11 points.

In addition to Story's 40, Currington also had a huge game with 25 points, while Jontue Johnson chipped in with 15 points and Walter Green 10 points, with Che Morgan tossing in six points.

The Raiders were in Gainesville tonight (Saturday) as part of a women-men Mid-Florida Conference doubleheader against Santa Fe Community College and former Seminole High School standout Cornelius Blue.

The women are set to begin at 6 p.m. with the men scheduled for an 8 p.m. tipoff.

SCC will then return home for consecutive Wednesday home games, beginning with Florida Community College at Jacksonville this Wednesday (Feb. 14th) and Central Florida Community College from Ocala on Wednesday the 21st, before finishing the regular season on the road at Daytona Beach Community College on Saturday, Feb. 24th.

All three games are conference doubleheaders with the women starting at 6 p.m. and the men at 8 p.m. Admission to all home SCC games is free at the Health and Physical Education Center.

In a related subject, the SCC women of coach Ken Patrick were rewarded for beating Florida Community College at Jacksonville and Central Florida Community College on the road and Daytona Beach Community College at home by being ranked No. 19 in the most recent national poll.

Two-time defending state champion Gulf Coast is ranked No. 4 in the nation, while Daytona and Tallahassee Community College are receiving votes.

Seward Community College from Liberal, Kansas, which waltzed through the field at the SCC-Winn Dixie Shootout over the New Years Holiday, is still undefeated at 22-0 and ranked No. 1 in the nation.

single and scored one out later on an infield single by Field and a pair of throwing errors.

Wood finished with a no-hitter and allowed just the one base runner, striking out four.

Schmidt was 2-for-3, with a run scored and two RBI, while Field was 2-for-3 with a run scored.

Also contributing offensively were Hoorelbeke (single, three RBI), Manz (single, two runs), Johnson and Hughes (one single and one run scored each), and Noble (two runs scored).

Reeber, a sophomore left-hander from Oviedo, got her season off to a good start also, striking out the Titan lead-off batter and retiring the first 11 batters she faced.

SCC was not fairing much better against BCC starter Theresa Bangsik, going scoreless over the first four innings despite getting five hits and a walk.

The Titans finally got a threat going, kind of, in the fourth inning as Jamie Ferron singled with two out, but she was left stranded, and then had batter get hit by a pitch with one out in the fifth inning, but that runner also never moved as Reeber came back with a pair of strike outs.

The fifth inning started innocently enough for the Raiders with a ground out. Johnson then ripped a two-strike single to center and stole second and moved over to third on a ground out, but now there were two outs.

The big guns then went to work as Manz smashed a run-scoring double to left, Hoorelbeke crushed a line-drive run scoring double off the centerfield fence and, after a walk to Schmidt, Field blasted a two-run double to leftcenter.

Reeber easily made the lead stand up, retiring the six batters to close out the one-hit shutout. She finished with seven strike outs.

Johnson, Field and Digna Abello all had two hits for SCC, while, Manz, Hoorelbeke and Boone's Becki Rodak added one safety each.

"Wood started off our season with a no-hitter, and I don't think I could ask for anything better than that," said Miller. "In the second game I knew they would have trouble scoring any runs off Reeber, but I was starting to get concerned about our own offensive woes."

"We knew once one or two hitters got a hit, we would break it open. Those three doubles by Lindsey, Blake and Lisa were some of the hardest hits I have seen in a long time. They absolutely roped them.

"Overall, I was pleased with the kids' effort. They have worked so hard the past five months and it showed against Brevard."

SCC was to have played three games in the St. Petersburg Junior College Tournament in Clearwater today (Saturday) and then travel to Winter Haven for a doubleheader with Polk Community College on Tuesday at 5 p.m.

Seminole Community College baseball in process of learning

By Dean Smith
Sports Editor

SANFORD — The Seminole Community College baseball team is going through a tough process at the moment, trying to learn how to win.

"We're just trying to keep them from getting down," said first-year head coach Mike Nicholson. "I keep telling them that the season is divided into three parts and this one is the most difficult, trying to win against good non-conference programs and also learn each other."

The Raiders continue to play well, but can't quite get over the top, dropping a 5-3 decision to Florida College last Saturday, and then getting outscored 14-10 by South Florida Community College on Tuesday, both at home.

SCC then got off to a rough start, but battled back to tie before dropping a 7-5 contest to undefeated St. Petersburg Junior College in Clearwater on Wednesday.

Against Florida College the Raiders collected 13 hits, but left nine men on base.

Juan Chacon, Lake Mary's Rob Macchione, Drew Jackson, Randy Brunette, and Mike Cantey each had two hits each for SCC.

South Florida Community College had 17 hits including home runs from three different Panthers.

SCC scored its 10 runs on 10 hits, including three hits from Jackson and Macchione, and two hits each from Chacon and Tommy Solitario.

The loss to St. Petersburg (7-0) saw the Raiders fall behind early, but come back on a 4-for-5 performance from catcher Juan Menendez and a three-run home run as part of a four-run third inning from third baseman Mike Cox.

But after tying the game at 5-5 in the top of the seventh inning, the Trojans immediately came back with a pair of runs in the bottom of the frame to claim the victory.

Randy Brunette also went 4-for-4 in the losing effort for the Raiders, which had nine hits, but the locals also committed four errors and left eight men on base.

SCC (2-6) was to have concluded a quick two-game road trip against Brevard Community College in Melbourne today (Saturday), and will be at home on Sunday, hosting Palm Beach Community College starting at 1 p.m. at Raider Field.

Oviedo boys clinch SAC title

By Dean Smith
Sports Editor

OVIEDO — Shawn Witherspoon scored 30 points and Marcus Hayes added 20 points as the undefeated and No. 1 ranked Oviedo Lions outscored Lyman, 86-70, to clinch the Seminole Athletic Conference title at home Tuesday night. The Lions (27-0) were to have closed out the regular season by hosting Lake Howell on Friday and will be the top-seed in the Class 6A-District 3 Tournament at DeLand High School's new Dog House. Terry Cross led the Greyhounds (12-16) with 29 points. The Silver Hawks (16-13) have also been playing well of late, rolling over Lake Brantley, 61-41, on Tuesday behind 18 points from Isaac Codrey and 12 points and 10 rebounds from Brandon Marshall, and Lake Mary, 61-50, on Wednesday as Codrey netted 18 points and Tory Green added 12. Mario Fields had 14 points and 15 rebounds and Trevor Berryhill 13 points for the Rams. The Seminole High School boys also remained red-hot, as Robby Dupre led the way with 17 points and seven rebounds as Arrow Force IX topped Winter Springs, 64-58. Mike White added 15 points and four steals as Seminole, which will play in the Class 5A-District 6 Tournament at Satellite Beach next week, improved to 18-7. Geramy Brown led the Bears with 16 points. In addition to DeLand and Satellite, other boys district tournaments will be held at Deltona High School (Class 5A-District 5, Lake Howell and Lyman) and Crooms Academy (Class A-District 4).

that the only way for his charges to defeat the Rams was to stay close until the fourth quarter and go for the win. The only problem was, the Bulldogs, who had defeated Lake Brantley 52-45 to earn a shot at the Rams, almost never looked at the basket as they froze the ball and Lake Mary finally overcame early turnover problems, five of its first six possessions, to take a 16-8 lead at halftime. DeLand then took the air out of the ball completely in the third period, holding the ball for 7:30 before trying to score and then missed the only shot attempt of the period. Rams coach Carl Brown was content to let the Bulldogs hold the ball as his team held the comfortable eight-point advantage. Lake Mary then turned the delay on the hosts in the fourth quarter, going to a spread to pull the Bulldogs out of their zone and holding the ball until Bryn Mosler got open for a layup with 5:54 remaining. DeLand did answer with a basket at the three-minute mark, but the Rams then closed the game with a 9-0 run. Mosler scored all eight of her game-high points in the fourth quarter. Freshman Angie Pressay and her sister, junior Ashley, came off the bench to score six and five points, respectively.

was able to slip past the keeper and put the shot just inside the post. Silver Hawks head coach Didier Menard he felt his team could have gotten more goals in the first half and taken a more commanding lead. "It should have been a blow out by the end of the first half," Menard said. "We didn't take advantage of the chances. We should have been up 4-0." Lake Howell's keeper, Kim Angel, got some big saves to keep the victory safe for the home team. The closeness of Tuesday's game shows Menard the pressure the Silver Hawks under with the expectation of a repeat performance of last year's championship.

Everywhere is looking for us, ever since we made the Final 3 two years ago," Menard said. "They want to measure themselves against us." Lake Howell (24-1-2) hosts Auburndale (22-2-1), a 6-3 winner over Gateway, on Tuesday at 7 p.m. at Richard L. Evans Field. Menard has never seen Auburndale play and plans on preparing his team for a tough game. Winter Springs pulled off a big upset of 4A-4 champion Edgewater (16-3-3), with Kristie Johnson's goal in the fifth round of penalty kicks deciding the outcome. Senior goalkeeper Sarah Hall was huge for the Bears, stopping two of five Eagle penalty attempts, and all eight shots in regulation and overtime. Winter Springs (15-8-5) will travel to Tallahassee to face Leon (24-5-1) at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday. Lake Mary's boys turned to a familiar place to advance to the regional semifinals, getting all four goals from senior star Zolie Kecskes at Don T. Reynolds Stadium. The Rams (20-3-4) will take on the winner of the Lake City-Columbia (15-8)/Niceville (13-7-2) game in the semifinals on Tuesday, most likely at home at 7:30 p.m.

Hamilton HEROs

By Dan Ping

Kenneth Bentley is a man on a mission — to improve grades and test scores of students at Hamilton Elementary School.

Bentley has created an after-school curriculum that provides Hamilton students with specialized tutorial assistance that builds on lessons taught in the classroom. But all work and no play makes for bored students, so Bentley has also incorporated about a dozen leisure time activities into his after-school program, HERO (Hamilton Educational Remedial Opportunities).

"We're trying to provide the kids with many opportunities to get help with their school work," Bentley said.

"We realize, though, the kids need time to play and have fun so we try to direct that energy into activities like band, cheerleading and gospel choir. They're fun for the kids, but it also expands their interests and gets them involved in positive activities."

About 200 students, grades 2 through 5, participate in the HERO program. On Monday and Tuesday, students get help with math, reading, computers and have a study hall. On Wednesday and Thursday, they get help with math and reading and then participate in one of 11 enrichment clubs, including gospel choir, band, cheerleading, book club, computer club, tee kwon do, cooking club, team sports, art, magic club and horticulture. Each student also receives an afternoon snack to give them plenty of energy to burn during their activities.

Bentley said in addition to the week-day HERO program, Hamilton is helping students brush up on their test-taking skills with a Saturday morning FCAT (Florida Comprehensive Assessment Test) workshop. Students receive assistance with math skills they will need to take the FCAT. Breakfast and lunch is provided, and there's even a seminar to help parents improve their computer skills.

So far, the program appears to be working. Bentley said test scores, particularly in reading, are improving, and the students are enjoying the enrichment clubs and the tutorial sessions. "We want to give the kids every opportunity to succeed," Bentley said. For more information about the HERO program, contact Hamilton Elementary School at 407-320-6050.

Flowers continue to be a popular way to say 'I love you' on Valentine's Day

Kit Thompson and Tim Donahoe know about flowers and Valentine's Day. Their parents bought Sanford Flower Shop Inc., in 1956, and the sister-brother team have been involved in the business since they were children. "My mother used to say I was delivered in a box of roses from Columbia," Kit said. Although both have tried other careers in their lifetime, they always ventured back to the family business. "It gets in your blood," Kit said. Today, Kit and Tim manage the shop their mother, Charlotte Donahoe Davis, still owns. The siblings are hoping to move back into their East Commercial Street store, which was destroyed in September when the building next to it collapsed, this weekend in order to meet the holiday rush. Herald Managing Editor Michelle Jerle recently met with Kit to discuss why flowers are such an important part of Valentine's Day.

Q: Is Valentine's Day the most popular holiday to send flowers?
A: It is the most popular day. Normally, Valentine's Day is the busiest day, Mother's Day is the busiest week and Christmas is the busiest month.

Q: If Valentine's is the busiest day, does that mean people wait until the last minute to order flowers?
A: Most definitely. I think all of us procrastinate these days. We are all so busy. But, there are so many ways to order flowers, it's a lot easier. Almost 80 percent of our arrangements are ordered over the phone. And, people can e-mail or fax their orders to us.

Q: Do many women order flowers for men on Valentine's Day?
A: The majority of orders are from men, but women do order flowers on Valentine's Day. Men like receiving flowers, too. And, we don't have to do something feminine. We can make plant arrangements, we have gourmet baskets and people can send balloons. But, it seems more men in the corporate climate are getting flowers, as opposed to someone like a welder.

Q: So, what is the most popular flower to send on Valentine's Day?
A: It's definitely roses.

Q: Why do you think roses are the most popular?
A: I am not sure how it got started, but red roses are usually the flower that says "I love you." Nowadays, there are so many different varieties of roses. Guys still want to send red ones, but women seem to want other colors. When a guy comes in, we try to sway him from sending red.

Q: What is the most unusual arrangement someone has asked you to make for Valentine's Day?
A: A person wanted panties and underwear in an arrangement. And, we are talking about real risqué lingerie. So, I had to fit this lingerie into some kind of arrangement. I think that was probably the most unusual.

Q: What about cost? Are flower prices increasing?
A: Yes, definitely. When the cost of fuel goes up, so does the cost of flowers, since they have to be shipped. As for Valentine's Day, it's a matter of supply and demand. On Valentine's Day, there is a high demand. And the holiday falls at a time when there is a short-

Girl Scout Troop No. 148 hosts Black Culture Festival

When Girl Scouts from Senior Troop No. 148 started planning their Gold Award Project, they wanted to do something fun and educational that would benefit school-age children in Seminole County. They chose to do a Black Culture Festival. They wanted to provide hands on learning opportunities. You learn more when you involve your hands as well as your mind.

After months of planning, Feb. 3 arrived. Between 600 and 700 people showed up for the festival, a lighter than expected turnout due to the intensely cold weather. The morning was fairly busy, but after 2 p.m., as the temperature began to plummet, the crowds thinned considerably.

There was some exceptional entertainment for the festival. Asia Nelson sang both the National Anthem and the Black National Anthem and the Black National Anthem a cappella to kick off the day. Greg Clayton mesmerized the audience with an excerpt from Martin Luther King Jr.'s "I Have A Dream" speech. The St. John MB Praise Team acted out a gospel song. There was an outstanding gospel trio featuring Marco Nelson, Malique Brown and Antonio Cooke. The girls in the audience were practically swooning over the young men.

Evelyn Clayton took on the persona of Mary McLeod Bethune, a great Florida native. Nicholas Rowell and Kristin Lauth read African folktales.

Mary Rowell

Karima Clayton and Kim Clay both read from a teenage slave's diary.

The grand event for the festival was the Lubamba African Spectacular. This drum and dance troupe performed for a spellbound crowd. For one of their last songs, the dancers pulled several children from the audience onto the stage to join them in the dance. The dancers tried to teach the children several moves. The children didn't quite get the moves down, but they had fun trying.

Although some were messier than others were, the hands-on activities were quite a success as well. At the festival, children could make an African mask, shield or spear, design their own African money, have their face painted like the Suma, paint an African clay bead, design their own Kente or Adinkra cloth, make a Tuareg amulet pouch or "write" a Zulu love letter.

Zulu love letters have evolved into intricately designed pins that use dozens of small seed beads. Originally, when men went off to work in another village, the women communicated with the men by sending them a single strand of colored beads.

Each color meant something and the order in which the beads were strung was also important. White represents purity. Black represents longing. One of the phrases used for black is "I have turned pitch black as rafters of the hut because I miss you." "If I were a dove, I would fly to your home and pick up food at your door," is the phrase for blue. It represents faithfulness. Yellow represents prosperity; green, jealousy; pink, poverty or an oath or promise; red, intense love; turquoise, impatience; purple, new friendship and brown represents the earth which gives rise to new life.

The men of the Tuareg tribe are very superstitious. They live in the deserts and cover everything but their eyes with a veil. The men, not the women. The women don't wear veils. A Tuareg man makes his amulet pouch by first writing a magic word. The word is forever sealed in part of the pouch. In the other part of the pouch, he carries items that bring good luck, such as cowry shells.

The children also got to play three African games. Kye, Kye, Kule (pronounced chee, chee, coolay), Stalker and Catching Stars.

The loudest part of the festival was near the instrument table. Children were allowed to play authentic African instruments. There was a talking drum, a djembe, a balafone, a televi, an ekpiri, palm frond rattles, a Y rattle and a caxxi. A talking drum is one that has strings all the way around from the top of the drum to the bottom. By putting the drum under your arm and squeezing the strings as you play, you can change the sound of the drum. A djembe is a large drum. A balafone is like a xylophone made out of reeds with gourds under the keys to amplify the sound. A televi is two large seeds filled with small seeds or pebbles and strung together. You play the televi by holding one in your hand and swinging the other around to crash into the first one. While it looks simple enough to play, many of the children and quite a few adults discovered that it takes a lot of practice and skill to make the televi sound right. An ekpiri is more than a dozen large nut shells strung on a handle. A caxxi is a bell shaped rattle that is woven from straw and/or reed and filled with small stones.

The troop also had a display of African artifacts. The boys visiting the display really enjoyed seeing the ceremonial sword and spears. The sword and two spears came from the Congo region of Africa in the 1940s. There was also a Fulani agate trade bead, an African statue, African masks and African bracelets.

The festival was free thanks to the fund-raising efforts of Troop

No. 148 and the generous support of the city of Lake Mary. The troop was also very fortunate to receive a grant from the Seminole Cultural Arts Council Inc. and the Meredith Corporation. The Seminole Cultural Arts Council is responsible for taking the money from the arts license plates sold in Seminole County and through grants, funding artistic, historical and cultural events and projects throughout Seminole County. The Black Culture Festival could not have taken place without their generous grant. As a culmination to the festival, Troop No. 148 held and Arbor Day Celebration at 4 p.m. to plant a Martin Luther King Jr. sycamore on the grounds of City Hall. Mayor Thom Greene and Deputy Mayor Gary Brender attended the ceremony, as did Parks and Recreation Director Bill Carrico. Lake Mary Historical Society President Janet Jernigan was also on hand for the tree planting.

er growing season. So, the price of roses increases and may cost two or three times as much. And, then there's the Rose Bowl parade. It definitely depletes the rose supply. If Valentine's Day was in June when roses are more available, it would be so much better. There are so many reasons why Valentine's Day shouldn't be in February. But, there isn't much we can do about that, so that's why we recommend people buy a mixed arrangement that contains a couple of roses and a variety of other flowers.

Q: What is the largest order you have received?

A: Recently, a gentleman sent 26 dozen roses to his wife. She was changing jobs after 26 years at the same one, so he sent her the roses. That was probably the largest order besides weddings.

Q: What about you? Since you are around flowers all day, do you like receiving and sending them to people?

A: I love flowers, and I love sending them to others. I guess it's because I grew up in this business. And, flowers are something you don't buy for yourself. Very few people don't like receiving flowers.

Valerie Barnett Retires From Teaching
When Valerie Barnett left the classroom in December, she left something special behind the kids. "I do miss the children," she said. "Their kisses and hugs."

Valerie was a faithful, devoted teacher who loved her work and rarely missed a day from school until illness struck last fall. Her students were her pride and joy. The popular school marm, who was recipient of "Teacher of the Year" honors and voted into the county's top ten teachers, taught at Red Bug Elementary School for 27 years and also taught at Lake Mary Elementary and Hamilton Elementary another six years.

There's no doubt about it, Valerie was born to teach. She said she has no favorite subjects but loves second and fourth grade levels. It is inspiring to her to instill reading skills into beginning readers. She also gets excited over following the progress of students' writing expertise.

Now that she's retired, Valerie hopes to do some gardening and lots of reading. She said, "I would like to each out and get more involved in the community."

Valerie's husband, Richard, is also a retired educator, who enjoys handy work in his spare time. They are the parents of one son, Gary, who follows in his parents' footsteps as an educator and teaches world history at Oviedo High School.

He is also an avid participant in the State Soccer Program.

The Barnetts are active in the First United Methodist Church where she has taught Vacation Bible School. Some times in the future, they hope to travel. Valerie said she would like to go to Europe as well as explore the USA's west coast and other western landmarks.

It's A Boy

Martha and Bob Orwig are one happy set of grandparents over the birth of their grandson, Addison Jay (to be called AJay) Brooks to their daughter, Sandra, and Jay Brooks on Jan. 23, at Arnold Palmer Hospital, Orlando. Little AJay tipped the scales at a healthy 6 pounds, 8 ounces.

Equally proud paternal grandparents are Virginia and John Brooks of St. Cloud.

The baby is indeed special as are all babies. His mom, Sandra, a surgical nurse at St. Cloud Hospital, is closer to 40 than she is 35, and has been a dancer since she was four. The night before the baby was born, after working at the hospital her regular shift, Sandra showed up at her home dancing school, School of Dance Arts, to work out "a little." AJay showed up the next day.

Martha gushed and gushed as only a doting granny is qualified. "He's a perfect little boy!"

Congrats, Michael

After the brief state of ALPI affairs message and statistics of the corporation by Board Chairman William Holt, the keynote speaker, Stanley Williams, president of the Atlanta Committee for Public Education, was introduced by at-large board member Vernon

McQueen of Sanford. Williams immediately received the attention of the luncheon guests as he spoke on the topic, "The Key is Education". He told of the many ways we, as parents, teachers and citizens, can help with the education and development of children. Education is the passport for the future and success of our children. We

Wife bear to hunting husband

DEAR ABBY: I am a loving father of two boys and have been happily married for six years. However, my wife and I are having a serious conflict.

I love to fish and hunt. About eight times a year, I take a trip to hunt or fish. The trip usually lasts from one afternoon until the next evening. I am gone about 32 hours. This infuriates my wife. We argue every time I get ready to go. This is the only thing we argue about, but the arguments are serious and affect both of us adversely.

Abby, I try to be the best father and husband I know now. I spend almost every day of the week with my family. We go places together all the time. We are both Christians and take our children to church every week.

I have offered to go to counseling to see if we could get some help. She says it's not necessary because the problem isn't that big. I can't help but believe that our problem is about more than just a question of hunting and fishing. I feel she wants to control me. She says she just loves me. She agrees that I spend more time with the family than most husbands do. I do this out of love.

Am I wrong? Should I offer to give up my hobbies? Is it wrong for me to go hunting and fishing on occasion? Abby, I would never neglect my family. Any advice you can offer will be appreciated.

KENTUCKY HUBBY

DEAR HUBBY: Eight days a year of personal time devoted to hunting or fishing is not a lot to ask. Whether she will admit it to herself or not, your wife's behavior is controlling. By picking a fight with you she ensures that if you go, your pleasure will be lessened.

Since you feel that the arguments are serious, by all means talk to a counselor before the problems escalate further. You could both benefit by going, but if your wife continues to minimize the importance of this issue, go without her. You will gain valuable insight.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a family who refuses to take their 92-year-old grandmother to the doctor for her yearly checkup? They say it's "too far."

As far as I'm concerned, no distance is "too far" if you care. She has offered to pay for the gas, but they still refuse.

Are there agencies that will pick up people and take them to their doctor's office?

A FRIEND IN CHICAGO

DEAR FRIEND: What you are describing is a form of elder abuse. Notify the doctor's office. They should be able to contact a local agency that assists seniors and others who qualify for free or low-cost transportation to medical appointments.

P.S. Since her family is unwilling to monitor the health of their aged grandmother, it's possible that she should be visited by a social worker from time to time.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a man who had affairs throughout his marriage and, after his wife died, put "Beloved Wife" on her tombstone?

Super Bowl Sunday

It's time to celebrate human glory

We said it when Jimmy Swaggart fell from grace. We said it about Jim Bakker. Today, we say it whenever there is some new revelation of sexual infidelity involving the clergy.

We say, "It only proves they are human like the rest of us." There is no expression of shock or disbelief, no frowning of brows. There is only a deep sigh of exasperation.

Now we are saying it about the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

To say that ministers are "only human" misses the point of what it means to be human. It means that we can rise above the brute animal side of our nature through reason and self-control — the most sublime human gifts.

Humans were made, said a psalmist, "a little lower than the angels and crowned with glory and honor." Therefore, to say that we are human should not be an excuse for our failures — or those of the clergy. It should be a reason for boasting.

Whether or not we want to claim such an exalted status for ourselves, many of us want to believe our clergy are better than average people. We want them to be special. We don't want to think they are "like the rest of us."

If the clergy are not admired the way they once were, it might be because they want it that way. A headline in a newspaper I read recently says, "Clergy Gratefully Step Down

From Their Pedestals."

The reason is clear: It is more fun to be on terra firma with the common throng. Off their pedestals, the clergy merge into the crowd. They become one of us.

Things were different a century ago. Back then, the clergy would stand on their pedestals above the crowd, bidding their congregations to "come up higher." The pulpits of America proclaimed the "perfectibility of man."

Two world wars and the debilitating Depression destroyed most of that faith, which may have been unwarranted to begin with. But if we once expected too much of human nature, now we expect too little. After the world and the devil have done their worst, each of us is left with a deep reservoir of goodness and virtue that has gone largely untapped. Instead of calling on our finer human powers, we have adopted the ways of pop culture, with its emphasis on sex and coarseness.

The media have led this descent into the trough, but whenever they are criticized, they point out that sex and adultery abound in the Bible, too. The illicit affair between David and Bathsheba will no doubt be raised in Jackson's defense. But while the Bible does not shirk the facts of life, there is no attempt to titillate the way our pop culture does.

The King James Bible's version of the story of David and Bathsheba takes exactly 114 words. It is told with what Willard Sperry of Harvard calls "a fine reticence." Here is the story in its entirety:

"And it came to pass in an eveningtide, that David arose from off his bed, and walked upon the roof of the king's house: and from the roof he saw a woman washing herself; and the woman was very beautiful to look upon.

And David sent and enquired after the woman. And one said, 'Is it not Bathsheba, the daughter of Eliam, the wife of Uriah the Hittite?'

And David sent messengers, and took her; and she came in unto him, and he lay with her; for she was purified from her uncleanness: and she returned unto her house.

And the woman conceived, and sent and told David, and said, 'I am with child.' (II Samuel 11:2-5).

Compare this economy of words with the explicitness of so much of what we read and see about sex today.

It does take a whole community to raise a child. You must challenge, motivate, discipline a child. Ask yourselves, whose job is it? Yes, we can make this country great by the things we say and do.

Valentine Treats

Staying home can be romantic

Oh, here it is again, this time of the year, when we talk about our relationships — love, true commitment, genuine intimacy, and even working out our differences in an unselfish way. Most of the time we get lost in our everyday circumstances and occurrences, and we blame each other for whatever goes wrong, whether we are being late for work, or simply letting the cat out.

Of course work, cats and agendas are very important to people, so opinions can be original and various, as long as we all remember to fight fair.

Valentines celebrates love coming in more than one package — husbands and wives, mother and daughter, special couples.

It also celebrates spring and the forever blessed new beginning — hope, and faith.

Sitting down for a special dinner is a must-have ritual. What could be more romantic than to have your hand held in a charming evening, feeling more beautiful than ever, surrounded by fragrant, velvety roses?

Candlelight holds a very powerful energy, as it invites soft-spoken words and poetry, and it hides sharp corners in a room while it warms dimensions.

Sure, I suggest dining out and going dancing after dinner if all possible. But, eating at home and cooking (after all cooking must be a labor of love if you would want to do it even for Valentines) could be just the perfect thought.

Here are a few recipes to get you started:

Cream Of Peas With Fresh Mint
2 ounces butter
1 onion
1 chicken stock
1 pound peas
Salt pepper
1 cup heavy cream
1 tablespoon fresh mint finely chopped

Heat the butter in a heavy saucepot over moderately low heat

Add onions and sweat (a culinary term — to just soften) them.

Add stock and bring to a boil. Add peas. Simmer three minutes.

Puree in blender the soup.

Return to simmer. Add additional stock if you need to bring the proper consistency.

Whip the cream until it forms soft peaks. Fold the fresh mint.

Before serving, place a tablespoon of mint cream on top of each portion. Absolutely delicious!
