School board sued by parents

SANFORD — The Seminole County School Board has been sued by the parents of a Lyman High School student who claim their child was injured in a chemistry class.

David G. and Elizabeth Leh as individuals and parents and next friend of C.L., a minor child, filed the suit seeking damages in excess of $15,000.

The suit states on July 25, 1991, C.L. was standing in class when he leaned back against a table and noticed wetness on the table. Neither C.L. nor anyone at the table was working with liquid, the suit alleges. The liquid, believed to be hydrochloric acid, penetrated the student's clothing and he suffered a burn of a chemical nature, permanently scarring and disfiguring the upper thigh/buttock area, according to the suit.

But for the negligence of the Seminole County School Board, its employees, teachers, maintenance personnel or otherwise, the injuries to the plaintiff would not have happened, the suit claims. As a result of the negligence in the maintenance and operations of the chemistry class, the liquid was in a dangerous position and caused the injuries, the plaintiffs contend.

Gambling kingpin on trial

ORLANDO — A former Central Florida gambling kingpin is on trial in federal court charged with supplying drugs to a group that sold them at a Longwood trailer park.

Harlan Blackburn, who turns 74 this month, faces 10 years to life in prison if he is convicted of cocaine-conspiracy and possession charges. He pleaded not guilty.

Blackburn's attorney sought to have the evidence against the defendant thrown out claiming the Seminole City-County Investigative Bureau and DEA agents had no legal justification to stop and search Blackburn's car Dec. 4. Counts also claimed an informant in the case was unreliable.

U.S. District Judge Patricia Fawcett rejected the arguments. Testimony is expected to continue today.

Lake Mary Chamber meeting

Female corpse found

Officials fear body may be missing Longwood woman

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The body of a young woman found in Longwood yesterday afternoon has still not been positively identified although police suspect it may be that of a 20-year-old woman missing for two weeks from her Longwood home.

Diana Lee Murphy, 20, was last seen Sunday, March 21, walking near her home near Longwood's Candyland Park. The body found yesterday in Longdale Industrial Park was about one half mile from Candyland Park.

Murphy was described as 5'5" tall, weighing 110 pounds. She was reportedly wearing a red shirt, jeans, a brown leather jacket and white L.A. Gear tennis shoes.

“The Murphy girl is the only person reported missing in the area to even come close to matching the body that was found.”
—Longwood Police Lt. Butch Yelvington

Longwood Police Lt. Butch Yelvington said, “Most of the clothing on the body was deteriorated, but we believe some of it matched what the Murphy girl was believed to be wearing, while some of it did not.”

“This makes us wonder if this may be an error in Additional charges?

Teacher accused of sex acts with kids remains free on bond

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

SANFORD — Suspended Lakeview Middle School band instructor Stephen Paterson will remain free on bond after a judge denied a motion to increase bond Monday. In an afternoon hearing on the same case, Judge Alan Dickey denied a defense motion to dismiss some counts of the 33-count case opting to have the state provide more specific information about when and where the alleged incidents took place.

So far, Paterson has been charged with a total of 35 first and second degree felonies involving sexual activity with a child in custodial care and lewd and lascivious assault on a child based upon the allegations of two former male band students. Two more cases based on the allegations of two additional former male students of Paterson's are expected to be filed by assistant state attorney Stewart Stone, “possibly by Friday.” The hearings Monday dealt with one case. A motion to dismiss hearing in the second pending case charging two counts of lewd and lascivious assault on another youth is scheduled Thursday before Judge O.H. Eaton Jr.

During the bond hearing, Stone argued conviction on all or some of

Teens to answer bomb charges

LONGWOOD — Two Lyman High School students will appear in court today to answer to a Longwood police charge that they exploded a homemade pipe bomb at their school Friday night.

The two students face charges of making, possessing and discharging an explosive device. They were arrested by Longwood police during the night between Saturday and Sunday following an intensive investigation.

“Basically, we were constantly at the scene,” said Longwood investigator Stephanie Ryan.

The youths' names are not being released, but Ryan said one boy is 16 and from the unincorporated Lake Mary-Longwood area and the other boy is 17 and from the unincorporated Altamonte Springs area.

The explosion left an estimated $1,000 in damage to toilet and stall and a badly shaken Donald Schmaus, school band director. Though he was left spattered in porcelain dust and water from the toilet, Schmaus was otherwise un-

Extradition hearing set

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — An extradition hearing for the man suspected of shooting his ex-wife in the Lake Mary Center parking lot is scheduled Wednesday in Rochester, N.Y. and his local attorney has filed a motion for protection to be heard the same day.

Assistant public defender Gary Andersen filed the motion for San Francisco Goungo in Seminole County to preserve his rights under the Florida and United States Constitutions.

Goungo, 42, was arrested in Rochester, N.Y. a few days after allegedly shooting his ex-wife, Matilda Ferrer as she and Hector Rivera Ruiz stopped to shop at a Lake Mary supermarket. Ruiz told police the pair were about to get out of their car when Goungo parked his 1978 white Cadillac directly behind Ruiz's vehicle and walked to the passenger side. Ruiz said Goungo fired one shot at him and then fired twice at Ferrer, hitting her in the head. Goungo, who had been visiting Florida, fled the scene and was captured in Rochester.

Ferrer was air lifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center where she died.

Goungo faces a first degree murder charge. Circuit Judge O.H. Eaton Jr. appointed Andersen to represent Goungo over objections from the state that the defendant was not yet in the court's jurisdiction.

Longwood official seeks Winter Springs post

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Longwood City Administrator James McFellin is one of about 100 applicants seeking the job of Winter Springs city manager.

McFellin said he has no plans to leave Longwood until he has another job. He did not say he had submitted an application for the Winter Springs post but a check with a personnel official turned up his name.

Longwood's eighth administrator in as many years, McFellin has been with the city less than a year. During his tenure, he has had some public disagreements with Longwood Mayor Paul Lovestrاند and other members of the city commission over his management style.

At a recent meeting, commission member Steve Miller told McFellin the commission appoints an acting administrator to take care of city business if the administrator is out of town. In addition, commission members suggested McFellin request days off instead of just issuing a memo to commissioners when he was going to be gone. McFellin, who had appointed city clerk Jeri Zambri to act in his place, apologized but noted the procedure had been followed in the past. While acting as administrator, Zambri was away from city hall prompting Lovestrاند to question, who was in charge if there was a problem.

Lovestrاند noted McFellin “actually asked” for six days off over the Easter holiday and the commission appointed finance director Dan McNutt as acting administrator.

Although Lovestrاند claims he has never said McFellin should be fired, he commented, “I have said that I have lost confidence in him.” He said if the other commissioners feel the same, maybe they will make a motion to that effect.

There is not a consensus on the commission. “For

Accountant, others file false returns

TAMPA — An accountant was charged with preparing false tax returns and 28 others were charged with filing phony returns by computer, U.S. Attorney Robert Gensman said.

A 13-count indictment unsealed Monday charged Allen D. Powerstein of Romeo with causing a $1.8 million loss to the Internal Revenue Service through fraudulent tax-related activities.

He was accused of trying to obstruct the tax laws between 1985 and July 1989, eight counts of preparing false returns, three counts of tax evasion and one of publishing a false power of attorney to the IRS.

The indictment alleges Powerstein would prepare individual returns for 20-to-50 percent of the refund and create phony W-2 forms. The 58-year-old certified public accountant also was accused of evading more than $137,000 in income taxes between 1987 and 1989.

Also in Jacksonville, 17 people were charged with various tax filing offenses. And in Tampa 11 others were charged with making false tax refund claims or conspiracy to make false refund claims.

Navy mum on museum probe

PENSACOLA — The Navy has refused to disclose the results of an investigation of the National Museum of Naval Aviation and how it trades planes and other items.

But the museum's director said the facility faces no enforcement action, and the owner of a Jacksonville aircraft refurbishing company said it has been cleared of any wrongdoing.

The Navy turned down a request from the Pensacola News Journal for investigation results under the Freedom of Information Act, stating that disclosure may interfere with enforcement proceedings, the newspaper reported Monday.

The denial did not say what type of action may be taken or the target of such action.

The museum at the Pensacola Naval Air Station implemented some changes on its own and others were ordered by the Naval Air Training Command. The Navy had barred the museum from making any trades from March through September of last year.

Jury deliberations recessed

MIAMI — A judge recessed jury deliberations in the racketeering trial of four former Dade County judges for a week.

U.S. District Judge Jose Gonzales took the action Monday after one juror got the chicken pox and another, who is pregnant and expecting her baby April 13, asked to be excused early on Thursday to see her doctor.

Monday would have been the panel's 13th day of deliberations in the case dubbed by federal agents "Operation Court Broom." Jurors got the case March 11, but there have been frequent interruptions due to holidays, other court business and the illness of one defendant.

Under ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court, a verdict can be returned by 11 jurors, at the discretion of the court, but a ruling cannot be handed down by any fewer jurors.

The defendants are charged with racketeering, conspiracy and extortion. They include: former Dade Circuit Judge Alfonso Sepe, 66; suspended Circuit Judge Phillip Davis, 58; suspended Dade County Judge Harvey Shenberg, 49; and former Dade Circuit Judge David Goodhart, 63.

Escaped inmate back in jail

PENSACOLA — An inmate whose escape from the Escambia County Jail went unnoticed for 24 hours has been recaptured and returned to face an escape charge.

Oriando Peoples, 24, a former Pensacola bomber, was awaiting transfer to a state prison to begin serving a 40-year sentence for armed robbery last Nov. 7 when he vanished.

Peoples hid in the jail exercise yard and then hoisted himself onto a basketball goal mounted on a 90-foot, barbed wire-topped wall and managed to climb over it, authorities said.

Thirteen headcounts were conducted before jailers realized he was missing. As a result, six jail employees and a sheriff's dispatcher were disciplined, and basketball goals were removed from the wall.

Peoples was recaptured Jan. 16 in Rochester, N.Y., and returned to Florida.

Chemist finds way to extract drug

GAINESVILLE — A University of Florida researcher says he has discovered a better way to extract a cancer-fighting drug from the bark of the endangered Pacific yew tree.

Dr. K.V. Rao, a chemist at the University of Florida, is getting a patent for a process that uses taxol-related compounds found in the bark of the yew. He said he has been able to produce five to 10 times more taxol per pound of bark than can be produced using established methods.

It takes the bark of about 12,000 trees to produce only 2½ pounds of the drug.

Rosewood massacre

Black caucus leader still fighting for 1923 raid study

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — The fight to get $50,000 to study a 1923 raid that wiped out a black community isn't over, the head of the Legislative Black Caucus said.

A small sign marks where Rosewood stood east of Cedar Key, off Florida's Gulf coast, until a mob and the Ku Klux Klan burned the town after a white woman said she had been attacked by a black man.

An unknown number of people were killed in the massacre, which was widely ignored in the segregation-era South.

But surviving members of the families involved lived in fear for decades, afraid that if they talked authorities would do nothing and the Klan would kill them, according to Rep. Al Lawson, who has met with children and grandchildren of Rosewood victims.

The issue was revived in the Legislature this year after two elderly cousins, thought to be the sole surviving residents of Rosewood, came forth to get the story in the state's history books. A legislative proposal to compensate them evolved into a plan to set aside $50,000 to find survivors and heirs of the massacre.

"We can resolve the issues on dogs and monkeys and everything else, ostriches, but when it comes down to human beings — especially when you're poor — we seem to have a problem," Lawson, chairman of the Legislative Black Caucus, said Sunday.

Last week, lawmakers worked on greyhound racing, rescue of monkeys near Silver Springs and ownership of ostriches.

Although the House approved Lawson's bill, the Senate added it onto an education bill that would have spent technology money on teachers' salaries, according to Kathy Putnam, a spokeswoman for House Speaker Bolley "Bo" Johnson, D-Milton.

That killed the measure, Putnam said. However, Johnson has told staff to try to find $50,000 for the study out of the House's $4.5 million budget, Putnam said.

Lawson, D-Tallahassee, said he'll ask Gov.

Lawton Chiles to keep the issue alive. Chiles believes there should be a "full accounting and investigation into the incident," said spokeswoman Jo Miglino.

But he wants to keep lawmakers focused on prison construction and reform of the workers' compensation system when he calls them back into special session, Miglino said. Lawmakers can add the massacre study to the agenda with a two-thirds vote, she added.

The Black Caucus will make a top priority of the Rosewood study, which could lead to compensation of survivors and heirs of victims who lost family homes in the raid, according to Lawson.

Too many white politicians now want to condemn past events, saying they should never happen again — and then forget the whole thing, Lawson said.

Besides the study, the bill called for placement of a monument to Rosewood residents and a handful of whites who tried to help them.

Wings spread wide at Sanford air show

Two of the largest aircraft to ever visit Sanford were among the displays at the air show this past weekend at the Central Florida Regional Airport. Private aircraft (above) were dwarfed by the size of their military companion, the C-5A Galaxy. Vietnam veterans' reunion

Over 100,000 expected to attend event

By Associated Press

MELBOURNE — Gary Smith and Britt Small were buddies during the war in Vietnam, but lost track of each other afterward.

"He was one of my partners, but I didn't see him for 17 years after we left 'Nam," Smith said.

Then, seven years ago, Smith got a letter from his ex-wife. She had heard that Small and his band would be performing at a Vietnam veterans reunion in Nebraska.

Smith went to the gathering and was reunited with Small. Not long after, the two decided Florida should host a similar event every year. Smith met with Brevard County Vietnam veterans and together they planned the first reunion. Only 500 people showed up.

But this year, more than 100,000 are expected to attend the sixth annual Florida Vietnam Veterans Reunion scheduled for April 19-25 in Melbourne.

"Until I went to that reunion in Nebraska, I had never told people that I was a Vietnam veteran," said Smith, 46.

"I know there are Vietnam veterans out there who are the same way and we want them to come to this reunion and find out that there are people who do care for them and about them."

During the Melbourne reunion, a half-size replica of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, called The Moving Wall, will be on display.

"The reunion is designed to honor the 58,156 men and women who gave their lives in the Vietnam War and to honor all those who made it back," Smith said.

Shots fired

Lake Mary police arrested Carlo Frank Fanto, 49, 140 Myrtle Road in Lake Mary Saturday. Officers responded when they reported hearing a number of gunshots. When they arrived, they said four persons, seen standing in front of the house, ran indoors. After officers entered the home, Fanto was found to have a 9 mm semi-automatic handgun. A computer check revealed he had two previous convictions. He was charged with possession of a firearm by a convicted felon.

Brick thrown

Sanford police arrested Rodney Lee Woodson, 35, of 1802 W. 12th Street on Sunday. Officers said he had been involved in a fight with another man, and reportedly threw a brick into the man's car as he attempted to leave. Woodson was charged with aggravated battery, and throwing a deadly missile into a vehicle.

Domestic violence

● Earl Thomas McKinnon, 22, 2580 Frog Alley, Sanford, was arrested by sheriff's deputies at his residence Saturday. He was said to have been involved in a dispute with his mother and sister. He was charged with assault, domestic violence.
● Paula Louise Winstead, 28, of 915 Settlers Loop, Sanford, and Barbara Ann Berube, 51, of Geneva, were arrested at 3730 E. S.R. 46 Sunday following a dispute. Each was charged with battery, domestic violence.

Warrant arrests made

● Charlene Williams, 24, 11 Lake Monroe Terrace, was arrested at her residence by sheriff's deputies Friday. She was wanted for violation of parole on a conviction of obtaining property with a worthless check.
● Beroy Scott, 30, 2341 W. 18th Street, Sanford, was arrested by sheriff's deputies at his residence Friday. He was wanted for violation of parole on a conviction of battery.
● Kenneth Batton, 23, 588 Geneva Lane, Sanford, was arrested by sheriff's deputies Friday. He was wanted for violation of parole on a conviction of loitering and prowling.
● Anthony Williams, 32, 2590 Bird Avenue, Sanford, was arrested at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Friday. He was wanted for failing to appear on a charge of driving with a suspended license.
● Michele L. Keenan, 23, 2837 Sun Lake Loop, Lake Mary, was arrested in the parking lot of Med Plex by Lake Mary police Saturday. She was wanted on two Volusia County warrants.

Incidents reported to the sheriff

● A check in the amount of $303 was reportedly stolen from a piled open mailbox Saturday, in the 2000 block of W. 18th Street.
● A 10 speed bike valued at $100 was reportedly stolen Wednesday, from behind a home in the 800 block of Lake Mary Blvd.
● An 8 hp. blower, valued at $550, was reportedly stolen from a warehouse in Varsity Courts, Longwood. The incident, reported Friday, was believed to have taken place between March 9 and 11.
● $1,200 in currency and $300 in jewelry was reportedly stolen Friday from a residence in the 4000 block of McKay Street, Lake Monroe. Deputies said entrance was apparently gained through an unsecured window.
● Two TVs and other electronic equipment valued at $3,850, were reportedly stolen Thursday from a home in the 100 block of Center Road, Sanford.
● A purse containing $150 was reportedly stolen from an unsecured vehicle in a parking lot in the 3700 block of E. S.R. 46 on Thursday.

Incidents reported to Sanford police

● Jewelry and a shotgun were reported missing on Sunday from a home in the 300 block of Dogwood. The items were believed to have been taken between Feb. 1 and April 4.
● $1,355 in electronic equipment was reportedly stolen Sunday from a home in the 1700 block of Peralmon Avenue.
● Jewelry and a tool box were reportedly stolen Sunday from an apartment in the 700 block of Magnolia Ave.
● A dirt bike was reportedly stolen from an apartment Sunday, in the 100 block of Randolph Court.
● A gold watch and $12 in cash were reportedly stolen from a vehicle owned by a Geneva man, in a parking lot at a S. Sanford shopping center. The man told police the theft apparently occurred between Mar. 31 and April 1.
● An explosive device was reported at 8:29 a.m. Sunday at the rear of a building in the 100 block of Palmetto Ave. Police said the device exploded in the alley, with no damage reported.
● A three wheeled motorcycle was found behind a residence in the 1200 block of W. 18th Street in Sanford on Sunday. Police checks revealed the motorcycle had not been listed as having been stolen.
● A digital pager was reportedly stolen Sunday, from an unsecured pickup truck at a restaurant in the 3700 block of S. Orlando Drive.
● Two rings with a total value of $385 were reportedly stolen during the week of Mar. 22, from an antique business in the 300 block of E. First Street. The theft was reported on Saturday.

MIAMI — South Florida's bad-boy, "Miami Vice" image helped make it the tourist mecca for sun followers around the globe. Now that image — brought to life by deadly attacks on foreign tourists — may keep visitors and their dollars away.

"I would imagine that all this negative publicity is going to have some kind of negative input," said Miami Commissioner Charles Duseau before being briefed Monday by Gov. Lawton Chiles on the state's plans to combat the attacks.

More than 300,000 Germans visited Florida last year.

Duseau, a member of Chile's Task Force on Visitor Safety, said the deaths of seven foreign tourists this season is the cruel irony of life imitating art.

"That was part of the allure, entrenching this little beach town with some dumpy hotels in this image. People wouldn't be coming here if it wasn't for that image."

Chiles said he wants the image to vanish after a brutal killing of a German tourist here Friday. He said he will ask for federal assistance in prosecuting crimes against visitors traveling in vehicles.

He said he would ask U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno, a former prosecutor in Miami, whether such crimes fall under the new federal carjacking statute.

"I think we are talking about a federal crime, not only against our citizens, but against foreign visitors," he said.

Chiles didn't know what aid, if any, the state could expect if Reno said the crime spree fell under federal jurisdiction.

Moments after the governor spoke, three Danish women were victimized in a smash-and-grab robbery nearby. There were no injuries.

Such attacks are fueling headlines overseas and in Canada. The Bild newspaper, Germany's most widely read daily, proclaimed in a front-page headline: "Florida: Hunting German Tourists."

Barbara Jensen Meiler became at least the seventh foreign visitor — the third from Germany — to be killed in a crime-related incident in Florida this tourist season. Several others have been shot or wounded throughout the state.

Meiler became lost in her rental vehicle shortly after arriving at the airport and was struck from behind by her would-be assailants. She was attacked when she emerged from the vehicle to inspect the damage while her mother and two young children watched.

The medical examiner listed the cause of death as a crushing head injury caused when the assailants drove over her.

Chiles met with the safety task force after Meiler's death. Chris Jar Jensen, wife of the slain tourist, said Sunday she was looking for her husband's killers and said nobody warned them

"the streets were dangerous."

Chiles, however, said Germans need to know that Miami — like any big metropolitan city — has crime and that travelers need to beware.

"There is terrorism all over the world," he said. "Germany is not exempt from it."

Plans by Chiles and tourism officials to find ways to keep foreign visitors safe pleased German Consul General Klaus Sommer who said that, for now, he wouldn't call on Germans to curtail travel to the Sunshine State.

Sommer said 1,200 Germans a year come to him after being victimized by crime in the state.

Tourism pumps in $28 billion into the state's economy every year.

Germans are lured to Florida by relatively cheap package trips. German public schools are now on Easter vacation, sending families to Disney World and other popular U.S. destinations.

The governor extended an executive order 60 days to stop issuing the special rental car plates.

And local officials unveiled new street signs with international symbols to direct tourists to beaches and the airport, as well as a plan to set up visitor-direction centers at fast-food outlets and other popular attractions by July 1.

Jurors likely to start deliberating on Easter Sunday

By LINDA DEUTSCH
AP Special Correspondent

LOS ANGELES — Jurors in the Rodney King beating trial are likely to start deliberating the fate of the four accused police officers this weekend, the judge said.

The schedule set Monday by U.S. District Judge John G. Davies called for closing arguments through Saturday. Davies said he expected deliberations to begin Sunday, telling jurors to let him know if they would need time off to attend Easter services.

"The courthouse will be available to you all day Saturday and all day Sunday," Davies told the panel. "It would be best if we can get as much time out of the weekend as possible."

Meanwhile, the defense continued its challenge of an 11th-hour bid by federal prosecutors to play a potentially incriminating videotape of Officer Theodore Briseno's testimony in the officers' earlier state trial.

Lawyers were ordered back to court early today to thrash out legal objections before final prosecution rebuttal evidence is presented.

A federal appeals court refused to intercede Monday, leaving the issue to be resolved by Davies.

Defense lawyers claim that Briseno was exposed to statements which his codefendants gave to the Los Angeles Police Department under threat of dismissal before they were criminally charged.

Those statements are not allowed to be used in court against officers, and trial prosecutors are not allowed to see them.

Sgt. Stacey Koon, Officer Laurence Powell and former Officer Timothy Wind gave such compelled statements. Briseno — who broke ranks with his colleagues in the first trial and testified against them — never gave one.

He changed strategy for the current trial and did not testify.

The videotape, more than two hours long, includes Briseno's statement that he saw Powell bash King in the head repeatedly. The beating, recorded by an amateur cameraman, was broadcast worldwide.

Acquittals last April in the officers' previous trial triggered deadly riots in Los Angeles.

A federal grand jury later indicted the officers on new charges of violating King's civil rights by using excessive force to beat, kick and shock him with an electronic stun gun.

Dahmer testifies boy had drill hole in skull when cops found him

By ANTHONY SHADID
Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE — Serial killer Jeffrey Dahmer testified he had already injected diluted acid into a boy's skull once when police found the teenager wandering dazed and naked in the street.

A second injection after officers left the 14-year-old with him killed the youth, Dahmer told lawyers taking depositions Monday in a lawsuit filed by relatives of the slain boy.

The family of Konerak Sintoanphone is suing the city and three police officers, including two who were fired over the incident. The third officer, a rookie, was put on probation for a year. The lawsuit seeks unspecified damages.

Neighbors who called police in May 1991 told officers the naked youth was a boy and that he was bleeding. Dahmer convinced police Sintoanphone was an adult and his lover.

"The story I used was he was a house guest, a friend who sometimes drinks too much and runs out in the street naked," Dahmer testified.

Dahmer later described how, after drugging some of his victims, he would drill a tiny hole into their skulls "just enough to open a passageway to the brain." He said he then injected hydrochloric acid to induce a "zombie-like state."

His testimony indicated police failed to spot the hole he had drilled in the youth's skull. After the officers left, he said he gave the boy another injection that killed him.

What's in a name?

Air Show Orlando, held in Sanford, was considered a success this past weekend. The two-day event with the Blue Angels and Red Barons went off smoothly, thrilling thousands of spectators.

Judging from an estimated 30,000 persons per day who attended the show, it was probably a profitable weekend.

The facilities at the Central Florida Regional Airport were very adequate. Long air strips and recently improved taxiways were more than suitable for the large and fast aircraft.

With the name given to the event, it was not surprising that many people had difficulty finding the location. Many visitors commented on the confusion caused by having the name "Orlando" given to the air show.

Promoters said the identification of Orlando was necessary because of a marketing concept that would more clearly identify where the show was held, for advertising in various areas of the southeastern U.S.

During a previous editorial, we objected to the use of the name "Orlando" for a Sanford event. Many persons may have agreed, but few leaders openly voiced any complaints.

Let it be known: The Central Florida Regional Airport is located in the city of Sanford. The Airport Authority receives financing from the city. Mail to airport industries goes through Sanford.

Why was this name change allowed to be used? Did someone annex the airport to Orlando without us knowing it? Was the facility moved in the middle of the night?

The Seminole County Chamber of Commerce should have asked for the Sanford connection. The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, City of Sanford, Seminole County Commission, and Airport Authority should have all demanded that the airport be properly identified.

It should have been officially required before any permits or agreements were finalized.

The show presented in Sanford this past weekend was held at the Daytona Beach airport in 1992. It wasn't given an improper identity then, and should not have been this year.

Next year, we hope the air show will return again to Sanford. It brought many people into the area, and helped in the local economy.

Such an event requires approval by many governing bodies. We urge each of them to do so, but only with an agreement that Sanford be included in the name.

Strong headline

Reference the Wednesday, March 31, 1993, edition of the Sanford Herald.

While I agree that the information in the article by Mark Barfield is newsworthy and should be reported, the headline, "Crime Capital: Sanford," is, in my opinion, a bit strong.

The information in the article covers all of Seminole County, not just Sanford. Using just the information in the article, a few other possible headlines come to mind: "Perceivable sex crimes up dramatically in Longwood," or "Lake Mary police receive only 11.3 percent of crimes," or "Property crimes up countywide." My point is, why select Sanford for the singular honor of being mentioned in your headline when any other city mentioned in the article or the county for that matter, could just as easily have been used? Why not a more informative headline such as "New county crime statistics released: little improvement shown"?

As to Sanford being the "Crime Capital," using only the information presented in the article, that assertion is open for discussion. For instance, both Casselberry and Lake Mary police departments had lower crime resolution rates than Sanford. Property related crimes in the county accounted for 81 percent of the reported crimes. In Lake Mary, 83 percent; in Longwood, 85 percent; and in Sanford, 80 percent. Sex crimes, while they were up in the county, Lake Mary and Longwood, were down in Sanford. Statistics can be and are interpreted differently by different people and therein lies the problem when reporting them. They should be presented in a professional, logical manner without any attempt by the reporter to analyze them for the reader.

Please do not misunderstand. The fact that I am "pro" Sanford does not mean that I do not recognize that Sanford has problems, but so does the county, the other cities in the county, the state, and the nation. Our job, as citizens and business people, is to do all we can to identify the problems and then help our law enforcement people in any way we can, and then to "demand" that our elected officials provide the training, equipment, and personnel needed by "our" police department to do their job in the most professional and efficient manner possible.

Clinton's jobs package is iffy at best

They may call it what they like — an "economic stimulus" package or a "jobs bill." But the $16.3 billion in "emergency" spending that President Clinton proposes, and the Democratic Congress seems only too happy to oblige, has the redolence of pork.

The American people are to be forgiven if they do not see how spending $1.5 million to produce fish atlases or $800,000 for a white-water canoeing course in Atlanta has much to do with stimulating the national economy. Or how spending $5 million for a parking garage in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., or $1 million for a municipal cemetery in Puerto Rico will create more than a handful of jobs.

If President Clinton truly means to prime the economic pump and get the American job machine up and chugging again, he could not have devised a more costly and inefficient way of doing so. If we accept the president's projection that his package will generate 219,000 new jobs (100,000 fewer than the administration estimated just a month ago), each new job will cost the taxpayers about $75,000.

This would not be such a bad thing if all or most of the jobs created were full time and permanent and paying middle-class salaries. But they will be anything but, Leon Panetta, the president's budget chief, says the 219,000 figure are "full-time equivalent" jobs.

For the benefit of readers outside the Beltway who do not understand the foreign language that Washington bureaucrats speak, this is what "full-time equivalent" means: It's two or three part-time jobs, which, taken together, are equivalent to one full-time job.

The funny thing is, these are precisely the kinds of jobs — the part-time and temporary variety — that the president's labor secretary, Robert Reich, disparaged earlier this month when commenting on the 365,000 new jobs the economy managed to produce without the president's stimulus. Wonder what Reich thinks about the make-work jobs that his boss wants to create.

He could not have devised a more costly and inefficient way of doing so.

Indeed, of the 219,000 full-time equivalent jobs that the president's stimulus is supposed to gin up, 65 percent will be summertime gigs for school kids and Head Start teachers. The rest of the jobs will come from infrastructure spending and, again, from building parking garages and cemeteries. This time next year, most of these new jobs no longer will exist.

Clinton is returning to the failed policies of the past. History shows that the government does a lousy job of creating permanent jobs. Maybe he would have learned this lesson if his people had placed in front of him the General Accounting Office report on the "Emergency Jobs Act of 1983," which is similar to the president's stimulus package.

The 1983 jobs bill cost $9 billion, and the number of jobs attributed to it peaked at 35,000 in June 1984. Of the lucky souls who actually got one of the government-created jobs, two-thirds were already employed. The net effect on national employment levels was virtually nil. Yet, here we are, a decade later, and another president is trying to artificially create jobs.

The best way for the government to put people to work is to create a climate conducive to job creation. Reduce taxes on business. Pare unnecessary regulations. When Ronald Reagan did that he precipitated the longest peacetime economic expansion in American history.

Stranger in a strange land

OCALA, Fla. — I am currently a prisoner in one of the most bizarre corners of the country. I speak of Florida, "land of the flowers" to the Spanish explorers who thrashed about it in search of a fountain whose waters would endow them with eternal youth.

Wonder what they would name it now? The place still teems with flowers, of course, but the radiant flora compete for the eye's attention with so many more unique attractions. And just to make sure you don't miss any of them, the landscape is lit with neon and planted with billboards directing you to them.

First, you got your quariums. As in aquariums, gulfariums, seaquariums and serpentariums. Then you got your jungles, as in Orchid Jungle, Parrot Jungle and Monkey Jungle. Choose carefully and you might even find a jungle in which you can grab a jeep safari ride into the wilds for a close look at such indigenous wildlife as giraffes, zebras and ostriches.

Then you got your lands, as in Marineland and Ostorland. And your many worlds, as in Seaworld, Reptile World, Butterfly World and that Big Enchilada of worlds, Disney World. If you grow weary of quariums, jungles, lands and worlds, there's always the Tupperware Museum in Kissimmee.

I mean, this place is a trip. You notice this the moment you cross the St. Mary's River from Georgia and pass the aging orange sedan with the rumbly muffler and black-tinted windows which, judging from the "Daytona or Bust" banner, contains a half dozen spring breakers. You notice it again when you stop for the evening and hear stories of drunken college students scaling 40-foot fake walls for fun and donning inflatable sumo wrestling suits to do battle with colleagues.

When you hit Key West, you know for sure you are in a strange land. I say this with deep respect, as I regard this funky paradise at the end of the highway as one of the true wonders of the world. But if you have been tripping the Yellowbrick Road in search of Oz, all you have to do is join the throng that gathers each evening at Mallory Square Dock to view the sunset to know that you have reached your destination. If the Cookie Lady isn't hint enough, check out the Caribbean contortionist or the guy with the cats that jump through hoops or especially the silver-painted dude in the toga who does the statue act.

Back north you go, past the Everglades into Sarasota and St. Petersburg, and finally to Ocala, which is where, thanks to a family medical emergency, I became a prisoner.

No problem, I thought. I'll just go to the front desk of my motel and extend my stay. Sorry, the clerk says. The town is being taken over by — ready for this — a gang of middle-aged motorcyclists. No rooms for miles around.

I search out my antagonists and discover two things: They are not unique to Florida, and they are extraordinarily nice people. The Gold Wing Road Riders Association, they call themselves — 50,000 owners of Honda Gold Wing touring motorcycles ("made in Marysville, Ohio," they quickly point out), 1,400 of whom are holding an annual state gathering in Ocala the very weekend I am in desperate need of a motel room.

If you have never wandered into a large pack of follically challenged, weight-disadvantaged bikers, let me tell you it is a breathtaking sight. They all ride the big Gold Wings, many of them equipped with radio, tape deck, CB and, yes, cellular telephone. They emphasize family values, safety education and the importance of not mixing alcohol and gasoline. The booze-and-broads Harley crowd doesn't appreciate them. I did.

Meeting the Wings almost salvaged my week in Ocala and changed my mind about this penitentiary state. But then I ran into a well-dressed man strolling down a motel corridor carrying a steaming hot Oriental Beef and Vegetables TV dinner — at seven in the morning. "Interesting breakfast," I said. "I don't like eggs," he growled.

What we can do about prejudice?

On a recent television program, I heard former Harvard law professor Derrick Bell, author of "Faces at the Bottom of the Well: The Permanence of Racism," talk about why he believes racism is so pervasive we will probably never get over it. Before a child is old enough to hear a parent say we're all equal, Bell says, he has already intuited the hierarchy of racism acted out all around him.

A few days later, I heard Oliver North defend remarks made at a Republican roast for former congressman Stan Parris of Virginia. North insisted fellow roasters Charles Black and Virginia State Sen. Warren E. Barry had not made racist statements, nor had he slurred gays when he quipped that he couldn't get a call through to the White House until he lisped. "Ekacuthe me," Black had said. President Clinton wanted to include the words "Don we now our gay apparel!" in the Marine Corps hymn. Barry had referred to Clinton's "fags-in-the-foxhole" policy, and also had joked that Parris' dispute with black District of Columbia officials over a bridge had led Parris to call it "the longest bridge in the world because it connects Virginia to Africa."

North concluded that all this clucking over just plain fun was nothing more than continued efforts by the liberal press to ruin his reputation. Black told reporters that his remarks were meant only as "good humor, not to offend." Barry said nothing.

My Republican friends were pretty piqued at the remarks and believed the GOP had been handed a big setback in the "I am not a bigot" department. I patted them and said I knew they were wonderful folks, and appreciated the efforts they'd made to put some distance between the elephant and the Duke-Buchanan circus.

But personally, I was just darn glad that if people like North, Barry and Black really feel this way about blacks and gays, they're at least courteous enough to say so. All of them have run or are thinking about running for public office, and I'd rather they'd fly their colors publicly than try to bury their doodle like David Duke.

And I'm not surprised that North, Black and Barry don't see anything offensive in their remarks. Before you can eradicate racism, you have to understand what it is, and they don't. Bell puts it this way: It's not that they're evil. It's just that they can't see.

"This is a society based on ownership and property and wealth, and most people don't have any," Bell says. "What most whites do have is a white skin, and they use that as kind of a property right to identify with those up on the top ... they keep looking down to make sure (blacks) are down at the bottom and never question those people at the top."

I think recognizing racism takes a certain level of learning that many of us never reach. So if racism is so insidious, so difficult for some people to understand even when they're equal in the middle of engaging in it, what do we do about it?

I'll have to admit I was stumped at this until recently when I was talking to two 19-year-olds about the subject. One said she just refused to listen to any kind of racial joke or remark. She might not teach them about racism, but at least she'd leave them no choice but to think.

The other young woman said she was training herself to absolutely refuse to think about a person's skin color or ethnic origin. She looked instead to other characteristics — personality, ideals, ways of relating to others.

On the long road leading away from racism, I can think of a lot worse ways to start.

Before you can eradicate racism, you have to understand what it is, and they don't.

Discovery countdown halted 11 seconds before launch

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — Space shuttle Discovery was loaded up and ready to go today on a mission to study the Earth's protective ozone layer, but with only seconds left before liftoff the computers said no.

Computer data indicated a valve had not closed. NASA engineer Stuart McClung said if the shuttle had blasted off with the valve open, hydrogen fuel could have spilled out of the orbiter and ignited, causing an explosion.

He added, however, that engineers think the valve did close properly, despite the computer readings, and that a bad circuit might be to blame.

This is the second time in two weeks that a shuttle countdown has ended abruptly in the final few seconds before launch. Columbia's main engines shut down three seconds before liftoff on March 22.

Discovery's three main engines were less than five seconds away from igniting this morning when on-board computers detected a problem with the valve in the main propulsion system. The countdown had stopped automatically with 11 seconds to go.

"The system worked just like it was supposed to — again," McClung said.

The four men and one woman aboard Discovery appeared frustrated and forced smiles as they emerged from the shuttle about 45 minutes after the countdown stopped.

"It was a noble attempt," launch controller James Toohy told the astronauts. "We'll see you another day."

Deputy shuttle director Brewster Shaw another launch attempt could come as early as Thursday should the problem simply require a change in computer programming.

But if technicians have to enter the engine compartment for repairs, liftoff could be delayed until next week, Shaw said.

"We've had a couple of relatively minor hardware problems, which is to be expected in a program of this complexity," a testy Shaw told reporters. "We'll deal with those and then we'll go fly."

Immediately after the countdown was halted, NASA sprayed water up at Discovery's three main engines to keep them cool and began draining the more than 500,000 gallons of fuel from the external tank.

Just hours before Discovery's countdown ended in failure, shuttle director Thomas Utaman acknowledged that NASA has "hit a surge of problems" in recent weeks.

"What's behind it?" he asked, throwing up his hands. "Human factor?"

Discovery was supposed to lift off at 1:32 a.m. EDT, but NASA held the clock at the nine-minute mark for an hour because of high crosswinds and a problem with a temperature sensor for an engine valve.

Despite Air Force reports that the crosswinds still exceeded safety limits, launch officials resumed the countdown after resolving the sensor problem and were stunned when the countdown clocks automatically stopped 11 seconds before liftoff.

Only one shuttle has gone into orbit so far in 1993, a year in which NASA had planned to fly eight missions. Columbia's science mission was pushed into late April after last month's aborted takeoff.

Discovery's eight-day flight was to be the second in a series of atmospheric research projects by NASA.

Scientists fear the stratospheric ozone layer, a shield against dangerous ultraviolet rays, is being consumed by human-made pollutants and possibly volcanic gases.

It was unclear how the delay would affect the experiments; scientists wanted to launch as early as possible in April for optimal ozone measurements.

A nighttime launch of Discovery was essential for catching sunrises at the northern latitudes, the best time for measuring ozone there. NASA had launched shuttles in darkness only seven times before.

NASA established an investigative board last month to review recent shuttle problems, starting with an equipment mix-up in February involving seal retainers for engine pumps, Utaman said. Engine maker Rocketdyne, a division of Rockwell International, also formed an investigative team.

Their findings are expected later this month.

Charges

The 33 counts brings an increased likelihood of prison time and increases the risk that Paterson will flee the court's jurisdiction to avoid prosecution.

Judge Dickey denied a state's motion to increase Paterson's $10,000 bond, noting numerous times when Paterson had appeared in court since his arrest in February, even when he did not have to.

Stone noted that the $10,000 bond was set by Judge O.H. Eaton based on the arrest rather than the formal 33-count charge. Seven of the counts are first degree felonies of engaging in sexual activities with a child in custodial care and the remaining 26 counts are second degree felonies of lewd and lascivious assault upon a child.

Paterson's attorney, J. Cheney Mason, argued that the sheer number of counts meant nothing with regard to setting bond. He added some of the charges were duplicates even triplicates which he would seek to have dismissed at a 3 p.m. hearing. The judge did not dismiss any of the charges. Mason said Paterson will not flee while he is out of jail on bond. Mason noted that Paterson is a property owner with a job, he holds no passport and has consistently appeared in court. Paterson appeared at the hearing to increase his bond.

Following the court hearing, Mason refused to state where Paterson is employed saying tersely, "Do your own work. I have no comment to the press. That is something we don't do."

Paterson is suspended without pay from his teaching job. The Seminole County School Board delayed terminating Paterson in early March after the 10-year teaching veteran requested a hearing officer from the state be appointed.

A "For Sale" sign hangs in the front yard of Paterson's three bedroom cream-colored stucco house with blue-gray trim on a quiet Lake Mary subdivision street. The house went on the market in March listed with Stratford Properties, Inc., Longwood. Paterson said, "No comment," when asked before Monday's hearing if he had any prospective buyers.

The father of one of the alleged victims, whose charges are expected to be filed soon, expressed regret that Paterson's bond was not raised at Monday's hearing. Speaking before television cameras, asking that his face be obscured and his name not used, the father said, "I'm very disappointed the bond was not increased today." The youth's mother was shaking as she left the courtroom.

The parents of a fourth youth, who was involved in an investigation of Paterson over two years ago, also attended the hearing. Charges based on their son's allegations are scheduled to be filed later this week.

Inflexibility of teen-age parent programs keeps some moms out

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — State auditors have recommended more flexible attendance rules for the state's teen-age parent program after a survey showed existing restrictions are causing some students to drop out.

The recommendation was part of a performance audit by the state Auditor General's Office of the $31.5 million program administered by the Department of Education.

The program is intended to prevent teen parents from dropping out by providing child care, transportation, health care, social services and educational services.

The latter includes courses needed for graduation and in parenting skills, prenatal and postnatal care, the benefits of sexual abstinence and consequences of subsequent pregnancies.

Not all services, however, are available in all districts.

Auditors surveyed 328 teen parents who participated in 1990-91, including 240 who had graduated or were still enrolled last year and 88 who had dropped out.

Twenty-three percent of those who dropped out said they would return if the program were more flexible, including excused absences for activities related to parenting and alternatives to regular high school attendance, including General Equivalency Diploma testing and adult education.

The auditors recommended services be provided for students who opt for such alternatives.

what she was wearing when she was last seen, or if this could be someone else," he added.

Yelvington explained, "The Murphy girl is the only person reported missing in the area to even come close to matching the body that was found."

Yelvington said two young boys found the body about 2:30 yesterday afternoon in the woods, about 80 yards off Industry Road, near Highway 17-92.

According to a Longwood police report, the body found was "that of a white female approximately 19-21 years of age."

"The body was so badly decomposed we had nothing to work with to determine any identity," Yelvington said. "There is no obvious cause of death, nor was there any obvious trauma present on the body."

"Subsequently," he added, "no identification was possible at the scene."

The medical examiner will be conducting an autopsy late this afternoon to determine the cause of death and determine if there may have been foul play involved.

"From that point on," Yelvington said, "through the medical report and possibly dental records, we hope to be able to determine the woman's identity, then the investigation can proceed."

Yelvington would not speculate that the body may be that of Diana Lee Murphy. "We don't know at this time," he said, "and I don't want to venture a guess."

The Florida Department of Law Enforcement assisted in processing the scene of the discovery yesterday, and is cooperating in the investigation.

now, we have to live together with a cool politeness between us," Lovestrand commented. "After the election, I believe we'll have a different commission."

McFellin has remarked several times, he expects to be replaced if Lovestrand gets enough votes on the commission.

McFellin's salary as Longwood City Administrator is $54,000. The salary and contract terms in Winter Springs are negotiable according to Employee Relations Coordinator Mary Wilson. Former Winter Springs City manager Richard Rozansky, who served in the position 14 years, made $59,110 a year.

The closing date for applications is April 30, according to Wilson. The applications will then be sent to the International City Managers Association for screening.

Goungo

In the motion for protection, Andersen wants the judge to order officers who transport Goungo to Florida not to question, attempt to question, take statements or have discussions about any part of the case with the defendant. Further, the attorney asks that the sheriff or his agents be prohibited from seeking permission to search or sign any papers authorizing a search or from placing Goungo in any line-up, show-up or other identification procedure before he talks to his attorney (Andersen).

In addition, the motions asks that the court forbid the officers escorting the defendant from placing photos, newspaper articles or items of evidence in Goungo's view in the hope of causing a reaction.

Andersen said his client is not fighting extradition. He explained he filed the motion to protect Goungo against possible self-incrimination. In another murder case, a man being extradited from Virginia had officers stop in St. Augustine and he showed them where he had hidden the victim's body.

Injured. Police evacuated youths and adults attending a band competition and a baseball game at the school.

The device exploded when Schmaus picked up a piece of twine lying on the floor of the restroom.

Ryan said the device was a relatively simple affair composed of materials commercially available and "relatively easy" to obtain.

Ryan said the boys became interested in assembling a bomb after looking through a publication called the "Anarchist's Cook Book" at a Fica World stall. They subsequently purchased a similar publication elsewhere and used information from it to build the device, said Ryan.

The materials were obtained from a local hardware store and assembled in the garage at the home of one of the boys, according to a police report.

Senate delays jobs bill, ups debt limit

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Senate Democrats and Republicans, surrendering to the reality that President Clinton's job-creation bill is gridlocked, will carry their conflicting arguments to the people during a two-week Easter recess.

Clinton is expected to lead the effort to rally the public behind his $16.3 billion plan and against a Republican stall, said Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine.

"He feels very strongly about it," Mitchell said. "He would like to see this legislation passed intact, or something close to it."

Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas countered: "We are going to be trying to tell the people we think we are right" in opposing the bill. As for the Democrats' campaign, he said, "I don't think they are going to change any Republicans."

Although Democrats enjoy a 57-43 Senate majority, they have been unable to get the 60 votes necessary to break a nine-day GOP filibuster and open the way for approval of the House-passed bill.

Clinton, who was elected on a promise to repair the economy, considers the bill essential to his program. Republicans contend the bill is filled with unnecessary spending, and they insist that any new spending be offset by cutting other programs.

After hours of closed-door discussions that also involved senior administration officials, Mitchell and Dole announced this agreement Monday night:

—Further action on the bill will be delayed until April 20, allowing the Senate to take most of the long-planned recess. At that time, each party will be allowed one final attempt to change the bill.

If Democrats are able to win over three or four Republicans by making some changes in Clinton's bill, that would gain them the 60 votes required to choke off the GOP filibuster. Otherwise, most of the bill likely would die.

—A separate but even more important piece of legislation was freed from the tangle. That debt-limit bill, giving the government an additional $225 billion in borrowing authority through Sept. 30, was then passed and sent to the president.

Without that extension, the treasury would have used up all its credit, now limited to $4.145 trillion, as early as Wednesday, jeopardizing Social Security checks and the government's credit rating.

—If it becomes clear that action on the jobs bill cannot be completed by about April 22, the Senate will strip from it and pass separately about $4 billion to pay for extending jobless benefits for the long-term unemployed. On that date, money for unemployment is projected to run out.

"I believe it is the desire of every senator not to take any action that would result in disruption of (unemployment) benefits," Mitchell told reporters.

Republicans have insisted all along that the wisest course would be to approve the jobless-benefits money, along with a few billion dollars for such popular programs as child immunization, summer jobs and highways, and junk the rest of the bill.

Clinton continued to pound away at the Republican senators.

"In a time when no new jobs are being created ... for political purposes they are willing to deny jobs to places like Baltimore, Dallas, Houston, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia and Cleveland and Seattle," Clinton told reporters en route from Washington to Baltimore. "It's just real sad."

Medical IDs may contain social Security numbers

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's health-reform plan is likely to require every American to carry a health identification card bearing his or her Social Security number, congressional aides say.

Social Security numbers could be used for computerized tracking of medical or insurance records, cutting the health industry's $35 billion annual paperwork bill, according to aides involved in drafting the package.

But some worry that using Social Security numbers on medical ID cards could jeopardize the confidentiality of a patient's medical history.

Ira Magaziner, coordinator of the president's health care task force, said Friday that a "health security card" for everyone could be part of the reform plan Clinton expects to give Congress this spring.

Two congressional aides with ties to the task force, both speaking on condition of anonymity, said Social Security numbers were being considered as the identification number for the cards.

More than 200 million Americans have Social Security numbers. All parents who want to claim a child as a tax deduction must now get a Social Security number before the baby's first birthday.

One of the congressional aides said the medical ID card would likely apply first to patients who receive free or assisted medical care under the reform plan. Eventually, every consumer could get a health card. An estimated 37 million Americans currently do not have health insurance.

It's not clear how sophisticated the medical ID cards would be — as simple as a plastic card with a name and number or something closer to the cards used to access automatic bank teller machines.

Magaziner told consumer and health advocacy groups Friday that a "smart card" that would carry the card holder's detailed medical history in a microchip is several years away.

Smart cards, he said, "could serve a lot of good uses in health care ... people would have their patient information with them," Magaziner said. "On the other hand, one has to resolve certain security issues."

Critics say employers, creditors or insurance companies could obtain medical information and use it to deny someone a job, credit, or life or car insurance.

Casselberry Furniture

We're Easy On Your Wallet!

SPRING IS HERE!
Tired of looking at your same old furniture? Come see Dean and Chuck at Casselberry Furniture and lose those blues! Whether you choose a whole new room full of furniture OR just pick up some accent items to get a new look - it won't cost you an "arm and a leg".

Every one is pinching pennies and stretching dollars these days. Buying used furniture makes more sense than ever in our current economy. Why pay new store prices?

FURNISHINGS WITH "CHARACTER"
Casselberry Furniture offers high quality used furniture; not damaged or "junk" looking discounted styles. Broyhill, Ethan Allen & Drexel Heritage are just a few familiar names that Casselberry Furniture carries from time to time. Are you looking for collectibles? A wide range of collectibles are offered - brands like Lennox and Haviland.

Fine "almost new" accent pieces are available, lamps (electric and oil), glassware, decorator pictures and wall hangings - chances are if you need it, Casselberry Furniture has it or can find it for you!

BROWERS WANTED! APPLY HERE!
Come on down! This is a store that encourages browsing! NO pushy salesperson will hover over you waiting to pounce. Shopping at Casselberry Furniture is a real treat - take your time (there is so MUCH to see), they'll even fix you a cup of coffee.

On the other hand - if you are looking for a particular item... just ask, you'll get help - NOT some fast talking sales person.

So wear some comfy shoes, come on in and stroll around the store, browse till your heart's content.

ABE'S TREASURES
Casselberry Furniture is also known as Abe's Treasures. Antiques and collectibles, in top shape, are waiting for you to give them a home.

Once again, if you are looking for a special piece Dean and Chuck may be able to help you locate just what you need. They are constantly stocking and re-stocking the shop!

HERE WE ARE!
Look for Casselberry Furniture across from Publix (3298 S. Hwy. 17-92) in Casselberry. The hours are Monday through Saturday 9:30-5:00, and Sunday 10:30 till 5:00. If you have a question call 830-5340. Delivery is available & customer satisfaction is tops in this store!

Mice maul MBF

CASSELBERRY — It took some help from the enemy, but the Paddy McGee's "Mice" women's softball team from Oviedo is back in first place.

The Mice pounded out 21 hits to rout Magie Business Forms 17-5 in five innings and improve to 5-1 on the season.

And when Most Wanted was battered by the Ball Busters the Mice were back in a tie for the lead in the Seminole County Recreation Department Women's Monday Night Class C Softball League at Red Bug Lake Park.

Terri Mann paced the Paddy McGee offense by going 4-for-4, with three runs scored and three RBI. Also having big games were April Stoner (3-for-4, triple, 2 RBI), Kathy Tollefson (two triples, 5 RBI) and Jackie Janowiak, Heidi Greene, Phyllis Baynes, Denise Levinson and Debbie Leigh (two hits and two runs each).

The Mice will play the Brusters at 6:30 p.m. next Monday.

AROUND THE STATE

Locals win at Easter Bowl

MIAMI — Lake Mary's Jack Whigham and Marc Urbanczyk both made successful starts in the 1993 Easter Bowl Junior Tennis Championships at the Doral Resort & Country Club Monday with straight set victories.

Urbanczyk defeated Scott Watnik from Riverdale, N.Y., 6-3, 6-0, in the Boys' 16's, while Whigham also won handily, pounding def. Marc Wurtzman from Rochester, N.Y., 6-1, 6-3.

Things didn't go as well on the girls' side, however, as Winter Springs' Tracy Kotseos was clobbered, 6-1, 6-0, by number seven seed Amanda Basica from Lomita, California in the girls' 18's.

Heat raise prices

MIAMI — The Miami Heat announced Monday ticket prices will increase next season as much as $5 for the most expensive seats.

The new prices will remain in effect for the 1994-95 season, meaning it will mark the second increase during the Heat's history.

Heat ticket prices, which will average $24.49, ranked 21st in the NBA, which has an average ticket price of $21.20.

Ticket prices will go up for various seats at the Miami Arena — from $29 to $34 for the most expensive seats and $9 to $10.50 for the cheapest seats.

AROUND THE NATION

Smith gets second ring

NEW ORLEANS — North Carolina capitalized on a last-second blunder by Michigan and gave Dean Smith his second national championship with a 77-71 victory Monday night.

The two titles in Smith's 32 years at North Carolina have both come at the Superdome.

The Tar Heels won with a powerful inside game of Eric Montross and the 3-point shooting of Donald Williams as Michigan's Fab Five lost in the title game for the second straight year.

The Tar Heels (34-4) didn't wrap up the victory until Chris Webber, who had scored 23 points and grabbed 11 rebounds, made the mistake of calling a timeout the Wolverines didn't have.

North Carolina was leading 73-71 when Pat Sullivan missed the second of two free throws with 20 seconds left. Webber grabbed the rebound, charged up court and stopped in front of his bench with 11 seconds left to call a timeout. The Wolverines had already used their allotted three and a technical foul was called.

Williams, who had 25 points and was named the MVP, made both free throws on the technical and added two more when he was fouled on the ensuing play for the final margin.

Tribe back on track

Seminole edges ranked team in tourney opener

From Staff Reports

ZEPHYRHILLS — The rebound continues. The Seminole High School baseball team won its second straight game since dropping a pair of games last week, edging Tallahassee-Florida High School 4-3 in the opening game of the Zephyrhills Tournament Monday afternoon.

The victory was the 15th of the year for the Tribe, against only four losses. The local squad had fallen to No. 10 in this week's Florida Sports Writers Association state poll, but the victory over Florida High (12-3), which came into the game ranked No. 6 in Class 2A, coupled with a victory at Leesburg last Saturday, should help them move back up.

Seminole will play the winner of Monday's late game between Tallahassee-Maclay (12-1) and ranked No. 1 in Class 1A) and host Zephyrhills in the winner's bracket at 7:30 p.m. tonight. Florida High will play the loser in an elimination game at 5 p.m. The tournament is scheduled to end Wednesday.

Seminole took a 3-0 lead after two innings on an RBI by John Lugerling in the first inning and two-run homer run by Scott Ferguson, with David Eckstein aboard, in the second inning.

But Florida High got to Tribe starter Jeremy Chunal for a two-run homer of its own from Cox in the fourth inning and tied the game with a single run in the fifth inning.

Phillip King, who just regained his eligibility last week, started the winning rally in the bottom of the seventh inning with an infield single. Eckstein laid down a sacrifice bunt, but when the Florida High pitcher misplayed the ball, the Tribe ended up with runners on the corners with no one out.

Eckstein then stole second and Ferguson was walked to load the bases. Matt Diemer then hit a shot that the Florida High third baseman flagged down, but he had no play at home as King got a great jump off third and crossed the plate with the winning run.

Chunal tossed a six-hitter to win his fifth game of the season without a loss.

Doing the damage offensively for Seminole were Ferguson (one-for-two, home run, two RBI), Eckstein (one-for-two, two runs scored, two stolen bases), Diemer (one-for-three, one RBI), King, Chunal and Matt Freeman (all one-for-three) and Lugerling (one RBI).

Seminole head coach Mike Powers was pleased with the whole day.

"Jeremy (Chunal) threw pretty well and overall we played a good game," said Powers. "It's a real nice field, but the fences are short. It's only 310-feet down the lines and 350-feet to center. It's scary because you never know when a ball might go out. The pitchers have to work real hard to keep ball down and throw strikes."

"This (Zephyrhills) is a nice little town with a lot of friendly people. We're having a good time. We're staying at the Holiday Inn-Busch Gardens and we're going to go visit the park Wednesday."

Bart Counts of the Korg USA Expos (left) and Tony Guanciale of the Moose Lodge Pirates (right) hooked up in a tremendous pitchers duel in Babe Ruth League play

Monday afternoon. Their efforts were wasted however, as the game was called on account of darkness after six innings with scored tied at 2-2.

Pitching rules in BR play

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Where did the pitching come from?

In a league that is known for high-scoring offensive battles, the pitchers took center stage in the Sanford Recreation Department Babe Ruth Baseball League Monday evening.

Inside Sanford Memorial Stadium, Tommy Raines struck out eight and allowed just two hits as the Rotary Club Royals won their first game of the season, 14-1, over the Woodmen of the World A's in four innings.

On Zinn Beck Field their was a real pitcher's duel as Bart Counts of the Korg USA Expos and Tony Guanciale of the Moose Lodge Pirates both went six innings as the two teams battled to a 2-2 tie in a game halted by darkness. The game will be completed at the end of the season if it has a bearing on the standings.

Sluggests in Little Majors

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The Disabled American Veterans Royals continued to mash the opposition, while the Fisher, Laurence & Deen Blue Jays pulled off a miracle win in Sanford Recreation Department Little Major Baseball League action at Ft. Mellon Park's Roy Holler Field Monday night.

Alex Anderson pitched another strong game and Randy Casey and Clyde Stephens combined for three home runs as D.A.V. won its sixth straight game, 11-5, over the Security National Bank Orioles and the Blue Jays scored five runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to erase a 12-8 deficit and defeat the First Union Bank A's, 13-12.

The Royals are alone atop the American Division standings at 6-0. Following the leaders are the Sunniford Corporation Red Sox (4-1), the Blue Jays (3-3), the Orioles (1-5) and the A's (0-6).

The National Division standings have the Railroaders Cubs in first at 5-0, followed by the Rinker Materials Dodgers (4-1), the Sanford Rotary Breakfast Club Expos and the American Legion Cardinals (both 2-3) and the Monroe Harbour Pirates (0-5).

There will be a big inter-divisional battle at Roy Holler today, as the Red Sox and Orioles battle at 5:45 p.m.

The National Division will play a doubleheader on Thursday, with the Pirates hosting the Expos at 5:45 p.m. and the Dodgers facing the Cardinals at 7:45 p.m.

Saturday, the Cubs take on the Expos at 8 a.m., the Dodgers play the Pirates at 10 a.m., the Cardinals battle the Blue Jays at noon, the Royals take on the Red Sox at 2 p.m. and the A's tackle the Orioles at 4 p.m.

The Royals and the Orioles were tied at 2-2 after one inning of play, but Casey led off the second with a home run and Stephens later added a two-run shot as the Royals took a 5-2 advantage.

The Orioles got as close as 7-5 after three innings, but the Royals scored a single run in the fourth and Casey, batting ninth, hit his second home run of the game, a two-run homer, to pace three run fifth as the winners put the game away.

Doing the damage for the Royals were Nick Johnson (double, two singles, run), Melvin Holt (three singles, two runs, RBI), Casey (two home runs, two runs, three RBI), Stephens (home run, run, three RBI), Anthony Ratonarong (single, two RBI), Chris Calhoun (single, run) and Jeremiah Jenkins and William Kirby (one run each).

Providing the offense for the Orioles were Eric Sperry (two triples, single, two runs, two RBI), Daniel Bohannon (two singles, run), Chad Getchell (double).

Dundalk dumps Raiders

SANFORD — At least it wasn't a conference game.

The Seminole Community College baseball team took a day off from the trials of Mid-Florida Conference play Monday afternoon and it showed as the Raiders dropped an 8-3 decision to visiting Dundalk Community College from Maryland at Rader Field.

SCC, coming off of huge MFC wins over Valencia, Lake City and Central Florida last week, jumped out to a 3-0 lead after two innings.

Perfect day puts Marlins atop National League

By STEVEN WINE
AP Sports Writer

MIAMI — Charlie Hough notched the first strikeout. Bret Barberie had the first hit. Benito Santiago scored the first run and the Florida Marlins moved into first place.

Sunshine, a sellout crowd and 14 hits by the Marlins made their historic debut the next best thing to a perfect game Monday. They beat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 6-3.

The Marlins might not stay atop the National League East for long, but now they know they won't go 0-162, either.

"It's definitely a relief to get the first win under your belt," manager Rene Lachemann said. "Until you do, everyone is wondering when you're going to win a game. We don't have to worry about that."

Hough, the 45-year-old knuckleballer who grew up near Miami, pitched the first six innings for the victory. When closer Bryan Harvey earned the save, teammates ran onto the field to celebrate in a scene that looked more like October than opening day.

"It was a big game," Barberie said. "I wanted it as bad as I ever wanted any game. The fans did too. What a way to go."

A sunny sky with temperatures in the low 80s made the occasion even better for a sellout crowd of 42,334.

"It was beautiful," said Marlins third baseman Dave Magadan, formerly with the New York Mets. "I'm used to opening days that are freezing cold and rainy."

The National League's other newcomer, Colorado, lost Monday to the Mets, 3-0.

For the Dodgers, coming off their first last-place finish since 1905, the opener was ominous. They committed two errors, and Orel Hershiser gave up 10 hits in five innings.

"Being part of history was great," manager Tommy Lasorda said. "Unfortunately we came up short."

Florida didn't look much like an expansion team. Right fielder Junior Felix did drop a flyball, and leadoff hitter Scott Pose was thrown out twice on the bases. But Pose also made a circus catch in center field, and Jeff Conine went 4 for 4 with two runs scored and a stolen base.

"I just wanted to make good contact and not embarrass myself before millions of people," Conine said. "I think this is going to send a message to other teams that we mean business and you can't come in here and expect an easy game."

Hough, who left the game for a pinch hitter after six innings, allowed six hits, two walks and three runs. The National League's oldest player struck out four, including the first two batters he faced.

"When it's time for the big Dodger in the sky to call Charlie Hough, they'd better send his body to the Smithsonian," Lasorda said.

Youth Appreciation

Optimist Club honors outstanding students at 4 schools

By HERMAN SCHROEDER
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — The Sanford Optimist Club held its annual Youth Appreciation Banquet at the American Legion building on Sanford Avenue. President Bill Shepard welcomed members and guests and introduced Bud Tobin, program chairman; Gus Ornborg, vice president; Peggy Hardin, secretary; Ernie Butler, special activities chairman; and other special guests.

Bud Tobin gave the invocation and led the pledge of allegiance. He also spoke of the many projects that the club sponsors for the benefit of youth, such as Youth Appreciation Week, Oratorical Contest, Soap Box Derby, Junior World of Golf, Girls' Softball team; co-sponsor with the Sanford Herald of the Band Festival, and many other opportunities that come up through the year.

The Optimist slogan is "Friends of Youth." The Youth Appreciation Week is when four Sanford schools pick their outstanding students. The Sanford Optimists interview these students. They try to pick the one that is most outstanding for the recognition banquet. Bud Tobin said the job gets harder every year; the students improve so much.

The principals of the schools are: Seminole High School, Gretchen Schapker; Sanford Middle School, Bill Moore; Lakeview Middle School, Jim Shupe; Crooms School of Choice, Barbara Kirby.

Elonda Jackson, Shawnette Wiggins and Dylan "Dax" Kemp were also selected but could not attend the banquet.

Students in accompanying photos received plaques for their accomplishments.

Woman out of work running out of patience

DEAR ABBY: I lost my job of 14 years more than 1 1/2 years ago, and I have not been able to find anything but temporary work since. I know I'm not the only one with this problem, but I just don't know what I am going to do if I don't find something permanent pretty soon. I have no health insurance (my biggest concern), and I haven't been to my gynecologist in a few years, which is not good.

I have been asked some strange and irrelevant questions on job applications and during interviews. For instance:

"Have you got kids?" (many times)

"Are you living with someone?"

"Sign here to give us permission to investigate your political background and other outside activities."

"How old are you? We are looking for a married woman in her 50s," etc. I would like to know why, in this day and age, these questions are being asked. Perhaps some prospective employers who ask these questions would write to you and explain why.

ADVICE

If something I don't like is on an application, then I don't fill it in. Does this mean they won't hire me because I didn't fill it in? When I am asked the question in person, I'm not sure I should object because that will probably mean I won't get hired for sure.

I am intelligent, well-read, somewhat educated and have a bunch of skills. So why can't I find a job? I'd like to take more night school classes, but I can't afford it. I'd like to run my own business if I can think of something that will pay me a living wage.

I sure hope this new administration does something about jobs in this country. Even if I do eventually find a job, what about the rest of the unemployed? I know someone who is very intelligent and educated and bright — and she was told at the age of 45 that she's too old to hire! I know of a few men in their 50s who have been told the same thing. What is going on? How are we supposed to make a living? I'd like an answer from corporate America. All they seem to want are kids right out of college who can work for pennies because they are still living with Mom and Dad.

NANCY A., DETROIT
P.S. Today I was given an application that asked for my height and weight.

DEAR NANCY: Many of the questions you were asked are illegal, and should be reported to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. If you feel that the questions reflect age discrimination, some cities or counties have older worker leagues. Check with the Chamber of Commerce and/or your local library.

As for an answer from "corporate America," perhaps some personnel directors will be kind enough to write and explain the hiring policies of their companies. I would welcome their input.

DEAR ABBY: Recently my sister was married. A few days before the wedding, I placed a small notice in our local newspaper to acknowledge her upcoming wedding. That's all it was Abby — an acknowledgment of her upcoming wedding; it was not intended to be an open invitation to anyone who knew the bride or groom.

Well, former teachers, neighbors and casual acquaintances who saw the announcement invited themselves and showed up. My sister's intent was to have a small, private wedding in our mother's home, but the notice in the newspaper placed an undue burden on our mother.

I felt terrible. Could I have done something differently?
SORRY AND EMBARRASSED
DEAR ABBY: Yes. You could have waited until after your sister's wedding to make the announcement.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Hurt" — the couple who had done so much for their children but were never invited to their homes.

The next time your children ask, "What would you like for your birthday, Christmas or anniversary?" reply, "I would like to come to your home for a meal, cookout, or to spend the day."

I know this has worked because I asked my mother the same question, and I was surprised to get this reply. All she wanted was to spend the day with me and only me.

Because of this, I have set aside several days each year to travel or just be with my mother.

This has been a most wonderful blessing for me. The pleasure I gave her by just spending time with her has been multiplied many times in the pleasure she has given me.

The pleasure we have enjoyed will last throughout her lifetime — and mine.

(MRS.) HELEN L. LINDLER, CHAPIN, S.C.

DEAR MRS. LINDLER: Thank you for reminding us that time is priceless, and spending time with someone is indeed a precious gift.

See a specialist about tinnitus

DEAR DR. GOTT: I had terrible allergies last summer and took a lot of over-the-counter antihistamines that contained a non-aspirin product. I also tried a non-aspirin medication for sleeplessness and I now have tinnitus. I've switched to an inhalant for my allergies, yet the ringing in my ears has continued. Can I expect this for the rest of my life?

DEAR READER: Not necessarily. Tinnitus -- the perception of hissing, roaring or high-pitched tones -- is a common consequence of noise damage, ear infections and ear congestion (as can occur with allergies), to mention a few. It can also result from certain medicines (as you suggest), such as aspirin.

You should be examined by an otolaryngologist who can identify the cause of your problem, using tests such as MRI, and offer therapy. For example, if your tinnitus is, indeed, the result of allergies, a prescription antihistamine, such as Histamanal, would probably be more effective than an over-the-counter product. Or, you might be helped by desensitization injections.

While you may be appropriately treating your allergies, I suspect that you need some professional help with the tinnitus. See an ear-nose-and-throat doctor.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Ear Infections and Disorders."

DEAR DR. GOTT: Concerning your column on Poland's syndrome, which you said is extremely rare, I would like to report that my son was born with it in 1959. Further, three or four people in this area -- three boys and one girl -- were born around the same time with the same condition. Could this have an environmental connection?

DEAR READER: No one knows for sure. Poland's syndrome is the congenital absence of part of the chest muscle with associated finger abnormalities. It is very uncommon despite your personal experience with it. To my knowledge, there have never been any studies showing an environmental influence.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

At a dinner in New York, Mark Twain said, "A verb has a hard time enough of it in this world when it's all together. It's downright inhuman to split it up." To what was he referring?

Probably, like me, you thought it was the split infinitive. Some writers are happy to boldly split the infinitive; others refuse to. But actually Twain was talking about German. He claimed that one part of the verb is put down here, one part over yonder and German is just shoveled in between.

On today's deal, despite the dreadful trump split, South kept his cool and collected 12 tricks.

When the dummy came down, South wanted to be in seven clubs. But after winning trick one with dummy's heart king and playing a club to his ace, he knew the contract was quite high enough, perhaps too high.

South unblocked the spade king, cashed the diamond ace and ruffed a diamond in the dummy. Now came the spade ace followed by the spade queen. East ruffing in with the club seven. Declarer overruffed with the nine, cashed the heart ace and ruffed a heart in the dummy. Next came another top spade. East ruffed with the club eight and South overruffed with the queen. South ruffed a diamond with dummy's club king, having collected the first 11 tricks.

East was left with the J-4 of clubs; South had the diamond jack and club six. The lead of a spade from the dummy allowed South to score his club six with a coup en passant.

"You managed to nicely play the cards," said North. (C)1993, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Cool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
 April 7, 1993

Some major changes in your basic lifestyle are probabilities for the year ahead. Even alterations you don't initiate yourself could turn out to be favorable in the long run.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not establish objectives today that you know are beyond your capabilities. Progress can be made, however, by achieving victories one step at a time. Aries, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Aries' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Neither you nor a person with whom you are presently involved is completely forthright with the other. This is a no-win situation that can be corrected only through honesty.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you have to do business with an unfamiliar firm or individual today, it's best not to take anything for granted. If you are offered special perks, be sure to get them in writing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Both you and your mate might be more hopeful than realistic today regarding a mutual decision. Crossing your fingers and guessing could be a formula for failure.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Excessive worrying about things that may never happen could impede your progress today. Instead of asserting yourself, you might end up withdrawing into a shell.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Usually you have a pretty good sense of humor and are able to laugh at yourself when you make mistakes, but today you might take things too seriously if friends kid you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try to utilize your time productively today, especially in matters that affect your career. Planning is only part of the job -- execution is the essential element.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Unfortunately, not everyone with whom you'll be involved today will be in accord with your views and opinions. Don't blow disagreements out of proportion. Be open-minded.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's best not to involve yourself today in endeavors where too much of the control is taken away from you and placed in the hands of others. They might lack your capabilities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Friends will be cooperative with you today, but only if they feel you, in turn, are looking out for their interests as well. If you don't give, you won't get.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Objectives can be achieved, provided you persevere and prepare yourself for making reasonable sacrifices. There aren't apt to be any free rides on this railroad today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Uncharacteristically, you might be a trifle jealous of the accomplishments of pals today. Instead of applauding their efforts, you may put them down. (C)1993, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
