Jim: "If North does redouble, South can run to any one of his suits. If it is doubled the play will be interesting and complicated but he will only go down one or two tricks and won't have to pay for the honors."

Oswald: "It is far more likely that West will bid clubs himself and East-West will either get to a notrump game or settle for a club part score."

Lettuce Okayed For Bulk Diet

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am writing to you in regard to surgery which I had eight years ago for a diverticulum. After the surgery I was placed on a bland diet and suffered gas pains until I started using your bulk program. Now I am practically free of gas, so would like to know if lettuce is a diet food as well as a lettuce or tossed salad.

DEAR READER — Gas pains are often a symptom of spastic colon. Many authorities think a spastic colon leads to forming those pesky pockets of the colon called diverticula. A diet that includes plenty of cereal fiber in bran and bran products often helps relieve the problem.

These wretched bland diets that were commonly prescribed for colon problems and diverticulosis until a few years ago actually made the problem worse. I am not surprised that you had symptoms from a diet that was so restrictive.

Once the colon resumes normal functioning you should be able to return to a near-normal diet. Go ahead and try lettuce in a small amount for several days, and if all goes well increase the amount to the level you wish to include in your diet.

Even if you eat some gas-forming foods, normal colon function will keep the gas from being trapped and causing symptoms. To give you more information about the causes of gas and gas symptoms I am sending you the Herring Letter, 64, Controlling Gasosmosis. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am very much concerned about the number of young people who are controlling their eating and upchucking. My daughter does this about three or four times a week, whenever she feels she has over-eaten. She tells me many of her friends do this too. She is almost 20 years old.

Will this cause her trouble in later years? Is it injurious?

DEAR READER — Isn't it a shame with so many people not having enough to eat that people in our society engage in over-eating then vomiting? It certainly says something about the self-discipline of our society. The practice is not new. The ancient Romans did it during their orgies. A person would eat and drink to capacity, leave the banquet scene, relieve himself and return to gorge again.

The first danger is that forceful vomiting may cause a tear of the lower esophagus. This can cause severe hemorrhage and is a medical emergency.

The next and more likely problem is that individual engaging in this practice to stay thin may over do it and slip into "anorexia nervosa," a disorder of not eating, or even vomiting to the point that serious starvation occurs. This then becomes a major psychiatric problem as well as a nutritional one.

The obvious solution is not to eat so much. Some young girls in particular become obsessed with being thin and have a mistaken idea about their own body. They think they are fat when in reality they are thin. We all have a mental image of our body, but in these young girls the body image is often distorted from reality.

Commissioners Shun Vote On Injection Of Weed-Killer

By KRIS NASH Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County Commissioners refused four times this morning to introduce the controversial white amur into county lakes to curb the spread of hydrilla weeds, a fast-growing vegetation which has clogged lakelimits from Fern Park to Forest City.

Commission Chairman Richard Williams passed the gavel to Vice-Chairman Robert French three times to make motions favoring use of the white amur, or "grass carp," but all three efforts failed, as did a similar motion by French.

Three of the motions died for lack of a second. On the final bid, Williams entered a motion after handing the gavel to French, who in turn passed the parliamentary hammer to Commissioner John Kimbrough to provide Williams with a second.

The panel then voted 2-6-2 with Commissioner William Kirchhoff dissenting and Commissioner Harry Kwiatkowski absent on vacation. Following the vote, Kirchhoff requested and received permission to bring the matter up again before the meeting adjourned.

Williams prefaced the abortive action by introducing petitions he said were signed by residents who live on the shores of Lake Orienta, Lake of the Woods and Mirror Lakes, three South Seminole water bodies affected by hydrilla weeds.

The petitions all supported introduction of the white amur into their respective lakes, Williams said.

The state's Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has offered to place the hydrilla-eating amur into all three Seminole lakes, but Williams's efforts have been opposed by the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Robert Gasaway, a game commission representative, told the county board that his agency feels the grass carp is potentially "harmful to water quality and to fish and water resources" in the St. Johns River.

Commission members have warned in the past that the white amur could destroy the St. Johns' game-fish population if the weed-devouring species is allowed to reach the river. While the amur cannot breed in the stagnant waters of landlocked lakes, officials say the fish could reproduce rapidly in a fast-flowing stream such as the St. Johns.

While the three lakes in question are considered to be landlocked, Williams said he has personal knowledge of Mirror Lake and "it does have a drainage outlet which runs north into a ditch, which ultimately runs into the Wekiva River."

"And I suppose at some time, under the proper conditions, the water will flow," the panel chairman added.

In addition, Gasaway told commissioners, the flooding tendencies of the three lakes are such that under sufficiently rainy circumstances, his department doubted if any of the three could truly be considered landlocked.

DNR spokesman Monnie Beech responded by saying that his agency had been extremely effective in other areas of the state at "securing" questionable lakes to prevent overflow that might eventually reach a swift-moving stream.

"The Department of Natural Resources has stocked 10 lakes in the state of Florida," Beech said. "Six of these lakes weren't landlocked and had to be secured, which we have been able to do with great success."

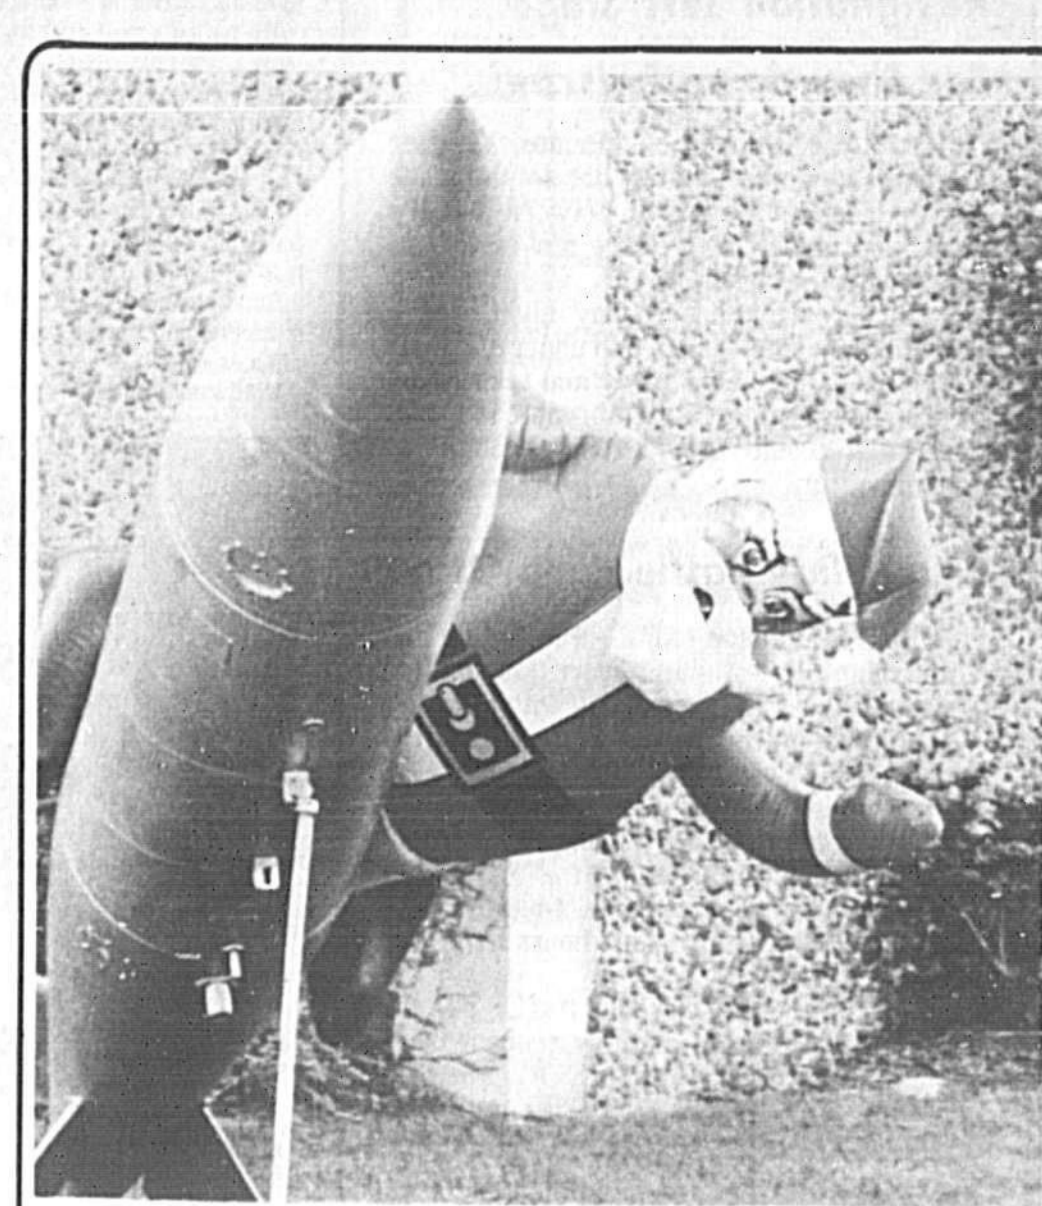

Under most conditions, Beech told the commission, "there's no sweat at all" in getting a landlocked lake secured against runoff.

Robert Blackburn of Altamonte Springs was one of several county residents who urged commissioners to give white amur stocking procedures the green light. Blackburn, head of a Lake Orienta homeowners association, said his group estimated it would cost $50,000 for a "one-shot" chemical effort to eradicate hydrilla from the lake bottom.

"Homeowners cannot continue the practice of more or less pouring money down a dry hole," said Blackburn. "We must some day start trying to control these plants more economically."

French said he would favor using the hydrilla-gobbling amur into one or all three of the South Seminole lakes if he could be given "some kind of assurance" that such a move would not threaten the St. Johns.

"I remember some years ago a lady bringing a plant from Europe and introducing it into the lakes and rivers of Florida, French said. "This plant was called the hyacinth. And I think we all know, what the situation is now with respect to that particular plant."

RIDING LOW Maybe it was all that holiday cheer, maybe he just wanted to try it side-saddle—or maybe it was the wind that was blowing early today at 17 miles an hour. But old St. Nick was found like this outside the Sanford Law Enforcement Center this morning. He later straightened himself out into his more-familiar rocket-riding position.

'Bribe' Ruling Ends 2-Year 'Nightmare'

By BOB LLOYD Herald Staff Writer

Former County Attorney Thomas G. Freeman says that part of his "two-year nightmare experience" of being a public official has ended with an appeals court ruling at West Palm Beach.

The Fourth District Court of Appeals has upheld Circuit Judge Kenneth Leffer's earlier dismissal of a felony charge against Freeman of soliciting unlawful compensation.

Leffer received notice on Monday that the appeals court has affirmed his Feb. 15 dismissal of grand jury indictment against Freeman.

The indictment had alleged that Freeman unlawfully requested or solicited $12,400 from Chelsea Title and Guaranty Co. vice-president John Morris, of Sanford, in connection with proposed title insurance on 103 acres of south Seminole clay pit property that county commissioners had proposed to buy for $17,000.

The day that Freeman was indicted by the Seminole County Grand Jury, Morris, who had been a grand jury witness, signed a sworn affidavit labeling the charge against Freeman "totally false."

"It would appear to me, if the facts presented are true," Judge Leffer said when dismissing the indictment, "that Freeman has engaged in conduct I wouldn't condone." But he ruled that there "are no material disputed facts and the undisputed facts don't establish a prima facie case of guilty against Mr. Freeman."

Slate Atty. Abbott Herring appealed the dismissal to the Fourth District court. In upholding the dismissal, Appeals Court Associate Judge Alan R. Schwartz wrote this opinion:

"I concur in the court's affirmation of the order granting the defendant's motion to dismiss. I do so however, only upon the ground that it was conclusively shown that any additional fee solicited by the defendant, who was the County Attorney of Seminole County, did not relate to the performance of an act incumbent upon him to perform for the county pursuant to his contractual agreement with the county, or otherwise. Therefore, whatever the ethical implications of the supposed solicitation, the act in question could not be deemed a violation of [Florida law] as alleged in the indictment."

Freeman and County Commissioners Mike Hattaway and Harry Kwiatkowski were also indicted on misdemeanor Sunshine Law and conspiracy charges. Those indictments were dismissed by a county court judge and Herring refused the charges in the form of direct informations.

The informations were then dismissed on Feb. 27 by County Judge Wallace Hall and Herring appealed the ruling.

The appeal was heard at Sanford in October by a three-judge circuit court panel but Freeman said today that a ruling hasn't been made in the case.

Freeman, a Democrat, charged today that the charges were "nothing but political harassment and a clear abuse of the power granted to Herring by the people. He used his office to politically indict us."

Herring has repeatedly denied that the indictments were politically motivated. A spokesman at his office said today that Herring declined to comment on Freeman's latest blast.

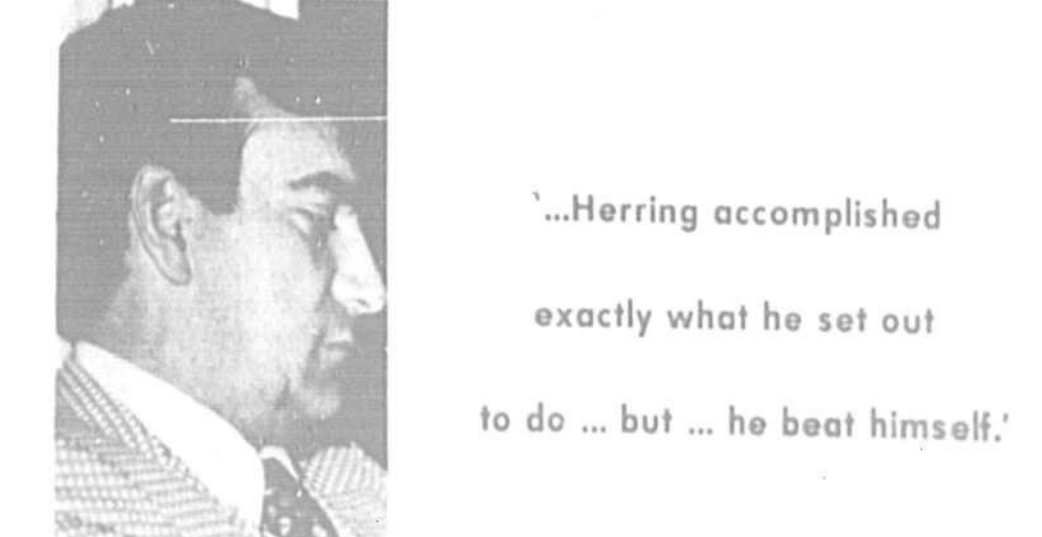

"It's interesting to note that Herring accomplished exactly what he set out to do, — remove us from office," Freeman said today. "But what he didn't count on doing also happened. He beat himself."

Herring, a Republican, was defeated in a November bid for re-election by Melbourne Democrat Douglas Cheshire. Cheshire will take over the Brevard-Seminole State Attorney post Jan. 3.

Freeman said today that "the people aren't going to allow a public official to abuse the public trust. In Herring's case, he wasn't worthy of the trust and the people certainly realized it."

Freeman said he's happy to have what he called his "two-year nightmare" of being a public official behind him and said he's "happy being back a country lawyer and making my living practicing law."

Herring is opening a private law practice in Sanford in January, he announced earlier.

FREEMAN ...Herring accomplished exactly what he set out to do ... but ... he beat himself!

Resignation Sets Stage For Showdown In Israel

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's resignation has set the stage for an election showdown between Israel's doves and hawks over future moves toward peace with the Arabs.

Rabin's resignation Monday night was a tactical maneuver designed to undercut rival within his ruling Labor party and take Israel to the polls before an embryonic centrist movement could get strong enough to challenge him.

Guerrillas Battle Each Other

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Pro-Syrian and anti-Syrian Palestinian guerrillas battled each other for four hours today with mortars, rockets and machine guns in camps on the south side of Beirut.

Dozens of casualties were reported. It was the second outbreak of fighting between the two factions within a week.

The Palestine Liberation Organization announced a ceasefire four hours after the fighting started.

Many streets were closed to traffic, and the main highway to the recently reopened airport was declared unsafe.

NATION IN BRIEF

Stranded Tanker Splits, Dumps Oil Off U.S. Coast

BOSTON (AP) — A Liberian tanker stranded on the Nantucket shoals split apart today, dumping part of its 7.6 million gallon cargo of oil into the Atlantic Ocean.

The Coast Guard said the bow of the vessel severed completely from the rest of the tanker and swung around to a 90-degree angle to the stern.

The bow remained afloat, and the Coast Guard said it had no word on the amount of oil pollution from the tanker.

Julie Quotes Mao On China

NEW YORK (AP) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower says the late Mao Tse-tung told her that struggle between the classes and within the Communist party in China could "last for two or three hundred years."

In a copyright article in the January issue of Ladies Home Journal, Mrs. Eisenhower said the former chairman of the Communist party of the People's Republic of China, who died Sept. 9, was the first person she met in China on a visit last year "who dropped the pretense that the People's Republic is a utopian, perfect society."

Hung Vote Halts Move To Name Works Chief

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Tommy Jackson, employed by the City of Longwood for the past year, came within one vote Monday night of being named the city's public works director.

Holding the title since Nov. 1 of acting public works director, Jackson was tapped by Councilman Lawrence Goldberg and Council Chairman J. R. Grant for the $11,500 annually salary public works director slot. The motion was defeated on a hung 2-1 vote.

Goldberg said he wanted to give Jackson a chance at the job for a six-month trial period.

Councilman Gerard Connell, the city's mayor-elect, however, said it was in Jackson's best interest to have the city council's unanimous approval, adding this was impossible at this time with Councilman Parker Anderson absent and out of town on vacation.

Councilman June Lorman, noting Jackson only recently was promoted, said the council should wait a while before granting another promotion.

"Jackson was hired as a back hoe operator under the federally funded Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) Dec. 1, 1975. When (CETA) pipeline forerunner quit in May, he was promoted to that slot at $8,320 annually."

On Nov. 1, Jackson was promoted again and placed on the regular city payroll with his salary increased to $9,750.

Grant, in seconding the motion to promote Jackson, said he could see that the city was not going to be able to find anyone with water, sewer and road experience to handle the combined department.

Ralph Fisher headed the department until his dismissal by the city council Sept. 13. He had been employed by the city for eleven-and-a-half years before he was fired.

In other action Monday night, the council accepted "with regret" the resignation of Public Safety Director Douglas Keller effective Jan. 5, adopted a resolution commending him for his 19-month service which began June 1, 1975 and awarded him one month's severance pay.

Tears, Uncertainty Follow Daley's Death Who'll Succeed The Mayor -- His Son?

CHICAGO (AP) — His bodyguards wept, his city was stunned, and his fellow national leaders expressed grief at the death of Mayor Richard Joseph Daley, lord of a political fiefdom whose likes may never be seen again.

The nation's most powerful mayor, last of the big-city political bosses, who cultivated family, love and, above all, party loyalty, died Monday at 74 of a heart attack in his doctor's office.

Within hours, while his body was being prepared to lie in state today, leaders of the city's aldermen met in his fifth floor City Hall office to probe Chicago's future leadership.

State law provides that the City Council, long a rubber stamp for Daley, select one of its own as mayor until a special election is held within six months.

But Chicago also has "home rule" under the Illinois Constitution and, conceivably, could change the procedure, legal officials said.

Until some action is taken, Ald. Wilson Frost, council president pro tem, may become acting mayor — the first back to assume the post in the city's history.

Possible permanent successors include Ald. Michael Bilandic, from Daley's own ward, Ald. Edward Vrdolyak, from a Southeast Side ward, and the late mayor's son, Richard, now a state senator.

Daley's body was to lie in state from noon to 8 p.m. today at The Nativity of Our Lord Church in the mayor's Bridgeport neighborhood, where he took daily Communion and from which both his parents were buried.

Parish Secretary Shirley Corners said visitors would be allowed to pass by to pay respects, but would not be permitted to sit down. A Mass was planned for Wednesday.

Daley had gone to see his personal physician, Dr. Thomas Cogan Jr., for a regularly scheduled visit, complaining of chest pains. Cogan ordered an electrocardiogram, confirmed an irregular heart beat and let his office to make emergency arrangements at a nearby hospital.

Daley telephoned one of his seven children, Michael, He apparently concluded the conversation and then collapsed.

Cogan, paramedics and doctors from Northwestern Memorial Hospital tried desperately for nearly two hours to revive Daley. Family members recited the Rosary in his office.

Daley was pronounced dead at 3:40 p.m. CST, and that which spanned three decades ended in a breathless Last Hurrah. Eulogies poured in.

President Ford, vacationing in Vail, Colo., called Daley "a towering figure on the American scene." President-elect Carter said he was "deeply saddened" by the death of "a great and good friend to me and a great Democratic leader."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., whose brother, John, received both Daley's blessings and the votes from Chicago that gave him Illinois in his 1960 presidential victory, called Daley "one of America's greatest mayors."

Rep. J. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., was happier in this scene at the recent SEEDCO banquet in Sanford as he received a plaque from Ruthia Healey today following appointment by President-elect Carter of Griffin J. Bell as attorney general. Mitchell, chairman of the Black Congressional Caucus, sent Carter a telegram noting "the growing feeling of uneasiness and concern across the nation... and development of some frustration" over the appointment.

Winter Springs Delays Approval Of Wiring Code

By WILLIAM HIDDEN
Herald Correspondent

The Winter Springs City Council, putting the recently renovated Sunshine Park Recreation Center to use, inaugurated the center with the vote at Monday night's city council meeting.

Councilman Claude Ashe proposed guidelines for the building department requiring a schematic plan of electrical wiring for mobile homes at Hacienda Village. Burt Logan, Hacienda Village resident, pointed out to council that schematic plans change from model to model and, in his opinion, are not easily obtainable from manufacturers.

But Ashe said they are obtainable.

Hacienda Village and the city have recently been at odds over electrical renovations on mobile homes. The city has been left with little authority over the park because of a blanket permit granted to Hacienda at the start of its construction.

Councilmen Donald Sines and Ernest Hendrix indicated that although some guidelines were overdue, they felt this measure left too many questions unanswered.

With Councilmen John Daniels and Claude Ashe favoring the resolution, and deputy Mayor Donald Browning absent, Mayor Troy Piland was given the opportunity to cast the deciding vote. His answer: "No, until we can be assured whether or not schematic plans can be obtained."

The first half-hour of the session was taken up by a public hearing for a rate increase for the garbage collection firm of H & W. There was no opposition to the rate increase, and the council, in light of the increased fees at the Seminole County landfill, decided the one dollar per month increase was a reasonable request.

The council's main interest was in the feasibility of a mandatory, city-wide franchise contract. As a provision to the rate increase the council voted to begin workshop sessions, as of Jan.

Rookies Spurned For Demo Veterans

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter looked just a bit uneasy the night a fellow Democrat declared that it was no time to put rookies in charge of the government. After all, Carter, then a candidate, was something of a rookie himself.

That comment about putting rookies in charge of the government came from Michael J. Howlett, the Democratic nominee for governor of Illinois, who eventually lost to Republican James R. Thompson.

Howlett was talking about putting Thompson, a rookie, in charge of the government of Illinois when he made the remark at a Democratic convention in Chicago during the fall campaign.

But Carter had been campaigning as a non-Washington candidate, a government outsider, if not a rookie.

Furthermore, he had said he meant to install a new generation of leaders in top positions of the government if he became president.

But President-elect Carter evidently sees the merits of seasoning, seniority and experience now that he is selecting a cabinet.

He made that clear on Monday in dealing with the question of an enlarged role for blacks and for women, saying it will take time to develop a larger pool of qualified minority candidates for cabinet-level posts.

So far, the choices Carter has made are very much in the tradition set by newly elected presidents of both parties.

There are veterans of past administrations, like Secretary of State-designate Cyrus R. Vance. There are long-time personal associates like Griffin Bell, who will be attorney general.

Food Price Dip Keeps Rise Firm

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first decline in food prices in eight months helped hold off an over-all rise in consumer prices in November to three-tenths of 1 per cent, the same as in October, the government said today.

At the same time, the government said retail spendable earnings a worker's take-home pay after adjustment for taxes and inflation — increased eight-tenths of a percent in November, the biggest monthly increase in buying power in more than a year.

The Labor Department said that for the 12-month period ending in November, consumer prices increased only 5 per cent, the smallest 12-month gain in more than three years.

The favorable inflation report was certain to be welcomed by economists in both the Ford and incoming Carter administrations.

L' Shape Of Thing To Come In Sanford

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford City Commission Monday evening approved a modified "L" design for the proposed $1.45 million city hall complex, saving at least $106,000 over the original all-horizontal concept for the facility.

On a 3-2 vote, the city commission approved a rectangular two-story administrative office, with the first floor to remain undeveloped until it is needed at a future time, and a one-story "legislative" wing.

The administration building is to be constructed parallel to the lakefront and the legislative wing — to include a city commission meeting room, conference rooms and related offices — to face south along Park Avenue.

City Manager W. E. Knowles, in recommending the new design, said the addition of the first floor legislative wing "breaks up the long building."

The wing rounded on its south end will feature vertical panels rather than windows.

Mayor Lee P. Moore said because the building was long, his colleagues were "messaging" the floor plan. Commissioner Julian Stenstrom, who also opposed the new design, said the horizontal concept could have been broken up by the exterior covering and

Sprinklers Douse Blaze At Area Department Store

By BOB LLOYD

A sprinkler system doused a grease fire early today at Zayre's Discount Department Store, SR-436, Fern Park, before the blaze caused serious damage, sheriff's deputies reported.

Responding to an alarm set off by the protective system, deputy R.D. Strohbridge and county firemen entered the store where smoke was visible about 6:30 a.m.

County Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser said the fire was in a coffee shop cooking area where a burner on a deep fryer unit apparently ignited grease.

Store manager Jim Christian said there was no smoke damage and "very minor water damage" when water from the

HERE'S TWO WAYS TO SAVE ON YOUR TAXES THIS YEAR WHILE SETTING UP A RETIREMENT PLAN.

How many times have you thought about setting up a good retirement plan? Well, now there's a way to do it and save money on your taxes this year and every year until you retire.

Plan 1 IRA

If your employer doesn't have a pension plan or profit-sharing plan, then you are eligible to set up your own First Federal of Mid-Florida IRA account. Here's how it works. Each year you deposit 15% of your earned income up to a maximum of $1,500.00. Then, each year you can deduct the amount of your deposit from your earned income for tax purposes. You're not taxed on the money until you retire and by then your tax liability usually is much less. It's a great way to save for retirement while saving on your taxes now.

The government has provided for a penalty for early withdrawal.

Plan 2 KEOGH

If you are self-employed you can save on your taxes by setting up a First Federal of Mid-Florida KEOGH account. The account builds with First Federal of Mid-Florida's high interest rate until you retire. And all the time your retirement funds are growing you can deduct your annual deposits from the earned income portion of your tax return (you can even deduct the interest you money earns.) It's a realistic way to save for retirement while getting a tax break now.

The government has provided for a penalty for early withdrawal.

Amy And School Bares Problem

The tax-supported school system got a ringing endorsement when President-elect Carter decided to send his daughter, 9-year-old Amy, to Thaddeus Stevens Elementary near the White House.

During the vote-getting, candidate Carter said he would be sending Amy to a government school, provided security arrangements could be made.

After the election, Amy's mother visited Stevens school and then issued a statement that she was "very pleased with the quality of the school, the attitude of the staff and the teachers and the friendliness of the students."

That speaks well for Stevens. But suppose that the Carters had found themselves in the position of thousands of parents who live in districts where the schools are not safe, in which the staff is dependent or surly and in which criminal extortion is routine experience within the student body.

Yet these many thousands of parents do not have the option of the Carters. They do not hold a political office that pays a relatively high salary and guarantees a comfortable pension thereafter.

Throughout the land, many parents are dissatisfied with the results of the government-run schools. On the one hand they are alarmed at the property taxes by which the institution is maintained.

Psychologists have established that certain personal situations and attitudes and health problems can be indicators of problem drinking. This in addition to direct questions about drinking habits, the Washington questionnaire asks such things as: "Would you describe yourself as being lonely a good deal of the time?"

Or true or false: "Sometimes I feel very guilty." "I usually sweat at night." "I sometimes feel that I am going to pieces."

DON OAKLEY

Drinking Problem Studied

Since drunken drivers are said to be responsible for at least half the nation's annual toll of traffic deaths and accidents, it would seem to make sense, if possible, to remove these menaces from the highway before they caused accidents, not after.

To see if it is, in fact, possible is the object of a $797,000 federally funded experiment currently being conducted in the District of Columbia.

Psychologists have established that certain personal situations and attitudes and health problems can be indicators of problem drinking. This in addition to direct questions about drinking habits, the Washington questionnaire asks such things as: "Would you describe yourself as being lonely a good deal of the time?"

Or true or false: "Sometimes I feel very guilty." "I usually sweat at night." "I sometimes feel that I am going to pieces."

Responses to the questions, which are entirely voluntary, have been put into a computer and indicate that about 15 per cent of those questioned so far are problem drinkers, say officials.

What critics of the experiment are afraid of is that what is voluntary now could be made mandatory in the future and that license applicants identified as problem drinkers would be required to undergo some form of medical evaluation or treatment or education as a condition for obtaining a license.

Now in a well-run society, not only potential alcoholics but potential criminals and anybody with any kind of self-adjustment problem would be identified early and helped before he caused difficulties for himself and others.

But psychology is still an inexact science, and this is still supposed to be a society where a person is considered innocent until proven guilty — by what he does, not by what someone thinks he might do.

Law Backs CIA Right To Probe

WASHINGTON — Dear Mr. Carson: The other night, during the last 15 minutes of your show, you and syndicated columnist Jack Anderson had a ball ridiculing the CIA, "poking a little fun at them," as Mr. Anderson put it.

Reading from what he said was the CIA's file on himself, Anderson excoriated the intelligence agency for having investigated him in early 1972. This operation was, he declared, "against the law."

But, in point of fact, Johnny, under certain circumstances, the CIA does have a legal right to investigate private citizens. And this raises the crucial question, left unexamined by yourself: Why was Mr. Anderson being investigated at all?

As a CIA spokesman explained it to me in late December of 1971, Jack Anderson published a series of columns based on what he himself described as secret intelligence reports of the U.S. Government. It was the nature of the information that led to the decision to place Mr. Anderson under surveillance in an effort to determine the source of his information.

It should be recalled in this connection that the Director of the CIA is charged, by law, with the protection of intelligence sources and methods.

Indeed, the CIA does have this legal authority. In February of this year, President Ford signed Executive Order 11905, the purpose of which was to clarify the authority and responsibility of U.S. intelligence agencies and departments.

Section of this order relating to restrictions on intelligence collection states the following: "Foreign intelligence agencies shall not engage in any of the following activities: (1) Physical surveillance directed against a United States person, unless it is a lawful surveillance conducted pursuant to procedures approved by the head of the foreign intelligence agency and directed against any of the following: (a) A present or former employee of such agency, its present or former contractors or agents, or a present or former contractor or agent of such agency, for the purpose of protecting foreign intelligence or counter-intelligence sources or methods or national security information from unauthorized disclosure; or (b) A United States person, who is in contact with either such a present or former contractor or employee or with a non-United States person who is the subject of a foreign intelligence or counter-intelligence inquiry, but only to the extent necessary to identify such United States person."

Thus, to say, Johnny, as both you and he did, that the CIA investigation of Mr. Anderson was illegal is simply untrue. Admittedly, there were aspects of "omni opera" in the way this operation was carried out, as Mr. Anderson says. But it was within the law, which is the salient point.

Favors Along Pipeline

WASHINGTON — The top federal official on the Alaska pipeline has accepted chartered plane rides, free fishing vacations and other favors from a construction firm that has an estimated $1 billion contract to build one-fifth of the giant pipeline.

He is Maj. Gen. Andrew Rollins, a crusty, combative former Army engineer, who was hired by the Interior Dept. in 1973 to enforce federal standards on the 800-mile pipeline.

From the start, the pipeline was plagued with problems. We were the first to report, for example, that some of the welding north of the Yukon had been faulty. Now charges have been raised in Alaska that X-rays of the welds were falsified.

Earlier this year, the Interior Dept.'s own investigators concluded that Rollins, for all his waspishness, wasn't tough enough on the pipeline contractors. Now we have caught him accepting favors from Morrison-Knudsen, the giant construction combine, which is building 135 miles of the pipeline.

This is one of the most treacherous segments of the pipeline. It winds over rugged coastal mountains and through a devilishly narrow canyon.

Rollins is supposed to make sure that Morrison-Knudsen complies with the strict Interior Dept. standards. Yet he has developed a cozy relationship with Morrison-Knudsen executives.

In the summers of both 1974 and 1975, he went on salmon fishing trips as a guest of Morrison-Knudsen's subsidiary, M.K. Rivers. The company chartered a plane and rented a lodge for his guests. Rollins did not reimburse the company for his expenses.

When the weather turned cold a year ago, Rollins and his wife flew to Hawaii for a vacation in the sun. They stayed in a house rented by Jean Beard, who happens to be Morrison-Knudsen's vice president in charge of pipeline operations.

TITO PLAYS WAITING GAME

BELGRADE — Recent top-level Russian and American visitors to Belgrade have turned the spotlight on the question of Yugoslavia's independence. Which is just what President Tito wants. He is anxious to make sure nobody in the West will be tempted, when he is gone, to write off Yugoslavia as a far-away country of which they want to know nothing.

So the secretary-general of the Soviet Communist party, Leonid Brezhnev, sent an American-Yugoslav arms deal to the Americans' Secretary of Commerce, Elliot Richardson, few in later and repeated the support of the United States for that independence. Fine: President Tito wants people abroad, even if they know nothing else about his country, to believe that it is not, and does not intend to become, a Soviet satellite.

But there is a snag. The Yugoslavs were not particularly alarmed when President-elect Jimmy Carter said during his election campaign that he would not send troops to defend Yugoslavia against the Russians. They had already heard more comforting news from Mr. Carter's special adviser, Averell Harriman, who came to Belgrade in September.

Harriman seems to have been talking mainly about American arms supplies to Yugoslavia. But one thing which may be holding up a team of American negotiators visited Yugoslavia a month ago to discuss a complaint that Yugoslav companies had in the past referred to the Russians as more advanced American computer parts they had imported from America. This particular matter was cleared up to the satisfaction of the American team.

Further, you may be interested to know that the CIA is not the only government body alarmed by the information Mr. Anderson has published. In December 1974, the Senate Armed Services Committee issued a report charging that between December 1971 and February 1972, Mr. Anderson disclosed in his columns "information from at least 70 highly sensitive, classified documents" which were "massive and of serious consequence," representing "a serious compromise to national security decision-making."

As for Mr. Anderson's bragging to you about having seen "transcripts of conversations inside the Kremlin between Kremlin leaders," what he was probably alluding to was Project Gamma Guppy, the code name given a U.S. Government operation monitoring the telephone phones of top Soviet officials in Moscow.

Commenting on Mr. Anderson's revelation of this operation in his column in 1971, the Washington Post quotes a former intelligence officer as saying "this leak was completely gratuitous — it served no purpose and blew our best intelligence source in the Soviet Union."

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — What's all this garbage about Alabama's bowl jinx? A year ago, Bear Bryant and the Crimson Tide snatched a string of eight fabulous bowl ventures by defeating Penn State in the Sugar Bowl.

And Monday night, the foxy old Bear dusted off his Liberty Bell bag of tricks for a Liberty Bowl record crowd of 32,736 and a national television audience, and Alabama smashed seventh-ranked UCLA 36-16 for the biggest mismatch in the 36-year history of the game.

The game was billed as the venerable 63-year-old Bear Bryant's last game as Alabama's coach. The Alabama coach, who was born just one year before Bryant got his first head coaching job, and the old master taught the young coach a football lesson — one Donahue won't soon forget.

"We brought the whoopee out," Bryant whooped after the 16th-ranked Alabama trotted out such gimmicks as a 20-yard flea flicker touchdown pass from halfback Tom Nathan to quarterback Jack O'Neal, an underhand shovel pass for a 19-yard gain and an unbalanced line.

"Needless to say, I doubt if I've ever been prouder of a team, particularly the seniors, for coming back tremendously from nothing in the early part of the season."

The award-winning coach, who coached the 23 beginning Alabama linebackers with 9-3 record. The losers won't get a 2-1 lead at the end of the season.

The Bruins, who committed no fewer than 13 glaring errors including three interceptions, a fumble and two costly penalties — had all sorts of explanations for their loss. They blamed the wind and the rain, but they really wanted to go to the Rose Bowl in sunny California, as Pacific Conference champions. And at the end of the season, the Bruins scored on one-yard plunges — the latter with just 22 seconds to play — plus the Nathan-to-O'Neal flea flicker.

Krauss, who was named the Aggie's first touchdown, he made two key tackles on a game-winning field goal by Donahue, who called it "a good old country lick," disagreed with Dankworth and agreed his team was ready to play.

By The Associated Press. There is no place like home for the holidays. But don't hold that to the Marquette Warriors or the Kentucky Wildcats. Marquette and Kentucky ranked second and third respectively in last week's Associated Press college basketball poll, both lost at home over the weekend and fell to No. 6 and No. 7, respectively, in the balancing of 47 sports writers and broadcasters.

The Warriors, perhaps distracted by Coach Al McGuire's retirement announcement earlier in the week, were beaten by Louisville 75-75 in overtime. The loss cost Marquette 369 points in the voting.

The Wildcats were beaten in the final of its own holiday tournament by Utah 70-68. It was the Wildcats' first loss at their new arena and cost them 284 points in the poll.

Michigan remained the No. 1 team in the nation on the strength of a 44 record. The Wolverines, who beat Kent State 102-81 in their only action of the week, collected 38 first-place votes and 804 points.

Injuries, Cold May Decide Pro Playoffs

The weather doesn't make any difference to good teams. In a regular season game Sept. 19, the teams played a 10-10 overtime tie. Both clubs are expected to be close to peak physical condition.

The Pittsburgh Steelers resembled the walking wounded today as they prepared for their American Conference title game against the Raiders at Oakland.

Despite the injuries, defensive back Mel Gray, who has missed the last two games, is expected to start.

The Steelers came out last Sunday's 40-14 AFC divisional playoff over Baltimore, but they were held to a 14-10 record in their last game.

Baseball's Brass Parades To Stand

CHICAGO (AP) — Just whose interests are in the best interests of baseball? That may be determined by Charles O. Finley's $3.5 million suit against baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

What is up to the Oakland A's owner to decide if it was in his best interests as a businessman to sell Rida Fingers, Joe Rudi and Vida Blue? Or was it in the interests of other owners to have the cash-only sale voided by Kuhn?

What about the public's best interest in seeing competitive teams at reasonable ticket prices? And how about the players, or their union, the Major League Players' Association?

On another point, a sworn deposition by Feeney indicated that the Los Angeles Dodgers owner Walter O'Malley thought some action should be taken by the league.

Mr. O'Malley was very strong in feeling that this was a bad thing for baseball and that the commissioner should take some unspecified action.

In voiding the sale of the three players for the total of $3 million, Kuhn said the sale would allow the rich clubs like the Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees to buy championship.

Shannon Smith, Robert Kinnard and Russ Schingerer all had 5 points each. Morgan Smith had 4 points and Tom Rowe had 1.

There was only one game played in girls basketball Saturday, but it was an exciting battle.

The game got off to a slow start with only one point being scored in the first quarter.

It was another very close game up until the last two minutes of play when the Jets took a 19-8 lead at half time.

ASTHMA TREATMENT MUST FIT CASE
DEAR DR. LAMB—My wife has a bad case of asthma, and has had it all her life. The doctor she went to thought she would outgrow it but she is 19 now and still has the wheezing and hardness of breathing that she always had. My problem is I am sending her to an allergy specialist who claims that he can cure her asthma, with shots and treatments to build up her resistance to her allergens. These shots, not counting the prescriptions, are really expensive. I need to find some information or if you could tell me whether I am spending my money for nothing. The funny catch is they told us that this treatment has to be carried on for about four years to see results. She has been on this treatment for eight months and is in the same shape she was when she started. I would appreciate any help you could give me. DEAR READER—I understand your concern but this is not an unusual situation for an asthmatic. A large percentage of individuals with childhood asthma do outgrow the disease, but some do not. The cause of asthma may be an allergic response from external allergens—something like hay fever is caused by ragweed, and these cases are called extrinsic asthma. If you know what the offending allergen is, complete avoidance of it is the most effective form of treatment. Unfortunately this may not be possible. Desensitization such as your wife is getting is commonly done, and it does require long term therapy for the best results. Unfortunately, no one can predict with certainty which patients will respond to the desensitization program. Since in some patients the response is dramatic it is worth trying, but you should keep in mind that even after the long trial it may not produce the hoped-for results. At age 19 your wife may still have considerable improvement in her condition. She should know, however, if her asthma is related to an allergic-type response and if so to what allergens. If it is an allergic-type asthma her doctor should know what she is allergic to—particularly if the shots are to have any benefit. The whole principle of desensitization is to inject weak solutions of the allergic substance until the body undergoes chemical changes that enable it to tolerate the allergen without the asthmatic response. If there is no indication that your wife has allergic asthma then she probably has extrinsic asthma. In this case the desensitization program may not be very useful since an asthmatic has to accept a large part of the day to day management of his or her illness. I think she should know what her status really is. She should avoid exposure to any of the things she is allergic to. She should know what to do to treat acute attacks and what measures she can use to prevent attacks. Medicine is available for this purpose and is even used by highly skilled athletes before competition. To give you more information I am sending you The Health Letter number 84, Asthma. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long stamped self-addressed envelope for the information. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Wins Sanford Commission Seat
Keith Beats Meyer

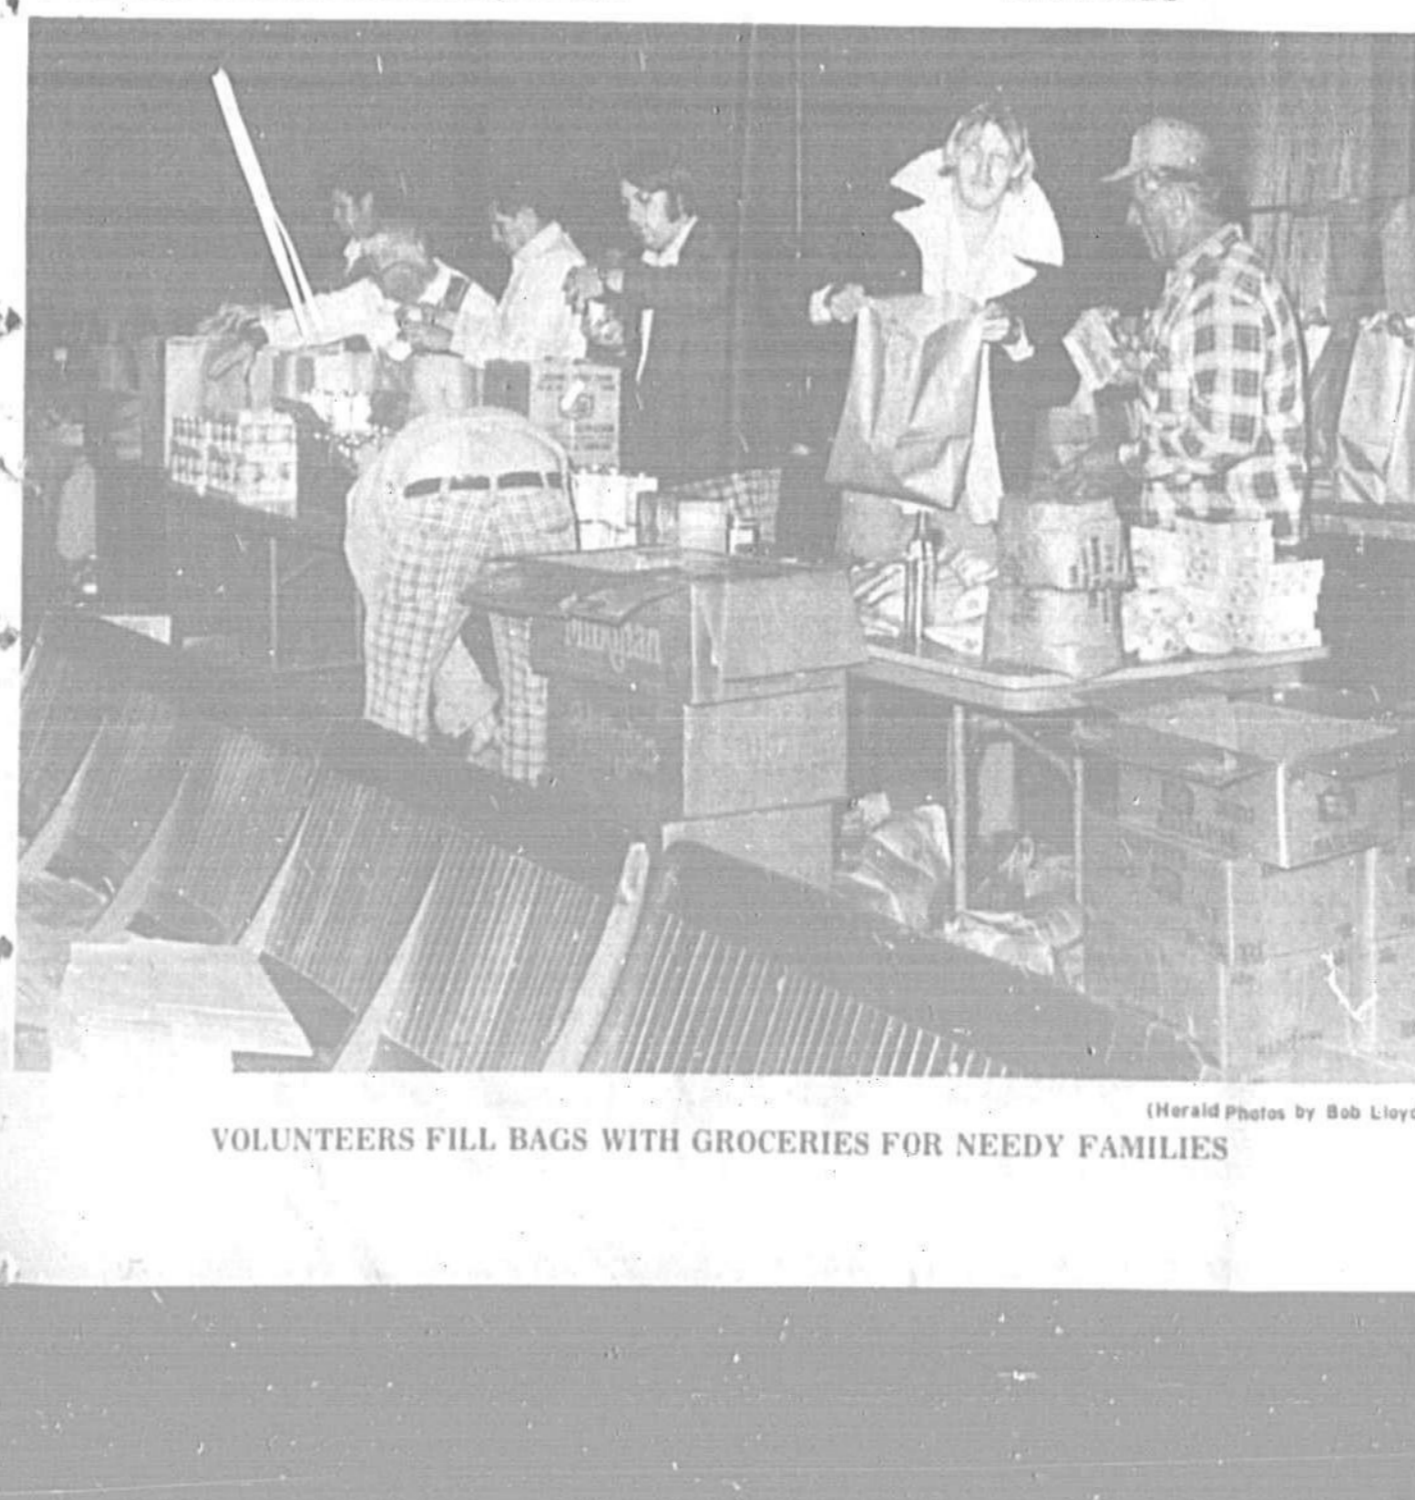

Sanford clothing salesman, E. O. (Eddie) Keith, observed his victory at the polls for a seat on the Sanford City Commission Tuesday night by staying home to take care of his ill wife, Roberta. Today, he was working as usual at Perkins Men's Wear on First Street. "It's the busy Christmas season, you know," he said—and hoped to take time off to watch his victory become official as the ballots were officially canvassed by the city commission later today. With Keith's win by a 150-vote margin, the counting of absentee ballots will make no difference in the outcome. City Clerk Henry Tamm told city commissioners last week that statistics of past elections showed that the turnout at runoffs have traditionally been within 100 votes more or less than the first election. However, the statistics were wrong as an indicator. Sanford voters in great numbers refused to go to the polls for the sixth time in one year. The turnout in the Dec. 7 city election was a poor 23.3 per cent (1,946) of the city's 8,278 qualified voters. The turnout Tuesday was slightly over 11 per cent (942) of the qualified voters. Two-term City Commissioner Gordon Meyer, completing seven years as an incumbent, in an interview last Friday, said he had campaigned seven years ago that two terms was enough for any person in office. He said, however, he believed that many projects he had worked on needed completion and had decided to run for a third term, hoping the people would understand. He also said that he enjoyed elective office and was prepared to accept defeat, if that was the people's choice. Keith had run previously for a city commission berth, two years ago, losing by 200 votes. "It's been an uphill battle for two years," Keith said, adding that he hadn't really expected to win. "I doubt I'll ever run again," he said. "The people of Sanford are so wonderful, I love everyone of them. I'm so glad I'll have a chance to show Sanford just how wonderful I think it is." The 58-year-old Keith continued campaigning right to the last minute. "I had people call me and tell me they had gotten out of a sick bed to vote for me and I'm sure Gordon had supporters like that, too," he said. Keith and his wife, Roberta, are the parents of five sons and three grandsons. Born in Brockton, N. D., Keith has resided in Sanford for nearly 40 years, been married for 34 years to a native Sanfordite and been employed at Perkins for 30 years. During his campaign Keith said he did not know how much one man could do, "but I'm going to try." Unofficial results gave Keith 545 votes to 395 for Meyer, a substantial margin of victory. In the Dec. 7 general election, Keith came in second in a four-man field with 471 votes to 720 for Meyer. Despite the poor turnout Tuesday, Keith was able to carry 48 more votes than during the general election. The commissioner-elect will take office in January.

$1.8 Million Coming For Sanford City Hall

Mayor Lee P. Moore said today he had received unofficial word that the City of Sanford has won approval of a $1.8 million federal grant which will be used to underwrite construction of the new city hall building. The funds, which were made available under one section of a $3.55 billion public works jobs bill passed by Congress last summer, will cover the entire city hall building project, Moore said. "You understand it's unofficial," the mayor explained. "We haven't received any confirmation yet. But this is what we've been told, and of course we're real excited." "It probably won't be official, in this case, until some time next week," said City Manager Warren E. (Pete) Knowles. "But needless to say, it looks like a good Christmas present." Source in Washington declined to confirm that the $1,765,525 in federal monies would be coming to Sanford. "As far as I know, we haven't approved any projects at all," said a spokesman for the Commerce Department's Economic Development Administration. "In tomorrow's federal register there will be a list of about 2,000 projects that have been selected for final processing." The spokesman would not say whether the Sanford request was included among the 2,000 to be processed. But Otto, public relations assistant for Democratic Rep. William Chappell, said he had received no word that the grant had been approved. "The problem you run into," said Otto, "is that the people who are taking the action, if any action being taken, aren't telling you anything. When they get to the point of having something releasable, they'll contact our office. It did not come in yesterday, I can tell you that for certain." Knowles submitted Sanford's application for the federal funds last August, shortly after the job-creating bill was signed into law by President Gerald Ford. "Our timing on this thing was beautiful all the way through," said Moore. "We talked about it before the public works bill came out and when the money became available, it was already in the mill." The mayor said he and other city officials held high hopes that the grant would be forthcoming. "We were optimistic," he said. "We had to be one of the first ones to apply on the thing, so we were pretty optimistic. But of course, on this type of thing you never know." "Yes, I would have to say I was optimistic," Knowles agreed. "We were one of the first in line, we had the plans everything going through very rapidly and our staff did a bang up job of preparing things so we didn't get held up too long going through the various review processes." Eligibility for funds under the Public Works Act was based on the extent to which a state or local area exceeded a 6.5 per cent unemployment level, according to Washington officials. Provisions of the legislation call for construction to begin within 60 days on any project approved for funding. The Sanford City Commission this week approved an L-shaped design for the new city hall, along with certain changes in the architectural plans which Moore said would cause minor setbacks in the scheduled groundbreaking. "If they left the building exactly as it was," said the mayor, "why, it would be ready to go to bid. This way there will be some delays, but we should have no trouble at all making the 60-day deadline." "I just think that we're extremely fortunate to be in this position," Knowles declared. "For a city this small, well, it looks like maybe we left some of the big boys in the starting post."

Season's Cheer From The IRS

"I just got out of the hospital. This money sure is going to help!" Josephine Barriner's hands shook slightly, as did her voice as she learned that she is $192 richer than she thought. "I'm so nervous," she said apologetically as she fumbled with the telephone dial. Mrs. Barriner's call finally went through to Internal Revenue Services office in Orlando to learn how much she would receive in a previously undelivered tax refund check. Mrs. Barriner is one of 10 Sanford residents on a list published by IRS of undelivered refund checks. Like Mrs. Barriner others on this list should call the IRS in Orlando at 622-8580. After they have fully identified themselves (including social security number) papers will be mailed to them to fill out. When the papers are properly completed the IRS will give them their refund. Other Sanford residents with checks due are: Ella V. Anderson, William L. Faulk Jr., Felix T. and Maria K. Jackson, David Walter Johnson, Thomas and Barbara Key; Johnny McCoy; James and Lillie Mae Nelson; Richard A. Settle, and William Lee Stroman.
