Murder indictment

SANFORD — An Altamonte Springs furniture refinisher was indicted for first degree murder by a Seminole County grand jury Tuesday in the death of a former police dispatcher.

John N. Nunes, 23, 285 Lorraine Drive is being held without bond in the February killing of Angela Jo Lauderdale, 29, the ex-wife of former Lake Mary police chief Charles Lauderdale. The woman had worked as a dispatcher in Lake Mary, Altamonte Springs and Matland.

The victim's body was found Feb. 6 on the steps of a Sikh temple near Altamonte Springs. She had been stabbed.

Nunes told investigators he picked the woman up on U.S. Highway 17-92 and drove to Center Street with the intention of paying her for a sex act. The defendant told police he cut Lauderdale after she hit him during an argument.

The next president?

OVIDO — The Greater Oviedo Chamber of Commerce political Hob-Nob held recently drew some interesting results in the presidential straw poll.

Presidential candidate Senator Phil Gramm (R-Texas) led all others in this poll. Over 200 people attended the event.

Gramm, whose name appeared on the straw poll ballot along with 19 other announced and undeclared candidates for the presidency in 1996 collected 20 percent of the votes. Senator Bob Dole (R-Kansas) was a close second with 17 percent.

The closest Democrat in the unofficial poll was Hillary Clinton, who beat out her husband, President Bill Clinton, by four percentage points in the balloting.

Retired U.S. Army general Norman Schwarzkopf out-pollled oft-mentioned candidate and former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Colin Powell, by one percent. Powell ties with Jack Kemp and former Vice President Dan Quayle, each receiving six percent of the ballots.

The Greater Oviedo Chamber of Commerce is the annual sponsor of this straw poll.

Free dental clinic

SANFORD — A dental clinic offering free fillings and extractions is being sponsored in October by the Baptist Convention of Florida and the Seminole Baptist Association with churches in Seminole and West Volusia counties.

A free dental screening will be conducted on Wednesday, Oct. 4 from 4 to 7 p.m. at the Community Clinic, 2472 24th Street and Park Avenue. Appointments for individuals found to be in real need of dental services will be scheduled Oct. 17 and 18. A free dental clinic will also be conducted Oct. 19 at Pinecrest Elementary School for students attending the school. For students found to have a real need, consent forms will be sent to parents before any dental work is done.

Dentists practicing in the area are donating their time to the program. For more information call the Florida Community Clinic at 321-7488 and ask for Mary Lou.

Joint study concludes: Courthouse should remain in downtown Sanford

By NICK PFEIFAUPE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Judicial facilities of the Seminole County Courthouse should remain in downtown Sanford and not be moved to Five Points concludes an extensive Economic Impact Study undertaken jointly by Seminole County and the city of Sanford.

The courthouse study report by Andersen & Associates has been revealed. It includes a study of the financial aspects of both retaining the court facilities in the downtown area against moving them to the Five Points area off U.S. Highway 17-92 in the extreme southern part of the city.

The summary of the study speaks for itself: "It is in the best economic interest of Seminole County and the City of Sanford for the expansion

Lakeview students learn perfect attendance lands some rewards

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — It's no small task, but 33 youngsters managed to be in school every single day last year at Lakeview Middle School in Sanford.

These youngsters never once played hooky or snuck out of school before the end of the day and as a reward, they were treated to a hearty lunch of Popeye's chicken, biscuit and fries with a soda.

"This is great," said seventh grader Angelo

Petracca between bites of the tasty treat. "I like this."

According to guidance counselor Dr. Teresita Leeson, the business community is beginning to support the schools with programs that encourage students and help teachers broaden the educational programs in the classroom.

"We started this four years ago," she said "and we think the students really enjoy this kind of thing."

Sanford airport budget adopted

By NICK PFEIFAUPE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Sanford Airport fiscal year 1995/96 proposed budget has been approved. The Airport Authority adopted the budget on Aug. 8, and the Sanford City Commission approved it Monday night following a joint work session between the two organizations.

Regarding the budget, Airport Director Steve Cooke said with fuel sales being turned over to a private company, the expected income for the airport will be dropping from $2.7 million (this year) to approximately $2.5 million. Cooke says however, that the expenditures will also be dropping because of the change, and the airport will be in good financial shape.

Airport Authority member A.K. Shoemaker added that overall, the economy of the airport is up rather than down because of the change in fuel sales.

In addition to discussing various aspects of the budget during the joint meeting, city commissioners also received a briefing on progress in airport building construction.

Cooke said construction was moving ahead as expected on the new multi-million dollar facility. The International Arrivals Terminal is expected to handle approximately 14 Air Tours flights per week from England to Sanford and return. Cooke said the number could expand in future years, with the facility capable of handling 1,000 passengers per hour.

SHDWA will become part of Main Street

By NICK PFEIFAUPE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — With a unanimous vote by membership on hand last night, the Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association (SHDWA), voted to disband and become part of Sanford Main Street (SMS) organization.

The membership was polled yesterday during a SHDWA meeting at the Colonial Room in downtown Sanford.

SHDWA's board of directors had previously approved the move, but it required additional acceptance on behalf of the membership. The final step will be formal adoption of the matter by SMS.

"The fiscal year starts October 1," said SHDWA President Jere Moore, "so we hope we will be able to take care of the merger so it will become effective at that time."

Moore said it would take some time to close some of the accounts and take care of other paperwork for SHDWA.

Moore said when she discusses the proposal.

Sentence includes payments to orphan

CLEARWATER — An Oldsmar man convicted of killing a couple in a drunken driving accident a year ago has been ordered to pay child support to the dead pair's 11-year-old son as part of his sentence.

Charles Hamilton was sentenced Monday to 12 years in prison for the DUI manslaughter of Holly and Russell Seedner last September.

In an unusual twist, Circuit Judge Joseph Donahay also ordered Hamilton to pay $300 a month to 11-year-old Russell Seedner. The judge said the boy had been left "empty-handed" by the senseless deaths.

It's only appropriate and fair, he said, to fashion a sentence that gives the unmarried Hamilton his first "dependent."

The payments will continue for the 15 years that Hamilton remains on probation, Donahay said.

"I think that's the most positive part of the sentence," Hamilton's lawyer Pat Doherty said after court.

Doherty described Hamilton as someone "who has lived his life with an alcohol problem. ... He's never gone out and willfully hurt somebody."

Prosecutors, citing that Hamilton's license had been revoked for being a habitual traffic offender, had sought the maximum sentence of 16 years in prison. Under sentencing guidelines, the minimum is 9.7 years.

Last month, a jury convicted Hamilton of DUI manslaughter and DUI with serious bodily injury in the collision that killed the Seedners. They were on their way to work delivering newspapers when their car was hit almost head-on by Hamilton's vehicle, prosecutors say.

Jury to sentence murderer

PANAMA CITY — Jurors return Thursday to recommend whether a Miami man should be sentenced to death for murdering an employee of a topless bar, one of four people slain at the bar one night last October.

The jury on Monday convicted Javier Ramos, 28, on the single count of first-degree murder and on lesser counts in the other three slayings. Ramos was convicted about eight hours after co-defendant Joseph Clark, 22, of nearby Lynn Haven, was found innocent of all charges by a separate jury.

Both men had been indicted on four counts each of first-degree murder for the four shooting deaths last Oct. 3, at the Show N Tell lounge in nearby Panama City Beach. The strip bar was closed at the time and no other employees or customers were present.

Ramos and Clark were tried together, but before separate juries. Clark's jury reached a verdict Friday that was sealed until Monday, once Ramos' panel had begun its deliberations.

Clark's acquittal left the victims' family members angry and distraught.

"I can't ever go back to the courthouse," said Lauren Ayers-DeGeorge, mother of victim Eron Patrick Ayers, 18. "They didn't even slap him on the hand. Joseph Clark walked away with a completely normal life. My son is dead."

Ramos' jury will hear additional testimony and argument before making a sentencing recommendation only on the first-degree murder conviction. The alternatives are death in the electric chair or life in prison without parole.

But the panel's sentencing recommendation isn't legally binding on Circuit Judge Dedee Costello.

Program eyes closer look at ecology

TALLAHASSEE — Fishes River and Chickee Island in R.U. Green State Park are imaginary places set up via a computer program and video clips to help middle school students learn about Florida's aquatic environments.

The EcoVentures program, which also includes text and some 20 different laboratory experiments, will be distributed free to interested middle schools, the head of the Department of Environmental Protection told reporters Tuesday.

"We at DEP realize that in order to improve our environment, we have to reach out to the next generation ... of citizens, our students," DEP Secretary Virginia Wetherell said. "We recognize the need to instill in them our mission of educating the public about Florida's fragile environment."

The program was developed over the last two years by George Dawson, a professor of science education at Florida State University. It cost $640,000 and was funded through federal and state taxes on anglers and boaters.

Teachers can get the program after going through a six-hour workshop already scheduled in several districts.

Video clips provide students with the general description of an environmental issue affecting R.U. Green State Park. The clips also describe research projects and raise questions for the students to investigate.

The video has a visual glossary, a field guide that has pictures and descriptions of over 600 organisms.

"By combining the visual beauty of thousands of images from the videodisc and the processing power of the computer, students can enter a fictional world to help solve realistic environmental problems which affect aquatic resources," the program's brochure reads.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

HRS-child sex Agency probes foster home sex claim

By Associated Press

BRADENTON — The state is investigating allegations social workers might have known an 11-year-old girl with an infectious disease was having sex with a teen-ager in a foster home — and let it continue.

The girl, who is emotionally disabled, has hepatitis B, which can be transmitted sexually. And state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services workers allegedly said they had no other foster home immediately available in which to place her.

That's according to a foster parent, Gerri Evans, who said two HRS workers told her in January the girl was having sex with a 15-year-old boy.

Two weeks ago, another foster parent brought up the matter of alleged consensual sex going on at the home of foster parents Shirley and Michael Matthews. That came at a meeting HRS called to hear foster parents' concerns.

HRS spokeswoman Margaret Fender said this week the investigation would concern

"who knew what, and when." And agency supervisors, prompted by a Tampa Tribune inquiry last week, have moved the girl out of the Matthews' home.

Under HRS policy, children must be moved immediately if they are being sexually abused in a foster home. Sex between an 11-year-old and a 15-year-old might be considered abuse, depending on what the parents knew about the situation, but it should not be considered consensual, HRS officials said.

"We've got lots of questions about why things weren't done earlier," said Chip Taylor, HRS district administrator in Hillsborough and Manatee counties.

Ms. Matthews denies the allegations, which she says surfaced about a year ago. She said they were started by some teens in her care who were upset with her.

"They had gotten into an argument and they was just trying to disrupt everybody's life," she said.

Evans says local HRS caseworkers Sonja Johnson and Johnita Kelly didn't seem worried about the risk of the girl passing hepatitis B to the teen-ager. The caseworkers, she maintains, had said the youths were using condoms.

The two caseworkers also had considered moving the 11-year-old girl, but couldn't find another foster home in the county willing to take her, Evans said.

Johnson, contacted Monday, referred all questions to her supervisor, Kelly, denied saying the youths were having "consensual" sex. She would not elaborate or answer further questions.

According to HRS' Fender, the investigation will focus on supervision in the Matthews home, and the comments Evans claims the two social workers made. Fender and the supervisor in charge of foster care in Manatee County said they were unaware of the situation until last week.

But it was common knowledge among foster parents and HRS caseworkers, according to Evans.

"They kept saying, 'We know it's happening, but there's no place to put her,'" Evans said.

Dolphins Bogey and Bacall moved again

By Associated Press

SUGARLOAF KEY — Two dolphins at a sanctuary here soon will be heading to another special facility up Florida's Atlantic coast, ending a months-long public feud over how best to care for the sea mammals.

The dolphins, Bogey and Bacall, will leave Sugarloaf Dolphin Sanctuary for Dolphin Alliance, Inc. in Melbourne, under the terms of an agreement reached Tuesday between current and former Sugarloaf officials.

The accord, overseen by Circuit Judge Richard Payne, stipulates that negative comments about the Sanctuary end and that "The parties wish each other success in their future endeavors."

Bacall and Bogey, along with two other Dolphins — Molly and

In a few days, I will bring Bogey and Bacall back to the Indian River. For the first time since capture, they will be in a wild place ... away from people, boats, buildings, etc. The only hope of them returning to normal is to leave the dolphins alone.

-Rick O'Barry

Lady — made headlines in July 1992 when they escaped from their netted ocean cove at the exclusive Ocean Reef Club in Key Largo, on the northern tip of the Florida Keys.

The dolphins swam north to Biscayne Bay where they cavorted, performing for food, before they were recaptured and returned to the Coral Reef Club.

Molly moved to Sugarloaf from Ocean Reef more than a year ago with Bogey and Bacall, and will remain there. Lady's whereabouts couldn't be verified Tuesday night.

Also staying at Sugarloaf will be three Navy dolphins that arrived earlier this year from a U.S. Navy base in California.

Payne essentially patched up the public feud that started last year between Sugarloaf's Lloyd Good III and Rick O'Barry on one side, and Rick Spill, Mark Berman, and Robert Schoelkopf on the other. The three resigned as Sanctuary board members in a dispute over the best way to prepare the dolphins for an eventual release back into the wild.

The Dolphin Alliance, which has a facility near the Indian River, has been sponsoring the care. Sugarloaf provided Bogey and Bacall.

Officials from both sides voiced satisfaction at the accord, and stressed they share the same goal — release of the dolphins back into the wild.

"The best thing that could happen to Bogey and Bacall did, as far as I'm concerned," said Rick Trout, the former Sugarloaf director of husbandry whose firing last year sparked the dispute.

"In a few days, I will bring Bogey and Bacall back to the Indian River. For the first time since capture, they will be in a wild place ... away from people, boats, buildings, etc. The only hope of them returning to normal is to leave the dolphins alone," agreed the Sanctuary's O'Barry.

Report: Legal needles slash risk of AIDS

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Needle sharing among drug users fell 40 percent after Connecticut passed a law permitting syringe sales without prescriptions, according to a study published in the Journal of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndromes.

The finding is good news in the battle against AIDS, as 75 percent of AIDS cases in Connecticut, and most around the country, occur among intravenous drug users, their sexual partners and children, the journal reported. Easing restrictions on clean needle sales, then, could cut the spread of the AIDS virus.

"This is something that made a dramatic change in behavior at no cost to the public," Beth Weinstein, director of the AIDS division of the Connecticut Health Department, told The New York Times, which reported on the journal study in its Wednesday editions.

Weinstein's department and the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention conducted the study.

Connecticut is one of five states that allow non-prescription sale of syringes. The others are North Dakota, Alaska, Iowa and South Carolina. Connecticut legalized the possession of syringes that are not contaminated with illegal drugs in 1992.

The nine states that require prescriptions for syringes, including New York, New Jersey, Illinois and California, have the highest incidence of AIDS. Researchers also said lower rates of sharing syringes had been found among drug users in Washington state because needles were available in pharmacies, according to a 1991 survey.

An editorial in the journal called on other states to eliminate prescription requirements for syringes, based on Connecticut's experience.

Report documents attempts to remove books from schools

By SALLY STREFF BUZZEE
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON — Attempts to remove controversial books from public school classrooms and libraries dropped slightly last school year, a liberal public policy group reported today. But more of the attempts succeeded.

Among the books challenged: anthologies of scary stories and classics like "Of Mice and Men" and "I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings," the report by People for the American Way said.

In addition to 338 attempts to remove books, often because they contain profanity or sexual scenes, the group documented another 120 cases of what it called "broad-based challenges to public education," including attempts to abolish Halloween celebrations, stop counseling services for gay teenagers and curtail sex education programs.

That number was up from 87 such cases the year before, the group said.

"Students are being denied the resources to develop the critical thinking skills necessary to participate and to succeed in an increasingly complex society," the group said in its report. "Attacks on the Freedom to Learn."

But a conservative group said it's exactly those issues, and the types of books available, that parents properly are concerned with in their children's schools. "We feel the nation should want parents to get involved in their kids' education," said Kristen Hanson of the Family Research Council in Washington. "The problem now is we have too many apathetic parents."

Hanson also accused People for the American Way, which describes itself as a constitutional liberties and anti-censorship organization, of exaggerating a few instances. "They're saying there's this huge crisis, but in fact very, very few of these books are ever pulled," she said.

Of the 338 attempts nationwide to remove or restrict access to books and other materials, 50 percent, or 169, were successful, People for the American Way said.

The year before, 375 attempts were documented and 42 percent were successful.

The most frequent complaint against a book was that its treatment of sexuality was offensive. Profanity was the next most frequent complaint.

People for the American Way said it found 18 percent of the attempts involved people affiliated with religious conservative groups.

Another 5 percent came from left-leaning parents or groups, usually concerned that a book perpetuated a racial stereotype, the Washington-based group said. Among books challenged in those instances were "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" and "To Kill a Mockingbird."

Spirit of cooperation

Times are changing. Contrary to what might have been considered as an anti-law enforcement feeling among some members of the general public, people are now beginning to offer assistance.

Sanford police Chief Ralph Russell says he is pleased at the number of calls being received by police, especially connected with the efforts of the QUAD Squad in combatting drug sales. He says the squad is keeping extremely busy responding to an ever-increasing number of phone calls from residents reporting suspicious drug-related activities.

This cooperation is going beyond police and drugs. During this past weekend, a motorist used his car phone to call deputies when he noticed what he believed was a drunk driver. As a result, the driver was apprehended before anyone was injured or damage occurred.

What does this mean to the average person? It means his/her safety is better than it may have been in the recent past. Thanks to a cooperative citizenry, our law enforcement officers now have more eyes to see crime, more ears to hear crime, and more mouths to report crime.

Russell says that in the past, people saw a police officer approaching, and ran away, regardless of the circumstance. Now he says, there are increasing instances when a police officer enters a community, and the citizens not only appreciate the protection, but are willing to cooperate, often without even being asked to do so.

Naturally, the connection between law officers and the general public is not perfect. We don't expect it would ever reach that stage. There are always people who have been taught (by their elders or siblings) that cops are the bad guys. "Never trust a cop," they're told.

It appears however that this approach may finally be diminishing. More and more youngsters are finding out that police are for protection rather than persecution.

With this improvement in cooperation between the general public and law enforcement, it may be premature, but we believe we are beginning to see better days ahead.

For those who haven't had the opportunity to help combat drugs and crime, the phone number for the Sanford police department is 323-3030. To speak directly to the commander of Sanford's QUAD Squad, the number is 782-3721.

Vouchers will remedy education woes

Oliver Brown simply wanted his daughter Linda to receive the best-possible education. When an all-white grammar school in Topeka, Kan., refused to enroll his little girl, merely because of her dark complexion, he took his case all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

In May 1954, the high court returned a landmark decision. "In the field of public education," the justices declared, "the doctrine of 'separate but equal' has no place."

Four decades have passed since Brown v. Board of Education. And in Kansas, in California and many other states, the public school system is no less separate and (unequal) than the racially segregated school systems that the Supreme Court declared unconstitutional back in 1954.

But the educational inequality that may be observed today is based not on race, but on family economics. Indeed, there is no wider gap that separates poor and affluent Americans than in the quality of schooling their children receive.

If a family is reasonably well-off, chances are that it lives in a community that boasts good public schools. But if, for some reason, the public schools fail to measure up to the well-off parents' expectations, they may choose to enroll their kids in private schools.

On the other hand, if a family is poor or of limited means, it very well may live in a neighborhood where the public schools are wretched. However, since the parents don't have the resources to pay for private schools, their kids are doomed to an inferior education.

There is only one way to address this educational inequality and that is to level the playing field between poor and affluent parents. The best way to do this is to provide a means-tested school voucher that parents may use to shop around for the best private or public school for their children.

Assorted polls have shown wide public support for the voucher concepts. For instance, a 1992 Harris Poll found that more than 70 percent of

But the educational inequality that may be observed today is based not on race, but on family economics.

Americans favor a government-funded voucher that would allow parents to choose among public, private or parochial schools. A 1992 survey by the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies, a black think tank, found that nearly 90 percent of blacks favor vouchers.

Yet, only two states so far — Wisconsin and Ohio — have passed voucher measures. That's mainly because the education establishment in most states is stridently opposed to vouchers and conjures up all sorts of scary stories about what will happen if — horrors — low and moderate income parents are allowed to choose where their kids are educated.

Here in California, for instance, a San Diego-based group, the American Education Reform Foundation, had planned to place a voucher initiative on the state ballot next year. But after conducting extensive public surveys, the foundation discovered that the public has been spooked about vouchers by the powerful California Teachers Association.

Every child should have a right to a quality education regardless of their family's economic status. The only way to make this happen is to provide school vouchers to parents of limited means.

MORTON KONDRACKE

Could Bradley be new Wilson?

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., is correct in saying that the current two-party system is "broken," but if he's going to help repair it, he needs to stop being a political Lone Ranger and form a team.

Specifically, if he's serious about mounting an independent presidential candidacy next year, Bradley ought to waste no time calling up the Democratic Leadership Council and its think tank, the Progressive Policy Institute, where some of the best moderate thinkers in the country are trying to develop a "third way" different from the anti-government Republicans and big-government Democrats.

During a 18-year Senate career now ending with an announcement that he will not seek re-election, Bradley has developed a reputation as a deep thinker willing to cut an independent path.

He elicited wrath from liberal Democrats when he supported aid for the Nicaraguan contras in the 1980s, although his purpose — different from that of the Reagan administration — was not to topple the country's Marxist government, but to force it to agree to free elections.

He was the principal brain behind the 1986 tax reform bill, designed to cut both tax rates (normally a Republican idea) and eliminate tax loopholes (as Democrats usually want to do).

Bradley was a stalwart supporter of the North American Free Trade Agreement, which most Democrats opposed, but also has a generally liberal voting record on social and economic issues.

He's made significant contributions to the formulation of national thinking on Russia, race and the need to restore a strong "civil society" in the country through individual initiative and community organizations.

Yet Bradley's operating style has been distinctly solo. He thinks up his ideas himself, forms temporary coalitions to get some of them passed, and then disappears from view. Even though he first became famous as a star basketball player, he's not a member of any political team.

In announcing he wouldn't seek a fourth term, Bradley left the door open for an independent run against President Clinton and the Republicans.

Such an endeavor can't be undertaken solo, however. Besides a political and fund-raising organization, Bradley will need programmatic backup to help ordinary people improve their "threatened economic circumstance."

Bradley's critique of the Republicans (that they believe only in markets) and of the Democrats (that they believe only in government) is at the center of the work of the DLC and PPI. Yet, Bradley has never been a member of the DLC, possibly because its former chairman, President Clinton, is a man whose leadership Bradley finds wanting.

However, Clinton himself abandoned much of the DLC's centrist agenda in order to maintain favor with congressional Democrats and filled his administration with conventional liberals rather than "new Democrats."

Hence, the pioneering brainwork of the DLC and PPI are available for a third party candidate such as Bradley or retired Gen. Colin Powell.

The marriage would seem to be perfect. According to PPI's president, Will Marshall, there's an uncanny resemblance between the 1890s and the 1990s, and a crying need for a new Progressive Movement to cope with current challenges.

Much as the 1890s represented the transition from rural to industrial America, in the 1990s the nation is in transition from the industrial age to the global information age — and ordinary citizens are being subjected to similar economic and social wrenching.

Marshall thinks that the 1996 election could resemble the 1912 election, which pitted a traditional laissez faire Republican, incumbent President William Howard Taft, against "Progressive" Democrat Woodrow Wilson and Independent former President Teddy Roosevelt.

According to Marshall, Roosevelt was a Progressive-style political reformer, but also a believer in partnerships between big government and big corporations, whereas Wilson both reform and limits on government and corporate power.

The Great Depression produced Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal and a giant federal government modeled on the Teddy Roosevelt idea. The government was enlarged yet further during World War II, the Cold War and the Great Society. But Marshall says that liberalism is now discredited, having failed to guarantee economic security and social stability.

The Democrats' defeat in 1994, the defection of various Democrats to the GOP and the decision of leaders like Bill Bradley to leave office are all evidence of deep problems in the party. But Republicans seem interested only in enhancing the wealth of the already-wealthy.

If he's going to help repair it, he needs to stop being a political Lone Ranger and form a team.

Fatigued Faulkner should be saluted

In 1992, Shannon Faulkner's high school teacher was handing out magazine articles for students to read and discuss. When the teacher held up a copy of Sports Illustrated that featured an article on The Citadel military college, Faulkner chose that assignment. "I had missed that issue," she told New Yorker writer Susan Faludi.

After a class discussion about whether publicly funded institutions should be allowed to bar women, Faulkner left the classroom and went to the guidance counselor's office. She returned with a Citadel application, which she filed out during the remaining class period. "I didn't really make a big to-do about it," she told Faludi.

The rest, as they say, is history. Faulkner was accepted by The Citadel, but the acceptance was revoked when school officials discovered that she is female. After a 2 1/2-year lawsuit, Faulkner won the right to attend The Citadel. After six days, she quit, citing the stress and exhaustion caused by her fight.

In 1970, Norma McCorvey met lawyer Sarah Weddington at an Italian restaurant in Dallas. McCorvey, 21 and pregnant, was desperate to get an abortion. Weddington explained that abortion was illegal in Texas but that she was filing a lawsuit to overturn the law and she needed a pregnant woman who wanted an abortion to put her name on the lawsuit. Hopeful that the lawsuit would enable her to get an abortion, McCorvey agreed.

Once again, you know the rest of the story: McCorvey was named Jane Roe, the case eventually went to the Supreme Court and overturned the laws that banned abortion — though not in time for McCorvey herself to benefit. After about a decade of anonymity, McCorvey became a spokeswoman for the reproductive rights movement. After another decade, McCorvey switched to the other side and joined the radical anti-abortion group Operation Rescue.

Shannon Faulkner and Norma McCorvey each blazed a trail for womankind. And then they each retreated. Many women are angry at them for this. Indeed, it's hard not to despair at seeing two bright symbols of the women's movement come crashing to the ground.

But these women are more than just symbols, they are also people. And they are people who never set out to become representatives of womankind. Indeed, they had never even identified themselves as feminists. They were simply women who saw a barrier and did their best to overcome it.

"So many people are either mad at me or disappointed in me. And some are elated that I'm leaving. All I have to say is that I have to think of my health right now," Faulkner said at a press conference.

McCorvey expressed similar sentiments of self-preservation when she talked to ABC's Ted Koppel on "Nightline." Although onlookers may not be convinced that the pro-life movement will not exploit McCorvey's change of heart, McCorvey herself is adamant. "There will be no exploitation of my political status," she said. "I will not let them use me."

If Faulkner and McCorvey have decided to stop being symbols, it's hard to blame them. The media (of which I acknowledge being a member) constantly searches for individuals to pluck from obscurity and anoint into icons. And sometimes the people behind the cover stories don't realize the price of instant fame until it's too late.

Shannon Faulkner and Norma McCorvey each blazed a trail for womankind. And then they each retreated.

Court

that the Seminole Judicial Center can generate economic spin-offs in the downtown area while at Five Points, the area will most likely grow regardless of a new courthouse being located there.

The study says that Five Points is already an established area consisting of Flea World, automobile sales, and single family development. It says, "Future development can be expected to occur because of the draw of existing development and the addition of new population through the development of more residences in that area."

The study says, "Downtown Sanford is currently distressed (depreciated values) although there has been increased activity within the last few years. There are current vacancies and depressed sales which would be helped tremendously by a large employer such as the Judicial Center."

It predicts the center would also draw additional facilities such as office space, hotel rooms, restaurants and direct and secondary businesses.

The study by Andersen & Associates was to provide information to the Board of Seminole County Commissioners and the Sanford City Commission on what economic events may occur outside of the site selected in either downtown Sanford or Five Points. It was based on the projection that construction costs of the facility would be relatively similar regardless of the location.

While the present downtown courthouse, annex facilities, state attorney building and state attorney annex occupy 139,519 square feet, with the renovations plus new judicial center in the downtown area, available square footage is estimated at 284,153.

The study projected that if the facility was built at Five Points, the same total space would be utilized. Likewise, both sites would be expected to have 1,082 employees. The existing downtown facility presently has 831.

In addition to the financial aspects of the two locations, the study also addresses proposed development in the downtown Sanford area, which is expected to be of additional support to both the Judicial Center and the downtown area.

It mentions 200 West Office Center, an approved PUD (Planned Unit Development) for a 144,000 square foot six-story office building to be built on Sun Bank property, as well as the possibility of a three-story 400 car parking garage to be built at that location depending on off-site parking which would provide space for an additional 560 cars.

Regarding the Marina Hotel and Fitzgerald's at the lakefront, the study says, "Immediate plans call for Fitzgerald's to be a full-time lunch and dinner restaurant for the hotel and general public, and for the existing hotel restaurant to be converted to a 300 seat banquet hall. Plans are being prepared for the entire holdings to be approved for a 300 room hotel and 40,000 square feet entertainment/dining/retail center around the lake and marina."

Merge

she often calls it a merger. "But in reality," she said, "it is a situation where SHDWA would cease to exist as a formal organization, join as members of SMS, and become a historic downtown committee of the SMS operations."

Originally, it was the SHDWA organization which began work on having Sanford approved as part of the state and nationwide Main Street program. SHDWA offices were used to prepare initial paperwork and research which had to be undertaken prior to the submission of the request.

"But our membership is dropping now," Moore said. "This is bad in some ways but good in other ways. Many people say they are leaving SHDWA because business is beginning to improve so much that they just don't have time to devote to the organization."

"It's great that the business community is moving forward," she said, "but some of us have mixed emotions about seeing the end of SHDWA."

Economy grew at a 1.1 percent annual rate in second quarter

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The economy slowed dramatically in the second quarter of 1995, expanding at the weakest pace in nearly four years.

But the 1.1 percent annual rate of growth for the April-June quarter, reported today by the Commerce Department, was larger than previously estimated, thanks largely to higher consumer spending.

Analysts said in advance of the report that the economy is not headed for recession and already is shaking off some sluggishness. They predict solid if unspectacular gains in gross domestic product by the end of the year and into 1996.

The government said a month ago that GDP, measuring all goods and services produced in the United States, grew at an anemic 0.5 percent rate in the spring.

In today's updated figures, the Commerce Department said upward revisions in consumer spending and business investment in inventories offset downward revisions for net exports and government spending.

The department also said that, using a new method of calculating growth that it is phasing in this year, GDP expanded only 0.5 percent in the second quarter. The new method will formally replace the older system at the end of 1995 and is designed to measure price changes more accurately.

The economy has slowed markedly since last year, when it grew at the fastest rate in a decade. GDP increased at a 2.7 percent annual rate in the first three months of 1995 after a booming 5.1 percent pace in the fourth quarter of 1994.

The Commerce Department also said today that after-tax corporate profits grew less rapidly in the second quarter, rising 1.5 percent after increasing 3.8 percent in the first three months of the year.

Inflation remained under control. One measure of the cost-of-living tied to GDP rose 3 percent in the second quarter, matching the gain of the first three months this year.

Today's report is not likely to increase pressure on the Federal Reserve to lower short-term interest rates again to give the economy another shot in the arm.

The next set of key data is due Friday when the Labor Department announces its employment figures for August.

The Federal Reserve, after seven interest-rate increases since early last year, reversed course in July and cut a key rate for the first time in nearly three years. But the central bank left the rate unchanged at a meeting of its policy-makers last week.

The Commerce Department said consumer spending, which accounts for about two-thirds of GDP, increased at a $30.4 billion rate in the second quarter, compared with $14.3 billion the previous three months.

Analysts said the buying pickup may have been due to price cutting by businesses eager to reduce mounting stockpiles of goods.

They also noted that consumer confidence remains high. That was underscored Tuesday when the government reported that new home sales rose in July for the third straight month.

The Commerce Department said the gains in consumer buying in the second quarter included increased spending on services and purchases of interest-sensitive, durable goods.

Inventories subtracted $18.4 billion from GDP in the second quarter as car manufacturers trimmed production to match easing demand.

But the government said inventory investment still increased more rapidly than previously estimated, largely due to higher livestock build-up on farms.

Analysts said they expect the economy to pick up a moderate head of steam by the end of the year after businesses reduce excess inventories.

Attend

Popeye's is picking up the tab.

The students say, for the most part, they love school.

"I like going to band," said Rosemary Canonizado. "And this year, it's really cool: we have lockers."

Her friend Iyana Iawan loves just being with her friends.

"I like hanging out with my friends and going to class with them," she said.

Muriel Ratliff said the Lakeview teachers make it worthwhile to attend classes.

"My math teacher, Mrs. DeLoach, is really good," she said. "She's why I like coming to school."

Joey Wells' reason for attending class is a little closer to home.

"My mom makes me come to school," he said. "Even when I'm sick."

David Guevara and his friend Angelo Petracca think attending school is essential to getting into college later on.

"You get better grades and learn the things you need to get into college," Guevara, who says he wants to attend the University of Florida when the time comes, said.

"You get better recommendations to high school and college if you go to school and do your work," Petracca said.

Friends Linda Davis, Ramone Raines and Andre Mitchell are drawn to school for the opportunity to play sports. They stay in class because they want to be eligible for the sports opportunities.

"I like P.E. and my Quest (a Lion's Club-sponsored class for at-risk students) class," Davis said.

Raines equates good grades and perfect attendance with sports eligibility.

"If you get good grades you can play sports," he said. "I like going to social studies and I love to play football and baseball."

Mitchell said he enjoys school and thinks hard work pays off in class.

"I work hard so I can do well and play basketball," he said.

Leeson said she is pleased that the students are dedicated to school, regardless of their motivation.

"If they are in school, we can teach them," she said.

the midges which will fly around and die within 24 hours, falling into the water providing food for the fish. More fish would draw more fishermen to the area, the commissioner suggested.

The pilot test to gather scientific data will include various colors and light wattages on the marina breakwater. If the program is successful and is given an environmental stamp of approval, lights would be installed off shore to draw the bugs away from planned development, including a pedestrian/bike path. He suggested a special lighting taxing district could be established to fund the full scale midge reduction program.

McLain proposed a 50-50 city/county funding of the pilot program.

Throughout the work session it was repeatedly noted the two proposed CRAs, Sanford's and Casselberry's Central City, had some similarities but different impacts.

"We are kind of comparing apples and oranges," noted BCC chairman Randy Morris.

While discussing both projects, county officials expressed interest in talking about surcharges the cities impose on residents in unincorporated areas for water and sewer services. A 25 percent surcharge is added on by both cities for county residents receiving the utilities services.

Simmons explained that although the city receives revenue from the non-city resident surcharge, the city pays for relocating utility lines necessitated by county road projects helping balance the revenue vs. expense equation.

The commissioners noted they would like the cities to prioritize their proposed redevelopment projects.

Commissioner Pat Warren said she favors the CRAs for economic development but the details must be ironed out.

County attorney Bob McMillan explained since Sanford has an existing redevelopment area established for the Seminole Town Center, a recent Ft. Myers court case might preclude a second CRA. However, establishing a second advisory board to deal with the waterfront/downtown area might clear the legal hurdle.

Additional information from the cities will be provided in September and a vote may be possible at the county commissioners Oct. 10 meeting.

Cooke gave an example of what an incoming tourist or family would do once their plane landed in Sanford from England.

"There will be a concourse capable of handling up to five large aircraft at a time," he said. "From there, they will come into the terminal and after going through customs, would go to the ground floor where they would get their luggage and obtain a special luggage cart."

"They would then go out the front door and cross the street under a canopy to protect them from the weather, and load their luggage into a rental car which is part of their travel package. From that point, they would be off and running, going wherever they want," he continued.

The new arrival terminals building will have a special restaurant, supervised child care facilities, and other features designed especially for the international tourists who may have to wait several hours for their flights. "This is common for many European airports but will be something relatively new here in the states," he said.

Cooke also reported on a proposed two-story visitors welcome center which will be built immediately across the street near the front entrance of the international arrivals terminal.

"There we will have various tourist specialists who will answer any questions our visitors may have and help direct them to their motoring destination," Cooke said.

City commissioners suggested the airport consider the possibility of some type of transportation service available at the airport to take tourists to downtown Sanford or the Seminole Towne Center mall.

"That's worth considering," Cooke said, "because if there's one thing the tourists want to do, it's shop."

Simpson trial update

LOS ANGELES — Before Judge Lance Ito stands the biggest decision of the O.J. Simpson trial, perhaps the biggest of his career — a ruling with implications beyond the courtroom that will tax the judge's emotions as well as his intellect.

The Mark Fuhrman tapes have not only rocked an already trouble-plagued trial, but aggravated racial wounds in a city that hasn't come close to recovering from the riots sparked by the acquittals of police officers who beat Rodney King.

After hearing impassioned arguments from attorneys Tuesday, Ito indicated he would rule in the next few days on whether the majority-black jury will hear some of Fuhrman's racist rants and chest-thumping tales of a mean cop in a mean city.

"The quality of your arguments ... has given me a lot to think about and this is not something I can rule upon from the seat of my pants," Ito told attorneys. "I need to sit down and look at each one of these individual situations and make the appropriate ruling."

Mindless downing of antacids

CHICAGO — Mindlessly downing antacids could put your life at risk from magnesium poisoning.

Fourteen deaths, 31 hospitalizations and four cases of disability were linked to magnesium-containing products from 1968 to 1994, says a report by Food and Drug Administration doctors.

"Maalox and Mylanta — people just drink them like water," said Dr. Man C. Fung, the report's lead author. "They don't even think about it."

Consumers and physicians often underestimate the danger and may not recognize the symptoms of magnesium poisoning, Fung and Drs. Michael Weintraub and Debra L. Bowen wrote in the August issue of the American Medical Association's Archives of Family Medicine.

Symptoms can include clumsiness, weakness, paralysis, drowsiness, confusion and coma.

Magnesium is an important nutrient in foods and drinking water. It is common in over-the-counter antacids, laxatives and pain relievers. Taken as directed, such products are safe, Fung said by telephone from the University of Pennsylvania Cancer Center, where he is now on staff.

Robert Kniffin, a spokesman for Mylanta's manufacturer, Johnson & Johnson-Merck Consumer Pharmaceuticals Co., said, "Our product is safe when used in accordance with the package labeling, which is quite clear."

Record fund raising

WASHINGTON — Taking advantage of their new majority status, House Republicans led the way toward a record $43.8 million in campaign fund raising in the first half of this year.

The total for both parties represented a 38 percent increase over the comparable period in 1993, when House incumbents raised $31.5 million, and was the highest total for the kickoff season of a new election cycle in the 20 years records have been kept.

Led by Speaker Newt Gingrich's $885,000 and by an aggressive freshman class, the House's new GOP majority accounted for $27.5 million, or nearly two-thirds of the total.

Figures reported to the Federal Election Commission for the first six months of 1995 showed average receipts for GOP lawmakers of about $121,000, compared with $86,000 for Democrats.

WORLD BRIEFS

Women's conference opens today

BEIJING — The biggest meeting ever of the world's women is opening today with a dispute over freedom of expression threatening to put participants on a collision course with the Chinese government.

Conference organizers vowed today to defy Chinese restrictions on demonstrations and allow freedom of expression throughout their gathering site. The promise followed the government's announcement Tuesday that demonstrations would be limited to a small schoolyard inside the conference grounds.

Chinese officials said all protests criticizing China would be banned, but senior organizer Irene Santiago said that as far as the meeting is concerned, there is "no such instruction — nor will such instruction ever be given."

She spoke at a briefing just hours before the official opening of the 10-day meeting involving more than 20,000 activists from non-governmental organizations around the world.

Allies may sustain air attacks for many days

By ROBERT BURNS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — U.S. and NATO military officials pored over bomb-run video tapes today, assessing the heaviest allied strikes to date over Bosnia and poised to continue the assault to deter the Serbs.

Calling the initial assault a success, defense officials said Air Force and allied jets based at Aviano, Italy, and Navy and Marine Corps warplanes off the USS Theodore Roosevelt are ready to continue the campaign.

"The strikes right now are more intended to try to indicate that we have the capability to do a significant amount of damage to military targets of the Bosnian Serb army and certainly there is a lot more out there if we try to go further," U.S. Navy Adm. Leighton Smith, the NATO commander in charge of the strikes said on CNN today.

"We have tried to be robust in our response but obviously limited. My hope is that we have done enough to get their attention and further action won't be required," Smith said.

NATO is prepared to sustain its U.S.-led air bombardment of Serb positions around Sarajevo for several days, U.S. defense officials say — a departure from previous brief, pinpoint attempts to punish Serb aggression.

President Clinton called the allied attacks necessary and predicted the show of force would not derail the delicate peace negotiations in the former Yugoslavia.

"I believe it is something that had to be done," Clinton, vacationing in Jackson Hole, Wyo., told reporters after more than 60 U.S. and allied warplanes began their assault on Serb air defense missile and radar sites and communications facilities in eastern Bosnia.

Among the U.S. planes participating in the initial bombing raids were 22 Navy F-18 Hornet strike fighters, two F-14 Tomcat strike escort jets, and two EA-6B radar-jamming planes off the Roosevelt. These, along with the ground-based war planes sought first to jam or destroy Serb air defense systems, according to U.S. defense officials who spoke on condition they not be identified.

The Roosevelt steamed more than 900 miles in less than 24 hours to get into position to launch the strike. The carrier had just pulled into the Adriatic Sea shortly before the attacks began. The Roosevelt, with 36 F-18s and 14 F-14s aboard, as well as numerous support planes, was diverted from a scheduled port call Tuesday in Greece. It had been steaming in the eastern Mediterranean, where it participated in a joint U.S.-Jordanian exercise.

The air assault, by far the most strenuous allied campaign since the Bosnian war began, was in retaliation for the shelling of a marketplace in the Bosnian capital that killed 37 people. The United Nations blamed the Serbs for the shelling.

Smith confirmed earlier reports that, despite antiaircraft fire, no American or allied casualties were sustained nor were any planes hit by Serb defenses in the initial NATO assault. The extent of damage inflicted on the Serbs also was not immediately known.

Several U.S. officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said NATO was prepared to continue the air attacks, although the actual timetable was not known. "It's round one," one official said.

The duration of the assault was expected to be determined by the degree of success of the initial bombing runs and the level of Serb resistance or retaliation.

U.S. officials, including Defense Secretary William Perry, have said in recent weeks that if NATO undertook a large-scale assault in Bosnia, the Serbs' extensive and relatively sophisticated air defense network would be the first target.

The NATO planes struck targets in close coordination with United Nations ground-based controllers who have been training regularly in Italy in anticipation of just such a major strike, the defense official said.

The United States also has many Air Force warplanes based at Aviano, Italy, just across the Adriatic from Sarajevo. These include F-15E Strike Eagle strike aircraft, F-16 Fighting Falcon attack planes, OA-10 ground-attack planes, EF-111 radar-jamming planes and AWACS airborne warning and control aircraft.

Report: Time Warner offers $8.5 billion for TBS

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Time Warner Inc. has offered $8.5 billion to acquire Turner Broadcasting System Inc., in what would be the third megamerger in the media business this summer, it was reported Wednesday.

The New York Times, citing executives familiar with the talks, said Turner has not decided whether it will accept the bid, but added that Ted Turner, who founded the cable-television company, seemed enthusiastic about a merger.

The New York Post reported in Wednesday's editions that the two companies were still negotiating.

Michael Oglesby, vice president of corporate communications at Turner, declined to comment when contacted at home late Tuesday night. Edward Adler, a Time Warner spokesman, also refused to comment.

If the proposed merger were approved, the Time Warner-Turner conglomerate would be the largest media company in the world with revenues topping $18.7 billion, the Times said. That would surpass the alliance of Walt Disney Co. and Capital Cities/ABC Inc. announced earlier this summer and far exceed the recently announced Westinghouse Electric Corp. bid for CBS Inc.

Under terms of the proposed deal, Time Warner would purchase 81 percent of Turner it does not already own by issuing 189 million new shares, the Times said.

Turner shareholders would receive seven-tenths to eight-tenths of a share in Time Warner in return for each Turner share. That would value Turner stock at $35 a share. It closed Tuesday at $24 a share hours before word of the deal leaked out.

If the Atlanta-based Turner does agree to the merger, it would become a wholly owned subsidiary of Time Warner, the Times said, with Ted Turner becoming vice chairman of Time Warner and Turner Broadcasting receiving two seats on Time Warner's board.

Time Warner is led by Gerald Levin, who would head the combined company, according to the Post report.

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

Times calls it quits

GAINESVILLE — Florida fullback Kenny Times quit the team after being ruled academically ineligible.

The Lake Howell High School grad, a 5-foot-11, 251-pounder, entered fall practice on the third string behind Tremayne Allen and Shawn Nunn. He had been shifted from inside linebacker to defensive tackle to fullback.

Times, who only played six downs while at Florida, is not expected to rejoin the Gators, who open the season Saturday against Houston.

UCF makes offensive changes

ORLANDO — Head coach Gene McDowell announced that freshman tailback Johnie Presley of Ocala, has moved to second-team behind Marquette Smith, and senior Eddie Keys will start at wide receiver when the University of Central Florida hosts Eastern Kentucky Thursday night in the Florida Citrus Bowl.

Presley, who teamed with starting quarterback Daunte Culpepper at Vanguard High School last year, has steadily moved his way up the depth chart this fall, recently passing redshirt freshman Mike Grant.

Keys was moved to first team after starter Stuart Stipe suffered a bruised knee in practice. Stipe is expected to miss the ECU game.

Girls softball players needed

SANFORD — Players are still needed for both the Junior (12 & Under) and the Senior (16 & Under) divisions of the Sanford Recreation Department Girls' Fall Slowpitch Softball Leagues that are scheduled to begin play on Saturday, September 16th.

For more information, or to register, call (407) 330-5697 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

SHS football tickets on sale

SANFORD — Advance tickets for regular season Seminole High School football home football games are now on sale at William Howard Jewlers, Lakeview Middle School, Sanford Middle School and the Athletic Office in Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium at SHS.

Cost is $4 for advance tickets; $5 at the gate; $30 for reserve seating; and $20 for a season ticket. Reserve seating and season tickets are only good for regular season home games.

For more information, call 322-4352 ex. 299.

YMCA Adult Flag Football

LAKE MARY — Sign-ups for the YMCA Fall Adult Flag Football League are now being accepted. This is an eight week season with games played on Saturday afternoons. The league is open to anyone 18 or older and teams are seven to a side with up to 14 on a roster.

The season begins Saturday, September 16, at Idyllwild Elementary School with a tournament beginning Nov. 4 with the Eastside and Winter Park YMCA's. Space is limited, so sign up early! Registration deadline is Wednesday, Sept. 13 at 5 p.m. There is a mandatory captain's meeting on Sept. 13 at 7 p.m. at the Seminole YMCA.

For more information please contact Todd Couture, Program Coordinator, at the Seminole Family YMCA, at (407) 321-8944.

Cubs end Marlins streak

MIAMI — Ozzie Timmons had two doubles and two RBIs and the Chicago Cubs beat Florida 10-6, the Marlins' first home loss since July 27.

Florida had won 14 consecutive home games, the longest streak in the National League since Philadelphia won 16 straight at home in 1991.

Tampa signs QB

TAMPA — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers, down to two quarterbacks after the last training camp cut, re-signed fifth-year pro Todd Philcox.

Philcox, who will back up Trent Diller and Casey Weldon, was released Sunday when the club trimmed the roster to the regular-season limit of 53 players. To make room for him, cornerback Tony Stargell was waived.

The Bucs also signed two more players to the practice squad. Quarterback Kelly Holcomb and linebacker Kerry Mock join tight end Cedric Saunders and defensive end Herman Smith, who were placed on the squad Monday.

Tribe aces Bulldogs

White's serving leads SHS past St. Cloud in 5A-6

From Staff Reports

ST. CLOUD — Tina White turned in six aces Tuesday night to lead the Seminole High School girls volleyball team to a season-opening victory over St. Cloud in a Class 5A-District 6 contest at the Dog House, 15-5, 15-13.

The Fighting Seminoles jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first game behind the serve of Harmony Rozier, then increased the lead to 8-1 when Marisa Alford took over at the baseline. White served out the last seven points of the game, which included four aces.

"The first game was very quick," said

Seminole head coach Beth Corso. "I just let them play. Our objective was to win. I really like to win matches in two games, and we got to work on some things in the second game. I'm glad we got to play everybody in this match."

The home-standing Bulldogs jumped out to an early 8-2 lead in the second game before Rozier won six points on her serve. Rozier won 11 service points in the match, and also turned in 5 assists and 2 digs.

Alford also posted three aces, three kills and two blocks in the match, while White had three assists and two kills. Aubrey Nelson had five kills, five spikes and one block. Her second ace of the match ended the second game.

The victory is important because Seminole's 5A-6 record will help determine where the team is seeded in the district tournament.

"St. Cloud beat us twice last year," Corso said. "The district is more important than the conference, but the conference has tougher competition."

The Tribe will now be off until next Thursday, September 7th, when they open their home schedule with another 5A-6 match with Kissimmee-Osceola. The junior varsity will open action at 5 p.m., with the varsity set to serve at 6 p.m.

Basketball games go down to wire

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — It doesn't get any closer than this.

Almost all of the games in the Sanford Recreation Department 16-18 Summer Basketball League have been tightly contested. But never as close as it was Tuesday night in the Dan Pelham Gymnasium at Sanford Middle School.

All three games were decided by two points, with the final two games going to overtime.

The big winner of the night was First Shiloh Church, which got 21 points from Steve Austin, 12 points from Ken Maultrie and 11 points from Steve Carter to edge the World of Creation Rebels 54-52 in overtime to move into a share of first place in the league with the idle Celtics.

Kevin Brown and Alphonso Davis netted 16 points each and Anthony Alloway 12 for the Rebels.

Another game with a big bearing on the standings was in the final game of the evening where Sanford AAU used 18 points by Mike Williams, 14 points by Walter Batton and 10 points by Chris Westhelle to win its first game of the season, 52-50, over Calvary Apostolic Temple in overtime. Charles Gipson scored 20 points for Calvary.

Gordon in command

Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH — Jeff Gordon continues to hold on to the NASCAR Winston Cup point lead by avoiding the trouble that produced 15 caution flags in Saturday night's Goody's 500.

Gordon led early in the race before finishing sixth and now holds a 178-point lead (3,360-3,184) over Sterling Marlin.

Hometown driver gets modified win

By PAUL MARSEGLIA
Special to the Herald

SAMSULA — New Smyrna Beach driver Jerry Symons, who pilots the Cowboy's Saloon/Park Ave. Auto Parts Chevrolet Cavalier, won the modified feature event Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway after Friday night's action at Orlando Speed World had been washed out by rain.

In tow behind Symons were Randy Hecker, Bill Gunn, Raymond Mark and Wayne Parker. Symons, who has racked up 12 feature wins this season, has had an up and down season.

"We really have to get things together this season," said car owner Herman Kopri. "In the last few months, we've either won the races we competed in or wrecked and didn't finish at all. Somewhere, we have to hit a happy medium."

Tony Newsom, driving the AA National Transmission Chevrolet Monte Carlo, outclassed a 14 car limited late model field to notch his eighth win of the year. Newsom took the lead from Osteen's Bobby Sears with an inside pass at the halfway point. Two laps later, Rusty Ebersole got around Sears for the number two spot. Newsom took the checkers ahead of Ebersole, Sears, Larry Cook and Chad Allman.

With three laps to go to the checkered flag, Ted Vulplus passed race leader Conrad Grenier to grab the lead in the mini-stock headliner. Vulplus held on to win his second feature of the year. Kevin DiMeco, who got by Grenier on the white flag lap, was second. Trailing Grenier were Allen Buker and Jared Allison.

David Russell piloted the Russell Automotive/Horsen Around Farms Chevrolet Camaro to a wire to wire win in the 50 lap late model feature event. Russell, who set the event's fastest qualifying time, started the race from the pole position with Gary Balough lined up on the outside.

At the drop of the green flag, Russell charged to the point with Balough tucked into second place behind David Rogers. As the race progressed, Russell pulled to Add cranberry sparkle to dinner table

Jell-O is adding a new twist to the grocery shelves at the end of this summer. Cranberry lovers are in for a real treat soon with the debut of new flavors: Cranberry, Cranberry Raspberry, Cranberry Strawberry and Sugar Free Cranberry.

These new mouth-watering, fat-free flavors will give cranberry lovers other ways to enjoy the taste of this beloved berry in one of America's favorite desserts.

With these four new flavors, everybody can enjoy the tangy, sweet taste of cranberry as it shimmies, jiggles and swishes in gelatin.

These recipes were developed by Kraft Foods Inc.

CRANBERRY STRAWBERRY SPARKLE

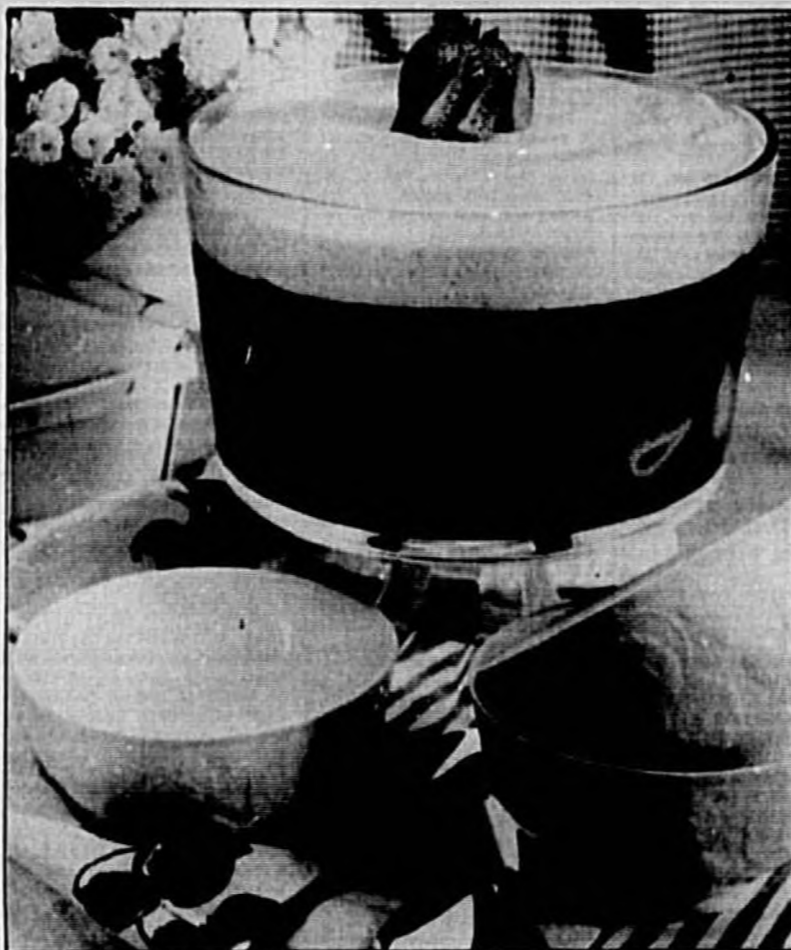

2 cups boiling water
1 package (8-serving size) or 2 packages (4-serving size) cranberry strawberry flavor gelatin
2 cups cold cranberry juice cocktail or water
1 cup sliced strawberries*
½ cup blueberries*
*Or omit blueberries and use 1 pint sliced strawberries.

Stir boiling water into gelatin in medium bowl 2 minutes or until completely dissolved. Stir in cold juice or water. Reserve ½ cup. Refrigerate remaining gelatin 1½ hours or until thickened (spoon drawn through leaves definite impression). Stir in berries. Spoon into 2-quart bowl. Refrigerate about 30 minutes or until set but not firm (should stick to finger when touched and should mound).

Meanwhile, refrigerate reserved gelatin 25 minutes or until slightly thickened (consistency of unbeaten egg whites). Beat with electric mixer on high speed until gelatin is light and fluffy and doubled in volume. Spoon on top of set gelatin in bowl.

Refrigerate about 2 hours or until firm. Store leftover dessert in refrigerator.

Serves 8.
CRANBERRY STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE
2 cups boiling water
1 package (8-serving size) or 2

Spectacular Cranberry Strawberry Sparkle is guaranteed to dazzle dessert lovers.

SENIOR EDITOR
DORIS DIETRICH

packages (4-serving size) cranberry strawberry flavor gelatin
1 cup cold water
2 cups thawed frozen whipped topping
2 slices pound cake (1 inch thick), cubed
1 package (10 ounces) frozen strawberries in lite syrup
Stir boiling water into gelatin in medium bowl 2 minutes or until completely dissolved. Stir in cold water. Reserve 1½ cups at room temperature. Refrigerate remaining gelatin 1½ hours or until slightly thickened (consistency of unbeaten egg whites). Stir in whipped topping with wire whisk until smooth. Stir in cake cubes. Spoon into 2-quart serving bowl. Refrigerate about 30 minutes or until set but not firm (should stick to finger when touched and should mound).

Meanwhile stir strawberries into reserved gelatin until strawberries are melted and gelatin is thickened. Spoon over creamy gelatin mixture in bowl.

Refrigerate 2 hours or until firm. Garnish with additional whipped topping and strawberries, if desired. Store leftover dessert in refrigerator.

Serves 10. CRANBERRY FRUIT BASKET

2 cups boiling water
1 package (8-serving size) or 2 packages (4-serving size) cranberry flavor gelatin
1½ cups cold ginger ale
1 cup sliced strawberries
1 cup halved green seedless grapes
1 cup cubed cantaloupe
Stir boiling water into gelatin in large bowl 2 minutes or until completely dissolved. Stir in cold ginger ale. Refrigerate 1½ hours or until thickened (spoon drawn through leaves definite impression). Stir in fruit. Spoon into 5-cup mold.

Refrigerate 4 hours or until firm. Unmold. Garnish as desired. Store leftover dessert in refrigerator.

Makes 5 cups or 10 servings.
Unmolding: Dip mold in warm water for about 15 seconds. Gently pull gelatin from around edges with moist fingers. Place moistened serving plate on top of mold. Invert mold and plate; shake slightly to loosen. Gently remove mold and center gelatin on plate.

FROZEN CRANBERRY POPS

2 cups boiling water
1 package (4-serving size) cranberry strawberry or cranberry raspberry flavor gelatin
½ cup sugar (optional)
1 cup cold cranberry juice cocktail or water

Stir boiling water into gelatin and sugar in medium bowl 2 minutes or until completely dissolved. Stir in cold juice. Pour into 5-ounce plastic or paper cups, souffle cups or pop molds. Freeze about 2 hours or until almost firm. Insert wooden spoons or sticks or plastic spoons into each for handle.

Freeze 8 hours or overnight until firm. Press firmly on bottom of cup to release pop. Store leftover pops in freezer.

Makes about 3½ cups or 7 (5-oz.) pops.

Common sense can outrank propriety

DEAR ABBY: Years ago, when married people were invited to weddings, the invitations were addressed to "Mr. and Mrs."

Have times changed? Recently, my physician husband received two wedding invitations addressed to him only. One was from a nurse, the other from a patient. He said both knew he is married.

He attended both weddings by himself because he is dedicated to his profession; but I feel my not being invited and his accepting without me, was rude.

Can you update me on the

ADVICE
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

present customs?

INVISIBLE PARTNER
DEAR PARTNER: Forget customs, etiquette and all the rest. Kindness and common sense outrank propriety and tradition any day in my book. The invitations should have included you. But since they did not, your husband should have either requested permission to bring you — or stayed home himself.

DEAR ABBY: Please settle an argument. Where I work, there is this woman who has silver-gray hair, but a young face and a good figure. She must be about 50 but looks younger. She has 12 grandchildren, and she swims with them, rides a bicycle with them and belongs to three bowling teams.

She says she never baby-sits with her grandchildren unless there is an emergency. Everyone says I am all wet with my ideas, but I think a grandmother should act like a grandmother, and should be more proud of her grandchildren than her bowling score.

A MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: This grandmother is acting like a grandmother. A modern one. Nowadays you can't tell a grandmother by looking at her, and I say more power to her!

DEAR ABBY: Before I met "Bob," I corresponded with several men who wanted to communicate with women by mail. (I had signed up with a "lonely hearts" club.) Well, after trawling Bob, I quit writing to these men, but every now and then I get a letter from a strange man who wants to correspond with me.

Abby, this club I signed with is no longer in business, but it must have sold its membership list to another such club because I'm still getting letters from men.

Bob says I should tear up these letters without even opening them. I say that because the letters are addressed to me, I have the legal right to read them, and then tear them up if I want to.

My husband gets very upset by these letters, he says that a happily married woman who really loves her husband (and I do) should have no interest whatsoever in reading a letter from a strange man, and I should destroy such mail without even reading it.

What is your opinion?

BOB'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: Loving your husband as you do, why upset him by showing even the slightest interest in mail from men who are seeking to form a relationship with an unattached woman? When the next letter arrives, ceremoniously set fire to it (unopened) in Bob's presence. It will warm his heart.

Urinary bleeding needs follow-up

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My urine has a very strong odor. A visit to my urologist revealed blood in my urine, yet a follow-up cystoscopy didn't reveal anything wrong. What causes this?

DEAR READER: Urinary bleeding is a common consequence of infection or tumors. While I am relieved that the doctor found nothing out of the ordinary during cystoscopy (examination of the lower urinary tract), I believe that further investigation is warranted. In particular, you need to have an IVP (kidney X-ray) to rule out a renal tumor or cyst and a urine culture to make sure that you don't have an infection.

Fortunately, many patients with hematuria (blood in the urine) have no serious affliction; the blood apparently arises from a broken capillary somewhere in the urinary tract; this condition is harmless and is usually temporary. However, the testing I mentioned must be performed before the patient is given a clean bill of health. Thus, I advise you to return to your urologist for a further testing or b.) appropriate follow-up, with urinalysis every few weeks.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Ever since I became a volunteer emergency medical technician and have to wear latex gloves, I've been plagued with fungus infections under my fingernails. What's the best way to treat and prevent this recurring infection?

DEAR READER: Latex gloves prevent the evaporation of moisture from the hands. Furthermore, the gloves cause the hands to sweat, thereby worsening the problem of excessive moisture. This moisture (and the heat of the hands) provides an ideal environment for yeasts and bacteria to grow.

To solve your problem, you need to use latex gloves only when absolutely necessary in the performance of your EMT duties.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please write about granuloma annulare. My husband has this condition and no one seems to know what to do or how to treat it.

DEAR READER: This common and harmless skin ailment, of unknown cause, is marked by crops of round, yellowish lesions with normal-appearing skin in the centers. They don't itch or hurt and usually subside without treatment -- only to appear again later, often after exposure to sunlight.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Marcus Valerius Martialis was a Latin poet and epigrammatist born in Spain and known as Martial. He wrote, "Believe me, wise men don't say I shall live to do that. Tomorrow's life is too late; live today."

Quite right too! And at the bridge table, sometimes you must do something today -- at this trick -- because tomorrow -- later in the play -- may be too late.

After West used the Unusual No-Trump, showing at least 5-5 in the minors, North jumped to game in hearts. This might appear to be an overbid, but experienced players treat a three-heart bid here as competitive, showing a hand that would have made a single raise without the overall. The jump to four hearts promised the values for a limit raise. With game-forcing values in hearts, North would have cue-bid three clubs, the lower of West's two suits.

After winning the first trick, South played a heart to dummy's ace and a heart to his king, learning he had an unavoidable trump loser. Now South had to discard his diamond loser before East could win a trick with his heart queen. The only possible discard was on dummy's fourth spade. But that suit couldn't be 3-3. The bidding marked East with at least four spades.

South led a club to dummy's king and immediately played a spade to his nine. When it held, South cashed his remaining spade winners, took the club ace, ruffed the club eight in the dummy and threw the diamond six on dummy's spade king.

Nicely done! As someone famous wrote, "If it were done when 'tis done, then 'twere well it were done quickly."

Phillip Alder's book, "Get Smarter at Bridge," is available, autographed upon request, for $14.95 from P.O. Box 189, Roslyn Hts., NY 11577-0189.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
August 31, 1995

In the year ahead, you might have a chance to become closely involved with an individual whose endeavors are usually successful. Don't let this opportunity slip past you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Seriously consider suggestions offered by a close companion today. This person's practical advice can be used beneficially if followed properly. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Developments might present themselves today that enable you to enhance your financial position. They may start thin-waited, but will grow in girth.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You may have unusually good luck today in an arrangement where others struggle. Make the most of these developments while your luck holds.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A confidential family matter can conclude satisfactorily today outside of the earshot of others. Work it out among those directly involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do not hesitate to request advice today from an older, more experienced friend if you're baffled by a new assignment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Compensation is in the offing for you for something you have earned on your own merits. Your rewards will be in proportion to the effort you expend.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you promote something significant today, speak to others in a direct and purposeful manner. They will be more receptive if they see you're serious.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Stay alert for an opening today that might enable you to collect something owed you which is long overdue. It could be something material or a favor.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) To maintain harmony in a cherished relationship, it might prove necessary to make certain concessions to a friend today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Conditions will be conducive today for doing something unique with your career. However, it will require boldness and tenacity on your part.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) To further your ambitions today, it might be necessary to give away something that is of little value to you but of considerable value to another.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A commercial matter can be concluded to your advantage today. There will be a nominal amount of profit attached to the victory, but that won't be its primary benefit.
