If Polk Says OK, Despite Appeals Loss

Fired Jail Guards Could Still Be Reinstated

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

While two fired Seminole County jail guards lost their appeals for reinstatement, they may still get their jobs back. That is, if Seminole County Sheriff John Polk agrees to return them to duty, an option always available to the sheriff.

When asked about that option this morning, Polk said: "That's (option) always there.... Will he decide to rehire them? 'I'm taking the weekend off.'" Polk said, implying he might use that time to consider the matter.

"I would assume I have the right to hire anybody," he said.

As for the guards, they're victims of a threefold tragedy. That's what Sanford City Attorney Bill Colbert said of the two who lost their appeals to get their jobs back. Colbert said the guards should be reinstated and that they were fired without just cause. But he was overruled by the two other Seminole County Sheriff's Department Civil Service Board members who heard the appeals.

Colbert, the only attorney and the lone non-sheriff's department employee on the board, made his comments Thursday as the board rendered its ruling, after reviewing evidence presented during the two-day appeals hearing Nov. 5 and 6. The jail guards, Matthew McGill and Richard Blount, had appealed their firing in connection with a youth's suicide death at the jail.

McGill's attorney, Leon Cheek, said he was disappointed that the board did not deliberate before voting Thursday. Each board member simply stated his conclusions and his position then voted. There was no exchange of ideas by the board on the evidence, Cheek said. The vote was 2 to 1 to uphold Polk's decision to fire the guards.

Cheek, and Blount's attorney, Steven Laurence, said the outcome was what they expected, even before the hearing. Cheek said he grew optimistic as CSB Chairman Colbert reviewed his findings. As Colbert spoke, Cheek said, he developed a bit of hope that at least one other board member would have the same finding. That wasn't the case.

"I'm anxious to get it (the case) into a legal setting," Cheek said. He said if any punishment was called for, he feels it should have been less severe, such as suspension. "They have lost their licenses and their careers. Their job potential is very limited. McGill's eight-year career has been ended by sloppy administration of jail policy. It hits him hard. There was no evidence, nothing to prove that the guards are lying."

"I didn't expect to win at this level, but I felt good when I heard Mr. Colbert's rationale," Cheek said.

Laurence and Cheek said that it will be a few days before they know if their clients will pursue the case in court. They said they had expected to lose the appeal and end up in court.

In stating his position, Colbert said the first element in the tragic sequence was the robbery-murder June 23 of Forest City Florist Diane

County Board Pans Sanford Planning

Political 'Jabs' Included In Letter To State

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County planning department, with the approval of three of the five county commissioners, has sent a four-page list of criticisms of Sanford's updated comprehensive plan to the state Department of Community Affairs (DCA).

Sanford city planner Jay Marder says, though, that some of the comments result from differences in the way city and county planning departments view the purposes of a comprehensive plan, and some are political comments relating to the city-county battles about annexation and the county's road impact fees.

County commissioners Barbara Christensen voted against sending the comments to the DCA and Sandra Glenn voted against some of the comments, which she called "picky" and not concerning things on which the county should be commenting.

One of the chief deficiencies county planners found in the Sanford plan is lack of supporting material for including areas outside the city limits in the plan, and for capital improvements planned.

Marder said, unlike the county, Sanford does not include all supporting documents, such as costs and sources of revenue for projects, in its adopted plan. The supporting data is constantly updated and is available for examination, but

Commissioner Christensen votes against letter; Commissioner Glenn says comments are 'picky'

Sanford does not consider those documents part of a comprehensive plan, he says.

County planners, however, included all supporting documents as part of the plan which was adopted by commissioners last summer and sent to the DCA for review.

County planners agree that including unincorporated area in the city's plan is acceptable if the city considers development of the area to affect the city, but again criticize the Sanford plan for not substantiating why the city thinks those areas will affect Sanford.

County Manager Ken Hooper told commissioners that when the state's new land use planning law goes into effect in a few years, the city will have to have an interlocal agreement with the county in order to include unincorporated areas adjacent to city boundaries in its planning area.

County planners also included in its comments a critical comment about Sanford's moratorium on collecting county road impact fees. The moratorium is currently being challenged in court by the county.

The county letter said Sanford's plans show

Fingers Nimble, Pace's Quick All To Tune Of Knitting Stick

By Brian Hedberg
Herald Staff Writer

The fingers were nimble, the pace was quick and there was no evidence of arthritis in the Golden Age Games' "Knitting Spectacular" Thursday at the Sanford City Hall.

To the tune of some foot-stomping bluegrass music, the contestants knitted and purled row upon row for thirty minutes. "This seems like the longest half hour," the referee commented off the cuff.

But drama and excitement were there, if one looked deep enough. Some glanced apprehensively at opponents. Others tried to block out the music. Interestingly enough, as the bluegrass songs changed rhythm, so did the pace of the knitters.

The first man in the history of the contest took up needles

Thursday.

"I wasn't entered, but they talked me into it at the desk," said Raymond Comstock, 71, of Inverness. He has been knitting for almost 50 years.

As he and his wife, Marion, 66, knitted away, they unconsciously tapped their feet in unison to the bouncing bluegrass banjos and fiddles in the background.

At last, the watch-watching referee called for fingers to be still. Unused skeins and knitting were submitted before the judges.

While awaiting the results, contestants came to a consensus that round needles were the best needles.

Then out came the medals: a bronze for Helen Edmonds, 67, of DeBary; a silver for Dorothy Hill, 77, of DeBary; and a gold

Yankee Lake Issue Goes To Grand Jury

An investigation to determine whether the procedures used by the Seminole County Commission when it bought 2,057 acres at Yankee Lake from developer Jeno Pasucci for $7.5 million in 1985 were legal will go before a grand jury in Sanford Monday.

Judge William B. Austin, appointed by Gov. Bob Martinez last July to look into the possibility of any irregularities in the purchase of the land in northwest Seminole County on Nov. 6, 1985 and the manner in which the county negotiated and approved the purchase.

Gamers Flip Over Pancakes

Maryann L. Cross
Herald Staff Writer

The tension ran high as the first group of contestants lined up, frying pans in hand.

Earlier, after a demonstration by Minnie Kane of championship pancake flipping (Kane won a gold medal later in the day), the eager group practiced flipping the golden pancakes in the pans.

"Now we find out who can chew gum and walk at the same time," someone in the crowd shouted out.

Over 30 people signed up for the Pancake Race of the Golden Age Games. Under the rules of the game, the participants had to flip the pancake, run to the mid-point, flip it again, run to the end, flip it again, run back to the midpoint, flip it again, run to the finish line, and flip it one last time before crossing the line. Starters stood by to time each person.

The playing surface, 75 feet long by 25 feet wide, was divide up into five lanes. But since there were only four people with stove watches, only four lanes were used. Each participant got a 10-inch frying pan and a 6-inch pancake.

"Can we have rocks in the pans?" someone asked.

"No, you can't," an official said.

Some of the seasoned contestants bent down to flip their pancake in the sand before running the course.

"It keeps the pancake from sticking," one man told his wife.

"Ready, set, go!"

The first group was off. Holding the pans level (sometimes) in front of them, they ran, flipping pancakes wildly in the air as the spectators cheered them on. The crowd groaned in sympathy when one woman dropped her pancake on the ground at the mid-point. Quickly recovering,

Sanford Airport Predicted To Double

Panel Studies Airport Service

Maryann L. Cross
Herald Staff Writer

State Department of Transportation officials said Tuesday Sanford's regional airport is in an excellent position to attract commercial passenger service in the near future.

DOT representatives spoke to the Sanford Airport Authority about a six-county aviation system plan that will provide options for local airport operators to consider when dealing with the expected increase in air traffic. Sanford's airport is included in the plan for the Brevard, Lake, Orange, Ocala, Seminole and Volusia County airport systems.

Larry Bauman, DOT supervisor of aviation planning, said aircraft operations for the east central metro area are expected to double by 2005. Sanford's airport, along with Melbourne Regional Airport, Orlando Executive Airport, and Valparaiso Airport, are expected to exceed 80 percent capacity by 2005. In addition, airports expected to exceed 80 percent of their current capacity are Daytona Beach Regional, Merritt Island, Orlando International, Ormond Beach Municipal, and Space Center Executive.

Bauman said the Federal Aviation Administration calls for an airport to begin planning for expansion when it reaches 60 percent of its capacity and start construction for addition capacity needs at 80 percent.

Airport Manager J.S. "Red" Cleveland said the airport is presently at 50 percent capacity. The term capacity refers to how many runways are available, the number of personnel who work at the airport, and the size and/or number of airport facilities such as the terminal and control tower.

Cleveland said if passenger service is added to Sanford's airport, it may be necessary to build additional runways, hire more personnel, expand the present terminal or build a new one, and possibly install an air traffic control tower funded

IN BRIEF

Fraudulent Prescription Leads To Arrest Of Longwood Man

A Longwood man was arrested Wednesday after he allegedly tried to fill a forged prescription he obtained from his father's dental office.

Charles Russell Capehart Jr. was charged with obtaining a prescription by fraud.

Sheriff's department reports indicate that Capehart, who admitted he has a drug problem, tried to fill a prescription for Demerol and Valium at the Eckerd's Drugstore, 484 E. Altamonte Drive, Altamonte Springs.

A store employee phoned the sheriff's department when Capehart presented the form in the name of Walt Hooker. When a deputy arrived, he questioned Capehart about the prescription and called Dr. Charles Russell Capehart, D.D.S., who had signed the form.

Dr. Capehart informed the deputy he had not written a prescription for anyone named Walt Hooker, and that he didn't have a patient by that name.

The younger Capehart told the deputy Walt Hooker was a friend, who had given him the prescription to fill that morning. On further questioning Capehart told the officer he had seen the signed prescription in his father's dentist office that morning, so he took it out for the drugs.

Eckerd's management has informed the Sheriff's department they intend to prosecute Capehart, who said he's been undergoing treatment for his drug problem.

Youth Robbed At Gunpoint

A 17-year-old Seminole County youth said he was robbed at gunpoint Wednesday after he accepted a ride from a man in Altamonte Springs.

The juvenile said he got into a black Cadillac with red pinstripes driven by a black male at Lake Howell Road and State Road 436.

When they had reached the intersection of North Street and Jackson Street the youth said the man pulled what appeared to be a blue snub-nose .38 caliber revolver and pointed it at his face. The teenage claimed the man demanded all his money.

After giving the man approximately $150 in cash, the youth said he opened the passenger door and fell out of the car. He then ran all the way to the Altamonte Springs Police Station, he said.

Driving Under Influence Arrests

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on charges of driving under the influence:

- Charles Wayne Carter, 30, of 1680 Retreat Road, Geneva, was arrested Wednesday after radar showed him driving 71 mph in a 50 mph zone.
- Cynthia Michele Mitchell, 25, of 3875 S. Atlantic Ave., Wilbur-by-the-Sea, Fla., was arrested after almost striking a truck while attempting to change lanes.
- Elsie Eileen Marris, 42, 1860 Mullet Lake Park Road, Geneva, was arrested after she crossed the yellow center line on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford, forcing oncoming traffic to take evasive action.

-Ket Edward Charron, 21, of 618 Magnolia Ave., Sanford, at Zayre's Plaza, U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford, after he was seen driving a van and police had receive a report of a van being driven recklessly.

-Steve George Clark, 37, of 473 Hanson Parkway, Sanford, at 9:40 p.m. Saturday, after his car was in an accident on Hanson Parkway.

Winter Park Man Pleads Guilty To Lewd Assault

A January sentencing date has been set for a 27-year-old Winter Park man who pleaded guilty to a charge of lewd and lascivious assault on a child earlier this year.

Larry Lovett Jenkins, 2610 Eastbrook Blvd., entered the plea before Circuit Judge O.H. Eaton Jr. last week, who set the sentencing date for early January.

Jenkins was arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies outside his home on July 1, after he was accused of raping a pre-school age girl.

The girl's mother had reported to the sheriff's office that Jenkins had raped her daughter. Questioning of the girl by deputies and a medical examination confirmed she had been sexually assaulted.

Rain, Wet Roads Are Factors In Accidents

Rain and wet roads were contributing factors to several traffic incidents recently, according to Lake Mary police reports.

Timothy Robert Paladino, 15, of 310 Radebaugh Drive, Orlando, was charged with driving too fast for conditions after his 1979 Chevrolet did not stop in time at 8:56 a.m. Nov. 3 at Lake Mary Boulevard and Longwood-Lake Mary Road.

His car hit a 1977 Mercury driven by Ronald Joseph Chermely, 45, of 735 S. Oak Ave., Bartow, police reported. Chermely's car, which was stopped, then was propelled into the 1984 Mercury, driven by Bernice Michelson, 61, of 333 E. Lakewood Blvd., Lot 94, Holland, records show.

Police estimated damages to Paladino's car at $900, to Chermely's car at $200 and to Michelson's car at $100.

Paladino suffered a minor lip cut, but refused to go to the hospital for observation.

The road was wet and it was raining.

In other reported traffic accidents:

Gregg James Vernikon, of 77 Strawberry Fields Place, Winter Park, was charged with driving in such a way as to ignore special hazards Monday at Lake Mary Boulevard and Lake Emma Road.

In the rain and on a wet road, Vernikon failed to stop with the traffic flow at 8:08 p.m., hitting the rear of a 1983 Toyota driven by Kim Marie Brown, of 108 S. Wekiva Springs Road, Apopka.

Beverly Kay Jordan, 20, of 2580 Ridgewood Ave., Sanford, was not able to stop in time Nov. 1 at 2:05 p.m., and was not driving in a manner safe for the rainy day and wet roads, police reported. The 1977 Chevy pickup she was driving hit the vehicle driven by John Wilson, 18, of 9491 Woodbreeze Blvd., Windermere, records show.

The accident, at Lake Mary Boulevard and Lake Emma Road, caused an estimated $800 worth of damage to Wilson's car.

Thomas D. Perdiapt, 38, of 1490 Melshire Ave., Deltona, was charged with failure to yield at an intersection Nov. 3. Records show that at 5:38 p.m., Perdiapt's truck entered Lake Mary Boulevard from the west-bound exit ramp of Interstate 4 and blocked the path of Eric Nam Zimmerman, 20, of 117 Sweet Briar Branch, Longwood. Witnesses said Perdiapt did not have time to stop in the rain on the wet road.

Damages to Zimmerman's 1971 Volkswagen were estimated at $650.

Helen C. Gannon, 77, of 212 Pampas Grass Court, Lake Mary, hit the 1981 Mazda driven by Glynnia King Reccar, 23, of 1106 Tusculwilla Road, Winter Springs, on Friday, police reported. Reccar's car was stopped at a red light on U.S. Highway 17-92 near Weldon Boulevard when Gannon changed into the left turn lane on 17-92 and hit the car, records show that Gannon said.

Damages to Reccar's vehicle were estimated at $150. No citation was given.

Seminolians: It's A Lucky Day

By Fred H. Cooper
Herald Staff Writer

Told you so! Sure you watched the sunset last night, then woke up early today and viewed the sunrise. Wasn't it worth it. Trouble with sunsets that are spectacular, you never have your camera ready to preserve the memory. Hope you got lucky.

Actually, it's the cool weather that creates the great colors. Some way. Anyhow, enough of a good thing. Watch tonight, then relax, add 10 degrees to the highs and lows you read on the right, and you'll be on temperature target for tomorrow. Week-end really will be great. Highs in the high 70s, maybe low 80s, and the lows only into the high 50s. You'll love it.

Today is just your lucky day. Lucky elsewhere, also. The warming trend is spreading and Lord knows those folks up north need some relief.

The second of two East Coast snowstorms blamed for at least 21 deaths drifted to sea with warmer temperatures in its wake in New England today, while cold Ohio Valley air drove pre-dawn North Carolina readings below freezing, forecasters said.

Clear to partly cloudy skies were forecast over much of the eastern half of the nation today as the most recent of the two storms moved out to sea off the coast of Maine. National Weather Service forecaster Lyle Alexander said.

The storms Wednesday and Thursday dumped snow from Maine to Virginia - including a record 15 inches in the area of the nation's capital - closed airports and were blamed for at least 21 traffic and hypothermia deaths.

Temperatures in the 40s were forecast today from North Dakota across the northern Great Lakes and from northeast New York state into northern New England, with 30 degree readings forecast for northern Maine.

"The temperatures are going to be warming and the sun is going to be shining, and pretty soon the roads are going to be warm and dry," Vermont Highway Department spokesman Mike Morissette said.

Highs in the 70s were expected from Florida through most of Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Cold air moving south and east out of the Ohio Valley sent temperatures plummeting early today along the southern Atlantic Coast across to the central Gulf Coast, with readings dipping into the 20s as far south as North Carolina, said NWS forecaster Harry Gordon.

"It's chilly all the way down to the southern Appalachians," Gordon said early today, predicting the region would warm up as circulation patterns returned to normal today.

Gale force wind warnings were in effect this morning along the northern Pacific Coast, and snow advisories were posted over the Cascades in the Pacific Northwest and the mountains of Utah.

On Thursday, New England was hit by a storm that dumped up to a foot of heavy wet snow before dawn in some areas, closed two airports, forced widespread school cancellations and was blamed for numerous traffic accidents.

Twelve inches fell on southern Vermont and Middleboro, Mass., and 10 inches was recorded at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., and eastern Connecticut.

Altamonte Springs Planning Boards OKs $80 Million Development

By Nancy Blumstein
Herald Staff

Recommendations for the developer were high Wednesday night when the Altamonte Springs Planning Board unanimously approved final site plans for The Plaza, a 21 acre, three phase development to be constructed on Crane's Root Blvd.

The board also heard two other petitions for permits, one for the construction of a mini-warehouse, the other for the construction of a fellowship hall on church property.

The Plaza will be a mixed use project to be constructed over a five year period. It will be located on the north side of Crane's Root Blvd. and west of Palm Springs Dr., slightly north of Altamonte Mall.

Berge B. Polakoff, president of Palm Springs Urban Development Corporation, is the developer and property owner. Included in the project are 294 apartment units to be completed during the first phase; a 196 unit adult congregate living facility to be completed in the second phase; and a 300,000 square foot office and retail complex with parking garage which will be constructed in the third phase.

According to Polakoff, the cost of The Plaza will be about $80 million.

The Plaza is compatible with the city's 2000 plan, a comprehensive land use plan for Altamonte Springs through the year 2000, Frank Ramseur, project manager noted.

With the planning board's approval of the site plans, all that remains now is to get the building permits and begin construction, city officials said later.

Representatives of the citizen's groups, Villagers and Crane's Root associations were at the meeting to express their appreciation for the project and its planners.

Board member George Orr said of the project: "This is a very well thought out plan...it sets a standard which I hope sends a sign to other developers in the city." He noted that it is rare when such a spirit of cooperation exists and that it is rare when homeowners come to complement the developer.

Ramseur said after the project presentation, that "This is one of the first mixed use projects in the central business district to be approved by the city."

Polakoff added, "This is the result of a lot of long, hard work with everyone."

The planning board held two other hearings last night, granting one business a special exception permit to build a mini-warehouse, and continuing until the next board meeting a petition from Palm Springs Drive Baptist Church to build a fellowship hall.

Southwind Corporation, doing business as Your Attic of Altamonte Springs, was approved by a four to one vote for a permit to build a mini-warehouse as part of their 4.5 acre complex to be constructed on the west side of Douglas Ave., north of Days Inn Lodge.

The location is in a peripheral area of the central business district and approval for the warehouse was granted on several conditions relating to architectural compatibility and land buffering specifications. Another condition upon which the board approved the warehouse, was that no trucks or recreational vehicles be parked where they are visible from Douglas Ave.

Approving the permit were board members Howard Sims, Al Barbiero, Robert Lerner and George Buchanan. George Orr voted against the permit.

Finally, the board agreed that more information is needed before a permit to build a 6300 square foot fellowship hall, can be granted to Palm Springs Drive Baptist Church, at Palm Springs Dr. and Orange St.

Neighbors of the church were at the meeting to voice apprehension toward the project because they say a parking problem exists on Orange St.

According to city codes, parking area for a church is based on the number of seats in the sanctuary. There should be one parking space for every three seats. However, due a possible parking problem already, Board member Robert Lerner noted that "to add a 6300 square foot structure, with no accounting for parking, is poor management." Other members agreed more information is needed before they can reach a decision, so the hearing is continued to the next meeting.

AIDS Panel Ends Tour

MIAMI (UPI) — AIDS patients and a wide range of health care workers told a presidential committee Thursday that Florida, with an AIDS population that doubles yearly, needs facts and compassion to deal with the deadly disease.

"We have been devastated by the AIDS epidemic," said Dr. John Witte, of the state health department.

He said Florida's AIDS population is 7 percent of the nation's. In Florida, 1,300 people have been afflicted with the deadly disease, "and over half of those individuals are dead," Witte said.

By 1988 the total should increase to 4,000 and double every year, he said. Witte said 75 percent of the cases are in the south Florida counties of Dade, Broward, Palm Beach and Monroe.

The 13-member commission concluded three days of visits and testimony in south Florida.

The panel is headed by Ret. Adm. James D. Watkins and is scheduled to complete its study on the causes and transmission of the acquired immune deficiency syndrome and report to President Reagan by June 1988. It will draft a preliminary report by Dec. 7.

"The demographics of the affected population is quite different down here from what we're used to in New York," said Frank Lilly, a member of the panel and chairman of the genetics department of Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

Lilly said he was surprised by the number of heterosexuals with the disease in Florida, which Witte said was 15 percent of the total compared to the national average of 4 percent.

The group's south Florida visit included stops to the farming community of Belle Glade, which has the second highest AIDS rate in the country behind San Francisco. Members also visited a Fort Lauderdale hospice center and a Miami research facility.

In Los Angeles, the search continues for 700 children who received transfusions of blood that may have been contaminated with the AIDS virus at Cedar Sinai Medical Center. So far, fewer than 10 of about 200 children who have been located have tested positive for AIDS antibodies, officials at the hospital said Thursday.

A task force at the hospital is poring over the records in search of children who received blood transfusions between 1980 and 1985 to determine if they were exposed to the deadly virus, doctors said.

A hospital spokesman said any big city hospital faces a risk of providing AIDS-infected blood before March 1985, when a reliable test for AIDS antibodies in the blood supply was developed.

Ralph Wright, a spokesman for the American Red Cross in Los Angeles, said since routine nationwide testing for AIDS antibodies began, the chances of contracting the deadly virus from a blood transfusion have decreased dramatically.

Poland's Plan Deserves Help

To cynics who recall Poland's previous failures to reform its economy, Warsaw's latest venture may seem to be a case of returning to the same dry well. Even so, the United States has an interest in seeing economic reform succeed in Poland. The Reagan administration should assist in the exercise and also push Poland for social reform.

The regime of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski has announced plans that call for belt-tightening in the nation's large state-run industrial sector and an overhaul of Poland's centralized price and wage system that may include price increases of up to 50 percent. It's a crucial challenge for Jaruzelski because the results could become the standard against which economic planning would be measured in other Warsaw Pact countries.

Poland, which owes $35 billion in foreign debt, is the classic example of what's wrong with centralized Soviet bloc economics. The country suffers from high inflation, a lack of capital, industrial sluggishness and a reputation for poor work quality. Jaruzelski must make tough political decisions if he is to remedy the problem.

It's not clear whether Poland can achieve such reform without the support of its workers. As they have shown in the past, Polish workers can react very strongly to price increases. Economic-reform efforts led to the collapse of Wladyslaw Gornulka's regime in 1976 and Edward Gierk's in 1981. Jaruzelski will have to tread carefully.

The challenge for the regime, with a history of rigid adherence to the supremacy of the all-powerful Polish Communist party, is whether Jaruzelski would cede to the workers a voice in the economic program. To do so, he would have to grant the Solidarity movement—the workers' organization that claimed 10 million members out of Poland's population of 37 million—some of the power it held before it was banned six years ago.

Jaruzelski should deal with Solidarity because the movement remains a credible voice of the workers. Such power sharing could be a sign for some creditors to provide relief in Poland's debt repayment program.

The United States, which is owed $2.4 billion, should use this leverage to insist on economic and social reforms that would make Poland a less-risky economic bet. Though the latest efforts at reform are, by themselves, not going to cure the nation's festering economic problem, they are at least a start.

Budget Charade

Some congressional leaders and administration figures, negotiating ways to reduce federal deficits, are worried that the public may expect too much. Voters should keep that worry alive by indeed demanding more than Congress or the White House wants to give. The public should not accept a budget charade in place of realistic budget action.

A charade will be apparent if Congress and President Reagan do not cut the deficit for this fiscal year by more than present law already requires. The amended Gramm-Rudman-Hollings statute imposes spending cuts of $23 billion. No new negotiations are needed to achieve that relatively minor reduction.

The only need for negotiations now is to change the way the reduction is made or to make it larger than $23 billion. Going beyond $23 billion—by higher taxes and further cuts in spending—would be a serious political response to fears that are evident in world financial markets. Merely to rearrange a small deficit reduction already on the books would be playing a game.

Shutting Out Palestinians Is Incorrect

The recent order by the Reagan administration that the Palestine Information Office in Washington, D.C., be closed is a foolish, self-defeating move.

First, it is a violation of the American commitment to freedom of speech. Second, it is a needless blow to U.S. respect and effectiveness in the Arab world and in the world at large. Third, in weakening respect for the judgment and reliability of the United States, the order opens the way for greater Soviet influence and acceptance in the Middle East.

Does the administration believe it is not safe for the American public to read and evaluate the Palestinian point of view? Even if many Americans don't agree with all aspects of the Palestinian perspective or all the behavior of the Palestine Liberation Organization, shouldn't we at least listen to what they are saying?

There can be no peace in the region until the Palestinian claim for self-determination is recognized and negotiated. Just what form such a Palestinian state should assume and how it can be achieved will be the centerpiece of the international peace conference for which the Palestinians and the Arab states are pressing.

The decision to silence the Palestinian voice in the U.S. capital is all the more regrettable in view of a mistaken decision by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in 1975 when he promised the government of Israel that the United States would not talk to the PLO until it formally recognized the state of Israel. Neither Israel nor the PLO have formally recognized the other, although the PLO has pressed for an international conference that includes Israel and is therefore an indirect recognition of the Israeli state.

The net result has been to deprive the United States of first-hand information and intelligence that direct exchanges with the Palestinian organization could provide.

The second disturbing aspect about the decision to close the Palestine Information Office is that it weakens the U.S. position in the Middle East and undercuts our effectiveness as "honest broker" in the peace process.

The United States has strongly leaned in the direction of Israel in the Arab-Israeli dispute. We have supplied Israel with military and economic subsidies on a scale that dwarfs what we are doing for any other country in the world. As a U.S. senator I supported this program. I believed then, as I do now, that Israel has a right to exist as an independent nation.

But I have also come to believe in self-determination, including an independent homeland for the Palestinians. Their claim is every bit as strong on moral, legal and historic grounds as the Israeli claim. That is the view of most of the Arab world with its 160 million people. Indeed, it is the view of most of the world. We are damaging our influence and respect in the international community and especially in Arab and Palestinian eyes when we not only side so heavily with Israel, but also close our eyes, ears and hearts to the Palestinian cause.

We only help strengthen the appeal and influence of the Soviet Union in the Middle East when we engage in shortsighted, self-defeating tactics such as the closing of the Washington Palestine Information Office.

Finally, if we Americans of all faiths, with our respect for diverse and dissenting views, turn our backs on Palestinian concerns, we not only damage our standing in the eyes of the world, we also give our Soviet rivals renewed opportunity in the crucial Middle East.

Mining On A Comeback

HELENA, Mont. (NEA) — Huge dump trucks, each capable of carrying 85 tons of rock, scud across the undulating landscape hauling ore from an open-pit mine to an industrial complex a half-mile away.

Montana Tunnels, a mining and processing operation that exemplifies the resurgence of an industry ravaged by severe economic problems only a few years ago, is thriving in the Boulder Mountains almost 25 miles south of Helena.

Mining is experiencing a resurgence throughout the West. Facilities that were shut down earlier in the 1980s are reopening and new mines are being established.

"Today's mining industry is slowly coming out of its worst period since the Great Depression," says American Mining Congress President John A. Knebel. "Everywhere I go, I sense a feeling... that the worst may be over."

To meet the challenge posed by low-cost production overseas, the copper industry committed more than $700 million last year to modernize its aging facilities. In Arizona, where Phelps Dodge and Cyprus Minerals have streamlined their operations, copper production is increasing and dormant mines are reopening.

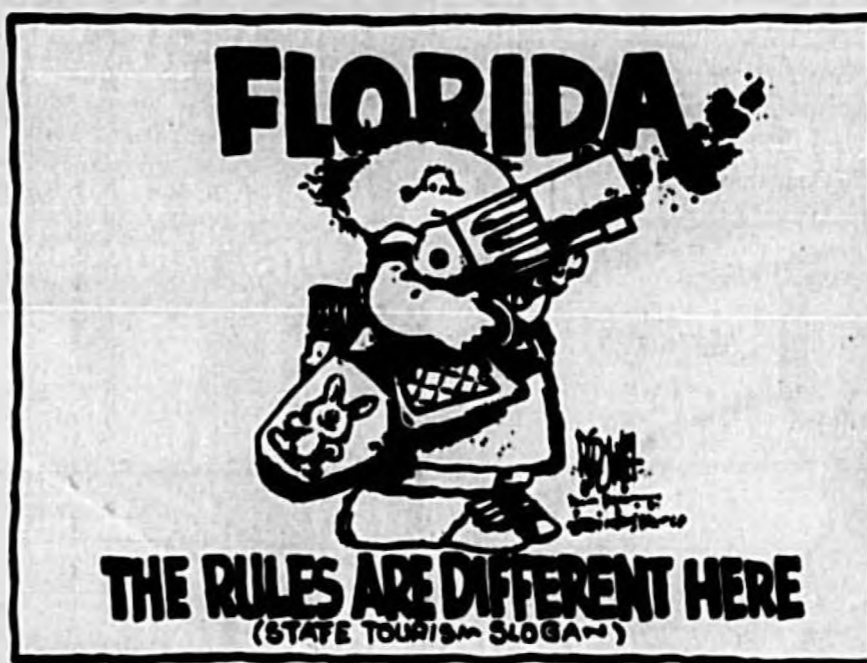

In Alaska, development began in July on the Greens Creek Project near Juneau. When the mine opens in mid-1988, it will produce silver and, to a lesser extent, gold, zinc and lead.

Near Kotzebue, Alaska, preliminary work is underway to develop the Red Dog mine, which will yield lead and zinc when it opens in the early 1990s.

In Idaho, the Lucky Friday mine near the small town of Mullan was the country's largest producer of silver in 1985 but closed in 1986 because of declining prices.

But the mine reopened this June and is expected to produce as much as 5 million ounces of silver as well as 70 million pounds of lead annually. The Sunshine silver mine, near Kellogg, Idaho, also closed in 1986 but it too may soon reopen.

In Montana, the Stillwater mine, the only source of platinum and palladium outside the Soviet Union and South Africa began production earlier this year near the town of Nye. It is expected to eventually supply 7 to 10 percent of this country's requirements for those rare metals.

Nazi Fugitives Welcomed

WASHINGTON (NEA)—When West Germany recently chose not to try a man deported from the United States as a Nazi war criminal, it was only the latest in a growing list of such incidents. They have dismayed U.S. prosecutors and outraged Jewish organizations.

Reinhold Kulle, 68, of Chicago, formerly a West German citizen, was stripped of U.S. citizenship after deportation hearings in 1983. Prosecutors accused him of failing to state on his 1957 immigration application that he had served in a Waffen SS unit as a guard at a Nazi slave labor camp during World War II.

An immigration judge ruled that the government had presented sufficient evidence about Kulle's activities from 1942 to 1945. It proved that he served as an armed guard and group leader of prisoners at the Gross-Rosen death camp in his native Silesia, participating in the murder and persecution of prisoners. During Kulle's service at Gross-Rosen, more than 50,000 prisoners either starved or were executed.

After Kulle's appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court was denied, he was stripped of U.S. citizenship and deported to West Germany on Oct. 26.

The day after Kulle arrived, Alfred Streim, West Germany's chief Nazi crimes prosecutor, said from his office in Ludwigshafen that a preliminary investigation had been made. He said the probe of Kulle had shown "no crimes for which he can still be prosecuted." Streim says the United States has furnished no proof that Kulle personally killed any prisoner.

Since 1983, six former Nazi war criminals, including Kulle, have either been deported to West Germany or have fled there to avoid deportation actions here. None has been prosecuted.

The most outrageous case is that of Bohdan Kozly, a former Ukrainian policeman who entered this country in 1949 and became a U.S. citizen in 1956.

Evidence presented at deportation hearings in 1981 and 1982 proved beyond any doubt that Kozly personally murdered many civilians. In one case, he allegedly put a gun to the head of a 3-year-old girl in front of her parents, made her beg for mercy, and then shot her anyway.

Kozly had been tried and convicted of murder, in absentia, by the Soviet Union, which issued a warrant for his extradition. A U.S. judge stripped him of his citizenship in March 1982, and ordered him deported to Russia, but stayed the order pending appeals.

Then in 1984, as the last of his appeals was about to run out, Kozly fled to Costa Rica, which has no extradition treaty with the Soviet Union. When Soviet efforts to force his deportation from Costa Rica failed, the United States attempted to convince the West Germans, who do have an extradition treaty with Costa Rica, to try him.

The West Germans refused. They said the United States had failed to prove what Kozly's mental state was when he committed the murders of which he is accused. Without such proof, the Germans said, they could not show the degree of premeditation necessary for trial.

'Death Ray' Research Unnoticed

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON—The chemical laser weapon being developed with top priority on President Reagan's secret order would be the first "death ray" ever tested in space, according to highly sensitive documents we've seen.

As we reported earlier, the president, eager to speed up research on a laser space weapon, personally ordered an accelerated development program last December. Code-named Zenith Star, the program aims to test a cylindrical, hydrogen-fluoride-fueled laser in space as early as 1990.

This means Reagan is bequeathing his successor in the White House a certain fight with Congress. Under the traditional interpretation of the U.S.-Soviet Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty of 1972, the United States would have to give the Soviets at least six months' notice that it intended to scrap the treaty by testing a missile-killing weapon in space. If the next president does this, he is sure to provoke a row with Congress, which will challenge his authority to abandon the ABM Treaty.

In fact, the battle would have been joined months ago if Reagan had heeded the advice of Lt. Gen. James Abrahamson, director of the Strategic Defense Initiative Organization. The general urged Reagan to go public with the program last December, but the president, already taking a battering over the Iran/Contra arms scandal, elected to keep Zenith Star a closely held secret.

Since then, good soldier Abrahamson has been driving full speed ahead on the laser weapons' development—and the space test that would shoot down the ABM treaty.

As often happens, Congress helped to set itself up. Abrahamson has total discretion to shift tens of millions of dollars from one project to another, as long as they are within one of five general SDI programs Congress has voted funds for. The major program that covers Zenith Star is Directed Energy Weapons. It had $843 million last year, and the president is asking for $1.1 billion next year—which Abrahamson can divvy up any way he chooses without telling Congress.

Congress was notified earlier this year, in a secret report, that a chemical laser test in space was contemplated for the "early 1990s." Such a test, the administration admitted, would be acceptable only under the ABM treaty.

An unclassified version of that secret Pentagon report was released on Sept. 21. But it was totally ignored by the general press, which failed to spot the enormous implications of even the limited, carefully worded admissions con-

SCIENCE WORLD

Fire Tree May Bring Changes

By Celia Hooper

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Botanists in Hawaii have found that invasions of a key plant species may alter the environment dramatically, a development that may bode ill for America's most unusual flora.

In a report in the journal Science, five researchers described their three-year study of a small tree called Myrica faya, or fire tree, which was first brought to Hawaii by Portuguese immigrants in the late 19th century. The broadleaf evergreen now covers almost 86,000 acres in the islands.

Fire tree was noticed in the Hawaii Volcanoes National Park, where the scientists did their work, in 1961, but 24 years later the aggressive bush covered 30,500 acres of park land.

Dieter Mueller-Dombois, a professor of botany at the University of Hawaii, said in a telephone interview that the spread of the tree threatens to crowd out species that are native to Hawaii, many of which are found nowhere else in the world. Mueller-Dombois said the islands' flora is easily the most unusual in the United States because it has more of these unique species than any other area.

Mueller-Dombois, one of the researchers on the project, said the fire tree is a keystone species in the environment because it is able to enrich the nitrogen content of the soil when it invades areas recently covered with volcanic material. Unlike the native ohia, or Metrosideros, tree, which normally invades the new substrates, the fire tree has nodules on its roots that can take nitrogen from the air and fix it in a form useful to plants.

The scientists, led by Peter M. Vitousek, a professor of botany at Stanford University, found that lack of nitrogen was a crucial limiting factor to all plants growing on the new soils. The fire tree quadrupled the level of nitrogen in the soil, "thereby altering the nature of ecosystem development after volcanic eruptions," the scientists wrote.

Mueller-Dombois said the next step in the research would be to see what the long-term consequences of this enrichment are. He theorized that the richer soils may "invite invasion of further alien species, making efforts to protect the native species all the more difficult."

The overlooked key was "LISE," an acronym that stands for "Laser Integrated Space Experiment." That will be the end product of the secret Zenith Star project.

"LISE is a fully integrated, completely autonomous experiment that would test the ability of a space-based chemical laser to negate a booster in ballistic flight and also to demonstrate interactive discrimination," the unclassified version states. In plain English, the test would try to destroy a missile in its vulnerable, fuel-heavy liftoff phase, and also try to pick out the real warheads from the decoys coming off the missile.

LISE would use the Alpha chemical laser being developed by TRW Inc. at its facility in San Juan Capistrano, Calif. Sources said there is genuine confidence that the laser can perform at the five-megawatt power level at which it is being designed.

Ex-State Official Gissendanner Pleads Guilty To One Charge

MIAMI (UPI) — Former state natural resources director Elton Gissendanner, accused of accepting $80,000 in bribes to help an indicted drug smuggler avoid a prison term, has pleaded guilty to a separate charge.

Gissendanner, in the sixth day of his federal corruption trial, pleaded guilty Thursday to one count of obstructing justice. The former head of the Florida Department of Natural Resources was indicted June 23 on charges of extortion, conspiracy, perjury and failing to report the bribe money on his 1983 income tax return.

Gissendanner, 60, faced a maximum 48 years in prison and $130,000 in fines on those charges, which stemmed from funds he allegedly received for helping marijuana smuggler Patrick Bliton win probation instead of a prison sentence.

Long Distance Phone Rule Upheld

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Public Service Commission has the authority to protect low local rates by ordering long distance telephone companies to acquire lines from local telephone services, the Supreme Court says.

The court Thursday voted 6-1 to reject a suit challenging the PSC rule.

The rule was issued in 1983, following the court-mandated breakup of American Telephone and Telegraph's national monopoly on long distance services. It required AT&T and other long distance companies to purchase phone lines from local companies at inflated rates, rather than building their own lines.

That rule was designed to help local companies continue the long-standing nationwide policy of "universal service," which requires local companies to provide local service at below-cost rates. Those companies make up their losses by charging more for long-distance and business services.

State Brakes Turnpike Speed

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Transportation Secretary Kaye Henderson Thursday ordered the speed limit on the Florida Turnpike returned to 55 mph, ending a brief but potentially costly confrontation with the federal government.

Henderson increased the limit to 65 mph in a 60-mile segment of the turnpike in Osceola County on Monday, acting on instructions from the state Legislature. Henderson made that move knowing it was an apparent violation of a federal law that allows higher speed limits on rural interstates, but not on limited access highways like the turnpike.

He acted with the full support of Gov. Bob Martinez.

On Tuesday, he was told by federal transportation officials Florida would lose as much as $450 million in federal aid unless the limit was dropped back to 55.

Henderson said the federal action was an unwarranted intrusion into state concerns. He said Florida's short-lived defiance sent a clear protest to Washington, but the issue is not important enough to justify losing millions of dollars in federal roads money.

"I continue to believe this federal action is unfair to Florida motorists, not in the best public interest, and insensitive to the will of our state's governor and Legislature," Henderson said. "Florida and other states with similar roads should have control of speed limits on highways they build without the benefit of federal aid."

"If you like to characterize that as a cave-in to a superior force, so be it," he said.

Handy Way Stops Sales Of Magazines

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

A spokesman said Thursday Miller Enterprises, owner of Handy Way convenience stores, will honor President Tommy Miller's promise to local anti-porn spokesman Karen Reilly-Morton not to sell so-called sexually oriented magazines in his three Sanford stores.

Reilly-Morton, president of the All Souls Council of Catholic Women, was surprised to find the magazine Forum openly displayed in a local Handy Way and was told by the manager that Playboy and Penthouse magazines were also being put back in the stores.

Marilyn Ibaen, secretary to Miller, said after checking into the matter that the magazine was delivered by the vendor by mistake and Terry Vander Eynden, director of marketing had assured her the publications will not be sold in the Sanford Handy Ways.

She said the manager had been contacted and the other two stores were also being checked.

Handy Way and 7-Eleven stores, which had previously stopped selling the adult magazines, have been held up as good examples to Circle K, Cumberland Farms, Lil' Champ and Ideal Food Store local stores being targeted in the drive to get them to remove the objectionable material from their shelves.

Sanford churchgoers at the behest of Sanford Ministerial Association signed letters to the firm on "Clean Up Sanford Sunday" and pledged to boycott them until the adult magazines were removed. Reilly-Morton went to the ministers for support after women in her group reported the magazines were falling in the hands of young children.

She said Miller Enterprises has received much favorable publicity since the president announced a year and a half ago he had made a moral decision to remove the magazines from his Handy Way stores because they are family-oriented. She said Miller recently informed her he was considering putting some of the magazines back, but wouldn't do so in Sanford since the community objected. Miller told her that the company was losing $150,000 a year by not selling the publications, according to his advisors.

Deficit Talks Hit Snag: 'Chemistry Was Not There'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anti-deficit negotiators, their hopes for an imminent agreement on tax and spending plans dashed because "the chemistry was not there," say they are confident of eventual success.

Congressional leaders and White House officials deny the private talks have collapsed, even though an anticipated agreement failed to materialize Thursday when participants were unable to settle on what form tax increases and spending cuts should take.

They insisted the private talks, in their 15th day today, are bringing negotiators closer to agreement on certain aspects of the deficit reduction package.

Ortega, Wright Meet Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua, House Speaker Jim Wright of Texas and Catholic Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo looked for a first step today toward a Nicaraguan cease-fire with the U.S.-backed Contra rebels.

Amid criticism from those on both sides of the issue, the trio arranged a meeting to discuss the prospect of negotiations between Ortega's Marxist Sandinista government and the rebels fighting him with American support.

Sen. Christopher Dodd of Connecticut, the Democratic chairman of the Senate Latin American affairs subcommittee, said the prospects looked good and he expected the trio to announce negotiations would start in 24 to 48 hours.

Ortega and Wright were more cautious, and Obando y Bravo, designated last week as the Nicaraguan mediator in the conflict, said upon his arrival in Washington Thursday night, "We are going to explore what the possibilities are ... but first we have to see what parties are in conflict."

Kennedy Gains Support On Hill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With bipartisan support growing, Judge Anthony Kennedy, President Reagan's third choice for a Supreme Court seat, appears to face none of the problems that confronted his two predecessors.

Kennedy made the rounds of Capitol Hill Thursday and met with bipartisan agreement to speed the nomination through the Senate. No date, however, was set, and it appeared unlikely Kennedy could take his seat on the high court until early next year.

Chairman Joseph Biden, D-Del., of the Senate Judiciary Committee, and ranking Republican Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, went to the White House to hear Reagan's request that confirmation hearings begin as soon as possible.

Soviet Officer, Afghan Rebel Meet Seeking Peace Pact

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (UPI) — A senior Soviet military officer and a representative of the Afghan resistance exchanged proposals for ending the 8-year-old war in Afghanistan during the first formal contact between the two sides.

Soviet Maj. Gen. Yevgeni Nozhin said Thursday he addressed a forum in the Dutch capital with Fatima Gallani, a member of the National Islamic Front of Afghanistan and a daughter of an Afghan resistance leader.

The meeting, sponsored by the Christian peace organization Pax Christi, was called to review the overall situation in Afghanistan.

Nozhin was not officially representing the Soviet Union in the discussions Tuesday, but a Pax Christi spokesman said the Soviet Embassy provided him with full support facilities and suggested him to Pax Christi as the right person to take part in the talks.

Iran Announces Mobilization

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Iran today announced a major mobilization of all able-bodied men for a winter offensive against Iraq and shipping executives said Iraqi warplanes hit a Greek tanker carrying Iranian oil.

"The time is ripe for continuation of military operations against Iraq in order to speed up the enemy's defeat and fall," Iran's Supreme war Support Council said in a message addressed to the Iranian nation.

The council, according to the official Islamic Republic News Agency, urged able-bodied men to report for assignment to battle fronts.

Spiritual leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini Thursday ordered that the Iranian economy gear up for Iran's long-expected winter push "in order that a final victory is achieved."

A military spokesman in Baghdad said Iraq's warplanes attacked and destroyed an oil tanker off the Iranian coast at 11:05 a.m. today, the official Iraqi News Agency said.

3 Arrested In American Murders

ANGELES CITY, Philippines (UPI) — Police said today they have captured three more members of the communist hit squads that carried out the killings of U.S. servicemen Oct. 28, bringing the number of "positive" suspects to five.

Two others were captured earlier and one confessed to his role, telling police 15 people were involved in the closely coordinated slayings of one retired and two active-duty servicemen, and a Filipino of American descent.

Maj. Efren Alamares, deputy commander of police in Angeles City outside the sprawling Clark Air Base, told reporters two men and a woman were arrested during "saturation drives" by some 150 officers in the city Thursday night.

The woman owns an Angeles area house where the plot was hatched about one week before the killings, he said. The three were captured at separate locations during the saturation drives, which continued in 10 areas today.

French Inmates Free Hostages

CHATEAUROUX, France (UPI) — A warden and eight other prison workers held hostage overnight by hundreds of rebellious inmates who took over St. Maur prison in central France were released unharmed today.

About 175 of the 400 inmates who took control of most of the prison late Thursday afternoon surrendered after releasing their nine remaining hostages this morning. Three hostages had been released earlier in the day and two others, a guard and a preacher, were set free late Thursday night.

Woman Can't Rent Unit, City Commission Says

Maryann L. Cross
Herald Staff Writer

A Sanford woman will not be able to rent out a detached unit on her property. The unit contains a bedroom and bathroom but no kitchen facilities.

City commissioners unanimously voted Monday to deny a request from Marion Cameron to use the facility at 1019 Magnolia Avenue as rental property in a single-family district.

Cameron said she was issued an occupational license and an electrical permit two years ago when she bought the property. But when building official Gary Winn learned that the unit had not been rented out before the property was rezoned single-family residential, the license and permit were revoked.

Cameron said she bought the property because she thought she would be permitted to rent out the unit. Cameron said she spent $697 on repairs to the unit so it could be rented. But Winn said the license and electrical permit were issued before he received information that the building had never been a rental unit.

Other actions taken by the City Commission include:

- Commissioners unanimously approved the recommendation from the Youth Advisory Committee to appoint Seminole High School student Rick Eckstein, 103 Aldean Drive, to the committee.

- Approval to proceed with negotiations for the purchase of the privately-owned Indian Mound water system was granted by a unanimous vote of the commission. The water system is located directly north of the Sanford Regional Airport. The city wants to purchase the system to expand utility capacity east of the city. If the city goes ahead with the purchase, it would be able to loop the south end of the system located at the intersection of Cameron Avenue and State Road 46, with the new 10-inch line to be installed along the southside of SR 46. The decision whether or not to purchase the Indian Mound water system would be made after public hearings and presentation of staff recommendations.

- City Commissioners unanimously voted to table the annexation to the city of Druid Park, located just south of the intersection of Orlando Drive

Animal Shelter Hours Will Change, Commissioners Say

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

Hours that the Seminole County Animal Shelter are open changed effective Wednesday. The shelter now opens at 10 a.m. instead of 8 a.m. Monday through Saturday. The shelter closes at 5 p.m. weekdays and 4 p.m. Saturdays.

County commissioners approved the shortened hours Tuesday to give employees time to clean up the cages and areas which the public has access to before the doors are opened to the public.

The change in hours was part of a list of changes suggested by the animal control advisory board two weeks ago.

However, two actions taken by commissioners did not meet with advisory board approval. Commissioners voted to rent a trailer temporarily to provide office space and shower facilities for employees, and approved negotiating with the county humane society to possibly turn over the adoption of animals to that group.

County Administrator Ken Hooper told the board he has received copies of several contracts other counties have negotiated with humane societies to handle part of the counties' animal control functions. He said he will contact Joanne Gates, president of the local humane society, to see if it is interested in handling the adoption of animals.

Helen Wolfe, former president of the Humane Society, and a member of the advisory committee, told the commissioners that idea had been proposed to the humane society in the past and society members expressed little interest.

Among other changes recommended by the advisory board and approved by commissioners Tuesday is advertising for a person to fill a new position, animal care supervisor, at a pay grade equal to chief animal control officer; proceeding with plans to build a new shelter, and renting an office trailer.

The person who will be hired as animal care supervisor will be in charge of managing the shelter.

Commissioners authorized the use of part of $436,580 in this year's budget reserved for a new animal shelter for design and site preparation. Hooper said the board would be presented with a proposed design of the facility in the near future. He said the county has blueprints of the Orange County shelter which could be used as a model for the Seminole County shelter.

Elimination Of Sub-Standard Housing Is One Goal Of Plan

Maryann L. Cross
Herald Staff Writer

The housing element of Sanford's comprehensive plan reflects what the city is doing now to eliminate sub-standard housing.

City Planner Jay Marder explained the city's comprehensive plan to a group of Sanford residents at the Westside Recreation Center Thursday. Using a series of brightly-colored maps, Marder briefly touched on the nine elements of the plan: future land use, traffic circulation, public services and facilities, recreation and open space, downtown design, conservation, intergovernmental coordination, capital improvements, and housing.

Marder said the housing element is really not saying anything new.

"There are projects in Sanford that are already working to eliminate sub-standard housing," Marder said. "The Community Development Block Grant program in the Georgetown area has begun rehabilitating or replacing dilapidated houses."

Marder also spoke about the Westside Improvement Neighborhood Strategy (WINS) project, which he called unique.

"The plans of the WINS project are more comprehensive than the Georgetown area," said Marder.

The eight-block Georgetown area was targeted in the funding application for a $650,000 Housing and Urban Development grant, which the city received in 1986. When the program is complete, 17 units will have been demolished and rebuilt and 57 units will have been rehabilitated.

The target of the WINS project is the Goldsboro area of Sanford's west side. The project calls for rehabilitating 129 homes, demolishing and replacing 118 homes, and possibly building new housing on 100 vacant lots. The WINS project will not be a give-away program but will be financed by a partnership of public and private funds.

The housing element states the city should continue and expand community development activities in the city's two target area neighborhoods, Goldsboro and Georgetown. The city should also continue to support and encourage the revitalization of low- and moderate-income neighborhoods and look at safety, health and/or related hazardous housing conditions in these areas.

In addition, the Sanford Housing Authority, appointed by the City Commission, should continue to provide federally subsidized rental housing. The authority's activities should include renovation of authority-owned housing units, as well as participation in other housing programs.

The housing element also calls for the city to continue its commitment to code enforcement activities. The results of regular enforcement of the city's housing, building, zoning, and related codes should result in the stabilization and improvement or neighborhoods that, without attention, could become blighted. Code enforcement activities should also lead to the general improvement of neighborhoods.

The housing aspect of the city's comprehensive plan states the city will assist in the provision of sites for group home and foster care facilities designed for the elderly, dependent children, physically disabled, developmentally disabled and non-dangerous mentally ill persons. Locations for such facilities should:

- provide a safe and healthy environment;
- permit small and large group homes in medium- and higher-density residential areas;
- be located close to community facilities and services; and
- be dispersed throughout the city, rather than clustered within a few neighborhoods.

The city's nationally recognized Downtown Historic Commercial District is also part of the housing element. The plan calls for the city to inventory and survey the predominantly residential area south of the present historic district and, if a significant number of historical residential structures are identified, expand historic preservation activities through appropriate designations and plans.

The major benefit of the housing element is that it provides the basis to coordinate and expand many of the city's activities aimed to solve local housing problems and meet future housing needs. The Community Development office of the city's Department of Engineering and Planning will be primarily responsible for carrying out and coordinating the city's housing programs.

Seminole's Paul Newell (52) listens closely as offensive coordinator Emory Blake gets his point across. Seminole is at Lake Howell tonight in a big SAC clash.

Hot Tribe Battles Streaking Hawks

By Scott Bender
Herald Sports Writer
Like running water, the Seminole and Lake Howell football teams have either been hot or cold this season.

Lake Howell lost three out of its first four games before winning its next four. Seminole lost three out of its first five, before winning its last three.

The streaking Seminoles and Silver Hawks Howell are about as hot as a pistol right now. One of those winning streaks is going to have to come to an abrupt halt tonight.

The two teams will face off tonight in a Seminole Athletic Conference meeting at Lake Howell High. Kickoff is slated for 8 at Howell's homecoming game.

Seminole, 5-3 overall and 2-2 in the SAC, has already won the District 4A-8 crown. Seminole will host the 4A-8 winner on Nov. 27. Seminole thumped SAC rival Lyman, 17-7, last week.

Seminole coach Roger Beathard, however, still said that the game is important to his team. "I said to our team that our opponents would get tougher as the season progresses," Beathard, whose team finishes the regular season next week at DeLand, said. "Lake Howell is one of the best football teams that we will have faced this season.

"They have so many offensive weapons," Beathard said. "And they have also got one heck of a defense."

Lake Howell coach Mike Bisceglia said that Seminole presents a number of different problems to his team. "They are an excellent team," Bisceglia said. "To say that this is going to be a big test is an understatement."

Lake Howell is coming off a 34-10 win over Daytona Beach Mainland last week. The Hawks are 5-3 overall and 3-1 in the SAC. The Hawks are also hoping to make the playoffs. If Lyman beats DeLand tonight, the Hawks will win the District 5A-4 crown. If the Bulldogs win, and Lake Mary beats Mainland, a three-way playoff would have to be held on Nov. 27.

"We are all pulling for the Greyhounds," Bisceglia said. "But I don't want the outcome of that game to side track us. We are going to have a hard enough time worrying about Seminole."

The rivalry is one of the most fierce in the county. Last season, Howell escaped with a bruising 7-3 win. "We have not forgotten that game," Seminole linebacker Earnie "Sackman" Lewis said. "We are out for revenge this time."

Beathard said that the game will be the biggest test that his defense has faced. "Lake Howell has a bigger and stronger offense than any team that we have seen yet," Beathard said. "We can't just key on one running back like we did last week against Lyman."

Beathard said that he is very concerned about Lake Howell running backs Marquette Smith and Cornell Rigby. "They are both capable of having big games," Beathard said. "We have to shut down their running game."

Lewis said that he is anxious to take on the Hawks. "I have been looking forward to it all season," Lewis said. "I have heard a lot about their running backs and big offensive line. It should be a challenge, and that is what this team likes."

The game will feature the two best quarterbacks in the SAC. Seminole quarterback Jeff Blake, is the leading passer in the SAC with 7 yards. "Blake has got a heck of an arm," Bisceglia said. "We are going to try to apply as much pressure as

Glance Guides Lady Patriots

Second-Year Coach Has Brantley Rolling Into 4A-3 Section Playoff

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer
With the talent and skill fine-tuned during the regular season, Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots pulled together as a team in the post season and their "we believe" attitude has them just one win away from a berth in the Class 4A State Tournament.

Talent, skill and team unity are the definite ingredients it takes to build a winner. But don't forget coaching.

Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots are a very together team and they have a very together coach in Stephanie Glance. In just two years, Glance has turned what was really never a force in volleyball into one of the finest teams Seminole County has ever seen.

Tonight at 7 at Lake Brantley High, Glance and her Lady Patriots battle Merritt Island in the 4A-3 Section playoff with the winner getting a berth in the Class 4A State Tournament.

"The improvement we've made this season has been tremendous," Glance said. "If we hadn't made that improvement we wouldn't be where we are right now. If we can put it

In her first year as coach, Lake Brantley had a 5-15 record under Glance but the team started mostly sophomores with little experience. But Glance had no delusions of grandeur last season. Her main objective was to teach the players the game.

With most of last year's starters returning, and the addition of seniors Wendy Vickery and Kim Gunderson, the Lady

Patriots emerged as serious contenders when the season began. And, as the season progressed, Brantley got better and better and the confidence level grew to the point where the Lady

Patriots felt they could win any match as long as they played together. The Lady Patriots take a 10-match winning streak into tonight's Section 3 playoff

Shaving: The Essence Of Swimming

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer
The first competitive swimmer who ever shaved his body was probably considered certifiably crazy to think it would make a difference in how well he swam. Once they saw him cut through the water like a bullet, though, shaving became an instant success and an important part of the sport.

For those not familiar with the term "shave down," it means swimmers, usually before their biggest meet of the season, will shave off all body hair to make them more streamlined and able to swim faster.

And, if you don't think it produces results, think again.

"The first time I ever shaved, I cut three seconds off my best time at the district meet," Seminole High senior Matt Chock said. "At first, you don't think it will make much of a difference, but when you first dive in you feel like a bolt of lightning. You just want to get up and go. You've got to love it, it's like being in another world."

Chock and his Seminole High teammates will be shaving for Saturday's 3A-3 District Championships at the Sharidan Aquatic Club in Longwood. Coach Tony Ackerson, who swam in high school at Lyman, said this is his favorite time of the season.

Swimming

"Shaving is the greatest thing ever to happen to competitive swimming," Ackerson said. "It was one thing I always looked forward to when I was swimming. It's unbelievable how much faster it makes you go."

Seminole junior David Johnson, a first year swimmer, will experience shaving for the first time before the district meet and he expects to discover that it is not the joke he first thought it was.

"I ran cross country for two years and didn't really follow swimming," Johnson said. "I laughed when I first heard about it (shaving). I thought coach Ackerson was joking. At first, I didn't really want to do it but motivation has me and I'm ready to go."

Johnson, who swims the 200 individual medley and 500 freestyle, and Chock, 100 butterfly and 100 breaststroke believe that shaving down will give them the added speed they need to better their personal records Saturday. They are also looking forward to seeing how it pays off with the 200 medley relay team. Johnson swims freestyle on the medley while Chock swims the fly, freshman Jeff Belford swims breaststroke and junior Scott

Lewis swims backstroke.

"Everybody on the relay is shaving and we are really psyched about it," Johnson said. "Our best time is 2:02 this season and we're shooting for a 1:58 or better."

Ackerson is not only looking forward to the results shaving will produce for his team, but he is anxious to see the swimmers' reaction the first time they hit the water after shaving.

"When you see a kid dive into the water the first time he ever shaves and see him come up, the look in his eyes is unbelievable," Ackerson said. "It's like you just peeled your skin off and waxed your body down. You dive in the water and just slide through it."

It is not just the removal of body hair, though, that makes swimmers go faster after shaving. By shaving, swimmers are removing the first layer of skin which exposes nerve endings and gives them a better feel for the water.

"Sometimes someone with hitches in their stroke mechanics will shave and develop a better feel for the water and that allows them to swim faster," Ackerson said. "Some people may be skeptical at first, but there is no doubt that it works."

Shaving not only works in lowering times, but it is also a motivational tool. Along with shaving the body, shaving the head is another big psychological weapon swimmers use. While shaving the body is expected, shaving the head is the ultimate sacrifice.

"We've got mohawks now but we're going to shave bald," Johnson said of he and Chock. "Our parents are laughing at us and my girlfriend says she won't talk to me but who cares — we're psyched. It is definitely a big boost for morale."

Ackerson said shaving the head isn't necessary, but is a big boost mentally for swimmers.

"You pretty much get the same streamline with a cap, but it is a tremendous boost psychologically to see a kid shave his head," Ackerson said. "It shows the most dedication possible."

Chock said he wasn't going to shave his head at first, but figured it was his last meet and was a good time as any to go for it.

"I said no way at first but now I'm going to take the plunge," Chock said. "We've even got some bets going. Kids at school don't believe we'll do it so we're going to bring them our hair in plastic bags."

"It's going to give everybody a big shock," added Chock. "But I want to go my personal records for the whole time I've been swimming and I think this will be a key to getting me there."

Gators Need Victory Keep Bowl Hopes Alive

By Mike Dame
Special to the Herald
GAINESVILLE — Following last Saturday's loss to the Georgia Bulldogs, the Florida Gators trudged out of their dreary Gator Bowl locker room as if it were the Confederacy's march out of Appomattox Courthouse.

A heard of Gator loyalists stood on a steel overhang as the battered troops made their way out of the stadium, silently weaving their way through the crowd.

There was an undeniable feeling of frustration in the air. Many questions were left to be answered, but not one Gator had a clear solution. Everyone does agree, however, that it is a total team problem.

If the Gators (5-4, 2-3 in the SEC) do not find a solution by tomorrow, they could be in a heap of trouble as they host the Kentucky Wildcats (5-4, 1-3) at Florida Field. Kickoff is slated for 12:40 p.m. and the game will be televised by WTBS.

Football

Both squads are fighting for a minor bowl berth. The Aloha Bowl announced earlier this week that if Florida defeats

Kentucky, it will receive a bid to play in the Christmas-day showdown.

Just a year ago, however, Florida traveled to Lexington and was defeated, 10-3. The loss dropped Florida to 5-5, squelching its 1986 bowl hopes.

Coach Jerry Claiborne's Wildcats will not roll over and play dead Saturday in Gainesville, however. Kentucky has one of the most effective running attacks in the Southeastern Conference, led by senior tailback Mark Higgs. The 5-7, 186-pounder has carried the ball 150 times for 1,114 yards, averaging 7.3 yards per carry with 10 touchdowns.

If the Gators found Lars Tate and company tough last week, they won't know what hit them when they face Higgs.

Edgewater Upends Oviedo

By Scott Bender
Herald Sports Writer

ORLANDO — At Thursday night's District 4A-7 football game between Oviedo and Orlando Edgewater, the Oviedo marching band departed at halftime. Maybe the Marching Lions envisioned what was to come in the second half.

Oviedo had more than its share of chances to put away the Eagles, but failed to capitalize in several key situations. As a result, the Eagles posted an exciting 15-14 come-from-behind victory before 1,111 fans at EE Stadium.

After Leroy Marion's 24-yard touchdown grab gave Edgewater a 15-14 lead with 6:57 to play, the Lions had not one, but two chances to win the game.

Frank Diaz returned the ensuing kickoff 50 yards to the Edgewater 40. A 15-yard late hit penalty gave the Lions the ball at the Eagle 25. Five plays later, quarterback John Pettit scored what appeared to be the winning touchdown on a two-yard run. But an illegal motion penalty on a Lion offensive lineman nullified the score and brought it back to the seven. The Eagle defense stiffened, and Lion kicker Scott Waisanen came on to attempt a 20-yard field goal.

But the chip shot sailed wide to the left. Waisanen had another shot to win the game on the final play of the game, but his 48-yard attempt was well short.

The setback left Oviedo mentor Jack Blanton very frustrated. "This was our game all the way," Blanton said. "We had it won, but we let it slip away."

The loss extended Oviedo's losing streak to five games. The Lions (3-6) will end their season next week when they host Lake Howell in a Seminole Athletic Conference meeting.

The victory, Edgewater's third in a row, ups the Eagles to 4-5. Edgewater will travel to Orlando Boone in its season finale next week. "This was a very good win for us," Edgewater coach Sam Weir, a former University of Central Florida head coach, said. "We played poorly in the first half, but we came out and did a good job in the second half."

The lone touchdown of the first half came late in the opening quarter on a 33-yard touchdown pass from Pettit to running back Chad Duncan. Pettit was forced out of the pocket, rolled to his right, and found Duncan in the end zone.

"I felt the pressure, so I rolled," Pettit, who finished eight for 17 for 80 yards, said. "Chad (Duncan) was covered at first, but he broke open and I saw him."

"The safety had me covered at first," Duncan said. "But I saw John roll and got in back of him." Waisanen's PAT gave Oviedo a 7-0 halftime lead.

Edgewater came out fired up in the third quarter and swiftly drove down field. When the drive stalled at the Oviedo 27, Chip Hummel booted a 47-yard field goal, cutting Oviedo's lead to 7-3.

After stopping the Lions on their next possession, the Eagles orchestrated an eight-play, 41-yard drive. Tailback Theo Wallace capped the march on a

4A-5 District Meet: First Step To State

By Chris Pletzer
Herald Sports Writer

While the state meet is the ultimate, the first step to state for Seminole County swimmers will be the 4A-5 District Championships tonight and Saturday at the Sheridan Aquatic Club in Longwood.

Preliminaries will be held Friday beginning at 5 p.m. with finals slated for Saturday at 2 p.m. The top three finishers in each individual event and relay will get automatic berths in next week's Class 4A State Championships at the Justus Aquatic Center. In addition, the next eight fastest times from places four through six from around the state will qualify for state. In diving, the top four from each district shall qualify if the diver has a score of 200 or better.

"This is one fantastic district," Lake Mary coach Walt Morgan said. "And I think we have a shot to do really well in it. Everyone on our team looks strong."

On the boys side, Lyman, Lake Mary, Winter Park and Orlando Dr. Phillips all have strong teams that could take the district crown. The main objective, however, is to get as many people to state as possible.

"We'd like to win and to do that we need points from everyone," Morgan said. "We hope to qualify as many kids as possible and it is very important we get both of our relays to state."

Swimmers who Morgan hopes to qualify include Jaime Bojanowski, Steve Kostowicz, Brad Bridgewater, Karl Kuchma, Wes Simecek and Joe Rosner.

Swimming

Lyman High will be without one of its top distance swimmers, Nick Radzewich (running in region cross country) but the Greyhounds have a number of quality people who hope to qualify for state led by Chuck Reinighaus, Dave Bandy, Jim Bandy and diver Chris Hebert.

Lake Brantley's top hopes for the boys will be Scott Rowe and Scott Bridges while Lake Howell looks for diver John Paulovich and swimmer Chris Cotter to qualify.

On the girls side, Lake Brantley and Winter Park are the favorites with Lake Mary also looking for a solid finish.

"We'd like to win district, but what we're really pointing for is state," Brantley coach Clay Parnell said. "Most of our girls won't start their taper until after district. We'll do well, but I don't know if we can beat Winter Park's depth."

Lake Brantley's have the top performer in almost every event in the district. The Lady Patriots' top-line swimmers include Christy Bridgewater, Manda Davis, Lisa Moon, JoDee Lake, Kristen Pauley, Jennifer Moon, Dani Ohnman, Karl Kosch and Jill Spiller.

Lake Mary, second to Brantley in the Seminole Athletic Conference, will look for strong qualifying efforts from Kelley Wise, Stan Bojanowski and Elisa Maher along with its relay teams and diver Jennifer Caputo.

Lyman is led by Karen Long and diver Angie Pfaff while Lake Howell's top performers include

Lake Mary's Steve Kostowicz cuts through the water during the Seminole Athletic Conference meet. Kostowicz will look for a state-qualifying effort Saturday at the District 4A-5 championships at Longwood's Sheridan Aquatic Club.

Tricia DeFrates, Lora Cotter and diver Candace Trolani.

Seminole High will compete in the 3A district meet Saturday also at the Sheridan Aquatic Club. The Seminole boys are led by the 200 medley relay team of David Johnson, Matt Chock, Jeff Belford and Scott Lewis and David Higginbotham in the 100 breast and 100 free. Also looking for strong efforts will be Bryan Pavlak, Jesse Guerrero and Mark Davis who join Higginbotham in the 400 free relay.

For the Seminole girls, sophomore Clary Burgess looks for her second consecutive state qualifying berth. Burgess will look to lower her times in the 100 fly and 200 free. Tina Kennedy and Mindy Bogue will also look for strong performances for the Lady Tribe.

Seminoles Seek 3A State Bid

By Mark Mythe
Special to the Herald

Seminole High School's boys cross country team will need to run a near perfect race this Saturday at Titusville's Dunn Airpark in hopes of a berth to the state meet to be held the following Saturday at the same location.

The girls meet will begin at 9:30 a.m. and will feature Shownda Martin and Dorchelle Webster of Seminole who will try to qualify for state as individuals. The boys will begin at 10:15.

"We will need to run the race of our lives," Seminole coach Ken Brauman said. "We will have to upset one of the Titusville teams to make it to the state meet, and both of those teams have been running well as of late."

The Tribe has a pair of strong front runners leading the way for them in past seasons. Both Jason Kaiser and Joe Peeples have been running well as of late and will need to do so again Saturday to send them into the state meet.

"We need to get three runners in before Titusville's second runner," Brauman said. "We're capable of going, the kids know that and know what they have to do."

Seminole will have to bring it's pack up just a little to make up the ground between it and Titusville. Brauman has his kids in racing shape and feels they are ready to go.

"Everyone is in pretty good shape," Brauman said. "Our number five runner Dalvin Davis has been sick this week. I'm not sure how much that will affect us Saturday but we will need a good race from him."

Rufaro Matipano and Brent Posey will also need to come through with strong efforts for the Seminole's. Both were together at the end of the district race and will more than likely be close again at the end of the regional race.

4A REGION AT JUPITER

The Class 4A-2 Region meet will be held Saturday morning at Carlin Park in Jupiter. Lake Howell, Lake Mary, Lake Brantley and Lyman's girls will all run in the region meet while Lyman, Lake Mary and Lake Howell's boys will compete. The top four teams and top five individuals in each division advance to next week's Class 4A State Championships.

Elliott, Earnhardt Battle For Most Popular

With less than a month remaining before the deadline, Dale Earnhardt and Bill Elliott are only 103 votes apart in balloting for the Most Popular Driver Award this year. Elliott, who has won the award the last three years has 3,290 votes while Earnhardt, who clinched his second straight NASCAR Winston Cup championship at North Carolina Motor Speedway has 3,187 votes. The winner will be announced at the annual NASCAR Winston Cup press conference Dec. 3 at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City, the day before the annual awards banquet.

Carl Vanzura, Herald Motor Sports Writer, confirmed that Crisco would be a co-sponsor for Bud Moore's NASCAR Winston Cup team and driver Brett Bodine. Crisco, which is the current sponsor for Buddy Baker's team will join Motorcraft as co-sponsor for Moore, who has hired Bodine to replace Ricky Rudd in 1988.

David Rogers started the new points season off with a win in the 25-lap Late Model feature at New Smyrna Speedway. Bobby Sears, Osteen took a third in the Four Cylinder feature. In the Florida Modified local race, Jeff Blehr took a well-deserved third. In the Roadrunner class, 40-year-old Terry McDade in his Lake Mary based 1973 Chevelle, won his first feature ever as he finally beat close friend, Mike Kubanek.

In the Sportsman feature, Randy Smathers, Marc Kinley and Joey Warmac all finished in the top five. Randy Grief finished third in the "B" Bomber class. Over at Orlando Speed World, 15-year-old Rookie of the Year, Matt Hruby of Maitland, won the Mini Stock feature with Bobby Sears right behind.

Sanford's Wayne "Animal" Pawlak drove his Brew and Cue sponsored 1974 Gremlin to a third place finish in the Florida Modified class.

Volusia County Speedway held it's awards banquet last week. Altamonte driver Steve Harris received the fourth place trophy in the point standings. Louisa Davis, Osteen won the Mini Stock Hard Luck Award. Carl Vanzura of the Sanford Herald was presented a plaque for Outstanding Media Coverage.

Due to the increased demand of Winston Cup teams needing testing and development time for new race cars, Daytona International Speedway has announced a new policy and a new schedule for pre-Daytona 500 testing.

Knights Face Biggest Challenge Of Season At FAMU

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

Over the past nine weeks, the University of Central Florida football team has proven time and time again that it is one of the best Division II teams in the country. The Knights are currently ranked No. 5 in the NCAA Poll and are desperately trying to make the Div. II playoffs for the first time in school history.

UCF's "Air Supply" offense has provided enough excitement for any fan. UCF has made watching its games extremely enjoyable. In the three years that he has been at UCF, coach Gene McDowell has turned a Div. II dorm into a powerhouse. This has already been the most successful season in school history, but the outcome of one game will determine the productivity of the entire season.

On Saturday afternoon at 1:30, the Knights will travel to Bragg Memorial Stadium in Tallahassee to take on Florida A&M. This will be the single most important football game that UCF has ever played.

"It is all very cut and dry," UCF coach Gene McDowell said. "If we win this game, we are going to make the playoffs. But if we lose, we won't. It is a do or die situation for us."

If the Knights get by the Rattlers, all they would have to do is to beat Div. II weakling Morningside (Iowa) on Nov. 22. A pair of wins would clinch a playoff spot.

If the Knights do win their remaining two games, they will have a good chance at hosting a first and possible second-round playoff game. "We have already submitted our bid to host if we make the playoffs," McDowell said. "All we would have to do would be to sell 10,000 tickets, and I think that we can do that without a problem."

This will be fourth time this season that UCF has faced a Div. I-AA opponent. The Knights have not fared well against I-AA competition as both of their losses are against I-AA foes.

The Knights are coming into the game on a roll, though. UCF (7-2) has won its last five games by a combined score of 242-67. "We are playing our best football of the season right now," McDowell said. "I am just hoping that we will be ready on Saturday afternoon, and I think that we will be."

The Knights may be without their top receiver in Bernard Ford, who has caught 12 touchdown passes this season, suffered a severely sprained ankle in UCF's 67-3 win over

Grand Valley State two weeks ago. Ford missed last week's game against Liberty, and is questionable for Saturday's game according to McDowell. "His status is still unknown," McDowell said. "I really hope that he can play. We can do a lot more things offensively with him in there."

The Rattlers (3-5-1) are coming off a 24-17 win over Southern University. FAMU had lost four of its last five before last week. "Any team that can beat Georgia Southern impresses me," said McDowell, whose team fell to GSU, 34-32, earlier in the year. "FAMU may not have a lot of wins, but they have played a lot of tough football teams."

One aspect of the game that will be very interesting is UCF's offense against FAMU's defense. The Knights have the second best passing offense in the country while FAMU has the number one defense against the pass in the country. "It will be our strength against theirs," McDowell said. "And someone is going to have to give."

The Knights also possess one of the nation's leading passers in Darin Slack. Slack, a senior, has passed for 2,827 yards and 25 touchdowns this season. "Darin has just done a super job," McDowell said. "He has really matured."

The UCF defense has not gotten much recognition this season. But defensive coordinator Perry Moss, who has coached in the NFL in Buffalo, Chicago, and Green Bay, said that his defense. "We haven't gotten that much credit, but that is alright," Moss, who coached in the collegiate ranks at Florida State, Washington, Wisconsin, and Louisiana State. "Our defense has given our offense the ball in good field position, and they have played consistently all season."

Moss said that FAMU's offense is ready to explode. "They haven't scored a whole lot of points this season, but I think that they are ready to," Moss said. "They are the type of team that might stick it down our throats if we don't play up to our capability."

Moss said that the Rattlers have the second best offense that UCF has seen. "Eastern Kentucky had the best offense," Moss said. "But these guys are right behind them. It should be a dandy of a game."

This is only the second time that UCF had been on the road this season. Their other game was at GSU. "Going away should be a nice little change," McDowell said. "We are hoping that all of our fans make the trip, because this one will make or break our season."

DeLand-Lyman Decides Fate Of Four Teams

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

Never has one game meant so much to so many.

After eight weeks of intense high school football action, the fate of four teams all rests upon the outcome of a single game.

Friday night's Seminole Athletic Conference/District 5A-4 game at Lyman between the Greyhounds and the DeLand Bulldogs is not only important to the two teams involved, but also is of monumental significance to Lake Mary and Lake Howell. Kickoff is slated for 8 in Lyman's homecoming game.

The district race has been tight all season long, and the outcome could be decided on Friday night. Here is a run down of the different possibilities.

If Lyman upsets DeLand, Lake Howell would win the district because the Silver Hawks beat Lake Mary. If DeLand beats Lyman and Lake Mary gets upset by Daytona Beach Mainland, DeLand will win the district because the Bulldogs have beaten Lake Howell.

If DeLand and Lake Mary win, there will be a three-way tie between the Bulldogs, Silver Hawks, and Rams. A playoff would have to be held on Nov. 23 to decide the district winner.

Got it? You can bet your bottom that the Rams and Bulldogs will be keeping close tabs on this game.

DeLand comes in after squeaking by Spruce Creek, 13-10, in overtime last week. If the Bulldogs could have beaten Lake Mary two weeks ago, they would have won the district. But the Rams prevailed, 7-3. "We just wanted to make it interesting," DeLand coach Dave Hiss said. "And we sure did. We moved the ball all over the field against Lake Mary, but just couldn't put it in the end zone." DeLand is 6-2 overall, 3-1 in the SAC, and 4-1 in the 5A-4.

"If anybody would have told me before the season that we would be 6-2 at this point, I would have kissed them," Hiss said. "I still can't believe it. We shouldn't be 6-2."

"Our kids are going to be all fired up," Lyman defensive coordinator Jack Bloomingdale said. "We want this one badly."

Hiss, otherwise known as the eternal pessimist, said that although his team knows this is a big game, he isn't sure that the team is up to the task at hand. "Lyman is far superior to us athletically," Hiss said. "I am just praying that all of our kids show up and play decently. Lyman is a much better football team."

Lyman is coming of a hard-fought 17-7 loss to Seminole. The Greyhounds are 5-3 overall, 1-3 in the SAC, and 2-2 in the 5A-4. "This is a very big game for us, not because of what it means to everybody else, but because of our bowl chances," Bloomingdale said. "We want to make a post season bowl, and we have to win this one to make it."

"We told our kids that out last three games would be the toughest," said Bloomingdale, whose team finishes the season at Lake Brantley. "We have got to buckle our helmets up and give them heck."

"Yeah, it always seems to be a nip and tuck type of game," Bloomingdale said. "The three games that we have lost this year have all been very close. We need to come out on top for a change. We remember losing to them last season, and we didn't like it one bit."

Hiss said that his team is all banged up. He said that starting tailback Raymond Green and fullback Melvin Livingston will both miss the game due to injuries. "It seems as though a lot of people have been hit with injuries at this time in the year," Hiss said. "But I think that we have been hit particularly hard."

Bloomingdale said that the key to stopping DeLand is stopping their powerful running attack. "They don't do one thing fancy," Bloomingdale said. "We have to stop their running game. I'm not all that concerned with their passing attack."

"We are just going to go one-on-one against them up front," Bloomingdale continued. "This is going to be another bruiser."

"Farrier is awesome," Hiss said. "Our defense is really going to be in for some kind of a test. I don't think that we are up to it."

...Brantley

"We lost to Merritt Island early in the season but we've come an awful long way since then," Glance said. "I'm sure Merritt Island has gotten better as well so we have to go out and play our best match of the year. At this point, every match is tougher than the one before so you have to play better than the one before."

While her knowledge of the game and ability to teach it has improved the Lady Patriots skill-wise, Glance is also a good motivator and gets along well with her players. And she is always on the ball, whether it's with pointing something out to a player or calling a timeout to settle them down, during the games.

In Tuesday's region victory over Orlando Evans, Glance made good use of her timeouts. On two occasions Glance called time with Evans rallying. Both times, the Evans server missed her serve after the time out.

Glance also recognized that Evans' hitters had not faced a good block all season. The Lady Patriots concentrated on blocking Tuesday and it was a key in Lake Brantley controlling and eventually winning the match.

Tonight, Glance is hoping Lake Brantley can control the net against a solid Merritt Island team.

"Merritt Island has some strong hitters but I have confidence in our block and defense," Glance said. "If we're not putting the block down, we at least have to deflect it so the defense can play it. We'll have to control Merritt Island at the net and if we do that we can win the game."

A victory would give the Lady Patriots their ultimate goal, but a loss shouldn't diminish what they've accomplished this season. And, as long as Glance is at the helm, you can bet Lake Brantley will be a force in volleyball in the years to come.

Meredith Takes Over For Injured Johnson

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

The Lake Brantley Patriots have had a week off to heal their wounds, but there is one player who will not be suiting up in tonight's District 5A-4 game at Spruce Creek. And it is the one player that makes the Patriot offense click: quarterback Clint Johnson.

Johnson suffered a broken thumb in Brantley's 21-7 loss to Orlando Dr. Phillips two weeks ago. The talented sophomore is out for the rest of the season.

"If there is one player that we couldn't afford to lose, it was Clint," Lake Brantley coach Fred Almon said. "We lose a lot of our offensive speed without him."

The Patriots, 3-5 overall and 1-3 in the 5A-4, come into the game against the Creek on a downer. Brantley has lost four games in a row. The Creek (3-5 overall and 1-4 in the 5A-4), meanwhile, has dropped five consecutive contests. Kickoff is slated for 8 at Memorial Stadium.

Almon said that his team is still in good spirits despite its recent losing streak. "The kids are still working their tails off, and are trying their best," Almon said. "They are a determined group. I'll say that."

Almon said that Scott Meredith, a junior who has seen plenty of time at quarterback this season, will replace Johnson. "I am confident that Scott can do the job," Almon said. "We just lose a little of Clint's speed."

The Creek almost upset DeLand last week. The Hawks fell to the Bulldogs, 13-10, in overtime. "I don't care what their record is," Almon said. "They are a hard hitting football team. It is also their homecoming game, so I'm sure that they will be fired up. Everybody is for us anyway."

The Patriots have one of the most talented backs in the area in fullback Mark Sepe. Sepe, a bulldozing senior, has picked up 680 yards and four touchdowns. "Mark is going to have to have a big game," Almon said. "But we aren't going to change our offense at all. We are going to do what we have done all season long."

Almon said the Creek

A Healthy Plant Is The Best Insurance Against Cold Damage

With winter fast approaching, it's time to give some thought to protecting tropical and subtropical plants from cold damage from low temperatures, frost or a hard freeze. With proper cultural practices and several protective steps, damage from low temperatures can be reduced.

Nutrition is very important for increasing a plant's resistance to cold injury. A plant that is favorably supplied with all elements essential for growth will survive lower temperatures and recover faster from cold injury than plants not receiving proper fertilization. Plants in Florida landscapes can be fertilized four times a year. Landscape plants in Central Florida should be fertilized in late winter, springs, mid-summer and early fall. One to 1 1/4 pounds of 6-6-6 or 8-8-8, or 1/2 pound of 12-4-8 or 16-4-8 should be applied per 100 square feet of planting area for the first three applications per year. A decrease in the amount of fertilizer applied in the fall is necessary because plant nutrient consumption declines during the

Celeste White
Urban Horticulturist

Est. 178

colder season.

Late summer or early fall pruning should be avoided. Pruning alters the plant's hormonal balance resulting in a flush of growth which is very susceptible to cold injury.

Healthy plants are more resistant to cold than plants weakened by disease, insect, or nematode damage. Routine inspection for pests and implementation of necessary control measures may determine the fate of a plant during a freeze.

Tender plants in containers can be protected from freeze damage by putting them in a garage or on a porch. If it is not possible to move them indoors, protect root systems by pushing the containers together and apply a mulch over the containers.

Windbreaks can minimize cold injury by reducing wind speed and conserving heat in an area. Evergreen plants make excellent windbreaks which can be effectively placed so that an area stays warmer than it would if it were in the open.

Covering materials such as cloth, polyethylene plastic and paper can be used to reduce frost injury. Covers that extend to the ground and are not in contact with plant foliage can lessen cold injury by reducing radiant heat loss from the plant and the ground. Foliage in contact with the cover is often injured because of heat transfer from the foliage to the colder cover. A light bulb under a cover is a simple method of providing heat to ornamental plants when the temperature drops below freezing. It is necessary to remove plastic covers during a sunny day to prevent heat damage to the plant.

Sprinkler systems have also been used for cold protection. A constant flow of water over the plant may be of value, however, if the supply of water is stopped or is not supplied fast enough, ice can build up to the point where its weight breaks the branches of the plant. Sprinkling must begin as freezing temperatures are reached and continue until thawing is completed. This method is usually not suitable for homeowners, since large quantities of water are needed and most irrigation systems are inadequate.

To summarize, a good healthy plant is the best insurance against cold damage. A healthy plant means a proper fertilization and watering program are used. Use windbreaks or protective coverings for the entire plant or at least for the main stem when a cold snap is anticipated. If all fails and the plant freezes, replace it with a more cold tolerant species or grow that favorite ornamental as a pot plant which can be moved indoors those few cold days we have in Florida.

The United States Achievement Academy announces that Chanin Denice Conway has been named a United States National Award winner in art.

Conway, who attends Lake Mary High School, was nominated for this prestigious award by Fran Kemp, art instructor at the school. Conway will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, published nationally.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history," said Dr. George Stevens, executive director of the academy. "Certainly United States Achievement Academy award winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement."

The academy selects winners upon the exclusive recommendations of teachers, coaches, counselors or other school sponsors and upon the standards of selection set forth by the academy. The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability, and recommendation from a teacher or director.

Non-Profit Foundation Gives Little People Supporting Leg To Stand On

DEAR ABBY: I saw a letter in your column advertising Tall Clubs International, so I hope you will do as much for short people. Our club, the Billy Barty Foundation for Little People, is a non-profit organization founded by Billy Barty in 1957 for anyone 4 foot 10 and under.

The foundation fights for little people's rights. It also acts as a resource center, giving information about available jobs, special clothing, shoes, health care, independent living and emotional support as well as social interaction. We welcome people of all ages, races and religions. For information about the club nearest you, write to: Billy Barty Foundation for Little People, 10954 Moorpark St., North Hollywood, Calif. 91602. Please enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope, and be patient because we rely on volunteers to staff our office.

SHARON ALBERTS

DEAR SHARON: Here's hoping this gives "little people" a big boost.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter has a 10-month-old son, and I can't believe some of the advice she's been receiving from some friends and relatives regarding disciplining her child. For example: "Never remove articles that you don't want the baby to touch. Each time he touches or grabs something he shouldn't, say NO firmly, then slap his hand. He has to learn!" Please print your opinion.

CHICAGO GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: I go along with letting a child know what he may and may not touch, but children are smart and often test their limits. So, mothers, remove your highly prized pieces, or the one who will learn the lesson will be you.

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the safety of four young children (three girls ages 8, 7 and 6, and a son almost 4). The other day we were shopping in a mall department store. While I was shopping in one part of the store, my wife took the four children to another area of the store. When I went to join her, I found the children alone in the toy section. She had left them there while she went to the catalog department, which was in another section of the building—out of sight and sound of the toy area.

I was very upset and don't feel that they should be left alone yet. She says that they can take care of themselves. Abby, the two younger ones are a handful for us, and I can't see how they can be controlled by an 8-year-old. Kidnapping, although very unlikely, is a fear of mine. Also they could get hurt, or damage something. Am I wrong? Also, at what age can the oldest be left alone at home to baby-sit the others?

OVERPROTECTIVE FATHER?

DEAR FATHER: "Overprotective"? Not in my book. Three children 7 and under should not be left in the care of an 8-year-old. Furthermore, children under 12 should not be left unsupervised in a toy department—or any other department, for that matter. Unattended children have been known to "disappear" from shopping malls and other public places.

The age at which a child is competent to look after younger siblings would depend on the level of maturity of the child. In my view, the average 8-year-old lacks four or five years to qualify.

DEAR ABBY: I am 51 and my husband is 58. We have been married for 10 years. It's the second time around for both of us. What's bugging me? He always uses the words "I," "my" and "mine" instead of saying "we" or "ours."

In conversations with others, it's I, I, I. It's driving me up the wall. What are your thoughts on this? I love the guy.

WOE IS ME

DEAR WOE: I think it's time you looked this gut in the eye and said: "I love you, but I have had it up to here with your chronic 'I' trouble. Just listen to all the 'I's and 'me's in your conversation and give me a break because I feel slighted."

Doctor Should Check Child's Shakiness

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am a 9-year-old girl. I read comics every morning and read your column. You said a tired feeling should be checked out. My big sister and mom have a tired feeling, but when it happens to me, I shake and tremble and can barely walk. Should I be checked out?

hormone ratio is disrupted, acne and inappropriate hair growth can become more noticeable. Ask your dermatologist if he or she would be willing to refer you to an endocrinologist, a specialist who could assess your hormone imbalance.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Our grandson said that if you take two aspirin at bedtime, you can lose three pounds overnight. What do you think?

DEAR READER — Yes. Symptoms of fatigue associated with shaking and trembling should be brought to your pediatrician's attention. Because loss of energy can have many causes, I think that you need an examination and, possibly, blood tests to check out the situation. It's important to investigate any symptoms — either in youngsters or adults — that deviate from normal.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My skin problems have been making life miserable for 16 years, since puberty. Accutane has helped somewhat, but my acne is cystic. It flares up around my period. Recently there's been a noticeable increase in hair around my nipples, below my navel and on my chin. Could this indicate that a hormonal imbalance is the cause of my acne?

DEAR READER — Unless your grandson is a research scientist discovering new, unpublished information about aspirin, I would have to disagree with him. In people who retain excess amounts of salt, the use of aspirin (and similar drugs) can cause poor blood flow through the kidneys, with a resulting buildup of urea in the system. Therefore, although aspirin can affect the kidneys, it does not act as a diuretic (stimulant to urine flow). An overnight three-pound weight loss would be a highly unlikely consequence of taking two aspirin tablets.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Here comes a deal where declarer will make 12 tricks on a good day with both red suits dividing evenly. South had shown a good hand by opening with diamonds and then bidding and rebidding hearts, but North didn't really think of slam. He just hoped his ace of clubs would be enough for game. Sadly declarer was none other than our friend Willy, last name Nully, and he just wasn't up to the advanced play to give himself the best chance for 11 tricks. Willy ruffed the spade opening, played A-K of hearts and ruffed a heart. East overruffed and played another spade. Willy ruffed, played one high trump and then tried to ruff another heart. Alas, that too was overruffed and declarer still had to lose a club. Willy turned to his kibitzer, Careful Charlie, and asked, "Could I have made it?"

"Yes," Charlie replied. "What you must do is transfer the ruff to a suit that is not likely to be overruffed. On the third heart, simply discard a club from dummy. Then, on the fourth heart, discard another of dummy's clubs. Now you can ruff your losing small club and it's not likely to be overruffed. Although that play loses the overtrick when hearts are 3-3, it gives you the best chance for the contract."

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bode Osool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
NOVEMBER 14, 1987
 The year ahead should be a rewarding one for you materially, provided you always operate in accordance with your highest standards. Follow the narrow but profitable path to success.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Social contacts are extremely important for you in this time frame. They can be helpful in opening doors of opportunity to which you do not have the keys. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If there is an important objective that you hope to achieve, make every effort to do it today instead of waiting until tomorrow. You're on a roll now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Take the limitations off your expectations today and be both hopeful and optimistic. If your vision is restricted, the results will be as well.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Changes tend to benefit you at this time; even the ones you do not personally orchestrate. Be alert for signals that indicate shifts, and be ready to move.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Ideas or suggestions that you propose today will have a powerful impact on your listeners. Later, you might not remember what you said, but they will.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your restless spirit won't be satisfied today if you fail to use your time productively. Try to do things that benefit others as well as yourself.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The aspects favor you at present where romance is concerned. If there is a particular relationship you'd like to establish, now is the time to make your pitch.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Yield to impulses today that encourage you to do something special for the one you love. If you don't act on your good intentions, you're likely to regret it later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) All eyes are going to be focused on you today, so if you're going to make an appearance in front of new people, take a little extra time to primp.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your keen insights can be put to profitable uses today. Let your hunches guide you in the management of your commercial affairs.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're endowed with the ability to use the spoken or written word in a masterly fashion today. Use your powers to communicate to further your personal interests.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Something good is about to happen for you at this time pertaining to your financial affairs. If it doesn't occur today, it should in the near future.

Stocks Open Mixed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened mixed today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which jumped 81.01 Thursday, was down 4.84 to 1955.57 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 485-356 among the 1,231 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 23,256,000 shares.

Stocks prices soared Thursday as market participants welcomed a better-than-expected merchandise trade deficit report as "a breath of fresh air" in the wake of last month's unprecedented market turmoil.

The Commerce Department Thursday said the trade deficit narrowed to $14.08 billion in September, down from $15.7 billion in August and well below the $15 billion many analysts had forecast.

Hugh Johnson, head of the investment policy committee at First Albany Corp., said there was evidence of a positive move even before the release of the trade data in light of the activity on foreign stock markets.

"London and Tokyo were doing well, and our market had done well yesterday," Johnson said. "Then came the trade number, and that was the catalyst that got a lot of fence-sitters involved."

county road improvements affecting Sanford at a much faster rate than the county plan does. The letter continues "...the road impact fee ordinance supersedes any desires the city may have in reference to the actual implementation date (of road improvements). Participation in the county road impact fee program is necessary to implement the city and county comprehensive plans. However, the city has placed a moratorium against the collection of impact fees," the county letter says.

Marder says the rate at which county road improvements are to be completed listed in the city plan is based on county road plans, which are not current in the county's comprehensive plan. The moratorium on collecting county road impact fees is based partly on the lack of planning for the use of those funds, he says.

The county got another "dig" in at the city in criticizing its section of the plan dealing with efforts to develop joint planning concepts and coordinating services.

The county letter says the Sanford plan fails to list all opportunities for cooperation, since it identifies a majority of the major roads in the Sanford area as county roads, yet refuses to participate in the county's road impact fee program.

The Sanford plan also got its own jab in at the county, which county planners in turn criticized in the letter to the DCA. Sanford's plan includes a statement that the county "has an increasingly aggressive policy to discourage annexation."

The county, in its letter, called that statement "a subjective, editorial statement that is, in fact, inaccurate." The county's court challenges of several Sanford annexations are pending, and the county letter says all are based on specific legal considerations, not aggressiveness.

for Elsa Ferguson, 63, of Daytona Beach.

Elsa was elated. But for 10 minutes after the awards presentation, she thought she had placed third, since her medal had been presented last. Upon finding out she took the gold, her elation went off the Richter scale.

Meanwhile, Hill and Edmonds — friends and rivals — quibbled playfully, saying they thought the other one was supposed to win this year.

Elsa said that among her knitting creations are a three-piece suit, a three-piece coat and a skirt. Since August, she has knitted eight sweaters. Joked her husband, Buck, "I've seen her knitting after she fell asleep in the chair. She'd wake up and say, 'What have I done?'"

"I guess all English people know how to knit," Elsa said. "My mother taught me when I was 4."

Elsa was born in London and came to live in Sanford as a war bride in 1945. Her husband was a U.S. fighter pilot training in England while Elsa was in the observer corps.

"We're pretty active," she said in the remnant of a British accent. "We love to dance." She laughed. "I'm not going to sit at home in my rocking chair and knit all the time."

Her knitting is "all in the family, except for my husband." Elsa taught son the yarn art when he was 10, because he was complaining of nothing to do. More recently, she taught her two grandsons because they wanted to imitate her.

Tex Powell of Sanford watched fondly from the sidelines as her peers literally were in stitches. "I used to be real fast," she said. "Did you ever hear of knittin' for Britain? I must have knitted 30 sweaters for the British in World War 2 — plain, sleeveless and straight."

Powell said she has learned from the contestants' techniques and is inspired to revive her skills for next year's competition.

"I had such a good time last year I decide to try it again," Mays said.

Mays took off like a rocket as soon as the timer said go. Flip. He ran to the mid-point. Flip. He ran to the end. Flip — flop. The pancake landed on the ground. Quickly Mays bent down, grappled the pancake, flipped it, and ran to the mid-point. Flip. He ran to the finish line. Flip. He was done.

"You were moving pretty fast," a fellow contestant said to him.

"Yeah, but I dropped it at the other end," he replied with a wry grin. "That's a no-no."

Mays took second place in the men's 60-64 age limit with a time of 14:65. He said he's entered in 18 events this year in the Golden Age Games. So far he's picked up three gold medals for the two-mile race walk, the triathlon, and basketball shooting. In addition, he's earned two bronze medals for the 4-mile run and table tennis.

"I keep in shape by walking a mile a day and running three miles," Mays said. My wife and I run a card/camera/gift shop and she had to stay home this year because this is the start of the Christmas season."

Mays said six years ago he had high blood pressure and he was 50 pounds overweight. Now his blood pressure is below normal and he looks great.

McGinnis. The second tragedy was, he said, the Aug. 27 jailhouse suicide of one of her two accused killers, Edwin Bateman, 17, of Forest City.

And the third tragedy, Colbert said, was that the ex-guards' good name, their profession, their job and their future, were in the hands of the board.

Colbert said he felt that Polk acted in good faith when he fired the guards. But at the time the guards were fired, Colbert said he does not feel that Polk was aware of conditions within the Seminole County jail under which those and all guards were working, generally "without proper supervision" and without a clear understanding of their duties, and that apparently they followed "unwritten" jail rules. The hearing, Colbert said, showed Polk apparently did not have all the facts when the guards were fired. There was not a proper investigation into the specific allegations against the guards.

Polk held those guards to what Polk said were jail rules, despite the fact that, since the suicide, he has made significant changes in jail procedures and guard training.

In letters of termination, Polk said the guards had disregarded jail rules.

Colbert said the evidence does not show that the guards willfully disobeyed rules. He said McGill and Blount have good service records and on the night of the suicide performed many and varied duties.

Colbert said he was disturbed that the guards did not see the body hanging in the cell, but to him that does not show that the guards willfully neglected their duty.

Polk's letters said the guards made false statements by logging that they made state mandated 15-minute checks on the juveniles in this maximum security area of the jail.

Colbert said he believes that when Blount and McGill logged that the suicide victim "appears asleep," they felt they could see a "human form," on Bateman's bed. Other guards had, Colbert said, supported Blount's and McGill's statements that they could see into the cells from a control booth from which the checks were always made by all guards, with lights either on or off in the cells. Colbert said there was no evidence presented that to show that the guards were lying.

And in addressing the third issue in Polk's letters, Colbert said, the guards were accused of failing to make state required "visual checks" on the juveniles.

Polk, Colbert said, in the hearing conceded that with the cell lights on, as was the case with Blount, one could see into the cells. There was no requirement in the regulations for the guards to come out of the booth, go through several locked doors and peer into the cells. If that is the requirement, Colbert said, "it needs to be clarified." He added that supervisors, not guards, had made the decision to turn the lights out in the cells on the night Bateman died. Colbert was also disturbed that a jail sergeant had testified that he had never personally observed the 15-minute checks being made.

Colbert concluded that the guards should not have been fired and should get their jobs back. Colbert said—based on evidence available to Polk when he fired those guards and two others Sept. 3—he could understand why Polk fired them at that time.

But Colbert said evidence presented in the appeals hearing convinced him that the guards were victims of mismanagement at the jail.

In favoring the guards, Colbert went against the votes of the two other board members, Seminole County Sheriff's Chief Deputy Duane Harrell and Seminole Sheriff's Sgt. Ken Starr.

Harrell and Starr—who stated their positions after Colbert—said, as did Colbert, that they found it hard to make a decision in the case. Harrell agreed that a lot of revelations were made about the jail in the hearing.

But, Harrell said, one thing stuck in his mind and "it's something that can be learned just from watching television. It's the oldest rule in jail to make a bed look like someone is in it. Even though the (jail) psychologist said Bateman was not suicidal, I feel any juvenile in jail bears close observation. Based on that, I feel the only way I could comply with law (as a guard) would be to know whatever was in the bunk was the person. A corrections officer on the night shift is obligated to check what's in the cell."

Although Blount's checks were made with lights on, Harrell said, what Blount saw in Bateman's cell was not a person. Harrell said the fact that the checks were logged precisely every quarter hour indicated to him that the Bateman-related log entries by the fired guards were falsified.

That was Harrell's conclusion, despite testimony by a state jail inspector who reviewed about one year's worth of jail logs and concluded that more than 98 percent of all check entries made by all guards showed the same precision and, thus, to him appeared false.

Starr apparently ignored that other guards besides Blount and McGill had stated to the board that checks could be made from the control booth and that other guards besides McGill said they too could see bunka in cells even with cells in darkness. Starr said McGill and Blount did not present any evidence to prove this. That statement came after Colbert had pointed out that Polk did not present evidence to show that the guards could not see into the darkened cells.

Check said he believes that another of Starr's statements—that he (Starr) does not believe that Blount could see into cells on the second floor—is not consistent with testimony given and points addressed in the hearing. Bateman's cell was on the first floor as is the control booth. Check said it appears to him that Starr misunderstood testimony related to second-floor checks.

Transportation Study Approved By County

Seminole County has signed a $220,000 contract with a Winter Park engineering firm to conduct a feasibility study of a "People Mover" mass transportation plan for the Lake Mary Boulevard-Interstate 4 area.

None of the money for the study comes from county coffers. The federal Urban Mass Transit Administration will provide $185,000 and the remaining $35,000 will be furnished by the Centerra Group, a coalition of developers in the Lake Mary-Heathrow area.

The contract, with Kaiser Engineer, Inc., will include transportation, land use and financial analyses, and is to be completed by Oct. 1, 1988.

Among ideas the firm will investigate are a monorail or other types of elevated train, or using streets or rails on the ground.

The Centerra Group did a preliminary study of the idea a few years ago, and the new study will use information from it, as well as from the I-4 corridor study, and a study on the possibility of building a light rail mass transportation system to connect Seminole County and Orlando.

The contract sets up timetables for each phase of the study, including the defining of transportation alternatives, forecasting travel demand, analyzing land use and environmental issues, conducting a financial analyses, and selecting a preferred option.

A mass transportation plan for the area is seen as serving present development in the area, as well as being a positive factor to attract further development.

and staffed by the Federal Aviation Administration. The present tower, Cleveland said, is staffed and funded by Sanford's airport authority.

Sanford's strategic location makes it a viable choice as an economically sound alternative for scheduled commuter and air charter service, said Bauman. Once service begins and aviation activity increases, Bauman said consideration must be given for a parallel runway to handle general aviation demand and reduce any delays to commercial service. Airport Manager J.S. "Red" Cleveland said the runway is included in the airport's 20-year plan.

Bauman also said that road improvements that minimize passenger driving times to and from the airport are a key to maximizing the attractiveness of Sanford's airport. Cleveland said the airport has plans to add additional entrances as roads around the airport are improved or added. The extension of Lake Mary Boulevard from U.S. Highway 17-92 to Sanford Avenue is expected to benefit future access to the airport. Bauman encouraged the airport authority to contact DOT's district office in DeLand to talk about road improvements.

Sanford's airport now handles corporate business aircraft, Cleveland said, including single- and twin-engine airplanes, twin-engine jets, and an occasional cargo aircraft. A study being done by Wilber Smith and Associates of Orlando to determine the feasibility of handling passenger service at Sanford's airport should be completed by Feb. 1. Cleveland said Sanford may be able to handle as many as 40 passenger flights if passenger service is added to the airport. Cleveland said the consulting firm preparing the study will assist the airport in making presentations to one or two airlines if passenger service is added.

Raggedy Ann and Andy

Story and Photos
By Susan Ledon
Herald Staff Writer

They're redhaired, happy-faced raggamuffins who since introduced around 1915, have been the constant companions to several generations of American youngsters. But the appeal of Raggedy Ann and her pal Raggedy Andy draws adults as well.

Adult collectors vie with their dollars to take home these cuddly creations, which in some cases show the ravages of having been well loved by a child.

"It's their wonderful face. I don't know anybody who doesn't like them. I fell in love with them," said Charlene Lucinian, who not only has an extensive collection of Raggedy Anns and Andys she has gathered as an adult, but who also has the same set she owned when she was a child.

Lucinian said that it's true that pristine condition and original dress and boxing enhances the value of one of these collectible ragdolls, but there are other factors, such as rarity, that can play a role in determining value.

Topping the list in value is the earliest Raggedy Ann, a version that has the date 1915 stamped on the torso. These original dolls are 16-inches tall and command prices of from $350 to $450.

Lucinian said she paid $350 for a Raggedy Ann from the 1930s. What made that doll special and relatively rare, she said, is that it has a wooded heart, which can be felt beneath the cloth covering of its chest. Traditionally, later-made Raggedy Anns and Andys have hearts bearing the slogan "I love you," stamped on their chests.

And if Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy love their owners, that love is returned. Aina Rosengold, 15, of Longwood, said it was her mother's idea to decorate her bedroom with an Ann and Andy motif.

"It's always been that way. My mom wanted it to be that way. They're colorful and happy. I love them too," she said.

Small Raggedy Anns and Andys, that just about three years ago were valued at from 50 cents to $2 each, have skyrocketed in value to from $12 to $45. Bigger dolls sell for $100 or more, Lucinian said. Their fame and desirability increased significantly after an appearance on the Today show.

All Raggedy Anns and Andys aren't the same. Their diverse images reflect changes over the years as they have been produced by different makers or even by moms and grandmothers.

Raggedy Ann and Andy were produced commercially by Molly between 1915 and 1938. In 1938 and through 1963 Georgene Novellies made the dolls. Then between 1963 and 1982 Raggedy Ann and Andy were stitched together by the Knickerbocker Toy Company. They are currently made by Applause and by handcrafters.

"Older, handmade Raggedy Anns and Andys are coming into their own," Lucinian said. "Newer handmade dolls sell for from $15 to $28, but the value of those will definitely increase."

Some older commercially produced dolls, she said, may appear to have been homemade, but they weren't.

Lucinian said the dolls she saved from her childhood were made by Molly. The Georgene's she said have orange hair than other versions. The Molly's have painted on faces, while others have button-type eyes. On first glance the uninitiated might not recognize some early Raggedy Anns and Andys for what they really are, she said.

"They are solely American. That's the great thing about them," Lucinian said. "A child can just throw them around and they won't break. They are handed-down, wonderful mementos from a child's use."

She added the soft and cuddliness of these ragdolls put them in the same class as the enduring, endearing Teddy bear.

Raggedy Ann and Andy have a 72-year history. Raggedy Ann was the brainchild of Johnny Gruelle, an Indiana artist born in 1880. As an adult Gruelle received a letter from his mother Alice, who described to him a doll named Raggedy Ann, which her mother had made for her when she was a child. She also told of a next door neighbor who made a similar doll, a boy named Raggedy Andy, for her own daughter.

These rag dolls had painted on faces, which mirrored each other with their wide-eyes and ever-smiling countenance. The story of these two red, yarn-haired dolls inspired Gruelle to write illustrated stories about the adventures of Ann and Andy. He also re-created his version of the dolls his mother remembered.

Ann was introduced in huggable form in 1915 and Andy followed about three years later. Their fame and desirability swept the nation and has endured over the decades.

The commercially produced dolls at first were giveaways to promote Gruelle's books. But today, no body's giving away their Raggedy Ann or Andy. In most cases they are being sold as high-profit collectibles that can bring a little love and cuddliness into the lives of their owners, be they a child or just a child at heart — one with the soul of an investor.

CNN's Half-Hour Fix For Political Junkies

By Mark Schwed
UPI TV Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the first time in 20 years we have a real down-in-the-gutter political catfight — a presidential election where there is no incumbent in either party.

Hooce! Already, the political arena has been rocked by scandals. Gary Hart's campaign self-destructed due to revelations of hanky-panky with Donna Rice. Joe Biden signed his own political death warrant when he admitted he had plagiarized in school and on the campaign trail.

Preacher Pat Robertson confessed that he failed to heed his own sermons about sex before marriage and Sen. Albert Gore recently admitted he smoked a little marijuana in Vietnam, at Vanderbilt University and as a reporter for The Tennessean in Nashville.

And there's still a year to go.

As President Reagan's power dwindles into the last, lame-duck leg of his presidency, the candidates will jockey for position — hoping to land contributions and a little time in the media limelight to bolster name recognition.

The issues are the same: arms control, budget deficits, welfare, social security, environment, taxes, and so on. But the faces, for the most part, are all fresh, which explains why the candidates have been hitting the campaign trail ferociously, and agreeing to debate anybody anytime. Get the name out there, get the face out there, and who cares what anybody says, seems to be the plan.

All this creates an atmosphere ideally suited for a regularly scheduled national television program about politics. And guess who picked up the ball? Cable News Network.

On Nov. 2, CNN debuted "Inside Politics '88," (6-8:30 p.m. EST) a nightly peek at the day in politics anchored by a triumvirate of newscasters: Mary Alice Williams in New York, Bernard Shaw in Washington and Lou Waters in Atlanta, home of CNN.

It is the first time any network has mounted a five-day-a-week political show.

That CNN took the lead is to be expected. CBS, NBC and ABC have all announced plans for ambitious election coverage, but CNN has a distinct advantage: 24 hours of all-news time to fill, and in a year that is to be dominated by politics, it only makes sense that someone provide more coverage.

"Inside Politics '88" is meant for political junkies, hard-core addicts, not necessarily in Washington, D.C., but most definitely consumed by its affairs.

The meat of the show concerns the breaking political news of the day, live interviews with candidates, in-depth behind-the-scenes coverage, plus a type of scorecard on how candidates are faring. Who has raised the most money? Who has scored the best job at the expense of another candidate? Who has planted his foot in his mouth?

The program opens with nifty red, white and blue graphics and an appealing theme song. It looks much like a network newscast except there is only one topic — politics. The first show featured a piece on how the stock market activity is affecting fund-raising. Arch-conservative speechwriter Pat Buchanan, former communications director at the White House, is a special analyst for the show and there are discussions about adding a more liberal voice to the program.

In the first three weeks, every presidential candidate will have appeared to speak his piece.

On Friday Nov. 6, Republican Jack Kemp was the subject of the 10-minute live segment, and anchor Shaw asked him the big question of the day.

"Did you ever smoke a joint?" he asked.

"I never smoked a joint," Kemp said, chuckling.

"No pot, ever?" Shaw pressed.

"Nope," Kemp said.

"Not even a whiff?" Shaw asked.

"No."

Each Friday, the show's political analyst, Frederick Allen, gives a lowdown on the winner or loser of the week.

Plastic Glue
Need to glue something plastic, but you're out of plastic glue? "What to Use Instead," by Carol Ann Rinzier, suggests substituting nail polish remover, which softens and dissolves plastics. Paint the remover on two pieces of plastic and press the painted surfaces together. The plastics should bond as they dry.

Tierra del Fuego
Tierra del Fuego is the largest (18,800 square miles) island in the archipelago of the same name at the southern tip of South America. It is an area of majestic mountains, tortuous channels and high winds. It was discovered in 1520 by Magellan and named Land of Fire because of its many Indian bonfires. Part of the island is in Chile, part in Argentina.

'Remembering Bing'

By Guy Maschlin
Have I ever mentioned my sister Kate? She's a big-time TV producer — well, a medium-sized-time TV producer — and she's got a great special on PBS this month. I'd recommend it even if she weren't my sister.

Kate is one of those spontaneous, inventive TV persons. After she got out of graduate school, she got a job as a videotape editor at WBZ in Boston. I remember the Friday afternoon when she called and said, "What's a videotape editor?" I asked why she wanted to know. "Because I've got a job as one starting Monday." She found somebody to teach her the basics over the weekend.

She got so good at it that she was hired by KDKA in Pittsburgh, where she became a producer. One night, after she'd been there a year or so, she called and asked, "What network is KDKA affiliated with anyway?" She had a meeting with somebody and thought it would be good to know.

Next she went to New York to work for The Entertainment Channel, which went out of business a few months later. You can't win them all.

After that, she was a freelancer for a while, and now she works for WTTW in Chicago, one of the big PBS program-origination stations. She's the producer of "Sneak Previews" on the Lifetime cable channel. And she's co-producer and co-writer of "Remembering Bing," a PBS special about Bing Crosby that will be on in a few days.

As you may have guessed, Kate is less interested in the nuts and bolts of TV than in the creative process. She really gets involved in programs she works on. Earlier this year, she traveled all around the country gathering delightful interviews for "Remembering Bing." She talked with Patti Andrews, Victor Borge, Phil Harris, Bob Hope, Mary Martin, Donald O'Connor, Anthony Quinn, Jane Wyman and others.

But, fittingly, Crosby himself turns out to be the star of the show. It took five months to locate all the film clips used in "Remembering Bing." Many haven't been seen in decades.

My two favorites are book-ends to his extraordinary long career. One, an excerpt from the 1930 film "King of Jazz," is a musical romp that stands up surprisingly well almost 60 years later. The other is a clip from a Perry Como TV show, where Como and Crosby seem to compete to see who is the more relaxed.

Other highlights include Dorothy Lamour's intense narration, snippets from the Hope-Crosby "Road" pictures and a great dance number with Jane Wyman.

"Remembering Bing" doesn't go into Crosby's personal life: his early bout with the bottle, his family problems — there are lots of books on those subjects. This is a career biography that concentrates on something books can't capture: Crosby's craft.

Now comes the hard part. As you know, finding a particular program on any given PBS affiliate is a little like locating stuff Al Capone supposedly buried. PBS station programmers are an independent lot who make it a point to shuffle the network schedule.

"Remembering Bing" will go out on PBS Saturday evening, Nov. 28, at 9 p.m., Eastern and Pacific time, but a lot of stations will show it a few days later, as part of the November-December fundraising campaign.

So check your local listings or call your PBS station to find out when it's on. Don't call Kate, though. She doesn't keep track of that sort of thing.

Beauty Is A Beast

By Mark Schwed
UPI TV Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — The more she acted like a bowl of Jell-O, the more Fawcett's career soared. She jiggled, she wiggled, she bobbed and heaved her way to fame in ABC's "Charlie's Angels."

She became a smashing success — a honey of a heartthrob — and her hairdo was a role model for a generation of teen angels. But "Charlie's Angels" proved limiting. How many times can a private eye don a flimsy bathing suit, wish her hair and do her job?

Fawcett proved to be the smartest of Charlie's "girls" by being the first to quit the team. Now what's a beautiful girl to do?

First, Fawcett had to prove she could do more than jiggle. She was not just a beautiful woman whose chief weapon was her body. She could act. So she got ugly. The beauty became a beast.

She won wide acclaim and touched upon a timely issue with "The Burning Bed," a TV movie about spouse abuse. She was bashed, braten and bruised by her husband. She was filled with rage. She was ugly as sin. She was an actress!

Next in the game plan was the play "Extremities," another role where she got batted around and raped. There was so much violence in the play that she actually was

Is Hulk Hogan For Real Or Imagined?

Dear Dick: I'm a big wrestling fan and watch all the wrestling programs. I especially like Hulk Hogan. But I want you to settle an argument. My mom says wrestling is unreal. I say it's real. Who's right? — T.R.G., Saginaw, Mich.

Dear T.R.G.: What do you mean by "real"? They are real people and they really do those things. They are probably the finest athletes and entertainers around. But if you mean by real do they try to win, the answer is no. Each bout is pre-staged and the winner is known in advance.

Dear Dick: Pop star Madonna was born and raised in Bay City, Mich. I was, too. What is her full name? I have been away from there for many years. — B.M.H., Westery, N.J.

Dear B.M.H.: Her full is Madonna Louise Ciccone, and surely you would remember anybody named Madonna.

Dear Dick: Who sings the commercial for McDonald's Mac Tonight? I think it's Ray Charles. Some think it is Bobby Darin. — H.N., Laporte, Ind.

Dear Dick: There is much controversy over who sings the new McDonald commercial, Mac Tonight. Is it Wayne Newton? — B.T., Ogdensburg, N.Y.

Dear H.N. and B.T.: Those are just two of the many letters I've gotten about the voice on that commercial. It was only a five-week promotion, although the commercial was so popular it may be brought back. But neither the McDonald people nor their advertising agency will say whose voice it was. They did tell me, however, that it is nobody well-known. (And it can't be Darin; he died in December 1973). I will keep digging — and if I find out, I'll let you know.

Dear Dick: Please settle a bet for me. On "Switched," Darrin was two different names — Dick York and Dick Sargent. I say he just changed his name, but my mom says one died. Who is right? — Unsigned, Katy, Texas.

Dear Unsigned: Both wrong, but your mom is closer. Dick York was the original Darrin, but was replaced by Dick Sargent. Two different men. But York didn't die, he was just replaced.

Dear Dick: What became of William Hopper, who played Paul Drake on the old Perry Mason show? He's not in the remake movie. Is he the father of the man who plays his son on those remakes? — M.L.A., Pocatello, Idaho.

Dear M.L.A.: Hopper died in 1968. No, he's not William Katt's father. Barbara Hak, though, is Katt's real mother.

Dear Dick: When I was a kid, my favorite silent Western movie star was Art Acord. Besides features, he also made a serial about Buffalo Bill. What was the title of that serial? — P.P., Kings Junction, Ohio.

Dear P.P.: That was a rip-offter called "In the Days of Buffalo Bill," and it first hit the trail in 1921.

Dear Dick: Is Dick Blecher (Grady in "Doogie") a brother of the late Dan Blecher (Boss in "Bonanza")? — B.C., Williamsport, Pa.

Dear B.C.: No, Dick is Dan's son.

Dear Dick: Tell me about Linda Darnell. Did she die? Also, can you tell me something about Veloz and Yolanda? They were dancers. — F.N.J., Fort St. Lucie, Fla.

Dear F.N.J.: Linda Darnell did die, tragically, in a fire in 1965. Veloz and Yolanda, probably the greatest ballroom dance team around, have long since retired. You might be interested to know that their daughter, Yolanda, is married to Bernie Koppell, who played the purser on "The Love Boat" for so long. She is also a fine tennis player.

When In Rome

Oxenberg Is On 'Holiday'

By Frank Sanello
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — On Dec. 28, Catherine Oxenberg will answer the question: Is there life after "Dynasty"?

On that date, the actress stars in "Roman Holiday," a remake of the classic 1953 film that starred Gregory Peck and won a newcomer named Audrey Hepburn an Academy Award for Best Actress.

In the NBC made-for-TV movie, Oxenberg plays a princess who falls in love with an American reporter (Tom Conti) and must decide between him and her royal duties.

When Oxenberg left "Dynasty" two years ago, she was already famous as Amanda Carrington, the spoiled daughter of Alexis (Joan Collins) and Blake Carrington (John Forsythe). During Oxenberg's first year on the series, the main plot revolved around plans to marry her off to a prince from the mythical kingdom of Moldavia.

Oxenber left after her second year on the show because her role had shrunk dramatically after the on-screen wedding. Besides "Dynasty," Oxenberg had only one acting credit: playing Princess Diana in a 1983 TV movie about the royal marriage. Friends as well as detractors called her departure crazy.

"I didn't have any way of expressing any talent within the confines of the role, so I knew in the long run it would be detrimental to my career," says Oxenberg of her "Dynasty" days. "I decided not to go for the instant gratification and the immediate financial security."

"I was really willing to let go of everything, even if it meant this house and all the other material things I managed to accumulate to ensure the longevity of my career," she continues, sitting in the living room of her spacious home, which she did manage to hold on to despite the loss of a hefty "Dynasty" salary.

For the next two post-"Dynasty" years, Oxenberg took intensive acting classes, 20 hours a week, with Joanne Baron. The legendary drama coach also seemed to function as a guru for the young actress.

"Joanne taught me to believe in myself, to trust my instincts, and to have the courage to wear my heart on my sleeve and be vulnerable in a performance," Oxenberg says. "My acting ability has made a quantum improvement."

The 26-year-old native New Yorker says there's a natural radiance to her performance in "Roman Holiday" — a glow, she adds, you won't find on any of her old "Dynasty" episodes. In fact, Oxenberg confesses, "I'm my own worst critic. I cringed when I watched myself on 'Dynasty.'"

To date, all of Oxenberg's acting roles have involved playing princesses — by birth or marriage. It's a natural case of typecasting. Oxenberg's upper-class British accent, developed at boarding schools in England, belies a background of genuine royal blood.

Oxenber is a direct descendant of Serbian kings. Her mother, Princess Elizabeth of Yugoslavia, fled when the Nazis invaded her country during World War II. Oxenberg's father is Jewish and a millionaire dress manufacturer. Her parents are divorced, and her mother recently married the former prime minister of Peru, a man she had had an unconsummated love affair with from the time she was pregnant with Catherine.

"It's a fairy tale," Oxenberg says. "It would make a good movie. My mother wasn't allowed to go back to Yugoslavia because of her royal birth until just this year. She used my stepfather's diplomatic passport. The final scene of the movie could be her returning to the palace where she grew up."

Oxenber would have been a Harvard graduate, but the university refused to let her continue her budding modeling career, insisting she devote herself full time to academic life. So, she put college on hold, planning to work for a year and then return to school with a big bankroll for tuition. But her modeling, including a huge spread in Vogue magazine, was so successful that Oxenberg never resumed her formal education.

The actress has formed her own production company, and has the financing to produce a starring vehicle for herself about an eccentric young woman who is wrongly placed in a mental institution.

But so far, she doesn't have financing for her dream project.

"I saw 'Dr. Zhivago' just the other night on TV, and I loved it. It's a real tear-jerker. I'd love to do a remake as a U.S.-Soviet co-production."

Oxenber swears the thought of playing Lara, the Julie Christie role in the 1965 film, never occurred to her.

"If you think I look remotely like Julie Christie, especially today, after I've been working around the house and look like a scuzz bag, well, I'm very flattered because I think she's ravishing."

The same could be said about Catherine Oxenberg.

injured during one performance. In the end, she hurled the abuser into a fireplace. She was ugly. Her career soared.

Now comes NBC's "Poor Little Rich Girl: The Barbara Hutton Story," airing Monday, Nov. 16, 8-11 p.m., and Tuesday, Nov. 17, 8-11 p.m. (EST) and once again, Fawcett turns up the ugly meter.

She starts off pretty enough, playing the lovely heiress at age 18, but by the end of the two-day five-hour mini, Fawcett is 64 years old, shriveled and lined, and big-time ugly.

But this time it's more than just gobs of makeup, a swollen face, and a mass of bruises that ruin her looks. She also plays a shrew, a loveless woman who had all the money in the world, but blew it on parties, shopping sprees and men. We're supposed to feel sorry for her because at one time she was rich and then she was a poor little whining wench.

Again, it's an ugly role, one only a beautiful actress like Fawcett could pull off. Why is it that beautiful actresses have to get ugly because of the belief that the viewing public and viewing critics will take them more seriously?

"What I wanted to say about this one," Fawcett told TV critics in Los Angeles, "is that, yes, I do get knocked around a little, and yes, I do get raped just once, but I looked good."

"That's the thing! I look better while I'm going through these situations."

Trouble is, there should be more to five hours of television than one actress looking good some of the time.
