By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

As the days of summer wane more and more children bored with neighborhood play are seeking out playground activities at nearby elementary

Innocent as this may sound it can lead to trouble. Children can play at the school playgrounds where the county has provided facilities oasketball courts, tennis courts, ball fields etc but the youngsters run the risk of being arrested for respassing if they are found near the school

And the school buildings need not be posted to make a trespassing charge stick.

Although school board members contacted pleaded gnorance of the trespassing enforcement policy except where school properties are fenced, School Supt. W. P. (Bud) Layer admits certain school principals are filing police complaints under the trespass law.

Layer said the idea is to reduce vandalism and the school property need not be fenced or posted to make the charge stick. "That's the state law." Layer said.

Through use of the trespassing law and a concerted effort to convince students that the classrooms and buildings are actually their property, the county has suffered comparatively minor losses to vandalism in the past year - $15,990.12, a dramatic decrease from previous

Four Longwood elementary students - eight to 12 years old - learned the meaning of the trespassing law the hard way in recent weeks. Taking a short cut through the school corridor to the playground, three of the boys watched another office and break some branches. A Longwood police office alerted by a school arrested the quartet, took them via police car to climb a tree in front of the school administration

The three observors were first charged with trespassing and the tree climber with destruction of public property, a felony, he said. After meeting with the upset parents, the officer dropped the trespassing charges, noting, however, the three youngsters "who should have gone home rather than watch" could be called as witnesses against their friend. He added that a record of the three trespassers' violation would be kept at police headquarters and used if any of them ever got in trouble again. The fourth boy's case would be sent to the Division of Youth Services and the state attorney's office for prosecution, the policeman said.

The officer said Principal Arletta Coberly left standing orders to arrest children found near the school buildings and sent warning notices home with students the last week of school. None of the four sets of parents received the notices, they

Mrs. Coberly said it was her understanding that the Longwood police would use city law to prosecute those found at the school building and that the idea was to stop vandalism - the breaking of windows

Bob Ritz, of the state Division of Youth Services Sanford office, said the state attorney's office can subpoena the boys as witnesses if it is necessary for the trial. "Any time a child violates a law, it is a delinquent offense and sent to the state attorney's office," he said.

"A mug shot, fingerprints and a 'rap' sheet (document listing charges and convictions) of a juvenile charged with a felony must be sent to the FBI," Ritz said. He added, however, that the incident where tree limbs were broken appears an unlikely felony charge.

Asked if the record of a trespassing or other minor charge against a juvenile could come back to haunt the youth in later life, Ritz said honestly he did not know. "These records are supposed to be confidential," he said, "and labeled for information only."

County Commission Chairman John Kimbrough "very much concerned" over the arrests, said he will be communicating with the School Board "to determine if in fact the playground facilities are open to the public."

Lake Mary's Future Remains Clouded

Well, Lake Mary has spoken but just what it is that Lake Mary had to say isn't altogether clear. There obviously exists a very sizeable number of residents of the city who aren't all that happy about the 20th Century, at least insofar as it touches upon their homes and their lifestyles.

On the other hand stands poised a sizeable number of voters who apparently fail to see a great deal of merit in dirt streets and a somewhat limited

The argument was both emotional and basic. A great many of the people of Lake Mary are in Lake Mary precisely because they 'have had it' with city life, and the prospect of traffic congestion, high rise buildings and the increased demand for services has all the allure of a recurring nightmare. On the other hand, there are those who, looking down the road, see a future where the tax burden will become an increasingly difficult burden for a relatively few homeowners.

The trouble is that elections are supposed to settle things and this one settled absolutely nothing. Those who favor reverting back to an unincorporated status can point to their majority victory. Those who favored retaining the city charter can point to their success in blocking their opponents from gathering the two-thirds vote needed to reject the charter.

So the argument is, in effect, back at square

RAY CROMLEY High Court Pushover

WASHINGTON - (NEA) - Chief Justice Warren Burger has used the Watergate tape decision to nail down firmly a new and expanded role for the Supreme Court. It is that the judiciary, not the President, is the final arbiter of a claim of executive privilege.

This could have wide effects on what a President, any President, orders his aides to withhold in testimony before Congress.

Though it does, in a quite narrow sense, open the President's files when crucial for the prosecution or defense in criminal trials where national security would not be specifically compromised, not too much should be made of this point. The issue is not likely to come up

The decision indirectly strengthens the position of Congress versus the Presidency. It vitally strengthens the power and influence of the Supreme Court - and gives the justices and Burger an opportunity to enhance the Court's There is a history to this decision. Burger is an admirer of that great Chief Justice John Marshall who did much in his day to establish the prestige of the Court. Burger has spent considerable time studying the techniques Marshall used to achieve this end against the brilliant opposition of President Thomas Jefferson, who

Despite Jefferson's strong attacks, and his popularity, Marshall and the Supreme Court prevailed to become firmly established as interpreter of the Constitution,

Burger believes this came as no accident. He is convinced Marshall looked for a case which could be used to stake out a powerful jurisdiction for the Court, then considered by many as inherently too weak to be of much consequence.

Burger has made it clear that he believes Marshall did the Court and the nation a great service by grasping opportunity by the forelock and using a single case (Marbury v Madison) as a vehicle for curtailing the powers of Congress or the President, as one or the other seemed to get

If this interpretation of Burger's objectives is correct, it is quite possible we shall see in the future one or another Court decision aimed at preventing future Presidents from using agencies of the government - such as the Central Intelligence Agency, the Internal Revenue Service and the Federal Bureau of Investigation - in ways which smack of partisan politics or personal advantage.

DEAR ABBY Get Answers On Indecent Exposer

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I recently heard that the boy I have been going steady with for about two months has been arrested several times for indecent exposure. He's on probation now. He is a very shy and gentle person and I can't imagine him doing anything like that, but the person who told me is an old friend of his who said he thought I should know for my own good. Now I wonder what I should do. Is this fellow dangerous? Do you think he might attack me sexually? Will he outgrow it? I am the first girl he has ever dated. Should I let him know that I know? Should I quit seeing him even though I like him a lot?

I am 19 and he is 20. DEAR SCARED: Tell him what you've heard and ask him if it's true. If he denies it and you still have doubts, all arrests are a matter of public record and can be easily checked out. If he admits it, ask him if he's had treatment. (Exhibitionism is an illness as well as a crime.) If he says he's had treatment, ask to talk to his therapist. If he says he hasn't, tell him you won't date him unless he goes for treatment. Don't continue seeing him unless you have all the answers. DEAR ABBY: My brother is always too busy (or too lazy) to shop for gifts, so when Mother's Day or Father's Day approaches, he says: "Buy something, and put my name on the card, and I'll Well, I do, but "later" always turns out to be "never." This has happened so many times it's not even funny. What should I say next time this deadbeat asks me to put his name on the card? DEAR SIS: Why look for a fancy way to convey a plain message? Say: "No!" DEAR ABBY: I am a newly wed woman, 28, and employed but my husband and I are saving for a home so I'm not able to spend much on clothes. I have an aunt who has a lot of money and nobody to spend it on but herself. She buys clothes like they are going out of style. (That's funny!) Anyway, three years ago Aunt Ruth gave me four dresses and three pairs of shoes, which I am still wearing. The problem: Aunt Ruth has called me about a dozen times since, and asked me to come over to try on some things because she is cleaning her closets. I drive over (and it's no short drive) and try on stuff for hours, but she doesn't give me anything. She looks at me in her clothes, and says: "I'd better hang on to that-I may wear it again." And into the closet it goes! After being invited over to "try things on," I've gone home empty-handed time after time, and I am hurt. She doesn't owe me anything, but why does she do this? And what should I do about it?

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: She does it because, after seeing her wearing apparel on you, she has a change of heart. Tell her that you will gladly come over to pick up anything she wants to give away. But not to call until AFTER she has made the
