NBC leads Nielsen ratings

LOS ANGELES — NBC is back on top in the ratings, claiming four of the top 10 shows and 10 of the top 20 last week.

CBS' "60 Minutes" was the most-watched program, but NBC's "Cheers" and "L.A. Law" were second and third, the A.C. Nielsen Co. reported Tuesday.

NBC got a 13 rating, ABC a 12.4 and CBS an 11.5, the A.C. Nielsen Co. reported Tuesday. Each ratings point represents 931,000 households.

The usually first-place NBC lost the ratings battle the previous week to ABC, which had a Barbara Walters interview with Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf.

During the latest ratings period, NBC also got a boost from such programs as "In the Heat of the Night," "A Different World," "The Cosby Show," "Golden Girls," "Empty Nest," "Unsolved Mysteries" and "Matlock."

The "L.A. Law" episode garnered its highest finish ever. Corporate shark Rosalind Shays fell to her death down an elevator shaft in the episode.

Mayor charged with fraud

EATONVILLE — The mayor of this historic black town just north of Orlando was handcuffed and taken to jail on charges of fraudulently obtaining absentee votes in a town election earlier this month.

Mayor Ada Sims and four supporters turned themselves in Tuesday at the Orange County Jail. She was later released on bond.

The Orange-Osceola State Attorney's Office charged Ms. Sims, 56, with signing an absentee ballot as a witness without actually seeing the voter sign it.

The election fraud allegations come at a time when Eatonville, one of the oldest incorporated black towns in the country, faces a host of other serious problems. The town of about 3,000 residents suffers from a stagnant economy, an aging utility system and a growing illegal drug trade.

Pregnant woman irks waitresses

SEATTLE — Two cocktail servers fired by a restaurant chain for trying to talk a pregnant woman out of having a strawberry daiquiri say they want the state to bar restaurants from serving alcohol to pregnant women.

Danita Fitch, 21, and G.R. Heryford, 22, were fired from a Red Robin restaurant in suburban Tukwila when they tried to stop a patron Heryford described as "very pregnant" from having a drink on March 13.

'No' to incinerator

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The controversial proposal to build a medical waste incinerator west of here, near the town of Lake Monroe, was defeated Tuesday night by a four-to-one vote of the Seminole County Commission.

But, a proposal for a tire burning plant nearby was held for future discussion.

The decisions came in a three-plus-hour public hearing in a commission chamber packed mostly with opponents of the proposed incinerator who booed and applauded over the repeated objections of Commission chairman Fred Streetman.

The developer of the proposed incinerator, Sid Vihlen, spent the first hour of the meeting speaking on the benefits of having the plant located in the area and the size of the operation. He told the commissioners that the restrictions and requirements from a number of state and federal agencies will be adhered to at all times. "The overall plan as presented is compatible with zoning on the property, and the master plan previously approved."

In addition to helping dispose of medical waste products which he reported were growing to large proportions, he said he expected the incinerator operation would be of great financial benefit to the area. "We expect to be paying an annual salary of $1,625,000, and would help the Seminole County's finances with a tax base that would be $9 million annually.

Vihlen also tried to ease the fears of some residents near the site. "There's been concern about traffic," he said, "but we estimate the number of trucks coming in per day would not exceed 20." He also commented, "Ash from the plant would amount to only 2,000 pounds per day."

Vihlen concluded his opening remarks on the waste disposal plant by telling the gathering, "I look at this as offering a solution to Seminole County, for a problem none of us see at the

Goldsboro in line for year round calendar

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — During Tuesday night's school board meeting, Goldsboro Elementary School, 1301 W. 20th St. in Sanford, was approved as a candidate school for moving to the year round calendar during the 1992-93 school year.

Eastbrook Elementary School in Winter Park and Spring Lake Elementary School in Altamonte Springs were also recommended.

"I don't see the logic that was used in choosing these schools," Nancy Warren, the board's vice chairman said prior to the vote. "These three schools are at opposite ends of the county."

Warren cited problems with transportation as well as the lack of continuity with area schools making the transition to the modified school calendar.

Since Lawton Elementary School in Oviedo will become the first demonstration school for the year round program in Seminole County and nearby Jackson Heights Middle School has been studying their options in making such a move, Warren felt it would only be logical that the other feeder

Homestead tax changes underway

SANFORD — A legislative proposal to impose property taxes on lower valued homes could bring $80,000 or more to Sanford coffers, the city's finance director said.

"Even a one percent increase would help," said Carolyn Small. "Every little bit helps."

The proposals would allow local governments — cities and counties — to impose property taxes on half of a home valued up to $50,000, then tax the full value of valued above $50,000. The change means many homeowners would have to pay taxes for the first time.

The House Finance and Taxation General Government Subcommittee unanimously agreed to an amended version (CS-HJR 355) that conforms closely to the Senate measure (CS-SJR 198). The proposal next goes to the full committee.

The Senate Finance, Taxation and Claims Committee also unanimously approved its version, sending the amendment to the chamber's Community Affairs Committee for another hearing.

Both versions would raise millions of dollars for local government, but another proposed constitutional amendment, approved 7-1 by the Senate panel, would reduce revenues by limiting increases in assessed home values.

-Bill Suber, tax appraiser

Both proposals contain what is known as a "circuit breaker" that would give partial refunds to the poorest homeowners if their tax exceeds a certain percentage of income.

Senate staffers said the 50-50 amendment would increase local government revenues an average of 1.9 percent while the assessment limit would cut revenues by 2.6 percent, assuming a 3 percent cap.

Small said Sanford would also see a 1.9 percent increase in revenues from the 50-50 rule, generating about $81,000 in additional taxes, based on last year's assessments.

Floridians amended the state Constitution in 1980 to increase the homestead exemption from $5,000 to $25,000. The bigger exemption cut revenues for local government, particularly in rural areas. In some counties, more than half of all homes were removed from tax rolls.

At the urging of cities and counties, the Legislature proposed a constitutional amendment in 1986 to restore some revenue by exempting the first $5,000 of a home's value and half of the next $40,000. Voters defeated it.

The measures advancing in both chambers this year are similar to the defeated proposal. They would exempt half of the value of homes worth $50,000 or less with a "circuit breaker" to prevent excessive taxation of the poorest homeowners.

The latter measure doesn't specify what the assessment limit would be. That would be decided by the Legislature only if voters adopt the amendment.

The assessment limit is similar to a proposal that a group called Save Our Homes is trying to get on the ballot by petition. Sen. Howard Forman, D-Hollywood, voted against the assessment limit, noting the impact on local governments would be severe if voters adopted it.

City approves new lighting for ball field

Sanford system to be installed and operating within four weeks

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Now that the city Commission has approved his request, Jim Jerrigan, the city's Director of Parks, says within four weeks there will be a new lighting system installed and operating at Fort Mellon Little League field.

The storm that occurred Sunday March 17 caused excessive damage to the field lighting system. It blew over two poles on the infield and caused damage to a third pole in the outfield, which ended up in the upright position but supported only by the electrical wires from the other poles.

Jerrigan said the poles at the field have been in use for over 25 years and he believed they should be replaced rather than have a patch job done on those that have been damaged.

In making his proposal to the city, he supplied the Commission with five separate alternatives, from expensive replacement of the entire system with concrete poles to a small but low cost patch-up job for damaged poles. He recommended that the entire system be replaced but by using metal poles which would be less expensive than concrete, plus underground wiring and metal halide fixtures. City Manager Bill Simmons agreed saying, "If we don't, we should get it done right."

long period of time.

The total system replacement will be done for a cost of $23,000. $7,500 is already being held for such a project in the reserves. While the cost of simple repairs would have been less than half that amount, Jerrigan said the new lighting would be much more economic. "We would actually get one day out of every four we're currently using with the lower power cost from what we have proposed," he said.

The Commission gave its consent in favor of the project. Jerrigan said Museo Lighting Company of Volusia County will be handling the work.

Jouster injured during exhibition

LARGO — A renaissance festival fantasy became all too real for a jouster who was critically injured when he was struck in the eye with part of his opponent's lance.

Lance Murray, 24, who played Sir Edward, was injured Sunday at the Bay Area Renaissance Festival when he and another armor-clad jouster made their first run at each other on horseback during a re-creation of a 16th century-style match.

He remained in critical condition Tuesday at Bayfront Medical Center in St. Petersburg.

"From what I hear from the doctor, he was very fortunate," said festival entertainment director Scott Auld. "Apparently, he won't lose his eye. He'll just have a nice dueling scar to remember the accident by."

Mother pleads guilty to abuse charges

FORT LAUDERDALE — A mother who rubbed feces in her child's ears, eyes and nose has pleaded guilty to two counts of aggravated child abuse.

"It's disgusting," prosecutor Lee Jay Seidman said Monday as he described the case to Broward Circuit Judge Barry Goldstein.

He ordered Linda Rosenthal, 34, of Fort Lauderdale to stay away from her 3-year-old daughter and all other children. He also sentenced her to 18 months house arrest, counseling and five years probation.

Ms. Rosenthal sat quietly in court, her lips pursed. She was arrested Nov. 1 after a friend called police and reported she found Ms. Rosenthal's daughter sitting in the bathtub, her face covered with feces.

"It was in her eyes, hair, face, it was dripping down her body," the police report said. "She was dazed."

Ms. Rosenthal admitted covering her daughter's face with the toddler's excrement on two occasions. Both times the mother said she did so after her daughter soiled her pants.

Dimond wins control of 46,000 lawyers

MIAMI — Miami trial lawyer Alan Dimond won the Florida Bar's costliest election ever, narrowly defeating Fort Lauderdale lawyer Terrence Russell for leadership of the state's 46,000 lawyers.

Dimond and Russell together spent more than a quarter of a million dollars during the yearlong campaign. Dimond won the presidency by only 256 votes of the more than 20,000 votes cast, the Bar announced Monday.

Russell carried 16 of Florida's 20 judicial circuits, but Dimond rode to victory on ballots cast by lawyers in Dade, Monroe, Pinellas and Orange counties and from out of state.

The race pitted partners in two of South Florida's most powerful law firms. Dimond has been partner in Greenberg Traurig Hoffman Lipoff Rosen & Quentel of Miami since 1975. Russell is a partner in Ruden Barnett McClosky Smith Schuster & Russell of Fort Lauderdale.

Prosecutors call in experts

WEST PALM BEACH — Prosecutors are expected to call an outside medical expert to testify that a man who died from blows during a struggle with two police officers suffered from a congenital heart defect that may have contributed to his death.

An autopsy by the Palm Beach County medical examiner's office concluded the death was a homicide caused by blunt trauma to the neck and chest.

Robert Jewett, 34, died Nov. 24 during a sidewalk confrontation with West Palm Beach undercover officers Stephen Rollins and Glen Thurlow. Neither officer was hurt.

Jewett's injuries included a broken bone in the neck, nine broken ribs on the left side and ruptured testicles, according to the autopsy report. Dr. James Benz said he didn't think there were other contributing factors.

But in an unusual step, the state attorney's office asked other doctors to review Jewett's autopsy.

Dr. Ronald Wright, the Broward County medical examiner, is expected to describe a congenital defect in Jewett's heart — one he never knew he had. Wright will raise the possibility that the defect contributed to his death, chief assistant attorney Ken Selvig said.

Hate crime case filed in Broward County

FORT LAUDERDALE — A state law against hate crimes has been used in Broward County for the first time in charging a white motorist who police say spewed racial slurs at a black officer during a traffic stop.

The case filed Monday under the state's 1989 Hate Crimes Act could mean a sentence five times more harsh for John Izzo if he is convicted of assault and battery against a police officer.

Izzo was accused of hitting policeman Robert Winston and using racial epithets at least twice after being pulled over for running a stop sign March 13.

Broward Assistant State Attorney Jeff Driscoll charged the slurs were racially motivated, which allows for stiffer penalties under the 1989 law.

Mom free in rapist's killing

Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD — A mother who killed a man by throwing him against a coffee table said she was trying to defend her 9-year-old daughter from rape.

The Broward Attorney's Office agrees and has decided not to press charges against the woman for apparently killing Richard Tiger, 53. Officials said the woman's name would not be made public to protect identity of the girl.

Broward Assistant State Attorney Peter LaPorte, who investigated the January encounter on the Hollywood Seminole Reservation, said the mother was trying to protect her daughter.

The injuries appear to be the result of the mother's effort to come to the aid of her daughter and that would be justifiable homicide.

—Peter LaPorte, prosecutor

"The injuries appear to be the result of the mother's effort to come to the aid of her daughter and that would be justifiable homicide," LaPorte said.

According to the prosecutor's report, the woman left her daughter alone on Jan. 8 in their trailer on the reservation while she went to a convenience store. When she returned home, she found Tiger on top of her daughter on the living room couch.

The child was screaming for help, the mother told police.

The mother, who weighs about 185 pounds, pounded on Tiger's back, then picked the ailing man up and threw him down, when he hit a coffee table.

Tiger zipped up his pants, stumbled out of the trailer, and began running, slowly, through a field near the trailer, the mother told police.

One of the woman's two brothers caught up with Tiger and beat him up. The second brother arrived and then held their niece's alleged assailant until police arrived.

St. Pete voters elect new mayor

ST. PETERSBURG — David Fischer, 57, a retired financial advisor, won 54.1 percent of the vote Tuesday to defeat former state Rep. Dennis McDonald in this city's mayoral race.

With 100 percent of the precincts reporting, Fischer claimed 24,932 votes to 20,497, or 44.5 percent for McDonald, a 52-year-old real estate agent fought a losing battle to unseat former Mayor Bob Ulrich two years ago.

St. Petersburg voters also overwhelmingly rejected a one-time tax for a veteran's monument, with 74.6 percent of the voters against the idea. And in other votes, Paul Yingst, Connie Kone, Robert Stewart and Ernest Fillyau were elected to the city council.

Both Fischer and McDonald promised tax relief, pursuit of major league baseball and restraint on redevelopment funds. But they differed greatly in their approach.

Father gets 10 years for molestation

By Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — A father was sentenced to 10 years in prison for sexually assaulting his 12-year-old daughter, despite a letter the girl wrote asking the judge to send her dad back home.

"People might say I am wrong for forgiving him, but he is my father and I love him," she wrote. "I love my dad very much and I could barely (sic) live without him."

The letter caused Judge Thomas Sholtis "some sleepless nights," he said Monday, as he sentenced her father to the prison term followed by five years' probation on four counts of sexual activity with a child.

"She writes me these pathetic letters," he said. "I have no doubt she loves her father. This is one of the most difficult things I've ever had to deal with."

Poll: Services tax preferred alternative in revenue search

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Although Florida State University researchers have learned that support for a services tax has reached an all-time high in the state, most citizens and politicians remain opposed to any new tax.

The Florida State poll of 914 adults showed 38 percent preferred the services tax if an increase was required.

Only 29 percent favored an increase in the state's 6 percent sales tax, and support for boosting property and gasoline taxes also dropped off.

A personal income tax, now constitutionally banned in the state, was supported by only 14 percent of the respondents — a decline of 5 percent in the last two years.

"Actually, we see a lot of indication that people have reacted to the tax increases of the last year or so," said Florida State researcher Suzanne L. Parker.

The research indicated one-fifth of the respondents supported tax cuts, even if it meant reduced services to their community.

Meaningful tax reform includes increasing taxes in some areas, adjusting and eliminating in areas that are onerous.

—Sen. Bud Gardner

But Parker said the numbers suggest it might be a good time for politicians to look at building support for a services tax.

"That would be a place I'd start to build it," she said.

But Senate Appropriations Chairman Winston "Bud" Gardner, D-Titusville, isn't sure the climate is right to seriously talk about increasing taxes.

"It's still going to take the leadership of the executive officer of the state of Florida getting out in front ... to do a meaningful tax reform," he said, "and that includes not only increasing taxes in some areas, but adjusting taxes and eliminating some in areas that are onerous."

Gov. Lawton Chiles doesn't want to discuss new taxes until Florida's citizens are confident their government is doing the best job it can with the dollars it now has in spend.

His predecessor, Republican Bob Martinez, and the Legislature passed a services tax four years ago, but later rescinded it after strong lobbying pressure from special interest groups hit by the levy. Many of the politicians identified with the tax, including Martinez, were defeated in re-election bids.

The measure would have extended Florida's 5 percent sales tax on a host of previously untaxed services such as lawn care, pest control, architect, engineering and attorneys' fees in addition to advertising.

"The furor has died down," said Gardner. "The viability of that issue is much less now than back then."

After the 1987 services tax fiasco, Florida's sales tax was increased from 5 percent to 6 percent, and scores of fees have been created or increased to boost state revenue.

Meanwhile, Chiles himself fared well with those surveyed by Florida State.

Schools board bows to business

By VICKI DeSOMMER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The school board of Seminole County, bowing under pressure from the business community, agreed on Tuesday night to change the composition of the strategic planning committee that will help the district run itself more like a business.

Dick Van Der Weide, representing the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, the Longwood-Winter Springs Chamber of Commerce and the Greater Oviedo Chamber of Commerce, asked that the board include fewer district employees and more community members on the committee.

"There is the perception, at least, that the views of the committee will be skewed to the point of view of one man (Supt. Robert Hughes)," he said.

In response, the board agreed to enlarge the strategic planning committee from 25 to 30 members by adding five members from the community at large.

According to previous procedures, the members would have been chosen by Hughes and school board chairman Joe Williams.

Under the new procedures approved by the board, 15 of the members, those from the community, would be nominated by the school board members. The names would be chosen from volunteers who have sent in their resumes.

So far, 107 people have volunteered. Because the number of community members on the committee has changed, the deadline for volunteers to submit their resumes to the district has been moved back a week to April 5.

The makeup of district representation will remain the same.

Despite the concessions made to the business community, Williams pointed out that the plan is, first and foremost, a school district plan.

Sanford cop pleads, resigns from force

SANFORD — Joseph D. Lebbano, Jr., a Sanford police officer accused of false imprisonment and battery, pleaded no contest to those charges and resigned from law enforcement on Tuesday.

Lebbano, 31, was accused of taking a woman on whom he had made a traffic stop to her house, following her inside and grabbing her.

The 18-year-old woman who made the accusations against Lebbano said that she and Lebbano had returned to her home in his patrol car so that she could retrieve her drivers license to complete the traffic investigation.

She pressed charges with the department immediately following the Nov. 2 incident.

As far as the department is concerned, Harriett said, Lebbano's resignation brought the incident to a close.

"I think this resolves this issue as far as we're concerned," said Steve Harriett, Sanford's police chief.

Harriett said that Lebbano has been on suspension with pay since the incident was reported in November.

The Sanford Police Department had been conducting an internal investigation into the situation, but Harriett said that the department's dealings with the case are now over.

"I think we've resolved this situation and we can get on with the job of law enforcement in Sanford," Harriett said.

According to Harriett, Lebbano's attorney had advised his client to plead no contest rather than face a long trial.

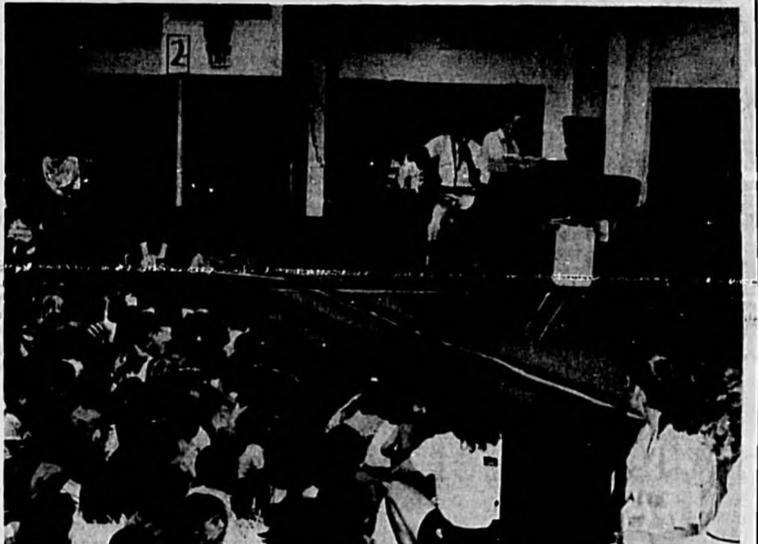

"I think this was a successful conclusion to this particular situation," Harriett noted.

Lebbano will be sentenced for his crime on Tuesday, May 7.

All that jazz

Noble "Thin Man" Watts (center, wearing the hat) was among the musicians who came to Idyllwild Elementary School, 430 Vilhan Rd. in Sanford, to teach the youngsters about jazz. Thin Man, who has played his saxophone with stars such as Jerry Lee Lewis, Fats Domino and Lionel Hampton, entertained the youngsters with his cool jazz sounds. He was joined by vocalist Jacqueline Jones, who was voted the best entertainer in Central Florida for 1989-90; pianist Michael Kramer and guitarist Rich Zelon.

Space station facility now being built

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA broke ground Tuesday for a processing facility for the proposed space station Freedom, an orbiting laboratory that the agency hopes to start building in less than five years.

NASA publicly unveiled its plans for a smaller, cheaper station last week.

"There are a lot of people who thought we weren't going to make it to this ceremony today, and I'm glad that we're here," station director Richard Kohrs said at an outdoor ceremony.

"It would be hard to overestimate this. This is real," said William Lenoir, head of NASA's space flight program.

The $56 million space station processing facility is the largest construction project undertaken at Kennedy Space Center since the Apollo era. About 1,000 people will work at the three-story structure, where the space station will be assembled before being carried into orbit by the shuttle.

NASA is aiming for late 1995 for the first assembly flight. The agency wants the laboratory up by early 1997 to astronauts can work at the station for brief periods.

Lenoir said a crew of four will permanently inhabit the station by the turn of the century. More modules will be added as time goes on.

Natural wonder

Florida and the federal government are jointly launching a $700 million effort to restore the vitality of the Everglades National park by undoing the adverse effects of more than a century of heedless economic development.

Saving this vast water environment, one of the greatest natural wonders on Earth, is certainly worthwhile in its own right.

In essence, the 10-year project involves rebuilding much of the 60-mile-wide river that once spilled out of Lake Okechobee, flowing south across the lower Florida Peninsula in a vast sheet of shallow water that moved at the ponderous rate of about 100 miles a year. Homes and farms have long since encroached upon many parts of that drainage basin, and they won't be torn down. But unless the area's plumbing can be rearranged to restore many of those freshwater flows, the park will die.

The lessons learned in the project should have applications for other troubled waterways around the country, including the Great Lakes, Long Island Sound, Chesapeake Bay and the lower Mississippi River. But it's in California that the parallels to Florida seem most acute.

To cleanse the polluted wastewater that currently drains into the Everglades, park officials plan to reconstruct thousands of acres of experimental marshlands, which will in turn provide habitat for many species displaced by the spread of urbanization.

Restoring those historic flows in Florida will require the Army Corps of Engineers to fill in hundreds of miles of canals dug by earlier, less enlightened federal engineers, and redirect their flows to be less destructive.

Perhaps most important, solving the problems of the Everglades means finding alternative means for treating and disposing of the poisonous agricultural wastes that drain from the big farms around Lake Okechobee that produce up to half of the winter vegetables in the United States every year.

Economics is not enough

Energy Secretary James Watkins says the difference between Bush energy policy and Carter energy policy is that Bush's is based on good scientific and economic analysis and Carter's wasn't. Watkins also says Bush policy is based on free-market principles.

Watkins had better be right. If he isn't, and it turns out that Bush policy is really based on the principle of what's good for General Motors is good for the country, then we're headed for worse energy problems than we have. Free-market principles need to guide energy policy far more than they did under Carter, but if they are the only principles used, there will be no energy policy at all.

Watkins admitted recently that the Energy Department didn't get everything it wanted. Analysts noticed that the package that emerged from White House meetings in February put less emphasis on conservation and alternative energy sources than on finding more oil, for example by drilling off California's central coastline. Watkins denied, however, his program was gutted.

The White House meetings were stacked on the economics side. They included Chief of Staff John Sununu, Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, Budget Director Richard Darman and Economic Adviser Michael Boskin.

"This is a tough group and they were right to be tough," said Watkins. "They insisted that we had to have sound economic analyses."

Obviously, an energy policy needs to be based on sound economic analysis. The business of America, as Cal Coolidge said, is business. And, yes, the nation did panic during the Carter years (years of severe oil shortage) and throw money at chimerical, non-economic schemes like oil shale and synthetic fuels.

But economics alone would not have produced the Clean Air Act or achieved higher fuel standards for American automobiles. Public investment is needed if research is to produce an electric car that is not a toy. Economics will not solve the problems of global warming or nuclear waste.

Watkins says the policy that emerged from the White House meetings is credible. "We can get this through the Senate and maybe through the House. We will be a player in the game."

Well, maybe. But that sounds too much like sacrificing a wise energy policy to politics. Politicians are concerned about today. With his background, reputation and integrity, Watkins needs to make them think about tomorrow.

Is the Middle East ripe for peace?

There is now a certain logic to the possibility of peace in the Middle East.

If it comes, it will come because Israel (while still legitimately troubled) never had it so good.

If, say, five years ago, the events of the following five years would have been predicted by anyone, Israel would have dismissed the scenario as ridiculous. Consider:

The Soviet Union was the superpower sponsor, and military supplier, of the Arab states seeking Israel's destruction. Today, the Soviet Union is much diminished and apparently mostly out of the foreign mischief-making business.

The East European nations were pro-Arab, and some of those nations provided both military supplies and state support for anti-Israel terrorists. That's over.

There was much talk that oil was in short supply, and that prices would rise, boosting Arab political power. Today, even with Iraqi and Kuwaiti wells shut down, oil is abundant, prices are on the low side, and there is every indication that prices will stay low.

Jews from the Soviet Union have been allowed to emigrate. An estimated 185,000 have already arrived in Israel; it is believed that about a million will ultimately come. Because Israel's principal problem has always been demographic, this is good news indeed. (Israel started out in 1948 with 600,000 Jews. An estimate for 1995 shows 4.1 million.)

Iraq, the major anti-Israel threat, has been destroyed as a military power. The apocalyptic thought of an Iraq with nuclear weapons has passed, at least for the intermediate-term future.

No single Arab country was ever able to threaten Israel's destruction. Now, with Iraq out, there are not two militarily strong Arab countries that could now attack Israel with hope of success.

Because of their support for Saddam Hussein, the Palestine Liberation Organization has been publicly and financially diminished.

By not retaliating against Iraqi missile attacks, Israel's popularity soared, a serious matter for a state that needs international support.

The Soviet arms used by the Iraqis, the same arms that are in the many Arab arsenals, have been shown to be less than first-rate.

Egypt, the one Arab nation that has recognized Israel, has become the most influential in the Arab world.

The Saudis and the Kuwaitis ended up on the same side as the Israelis in the Gulf War. There is now perhaps a mild possibility that there can be some move toward an arrangement with Israel.

Of course, many problems remain. Syria remains a potent threat, with a better army and better chemical and biological weapons than Iraq had. In recent days, Israelis have been stabbed to death by Palestinians.

Israelis were frustrated, and scarred, by their de facto immobilization in the face of the Iraqi missile attacks. Israelis salute American military might and fortitude, but many remain nervous about the American diplomacy that may be coming.

There's every indication oil prices will stay low.

Some Tomahawk missiles missed

WASHINGTON — Tomahawk cruise missiles that missed their targets in the war with Iraq did so because they were pre-programmed with digital maps that showed intact buildings in Baghdad.

Once allied bombers began leveling those buildings, the maps were instantly outdated, and a few "confused" Tomahawks slammed into the wrong targets, sometimes killing civilians.

The Persian Gulf War marked the first time that the cruise missiles were used in combat. They were launched from ships and submarines in the Gulf and the Red Sea.

The first Pentagon briefing on the performance of the Tomahawks were glowing. Of the first 52 fired, 51 hit their targets. More than 300 were eventually fired at Iraq with an accuracy rate of more than 85 percent.

What the Pentagon didn't reveal was that the lack of accurate computer programs punched in by human controllers played a significant role in the misses. The programmers for the Tomahawks needed daily updates on their maps of Iraq, and during the heat of combat that was impossible.

The Tomahawks are low-flying, sub-sonic, surface-hugging missiles that can be guided to within 20 yards of a target 1,500 miles away. The 20-foot-long missile is propelled by a 7,000-pound rocket booster. The booster does its job for about 12 seconds, lifting the missile away from the ship, and then it drops off. At that point the cruise missile seems to hang in mid-air before a jet engine takes over and sends it on its way.

The missile moves along at speeds up to 550 mph and sometimes skims as low as 100 feet above the surface, following terrain maps that are programmed into its guidance system. Near the target, a Digital Scene Matching Area Correlator takes over. That is the map of the area around the target, and it includes details such as the height of surrounding buildings. The Tomahawk "looks" at what is in front of it, compares that to the pre-fired digital maps, and then strikes.

But that only works if the buildings are still there as advertised. Massive bombings of Baghdad and other cities guaranteed that many of them weren't.

Put simply, the Tomahawks got "confused." They would reach the city and look for a multi-story building — say, an air defense headquarters — that was a landmark on their digital map. Unfortunately for the Tomahawks' computers, the top floors would have already been blown off by an F-117 Stealth fighter-bomber. So the cruise would keep searching until it finally, accidentally, slammed into the wrong target.

Western correspondents in Baghdad reported with wonderment seeing the missiles fly by their upper-floor hotel rooms at eye level, make a sweeping turn and head off to some target. They also reported watching some of them slam into civilian targets.

The cruise missiles were among the first weapons used in the war. They were fired at 1:40 a.m. (Saudi time) on Jan. 17 from the USS Wisconsin. They were reserved for heavily defended buildings that would have been too dangerous for piloted aircraft to go up against.

The Navy had more than 3,000 cruise missiles before the war began and used more than 400 of them. They were purchased from General Dynamics and McDonnell Douglas for about $1.3 million each. The missiles used during the war could drop a 1,000-pound, high-explosive warhead, or a cluster of 166 "bomblets." The American ships had nuclear-armed cruise missiles on board, but did not use them.

The accuracy rate was more than 85 percent.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Motherhood and misconduct

BOSTON — Try to think of it as good news. The Minnesota Court of Appeals has just ruled that motherhood is not a form of misconduct.

This verdict, worthy of one slightly choked cheer of approval, comes courtesy of Diane McCourtney who lost her job when her baby got sick.

No, McCourtney is not some star on the Celebrity Working Mother Circuit. She's no Meredith Vieira, who asked for an extension of her part-time gig at "60 Minutes" and got a pink slip instead.

The Vieira story has all the glitzy elements of class and choice that get the editorial juices stirring. But the McCourtney story is more like that of Everywoman.

For Diane, "having it all" meant having a $250-a-week job and a $60-a-day care bill. For her infant son James, having it all meant colds, pneumonia, earaches, and pinkeye.

Diane had been a reliable clerk at Imprimis, a computer company for 11 years. But in her first four months back from maternity leave, she missed more than half her workdays.

When this mother, the sole family wage-earner, was given the ax, she accepted that. What got her was when Imprimis fought her claim for unemployment benefits. The company said and the state agreed that she "made a choice" to place her family's interests over her employer's.

Since unemployment is only supposed to help those who lose jobs through no fault of their own, she was ineligible. Taking care of a child at home was "misconduct" at work. It was her fault she lost her job.

It was her fault, to be specific, that James' day care provider couldn't take sick kids, that James' father was just recovering from back surgery and couldn't care for him, that James' grandparents were not only working but out-of-state. It was her fault that the one service around for sick kids charged twice Diane's wage and wouldn't let her interview the caregiver.

Happily, the Court of Appeals ruled in her favor. "Mccourtney's actions were motivated by a willful regard for her child's interests and not a wanton disregard of her employer's interest or lack of concern for her job."

But hold the standing ovation until you consider the modest size of this victory. This mother didn't get her job back. She merely won the right to apply for unemployment. And she won it by proving she had no choice.

Remember the safety net? It was originally hung under two tracks, one for men, one for women. The male track included unemployment benefits for a man who lost his job. The female track included welfare for a woman who lost her husband. But see how it works in the real world now.

If a mother goes to work and leaves a sick child home without care, she's culpable for child neglect. If she stays home, she may be dismissed for job neglect.

After "choosing" to quit, she still faces the "choice" of unemployment benefits or AFDC. What would have happened to Diane at the unemployment office? To get that check, you're supposed to be looking for work. If you have a sick kid and no child care, how do you prove you're in the market?

If, on the other hand, you choose AFDC, in most states, some form of workfare clicks in. Sooner or later, to get the welfare check, you'll have to get into work training. In some states, the only way to afford child care is through welfare. Go figure.

We have all these little cubbyholes marked "unemployment" and "welfare," "work" and "family." But the folder marked "life" keeps spilling all over the desk top.

The state or the employer may yet appeal McCourtney's victory to the state supreme court. They fear that any parent (read mother) with child-care problems would end up on unemployment. "Your fault" would become "our problem."

On the other hand, if it costs the state and employers to fire mothers maybe they'll work harder to keep them. Companies are already becoming more involved in child care. So, glacially, are communities. States, including Minnesota, are passing laws supporting family and medical leave. The Congress is debating a national version.

In the meantime, kids get sick and mothers get sacked. As for Everywoman McCourtney, she has something else in common with Superstar Vieira. She's pregnant again. When the twins are born, she's going to become a day care provider.

These Stories and More...but not on "60 Minutes."

In the meantime, kids get sick and mothers get sacked.

but killed the 50-50 Amendment. Seminole County Property Appraiser said he could support a tax-break provision for the elderly and the poor, but not everyone.

"I sort of favor trying to people who are rapidly reaching the situation where they can't afford to pay taxes any more," Suber said. "I support something for the elderly and poor. But something like this could tend to load up on the higher-valued homes. Three percent of a $100,000 house is a lot more than 3 percent of a $50,000 house."

The constitution already allows the Legislature to provide for circuit breaker refunds to renters, who don't get a homestead exemption yet pay taxes indirectly through their rents. Lawmakers, however, have never enacted such a law.

Repa, Keith Arnold, R-Fort Myers, and Frank Stone, R-Oviedo, moved to repeal the renter circuit breaker in the House homestead amendment, but the subcommittee defeated their proposal 7-3.

"Renters by their very nature are not ... property taxpayers," Arnold contended.

The subcommittee also approved a proposed constitutional amendment (HJR 99) and enabling legislation (HB 101) that would put new construction on property tax rolls 90 days after completion and pro-rate the tax bill for that year. Existing law doesn't put new construction on tax rolls until the Jan. 1 after it is completed.

The measures by Rep. Mary Ellen Hawkins, R-Naples, would enable local governments to collect about $100 million more per year in taxes.

present time." He continued, "If it can be proven that this is not a good establishment, I don't want anything to do with it."

Assisting Vihien was George Quail, whom he introduced as an engineer with the Youth Energy Systems, the company that would build the incinerator. He explained that Quail was substituting for Bob Graham who is head of the company but was unable to attend.

Quail told the group that a similar plant had been built by his company in Kalamazoo, Michigan, but was unable to report if there had been any problems affecting the community near the structure. As for safety he said, "I assure you we will use only trained employees at the facility."

Near the beginning of discussion from persons who opposed having the incinerator in the area, Commission Chairman Fred Streetman asked how many in the room were against the proposal. Approximately 80 percent of the audience, some of which were standing along the back, raised their hands.

of the Central Florida Zoological Society, Palmer said the society totally opposes the application for both the disposal plant and the proposed tire burning plant.

Possibly as many as 20 separate individuals were allowed to speak out against the proposal, some discussing only in waste incinerator, others adding their opposition to the tire burning facility. Local resident Jim Young was the last and quickest speaker who told the Commissioners, "Just remember one word - Whoop!"

Near the conclusion of the meeting, Vihien was allowed to rebut what has been said. "Within a quarter mile of our proposed plant, there are only 5 residences. Our trucking would pass only 12 houses, so you can't say we will be interfering with a residential area." As for noise, he said, "The Rand Yard Rail area makes more noise and pollution with smoke from trains and other factors than an industrial park would contribute."

Asked about some of the objections that included the tire plant, Vihien said, "I didn't think the tire plant was a major issue, but I found out it is. I don't have a special proposal for that. I thought it was within the recommended use."

The first speaker against the proposal was David Feldman of DeBary, a private consultant. Feldman said he was Chairman of the Volusia County Citizens Committee on Solid Waste, and that the group was totally against the plant.

Feldman addressed the matter of governmental supervision by saying, "I assure you, we are not being protected by agencies who regulate the environment. Medical waste contains many ingredients, and ash contains elements that are toxic. Eventually the ash will have to be moved away, but to where?" He said science has not come up with any method to dispose of toxic materials. "There is no way toxic ash can be eliminated and it will eventually find its way into our ground water system."

Mike Prettyman, who identified himself as the Field Manager of the Greenpeace Action Group, also commented on the chemical problem. "Our organization is deeply concerned about the destruction of our fresh water supply. There are heavy metals in the ash that will come from this plant, and there's no way we can stop it from causing problems."

Jean Metz, who said she represented 60 to 70 homeowners who live near the proposed site of the incinerator, have copies of signed petitions to the members of the Commission. Metz, who also said she was a member of the Seminole County Code Enforcement Board, said the building of the incinerator and a treshreading plant "would deter any nice businesses from ever moving into our area. It's a wonderful rural community and we just don't need that in our area or in Seminole County." She also told the Commission she objected to the zoning classification of the property as heavy industrial.

Other speakers against the incinerator included Polly Miller, representing the League of Women Voters; Clark Adams, Pastor of the First Baptist Church of Lake Monroe; Chris Love of Winter Park representing Green Action of Central Florida; Bill McLaughlin, President of the Friends of the St. Johns; and Kathleen Palmer, President Commissioner Larry Furlong asked if the incinerator was not approved, would Vihien still pursue the tire plant. Vihien answered that he would.

Mike Prettyman was called upon to sum up the opposition side. "All the history of such incinerator machines is bad. It is difficult, if not impossible to say how much will come out of the smoke stack. We do not want it here. He added, "People are worried about their health."

Commissioner Jennifer Kelley, in whose district the proposal would be located, reported she had received an additional petition against the project signed by 121 people in the area. "What I would like to do is tour some of the places where the have such facilities and see what they have done. I would like to have a task force study it more. I would rather do those things than deny the application, but I cannot do that in just one month." She then moved to deny without prejudice, the application for the waste incinerator, but suggested the rest of the plan be continued for the tire burning plant.

Commissioner Furlong seconded the motion, adding that he believed more information on the tire plant should be submitted.

The only Commissioner who voted in favor of the proposal was Bob Sturm who said, "I think the applicant should have time to bring in more experts. The property is zoned for that and the plan is good." He added, "The County needs this economic development, jobs and taxes."

The audience responded to the comment with a round of boos.

The final vote was 4 to 1 against the incinerator. The Commission chose to continue hearing about the tire plant at a meeting set for April 23.

Following the meeting, Vihien told reporters he planned to "continue looking into the incinerator situation, possibly seeking some better solution, and presenting it at a future time, 2 to 3 months from now."

elementary schools in the Oviedo and Winter Springs areas be considered for the year round option first.

It was also suggested that the new elementary schools, Heathrow Elementary School in Lake Mary and Partin Elementary School in Oviedo, which will open next fall, be considered for the modified calendar.

Robert O'Dell, director of year round schools for the district, was pleased with the suggestions, but said schools needed a minimum of 15 months to prepare their communities for the year round option. That timetable would make it impossible to implement the program at the new schools.

"But (the suggestion) that we use feeder schools to the middle school is music to my ears," O'Dell said.

The schools which were ultimately approved by the board were chosen because they had expressed an interest in exploring their options with the alternative calendar.

O'Dell said that Goldsboro had been exploring the possibilities of trying out a single track year round calendar for over a year, but due to growing problems with overcrowding at the school, they were now exploring their options as a multi-track facility.

Confession ruling amazes

By CAROLYN SKORNECK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Criminal defense attorneys, law professors and civil libertarians say they are astonished at a Supreme Court ruling that opens the door to use of coerced confessions as evidence in criminal trials.

"It defies logic," said Sam Dash, a Georgetown University professor who has been both a prosecutor and a defense attorney. "A confession beaten out of someone or through psychological pressures ... has historically always been excluded from trial."

The timing of the ruling as the country focuses on police brutality after the videotaped beating of Los Angeles motorist Rodney King "is a sorry coincidence," said Phil Gutsis of the American Civil Liberties Union. "Now is not the time that we need less restrictions on the police," Gutsis said.

The 5-4 Supreme Court decision Tuesday, written by Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist, said using coerced confessions may be "harmless error" and therefore would not automatically require a new trial if other evidence was sufficient to convict the defendant.

The decision doesn't welcome coerced confessions into court, but admission of such a confession into evidence previously was cause to overturn a conviction, no matter what other evidence existed.

At the same time, the justices upheld rulings requiring a new trial for Oreste Fulminante of Arizona, who was charged with killing his 11-year-old stepdaughter.

America now a country of computers

By TIM BOVVE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — America is rapidly becoming a nation of computer users. A Census Bureau study finds 74.9 million people now have regular contact with the information machines.

But present-day computing falls short of the shining future foreseen by the early enthusiasts.

They saw computers as devices that would empower users, simplify their lives, enable them to join together in broad electronic communities and become a wiser people.

Instead, the study released Tuesday found that computers most frequently have made Americans better typists and game players.

The study, based on a 1989 survey, said 32 percent of Americans age 3 and older used computers at work, home or school. That was a jump from the 21 percent, or 46.6 million, found in a similar survey in 1984.

Fifteen percent of all households had a computer in 1989, up from 8 percent five years earlier.

Forty-six percent of children in schools had access to computers, up from 28 percent in 1984.

Since the first commercially successful home computer, the Altair, hit the market in 1974, personal computers have grown in power to rival machines that once cost millions and filled rooms with equipment.

Yet all that power goes to relatively trivial uses, the survey found.

Sixty-two percent of home-computer owners use their machines for word processing, a class of program that makes light demands on a computer's capabilities. That's also the most prevalent use in the office.

The next most common home use was playing video games. That application was mentioned by 44 percent of adults and 84 percent of children.

The study also suggested that many computer owners were using machines that lacked much of the power available today.

Only 41 percent of home computers had a hard-disk drive, the large storage device needed to run much of the newest and most capable software.

Just 23 percent had a modem, a device that links computers to communication networks over telephone lines.

Laser printers, which allow people to make documents that look like they came off a printing press, were accessories on 12 percent of home computers.

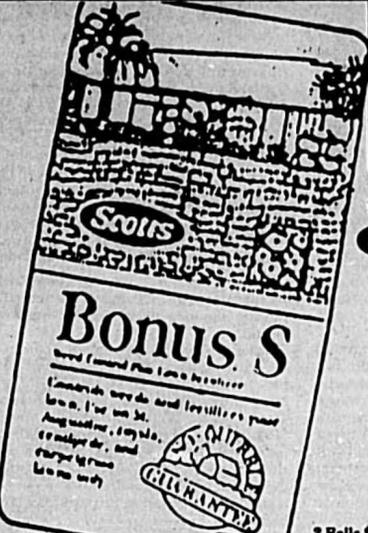

"I think there's no question that people have always oversold and romanticized what computers can do," said Tracy Licklider, president of the Boston Computer Society.

Woman faces custody case

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAKE MARY, Fla. (AP) — A woman on probation in a drug case is facing a custody hearing for her two children in the aftermath of her husband's problems with marijuana and his eventual suicide.

The state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services is seeking to show that Betty Hathaway's two boys need better care and should possibly be placed with relatives or in a foster home.

Mrs. Hathaway's husband, Vince, shot himself to death last December. He was a marijuana user, contending that the illegal drug helped him endure chemotherapy for testicular cancer.

Drug agents raided the Hathaway home twice in 1989, alleging that the couple obtained and sold marijuana illegally. The officers confiscated marijuana, cash and guns, but the Hathaways were charged only with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

They pleaded guilty and were each sentenced in October 1989 to 2 1/2 years of probation.

HRS has now requested a court hearing over the Hathaways' children, Jeremy, 8, and Jed, 3, because the woman is still on probation from the drug charges, said her lawyer, Donald Lykkebak.

Mrs. Hathaway said she believes her husband killed himself because he just wanted their troubles to end. The suicide came on her 30th birthday.

"That is what he gave me for my birthday," she told the Orlando Sentinel for Monday editions. "I would not have to worry anymore."

Lykkebak said the Hathaway case is similar to others in which people get into trouble by using marijuana for medical purposes. Studies have shown that marijuana use helps some patients suffering from glaucoma, multiple sclerosis, AIDS and cancer.

Her husband decided that marijuana's benefits outweighed the risks of being caught, but the family suffered by being branded drug users, the widow said. He tried for more than a year to get marijuana legally but was unsuccessful, she said.

Only a few dozen people nationwide have permission to use the drug, said Bob Randall, head of the Alliance for Marijuana Therapeutics in Washington D.C. The group helps people get the drug legally.

Advocates of the drug's use for medical purposes say that reluctant doctors, mounds of paperwork and bureaucratic delays make getting help nearly impossible.

Disney's Dream City plans told

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press

ORLANDO — Walt Disney World is submitting detailed plans for its $2.5 billion residential-commercial community in Osceola County to state and regional planners within two months, company officials say.

The first project in the self-contained dream city housing about 15,000 people would be a 240,000-square-foot office center. Construction is to begin next year.

"The start of this great 25-year dream is just around the corner," Disney executive Tom Elrod told Orlando-area business and community leaders Tuesday.

The outline of the massive project, to be built on 5,200 acres straddling Interstate 4 near U.S. Highway 192, was announced last July. It would contain about 6,300 residential units, a business research center, an education center and a giant shopping mall.

It would take 25 years to build. The brief mention of the Osceola project was in a list of past accomplishments, current undertakings and future projects reviewed in an upbeat "State of Our World" report by Elrod and President Dick Nunis of Walt Disney Attractions.

They predicted a quick return to pre-war attendance levels at the company's Florida and California theme parks and said Walt Disney World would live up to its tradition for doing things in a big way in its 20th anniversary year in Florida.

Disney will throw "the world's biggest surprise party" for the 20th birthday of the Magic Kingdom in October, the company officials said. It will host 7,000 reporters and guests from 28 countries and sponsor an around-the-world airline trip for 500 members of the media.

Nunis, repeating an earlier report to company shareholders, conceded that Disney's past year "has had its ups and downs."

'Lackluster' economic recovery

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON — Many analysts have developed a good-news, bad-news scenario for the U.S. economy this year. They are looking for the recession to end quickly but say the recovery will be decidedly lackluster.

Some forecasters say the country may even be headed for a "double-dip" recession in which the economy emerges with such anemic growth rates that the recovery lasts only one or two quarters before another downturn begins.

The government was to provide more information on the economy today with a revised look at how the gross national product performed in the final three months of 1990.

The Commerce Department also was reporting on corporate profits in the final three months of the year. That report was expected to show across-the-board pressures on companies' bottom lines, reflecting the weak economy.

Many analysts were expecting little revision in the GNP report from the previously estimated drop in economic activity of 2 percent at an annual rate in the fourth quarter of 1990.

These analysts also believe that the GNP, the country's total output of goods and services, fell another 2 percent in the current January-March quarter.

Two consecutive quarterly declines in the GNP would meet the classic definition of a recession.

The Bush administration is forecasting a return to growth and an end of the recession in the April-June quarter on the premise that a quick end to the Persian Gulf War, by ending uncertainty, will bolster consumer confidence.

There are various signs that this scenario is coming true.

The Conference Board, a New York-based business research group, announced Tuesday that its consumer confidence index surged to 81 in March, up from 59.4 in February. It was the largest month-to-month gain in the 24-year history of the survey.

The housing industry, a key sector that often leads the rest of the economy out of a recession, showed signs of life in February. Existing-home sales, new construction and building permits all posted healthy gains for the first time in months.

"With the decline in interest rates, the drop in oil prices and the rise in consumer sentiment, all the pieces are in place for a rebound in the economy," said Samuel Kahan, chief financial economist of Fidelity Securities in Chicago. "But the critical question is how robust a recovery will it be."

Kahan said he was looking for growth in the second half of the year to be decidedly sub-par, if interest rates don't decline further, he said. GNP activity could topple back into the negative range early next year, giving the country a "double-dip recession."

Bruce Steinberg, an economist with Merrill Lynch in New York, said that while he did not expect a 1992 recession to follow the current one, he was not looking for the recovery to be very robust either.

"We will have a scraggly recovery that will not be very impressive," Steinberg said, citing the huge buildup of consumer, business and government debt over the past decade.

"We should have a recovery that struggles along for a few years, but it is not going to rival the eight-year stretch of the last expansion," he said.

That view, while held by many economists, is disputed by the Bush administration. In this year's economic report it said "there is no fundamental obstacle to an expansion in the 1990s at least as long and strong as the record (peacetime) expansion of the 1980s."

ICP, Mice fall at Redbug

WINTER SPRINGS — Both I.C.P. and the Advanced Quality Water Systems Mice were defeated in "C" League softball action Monday night at Redbug Lake Park.

I.C.P., a men's team, lost to China Beach 15-7. The Advanced Quality Water Systems Mice, a women's team, fell to Don Covey 9-4.

For I.C.P., Don McKay had three hits, including a home run, and four RBI. Mike Rix also had three hits while Eddie Norton scored three runs. Gary Lamberta and Dennis Codrey had two hits each. China Beach used a nine-run second inning to break the game open.

The Mice were led by Jackie Suggs, Mary Shelton and Marybeth McCullough, who each had two hits. One of Shelton's hits was a two-run double.

Both I.C.P. and the Advanced Quality Water Systems Mice are now 1-2 in their respective 15-week seasons.

BASKETBALL

Heat ends eight-game skid

MIAMI — Kevin Edwards scored 28 points and Grant Long hit four key free throws in the final 34 seconds, his only points of the game, as Miami snapped an eight-game losing streak with a 104-98 win over Cleveland Tuesday.

The win was the first ever for Miami over the Cavaliers, who won the previous nine games between the teams.

Cleveland was led in scoring by Brad Daugherty, who had just 16. The Cavaliers have lost 22 of their last 26 road games, including their last four.

For the third straight game, Miami played without leading scorer Sherman Douglas, who has a sprained left ankle.

COLLEGE BASEBALL

Josephina rally's UCF

ORLANDO — Junior Mike Josephina cracked a two-out, two-run double in the bottom of the ninth inning Tuesday to help rally the University of Central Florida to a 6-5 win over Wright State of Ohio.

The Knights trailed 5-3 entering the ninth but pulled to within a run on catcher Chip Hummel's RBI single. After second baseman Ty Lynch reached on a fielder's choice Josephina lined his double down the left field line enabling the winning runs to score.

UCF's Chad Mattola had two hits, including his seventh home run of the season, and drove in two runs.

The Knight's improved to 26-9 with the win and will host another Ohio college, Cleveland State, tonight starting at 7 p.m. Wright State fell to 9-3 with the loss.

Karp lands win for Hurricanes

CORAL GABLES — Keith Mierzwa's pinch-hit, two-out home run in the eighth spoiled a no-hit bid by Miami as the Hurricanes defeated Eastern Illinois 5-1 Tuesday night.

Ryan Karp (3-2) struck out seven in four innings to give Miami the win.

Chris Anderson scored in the third after he doubled off of loser Frank Jablonski (1-3) and was driven in on a sacrifice bunt by Gino DiMare and a sacrifice fly by Luis Hernandez.

Back-to-back two-out doubles by Alex Miranda and Juan Llanes made it 2-0 and clinched Ron Fraser's 1,198th career win. Fraser, the winningest active coach trails only Southern Cal's Rod Dedeaux' 1,332 triumphs in NCAA history.

FOOTBALL

Bolcar signs with Dolphins

MIAMI — Linebacker Ned Bolcar, trying to rebound from reconstructive knee surgery, has become the Miami Dolphins' third Plan B acquisition this year.

Bolcar, a sixth-round draft choice out of Notre Dame in 1990, played in five games for Seattle last season — mostly on special teams — before hurting his knee.

He couldn't work out for the Dolphins because of the injury, but he should be at full strength after eight more weeks of rehabilitation, said his agent, Brad Blank.

Seminoles swat Hornets

Putting it all together

Seminole High School's varsity softball team played one of its most complete games of the season Tuesday. Offensively, Latrice Turner (sliding into third, below) used timely hits to turn the occasional fielding lapses by the Bishop Moore Hornets into seven first-inning runs. On defense, third baseman Tina Rathbun (left) and her Tribe teammates made the early lead stand up, helping pitcher Tiffany Jones post a rare shutout.

SANFORD — Carey Dryden went 2-for-3 with a triple and two RBI and Tiffany Jones pitched a complete game shutout to lead the Seminole Fighting Seminoles to a 7-0 victory over the Bishop Moore Hornets in girls' softball action Tuesday afternoon at Ft. Mellon Park.

The Tribe, now 6-7, erupted for all seven runs in the first inning.

Argie Walker started things by hitting a lead-off inside-the-park home run. Valorie Wilks and Andrea Ruffin each followed with singles before Rita Frison reached on an error that scored Willis. Dryden then tripled down the right field line, scoring Ruffin and Frison.

One out later, Tina Rathbun singled in Dryden. Rathbun reaching second when the ball was misplayed in the outfield. Latrice Turner followed with a single and reached second on an outfield error with Rathbun scoring. Alexis Weber then reached on an error. Turner scoring when the throw to the infield got loose.

Seminole held on for the rest of the contest by playing solid defense behind the solid pitching of Jones, who walked only one batter and struck out three while keeping the hitters off balance by moving the ball all around the plate.

"It's nice to jump out quick an score some runs," said Seminole Coach Greg Registrar. "But I'd like to see us hit more consistently in every inning. Our defense has been improving every day and the girls will be ready for the district tournament.

The Tribe will next take the field on Tuesday, April 9, when they host the Lyman Greyhounds at Ft. Mellon Park.

Slow-starting Silver Hawks speed past Deltona

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Writer

DELTONA — The Lake Howell Silver Hawks overcame a fast start by Deltona and a slow start of their own to post a 14-4 triumph in a girls' slowpitch softball game Tuesday afternoon.

"We started very slow," said Lake Howell coach Jo Luciano. "We didn't do anything for an inning and a half, no hitting and several errors, but we woke up in time."

Wake up the Silver Hawks did. After falling behind 4-1 after two innings, Lake Howell came up with four runs in the third and five in the fourth to provide some breathing room. They added four insurance runs in the seventh.

"Deltona played very well early," said Luciano. "They hit the ball well and were very aggressive, but then they had some fielding lapses that really hurt them. They're taking their lumps right now but playing the good schedule that they are will help them in the long run."

Three straight doubles by Angie Niemesh, Jennifer Leasor and Shannon Booth and a ground out by Michelle Latow accounted for the three Wolves first inning run.

Deltona added another run in the second when Bonnie Garrett reached on an error and scored on a double by Debbie Hinson.

The Silver Hawks took the lead for good in the third thanks to some sloppy fielding by the Wolves. Diane Lowe and Tina Leman reached on errors before Kat Foldeak singled in a run. Wendi Van Horn doubled in two and Michelle Concialdi singled in another.

Contributing to a 16-hit Lake Howell attack were Van Horn (4-5, double, run scored, three RBI), Christa Hill (three singles, two runs scored), Lowe (two singles, three runs scored, three RBI), Leman (two singles, two runs scored, two RBI) and Foldeak (two singles, two runs scored, RBI).

Also contributing were Christy York (single, two runs scored, RBI), Concialdi (single, RBI), Michelle Nason (single) and Joy Joseph and Larcher (one run scored each).

Doing the damage for the Wolves, 2-14, were Leasor (double, single, run scored, RBI), Booth (double, run scored, RBI), Hinson (double, RBI), Niemesh (double, run scored), Brandy Wilkes (single) and Garrett (run scored).

The Silver Hawks improved to 12-5 with the win and will travel today to Altamonte Springs to take on Seminole Athletic Conference rival Lake Brantley at 7:30 p.m.

Pitcher Denise Howell was 4-for-4 with a double and three runs scored as the Seminole Community College Raiders won the first game of their doubleheader with the Central Florida Patriots on Tuesday afternoon.

SCC women let Patriots escape with softball split

From staff reports

OCALA — The Seminole Community College women's softball again fell victim to its own doldrums as it split a North Central Florida Conference doubleheader with Central Florida Community College Tuesday afternoon.

In the first game, the Raiders pounded the ball for 21 hits en route to an 11-7 win. It appeared that maybe they were ready to put two games together when they scored five runs in the first inning of the second game but the Patriots came back to take a 9-8, eight-inning victory.

"We just can't seem to play in the second game," said SCC coach Ileana Gallagher. "It's getting very frustrating. When you look at Central Florida's record, we should have won. But they hit the ball very well."

CFCC scored three runs in the first inning and three runs in the second to tie the second game at 5-5. SCC retook the lead with a three-run fifth but the Patriots tied the game with three runs in the bottom of the seventh and scored a solo run in the eighth to win it.

Denise Howell and Julie Barton led the Raiders offense in the first game as they both went 4-for-4 and scored three runs. Gerri McCroy added a home run and Jennifer Colbert hit a triple.

Barton again led the SCC attack in the second game, going 3-for-4. Christy Blankenship added a triple.

CFCC improved its record to 7-18 overall and 7-15 in the conference.

The split gave the Raiders a 15-11 record overall and 13-9 in the conference. SCC will play its last home game Thursday when archival Valencia comes to Raider Field for a doubleheader starting at 3:15 p.m.

The Raiders are now third in the conference, which will not get them into the state tournament.

"The top two teams from each conference go and then they take three wild card teams," said Gallagher. "We hope to get one of the wild cards but we have got to start playing better if we are going to earn one of them."

Anderson tunes up with easy Late Model victory

Special to the Herald
NEW SMYRNA BEACH — Tuning up for the upcoming Super Eight Series 200-lap event on April 8, Dick Anderson drove the new Cement Pre-Cast Chevy Lumina to an easy win in the 25-lap FASCAR-sanctioned Late Model feature on Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway.
Early leader Greg Froemming, in the Comp-Air Chevrolet, was able to hold off a fierce late-race challenge from Mike Howell, who now drives a potent Buick regal out of the Dotson Construction stables.
Rounding out the top five were Ricky Marshall and talented young pilot Shane Russ, who was tackling the New Smyrna high banks for the very first time.
Young Mark Kinley drove the Applebee's Restaurant Mercury Cougar to a well-earned victory in the hotly-disputed Limited Late Model feature.
Early leader/heat winner Mike Todd was second over Mike Kubanek, Von Crews and Chuck Stanley, who challenged for the lead early in the race, then spun and had to restart last.
With his Cougar handling like it was on rails, Kinley did his passing in the corners while the others spun trying to keep up.
Gary Salvatore made it look easy as he took a smooth ride to the checkers in the Florida Modified final. He was at the wheel of the World Trade Connection Pontiac Sunbird.
The Four Cylinder final went to Bobby Sears.
Doug Mays, in a race car painted exactly like Dale Earnhardt's No. 3 and duplicating "Ole Iron Heads" driving style, won his fifth Sportsman feature of the season.
As always in the Bomber final, the Chevy Monte Carlo proved that auto racing is a contact sport as they pushed, shoved, slammed and banged their way around the high-banked half-mile oval. When the dust settled, young Wally Semrow emerged as the winner by a minimal margin over late-race challenger John Ripley.
In FASCAR action Friday night at Orlando SpeedWorld, James Wilkins of Palm City won the 25-lap Late Model feature event, finishing ahead of Ricky Marshall, Steve Latham, Bob Ackerbloom and Tim Fuller.

Dress up the menu Easter Sunday

Ham, lamb popular meats for holiday

Ham, both fresh and smoked, and Spring lamb are the meats that many use as entrees for Easter celebrations. Leg of lamb is the most popular lamb roast. A small leg microwaves tender, juicy, and nicely browned. Larger, more mature lamb needs to be cut into sirloin or shank half roasts in order to fit into most microwave ovens.

Fresh hams and leg of lambs can be primarily cooked in the microwave and then finished on the grill. Mint and garlic are the herbs of choice for this lamb recipe.

MINT-GLAZED LEG OF LAMB

1/2 C. mint-flavored jelly
1 tsp. garlic salt
1 tsp. lemon juice
4 - 4 1/2 lb. leg of lamb (half a leg)*

Combine jelly, garlic salt, and lemon juice in a small glass dish. Microwave on 100% power, uncovered, 1 to 1 1/2 minutes or until just about melted. Place lamb on meat rack. Brush with melted jelly mixture. Shield small end of roast, if necessary, by wrapping in foil. Cover loosely with waxed paper. Microwave on 100% power for 15 minutes. Remove foil; turn roast over and brush with additional jelly. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on 100% power for 10-15 minutes or until just about done (150 degrees).

Transfer lamb to grill, about 5 inches above hot coals. Brush with jelly mixture; cover grill. Grill 18-20 minutes or until meat is done (165 degrees), turning meat over once if necessary. Let stand 10-15 minutes before slicing. Serve remaining jelly mixture with lamb.

*For other sizes of leg of lamb, allow 7 minutes of microwave

MICROWAVE MAGIC

time per pound of meat.

Microwaved lamb can give juicy, tender results if time/weight ratios are followed.

LAMB WITH ROSEMARY AND MUSTARD

A small leg of lamb or the shank half of a larger leg
1/2 tsp. rosemary
1 clove garlic, minced
1 Tbsp. soy sauce
1/2 C. Dijon mustard
1/4 C. cooking oil

Mix rosemary, garlic, soy sauce, and mustard in a small bowl. Whisk in the oil a few drops at a time to make an emulsion.

Place the lamb on a rack in a baking dish, fat-side-down. Shield the bone end with aluminum foil to cover about 2 inches of meat. This will prevent overcooking in the area where there is less meat. Spread half of the mustard mixture over the top of the lamb before cooking. Microwave on 50% power until desired doneness.

120 degrees for rare lamb
135 degrees for medium
150 degrees for well done

If cooking by time rather than temperature, allow about:
10 minutes per pound for rare lamb
11 minutes per pound for medium lamb
12 minutes per pound for well done lamb.

Estimate total cooking time and turn lamb over about halfway through cooking. Drain the fat from the dish and spread the remaining coating mixture on the lamb after turning.

Canned hams and boneless, rolled hams are fully cooked and ready to eat, but their flavor improves with heating. If a ham is not labeled, it is probably a "cook before eating" ham. Those needing cooking microwave well using a cooking bag, adding a glaze during the last 10-15 minutes of cooking time.

Bone-in hams, fully cooked, need approximately 11-14 minutes per pound, starting on 100% power for 5 minutes and reducing power to 50% for the remaining time. The internal temperature should reach 130 degrees. Those hams that need to be cooked before eating must reach 160 degrees and require 15-18 minutes per pound, 5 minutes on 100% power; the remaining time on 50% power.

For a colorful sheen and flavor, spread one of these glazes on ham during the last 10-15 minutes of cooking.

CRANBERRY GLAZE

1/4 C. apple juice
1 Tbsp. cornstarch

Pampering for home chefs

Caroline Rhorbach of Winter Park was the guest speaker at the March meeting of SISTER Inc. Representing the Pampered Chef, a consulting business, Rhorbach used equipment from around the world in her highly entertaining demonstration. In photo, Rhorbach quickly turns an apple into a spiral with a simple tool.

Landscaping applauded

The formal dedication of the planters at the entrance to Seminole High School was held on the school grounds recently. The landscaping was a project of Ikora Garden Club of Sanford under the presidency of Judy Wimbish who receives an honorary diploma from Bobby Lundquist, assistant principal.

How to care for an emphysema patient

DEAR DR. GOTT: Would you please discuss emphysema? I am the sole caretaker of my 58-year-old cousin and need to know what to expect.

DEAR READER: Emphysema is a chronic lung disease marked by destruction of the alveolar air sacs, the tiny compartments in the lungs where oxygen and carbon dioxide exchange takes place.

The lungs are really a huge, thin membrane that permits gasses to pass between the air and the bloodstream. By dividing this membrane into innumerable, microscopic pockets, Nature has provided far more surface area for gas exchange than would be possible with a single membranous sheet. Thus, the lungs are a natural marvel because they contain square yards of active membrane, compressed into a relatively small space. This results in an extremely efficient system of gas exchange within a limited area.

Emphysema destroys this efficiency. The disease is produced by infection and/or pulmonary irritants that break down the walls of the alveolar sacs, causing them to collapse and coalesce, which reduces breathing efficiency.

In the presence of emphysema, the lungs become over-filled with stale air, which is trapped in large, inefficient pouches called bullae. These bullae prevent oxygen from entering the bloodstream; as they expand, they also press on surrounding lung tissue, further reducing breathing capacity.

Therefore, emphysema patients are usually breathless at rest because they cannot obtain enough oxygen or expel enough waste carbon dioxide. Of course, any exercise merely aggravates the situation, so severe emphysema usually leads to marked pulmonary disability.

Emphysema patients also tend to have "barrel chests" because the rib cage expands to accommodate the accumulation of trapped, stale air. Eventually, emphysema leads to the consequences of low blood-oxygen, such as heart failure, mental deterioration and, at the end, respiratory failure.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
One art of declarer play is to make life difficult for the defenders.

Cover the East-West cards and decide how you would play in four hearts against a low club lead. North's two-no-trump response was the Jacoby forcing major-suit raise, and South's three-no-trump rebid indicated 5-3-3-2 or 5-4-2-2 distribution with some extra values.

An initial assessment uncovers four potential losers: one diamond and three spades. If East has the spade ace, there is no problem, but what can be done if West has that vital card? The first declarer won the club lead with the ace, drew trumps ending in hand and led a diamond to dummy's 10. East won with the jack and switched to the spade 10. One down.

Another South did slightly better. He drew trumps, cashed his remaining top club and played off three rounds of diamonds. However, West unblocked the queen under the king, and East, on winning with the jack, switched to the spade 10 to defeat the game.

The third declarer played the best of all. He won the club lead in the dummy, drew trumps ending in hand and led a diamond to the king. Returning to hand with a club, he played another diamond. Thinking declarer was planning a finesse, West saw no reason to contribute his queen. But now when declarer won with the diamond ace and exited in diamonds, West was played. He had to either lead away from the spade ace or concede a ruff and discard. Declarer lost only two spade tricks and made his contract.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
March 28, 1991

In situations that produce earnings, you are another Aries who can see noticeable improvements in the year ahead. Work in tandem with your opportunities.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If there is some type of critical change you've been contemplating that affects your work, conditions are favorable to do so today. Once initiated, see it through to conclusion. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You should do well managing situations in which you share a common interest with one or more people today. Remember, your role should be that of the director.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There could be some shifts in circumstances today that will affect you both directly and indirectly. Fortunately, however, these developments should play to your advantage.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone with whom you're close socially may invite you to participate in a gathering in the near future. The activity will also include someone you've been wanting to know better.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Conditions in general look rather good for you today, but your best probabilities for success continue to be involvements that have financial overtones.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It shouldn't be too difficult for you to effectively promote products, issues or interests in which you truly believe at this time. The secret to your success is sincerity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You might not have as much direct control over an important matter as you would like to have today. Nevertheless, even without your total guidance, the results should please you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Unrelated dealings you have at this time with several close friends are all on track and could produce mutual benefits in each instance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You know better than anyone what your priorities are and the types of returns you are anticipating today. Nothing will be gained from discussing your plan with the uninvolved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Act in accordance with your highest standards and ideals today, even though you may feel the individual whom you're dealing with isn't. This is a day when the good guys finish first.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An endeavor with which you're associated could produce some fringe benefits that weren't apparent in the early stages. Keep the fire burning under this pot.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone you successfully linked up with in the past might approach you today in regard to something that can be done as a team. This individual will be worth hearing out.

Monday night bingo

Vernon Freeman and Dot Markle, foreground, and Betty MacFarlane, standing, take turns calling numbers at Monday night bingo at Bram Towers. Activities are planned daily for the residents which include Bible study and blood pressure and blood sugar screenings. Arlene Boyd, administrator, and her assistant, Sue Ellis, plan well-rounded activities for the residents.

Stepmom's heart aches for teen-ager who needs help

DEAR ABBY: I have a beautiful teen-aged stepdaughter who lives with her mother and stepfather. Although "Betty" loves her mother, she has never been able to confide in her. She's very religious and fairly strict, so Betty comes to me with everything.

Betty recently told me that she lost her virginity to a boy she had been forbidden to see. She needed someone to talk to — someone who wouldn't put her down, and I was there for her. She begged me not to tell her mother. My heart aches for this girl, and my biggest fear is that she may become pregnant or contract a venereal disease.

We discussed condoms and birth control pills, but she can't get the pill without parental consent. I'd like to get the pill for her, and I think I could if she were to go to my doctor, but I wouldn't feel right doing it behind her mother's back.

Her mother and I are very good friends and she trusts me. If I get Betty the pill, will it make it easier for her to continue having sex? She's already told me that if she got pregnant, she would come to me for help.

BETTY'S CONFIDANTE

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR CONFIDANTE: Every teen-ager needs a mature, non-judgmental friend to whom he or she can turn for sound advice and counsel. Ideally, that person is a parent. But if that's not possible — as in Betty's case — Betty's mother should be grateful that her daughter has someone like you in her daughter's corner.

Since Betty has already lost her virginity, I doubt that she will stop now. Stress the fact that sex today can have very serious consequences; therefore, selectivity is vital. We now know a sexually transmitted disease can be fatal. So be sure she understands how to protect herself from pregnancy or disease.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing on behalf of Ida Ward Linton, the daughter of General T. Ward, to whom you gave credit for writing "The Hunter's Poem" — describing the tragedy of having shot a pair of geese in flight.

I would like to set the record straight. The poem is titled "Remorse" and was written by Truman P. Reitmeyer of Philadelphia.

Ida would like the public to know that it was not her intention to mislead them. "Remorse" was one of her father's favorite poems, and was one of 100 or more that Lem used to recite to visitors to his decoy shop. He used to hand out copies of the poems he recited, and of course, he would be asked to autograph them. Although the poems were printed with the names of the authors, it was only Lem's signature that the happy visitor would be aware of upon leaving.

Lem never wrote a poem, but his brother, Steve, did — and I suppose this fact helps add to the confusion. Ida has received many phone calls from all over the country since you published that poem, and it would help if you could publish a correction. Thank you!
