

Scenes like this prove the importance of having your movie camera—be it old or new this Christmas—ready for action throughout the holiday season.

Don't Hide the Movie Camera in Christmas Wrappings

Should your home be one in which a movie camera will be among the family's Christmas gifts—forget all about "Don't open 'til Christmas." This is fine advice to follow most of the time—but not when there's a movie camera ready to roll right within arm's length! The days before Christmas are usually the best part of the holidays—the time when excitement reigns amid a flurry of packages and preparations, decorating and doorbell-ringing.

We think you'll agree that the coming weeks are the most exciting and pleasurable of the entire year. The children have Christmas stars in their eyes. Mother is handling expected and unexpected crises with her usual skill, while Father's doing "as well as can be expected" with boughe and branches and a few special runs of the new electric train.

Yes, these are days when everybody's in a gay, busy whirl of activity—perfect days for movie making in every home across the country. A famous author once observed that "Christmas is everyone's birthday, with the party going on all over the world." And like any party, the preparations are half the fun—and more than half the story of Christmas at your house.

That's why we suggest you use your movie camera long before the actual day of Christmas dawns. By not waiting to open this special gift package, you may lose a bit of the "surprise" element. But the whole family will gain much added pleasure from capturing all the high points of the holiday preparations—the only way you can really get the complete Christmas '56 story from start to finish.

If you haven't yet seen the new line of movie cameras currently on display, we recommend that you do so very soon. For there's a tremendous surprise in store for you these days at your neighborhood camera shop. Imagine—you can now get a compact, easy-to-operate movie camera for just under $30! And that should dispel the notion many people have about a movie camera's being quite an expensive piece of equipment.

Day of Days

Boy—I can hardly wait!
 I've got my stocking hung by the chimney with plenty of care, and Christmas morning it'll be bursting full of all sorts of good things. There'll be a candy cane sticking out of the top ... there always is ... and a walnut stuffed way down in the tip of the toe.

And then ... the tree! I don't think there's a prettier sight on earth than a Christmas tree. And all those presents underneath it, wrapped up in bright colors and tied with ribbons.

Then Mom and Dad and my sister Ellen and I will get dressed, and we'll go to Church. That's one of the best parts of Christmas. For Mom and Dad always say that Christmas is the celebration of Christ's birthday. I love the music in our Church at Christmas—"Hark the Herald Angels Sing," and all the other carols. When I hear them, I feel all filled up with joy, and I know why our minister says that Christmas is the happiest day of the whole year.

Boy—I can hardly wait! And I just hope that your Christmas is going to be as merry as ours!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four solid reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake; (2) For his children's sake; (3) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

The Christmas Story

By RAYMOND A. LAOUE
Central Press Association Correspondent
(Fifth of a series)

At present, it is estimated that almost three billion Christmas cards will be sent this year during the Yuletide season.

Fabulous? Indeed it is.

How did it all get started? For this, we must go back to London, England, of 1842.

Snow was in the air and the spirit of Christmas inspired a 16-year-old engraver's apprentice, William Maw Egley, Jr., to create what became the first known Christmas card—now a priceless treasure on display at the British Museum.

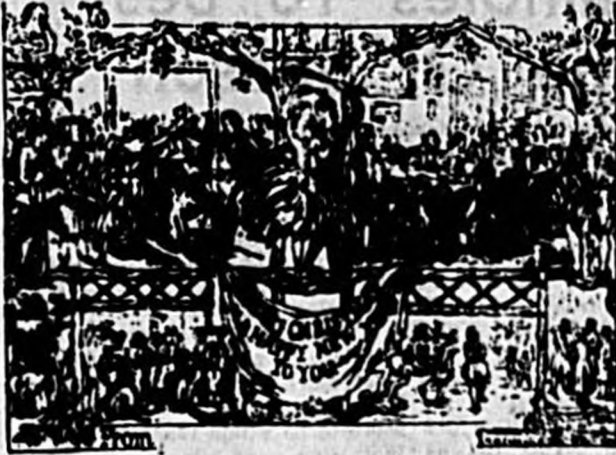

Holiday celebrations of the early Victorian period were engraved into four scenes of domestic life: "Roger and the Dog," "A Punch-and-Judy show," "A Family Group," and "A Happy New Year."

Commercially, this carefully engraved card was a failure. Young William Egley had neglected to color it, the one feature that has been shared by nearly every successful Christmas card since that time.

Nevertheless, Egley's error set the stage for the cheerful Christmas season that we celebrate today in a big way.

Charles Dickens, already in a lover's quarrel with the straight-laced Victorian world, wrote the beloved "A Christmas Carol" in 1843, giving the Spirit of Scrooge its death blow.

In the next few years, artists and publishers intensified their efforts, and Christmas cards went through an experimental or facelift period. This was a period, during which the early Christmas card design era met widespread public ridicule. Like Fulton and his steamboat, they were hated because the custom of sending Christmas cards "could never win popular support."

A 16-year-old engraver's apprentice produced this, the world's first Christmas card, in 1842.

Then, in 1864, Messieurs Marcus Ward and Company of Belfast, Ireland, were commissioned by an English firm to lithograph a set of four special designs by the artist, C. H. Bennett. Reproductions from this set, it is now believed, were the forerunners of the first "popular" Christmas greetings as we have come to know them today.

Standards for cards published by Marcus Ward were extremely high and for years this firm monopolized most of the better-class trade. The Ward cards were conventional, almost always so, and the finished product embodied glad Christmas scenes, floral devices, exclusive and beautiful hand lettering.

Before the 1860's had passed the same era which saw battles come into fashion the exchange of colorful Yuletide greetings had become one of England's most cherished customs. As might be expected between two countries whose cultural ties are so closely allied, Christmas cards soon migrated to America.

Here, the story of their origin parallels the career of Louis Prang, a lithographer of many rare talents.

On April 6, 1850, Prang arrived in New York City, a political exile from his native Germany, and in poor state of affairs both physically and financially. In a brief 25 years, he was established in Boston as one of our most important lithographers, had published the first American Christmas card, Prang abruptly discontinued publishing. Cheaper reproductive processes had been developed, and cheap novelty

Pig Crop Predicted To Increase In '57

WASHINGTON UP—The Agriculture Department has predicted the 1957 spring pig crop will total 52 million head, a decrease of 2 per cent from the 1956 spring crop.

The prediction was based on reports from farmers that they have bred 7,541,000 sows to farrow next spring. The number of sows farrowing in the spring of 1956 was 7,657,000. They produced 53,136,000 pigs.

The predicted 1957 spring crop of young porkers compares with a 1945-54 average spring production of 53,923,000 head, and 1955 spring production of 57,690,000.

The 1956 fall crop of 36,535,000 pigs combined with the 1956 spring crop of 53,136,000 produced a total of 89,671,000 hogs for this marketing year.

The total 1956 pig crop was 8 per cent less than the crop last year. The spring crop was down 8 per cent and the fall crop down 4 per cent.

The fall pig statistics were below last year in all regions except the South Atlantic. The North Atlantic States were down 9 per cent; East north central, one per cent; south central, 5 per cent; Atlantic region was up 3 per cent; and West, 12 per cent. The South cent.

MAVIA—The annual Christmas Eve service at St. Luke's Lutheran Church will be held in the newly completed church building Mon., Dec. 24 at 7:30 p. m. All the children of St. Luke's Lutheran Day School will take part in the form of songs and recitations. Mrs. Emmeline Best is in charge of the Kindergarten Dept., Miss Maria Banks of the Primary Dept., Mr. E. Sidlik of the Intermediate and Mr. Bellhorn of the upper grades. Rev. E. M. Tully is in charge of the singing and the offertory of the service.

The congregation in attendance will also take part in Christmas by means of singing and liturgical worship. After the service gifts which are provided by the Martha Society, will be distributed to all the children as they leave the church.

Nov. Stephen M. Tully will officiate as minister and Miss Marie Schenck will be the organist. The new extended church building will provide sufficient seating now for all members, friends and visitors at the service.

Miss Bohloyer Is Featured Artist At Church Sunday

Featured artist in the special music for the 11 a. m. service of the First Presbyterian church on Sunday will be Miss Mary Ann Bohloyer, who will be heard in two violin selections. Included in the service also will be an anthem sung by a male chorus, and a favorite Christmas spiritual presented by the Chancel choir.

At the 9:45 a. m. hour Mrs. Nick Pfeiffert will sing "The Star of God" and will be accompanied by Jean Wilke. The prelude will be Cantilene (Golderman).

Miss Bohloyer, whose home is in Sanford, studied music at Florida State University and is now teaching music in the Jacksonville public schools. She is playing with the Jacksonville Symphony orchestra for the second season. For the prelude she will play a medley of Christmas carols and for the offertory will be heard in the Allegro movement from Brahms' First Sonata.

The call to worship will be "Let Our Gladness Have No End" (Resler) and it will be sung by the Chancel choir. Later, in the service they will interpret Dawson's arrangement of the anthem, "Mary Had a Baby." A solo portion will be done by Harry Weir.

Robert Crumley will be the soloist in "Kevin's What Child Is This?", the anthem to be sung by the male chorus.

The sermon will be delivered by the minister, the Rev. A. G. Melms.

Crops Production Value Increases

WASHINGTON UP—The Agriculture Department said the value of crops produced in the United States this year was a whopping $18,973,723,000.

This compares with a 1955 crop production valued at $18,374,494,000.

The department's summary of crop values was based on what farmers received for field, forage, and miscellaneous crops; fruits and nuts; major seed crops; and commercial vegetables. In all, 79 crops were valued.

Corn, as usual, was the biggest money-maker. The 1956 corn crop was valued at $4,571,274,000 up from the 1955 value of $4,360,833,000.

Cotton came second. The cotton crop, including cottonseed, was in second place with a value of $2,444,263,000. In 1955 the value was $2,448,292,000.

Hay was third, valued at $2,302,110,000 compared with the 1955 value of $2,342,230,000. Wheat was next with a 1956 value of $1,908,806,000, compared with $1,854,189,000 in 1955.

The other billion-dollar plus crops were tobacco and soybeans. The 1956 tobacco crop was valued at $1,147,324,000, compared with $1,165,772,000 in 1955. Soybeans reached the billion-dollar status for the first time with a value of $1,011,716,000. Last year soybeans were valued at $930,803,000.

Other big money-makers included oats, 907 million; barley, 306 million; rice, 223 million; sorghum grain, 244 million; peanuts, 174 million; potatoes, 118 million; sugar beets, 154 million; apples, 124 million; peaches, 137 million; grapes, 181 million; oranges, 315 million; lettuce, 133 million; and tomatoes, 275.8 million.

Almonds High

The largest per unit price paid was 805 a ton for almonds. The smallest was 14 cents a pound for mung beans. Last year the mung bean price was seven cents a pound.

The crop value summary by states showed California in first place with $1,770,296,000. Last year the California total was $1,642,990,000.

Others states in the billion-dollar class were Illinois, $1,661,331,000; Iowa, $1,035,948,000; and Texas, $1,122,459,000. Minnesota was close to the billion-dollar class with $902,011,000. North Carolina had crops valued at $842,700,000. Indiana had $701,958,000 and Missouri $659,338,000.

how we can wait too long.

"I just believe that it would be wise for the commission to allow Holt to go forward—I don't think we have too much time to waste."

Question of time available for the construction of the sewage treatment plant came about when the proposed easeway construction was mentioned. The easeway would prevent sewage, being forced into the St. Johns River now at Mill Creek, from flowing into the downstream of the river.

Application for federal aid in the construction of the plant will be made, said City Manager Warren E. Knowlton. "We were waiting on this report before taking any steps toward making the application since we did not know whether or not the money would be available."

Holt told the Board of Commissioners that there are 70 applications already filed for federal aid in the construction of sewage treatment plants. "Whether or not you have an opportunity to share in it to be seen," he said.

The fiscal agent also reminded the Board of Commissioners that "You have spent $85,000 in the past two years on capital improvements in your sewer and water system. What that would produce in increased revenues, an engine would have to report."

Commissioner Krider's motion "to engage a firm of engineers to produce a feasibility report and study on a sewage treatment plant" met the approval of the Board of Commissioners.

A firm of engineers will be present, according to plans of the Board of Commissioners, at their next meeting to confer on plans and surveys leading to the feasibility of constructing the important addition to Sanford's sewer system.

Price Support Rates Are Cut

WASHINGTON UP —The Agriculture Department has cut in half the price support rates for three varieties of 1957-crop flue-cured tobacco.

The action was taken in an effort to shift production to varieties currently in demand for filtered cigarettes.

The department said 1957-crop production of flue-cured varieties "130," "146," and "244" irrespective of grade will be supported at one-half the support rates for comparable grades of other varieties.

"Price support rates for individual grades of all flue-cured tobacco varieties will be adjusted to reflect current demand patterns," the department said.

"This action will support a program to encourage growers to follow cultural practices that will increase the proportion of the crop which has desirable flavor and aroma characteristics."

The three varieties viewed as undesirable have been classified by federal and state scientists as "low to lacking in flavor and aroma, generally of light body and—or currently with poor acceptance in the trade."

The three, particularly "130," represented a substantial portion of the 1956 flue-cured crop. Increased production of these varieties when consumption was shifting from non-filtered to filtered cigarettes.

The department said that since these varieties lead to produce a large proportion of tobaccos that currently have an estimated market value of only about one-half that of varieties high in flavor and aroma, their price support rate is being reduced accordingly.

The flue-cured price support rate in 1956 was an average of 48.9 cents a pound. The 1957 rate has not been set.

Flue-cured tobacco is grown in North Carolina, Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama.

Government Showdown Is Seen

By PAUL SOUTHWICK
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON UP — Congress is headed for a showdown with the administration on an alleged "flagrant abuse" by government agencies of presidential authority to withhold information from Congress.

Chiefly at issue is the use of President Eisenhower's May 17, 1954, letter instructing Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson to withhold information from a Senate committee during the Army-McCarthy hearings.

Since then, 19 government departments and agencies have cited the letter as grounds for refusing information on other matters.

Chairman John E. Moss D-Calif. of a House subcommittee investigating the suppression of public information contends that agencies are using the letter as a blanket excuse for secrecy.

Showdown In Sight
Moss plans to resume hearings probably next month, and he has made it clear he wants a showdown on the issue next year. How that showdown will be brought about Moss isn't saying.

The most dramatic, but least likely, possibility is for Congress to seize and imprison in the Capitol a federal official who comes to testify and uses the Army-McCarthy letter as a basis for refusing to supply requested information.

Such an action, legal experts claim, would force the administration to seek court action to get the man released. This would drop the matter into the lap of the Supreme Court as referees between the executive and legislative branches.

Moss said he plans to pick his case carefully for whatever showdown takes place.

The fight is not a partisan one. Moss is equally concerned about the "questionable legal authority" of a 1948 memorandum by President Truman and a 1948 letter by Truman's aide Donald S. Dawson. The two documents, still cited by federal agencies as grounds for secrecy, directed that personnel files in loyalty cases be withheld from Congress.

Ike's Viewpoint
In a news conference on July 6, President Eisenhower explained his views on the matter:

"If anybody in an official position of this government does anything which is an official act, and submits it either in the form of recommendations or anything else, that is properly a matter for investigation if Congress so chooses, provided the national security is not involved."

"But when it comes to the conversations that take place between any responsible official and his advisers, or exchange of mere little slips, or this or that, suppressing personal opinions on the most confidential basis, those are not subject to investigation by anybody. And if they are it will wreck the government."

If you want your fall and winter blouse wardrobe to be quickly washable, choose an assortment of styles made from Arnel fabric. Arnel is a "test-tube" fabric which gives up soil readily in soap or detergent suds, and which dries fast. Arnel knit tricot needs little ironing, and woven fabrics are easy to press with a steam iron.

If you want a raincoat to fit over a coat or a bulky suit, a good bet is one made of plastic. It will provide protection without added weight, and most plastic coats can be folded into a small portable package when not in use.

When soiled, simply suds and rinse-wipe both sides with a sponge. Or you can immerse the whole garment in soap or detergent suds, rinse, and hang to drip-dry.

To avoid having refuse attract insects and develop a rancid odor, always rinse tin cans in hot soap or detergent suds immediately after emptying them of food. This advice applies to country and city dwellers alike because most refuse must wait for a day or even a week before being collected.

Advertising Budget To Increase In '57

NEW YORK UP—Advertising budgets in 1957 will increase at least 10 per cent over 1956, a survey by Printers Ink magazine has indicated.

The trade magazine polled 100 major companies that advertise nationally and found 71 are planning to spend from 5 to 30 per cent more than in 1956. Seventeen reported no change and 12 said their budgets will be lower.

Chief factors besides rising ad rates, said the magazine, are growing competition, expanding markets and new products.

"Many advertisers are automatically hiking their promotion dollars enough to cover rising ad costs, then adding, new money on top of that," it said.

The publication also reported that national advertising in October ran one per cent higher than in September and 11 per cent above October 1955.

Newspaper advertising held well above the average, running 9 per cent higher than September and 13 per cent above a year ago, according to the magazine.

SMART NEW CAR COAT IS SUDS-SPONGEABLE

No need to change gear — no matter what the weather or the occasion — if you wear a car coat made of new embossed nylon fabric, which has the look and feel of soft leather.

It's lined with a blend of Orlon and wool in a contrasting color, so smartly tailored that it may be reversed and worn on either side. Furthermore, it's water repellent and easy to keep clean because the nylon surface can be washed with a sudsy sponge.

When your kitchen stove is dirty, you're literally burning up money. Reflecting surfaces must be clean in order to provide efficient heat. If you let grease and splatters accumulate around burners and in the oven, the range uses extra fuel or power without extra benefit to you. Make it a habit to go over all enamel and metal surfaces with warm soap or detergent suds after each meal.

CHAPTER 5
"Doesn't suppose you know where the two girls are?" the distinguished-looking man asked the restaurant waiter.

"Tourist, I reckon, just stopping by lunch. Interested?"

"Curious," the man said. "I just wondered about them. Not sisters, too different looking." His eyes moved over the people in the restaurant. "The older one looked Spanish, don't you think?"

The girl said, "Mr. Duval, you're always asking about people. Every time you come in here, you act like you're looking for someone. Are you?"

Bill Duval smiled. "There's not much to go around here. You get to wondering about people."

"Why don't you get on with writing that book?"

"Have to absorb atmosphere, you know. So many books have been written about Apalachicola, I want to do mine a little differently."

The girl took change from another customer, then turned back to Bill Duval. "No kidding, Mr. Duval. Are you really writing a book? You're always riding around in that red car—and you never see the people in the red pants. You were having a vacation and were joking about the book." She took care of another customer, then turned back to him. "No use looking out that door hoping to see that girl in the red pants. They're probably down about Carrabelle by now."

Bill was smiling. "You're mistaken there. At least, their green Dodge is registered in front of the Gibson Hotel. I think I'll go down that way."

When Bill Duval reached the hotel the green car was not there. He went inside and took a stool at the little bar that was screened off from the lobby. He asked for a time rickety, then said nonchalantly:

lantly to the man behind the bar, "Thought I saw more guests coming in. From Connecticut, weren't they?"

"Connecticut?" The man went over and looked at the register. "Nope. Nobody from Connecticut registered. Maybe you mean those two girls who came in awhile ago. But they're from New York."

"Oh, New York?"

"Yeah." The man looked at the register again. "Heard the older one call the other girl Priscilla. Here it is, Priscilla Falco. The other . . . Hmm. It's a queer name and I don't know how to pronounce it. Z-e-r-i-t-a Lambert."

"Zerita." Bill Duval turned the glass in his hands absently. "Sounds Spanish, wouldn't you say?"

"Sort of," the man agreed. "That other girl didn't call her that, though. I remember she was saying Rita."

"That's short for Zerita. Do they plan to be here for awhile?"

"The older one said they might stay for one night, maybe longer, that she'd let me know tomorrow. Guess they're travelers, restin' up. It's a long way from New York."

"I didn't see their car outside."

"They sent the car across the street to the service station to be washed and serviced. They asked me where they could get a nice steak, and I told them to go over to Maud's. They're dressing now, I guess."

"I see." Bill finished his drink and slipped some change on the counter.

He went out on the long porch that surrounded the hotel on two sides and sat down in a rocking chair, wondering if he would have to wait long before the girls came down. In view of what the man had said, they would probably go to Maud's for dinner. If they were from New York, why did the car they were driving have a Connecticut tag? And if they were from Connecticut, why had they registered from New York? When Red Gallagher had hung around their car, as though interested, that girl with the odd name, Zerita, had come out and picked up a notebook from the front seat. He hadn't noticed it lying there. Could Gallagher have put it there? He opened a small notebook and made a notation just as the two girls came out. Immediately he picked up a magazine and began idly turning the pages, apparently absorbed, but alert to their conversation.

"Rita, let's go over and see if the car's ready." Priscilla looked up and down the street. "It's a strange-looking little town, isn't it? Foreign looking. Doesn't the sun look pretty shining through those palm fronds? It's almost down, and I'm getting hungry again. How about that steak?"

"I'd like to go across the long bridge over there and that just on the other side we'd find Maud's Tavern."

"I'm sure we won't have to wait long," Priscilla said, as they went down the steps and across the street to the service station.

Bill Duval wrote in his little book—They don't know as yet what's happened. One of them said they wouldn't have long to wait. Were they talking about the car or something else? He turned back a page and read what he had last written there—Alvarez was talking to that shrimp fisherman soon after the man looked the green Dodge over. And he's driven by here twice. I'll watch and see if they make contact.

The car was ready. Priscilla and Rita turned across the long bridge, the water on either side flame colored from the setting sun. The air had turned cool with approaching night.

"It's November," Rita said. "We should have known it would get cooler after dark. Next time we'll know to bring a coat. It's really gorgeous, isn't it?" Her eyes scanned the pink and gold sky above the horizon, shooting up spears of flame.

"It's beautiful!" Priscilla said. "Did you ever see such a sunset? I'm enjoying this so much, Rita. Of course I'm tired, but it's a pleasant tiredness . . . Rita, do you notice that man there on the porch at the hotel? The red-and-white man, I mean. He didn't even see us this time."

"I think he did. His indifference was a little too deliberate. Almost any man would have given us the courtesy of an appreciating glance. That man doesn't belong around here, I'm sure of that . . . We're almost across the bridge. Look for Maud's Tavern."

Home Repairs—Do's and Dont's

ROOF GUTTERS
DO . . . know that when water pours over the sides of a roof gutter, the cause is either debris in the channel or an improperly slanting gutter.

DO . . . when an examination shows no debris, get the gutter to slant toward the downspout by a readjustment of the brackets which hold the gutter to the house.

DO . . . fix a tiny leak in a metal gutter by scraping away the rust (if any) with a wire brush, coating with a preservative paint and spreading asbestos roof cement over the area.

DO . . . fix a larger leak in a metal gutter by pushing a piece of heavy roofing felt or aluminum foil into the water roofing cement, then adding a little more cement to cover the edges of the felt or foil.

DO . . . close holes in a wooden gutter with wood putty or plastic wood, but when there is a split along the grain of the wood, fill the crack with a caulking compound.

DON'T . . . forget that, after making a readjustment of the gutter brackets, the slant should be immediately tested by pouring a can or bottle of water into the gutter and seeing whether it flows freely toward the downspout.

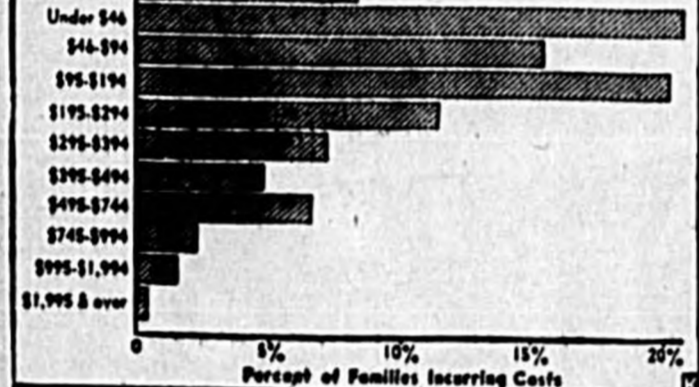

DON'T . . . try to repair a wooden gutter that has rotted, or a metal gutter that has rusted through in several places; a replacement of a section of the gutter is then necessary.

DON'T . . . fail to replace a section of a metal gutter with one of the same kind, as different types of metal sometimes produce unfavorable chemical reactions.

DON'T . . . neglect periodic inspections of the gutter, usually in the spring and the fall . . . as a pinhole which is easy to repair can turn into a major job a few months later.

Health Costs Are Unpredictable

Notes Health Information Foundation

There is no way to predict when medical care may be needed, reports Health Information Foundation, and no way to tell in advance how much this care may cost the family in any given year. A recently published Foundation study shows that illness and its ensuing costs are by no means uniform throughout the population.

tion points out, voluntary health insurance is now spreading the risks of medical costs over large groups of American families, thereby lessening the likelihood that individual families will suffer under the impact of severe medical expenses. More than 110,000,000 Americans now have such insurance and select, according to their needs, the kind and amount of coverage they pay for.

The Cook Is In The Kitchen Making Christmas Gifts

What is Christmas really "about"? Christmas is "giving," and the very best is giving yourself. A lot of you goes into gifts like those pictured. Both the Christmas confettions and the whimsical containers, constructed with crepe paper, seals, ribbon and cotton, are very easy to make.

With semi-sweet chocolate morsels as a beginning, one can make Christmas sweetmeats in very little time. The simple recipe for the fudge is printed on packages of semi-sweet chocolate morsels at this season. The recipe for Semi-Sweet Nut Brittle is included. It has a delicate chocolate flavor, while retaining the characteristic brittle texture. Make both the candies and containers for original Christmas gifts.

Semi-Sweet Nut Brittle
COMBINE and bring to boil: 2 cups sugar; 1 cup light corn syrup; 1/2 cup water; 1 teaspoon salt. Cover and boil 2 minutes. Uncover and cook, without stirring, to 300° F.—hard crack stage. Remove from heat.

STIR IN quickly: 1 6-ounce package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate morsels; 2 tablespoons butter; 1 teaspoon vanilla; 1 1/2 cups salted nuts, coarsely chopped. Spread thinly on greased cookie sheet 15 x 12 inches.

Let stand till cool. Break in irregular pieces.
YIELD: Approximately 2 pounds.

The tree will be lighted by President Eisenhower on December 20th. (International)

Judge Releases 15 Prisoners To Spend Christmas At Home

J. C. Reynolds Named Assistant County Ranger

Joseph C. Reynolds, a veteran of 22 years with the Washington, D. C. Fire Department and Florida Forest Service Ranger in Sarasota County was promoted and transferred to Seminole County. Reynolds assumed his duties here as assistant county ranger last week and is located at the Longwood Tower.

The ranger is well known in Sarasota County for his work in pioneering the South Trail Volunteer Fire Department. He was first resident manager, first assistant, and second chief of the department from Aug. 1933 to July 1935.

Joining the Florida Forest Service in July 1935 as assistant forester, he was later promoted to ranger in Manatee County but turned it down due to the illness of his wife, Georgia.

Reynolds immediately appealed to Seminole County citizens to be extremely careful during the holiday season.

"This is the time of year when we should all be reminded that Christmas is the birthday of Christ, a time for joy and happiness," said Reynolds. "Yet to many of our citizens it becomes a time of heartache and tragedy due to fire, which is more prevalent and more likely to occur at this time."

Carelessness, says Reynolds, causes more than 80 per cent of the fires which occur in our community.

Reynolds and his rangers fought 779 fires last week, one of them more than 40 acres. All but one, he said, started from a trash pile left unguarded.

Fifteen prisoners in the Seminole County Jail were freed yesterday morning by Seminole County Judge Ernest Householder in order that they might spend Christmas with their families and friends.

Addressing the group of prisoners brought before him, Judge Householder said "I have placed sentences against each one of you for some violation in accordance with justice comparable to the act which you committed. We are now reaching Christmas and regardless of what you have done I have decided to amend the penalty which I have imposed upon you—and today you are to be released," said the judge.

"Likely none of you have had the opportunity of reading the words of President Eisenhower at the time he turned on the lights of the Capital Yule Tree and I feel it very aptly expresses the sentiment we should have, that I want to quote to you a part of his statement:

"There are particularly manifested during this season those spiritual qualities of freedom and honor and neighborliness and good will—a great virtues that make all people one. Through them, and the faith in them, we see how men can live together in peace; for one glorious moment we sense progress toward that aspiration of every religious faith—'peace on earth, good will to men.' The true testing of the Christmas spirit, will come when the trees are down and the lights put away by the success in keeping alive the inspiration of this moment: We must proceed by knowing the light of Christmas is eternal, though we cannot always see it. We must believe that the truth of Christmas is constant; that men can live together in peace as Lincoln said 'with charity for all, with firmness in the right'."

In the spirit as expressed in the words of the President, the Seminole County Judge said, "I hope that in my feeling for you that I will turn on in your hearts and minds, Love, Charity and a desire to do your part by respecting our laws in your future life. May God help you and bless you and I am sure if you will do your part that you will always find that you will have the assistance of our God in the future."

And now, with the hope that you remember in the future not to violate the laws of justice, I am giving each one of you a dollar," Judge Householder said as he passed a bill out to each prisoner as he stepped forward.

And in response to the judge's gift, each man spoke out firmly. "Merry Christmas Judge and thank you sir."

Judge Householder said that last year he had presented a dollar to nine prisoners and released them "During this year only one of that nine has returned to our jail," he said.

Advisors To Check U. S. Security Program

7-Week Study Planned

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's special advisory committee on foreign aid leaves this week for a first hand check on America's far-flung mutual security program.

When it returns seven weeks hence it will advise the President on what future course it believes the program should take. Officials say this may lead to drastic overhauling of the multi-billion-dollar project.

The committee, called the President's Citizens Advisors on Mutual Security, is headed by Benjamin F. Fairless, former board chairman of U. S. Steel Corp. He and four of his committeemen will leave on a special Air Force plane Thursday on the first leg of their tour.

The 22,000-mile survey will take them to Spain, France, Germany, Austria, Yugoslavia, Greece, Turkey, Iran, Pakistan, India, Burma, Thailand, Viet Nam, the Philippines, Hong Kong, Formosa, Korea and Japan.

In each nation the committee will talk with both American officials and representatives of the foreign government to ascertain whether continued aid is needed and if so, how much. In addition, U. S. aid officials from neighboring nations not being visited will be summoned to meet with the advisory group.

The committee was appointed by Mr. Eisenhower last Sept. 5. He asked it to report back by March 1. This will not be in time to help the administration with its aid program for the coming fiscal year because a budget figure must be set late this month.

Besides Fairless, committee members are Dr. Colgate W. Darden Jr., president of the University of Virginia; John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America; Jesse W. Tapp, vice chairman of the Bank of America; Whitehall Reid, board chairman of the New York Herald Tribune; Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, vice chairman of American Machinery and Foundry Co.; and Richard R. Deupree, board chairman of Proctor & Gamble.

Market Report Shows Increase

"We are thankful the housewives did not let us down in purchasing their holiday dinners," said Sandy Anderson, manager of the Sanford State Farmers Market today as he reported on the week's activities.

There were 20 varieties of produce and fruit, totaling $1,706 packages from Dec. 15 through Dec. 21, at a gross valuation of $208,818.50, he reported.

"A comparison of business for the preceding week revealed an increase of 37,996 packages and a valuation gain of $96,657.25," said Sandy Anderson.

Spapak ad3987.ig of tao sa fan All produce and fruit were very much in demand and practically all varieties moved out at satisfactory prices, with the exception of cabbage, green onions, and radishes. They were in the low price bracket, Sandy Anderson reported.

The report concluded, "As usual, this time of the year, our citrus was heaviest in volume followed by celery, cauliflower, cabbage and lettuce."

U.S. Deports Chinese Alien To Red China

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has deported to Red China a Chinese alien serving a manslaughter sentence in a New York State prison, administration officials have disclosed.

The deportation was arranged as part of extensive U. S. efforts to prod Red China into releasing 10 Americans held in Chinese jails on false charges.

Two other Chinese aliens serving sentences in a California prison on 110 will be deported soon to Nationalist China.

The three deportations resulted from Communist Chinese charges that the United States is holding Chinese citizens in this country against their will.

In an effort to prove the falsity of the charges, the U. S. agreed to let the United States survey all Chinese alien prisoners jailed in this country.

"Our purpose was to eliminate any pretext the communists might have not to release American citizens they hold," one official told the United Press.

Airman Narrowly Escapes Death In Auto Crash

A 25-year-old Patrick Air Force Base airman narrowly escaped being crushed to death in his car last night or early this morning as it went out of control for 150 feet rolling over and turning end for end.

Jeff Lee Bell, whose home is in Seminole County on Route 1, received bad head injuries as his car came to a stop on its top at the end of South Sanford Ave. at Lake Jessup.

"The car is a total loss," said Constable J. Q. "Slim" Galloway who investigated the accident.

Apparently traveling at a high rate of speed while going south on Sanford Ave., the 1955 Studebaker convertible crashed into the underbrush on the east side of the road.

Constable Galloway said that Bell was alone in his car at the time of the accident. "He was sitting on the front bumper when I arrived at the crash scene," he said.

Deputy Sheriff James Singletary assisted in the investigation.

Injured Pilot Is Airlifted Home For Christmas

The Christmas lights are burning a little brighter tonight for the Caton family of 123 Pinecrest Drive in Sanford, "Daddy" has finally come home. For little eight-month old Clarice it will be the first time she has ever seen her father. Twelve-year-old Randy and eight-year-old Gary haven't played with their dad since May. For Mrs. Caton this Christmas will be a turning point in four months of worry and heartbreak.

It was last May that Lt. Comdr. Roy Caton said goodbye to his family and left with Heavy Attack Squadron FVE for a overseas tour as a plane commander. On Sept. 8, while still deployed with VAH-7, Roy was involved in a serious plane accident aboard the USS CORAL SEA and was critically injured.

As soon as he was able to be transported, Roy was transferred to a military hospital in Germany and finally in mid-October he was further transferred to the Naval Hospital in Bethesda, Md. There he has been visited as often as possible by his wife whose encouragement and attention contributed largely to Roy's remarkable recovery from his severe head and body injuries.

When Caton's friends at the Sanford Naval Air Station received word that his recovery had surpassed expectations and that in spite of having his left arm and leg in heavy casts he was able to be moved about in a wheel chair, they decided to do something about his family's Christmas.

What could be more appropriate than to get the whole family together, if just for a few days, during the Christmas Season?

A check with the doctors confirmed his excellent recovery rate and they further approved of the plan to fly him home for Christmas. Commander O. B. Grey, and LCDR J. S. Cleveland of the Heavy Attack Training Unit volunteered as pilots to fly him back from Bethesda. This Saturday the plan was completed and at 3 o'clock they arrived overhead with their "unique" Christmas present.

Perhaps Mrs. Caton and the three youngsters were able to guess what their surprise was to be when they were escorted to the Air Station and were met by a host of friends on the airfield parking ramp on Saturday afternoon. But no one present could help feeling the true Christmas spirit as Caton and his overjoyed family rode off in the ambulance for a quiet holiday season together in their own home.

Plane Unofficially Tops World Speed Altitude Records

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy's F11F-1F carrier-based Tiger fighter unofficially has broken both the world speed and altitude records held by British aircraft, Aviation Week magazine said today.

It said the plane "has flown slightly more than 1,200 miles per hour in level flight at 40,000 feet and reached an altitude of "more than 72,000 feet."

The official world's speed record is 1,132 miles per hour set by the British Fairey Delta research plane in March. The altitude record of 65,880 feet is held by an English Electric Canberra bomber.

The Tiger was built by Grumman which has formally petitioned the National Aeronautics Assn. to allow it to make official attempts at both records, the magazine said.

If the request is granted, Grumman would have 90 days to make the official runs before another U. S. contender could try. The other leading contender for both records is Lockheed's F104 fighter built for the Air Force.

Mexican Holiday Scene To Be Lit Again At Stone's

The Mexican Christmas scene, "Iluminaciones," which caused such widespread interest last year at the home of LA and Mrs. Robert S. Stone, 2013 Grandview Dr., will be lit again this year tonight, tomorrow night, and Christmas night.

"We've had so many requests to repeat the display," said Mrs. Stone, "that we're going to do it again this year."

The Iluminaciones is a Christmas scene depicting the birth of Christ with the candles to light the heaven, lighting the way for Him to come.

To set the display which covers the rooftop, in the yard, and surrounding the entire property, 500 candles and bags are used.

"We use the 15-hour hurricane type candles," said Mrs. Stone, "and this year we have secured 1,500 candles to use in the display."

Bags are folded twice in order to make them stand open, they are then placed in the sand.

"The custom is to light them only on Christmas Eve," Mrs. Stone explained. It will take Lt. and Mrs. Stone, with the help of a neighbor, about a half hour to get all of the candles lit.

"Thousands of cars passed our house last year to get a glimpse of the unusual scene," said Mrs. Stone, "and this year we would like to give everyone an opportunity to see the 'Iluminaciones' during the Christmas season."

The light operates off a battery and a flasher breaker he carries in his pocket.

Irish Girl Sends Christmas Letter To Uncle Sam

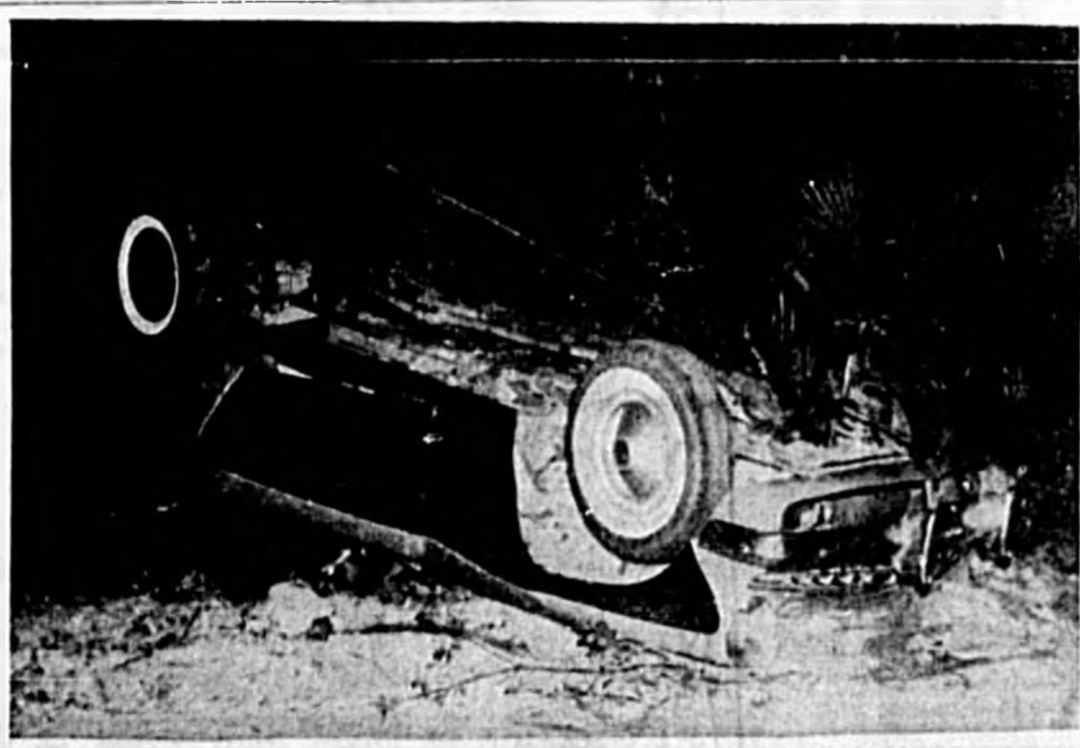

BERLIN (AP)—The U. S. Army has ordered a stuffed toy animal and a tricycle for a little Irish girl who addressed her Christmas letter to Uncle Sam instead of Santa Claus.

Serena Little of Dublin said she heard U. S. soldiers here, were on tending 3,500 orphans, refugees and other children at Christmas parties. She wrote to "The U. S. Army Chief in Berlin" asking "please, do you think you could share one of your parties with us?"

She said her five-year-old crippled sister Sherman has undergone three operations on her legs and will soon go to London for another. "She is very good and we all love her," the letter said.

"Mummy calls her our little blessing. She is dying for a saucer dog and a tricycle to ride. She has a bed since Saturday with a bed cover."
