SKIPPER SAYS HE DIDN'T QUIT AS G.O.P. HEAD

State Chairman Avers
Opposing Factions
Have Maliciously
Broken Agreement

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Mar. 20.—(AP)—Florida Republicans, who recently were given an announcement of the resignation of Glen B. Skipper and E. E. Callaway as national committeeman and state chairman, respectively, today had before them a statement from Skipper that "I have not resigned nor do I intend to do so."

Skipper declared in Washington that opposing factions within the party have "maliciously and grossly violated" an agreement under which he and Callaway were to have resigned in the interest of party harmony.

Callaway, however, said there was an agreement between A. L. Motte, W. J. Howey and Skipper that the party factions would not try to organize the new state committee, but "would allow the people to do what the polls" will.

Skipper in his statement accused the Callaway faction of entering actively into the campaign for state committee members in violation of the agreement.

Skipper's statement: "Much political controversy has recently arisen, brought about by a few of my enemies in Florida, concerning my alleged resignation as Republican national committeeman, on the occasion of the meeting of the Republican state committee held in Lakeland, Florida, yesterday, Mar. 8, 1930."

"In the outset, I want it distinctly understood that I have not resigned nor do I intend to do so. I was elected national committeeman by the delegates from Florida at the Republican national convention held in Kansas City.

Dr. Phillips Thanks Police Department For Its Quick Work

In a letter written to the Herald this morning, Dr. L. R. Phillips, who was attacked and robbed at his store in Goldsboro Saturday night by a negro, who later proved to be Lee Dukes of Austin, Texas, expressed his appreciation to the local police department for its "efficient" work in finding and arresting the assailant, and to the people who helped him after the attack.

The following letter was received by the Herald this morning:

Sanford, Florida,
Mar. 19, 1930.
Editor, Sanford Herald.

"Will you kindly give me space in your good paper to say thank you? First, to our able, active and efficient police department, and also to all my friends both white and colored who have so generously expressed their congratulations and sympathy in the recent attempt upon my life and robbery. And also to Almighty God for his ever ruling care and merciful deliverance, and to Jesus Christ."

Sincerely yours,
L. R. Phillips."

Evangelist To Hold Services At Church

Rev. Harry S. Allen, of Marion, Ga., general evangelist of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will arrive today to make preparations for a series of evangelistic services, which he will conduct in the Methodist church beginning Friday evening, Rev. W. P. Buhman, pastor of the Methodist church, announced this morning.

Rev. Allen will lead the chapel exercises at the Seminole High School tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock, and tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock the first evangelistic sermon will be preached in the church. The pastor of the Methodist church said he has been carrying on brief prayer services each morning this week, in order that the congregation might become better acquainted with the work which Rev. Allen will conduct while he is in the city.

Kaye Don Plans Try
For Record Today

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Mar. 20.—(AP)—Kaye Don Griffith, racing driver, who is to try for the world automobile speed record of 242 miles per hour late today, the ocean speedway is in good condition, low tide comes today at 5:53 P. M., but Don believed he would be able to start racing shortly after 6 o'clock, provided the beach way has been cleared out by the waves and wind. A northeast wind was blowing, and the usually smooth beach way conditions, while waiting for favorable conditions, the Hobe Baker has made alterations the combustion of four silver始末, by installing intake valves. In doing this he sought to avoid the mechanical trouble, which has dogged him in previous tests.

FAMOUS CHERRY BLOSSOMS WILL BLOOM SHORTLY

Trees Given By Japan
To U.S. Will Attract
Annual Contingent

By Reed Montfort
Associated Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, Mar. 20 (AP)—

The Japanese Cherry blossoms, which yearly lure the tourists of Virginia to Washington, will be blooming their banners of spring time.

By April 1, more than 800 cherry blossoms trees on West Potomac Park probably will be in full bloom, Charles H. Haskins, director of the National Arboretum, said today. Several hours after the arrival of the blossoms, full bloom is expected, and the trees will be in full bloom until about May 1.

There are a dozen varieties of the trees planted here, Mr. Haskins said, most of which bear fruit.

One variety is called "Shiro-nishiki," and means "white brocade." "Snowflake," and "Yoko-gami."

In November 1903, during the administration of William Howard Taft, the municipality of Tokyo, Japan, represented to the city of Washington, D. C., Mr. and Mrs. Allen, George A. Willis, and Hugh Herkimer.

With the dying of the single blossoms, Mr. Haskins expects about an equal number of flowering trees in Keweenaw Park to open in full bloom. Regarding the gamut of parks with cherry blossoms, Mr. Haskins said, "Today they will remain their blossoms until about May 1."

There are a dozen varieties of the trees planted here, Mr. Haskins said, most of which bear fruit.

The purpose of the meeting was to call for a presentation of the trees to the city of Tokyo, Japan, represented to the city of Washington, D. C., Mr. and Mrs. Allen, George A. Willis, and Hugh Herkimer.

While the Japanese were calling for a special delegation from their country to attend the ceremony, Mr. Haskins said, "We will have a delegation from the United States, and the Japanese delegation will be small."

The Japanese delegation will consist of the Japanese Ambassador to the United States, Mr. Togo, and his wife, and the Japanese Minister to the United States, Mr. Matsudaira, and his wife.

A special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held Saturday afternoon to plan the program.

Warmer Weather Is Predicted For South

ATLANTA, Ga., Mar. 20 (AP)—Frosty weather was predicted for the South today, following a day of unusually temperature that brought heavy rains in several states and to Atlanta 20° cooler, according to a forecast.

On the other hand, a cold front is moving across the northern part of the country, bringing a sharp drop in temperatures and a return of snowfall to the mountains.

At 8 A. M. this morning, the temperature in Atlanta was 40°, and the weather bureau said the front would move across the state Saturday night, bringing a sharp drop in temperatures and a return of snowfall to the mountains.

Business District;
Several Are Injured

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Mar. 20.—(AP)—Four persons were killed and seven injured when a fire swept through the business district of Knoxville early this morning, killing four in the worst disaster in the city since the Great Fire of 1865.

All of the injured are men, the worse results of the fire being suffered by the business men, who are still in the city.

At first, Knoxville believed that all persons residing in the Arden Building had escaped, but it was found that six persons were missing.

Several hours after the arrival of the fire, the building had been reduced to a mass of rubble, and the search for the missing was still continuing.

None of the injured are known or named, and the damage is estimated at $100,000.

The Great Fire of 1865, which

OH, GO TO BED

"Dad, I must be a funny looking little fellow with my big brown eyes and curly red hair. Where did I get my red hair?"

"You were born with it."
"Yes, but where did the stock got it? Your hair is black and Mum's is brown. Why didn't the stock bring me brown or black hair?"

"Maybe they were out of brown or black hair." "The stock had to take red."

"Dad, can God do everything?"

"Certainly, God can do everything."

"Can He make brown hair?"

"Certainly."

"Can He make black hair?"

"Of course He can."

"Why didn't He make brown or black hair for the stock to give to me?"

"Oh, go to bed."

There is said to be a new planet in the universe, and we'll be a tiny little sun scientist hired a publicity bound to plan it.

The Chase National Bank becomes the world's largest financial institution. And this in spite of what the Seminole County Bank owes it.

The City of Sanford is not the only place having trouble with the collection of taxes. According to the U. S. Treasury report, the federal government's collections are five million behind just year.

The president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, speaking in Clearwater the other night, is confident that business conditions are better, and that 1936 will show a marked improvement.
"The best way to return to normality is to be optimistic," he said.

Mrs. Owen is one of the few politicians we have ever known who kept their campaign promises.
When she was running for Congress in 1928 she made the statement that if elected she would elect one boy and one girl from each of the eight congressional districts and ride them to Washington in a personally guided tour of the capital.
She is now calling upon the various schools in the district to select girls for this office for the trip. It will be of wonderful educational value to the ones selected for the honor.

We note with increasing interest that another winter of Florida blue laws has increased the power of the wrong man. A Texas regulator, thinking this state's regulation for temperance is in such matters, hit Dr. Phillips over the head with a case filled with whiskey, then killing Roy Williams, has brought up under the code of Miss. Jones' School.
They always get their man.
The Texas regulator is now thinking things over rather seriously in the City Jail, and Roy is wondering why the pool don't have enough to not to pull that rough stuff in Sanford.

Governor Carlton, who pulled up with machine gun, and left operator, who happened to be black, was about the most populous state during the winter season, slightly ahead of the present in the state of Al Capone, informant of gangster.
It is not known that Capone, recently released from a Philadelphia jail, is located in Florida, but it is suspected. He owns a palatial home at Miami Beach where he generally roams among his friends, driving a shoddy car, and making him a popular hero. Governor Carlton, fearing the spread to this state of gangster warfare, issues orders to all Florida sheriffs to be on the lookout and arrest the "Scarface" on sight. At a late hour this afternoon, just before going to press, none of the sheriffs had yet resigned, although there is a strong impression prevailing among them on the inside that a number of them are liable to be taken sick at almost any minute.

The Gallant Gesture

The other day we were standing in the door of our office with a friend who, like most of us, has suffered financial losses in the recent years of Florida's storm and stress, and he remarked as he saw his wife coming down the street. "There comes my wife looking like she had a million dollars, and she hasn't got a cent!" There was a half smile on her lips and a glint of pride in her eyes as he watched her, and we thought what an asset that woman is, not only to her husband but to the community.

We most certainly do not mean the parasitic type of woman who drives her husband into bankruptcy by buying expensive gowns which she knows she cannot afford. It was not that our friend's wife's clothes were expensive. They probably were not, but they were appropriate, smart, and neat, and she wore them with an air. There was nothing inferior walk or in the expression on her face to suggest disengagement or reverses. On the contrary, she had a happy prosperous look about her, a look that seemed to say that things were going well. She was keeping up a front, not only physically but mentally.

There is something about this keeping up a front philosophy that permeates the man who practices it. The gallant gesture is more than just outward seeming. It has an effect on the man who makes it as well as on the world. The little boy who whistles in the dark to keep up his courage gradually warms to his tune and forgets that Lou Chaney may be lurking behind the next tree, and the condemned man who refuses a blindfold and stands facing the firing squad, erect and steady, feels an inner strength rise to match his courageous attitude.

The British soldier is a fine example of a person who understands how to put on a smile and a flourish, both for his own benefit and that of the enemy, and we saw a good illustration of this not long ago in a movie called, "Four Feathers". In a scene in Africa when a rescue party of English troops was being sent to relieve a remote and beleaguered fort through country infested with native soldiers, one of the men asked the captain, "Shall we go quiet, or enter with a flourish?" The captain answered, "Enter with a flourish," and they did, marching across that lonely plain as if it had been a parade ground with flag flying and bagpipes playing. The natives, whose fuzzy heads clustered behind every rock on the way and who greatly outnumbered the little British company, were so impressed with the music, the daring, and the assurance of their enemy, that they put up but feeble resistance and the lay was England's.

And so we feel that Sanford should "enter with a flourish", and that men and women who take their punishment with a smile and wear their old clothes with a jolly air will find that "keeping up a front often leads to the building of substantial back, and that the gallant gesture, if made sincerely, is many times the open sesame to good fortune.

A Big Season

One has had only to stand on any business corner in Sanford and watch the cars with foreign license plates going through in order to come to a full realization that this has been one of Florida's greatest tourist seasons. We regret that we have to say "going through", but it is nevertheless a fact that very few of these vacationists have stopped here, partly because our one tourist hotel has been closed, and partly because perhaps no particular effort was made to get them to stop.

But next winter there will be another tourist season. It also will be great, and visitors will come here by the thousands from every state in the Union. It is the history of Florida that every season is bigger and better than the one before. And we make this prophecy that next season will be better than this one. Are Sanford citizens going to be content again next year to stand on the street corners and watch them drive through?

Tampa, which for years has been recognized as more of an industrial city than a tourist resort, nevertheless realizes the value of winter visitors. It never lets an opportunity pass for advertising or for inviting visitors there. Recently Nichols Roberts, president of S. W. Straus & Company, was in Tampa and, according to the Tribune, commented upon this year's tourist season in the following manner:

"I understand from everybody in a position to know the facts that you have more tourists here this season than for several years. Moreover, the fact is noticeable that more and more business and professional men are taking winter vacations, and I believe the majority of them spend their winter vacations in Florida. Florida's tourist business is developing at a rapid rate, much faster than most people realize, I believe. Tremendous increase in the number of modern paved roads leading into the state from all parts of the East, Middle West and West, and the state's magnificent system of improved highways is largely responsible for this."

"The railroad facilities in and into Florida have greatly increased in the last few years. Add to these facilities the number of golf links on which a fellow can play practically every day, the wonderful fishing to be enjoyed everywhere in the state, and the marked improvement in hotel facilities and services and you have just about all that any state needs to go along with which to build up a tremendous tourist business."

"Sanford can cash in on this tourist business if it only will. Next winter Miami, Palm Beach, St. Petersburg, and other Florida cities will be filled to overflowing. Those who cannot find accommodations in cities farther to the south must look elsewhere. We should be ready to entertain them here. More than that, we should invite them here before they even try these other places."

UNCOMMON SENSE

BY JOHN BLAKE

WHY DO YOU READ?

I spent some time a few years ago in a settlement where there were a number of men who could write in more than their names and could read at all.

To my astonishment, I found that most of them were quite well informed as well as thoughtful and observing.

They had served as guides for miners, and other men who came into that remote wilderness for recreation.

They had kept their ears open and their minds awake and had a philosophy of life and a knowledge of the country and the wild creatures around them that some of their neighbors who had been to school did not possess at all.

More reading will educate no body.

I know dozens of people who read every novel they can lay their hands on, good and bad, but always mindfully for the story.

From the books they read they learn no more than do people who

Wets Are Still Leading In Big Poll Being Conducted By Literary Digest

three questions upon which with which they are playing their "straw" balloting is being undertaken.

The tiny domain of the National Capital, District of Columbia, which, however, has no official voice in elections, shows a vote for Repeal outrunning that for Enforcement by more than two to one, with a substantial intermediary following for Modification.

Connecticut, which together with Rhode Island has not yet ratified the Eighteenth Amendment, votes for Repeal over Enforcement by over three to one. The Republican stronghold of Pennsylvania also shows a same vote to one vote to rescind the Prohibition Laws.

The recognized "wet" States of New York, New Jersey, and Illinois register vigorous opposition to the Dry Enactment, while the vote so far from the "farm belt" of the Middle West shows a strong tendency for Enforcement.

On the Pacific Coast the earliest returns from this section show Washington and Oregon voting strongly dry though the combined Modification and Repeal vote is larger, while in California the vote for Repeal and also that for Modification is larger than the tally for Enforcement.

The returns are yet very meager compared with the total vote that is anticipated before the final tabulations are obtainable. The Literary Digest states, "Next week may tell a different story."

"The drys are on their nerve," it reads. "Letters coming in to the Digest breathe the fervor
