Consumer price-rise slow

WASHINGTON — Consumer prices rose a tiny 0.1 percent in May, the best showing in four months, as a drop in food costs helped to offset higher energy prices, the government said today.

The Labor Department said the small May advance in the Consumer Price Index followed gains of 0.2 percent in April and 0.5 percent in March.

The performance of consumer prices last month was in sharp contrast to Thursday's report on wholesale prices which showed them rising 0.4 percent, the fastest pace in 19 months.

SCC mulls tuition hike

By VICKI BUCHHEIM
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — It may cost a little bit more to attend classes at Seminole Community College in the fall if the SCC District Board of Trustees approves an increase during their meeting next Tuesday.

"We are going to ask for a 10 percent increase," said Joseph Roof, the dean of administration and records systems at the college.

Roof said that the state Department of Education told community colleges across the state that it would be in their best interest to raise fees to be sure they could meet expenses if the legislature slashes the education budget, in the way in which it has been predicted.

Basic tuition will rise from $30 a credit hour for Florida residents to $33.20 a credit hour.

"Personally, I don't think it's fair," Roof said. "We're putting more and more of the burden on the student and that isn't the point of the community college. We are supposed to be available to anyone in the community."

Roof believes the board of trustees will approve the increase, however, that the college will be able to continue to meet their expenses. Roof said the cost of an average class will increase from $60 to $69.60 under the proposed plan.

"It makes a big difference to some people," Roof said. "The lower income students can qualify for financial aid, but it's the middle income students who are going to find it more and more difficult."

Earl Weldon, president of SCC, was not available for comment on the proposed increase.

Roof said that the proposal that will go before the board of trustees on Tuesday will deal only with tuition increases. There are not plans at this time to increase fees for student services or lab fees.

"The decision came down from the Department of Education and we have to look at it realistically," Roof said. "We have to do this to survive, I think."

If the increase is approved, it will go into effect for the fall semester which begins at the end of August.

Expressway route to be re-examined

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioner Jennifer Kelley will ask fellow expressway members to reconsider their May 27 vote to move a portion of the Seminole County expressway closer to the Hidden Lake subdivision.

"I didn't realize so many people there didn't know about this," said Kelley this morning. "I think they deserve a chance to be heard."

Kelley said she will ask expressway officials to reconsider their vote on July 1. She will also ask the authority to reschedule their scheduled 3:30 p.m. monthly meeting on July 22 to 7 p.m. to allow more residents to attend.

Crystal Lawrence, an organizer of a meeting at the American Legion Hall Wednesday, said about 190 people attended to learn, many for the first time, about the proposed $140 million section of the Seminole County expressway between U.S. Highway 17-92 and Interstate 4. The meeting was attended by Kelley and Seminole County Expressway Authority director Gerald Brinton.

GENEVA — Night-time relief for Lake Harney lakefront residents could be on its way.

Seminole County attorneys are drafting an anti-noise ordinance that will include a prohibition against operation of airboats during night hours. Commissioner Jennifer Kelley said she requested the provision be added at the request of Lake Harney residents who have lobbied to county for five years.

"I've been here for 22 years and I've been putting up with it for that long," said Marvin Miller. "They have these very powerful spotlights that shine right up into your bedroom and wake you up."

"There's roaring airboats out there at 3 o'clock in the morning or 8 o'clock at night, they don't seem to care," said Rene Mitchell. "They're pretty rude. They've almost run over my husband three times

3rd City OKs communication restriction

By NICK PFERBAUM
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The City of Sanford has voted unanimously to support a move calling for reconsideration of a court order. Longwood will consider the same proposal during a Commission meeting Monday night.

The drive started last month by the City of Caseberry and CALNO, the council of local governments. It is aimed at overthrowing a decision made by the District Court of Appeals, which prevents members of the public from discussing certain matters with an elected official.

Most of the restrictions deal with personnel, written or telephone conversations between Commissioners and persons who may be proposing a rezoning, requesting a variance, or dealing with other matters which require a Commission vote.

Prior to this past Monday night's Sanford meeting, Commissioner Whitney Eckstein commented. "It's very restrictive. Take for example a man I may have known for 20 years who requests a property rezoning. This court edict means I can't speak to him now."

The City of Lake Mary approved the resolution calling for removal of the restrictions several weeks ago, then sent requests to other cities to do the same.

Eckstein is Sanford's representative to CALNO. "I had brought this up," he said, "but when Lake

War-support reunion

Desert Storm's local support group will reunite here on Saturday

By NICK PFERBAUM
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Persons who wept together and cheered together, will reunite on Saturday. The Desert Storm Support Group is holding a reunion picnic.

Former Support Group chairman Judy Osborn said, "We promised each other a year ago that we would get back together again, and as this is the one year anniversary of our big parade, it's the most logical time for it."

On June 15, 1991, over 80 units marched proudly through the streets in south Sanford. Although the conflict had ended on Feb. 27, the Support Group had vowed not to celebrate until all service men and women with local relatives and friends had returned from overseas.

Osborn herself had a son, Sonny, a Marine lance corporal, who saw duty in the Persian Gulf. He was among the last to return after the conflict.

The support group had been meeting every Monday from the start of Operation Desert Shield, also known as Desert Storm. During the meetings, family and friends shared their concerns and worries with each other, read letters they had received, and blended together to help others who were having difficulty in coping with the temporary loss of a husband, wife, son, daughter or parent.

During the meetings, Osborn managed to obtain a listing of 130 names of persons who had become directly involved in the Support Group. "I've sent an invitation to as many of them as I could locate," Osborn said. "But there may be others who have moved or could not be contacted, and I would hope they would join us."

"Everybody has been asked to bring their own family picnic lunch this Saturday," Osborn said, "along with scrapbooks, pictures, and if possible, to bring their veterans."

The Desert Storm group reunion picnic will be held this Saturday, beginning at 11 a.m., in Groveview Village Park, northeast of Highway 17-92 and Lake Mary Blvd.

Family and friends huddled under umbrellas during the opening minutes of the ceremony in the stands of Greyhound Stadium at the school. Some headed for cover outside the gates, but most did not dare give up their seats.

Murder defendant tries suicide

MIAMI — Danny Rolling, charged in the 1980 slayings of five Gainesville college students, is under a suicide watch after trying to kill himself in his prison cell, a newspaper reported today.

Rolling, 37, attempted suicide by wrapping a bedsheet around his neck on June 1 at Florida State Prison near Starke. Just as inmates were about to be fed lunch, Paula Bryant, spokeswoman for the Department of Corrections told The Miami Herald for today's edition.

However, corrections officers stopped Rolling after an inmate in a nearby cell screamed for help, Ms. Bryant said.

"Suicide watch" means that Rolling is checked by an officer every 15 minutes," she said. Officials did not know how long Rolling will be under observation.

Rolling, a Louisiana driver serving a life sentence as a habitual offender in a string of robberies, is awaiting trial on five first-degree murder charges in the Gainesville student slayings. He pleaded innocent earlier this week to the charges.

Big business vs. tiny birds

SEBRING — Big business has come up against tiny birds, and so far the birds are winning.

Wal-Mart wants 24 acres for a new 120,000-square-foot store. But two families of threatened Florida scrub jays — as few as four birds — were there first, say federal officials who cried foul and brought the project to a halt in March.

Construction is on hold until the company comes up with a plan showing how it intends to compensate for destroying the home territory of the threatened bird.

If the company is unhappy with the delay, it won't say. All a Wal-Mart spokeswoman said Wednesday was that the corporation likes to cooperate with regulators but still plans to build the store.

When Wal-Mart announced plans for the store in March, company and community leaders heralded it as a giant step forward in bringing big-city shopping convenience to a relatively small town.

Environmental group sues

TALLAHASSEE — A local environmental group has sued the federal government to speed up measures aimed at protecting the public from dioxin.

The Legal Environmental Assistance Foundation filed its suit Wednesday against the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, currently enmeshed in a scientific controversy over the dangers of dioxin.

"In the meantime, Florida citizens have not been protected as they should be," said LEAF attorney David Ludder.

The suit says EPA has failed to set safety limits in a timely fashion.

Dioxin is a carcinogenic chemical found polluting Eleven Mile Creek near Pensacola and the Penholloway River in Taylor County. People have been warned against eating any fish taken from those waterways.

Pretrial statements taken in Eckerd suit

TAMPA — Employees at an Eckerd photo lab routinely scanned customer pictures for nude shots and put copies on an office wall or in an album passed around at parties, a former worker said.

They almost were caught when a woman walked in to pick up her pictures. Joseph "Jay" Romer, former Eckerd assistant manager said in a sworn pretrial statement.

Romer's deposition is part of a lawsuit against Eckerd Corp. and former photo lab employees Alex Moore and Mike Rio. No trial date has been set in the case.

Senate panel kills tax bill; some government shutdown expected

By BILL SANDSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles' office began making plans to shut down non-essential state operations if the Legislature can't adopt a budget, and an anti-tax lawmaker accused Chiles of making threats.

Chiles' budget director, Doug Cook, denied it was gamesmanship when he wrote Thursday: "State government and the services it provides may have to shut down all or most operations at 12:01 a.m. July 1, 1982, until such time that a general appropriations bill is duly enacted."

Senate Minority Leader Ander Crenshaw, R-Jacksonville, a foe of any new taxes, called the move "a threat that we're going to turn out the lights."

"That's a crisis that the governor will create and I don't doubt that he'll create it, but I think the Legislature won't allow it to happen," Crenshaw said.

Cook asked agencies in a letter to Department of Administration Secretary John Pieno to list by June 22 the daily costs to continue services that can't be halted without risking injury to people or property.

He refused to predict the possible impact on state employees' jobs, social services or health benefit checks, or prison operations.

"State government and the services it provides may have to shut down all or most operations at 12:01 a.m. July 1, 1982,"

— Doug Cook, state budget director

The specifics will come from the agencies, Cook said. "We hope and believe we're not going to do this."

Crenshaw echoed other lawmakers' talk about a possible override if Chiles vetoes a legislative budget. House and Senate conference committees will meet Monday to try to match up their versions of a $30.85 billion no-new-taxes spending plan.

Chiles has said he'll veto any bill that doesn't boost spending and enact reforms including his proposed property tax rollback. He's pushing for a $1.35 billion tax package to ease cuts in education, social services, corrections and the environment.

But the Senate Appropriations panel Thursday resoundingly voted down even $306 million in added spending.

Jobless benefits bill stalls

By GARY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A bill raising weekly unemployment benefits by $20 was handed to Gov. Lawton Chiles until business lobbyists convinced the state Senate to put on the brakes.

The Senate had voted 20-17 Thursday to pass the bill (HB 1979), but then Republican Sen. Jim Scott of Fort Lauderdale nixed that the measure be reconsidered.

The Democratic sponsor, Sen. Peter Weinstein, objected but the Senate voted 19-14 to bring the bill back. It was then delayed indefinitely, and Weinstein blamed business lobbyists who oppose higher benefit assessments.

"Several senators were dragged off the floor by business groups and told they would have to change their votes. And they did," said Weinstein, D-Coral Springs. "It's as simple as that."

The bill would change the current flat cap on weekly benefits of $225 to a scale based on 80 percent of the statewide average weekly rates. This year, that comes to $245.

"It is a measly $20 increase to allow those people who have lost their jobs to pay some of their bills," Weinstein said.

Scott said he and others wanted to change their votes because they failed to understand that the bill changed the system to a percentage instead of flat cap.

"I voted the wrong way," Scott said. "I didn't realize it."

In May, there were 517,000 unemployed people in Florida, a jobless rate of 7.9 percent. Those who opposed the bill said they were concerned that the change would cost employers more in assessments as the state's average wage rose over the years.

"Every year, the economy gets a little better. Every year, the average wage will go up," said Sen. Tom Jennings, R-Orlando.

Said Sen. Larry Plummer, D-South Miami: "You're socking it to the little guy. It's time to turn it around."

This year, the increase will cost the state $30.8 million more, but Weinstein said there is a huge surplus in the state account that pays the benefits.

Evil twin

Man blames sale of drugs on identical twin, cops confused

Associated Press

KEY WEST — Confused police are trying to sort out whether it was Herman or Sherman they wanted when they arrested a man on a crack cocaine warrant.

Herman Roberts, 41, is threatening to sue police after his arrest on a warrant apparently intended for his twin brother Sherman, a recently paroled ex-convict from Jacksonville with several previous drug convictions.

Detective Sgt. Gary Armstrong said his investigators are still confused. "These guys aren't your average twins. They're what do you call it — clones. These guys are like perfect," Armstrong said.

Herman's latest round of troubles began June 4 when police served him with an arrest warrant for a March 28 crack cocaine sale.

Undercover detectives had given police a photo of a suspect who looked just like Herman. The arrest warrant said Sherman, so the arresting officers simply wrote in Herman, assuming it was an alias. They forced Herman to the ground and told him he was under arrest.

Herman, who works in a hotel catering department, told police they had the wrong twin and explained. He showed them five pieces of identification and the job name tag he is careful to keep for just such occasions.

He told them about his twin in Jacksonville.

The officers seemed to understand — at first. But they returned an hour later, angrier than ever, and showed him the warrant. "They said 'It's for you. You lied to us,'" said Herman.

Police Capt. Ed Grantham insists Herman told them Sherman was in the Duval County Jail for 11 months, meaning he could not have committed the March 28 crack cocaine deal, so it must have been Herman.

But Herman said he told the truth, saying his brother had recently been released from jail and visited Key West on occasion.

U.S. experts to identify the remains of slain czar, family

Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — A University of Florida anthropologist and other U.S. forensic experts plan to travel to Russia to identify the possible remains of Czar Nicholas II and his family.

The czar and his family were presumed slain by communists in July 1918, months after the Bolshevik revolution ended the 300-year reign of the Romanov dynasty.

A group of Russian academics discovered what they believe to be the remains of the Romanovs last summer in a shallow grave outside Ekaterinburg, a city about 900 miles east of Moscow at the base of the Ural Mountains.

The deputy president of the Sverdlovsk District, which includes Ekaterinburg, formally asked the university Wednesday for the help of William Maples, director of the school's Romanov project.

School board hopeful offers his solution to system's woes

By VICKI BOGGS
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Barrie Masters has spent a lifetime learning about education. Now he wants to share his knowledge with the Seminole County school district.

Masters, 60, of Longwood, announced his candidacy recently for the school board in District 3. That seat is currently held by board chairman Nancy Warren, who has served for 12 years.

Born and raised in England, Masters said he came to the U.S. as a Fulbright scholar in physics, but he had chosen a military career and, instead joined the U.S. Army and served in the Korean conflict.

He said he directed and taught in numerous schools in the Army in Germany, in Japan and in France.

"I was educated in one system and studied the others," he said. "I can see how our educational system is considerably different than the others and that we're way out in left field."

He was in the military for 26 years where he rose to the rank of colonel, he said.

Masters retired from the Army in 1979 and moved to Central Florida to supervise weapons systems development for Martin Marietta.

He remained there for three years before going to work for himself as a computer consultant for six years.

Since then he said he has

served as a substitute teacher, mostly at Lyman High School and he has worked on a book in which he details his solutions to the public education woes in this country.

"It's unique in that it doesn't just talk about what is wrong," he said. "It offers solutions."

The solution to Seminole County's woes, he believes, is to bring leadership to the school board.

"(Seminole County) is 50 years behind the times as far as curriculum goes," he said. "No one has made any leadership choices in goodness knows how long."

Masters believes that because of political favoritism, Seminole High School has not been treated fairly.

"They have been afraid to remove them because they don't want to make difficult choices," he said.

There is, he added, a lack of educational philosophy by the school district.

"I think things need to be thought through better," he said.

Masters said he has a bachelor's degree in industrial engineering from the Industrial College of the Armed Forces of the National Defense University, in economics from the University of Oklahoma, in computer programming from Orlando College and a master's degree in systems management from the University of Southern California.

Masters and his wife Sara have five children who have all attended Seminole County schools.

Pam, 18, graduated from Lake Brantley High School and now attends Auburn University where she is majoring in chemical engineering. Rachel, 18, graduated from Lake Brantley High on Tuesday and plans to attend Seminole Community College where she will study nursing. Erin, 16, will be a junior at Lake Brantley in the fall. Amber, 14, will be in the eighth grade at Rock Lake Middle School and Steven, 12, will be a sixth grader at Rock Lake.

"I'm in a position to do this kind of a civic job at this point in my life," he said.

John Mica announces candidacy

By J. MARK BANFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Former Winter Park legislator John Mica joined the rapidly growing field of candidates for the new congressional District 7 Thursday, which takes in most of Seminole County and about half of Volusia County.

Mica, 49, said he will work to bring more jobs to his district and more equity in local federal spending. Mica formally announced his Republican campaign to the media Thursday.

"We get back about 50 cents on the dollar," said Mica Wednesday. "I will work to make sure we get our fair share, 1-4 out there is in deplorable condition. We need to get more money for things like that."

Mica served as a state representative in Orange County from 1976 to 1980. During that time, he served on the House Appropriations, Select Energy, Ethics and Elections and Community Affairs Committees. He stepped down to run for state senate but lost in a primary.

In 1980, Mica said Sen. Paula Hawkins, a friend, called on him to help her in Washington D.C. and for five years, he served as her chief of staff and administrative assistant.

Since then, Mica said he has been concentrating on the private sector, developing cellular telephone businesses, retail enterprises and an international trade consulting firm with such clients as Harris Corp.

Mica is married to Patricia Mica, formerly of Longwood. The couple have two children. District 7 has already attracted two other candidates in the wake of Seminole County Congressman Bill McCollum, who announced he would seek office in the predominantly Orange County District 8. Also announcing for District 7 Thursday was Longwood Mayor Adrienne Perry, a Democrat. Last week, Daniel Webster, a Daytona Beach Democrat announced his bid for the newly-formed district.

Hagerty backs principal transfers

By VICKI BOGGS
Herald Staff Writer

WINTER SPRINGS — Dr. Paul Hagerty, who will take over as school superintendent July 6, said yesterday that he has heard from parents concerned about the transfer of principals from one school to another, but he supports the decision of the district staff.

He said the staff and the school board should be allowed to make routine decisions like that one prior to his arrival.

Concerned parents signed a petition and a letter that was faxed yesterday to Hagerty, who is still working in Springfield, Missouri. Those items expressed the parents' belief that the changes were ill-conceived, poorly timed and that they should not be considered at least until he begins his tenure in Seminole County on July 6.

"I believe they should go ahead with routine decisions like this," Hagerty said yesterday afternoon. "I understand that moving principals who have been at a particular school for a long time is routine. I have no problem with the decision."

Hagerty did add, however, that he would "look into" the practice of moving administrators from one location to another based only on the length of service at that school after he arrived.

"I don't see any problem with their making these changes now," he said. "It is my understanding that the principals involved are either happy with or, at the very least, comfortable with the moves."

Yesterday, as a preface to the signing of the petition and the letter, more than 250 parents and teachers took part in a protest against the announcement that eight principals would be transferred to new schools in the fall.

The gathering, held at Keeth

Elementary School in Winter Springs and organized by the PTAs of the eight schools, was put together in less than an hour.

"We just started calling people because we thought it was important to make a statement quickly," said Becky Shea, president of the Keeth Elementary PTA, who conceived of the idea.

She reported that representatives from Hamilton, Wilson, Keeth and Longwood elementary were at the rally.

According to school district officials, the principals, all but one of whom has been at their present school for at least nine years, were transferred because "it's time for a change."

The principals are preparing for the moves, which were announced Wednesday evening, though they won't become official until the school board votes on the issue at Tuesday evening's board meeting.

Shea said that while many of the parents opposed the moves based on their allegiance to a particular principal, the overriding concern with the majority of those in attendance was the timing of the moves.

"Everything is already in a crisis right now," she said. "Because of budget cuts and personnel cutbacks, morale is very low. This is not the time to be adding to that."

Kathy Yakubchik, out-going president of the Longwood Elementary School PTA, agreed.

"He (principal David Scott) is our anchor," she said. "This is not the time to take him away. It's not that we don't think that Mr. Gager would do a good job. We just don't think this is the time for this kind of change."

Carem Gager, currently principal of Hamilton Elementary in Sanford, has been recommended to replace Scott at Longwood.

The parents are making plans to attend the board meeting on Tuesday night with the hopes of being allowed to express their views on the matter.

The meeting will be at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the district boardroom, 1211 Mellonville Ave., Sanford.

Wolf is real

The Bush White House, which has presided over the largest four-year addition to the national debt in history, has now decided that balancing the federal budget is a snap.

When Rep. Leon Panetta, chairman of the House Budget Committee, says that balancing the budget will inflict political pain, he's just "crying wolf," the White House contends. Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters that the nation can meet the requirements of a balanced budget amendment without tax increases or cuts in "essential services."

Will someone please get that man a straitjacket?

Supporters of the balanced budget amendment to the Constitution want to be seen as deacons of fiscal responsibility but without having to step into church before this year's election. Panetta is one of a lonely few in public life calling for a little honesty. If balancing the budget is so important and so easy, Panetta asks, why not just do it right now?

The answer, as every budget expert knows, is that balancing the budget is as difficult, for politicians and citizens, as Panetta's recently released scenarios show.

How difficult? Well, imagine that the balanced budget amendment has been ratified and Washington is looking at the necessity of making income and outgo match in 1997, when the deficit, excluding the S&L bailout is projected to be $254 billion. Here's one scenario, touching all areas of federal spending, for meeting the amendment's requirement:

Defense. President Bush wants to bring down defense spending by 3 percent a year in real dollars. Instead, cut spending by 7 percent a year, resulting in a military force 20 percent smaller than Bush's plan. That saves $45 billion.

Domestic programs. Cancel the superconducting supercollider, the space exploration program and the space station. Eliminate funding for the arts, operating assistance for mass transit, postage subsidies for non-profit groups. Get rid of Small Business Administration loans, community development block grants and aid for waste-water treatment plants. Relax requirements that prevailing wages be paid on federal projects and reduce aid to college students. Savings: $13.5 billion.

Entitlements: Make users of federal land and water pay the full cost of their use. Cut farm subsidies by half. Make broadcasters pay a royalty on the use of the public airwaves. Charge air travelers the full cost of the air traffic control system.

Reduce Medicare payments to hospitals and Medicare subsidies to higher-income people. Cap the tax exclusion for employer-provided health insurance. Align federal pensions with the private sector. End disability benefits to veterans and minor disabled. Fully tax Social Security benefits for higher-income beneficiaries. Cut welfare and food stamp spending by one-third. Entitlement savings: $82.7 billion.

Taxes. Cap the mortgage interest deduction at $20,000 a year. Double cigarette taxes. Reduce the deduction for business meals and entertainment. Impose a 50-cents-per-gallon tax on gasoline. New revenues: $56.68 billion.

Far from being easy, those budget moves would galvanize the opposition of every special interest group and lobby in the nation. Yet they would still leave the budget more than $50 billion short of being balanced.

Voters may say they worry about the budget deficit, but they have yet to show they are ready to do the things necessary to get rid of it. That's why Washington would rather pass a symbolic balanced budget amendment than actually tackle the real work of taming the deficit.

It's Perot power vs. tipping power

Coming out of one of the wildest, free-swinging primary days ever, this country is on a collision course with two diametric trends: Perot power and tipping-point power.

Everybody — including even Dan Quayle — knows that "Perot power" represents a Texas billionaire's successful courtship of an unenchanted middle-class electorate.

Tipping-point power is a little more tricky to understand, but usually means a population threshold that can "tip" the balance of power.

In schools and neighborhoods, the "tipping point" is an irreversible point that causes a predominantly white school or neighborhood to soon become predominantly black.

To most whites, integration is fine, as long as it works. That usually means stabilizing the percentage of blacks somewhere around the national average of 12 percent.

But when too many blacks move into a neighborhood, a mysterious "tipping point" causes whites to start moving out faster than a Michael Jordan shooting spree. Nobody knows the precise numerical tipping point. It's a feeling, a perception.

So is Perot power. The average Perot supporter can't logically explain his or her alienation from both Democratic Clinton or Republican Bush: Perot supporters don't even know what Perot stands for!

But Perot supporters do believe that neither of the two presidential insiders is capable of fixing a broken political system.

That's why Americans voted for California outsider Ronald Reagan in 1980. But he promptly became a Beltway insider and shafted them unmercifully during his second term.

Reagan's betrayal still didn't shake California's faith in political outsiders. So, they've just nominated two — not one, but two — women as the Democratic candidates for Senate.

In politics, women and blacks are supreme outsiders. A black woman candidate is a V.I.P. (very important person) outsider. A black woman REPUBLICAN candidate is the ultimate outsider.

In North Carolina, one of the two black women congressional candidates is an ultimate outsider who will lose — not because God isn't on her side, too, but because her district is too Democratic.

To most whites, integration is fine, as long as it works.

For H. Ross Perot, getting the power to tip the scales in his direction is easy. All he needs are enough electoral votes to keep Bush or Clinton from getting a majority and thereby forcing the House of Representatives to choose a president.

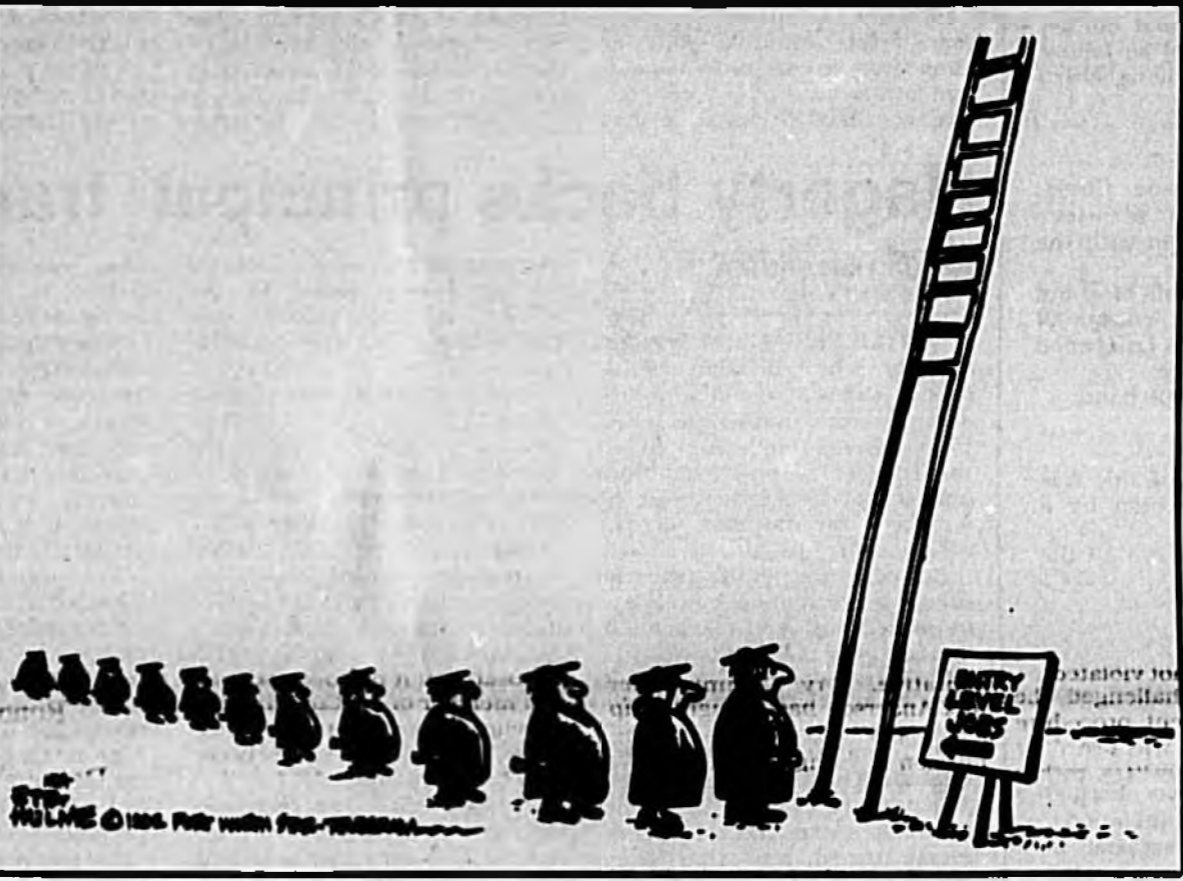

For blacks and women, the politics of the tipping point means a redistribution of power away from the white male hegemony. Conceivably, although not likely, as many as 40 blacks can be elected to the House and as many as four more women can join the world's most powerful white male sanctuary, the U.S. Senate.

A 9 percent-black House and a 6 percent-woman Senate would drastically change votes on two polarizing issues — abortion and gun control.

Voters are really looking for stability, predictability and, most important of all, REASSURANCE.

Even though Perot power tends to cut across gender and ethnic lines, it is still — way down deep — an expression of the Bubba mentality, the quintessential white male who needs a reaffirmation of his historical worth to society.

The most exciting aspect of the new Perot power and the rising tipping points for women and minorities is that they represent two diametric trends that can only invigorate democracy if they lock political horns in 1995.

Postal probe at Rostenkowski's door

WASHINGTON — Nothing makes a prosecutor happier than when a little fish says, "Give me immunity, and I'll bring you a big fish." Sources close to the U.S. attorney's office for the District of Columbia say that is exactly what happened in a key investigation on Capitol Hill.

They say that investigators explained to House Post Office employee James Smith that they had sufficient evidence to prosecute him on multiple charges. In turn, Smith is said to have offered them a big fish — Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., powerful chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens has been investigating alleged irregularities within the House Post Office, including the reported sale of drugs by employees; misuse and possible embezzlement of funds and stamps; and violations of various postal regulations.

Sources say that, early on, Stephens broadened the investigation to include long-standing rumors that House members buy large blocks of stamps back in their home districts with campaign funds, transport the stamps back to Washington, and then have friendly House Post Office staffers convert them back into cash. In this way, a candidate can launder campaign funds into money for personal use.

Initially, a primary target of the investigation was former House Post Office employee Wendell Magruder, who has since been charged with a drug-related conspiracy. Reportedly, he led investigators to Smith, who, indirectly, was his boss.

Smith is a longtime House Post Office employee whose title is Assistant to the Postmaster — Accountable Papers. He earns $54,657 annually. His job was supervising all counter clerks and ensuring that they had adequate supplies of stamps and cash. He was also in charge of the vault where large amounts of stamps and cash are stored.

According to the sources, Smith offered details of alleged irregularities in exchange for a grant of immunity. When asked what kind of irregularities, he started prosecutors by telling them he had directly exchanged cash for House payment vouchers. After immunity was granted, Smith told prosecutors that one of the members he did it for was Rostenkowski.

Rostenkowski has denied knowledge of any impropriety. He says he cannot speak in detail yet because it is an ongoing matter before a grand jury.

Smith is said by sources to have told prosecutors that he was ordered by a "superior" to take cash to Rostenkowski's office. He was told he would eventually get a voucher authorizing the money to be deducted from the office expense account. He has told investigators that the dollar amounts ranged from a few hundred to a maximum of about $2,000 on any one occasion.

Reportedly, Smith has named Post Office Chief of Staff Joanna O'Rourke as that supervisor. O'Rourke, who earns $82,881 a year, has been hospitalized following major surgery. Her lawyer says she will cooperate fully with investigators as soon as she is physically able.

Stephens has subpoenaed Rostenkowski's office expense vouchers from May 1986 until the present. Reportedly, Rostenkowski's office spent almost $22,000 on stamps during that period. A review of duplicates kept on microfilm as public records shows that in 1990 and 1991 Rostenkowski charged his expense account about $6,000 for postage, including several purchases in the $2,000 range.

The $22,000, or about $4,000-a-year, has startled Capitol Hill observers. Congressional offices send the bulk of their mail free by utilizing franking privileges. House rules actually stipulate that a member should only use postage stamps to send foreign mail or for special postal services like Express Mail or registered mail. Under this arrangement the average congressman spends about $1,000 a year on postage. There has been no explanation offered as to why Rostenkowski's office needed to spend so much on non-franked mail.

Prosecutors admit this is a difficult investigation. Typically House expense vouchers are prepared by staffers. Then the member's required signature is affixed with a rubber stamp. So it may prove very difficult to tie Rostenkowski himself to any of the transactions.

In issuing the subpoena, Stephens' office required that the vouchers be handled carefully to "preserve forensic evidence." This means fingerprints. Reportedly, the vouchers will be examined to see if it can be determined whose fingerprints are on them.

In addition to Rostenkowski's expense records, Stephens' office has also asked for the records of Rep. Joe Killee, D-Pa., and Rep. Austin Murphy, D-Pa. Both made unusually large purchases of stamps.

The average congressman spends about $1,000 a year on postage.

Individualists do battle in Maryland

WASHINGTON — Amid the remote fishing villages and farm towns of the Chesapeake Bay, one of the more intriguing races for the House of Representatives has just tipped off. It pits a former high-school teacher, itinerant house painter and a man whose personal story sounds like something akin to Grizzly Adams against a 6-foot-11 basketball star and Rhodes scholar.

This race features Rep. Wayne T. Gilchrest R-Md., a free spirit who got into politics because he needed a job, against Tom McMillen, D-Md., a professional basketball player-turned-politician who has his eye on bigger political trophies.

If home-court advantage means anything, then Gilchrest has the edge as the one-term incumbent from Maryland's 1st District. On the other hand, McMillen enjoys a lopsided financial advantage. At the end of March, McMillen had $324,631 on hand to Gilchrest's $7,634 — 42 times as much.

McMillen will need it to penetrate the conservative Eastern Shore of Maryland, where he moved after getting redistricted. However, the new district does include 240,000 constituents from his old district.

When the dust settles next November, there may be more than 100 new faces in the House. There are more than two dozen races across the country that also feature incumbent vs. incumbent because of redistricting. But this one has been relatively subdued.

Neither man is very ideological nor did either bounce a check. There are no sex scandals or sleazy allegations animating this contest. Nor is there any great "wedge" issue defining the election such as abortion or gun control.

McMillen has been his own man, refusing to tow the party line on critical issues. He backed aid to the Nicaraguan contras and an amendment to the Constitution to ban physical desecration of the flag, views that will sit well with the largely conservative district. He also has supported the 1990 budget-summit agreement, a raise in the minimum wage and voted for giving Congress a pay raise and revised its ethics rules.

Gilchrest has deviated from the GOP on issues ranging from the environment to family planning and McMillen is looking to capitalize on Gilchrest's inexperience and his own effectiveness. A spokesman for McMillen said that Gilchrest "has been an ineffective legislator." The spokesman also said that McMillen has gotten numerous complaints from local elected officials that Gilchrest has not been responsive to their concerns.

The GOP is still not sanguine about Gilchrest, questioning his fire-in-the-belly determination to fight hard this fall in what's expected to be a tight race. Four nights a week, Gilchrest leaves Washington and drives more than two hours to tuck his 9-year-old daughter into bed. GOP strategists would rather see him campaigning 20 hours a day, seven days a week, according to Gilchrest.

"I make it home as often as I can to be with my family," he says. "People aren't going to refuse to vote for me just because they don't see me at every single (fund-raiser) known to mankind, shaking hands like any other politician. I can't be a dog on a leash."

What happens if that spells defeat in November? "I'd like to raise sheep in New Zealand, spend a few months in Antarctica, or maybe I'll become a Methodist minister," Gilchrest said.

"This (Washington) is the most alien place I've ever known," Gilchrest said.

When the dust settles next November, there may be more than 100 new faces in the House.

Water management takes action in Lake Forest

By J. MARK SANFORD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Officials with the St. Johns River Water Management District will allow developers of Lake Forest to place nearly 43,000 cubic yards of dirt in wetlands without requiring additional compensation.

In other action this week, the district governing board fined Lake Forest developers Orlando-Lake Forest Joint Venture $8,434 because 500 planted trees died and for other district permit violations.

The district governing board agreed with the request by Orlando-Lake Forest to allow construction in about 35 acres without imposing additional requirements and voted unanimously to approve a construction permit.

Orlando-Lake Forest had already agreed to donate or preserve hundreds of acres of wetlands at the confluence of the Wekiva and Little Wekiva Rivers and to preserve some of the wetlands in the exclusive development on State Road 46 west of Interstate 4.

"They agreed that was adequate," said Pat Frost, manager of the district office in Water Park. Although the 35 acres in question did not previously fall under state jurisdiction, they did fall under district and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers jurisdiction, said Frost.

In return for district and federal permission to build in them, Orlando-Lake Forest offered to preserve 71 acres of forested wetlands on the site and give the district 1,350 acres where the Wekiva and Little Wekiva Rivers meet.

The board also issued a consent order imposing $8,434 in fines to Orlando-Lake Forest. The order requires the developers to replace 500 trees that died two years ago due to natural conditions. The order also requires the developers to make regular lake water quality tests that had not been submitted under prior requirements.

Although the trees had died more than two years ago, Pat Gasaway, Orlando-Lake Forest vice president said the replanting was delayed because he hoped the gases in the soil that killed the trees would dissipate.

Gasaway said an engineering study has been done and a site where the gases did not occur will be used for the replanted trees.

Tree planting planned for this fall

By MARK SANFORD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A big citrus tree planting is scheduled for this fall. Lake Jessup Groves, Inc., will begin work on part of 270 acres leased from the City of Sanford.

Meanwhile, six proposals have been submitted for the use of much of the remaining property. The City of Sanford owns approximately 1,000 acres of land near Geneva. Its main purpose is for wastewater discharge.

While the city determined earlier this year that a portion of it could produce an income if it were leased to a citrus farming operation, the use of the remainder of the property is yet to be determined.

According to City Manager Bill Simmons, "We have received six proposals to date that we will consider. Two," he said, "are from people wanting to establish a hay farm, two are for cattle pastures, one is for a golf course, and one is from a person who is a consultant who said he would manage the property in any way the city sees fit."

Simmons said, "The City will be scheduling meetings with people who have submitted each proposal before we bring the matter up for the City Commission's consideration."

Simmons explained, "Except for the hay field, which has already been approved, we would have to discuss any change in plans with the Department of Environmental Regulations before considering any of the others."

The matter is expected to be brought before the Commission within a few more weeks according to Simmons.

Citrus farming however, is now in the extensive planning stages. Lake Jessup Groves, Inc., known as L.J.G., won approval to launch the citrus operation in February.

Since that time, L.J.G. has been working on citrus plans, while the City has been continuing the installation of the water pipes that will take the reclaimed water from Sanford, out Celery Avenue and S.R. 46, to the reclamation site.

Jeff Bales, with L.J.G., explained, "We have recently ordered about 11,200 citrus trees which we will be planting in the first 90 acres of the land we will be developing." He added, "The first group of trees include grapefruit, tangerines and navel oranges."

Bales explained, "Our first aim is to produce packing fruit, which will give us as well as the City the best return in the investment, in the shortest possible time."

The main work remaining to be accomplished at this point is the final installation of the water irrigation system. The City is responsible for installing the underground water pipes, after which L.J.G. will be responsible for the installation of the sprinkler system above ground.

The above-ground irrigation units to be installed is a recently developed "Micro-Jet" system, which is designed to give the maximum freeze protection to the trees.

Simmons projected, "All of the City's ground work for the irrigation should be done by October."

Bales said he expects the first cash crop to mature in the fall of 1988.

while he was out fishing."

Seminole County Sheriff's Office spokesman George Prochel said deputies frequently receive complaints from Lake Harney residents about night-time airboating. Deputies have found that many of the airboaters are "giggling" for frogs by coming close to shore and shining their lights on the frogs.

Prochel said the county has no way of enforcing state noise laws because it does not have sound monitors.

Miller said a group of Lake Harney residents first circulated a petition in 1987 and obtained about 120 names of lake-front residents opposed to the night-time boating. At the time, no one heeded the request, said Miller. After Kelley was elected in 1988, the residents approached her, she said.

Kelley said she first sought cooperation from Volusia County officials because the northern portion of the lake is in the neighboring county.

"I didn't want the boaters to say they were in Volusia and we couldn't do anything about it," said Kelley.

When Volusia County councilmen failed to produce an ordinance, Kelley said she asked staff about two months ago to prepare one. She said the ordinance, if approved, would prohibit airboating after dark and before dawn. Assistant county attorney Harlan Wright, who is writing the ordinance, refused to discuss provisions of the ordinance because it is in draft form.

Kelley said the Sheriff's Office would be primarily responsible for enforcing the provisions. Kelley said she would also seek enforcement from the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission.

Christy Meek encouraged her fellow students to continue their education, "either formally or informally."

She added that they needed to emphasize the positive.

"We have to make the decisions that are right for us," she said.

After the diplomas were distributed, the benediction was said and mortar boards were tossed skyward. Henley returned the students to their families.

"They are now Lyman High School graduates," he said. "Now they're yours."

Graduates then attended the school's Project Graduation at the Jewish Community Center. More than 300 of the students had purchased tickets for the drug and alcohol free celebration.

Longwood's CALNO representative, City Commissioner Rex Anderson had brought it up for discussion during a commission meeting last month. At that time, City Attorney Becky Voss explained the restriction placed by the Court on Commissioners who may be approached individually by constituents.

Longwood City Clerk Jeri Zambri explained, "Lake Mary has sent us a copy of their proposal, and it has been sent to each member of the Commission for their consideration."

The matter has since been placed on the agenda for the Longwood City Commission meeting, Monday night.

what was going on," said Lawrence.

Lawrence said the group will circulate a petition throughout the community opposing the southward shift of the tollroad. Although the residents prefer no express near their homes at all, they will accept a return to 1987 plans to build road along the current Airport Boulevard path between U.S. 17-92 and Live Oak Boulevard.

The group has scheduled another meeting June 22 at Sanford Civic Center. The meeting will be held from 7:15 p.m. until 8 p.m. Voter registration will be held from 6:30 p.m. until the meeting concludes.

Brinton announced in April expressway designers had found more than $13 million could be saved from land and construction costs by shifting the U.S. 17-92 to Live Oak Boulevard section of the road up to 200 feet south. The main savings were in the $9.5 million cost to buy Bridgewater Apartments and about $2.5 million to build a new Airport Boulevard section.

Former Florida federal judge appeals ouster

By LAWRENCE ARBON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Former U.S. District Judge Alcee Hastings' 1989 Senate impeachment trial was unconstitutional because he had been acquitted earlier of similar charges in criminal court, his lawyer has told a federal judge.

But an attorney for the Senate argued Tuesday that impeachment is a separate process in which courts have little power to intervene.

"This is at bottom a political process," said attorney Morgan J. Frankel, who urged U.S. District Judge Stanley Sporkin to dismiss Hastings' lawsuit seeking reinstatement to the bench.

Hastings, an Altamonte Springs native and Florida's first black federal judge, was convicted by the Senate on Oct. 20, 1989, of eight impeachment articles charging him with perjury and conspiracy to obtain a $150,000 payoff.

He was acquitted of bribery and conspiracy charges in a 1983 criminal trial. He had been accused of plotting with William Borders, once a prominent Washington attorney, to obtain a bribe from two brothers who were defendants in a criminal case before Hastings.

Frankel said the Constitution gives the Senate final authority to decide impeachment cases within a few limits, such as the requirement for a two-thirds vote for conviction.

The fact that Hastings was acquitted in criminal court should not insulate him from impeachment, the Senate lawyer said.

But Hastings' lawyer, Stephanie Moore, said, "The Senate does not have absolute power to determine how it is to try an impeachment."

The Constitution allows only judges who were convicted in criminal court to be impeached, she said, adding that courts have a role in assuring that impeachment defendants' due process rights are not violated.

Hastings also challenged the Senate impeachment procedure because testimony was heard by a 12-member committee rather than the full Senate.

A federal appeals court in July 1991 rejected a similar claim by former U.S. District Judge Walter L. Nixon of Mississippi, saying his impeachment conviction was not a matter for the courts. That ruling is being appealed to the Supreme Court.

But Hastings' case is different, Sporkin said.

"Here's the first case that you have where a jury has acquitted a judge ... that they have impeached that judge," the judge said. "...It's a fascinating case, obviously."

Sporkin said that no matter which way he rules on Hastings' case, he hoped an appeal would get to the Supreme Court in time to be argued with Nixon's case.

Seniors at Lyman bid farewell

383 diplomas were awarded Thursday

Herald Photos by E. Mark Spear

Todd Davis, Bill Dalley, Jeff Curtis, Richard Coughlin and Chris Cotton are pretty happy about graduation day.

Len Roberson translates the national anthem using hand signals for hearing impaired.

Seth Benjamin Hallman receives his diploma from Carlton Henley.

A little rain didn't dampen the spirits of the crowd.

Umbrellas sprung open in the packed bleachers at Lyman High School Thursday evening shielding heads of friends and family undaunted by the rain. They had come to see Lyman seniors graduate.

The traditional processional, "Pomp and Circumstance," was followed by the invocation and the national anthem.

After a chorus of "It's so Hard to Say Goodbye," Ginny Mercurio, Rema Aneja and N. Christy Meek spoke to the audience and graduates about "Making Your Dreams a Reality." Mercurio advised grads to "learn from experience." Aneja encouraged them to "create opportunities," and Meek invited them to "develop confidence."

Principal Carlton Henley presented diplomas prior to the benediction and recessional.

Leading their class were senior officers Melissa Johnson, president; Fada Concepcion, vice president; Lisa Strayer, secretary and Danielle Freeman, treasurer.

Garbage-fine hearing set by county

By J. MARK SANDFORD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County will hold a public hearing June 23 to answer an appeal of $5,250 in fines against DisposAll Inc. for six violations of the county garbage regulations, including emptying recycling bins from Geneva into a household garbage truck.

County officials levied the fines in three separate letters mailed to DisposAll officials in April and May. DisposAll's attorney, Andrew Sawwen, responded May 19 by asking for the appeal. Sawwen charged the county had failed to notify DisposAll officials in a timely manner.

Eugene Calabrese of DisposAll in Orlando did not return calls.

According to county documents, a county solid waste staffer reported seeing a DisposAll crew empty a recycling bin from a Sutton Trail home into their garbage truck, then drive to Orange City where household garbage from a mobile home park was dumped into the truck. The truck then returned to the Seminole County Sanlando Transfer Station in Altamonte Springs to unload the waste.

On April 7, county staff saw another DisposAll crew pass by two recycling bins, one on Sutton Trail and another on Occochee Road, without emptying them. DisposAll's trucks have plastic barrels attached to separate recyclable materials, according to the reports.

On April 14, county sleuths reported seeing a DisposAll crew empty a recycling bin placed beside Ransom Trail in Geneva into their garbage truck along with household garbage. The truck was later emptied at the county dump.

On April 28, county staff reported seeing a DisposAll truck empty one recycling bin into the garbage truck on Scooter Point then proceed to a house on East Occochee Road where the contents of a plastic garbage bag was emptied into the truck. The staffer reported the DisposAll employee then emptied a recycling bin into the empty bag and toss it into the garbage truck.

On May 5, solid waste employees report seeing a DisposAll crew empty recyclables from two homes, on Scooter Point and East Occochee Road, into the garbage truck and take them to the garbage dump. Also, the county watchdogs reported seeing the crew toss a garbage bag into the truck at 8:15 p.m. The county limits garbage collection to the hours between 6 a.m. to 8 p.m.

DisposAll was fined $1,000 for each day a recycling and garbage mix was reported and $50 when the bag of garbage was tossed into the truck after 8 a.m.

Zoo offers programs for summer

SANFORD — New summer classes are being arranged at the Central Florida Zoo. Three classes will be aimed at children and 5 years of age.

The classes will be one hour long, between 9 and 10 a.m., and be offered twice each.

The three courses are, "Trunks and Tails & Wings and Things," to be presented on July 9 and Aug. 13; "Curious Critters," on July 10 and Aug. 19; and "Good Night," on July 16 and Aug. 12.

All three classes involve an up-close animal encounter, and adventure program and a craft project which the children can take home.

Marketing Coordinator Andrea Farmer explained, "Children may enroll for one, two, or all three classes." She added, "They can pick one of the two days for each class, but we have to limit the number to 25 children per class, so advance reservations will be on a first come, first served basis."

The cost will be $5 per class for sociological society members, and $7 for non-members.

Enrollments are now being accepted for one or all of the classes. The Central Florida Zoological Park is located at 3765 Highway 17-02, just east of Interstate 4 exit #52. Phone: 323-4450.

Bush: U.S. environmental leader

By MOTHS
Associated Press Writer

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — President Bush is joining the biggest summit on Earth, mingling with presidents, kings and prime ministers in an effort to reclaim the initiative on world environmental protection.

Bush came to the Earth Summit early today after a week of sustained pummeling by most of the 178 nations participating. Governments were angered by the U.S. attitude towards the summit, especially its refusal to sign a landmark treaty protecting the diversity of wildlife species in the world's forests.

"There is a generalized feeling of resentment against President Bush," Brazil's education minister and environment minister, Jose Goldemberg, said in an interview Thursday.

"Most delegates, who will obviously receive the American president in a respectful manner, are disappointed in him because of his refusal to sign the biological diversity treaty," Goldemberg said.

In a brief address to the summit today, Bush planned to trumpet the record of the United States as a leader of environmental protection programs for more than 30 years. But he also was stressing the need to strike a balance between environmental protection and economic growth.

Bush, celebrating his 68th birthday today, found himself in the unprecedented position of being odd-man-out at an international gathering. He arrived here under heavy security, just hours after a brief visit to Panama.

There is a generalized feeling of resentment against President Bush.

—Brazil's education minister and environment minister, Jose Goldemberg

In Panama City, Bush was unable to deliver a planned speech at a downtown park when police used tear gas to rout anti-American protesters.

European delegates to the Earth Summit, while understanding Bush's election-year concerns for jobs at home, said the United States had abandoned its environmental leadership.

And delegates from the world's developing countries said the United States and other industrialized nations were exploiting their natural resources without paying them enough, and polluting while expecting the Third World to help pay for the cleanup.

Bush was expected to hear some of those concerns at a luncheon that was to include international conservationists from Africa and South America, as well as celebrities such as French oceanographer-explorer Jacques Cousteau.

Before leaving for the summit Thursday, Bush struck a defiant tone, saying the United States would not sign the biodiversity treaty because it would stunt the growth of pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies.

But he also asked for understanding from the other delegates, striking a conciliatory stance in a written message issued on the eve of his arrival.

"It is only with the cooperation of all nations that we can preserve humankind's most precious common asset, the Earth," he said.

Bush aides planned to highlight his signing today of the other summit centerpiece treaty, which calls for signatories to limit gas emissions believed to cause global warming.

But critics are angry at Bush for insisting on — and getting — a watered-down treaty that doesn't hold signatories to specific emissions reductions.

The European nations had wanted to limit emissions to 1990 levels by 2000. But the Bush administration, with the recession and loss of jobs very much on its mind, rejected the demand as too costly for business.

Instead, Bush was stressing several plans to increase forestation around the world to help stem carbon dioxide emissions.

Bush also planned to repeat his call for doubling the aid from the industrialized world to $2.7 billion to help poorer countries plant more trees and stop the loss of their forests.

Before Bush's arrival, U.S. delegation leader William Reilly announced a $1.4 billion fund to monitor climate change and a plan to assess the world's plant and animal species.

But the $1.4 billion was part of the budget plan Bush submitted to Congress at the start of the year, and the White House already has announced the proposal for cataloging the world's plant and animals.

● Marathon negotiations sought to wrap up treaties as President Bush and other heads of state arrived for the summit's climax. Final sticking points included a treaty to protect the world's forests, and a policy statement that would commit developed nations to provide environmental aid to the Third World in specific amounts by specific dates.

● The chief U.S. delegate, William Reilly, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, said Thursday the Bush administration will sign the so-called global warming treaty and send it quickly to the Senate for ratification.

In addition, the administration will set aside $1.4 billion to research and monitor the climate change phenomenon, he said.

● Haiti's ambassador to the United Nations, Fritz Longchamp, said the environment in that Caribbean island nation is in "extreme chaos."

It is almost barren of trees, arable land is insufficient to feed the population of 6.5 million and drinking water is in short supply, he said Thursday.

The problems are reflected in health statistics. Thirteen of every 100 children die before they reach their first birthday. The average adult male lives only to the age of 45.

● President Bush, whose appearance in Panama on Thursday provoked a near riot, can expect a chilly welcome at the U.N. Earth Summit, delegates said.

"There is a generalized feeling of resentment against President Bush," Brazil's education minister and environment minister, Jose Goldemberg, said.

Bush's negotiators watered down or refused to sign pacts to clean up the environment.

Panama: Roots of protests running deep

By JOSEPH B. FRASER
Associated Press Writer

PANAMA CITY, Panama — On a street littered with debris from anti-Bush demonstrations, Sergio Montenegro Ruiz lit a half-smoked cigarette and considered America.

He would like to go to school in the United States one day — electronics, maybe — even though he had just spent three hours Thursday shouting insults against his president.

Montenegro Ruiz, who works as a clerk and attends night school, said he sees no discrepancy. "America isn't bad. But it won't let Panama be Panama and I am a Panamanian, and with pride," he said.

The demonstrations during President Bush's visit Thursday have roots that go back decades. Many here believe America's close ties with Panama and military presence in the isthmus-nation have created a dependency that undermines their own sovereignty.

The feeling peaks from time to time.

On Thursday it was triggered by memories of the 1989 U.S. military invasion, which Bush ordered to capture dictator Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega. At least 333 Panamanians died in the fighting. Some put the figure much higher.

"The killer always returns to the scene of the crime," said a flyer from the Association of University of Panama Professors.

Yet like Montenegro Ruiz, Panamanians reveal ambiguous feelings about the United States.

Polls still show most favor keeping the 10,000 American troops in their country past the end of the century, when by treaty they are to be withdrawn.

The U.S. presence has raised the standard of living. Withdrawal of the troops will cost about 12,000 jobs in a country where unemployment is endemic.

President Guillermo Endara's office thanked Panamanians for their good behavior during the Bush visit, saying it was "lamentable" that small groups tied to Noriega "impeded the happy culmination of the ceremonies through which the Panamanian community wanted to show its togetherness with the North American leader."

During Bush's visit, officially invited crowds cheered in the square where Bush sat. Small groups of well-wishers formed along motorcade route.

Panamanians danced in the streets when the United States carted Noriega off to Miami to face drug-trafficking charges. He was later convicted.

Today, many of the same people who quietly yearned for an American invasion in 1989 feel they have been treated shabbily.

Some shopkeepers still are filing lawsuits, claiming the United States is liable for the tens of millions of dollars they lost to civilian looters. U.S. appeals courts have ruled there is no liability.

Family members of political prisoners arrested after the fighting blame their plight on Bush.

The United States helped Panama break away from Colombia in 1903 so it could negotiate a deal to build the Panama Canal.

SunRays' Doldrums continue

JACKSONVILLE — Jacksonville's Troy Kent pitched out of trouble Thursday to preserve a 4-3 Southern League victory over Orlando.

Kent entered in the ninth to relieve Fernando Figueroa with the Suns leading 4-2 and two runners on, and allowed only one run scoring to preserve the victory. It was Kent's ninth save.

Starter Mark Czarkowski pitched five innings and left with a 4-0 lead. It was his first win in his first start since coming off the disabled list.

Jacksonville scored four times in the third off Curtis Leskanic on a walk to Brian Turang and singles by Jim Bowie, Frank Bolick, Anthony Manahan and Ovedo's Mark Merchant and an error.

Dunne takes Amateur lead

BOYNTON BEACH — Mary Dunne settled down after an erratic start to post her second straight par-72 Thursday in the Florida Ladies Amateur Championship.

At 144, Dunne, a senior-to-be on the University of Miami golf team, takes a six-stroke lead into the final round over 1990 Florida Ladies Amateur winner Dede Hoffman of Naples.

Hoffman, 52, has a pair of 75s for 150.

Tammy Bowman and Peggy Brass, both of Orlando, are third and fourth with 151 and 152, respectively. Tied for fifth at 154 are Janice Golden, Delray Beach, and Debbie Adams, Palm Beach Gardens, with 78 and 79.

Marlins ink TV deal

MIAMI — The Florida Marlins have completed over-the-air and cable television broadcast rights deals, the National League expansion club announced Thursday.

The over-the-air deal was signed with Miami's WBFS-TV Channel 33, and the cable rights went to the Sunshine Network, said Marlins' spokesman Dean Jordan.

WBFS will televise 52 games each season over the next four years. Each year, the station will broadcast two pre-season games, the Marlins' home opener, and 49 road games.

The Sunshine Network, with 3.1 million subscribers across Florida, will air 63 Marlins games each of the ball club's first four seasons: three pre-season games, 20 road games and 40 home games each year.

Churches do battle

Softball tourney wraps up Saturday

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — It's nitty-gritty time for the Sanford Church Softball League.

The Church League will conclude its double-elimination Spring Tournament (weather permitting) tomorrow at Chase and Lee P. Moore Parks with 12 teams remaining from the original 15 that started the tournament last Saturday.

Four of the 12 teams are still undefeated, including the top three seeds.

Still undefeated are No. 1 seed and regular season Competitive Division champion Sanford Church of God of Prophecy, No. 2 seed and defending Spring Tournament champion, Sanford First United Methodist, No. 3 seed Sanford Church of God and Sanford Christian "Red," which upset No. 4 seed Sanford First Nazarene last week.

Also left in the tournament, with one loss each, are Markham Woods Baptist, Geneva First Baptist, the Lake Mary Nativity Catholic "Disciples", St. Stephen Catholic of Winter Springs, Sanford First Nazarene, Holy Cross Lutheran of Lake Mary, Sanford Central Baptist and Lake Mary Grace Christian.

There will be at least 14 games played Saturday, five games at Lee P. Moore Park and seven games at Chase Park. A 15th game, if necessary, will be played at Chase Park.

Four elimination games will open the day's action. At 8:30 a.m., at Chase Park, Markham Woods Baptist will play Geneva First Baptist and, at Lee P. Moore Park, First Nazarene will face Holy Cross Lutheran. At 9:30 a.m., at Chase, the Nativity "Disciples" will take on St. Stephen Catholic and, at Lee P. Moore, Central Baptist will challenge Grace Christian.

The Winner's Bracket games will take place at 10:30 a.m. Prophecy will welcome Sanford Christian "Red" at Chase Park and First Methodist will battle Church of God at Lee P. Moore Park.

The winner of the Markham Woods-Geneva game will play the winner of the Disciples-St. Stephen game at Chase Park at 11:30 a.m. and the winner of the Nazarene-Holy Cross game will play the Central-Grace winner at 11:30 a.m. at Lee P. Moore Park.

The winners of the 11:30 a.m. games will play the losers of the 10:30 a.m. games at 12:30 p.m. at Chase and Lee P. Moore.

All games after 12:30 p.m. will be played at Chase Park with the Winner's Bracket final being played at 1:30 p.m. There will also be games at 2:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. with the Championship Game set for 4:30 p.m. and the "if necessary" game scheduled for 5:30 p.m.

Normally considered to be one of the most demanding positions to play on the diamond, DeLand Nissan shortstop Rob Jeffries had to make just this one defensive play in a 13-7 win over Ed Bussard's Pro Base Guide.

Leaders survive long ball barrage

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The wind must have been blowing out Thursday night.

A total of five home runs were hit during play in the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Slowpitch Softball League at Pinehurst Park.

On top of that, three other players were retired for hitting a ball over the fence after their team had already used its one permitted home run for a total of eight balls leaving the yard in three games.

In the process, the two league leaders — Gators and Florida Sportswear/Church of God — both had to come from behind to win

Bussard's Pro Base Guide	001	000	1	-	7	10
DeLand Nissan	100	040	8	-	10	17
Gators	001	010	0	-	14	17
First Baptist	001	010	0	-	11	10
Stetson-Stump Const.	000	010	1	-	7	13
Fla. Sportswear/Ch. of God	000	001	0	-	0	10

their games and remain tied for first.

After DeLand Nissan beat Ed Bussard's Pro Base Guide 13-7, Gators outslugged First Baptist of Sanford 14-11. Florida Sportswear/Church of God then edged Stetson-Stump Construction 8-7.

Gary Stephan, who had two singles, a run and two RBIs, and every one of his nine DeLand Nissan teammates had a hit and scored a run in their win over Ed Bussard's Pro Base Guide. Eight of the 10 also had at least one RBI.

Summer a chance for athletes to go camping

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — While summer vacation for most children is made up of part-time jobs, sleeping and going to the beach, the same can not be said for would-be athletes. For them, summer vacation is a time to go to camp.

There will be a summer camp offered for almost every sport over the next month and a half. Among them are camps offered by high schools, colleges and athletic organizations.

On the high school level, Seminole High School will hold a basketball camp, while Lake Mary High School is offering a soccer camp.

On the collegiate level, the University of Central Florida in Orlando is offering a football camp, Valencia Community College in Orlando is hosting a fastpitch softball camp and Stetson University in DeLand is offering basketball (both men and women), baseball, volleyball and soccer camps.

Also being offered is a baseball camp at Wes Rinker's Florida Baseball Schools in the Sanford Memorial Stadium and the 24th Annual Little League Baseball Camp at the Southern Regional Headquarters in St. Petersburg.

In alphabetical order:

BASEBALL
 • Wes Rinker's Florida Baseball School will be offering summer baseball classes for players between the ages of 8 and 18 beginning on June 15.

The 8-to-12 age group will meet June 15-17 from 8:30 a.m. to noon. The cost is $65 per camper.

The 13-to-18 age group will meet June 15-19 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Cost is $65 each.

All classes will be conducted at Sanford Memorial Stadium. Registration for the 10-week fall class is also now available.

For more information about these or any of the other Florida Baseball School offerings, call 1-800-346-1877.

• In St. Petersburg, Little League Baseball, Inc. will hold its 24th Annual camp at the Southern Regional Headquarters at 658 - 58th Street South. Vacancies are still available for the session scheduled to start July 8th and July 19th. For an application and complete information call (813) 344-2661 or write: Little League Baseball, P.O. Box 13366, St. Petersburg, FL 33733.

• Stetson will hold an All-Star camp and a teaching camp.

The All-Star camp, open to high school freshmen, sophomores and juniors, from June 28-July 3. Due to NCAA regulations, players that have started classes in grade 12 are not eligible for the camp.

The teaching camp that includes boarding facilities will be staged for players aged 8-17 from July 12-17, and a teaching day camp for non-boarders will be held from July 20-24.

The cost for boarders at both the All-Star and teaching camp is $250 and the fee for day campers is $100. For additional information and material to complete camp application form, contact Pete Dunn at (904) 822-8120.

LET US REPLENISH THE SEED OF FAITH THROUGH ... Regular Church Attendance

"WE NEED THE RAIN..."

It was a gray afternoon as five year old Lisa pressed her nose against the windowpane, gloomily watching as the rain continued to fall... and fall... and fall. Lisa sighed, "Dad, I wish the rain would just go away, so I can go outside and play." "But sweetheart," replied Lisa's father, "We need the rain so that the flowers and the trees can grow."

Perhaps we do need the "rain"... the gray times in our lives... for if we have trust in the Creator of all things, we realize that when the rain stops and the sun breaks through the clouds, we, too, shall have grown stronger as our soul blossoms with our faith in God.

Though our faith is strong, being human, we may, at times, need temporary respite from the storm. Seek shelter in the house of the Lord, as His house is "founded upon the rock," (Matt.7:25) We need not fear the rain.

Drug abuse will affect new child

DEAR DR. GOTT: My wife is expecting our first child in six months. I smoke hashish and/or marijuana daily and have done so for the past 12 years. My wife does not usually smoke-up. Will my habit affect the development of our baby?

DEAR READER: Yes, it will -- but not in the way you possibly think.

had a great 12 years. Lots of laughs. Now, I suggest, is a good time to grow up, accept the wonderful responsibility of fatherhood, stop using and become the kind of guy your child can look up to.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Help II -- Substance Abuse & Mental Health." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369.

PETER GOTT, M.D.

Judging from your question, I assume you're asking if your use of a mind-altering substance will physically harm your baby. The answer is: probably not. Early investigations indicting marijuana as a cause of abnormal sperm have not been confirmed. I am not aware of any recent studies proving that mild/moderate marijuana use (by either the father or the mother) will cause physical damage to an unborn child.

But consider this: Your continued smoking may harm your child because the youngster is going to be raised in a family where there is substance abuse. "Hey!" you retort, "get outta my face. I'm no drug addict!"

Well, reader, that's debatable. The daily use of a mind-altering substance -- be it alcohol, grass or hash -- is considered by many authorities to be abuse, indicating an addiction. You may honestly believe you are smoking socially, just to unwind, or for whatever reason. But I'm suggesting that your daily habit is just that: a habit. A bad habit. The drug is going to change your thinking and behavior. (If not, what's the point of using it?)

A portion of your daily activity is going to be devoted to obtaining the drug. And this ain't like going to the corner liquor store; marijuana is illegal. You've got to pay for it (unless you're dealing or growing it -- topics for another lecture). And your kid is going to grow up seeing you get high and learning that it's OK to engage in this behavior because Dad does it.

Do you really want to be this kind of role model? Hey, you've

In bridge, as in all walks of life, there are players who keep their heads firmly in the clouds. They expect the most absurd errors from their opponents. Of course sometimes their expectations come to fruition. But most of the time it would be better for them to try to find a legitimate way to make or defeat a contract.

Cover the East and South hands. Against South's five-club contract, you lead the heart king: six, nine, five. How do you plan the defense?

North's two-heart cue-bid showed a good hand, probably with at least 13 points. His three-heart cue-bid was an unsuccessful attempt to get into three no-trump if South had a heart stopper.

At the table, West led out his three top hearts. But declarer ruffed the last with the club three, cashed the club king and finessed the club jack through West.

"What could we do?" asked West. "Unluckily for us, declarer guessed which way to take the trump finesse."

"But I was missing only 13 points," replied South.

A more resourceful West would have spotted that there was a chance for the defense -- if East could produce as little as the club four. After cashing two heart tricks, West should lead a low heart, hoping that East would realize what was expected of him. If East does ruff with the club four, West must eventually win a trump trick.

Please don't write in to explain that your partner would ruff with the club two. We all know about "the best-laid schemes o' mice an' men."

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 June 12, 1992

Your probabilities for fulfilling your ambitious objectives look very encouraging for the year ahead. The way you achieve your victories could be quite unique.

GENIUS (May 21-June 20) It would be a mistake today to let your emotions justify clinging to an unproductive decision. Don't be reluctant to alter what is illogical. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll function more effectively today and stand a better chance of achieving your objectives if you use flexible methods. Don't let others disrupt your routine.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might put too much stock in those who don't deserve it and not enough in friends of proven value today. Social disappointments are possible.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be careful today that you don't put yourself in an awkward position with others, where you feel compelled to stand by something in which you don't truly believe.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you sound off your latest ideas on the wrong people today, you're not likely to receive any feedback that could benefit you. They may not grasp your concepts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In several respects, this could be a profitable day for you -- if you rely on your common sense. Wishful thinking, on the other hand, could produce deficits.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Timing is extremely important today, so don't push something that presently lacks the support of individuals you need. Give them more time to appreciate your intentions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's best not to discuss your business secrets today in front of those you do not know well. There's a chance a mole might be one of the listeners.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you operate along traditional lines today, reasonable returns are likely. However, if you take uneducated risks, the results could be rather disappointing.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In order to be successful today, you must have a genuine liking for what you do. If your heart isn't in it, you might end up being an "also ran."

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Instead of using your imagination to enhance developments in a positive manner today, you might put your focus on the negative and induce a disappointing, self-fulfilling prophecy.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There could be ample opportunities of a material nature hovering about you today, but you might not capitalize on them properly, owing to an indifferent attitude on your behalf.
