

SPONSORS OF SALES TAX ARE ISSUED DEFY

Pat Harrison, Leader Of Opposition, Calls For Showdown Upon General Sales Levy

WASHINGTON, May 27.—(A.P.)—Advocates of a general sales tax were challenged in the Senate today by Senator Harrison, Mississippian, Democratic tax leader, for an immediate showdown as he shouted "You haven't got the votes". He accused President Hoover and sales tax advocates of attempting to "browbeat" the Senate into supporting the controversial sales levy after the Senate already voted enough levies to balance the budget.

As the Mississippian opened the debate on the 1.75 percent sales tax, leaders hurriedly checked their polls. Both sides claimed a victory but the most accurate poll available showed 46 of the 86 senators for it—less than the required majority.

Senator Dix, Democrat of Washington, characterized the New York Stock Exchange as a "rotting institution in which insiders use marked cards and loaded dice". He demanded a restoration of the House tax of one fourth of one percent on stock transfers.

In a driving finish, the Senate approved the remaining rate schedules of the revenue bill last night and reached the momentous dispute over the sales tax.

To speed the conclusion of the bill, Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, asked for a session on Monday—Memorial Day—when a vote is expected on the contest to substitute the 1.75 percent general sales levy for the numerous special excise taxes.

Almost $300,000,000 was put into the budget-balancing legislation in yesterday's session. Increases in the first and second class postal rates, involving $100,000,000 new revenue, and the two cents check tax, expected to yield $95,000,000, were accepted.

More than $40,000,000 was saved by a vote—the first of the session—on an attempt to exempt checks of five dollars and less from the two cents levy. Vice President Curtis without a moment of hesitation announced the 89 to 89 tie and declared the proposal lost. He did not vote.

Leaders of the fight against the sales levy opposed the five dollar exemption fearing the Senate would be driven to the sales levy to find the additional revenue if the $40,000,000 were lost.

Indictment in Curtis Case Believed Made

FLEMINGTON, May 28.—(A.P.)—An indictment, presumed to be against John Curtis, Norfolk hoaxer in the Lindbergh case, was handed by grand jury today to Justice Thomas Trenchard, who ordered it delivered to the quarter sessions of the court for further proceedings.

The grand jury heard evidence on the Curtis case Thursday and after it heard several witnesses and had seen Curtis' confession. Reports were current the indictment had been voted unanimously on the first ballot. This was not officially confirmed or denied.

Prosecutor Hauck would not say definitely that the indictment was returned against Curtis but said the "Curtis case will be tried not later than the week of June 27". As an indictment is necessary preliminary to a trial this statement was taken as positive corroboration of the belief the indictment was returned against Curtis.

WINE ACQUITTAL

NEW YORK, May 28.—(A.P.)—Joseph Brewster, state banking commissioner, was acquitted today of willful neglect of duty in failing to close the Bank of the United States sooner than he did. The verdict was greeted by cheers from operators. Three other defendants are pending against Brewster.

Meat Company Head Plunges To Death

CHICAGO, May 28.—(A.P.)—Edward Swift, 64, chairman of Swift and Company, plunged to his death today from the window of a sixth story apartment. He had been in ill health for several weeks. His brother, Charles Swift, said Swift had planned to leave Tuesday for a vacation in Europe. Swift was a son of the pioneer packer, Gustavus Swift, founder of the firm that became the world's largest of its kind. Charles Swift said his brother's affairs are in good condition.

HOOPER FLAYS GARNER PLAN FOR U. S. RELIEF

Attacks Public Works Proposal As Most Gigantic Pork Barrel Ever Suggested

WASHINGTON, May 28.—(A.P.)—In angry tones and biting words, President Hoover yesterday denounced the public works section of the Garner relief bill as "the most gigantic pork barrel ever proposed to the American Congress."

ROOSEVELT PLAN WOULD PUT IDLE MEN TO FARMING

New York's Governor Offers Proposal To Relieve Distressed

TUCKAHOE, N. Y., May 28.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday approved a plan for relief of unemployment distress so new as to be almost revolutionary. The plan calls for a system of "subsistence farms" to which impoverished families from all cities and towns in the state will be sent for the duration of the depression. It will be put into effect immediately.

The program is to be financed by state and local relief funds. The farms will be small in acreage and located in thinly populated regions. The families sent to them will raise their own food and thus be partly self-supporting.

"I can announce that this new and important relief measure is immediately going into effect," Governor Roosevelt declared in addressing a luncheon meeting of the Westchester County Democratic committee.

Roosevelt, the leading candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, approved the plan as created by Harry L. Hopkins, Charles D. Osborn, and John Sullivan of the temporary emergency relief administration, shortly after his return from his vacation at Warm Springs, Ga. Political observers pointed out that the plan might appeal strongly to the liberal bloc of the Democratic Party and at the same time not alienate ultra conservative support.

"During this economic crisis we have faced an overwhelming problem, that of saving from actual starvation and want good citizens who have done everything within their power to be independent," Roosevelt said, but who have not succeeded in the face of an industrial depression that crushes them one out of work with the same precision as a machine. The urgency of relieving the unemployed has made us rush what first aid we could—food, fuel, clothing and, for some, especially created work. Necessary as this relief is, the responsible citizens of this state must think beyond these measures. . . . To restore the great mass of the unemployed to a self-supporting basis we need much more than first aid."

Service Will Honor American War Dead

Brief but impressive services honoring American War dead will be held at the First Christian Church tomorrow morning at 11:00 o'clock when members of the American Legion and the Spanish-American War Veterans will gather to hear a short program featuring an address by Rev. F. M. Marler, pastor of the church, on "Flowers for Memorial Day."

This service which concludes as the gathering visits Central Park at Fourth Street to place a wreath on the monument there, is being held in lieu of a more elaborate program which has usually been staged in Sanford on Memorial Day, May 30. The public is invited to attend.

HOOPER FLAYS GARNER PLAN FOR U. S. RELIEF

Attacks Public Works Proposal As Most Gigantic Pork Barrel Ever Suggested

The President said many of the more than 3600 projects proposed in the bill had been discredited by Congress because of "useless extravagance involved" and that many others had been authorized as justified only in the long distant future.

"I do not believe that 20 percent could be brought to the stage of employment for a year," he said. "I am advised by the engineers that the amount of labor needed to complete a group of $400,000,000 of these works would amount to only 100,000 men for one year because they are in large degree mechanical jobs."

"This is not unemployment relief. It is the most gigantic pork barrel ever proposed to the American Congress. It is an unexampled raid on the public treasury."

The Chief Executive said detailed lists of the projects had been sent to every part of the country and "it is apparently expected that the rapidity of these towns and sections will demand that their Congressmen and Senators vote for this bill or threaten to penalize them if they fail to join in this squandering of money."

"Our nation was not founded on the pork barrel and it has not become great by political juggling."

"I hope that those many members of Congress of both parties who I know will oppose this bill will receive the definite support of the people in their districts in resisting it," he concluded.

Attempt Undertaken To Have Both Parties Adopt Same Prohibition Planks

WASHINGTON, May 28.—(A.P.)—An attempt to lift prohibition out of the presidential campaign by having both parties adopt identical planks has been undertaken by some prominent Republicans and Democrats. The plan broached in two conferences here and in New York, has met with wide approval, but a probable insurmountable obstacle is the broad and apparently uncompromising difference between militant wets and drys as to what the platforms should say.

SETTLEMENT IN GARNER'S CASE COST HIM $15,000

Victim Gets Hospital Expense, $2,500 and Half Part Of Farm

WAYCROSS, May 27.—The settlement made by W. F. Garner, celery planter of Sanford, Fla., who entered a plea as a misdemeanant, on recommendation of Solicitor General Allen R. Spence, when arraigned at a special session of Ware County Superior Court recently on a charge of assault with intent to murder Ware County Officer Cy M. Stephens, amounts to more than $15,000, it is revealed.

This settlement was made before Judge M. H. Dickson would consent to Garner's entering a plea. In addition to the settlement, Garner will be required to pay a fine of $500 or serve six months in jail, and over his head rests a sentence of twelve months on the chain gang, suspended during the period of his good behavior.

In his private settlement with the wounded officer, who still is encased in a steel brace as a result of injuries suffered when his spine, Garner has paid Stephens $2,500 in cash, and has stepped into a half interest, valued at $10,000 in a celery plantation at Sanford. He also has paid $500 on Stephens' doctor bill, and has reimbursed Ware county approximately $300 spent by the county commissioners in connection with the Stephens case.

"The settlement made prior to the passing of sentence by Judge Dickson," represented approximately $15,000," attorneys for the defense state.

In recommending that the misdemeanor plea be accepted, Solicitor General Allen R. Spence advised the court that the Garner case had given him more concern than any criminal matter in his long career as prosecuting attorney.

WILCOX TELLS THROG ABOUT LIQUOR EVILS

Urges Immediate Modification Of Volstead Law To Permit Wines And Beer

Immediate amendment of the Volstead law to permit the sale of light wines and beers in those states wishing it while the repeal of the 18th Amendment is in progress, was vigorously advocated by Mark Wilcox, West Palm Beach city attorney, in an address on his candidacy for the House of Representatives from Florida's Fourth District. The address was delivered before a crowd of 300 persons in the Court House last night.

The idea is great if you take our proposition," is the way he led on both sides of the prohibition controversy have reacted to his proposal.

Both Senators Reed, of Pennsylvania, Republican leader, and Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic chieftain, have endorsed it in the hope the campaign could be fought out along economic lines. Reed recently came out for the Swedish or Quebec liquor systems.

Senator Bill, of Washington, dry Democrat and supporter of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidential nomination, also has approved the plan.

It is not known whether President Hoover or any of the Democratic presidential candidates have been approached or have taken any part in the discussions. The probabilities are that, due to the wide divergence of opinion on what prohibition planks should say, the effort will be dropped.

A score of more planks on the subject have been drafted by leaders in both parties. They have been described as well, bone dry, and damp.

The attitude of Senator Borah, of Idaho, who shaped the rigid enforcement plank of 1928 for the Republicans, apparently is causing a lot of uncertainty. The prohibition champion recently conferred with President Hoover on the subject and every indication has been that he came away unsatisfied.

The Idahoan is known to have a very definite idea on a prohibition plank, but he is not saying anything for publication.

Meanwhile the Republicans are proceeding on the assumption that Congress still will be in session June 14 when their national convention meets in Chicago and are endeavoring to set up alternative convention organization should that situation eventuate.

WOMAN WOUNDED IN BANK ROBBERY

Gun Battle Follows Raid On Vault Netting 700 Dollars

MORRIS, Okla., May 28.—(A.P.)—A bank robber was slain and Miss Claire Aggas, young bookkeeper, was wounded in a gun fight following the robbery of the First State Bank of Morris by three men yesterday.

The robbers, who obtained $700, kidnaped Miss Aggas and forced her to accompany them, badly wounded, in an automobile in which they fled. A second robber was killed seriously wounded.

Miss Aggas and the robber who was slain both were wounded in an exchange of shots which occurred as the trio, accompanied by the young woman, left the bank.

A Z. Thompson, marshal of Morris, and a merchant opened fire on the fugitives. Two of the men tossed their wounded companions' body in their motor car. The bookkeeper was forced to sit in the lap of one of the men in the front seat of the machine.

Miss Aggas and the body of the unidentified robber, who apparently died in the machine, were left in the automobile near Coaltown, where the other bandits transferred to a second car.

An operation was performed on the girl, who was wounded in the jaw by a shotgun charge. She was unable to say whether she was shot by the robbers or the Morris men.

Several Additions To City's Zoo Reported

Sanford Municipal Zoo holds new and unusual interest for children as the result of several additions, most of them, both made during the past week.

Among the more interesting is a large Armadillo brought to the zoo this morning by W. H. Hughes, a resident of Fern Park. The creature, native to Mexico, and the South Western States, is badly injured however, apparently having been run over by an automobile for Mr. Hughes found it along the highway near Fern Park.

"We had the best year in Scout history during 1931, notwithstanding the depression. This is true not only because of our increase in membership, but in many other directions. More boys qualified for advancement, more boys went to camp, a greater number of boys registered for the second, third, fourth, and fifth year of membership in Scouting."

Mrs. Owen's Opponent

Mark Wilcox, speaking to a crowd of Sanford voters at the Seminole County Court House last night, told his audience in a few words that he favored economy in government and, paradoxically, the development of the Fourth District through special appropriations. Aside from that the entire remainder of his address, consisting of an hour and five minutes, was given to a discussion of prohibition.

Three-fourths of his speech was devoted to a graphic picturization of present day evils, all attributed to prohibition, courts cluttered with cases of drunkenness, gin parties among boys and girls, bootlegging, corruption in government, gangsterism, racketeering, Al Capone, gang slayings, and the government split on liquor profits. For forty minutes were detailed rather self-evident facts of the crime wave thoroughly familiar to all newspaper readers.

But what does Mr. Wilcox propose to do about this evil condition, frankly admitted by Mrs. Owen and all thinking people? It took him just five minutes by the clock to explain in full his program. He favors the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the immediate modification of the Volstead law. How he proposes to bring this about, he has yet to state.

We fear that if Mr. Wilcox should win this election, his voice would be a very small voice in the great halls of Congress. He would have one vote just as any other representative. How, predominantly dry Congress is at present is known to all by recent votes on the beer bill. But if Mr. Wilcox should succeed by his really persuasive oratory in changing the sentiment in Congress from two-thirds or three-fourths dry to two-thirds wet, a resolution could be adopted seeking to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment.

It would then be necessary to have this repeal amendment ratified by three-fourths of the states in the United States. Mr. Wilcox would have no influence whatever in securing ratification in such dry states as Kansas, Texas, Mississippi or Oregon, and the Literary Digest notwithstanding (less than five million votes polled out of 120,000,000 people) it is extremely doubtful if even half the states of the union would ratify the repeal amendment.

Mr. Wilcox admits the difficulties and delays of this repeal proposal, and suggests as an immediate remedy the modification of the Volstead law. Here again he overlooks the majority dry sentiment in the House which only the other day refused to legalize 2.74 percent beer. But if he could persuade the other members of Congress to go with him, he would still have to satisfy the Supreme Court of the United States that his law was constitutional. Unless the Eighteenth Amendment were repealed, any law permitting the sale of intoxicating beverages would be unconstitutional. If the beverage were of such small alcoholic content as to be not intoxicating, it would provide no solution for the present problem.

Furthermore, if Mr. Wilcox should accomplish the impossible, and succeed in repealing the Eighteenth Amendment and changing the Volstead law, it would be of no particular benefit to the Fourth District of Florida. We would still have prohibition here under our state laws which could not be changed without a two-thirds vote of the Legislature and a majority vote of the people in a referendum at a general election. Mr. Wilcox's seat in Congress would be of no assistance whatever in repealing the state prohibition law.

Nevertheless, that is the sum and substance of Mr. Wilcox's bid for votes. How he stands on the tariff question, war debts, farm relief, currency inflation, soldiers' bonus, foreign loans, national defense, bus and truck legislation, sales taxes, balancing budgets, unemployment relief, and additional federal bond issues for public works, vital national issues with which he will be immediately and forcefully confronted the minute he gets into Congress, those who heard him speak last night have yet to learn.

Fine Leaders Of A Cause

Several young women were painfully crushed recently in a jam of humanity seeking to hear an English rector defend himself against charges of immorality. The idea of a minister becoming involved in scandal has a particular news appeal. It is the unusual thing. That is why so many persons tried to gain admittance to the hearing, and that is why newspapers devoted so much space to it.

It is a curious fact that the adverse publicity in this instance, which some might think tends to reflect upon the clergy, is in reality a testimonial to its credit. If our body of ecclesiastics was not looked upon with high esteem and regard, then the incident in England would not be of particular significance and any mention of it in the newspapers would take its place alongside many another story of its kind in comparative obscurity.

The very fact that our ministers comprise a group of high-minded, honorable, and intelligent men makes any single dereliction among their members disproportionately important to the reading public. When John Jones falls off a horse it is of little significance, but when the Prince of Wales "takes a cropper" the headlines proclaim it and the subscribers "eat it up." Hundreds of children have been kidnapped without startling the world, but every editor in the country will admit that the greatest news break of the year was the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby.

It is the price of fame that every little detail of a man's life, whether good or bad, becomes of immense public interest, and it is the price the clergy has to pay that, whenever any of its number commits a crime or an indiscretion, the act is widely publicized.

This situation is quite apart from the general tendency of recent years to lampoon and ridicule our preachers of the gospel, for what reason, is hard to explain. It is probably only in line with the public trend to revolt against everything, to disparage the president, to belittle the government, to criticize the ministry.

But despite everything that may be said, it is reassuring to observe that our churches are still carrying on, led by a group of men, who, at least, are seeking to show the way to greater happiness and a more contented life.

WILCOX TELLS ABOUT LIQUOR

I thought I was right, and when I declare a firm belief that on a correct solution of the prohibition issue depends the financial, moral, and economic recovery of the nation, I do so with the sincere conviction that I am right.

"I told you that it is the purpose of the national government, that it should perform only national duties and that it should leave the police regulation to each state," the speaker said, "yet, in 1917 we forgot the teaching of states' rights, forgot the traditions of our fathers, and, under a high patriotic urge, wrote into the Constitution a police regulation that had no place here and can never be enforced until it is taken out of the Constitution and the problem returned to the states, where it belongs."

"Prior to 1917 there were great national institutions such as the W. C. T. U., the Anti-Saloon League, and others, who did a great and noble work by depicting the evils of strong drink, and the necessity for temperance," he said. "Every school room had a chart showing the brain and stomach of the drinker and the abstainer, and, as a result of wide temperance publicity in newspapers, magazines, and circulars, I say that the country was gradually drying up. Not by force nor law, but by education and persuasion."

The advent of prohibition however, the speaker said, "saw those great agencies abandon those practices. They had accomplished a great political feat, and, rather than admit they had failed in politics, they undertook, and have done so, for the past 12 years tried to back an unenforceable law, and have closed their eyes to the evils of strong drink and the need for temperance. I charge you that for the sake of a political principle, the rising generation is being permitted to go to hell."

Mr. Wilcox declared that in 1917 he was a supporter of temperance and its program, "and as ardent a foe of the saloon as Bishop Cannon. Yet, I ask any fair-minded person if he can truthfully say that all the benefits predicted of prohibition have come true, if he feels that this nation has progressed morally as a result. I don't think it has, and I have innumerable facts and personal experiences to substantiate my opinion. For instance, long ago, when a boy went to a dance after he had taken a drink, he had to eat coffee for half an hour before, because a girl wouldn't go with him, and her parents wouldn't let him in the house. In contrast, need I picture the conditions among our young folk of today?"

Here the speaker read an excerpt from a speech in the House of Representatives of a former Cleveland judge, reciting the evils of prohibition as reflected in Cleveland courts. From this excerpt he read that during 1929 alone, 33,000 cases of persons being haled into the court on charges of intoxication were reported, "almost as many as were reported in all England during that same year."

"How can we dodge this issue?" Mrs. B. J. Starling and daughter, Clarissa, left yesterday for Nashville, Tenn., where they will spend the summer.

Mr. G. G. Hearn, of Donaldville, Ga., left for Atlantic City Monday after a pleasant visit to the home of R. L. Jones.

M. S. Nelson left this week for a short business trip to Lanark, Ill.

The exchange of cablegrams between President Gomez, of Cuba, and President Taft led to a more definite understanding regarding the attitude of the United States toward Cuba. President Gomez' message of protest against American intervention today drew a response from the president of the United States in which assurances were given that the action of the American government merely was a measure of precaution and entirely disassociated from any question of intervention.

WILCOX TELLS ABOUT LIQUOR

Mr. Wilcox said, "When in England there were said to be 1,000,000 cases of prohibition in the year we have in one city in one year many cases of intemperance in England in the year, why liquor is governed by regulation?"

A brief reference was here made to "that principle of our Constitution which guarantees us life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, a principle alongside which we've laid a purely police regulation which says it shall be unlawful to transport or sell intoxicating liquor."

With the advent of prohibition, Mr. Wilcox said, "America has developed the gangster and racketeer, types never before known, types who have not hesitated to violate that great principle of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness when they found that they could not only violate it with impunity but with immense profit, even though it meant murder itself."

He told of Al Capone and his rise to power as America's chief gangster, and how the state and federal government were powerless to stop him because he stole property or took lives. Loud applause accompanied the speaker's charge that "the federal government put Al Capone in jail because he didn't divide his ill-gotten gains with the government."

"It is a serious condition that we face," the speaker said, "so serious that although I want to be elected, and I believe I shall, I shall consider my time and money well spent if I have brought to you this one fact, that it is only one short step from gangster control of state governments, to that of the national government itself."

"Before concluding this address," Mr. Wilcox said, "I want to make two of my statements clear to you. I've told you that I favor the repeal of the 18th Amendment, and I want you to understand just exactly why I do. I have been asked what sort of amendment will I put into the Constitution if I help repeal the 18th Amendment. Friends, there is no substitution for the national prohibition act for it is powerless of execution and should not be where it is. We can't expect the federal government to police very hard, low, or city in this great nation in an attempt to enforce prohibition."

Three years' time will be required in the preliminary steps leading to the repeal of the Amendment, Mr. Wilcox said, "for the Congress must first pass a resolution to repeal, and this resolution must go back to the several states for ratification. Since some state legislatures convene every two years, it will be at least three years before the states can act on the resolution to repeal."

"Therefore, as an emergency measure, I propose the immediate amendment of the Volstead law, to define the alcoholic content, and to permit the sale of light wines and beer in the states that want it," the speaker said. "This can be done at the next session of Congress."

Mr. Wilcox pictured the propaganda released against the making of beer and wines in 1917, "propaganda which told us that we should release coal, grain, man-power, sugar, for war purposes." "With a surplus of coal, grain, and particularly man-power in another national emergency, why shouldn't there be propaganda asking that we return them to productiveness again?" he asked.

"Friends, I beg of you to open your eyes and recognize the fact that millions of bottles of liquor are made and sold in America every year; that we can pin this era of lawlessness and moral decay to this little law," the speaker urged, "let's legalize this liquor traffic and place it under proper supervision and control so that we can furnish a release for our grain, our coal, our jobless millions. The tax plans would conservatively produce $500,000,000 taking that amount out of the hands of gangsters, and help to operate this government. Why, friends, it would keep millions and millions of dollars from being spent annually in Canada, Europe, Mexico, and Cuba by tourists who boast that they are there mainly to get something to drink that is safe."

"As to the second point I want to make clear," Mr. Wilcox continued, "it is about the open saloon. Friends, you know that the national act did not close the saloons in Florida. The Florida state law closed the saloon and this state was in a normal process of drying up when prohibition arrived. You know that."

"The open saloon is gone, and gone to stay," Mr. Wilcox said, as the audience applauded, "of that you may be sure."

"I say that a national regulatory act cannot be a success in all the states of this great nation because the condition in each state differs," he said, "and believe me, friends, I would not urge for the repeal of this amendment for economic reasons if I thought that it ever had been or ever could be enforced."

Following his reference to General Pershing's address, Mr. Wilcox said that some sources have hinted that he wished the repeal of the Amendment so that he and his friends could "get a drink." "Friends, I don't have to repeal this law if I am thirsty," he explained, "because you well know that you and I can go to any telephone in this or any city, and, within half an hour have more liquor, strong liquor delivered to our homes and offices than we can pay for in a week."

"I don't want to repeal this amendment so that I can buy liquor," he began in his concluding statements, "I want to repeal it so that you and I, our wives and children can live in a decent nation, and city; so that its people can be sent back to the states where it belongs; so that we can have a government ruled by the people and not by the lawless and criminal element where we are heading day after day."

"If you elect me," he concluded, "I'll make regular trips to every county in this district to study its needs, and I shall give every ounce of my energy, every fibre of my being, and every moment of my time toward the welfare and progress of the people of this district."

KENTUCKY MOUNTAIN FARM THE OWL
It was the sound of water falling only, which is not sound but silence musical, bubbling forever down the gorge's wall, as late snowdrops that bloom beside the lonely, and sunlit stones, peace bloomed all afternoon here, time is not in peace; and here the shadow, set except to him across the Western meadow, and climbed the hill to mark the dripping sun, seemed held a space, washed downward by the water, whose music flowed against the flow of time, could not be. Dark fell along the stream, and like a child grown suddenly afraid, his shaking knees, hands bloody on the stone, toward the upland gleaming fields, light burned against their rim, was quickly gone.
later he would remember this, and start, and once or twice again his tough old heart new sickness that the rabbit's heart must know, when star by star the great wings float, and down the moonlit track below their mortal silken shadow sweeps the snow, scaled bent slow, infatuate deep throat!
