Bush announces wheat deal

WASHINGTON — President George Bush announced today that the United States will purchase 1.5 million metric tons of wheat from the Soviet Union, the largest purchase in the history of the program. The deal is part of a broader agreement between the two nations to increase trade and cooperation in various fields, including energy and technology.

The deal is expected to be finalized through the Export-Import Bank. It will help to stabilize the market for U.S. wheat and provide a significant boost to the U.S. grain industry. The purchase is part of a long-term strategy to strengthen relations with the Soviet Union.

Truly's challenge

When asked by pollsters, most Americans say they like the nation's space program. But when it comes to being taxed for it, they aren't so sure. It will be Rear Adm. Richard Truly's task to persuade the people's representatives in Congress that the program is indeed a sound investment.

Admiral Truly is well suited for the job. He once flew the shuttle Challenger into orbit and back, and was given the job after the 1986 Challenger disaster of reviving the shuttle program. With meticulous attention to safety and reliability, the program is once again operational.

Now Admiral Truly has been named NASA head in a crucial year for the nation's space program. The agency is asking Congress for $2.1 billion for the space station project.

Congress members who balk might note that the appropriation represents about 1 percent of the federal budget, compared to the 4 percent we spent during the man-on-the-moon program. The military implications of the space program are just as relevant if not more than they were in 1969 when astronaut Neil Armstrong stepped on the moon. The space station is a natural next step in a journey to Mars and beyond, and we wish Admiral Truly well in persuading Congress that the United States should set the pace.

Descent from power

No amount of backroom dealing sufficed to save Japanese premier Noboru Takeshita and his cabinet from having to assume full blame for the crisis of distrust which has afflicted the nation's government.

The extent to which the Takeshita regime was out of touch with public indignation came to light with the surprise announcement of his intention to step down after the Diet enacts the 1989 fiscal budget sometime during the next four weeks. Mr. Takeshita confessed that he had not expected the Recruit Co. scandal to reach such epic proportions. The whole matter had exploded, he asserted in a phrase that certain U.S. politicians could admire, because of a "gap in the consciousness toward money."

Actually, most of the scandalous revelations that brought down Mr. Takeshita and his cabinet involved financial deals that were legal. Although the Prime Minister and his top colleagues assert they saw nothing wrong with accepting contributions totaling more than $1.5 million from the Recruit information and real-estate conglomerate, the Japanese public was rightly appalled at the conflict of interest.

A political crisis was precipitated after opposition parties demanded explanations from former Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone about $460,000 worth of profits received by his aides in a Recruit share deal. Deliberations on the national budget have since been stalled by an opposition boycott.

In the end, Mr. Takeshita admitted to accepting $1 million in political donations from Recruit and receiving a personal loan of $385,000 from the company.

In his precipitate descent from power, Prime Minister Takeshita leaves Japan without effective leadership, probably for at least a month, until parliament enacts the budget legislation and his successor is chosen. Meanwhile, the political convulsion in Tokyo is unlikely to have much impact on U.S.-Japanese relations.

Hanging up on long-distance 'trickery'

TALLADEGA, Ala. — Telephone users in Alabama and a few other states enjoy a special benefit not available elsewhere in the nation — they do not have to risk being gouged by "alternative operator service" companies.

Almost 1 1/2 years ago, the Alabama Public Service Commission threw the entire industry out of the state after receiving hundreds of complaints about AOS providers imposing inflated charges for the long distance calls they handled.

AOS companies differ from AT&T, MCI, US Sprint and other reputable telephone toll companies in one very important respect. They specialize in charging more rather than less.

They offer their services not to residential or business subscribers but to the operators of hotels and motels, bus and railroad stations, truck stops, airports, hospitals, prisons and college dormitories whose telephones are used by transients, visitors and others lacking access to alternative service.

Long distance calls placed from all of the 1,400 pay telephones at one of the nation's busiest airports, Hartsfield International in Atlanta, are handled by an AOS company.

The managers of those facilities — whose telephones generate $11 billion in annual revenues — are hard on designating the AOS companies as the sole providers of long distance service from their telephones by the promise of generous commissions.

To produce sufficient revenues to pay those commissions and earn substantial profits for themselves, the AOS companies typically charge telephone users three, four and five times more per call than the respected companies.

In some cases their tolls are 10 times as high and in many instances they bill users for calls placed but not completed. Moreover, many callers do not learn of the inflated charges until they receive their monthly telephone bills.

In December 1987, the Alabama PSC ordered the nine AOS providers then doing business in the state to halt all operations. Although the agency has since allowed one firm to return under close surveillance, state officials remain rightfully leery of the industry.

Connecticut, Kentucky, North Carolina and Mississippi are among the states that also have generally banned AOS providers, while South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Virginia and Florida are among the states that have taken punitive actions.

In a harshly worded order that bluntly accused the AOS companies of "fraud," the Tennessee PSC last year said "The business practices of the AOS companies are unethical at best, illegal at worst. AOS carriers do not compete for business. They profit from ignorance and trickery."

Estimates of the number of AOS companies nationwide range from as few as 50 to more than 200. Some of the largest firms are headquartered in Texas, Illinois, Florida, Oregon and Maryland.

The Telecommunications Research and Action Center, a public interest group in Washington, D.C., has waged an aggressive campaign to warn telephone users about abuses in the AOS industry. Rep. James Cooper, D-Tenn., has introduced remedial legislation in Congress.

But the Federal Communications Commission which ought to be protecting the public, recently declined to regulate AOS rates or billing practices.

They charge more rather than less.

DAVID S. BRODER

Thoughts on the French Revolution

WASHINGTON — Come July, every essayist and columnist in the world will take note of the 200th anniversary of the French Revolution. Albert O. Hirschman has jumped the gun a bit in the May issue of The Atlantic magazine, but as usual he has made an important point so economically that commentators to come will look bloated and insubstantial by comparison.

Hirschman is a remarkable man, a 74-year-old German-born economist and former Federal Reserve official. His academic studies have ranged far beyond his own field to illuminate politics with insights drawn from sociology, anthropology and a dozen other disciplines.

I was lucky enough to cross his path in 1970, the year he published "Exit, Voice and Loyalty," a small book brimming with insights into the ways people resolve the pressures that operate on them inside organizations. If you want to understand what was working in the mind of Oliver North as a Marine officer on the National Security Council staff, you cannot do much better than reading "Exit, Voice and Loyalty." And the same volume will give you all the clues you need to understand how — and why — the members of the House Democratic caucus will resolve the case of Speaker Jim Wright (D-Texas).

In his brief Atlantic article, Hirschman explores the persistence in "reactionary rhetoric" of a single argument. It is the assertion that organized efforts by liberals or progressives to improve people's lives — to expand the dimensions of liberty, equality, and well-being — will inevitably have exactly the opposite effect of what the sponsors say they intend.

A current example is the argument by President Bush and his backers that legislation to increase the minimum wage, far from improving the lot of marginal workers, will cost thousands of them their jobs.

A broader proposition of great importance in shaping the thinking of the Reagan administration, was framed in Charles Murray's "Losing Ground," an intellectual assault on the welfare-state policies which culminated in Lyndon B. Johnson's Great Society. "We tried to provide more for the poor and produced more poor instead," Murray wrote. "We tried to remove the barriers to escape from poverty, and inadvertently built a trap."

Hirschman points out that Murray's proposition, hailed as remarkably fresh thinking by the neo-conservatives of the Eighties, was an almost literal reiteration of a view expressed by early 19th century critics of the British Poor Laws.

He quotes one of them as writing, "The Poor Laws were intended to prevent mendicancy; they have made mendicancy a legal profession... The Poor Laws, formed to relieve the distressed, have been the architect of distress."

As Hirschman traces the historical roots of this line of argument, he goes back inevitably to the French Revolution and the impact it had on conservative thinkers of the day, most notably Edmund Burke. It was Burke who set the fashion for reactionary argument in his 1790 "Reflections on the Revolution in France." He judged that "an ignoble oligarchy founded on the destruction of the crown, the church, the nobility and the people (would) end all the delectable dreams and visions of the equality and rights of men." Instead of Liberty, egalite, fraternite, the Revolution would bring "massacre, torture, hanging."

When that proved to be the case, that whole line of argument about the inevitable perversity of schemes for social improvement was launched. And it continues to dominate reactionary political rhetoric down to our own day.

The critical question, of course, is whether this assertion — so beguilingly simple — is also generally correct. And the answer is clearly no.

As Hirschman points out, conservatives themselves acknowledge that opposite effects are not necessarily adverse effects. When it comes to the economy, those who wear Adam Smith ties argue that admittedly selfish individual behavior — that desire to maximize profits — produces altruistic social consequences, namely, the most efficient allocation of resources and distribution of rewards.

The likelihood, in any given case, is that the effects of any social policy will not be all that its sponsors hope. But it is just as risky to assume that they will be exactly the opposite of what they intend. Not every revolution swings from liberty and equality to dictatorship and despotism as the French Revolution did. The American Revolution, to name one, did not.

Hirschman reminds us that when we accept the reactionary dogma of inevitable perversity, we are acquiescing too easily in a persistent form of intellectual fear-mongering.

the inevitable perversity of schemes for social improvement was launched.

Army inspectors need to shape up

WASHINGTON — Rank has its privileges and no one knows that better than two-star Army Gen. Andrew L. Cooley. When the dinner hour rolled around at Cooley's previous post, Fort Stewart, Ga., the general was served by aides in white jackets. And when he wanted to review the troops, the general cruised in a customized Army van with deep carpeting, swivel chairs, a stereo and color television.

For every Gen. Cooley, there are thousands of grunts who joined the Army to see the world by more modest means. Someone noticed the inequity and dropped a dime to report the major general's excesses to a Defense Department whistleblowers' hotline. The Army Inspector General spent 476 days to reach the mystifying conclusion that the complaints against Cooley could not be substantiated.

The dinner jackets were real, and so was the fancy van. But the Army said Cooley had done no wrong because the aides didn't always wear the white jackets and the modifications to the van had been approved beforehand.

The Army did have the presence of mind to later clarify its policy on souping up government vehicles and using GIs as house servants. But Cooley was not held accountable for his pretentious airs. He has since been transferred to Egypt and did not return our phone calls from there.

This and more startling evidence that the Army Inspector General judges its investigations of top brass are contained in a closely held Defense Department report obtained by our associate Stewart Harris.

Marked "OFFICIAL USE ONLY," the report makes the case that the Defense Department Inspector General should take over the investigations of officers because the individual inspectors general in the Army, Air Force and Navy are letting the officers off the hook.

The report, by its own admission, is a bombshell. The cover memo says that "information contained in this briefing book is considered sensitive, in that release of the material in total could result in embarrassment to the Department. It is requested that this information be appropriately protected at all times."

The report includes the case of Brig. Gen. Robert Berry, who was allowed to retire before the Army Inspector General completed its investigation of allegations that he wasted money on a trip to Europe with a deputy assistant secretary of the Army, Judy Ann Miller.

A whistleblower accused the duo of arriving in Europe earlier than business required, renting expensive cars and improperly asking for first-class seats. It took the Army Inspector General 300 days to close the case, and that was plenty of time for Berry to retire. The investigation concluded that Berry had indeed arrived earlier than necessary for his business trip to Europe and that Miller improperly solicited first-class air travel.

In Berry's case, the report indicates the Army made an exception to its rule of not allowing personnel to retire while they are under investigation. Miller refused to talk to us and Berry could not be located.

The Army Inspector General spent 799 days investigating another case. An Army official in St. Louis was suspected of stealing government computers, using the Army phone for personal business and ordering his underlings to run personal errands for him. The Army investigators confirmed some of the allegations and the official was suspended for a whopping 10 days.

The dinner jackets were real, and so was the van.

Stocks open lower

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened slightly lower Wednesday in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues, extending losses suffered in the previous session.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 12.10 Tuesday, was off 3.12 to 2399.74 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advanced 451,304 among the 1,275 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Early turnover amounted to about 11,571,000 shares.

Stock prices closed lower Tuesday in active trading after a disappointing earnings report from Eastman Kodak triggered a late-afternoon sell-off that erased the market's earlier gains.

Alfred Goldman, market strategist with A.G. Edwards & Sons Inc. in St. Louis, said some players were willing to capitalize on the weakness in prices.

"Professional money managers who missed the latest rally are getting more and more nervous about not being in the market," he said.

Dollar opens slightly down

United Press International

The dollar was slightly lower Wednesday in calm New York trading against key foreign currencies. Gold was mostly lower.

Currency traders in New York said the dollar remained well supported and noted technical indications pointing to another rally to gauge central bank intervention.

On Tuesday, the dollar strengthened as the bullish sentiment surrounding the currency outweighed a round of concerted intervention by the Federal Reserve and at least eight other central banks.

Traders said the Federal Reserve was joined in selling dollars by the central banks of Japan, Canada, West Germany, Italy, Britain, Australia, France and Switzerland. However, the interventions were believed to be modest.

Currency dealers said trading was choppy and thin because of the holiday in Japan.

Walko

During Walko's service, he has watched the fund-raising campaign grow from $320,000 to the $750,000 raised last year for Seminole County.

"That I felt was fairly significant," Walko said.

Walko was one of the directors who pushed for the merger of the three counties to more evenly distribute the funds collected through the campaigns.

"Central Florida is fast becoming a metropolis. My idea was that only through a merger of Orange and Seminole counties would we be able to obtain more money for agencies in Seminole County. It was a very detailed, horrendous task," he said.

Walko explained that many Seminole County residents worked and contributed money in Orange County. The average per capita donation in Seminole County never surpassed $2.50 while in Orange County the per capita donation was "well over $6.00."

The other individual who backed the merger idea was retired Executive Director of United Way of Orange County Joseph Weckerle.

Walko said he retired to make room for the "young, talented people with some new ideas."

His successor, Jeanne M. Daly, is a 24-year-old graduate of Florida State University, Tallahassee.

Delila Isern, office manager of Seminole County United Way who worked five years with Walko, said he was "special" and a "very good person."

"He's always trying to help," she said.

Executive Director of The Heart of Florida United Way Ed Rawa has similar things to say about Walko.

"He's a great, wonderful, caring guy. I've known him for over 15 years. He has a lot of enthusiasm, a lot of energy and he cares about people," Rawa said.

president — whose group Roster's Perfect Procrastinators so far consists only of one newly signed member — pointed out that the bird actually was a turkey buzzard. He said it represented inavals well.

The good-natured challenging was designed to ignite members to go out into the community and find at least 100 new business members.

"We currently have 300 active members on our roster," said membership Chairman DeLores Lash. "I believe that getting 100 more in 10 days is not an impossible goal."

Lash, who said she has worked on similar membership pushes with the Sanford Chamber of Commerce said that it is possible to reach that number in three days.

"This kind of all-out drive is something new for us," she said "so we're taking a little longer."

The Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce, one of the oldest in the state, was founded in 1922 as not much more than a social club, according to Roster. While they would like to maintain the warm social atmosphere of their meetings, he said the business aspect has become the driving thrust behind the chamber.

As the group grows, it will become necessary to find a permanent office for the chamber as well as a part-time paid director to handle the increased work load of chamber business. Currently, directorial work is handled on a volunteer basis from members' businesses and homes.

"We're looking forward to the day when we can actually have a chamber of commerce office," Roster said.

Notices

Seminole County commissioners have tentatively agreed to buy the utility company after two years of negotiations for $1.25 million and other benefits.

Officials from the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services-Public Health Unit issued the notices to the approximately 50 customers of the utility company, owned by James Hickman, who also owns the 14 Industrial Park.

Lake Monroe Utilities is located in the industrial park at the northeast corner of State Road 46 and Interstate 4.

Chamber members, armed with membership applications, will be heading out into the community during the next week and a half to sign up new recruits, resign old members and sell advertisements for the chamber newsletter and the membership directory.

"I have confidence this will be a successful drive," Lash said.

New members will be announced at the chamber's next meeting, which will be May 12 at Gold's Gym in Lake Mary. Prizes will be awarded to the team which brings in the most signers.

official with the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation, said the notices were issued as a precautionary measure to assure the safety of the water. He said a water line that extends behind the Holiday Inn south of SR 46 broke Monday and was repaired Tuesday.

Ansgar said the notices are issued until tests show the water has been safe to drink for two to four days after the repair has been made.

DER records in Orlando show Lake Monroe customers were required to boil their water before drinking it for six days in January for another system failure.

mously. A bronze bust of Perez will be displayed in the Chamber office, and the award recipient will be presented with a plaque.

Perez died in February 1988, after a long illness resulting from a stroke. He retired from his medical practice after the stroke.

He was born in Cuba and graduated from the Havana Medical School, University of Havana, and practiced medicine in Cuba before coming to the United States in 1956.

Perez served as an intern and resident physician specializing in internal medicine and cardiology at Georgia Baptist Hospital in Atlanta. He served as personnel physician at Florida State Hospital in Chatahoochee from 1960-1963, and became an American citizen during that time.

Upon moving to Sanford,

Perez joined the staff of the old Seminole Memorial Hospital and served as chief of medicine there in 1965, 1970, 1972, 1973 and 1980. He was vice chief of staff in 1967 and 1977 and chief of staff in 1978. He later served as a trustee of Central Florida Regional Hospital.

He was an ardent anti-communist and often spoke to groups on the subject of Americanism versus communism.

Perez was known widely for treating anyone who walked into his office, regardless of the color of his skin or his ability to pay.

He was a founder of the Seminole County Drug Action Committee in 1966 and founder of the Grove drug detoxification center.

He served as president of the Seminole County Medical Society and the Seminole County Health Planning Council, and was chairman of the board of the Sanford Migrant Clinic.

Bonds

Fischer said there is no official projection on the impact of the increased bonds on jail space, but he said, "We're definitely prepared."

"I love it," Polk said. "This will hopefully keep some criminals off the streets longer. Before, they bonded out before their paperwork was done."

Under the old bond schedule, bond for a charge of sale and delivery of cocaine was usually $2,000. Under the new program, Estlinger said, bond for a Seminole County resident under the same charge has increased to $5,000. For a Florida resident of another county arrested here on that same charge, bond now is $6,000. An out of state resident would have to post an $8,000 bond for that charge.

Bonds have increased for other charges as well.

To bond out using the services of a bondsman, the suspect with a $2,000 bond would only have to pay the bondsman $200 for the bondsman to ensure his or her appearance in court after release from jail. With a $5,000 bond the bondsman's fee increases to $500.

Estlinger said a major objective in increasing the bond is to reduce the threat from crack cocaine dealers to the community. "Hopefully this will instill a safer atmosphere on the streets in drive-up sales (of narcotics) areas," Estlinger said.

Another plus to the new plan, Estlinger said, is the automatic doubling of the increased bond if the same suspect is arrested more than once on a felony charge. "They will stay in jail longer and this will help prevent recidivism return trips to jail, because it will be more expensive each time to bond out," Estlinger said.

An accused cocaine dealer who is already on probation on another charge will automatically have a $7,000 initial bond if arrested again, he said.

Bonds for misdemeanors, including driving under the influence, remain at $500 and $100.

First degree felonies including life and capital felonies call for no bail, as does the charge of escape from a jail or prison.

Attempted second degree murder carries a $15,000 bond. Attempted first degree murder has a $25,000 bond.

Burglary to a dwelling, leaving the scene of an accident with death or injury, and vehicular homicide all call for $5,000 bond. Manslaughter, including DUI manslaughter, calls for $10,000 bond.

Korean students clash with police

SEOUL — South Korea — Six police officers were killed and 11 others injured Wednesday when radical students set fire to a university building to thwart a police attempt to free five comrades held prisoner by the youths, authorities said.

The government immediately ordered a nationwide crackdown on radicals, and the opposition complained that South Korean colleges had been turned into "a firebomb arsenal and a hotbed of radical leftist students."

Some of the six officers died of burns or smoke inhalation and others were killed when they leaped from a burning room on the seventh floor of the high-rise building at Dongguk University in the southern port of Pusan, a police spokesman said. The curtains had become trapped when students set fire to the room to thwart the rescue attempt.

It was only the second time South Korean police have been killed in months of near-daily battles with student demonstrations, and the government immediately launched a crackdown, detaining 88 students at the university and ordering the arrests of 30 dissident leaders, authorities said.

Soldier jailed for using human shield

BERKSHEM — A soldier who forced a Palestinian captive to ride on the hood of his jeep as a human shield against stone throwers described the incident as a joke, but his commander ordered him jailed pending a possible court-martial, officials said.

State-owned Israel Radio said the incident, which was videotaped by a Vistovis television crew, occurred Tuesday near the Israeli-occupied West Bank town of Ramallah.

An army spokesman said a brigade commander heard that one of his men had forced a Palestinian boy to ride on the jeep as an apparent human shield. The soldier was found within an hour of a disciplinary hearing was held on the spot, and he was ordered detained for up to one year.

The soldier, who was not identified, could face a full court-martial, the spokesman said.

The army spokesman said the behavior was "an exception to army policy, absolutely against army regulations."

He said the soldier reportedly described the incident as a joke. The Palestinian youth was badly injured and released.

Elsewhere in scattered clashes Tuesday in the Israeli-occupied territories, soldiers shot and wounded at least 15 Palestinians, including a 7-year-old girl shot in the head, Palestinian sources said.

In the West Bank city of Nablus, two Palestinians were stabbed and wounded by unknown assailants. Residents said one victim was suspected of collaborating with Israeli authorities but the motive for the second attack was not clear, Palestinian sources said.

There has been a significant rise in recent weeks in the number of attacks against suspected leftist militant collaborators and criminals. Israeli government sources estimate more than 40 Palestinians have been killed by fellow residents during the nearly 17-month occupation.

Beijing rejects student demands

BEIJING — Authorities Wednesday rejected a student ultimatum demanding political freedom, setting the stage for more pro-democracy demonstrations that the government said were being incited by a U.S.-based group and Chinese dissidents.

By rejecting the 12-point ultimatum delivered Tuesday, authorities called the students' bluff that they would repeat demonstrations that for nearly three weeks have presented the communist rulers with their steepest challenge in 40 years.

This is an ultimatum like no other and is something of a threat, said Yuan Mu, spokesman for the State Council, China's cabinet, during a news conference broadcast live on national television.

The students are trying to gain a dominant position. They are naive and impulsive, Yuan said. We hope they won't demonstrate but perhaps our hope will not come true.

He called student demands for talks with a member of the Standing Committee of the Communist Party Politburo "unreasonable" and said the government will not change its position stating that recently formed independent student unions are illegal.

The petition in which students outlined conditions for talks with China's leadership was delivered to Communist Party and government offices Tuesday by about 60 bike-riding students. The students demanded leaders respond within 24 hours or face a new round of protests beginning Thursday.

Thursday is the 70th anniversary of the May Fourth Movement, a student-led nationalist reformer crusade that rocked the nation in 1919 with demands for democracy.

Kohl lobbies for missile removal

United Press International

ROME — West Germany lobbied Italy and France for support in its call for NATO negotiations with Moscow to cut short range nuclear missiles amid opposition from the United States and Britain.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl took his case Tuesday to Italian Prime Minister Ciriaco De Mita while West German Foreign Minister Hans Dietrich Genscher met in Paris with his French counterpart Roland Dumas.

The trips were part of an intense round of meetings among European leaders to discuss the short range nuclear missile issue before a NATO summit in Brussels late this month, but neither Italy nor France took sides immediately.

After meetings with Kohl, De Mita was asked by a German reporter if Italy will vote for Britain or for West Germany in Brussels.

De Mita, who met with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher in London Saturday in a pool. You imagine that at the summit a choice will be made between the positions of Kohl and Mrs. Thatcher, but that is not the way it is.

It probably develops a rapid position there should be no big clashes in Brussels, he said.

De Mita also reaffirmed his government's position that if an agreement on conventional weapons was reached at Lamb. West talks in Vienna, the present balance of tactical nuclear weapons can be reconsidered.

Kohl, who drew directly from Bonn's top security campaign, military airport to the Italian leader's Chigi palace office for the meeting, thanked Italy for its "understanding" and said West Germany's initiative "is explained by the fact that you just have to look at the map to realize that these weapons mainly concern our territory."

The West German said in NATO there should not be different zones of security, and stressed several times that West Germany carries out entirely its duty to the alliance.

Kohl, who met with de Mita for 1 1/2 hours, rejected suggestions his stand was motivated by domestic politics or that he was leaning toward neutralism, saying "neutrality is not a policy that can ensure freedom and peace."

He said the NATO alliance strength was necessary for reasonable negotiations on the armament, and said he held an attitude of "cautious optimism" toward the East.

But Kohl added "the world the Soviet Union is changing, nothing is set, ideas and opinions are proceeding and we must watch them in a critical manner, but with optimism."

In Paris, Dumas remained uncommittal, after his speaking time with Kohl.

If the parties of view are to apart, one must try to bring them closer without having to advance changes in favor of one or the other, Dumas said, adding France hoped "a harmony of positions would prevail in Brussels."

Translating these remarks, which were also several hours, it actually creates disharmony.

PLO wants to sign Geneva Convention

United Press International

GENEVA, Switzerland — Yasser Arafat has asked to sign the Geneva War Convention as part of a continuing bid for recognition of the Palestinian state proclaimed by the PLO, the Liberation Organization in November, the International Committee of the Red Cross said.

The ICRC is guardian of the four conventions, written in 1949 and signed by 106 nations, which represent a universal code of conduct to protect civilians and prisoners in war and civil conflict.

ICRC officials said Tuesday that Arafat informed the neutral agency during a visit to Geneva two weeks ago that he intended to sign the humanitarian principles.

During the same visit, Arafat rejected a request by the World Health Organization to withdraw the Palestinian state's application for membership because of "serious political and financial implications."

WHO Director General Hiroshi Nakajima of Japan is in Washington for talks on the issue of Palestinian membership. Secretary of State James Baker said Monday he would remain neutral but he is prepared to WHO in the Palestinians were admitted.

The issue will be debated at the annual assembly of the U.N.'s global health agency starting Monday and could lead to the state's admission.

ICRC officials said it is up to the Swiss government, which is party to the Geneva Conventions, to receive any Palestinian communication about signing the humanitarian principles.

A government spokesman in the capital of Bern said no request had been received as of Tuesday.

But it would in any case not finally any Swiss decision on the actual existence of a state of Palestine or of its recognition, the spokesman said.

As depositary, the Swiss government has to inform all signatory nations and then open up to each one to recognize the new signatory or not, he said. The conventions are reciprocal which means that they have to be applied by all those parties recognizing each other.

Hungary dismantles Iron Curtain

United Press International

HEGYESHALOM, Hungary — Hungarian workers are dismantling the electrified double-barbed wire fence along the frontier with Austria, creating the first East-West border without barriers in 40 years.

The removal by the Hungarian frontier guards began Tuesday outside the border village of Hegyeshalom near the major road between Budapest and Vienna, and at Sopron and Szombathely further south, the three busiest crossing points into Austria.

The political conditions are ripe, Col. Balazs Novaki, deputy chief of staff of the National command of frontier guards, said at a news conference. Restructuring in Hungary and the process of democratization does not make it necessary to maintain.

Novaki said Hungary has traditionally good relations with Austria, and the presence of the menacing watch towers and barbed wire fences has disturbed local inhabitants since they were erected in 1949.

The move is also likely to improve Hungary's image with the outside world.

Some 10 million tourists visit Hungary annually, about one-third of them from the West, and the barbed wire is not a pleasant sight.

About 100 miles of fence along Hungary's western border with Austria will be removed by Dec. 31, 1990. The border is actually 22 miles long but roads, rivers and rail tracks take up about 75 miles where no fence has been raised.

The cost of removal is estimated at $700,000 to $800,000.

Periodic border patrols will continue.

The mayor of Hegyeshalom, Zoltan Vincze, said residents are pleased to see the fence going because its removal restores the unity of the landscape.

The barbed wire fence runs between 1 and 1 1/2 miles east of the geographical border line along the flat Danube plain. It was first erected in 1949 following the communist takeover and the beginning of the Cold War.

Significantly, Hungary consulted neither Austria nor its Warsaw Pact allies about its decision to tear down the fence.

"Not did we consult our Western neighbor when we decided to erect the fence," Novaki noted.

Hard-line Czechoslovakia and East Germany, both heavily resisting Soviet-style reforms, are likely to resist the removal of the physical barriers along Hungary's western border for fear it will attract their citizens who might escape while on holiday in Hungary.

It remains to be seen whether more stringent rules will be adopted by these countries for tourists visiting Hungary.

When the fence went up, about 25 villages along the border were within a "forbidden zone" between the fence and the geographical border, and 4,200 villagers were forced to seek special permission to travel to their work places outside the zone. Similarly, special permits were needed to cultivate hundreds of acres within the zone.

The barriers also extended along the 375-mile border between Hungary and its southern neighbor, Yugoslavia, in the 1950s after it broke with the Soviet bloc.

There were also mine fields along the frontier. They were removed in the mid 1950s along the southern border but it was 1965 before the mines disappeared from the Austro-Hungarian border line.

Since 1965, electrified barbed wire charged with 10 volts — not enough to maim but enough to warn the border guards — have deterred people from crossing illegally.

Law Week recognized in Seminole

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — While communist countries celebrated the "May Day" observance of workers Monday, Americans began their week-long recognition of their organized system of freedom with "Law Day."

Seminole County commissioners and several cities have declared Monday as Law Day and this week as "Law Week." It is the 32nd year the week has been recognized nationwide by the American Bar Association and locally by the Seminole County Bar Association.

"It makes the public aware of the legal profession," said Louie Groot, assistant county attorney and spokesman for the Seminole County Bar. "It helps people appreciate the rights and privileges they have available to them in the United States."

In Seminole County, mock trials will be at several local schools, including Sanford Middle School May 8 as part of the educational theme of Law Week.

In the mock trials, students will have the chance to observe and participate in a simulated trial of an armed robber. Students will act as defendants, witnesses and jury, said Tom Hastings, assistant state attorney and chairman of the Seminole County Bar Association mock trial committee. Local attorneys will act as judge, prosecutor and defendant's attorney, Hastings said.

Essay and poster contests will also be at several schools around the county.

The Seminole County Law Library will also hold a mock trial Wednesday that will pit Public Defender James Russo against Steve Plotnick, chief trial attorney for the State Attorney's Office. The Lake Brantley High School government class will spend the day at the courthouse meeting with judges and other court officials and viewing the mock trial.

For grown-ups, free half-hour consultations will be provided through the Bar's Lawyer Referral Service, said Joyce Lawson, executive director of the county Bar Association. Call the Bar at 831-0530 for information.

For attorneys, the guest speaker of the annual Law Day Banquet Friday will be Robin J. Frank, a federal attorney who specializes in international criminal activities. She previously served as an assistant and deputy legal advisor to the National Security Council during the Iran Contra hearings. She also assisted in the transition between the Reagan and Bush administrations.

The winner of the first Thomas F. Whigham Pro Bono Award will also be announced at the banquet. Named for the late Sanford lawyer, the award winner will be recognized for significant free service to the public. The winner of the Liberty Bell Award, given to the lay person who contributes the most to the legal system, will also be announced.

Judges in the county will learn what trial attorneys think about them in the Bar's annual annual poll. County lawyers were polled in April and the results are expected to be released by Friday or early next week, Lawson said.

EPA sets pollution rules

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Environmental Protection Agency proposed new or revised limits on 43 pollutants in drinking water, including highly toxic PCBs and 18 widely used crop pesticides such as diazinon and aldicarb.

Seven pollutants in the number of water pollutants under federal regulation, the agency said. Standards for 27 toxic and/or carcinogenic pollutants previously regulated. It also proposed limits for eight pollutants in the proposed new health-based standards. Current limits for three pollutants were examined but left unchanged.

No decision on Shelton

SANFORD — Seminole County Commissioner Jennifer Kelley said she hasn't decided whether to take action against planning and zoning commissioner Frank Shelton for writing an irate letter to the president of the Friends of the Wekiwa River Inc.

Kelley said she will decide what to do after meeting with P&Z Commission Chairman Sam Lewis. No meeting has been set, she said.

On April 6, Kelley sought a legal opinion from County Attorney Bob McMillan asking if Shelton had violated any ethics laws in what she felt was a suggestion of vote trading.

McMillan didn't say whether Shelton had violated any laws, but said Kelley could handle the issue.

Recreation plans get a boost

By SANDRA BOUCHAMINE

LONGWOOD — The city's recreation plans are receiving a boost with funds and an offer for land.

Acting City Administrator Don Terry announced at Monday's meeting that long-time resident Wally Krohn has offered to sell the city a 10-acre piece of property for $30,000 on Lake Ruth off County Road 427 to the west of the recently established Longwood Arbo Park.

Terry said Tuesday morning that there are about five or six usable acres for a park site. The lake is approximately 10 acres.

"I think it is a very generous offer and something we should take advantage of," Terry told the commission.

"We could develop it as an area where people could fish or swim," he said Tuesday morning.

The commissioners and members of the recreation department will meet at city hall at 5 p.m. Thursday and will look at the property together.

Some commissioners said that the offer appears to be a good one, and that the city is in need of lakefront property.

It wasn't used for the park at least it's a green belt. Nobody would be tearing trees down and building, Commissioner Bob Bunting said Tuesday. Other than putting picnic tables or a barbecue pit, it's possible it could be made into a swimming beach, but we would need lifeguards and all that other stuff. Right now we got a fairly good deal and we can always get that money out of it.

Commissioner Richard E. Burlington said, "I haven't walked out there and looked at that property yet. As good a deal as this seems to be, it would be hard to turn away from that comprehensive land plan indicates that we need recreation land, particularly on the lake.

We have to lakefront parks. It looks like a great deal for us, but if it is a good useable land on the lakefront, it might be a good deal for us."

It looks like a great deal for us, but if it is a good useable land on the lakefront, it might be a good deal for us."

The city will also receive a shot by the sale of a state Department of Natural Resources grant for $20,000 to be awarded to the city for the purchase of 10 acres of land on the west side of Lake Ruth.

Terry said Monday the grant is a very generous offer and something we should take advantage of. The grant is for the purchase of 10 acres of land on the west side of Lake Ruth.

The city is planning to build a park on the approximately 22-acre park

Children's festival to raise Park on Park playground funds

SANFORD — The Scenic Improvement Board Saturday will have its first major fundraiser for a playground construction project.

The Children's Festival will raise funds for a playground planned for Park on Park at Eighth Street and Park Avenue. Admission to the festival and most activities in the park will be free. Food will be sold at several booths.

"We're hoping a lot of people will join us for lunch," playground chairperson Judy Wimble said.

Park on Park T-shirts will be for sale, and booths will be set up to register volunteers for the project. Contributors will be welcomed at the Buy-A-Boat booth, where they may sponsor two-by-fours for $3 apiece and two-by-sixes for $8 apiece.

To date, the group has raised $12,000 toward its $50,000 goal, Wimble said.

All volunteer construction of the playground will begin Nov. 1. The project has been designed and will be supervised by a New York architectural firm.

Park Avenue will be closed between Eighth and Ninth Streets from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Here is the Children's Festival schedule of events:

- Idylwild cheerleaders — 10 a.m.
- Valerie Weld School of Dancer Arts — 10:30 a.m.-11 a.m.
- First Baptist Church vocal trio — 11 a.m.-11:30 a.m.
- Twiggy the Waterskiing Squirrel — 11:30 a.m.-noon
- Brenda Vaccaro School of Dance — 1:30 p.m.-2 p.m.

City park rated high on grant list

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A proposal to develop a city park has ranked sixteenth in a priority list for Florida Department of Natural Resources matching grant monies.

The recommendations will be considered by Governor Bob Martinez May 11. About $3.46 million will be awarded in grants.

Last week DNR recommended funding all of Sanford's $120,000 request for the project. The total project cost is estimated at $360,000, Parks Superintendent Howard Jeffries said.

The grant proposal calls for the only two enclosed racquetball courts in Sanford, a fitness trail, a playground, restrooms and picnic shelter, three lighted tennis courts, basketball courts and a 60-car paved parking lot.

Jeffries said the seven-acre park, located between Airport and Lake Mary Boulevards, "is in an area that desperately needs a park."

Work on the park may begin as early as July, and should be completed by next spring, Jeffries said.

DNR recommended full funding of Longwood's $120,000 proposal for Candyland Park, ranked thirtieth on the list. Seminole County's $120,000 request for Greenwood Lakes park ranked thirty-second, and was recommended for a $61,943 grant.

Rosie Keweenaw of DNR said proposals are ranked based on the kinds of facilities proposed, public accessibility and how well those plans fit in with state and local comprehensive plans.

DNR received 63 applications for the grants, but four withdrew before the ranking process, Keweenaw said.

Tests may give top students college credits

By VICKI DeBONNEN
Herald staff writer

Over the next few weeks, some of the top seniors in Seminole County will see just how good they really are as they take part in the Advanced Placement Tests, which may help them earn college credit before they get to a university in the fall.

David Winger, coordinator for testing in the Seminole County district, said that while the administering of the tests is done at the individual schools, the district encourages every school to involve their students in the tests as much as possible.

"The Advanced Placement tests are difficult, but our students seem to do well on them," Winger noted.

Seminole High School guidance counselor Ken Brauman oversees the tests at his school.

"This year we've got 79 students (mostly seniors, but some juniors) taking the test," he said.

The greatest majority of Seminole High School AP test takers will be taking the U.S. history exam, followed by biology, English literature and calculus.

A grade of three or more (out of a possible four) will allow a student to apply their high school class toward college credit at most colleges and universities, thus allowing them to finish quickly or fit more courses into four years.

To be eligible for the exam, most schools recommend students be currently enrolled in an AP class. They are chosen to partake in the classes by teachers who recognize their abilities and recommend them to the school administration.

An AP class prepares the student not only by covering the regular curriculum, but also allowing the student to learn test taking strategies through taking past AP exams under the same timed situations under which the actual exam is administered.

"I wouldn't recommend a student try to go into an exam without the preparation," said Joann Caldwell who coordinates the efforts at Lake Mary High School.

There are 145 students taking the exam from Lake Mary High School. Only one student not enrolled in the preparatory class will be attempting the test.

While Seminole High School will be paying the $57 test fee for all their participating students, Lake Mary will pay for all but the one who is attempting the test without the suggested prep course.

Both Seminole and Lake Mary High Schools are confident in the abilities of their students.

They are confident with good reason: In 1988 77 percent of the 497 students who took the Advanced Placement exam scored three or better.

Will Western Playboy be ready for Derby?

United Press International

LOUISVILLE, Ky. - Western Playboy had a slow workout Tuesday, raising questions about his fitness for Saturday's Kentucky Derby.

The winner of the Jim Beam and Blue Grass stakes developed an infection in his left rear knee about a week after the Blue Grass and was sidelined a few days. Tuesday's five-eighths of a mile run in 1:03 under Randy Romero was his first since April 22.

In a good workout a horse moves at 12 seconds or faster per eighth of a mile. Derby outsiders Wind Splitter and Triple Buck covered the same distance in 1:01 and 1:01.35.

The probable Derby field was parred to 10 3-year-olds Tuesday when X-rays disclosed that Majesty's Imp, the colt owned by former Pittsburgh Pirates and Atlanta Braves Manager Chuck Turner, had a bone chip in his left knee. The colt will undergo arthroscopic surgery in Lexington and be sidelined six to eight weeks.

Derby favorite Easy Goer continued to impress. "He's a great looking horse, and he looks terrific here," said trainer LeRoy Jolley, a two-time Derby winner.

Western Playboy trainer Harvey Vanier left the Churchill Downs track saying he hoped for a faster time from his colt.

"He was a little nonchalant, but he had no distress," Vanier said. "He's gotten to the point where he's not interested in morning workouts. He wants company to run in a race."

"He was a little nonchalant, but he had no distress," Vanier said. "He's gotten to the point where he's not interested in morning workouts. He wants company to run in a race."

Irish Actor resumed racing in late March and was second to Awe Inspiring, Easy Goer's highly regarded stablemate, in the Flamingo Stakes. The colt then ran fourth in the Arkansas Derby at Oaklawn Park, the Jayaraman's home track.

"He's a nice horse. He's never run a bad race (his worst finishes are two fourths)," Jolley said. "He's not a superstar like Easy Goer, but he's a nice, solid horse and he should run a good race."

The Jayaramans, natives of India, arrived in Louisville Tuesday and watched the colt work five-eighths of a mile in 1:11.43 - 5.

Awe Inspiring, the favorite of Kentucky Derby favorite Easy Goer, moved up to No. 3 in the final top 10 rankings of probable Kentucky Derby candidates by 20 racing writers.

Awe Inspiring had been drawing rankings ranging from fourth to sixth since his victory in the April 8 Flamingo Stakes.

Easy Goer was the unanimous No. 1 choice in the poll sponsored by Triple Crown Productions, Inc., and Santa Anita Derby winner Sunday Silence was second. Ranked fourth through 10th were Western Playboy, Houston, Danfil, Faultless Ensign, Clever Trevor, Triple Buck and Irish A C T O R first-round playoff series. Wilkins scored 34 points in New York's 102-96 opening-game win and Trent Tucker sank a 3-point basket with 10 seconds left to give the Knicks a 107-106 victory in Game 2.

In Milwaukee, the Milwaukee Bucks stumbled into the NBA playoffs but some hot shooting by Ricky Pierce has put them on the brink of advancing to the second round.

Pierce scored a career-high 35 points and Sidney Moncrief made two free throws with three seconds left in overtime Tuesday night to give the Bucks a 117-113 victory over the Atlanta Hawks and a 2-1 advantage in their opening-round playoff series.

Game 4 of the best-of-five series is scheduled for Friday night in Milwaukee.

Pierce made 13 of 17 shots from the field and all seven free throw attempts. In addition, he made a key 3-point play in overtime to give the Bucks the lead for good.

"It's a pleasure to coach here and coach these kids," Smith said. "It's also a pleasure to coach the first team to win a district, we've had some real good talent we've just never been able to clear that hurdle."

The Patriots will lose four talented seniors to graduation but will return a solid corp of veteran players to once again make them a contender.

"We'll miss our four seniors," Smith said. "We lose some hitting strength but we return quite a bit."

Jim Morse, a hard hitting first baseman, closed out his fine career with the Patriots ending with a school record for most home runs, accumulating on of the highest averages in the school's history and dominating the hitting department in Seminole County for the past two years.

"We'll miss Jimmy quite a bit," Smith said. "He did quite a few things for us offensively and defensively."

Dalton Reed, Eddie Zarembo and Mitch Shatto are the three other seniors Brantley will send off, though, the future looks promising for the Patriots.

Thurston, Jason Varitek, Mark Gabrovic, and Greg Thomas form a powerful nucleus for Brantley's future. All five have contributed greatly to the Patriots program.

re-entered the game in the bottom of the sixth inning. Daunic retired four of the last five batters he faced. In all, Daunic surrendered just four hits and three walks while striking out nine.

"I'm proud of our kids," said Smith, whose team finished 17-13. "We played as hard as we could play. And we have a lot of young kids (Lake Brantley is graduating only four players this year).

"At the beginning of the year, we lost one player to injury and two because of disciplinary reasons. So we played missing three starts that could really play. But it comes down to pitching and defense. We told our kids how good they (Winter Park) are. They're very fundamentally sound."

Tuesday's loss ended an unusual season for the Patriots. Early in the year, Lake Brantley was ranked among the state's top 10 before a swoon pulled them several games under .500. Finally, they came together and won the first district baseball title in the school's history.

"Winter Park just got the key hits," said Smith. "We put no pressure on them. They just took it to us."

"Things look real good for the future and we hope to have some alumni games set up for the summer," Smith said. "I've been trying to get those games going and get the graduated players back here to see what we've done and where we're going."

Johnson's doctor had asked about 'pink pills'

United Press International

TORONTO — Ben Johnson's doctor asked the sprinter if he had "taken any of the pink pills" as authorities relieved him of his Olympic gold medal after his positive steroid test in Seoul, a Canadian government inquiry heard Tuesday.

Carol Anne Letheren, chief de mission of the Canadian team at the Seoul Olympics, testified at a government inquiry into drugs in sport that Dr. Jamie Astaphan posed the question to Johnson during her visit to the sprinter's hotel room three days after Johnson's victory in the 100 meters. She was there to take away his gold medal and remove him from the Canadian Olympic team.

"The one thing I clearly remember him saying is he asked Ben while we were there whether or not Ben had taken any of the pink pills," Letheren said.

"Ben gave no response. Ben did not say one word the whole time we were in the room," Letheren said. Olympic officials told her the level of steroids in Johnson's system was "grave," and indicated long-term usage. Johnson was stripped of his gold medal in the 100 meters and suspended from competition for two years after traces of the banned anabolic steroid stanozolol were found in his urine. The inquiry to study drug use in Canadian sport was set up in the wake of the ensuing scandal.

In previous testimony, coach Charlie Francis said Johnson began a steroid program in 1981, but stanozolol was not part of his pre-Olympic preparation.

In other testimony Tuesday, a coach at Johnson's track club said Astaphan boasted eight months before the Olympics about the pharmaceutical help he'd given Johnson.

Gary Lubin said Astaphan told him in a doughnut shop in January 1988 that he'd given Johnson "something extra" four days and again four hours before Johnson's smashed the world record in the 100 meters at the 1987 world championships in Rome.

Son's electric bills take mom to cleaners

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorced woman living on a very low disability income. My grown son lives with me. I try to conserve on everything I can, but he uses water and gas to heat the water for the 20-minute shower he takes every morning. He works 40 hours a week, goes to the YMCA to work out, and he's with his girlfriend the rest of the time. He eats all his meals out, but he comes home to sleep. The minute he gets home, he turns the TV on, and leaves it on while he sleeps! He often falls asleep with the lights on.

He runs up my electric bill with his radio, electric hair blower and his electric shaver. And he can't take a drink of water without letting the water run for five minutes. He's too lazy to look up telephone numbers, so he calls information, which is charged to my bill. (Can he add?)

He gives me a lousy $20 a week out of the $160 take-home pay he gets, and he complains yet. I think he's getting a good deal. If you agree with me, please print this so I can show it to my son.

FED UP

DEAR FED UP: Here's your letter. Clip it and pin it on your son's pillow. Or tape it to his shower curtain, his hair blower, his television set, his light switch or his telephone. Your son should not complain. You should. I think you're entitled to more.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please straighten me out on something that has baffled me for years? When do you use "infer" and when do you use "imply"? I always confuse these two words.

Please don't send me to the dictionary. I have looked up both of these words a dozen times, and I still don't get it.

DETROIT DUMMY

DEAR DUMMY: "Imply" means to suggest or to say indirectly. "Infer" means to deduce, or conclude from facts or indications.

Think of it this way: The implier is the pitcher; the inferer is the catcher. (Catch?)

Beth Bridges prepares Denver Brunch Eggs for Sunday's May Day Brunch.

Disastrous dinners now super suppers

By DORIS DIETRICH
Herald correspondent

SANFORD — Mayday! May day!

This international radiotelephonic signal used for ships and aircraft in distress just may have been sounded by our Cook of the Week when she was introduced to her kitchen as a blushing bride two years ago.

Beth Bridges is the first to admit that when she married Sanford attorney Jack Bridges that she "literally couldn't boil water." Jack also is the first to admit that his bride's culinary expertise rated just about zero at the time.

Bridges has come a long way, though, baby. Her Mayday days are over and now she's in the May Day mood and mode. Today she ranks right up there with the pros. In fact, she is this year's charming emcee for the 13th Annual May Day Brunch. The brunch, a benefit sponsored by the Civic Improvement Project of the Woman's Club of Sanford Inc., will be held Sunday, May 7, from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center. All proceeds will go toward civic improvement in Sanford.

So what if Bridges was a late bloomer in the cooking department? She was busy doing other things, such as cheerleading for Seminole High School, working for Dr. Roger Stewart, and taking dancing classes.

Born in Bennettsville, S.C., Bridges moved to Sanford in 1968. At SHS, where she graduated in 1980, in addition to cheerleading, Bridges also held office in several school organizations. And she went on to receive her bachelor's degree from the University of Central Florida in two and one-half years.

Who needed to cook? Not Bridges.

While a college student, Bridges lived at home in Sanford with her parents, Frank and Ann Newkirk. She said that during those years her mother went to South Carolina every summer for a month to help her elderly relatives.

"If Frank hadn't cooked, I would have starved," Bridges said. She added that when she got hungry she would "open up a can of corn or make a sandwich."

When it comes to talent, Bridges is no slouch. She is a popular model in area fashion shows and, in 1982, she gave Deanna Pittman a run for the money in the Miss Sanford Pageant, a preliminary to the Miss America Scholarship Pageant. But Deanna's sizzling jazz number won out over Bridges' high-stepping tap dance. "That was quite an experience," Bridges said.

Not yet anywhere near thirtysomething, Bridges is already a community leader. She is the current president, for the fourth term, of the Seminole County Chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving, and is past president of the Junior Women's Club of Sanford Inc. and Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole. She also is a secretary of the Community Coordinated Child Care of Central Florida Inc. (4C). is active in the Sanford Woman's Club, is a board member of Seminole Community Concert Association, is a member of the education committee of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, and is a member of the Central Florida Regional Hospital Auxiliary.

Yes, meatloaf can be a treat

A meal planned around a meatloaf can be satisfying, quick and economical, as well as a family pleaser. Using the microwave oven cuts the cooking time by more than half.

Most cooks have a favorite family recipe that can be adapted easily to microwave cooking. Usually the amount of liquid should be reduced, because little moisture will be lost during the short non-dry heat cooking process.

You might use one of the following recipes or use the recipe as a guide for proportions and cooking times.

MICROWAVE MEATLOAF

1 1/2 pounds lean ground beef
1/4 cup quick-cooking rolled oats

1 tablespoon instant minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 cup milk
1 egg
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 tablespoons catsup
1 teaspoon prepared mustard

Combine ground beef, oats, onion, salt, pepper, milk and egg in mixing bowl; mix well. Press into 8-by-4-inch glass loaf pan. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on 70 percent power 15 minutes. Drain.

Combine brown sugar, catsup and mustard; mix well. Spoon over partially cooked meatloaf. Cover. Microwave on 70 percent power for 5-7 minutes or until cooked in center (150°F). Let stand 5-10 minutes. Transfer to serving plate.

This is a favorite of mine. This meatloaf lends itself to an Italian meal very nicely. Serve it with pasta, green salad, crusty bread sticks and fresh fruit or a tortoni for dessert.

MICILIAN MEATLOAF

1 pound lean ground beef
1/4 cup dry bread crumbs
1 egg
1 small onion, finely chopped
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
1 clove garlic, minced
1 teaspoon oregano leaves
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4-1/2 teaspoon pepper
6 thin slices cooked ham
1 cup mozzarella cheese, shredded

3 slices American cheese, cut diagonally

Mix all ingredients except ham and cheeses. Place mixture on 12-by-12-inch piece of waxed paper and shape into a rectangle approximately 9 inches wide, 10 inches long and 1/2 inch thick. Place ham slices on meat, overlapping edges. Sprinkle with mozzarella cheese. Roll up jelly-roll fashion.

Place on microwave safe meat rack or in a 10-by-6-inch baking dish. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on 100 percent power, 14-15 minutes or until meat is not longer pink. Place cheese slices on top of meatloaf. Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered 1-1 1/2 minutes or until cheese melts.

This meatloaf may remind you of cabbage rolls, but it is less time-consuming to prepare.

CABBAGE-STUPPED MEATLOAF

4 cups finely-shredded cabbage
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons water
1/2-1 teaspoon dill weed
1 pound ground beef
1/2 cup crushed crackers (soda or Ritz type)
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 egg, beaten
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
1 tablespoon catsup
1/4 teaspoon basil leaves
1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce

Combine cabbage, onion, garlic and water in a 4-cup glass measure. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave on 100 percent power 5-6 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Drain liquid into 2-quart glass batter bowl. Add dill weed to cabbage; set aside. Add ground beef, cracker crumbs, Worcestershire sauce, salt, pepper and egg to reserved liquid. Mix well.

Press half of mixture into bottom and 1-inch up sides of 9-by-5-inch loaf pan. Add cabbage mixture, spreading evenly. Top with remaining meat mixture, pressing evenly to edges to seal. Combine tomato sauce, catsup, basil and pepper sauce. Brush 2 tablespoons of mixture on meatloaf. Cover with waxed paper.

Microwave on 70 percent power 13-15 minutes or until meat is no longer pink. Let stand 5 minutes. Microwave remaining sauce on 100 percent power for 1-1 1/2 minutes or until hot. Serve sauce with slices of meatloaf.

A meatloaf that combines several vegetables and flavors makes a tasty addition to the meal. Try baking this in a microwave tube pan for added interest.

VEGGIE-MEATLOAF
1 1/2 pounds lean ground beef
2 eggs, well beaten
1/2 medium onion, finely chopped

2 ribs celery, thinly sliced
1/2 cup green pepper, chopped
2 carrots, finely grated
1 tablespoon horseradish
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon parsley
1 teaspoon garlic salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup catsup

Gently mix all ingredients, except catsup. Lightly press mixture into a tube pan or a 9-by-5-inch loaf dish. Microwave on 100 percent power for 5 minutes, reduce power to 50 percent and microwave for 10-15 minutes. Place catsup on loaf during last 5 minutes of cooking. Allow to stand 5-10 minutes before removing from pan.

Congenital anemia is poorly understood

DEAR DR. GOTT: Our 2½-year-old son was diagnosed at 5 months as having Blackfan-Diamond syndrome, or congenital hypoplastic anemia. He was initially treated with massive doses of prednisone and has been weaned to two milligrams every other day which is maintaining his blood count. What can you tell us about this disease?

DEAR READER: Blackfan-Diamond syndrome is an extremely rare congenital anemia, in which children inherit a poorly understood abnormality of the basic cells that form red corpuscles. This leads to a pure red cell aplasia, a deficiency of red blood cells. Other components of the bone marrow — for example, tissue that forms white blood cells — are spared. For reasons that are not clear, steroid drugs — such as prednisone — may help control the anemia. In some children, transfusions may be necessary to save life. In most patients, transplantation of bone marrow from a healthy donor is the preferred treatment. This is appropriate therapy for children. Because this syndrome is so unusual, you should request and receive further information from the hematologists (blood specialists) who are treating your son.

anemia, are spread from human to human and are untreatable with antibiotics or other drugs.

Fortunately, most people with Coxsackie infection experience mild flu-like symptoms and recover uneventfully.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

There are two interesting aspects to this deal. The first is the play in five clubs after West has opened with a weak two-spade bid. Today's declarer won the ace of spades, shedding a heart from dummy, and then played four rounds of diamonds, shedding heart losers. That would have been fine if East had ruffed in, but East simply discarded on the fourth diamond. Then, when a heart was led, East took the ace and cashed the queen of clubs, shortening declarer's trumps that were needed for ruffing dummy's losing hearts. Best of course is for declarer to simply cash the club ace and then play on diamonds, since South can afford to allow the defense to make a trick with the queen of clubs, but cannot afford to let a defender draw a third round of his trumps with that club queen.

The second interesting aspect is that any chance for South to make a game in clubs would disappear if East-West had a partnership agreement that I heartily recommend. If East could have bid three hearts as an artificial lead-directing bid, the defenders would take the first three heart tricks against a club contract. This agreement only applies when the opponents double your partner's weak two-bid for takeout. If you adopt this method, it is also sensible to agree that two no-trump over an opposing takeout double announces that you wish to play in your own long suit. Partner bids three clubs by agreement, and you pass with long clubs or bid your actual long suit.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 4, 1989

You're likely to have an unbridled thirst for knowledge in the year ahead. These powerful desires will be triggered by a personal drive for self-betterment as well as a need for material gratification.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Leadership ability is likely to be your strong suit today. If those with whom you're involved are hesitant or indecisive, you'll probably adhere to your inclinations to step in and take charge.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Friends who feel they are the victims of circumstances should look to you for inspiration today. You'll be able to show them how to rebuild their phoenix from its own ashes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It looks like you will be at your best today if pressured into a corner and have to come up with quick answers. The tougher the questions, the better you are likely to perform.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Make an effort today to put something social together that includes friends you think of as being the most exciting and unusual among your pals. It should be fun.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Focus your efforts and energies today on things that you can do to enhance your career. Try the untried — nothing ventured, nothing gained.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There's a chance you might be challenged today on a subject you know extremely well and about which you feel very strongly. I wouldn't want to be your adversary.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Friends who feel they are the victims of circumstances should look to you for inspiration today. You'll be able to show them how to rebuild their phoenix from its own ashes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It looks like you will be at your best today if pressured into a corner and have to come up with quick answers. The tougher the questions, the better you are likely to perform.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Motivation to be the leader among your peers could be uppermost in your mind today.

You might even take some clever measures to escape being numbered among the rank and file.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you don't take yourself or what you do too seriously today, people with whom you'll be involved will begin to emulate your behavior (instead of letting the whole project get too heavy).

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're likely to feel extremely protective of those under your guidance today and you may even go to unusual lengths to safeguard their interests and security.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Even though your emotions are likely to be very strong in defense of what you believe today you're still not apt to be unreasonable when your concepts are challenged by others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You could have a slight touch of genius today pertaining to things material. If something opportune develops, you'll know how to use it to your maximum benefit.

Budget faces major challenges

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The highly hailed and highly assailed agreement between President Bush and congressional leaders on the budget for fiscal 1990 faced major challenges Wednesday from rank-and-file members of the Senate and House.

The Senate began debate on the more than $1.1 trillion budget late Tuesday with opening statements by floor managers, who gave the package of spending and revenues strong support. The House was scheduled to begin its consideration Wednesday.

The first test facing the Senate was a proposal by Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, and a lineup of Republican conservatives putting Congress on record against raising gasoline excise taxes.

Other, more far-reaching amendments, some of which could upset the contract with the White House, were expected in both chambers — including one that would take the Social Security Trust Fund out of the budget and escalate the deficit by about $48 billion.

The budget resolutions approved by the Senate and House committees are very similar. They would cut the deficit by $28 billion bringing it down to $99.4 just under the $100 billion target set by the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings law.

The Senate and House overall totals are almost the exact size and they have the same freeze on defense spending.

But in several domestic areas the resolutions differ. Once the two resolutions are approved, those differences will be resolved by Senate and House negotiators.

The budget resolutions provide an overall blueprint for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 and the precise terms will be written by Senate and House committees with jurisdiction over the various categories.

Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, said the budget worked out with Bush was the "best compromise possible" and rejected attacks that it consists of "smoke and mirrors, deception or light-of-hand."

Sasser said the resolution "keeps the budget trending down" and added, "it spreads the pain fairly and equally. Nothing should be immune or sacrosanct." House Speaker Jim Wright said the budget "while not a heroic effort ... does do about as well, I guess, as we could do protecting the priority programs to which we are committed."

The speaker cited funds for Head Start, the WIC nutrition program and other health care and education programs and also noted the budget, as drafted by the House committee, fully funds programs for the homeless and against drugs.

"Imperfect though it must be, given the fiscal restraints, I think it's about as good as the committee could put together," Wright said.

A small band of House Democrats, warning that Social Security benefits were threatened, said they will seek to remove the trust fund from the budget to fiscal 1991.

GIVE YOUR CHANGE TO FEED THE HUNGRY.

The statistics about hunger in America are shocking. More and more children and elderly people don't have enough to eat. But you can help make a change for the better. WINN DIXIE and The Salvation Army have put together a simple, effective program called "Even It Up". When you buy groceries, just ask your cashier to "even up" your grocery total to the next dollar. The funds collected will go to The Salvation Army to provide fresh food items for needy families.
