Rescuers Close To Pulling Texas Tot From Well

By Mike Hix

MIDLAND, Texas (UPI) — Rescuers were expected to break through the last 10 inches of rock about 1 p.m. (EDT) today or shortly thereafter to rescue 18-month-old Jessica McClure from the 22-foot-deep abandoned well where she has been trapped for two days.

Early today two small holes were punched through the rock wall between rescuers and the well shaft where the tot is trapped.

Midland Police Cpl. Jim White said workers were only breaking about an inch of rock away an hour and expected to chisel a big enough hole to bring the girl through about 2 p.m. or sometime shortly afterwards.

Volunteers punctured the well cavity shortly after 5 a.m. today, 43 hours after rescue efforts began, and were hoping to retrieve Jessica after about two hours more work, White said. The toddler slid into the dry well Wednesday morning.

White said rescuers drilled two 3-inch holes about 10 inches apart and were chiseling out an area 20 inches wide so rescuers could get Jessica on a backboard and into a cervical collar to bring her to the surface.

The rescuers could hear Jessica crying when they broke through into the well.

"She's screaming like a banshee," said Detective Sgt. Andy Glascock.

Police spokesman Jeff Hatley said rescuers were trying to keep Jessica alert and awake during the final hours of the rescue operation. On Thursday, the blond, blue-eyed girl slept and sang nursery rhymes, raising the spirits of her family and weary rescuers.

White said Jessica's parents were calling to her down the shaft of the dry water well throughout the rescue effort.

"They are giving her words of encouragement like, 'We're going to get you out. I love you,'" he said.

Jessica fell into the 22-foot-deep well about 10 a.m. Wednesday while playing in her aunt's back yard. The well's opening is only 8 inches wide and to reach her, rescue teams were forced to dig a parallel shaft, then start tunneling to the wider section of the well where she is trapped.

Jessica's mother, Reba Gayle McClure, was watching her daughter and five other youngsters Wednesday in the back yard of the child care center when the toddler fell into the well.

The children were playing a game called "mama, daddy, baby." A 3-year-old girl and a 4-year-old boy had Jessica by the arms and were walking across the yard swinging her. As they walked over the well, the girl slipped from their hands, said Lawanna Keller, 21, mother of the Lindsey, the 3-year-old.

Rescuer Steve Alcorn of Timber Drilling in Midland and four other volunteers used jackhammers, pneumatic drills and chisels to inch toward the girl.

"She's getting pretty ticked off everytime we start work," Alcorn said. "They had me quit for 10 to 15 minutes one time because she just starts hollering and crying."

"It's pretty cramped working space right now," Alcorn said. "We keep thinking we're getting close. There's no way really to tell, but the ground has gotten a lot softer and we're drilling faster."

Missile Hits U.S.-Flagged Oil Tanker

Iran Accused Of Major Escalation

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — A missile slammed into a U.S.-flagged Kuwaiti tanker in Kuwaiti waters today, wounding up to 18 crewmen, including the American master of the vessel, the Pentagon and Kuwaiti officials said.

Both the United States and Kuwait accused Iran of firing the missile that struck the re-flagged Kuwaiti tanker Sea Isle City at the same spot a missile struck another tanker Thursday. Iran also was accused of that attack.

"It looks like a major escalation by the Iranians," said U.S. Ambassador to Bahrain Sam Zakhem in a telephone interview.

A U.S. Central Command spokesman said 18 crewmen were injured in the missile attack on the Sea Isle City. Col. John Head said 11 of the 18 were hospitalized, four of them with critical injuries. The American skipper of the 80,000-ton vessel was among the people hospitalized, he said.

"None of the Americans aboard the tanker were on active duty with the U.S. Navy," Head said.

Rashid Abdul Aziz al Rashid, Kuwait's minister of state for cabinet affairs, said "Iran today fired a missile and hit a U.S.-flagged tanker wounding the captain and 17 other sailors, some of them seriously, in addition to material damage."

But in Tehran, Iranian President Ali Khamenei said only that no one had claimed responsibility for the attack.

"Where the missile comes from, the almighty knows better," the official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted Khamenei as saying during prayers today.

But IRNA also quoted Khamenei as saying, "We have declared that they (the United States and its allies) should not expect us to watch our ships being attacked and other ships

Matthew West, Lake Mary city planner, points to marked trees large enough to be protected under city's arbor ordinance that were bulldozed by contractor clearing land for the post office facility on West Lake Mary Boulevard.

Post Office Building Co. To Be Fined For Destroying Trees

By Richard Whittaker
Herold Staff Writer

The city of Lake Mary said today it intends to fine the general contractor that was responsible for bulldozing about 30 trees on the property for the new city post office Wednesday at least $30,000 for code-enforcement and arbor ordinance violations.

The city tried to stop Rubin Excavating, a project sub-contractor from Winter Springs, from clearing the land at 500 West Lake Mary Boulevard at about 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, by placing a stop-work order on the project, but post office officials in Tampa told the Swain Company, the Longwood contractors in charge of the project, to ignore the city mandate and continue with their work. The company went back to work shortly (an estimated 30 minutes) after the order was posted on the 6.4 acre site without the interference of the city.

Lake Mary City Planner Matthew West, who issued the order, said work on the building is still going on as of today with the question of whether Lake Mary has the power to try to regulate the postal service's plans still very much up in the air.

West said he was told to stop the work and fine the company by City Attorney Frank Kruppenbacher. "I don't know what the legal implications are, but the situation could result in arrests if they continue to keep working," West said.

Postal officials in Tampa say the city should have been contacted with an official review of the project and an application for a building permit before the

School Board Names New Discipline Panel

By Richard Whittaker
Herold Staff Writer

The Seminole County School Board named 13 local residents to a new Suspension/Expulsion Task Force to study the reasons why black students in the school district seemingly are disciplined more harshly than white ones, and make recommendations to the board on what can be done to achieve disciplinary parity between races.

In establishing the task force, the board hopes to reduce the suspension/expulsion rate among minority students and for "all students as a whole."

The idea for the task force was suggested by chairman Joe Williams in September. Williams said he became concerned about the possibility of county black students being punished more severely than white ones after news accounts of the problem reached him.

The task force will consist of district principals Wayne Epps.

Sanford Seeks State Grant

By Maryann Cross
Herold Staff Writer

Sanford has applied for $27,272 in state funds to help finance revisions in the city's comprehensive plan.

City commissioners unanimously approved filing the grant application with the state Bureau of Local Resource Planning this week. The money will be used to revise population estimates and projections; refine information concerning water and sewage impact fees to new construction when the city's wastewater reuse system is in operation; and further the city's recreation impact fee for new development.

City Planner Jay Marder said the city will hire Ivey Bennett, Harris, and Walls, Inc. to do the work.

Marder said the state allocates funds to all the cities and counties in Florida for their comprehensive plans. He said the state has a base allocation for each city category.

For instance, the cities of Sanford, Casselberry, Altamonte Springs, and Longwood all have a base allocation of $12,500. Marder said. Smaller cities, such as Lake Mary and Oviedo, have a base allocation of $7,500 and

Regulars Wait Week To Play

Players Return Empty-Handed

By Will Duham
UPI Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The NFL Players Association, coming up empty-handed in the 24-day football strike, is sending its members back to work, but the striking players will not be allowed on the field until Oct. 25.

Players Association leader Gene Upshaw announced the end to the strike Thursday after union representatives from the 28 clubs voted to send players back to work without a new contract.

"It's not a surrender on our part, it's a cease-fire, I suppose," said union assistant executive director Doug Allen. "The struggle is not over."

The union, licked at the bargaining table, has filed an antitrust suit against the professional football league's team owners.

Some 1,585 union players walked off the job Sept. 22, three weeks after the expiration of the collective bargaining agreement. League owners canceled games Sept. 27 and 28, but fielded teams of replacement players on the next two weekends. During the walkout, some striking players began crossing picket lines and returning to work, with the wave of defections creating this week.

Despite the termination of the walkout, the team owners have extended non-union games for a third straight weekend and said regular games will resume Oct. 25.

"They're trying to exert their power to try to crush the union even more and we understand that," Upshaw said today in an interview with United Press International. "(But) I don't believe that the union is dead."

The union's suit, filed in federal court in Minneapolis, charges owners with "conspiracy" to violate antitrust laws in the areas of player reserve system, college draft and player contracts.

"We had to do what we had to do," Upshaw said Thursday.

Dick Berthelsen, the union's general counsel, said the players

Workers for Webber Glass place real screws in windows replacing the phonies inserted by another contractor in the Seminole County jail.

'Real Things' Replace Jail's Phony Screws

The construction company that installed 240 windows in the expansion to the Seminole County "faked" the installation of some screws used to secure windows in jail cells. Screw heads were glued into two of the 10 screw slots in each of about 200 windows of the jail.

Another company, Weber Glass of Crystal River, discovered the problem last week and had workers at the jail Thursday to replace the screw heads with real screws.

Seminole County Jail administrator Capt. Jay Leman said Thursday that the "fudging" on the installation of the screws by Detention Industries of Brandon, did not effect security at the jail, because the frames of the windows are imbedded into re-enforced concrete walls and the eight long screws installed in each of the windows, which were short two screws each, secured the windows in place.

The windows, which are about three-foot long and about 4-inches high are too narrow for an inmate to work his way through, even if the glass was removed, Leman said. The re-enforced frame would have to be forced out of the wall, before a larger opening could be made in the wall, he said.

The positioning of the screw heads was in areas where it would be hard to install a screw, Leman said. But Detention Industries was not authorized by jail officials to install the screw heads instead of screws, Leman said.

Weber Glass is replacing the screw heads with screws at no additional cost to the county.

IN BRIEF

Castor's AIDS School Policy: More Education, No Segregation

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Education Commissioner Betty Castor wants AIDS information disseminated in the public schools, saying that is one of the best ways to halt the disease's spread.

AIDS education was a key element of the statewide policy on the disease she proposed Thursday.

Castor also said children infected with the acquired immune deficiency syndrome virus should remain in the classroom whenever possible, and be segregated from classmates only if there is a real danger they will transmit AIDS.

The guidelines include establishment of programs to foster a better community awareness of the disease and so avoid the hysteria that rocked the De Soto County community of Arcadia earlier this year when three young AIDS carriers attended school under a federal court order.

Scores Of Cats Killed Under Law

CLEARWATER (UPI) — Free-roaming cats became fair game Oct. 1 when a revised Pinellas County animal control ordinance went into effect and officials report Thursday on soaring numbers of felines being put to death.

Animal Control Director Arthur Lindblom said 85 cats had been put to death this week and said most of the 150 cats and kittens now at the pound face a similar fate because they will not be adopted.

The ordinance places the same restrictions on cats as for dogs. They are prohibited from roaming freely off their owner's property and every animal over 4 months old must be vaccinated against rabies and have an animal license.

larger cities such as Lakeland have a $20,000 base.

Marder said additional money is given by the state based on population. Sanford was allocated $14,772 in addition to its base funds.

"But the planning process for a city of 30,000 tends to cost more than $1 per head," Marder said.

Marder said the cost of developing a city comprehensive plan is considerable. In addition to his own salary, the city has paid planning and engineering consultants with Ivey Bennett, Harris, and Walls, Inc. $20,000 to help draft the plan.

Marder said the city needs to update its water and sewage impact fees to cover the cost of improvements to the city's wastewater program.

"Each unit built affects the (water and sewage) system in some way," Marder said. "As new development comes into the area, the system must be expanded to handle the needs of the community."

The state funds for the recreation aspect of the city's future plan will be used to determine what it costs to provide recreation areas for new development.

The city has sent the preliminary draft of its comprehensive plan to various review agencies, such as the St. Johns Water Management District, for comments. Marder said the use of the state funds may be changed if comments are received indicating the city needs more work on certain aspects of its plan. If the city decides to use the funds in another area, he said, a revised application must be submitted to the state.

received with no guarantees from management, including salary or roster protection for strikers.

Cincinnati wide receiver Cria Collinsworth said, "I think it's time to face reality. We'll be lucky to come out of this thing with what we had to begin with. We're going to be left at the mercy and good graces of NFL owners. The bottom line is, collective bargaining is over with as we know it."

The owners' steadfast bargaining stance, four missed paychecks and a surge of players crossing picket lines left union leaders with few options. At least 11 full teams attempted to cross picket lines before Uphaw's official cancellation of the strike.

Uphaw tried early Thursday for a final concession. He asked Jack Donlan, the owners' chief negotiator, to guarantee returning players receive a check for this weekend's games. The request was denied.

"Our position is the same as it has been for the last two weeks," Management Council spokesman Peter Ruocco said. "The deadline for playing this week was Wednesday at 1 p.m. Players who did not report by then are not eligible to play this week and will not be paid for this week."

We Must Invest In Our Children

If the quality of a civilization may be measured by how it cares for its elderly, the future of a society may be forecast by how it cares for its young.

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., a historian who has written extensively about the American family, said that. His observation makes us appreciate all the more an important new report that offers sound and specific advice about how to reach our "children at risk." The report, Children in Need: Investment Strategies for the Educationally Disadvantaged, was prepared and distributed by the Committee for Economic Development, a non-profit organization whose trustees include leaders in industry and higher education.

Much of what the report tells us about America's disadvantaged children has been said before; the challenge the committee faces is motivating a nation to respond to facts no less disturbing even if familiar.

The report argues that the education reform movement of the past five years—a movement this newspaper endorses—largely has bypassed at least a third of our young people. If our schools impose higher standards without providing the special help needed to meet those standards, a million young people will continue to drop out each year; up to 700,000 will graduate, lacking the skills to qualify for productive employment or higher education.

What makes the CED report particularly useful is the concrete plan of action it offers. For each of its major points, the panel that prepared the report offers an illustration of what actually has been done—for example, the New Futures School for pregnant teenagers in Albuquerque, N.M.; successful preschool programs in Ypsilanti, Mich. and El Paso, Texas; U.S. Navy mentoring programs established in conjunction with schools across the country; the Boston Compact model for partnerships between schools and businesses.

Children of Need recognizes that a campaign of "early and sustained intervention in the lives of disadvantaged children" is not easy. Nor is it cheap. And no one group or institution alone—certainly not our schools alone—can help these "disadvantaged children" break the shackles of lifelong failure and dependency.

The CED report insists that it can be done; it predicts the consequences if we don't succeed. Allowing these children to fail, the report warns, "will not only impoverish these children, it will impoverish our nation—culturally, politically, economically."

Confidentially

Syracuse University officials are said to be investigating a possible "leak" of Sen. Joseph Biden's student records.

If a former law dean blabbed about Biden's plagiarism, as reported by a Washington newspaper, he violated not only university policy but federal privacy laws, school officials said.

Maybe they're right. The interest of the federal government in the confidentiality of student files is covered under the Buckley Amendment, but the debate surrounding them is instructive.

Can Biden or any political candidate or public figure invent an academic record and leave the institution involved without recourse to expose the deceit?

Is a loose-tongued dean to be hauled before a federal court, while Washington's legions of leakers blab away with impunity?

Biden's records may be personal, all right, yet most people would say that the law school can deal with confidentiality on its own, informing students what standards apply.

Still, somebody did leak the story about Biden's unscholarly embarrassment. Maybe the leak is, indeed, a federal case. But if that former dean is dragged into court, he should offer forgetfulness as a defense.

That, after all, is the defense that Biden gave for not attributing the source of his term paper's borrowed brilliance.

Democrats Fail To Understand Priorities

The Democrats — like moths to flame — are apparently still drawn to their fatal attractions: sex and a weak foreign policy. Could the recent televised debate in Miami of six Democratic presidential candidates about foreign policy been worse for the Democrats? Yes, it could have been worse. After all, Sen. Albert Gore took some steps toward articulating a foreign policy that deals with the real world, rather than with the world as seen through the myopic eyes of liberal activists.

Gore said, it was a Democratic nightmare. Consider: Here is a party that has been under attack for being "soft" on defense, for "blaming America first," for not understanding the Soviet threat. And for 90 minutes on national television the candidates didn't bother to mention that the big problem in the world is the Soviet Union. No one stressed that Americans are the good guys in the global drama of our time.

A man from Mars watching would have assumed that the real enemies of mankind are Ronald Reagan and the contra "gangsters." After all, it was indicated that it was immoral to help an anti-communist insurgency in Nicaragua, but sort of a neat idea to support an insurgency in South Africa by the Marxist-led African National Congress.

Now, these Democratic candidates surely understand who the good guys are and why. They are patriots. They are not amateurs and they must think they know what they are doing and saying.

But what they are doing is abandoning the most potent, most mainstream issue in presidential politics. You don't believe that? Times-Mirror and Gallup recently published a survey that asked Americans to identify themselves in relation to 16 terms. Here, by the following percentages, are the terms with which Americans "strongly identified":

- A supporter of the gay rights movement — 8 percent
- A liberal — 19
- A Republican — 20
- Pro-Israel — 25
- A union supporter — 27
- A supporter of the National Rifle Association — 27
- A conservative — 27
- A supporter of business interests — 28
- A supporter of the women's movement — 29
- A Democrat — 31
- A supporter of the anti-abortion movement — 32
- An environmentalist — 39
- A supporter of the peace movement — 48
- A supporter of the civil rights movement — 47
- A religious person — 49
- Anti-communist — 70 (!)

So, here we are, after the "trauma" in Vietnam, after Ronald Reagan was derided for calling the Soviets the Evil Empire, after Gorbachev's glasnost, after White House staffers were denounced as anti-communist zealots during the Iran-contra hearings — and what have we? An electorate with very little support for gay rights. With little support for liberals or Republicans. With medium support for Democrats and conservatives. With solid support for environmentalism, peace, civil rights and religion. And with overwhelming support above anything else for anti-communism!

So what on earth are the Democratic candidates doing? I assume they believe the myth of the "left-wing veto" in the Democratic primary process, and not only believe it, but are pandering to the mindless orthodoxy it represents.

This is how bad it is: Shortly after Gore had the temerity to break ranks, the campaign manager for congressman Richard Gephardt said this of Gore: "He's like a little boy who comes to the first grade and pulls his pants down. We're hoping he will wake up and discover he's embarrassing himself instead of just attracting attention."

Now, uh, this is not the time for Democrats to talk about candidates with their pants down. But the embarrassment is not Gore's. It is the other five pantsless candidates who should be embarrassed, who are attracting attention without paying attention, Democrats: Put your pants back on.

Staying The Chorus

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unlike some presidential candidates I could name, but won't, Judge Robert Bork decided to press his campaign for Supreme Court confirmation in the U.S. Senate, where it apparently was foredoomed.

But then Bork never had to endure an outbreak of fault-finding with his sex or collegiate life.

Certain publications say conservative leaders in supporting Bork were only trying to pave the way for President Reagan's next nominee. But I agree with Howard Baker, White House chief of staff, who allowed as how he had seen funeral parlors that were livelier than the Supreme Court.

As to how Baker, a former Senate majority leader, might have appraised the U.S. Senate, is a matter of conjecture.

Apparently, he considered running for president more lively. At any rate, he didn't seek re-election to the legislative body.

If I were in the business of handing out advice, like some journalists I could name, but won't, I would recommend that the next nominee have at his side a smart lawyer during confirmation hearings.

I wouldn't say Bork was remiss on that point, but you know the old saying about the lawyer who represents himself. I assume the moral applies to judges as well.

Had Bork been accompanied by an attorney who might have challenged members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by denying he was part of the hearing room carpeting, they might have been less inclined to tread of his client.

As it was, as has been widely reported, the committee rejected Bork, and 53 senators have pledged to do the same when his nomination came up for confirmation, as it did this week.

Every arithmetic student — even some members of Miss Pringle's fifth grade class — could figure out that 53 senators, in addition to being a mess, comprise more than half of the Senate, which has roughly 100 members when it is running full tilt.

At any rate, 47 votes would fail to provide Bork with the "simple majority" that certain Constitutional experts consider necessary for senatorial "consent." As for the number of senators required to give "advice," that presumably is anybody's guess.

CIA Sees Mexico's Next Chief As Socialist

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The "president-designate" of Mexico, budget boss Carlos Salinas de Gortari, will be as reasonable in his dealings with the United States as his mentor, President Miguel de la Madrid, has been, according to our sources in Mexico.

But the Central Intelligence Agency isn't so sure about Salinas. The agency is afraid the future president is a leftist, who will not only promote socialist economic policies but who will prove to be an obstreperous and troublesome opponent of Washington's foreign policy objectives, particularly in Central America.

Nuke Power Hindered

FORKED RIVER, N.J. (NEA) — In the pre-dawn hours of a Friday last month, an extraordinary event occurred at the Oyster Creek Nuclear Generating Station here. The records of a safety violation were intentionally destroyed.

That document destruction is believed to be unprecedented. Industry observers cannot recall a similar case at a nuclear power plant anywhere in the country. More importantly, the episode constitutes a serious breach of safety standards.

Only one month prior to that incident, the same facility was fined $205,000 by the federal government's Nuclear Regulatory Commission for a safety violation last April in which employees used ropes to tie open valves.

A relatively old plant that began operating in 1969, Oyster Creek has been plagued in recent years by corroded bearings, faulty switches, leaking gaskets, inoperable pumps and other malfunctions.

Notwithstanding that spate of problems, Oyster Creek is neither the worst nor the best of the nation's approximately 100 nuclear power plants. Instead, it is a typically troubled facility that exemplifies an industry-wide pattern of safety lapses, emergency shutdowns and near-accidents.

The industry's failures are documented in a report recently issued by the Public Citizen Critical Mass Energy Project, a Washington, D.C., public interest group. Among its findings:

• In 1984, the NRC levied 30 fines totalling $1.9 million to penalize power plant operators for violating safety standards. In 1985, those figures rose to 37 fines worth $3.6 million. Last year, the numbers increased again, to 52 fines totalling almost $4 million.

• The number of "abnormal occurrences" — the term for accidents

so serious that the NRC is required to report them to Congress — totalled 11 last year, up from 10 a year in 1985 and 1984, nine in 1983, six in 1982 and five in 1981.

• Overall, the nuclear industry's safety record (last year) was comparable to... 1985, which has been characterized by members of Congress and the NRC itself as nuclear power's worst year on record since the 1979 Three Mile Island accident.

Disturbing incidents throughout the country this year and last year support that conclusion. At the Hatch plant in Georgia, 141,000 gallons of radioactive water leaked from a storage tank. At the Surry 2 plant in Virginia, four workers died when a corroded steam pipe burst and scalded the men.

At the Oyster Creek plant here, the most recent incident occurred on Sept. 11, when the reactor was shut down because of an unrelated malfunction discovered the previous day.

Plant employees were conducting routine maintenance and repair work shortly after 2 a.m. when they briefly closed all five of the recirculation pump valves that allow cooling water to flow around the reactor and provide the control room with an indicator of water levels in the reactor vessel.

Because NRC regulations require that at least two of the valves remain open at all times, the simultaneous closure of all five set off an alarm. The problem was quickly corrected without posing any danger to the public.

But the safety violation was automatically and permanently recorded — until those documents were intentionally destroyed.

"Some portions of a control room alarm tape were removed and... either destroyed or discarded," says the plant's operator, the GPU Nuclear Corp.

Treating Childhood Migraines

By Jan Ziegler
UPI Science Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Children who suffer the stabbing pain of migraine headaches may be able to reduce the frequency of these attacks by using their own brainpower, harnessed through self-hypnosis, a University of Minnesota researcher says.

Dr. Judith Olness, a pediatrician, said a study she headed indicates self-hypnosis may be better than drugs for preventing childhood migraines, which strike 2 percent to 5 percent of youngsters.

She says hypnosis can be the same as relaxation from biofeedback response or from meditation. The difference, she says, is the purpose.

"Meditation is going within, something more philosophical. Hypnosis is training for a specific physiological response."

Olness prefers the term cyberphysiology, a term whose prefix comes from the Greek and means oarsman or steersman. It is a technique that children learn more easily than adults because it involves using skills of the imagination.

In the study, Olness and colleagues found that children taught self-hypnosis reduced the average number, but not the severity, of migraine attacks over a three-month period from 13.3 to 5.8. Treatment with the drug propranolol caused a slight increase in the number of headaches.

Propranolol, a drug frequently prescribed for heart conditions and to prevent repeat heart attacks, has been approved as a prevention for migraine attacks but has not been shown effective once pain has started. Its effects in children have not been established.

In self-hypnosis, children are taught under a self-hypnotic state to imagine events or pictures that allow them to turn off the pain. What they imagine depends on how old or advanced they are.

A 5-year-old might be asked to play a game of changing the colors of a stuffed animal in his mind. By changing the color, he may also change the level of pain.

A 10-year-old might like to imagine riding a bike, controlling how fast or slow it goes, or imagine a computer screen on which she can control the colors.

Some children have developed imaginary computer games cued to their body responses, Olness says. By relaxing, they win the game.

devised and implemented much of the president's economic reform program. Choosing Salinas as his successor was proof that de la Madrid understands the seriousness of Mexico's precarious economic situation, and intends to make sure that the reforms will continue after he leaves office next year.

Sources in Mexico City tell us that Salinas was the chief architect of what might be called Mexico's attempt at a Reagan-Thatcher type of "privatization" — selling off money-losing public corporations and buying up the private sector. Part of the policy is to eliminate protectionist policies that Salinas believes are counterproductive and inflationary.

to say that the president of Mexico names his successor," de la Madrid said. "It is a much more complex process within the party, where the president is a participant, but where there are other participants, too... I am very respectful of the party's mechanisms."

De la Madrid declined to say which of the six possible candidates he was leaning toward, and his choice surprised many Mexican political observers. But we had received strong hints from various sources that he would settle on the uncharismatic, Harvard-trained economist, and his decision makes a lot of sense.

Salinas was the gray eminence of de la Madrid's Cabinet, the behind-the-scenes strategist who

Military's Secret Stealth Jet Crashes In Desert, Killing Pilot

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Air Force jet that crashed in the Nevada desert about 100 miles north of Las Vegas, killing the pilot, was identified by official sources as a top-secret Stealth fighter plane flying test exercises. The F-19, which the Pentagon officially has never confirmed exists, is a jet crammed with top-secret technology designed to make it virtually invisible to enemy radar. The crash marked the fifth time in about 10 years that one of the fighters has gone down during tests, military sources said Thursday. Officials knowledgeable with the Stealth fighter and bomber program told United Press International the plane crashed Wednesday night on Nellis Air Force Base near Groom Lake, about 100 miles north of Las Vegas, during Red Flag exercises simulating combat in Europe.

Feds Try To Seize 'Mafia' Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — In an unprecedented attack on the economic power of the Mafia, federal prosecutors filed suit to seize control of the billion-dollar Fulton Fish Market saying it is dominated by the Genovese crime family. The suit filed Thursday also asks a federal court to appoint trustees to run the main union at the market, Local 356 of the United Seafood Workers, on the grounds that it too is controlled by the Genovese mob. U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani said the civil suit filed under the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act is the first ever to attempt to take back "an entire commercial center" from the Mafia.

Whistleblowers' Oaths Knocked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republicans and Democrats alike are accusing President Reagan's administration of trying to throw "a blanket of silence" over federal whistleblowers by that demanding government employees sign a broad secrecy pledge. Lawmakers contend the contracts barring the public release of both classified and "classifiable" information could amount to an unconstitutional attempt by the administration to intimidate federal employees who might provide Congress or the news media with embarrassing revelations of government fraud or abuse.

Officers To Go On Policing, Teaching At Middle Schools

By Maryann L. Creech
and Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writers

Two Sanford policemen will continue acting as school resource officers for two local middle schools.

The city commission unanimously approved Monday renewing the contract for the fiscal year 1987-88 with the Seminole County School Board. The contract provides school resource officers for Sanford Middle School and Lake View Middle School. Police Chief Steve Harriett said Sanford Middle School has been assigned to Officer Mick Bennett and Lake View Middle School is covered by Officer Guy Brewster.

Harriett explained to the commission that the Sanford Police Department has been under contract with the county's resource officer program since January.

"There's a lot to be accomplished by having a police officer at the schools," Harriett said. "One advantage is that it helps the students see police officers in a more positive light."

In addition to fostering better relations, Harriett said having a school resource officer present acts as a deterrent to crime and allows the officer to teach students about law enforcement activities and various subjects related to the law.

The program costs the city $56,056 and the school pays 50 percent of that figure. Seminole County established its school resource officers program in 1980. Sheriff's Lt. Jerry Riggins, who supervises Seminole County's program, said there are resource officers in all Seminole County high schools and in all but two middle schools.

Riggins, who makes the resource officer assignments, said he tries to match the personality of the officer to the atmosphere of the school. For example, he said, Seminole High School calls for an officer who draws a very hard professional line, while the middle schools are generally more relaxed and need an outgoing officer.

The officers are not involved in disciplining students, Riggins said. Instead, the officers are there for teaching, counseling and law enforcement. For instance, in the middle school 50 percent of the officer's time might be spent as a teacher, 40 percent as a counselor, and 10 percent policing the schools and making arrests.

Their counseling is usually one-to-one with students, Riggins said. Sometimes educators or parents may be brought in on the discussions, depending on the issue, which might involve early detection of drug use, petty theft or even allegations of child abuse.

The value of having police in public schools has been proven to the extent that Gov. Bob Martinez has signed a bill ordering all state schools to develop such a program, Riggins said. About 200 police agencies in the state already provide resource officers to schools. There are similar programs in force throughout the nation.

Remains Of Crashed Airliner Spotted; No Survivors Noted

COMO, Italy (UPI) — Police early today sighted the wreckage of an Italian airliner that crashed Thursday in a mountainous area near Lake Como with 37 people aboard shortly after taking off from Milan, officials said.

A police patrol spotted the remains of ATI Flight AZ460 shortly before 7 a.m., following a three-hour suspension of search efforts due to heavy rain and fog. First reports from the scene did not describe the condition of the wreckage or mention any signs of survivors.

The aircraft, bound for Cologne, West Germany, disappeared from the screens of air traffic controllers at 7:29 p.m. Thursday, 16 minutes after taking off from Milan.

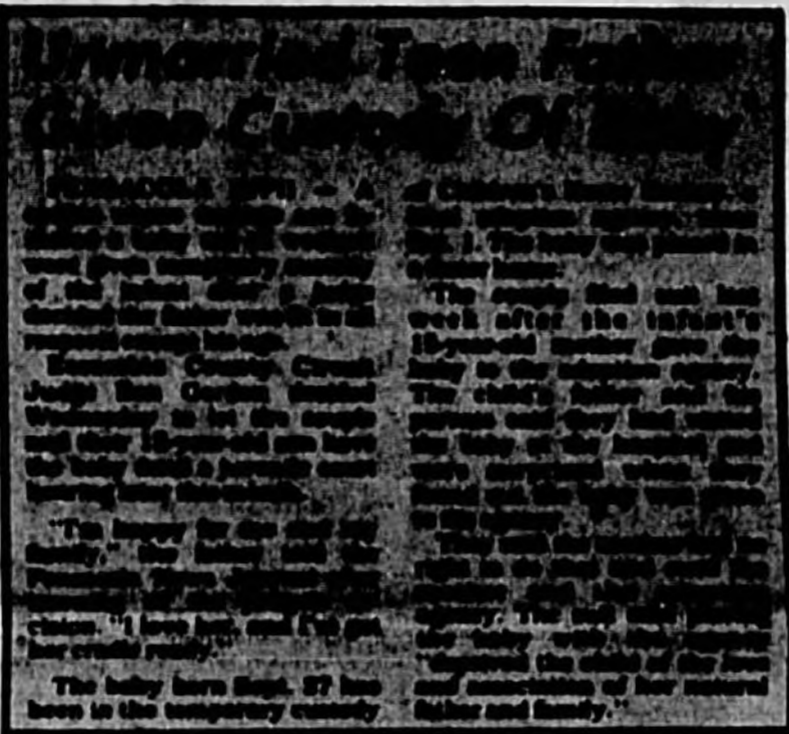

Rescue parties assisted by helicopters worked through the night scouring the rugged, forested slopes of Mount Crezzi and other peaks rising above the southern shores of Lake Como. Aitalia spokesmen and other officials said.

Attack Biggest Since Cease-Fire

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Contra rebels used a U.S.-supplied Redeye missile to down a Soviet-made government helicopter and attacked four towns in south central Nicaragua in the largest guerrilla offensive since President Daniel Ortega declared a partial cease-fire Oct. 7.

Government and other sources said Thursday at least 39 people — 20 Nicaraguan troops, 18 Contras and one civilian — were killed in the fighting.

Defense Minister Humberto Ortega said the 20 deaths among government troops included local militiamen and that an undetermined number of rebels were killed.

Study: More 10th-Graders Smoke Pot Than Tobacco

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Slightly more tenth grade boys in four northern California schools smoked marijuana than tobacco cigarettes, and peer pressure was a major influence in all substance abuse, according to a study released Thursday.

The Stanford University survey of more than 1,300 teenagers found that 14.4 percent of the boys smoked marijuana at least monthly and another 8.6 percent smoked the drug daily, compared to 13.6 and 8.5 percent for cigarettes made with tobacco.

For girls, tobacco was preferred, with 15.2 percent smoking at least monthly and another 15.2 percent daily. Marijuana use among the girls was slightly higher on the monthly basis at 15.9 percent, but only 3.7 of the girls studied smoked marijuana daily.

The study among youths with an average age of 15 found that alcohol was the most commonly used drug with 47 percent of boys and 45 percent of girls drinking monthly or more frequently. Drinking before or during school was reported by 5 percent of boys and 4 percent of girls.

Other substances, including cocaine, LSD, PCP and heroin, were used by less than 10 percent of the students questioned.

The study, conducted in 1985 and reported in this week's Journal of the American Medical Association, found that perceptions of friends' behavior most strongly influenced the teens' use of drugs. This finding was consistent with those from numerous other studies of adolescents.

The report written by Thomas Robinson of the Stanford School of Medicine said the "overwhelming influence of the perceived social environment" suggests that attempts to concentrate on teens' self-esteem and other psychological factors will not be effective in changing their drug use habits.

"The most effective preventive strategy may consist of skills training for resisting social influences," he said. The report also said the high prevalence of substance use in tenth graders underscores the importance of starting earlier in trying to prevent drug abuse.

Man's Sex Charge Sealed Against Public Viewing

An Azalea Park man who filed a petition asking that a court case be sealed relating to his arrest in 1986 on a felony sex-related charge will get his request.

Circuit Judge O.H. Eaton Jr. agreed to seal those records involving Eduardo Castro, 29. The record will be come non-public and Castro can "lawfully deny or fail to acknowledge the events covered by the expunged or sealed records."

Castro was charged in January, 1986, with committing a lewd and lascivious assault on a child, allegedly fondling a 6-year-old girl when they were guests in a south Seminole County home on Jan. 1, 1986.

Later, Castro was found guilty of the lesser charge of battery, a misdemeanor, and received a probationary sentence. The judge on the case withheld adjudication of guilt on the condition that Castro successfully complete his sentence. Castro did successfully complete his sentence; thus with adjudication withheld, he does not have a criminal record.

The State Attorney's office had no objection to the file being sealed.

Under state law, a person can ask that such court cases be sealed if he has not previously been found guilty of a criminal offense, or if he was not found guilty of any charges stemming from the arrest mentioned in the petition.

A person who has had a record expunged or sealed cannot, however, lawfully deny the event covered by the records if he is a candidate for employment with a criminal justice agency, is the subject of criminal prosecution, is seeking in the future to have records sealed or expunged or is trying to join The Florida Bar.

Missing Money Said To Be No City Bookkeeping Error

Lake Mary City Finance Director Madeline Minna said Thursday no clerical error in city bookkeeping could be found to explain the disappearance of $75 from the building department cash register at city hall, which was discovered Oct. 9.

The Lake Mary Police still are investigating the missing money, according to Chief Charles Lauderdale. The investigating officer could not be reached for a comment on the status of the case.

Bob Norris, Lake Mary city manager, said the police were called into the case on Monday after an initial inquiry into the situation by city staff. No indication has been found that a city employee is responsible for the missing money, Norris said. He added that the incident took place since Jeanie Stacy, the staff member who usually had control of the register, left to work for the county, and new workers were being trained in her position.

"We think it's still possible there are typographical errors responsible for the problem, rather than a dishonest city employee," he said.

Since the incident, Norris said the city has taken measures to ensure the situation doesn't occur again, such as by moving the cash register and limiting access by city employees to it. "Anybody off the street could have taken the money," Norris said. "The register rings all day and nobody looks up to see who's on it."

Norris said the staff is working inside the City Hall building on security measures to decrease future chances of a similar incident. He feels the staff is now better prepared to look for potential theft situations in the future.

The one thing Norris said he had trouble with questioning the integrity of city workers. "I can't believe that anybody who works for the city would take money, even though I know they all need it," he said.

Bike Vs. Car: Hurt Tot

A Sanford boy apparently rode his bike into the path of an oncoming car Wednesday.

According to police reports, John Fletcher, 5, 102 Woodfield Ave., was riding his bike down the driveway of his parent's home at 6:31 p.m. Wednesday. When Fletcher reached the road, he apparently rode in front of a car driven by George Custer, 29, 119 Sandpoint Court. Police said no damage was done to either the car or the bike.

Fletcher received a bump on the head and scraped his back and chest. Rescue workers came to the scene and transported the boy to Central Florida Regional Hospital. Emergency hospital personnel said the boy was treated for his cuts and released a short while later.

Policeman Resigns In Light Of Sex Battery Allegation

An Altamonte Springs police officer has resigned under allegations that he had sex with a 16-year-old girl three years ago.

Criminal charges apparently will not be filed against Ralph Mooty, 39, because of the statute of limitations has run on for prosecution. The victim reportedly does not want to prosecute either.

Mooty, who has worked on the force for seven years, was to be questioned Monday in reference to the alleged incident but resigned before the appointed time. He had been suspended Sept. 27 with pay pending an internal investigation that began Thursday. The alleged incident apparently came to light when a city employee mentioned it to Altamonte Springs Police Chief William Liquori. Mooty also was reprimanded earlier, according to police records. He was suspended 20 days without pay in August for buying beer in uniform while working off-duty as a security guard and for smoking marijuana July 31.

The sexual battery allegation was investigated by the State Attorney's Office, which decided not to prosecute.

The Altamonte Springs Police Department is expected to send the information about the alleged sex and Mooty's resignation to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, the state organization that oversees certified law enforcement officers. Officers must be certified to work in Florida.

Senate Allocates Funds For AIDS Programs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has allocated $946.1 million for AIDS programs as part of a big $129 billion spending package but has tacked on an amendment denying funds to groups that "promote or encourage" homosexuality.

Stirred by a comic book showing "safe sex" between two men, the Senate voted 94-2 Wednesday for the cutoff pushed by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. Only Sens. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., and Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., voted against it.

Helms said he had showed the comic book, produced by an organization that receives federal funds, to President Reagan, who "opened the book, shook his head and slammed his fist."

"This subject matter is so obscene, so revolting, it is difficult for me to stand here and talk about it," Helms told his colleagues. "I may throw up."

"This senator is not a goody-goody two-shoes. I've lived a long time ... but every Christian ethic cries out for me to do something," he added. "I call a spade a spade, a perverted human being a perverted human being."

The amendment would deny taxpayer money for any program or project that would "promote or encourage, directly or indirectly, homosexual sexual activities" and would require that federally financed programs emphasize sexual abstinence outside marriage and abstinence from illegal intravenous drugs. Helms said the Gay Men's Health Crisis Center in New York City, which produced the comic book, has received $674,679 from the federal Communicable Diseases Center for its programs on acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

He conceded the crisis center denies any federal money was used for the comic book, but he called that a bookkeeping "shell game" and listed other programs promoting a homosexual lifestyle.

Charging that "every case of AIDS can be traced back to a homosexual act," the senator added, "Until we start distributing material promoting abstinence, we'll be adding fuel to a raging fire."

Weicker, GOP floor manager for the spending bill, said, "Nobody is advocating lifestyles of intravenous drug use, homosexuality or promiscuousness."

But he reminded colleagues, "Education is the only tool we have at hand which is effective. Once you get AIDS, you are dead."

Those who work with organizations fighting the deadly disease that destroys the body's ability to fight infection were quick to blast the Senate's action.

"Today's Senate vote marks a retreat from reality," said Ann McFarren, executive director of the AIDS Action Council. "The fact is that AIDS education directed to people engaged in high-risk behavior has become a proven and effective means of slowing down the transmission of the disease."

Homecoming May Be Sobering Experience

GAINESVILLE — This is the one weekend for which all University of Florida students live: homecoming.

It began Thursday afternoon with the arrival of Southern rocker Greg Allman for a free concert at the Gator Bandshell. Homecoming debauchery had commenced.

The festivities will continue tonight with Gator Growl, the largest student-run pep rally in the USA. An appearance by comedian Jay Leno highlights the show, which will climax with a spectacular fireworks and laser light show that cannot be matched.

And, yes, the weekend culminates with another bone-chilling gridiron showdown as the Gator football team (4-2) hosts the Owls of Temple (3-3). Kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m.

Hordes of inebriated students and alumni will jam Florida Field to witness another of Florida's successful 1987 home contests (they have already witnessed shutout victories over Tulsa (52-0) and Cal State Fullerton (65-0) and a thrashing of Mississippi State (38-3).

Gator fans, however, could be in for a very sobering experience this Saturday. Head coach Bruce Arians' Owls is not your run-of-the-mill homecoming party — they can actually beat people. Temple has already proven it this season with a 24-21 victory at Pittsburgh. The Owls' latest outing, though, was a disappointing 24-17 loss to Tulsa at home in Philadelphia.

Gator coach Galen Hall still approaches this Saturday's game with caution. "I think they (Temple) were looking ahead to us in their loss to Tulsa," he said. "That loss will have no impact on our attitude toward Temple. All we have to do is get out the films of the Pittsburgh game to see they have a very fine football team."

Temple suffered a major setback against Tulsa, however, as junior tailback Todd McNair sprained his foot in the second quarter. He was taped at halftime and continued to play in the second half, gaining 157 yards rushing. On the season, McNair has 724 yards rushing, an average of 120.6 per game (10th in the nation).

The injury has left McNair's status as doubtful. His loss would leave the Owls with a virtually invisible running attack. The Gators are preparing as if McNair will play and the Temple running game will remain intact.

"From what I know, and have heard about Temple, they are a running team," senior outside linebacker Clifford Charlton said. "They run the sweep especially well, so we will have to work hard and get ready for that."

Based on what has been established this season, the Gators' defense against the rush should be ready as it ranks among the best (11th) in the nation. The unit has given up just 555 net rushing yards in its first six games, an average of 92.5 per outing. Florida's defense has also racked up 45 tackles behind the line of scrimmage (18 quarterbacks, 27 running backs), an average of 7.5 per contest.

"The win over Cal State last week gave us a boost after a very difficult loss versus Louisiana State," senior strong safety Jarvis Williams said. "Temple's offense should be a good challenge to our defense, as after this we meet Auburn. But we will not overlook Temple."

Besides being a huge party for over 72,000 Gator fans, Saturday's homecoming game could also be a record-breaking event for freshman tailback Emmitt "The Big E" Smith. Smith, who has rushed for 836 yards in the first six games of Many of the best prep swimmers the state has to offer, some 650 in number, will converge on Orlando's Justus Aquatic Center Saturday for the National Spa and Pool Institute Invitational.

Swimming preliminaries will begin at 9 a.m. with the girls swimming the North Course and boys swimming the South Course. Consolation and championship finals will begin at 6 p.m. on the South Course.

The order of swimming events is as follows: 200 medley relay; 200 freestyle; 200 individual medley; 50 freestyle; 100 butterfly; 100 freestyle; 600 freestyle; 100 backstroke; 100 breaststroke; 400 freestyle relay.

Diving competition will begin at 2 p.m. with preliminaries to be followed immediately by the consolation and championship finals. All diving will be off the 1-meter boards.

Tickets are for each session are $2 for adults and $1 for students.

The NSPI Invitational is the first of two major meets for Seminole County teams prior to the Seminole Athletic Conference Championships on Oct. 29-30. It will also give teams an early indication of where they stand going into the championship meets.

Seminole County has a pair of teams that are in the running for state championships this season in Lyman High's boys and Lake Brantley's girls, both second in the state (Class 4A) a year ago. Lake Mary's boys and girls will also look for their best state finishes this season.

Lyman's boys have a solid group of front-line swimmers led by seniors Rick Ott and Sam Rennard, juniors Chuck Reinighaus and Jim Bandy and sophomores John Jones and Dave Bandy. Senior Chris Hebert has done a good job diving for the 'Hounds this season.

"We're continuing to work hard to get ready for conference, district and state," Lyman coach Don

Strike 2: No Playground For Players

United Press International
Never mind free agency and improved pensions. As the NFL strike approached its end, all the players wanted was what they had all along: a chance to play Sunday.

But the owners said no to that as well. The NFL Management Council, the league's bargaining arm, stuck to its policy of allowing only players who rejoined teams before Wednesday's 1 p.m. EDT deadline to suit up this weekend. So a final round of replacement games will be played, and that has frustrated the strikers even more.

Football

"We had a lot of high hopes to play this weekend," Buffalo defensive tackle Fred Smerlas said Thursday. "We could have played but we can't because of things above our heads. We're all angry with the situation."

Gene Upshaw, executive director of the NFL Players Association, and several players charged management has locked players out of camp.

"What else could it be?" Philadelphia wide receiver Mike Quick said. "It's a lockout. We tried to do everything we could do. We tried to negotiate but we couldn't get anything in negotiations. We tried to come back in past the deadline. Why not let us come back in?"

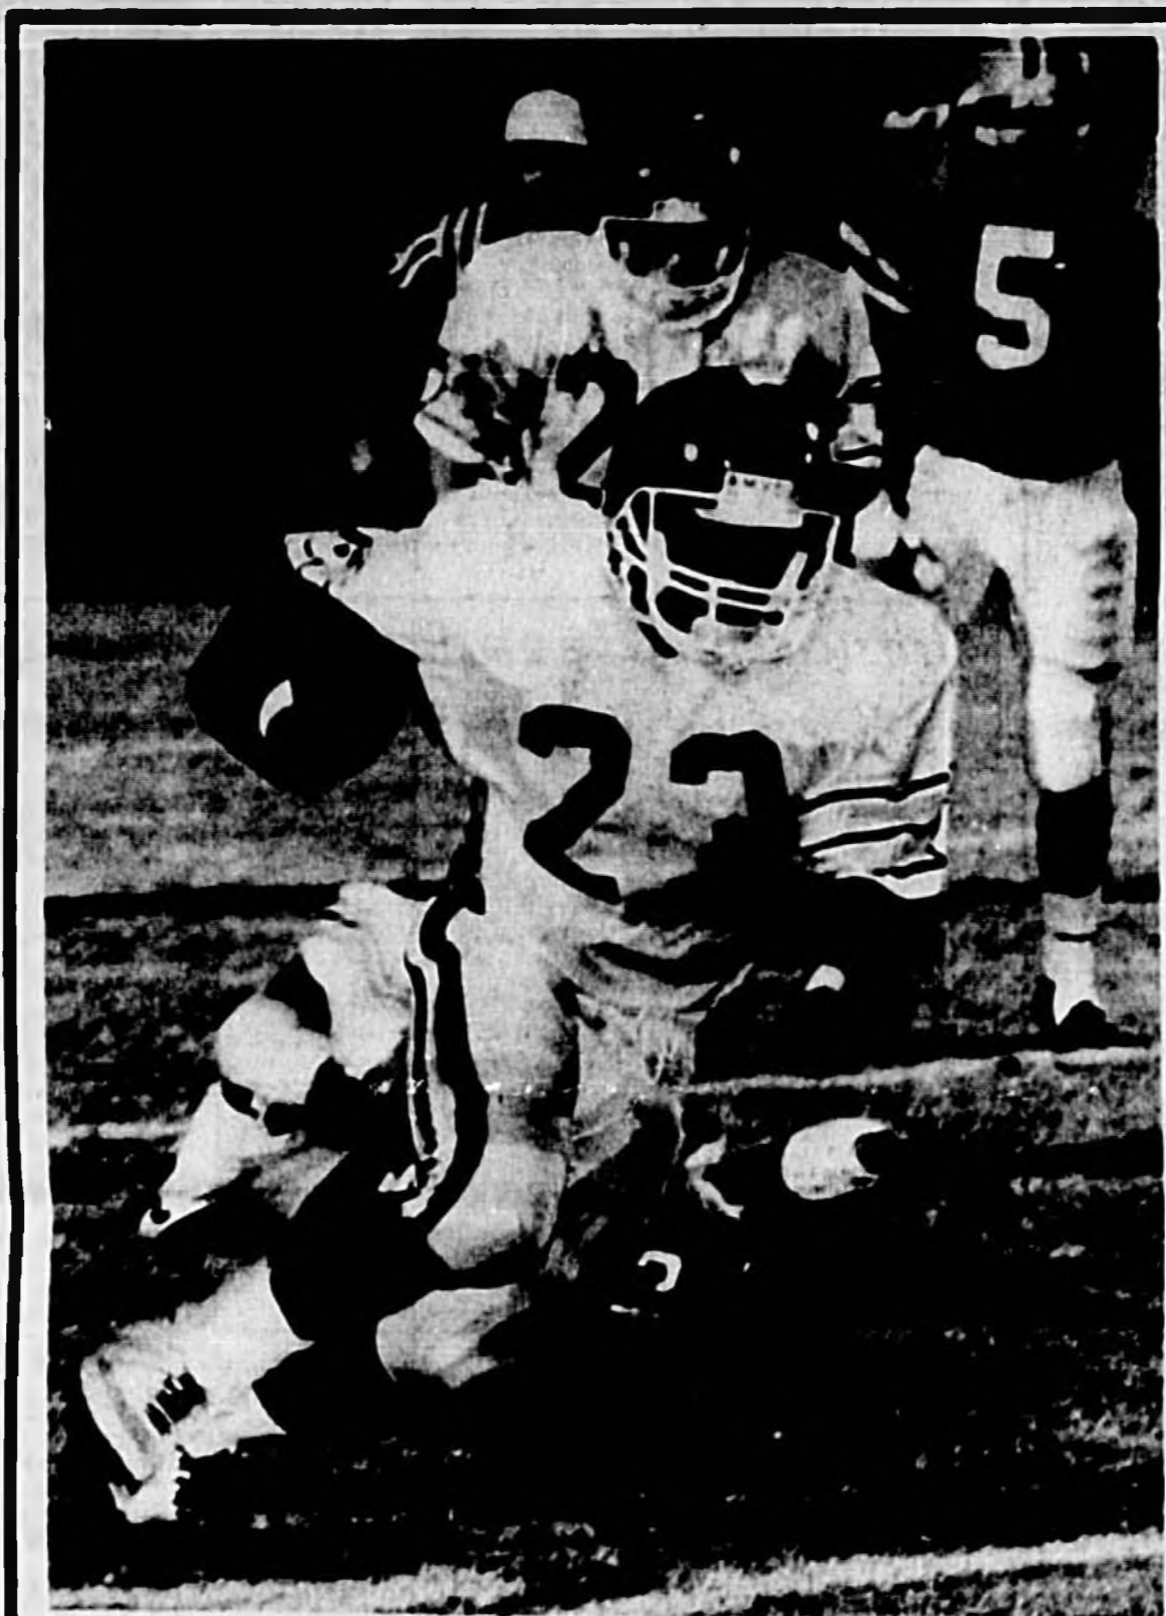

Quick said owners simply don't want to pay both striking and replacement players, and added they have made winning secondary.

"They don't really have to have us in this week," he said. "Their major concern is not the won-loss record. They're making money from their TV payments."

Pittsburgh President Dan Rooney denied management is locking out players. He said the NFL is just following the Wednesday deadline rule, and the strikers knew it existed.

The strikers were left to decide Thursday whether to practice and receive training camp per diem (the Raiders, for example, get about $100 a day) or continue to wait until next week, when they would begin to receive full salary.

Snake Bit No More?

Lake Howell's Marquette Smith (23) is just a freshman but he can dart and dodge like a senior running back. Smith and the Silver Hawks will try to slow down Lake Brantley's Patriots tonight in Altamonte Springs. Brantley coach Fred Almon, who complained he was "snake bit" while losing 18 of 20 games his first two seasons, said his luck has turned for the better this year. See 8A for the complete rundown.

Lisa Moon is one of Lake Brantley's "Sensational 6." Brantley, second in the

Clark said. "Even with all the hard work, we still have guys swimming excellent times in the meets we've competed in."

Lake Mary's boys, coming off a dual-meet victory over Lyman on Wednesday, also have a number of top-notch swimmers led by Steve Kostowicz, Wes Simecek, Jaime Bojanowski and Brad Bridgewater. Lake Brantley's boys are led by David Bridges and Scott Rowe while Eric Kotter leads Lake Howell.

In the girls division, Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots are continuing to build toward a state title after taking second a year ago. Rumor has it that the Boca Raton Spanish River empire has been dismantled this year which would put Brantley in the driver's seat.

The Lady Patriots are led by the "Sensational Six" of Christy Bridgewater, Manda Davis, Kristen Pauley, Lisa Moon, Jennifer Moon and state last year, swims in the NSPI meet Saturday at the Justus Aquatic Center.

JoDee Lake, all state-quality swimmers. Dani Ohnman and Keri Koelch have also come on strong for the Lady Patriots this year.

The Lake Mary girls also have a solid squad in '87 led by state placer Kelley Wise and Stasi Bojanowski. Coach Sandy Brown said that the Lady Rams will only have about half of their team Saturday, though.

"Most of the sophomores and juniors on the team will be taking the PSAT Saturday," Brown said. "We'll be leaving some good swimmers at home, but we'll also have some strong swimmers competing in the meet."

Lyman's girls have one of the best individuals in the area in senior Karen Long while Tiffany Knolla has also swam well for the Lady Greyhounds.

Leesburg (0-4) Has Appetizing Taste For Tribe

(RADIO: Sanford's WUEZ-AM (1480) will broadcast tonight's Seminole-Leesburg District 4A-7 football game. Jeff Dean and Mike Kirby will handle the play by play and color. Air time is 7:30 p.m.)

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Seminole, a team which has not tasted victory in almost a month, should find Leesburg an appetizing opponent tonight when the District 4A-7 foes square off at 8 at Seminole High School.

Leesburg is winless in four attempts. Seminole, despite losing its last three games, is still very much in the 4A-7 hunt. Sanford (2-3) and Oviedo are tied for first place in the district with 1-0 records. Leesburg and Orlando Edgewater are both 0-1. Orlando Dr. Phillips, which was 1-1, has been elevated to Class 5A because it has too many students in the top three grades.

The exclusion of Dr. Phillips helps Seminole and hurts Oviedo. The Tribe lost to Dr. Phillips, 7-3, while Oviedo blanked the first-year Orange County school, 14-0. The hurt wasn't too painful, though, since both schools figured all along Dr. Phillips would not be a factor.

Leesburg, though, is a factor. And Seminole coach Roger Beathard hopes that ingredient will be a tantalizingly enough dish to enable his team to snap its three-game skid, which came after victories over Titusville Astronaut (Sept. 12, 28-0) and Edgewater (Sept. 18, 29-20).

"It's a new season — this is for the state playoffs," Beathard said Thursday morning. "I think we'll have a good effort Friday. Having the district set up this way helps us to adjust."

Beathard said although two of Seminole's goals (unbeaten season and Seminole Athletic Conference title) are unattainable, the most important one remains: a district championship which earns a berth in the Class 4A Florida High School Football Championship Playoff Program opposite the District 4A-8 winner. Since this is an odd-numbered year and Seminole is the odd-numbered district, it would host the playoff on Friday, Nov. 27.

All of this, however, is purely wishful thinking. Seminole must beat Leesburg tonight and Oviedo on Oct. 30 to win District 4A-7. Beathard said the "Noles and the coaching staff believe it is possible despite the last three disappointing Fridays."

"We're still in good shape," Beathard said. "It's good in that we've still got a goal. Yes, we had high expectations, but doggone it, it's a tough schedule. None of teams we lost to (Lake Mary, Dr. Phillips, Lake Brantley) are bad teams. There isn't any shame. It's just frustrating."

Frustrating, too, has been Leesburg's season. The Yellow Jackets dropped two close ones to Candler Lake Weir and Citrus before losing a seven-pointer to Oviedo two weeks ago. Last week, Ocala Vanguard dropped them, 28-12.

"They've been in every ball game but the last one," Beathard said. "They have real strong offensive and defensive lines and a good middle linebacker. They have done well defensively against most people."

Leesburg coach Gene Foster, who was 4-6 last year, said he does not have as much talent as normal but his staff is enjoying this season more — from a coaching standpoint — due to the effort it is getting.

"Their quarterback can put the ball right on the money with short passes," Beathard said. "And their tailback isn't too big, but he can run well. He could explode."

Exploding offensively is also on Seminole's mind. The Tribe is averaging over 300 yards per ball game, but it has not been able to punch the ball across the goal line in crucial situations.

After 57 points in two games, Seminole's offensive generated 16, 3 and 8 points. The defensive provided the first touchdown last week on Ron Blake's 87-yard return of a blocked field-goal attempt.

Seminole has the county's top yardage passer in Jeff Blake with 873 yards. Almost half of that total (323 yards) came in the first two games, as did five of the senior's six TD passes. Blake's percentage after two games was a splendid 55 percent. He has completed just 25 of 73 attempts for 34 percent over the last four games, dropping his percentage to 40.

Although Blake's percentage has fallen off — due to dropped balls and overthrows — his running has taken off. Blake has picked up 111 yards in 15 carries the past two games.

This new dimension should complement steady junior halfback Jerod Jones (59/393/4 TDs) and senior fullback Curtis Rudolph (65/296/1 TD) to give the Tribe a consistent ground attack.

Terrance Eady is the county's top receiver with 13 catches for 284 yards. Tight end Brandon Cash (8/84) and wideout Jerry Governal (5/69) are dependable short-range threats.

Defensively, linebacker Earnie "Sackman" Lewis (13.4 tackles per game), Ron Blake (11.8), safety Leonard Lucas (11.2), Bernard Burke (8.6) and "Nasty Nick" Casiello (8.0) have turned in solid performances the past two weeks.

NOTES — Beathard said there will be four lineup changes tonight due to disciplinary measures taken against four players and one

IN BRIEF

O'Meara Puts It All Together, 63 Leads Walt Disney Classic

LAKE BUENA VISTA — Mark O'Meara offered a simple explanation for his 9-under-par 63 that gave him a two-shot lead entering the second round of the $800,000 Walt Disney World Golf Classic.

"I drove it in every fairway, hit all but one green and had my best putting round of the season," O'Meara said Thursday. "When you do all that, you come in with 63."

O'Meara's score, the lowest opening-round figure in the 17-year history of the tournament, gave him a two-stroke edge over J.C. Snood, who carded a 66. Both golfers played bogey-free rounds on the 6,763-yard Lake Buena Vista course.

Steve Pate, who won the Southwest Classic in Abilene, Texas, three weeks ago, was joined at 6-under 66 by Bobby Wadkins, Andrew Magee and rookie Jim Carter. Dennis Watson, Bob Gilder, Ronnie Black and Kenny Knox all shot 6-under 67s, while defending champion Ray Floyd settled for an even-par 72.

Although the consensus for years among golf fans has been that the Lake Buena Vista course is the least challenging of the three Disney layouts, seldom has confirmation of that opinion been so pronounced.

Eight of the low 10 finishers, including the low six, played the Buena Vista course. Only Gilder, who played the 6,987-yard Palm course, and Knox, who tackled the 7,190-yard Magnolia, were able to crack the top 10 spots on the leader board without the help of Buena Vista's fairways.

Every golfer in the field will split his first three rounds among the different courses, with those remaining after Saturday's cut finishing the tournament at Magnolia.

Lewis, Burgess Post Swim Wins

Scott Lewis and Cissy Burgess each picked up a pair of first-place finishes Thursday as Seminole's boys (107-45) and girls (108-37) dropped a dual meet to Lake Howell at Winter Park High School.

"We did well, but we're seriously out-manned," Seminole coach Tony Ackerson said about his O-3 team. "It's impossible to win a meet against those kind of numbers (50-plus swimmers)."

Lewis, a junior, won the 100 butterfly in 1:09.15 and the 100 back in 1:09.11. "Scott just shocked us. That's the first time he's ever swam the butterfly," Ackerson said. Senior Matt Chock also took a blue ribbon in the 50 free in 26.36.

Burgess, a sophomore, won the 100 fly in 1:06.1 and the 500 free in 5:44.24. Seminole seconds included: boys' medley relay (Lewis, Jeff Belford, David Johnson, Chock) in 2:03.23; Johnson 200 IM (2:36.48) and 500 free (8:19.28) and Chock 100 free (1:00.03).

Also: girls' medley relay (Mindy Bogue, Tina Kennedy, Burgess, Angie Harden) in 2:33.57; Kennedy 200 free (2:38.09) and 100 breast (1:28.35); Bogue 200 IM (3:01.9).

Seminole returns to action Wednesday in a four-way meet with Lake Brantley, Lake Mary and Orlando Bishop Moore at Longwood's Sharidan Aquatic Club.

Eady Sparks Seminole JV, 33-22

Bernard Eady recovered a blocked punt for one touchdown and set up another with a 35-yard interception return as Seminole High defeated Edgewater, 33-22, Thursday night in junior varsity football action at Orlando's EE Stadium.

It was the third consecutive victory for coach John McNamara's club which now stands at 3-3 for the season. The JV Seminoles return to action Thursday at Lyman.

Seminole took a 12-0 lead in the first quarter, was up 19-6 at halftime, and pulled away, 28-6, after three quarters. Seminole had a 33-6 lead when Edgewater scored twice in the last seven minutes of the game.

The Tribe scored twice on blocked punts Thursday as Eady recovered one for a score as did Dan Barney. Seminole also scored three rushing touchdowns including a 21-yard run by Willie McCloud, a 20-yard jaunt by Paul Thomas and a seven-yard sprint by Ralph Anderson. McCloud kicked two extra points and Pat Parlour kicked one PAT.

Eady also added 13 tackles on defense while Duck Grayson had 16 tackles and Robert Moore 11.

Tyson Defends Crown Against Biggs Tonight

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — After spending more than three years as rivals from a distance, Mike Tyson and Tyrell Biggs will meet in the ring tonight with the heavyweight championship at stake.

The Tyson-Biggs bout will be televised by Home Box Office beginning around 10:30 p.m. EDT. A sellout is expected at the 13,000-seat Convention Center.

Tyson is a 9-1 favorite to retain his unified title against Biggs, the 1984 Olympics super heavyweight gold medalist. The paths of Tyson and Biggs first crossed at the Olympic Trials, when Tyson dropped weight to avoid Biggs. He instead lost twice to Henry Tillman at 201 and failed to make the U.S. team.

"I've been waiting for this for a long time," Tyson said of the 15-round bout at the Atlantic City Convention Center. "No matter what he has it won't be enough. I don't see any way Tyrell Biggs can beat Mike Tyson."

"I've been hearing for seven years how a good boxer is going to beat me. I totally believe, deep down inside, nobody can beat me."

Biggs believes a good boxer can beat Tyson easily, and says he is at that boxer. At 6-foot-4 1/2, he has nearly a seven-inch height advantage over Tyson and Biggs refers to the champion as "a midget."

"Biggs outweighs Tyson, 228 1/2 to 218. "He can be hit," said Biggs, a 26-year-old Philadelphia native. "I respect the man 100 percent, but as far as boxing ability goes he's at a big disadvantage."

"After his strength is no longer a factor, what's he going to do then? The way I see it, he's going to get knocked out."

Biggs said he will use a similar plan as boxer Tony Tucker, James Tillis and Mitch Green — who all took Tyson the distance — but only better. Biggs' job is considered the best in the heavyweight division.

"Everybody has plans," Tyson said, "until they get hit."

Tyson, a 21-year-old from Catickill, N.Y., is 31-0 with 27 knockouts. He won the World Boxing Council championship with a second-round knockout of Trevor Berbick last November, added the World Boxing Association crown with a decision over James "Bonescrusher" in March and the International Boxing Federation title from Tucker in August. In between, he stopped Pinklon Thomas in six rounds in May.

"Biggs is no better than the guys I've beaten already," Tyson said. "If he feels he's better than them, why hasn't he fought those guys?"

Herzog Gambles On Magrane

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog is gambling with his starting rotation in the face of continuing bad luck with his position players.

Herzog has nominated Joe Magrane, a rookie left-hander, to face the predominantly right-handed hitting Minnesota Twins in Saturday's first game of the World Series.

St. Louis also learned before its first look at the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome it probably will be without the services of third baseman Terry Pendleton, who has a pulled muscle in his left rib cage. In the Series.

The choice of the inexperienced left-handed Magrane, who can be run on because of his looping motion, over right-handed veteran Bob Forsch was a surprise. "I really feel fortunate to get a second chance," said Magrane, 9-7 during the regular season but not a success as the Game 3 starter against the San Francisco Giants in the National League playoffs.

"I wasn't nervous," he said. "I just was trying to pitch to their weaknesses instead of my strengths."

Magrane will be opposed in the first game by Minnesota left-hander Frank Viola. Danny Cox is slated to pitch the second game for St. Louis, on three day's rest again, while Minnesota Manager Tom Kelly will send Bert Blyleven out for the Twins. The third game, the first back in St. Louis, probably will match Minnesota's Les Straker against John Tudor.

Added to the probable loss of Jack Clark, who demonstrated convincingly in a simulated game he is unable to run, the loss of even a minor power threat like Pendleton

Baseball

(TV: Saturday's first World Series game at Minnesota between the Cardinals and Twins will be carried by Orlando's WFTV-9 at 8:30 p.m.)

could be devastating to the Cardinals. "All I can do is go out and hurt us," Pendleton said. "I can DH and hit left-handed and run the bases OK but as far as playing defense, I can't throw."

Pendleton also may have hurt catcher Tony Pena because he hit him on the back of the left hand with a swing in the simulated game. Pena had to be taken to the trainer's room but later appeared without a bandage.

Catcher Tom Paganzzi will be Herzog's designated hitter Saturday and the St. Louis manager said he will play Tom Lawless at third against left-handers and Jose Oquendo against right-handers.

Oquendo has been playing right field, which means Curt Ford or rookie Lance Johnson will have to take over there. Jim Lindeman is also a possibility but he has been platooning at first with Dan Driesen.

Herzog said he won't announce until today or possibly Saturday what his plans are about the immobile Clark and the injured Pendleton. He may petition baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth to let him add third baseman Doug DeCinces to the Cardinals' roster. DeCinces was a late September pickup.

"Losing two players, I would say he'd say yes," Herzog said. "But as you know, common sense does not always prevail in our game."

Whoever Herzog puts in the field will probably be fast. St. Louis is a team that hit 94 home runs, 35 by Clark, but stole more than 200 bases for the sixth straight season.

"You have to keep them off the bags," said Viola, who is scheduled to be the first man to throw a pitch in an indoor World Series game Saturday. "You have to make them earn their way on base. You can't walk them."

"Their big advantage this year has been having Vince Coleman and Ozzie Smith walk so much more. What you have to do is concentrate on the hitter. Try to pitch your normal game."

"What you tend to do with them on base is throw fastball, fastball, fastball to get the ball to your catcher quicker and give him a better chance to throw runners out."

"By doing so, you give the hitters a big advantage," he said. "What you have to do is pitch your normal game. It's easy to say, tough to do."

Kelly said, "The guy that's swinging the bat, that's usually the guy that hurts you. I don't know much about them." Kelly said of the Cardinals, making their third World Series appearance in six years. "They've been winning without that Clark fella in the lineup so that must mean they're real good. And their pitching is good — they shut down the Giants the last two days."

"What do I know about Minnesota?" Herzog repeated a question. "Well, they were on national television every Saturday just like us I saw them every week."

That Red Flushing Can Be Controlled

DEAR DR. GOTT - I develop red blotches all over my neck and face whenever I am a little nervous, physically active or drink alcohol. What causes this and how can I control it?

DEAR READER - You seem to be describing capillary flushing, an automatic opening of the small blood vessels in your skin. When you are nervous or physically active, your body's glands secrete chemicals, such as epinephrine (adrenaline), into your system. These compounds can cause flushing, as can alcohol and other drugs. I suggest that you avoid the offending substances, like alcohol, and try to relax during times of stress.

DEAR DR. GOTT - I had a very painful hip joint and went to a medical clinic that accepts Medicare assignment. I was given an injection in the joint, but a copy of the Medicare payment to the doctor showed the injection had been billed as "office surgery" for $27.50. Should I report the clinic to Medicare?

DEAR READER - In folk mythology, Procuretus was a cruel highwayman who forced his victims to lie in bed. If they were too short for the bed, Procuretus stretched them; if they were too long, he cut off their legs. The term "Procuretean bed" has survived into modern times as a metaphor for those people who try to force others to fit a preconceived mold or notion, rather than altering the mold to accommodate the individual variation.

Doctors often - and with good reason - play a Procuretean game with Medicare, Medicaid and private insurers. We have to

Learn Before You Shoot

Men And How
By Jim Driscoll
Kendall Mall

It is a good idea to learn how to use a handgun before you shoot it. This is especially true if you are going to carry a handgun on your person, as well as if you are going to use a handgun in the law. The law is a very serious business, and you don't want to be in a position where you are unsure of what you are doing. It is better to learn the basics of handgun use now than to find out the hard way later.

Instruction in the use of handguns is available through a number of sources. For a number of years, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement has been offering handgun safety courses to the public. These courses are held at various locations throughout the state.

You don't have to be seeking a concealed weapons permit to take the $20 SCC gun safety course, which is usually scheduled once a month, with separate sessions for men and women. Brantley said the courses, which are each scheduled for 2-hour evening sessions for two days in a row, with time on the shooting range extended without limit until the students are satisfied with their expertise and feel comfortable and confident using their own gun, are segregated by gender to keep the men from intimidating the women.

Over all, Smith said, women make better students in the gun class. They ask more questions and also seem generally to have a greater natural ability when it comes to handling firearms. The men who take the class sometimes don't want to appear dumb, so don't ask a lot of questions. But, Smith said, "The only dumb question is the one that isn't asked."

Most who have taken the course, Smith said, are women who have been given a handgun, but who have never used a handgun and have been given no instructions on its use. They have the gun for home safety, as protection against an intruder, but have no idea how to use the gun, or don't know when they legally could use it, or if they could use a gun to shoot someone if they had to.

In addition to learning how to handle, clean, dismantle and shoot the handgun they bring to the class, the students also exchange guns and learn which type gun may be best suited for them. They are taught to treat every gun as if it is loaded.

Before investing in a handgun, Smith said, the buyer needs to handle various types of guns to see which might be best for him or her.

For home use Smith recommends a revolver, because it's less complicated to use than a semi-automatic and doesn't require the user to pull back a slide, that is under spring tension, to put the first round in the chamber. In choosing a gun, ease of loading as well as the choice of a gun with a trigger that isn't hard to pull is something to consider, he said, especially by the elderly.

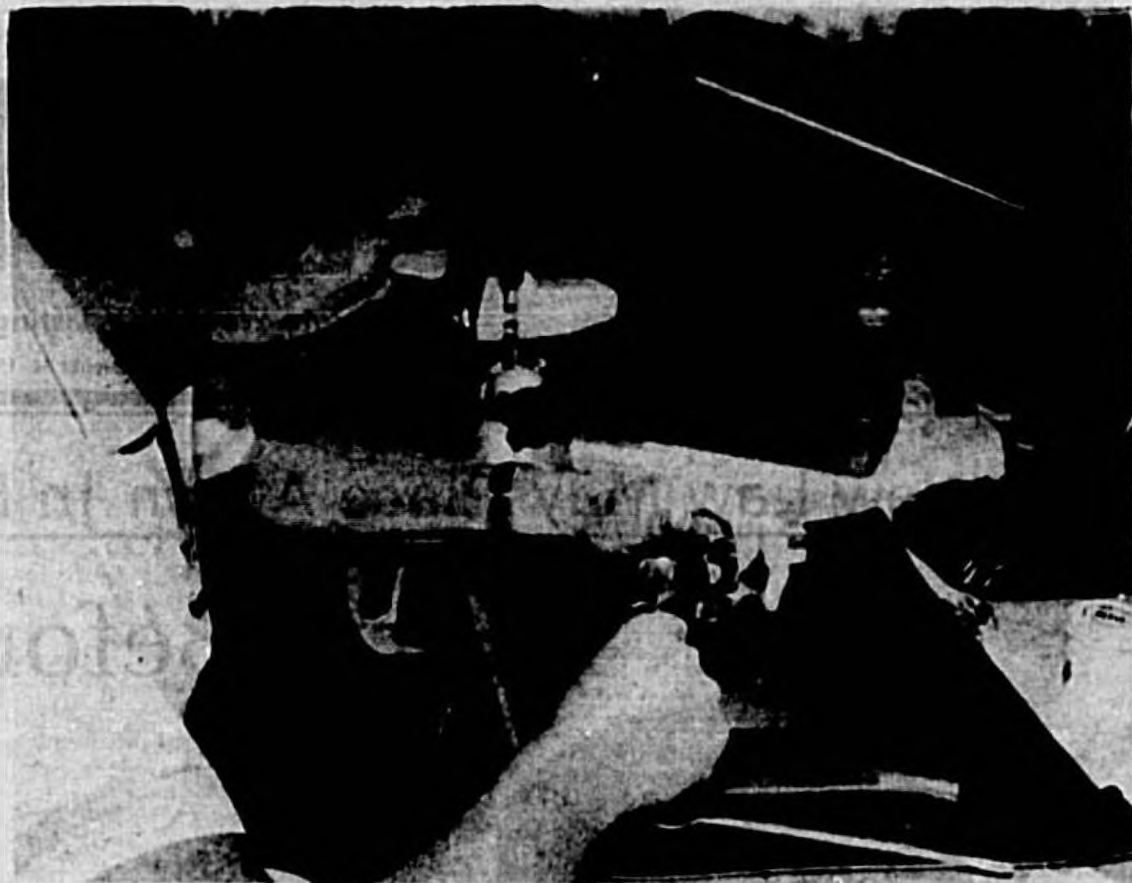

In the class Smith and Brantley review the state gun laws and tell the students when and how they can legally use their firearms.

"It's hard to say," even if a person trained in firearms safety will be able to shoot under the stress of an actual confrontation, Smith said. "You don't know how you will react." When "it's him or me," it's up to the victim to decide if he or she knows when to shoot."

But, Smith said he does recommend that citizens have a gun in their home and know how to use it for their own protection.

The gun, he said, should be kept loaded and in a nightstand beside the would-be-user's bed. The safety should be on, but other than that the gun should be ready to fire, because in a panic the victim is not going to be able to get bullets and unlock and load the gun to be ready to fire in time, he said.

The gun, he said, should be unloaded and put out of the reach of children during the day. However, both Brantley and Smith agree that attempting to lock firearms or putting them in locked cases, for the safety of children in the home, is not the way to ensure that children will be safe from firearms.

The key to firearms safety with children is education in the home, Smith said. He has trained his 4-year-old daughter that guns kill. He has used television shows featuring gunplay to show her the dangers of firearms and said, "She knows never to touch my guns."

Brantley agrees that education is the key, but he said that he doesn't believe firearms safety should be taught to children in public schools. "It's such a very personal thing. I don't think mandatory training in school would be appropriate," Brantley said.

He believes that children who live in homes where firearms are present should be taught, as Smith's daughter has been, to not touch guns and to respect what they can do. He believes that the age of nine years is the ideal time to begin training a child to shoot.

Sanford's Linda Renfro had never held a gun before she took the SCC class. "I just wanted to know how to use one if you had to use it," she said.

"Now, I feel like I can pick up a gun and use it intelligently and effectively, because I had two excellent instructors who were very patient until we felt safe and good about holding and using guns.

"I enjoyed doing it. It made me feel really good to know I could hit that target. My shots were well placed, too. I could put them where I aimed, where before I was so scared I would have probably shot myself or been too scared to pull the trigger. I wouldn't hesitate now," Renfro said.

Angela Smith of Orlando, who at the urging of a friend also took the SCC gun class, said she too took the class to familiarize herself with all types of guns.

"I don't like guns in the house," she said.

So, Smith has no plans to arm herself. However she said she did well in the course and will probably go back to the range to shoot for more fun and practice. Smith had some earlier experience in shooting guns with her father, but said she recommends the SCC course to all women interested in firearms.

For information on the SCC firearms safety course contact the leisure time programs department at the college.

Kate Capshaw and Dudley Moore star in the network premiere of "Best Defense," a feature-film comedy about modern warfare. It airs Thursday, Oct. 22, on ABC. (If necessary, ABC will air Game 5 of the World Series.)

Sandy Settles In With 'Valerie's Family'

By Vernon Scott
UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Law suits are still flying between Valerie Harper and Lorimar TV over her departure from "Valerie," but actress Sandy Duncan is steering clear of the fracas.

The diminutive Duncan has taken over the lead in the series, retitled this year as "Valerie's Family."

Duncan is playing surrogate mother to the TV family as a former sister-in-law of the departed Harper, whose character was killed off in an automobile accident.

Hollywood speculated on how the show would fare this year with Duncan in the lead. Would Harper be missed? Would viewers rebel?

Answer: Ratings are higher than ever.

Duncan is proud that the ratings suggest she is doing a good job, but she refuses to be drawn into the controversy between Harper and Lorimar.

"I didn't know there was going to be a controversy to begin with," Duncan said in a recent interview at a restaurant in Beverly Hills.

"The story I got before I agreed to do the show was that Valerie had left the series. At that time I was involved in a development deal with NBC for another situation comedy," she said. "Then Lorimar called Brandon Tartikoff, the head of NBC, and said I was at the top of their list to replace Valerie.

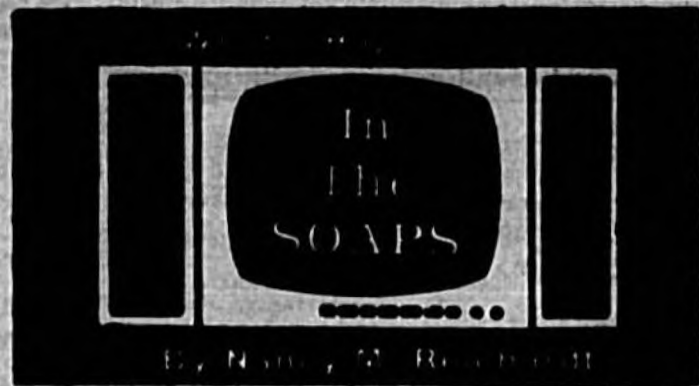

"I had never seen the show, so I watched eight episodes and liked it. I liked Valerie in

ANOTHER WORLD

Marley arrived to see her twin sister, Vicky, who is still in a coma. During a fashion show, Nicole and Cass forced Barbara to admit publicly that she had stolen her dress designs from Nicole. Donna panicked when John told her he was having blood tests done to prove or disprove Reginald's claim that John fathered Vicky and Marley. Dawn successfully auditioned for Chad, who was forced to hire her for a singing gig at Topo. Vicky had an out-of-body experience while still in her coma. Jamie put his medical career on the line by letting Lisa use her psychic powers to try to communicate with a comatose Vicky. Nicole made a date with businessman Steven Fraser after learning that she can't inherit her trust fund from her grandmother unless she's married. Amanda and Rachel argue all the time. Unaware that Donna was lying, Michael told John that Donna was raped. Amanda is in a funk because Sam is ignoring her.

AS THE WORLD TURNS

Emma was hospitalized after she suffered a mild heart attack. Emma's children weren't all that grateful to Rod (Josh), who saved Emma's life. Lily nixed marrying Holden until she had a chance to sort out her life. Lily and Holden flew back to Oakdale after learning about Emma's attack. Lily and Holden said goodbye to Grace and Logan, who left on their honeymoon. Nancy helped the police captain, Mac, deal with the death of his wife. Lily refused to make amends with Lucinda. Disguising his voice, James told Sierra over the phone that Craig is being held in Greece by terrorists. Holden is worried that he'll lose Lily when she finds out he's known all along that Rod (Josh) and Iva were her parents. Barbara told Bob and Kim she'd like to kill James. Emily had a nightmare in which she shot and killed James. Andy drank vodka after learning that Kathy survived her attempted suicide.

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL

Stephanie arranged for fashion designer Clarke Garrison to meet Kristen. Eric spent time with Beth after he and Stephanie argued. Mark was disappointed that Donna's pregnancy test was negative. Stephanie sneaked off to meet a mystery person. Beth told Eric she's never had a reason to have her husband. Steve declared legally dead. Thorne turned down Bill's job offer. Stephanie instructed that Kristen's too close to Eric. Ridge hired Rocco to work in the shipping department at Forrester Designs.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES

Eve promised to keep mum that she caught Gabrielle and Shane alone in the house while Kim is out of town. Harper stole Jack's (Billy) original adoption papers from Jo, then fired her from the housekeeping job that enabled her to be near Billy (Jack). Melissa was attracted to Calliope's friend, Trevor Lodge. Jack (Billy) didn't know whether to believe Patch and Kayla's story that they spent a platonic night together while trapped by the storm. Eve cussed Shane into convincing Kimberly to go to a cousin in Hawaii. In Greece, Diana and Roman saw Victor pass the mysterious computer disk to a Greek man who was later murdered. Another man stole the disk from the Greek. After returning from his recent trip to Greece, Victor talked Justin and Adrienne into going to Greece to get married. Jennifer had nightmares about going crazy, like her mother, Laura. Eve's attempt to have Nick killed was a failure.

GENERAL HOSPITAL

Lucy let Tony take her out on a date, but sized hopping into the tank with him afterward. Sam admitted he's in love with Tiffany after refusing to let her sleep with Alan in order to find out if Alan embezzled money from HTI. Tom counseled Terry, who is having nightmares about Danny's disappearance and the loss of her singing voice. Cory offered to help Melissa, who is worried about her little brother, Sheeter, because he's being bullied at school. Monica left for the Ilesoyne Islands to fulfill her promise to build a clinic for the island. Robert is upset that he's lost Holly and that he will lose Anna when she marries Duke. Simone and Tom treated Melissa's friend, Johnny Hartman, for a drug overdose. Tiffany was appointed temporary chairperson of HTI while Monica's out of town. Edward's cousin (incorrectly referred to as his brother last week) Herbert phoned to talk about combining the Quartermaine family fortune.

GUNNED LIGHT

Reva was devastated when Josh said that he's going to live with Sonni because she's his wife. Alan learned that Josh really is Sarah's father. Alex overheard the news about Sarah, and was puzzled when Alan didn't tell Reva. Although Alan is spending more and more time with Vanessa, he still can't get his attraction to Reva out of his mind. Johnny and Rustie finally admitted to each other that his cancer may cut short his life, and their time together. Fletcher rejected Meave's proposal that they get married. As part of his plan to ruin Alan, Philip plotted to get Alan to offer him a job. H.B. welcomed Sonni to the family fold. Meredith agreed to move in with Fletcher and Meave until she gets her own pad. Meave wants to get to know Meredith better. Will sided with Meredith, who argued that Rick shouldn't be treating Johnny's cancer. Reva and Sonni drew battle lines over Josh, one stole Alan's car.

LOVING

Ned rescued April from the house fire in which Alan died. Shane fretted over Jim, who was injured during a fight with Alan. Gwyneth told Shane that Clay can't run Aiden Enterprises without Shane. Ava was miffed when Clay told her he's not footing the bill for a fancy wedding, then added that they won't be going on a honeymoon. Clay didn't believe Rick, who said he's not having an affair with Gwyneth. After telling Lily their affair is over, Jack agreed to Stacy's suggestion that they have another baby.

RYAN'S HOPE

A judge gave Jack custody of Zena on a three-month trial basis. Ben failed to make Nancy accept the fact that their past romance is over for good. Emily admitted to Chas that she's been having an affair with a married man, Richard, but said she's going to break off with him. Roger gave Nancy a hard time after finding her naked in Ben's bed. Frank tried to reassure Jill, who is worried about the effect their baby will have on her lifestyle. Dakota plotted to discredit Concetta's ability as a doctor.

One Bridge That Cannot Be Duplicated

Dear Dick: I need some detailed plans from the movie "The Bridge on the River Kwai" with William Holden. I intend to first make a scale model of said bridge and then, at a later date, a smaller working version to span a small creek on my property. I have been fascinated with the bridge since I first saw the movie as a young man. I've written everyone I could think of and tried taking photos off the TV screen, but I just can't get enough detail. I'm a stickler for detail. — B.J.B., Montague, Mich.

Dear B.J.B.: I suggest you stickle on some other bridge. The people at Columbia tell me there are no plans available here. The film was shot overseas and the bridge was built overseas by foreign technicians, so Hollywood has nothing on it.

Dear Dick: Frederic Forrest played Captain Jenks on "21 Jump Street." Why did they kill off his character? I thought he made that show more believable. What gives? — S.L.M., Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Dear S.L.M.: That old Hollywood excuse, "creative differences" and Forrest was out. He differed with the producers about the role and it's their game, so they won. He's doing a film with Francis Ford Coppola now.

Dear Dick: Is Constance Bennett's married name Constance Ford, and does she play Alda on the soap, "Another World?" Are Joan and Constance Bennett sisters? If so, is there a third sister? — M.M., Reading, Pa.

Ask Dick Kleiner

Dear M.M.: Constance Bennett died in 1965. Constance Ford is still going strong. The Bennetts were sisters — Constance, Joan, who is still living, and Barbara, who died in 1958.

Dear Dick: Can you please tell me the name of a movie about the sinking of the Titanic? It was some years ago that I saw it and it seems to me that Robert Wagner was in it. — H.D., Gering, Neb.

Dear H.D.: It was called, simply, "Titanic," and it sailed in 1953.

Dear Dick: Please settle an argument for me. On the TV series, "McMillan and Wife," who played McMillan's wife? I say it was Kate Jackson and my husband thinks it was Susan Saint James. — D.T., Amarillo, Texas.

Dear D.T.: It was lovely Susan, not lovely Kate.

Dear Dick: Could you please tell me the name of the movie in which Ed Asner and Sally Struthers starred in about 10 or 12 years ago. It was about a plane crash in Alaska, I think.

They were stranded for 40 or 50 days. How close was this movie to reality? — P.J.M., Bathurst, New Brunswick, Canada.

Dear P.J.M.: That was "Hey, I'm Alive," and it was shown in 1975. It was based on a true story about two people who spent 49 days trying survive when their plane crashed in the Yukon.

Dear Dick: The movie, "The Outsiders," was recently shown on network TV, and it had a more extensive ending than the ending when it was shown on cable. Can you explain? I felt the ending as shown on cable was more powerful than the extra footage. — E.M., Palmyra, N.J.

Dear E.M.: While I am not familiar with this particular case, in general the cable showings of a feature film are more true to the original version than the network showings. Cable is not concerned with time considerations, nor with various censorship problems. Ordinarily, therefore, the cable version is longer and truer. Networks do do some editing, as a rule.

Dear Dick: I am a big fan of the Monkees (old and new). I like Mike Nesmith a lot. What's happened to him since he left the group? — J.F., Rock Hill, S.C.

Dear J.F.: Nesmith has prospered. He came down from the tree, stopped eating bananas and became a mini-mogul in the film and video cassette industry. His company, Pacific Arts, was a pioneer in making videos, and today he produces a lot of them and makes some movies, too.

Husband-Wife Produce Hits

By Verena Scott
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The real stars of "Baby Boom" are not Diane Keaton and Sam
Shepherd. They are Nancy Meyers and Charles Shyer, who wrote, produced and directed the movie.

Sure, Keaton and Shepherd are up there cavorting on the screen in a romantic comedy about a driven career woman and a rustic veterinarian who fall in love despite conflicting lifestyles.

There is little conflict in the lives of Meyers and Shyer, who have their own love story going along with a booming movie company.

Meyers and Shyer produced
"Baby Boom," which they both wrote and cast. Charles directed the film with his wife at his side throughout the shoot in New York, Vermont and Hollywood.

The other day in their cool, adobe-style home in the San Fernando Valley Nancy bottle-fed her 10-week-old daughter Halle while her husband collapsed on a divan.

Their house is breezy and open and a haven from the rough and tumble of Hollywood. They work together in an office at the rear of their property, away from the demands of domesticity, but only a moment away from the heart of their family.

In addition to Halle, they are the parents of a beautiful 7-year-old, Annie.

Nancy is a petite brunette with quick, intelligent brown eyes and a ready wit. Charles is tall, slender, sandy haired and laid back. They share a point, counter-point banter common to many couples who work together.

Long established as a writing team, Nancy and Charles are clearly agreeably companionable. If their conversation is any indication of their writing habits, they work on a 50-50 basis.

Their harmony has produced such movies as "Private Benjamin," which they wrote with Harvey Miller. They also wrote the first script for "Pro-focol." Other credits include "Irreconcilable Differences" and "Jumpin' Jack Flash."

Proud and unwilling to be pushed around by performers or studio hotshots, the team had its name removed as writer of "Jumpin' Jack Flash" because the final film in no way represented the couple's work.

That film helped convince Meyers-Shyer that if they wanted to see their screenplays remain intact they would have to produce their own films.

"Collaboration is effortless for us," Charles said as Nancy sat down with baby Halle.

"The hardest thing is certain parts of the writing," Nancy added, "especially defining the characters. Once we get that done, it gets easier. People think because we're a couple we have real battles when we work."

Her husband said, "We usually come up with a solution to a script problem after we duke it out."

They smiled and agreed that the greatest number of differences occur along gender lines. Meyers customarily takes control of the female attitude and dialogue in a scene and Shyer handles the male point of view, although they have no hard and fast rules about who contributes what.

Meyers-Shyer Productions was formed to give them control of their screenplays.
What they eventually put up on the screen reflects their own thoughts and artistic decisions. Their actors, of course, make salient contributions.

When in the throes of writing a screenplay Meyers-Shyer early on spend four hours a day in their home office kicking around ideas, plot and characters. As the script begins to take shape they intensify the sessions.

"When it gets down to the nitty-gritty we put in at least 12 hours a day for the last four or five weeks," Nancy said.

"There are a few days when we only work eight hours, but that doesn't happen very often," Charles put in.

Nancy is a native of Philadelphia, educated at American University in Washington D.C., who began her career as a story editor at Rastar Films. Charles is second-generation film industry.
His father was one of the founders of the Directors Guild of America. He attended UCLA and began as an assistant director before starting writing at 25.

They like to think "Baby Boom" in some ways reflects

Nancy's life. Actress Keaton plays a woman who has it all — a career, motherhood and romance.

"There are ways for women to have it all," Charles said.
"This is what our film is about, a freedom of choice for women. It's also a tender love story."

"Three out of every five new businesses in this country are started by women," his wife said. "And more than 50 percent of the work force is now female. Our story is about a corporate woman bailing out to go into business for herself.
A lot of that is happening now."

"But we don't put down men in the process. Our film is a celebration of the differences between men and women. No matter what anyone says, there are big differences. We can't change the fact that it's women who have the babies."

Charles said he imbued Keaton's role with some of his wife's characteristics.

SANTA BARBARA

Cruz was stabbed by Angel Ramirez, the man who killed Cruz's cousin, Julio.
Cain held press conferences for Eden, who chained her wheelchair to the courthouse door until Keith agreed to move Cruz to a facility where he can be protected from the lives of Angel. Gina found Pamela Capwell Conrad holed up in a seedy hotel room.
Mason objected that Tori let sleazy agent
Mel Stock talk her into taking a role in a B-movie. Cruz nixed Cain's attempt to break him out of the hospital. Pamela secretly kept tabs on her sons, Mason and Jeffrey. Pamela and Gina conspired to get revenge against C.C. Pamela told Gina that when C.C. started seeing Sophie he threw Pamela out of the house and refused to let her take Mason with her. Julia is impressed with Cain. T.J. arranged for John to audition for a role in a movie. A mystery person picked up a package C.C. left in a trash can.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE

Tina freaked out when she saw Nurse Diane standing beside Sandra, who was hanging in her jail cell. Viki is worried about Tina, who thinks she saw Maria kill Sandra. Lee (Carole) was upset since Elizabeth had her mystery friends boytoy Mari Lynn's debutante party. Mari Lynn was angry with Wade and his pals, who got into a fight with Burt and his buddies.

after they crashed Mari Lynn's debutante party. Dixon, who works in the co-ed prison and is in cahoots with Jamie, betted that Tina will realize that Dixon killed Sandra and faked her suicide after injecting Sandra with heroin. Mari Lynn was stunned when Wade admitted he once dated Billie Giordano, who gave him a passionate kiss. Jonathan, who returned from a trip to Europe, was upset by Sandra's death. Jamie warned Frank that his life is in danger. Melinda talked Herb into taking her to Mari Lynn's party.
Frank realized Tina is too loony to tell him who really killed Sandra.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS

Key is beginning to be suspicious of Rex, who she fears might be after her money instead of her love. A returned Nikki is determined to hang on to Victor even though he insisted her lies about her illness have ruined any chance that they can patch up their marriage. Nina was furious when Phyllis told her he's going to marry Cricket. Faren (Michelle) told Evan that she wants a divorce, but won't let him get it on the grounds that she abandoned him and Betty. Marc blessed JoAnna on the cheek after she convinced John to fund Marc's custom product. After hating things out with Faren (Michelle), Andy talked her into asking for custody of Betty.
Brad comforted Lauren, who was a basket case after her father, Ned, died of a sudden heart attack. Victor told Abby that he will love her and began they can renew their relationship after he straightens his life out. Brad nixed telling Lauren about his family.
