Peace Is Hinted As Chinese Release 27 American Prisoners

Chinese Reds Retreat As Buffer Zone On Manchurian Border Area Is Suggested

TOKYO, Nov. 23—(AP)—Peace rumors appeared suddenly today amid a Thanksgiving Day quiet on the Korean battlefronts.

Talk of a negotiated settlement was touched off by:

1. Chinese Communists suddenly released 27 wounded American prisoners. The freed men brought this message—"The Chinese do not want to fight the Americans."

2. Chinese Reds, with an estimated 100,000 men in northwest Korea, continued to withdraw without a fight.

3. U. N. troops did not move up to take over abandoned Red fortifications.

"There is a reason" why U. N. troops have not advanced, spokesman at General MacArthur's headquarters said. He would not say what that reason was.

Col. M. P. Echols, headquarters information officer, denied reports that any peace negotiations were in progress "at this level."

In Washington, U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson told his Wednesday news conference that creation of a demilitarized buffer zone between North Korea and Red China's Manchuria has been

But he said no agreement has been reached. He added that discussions were with friendly foreign governments.

Immediately after the unexpected release of the 27 prisoners, a trustworthy source in Tokyo denied that any peace negotiations were going on anywhere. Later, Echols amended that to deny negotiations at "this level."

Speculation arose that the peace question might be taken up at talks by a Chinese Communist delegation enroute to the U. N.

Col. Echols also denied reports that efforts were being made to work out a mass surrender of Chinese forces who had been ordered to withdraw in late October prolonged the war.

Nevertheless the Chinese were withdrawing everywhere. Chinese Nationalists in Taipei said the Chinese Reds had been ordered to fall back because of heavy casualties, intensive bombings and superior U. N. fighting power.

Actually, there was no more expansion of the withdrawal than the unprecedented release of the 27 prisoners.

The American POWs were driven in trucks 60 miles southward from a prison camp at Pyongyang to the Kakotas and they were hidden by night to avoid U. N. war planes, and were released about a mile in front of the U. S. First Cavalry division lines.

Reds Are Accused Of Meddling With Austrian Police

Allies Demand That Russians Live Up To 4-Power Treaty

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—(AP)—The United States, Britain and France protested again today against alleged Soviet interference with the Austrian government's control over its own police in the Russian zone.

The new protest charged that the Russians have prevented Austrian authorities from maintaining law and order and demanded that Moscow order its representatives in Vienna "to conform strictly" to four-power agreements which would prevent such interference.

The American note, relayed by the State Department here simultaneously with French and British announcements almost, implied there is a danger of breakdown in four-power operations in Austria. It urged the Russians to take action to avoid "a serious deterioration of functioning of the quadripartite machinery in Austria."

An earlier protest, made on Nov. 17, charged that the Russians were holding under the direction of the San Francisco Ministerial Association at the First Presbyterian Church. The Christian Science Church also held a service.

Conventions in Sanford were quiet this morning in contrast to the crowds that thronged the business section yesterday when groceries and meat markets were jammed with shoppers. With the exception of several drug stores and the restaurants, all places of business were closed. At the Court House only the Sheriff's office was open.

A special menu was being prepared for the 17 prisoners of whom three are white, at the City Jail. The dinner included ham, sweet potatoes and other vegetables.

Evening parking houses were taxed to capacity for the past few days to supply the holiday trade with oranges and grapefruit, said Manager Sandy Anderson of the Sanford State Farmers Market.

With the exception of pumpkins, however, vegetable sales have been very light due to the sharp drop caused by the Oct. 18 hurricane, he declared. The shortage included green and pole beans, cabbage, eggplant, squash and tender crops. A load of 530 bushels of eggplant arrived from Charleston, S. C. and was quickly sold to buyers from Orlando, Eustis and other sections.

In spite of temperatures down to 37 degrees yesterday morning for 30 minutes on the west side, no damage was reported to romaine beans or lettuce.

Police commissioners, Michael C. Noey and Michael C. Noey, who had worked little during the past two years due to a rupture, stabbed his wife to death about noon and placed her body on their bed. Then he came in the flat for Florida, who came home from school shortly after 3 P. M. He stabbed and beat her to death with a knife-sharpening tool and placed her body on her bed in another room.

Then he waited for Kathryn, who arrived home from her typist's job.

UNHEALTHY SLAVES
LONDON, Nov. 23—(AP)—British doctors, who had threatened to pull out of the national health program unless they got higher fees, have agreed to postpone their withdrawal at least until June.

Some 20,000 doctors, seeking fee boosts averaging 20 per cent to meet higher living costs, had planned to hand in provisional resignations this month. They agreed to hold off when Health Minister Aneurin Bevan explained that inquiries into doctors' earnings and expenses were taking longer than expected.

Three months' notice of withdrawal must be given.

Americans All Over World Will Give Thanks For Blessings Today

The turkey took his annual curtain call today in spite of war, taxes and death.

Throughout this land and around the world, even in cold, battle-torn Korea, Americans prepared to offer thanks for the good things they have—before grabbing off another slice of the white meat.

President Truman asked his countrymen to pray for peace wherever they are, in church or at home or in the "busy ebb of life, every day, everywhere."

Many of them, had crowded last night onto trains, buses and planes to get back to their own hearths for the prayers and the feasting. And many more today jammed the highways heading to football fields and golf courses.

The weatherman studied his charts and said it would be chilly, a lot of places and generally fair. A cold wave was moving in from the mountain and plains states. Another still lingered along the Atlantic seaboard.

Cold or not, American tables were sure to be loaded with the good things of the soil, canned jams and crisp, white celery and plump olives and chilled apple.

Stain were Mrs. Margaret Tama, 42, and Gloria, her daughter. Stanley Tama, 48, the husband and father, died five hours after he slashed his own throat.

Another daughter, Kathryn, 22 escaped screaming from the family's upper flat and collapsed on a neighbor's porch. She suffered head wounds but was reported in good condition.

Police commissioners, Michael C. Noey and Michael C. Noey, who had worked little during the past two years due to a rupture, stabbed his wife to death about noon and placed her body on their bed. Then he came in the flat for Florida, who came home from school shortly after 3 P. M. He stabbed and beat her to death with a knife-sharpening tool and placed her body on her bed in another room.

Gangsters of Today Said To Be Worse Than Canone Mob

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23—(AP)—Present American crime combinations make the Canone gang look like small time operators.

Chairman Ester Kefauver (D-Iowa) of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

Kefauver, closing recent San Francisco hearings in a nation-wide probe, asserted organized criminals and racketeers have more power and influence than his committee ever suspected.

"They are larger, more sinister and harder to get now than ever before," he declared last night.

Kefauver promised a speedy investigation of the Mountain City

Capt. Charles Hurt Back From Germany

Capt. Charles C. Hurt of the Army Air Force, stationed at Frankfurt, Germany, arrived at Washington, D. C. airport yesterday afternoon, and was scheduled to be home today for Thanksgiving dinner with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hurt, according to a telegram received by the family.

This will be Capt. Hurt's first visit home since last Thanksgiving. He has been stationed in Germany for the past two years and has been in the Air Force since June, 1942. Last February he was promoted from first lieutenant to rank of captain.

At present his wife and two children are visiting relatives in England, said Jennings Hurt, his brother.

When the motion picture, "The Big Lift," starring Montgomery Clift, was filmed in Germany last year, Capt. Hurt was chosen for the part of a sergeant, and was in the first part of the picture.

NAME CHANGE
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23—(AP)—A family of three was in court because their name, Schoephoerster, is a tough one to spell.

"Our little girl (Judith Ann, five) is in kindergarten," said Mrs. Marjorie Schoephoerster, 28. "It's hard for a little girl to spell a name that has 14 letters. Five will be lots easier."

Her husband, Lowell, 29, agreed and they asked yesterday that the court legally change the name to Behp. The judge approved.

ROUGH GAME
HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23—(AP)—Actor Paul Douglas, now 42, finds football a little too rough—even though it's just for a movie scene.

The former pro gridder came out of a pileup yesterday with two fractured ribs. His doctor said Douglas may be out of the first string movie lineup for three months.

78 Persons Killed And Hundreds Injured As L.I. Trains Collide

They Were Waiting Supper For Him In Garden City—When Phone Rang

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—The telephone rang in a small suburban home in Garden City. A 17-year-old boy picked up the receiver.

"Oh," he said, not wanting to believe. Then, slowly, "Father always took the 6:09."

The telephone rang again at Floral Park. A father answered, "Oh, will you wait. Are you sure he is really dead?"

"Oh God . . . Why, that's our last boy . . . The other was in a 17."

The telephone rang again—a shrill, impatient death knell, making the rounds of the pretty commuter communities that dot Long Island.

A woman answered at East Rockaway.

All night long the telephone rang ringing in scores of homes that will not celebrate Thanksgiving today.

The calls brought the tragic news of a major disaster on the Long Island railroad—the worst train wreck in the history of New York State—and one of the worst in the history of the nation.

A warm and happy crowd has pushed and jostled its way through the loading gates at Manhattan's Pennsylvania station only a few minutes before.

Thanksgiving, and the big city's commuters were hurrying home to wives and families.

About 1,200 of them boarded No. 780 of the bankrupt Long Island Railroad. It was the 6:09, bound for pleasant Hempstead.

Another thousand crowded onto No. 174. It was the 6:14, headed down the same track for Babylon through Rockville Centre.

It was dark early, and a cold, chill moon, almost full, gleamed on the track ahead. Inside the cars, hot and stuffy, the extra crowds stood in the aisles, swaying as the 12 cars slipped.

The surviving motorman, William Murphy, 41, said he saw his train for a signal and the brakes locked for some unexplained reason. The train ground to a stop.

The second train, only minutes behind on the main line, crashed into the standing one. It hurtled through the rear car of the first train like a piece of steel through a tube.

Acting major Joseph Sharkey, surveying the scene, said, "It's tragic we find out what things happen in this particular line. It's a shame."

However, after questioning Murphy, District Attorney Charles P. Sullivan said, "There will be no arrest until negligence is shown."

Sharkey said he is issuing today an order restricting the speed of Long Island trains within the city limits to 25 miles per hour.

He estimated the second train in the crash was going 10 to 30 miles an hour.

Sullivan said Murphy told him the brakes were working normally when the first train pulled out of Pennsylvania Station at 6:05 P. M. (EST) bound for Hempstead.

The second train, headed by motorman Benjamin J. Bokony, 55 who died in the crash, left at 6:13 P. M.—four minutes later—on its way to Babylon.

"The crash occurred at 6:22 P. M. More than 2,100 rush-hour passengers were on the train."

NEW GUN CAN KNOCK OUT ANY ENEMY TANK
ABERDEEN, PROVING GROUND, Miss., Nov. 23—(AP)—The Army has developed a new weapon capable of knocking out any known foreign tank.

It is a 105 millimeter recoilless rifle, which is fired from a jeep. It has a terrific wallow.

Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, who made a day-long tour of this Army testing ground here yesterday disclosed existence of the weapon.

Pace announced: "I have witnessed a firing demonstration of a new recoilless rifle mounted on a jeep. This new weapon will, when in full production, along with the 3.5 baroque, provide the front-line combat soldier with the ability to knock out the most potent enemy tank known today."

The new recoilless rifle is an easy-to-handle, comparatively light weapon operated by two men.

NEW EXCUSE
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23—(AP)—Mrs. Georgia Randall obtained a divorce because her husband, Charles Arthur, told her he was out "picking strawberries."

This was his reply, she testified in superior court yesterday, when she asked where he'd been all night.

But he said no agreement has been reached. He added that discussions were with friendly foreign governments.

Immediately after the unexpected release of the 27 prisoners, a trustworthy source in Tokyo denied that any peace negotiations were going on anywhere. Later, Echols amended that to deny negotiations at "this level."

engers—many homeward bound for a gay holiday—were jammed into the 12 electric cars on each train. Some were standing in the aisles. Flying glass and jagged, deadly steel knifed through the cars. In the cars where the impact occurred many passengers died where they sat, mangled as though between two giant flatirons. So horrible was the scene that police put blankets over some of the bodies to shield their pitiful condition from public gaze. It took hours to pry the cars apart and some injured still moaned in the death rattle after midnight—six hours after the crash. There was no explanation for the apparent failure of the block system to halt the second train after the first one stopped. Anthony Tartaglia, a passenger on the first train, said: "The train stopped for a few seconds. Then she tried to start up. Then all hell broke loose." Jeff Kaufman, an accountant, said he saw the steel front of the second train hit into the first "like a slice of bread." The great city of New York turned itself inside out to aid the score and some 200 police went to the scene. Nearly every piece of the wreckage, including the usable equipment in the city was pressed into service. Power saws, jacks and acetylene torches were used to hack and pry at the wreckage, which locked the fate of so many for so long. Doctors came from throughout the city, bringing blood and medical supplies. They set up an emergency operating room in a nearby private home for amputation cases. Searchlight played over the area, lighting the pale, vacant eyes of the dead as they lay limp and silent in their seats. Despite the terrible gruesome scene, raucous teen-agers pushed noisily against police lines that held back 5,000 onlookers. Police finally had to plead over a loud speaker for them to "please keep quiet." Two young internes, Paul E. Seffer and Arnold H. Sanders, beneath the ghastly man-made daylight of the searchlights. They squeezed their way between the telescoping cars, cut for and a half hours they lay there ministering to trapped passengers. Then they crawled out and collapsed—exhausted by superior with saving the lives of two-thirds of the surviving injured. A scene of heartbreaking sadness was being enacted meanwhile at the nearby police station, the clearing house for news of the dead and injured. Weeping women sought news of their relatives about the 42nd Street station. It was excruciatingly slow in coming. Some persons learned hours later that relatives died in the wreck when newsmen called them. The Long Island carries an estimated 300,000 passengers a day, commuters from the business beehive of Manhattan to the quiet cottage and estates of Long Island.

These trains duck by tunnel under the East River after they leave Penn Station. Then they travel the main line through Queens to Jamaica, where most of them fan out along the railroad's 1,000 miles of track. It was just west of Jamaica, in Kew Gardens, where the wreck occurred. It is an area of private homes, small shops, and huge apartment dwellings. The wreck scene is about 10 miles from Rockville Centre, where last February's wreck occurred. In the Rockville Centre crash one train ran through a stop signal and crashed head on into another on a makeshift stretch of track. Besides the 31 dead, over 78 were injured. Many safety measures were recommended after a long state investigation of what went wrong. Damage suits piled up against the bankrupt Long Island and still are being settled. The motorman of one train in the earlier wreck was tried for manslaughter. But he was found innocent after he said he blacked out and never saw the stop signal. In a wreck of lesser proportions last Aug. 5, a north shore Long Island train hit a freight near Huntington, N. Y. more than 50 persons were injured but none was killed.

They Are

(Continued from Page One) eastward. It had been nine months since the disastrous head-on collision at Rockville Centre killed 31. Probably nobody was thinking of that wreck when the 6:09 made an unscheduled stop. This was at Kew Gardens, where the tracks run behind little bungalows in residential Queensborough, still inside the city. The motorman threw on the power to start. But the brakes had locked, and nothing happened. Then with a flash and a roar the 6:13 was on top of them from behind. "I heard her coming," brake man Bertrand Biggan said hours later at Jamaica hospital, "but I thought she was on another track." "I looked back . . . and she was coming like the devil . . . I thought 'My God! She's on the same track!'" Then the onrushing car crashed in front of Biggan's face. It buried him the full length of the rear coach, and let him escape, injured but alive. Behind him, motorman Benjamin Pokorny rode the 6:13 to its death in a telescoping slaughterhouse of passengers. His lead car went through and over the rear coach, splitting it, shearing bodies, rolling up steel, glass, green mohair and flesh into a tangled mass. Those who lived all had story to tell . . . the screams, the flying glass, the odd dusty smell of the shaken coaches, the flash and power failure as the third rail short circuited, the cries, the moans, and the wet, warm blood on hands and face. This was New York City, and help was fast. But for hours nothing on earth could help the injured and too dying pinned in the narrow gap between Pokorny's car above, and the 6:09's rear coach below. This gap was the ultimate horror of the wreck, out of it dangled torn arms and legs, shattered heads, ankles without feet, feet without legs, hands clenching and unclenching in their agony. A voice, deep inside the wreckage, mocked its pain with a savage humor . . . "Ain't I the lucky one . . . Ain't I the lucky one . . ." Finally the police got their brand new 25-ton jacks between the cars ("They've paid for 'em selves now," growled a policeman) and forced them a foot apart. Two internes wormed their way in, plied tourniquet and morphine for 4 1/2 hours. Then they crawled out and dropped on the ground from spiritual sickness and exhaustion. Nearly 5,000 people gathered as near as the police would let them, murmuring as the white-sheeted bodies were carried to ambulance or morgue wagon. Police and firemen's floodlights lit the scene, cutting torches burned, and power backwags screamed through the steel. After all the living—all that could be reached—were out, two giant railway cranes pulled the cars apart. Casualties were compiled at the Richmond Hill precinct station. There injured lists were typed and posted. Then, more slowly, the names of the dead. As radio and newspaper headlines carried the news through the city—and the suburbs—near-

Adopted Child

(Continued from Page One) as she hugged the baby. Her husband dabbed at his eyes with a moist handkerchief. "You made it possible for these people to take this baby and love it, don't you see?" he said to Miss Mark. "I want you all to be friends. Do you have any objection to these people seeing the baby once in a while?" Miss Mark tearfully shook her head. Her mother said: "We'll be glad to take the baby to see them." "Then let them keep the baby until after Thanksgiving, until Friday," Judge Doyle said. "The you and your parents go to their home. Let them give you some pointers in child care." Outside court, a few minutes later, Mrs. Smith, sobbing, was when Miss Mark ran over and put her arm around the woman who has mothered her child for four months. "They're the nicest people," said Mrs. Mark.

Plotters of Truman Assassination Held

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Two Puerto Rican radical leaders, suspected of being chief plotters in the attempt to assassinate President Truman, were held in separate New York jails today under heavy guard. The two men were seized here late yesterday by Secret Service agents. They are Julio Pinta-Gonzalez, veteran terrorist and president of the New York unit of the Puerto Rican Nationalist Party, and Juan Bernardo Lebron, 28, past president of the New York unit. Assistant U. S. Attorney Frederick H. Block said yesterday that a federal grand jury has evidence of "the possible existence of an organized plot" to kill the president, with the gunman "having been guided in their mission by Lebron and Lebron and the gunmen's wives."

American Legion Head Was Once Wounded, Left On Field For Dead

By CHARLES BARRETT

ATLANTA, Nov. 23 (AP)—Riddled and left for dead by Nazi machine gunners a few months before, the big, brawny guy with the broad grin was coming home.

He was helped off a plane from France to join his dad and mother.

Their "How are you son?" brought the reply, "I'll be well enough to go to the Legion convention this year."

That was Erle Coker, Jr., back in 1946.

A lot of hospital operations and four years later, still only 23 years old, Coker is the youngest national commander of the American Legion in history.

His election in Los Angeles last Oct. 12 was by the biggest margin in years, one of the biggest ever.

Coker says his goal is to sell not only veterans but all Americans on the Legion program of "peace through strength," including universal military training.

If his next year is like the others, the U. S. A. is in for a lot of Legionizing.

Started as a Gripple Coker has been a whiz at everything he tries. His young life includes a crippled boyhood, zooming business and civil success, and a hair-raising, almost incredible World War II adventure.

He's a six-foot-two, 210 pounder with a rugged countenance, bright brown eyes, wavy brown hair, hearty handshake and plenty of smooth talk. Despite his glamor and good looks he's a bachelor.

Even when he was 27, political dogpeters had tagged him as a good prospect for governor of Georgia. Now some friends are really booming him. But Erle is looking to business and the Legion, so far.

His story began in the little Southwest Georgia peanut town of Dawson. The boy crippled at the age of 18 months and wore casts or braces on his left leg until he was nine. Today he wears a size 11 shoe on his left foot, size 12 on his right.

Versatile in School Young Coker became president of the literary society at the University of Georgia in Athens. At the same time he was manager of the football team.

Coach Wally Butts called him the nation's "All-America manager." Then came the war. Maj. Gen. A. C. McAuliffe, who said "nuts" to the Nazis at Bastogne, told an Atlanta friend Coker was "the best individual soldier I saw during the war."

Gen McAuliffe's citation tells the story of Coker's exploits during April 22-24, 1945.

Capt. Coker set out with a corporal, a jeep and a machine to contact a cut-off U. S. battalion near Heuren, Germany. First he ran into a column of 80 German soldiers, opened fire and "put the entire enemy column to flight," capturing three Nazis and liberating five French prisoners.

At Balzhof, he was pinned by machine-gun and small-arms fire and both he and the corporal were wounded and captured.

Coker was lined up with 17 other U. S. prisoners and marched to Oberwilzingen, left with two guards. Coker clubbed one guard and "took the other by a jump" the other. They escaped.

The little band marched up to the Burgomaster (mayor) and Coker persuaded him the town was surrounded by the Allies and resistance was futile. Oberwilzingen and two little nearby towns were surrendered to the ex-prisoners.

But Nazis Came Back A Nazi artillery battalion, two rifle platoons and other German soldiers gave up their arms. Finally Coker sent all but four of his men back to Allied lines—taking 592 prisoners with them, by official French count.

Then a Nazi panzer division rolled into Oberwilzingen, and the odds were a little too great. Coker and his tiny group opened fire but were captured again.

Coker was questioned by the same Nazis who had questioned him two days before, after his first capture.

"He didn't like my looks and I didn't like his," says Coker. He swatted the Nazi in the jaw and German guards opened up on him at 20 feet with tommy guns.

Dead The captain fell and was left on the spot, believed dead. Finally two old women hauled him to a wooden cart.

A German doctor gave him the first of 17 operations that took him to 27 hospitals over 14 months. He was decorated with the French Croix de Guerre, the U. S. Silver Star, Purple Heart with three clusters and the bronze star with clusters.

After his recovery, Coker received a master's degree in business administration from Harvard and became assistant general manager of the largest peanut butter manufacturing plant in the world, at the age of 25.

In 1948 he became general industrial agent for the Central of Georgia railway and recently became assistant to the president of Delta Airlines. He is a past commander of the Legion in Georgia.

To Cobb posted a lifetime military leave in battling average of 367 in 24 years of play.

TODAY'S BIBLE VERSE

God has been sending a stream of prophets, seers, teachers, saints most of whom have been stoned, burned at the stake, starved, imprisoned, crucified.

Congratulations to the former Governor Doyle E. Carlton, or rather to the State Chamber of Commerce, upon his election as president of that body for the coming year.

The United States Chamber of Commerce advocates a cut of six billion dollars in non-military spending by the federal government, enough to more than offset the revenues from the proposed excess profits tax.

The Christmas seal sale campaign to raise funds for the eradication of tuberculosis gets under way. Tremendous strides have been made during the past ten years.

American cities are totally unprepared to meet an atomic bomb attack, the American Municipal Association declares.

The Tampa Tribune points out that the State of Florida now has 140,000 recipients of State Welfare benefit payments.

Speaking in the United Nations Assembly's political committee meeting the other day, Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky quoted the great Budd Lenin as follows: "Lenin said that just wars are those which are designed to liberate people from capitalist slavery."

The City of Sanford moves inexorably toward the long delayed utilization of the St. Johns River, as the City Commission, three to two, approves the sale of $350,000 worth of bonds for the construction of terminal and warehouse facilities.

Abundant Blessings

One useful function of the Thanksgiving observance is its annual reminder to us that we have an abundance of things for which to be thankful.

We look for other things for which to be thankful, less tangible than the wealth of food, clothing, shelter and other riches of life which we take for granted.

Without Thanksgiving Day, would we fail to take stock on such things? It must be feared that some of us might; we become terribly busy with our daily tasks and problems.

Longevity Plus

It is widely known that people live longer nowadays, often in spite of themselves. Ways of making this greater length of days a happy and productive period were outlined recently by a Brooklyn doctor.

"A happy mixture of work and play, added to natural optimism, provide an excellent foundation upon which to build and maintain the human mechanism," says the doctor.

Of all these specifications for a long and happy life, marriage is perhaps the ofttest achieved. Most people strive, too, to maintain a balance between work and play.

The Sterling Area

Much has been heard about the sterling area. This is the group of British Commonwealth nations, British dependencies and a few other nations which base their money on the pound sterling.

Within the sterling area money of the various nations is exchanged freely. But money of one of the member nations can be converted into gold—only through or with permission of the Bank of England.

The sterling area is an obstacle to the free flow of world trade which the United States has been seeking to promote. The United States government permits the dollar to go where it will in the world markets.

Thanksgiving

President Truman planned to share a 35-pound Pennsylvania-crown bird with Mrs. Truman, daughter Margaret, and mother-in-law Mrs. David Wallace.

Other Presidents did likewise and Thanksgiving Day became as much a part of the American scene as Christmas or Election Day.

A minor row resulted a few years back when President Franklin D. Roosevelt decided the 4th, rather than the last, Thursday should get the nod as the national Thanksgiving Day.

Revenue Agents

William Burkett told the committee about the company. He testified he resigned as special agent in the Internal Revenue Bureau's intelligence unit because it failed to act on his evidence of income tax fraud.

Burkett said he had an affidavit from Gertrude Jenkins, convicted abortionist, that she paid $5,000 to Patrick Mooney, former Collector of International Revenue in Reno, to escape tax prosecution.

THE WORLD TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE, AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The slowness of Western Europe in responding to the needs for defensive rearmament is causing concern among the Democracies.

While observers generally aren't expecting any attack from Eastern Europe at this juncture, the cold fact is that right now the Western Allies probably couldn't send her powerful armies through to the English Channel.

France and Britain finally agreed to this, with minglings and reservations, in the American Secretary of State's past transgressions.

Then last weekend elections were held in the states of Heiss and Westphalia-Hulder in the American Secretary of State's past transgressions.

More than incidentally, the Socialist also gave the Communists a terrific beating. Not one Red candidate was elected, and the result is hailed as a complete rejection of Moscow's policies.

German rearmament naturally is only one phase of the broader problem of building up allied defenses in Western Europe.

Some 144 British Austerlitz tanks, disguised in the uniform of regular Austrian troops, seized the Chancellery in Vienna and for several hours held prisoner the members of the Austrian cabinet.

The courageous and patriotic little Chancellor Dollfus, who had tried so hard to maintain the independence of his country, was shot down and denied by his captives the services of a physician and the rites of the church and allowed to bleed slowly to death.

This reference to any state allied with Japan is a peaceful, serene America.

Well, the Republicans had a big vote for 12 years prior to 1932. They handed over to the Democrats, closed banks, closed factories, low wages, bread lines, millions unemployed, and mortgages being foreclosed on hundreds of farms and homes.

Further, the note asserted that the Russian representatives in the inter-Allied command in Vienna had widened the split between the offices and the Austrian government by ordering the police president to keep hands off police personnel in the Soviet zone except when the Soviets approve his action in advance.

Thanksgiving

Psalm LXXV: 1-10

Unto thee, O God, do we give thanks, unto thee do we give thanks; for that thy name is near thy wondrous works declare.

The earth and all the inhabitants thereof are dissolved; I bear up the pillars of it. Selah.

For promotion cometh neither from the east, nor from the west, nor from the south. But God is the judge: he putteth down one, and setteth up another.

For in the hand of the Lord there is a cup, and the wine is red; it is full of mixture; and he poureth out of the same; but the dregs thereof, all the wicked of the earth shall wring them out, and drink them.

All the horns of the wicked also will I cut off; but the horns of the righteous shall be exalted.

Sanford Forum

The Sanford Herald: On Nov. 13 there was an article in the Herald by Mrs. Marion Keeling accusing the Democrats of plunging us into two major world wars, an absurd statement.

The spark which set the world aflame was Austria's attack on Serbia in July, 1914, which resulted from diplomatic difficulties arising from the assassination of Francis Ferdinand, Archduke of Austria by a Serbian nationalist at Sarajevo.

German troops, marching on France, took a short cut by way of Belgium, violating her neutrality and arousing British indignation which resulted in Great Britain's entrance into the war on Aug. 4.

German submarines were sent out to prey upon Allied shipping and attacks were also made on neutral vessels.

On July 28, 1934, hardly a month after Hitler's bloody purge, the German government, precisely 20 years after Serbia's rejection of the Austrian ultimatum, Central Europe was again shocked by the another brutal political assassination.

Some 144 British Austerlitz tanks, disguised in the uniform of regular Austrian troops, seized the Chancellery in Vienna and for several hours held prisoner the members of the Austrian cabinet.

Three People Are Injured In Three Holiday Wrecks

Three persons were reported injured in two automobile accidents last night and early this morning. Just recovered from a broken ankle and bruises received during the crash of a small plane near Ovidio several months ago, is now in Orange Memorial Hospital, Ovidio.

The accident occurred in Ovidio when Aulin, driving a 1946 Dodge sedan, crashed into a large tree after being blinded by the lights of an approaching automobile.

At 6:00 o'clock last evening, Adam Willie Mack, 48 year old Sanford Negro, returning from work in Ovidio, and approaching the intersection of the Ovidio Road, lost control of his 1936 Ford Sedan in attempting to pass a truck.

The other automobile, a 1937 Chevrolet, driven by Francis "Old Baxter" of Geneva was wrecked, the impact shearing off the front fender, wheel and headlights.

Two automobiles were involved in a collision at Park Avenue and Third Street shortly before 6:00 o'clock last night when both attempted a turn south and east on Third Street.

Which the latter was driving, was damaged in the left rear fender. The other automobile, a 1937 Chevrolet, driven by Francis "Old Baxter" of Geneva was wrecked, the impact shearing off the front fender, wheel and headlights.

Associates Of Atom Spy Are Found Guilty

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—A chemical engineer and his woman business associate were convicted last night of conspiring to induce a federal investigation of the engineer's relations with confessed atom spy Harry Gold.

They are Abraham Brothman, 30, and Miriam Moskowitz, 34. A federal court jury of seven men and five women brought in the guilty verdict after almost four hours' deliberation.

Maximum penalties at the sentencing set for Nov. 28 could be seven years in prison and a $15,000 fine for Brothman and two years and $10,000 fine for Miss Moskowitz.

Ill Steelworker

Continued From Page One: job shortly after 6 P.M. He told her Gloria was sick and she went into Gloria's room.

Kathryn told police she was in on the head of the bed leaning over Gloria's bed, but escaped before another blow could be struck.

Police arrived soon after and found Tanna lying across his wife's crumpled body. The knife was a few feet away.

Nieppe said Tanna left a note, addressed "Dear Lord," in which he said he could only recover if he didn't work. But, the letter asked, "How could you live if I don't work?"

"They can't talk anymore," the letter said. "I love you, but I don't want to let you suffer anymore. I don't want to let you live if I don't work. Now they have peace."

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.—(AP) Why is Alan Ladd so popular? Hollywood likes to analyze every one's success, and Ladd is a puzzle. His size is below average and his pictures have stimulated little or no interest on the part of the Motion Picture Academy, yet his films are amazingly successful and help pay for Paramount's big-budget films. Recently Herb Stein of Hollywood Reporters wrote that only five stars are sure-fire sellers—the covers of fan magazines—Liz Taylor, Katharine Hepburn, Jean Powell, James Cagney and Alan Ladd. And Ladd has been more popular than all other male stars put together. "Don't ask me," answered Ladd on the set of "Quantrell," "I don't know the answer." But a studio aide hinted the reason: Smart handling of Ladd's career by the actor and his manager-wife, Sue Carol. No other star has had such excellent handling. "I don't know the answer," answered Ladd. "I don't know the answer." "When I started playing bit and began to get a little mail," he declared, "Sue and I decided to try to answer all we could. We've stuck to our plan. It has been very interesting. Through the letter, we've watched kids grow up, marry and start raising families. "I also get lots of interesting advice. Once I was reported saying I wanted to get away from the two-fisted Alan Ladd type of picture. The fans would write: 'It's okay to try something different but then go back to what you've been doing.' "Headlining the Ladd mail is no small matter. The Ladd's employ three or four secretaries and the studio has an equal number. The volume is reportedly around 20,000 pieces of mail a month. All but Pauline requests receive prompt answers. The Ladd's spend a good percentage of their spare time reading and answering the mail. "Some stars have rubber stamps to make their signatures," said Sue. "Alan signs every photograph and letter himself." His fellow stars are amazed at Ladd's industry. One rising male star recently asked him: "Why do you go to so much time and trouble just to answer those letters?" "I don't want to tell you how I and Uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Jeng Mortensen of Asturiano Road on her vacation. This is Mrs. Jackson's second visit as she helped her Aunt select her property and home about 1910 year ago. The regular meeting of the Glee Club was held on Wednesday night at the Club rooms. There was an unusually large attendance. Mrs. Harry Whittaker led the singing and played the piano.

Mr. and Mrs. Kemper Stiedell of Madison, Wis. are going to stop to spend the Thanksgiving week-end with their Aunt and Uncle, Mr. and Mrs. W. Poyntell Kemper of Delbart Drive. The Stiedells will have their trailer with them and will be headed further south.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Turner of Naranja Road, entertained Mrs. Turner's sister, Mrs. Claire Gardner of Daytona Beach for the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Wakefield have as their house guest, Mr. Gomer T. Morris of Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. Everett Waite of New York City has been down for a week taking possession of and furnishing his new home on Delbart Drive. He has rented it to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carmen of Buffalo, N. Y. until spring when he hopes to be down himself.

Mr. and Mrs. John Vester of Delbart had a short visit from a friend, Miss Tompkins of New Jersey. They took her for a tour of the Estates and she was delighted with it. Shortly after she left Mr. and Mrs. P. Seibel and their daughter Evelyn of Long Island arrived to spend a few days with the Vests. Mr. Seibel and Mr. Vost were associated in business before Mr. Vost's retirement.

Miss Esther Jackson of Hartford, Conn. is visiting her Aunt

Chinese Reds Arrive For UN Conferences

Political Committee Considers Russian Charges Of U.S. Aggression In Korea

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 24 (AP)—A nine-member Chinese Communist delegation arrived at Lake Success, N. Y., today for the United Nations Conference on Korea.

The General Assembly's 60-nation Political Committee now is considering Russian charges of American aggression against China. The charges press out of President Truman's order sending the U. S. Seventh Fleet into Formosa to prevent a spreading of the Korean war.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik made the request that the Chinese Reds participate in the committee's proceedings. Nationalist China's T. F. Tsiang expressed vigorous opposition. U. S. delegate John Foster Dulles said: "I have no desire to speak on this question."

Tsiang said "This (Red) regime has not the legal competence to offer a complaint on the part of my country. This is a propaganda trick."

China's accusations against the United States by means of the Soviet resolution before the Political Committee. Communists were invited to take part in the Security Council's discussions.

They were met at the airport by Malik and representatives of other Soviet bloc countries. They refused to speak to reporters as they alighted from a British Overseas Airways plane.

Later in a statement to the press, Wu Han, leader of the delegation, said he hoped the U. N. would give "just treatment" to the Red Chinese charge that the United States has committed "a crime of aggression" against Formosa.

He said such "just treatment" would "be helpful to peace and security in the Pacific and in Asia."

Wu declared "a profound friendship has always existed between the Chinese people and the American people. It is our hope that we will avail myself of this opportunity to convey my greetings to peace-loving people in the United States," he said.

While Wu spoke to one of the largest groups of reporters, photographers, television and newspaper men ever gathered at Idlewild Airport, lesser members of the delegation chatted with the press.

The full translation of his statement, distributed by a U. N. attaché, was: "On the instructions of the Central People's Government of China, I have the honor to inform you that the Chinese people are in full agreement with the American people in their opposition to the Japanese peace treaty proposed by the United States."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (AP)—The United States has proposed to a dozen other governments a seven-point Japanese peace treaty plan. It includes a proposal that American and "perhaps other forces" assume post-treaty responsibility for Japanese security. The State Department published the blueprint for secret memorandums today, after the Moscow press published an exchange between the United States and the Soviet Union on the proposed treaty.

McClung's 5 Cent To $1.00 Store Opens In Sanford Tomorrow Morning

Sanford's newest mercantile enterprise, McClung's 5 cent to $1.00 store will open Saturday morning at 9:00 o'clock. M. L. McClung, owner, and manager, announced today.

Located in the Evans Building at First Street and Magnolia Avenue the improvements on the building cost more than $35,000, the natural window illumination, an acoustical type of ceiling has been installed. Flooring is of crown and tin asbestos tile.

A balcony was added for reserve stock, and the store area was extended back to give a total floor space of 26,142 sq. ft. Behind this is a small store room. The store is air conditioned.

The fixtures, of maple wood and of 3/4 in. and brass finish, are a real feature on the wall sides that enables the customer to personally select articles. There are two main aisles and seven center aisle counters. Glass shelves above the counters display many products.

G. W. Austin, former manager of the Evans Building, is assisting in getting up the stock and will remain at the store until after Christmas.

Mr. McClung came here from Napa, Calif., where he operated a similar type of store. "I hope to that the level stage in the store will give a view of the entire store. The brick faced portion of the building next to the front end of the building is a large neon sign.

The gray walled interior presents a bright and colorful appearance with slim line fluorescent lighting, supplementing

Florida Fashions Brings Group Of Publicity Experts Here Dec. 2

Florida Fashions will play host to a group of 25 New York radio, newspaper and magazine writers on Dec. 2 and 3, George Touhy, publicity director, announced today. They will be brought here by special plane to see how the big mail order firm operates and to have a first hand look at the city in which it is located.

While here they will be guests of the Mayfair Inn, the formal opening of which will take place on the evening of Dec. 2. The City of Sanford and the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce are co-operating with Florida Fashions in entertaining the visitors.

"Every effort will be made in their limited stay here to give them the complete picture of the significant economic position Sanford holds in Central Florida and the strides that have been taken in recent years to push the Seminole metropolis to the forefront of Florida's industrial awakening," Mr. Touhy said.

The writers who make up the party will convene in downtown Manhattan and from La Guardia Field will be flown to Orlando by chartered plane. The landing is scheduled for 10:30 P. M. Friday night, Dec. 1.

Although the Mayfair Inn will not officially be opened until the next evening, Manager Charles Marlan has planned a warm welcome for the visiting publicity experts.

The following morning Florida Fashions' President Frank Shames will greet them at a welcome breakfast to be followed by a tour of inspection of the seven buildings in Sanford occupied by the mail order company. City officials will be hosts at noon when they entertain the visitors at a luncheon at the Mayfair Inn.

Republican Hits Crime Committee Probe Techniques

Proof Of Agents' Dishonesty Demanded By Revenue Chief

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (AP)—Senator Ferguson (R-Mo.) criticized the Senate Crime Investigating Committee today for what he called its failure to do deeply enough into criminal activities.

He told a reporter the committee headed by Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn.) so far has touched only on "generalities which are known" widely. "I don't believe it has gone deep enough or been specific enough," he said.

But Senator Hunt (D-Wyo.), a member of the committee, retorted in a separate interview that "results speak louder than words."

"You know what happened in Florida," Hunt said, referring to the suspension of five Florida sheriffs since the committee held hearings in Miami last July. The sheriffs were removed for alleged failure to enforce gambling laws.

The crime probes came under fire from another official source. George J. Schoenman, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, said last night that his criticism of his bureau is "wholly unwarranted."

In a statement, Mr. Kefauver challenged Kefauver to "bring any evidence which his committee has uncovered which would lead to a federal indictment for tax evasion or disclosure of criminal conduct on the part of any bureau employee which is not already in the hands of investigators."

Winding up San Francisco hearings by his crime committee on Wednesday, Kefauver had called for a speedy investigation of the Mountain City Consolidated Copper Co. of Nevada.

A former Internal Revenue agent had testified that the company is a dummy stock outfit run by Treasury Department agents. The witness, William H. Hootch, said racketeers and others who income tax troubles escape penalties by the government by buying stock in the company.

Declaring that Kefauver's committee "stepped into this matter in the midst of an intensive investigation of it," Schoenman said that "it takes more than idle rumors and the unverified allegations of a disgruntled former employee to produce indictments."

Senator Ferguson, who served as a one-man grand jury which turned up corruption in Detroit's city government, had hoped for a place on the Kefauver committee.

Republicans Are Told They Must Aid In European Defense

United States Units In Germany Combed To Form Army

KILL GERMAN NOV. 24 (AP)—High Commissioner John J. McCloy ordered the Germans to do their part in European defense.

"You know, you're not a victim here," McCloy said in an address at Kiel University. "You're a partner in the defense of Europe."

McCloy's speech reflected the growing opinion of American officials that the Germans must be urged to take up arms in West European defense.

He spoke only five days after the German Socialist Party, which has been opposing German rearmament, scored a smashing election triumph in two West German states.

Another election highlighting the same government issue will be held next Sunday in the big West German state of Bavaria.

McCloy's speech was the first of three talks in north Germany in which he is expected to hammer home the same theme. West German share in responsibility for European defense.

The people of Germany, particularly the young people, face a choice. I want to state my belief that young Germany will meet the challenge.

McCloy reminded the German students that American students are now the first to be required to enter military service.

You can be quite sure, he said, that not one of them will do less than their duty. He said that the United States today announced activation in Europe of its Seventh Army—the first American "Army" on the continent since demobilization after World War II.

Two veteran major world units of American troops in Germany—the First U. S. Infantry Division and the U. S. Army's 10th Army—have been assigned to the new unit, the U. S. Commander in Europe, General Lucian Truscott, announced today.

Human Failure Is Rai' Wreck Cause, Dewey Declares

Reports Show Train Passed Through 2 Signals At 65 MPH

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey said today that preliminary evidence indicates "a human failure" was the cause of the Thanksgiving Eve Long Island rail road wreck which took 27 lives.

Dewey, who cut short a Florida vacation to lead one of the several investigations of the wreck today, made his statement after a meeting with the state Public Service Commission.

A. The Governor spoke there were demands for quick action by national, state and city officials to put on the line a change on the Long Island line in a year on the rail road.

Dewey said commission findings showed the train which plowed into the rear of a stalled train had passed through one warning signal and one stop signal at full speed of between 60 and 65 miles per hour.

The warning signal was a red light half from the scene of the wreck.

Stating that the investigation had "just started," the Governor declared: "Whatever the causes, human or mechanical, the situation on the Long Island Railroad is utterly intolerable."

I propose to take every step necessary and possible to make a safe railroad at the track."

FREE TURKEYS—Proof that the much criticized U. S. Community Corporation, which loans products from farms to stabilize prices, is of some good to communities was shown by the fact that on Wednesday children and faculty members of all schools in Seminole County enjoyed turkey dinners in school lunch rooms. The turkeys were furnished by the Community Corporation.

Miss Daida Wilson, county school lunchroom supervisor, stated that dried eggs furnished by the Community Corporation had proven very useful in preparing menus.

151ST BIRTHDAY—MOSCOW, Nov. 24 (AP)—An Azerbaidjan mountaineer, Ibrahim Gadhiev, recently celebrated his 151st birthday, a Soviet newspaper reported today. The dispatch said Gadhiev "despite his advanced age feels in good health." His family was said to number about 50 persons.

THIRTEEN TURKEYS

Earl Higginbotham alone among three Sanford hunters at Turkey Track Ranch in Volusia County yesterday, "hit the jackpot" by shooting two turkeys, one weighing nine, and the other 14 pounds. One was shot at 7:00 A. M. and the other at 5:00 P. M. The other two hunters were Jack Hall and Dr. W. V. Bitting.

SMALL FIRE

A defective oil stove caused a fire this morning at 7:41 o'clock at the home of Mattie Faircloth, 301 Willow Avenue, and damaged at table and other furniture to a minor extent before firefighters got it under control, Chief M. N. Cleveland said today.

Day After Thanksgiving Feeling Is Exaggerated By Wife's Irony

By ED CREAGH
WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (AP)—You wake up feeling as if you'd been smothered in turkey feathers. Your head throbs, your lungs hurt and the cold on your pajamas has set in on numerous red ridges around your midriff.

"Oh," you say feebly. And somebody else's home. I wish I could say as much for everybody's sake."

"If you're referring to my wife?"

"Farthest thing from my mind," you say feebly. "You know how much I—uh—respect Alice. And those children of her! Wasn't it cunning of them to set fire to the living room drapes?"

"You were supposed to be watching them! I can't do everything around here. I cook the dinner, set the table, clean the dishes—What? What's that you said?"

"I said," you repeat, taking the toothbrush out of your mouth, "that you're perfectly right, dear. Thanksgiving is too much of a strain on you. On all of us. Tell you what; next year we'll have our Thanksgiving dinner in a restaurant. Just the two of us. What say?"

"Oh," your wife sounds so stricken that you wheel around in alarm. "Oh, I wouldn't dream of such a thing. Why, Thanksgiving is the only day of the year when the whole family gets together!"
