2 Sanford Men Arrested

$1 Million In Stolen Money Found

ROGER HARMON

KENNETH KROESSER
...ex-girlfriend talks

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

Nearly $1 million worth of stolen, uncut U.S. currency has been discovered and two Sanford men arrested after an allegedly abused and killed girlfriend turned in her lover.

Kenneth Kroesser, 33, of C-5 Sandlewood Villas, 110 Airport Blvd., and Roger Harmon, 50, of 2901 Art Lane, were arrested at 3 a.m. Wednesday after Kroesser's former girlfriend, Cynthia Lee Queen, 23, told police the two men had stolen and possessed the money.

Kroesser and Harmon are co-owners of the Anchor Inn, formerly named The Ark, a lounge in Sanford Plaza, police said. Kroesser was arrested at the lounge, while Harmon was picked up and charged at his home, reports indicate.

In a hearing Wednesday afternoon before U.S. Magistrate Paul Dietrich in Orlando, bond was set at $15,000 each for the two suspects, both of whom are former Treasury Department Bureau of Engraving and Printing investigators based in Washington. Both were released after posting the bond without commenting on their arrests.

According to Secret Service agents, the notes were stolen from the Washington bureau several years ago and the whereabouts of the money was unknown until Ms. Queen, upset after allegedly being beaten and threatened by Kroesser upon discovery of her lover's alleged illegal activities, notified local officials. Agents did say that some of the notes had been "popping up" in Central Florida during the past year.

Ms. Queen, bruised and battered from an alleged beating by Kroesser Tuesday night, called police and showed them a page of four $50 bills and three already cut $50 bills. Police contacted the U.S. Treasury agents, who in turn took over the investigation.

Ms. Queen told police, "I didn't want to do this, but I had to do this. I loved Ken and still do love him. It was turning our lives into war and peace, having to hide this and worrying about getting caught," she said. "We were still living together and he just started going berserk."

Investigators said the theft of the money "would probably have been the perfect crime" if Ms. Queen had not informed police of the stolen money and if Harmon's son, Douglas, had not allegedly stolen a large amount of the money from his father's home.

Agents said the younger Harmon, whom they are currently seeking, allegedly hired two men to rob his father's home, paying each about $10,000 from the stolen notes.

Investigators said it is believed the suspects are "only part of a larger operation laundering the money in south Florida's drug operations."

Police also said they have seized a motor home in which Kroesser reportedly was living following the quarrel with Ms. Queen. Investigators said an undisclosed amount of money and drug paraphernalia was found in the vehicle.

While investigators said the two men are being charged with possession of stolen U.S. government property, charges of drug possession and paraphernalia also will be filed against Kroesser.

Investigators added that the money was "destined to be destroyed" by the bureau because the notes contained improper serial numbers.

"Ken meant the world to me and it's very hard for me to cut him down," Ms. Queen reportedly told police. "But he just wasn't under control."

"I just wanted to help him," she said. "When he started making my life extremely bad for me, I had to cover my welfare."

School Construction Means Taxes Won't Be Decreasing

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Don't look for your school taxes to go down next year.

Construction of the new elementary school at Tuskawilla is almost ready to begin, and the building of the suites for exceptional education at Winter Springs, Sterling Park and Altamonte elementary schools is underway.

And the money from last year's tax increase of $2 per $1,000 assessed valuation of real property — some $5 million — is in the bank to pay for those improvements.

But in the new year the special tax is going to be needed again, School Superintendent Bob Hughes reluctantly told School Board members Wednesday night. He made the statement after he urged approval for construction of a new elementary school in Sanford and an addition to the T.W. Lawton Elementary School in Oviedo in the 1982-83 school budget year.

Saying that people in the Oviedo and Sanford areas have been paying taxes to build new schools in rapidly growing southern Seminole County for years, Hughes said something new needs to be done for those two sections of the county.

He said Sanford's two elementary schools, Southside and Sanford Grammar, are Class C-rated structures by the state and can neither be renovated or remodeled. A new school must be built, he said. The site for the new school is to be the property where the School Board administration buildings are now located on Mellonville Avenue at Celery Avenue.

And, he said, the Lawton school needs a 20,195-square-foot addition, estimated to cost about $1 million.

Hughes put the board on warning that a new middle school will be needed in the Longwood area in the third year. He said that school could possibly relieve the overcrowded conditions at Milwee, Teague and Rock Lake middle schools and perhaps South Seminole and Tuskawilla middle schools as well.

The slowdown in growth in the school system — about 650 new students were admitted this year — will help the school administration catch up with needed new facilities, Hughes said. He said the slowdown has been caused by the high current interest rate on loans.

School Board member Pat Telson asked whether Hughes' plans mean that the $2 tax per $1,000 assessed valuation would have to be continued, and Hughes responded "yes."

"But you'll not be voting on the increase now," Hughes said. "You'll be voting on approving the superintendent's recommendation."

Mrs. Telson was the only one of the five board members last year to vote against the tax increase. She voted with her colleagues to approve Hughes' plan for the new construction Wednesday night.

The $2 special capital outlay tax per $1,000 assessed property value brought the school system $5 million during the current fiscal year. The board may not have to levy the full $2 this year to bring in the same amount, said the board's financial expert, Roger Harris.

He said that with an estimated growth rate in the county's tax roll of about 20 percent during the last year, the rate of increase may only have to be about $1.65 per $1,000 assessed valuation.

The board during the 1981-82 year levied a tax totaling $8.11 per $1,000 assessed valuation, including the special $2 tax.

That means that a person owning a $40,000 home and claiming the $25,000 homestead exemption is paying $121.65 annually. A person with a $40,000 home who can claim only a $5,000 exemption because he has been a resident in the state for less than five years paid $283.55.

BACK TO THE MIDDLE AGES

Living anachronisms were all the rage Wednesday as Lakeview Middle School, Sanford, held its second annual Medieval Faire. From left, here are sixth-grader Mark Luke, as Robin Hood; pupils putting on "The Play of the Virgin Mary"; and Kathy Beardsley, of the Society for Creative Anachronism, Orlando, displaying medieval armor and weapons.

Meeting Set Tonight

SHA Targets Deficiencies

The Sanford Housing Authority (SHA) Board of Commissioners will take action to correct deficiencies in management and accounting procedures pinpointed in an audit report at a 7:30 p.m. meeting today.

The meeting is to be held at the Redding Gardens Community Center on Fifth Street.

And while these problems are being handled, the selection of a new executive director apparently has been placed on the back burner. It is listed as 14th on the agenda for tonight's meeting.

The authority has been searching for a new executive director since early last fall after Lewis Cox resigned in late August.

Linda Williams, an eight-year veteran with the SHA, has been serving as interim executive director.

Mrs. Williams said the report of the audit, conducted by Greene & Dycus of Sanford, was for the period ended last June 30. The results, with criticisms concerning the accounting and managerial procedures of the authority, which administers 400 public housing units in six projects in Sanford were expected.

Some of the criticisms about alleged poor management and poor accounting practices were set out in an earlier audit by the same firm. That audit concerned the SHA's administration of a federal community development block grant designed to give low-income families the opportunity of owning their own homes.

SHA attorney Ned Julian Jr. will give the board his recommendations on how to handle an overpayment to former executive director Thomas Wilson III when he was fired from the post in November 1980. Wilson was paid $807 more for accumulated vacation time than he was entitled to.

Julian also is expected to tell the authority whether it should sue to collect overdue rental payments.

Another criticism is the apparent loss of a $50,000 certificate of deposit. Mrs. Williams said the security is not negotiable. She said she will recommend that a bonding agency be hired to certify to the bank involved that the SHA is the legal owner of the certificate. In the meantime, she will ask the commissioners tonight for authorization to rent a safety deposit box for SHA valuables.

The audit report also said the authority improperly paid $10,001 to the city of Sanford for renting the lower level of City Hall for office space. Federal law says federal grant money cannot be used to rent a facility built with federal grant funds. The city already has arranged for repayment of the sums.

In other business at tonight's meeting, Gutmann Associates, architects, will report to the board on the proposals for the modernization of Redding Gardens to make the facility more energy-efficient.

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has allocated $180,000 for the project.

Longwood Cancels Wrecker Contract

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Staff Writer

To the surprise of no one, the Longwood City Commission canceled the contract of Fred Peterson, the city's wrecker truck driver, at an emergency meeting Wednesday.

But the conflict between the driver and the city appears to be far from over.

"I was railroaded because I told it to them just like it was," said Peterson today.

"There's going to be a lawsuit over this. And probably more than one," he said.

The 4-0 vote to cancel Peterson's contract came on the heels of a bitter verbal exchange between him and the commission at Monday night's regular commission meeting.

Peterson told the commission it could "stick" a May 19 deadline "where the sun don't shine."

He had requested an exception to a city ordinance that

Our Water — How Safe?

Drinking water. It's vital to your life, but you never think about it very much.

The faucet, ever responsive to your command, gushes forth an endless supply of pure, safe water.

Or does it?

Just how pure and safe is the drinking water in Seminole County and its cities, anyway? And is the supply in fact inexhaustible?

The Evening Herald's reporting staff has probed into these and other important questions and will bring you the answers in a new, three-part series, "Our Water—How Safe?," beginning Sunday.

You'll learn how, when and why water quality is tested. You'll meet the people in charge of municipal water departments and private water companies. You'll learn about such potential problems as trihalomethanes, sedimentation, rust and chlorine. You'll become acquainted with aquifers, compare water costs in various cities, discover why it's better to lay water pipes deep in the earth than close to the surface. And when you've finished reading the series, you'll have a greater respect for that seemingly innocuous faucet that provides your tap water.

Don't miss "Our Water—How Safe?," starting Sunday in the Evening Herald.

Mayron's Hopes After 'Missing'

HOLLYWOOD (NTA)—There are those who are calling the current Costa-Gavras film, "Missing," an exercise in subtle anti-Americanism. And it does paint some of our State Department employees as pretty despicable people. But Melanie Mayron, who was very involved in the picture, feels that criticism is unjustified. In fact, she believes that the essence of the film is decidedly pro-American.

MELANIE MAYRON

Melanie Mayron plays a character named Terry Simon in the movie. There really is a Terry Simon; she was a friend of Charles Horman (played by Jack Lemmon) and his wife (played by Sissy Spacek). "The mere fact that this movie was made at all," Melanie says, "and then that it was shown here without too much furor is proof to me that it is pro-American. Costa-Gavras told me that if he had made the picture in almost any other country in the world, he would have been put in jail. But not here." Costa-Gavras would not allow any of his actors to meet the real people they were portraying before or during the shooting because he didn't want them influenced. But Melanie Mayron did meet Terry Simon later. She says that her father, a Philadelphia realtor, talked to Miss Simon at that production party and asked her if Costa-Gavras' unflattering portrayal of U.S. State Department officials was at all accurate. "She told him that, in fact,

Costa-Gavras was very nice to them," Melanie says. "In reality, those State Department men were very heavy people."

For Melanie Mayron, who has been on the threshold of stardom for some years now, this film is yet another chance for the brass ring. Time after time, she has made a deep impression on movie-goers and critics, who continually predict big things. But, so far, those big things have proved to be elusive.

"I hope this film helps my career," she says, "but I am being realistic—I've been in this position before. When I made 'Girlfriends,' everybody I knew said to me, 'Mel, you've made it,' and then I didn't work for a couple of years."

And then she was the chief supporting actress behind Vanessa Redgrave in the controversial TV movie about concentration camp prisoners, "Playing for Time," and again people said this was her big break. Nothing.

Down On Weight, Up On Exercise

Even those of us whose livelihood doesn't depend on screen images know that the camera adds several pounds and bulges to sleek bodies and jowls to taut faces. With her alleged black-coffee binges substituting for food, Marilyn Monroe was a tragic example of how to aim for the "right" camera weight the wrong way.

But it's impossible to tally the women who, in television, movies and modeling, keep their weight down the right way. Like champions, they're tuned into what they need for their particular metabolism and they know how to exercise.

Here's a quick rundown of now some great-looking women — all on television now — stay that way.

Jo Franklin-Trout, a stunning, outgoing blonde, is a respected journalist who conceived, produced and narrates the three-part "Saudi Arabia" study now on PBS. On her agenda are further wide-ranging Middle-East television specials and series. The wife of a surgeon, she is also a new mother.

Jo says: "After I had the baby, it came clear that I needed more than the sit-ups and stuff I had done before.

Then I found the strength I really needed in Jane Fonda's new exercise book.

It gave me the exercises I need. I do them while watching the morning news."

Sunny Griffin, who is seen still on "Good Morning America" on ABC, now has a weekly syndicated series about fitness. Sunny, an advocate of "all sports," gave up running during a New York snowstorm four years ago and discovered dancing.

'Murphy' Has His Own Series

By PETER MEADE

Michael Keaton, star of the new CBS sit-com "Report to Murphy," had the standard beginning to his comedy career.

He started acting in local theater groups in his native Pittsburgh but quit soon after to write his own material and appear as a stand-up comedian on the university circuit. In 1975, he moved to Los Angeles.

He worked various jobs there, such as parking cars, but he also appeared regularly at the The Comedy Store, a frequent incubator for young comedians. There he was spotted by comedian Robert Klein and later appeared on one of his specials. That's when Keaton's comedy route veered from the average aspiring comedian's — success soon followed, in the form of role after role after role.

He appeared in a small part on an episode of "Maude" and he landed a recurring role on the 1976-77 series "All's Fair."

Next came appearances on "The Tony Randall Show" and as a member of the repertory group on the variety series "Mary" and "The Mary Tyler Moore Hour." In 1979 he starred in the "Working Stiffs" series, but was out of work after a month.

"I learned a lot from 'Working Stiffs,'" Keaton explains. "I learned that I needed to have more input into my next show, so I sat in on the ideas for 'Murphy.'"

On "Report to Murphy," Donnelly Rhodes — most familiar to television viewers as the convict named Dutch from "Soap" — is the costar. Rhodes plays Murphy's by-the-book parole officer partner, Charlie. Murphy and Charlie work in a small metropolitan office where they are usually at odds over how to deal with their ex-convict "clients."

There are unusual aspects to "Murphy": Certain portions were filmed in front of a live audience, but they take to the streets as well. Also, one of the series' producers is from the BBC and he directed three of the shows.

Another measure of success for Keaton is his just-finished filming of a movie called "Night Shift," which is scheduled to premiere July 4. It features a "Happy Days" connection: Keaton stars with Henry Winkler and was directed by Ron Howard.

"Henry's character in the movie is quite a role reversal," says Keaton. "He plays a quiet guy who is afraid of the world. I play a hyperactive guy who's a walking accident. We work the night shift at the New York City morgue and we turn it into a brothel."

"If those guys said they wanted me to do another movie tomorrow," Keaton says, "I'd say, 'OK, let's go.' Henry is such a generous person, he gives so much of himself. And I think this will be the movie that takes Ronnie from Triple-A to the major leagues as a director."

VCRs, Cable In Home Video Primer

Video buffs, make room in your libraries for "The Home Video Sourcebook," a trade paperback just out from MacMillan ($8.95).

Edited by photojournalist Jim McNitt, this consumer guide to video entertainment includes sections on cable and pay TV, videocassette recorders, videodisc players, projection (large screen) TV, films available on cassettes and more.

Its main drawback is the short shelf-life of some of the material, due to the industry's lightning-quick growth. In giving an overview of cable, for instance, the book says that "both ABC and CBS are rushing to establish their own cable-TV satellite services." In fact, ABC's ARTS channel has been programming for more than a year and ABC's Daytime began in March, while CBS Cable began operating in the latter part of 1981.

Despite this confusion, the chapter is a good primer for the cable novice, who might otherwise feel lost with jargon such as "basic cable," "pay add-ons" and "tiered programming."

As every good consumer guide should, the book mentions prices — which might understandably leave you wondering how you could ever afford cable. To get "wired," you must cough up an initial service and installation fee, plus a hefty deposit on the equipment, then a monthly minimum to maintain the service. To add one or more of the "pay" channels like HBO, Showtime or The Movie Channel you'd lay out an additional monthly fee.

Costs vary across the country, but $10 a month for basic service is about average.

The easily readable chapters on videocassette recorders contain a lot of educational information on the vital points of VCR's.

Unfortunately, since "The Home Video Sourcebook" was printed a lawsuit brought against Sony, a leading VCR manufacturer, by Universal City Studios and Walt Disney Productions has made it technically illegal to videotape copyrighted material.

...A Computer? Seems Everyone Has One

 use their computers to "facilitate their income. A lot of them use it for outside work, or a second job. They can put the results on a Floppy (memory disc) and take that in. One person I know uses it in his Tupperware business. I know a couple of people that have it set up to get the latest stock prices, and they charge for this information. A couple of people have written their own software games.
 "If I were to get one, I'd probably get an acoustical coupler and do editing and other work at home," Drake says.

An acoustical coupler connects the computer to a telephone, enabling the operator to transmit his results. Computer operators who subscribe to a service called CompuServe can communicate with fellow operators all over the United States and in 20 foreign countries for the price of a phone call, he says.

And the prognosis for the future is more of the same. Griffith says: "It's going to do nothing but increase. It'll be doing a lot of things. We're not talking about tomorrow, but five or 10 years down the road."

Zimmerman agrees. "I joined the Computer Society in the summer of 1978 when we had 25 members. We closed 1981 with 140-150 members."

He expects to end up with about 200 members in 1982. As computers continue to gain in popularity Drake expects that they will, like television and calculators, become more affordable.

"They've dropped a lot over the past few years," he says. "Hardware prices have dropped, but software is going up. The price of games is going down, but sophisticated software will stay fairly expensive..."

'Cagney & Lacey': Just Another Cop Show

"Cagney & Lacey" is another of those short-run series that may or may not find a spot in the CBS fall schedule.

The odds are against it right now — the network has just jerked it prematurely in favor of some more episodes of previously scheduled "Simon and Simon," an entertaining, well-made show that CBS is doing everything in its power to destroy.

But that's this week. Next week, "Cagney & Lacey" could very well be back on the air. Hard to tell. Even harder to care.

Chris Cagney (Meg Foster) and Mary Beth Lacey (Tyne Daly) are streetwise New York City detectives. These are not the coy, curvy and warmblooded crime fighters you used to see on "Charlie's Angels."

These are "Staraky and Hutch" in tight skirts. They mangle the language, chew gum with their mouths open, kick down doors, beat up people. Beat up men. They scare you. They're hyperactive, coldblooded and never blink. If they weren't cops they'd be William Morris agents.

Cagney and Lacey get results. They sniff out crime and will do whatever it takes to make it right, even if it means bucking the system. If that sounds familiar, it is. This is a painfully routine cop show. And our heroes are painfully routine TV cops.

Only the costumes and hair styles have been changed.

In our opening episode, a "killer john" is brutally murdering prostitutes, and Cagney and Lacey want to go to the rescue. Unfortunately, their boss, Lt. Samuels (Al Waxman), refuses to use them as anything more important than decoys. That means they go undercover as prostitutes — miniskirts, fright wigs, the works.

"What do we have to do to prove ourselves?" they demand. He doesn't answer them. Instead, after they leave in a huff, he turns to one of his pals and complains, "Can you tell me why guys with families get laid off and broads are getting promoted?"

This may sound like sexism to you, and it is. But their boss would be down on them for something else if they weren't women. The stars of these shows never get along with their by-the-book-superior. If they did, they wouldn't be the lean rebels who prow the streets on their own time, searching for the "killer john." If they did, they wouldn't have their own show.

Besides, Cagney and Lacey are written as men, not women. Role reversal is the idea, and no one is too subtle about it.

Cagney is a cool, super-ambitious playgirl who dates a different guy every night, won't get tied down, won't be pushed around. She wants to be a star in the department.

Lacey is more of a clock-punching family woman. She supports two kids and her husband, Harvey, a frumpish, unemployed hardhat who does the cooking, complains about her late hours and dangerous assignments.

Harvey thinks Cagney is a bad influence on his Mary Beth, and loathes it when the two swap gruesome shop talk over his noodles. "Why don't ya leave that stuff for the locker room?" he huffs.

Unfortunately, "Cagney & Lacey" brings two of our better young actresses to series TV and wastes them. Meg Foster, a sensitive performer blessed with those bewitching cat's eyes, is called on to do little besides imitate David Soul. Tyne Daly, who effectively played Clint Eastwood's partner in the third Dirty Harry movie, "The Enforcer," here adopts the guise of a nasal Brooklyn wharf rat, and ends up sounding like Penny Marshall doing an imitation of Brando in "On the Waterfront."

At this point, it would seem CBS has three options with "Cagney & Lacey." It can extend its commitment to it as a prime-time series. It can animate it, rename it "Superchicks" and put it on Saturday morning. Or it can just forget the whole thing, which would be the most humane thing to do.

New 'Firebird' From Harlem Dance Theatre

Wings flutter and proud red plumage rises in the air. It is the Firebird, swirling and soaring against a fantasy landscape of passion flowers and jungle orchids. It is the mythical kingdom created by the Dance Theatre of Harlem for Stravinsky's classic ballet in which good triumphs over evil, airing Wednesday, May 5 on PBS. (Local times may vary; check listings.)

Under the "Kennedy Center Tonight" banner, the one-hour dance special also goes behind the scenes on location in Harlem to the headquarters and rehearsal hall of the internationally-

The company's new "Firebird" had its premiere at New York City Center early this year.

Ask Dick Kleiner

Program Scheduling Is Tricky Business

DEAR DICK: Why have the networks scrambled all the programs? This was the first year they had them all in really good time slots. But now they have "Father Murphy" opposite "Code Red" and "Barbara Mandrell" opposite "Quincy." On the night that the absolute worst show is on ("Love Sidney") there isn't anything else on anywhere else, either. Bev Herd, Washougal, Wash.

The networks all try to win the ratings race. They schedule a show when they think they can put their strongest shows opposite the other guys' weakest shows. They don't program shows to please the Herds or the Kleiners or any other family, but they try to please the most people most of the time. Obviously, sometimes they do things we think are dumb. But that's because we all differ from the majority in varying degrees. For example, "Love, Sidney" has been renewed for another season, even though you may think it's terrible. Scheduling programs is a very tricky business.

DEAR DICK: I would like to know the name of the song that is sung at the end of HBO's "The Year That Was: 1981." I would also like to know who it is written and recorded by. Sarah Freeman, Springfield, Mo.

That song was called "Shine On" and was written by Richard Kerr and Jeffrey and Billy Osborne. It was sung on the show and recorded by a group called LTD.

DEAR DICK: Did not James Noble, who plays the governor on "Benson," at one time play the role of Donald Hughes in the soap opera "As the World Turns"? Marie E. Emory, Mariangouin, La.

Yes, he did.

Cathy Burris, business systems consultant with an Altamonte Springs computer shop, plays Pac Man on an Apple II computer. Of course, playing games is only one of a multitude of functions computers are serving these days. A home or small business computer such as the one shown can do everything from keeping inventory to compiling the latest stock prices.

Computers — Cost Drops, Use Soars

By DAVID FALSTAD
Herald Feature Writer

"The difference between the men and the boys is the price of their toys" according to Ray Zimmerman, former president of the Central Florida Computer Society. But personal computers aren't just expensive playthings.

Small computers for use in business and home is one of the fastest growing markets in the United States, bringing in an estimated $2.2 billion last year.

Before you put your money down on a personal computer, however, you need to determine just what it is you plan to do with it.

"It's sort of like a TV or a car," Zimmerman says. "What do you want to do? Do you want to play video games, use it as an educational tool, keep inventory? You really need to think about it."

The basic equipment (hardware) on a personal computer consists of the keyboard (similar to that found on a typewriter), the display device, and the memory circuitry. If the display device isn't included in the unit itself, the computer will probably be equipped to plug into a monitor or a television set.

"One of the selling points of the Apple (a popular new brand) is that it's an all-in-one unit. You just hook it up to a T.V.," Zimmerman says.

Memory circuitry "remembers" the information that you've put into the computer. The disadvantage of this is that it goes blank when you turn off the power.

Don Griffith, an Altamonte Springs computer shop salesman, says that to preserve the information in the memory you'll need some sort of "math storage, usually a disc drive, if your budget isn't too limited." Memory storage can utilize a disc drive (similar to a photograph) or a cassette system. Griffith says that the difference is "the cassette's slow, a little awkward to use. The disc drive is more convenient, faster."

Another big difference is the price. A disc-drive unit runs about $650 extra, while the cassette requires only the purchase of a cassette player.

According to Zimmerman, the simplest computer falls into a class called "appliance computers", so called because a few years ago "you could walk into the stereo-TV section of some department stores and buy a computer. Appliance computers are the best known because if you can afford a color T.V., you can afford an appliance computer.

"Cost does not necessarily reflect performance" Zimmerman points out, noting that the Apple II, priced in the $900-1,200 range, "will perform about the same as" another model costing $600-700. Even so, the Apple II was the market leader last year, generating $400 million in sales.

The uses for personal computers are as varied as their users' imagination.

Has Nuclear Power Priced Itself Out Of The Market?

United Press International.
Reinforcement rods jut out of huge concrete walls, construction debris litter the ground and barbed-wire topped fences surround the unfinished work on several nuclear generating plants in the South.

They may be the first major ruins of the 1980s — an industrial dream of cheap electricity from the "peacetime atom" gone sour.

Five partially-built nuclear plants in Mississippi, Tennessee and Washington were delayed or canceled this year in a multi-billion dollar writeoff by utility executives. Seven other units in the planning stages were also canceled in North Carolina, Oklahoma and Oregon.

"It is becoming clear to utilities it may be cheaper, even if it's almost half complete, to halt construction on a plant rather than complete it," said Richard Udell, nuclear analyst with Critical Mass, one of Ralph Nader's Public Citizen projects.

Anti-nuclear activists say the abandoned projects are the legacy of an over-confident industry that grew too fast for its own good. Industry boosters contend nuclear power was caught by a weak economy, soaring interest rates and a sudden and unexpected drop in the consumption of electricity.

Regardless of the reasons, the costs are enormous. The Tennessee Valley Authority, which once envisioned building the nation's most ambitious nuclear power program, stopped construction "indefinitely" in February on three partially-built nuclear plants — The Hartfield A-1 and A-3 units in middle Tennessee and Yellow Creek No. 1 near Iuka, Miss.

The lost TVA investment was $2.1 billion. Duke Power, blaming "financial and regulatory uncertainties," canceled the Perkins 1, 2 and 3 units on Feb. 23 before construction began. The cost of that decision was $12.5 million.

It cost $134 million for Portland General Electric to scrap the two Pebble Springs units and $400 million for Public Service Co. of Oklahoma's two Black Fox units.

"There isn't any question in my mind that TVA's handling of the nuclear program will turn out to be one of the worst decisions in the history of this agency," said Rep. Ronnie Filippo, D-Tenn., after TVA deferred its reactors.

"What reflected a fundamental error was their refusal to believe that if electrical price increased" consumption would slow," said Komanoff. "They thought electricity was so special it would knock down any law of economics."

Although many experts believe demand will remain in the 3 percent range and that the country currently has enough generating power to deal with it through the end of the decade, Winston says he's not so sure.

"If the 3 percent rate holds, we are set for the rest of the 1980s, but there is a serious question," he said. "What do we do if prosperity breaks?"

Winston said that, "historically" the increase in electricity consumption has closely paralleled the rise in the Gross National Product and contends that if the economy improves dramatically, so will the consumption of electricity.

"If it doesn't, it will be the first time in history," Winston said. Meyer pointed out, however, that "while there is a historical corollary there, you're seeing price increases in the product that you haven't seen before."

In all, more than 80 reactors in various stages of planning have been scrapped since 1972. Udell contends the cancellations are evidence of "the industry's slow death. It's kind of like watching a beached whale," he said. "The industry is facing the economic realities of nuclear power."

Don Winston, spokesman for the industry's Atomic Industrial Forum, said the cancellations could indeed mark "the death of the industry, but if it is, it could be the death of a lot of other things as well."

"We're not building more plants for the same reason they're not building auto plants or retooling the steel industry," Winston said. "The main factor is money."

"Nuclear electricity is too expensive when you have 16 percent interest rates and a construction rate of 12 percent," he said. "In fact, so is coal for the same reason."

"You can weather a delay (in construction) when money is costing you less than 10 percent, but when your money is costing you 16 percent, delays can be catastrophic," Winston said.

'Superman' Falls Flat

LONDON (UPI) — Dave Webb, prone to sleep-walking, found out the hard way men of steel exist only in comic books and movies.

After playing Superman and Superman II 27 times on his home video system, Webb leaped stark naked from a second-story window in his sleep. Slower than a speeding bullet, he thudded to Earth 15 feet below.

"I'm a bit of a Superman addict," he explained. "I must have been going over Superman's exploits in my dreams."

He said, "I felt rather stupid afterward, but I can see the funny side now."

Webb, 34, of Wroot, Doncaster, suffered a dislocated jaw, cracked ribs and a number of cuts and bruises.

His wife — Pat, not Lois Lane — failed to see the humor. "It's a wonder he didn't kill himself. I was terrified."

Coffee Honors High School Graduates

The parsonage home of the Rev. and Mrs. Lar Sherwood was buzzing with activity this week as the young ladies of the First Baptist Church of Geneva who are graduating from high school this year were honored at a coffee.

Martha Burke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Burke, Miss Diana Moran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Moran, Miss Jan (S), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Estel Corneilus Debbie Baxter, daughter of Mrs. Kitty Bar, and Miss Cindy Sweat, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Sweat, all of Geneva, were graduates honored.

A brunch prepared by Barbara Sherwood for the occasion was served at the open house as women of the church and friends and families of the graduates dropped in to congratulate them.

Assisting Mrs. Sherwood with the serving were Mrs. Vester (Sue) Smith and Mrs. Buddy (Lots) Long.

A beautiful centerpiece of daisies, greenery, mums and baby's breath in a silver bowl was the focal point of the brunch which included coffee, juice, large red strawberries dipped in confectioners sugar, tea biscuits and ham, petite lemon tarts and hot sausage-cheese balls.

Mrs. Sherwood presented each of the grads with a delicate silk daisy corsage which was, along with the centerpiece, created by Mrs. Joseph (Elizabeth) Mathieux for this special day.

Since the sky fell last Saturday at "Great Day in the Country," the arts and crafts festival has been rescheduled for Saturday.

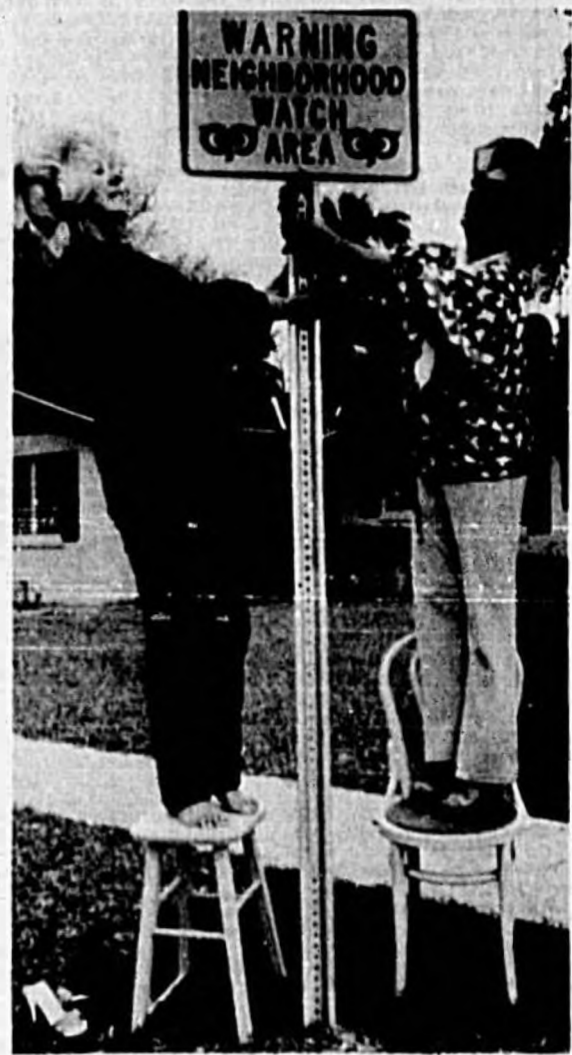

For those who have never arrived at a festival two hours before it is scheduled to open to the public, it is a shock to know that the artists must get up before dawn to pack their car, truck or camper with their wares, display cases or tables, chairs, signs, and other paraphernalia associated with their art so they can get to the site of the function in plenty of time to unload it all.

The setting up is an important and time consuming job for the craftspeople — and something they all do in a meticulous, individualistic way.

Last Saturday was no exception. Just as most of them had put the finishing touches on their displays, the first raindrop fell. Within an hour, most of them had scrambled for shelter, taking anything that water would ruin with them.

Well, it's back to the drawing board for the 97 participating artists in this year's Great Day in The Country. The Orleedo Women's Club, host of the event, will be at St. Luke's in Slavia again this Saturday to greet each participant and direct them to their reserved space.

At 10 a.m., a lot of people will be arriving to enjoy the day — providing it doesn't rain.

Winner Of Scouts' Highest Honor

By DEE GATHELL
Herald Correspondent

After many years of participating in the Girl Scouts, first as a girl scout, then a volunteer and professional girl scout, Mary Jo Bankoff, of Casselberry, has been presented the highest award in girl scouting at the Citrus Council of Girl Scouts Annual meeting on April 17.

This award, the Thanks Badge is given only for recognition of the most outstanding service.

Mrs. Bankoff moved to the Casselberry area three years ago from New York City where she worked as a program planner and coordinator for Girl Scouts of the USA.

Previously, she spent nine years in Atlanta where she served as a council consultant and assistant regional director for Girl Scouts of the USA, and in Terre Haute, Ind. as executive of Covered Bridge Girl Scout Council.

She currently is serving as the executive director of Citrus Council as well as a National Council delegate. Altogether Mrs. Bankoff has worked in Girl Scouts for 24 years.

Mrs. Bankoff is the mother of two, a son who lives in Atlanta, and a daughter who lives in Chicago. She has two grandchildren.

Begonia Sure to Bloom

DR. ROBERT J. BLACK
IFAS Extension Horticulturist

When you plant a begonia, come sun, rain or shine, the adaptable begonia is sure to bloom. No other flower plant is so versatile, says Dr. Benny Tjia, Floriculturalist with the Florida Cooperative Extension Service.

This wondrous species can be found in native habitats around the world. Unlike many flowering plants, the begonia does not have a true rest cycle, which means that blooms as long as heat is sufficient for the plant to produce it.

Plant breeders have been improving begonias for well over 100 years. Beautiful begonias are available in sizes suited for outdoors as well as compact containers. Blooms have continued to increase in size, even for tiny plants. Red, white, rose and bicolored blooms ranging from two inches in diameter are now available.

Leaves of begonia plants are just as interesting with choices of green to red to contrast the blooms. Gardeners can grow begonias in sun will find greater resistance to other varieties with bronze leaf color. According to Tjia, the red pigment protects the leaf much as suntan protects human skin.

Most prominent among begonia virtues is sun-shade tolerance. He green-leaved varieties such as Glamour begonias thrive in sun while others with vibrant foliage. Newcolor Salmon Picotee is an outstanding salmon and bicolor for containers as well as bedding display.

Picking a variety for a container involves some decision making. Container is a very important consideration. If your begonia is planted in a good sized container, make sure you select varieties such as the Glammers or other 10-inch varieties to mature with display. A very dwarf begonia looks lost in a pot.

Small six to eight inch dwarf begonias are adaptable to container sizes up to five inches in diameter. Red Mars and Vodka are both of this class. Tjia suggests creating mounds of border with these compact introductions.

Shrub border with the addition of begonia plantings. A living of the larger eight-inch Vodka varieties adds summer interest in foundation plantings, or under ornamental tree home landscape. Planting in these locations are visible from a distance away and the eight-inch varieties are very for visibility.

Begonia seed is the world's tiniest, says Tjia. Over two million are in one ounce of this high-value commodity. Special requirements are necessary to germinate begonias home conditions. Keep soil temperatures at 70°F, and make sure humidity is kept high during the two week period of germination.

Begonias increase in popularity yearly, and most garden center suppliers had transplants in a variety of sizes and colors. The transplants move easily from the purchase container to the garden planted after soils have warmed. Transplant or plant transplants out of doors at the same time as peppers and other warm weather plants.

Pink Avalanche for hanging baskets, brings still another display shade location. This recent introduction, bred for hanging baskets, quickly drapes its container with pink blossoms.

Make sure you started begonias at the start of warm weather. These perennials are new each year.

45TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Howard (Annie Ruth) Watkins (East 20th Street, Sanford) celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary with a dinner given in their honor in Orlando. Family and friends gathered for the occasion. The Watkins were married April 15, 1937 in Madison. They are active members of St. Matthew Missionary Baptist Church. They have one son, Walter and three grandchildren who live in Dayton, Ohio. Watkins is retired and Mrs. Watkins is a beautician.

Overexposed Model Also Underage And Underpaid

DEAR ABBY: I met a man who said he was a top photographer for a famous magazine. He asked me to pose for him, saying I would get $100 for every picture. I agreed and he came over Sunday with his camera.

I posed with nothing on but a policeman's hat. He also took a lot of pictures of me naked in the shower with the water running. Then we drove to the beach and he got some shots of me on the beach and in the water. It took all day.

About halfway through, he ran out of film and didn't have his wallet, so I loaned him $30 for more film. Later we got hungry, so he borrowed $15 from me to pay for the food.

He promised he'd call me after the pictures were developed, but I haven't heard from him. I don't know how to get in touch with him. I want my $45 back, but I'm afraid to go to the police because I said I was 21 and I'm only 17, and I don't want to get into trouble for being underage and posing like that. Thanks for any help you can give me.

NO NAME, PLEASE
DEAR NO: My guess is that the "photographer" is a phony. You could write in the magazine he claimed he works for, but don't be surprised if the people there never heard of him.

I can't help you get your $45 back, but I have some valuable advice for you: Don't pose for any more strangers. You could lose a lot more than $45!

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Someone who served with Gen. George Patton wrote that the general had entertained some visiting dignitaries at an elegant dinner in his headquarters in Germany. Later that evening an aide reported that two place settings of Hitler's monogrammed gold dishes, goblets and tableware were missing!

I would like to know how Patton came to have these things in the first place. I thought only Nazi generals stole other people's property.

CURIOS
DEAR CURIOS: In time of war, when property changes hands, they don't call it stealing — they call it confiscating.

DEAR ABBY: A woman I know carries around a small bottle of breath freshener, and right in the middle of a conversation she whips it out of her purse, opens her mouth and sprays!

I find this repulsive, and many others have commented on it.

Is there a nice way to tell her that this is something that should be done in private? Or am I mistaken?

Daviero Looks For 13 Points As Seminoles Track District Tonight

By CHRIS FISTER
Herald Sports Writer

The dreaded number 13. Some people fear it, some buildings won't have a 13th floor, some tremble when merely hearing the number that comes after 12. But that number, 13, has been on Hank Daviero's mind all week.

If Daviero's thirteenth of Seminole High can pick up 13 points at the District 4A-9 Meet this Friday (he must be happy it's not the 13th), then the Seminoles have a good shot at the district title. The Tribe came up second in the Five Star Conference Meet to Mainland. But the district meet will be without Class AAA school Seabreeze. Seabreeze was third in the conference meet and with them goes 6 1/4 points.

"We're working real hard," Daviero said. "If we get the performances we can, we should be able to make up the 13 points. The kids want this one bad and they know exactly what they have to do. They realize that to win this meet will take their best performances of the year."

High jumper Tim Herring boosted the Seminoles in the conference meet with a second place finish, clearing 6-foot-2 inches. "That was probably the best moment I've had in track," Herring said. If Herring reaches his peak he could take first place Friday.

Herring found out he was a good leaper by chance. "I was just joking around with the high jump in middle school and have been doing it ever since." Herring's goal is to break the school record of 6-foot-4. "Joe Davidson, (record holder), taught me everything about high jumping. My goal is to break Joe's record and ultimately clear 6-foot-10."

VINCE EDWARDS ...Olympic wish MIKE WOOTEN ...wants record MIKE BENNETT ...desires 9.9 TIM HERRING ...sees 6-foot-10 LARRY EASON ...well-read joe

Prep Track

Senior triple jumper and relay man Larry Eason is the Seminoles' record holder in the triple jump and was part of the mile medley team that placed first in the conference meet. Eason was first drawn to track in the seventh grade. "I learned the most in seventh grade when I read a lot of books and started getting really interested in track."

One of the highlights of Eason's career occurred in ninth grade when he competed in the mile medley in the state meet. He experimented with the triple jump on his own. "It was great setting the record," Eason said. "It's the best feeling when you do something on your own."

Another part of the conference champion mile medley team is junior Mike Wooten. Wooten runs the last leg (1:58.9 split) of the relay and said, "Last Friday I pushed as hard as I ever have." Wooten said he learned the most from watching other sprinters and the way they run. His goal is to someday set a national record and, "If everything goes right I'd like to go on to the Olympics."

One of the most versatile athletes in Seminole High School is Vince Edwards. The senior sprinter is all-conference in the 220 and 440 yard dashes. But track isn't the only sport Edwards excels in. The University of Central Florida thought enough of his ability in football to reward him with a scholarship.

Edwards' best event is the 440 in which he has beaten only once this season. "We have a good chance at winning the district," Edwards said. "I just want to be a good competitor in districts and state."

Edwards is looking forward to playing football at UCF and he will be studying communications. "I want to get a good education and then play football. I'd love to go to the Olympics or maybe pro football, and that's going to take a lot of dedication and hard work."

One of Seminole's fastest sprinters is Mike Bennett. As a junior this year, Bennett has set the 100 in 10.1 seconds. "Coach Daviero has been an amazing help to me this year," Bennett said. Bennett's goal is to break the 10 second barrier and to, "Do the best I possibly can and make the best contribution to the team I can."

If coach Daviero gets the performances team is capable of a district title is not far away. At this time the number 13 won't be haunting anybody.

Lake Mary's Jim Shepperd strains as he crosses the finish line in the mile. Shepperd turned in a school-record 4:46.4 time for a second place finish and a place in next Saturday's 2A State Meet.

Rams Qualify 13 For State

The Lake Mary 13. That's how many Rams qualified for the 2A State Track Meet which will be held next Saturday at Showalter Field in Winter Park.

The youthful Rams placed third in the girls and fourth in the boys in Thursday's District 2A-5 Track Meet at Lake Mary, Clermont, with 111 points, was a runaway winner for the boys' title. South Sumpter (75), Groveland (55) and Lake Mary (46) followed.

For the girls, Clermont totaled 110 points, while Mount Dora was second with 92. The Rams scored 83 points for third place. To go to state a performer must place first or second.

"Fran Gordon turned in the best performance even though she false-started in the 100," said Ram coach Mike Gibson. Gordon won the long jump (16-foot-10 1/2) and the 220 dash (27.4). She was favored in the 100 dash too.

The flashy frosh also anchored the mile relay team of Cathy and Andrea Johnson along with Wilease Huggs to a record 52.9 in the 440 relay. The time was a new record and the foursome finished second.

Huggs, despite falling down with just 10 yards to go with a big lead, qualified for the 330 hurdles with a time of 53.8 in the prelims, she ran a 49.8 for a new school mark.

Freshman Shannon Weger turned in another record for the 440 dash with a time of 65.6 for second place. Weger also teamed with Kim Mahr, Cathy Johnson and Andrea Beardalee to place second in the mile relay with a time of 4:33.3.

Versatile Kim Averill will go to state in two events. She ran a 2:41.3 880 run for first place and turned in a 5:53.7 mile for second. Also in the distance events, Kim Harrison took second in the two mile with a time of 13:54.6.

For the boys, Jim Shepperd had the lone record clocking. The wiry-haired distance man ran a

Prep Track

4:46.4 mile for a new school standard and a second place finish.

In the two mile, Mark Blythe turned in a 10:45 time for second place.

Lake Mary's two firsts came from Jeff Hopkins and Keith "Sleepy" Mandy. Hopkins won the pole vault at 10 feet, which is six inches below his best effort.

Mandy, who catches naps between events, came from 10 yards back to win the 400 run in 51.8. His best time is 51.3.

Cardinal Industries Grabs First Victory, 13-1 Poppa Jay's Notches 9th Straight Win

Poppa Jay's gave itself a little breathing room in the Sanford Little National League pennant race Thursday by whipping second place Sunniland Corporation 9-1.

The win boosted Poppa Jay's record to a perfect 9-0 and gave the team a full two-game lead with the season half over.

In other games, Cardinal Industries posted its first win of the season, dumping D.A.V. 13-1, while First Federal of Seminole beat the Railroaders 13-8.

The top three teams in the Sanford Junior League will all be in action tonight at Chase Park Rotary, leading by a half-game with just one loss, plays Master's Cove Apartments at 5 p.m., while second place Knights of Columbus, also with one loss, plays third place Kiwanis at 7:15 p.m.

Sunniland Corporation had runners on base the first two innings Thursday, but couldn't score. Poppa Jay's, on the other hand, went down in order both frames.

Then Dwight Brinson belted a solo home run in the third to put Sunniland in front 1-0. But Poppa Jay's charged back in the bottom of the third and scored three times, capitalizing on three walks and a pair of errors.

Sunniland Corporation also had runners on base in the fourth, fifth and sixth frames, but couldn't push them over the plate.

Poppa Jay's picked up a single run in the fourth and then put the game away with five runs in the fifth.

Willie McCloud went the distance for the mound decision, striking out 13 and allowing just two hits as he pushed his record to 4-0.

Poppa Jay's managed just three hits, two of them off the bat of Edward Gordon. Steve Johnson had a double.

Brinson had both hits for the losers, a home run and double.

Cardinal Industries, which has had a chance to win almost every game it has played this season, finally tasted victory Thursday. Cardinal pounded 11 hits to score 13 runs in the three-inning contest. The game was called after three innings when a D.A.V. player was ejected and the team did not have enough players to continue.

Winning pitcher Hubert Williams stroked a triple and double to pace his team at the plate, while Shawanta Green and Andy Doering each had a double and single. Tyrone Lee finished with two singles, while Ronald Allen and Burnett Washington each had a double for the winners.

Joe Barrett, Shelton Slater and Kerry Wiggins had the only hits for D.A.V.

First Federal of Seminole scored 10 runs in the first two innings and coasted to the win behind the pitching of Kalvin Davis.

Despite scoring 13 runs, First Federal managed just one hit, a fourth-inning single by Eric Mike.

Losing pitcher Tarance Carr and John Ketter had two hits apiece for the Railroaders.

Cassalieria Has Eye Out For Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — More attention has been paid to his one eye than his four legs and more questions have been asked of his living quarters and neurotic tendencies than his latest workouts or stretch-running abilities.

Along the backstretch at tradition-rich Churchill Downs, the folks are proudly displaying buttons on their lapels with a seductive-looking eyeball in the middle. "Thine 'eye' has seen the glory," it reads.

The handicapped hero everybody is falling in love with is Cassalieria.

At Thursday morning's draw for post positions, a few moans were heard when Cassalieria drew the No. 18 spot for Saturday's 108th running of the Kentucky Derby, which will field the maximum 20 starters. But adversity has never stopped this colt before.

"He's got a very good disposition," says trainer Ron McAnally. "We had a little problem getting him on the plane to come here. We finally had to tranquilize him or he would have tried to stick his head out the window."

At birth, while trying to stand for the very first time, Cassalieria staggered into a wall and suffered severe damage to his left eye, which was surgically removed soon after.

McAnally also had inherited another problem. The colt refused to remain calm in his stall, walking around in frenzied circles for hours while growing increasingly testy. They tried giving Cassalieria a goat as a roommate, but that experiment failed.

"He darn near kicked the poor thing to death," McAnally laughs.

It was finally determined that the Pretence colt suffered from claustrophobia, and a special stall with its sides partially open solved the problem. Cassalieria was ready to race.

"He thinks he's only supposed to have one eye, anyway," McAnally says.

El Babe, the winner of the Louisiana Derby, and Air Forbes won, triumphant in the Wood Memorial two weeks ago, are the favorites and drew comfortable starting positions.

RAMS CHARGE INTO SECTIONAL See what happens when you throw a knuckleball. Your fingers swell up. That's what it looks like anyway as Lake Mary softball coach Cindy Hill consoles pitcher Lisa Simkins. The Rams' test man hurler overcame her problem to hit Clermont to nine hits as the Rams whipped the Highlanders, 7-1, for the Region 2A-5 title. Tonight at 7:30, Lake Mary travels to Clearwater to play Central Catholic for the Section 2A-3 crown. The winner will join three other teams at the state tournament.

Longwood To Fluoridate Water

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Staff Writer
The city of Longwood will soon be declaring war on tooth decay, thanks to a state grant that will fund the fluoridating of its water system.

City officials learned Thursday that the state has approved a $31,000 grant for the project. Longwood polled its resident on future fluoridation last year, and in January the City Commission adopted a resolution to approve the water treatment program.

City Clerk Donald Terry said today that a letter from Linda Greis, project coordinator for the state fluoridation program, confirmed that the city's application for the grant had been accepted and that funds would be released for the project pending a permit from the state Department of Environmental Regulation concerning Longwood's new water well at Range Line and E.E. Williamson roads.

"The plan is to build the fluoridation into the new water system when its approved," said Terry. He added that the city is expecting word on its permit for the new well at any time.

Ms. Greis, along with local dentists, promoted the program for fluoridation in the city as a proven treatment in the prevention of tooth decay.

The $31,000 package will pay for the design, installation, maintenance and chemical costs for a one-year period.

The grant was slightly lower than costs estimates on the fluoridation project presented by the Boyle Engineering Corp., but that projection was based on maintenance and chemical costs over a two-year period that totaled $37,407. The engineering company also estimated $1,000 more in construction costs than the grant will cover.

Annual Chamber Banquet Tonight

Presentation of the 12th "John S. Krider Memorial Topper Award" in recognition of outstanding community service for 1981 will highlight the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce annual awards banquet tonight.

The banquet will begin with cocktails at 6:30 p.m. followed by dinner at 7:30 at the Sanford Civic Center, Sanford Avenue and Seminole Boulevard.

More than 200 persons are expected to attend the event, according to chamber President Jack Horner.

Tickets may be purchased in advance at the chamber office, 400 E. 1st St. A limited number of tickets will be available at the door.

Providing entertainment will be the Lake Mary High School Band and Maryonettes. The Seminole Community College Jazz Dance Team will also perform.

"Miss Sanford," Deanna Pitman, will perform her award-winning dance routine to the music of "A Chorus Line."

This year's banquet is dedicated to the memory of four outstanding community leaders: John S. Krider, Clifford McKibbin Jr., W.H. "Jack" Weible and John Fitzpatrick. Their widows will be special guests and receive recognition on behalf of their late husbands.

Those who have received the topper awards in previous years include: Mack N. Cleveland Jr., Lee Moore, John Krider, Dr. George Starke, Harold Kastner, Bob Daeht, Walter A. Glelow, Scott Burns, Garnett White, John Mercer, and George Touhy.

The award was named for John S. Krider, who served for 18 years as executive manager of the Sanford Chamber of Commerce and was a former city and county commissioner.

Job Prospects For Class Of '82

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Education Editor

Hitting the books in the right field for four years, a little hustle and some luck are reasons for wide smiles on faces of some college seniors these days.

Hitting the books in the wrong field for four years, not much hustle or burn luck are reasons for down-turned mouths on faces of other college seniors these days.

These are the winding down days for the college class of '82, the frenetic few days between the end of school and start of paycheck.

On the nation's 3,000 college campuses tens of thousands about-to-be-graduates face the job market. Recruiters have been hitting the campuses but a survey shows they have not made as many job offers at this point as were made at the same time in 1981.

The key again is the major field of study. Petroleum engineering graduates will fare best with starting salaries pegged at $30,432, says one survey report.

Music majors won't find themselves on easy street but the brightest of the computer scientists, annual average of $22,572, are heading in that direction.

How is it possible for a student to "buy" the most expensive higher education in history — with a bachelor's degree at the most expensive colleges now costing upwards of $40,000 — and not have a marketable skill?

Dr. Frank Endicott, Evanston, Ill., emeritus professor of education, Northwestern University, had an answer.

Endicott for 36 years has been monitoring the new college grad job market. He keeps tabs on hiring patterns of 242 large corporations and puts out highly regarded periodic reports.

He's fed up with jobless college graduates who recite litanies of miseries on television and in print.

Only 2 percent of college graduates are unemployed, Endicott said. And the way to be employed is to check with the college placement office as you go through school, especially when selecting a major — to hear him tell it.

"Get information," he said. "Find what the job experience has been for people with a major of the type you contemplate."

If it is poor, common sense would suggest one switch majors or do a double major — one in a field that equips a person with a marketable skill, he said.

"College students should get in touch with the placement office early on in their college experience and keep in touch with the job market scene," he said.

The job outlook this spring is not clear, as of the moment, Endicott says. But he is optimistic that the corporations will hire at nearly the rate of 1981.

If the economy turns up by fall, that could happen, he said. If the upturn is delayed until the end of 1982, the brighter outlook will be delayed until then.

The job situation for new grads is cloudy and there are no firm trends — aside from the fact that job offers so far are down, compared to this time last year, says a report from the College Placement Council in Bethlehem, Pa.

But salaries attached to those fewer number of job offers are up over those attached to spring '81 job offers, said Judith Kayser, head of the council's department of statistics.

The Council's report is based on reports from 184 placement offices on 161 college campuses.

Mrs. Kayser said the lower number of offers runs counter to recruiters' predictions, made in the fall of '81.

They had expected the economy to turn up and with it, jobs for college graduates — continuing a three-year upward trend. Endicott said computer scientists will maintain highly marketable skills.

"The computers invaded business and industry, are moving in on schools and small business and now are invading the home," he said. "This is a rapid growth industry and that includes the market for computer software."

"I think college-trained computer scientists will continue to be in great demand."

On the job market generally, Endicott said: "I have a feeling there will be a cutback under the 1981 figure. I do not expect the cutback to be very great."

"There is a long-range demand for graduates in technology, especially engineers, due to the long-range needs of industry."

IN BRIEF

Orlando Driving Can Be Hazardous To Your Health

ORLANDO (UPI)—An alarming 400 percent more people died on Orlando streets last year than in 1977, mainly because traffic has grown beyond the road system's capacity, a city traffic engineer says.

A report released this week by Orlando Transportation engineer Dan Brame shows 32 people were killed on city streets in 1981, compared with eight in 1977. The report will be used to set priorities for road improvements.

Judges Free To Campaign

TALLAHASSEE (UPI)—Members of the Florida Supreme Court and state appeals courts are now free to do limited campaigning when facing a merit retention election, even if there is no organized opposition.

In a decision directly affecting themselves, Supreme Court justices agreed Thursday to amend the Code of Judicial Conduct to eliminate the current ban on campaigning by judges except when there is an organized campaign to get a negative merit retention vote.

Court Nixes Spouse Suit

TALLAHASSEE (UPI)—A wife cannot sue her husband for damages from an assault or other intentional act even if the couple are separated and awaiting a divorce, according to the Florida Supreme Court.

Rejecting the arguments of several feminist groups, the high court reaffirmed the state's longstanding ban on one spouse suing another.

Direct Approach Does Not Work On Most Women

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — All of the women propositioned by strange men as part of a university research project rejected the offers of sex and many got angry.

But 75 percent of male subjects propositioned by strange women saw it as a delightful if unexpected opportunity and said yes. Some men suggested to the strangers that they not wait until nightfall.

The project, organized by Russell Clark, a Florida State University associate professor of psychology, suggested that traditional attitudes toward sex with strangers have not changed.

"In our culture we encourage males to engage in recreational sex," he said. "Females are punished if they do." do."

The experiment was first conducted three years ago and repeated this spring with identical results.

Equal groups of male and female psychology students approached members of the opposite sex and asked one of three questions:

- Would you like to go on a date tonight?
- Would you like to come to my apartment tonight?
- Would you like to go to bed with me tonight?

Not one of the female subjects agreed to go to bed with the strangers while 75 percent of the men did, Clark said. Many of the women were offended by the approach.

Most of the men who rejected the offer explained that they were married or in a serious relationship.

Six percent of the women accepted the stranger's invitation to visit his apartment while 69 percent of the men took up that offer. About half of both sexes agreed to a date.

Clark said many women, particularly feminists, have rejected his findings.

"The results are offensive to most of my female graduate students — I think because the results reflect the traditional view of the sexes," he said.

He said the project did not exclude the possibility that some women might accept a sexual proposition from a stranger "but the overwhelming majority would say no, and I don't care if they're liberal, conservative or moderate."
