A Russian Movie

An interesting story comes from Russia, where a new moving picture, a sort of a Soviet "Birth of a Nation," is attracting large crowds and considerable comment in Moscow. "Horizont," also the title of the picture, is a Russian American, sent by his superior officers into the Archangel region near the close of the World War to assist in the operations against German and Bolshevik troops.

The picture reveals this expedition in considerable detail. It shows how the American troops connived with priests and reactionaries in the villages to the destruction of the natives and the loyal Russian Communists. American soldiers are shown terrorizing peasant girls, destroying property, and frightening children. The climax is reached when a group of White Sea peasants are gathered together and mowed down with machine gun fire.

The hero, Horizont, inflamed against the brutalities of the uncivilized Americans, rallies his supporters in the American camp, deserts to the Bolshevik camp, and helps in turning the tide of defeat to victory.

The background of Horizont is vividly portrayed. Before the war he was a young Russian who, dissatisfied with the oppression of the Czar's regime, deserted from the royal army and fled to America which he had been told was the promised land. But the paradise about which he had dreamed was not to his liking.

Capitalists exploited him as a laborer. His fellow workmen were framed by police during a strike and thrown into prison. A rich landlord stole the woman he loved and led her into a life of shame. His father depressed by poverty and treachery on every side committed suicide, and Horizont finally disgusted with the new world, jettisoned the American army and sailed for France where he was soon transferred to the Archangel to fight against his native countrymen.

Such a story without a doubt is eaten up by Russian Communists. But propaganda of this sort will not materially hasten the official recognition of Russia by America. Neither will it supply food for hungry mouths as the "Five Year Plan" is recognized more and more as a failure and Communism is seen as no more able to cope with depressions than Democratic governments.

Progress On The River

Information that a group of Sanford business men has purchased the famous river steamer Osceola to ply as a freight boat between this city and Jacksonville might be put under the classification of "Bright Spots in Business." Certainly the news will call to mind the era of another day when this river craft together with the City of Jacksonville were familiar sights to inhabitants along the circuitous route of the picturesque St. Johns.

Thousands of tourists have made the trip between the Celery City and Jacksonville to carry away with them the pleasant memory of beautiful sights such as the tropical verdure, the shimmering reflections of moss-hung cypresses under a brilliant sun or moon, and the whole gamut of Florida scenery afford.

But the passenger business has evidently never been very profitable so the plans of the new organization which will operate the Osceola call for a strictly freight boat, leaving to the speedier means of transportation the job of carrying the human cargo. People are in such a big hurry to get where they are going these days that a slow moving boat doesn't have much appeal except to those who might like to feast upon the beauties of nature.

However, a change is occurring in public sentiment as regards these old-fashioned means of travel and it is reported that there has been quite a revival of passenger trade on the side-wheelers of the Mississippi. Maybe the terrific pace of modern transport system is proving too much of a strain and people are seeking relief by using a more poky method, maybe the trying times call for easy-going travel where meditations and reflections are not interrupted by sudden starts and stops.

Anyway, we hope the time will come soon when the river lines can find it worthwhile to carry passengers thereby making the beauties of the St. Johns available to the public and aiding Sanford in attracting winter visitors.

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

Mr and Mrs. Harry Ward were among those who were marooned on a desert sand bar on the St. Johns last Thursday and Friday. The City of Jacksonville came into contact with a nice soft sand bar near Lake George and had to tie up till morning. When the Fred de Bary came along to give relief and after all passengers and cargo had been transferred the Fred also stuck fast and the same thing of rapid transformation had to be gone all over again. The boats finally floated and both came into Sanford dock Saturday morning none the worse for wear.

Several weeks ago a large bird dog bit little Norma Herndon and to avoid danger the dog was instantly killed and his head sent to the Pasteur Institute at Jacksonville to be examined. Mr. Herndon received word today from the institute that signs of rabies had been discovered by the physicians.

A TARIFF LESSON

A few years ago the people of Florida got all hot and bothered over the proposition to ask Congress to provide a tariff on vegetables to protect the Florida truck gardeners against the cheap production of Mexico and other tropical competitors. These were just as many good reasons why the scheme would not work as there always have been against such methods of getting business; but the people slipped into a stampede and there was no arguing with them. They insisted that the Florida Legislature in Congress line up for a tariff on vegetables, and give down anything in the way of local laws that the Republican Congress might have framed up in order to get this one thing.

Mr. and Mrs. Herndon left today with Norma for Jacksonville. They will have her treated at the institute either at Jacksonville or Atlanta and it is thought that no bad effects will result from the injury. The Cecilia Music Club held its regular meeting at the studio of Mrs. Fannie S. Munson Saturday afternoon. After the business of the club had been transacted Mrs. Munson talked to the members about the great American artist, Edward Baxter Perry, the blind pianist, who will appear in Sanford under the auspices of the Sanford Music Club on Jan. 12, 1933. Piano selections were then rendered by the following: Misses Lucia, Chappell, Esale Purdon, Margaret Davis, Fannie Reba Munson, and Hazel Packard. The juvenile members of the club who contributed selections were: Adelle Hines, Anna Mason, and Mary Howard.

MANY STATES FACE INCOME TAX PROBLEMS

The Maine State Grange is prepared to petition the legislature for a tax on the gross earnings of electric utilities.

Legislators in Minnesota are talking of a levy on the skins of trapped animals and on motorboats: $1 a head tax, and a poll tax which could be paid in cash or by working a day on a public project.

Democratic leaders in Missouri and Republicans in West Virginia are discussing a tobacco tax.

A group of taxpayers in Montana is urging a sales tax on hydro-electric power and natural gas.

In Nevada, where 55 percent of all taxes are paid by public utilities, one official has advocated an inheritance tax.

The New Hampshire law-makers will receive a proposal to increase the fees for the operation of trucks and buses.

In North Carolina one of the definite proposals is a beer tax. Ohio has adopted a one percent utility excise tax and a two-cent cigarette tax. A survey commission has pointed out the possibility of a selective sales tax on tobacco and amusements.

In Philadelphia, a move to impose a city wage and salary tax of one-half of one percent was shelved, but a five percent tax on automobiles and a five-cent tax on amusements stored in public garages or parked in outdoor parking spaces have been proposed.

An increase in the production tax on natural resources is being discussed in Texas.

Surtaxes on incomes and inheritances, and an increased gasoline tax are proposed in Wisconsin.

72nd Congress Begins Ultimate Session Today

Through economies and revenue from beer, the Democrats hope to avoid levying additional taxes at the short session to bolster federal finances. Meanwhile, indications are the administration will propose a low rate manufacturers' sales tax along the line of that defeated last spring in the Democratic House.

With the treasury deficit gradually climbing toward the billion dollar mark, leaders of both parties are showing concern over the problem of how it may be reduced. Democratic leaders have passed the word that unless a strong approach is made by this Congress to balance the budget, an extra session of the new national legislature will be called by the incoming president.

Anxious to speed their program, the Democrats expect to have beer legislation through the House by the Christmas holidays. Consideration of both repeal and beer by the House is expected to be a major session which has forced vegetable probably the people won't. It is hoped that the new Democratic Congress will waste no time in undoing the damage done by that tariff bill.

In commenting in similar vein on this situation, the Sanford Herald recently quoted from a statement by Hon. J. M. Carson, of Miami, in which Mr. Carson said: "I am wondering if the state of Florida has learned anything about how foolish it was to insist on a tariff on citrus fruits and winter vegetables, even if it meant the passage of the Senate by a majority of only two votes. The two Senators from Florida voted for the bill with the Republicans and against the Democratic Party. If they had voted with their party the bill instead of being passed by two votes would have been defeated by two votes. The people of Florida as far back as 1913 were insisting that if tariff preference would be given our products we ought to swallow any Republican tariff bill whole without regard to its effect on the rest of the country."

This experience ought to be a lesson to our people. The tariff is of no particular importance to us except that such tariffs as the Grand tariff paralyzed the buying power of the rest of the country, and, therefore, lowered the prices on our Florida products which appeal mainly to those in search of luxuries. In getting our little tariff we helped to so paralyze the buying power of the rest of the United States that we are suffering with them. There is a certain amount of justice in it, but I am wondering whether our people will learn any lessons from it."

Hunger Marchers Are Held In Check By Army Of Police

The contingent of approximately 1000 from the North was the first to reach the city. It was turned quickly into the police-chosen billet.

The caravan was surrounded by a closely-knit string of police, armed with riot guns, revolvers and tear gas. Shortly after the 75 vehicles had massed into the sector, police reinforcements with more tear gas arrived.

A few hours later another group, from the West, estimated by the authorities at 1500, crossed the Potomac into the historic old Georgetown section. It, too, found a ready if not hearty welcome awaiting it. The police swiftly swung into action and headed the marchers toward the spot where their comrades were bivouacked. The chosen route led far around the White House, located hardly a mile from the bridge.

The demonstrators were concentrated along a half-mile strip of pavement. On one side of a steep bank sloped up 30 or 40 feet. Police were stationed at close intervals along the top.

On the other side there was a drop, almost sheer, of 65 feet into railroad.

Dozens of policemen were banked at the end of the pavement leading into the Capital—but the other end, through which the demonstrators came, was open and free for all who might wish to turn backward.

In a cove of woodland about half-way along the strip of the pavement camp, other policemen were ready to prevent any attempt to leave through a small gully. Some of the demonstrators wriggled up and down the street; others knotted in clusters to talk things over, while many stood or sat around the trucks, and a few decided that with dark it was time to sleep.

TO TOUR PLANT

A trip through the Crown Paper Co., with George D. Babop, its manager, as guide, will be the concluding feature of the program that will be presented to Sanford Rotarians who will meet at the Celery Club tomorrow at noon. The Rotarians will gather at the Club at the usual hour, proceed with their luncheon and early portion of the program that has been arranged, and then adjourn to the plant.

Fruit Pickers Strike Leaders Are Flogged

VACAVILLE, Calif., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Six reputed leaders of a strike that disrupted fruit picking in Vaca Valley were kidnaped from a jail here today, whisked away in automobiles and were reported painted red and beaten and told never to return to this vicinity.

The men were among 15 persons arrested during a clash in front of the public library yesterday. Police estimated 1000 persons participated in the fray when townsmen broke up a parade of 150 striking fruit workers who demanded a wage of a dollar and a half a day.

THE BIG NEWS Is On The Inside Pages Too Probably you read the front page of your paper first. But think how soon you forget the "news of the day"—and how long you enjoy the things you buy because of some item in an advertisement. Almost always, there is big news for you somewhere in the advertising columns of this paper. Look for it. Here's a piece that tells how to make a nicer angelcake—a note on the new models of the car you hope to buy next—news of fashions and furnishings, of hardware and hats... Interesting, intimate, often dramatic news that really concerns you and yours. Remember that size alone is not a measure of value. Often an advertisement in small space will offer just what you want at a saving. So form the good habit of reading the advertising section of this paper carefully. It will save you time and money. Garden Club's Rose Circle Has Meeting

Among interesting reports given by chairmen of various committees at the regular meeting of Rose Circle of the Garden Club held Friday morning at the home of Mrs. D. L. Thrasher, Rose Court, was that of Mrs. Linton E. Allen, chairman of the Rose Circle department of the Flower Market, who reported that the circle cleared $27.04 on the sale of plants. Over 150 rose bushes were sold in addition to many potted plants.

It was announced that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has offered to assist in city beautification where needed, and members decided to suggest the planting of live oaks or other native trees.

The exchange chairman reported that the following plants have been exchanged in the circle recently: koelreuteria, eugenia, hookeriana, potthos, allamanda, severina, buxifolia, eugenia niflora, English ivy, pepperonia, Boston fern, and begonias. Purple sage and pink mimosa plants were distributed at the close of the meeting.

In her talk on garden design Mrs. John G. Leonard emphasized simplicity, balance, harmony, and the use of natural resources as far as possible. She gave the members information and ideas obtained from her conference with the landscape artist at the Bok Sanctuary.

Mrs. J. H. Colclough's talk on the subject, "Romancing about Mistletoe," gave a glimpse into the annals of mistletoe lore so in accord with the holidays season. She stated that few realize the incredible romance of its ancient history as told by the Norse sagas who held mistletoe sacred to love, being dedicated to the Scandinavian goddess of beauty and love, and also curiously associated with death. She added that the Druids made the gathering of mistletoe an important religious ceremony. In the heyday of "Merrie England" customs surrounding its use were firmly established and became very popular.

Mrs. Endor Curlett spoke on indoor decorations for Christmas, recommending Brazilian pepper, poinsettia, sumac, and pine. She suggested that each member make a Della Robbia wreath, using the available small fruits and berries for the wreath surrounding a picture of the Madonna and child. Mrs. Curlett also suggested enclosing with each gift a bulb or two, or one or two packets of flower seeds.

Those present were: Mrs. J. H. Colclough, Mrs. Linton E. Allen, Mrs. Endor Curlett, Mrs. A. W. Epps, Mrs. A. C. Forts, Mrs. John G. Leonard, Mrs. A. H. Moses, Mrs. J. M. Quirk, Mrs. E. B. Stowe, Mrs. D. L. Thrasher, and Mrs. Fred Wilson.

Indian Village Is Unearthed In Hunt Of College Party

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Archaeology in Illinois farmlands has brought to light evidences of a newly kept Indian village which flourished before the coming of the white man, the University of Chicago reports. It has just made public a report of discoveries made this summer in Fulton county by its anthropology department.

A village of 15 houses was completely uncovered, it was reported by Mr. Thorne Deuel, in charge of the university party. The clean condition of the house sites indicated that these Indians were good housekeepers, Mr. Deuel said.

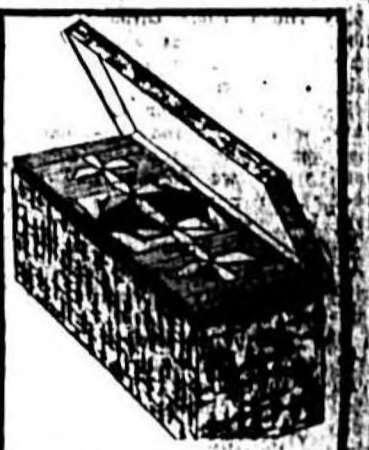

From the existing foundation, the party found that the average size house was 16 by 22 feet. Walls were built at almost perfect right angles. Fireplaces had been hollowed out near the center of each. Storage pits were found in the floors containing fragments of pottery, small arrowheads, rubbing stones, pottery disks and other objects.

The site unearthed was one of 101 village sites which have been located by the Chicago archaeologists in this county. The university is making a survey of all Indian sites in Illinois and as a result of its excavations has a collection of more than 10,000 "artifacts," objects of utility and art made by the Indians.

It takes Values like this New Plymouth to start Business Going Again"

BY WALTER P. CHRYSLER

"We are all anxious for the return of better times. But I for one do not believe that better times will be brought back just by talking... or by merely waiting. Someone must start something... and with that idea we introduced the Plymouth Six.

"We made it a completely new car. We spent $9,000,000 on tools, equipment and research. Our raw material commitments amount to $42,000,000.

"We did all this because we were convinced that there are many people who can buy new cars now... if offered an outstanding value. So look at the new Plymouth before you buy."

PLYMOUTH engineers knew that you wanted a smooth surge of power... so they built a 70 horsepower Six with Floating Power! They knew that Americans hate to be squeezed in... and so they designed a full-sized family car!

They made it safer than other low-priced cars... by giving you hydraulic four-wheel brakes, a safety-steel body, a safety-glass windshield!

They achieved new economy of gas, oil, tires and upkeep.

NEW LOW PRICES: Business Coupe $495, Rambler Seat Coupe $565, 4 Door Sedan $575, Convertible Coupe $595, all prices F.O.B. factory. Convenient terms. Optional—Automatic Clutch $4, Duplex Safety Glass Windows—Coupe $10, Sedan $16.50.
