DANGER FROM FLOOD WATER AS INCREASING

Disaster Looms Along Mississippi As Swollen Torrents Surge Upon Shaky Levees

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 22.—(INS)—In the low water of the Mississippi and its tributaries today as hundreds of men toiled to save tottering levees which threatened to break momentarily and inundate thousands of acres of rich delta.

Government engineers, directing the huge task of saving the crumbling dykes at Memphis, Tenn., Miss. and Reel Foot Lake, Miss., appealed for volunteer workers to aid in reinforcing the banks.

A break in the Reel Foot levee would inundate 75,000 acres, it was estimated. A break at Mound's Landing in 1927 flooded a large area, including the city of Greenville, 18 miles to the south of Arkansas more than 50,000 acres are already under water.

Residents near Arsenic, Miss., a few miles from Natchez, evacuated their homes, following a small break in a private levee there. Barring more gain, the Mound's Landing levee should be safe by Sunday, if the 400 men now laboring night and day can save the structure. It was believed by engineers.

During the night, workers began sacking 1,500 feet of the levee and constructing a 500-foot box leap around the breach, and laying low walls on the 1,100-foot wave side of the dyke.

Fearing that the "old" levee at Reel Foot Lake would suddenly give out, engineers ordered two trenches across the levee, letting water in against the "new" dyke slowly.

A new threat at Farrelly Lake levee on the Arkansas River near Pine Bluff, Ark., was reported today. Three hundred men worked all night at the levee and now believe the danger there has been lessened.

"Blue Chip" Bootleg Joint Is Raided And Operators Seized

Beetle Threatens Washington Trees

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(INS)—The dread Japanese beetle scourge has hit Washington and is seriously threatening the countless thousands of beautiful trees that adorn the parks of the capital city and its parks. Heric measures are being taken to combat the pest, and O. K. Courtney, government specialist from Columbia, S. C., was today taking action to prevent the beetle from reaching the thickly treed south grounds of the White House.

MONK EXPLAINS REGULATIONS ON SCREENING FRUIT

Instructions To Growers And Shippers Host Fruit Are Given Urging complete co-operation with the State Plant Board in its fight against the dreaded Mediterranean fruit fly. L. W. Monk, in charge of the Sanford office of the United States Department of Agriculture, today made public a complete interpretation of the regulation concerning the screening of all host fruits either for sale or display. The regulations cover fully the authority of the inspectors to confiscate all host fruits or vegetables which are found un-screened. Instructions to growers and shippers covering the loading and shipping of any host fruits are also given.

The regulations provide that any and all host fruits and vegetables offered for sale or display must be screened in a manner satisfactory to the inspector in charge which he will deem safe to prevent further dissemination of the Mediterranean fruit fly. Inasmuch as this screening will be more or less permanent and in continuous use it is suggested that the material used be substantial and of permanent nature. Up to date no attempts to use cheap cloth or mosquito bar have been satisfactory to the inspectors in charge.

Instructions must be given to the same commodities which are found growing in a field within the infested zone. Host fruits or vegetables displayed or sold in any place of business or premises contrary to the regulations, or planted on the premises, will be removed.

HOOVER CRIME INQUISTORS TO FACE DISCORD

Fireworks At Outset Of Commission Meeting—Promised When Wets, Drys Speak Out

By George R. Holmes International News Service Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON, May 22.—(INS)—The question of how far President Hoover's new law enforcement commission should go in "investigating" prohibition threatens to provide some fireworks at the very outset of the commission's work.

Oddly enough, the prohibitionists and the anti-prohibitionists have not yet agreed on a single point. The professional drys, like Bishop James Cannon, Jr., and officials of the Anti-Saloon League, want the commission to investigate the weaknesses of prohibition with the single end in view of tightening up loose machinery and making enforcement more effective, with no consideration at all given to the feasibility of the basic law. To them, the 18th amendment and the Volstead law are sacrosanct and not to be tinkered with except for the purpose of making them more effective.

On the other hand, the anti-prohibitionists and a good many who might be classified as "neutral" would like to see prohibition put on the dissection table, and the commission render a verdict as to the feasibility of the whole system. They want, in short, a report on the practicability of prohibition as it is now operated.

Apparently, the commission will do its own thing. President Hoover met Tuesday to discuss the work with them, and to outline what he had in mind when he first suggested the inquiry during the last campaign.

In this connection it is recalled today that Mr. Hoover has never expressed himself directly on the Volstead law. He has generally termed prohibition as a "public experiment" that "must be worked out constructively," but at no time is a cabinet officer, candidate for the presidency, or as chief executive, has he definitely placed his approval on the Volstead enforcement act.

Secretary Mellon probably will submit his recommendation to President Hoover within a few days. Under the new regime it was expected that the policies of Commissioner Mellon would be carried out. He was credited with a number of important reforms in his bureau. Blair, at times, was severely attacked in Congress.

Lindy's Stocks Wardrobe, Anne Has Trousseau With Envied Supply Of Gowns

NEW YORK, May 21.—(INS)—The nation's most popular hero is equipped with seven new suits and an overcoat for his approaching nuptials to the much envied Miss Anne Morrow—America's typical girl. Augustus Lindbergh will be sartorially correct when the great takes place.

His fiancée has been more selective about collecting her trousseau. Many were beginning to wonder if the way going to be married in the familiar collegiate sweater and skirt.

Collages were sworn to loyal service. Anne did not want a curious crowd gazing as she tried on hats. You can't blame her for being averse to publicity as her distinguished husband-to-be. Now, however, fittings and shopping are practically over and an International News Service reporter was privileged to view some of the selections, or the mode's from which she ordered.

A wedding gown of old ivory satin has been made by a certain exclusive dressmaking establishment in town, which, we understand, will adorn Lindbergh's bride—if she doesn't elope in the after-mentioned collegiate garb. It has a long, close—but not tight-fitting—bodice, and a full circular skirt. Short in front and sweeping into graceful circular train in the back. There is a round neck of rose point lace.

The sleeves are long, of course, the waistline—if you call it—falls well below the hips—is jagged and comes to a point in front.

The most distinctive an original feature of the simple but rich and lovely gown is the skirt which is cut long, train and all, from one great piece of satin. So often trains are attached, like a patch, to the waistline of the dress.

The veil is to be tulle and the gowns are from the same place of satin as the dress. Heaven knows where they found cloth as wide and long as that. Probably, they had it privately woven.

The young Lindbergh evidently do not intend to sit by the fire-side or by among the stars every night for he has ordered a "full dress suit" and she has many evening gowns. And what gowns! No wonder she is an envied damsel.

As they go honeymooning in a plane, Anne's evening gowns will not weigh much more in spite of the quality for most of them are of chiffon, and (with I saw) backless. The bride-to-be must have a heavy lace and shoulders.

They now do pretty tricks with cow's chimes, draping the material to fall in a brief fold to soften that awkward line where gown and shoulder blades meet. Her headlines are short in front, as it have been for some time, and trail quite long in the rear, sometimes describing the title of a junior train. Printed chiffon predominates.

One particularly lovely evening gown is sheared entirely to the top—and tight—of course—and has three tiers of ruffles which start just above the knee in front and when toward the back, trailing to a graceful fan on the floor. It is backless and sleeveless. Skilful cutting and handling of the drapery defy copying.

The clothes were all distinctive and amusing. Sometimes, work, meaning materials, genuine charm and individuality were the outstanding features.

Anne's "sport clothes"—that much abused term for so full, every day apparel—will gratify an air plane, however handsome, and change its pilot, however numerous he may be. She has more sport clothes than evening gowns, but they are not designed for open cockpit.

The sport clothes are fragile, light colored, and of cleverly made as her bridal models, the skirts are pleated and "loosened." There are two types. One has no sleeves and long sleeved jacket, the other models have sleeves in the gown and none in the jacket. The materials in these ensembles range from chiffon in plain conservative shades, dark blue or brown, like a winter suit, to a new way fabric, so thin that it resembles crepe. You have to feel it to tell the difference.

One of the most impractical yet good-looking departments of the trousseau is made of linen. The familiar material is pleated with numerous "pleats" and designed just as smartly as the suits of more expensive materials.

CONGRESS SHOWS SENTIMENT BACKS DRUG EVIL FIGHT

Many Bills Are Presented At Session For Curbing Menace

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(INS)—A strong sentiment in Congress for the use of extraordinary measures to stamp out the drug evil in the United States is manifested in the introduction of many bills to this end in the present special session.

Following closely upon the return of Congress last week in session, the bill of two national laws to be operated in connection with the revenue system for the form of "dope" addicts, the measure is believed to have a strong chance of passage in the regular session beginning in December. Among the new measures are:

Revenue Measures
 Creation of joint congressional committee to be known as committee on Narcotic Traffic introduced by Sen. Wheeler (D) of Montana and LaGuardia (R) of New York, which would make the narcotics traffic one of the major subjects with which Congress deals. The committee would be charged with the duty of making a sweeping investigation of the situation and to recommend legislation.

To Treat Addicts
 Throughout the proposals there is an indication of many members of Congress to treat drug addicts as sick people rather than as criminals, and to make the offense of manufacturing or selling drugs one of the most serious violations of the nation's criminal laws.

The narcotics question was brought home forcibly to Congress in the report of the House special committee headed by Rep. Cooper (R) of Ohio. This committee declared that the handling of narcotics addicts was the most serious question facing the authorities administering the nation's penal system. They heartily backed the proposal to separate drug addicts from other prisoners by establishment of prison farms.

"Dope" has been smuggled into federal prisons and in the present over-crowded condition hopeless addicts are sometimes put in the same cell with prisoners who have never been touched by the habit. It is frequently contracted in this manner, the committee found.

Resolution of Rep. Fetter (R) of Pennsylvania, requesting the President to make representations to the Hague Convention, urging full compliance with the provision and aims of that convention.

Another bill by Rep. Porter to make the physician in charge of the narcotic division in the office of Surgeon of the Bureau of Public Health an assistant surgeon general, thus raising the question of narcotics in one of the most important departments with the Public Health Service.

Paper Making in Florida

The recent statement of the president of the National Paper and Power Company that by far the greater proportion of its profits comes from power rather than from paper...

Mr. Herly says that the Florida slash pine which grows so abundantly in this state is excellent material for the manufacture of sulphate white paper...

At the present time there is before the legislature a bill which would provide for the appropriation of $37,000 annually for three years to be used by the state forestry service for the prevention of forest fires...

This matter of paper making on a large scale undoubtedly would prove no balm for Florida's immediate troubles as it would take years before it reached such a scale as to be regarded as of the first importance...

At that time it is highly probable that the five million acres of now untouched everglades will have been drained and it is possible that by means of the science of re-forestation...

Then Florida would have her innings, and the generation of that future day would be glad that their fathers had had sense enough to protect the pines already growing and to plant many others.

Florida's Summer Resorts

The importance of Florida as a summer resort is coming more and more to be recognized by people who live in such inland states as Tennessee and Kentucky...

A number of railroads have already announced excursions to this state for the summer. No less than twenty-six such excursions are already scheduled with more to be added in all probability later on...

"Naturally," the Times-Union says, "the excursionists coming to Jacksonville spend more or less time at the Jacksonville Beaches, the most attractive anywhere, and already enjoying great popularity and with steadily increasing patronage..."

"Ideas that have prevailed north and east concerning the summer climate," the Jacksonville paper concludes, "are well understood to be wrong by those of the Southern States who have visited Florida during the summer months..."

NIAGARA FALLS HONEYMOON TOWN

That Niagara Falls is yet viewed in its magnificence and glory by just millions of brides and grooms is a fact that is not only a source of pride to the city but also a source of revenue...

The Dayton News, however, remarks the tourist business is not so low as many of our visitors are led to believe. A "gross" power income from this natural wonder amounts to about $2,000,000 a year...

Niagara Falls is a soul-stirring sight in any season. The colored fountains, playing on the rocks, are an attraction which enhances the natural beauty. The appeal of Niagara will never be exhausted...

There is good cause for the appeal suggesting some knowledge of the local country before going to see the United States and Canada. The Niagara Falls continues to attract a great number of people each year...

The already pretty little Taylor hotel will look still more beautiful when the new swimming pool and other additions are completed...

LEGALIZING GAMBLING BALTIMORE MANUFACTURERS RECORD

The supreme court of Florida has rendered an unanimous decision that betting on horse and dog racing is illegal and must be stopped for which decision the people of Florida ought to be devoutly thankful...

Direct planes from New York and Chicago to Miami or Tampa, making all Florida stops, are sure to be part of the service. It will soon be a commonplace to reach Daytona Beach from the northern metropolises in a few hours...

OLD GOLD wins second place at Harvard

Two-year old "O. G." runs second to the old favorite brand entrenched at HARVARD for more than 14 years

Two years against fourteen... a comparatively new cigarette against three veteran brands. Yet OLD GOLD, the youngster, almost won!

This is the story of the Public Cigarette Test conducted at Harvard, by Edward T. Batchelder of "The Harvard Crimson" Editorial Board.

But at Harvard, where pipe smoking is a tradition and the taste is for heavy tobaccos, smooth and mellow OLD GOLD faced its hardest contest. 148 undergraduates smoked and compared the four cigarettes with names concealed.

Milane Next Week

The Glad Rag Doll, a feature picture at Milane Theatre. With motion picture producers, practically without exception, frantically engaged in the making of talking pictures, it is hard to realize that three years ago the production of a sound picture of feature length was an unheard-of enterprise, and that at that time there was just being completed the first picture to include so much as a synchronized musical score. This was "Don Juan," starring John Barrymore, and with its release Warner Bros. signalled the beginning of a new era in the field of amusements. Somewhat more than a year later the same firm which was alone pioneering in the new field, first introduced song and dialogue in a picture of feature length when they produced Al Jolson's first film, "The Jazz Singer," and the Vitaphone was definitely launched on a career which was to change the entire aspect of theatre entertainment. Now they have so far perfected the Vitaphone that all their present productions are, either all-talking or include a number of sequences of audible dialogue. The latest to come from this progressive studio is "The Glad Rag Doll," now showing at the Milane Theatre, which stars Dolores Costello, and presents an excellent supporting cast which includes Ralph Graves, Aurey Ferris, Albert Gran, Arthur Ranstin, Maude Turner Gordon, Tom Ricketts, Dale Fuller, Claude Gillwater, Andre Beranger and Lee Moran. The picture was directed by Michael Curtiz, and the story by Harvey Gates was adapted for the screen by C. Graham Baker. "The Glad Rag Doll" represents the most advanced step in the production of talking pictures. The human voice is needed in getting comedy across at its full value, and this it does with conspicuous success in this Dolores Costello comedy drama.

Germany Is Given Her New Reparation Bill

PARIS, May 22.—(INS)—Germany receives her revised reparation bill today. Delegates of the creditor nations handed their report to Chairman Owen D. Young of the experts' committee, for presentation to Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, chief of the German delegation, later in the afternoon. This report contains revisions and conditions for acceptance of 2,050,000,000 marks annuities from Germany, as proposed by the Young plan, and also the conditions for acceptance of the German reparation. After Dr. Schacht has studied the report he will inform the Allied and American delegates when he will be ready to make his reply to a plenary session of the reparation conference.

Preacher Objects To U.S. National Anthem

HUNTINGTON, Conn., May 22.—(INS)—The Rev. George Hloten rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, thinks the "Star Spangled Banner" is too "warlike" and he doesn't want it sung during Huntington's patriotic program on Memorial Day. The pastor's protest had evoked a storm of controversy today, He is being opposed by every patriotic society and every church congregation in town. But he is adamant. "The first verse is too warlike," he said. "I simply do not believe in teaching children to sing and think such things." He specifically objects to the phrase in the song, "bombs bursting in the air." Whether the song will have a place in the services will decide within the next few days by the committee in charge of arrangements.

Nor do they ever leave an unpleasant after-taste.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

WHEREAS, an All-Wise Creator has taken from our midst one of our most beloved members, therefore be it RESOLVED: That in the passing of Mrs. Clifford Bell, a deep sense of loss is felt by every member of the N. de V. Howard Chapter. Mrs. Bell served as Historian and Treasurer, and many committees, and was always so willing to serve in the cause of the Confederacy; she was a loyal daughter of the South and a true Christian.

WHEREAS, God in his infinite wisdom has seen fit to call another of our dear old Veterans, therefore be it RESOLVED: That in the death of Mr. King the N. de V. Howard Chapter has sustained a great loss. These heroes are going down the Valley—depleting the old Gray Line, but the memory of them will remain forever.

Went Explains Regulation Upon Screening Fruit

(Continued From Page One) farms located within the infested zone since the effective date of the regulations are not subject to being paid for when destroyed even though the state and the national legislative bodies should provide reimbursement for commodities destroyed in eradication work.

Immediately upon the establishment of an infested zone all host fruits and vegetables found there-in are subject to confiscation wherever found. Under this interpretation the inspectors may take in charge host fruits and vegetables found in improperly screened trucks when traveling in an infested zone. Grocery stores making deliveries within the infested zone should carefully observe the regulations covering screening or see that all purchases of host fruits and vegetables are protected in some other manner satisfactory to the inspector.

Edison's Son Is Father's Lauder In His Interview

(Continued From Page One) a lot of objections and explanations. Why not go right ahead and fix it up in a business-like way and say nothing about it?" Young Edison could laugh now. But he winced when he first received that note.

"And read this one," he continued. "I got it when I had submitted to father a half dozen matters." Edison, Sr., had written: "But, Charles, I have always found it best to take up one thing and do it quickly and settle it. And not to go over a lot of things at once."

Young Edison, a tall, well-built clean-cut chap whose dark hair is slightly tinged with gray, smiled reminiscently as he recalled other "lessons" on business he received from his father. He made it plain that his father is a level-headed business man as well as an inventor and benefactor of mankind, remarking that "he never worked on anything that could not be commercialized."

A Two Dollar Dinner For Six

Savory Meat Baked Spinach Rolls and Butter Baked Potatoes Red and White Salad Pumpkin Pie Demi-lass

Six people can dine very well on food prepared for two dollars, as witness the above menu. Recipes for preparing the foods are:

Savory Meat: Shred one pound of lamb, beef or pork and brown in its own fat in a frying pan. Add one cup of chopped celery and celery tops, one tablespoon minced onion and one tablespoon salt. Cover and cook about ten minutes. Add two tablespoons butter mixed together and two cups canned, strained tomato juice. Stir until the mixture is thick and bubbling, then serve.

Baked Potatoes: Open a can of spinach and put a layer in a greased baking dish; sprinkle with grated cheese, cover with spinach and repeat until both ingredients are used up. Have cheese on top. Bake in a moderate oven for fifteen minutes then put under broiler flame to brown the cheese on top. It will take about one cup cheese.

Red and White Salad: Mix one cup shredded cabbage, one-half cup canned grapefruit sections, one-half cup salted peanuts and one-half cup can-

KELLOGG PACT SEEN AS AID TO NAVAL ACCORD

He did admit that admirals should be kept in the background, and not allowed to dominate any conference. But he denied that admirals dominate the British delegation at the Geneva conference. "It is inconceivable," he said, "that at the present time naval or military men dominate or would be allowed to dominate any government. I am certain that is true here, and I should consider it very unlikely that the same is not true in the United States."

Despite protestations of peace advocates that naval reduction should be discussed in terms of peace and not in terms of war, discussion drifted naturally to the subject of the possibility of war. Wars can be fought with reduced armaments. People can fight with stones and sticks, if necessary.

"If armaments are reduced to small portions, it means that in the event of conflict, the country best equipped to turn out war materials quickly will have a decided advantage."

Mr. Bridgeman is retiring from the House of Commons and therefore from active politics this month. He leaves the office of first lord of the admiralty full of hope for international agreement on the limitation of naval armaments in the near future, even before the end of the year.

"It seems to me," he said, "that, if the people who signed the Kellogg pact mean what they say, neither America nor ourselves are going into an aggressive war. And the same applies to other signers. This certainly creates a better atmosphere—an atmosphere more favorable for agreement."

Crime Commission To Make Minute Survey

CHICAGO, May 22—(INS)—A comprehensive survey of the relation between severe punishment and crime increases was authorized today as a delegate disbanded after a two-day annual meeting of the American Crime Study Commission here.

Practically every angle of the cause of crime came in for discussion at the conference, presided by nationally recognized criminologists, penologists, sociologists and criminologists. The commission authorized Judge Augustus Hand of Milwaukee, its chairman, to appoint a committee of five to make a complete survey of the relation between severe punishments and crime increases, and to finish this survey if it requires two or three years.

Another result of the conditions was to appoint a committee on resolutions to investigate conditions revealed and from that study to outline a program of continuous research and work.
