Fraternity spends weekend sprucing facility

Sigma Phi Epsilon volunteers line up to paint Sanford's Habitat for Humanity

65 fraternity brothers paint store in 2 days

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The brothers of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity believe in helping the community in as many ways as they can.

Saturday and Sunday, armed with cans of paint, brushes and a concern for the community, the fraternity brothers who are both in college and alumni, transformed the Habitat for Humanity thrift atore and offices at U.S. Highway 17-92 and Airport Boulevard into practically a new facility.

practically a new facility.

One of the fraternity members painted a mural on an interior wall, while others painted walls and spruced up the building as best they could, rearranging clothing racks and making colorful displays

"Our thrift store is a major source of funds for our home-building projects," said Marci Carter, executive director for Habitat for Seminole County, "The painting project (has) dramatically improved the appearance of our store. As a result, we believe more people will stop by to shop and support Habitat."

The store raises more than $150,000 a year for building projects in Seminole County.

In a short time, the store was transformed from a drab, dark building to a bright, welcoming store.

"Because of the size of our fraternity, we are able to take on a large scale project like this," he said.

County reverses stand on bill

By SANDRA ELLIOTT Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The legislative road to a constitutional amendment rarely runs smooth but the Seminole County commissioners agreed this week to try to detail an ex-parte commission of the commission munication bill they initially supported.

Commissioner Dick Van Der Weide plans to go to the state capitol this week to lobby against the ball.

"It is clear this is headed in the opposite direction that this commission wanted to go," Van Der Weide commented. Although the resolution appears close to approval in the House, the commissioner said it might be stopped in the Senate with the help of Sen. Toni Jennings (R-Orlando).

Hearing tonight on adult businesses

By SANDRA ELLIOTT Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — City commissioners will conduct a public hearing tonight amending the zoning ordinance to allow adult entertainment as a permitted use in the general industrial (I-2) district.

In an effort to confine such businesses to the smallest area possible while still allowing adult entertainment, the commissioners selected the 1-2 zone. Repeatedly, city attorney Richard S. Taylor Jr. has advised the commission the city would be sued and lose if the commissioners drew up an ordinance which banned adult businesses or was so restrictive it is impossible for adult businesses to locate in the city.

In the I-2 zone, with the setback requirements, officials speculate it might be possible for about three adult businesses if the spacing is right.

The commissioners will also discuss posting weight limits on a number of city streets governing commercial vehicles and trucks as well as establishing 15 streets for local traffic in an effort to try to stop motorists from cutting through subdivisions to avoid congested traffic areas.

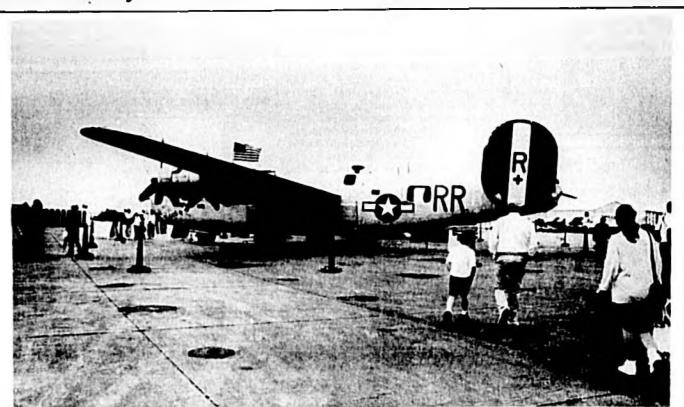

In the draft ordinance prepared by Taylor in cooperation with the police department, the following roads would be subject to a 12,000 pound weight limit: Lemon Lane, Hoffa Way, Parson Brown Way, Sandlewood Way, Wildflower Way,

30,000 attend airshow Sunday at Central Florida Regional Airport in Sanford

One of the attractions at this past weekend's Airshow Orlando at the Central Florida Regional Airport in Sanford was the Consolidated B-24J World War II era bomber. Youngsters as well as old-timers who remembered the war, took another look at the proud "Liberator." The B-24 aircraft was considered as one of the most dependable and most often used aircraft involved in bombing runs over both Germany and Japan during the war. This particular B-24J is owned by Florida Premier Aviation Attractions, and is part of the Fantasy of Flight exhibits which appear at prominent air shows throughout the southeast United States, MEanwhile the airshow was considred a huge success. Central Florida Regional Airport Director Steve Cooke estimated the turnout on Sunday alone was possibly as many as 30,000.

Jackpot rolls over, nears $72 million

TALLAHASSEE - The Florida Lotto jackpot rolled over to $72 million when no players picked all six winning numbers in the latest drawing.

The last time the Jackpot was as large was in March 1993, when the winnings rolled over to $70 million. By week's end, ticket sales had boosted the jackpot to more than $86 million.

Though there were no grand prize winners in Saturday's drawing, 462 people each won $1,787.50 for picking 5-of-6 numbers: 25,812 people won $77 for picking 4-of-6; and 504,778 people won $5 for picking 3-of-6.

The winning numbers for Saturday night were 23-26-29-34-40-47.

After no one picked the winning numbers in the March 25 drawing, the jackpot swelled to $37 million.

Arguments begin in trial of Pauline Zile

WEST PALM BEACH - Pauline Zile did not deliver the fatal blow to her 7-year-old daughter, Christina Holt.

But prosecutors argue that her lack of action to prevent the girl's beating death at the hands of her stepfather, and her elaborate story of an abduction to cover up the death, equal first-degree murder.

Opening arguments were set for today in the trial of Mrs. Zile, 24, who is also charged with several counts of aggravated child abuse in the death.

Police say the girl died sometime in September during a beating from her stepfather, John Zile, who is awaiting a separate trial. The couple kept the body in a bedroom at least two days before burying it.

The couple concocted a tale of how Christina was abducted from a public restroom at a Fort Lauderdale slea market. Pauline Zile gave tearful, televised pleas for her return.

But their story began to unravel when investigators noticed inconsistencies in Mrs. Zile's statements. For example, she used the past tense when referring to her daughter. John Zile later confessed and led investigators to the body.

A jury of nine men and three women was seated after five days of jury selection last week. Late Friday, Palm Beach County Circuit Judge Stephen Rapp denied defense motions seeking to throw out key evidence against Mrs. Zile. Assistant State Attorney Mary Ann Duggan said Mrs. Zile should be convicted of first-degree murder and be sentenced to die in Florida's electric chair - even if she did not do the actual

The state hopes for a felony murder conviction, meaning the death occurred as a result of another felony, in this case aggravated child abuse.

Defense attorney Ellis Rubin said he would argue Mrs. Zile had no intention of participating in her daughter's death.

"The defense is that the defendant didn't know what was about to happen." Rubin said during jury selection last week. "She had no intent to participate actively in anything that happened to this little girl."

However, Duggan said inaction on the part of a parent to protect a child is equal to abuse, according to state law.

Alternatives to CLAST proposed

TALLAHASSEE - Legislators are considering a bill that would make a test that most sophomores in Florida colleges must pass only one of four alternatives to show they've mastered basic skills.

The College Level Academic Skills Test, or CLAST, was instituted by the Legislature about 12 years ago. It has since been criticized as too difficult, especially on minorities who are less likely to have taken college-prep courses in high school, and on students who learn English as a second language. Others say a high-schooler could pass the test.

Key legislators now agree the test is snagging too many students for the wrong reasons.

"CLAST has become an antique we ought to put out to pasture or put aside," said Rep. Debbie Wasserman-Schultz, D-Davie. "Let students demonstrate proficiencies in other

Wasserman-Schultz is the chairwoman of the House Higher Education Committee, which last week approved a bill which would make CLAST optional.

About 45,000 college students take CLAST for the first time each year. It has four parts: an essay, English language skills.

In 1993-94, 65 percent of university students and 51 percent of community college students passed all four sections on the first try. Those who don't may repeat sections they failed every 30 days until they pass.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Far east dollars appealing Florida manufacturers target China market

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE - Manufacturers of products from fertilizer to steam turbines are turning their attention to China as Florida's exports to the world's most populous country grow.

Even Walt Disney Co. has long had its eye on Asia: Mickey and Donald have been familiar to television viewers since the mid-1980s in the huge and difficult China market.

"I think Disney cannot avoid the potential of the Far East." Chris Miles, theme-park planner with C.T. Hsu international in Orlando, told The Orlando Sentinel for a story Sunday.

Florida companies exported $694 million in goods to China last year, nearly half the business the state's companies did with Florida's top export market, Canada.

Florida's exports to China shot up 184 percent from 1993 to 1994, based largely on fast-growing fertilizer sales.

Other sectors are eyeing China's 1.2 billion consumers as well.

For instance, Michelle Hamada of Orange County plans to sell Amway soap in China when Amway Asia Pacific Ltd. begins marketing cleaning products there this month.

China's 5,000-year-old culture has heard and ignored the Western consumer pitch before, Miles said.

But the trade door is slowly opening as the Chinese economy grows at double-digit

Sue Idtensolm, director of international trade and development at the state Department of Commerce, said challenges in China will include official corruption and U.S. patent and copyright violations and potential political instability.

Even so, she said, "There is no doubt personal income will grow and the Chinese economy will eventually integrate with the West. It is one of the last large untapped markets."

Westinghouse Electric Corp. has courted China's economic planners for more than 15 years. The company's power-generation unit in Orlando sold $500 million worth of its steam turbine generators and related goods and services in China last year.

Florida's leading export to China is fertilizer containing phosphates mined mostly in west-central Florida.

Fertilizer exports to China through Florida ports jumped to $775 million in 1994.

"While China is self-sufficient in food, it is not self-sufficient in fertilizer," said Elin Oak, vice president of the Florida Phosphate Council in Lakeland.

Central Florida citrus growers also have found a niche market in China. Winter Garden Citrus Products Inc. began shipping orange juice to China in February.

After an initial order of 50 containers totaling 18,000 cases of frozen concentrate. Winter Garden hopes to export at least 10 containers a month.

Gripes about unscrupulous builders double

By The Associated Press

JACKSON'VILLE -Lawmakers are considering a crackdown on the construction industry after Floridians' complaints about cheating contractors nearly doubled since Ramfla Campiz of Jacksonville is one of about 7.500 Floridians a year whose dream of home ownership goes sour enough to complain to state regulators about the builder.

"You have this dream and you save money, and it turns out to be a nightmare." Campiz told a Jacksonville newspaper for a really, really gets shafted."

Campiz estimated his family lost about $60,000 in 1993 when the builder of their Mandarin home paid other debts instead of paying subcontractors with the Campiz' money. In the Tampa area, alleged builder led to a five-month. five-county investigation by the statewide grand Jury. The grand jury recommended in January that lawmakers crack down on the homebuilding industry, and two bills are pending in the Legislature.

Typical problems start when builders underbid contracts and story Sunday. "The homeowner use money from subsequent contracts to make up the dif-ference, said Assistant Statewide Prosecutor Crystal Broughan.

contact Grace Marie Stinecipher.

If there's a building slowdown. such builders are unable to pay subcontractors, and the subcontractors' only recourse is to file liens against the new home misuse of funds by a major demanding payment.

"They are constantly robbing Peter to pay Paul," said Broughan, who helped draft one of the two pending bills. "The homeowner is always the person who gets the biggest hit."

One solution the statewide grand Jury recommended to the Legislature was requiring builders to post performance bonds. but neither of the pending bills would require that. Broughan said lawmakers told her the bills would never pass with a bonding requirement.

The proposals do include tighter restrictions on how contractors spend money, tougher penalties for lying on construction affidavits and a requirement that contractors notify homeowners about lien laws.

Requiring bonds would force many small contractors out of business, argued Ron Coppenbarger, vice chairman of the Florida Home Builders Associa-

Officials estimate 4,000 complaints are backlogged.

Mother held in starvation death

PORT ORANGE - The 14-year-old girl weighed a mere 28 pounds when authorities found her dead, curied up in a fetal position.

Authorities said Annie Marshall was starved to death by her mother, who has been charged with first-degree murder and aggravated child abuse. Annie died March 22, and was living on a mat on the floor.

Annie, 4 feet 8 inches tall, suffered from cerebral palsy. which caused partial sight and hearing loss, retardation and orthopedic disorders. But authorities say starvation is what killed her. This is unspeakably wicked," walked into Annic's room around 7 a.m. March 22 in the double-wide mobile home she shared with her boyfriend, Lawrence Doyle Kuzmovich, 33. The girl did not wave as she usually did when she woke up, and Allen could tell her daughter was not breathing.

But before calling police, Allen took Annie's two younger sisters, ages 5 and 4, to the kitchen, where the family had breakfast. Kuzmovich then took Alien's girls for a ride, dropping one off at school while Allen stayed home with her 1-year-old son.

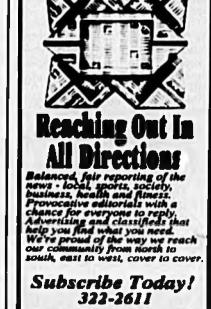

At about 8 a.m., Kuzmovich returned and called the nonemergency number at the police department.

"We woke up this morning and found my girlfriend's daughter dead in bed. Who should we call about this?" Kuzmovich asked a dispatcher.

A few seconds later he said, "We found her, say around 7, but we went ahead and got the other daughter ready for school. We thought that would be bet-

Much darker, isn't it? Now that we are in Daylight Saving Time, many workers are leaving home and children are heading for school before the sun comes up.

Until further in the year, when it get dark carlier and many children won't be in school. motorists must exercise extreme caution. Youngsters who often wear dark clothing aren't easy to spot as they stand along the roadway waiting for the school bus.

Passing some children, even in broad daylight, is often difficult. Now we can expect it to be worse for the time being.

Motorists however, aren't the only people who need words of warning. Parents must instill in their youngsters, the dangers associated with being next to streets and roadways in the darkness of morning. Those who ride their bikes to school must also become aware that some motorists might not be able to see them.

Let's face it. Most bikes don't have any lights or reflectors to help make them more visable. Yet they are allowed to ride them to school. In the darkness, this could produce serious problems for everyone.

There is no question, when it's a child or a child on a bike, coming up against a moving motor vehicle, we all know who will get hurt.

It may seem unnecessary to issue these words of warning. But some motorists may have an initial opinion that Daylight Saving Time only means they will be leaving home earlier. Some forget to think that this involves everyone. Children will be going to school earlier, and the morning-joggers will be prancing along with less vi

If everyone, motorists as well as pedestrians, take heed and maintain an alert eye for danger, no one will get hurt. As a result, it's not news. It will be however, a reason for everyone to be proud of themselves and the people in this community. We practiced safety, and everyone won as a result.

Kudos to Susan

Thanks so much to Susan Wenner for the article about Connie Williams and her work with Hospice of Central Florida. We certainly appreciate her good work for our organization and the many others lucky enough to have captured her attention. It is good of Susan and the Herald, to dedicate weekly space to recognize volunteers. We certainly couldn't survive with the 800 volunteers who make our work with the terminally ill and their families possible.

Thanks again for the fine article. Connie Williams certainly deserves the recognition. If you are interested in any other information about Hospice of Central Florida - our children's program, our bereavement services, even our thrift stores - please give me a call at 875-0028, ext. 467). Keep up the good work.

Bringing the bomb out of the closet

World War II came to an end in Europe 50 matter how significant they may be. Each is a ears ago this month and in the Pacific four variation on the theme of political correctness; years ago this month and in the Pacific four months later. That's a long time ago, but not so long that questions about the war's origins and the military's conduct don't still arouse powerful emotions. As a result, orthodoxy is too often the rule and pussyfooting around controversy the practice.

Ask the Smithsonian Institution, for example, which folded ignominiously in the face of a public outery about its planned exhibition on the use of the atomic bomb against Japan. Ask the U.S. Postal Service and the White House, which canceled plans to issue a stamp prominently featuring the mushroom cloud above Hiroshima as part of its series commemorating major events of the last world war

The origins of outrage and subsequent appeasement were quite dissimilar. The Smithsonian responded to inflamed American patriotism. The White House (indirectly also involved in the Smithsonian imbroglio) and Postal Service backed down in response to pressure from Japan and from anti-nuclear activists.

But at root, both controversies arose because of the mistaken insistence that, first, traditional interpretations of the past should be frozen for all time and, second, that some past events are too sensitive for publicly sponsored observation, no eventually collapsed. The Smithsonian's pitiful each is dead wrong. Take the aborted Smithsonian exhibit. What agitated its critics, led by veterans' organizations. were that it included deviations from the conventional wisdom on our nation's first-time use of nuclear weapons in 1945. What further enraged the Smithsonian critics was that the 500page text supporting the exhibit included what they regarded as a too-tender interpretation of Japan's motives and adistorted version of America's purpose in fighting the war. All hell broke loose.

final position was that it would exhibit a portion of the Enola Gay, the plane that carried the Hiroshima bomb, with a bare minimum of explanatory text. All else vanished.

In the background was a growing debate among historians about the use of the bomb. The majority view is that it shortened the war dramatically and saved tens, if not hundreds of thousands of American lives. Most of the evidence still supports that position.

A small, though influential minority of revisionists, buttressed by recently available archival material, argues otherwise. They contend that Japan was already on the verge of surrender, that many military commanders did not believe the bomb should be used and that it was dropped more to impress the Russians than to hasten the end of a war that was all but over.

As for the stamp marking the use of the bomb (also featuring the Enola Gay), the Japanese were more discreet but no less firm than the veterans -- and the White House's retreat no less precipitous. It has become an article of bad faith in Japan that there was only one war crime in the Pacific War, and that was the dropping of the bomb on "innocent civilians."

Can women ever have it all?

BOSTON - The Monday morning TV segment ended with a dismally familiar question: Can women have it all? The subject was again Marcia Clark, the woman whose work hours and custody dispute have received more attention these last weeks than anything except O.J. Simpson's swollen finger.

As often happens on television, CBS' Harry Smith has asked an essay question with time only for a multiple-choice answer. Before I conjured up a yes-no-maybe to the issue that has stalked us for decades, the time was up. On my way back to the office, I tuned in to a radio debate about another woman. This one was the welfare mother and the question was different: How do we get her to do it all?

For the past two weeks, traveling in upstate New York, Kansas, Texas and California, I had been trailed by these two images: Marcia Clark and the welfare mother. The same questions recycled from one stop to another, is the prosecutor too ambitious? Is the welfare mother too lazy? Does one neglect her children by working? Does the other fail her children by not working?

In Dallas finally, a woman in her 40s sighed and said that she thought the path you have to walk to be judged a good mother had gotten narrower and narrower during her adulthood. The path is now a line. It is harder and harder to toe that line. She wasn't the only one on my Welfare and Clark trail who felt that way. Many were conscious of the messages coming from either end of the spectrum of single mothers. If you don't get a job, we'll cut your family from the welfare rolls and maybe even take the kids to an orphange. If you have too demanding a job, you may lose your kids as well. We are telling poor mothers that what kids need are responsible role models, mothers imbued with the American work ethic. We're telling professional mothers that what kids need are responsible caregivers, somebody there for them.

For the most part, the mothers in the middle. somewhere between poor and high-profile, are expected to be both providers and nurturers these days. So are fathers. But it's still mostly mothers who search for jobs that will help with the bills and synchronize scamlessly with the kids. They're the ones who set their clocks by mommy hours and set their sights on mommy tracks.

It's hard enough to keep this together in marriage. But in divorce, the choices crumble. Single mothers are thrown into a two-tiered work world. Take your pick: overemployed or unemployed? Earning 70 cents for every male dollar means working longer for the same money. A minimum wage of $4.25 an hour a 40-year low in its real value - means less money or fewer hours at home. There are thousands of mothers permanently working

Marcia Clark's hours at working class wages. As for the welfare poor? Last year, it seemed that a political consensus finally emerged in America. We agreed that welfare was broken. The half-century old social contract that underlay welfare - a world of female homemakers and male breadwinners - had been replaced by a era of working mothers and fathers. It was hard time for any single mother. If we wanted the poor ones to become providers. they would need more - child care, training, jobs, hope.

Now a rancorous welfare reform bill has come before Congress under the name, "The Personal Responsibility Act."
Majority Leader Dick Armey promises that "At the end of five years, more children will be in two-parent. working families instead of on welfare." But the new welfare

The same questions recycled from one stop to proposal provides less. $66 billion less of just about everything school lunch, foster care, aid to disabled children - except fear.

They are selling cuts now in the name of "personal responsibility." If this passes as is. it's likely that more mothers and children will simply be on their own. That's the way we're headed. In my weeks on the Welfare and Clark Trail.

I heard a lot of unease about that sense of direction, especially from women trying to fit real life into the narrowing definition of good motherhood, trying to walk the thin line. perform the balancing act.

Maybe the question Harry Smith asked me - can we have it all? " sounded fresh in the '70s and '80s. Not any more.

On my last night in California, a woman told me that her daughter, a newly divorced mother, asked the other question - can I do it

This was her answer. "I said to her, 'Honey, you better be able to."

The House isn't a friendly home

WASHINGTON - A promise by House Speaker Newt Gingrich to form a "family friendly" Congress has taken a strange twist: One of his most ardent lieutenants recommended that a colleague time the birth of his first child through induced labor to meet the crowded legislative schedule in the House.

Rep. Dave Camp, R-Mich., who married last September, confided to Rep. Jim Nussic, R-lowa, that he feared being pinned down in Washington around his wife's July due date, which also promises to be a breakneck time for the new Republican majority. Like many younger members. Camp chooses not to move his family to Washington, and copes with a twoflight, five-hour commute every weekend.

Camp was annoyed and a little baffled with the way Nussle responded to his home-life musings, according to sources familiar

Easing some of the political complications associated with congressional life was a top priority of the new GOP leadership. After last November's elections, Gingrich and Nussle, who headed the Republican transition team. vowed to translate the party's posturing on family values into a "family-friendly" House. Flanked by Nussle, Gingrich blasted the House as "anti-family" during a post-election press conference, and created a task force to find ways to improve the quality of life. Nussic, who has made family values a staple of his political career. first drew national attention in 1991 for delivering a House speech with a paper bag over his head to symbolize the shame of the Democratic leadership. He disputes the conversation with

"I don't recall the incident. I don't recall the statements. I don't recall any of it.'

Camp, however, confirmed a "very casual conversation" with Nussle about his wife's pregnancy as the two men were walking to a

"I really didn't try to pursue what he was trying to say to me.... I really didn't give it much weight." Camp said. "Any of those decisions would be very personal between me and my wife. I wouldn't even discuss a personal decision like that with a friend as good as Jim Nussle.... I'm going to get home as soon as I can (for the birth)

Nussie, who believes the birth of a child is more important than any vote, said it wouldn't be unusual for two young members to be discussing "the trials and tribulations of these kinds of things."

Camp and Nussle are of one mind when it comes to what might be the missionimpossible nature of delivering a totally family-friendly Congress. "It's not family friendly, yet," says Camp. "I don't think it ever was, and I'm not sure it ever will be."

He says his eyes were opened shortly after arriving in Congress when he overheard a party elder openly wondering whether he should miss votes to attend his son's wedding

Nussie notes there's "no possible way to create a totally family-friendly Congress." and he copes by actually penciling his family into his schedule before the time is filled by others. While members hall the improved "predictability" in their schedules - especially knowing they can catch a plane by 3 p.m. every Friday -- they doubt either party can make total peace between the House and the home.

Angelina could save her big sister's life

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SOLON, Ohio - The final stage has just begun for a couple who decided to have another child in order to give their 6-year-old daughter a chance to survive leukemia.

Christy Schwartz received high doses of chemotherapy over the weekend. She also will receive intensive radiation treatments to prepare her for a bone marrow transplant on Thursday.

The procedure would kill Christy without the transplant. "She is almost going to be dead and brought back," her mother said.

Doctors say there is a 20 percent to 30 percent chance a transplant will cure Christy, who was diagnosed with leukemia when she was 11 months old.

She will receive stem cells extracted from her little sister Angelina's umbilical cord just days after her birth in November. Stem cells are a component of marrow that create new blood Angelina, now four months old, is the fourth child of Jill and Randy Schwartz. They decided to conceive her after learning that no other family member's bone marrow matched Christy's, and that no suitable donor could be found in the National Bone Marrow Registry.

The couple got the idea after Mrs. Schwartz read about the Ayala family of San Bernardino, Calif., whose teen-age daughter, Anissa, had leukemia. In 1991, Anissa received bone marrow from her baby sister, Marissa, who was conceived to provide a match despite criticism from medical ethicists.

That transplant was successful. Anissa is now 22, and still in remission. Marissa is 4.

There was only a one-in-four chance Angelina's marrow would match Christy's. A test 16 weeks into Mrs. Schwartz's pregnancy confirmed they had beaten the odds.

Wilson's flip-flops make some question candidacy

By JOHN HOWARD Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO, Calif. - Gov. Pete Wilson promised he wouldn't run for president. He's running.

He said he likely would sign a gay-rights law. He vetoed it in

He opposed raising taxes. Then he raised them $7 billion during his first year as governor. He bashed former Gov. Jerry Brown for doing the same thing Wilson's doing now - leaving the state to campaign for presi-

As Wilson begins his first foray into national politics, his contradictory record - which has excited little comment in California - offers a juicy target. He opposes affirmative action policies he once supported as mayor of San Diego in the 1970s.

He criticized Ronald Reagan in 1976 as a big-spending governor who raised taxes three times. Four years later, he supported Reagan for president.

He describes himself as fiscally responsible. But on his watch California issued $3.8 billion worth of IOUs for the first time since the Great Depression.

"He has got to get control over it because it can spin out of control," Republican consultant Sal Russo said of the flip-flop preparing to be president; he's been preparing to be governor."

Wilson only became serious presidential material after his stunning comeback last year to defeat Democrat Kathleen Brown and win a second term as governor. He recently formed an exploratory committee to study a run for the White House.

Suddenly, the governor of the nation's most populous state is under a national spotlight.

Wilson's spin: Yes, he raised taxes $7 billion, but he matched them dollar-for-dollar with cuts. closing a $14 billion budget gap that was the largest ever in any state. In four years he's cut $30 billion from state spending.

New gene linked to non-inherited searchers from the Vanderbilt that a decrease in the control University School of Medicine in BRCA1 exerts over cell growth

NEW YORK - A recently discovered gene that causes hereditary breast and ovarian perception. "The problem is, he cancers may also play a role in hasn't spent the last two years to the far more common noncancers may also play a role in Inherited versions of those discases, scientists sav.

Less than 11 percent of breast or ovarian cancers are caused when women inherit a flawed version of a gene responsible for suppressing the development of cancer.

Now, for the first time, scientists have discovered flawed versions of the gene in non-inherited, ovarian cancers. These genes were normal when inherited but became flawed within the patients' own bodies.

In addition, other scientists have found that the gene is under-active in non-inherited breast cancers, suggesting it may play a role in those tumors even if it is not flawed.

The findings have no immediate payoff for treatment. but by implicating the gene in more than just the hereditary cancers, they suggest that developing therapies based on the gene could someday help more

The gene, called BRCA1, made headlines last year when it was finally found after a long search. It causes about half of hereditary breast cancers.

About 182,000 cases of breast cancer and 26,600 cases of ovarian cancer are expected to be diagnosed in American women this year. Only about 10 percent or less of cases are hereditary.

The finding of flawed BRCA1 genes in non-inherited ovarian tumors is reported by two groups in the April issue of the journal Nature Genetics. One group, from the universities of Michigan and Pennsylvania and the National Institutes of Health, reports the finding in four of 47 tumors. A second team, from England and Canada, found a single example.

Results suggest that flaws in the BRCA1 gene may be involved in at least about 10 percent of non-inherited ovarian cancers, affecting roughly 2,400 women a year, said Dr. Sofia Merajver of the University of Michigan Medical School, lead author of one report.

Some regions of the gene have not yet been thoroughly examined, and they may produce more examples of flaws contributing to non-inherited cancer, she said.

The gene could be implicated in still more cases if its anticancer control is stymied by other means, such as defects in other genes that turn BRCA1 on and off, she said.

That idea is advanced in the breast cancer study, which also appears in Nature Genetics. Re-

Dr. Barbara Weber of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine in Philadelphia called Holt's work "an important lead."

Roger Wiseman of the National Health Sciences in Research Triangle Park, N.C., said more study of BRCA1 may suggest new cancer treatments. The targets could be BRCA1 or other genes that control it, he said.

Soviets: Oswald couldn't shoot straight

By THE ASSOCIATED PR

NEW YORK - Soviet agents spied on Lee Harvey Oswald through a hole in the wall and considered him a klutz who couldn't shoot straight, according to an article on President Kennedy's assassin in The New Yorker.

Norman Mailer, writing in the magazine's April 10 issue, says the Sovieta suspected defector Oswald of being a U.S. agent and kept him under surveillance when he lived there for 214 years.

Oswald returned to the United States in 1962, a year before President Kennedy was assessinated

The former deputy chief of counterintelligence told Mailer that even though the KGB had "no data" that could have foretold the Kennedy assassination, it was "the worst moment of my

"Everybody blames me for this! It was as if I knew he would shoot," said the officer, who was assigned a pseudonym by Mailer. "You could not find one single person from Minak who would say, 'Yea, Oswald had these intentions to go back to America and cause all this trouble."

Mailer's article is adapted from his upcoming book, "Oswald's Tale: An American Mystery, and is based on six months of research and interviews in the former Soviet Union.

Mailer's account corresponds to material in a three-part series on Oswald published in 1992 by the Moscow-based Izvestia newspaper. The newspaper cited security officials as saying the KGB kept Oswald under a 24-hour watch, suspecting he was a foreign spy, but never tried to recruit him as an agent.

Izvestia reported that only one or two people in the state KGB knew full details about the surveillance operation, which involved about 20

The New Yorker account says Soviet agents watched Oswald and his Russian wife Marina through a peephole in the wall of their stateassigned apartment. It also includes partial KGB transcripts of their conversations, mostly mundane bickering about dishes and laundry, and entries from Oswald's diary.

Among those interviewed in Minsk was one of Oswald's fellow workers in a radio factory, who said he was asked to test Oswald's interest in

ORLANDO - The University of Central Florida baseball team extended the nation's longest winning streak to 19 games by sweeping a Trans-America Athletic Conference doubleheader from Centenary College, 10-5 and 2-0, at the UCF Baseball Complex Sunday.

Oviedo graduate Todd Tocco hit his fourth home run of the season in the first game as Lake Howell alumnus Brian Scutero (4-1) earned the win by throwing two innings of hitless relief.

Winter Springs resident Craig Cozart (who graduated from The Master's Academy) threw a two-hit shutout in the nightcap, striking out six.

UCF (30-8, 13-5 TAAC), ranked 22nd by Baseball America, will host the University of South Florida in a 7 p.m. game Tuesday.

Hornets take down Heat

MIAMI — Alonso Mourning, in foul trouble throughout the game, scored 22 points in 24 minutes Sunday as the Charlotte Hornets beat the Miami Heat 105-92.

Florida improved to 14-16-4 as they battled the New York Rangers for the eighth and final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

The Lightning (13-18-2) lost for the seventh time in their last nine home games and fell farther behind in the playoff chase.

Outfielders preserve win for Hilliman, Seminoles

From Staff Reports

LEESBURG - Backed by three big plays from his outfield, Andy Hilliman threw a four-hitter Saturday to lead the Seminole Fighting Seminoles to a 5-1 win over the Leesburg Yellow

Jacketa in a 5A-District 6 baseball contest. "We had the most outstanding defensive outfield play we've had in a long time," said Seminole coach Mike Powers. "They reminded me of (Phillip) King, (Anthony) Roberts and (Demy) Beamon (the outfield on Seminole's 1992 state championship team)."

In the second inning, right fielder Chris Youmans made an outstanding over-the-shoulder catch of a line drive with a runner on first.

After Leesburg put runners at first and second base with no outs in the seventh inning, left fielder Tim Raines Jr. made a running catch in the left-center field gap to save one run and possibly two.

An out later, center fielder Phillip Eubanks ended the game with what Powers describe as a 'Willie Mays-style catch" of a deep fly ball to the left-center field gap.

While those three shots could just as easily have been extra-base hits, Powers said Hilliman (2-1) did a good job of not pitching himself into trouble, walking just one batter.

"Andy had good control of pitches," said Powers. "We took him out of the starting rotation for a while and had him throw in relief. He's been coming around, so we put him back in the starting rotation. Andy had an outstanding game and came through with a big win for us."

Alex Acosta led the Tribe at the plate by going 2-for-2 with a double, a run, and two RBI Youmans was 2-for-3 with a run scored. Eubanks contributed a double and two RBI. Brian Zaladonie had a single, run, and an RBI. Jimmy Rabun singled and scored a run. Brian Willcox also scored a run.

Seminole, which broke a six-game losing streak while improving to 5-8, will host Lake Mary at 4 p.m. Tuesday in a Seminole Athletic Conference game at Alumni Field.

Severe brain cramp results in trifecta of confusion

If you keep your ears open and your mouth shut, you can learn all kinds of things.

For example, Oviedo High School wrestling coach Rick Tribit has educated me on the very useful concept of brain cramps. As I've come to understand it. that's when the muscle between your ears scizes and ceases to function for an extended period of time. The term describing a momentary seizure of that cranial muscle, while not profane, is best described as a brain (gas expelled from a body orifice) in a family publication such

I failed. Why? Brain cramp. Somewhere around the second inning. Lyman alumna and current Seminole Community College softball player Jamie Beland came in with her father to watch her younger sister, Jonnie, pitch. Under the delusion that the Raiders had a doubleheader sched-

Turning to Mr. Beland, I asked. "What day is this?" 'Wednesday.'

"It's not Thursday?"

Later in the game, I attempted to make up for my faux pes and commented on the fine season the Raiders were having and Jamie's

.350 batting average.

Giving me the look that my 5-year-old daughter gives me when I confuse the identities and uniform colors of the Mighty Morphin Power Rangers, Jamie thanked me for the compliment, adding politely but firmly that she waen't hitting .350.

Back at the office, I checked the statistics. She was hitting .404 at the time and in the middle of streak where she hit doubles in four consecutive at bats.

Later that night. I completed the trifecta, confusing the names of the other sisters. Jodie (Jamie's twin) and Jonnie in a photo identification on Page 1B of the March 30 Senford Herald.

To set the record straight: Lyman's Jonnie Beland tossed her second straight shutout on Wednesday (March 30) afternoon, blanking the Deland Buildogs 5-0 on three hits while striking out four and walking one. In her last start, Beland threw a shutout at take Mary. She was misidentified in a photo on March 30. The Sanford Herald regrets the error.

I'd like to take this opportunity to applogise to the Beland sisters. My only excuse: severe brain cramp.

Weeds taking over yard? Renovation of lawn may be needed

Has your lawn steadily declined over the last few years? Have the weeds invaded to the point that there seems to be very little grass left in the lawn? If so, then you may need to consider renovating your lawn. Basically, the first step in lawn renovation is to eliminate your existing grass or weeds If that's the case. There are several methods that you can use to accomplish the task. The first way to remove the grass would be to rent a sod cutter. The sod cutter is bulky to use, but cuts the grass in strips just like sod is cut. Once the turf is removed the planting area is ready for new sod right away. This would be a good method to choose if you are totally changing lawn grasses (like converting from Bahla to St. Augustine).

Another way to remove the grass is to use a rototiller or dethatcher and till up all the old grass and rake out the debris. This method would be good if you had mostly weeds left or you were going to plug or seed. Remember, a lot of debris is generated with this method, so you need to be prepared to remove it.

The last method to remove the old grass would be to use a non-selective herbicide that would kill everything it contacted. Usually, these products will not kill everything in a single application, making a second application necessary. You will again' need to remove the dead grass before replanting.

Lawn grasses can be estblished by three methods - seeding, sodding or plugging. Seeding is the most economical, but requires a longer period of time for the establishment of the lawn. Bahla grass is commonly established by seed. Success in seeding Bahta depends on seed quality. proper seeding time, rate and method of seeding. Complete instructions can be found in Circular OH-77 "Bahia Lawn Maintenance Calendar."

St. Augustine grass cannot be established by seed and must be either plugged or sodded. Planting plugs or sprigs is more time consuming and expensive than seeding, with sod being the most expensive. However, planting sod will give you an 'Instant lawn.'

No matter which method you choose for planting a new lawn, it is very important to keep the area well watered while the grass becomes established. Improper watering is the most common reason for failure of seeds, sod, or plugs. It is very important to remember that once your lawn is established the frequency of watering should be reduced.

If weeds are constantly causing problems in your lawn, maintenance practices may need to be changed. A healthy, properly maintained lawn should be able to keep weeds under control. Often over irrigation provides a perfect environment for weeds that love wet feet, like Dollar weed. Learn to irrigate properly, water by amount not time! In the summer apply % inch, two to three times per week, and in winter reduce frequency to every 10-14 days, but still apply % inch at each irrigation. Avoid growing turigrass in shady areas; choose instead a shade-tolerant ground cover. There are shade-tolerant varieties of St. Augustine, but even they can perform poorly in heavy shade. Other maintenance practices, such as mowing the turf too low, may also stress the grass enough to allow weeds to take over. Both Bahia and St. Augustine should be mowed to a height of 3-4 inches, mowing higher allows for a deeper root system and a healthier plant. Lawn maintenance calendars are available for the most common turf grasses in our area. The free publications give monthly recommendations and can help to safeguard your investment.

Wife has everything she wants but love

DEAR ABBY: I'm married to a wonderful man. He is very generous, hardworking, and has always earned a decent living for us. He provides me with a new car and a lovely home. Everyone thinks I have the ideal husband and thinks he is a terrific guy - including me. The only problem is that although we have always gotten along and I have always been proud to call him my husband,

I'm not sure I've ever really loved him.

How important is it to be in love with the man you are married to when everything else is so good?

NOT IN LOVE BUT LIVING WELL

DEAR NOT IN LOVE: It's very important - but bear in mind that there are as many definitions of being "in love" as there are people. Many women would consider what you have to be wedded bliss.

However, since you feel that an important aspect of your marriage is missing, you owe it to yourself to find out what it is. Consult a marriage counselor without delay. The longer you dwell on what you think you're missing, the greater the chance you'll lose what you have.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 45-year-old woman who has had arthritis for years - mostly in my hands. I need to know how to avoid a simple handshake without appearing rude. People seem to want to shake hands (even in church), and they approach you with a very firm grip — this is terribly painful to my swollen joints. Men are the worst offenders, but some women are just as bad. No one notices my swollen knuckles. Abby, please let your readers know that not everyone enjoys a firm handshake. UNSHAKABLE IN MILWAUKEE DEAR UNSHAKABLE: When you are approached by someone who goes for your hand, very quickly say, "No handshake, please. I have arthritis."

If you do this often enough, it will become automatic. P.S. Not only women have this problem; men have arthritic

I have caught colds from babysitting children whose parents were just going to a

Avoiding trichinosis in pork products

loved co-worker recently died in his sleep of a gastric hemorrhage due to trichinosis. It is believed the parasite lay dormant for many years and ended up in his heart muscle. I'm now paranoid about ever eating pork again because there is no apparent cure, even if detected by a doctor. Some experts advise overcooking pork and claim the age-old fear of trichinosis is simply unfounded today, as the infection in hoge is a clinical rarity. Can you shed some light on this condition in general. explain why there is no cure. and indicate how a healthy man could die from it?

DEAR READER: Trichinosis is a parasitic disease, marked by gastric upset, swollen eyes and lever.

Historically, the parasite lived in the muscles of swine. If the pork was undercooked before being eaten, the trichinosis larvae (worms) entered the body, spread through the circulation and caused infection in various organs. Massive infestation (over years) could cause marked muscle pain and soreness, trouble breathing, pneumonia, meningitis, and myocarditis (heart muscle inflammation), leading to death. Your co-worker died suddenly and unexpectedly; this would be an extremely unusual feature of trichinosis.

Trichinosis is a rarity in the Western world today, thanks to improved sanitation in the practice of raising hogs. (The disease is common in other parts of the world, however, where pigs are still fed garbage and waste, improperly butchered and inadequately cooked before consumption.)

Undercooked bear meat may contain trichinosis and sporadic outbreaks have been reported in people who consume ready-tocat sausage.

The diagnosis of trichinosis is made by blood tests and biopay.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A much- The parasite can be killed by the prescription drug mebendazole.

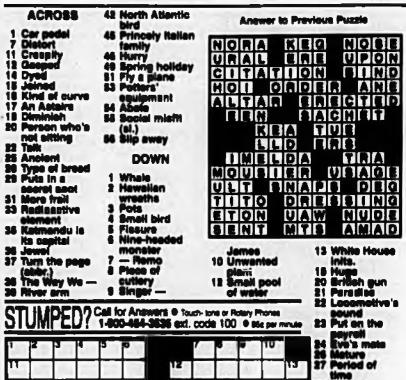

As with most diseases, trichinosis is best treated by prevention: Pork and pork products should be frozen for three weeks or thoroughly cooked before consumption.

Fran Lebowitz has said many humorous things. For example, "If you are of the opinion that the contemplation of suicide is sufficient evidence of a poetic nature, do not forget that actions speak louder than words."

In today's deal, South did commit suicide, but it needs a good bridge detective to spot the murder weapon .. the wrong play. Put on your deerstalker and see if you can spot South's

After a straightforward auction to four spades. West led the heart king. Declarer won with his ace, played a club to dummy's king and discarded a heart on the club ace. Next, South finessed his diamond queen. After winning with the king, West cashed the heart queen and continued with the heart jack. South ruffed, played a spade to dummy's queen and ever, West won with the jack and gave his partner a diamond ruff: one down.

"It doesn't help to draw two or three rounds of trumps, pointed out South after he had seen West's hand. "Everything was wrong."

"Including your play," commented the Sherlock Holmes -or Hercule Poirot, according to choice - sitting North. He had seen where South had misplayed. Did you?

After taking his heart discard on dummy's second top club, South should have continued with a diamond to the ace and another diamond.

Suppose West cashes his heart trick before exiting with a trump. Declarer wins in hand and plays another diamond. He is assured of a diamond ruff with dummy's spade queen for his 10th trick.

By Bernice Bode Occi YOUR BIRTHDAY April 4, 1995

The stars indicate increases in income and holdings in the year ahead. However, even with this material accurity, your progress might be slower than you'd like.
ARIBS (March 21-April 19)

You will have good expectations today in your initial assessments of situations. However, if you're not careful, your positive attitude might wane and be replaced by doubt. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.50 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Occasionally, you're inclined to neglect the entitled and reward the undeserving. This trouble-some characteristic might be prominent in your actions today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) in order to get others to do your bidding today, you might feel like using flattery. This would be a poor approach, as sincerity would have a far greater impact.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you have a discussion today with someone who can help your career, keep the conversation on a serious level. Levity could prove counterproductive.

LBO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be frank and forthright today with anyone coming to you for advice. You will be of no help to the seeker if you tell this person merely what he/she wants to

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If decisions are predicated upon casy outs today, nothing will be resolved. Make your judgments realistically, even if the alternatives are less painful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Treat everyone you deal with equally today. It could anger friends if they think you're nice only to persons who can help you to get what you want.

BCORPSO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Although members of the opposite sex usually find you appealing, don't think someone is making a pass at you today when he/she is only being friendly.

SACITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your pragmatic skills might be more pronounced than your artistic ones today. Temporarily shelve your creative pursuits.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It will be important today to follow through on promises you have made to others. This might be inconvenient, but it will enhance your reputation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You might be penny wise and pound foolish today, so don't be surprised if you later sum up your ledger and discover your books aren't balanced.

PSSCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You won't apply the full force of your talents today unless you are materially motivated. Only profitable possibilities will cause you to shift into high gear. Copyright 1995 by NEA Inc.
