Judge Rules Drug Tests Unconstitutional

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — A federal judge threw out results of drug tests conducted on 103 New Jersey firefighters, ruling the surprise nature of the tests' urine sampling violated their constitutional rights.

U.S. District Judge H. Lee Sarokin said Thursday the urine testing conducted in May and June on the Plainfield, N.J., firefighters was "George Orwell's 'Big Brother' society come to life."

The judge said the drug tests were unconstitutional because the firefighters were never warned they would be subject to urinalysis and the city failed to establish guidelines for administering the tests and appealing the results.

"If we choose to violate the rights of the innocent in order to discover and act against the guilty, then we will have transformed our country into a police state and abandoned one of the fundamental tenets of our free society," Sarokin said.

Plainfield dismissed 16 firefighters, two police officers and two radio dispatchers July 12 based on the tests, but Sarokin reinstated them on a temporary basis July 30.

The two police officers and one dispatcher were covered by the ruling although they did not participate in the civil rights suit. Plainfield Police Chief John Propaner said the officers are back on regular duty.

The ruling was the first by a federal judge in New Jersey on the validity of the random testing of public employees for illegal drug use. Two other cases ended in conflicting rulings in local courts. Both are on appeal.

City Officials Attend League Convention

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford and Lake Mary city commissioners are among the approximately 45 Seminole County municipal representatives attending the three day League of Cities annual convention at the Marriott Orlando World Center. The convention began Thursday and runs through Saturday.

The Seminole delegates, representing all of the county's cities, are meeting with municipal representatives from across the state to discuss governmental operations and mutual concerns, said Sanford Commissioner Dave Farr.

Sanford taxpayers are paying the approximately $2,664 bill for nine of their city delegates to attend the convention. Registration fees are $65 per person and hotel rooms are $63 a night. The Sanford delegates can also submit vouchers for reimbursement of meals and convention related expenses.

In addition to Farr, Sanford's convention attendees are Mayor Bettye Smith, commissioners John Mercer, Milton Smith, Bob Thomas, the City Manager Frank Faison, Finance Director Henry Tamm, Attorney William Colbert, and Administrative Services Director Kim Smith.

Lake Mary residents are covering the cost for two representatives' registration fees and one's hotel stay. The cost comes in around $482. It covers Mayor Dick Fess' registration and hotel stay and Commissioner Arthur Petso's registration. Commissioner Russ Megonegal is also attending the convention, but did not request the city pay his registration fee, said City Clerk Carol Edwards.

Both Megonegal and Petso are commuting from Lake Mary to the hotel each day, rather than staying overnight, she said.

All told, approximately 1,200 municipal representatives from across the state are at the convention. The League of Cities acts as a state-wide lobbying force for municipal matters.

At meetings on Thursday, league representatives endorsed harsher penalties for the sale and use of crack cocaine and

School Moves Ahead With Drug Program

By Paul C. Schaefer

Preparation has begun for next week's distribution of contracts to Lake Mary High School students involved in extracurricular activities. Students who sign the contracts promised to abstain from the use of illegal drugs and alcohol, stay away from parties where such substances may be available, and agree to submit to a drug test if substance abuse is suspected.

About 45 school coaches, activity sponsors and school administrators attended a Wednesday night meeting to become orientated with the fledgling program, according to Bill Moore, a LMHS assistant principal.

"The meeting was very well received. We've had very positive comments," Moore said.

He added that the one-hour, 45-minute session included a slide presentation about crack cocaine by county schools drug resource person Tom Roll, a presentation on the contract and implementation program by himself, a discussion by Larry Fisher of The Grove drug rehabilitation center which will be conducting the drug tests if and when needed, and special consultant, Dr. Anita Phinney.

The contracts will be distributed Wednesday and Thursday during 7:30 p.m. meetings in the LMHS auditorium to be attended by students, parents, and school staff. Wednesday's meeting will be for students participating on the football team and cheerleading squads, and Thursday's groups include band, brain bowl, flag corps and dance corps members and their parents.

According to Moore's time frame, the contracts will be due for return in about a week after they are distributed. All students participating in competitive extracurricular activities at the school will have to sign a contract as a prerequisite to participating, Moore said. Those who do not want to sign can opt not to participate, he said.

He estimated that between 900 and 1,000 of the school's 2,400 students participate in the extracurricular activities available at the school.

To be scheduled later are family informational group sessions, followed by evaluation sessions in November.

Shultz To Raise Daniloff Issue

Talks Open Under Cloud

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze began two days of talks today under the shadow of the detention of American newsmen Nicholas Daniloff in Moscow.

Shevardnadze and his delegation of about a dozen Soviet officials arrived at the State Department at 9 a.m. EDT, exactly on schedule, for the talks.

The foreign minister was greeted by Rozanne Ridgway, assistant secretary of state for European and Canadian affairs, and ushered to the seventh floor of the State Department to start the talks.

Asked what he would tell Shultz about Daniloff, Shevardnadze smiled and declined comment. "Afterwards," he told reporters as he entered the building.

The talks were originally scheduled to lay the groundwork for a second superpower sum-meeting with Shevardnadze on other, broader issues even if there is no satisfactory recognition of U.S. anger about Daniloff, the U.S. News & World Report correspondent charged with espionage and forced to remain in Moscow.

One issue the United States planned to broach is the near-total suspension of Jewish emigration from the Soviet Union, the official said.

But the Soviets must understand the administration's firmness in "insisting Daniloff will have to be released," said the official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The official said the United States does not expect a firm date to be set at the foreign ministers' meeting for a summit this year but the administration still expects the meeting to take place.

President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev agreed at their first summit last year in Geneva, Switzerland, to meet again this year.

Shevardnadze, arriving in Washington Thursday for two days of talks at the State Department, said in a written statement, "The state of the U.S.-Soviet relationship is now such that a lack of forward movement ... could for many years to come leave our two countries in positions of confrontation and dangerous contention."

"Too many events have occurred which have raised doubts in our minds as to the U.S. willingness to act in the spirit of Geneva."

The administration official said Shultz would approach his talks with Shevardnadze with a "businesslike" attitude.

Twain Loyalists Plan Ridiculous Spel-N Bee

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The First and Original Illegitimate Spelling Bee would meet with the approval of Mark Twain, a scribe who never befriended big words and consistently disregarded proper spelling, sponsors say.

Spelling bee contestants Saturday will try to misspell the colloquialisms of the great American author and his contemporary, Harriet Beecher Stowe, officials at the Mark Twain Memorial say.

"I believe this ridiculous spel-n bee is going to be a big hit," said Elaine Cheesman, educational director at the memorial located on Nook Farm, where the homes of Twain and Stowe are visited by thousands each year.

Cheesman said contestants will try to spell colloquial offerings from Twain's "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" and Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin." She said they are really not words and thus it will be an illegitimate spelling bee.

Both Twain and Stowe used dialects in much of their down-to-earth styles and in their books, words were often spelled as they were pronounced rather than as they appeared in a dictionary.

The event will be part of the annual fair at Nook Farm and was dreamed up as an answer to the traditional spelling bee held each year at the nearby West Hartford home of Noah Webster, the famous American lexicographer, Cheesman said.

Representatives from Hartford and West Hartford who will compete in the illegitimate bee have gotten into the spirit, said Cheesman.

Amanda Cruz, principal of Hartford Public High School, in agreeing to represent Hartford, said, "I allers have to spell kerectly."

Cruz's team member, honor student Raymond Dubrosky, said, "I'm a junour in hieechool and a terrifick speller."

$6 Million For Half Mile

County To Loan Expressway Panel Funds For Extension

The Seminole County Expressway Authority approved an interlocal agreement which will provide it with a loan of up to $6 million from Seminole County government for a half-mile foot extension of the eastern beltway from the Orange County line, where the East-West Expressway will end.

The agreement is to go to the Board of County Commissioners for consideration of approval.

Seminole expressway authority executive director Jerry Brinton requested the action, to pave the financial way for the project, which he says is estimated to cost about $6 million.

The extension will begin at the county line, and run north to State Road 426. The right of way will be 300 feet wide at the county line, and flare out to 680 feet in width at the State Road 426 intersection.

In addition, 426 will be widened to four lanes from Tuskawilla-Gabriella Rd. to Starwood Dr.

Brinton said the $6 million price tag includes the cost of design, construction, and right-of-way acquisition. He said about 25 property owners will be affected by the path of the segment, and all will be notified of a public hearing to be held on the acquisition, which is expected to be set for late October or early November. Brinton said one home lies in the path of the proposed right-of-way, near the county line.

Brinton said construction of the segment is expected to begin by August.

To the south, the Seminole section will connect with a northern extension of the Orlando-Orange County Expressway Authority's East-West Expressway. The East-West now stops at U.S. 50. Charles Sylvester, OCEA consultant, said the four-mile East-West extension from U.S. 50 up to its connection with the Seminole section at the county line, is expected to begin construction in July. The projects in both counties are planned to take between 18 and 24 months to complete. The cost of the four-mile Orange County section is expected to be about $40 million, Sylvester said.

Seminole County's $6 million loan to the Seminole authority will be backed using local option gas tax money. The expressway authority

Government Tentatively OKs Texas Air-Eastern Merger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government reversed an earlier decision in tentatively approving Texas Air Corp.'s $676 million acquisition of Eastern Airlines — and set up a tough financial challenge for Texas Air's expansion-minded chairman, Frank Lorenzo.

The Transportation Department announced Thursday it was satisfied that its anti-competitive concerns were resolved by a Sept. 12 agreement between Texas Air and Pan American World Airways, and said final approval of the merger could come by Oct. 1.

The department had blocked the transaction Aug. 26 on grounds it would reduce competition in the Northeast air corridor: Washington to New York (Boston).

In acquiring Eastern, which lost a record $111 million in the first quarter of 1986 and posted a net loss of $44 million in the second quarter, Lorenzo faces a "big chore" in making it profitable, said Robert Joedicke, aviation analyst with Shearson Lehman Brothers.

"It won't put (Texas Air) in good financial position in the sense you are taking over a carrier that has problems," Joedicke said. "It's going to take time for Texas Air to integrate and meld and gain lender and employee approval to make the situation financially better."

He said Lorenzo does have good people and a good track record, however.

FAA Announces Safety Plan

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Administration has unveiled a three-step plan to improve aviation safety in the four-state Western Pacific Region, but private pilots charged the plan offers nothing new.

The announcement Thursday night came as interest in air safety ran high because of the Aug. 31 collision of an Aeromexico airliner and a small plane over Cerritos. The crash killed all 67 people aboard the two planes and 15 on the ground.

The FAA plan unveiled by Jack Norris, an FAA accident prevention coordinator, at a bolsterous pilots' seminar in a packed high school gymnasium, calls for:

● FAA accident prevention seminars throughout the Western region, comprised of California, Arizona, Hawaii and Nevada, to emphasize the complexity of operating in congested air space.

● Consideration of recommendations made by a group of FAA aviation safety specialists that began meeting this week to study aircraft traffic in and around the congested Los Angeles Terminal Control Area.

The task force is headed by FAA Aviation Safety Director William Fromme and will report its findings to FAA Director Donald Engen in 30 days.

● Stepped-up enforcement of violations in the Los Angeles Terminal Control Area.

The area is one of the busiest of the 23 TCAs set up by the FAA in the nation's most crowded air spaces.

Triple Killer's Death Sentences Reduced To Life Due To Delay

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The three death sentences of murderer Terry Van Royal Jr. must be reduced to life in prison because his trial judge waited too long to file final documents in the case, the state Supreme Court says.

The court on Thursday also ordered a new trial for Patrick James Thompson, sentenced to die for the 1983 murder of a Fort Lauderdale woman, because of an error made by his trial judge.

Royal was convicted of the execution-style murders of three men during a 1982 robbery in Clearwater. According to court records, Royal and accomplices Richard Cooper, Jason Dirk Walton and Jeffery McCoy went to the home of Steve Fridella with the intention of stealing money or drugs.

The men, all of whom were found guilty of murder, tied up Fridella and two other men, then shot them to death with shotguns. Royal was given three death sentences.

Mobster Says Casinos Breed Crime

TAMPA (UPI) — A low-level underworld figure who claims to have been involved in casino operations in Nevada, says he believes casinos are a corrupting influence and said Florida will have its problems if voters approve a casino referendum Nov. 4.

"I don't know for sure, but there probably is some corruption in 'em," said Frank Cullatto. "There has to be, because of money. There's money there. When there's money there, big money, there's gonna be corruption. It's a fact of life."

Cullatto, 47, of Chicago, testified before the Governor's Council on Organized Crime Thursday. He has been convicted in a Nevada racketeering case and is in the federal witness protection program under another name. He testified from behind a behind a movie screen which showed only his projected silhouette in a room to which all entrances were locked and guarded.

He told of his dealings in Las Vegas casinos on behalf of what he called "the Chicago Syndicate," and told of casino dealers skimming profits, fixing card games and using drugs.

He said casinos in Las Vegas are managed by people who are friends or relatives of mobsters, but said they are "clean enough" to avoid detection by the Nevada Gambling Commission.

Psychological Child Abuse Said Worse Than Physical

CHICAGO (UPI) — In many cases, parents can harm their children far more by constantly rejecting, threatening and isolating them than by actually physically abusing them, a noted child abuse expert said.

"Even in most cases that are defined as physical abuse, or in other forms of neglect, it is clearly the psychological damage that is the most important and that stays with the child," said James Garbarino, president of the Erikson Institute for the Advanced Study in Child Development.

Garbarino, an author of several books and former director of the Maltreatment of Youth Project at Boys Town, was to oversee a panel on child abuse at the International Conference on Infant Mental Health beginning Thursday.

The four-day meeting is expected to draw 350 health professionals from as far away as Israel to discuss new research and the latest developments in child custody, abuse, illness and education.

Garbarino, whose latest book "The Psychologically Battered Child" will be published later this year, said his intent in discussing psychological abuse of children is not to make parents feel guilty about yelling at or disciplining their children.

"We're talking about chronic extreme patterns that really undermine normal emotional development of the child, undermine the child developing a positive map of the world," Garbarino said.

Garbarino has outlined five categories of psychological abuse: rejecting, ignoring, terrorizing, isolating or corrupting. Each can have a permanent impact on a child's development, he said.

Even rejection and ignoring without physical neglect can be fatal.

"There's a clinical syndrome known as non-organic failure to thrive, where babies just sort of wither away and die," Garbarino said. "And the reason is because their parents totally reject them, don't talk to them, don't soothe them."

Terrorizing, creating a climate in which the child feels constantly at risk for unpredictable punishment, is common in homes with alcoholic or emotionally disturbed parents. But many other parents can unknowingly terrorize their children by trying to scare them with divine or mythical retribution for unacceptable behavior, Garbarino said.

"The same capacity that allows children to appreciate and enjoy Santa Claus and the Easter Bunny, also makes threats like 'we've put monsters under your bed' very, very real," he said.

Isolation, cutting a child off from normal social contact, happens often in sexual abuse cases, but can also result because some parents don't realize "children need to have a social world beyond their family," Garbarino said.

Introducing children to sex, drugs or alcohol at an early age are forms of corrupting them, as is teaching a child to be overly aggressive. Garbarino said parents should keep in mind acceptable social custom before allowing or encouraging children to participate in such activities.

Murderer Executed In N.C.

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Wearing his favorite cowboy boots and proclaiming "Freedom, freedom — at last, man!" John Rook was executed by injection today for the rape and murder of a 25-year-old nurse.

Rook, 27, lost his bid for a stay on 5-4 Supreme Court vote shortly before midnight EDT and was wheeled into the Central Prison execution chamber about 2 a.m. wearing a Harley-Davidson T-shirt, blue jeans and his Dingo boots.

"Freedom, freedom — at last, man! It's been a good one," said Rook, a feisty inmate who stood 5-foot-4 with braided, waist-length blond hair and a beard that hung midway down his chest.

Rook, whose execution had been postponed five times, received a lethal injection of the muscle relaxant procuronium bromide and was pronounced dead at 2:11 a. m.

Robertson Asks Money, Prayer For Presidential Bid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Television evangelist Pat Robertson, saying he is led by God, is ready to "go for it" — the Republican presidential nomination — but his success depends on enough money, enough manpower and enough prayer.

Robertson, 56, a key leader of the Religious Right but a Republican for less than two years, told cheering crowds Wednesday in 218 cities hooked together in a satellite television broadcast that he is ready to seek the nomination.

"If by Sept. 17, 1987 — one year from today — 3 million registered voters have signed petitions telling me that they will pray, that they will work, that they will give toward my election, then I will run as a candidate for the nomination of the Republican Party for the office of president of the United States of America," he proclaimed.

Robertson, son of former Sen. Willis Robertson, D-Va., has described the presidency as a "lateral move" from being the host of "The 700 Club," a religious program seen daily by some 4.4 million Americans.

Robertson, who styles himself a scholar of American history, invoked warnings from George Washington, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson to declare the nation has drifted from the intention of its founders into a sordid state of decay.

"Yet despite these warnings," he said, "we have permitted during the past 25 years an assault on our faith and values that would have been unthinkable to past generations of Americans.

"God is out, casual sex, infidelity and easy divorce, the recreational use of drugs, and radical lifestyles are in," he told a cheering throng of faithful.

Robertson advocated many themes current with the Reagan administration, demanding a war on drugs, a return to old-fashioned education including the teaching of phonics and an effort to "bring God back to the classrooms of America."

He also voiced support for anti-communist guerrilla movements in Nicaragua and Afghanistan, a balanced budget and tough action against U.S. trading partners such as Japan who must "either give us free and fair access ... or we will shut down America's markets to you."

Robertson said he had reached his decision through prayer and counsel.

"Let me assure you," he told his supporters, "that deep in my heart I know God's will for me in this crucial decision."

Clips Show Evangelist's 'Extremist' Views

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Organizers of a "Pat Robertson Film Festival" said Wednesday the TV evangelist has a right to "throw his halo into the ring" but voters should be aware of his "extremist" views.

People for the American Way showed video clips from Robertson's "The 700 Club" threat of legal action from the Virginia evangelist's Christian Broadcasting Network, which claims that using the clips without permission violates copyright laws.

Anthony Padellaro, president of the First Amendment Lobbying organization that monitors the Religious Right, said his group would welcome a court battle.

He said Robertson "may be the first presidential candidate in history to claim that his public statements and private records are private property and should be kept secret from the American people."

The 15-minute videotape includes excerpts of Robertson speaking on the Supreme Court, public education, Social Security, the banking system, women's rights and his claim that he prayed Hurricane Gloria away from the shores of Virginia Beach, Va. where CNN has headquarters.

He said he made an appeal to the voters to all join the "The 700 Club" of the United States.

In another clip he says that when the Communists got "into the hands" of non-Christian people and nations, they can use it to destroy the very foundations of our society — and that's what's been happening.

The "Film Festival" was a prelude to Robertson's scheduled speech Wednesday in which he planned to outline his conditions before entering the race for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination. Christian Voice, a conservative lobbying group, quickly blasted the liberal campaign as "scare tactics" and "theophobia" that would backfire, ultimately helping Robertson's cause.

But John Buchanan, chairman of the liberal group, said, "We are not concerned about Pat Robertson's intervention in politics; he has a right to his views ... he even has the right to throw his halo into the ring for president."

"But we are concerned when he holds the view that only his kind of Christian should be involved in running the country," said Buchanan, a Baptist minister and former Republican congressman from Alabama.

"All of us need to play by certain rules of fairness and none of us can rightly claim God's endorsement for our philosophy or our candidacy," he said. "None of us can claim to be chairman of the Lord's political action committee."

Soviets Protest U.S.-Imposed U.N. Mission Reduction

Gorbachev: Daniloff 'Caught In The Act'

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev picked the eve of an important superpower meeting to make his first comment on the case of American reporter Nicholas Daniloff — and the comment was that Daniloff is "a spy who was caught in the act."

During a "walkabout" in the city of Krasnodar, in the Caucasus mountains, the Soviet leader said Thursday the United States has resorted to "inventions" in the past to frustrate superpower relations.

"This time they have picked up the Daniloff case, the case of a spy who was caught in the act," he said.

"They want to make use of this espionage case in order to again spoil Soviet-American relations, to sow doubts about the Soviet Union's policy and to distort the idea which the American people begin to form about Soviet people."

"So will we get nervous? We will not get nervous," he said.

"They will not provoke us."

His comments came on the eve of today's meeting in Washington between Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz.

Shultz has promised to make the Daniloff case his foremost concern, although the meeting was supposed to lay the groundwork for a still-unscheduled second summit between Gorbachev and President Reagan.

The Soviet ambassador to the United Nations denounced a U.S. decision to expel 25 members of the Soviet mission, and a U.N. official called the order "incompatible" with the 1947 headquarters agreement signed by the United States.

Soviet Ambassador Aleksandr Belonogov labeled the order a provocation and said it was aimed at scuttling superpower relations and blocking a second summit meeting between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

"This action is blatantly provocative," Belonogov told a news conference Thursday. "Politically, it is intended to aggravate Soviet-American relations."

"It is aimed at thwarting Soviet-American dialogue and a possible summit," he said. "There can be no other conclusion or qualification of these actions of the U.S. authorities."

Daniloff was arrested by the KGB Aug. 30 on espionage charges. He arrest came after Gennadi Zakharov, a Soviet employee of the United Nations, was arrested in New York on spy charges. Both men were released to the custody of their embassies Sept. 12 while diplomats work out a solution.

The United States requested in March that the staffs of Moscow's three missions to the United Nations — the Soviet, Ukrainian and Byelorussian diplomatic offices — be reduced from a total of 275 to 170 by April 1988.

The first stage in the reduction — cutting the Soviet mission staff from 243 members to 218 — was set for Oct. 1. The United States has given the Soviets a list of 25 diplomats it wants out of the country by the October deadline.

Man Jailed For Copy Machine Theft, Sale

A man who allegedly stole a $2,325 copy machine from Green Brother's Roofing Co., Beardall Avenue, Sanford, on Aug. 18, and allegedly sold it the next day to a man for $100, has been charged with dealing in stolen property, burglary and grand theft.

The machine was reportedly sold and delivered to Park Place Restaurant and the man who received it reportedly later identified a suspect in a Seminole County Sheriff's Department photo lineup. However, as soon as that man realized the machine had been stolen, he reportedly gave it to another man who allegedly sold it back to the Green company for $200, a sheriff's report said.

Leonard James Acree, 27, Osteen, was arrested at the Seminole County jail at 3 p.m. Wednesday. He was being held in lieu of $2,000 bond.

Sheriff's deputies have the name of a former employee of Fern Park Development, 230 Fern Park Blvd., Fern Park, who allegedly charged four ceiling fans with a combined value of $314 on an account or that business at Scotty's in Fern Park on two separate occasions between Sept. 8 and Wednesday.

Charles C. Davenport, 40, of 110 Hudson Lane, Maitland, gave sheriff's deputies the name of a suspect who may have stolen a $189 radar detector from his car while parked at 8575 U.S. Highway 17-92, Maitland, Wednesday.

A well pump and related items with a combined value of about $900 were stolen from a construction site on Snowhill Road, Chuluota, on Monday or Tuesday, according to a report owner Thomas W. Gunderman, 49, of 661 Moss Drive, Altamonte Springs, filed with sheriff's deputies.

Two televisions, a video recorder, a microwave oven, a radio and a cable television control box with a combined value of about $1,800 were stolen from the home of George C. Christian, 63, of 3100 Orleans Way S., Apopka, between Sept. 9 and Wednesday, a sheriff's report said.

300 Expected To Compete In Road Races

About 300 runners of all ages and from all parts of the state are expected at the Sanford Civic Center Saturday morning to compete in the three Sanford road race contests being co-sponsored by the city's Parks and Recreation Department and Kiwanis Club.

It is hoped entry fees for the eighth annual Sanford road race will raise more than $1,000 for the Seminole Schools' Exceptional and Alternative Education Programs, planners say.

Start and finish points for all races will be the Sanford Civic Center, with the starting pistol sounding at 7 a.m. for a two mile "fun run," at 7:30 a.m. for an 8-kilometer run, and at 9 a.m. for the quarter-mile "kiddle trot." Racers in the two longer runs can pay a $6 registration fee at city hall until Friday, or an $8 fee Saturday morning at the Civic Center.

There is no entry fee for the kiddle trot, whose contestants must be no older than 12, said Parks and Recreation Department Director Jim Jernigan.

For the longer races, the top three male and female winners in their respective age divisions will receive trophies, while kiddy run winners will be awarded ribbons, Jernigan said.

The races will also have wheelchair divisions, he said.

To accommodate the races, the following roads will be closed from 6 a.m. to 9:30 a.m.

Saturday: Seminole Boulevard, from Sanford to Mellonville avenues; Mellonville Avenue, from First Street to Seminole Boulevard; and San Juan Avenue, from First Street to Seminole Boulevard.

Sanford police and firemen will be on hand to control traffic during the runs. The 8 kilometer race is routed 2 miles south into residential Sanford, along Palmetto Avenue, 20th Street, Summerlin and Scott avenues, Second Street, Mellonville Avenue, then back to the Civic Center on Seminole Boulevard.

The fun run will head along Sanford Avenue, over to Second Street and up Mellonville Avenue to Seminole Boulevard.

The kiddle trot will be run entirely along Seminole Boulevard. —Karen Talley

He Got Life, Why Must Others Die?

Benson Case Cited In Clemency Pleas

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Lawyers for three death row inmates have complained that Florida courts give death sentences to some killers while others whose crimes are more heinous draw prison terms.

As proof, the lawyers for Johnny Copeland, George Lemon and John Mills Jr. cited the life sentences given tobacco heir Steven Wayne Benson in the July 1985 pipe bomb slayings of his mother and adoptive brother in Naples. "I can't think of anything more heinous than for a man to plant a bomb in his mother's car and blow her to bits," Copeland's lawyer, Baya Harrison, said during clemency pleadings before Gov. Bob Graham and the Cabinet on Thursday.

"He murdered his own mother strictly for money," Harrison said. "He was not sent to the electric chair."

Seniors Remember What To Forget

You watch the gray hair spread across the temple or the tiny wrinkles at the corner of the eyes as they deepen into gorges. Then comes the day when you can't remember how many cups there are in a quart or who played second base for the Cincinnati Reds in 1958, and there's no denying the inevitable. Everyone knows the memory is the first to go.

Well, forget it. Researchers from the American Psychological Association have reported that new studies show memory loss in older persons is far less than commonly imagined by either scientists or laymen. What scientists previously measured as memory loss, the researchers contend, may have been an artifact of earlier experiments in which subjects of various ages were asked to recall trivial facts. In the new experiments, older people performed as well as their juniors when asked to remember information within the context of solving practical problems.

Those findings suggest to the researchers that, while younger people may be better at Trivial Pursuit, older people are better at knowing what's forgettable.

"Older adults may be more willing to forget new information than younger adults, since older adults may have more previously learned information with which to judge the importance of the new information," says Cameron Camp, one of the researchers.

Translated, that seems to be a way of saying that experience is valuable and that age brings more discriminating taste, and — who knows? — maybe even a touch of what used to be called wisdom. As a trade for not being able to remember Johnny Temple, the ballplayer with the elusive name, that's a pretty good bargain.

Protect Ruin Sites

The report recently that an archaeologist had discovered the apparently undisturbed ruins of a pre-Columbian city in Central America was both exciting and slightly disturbing. It is always exciting when a potentially significant archaeological site is found. Unfortunately, looters are among those who get excited.

Looters, in fact, usually arrive before the scientists.

As University of Wisconsin archaeologist J. Jefferson MacKinnon noted, the Mayan city he discovered in Belize seems to be "one of the very few sites that looters haven't visited yet."

"There's been absolutely no digging into the site by anyone," MacKinnon said. "You almost never find that anymore."

Excavations at the Mayan city are scheduled to begin in December. It is of extreme importance that the site be protected until MacKinnon and his associates begin their work. If the tiny nation of Belize does not have the resources to guard against looters, U.S. institutions, organizations or even the government should offer help.

World Outrage Needed To Stop Savages

By Chuck Stone

An American educator kidnapped by Arabs. A reporter held hostage by Russians. Two Americans killed during the Karachi hijackings.

Once again Americans are outraged over this nation's impotence in preventing a worldwide debauching of our citizens. We demand some kind of action to rectify these grievances.

Yet there is a weakness in our moral resolve. We still place a higher priority on individual desecrations of our national integrity than on mass murders in other countries.

A depressing case in point is the massacre of 21 Turkish Jews while they were worshipping in their Istanbul synagogue.

Terrorists are savages. They succeed universally because there is no universal outrage.

Within hours of the atrocity in Turkey, spokesmen for worldwide Jewish groups, a few Arab organizations, Israeli officials and President Reagan swiftly condemned the barbarism.

But they were lonely voices. There was no massive outpouring of indignation by the world's national leaders and religious authorities, none of whom attended the funeral service in Istanbul.

A few days ago, a long article in The New York Times was headlined: "The Roots of Terrorism Are Found in Brutality of Shattered Childhood."

I couldn't care less.

At this point, I'm not interested in "What makes Sammy run?"

Understanding the mind of the terrorist is fine for the analyst, but it's rotten protection for the victims.

Such abstract scholarship reminds me of a debate in the Philadelphia City Council about reforming graffiti artists with educational programs.

"This is all well and good," responded John Street, a black city councilman, "but what I want to know is when do we break their fingers?"

When do the nations of the world construct a protective methodology to break the backs of terrorists?

Retaliatory strikes generate applause, but they don't guarantee security.

When terrorism is responsible for the destruction of synagogues and the assassination of innocent Jews, it is not simply a "Jewish crisis," any more than Hitler's Holocaust was simply a Jewish survival problem.

It is "our" crisis, and we are linked indissolubly to whatever happens to Jews — whether we are Catholic, Baptist, Hindu, Moslem or Buddhist. That's the eternal meaning of the war the world fought to destroy Nazism.

But until the world's threshold of anger is lowered to the point where it compels governments to coordinate a worldwide attack against terrorists, none of us are safe. The Pakistanis made that frightening discovery in Karachi.

Maybe the world has developed a moral immunity to terrorism because of its inability to deal with South Africa's organized terrorism.

The only difference between the Arab terrorists who blew up the Turkish synagogue and the South African policemen who terrorize all non-whites is geography. Both murder at will. Both practice genocide. Both paralyze our capacity to act.

In the last few weeks, I've been thinking about the late President John F. Kennedy, my thoughts probably inspired by his niece and nephew running for political office in two states.

Kennedy electrified the world when he stood in West Berlin — a municipal bulwark representing freedom from the Berlin Wall's tyranny — and declared, "Ich bin ein Berliner."

Everywhere in the world those of us who believe in the sacred right of all people to live without fear should stand up and declare in Turkish, "Ben Musevi Turk'uyum"; "I am a Turkish Jew." Just as we must declare "I am a black South African."

Until we do, all of us are candidates for terrorism.

DON GRAFF

A Shock Visiting Germany

By Don Graff

DUSSELDORF, West Germany (NEA) — It's always a bit of a shock arriving in Germany from the United States.

There's the weather, for one thing. Summer ends earlier here. Where it was in the steaming high 80s on takeoff from New York, it's cool and drizzling here.

There is also the order and energy with which Germans go about their business. The visitor gets the initial feeling that they're overdoing it a bit. But they must be overdoing it right.

The West German economy is still supposed to be less than great, at least by the standard of the long postwar boom. Unemployment is still uncomfortably high.

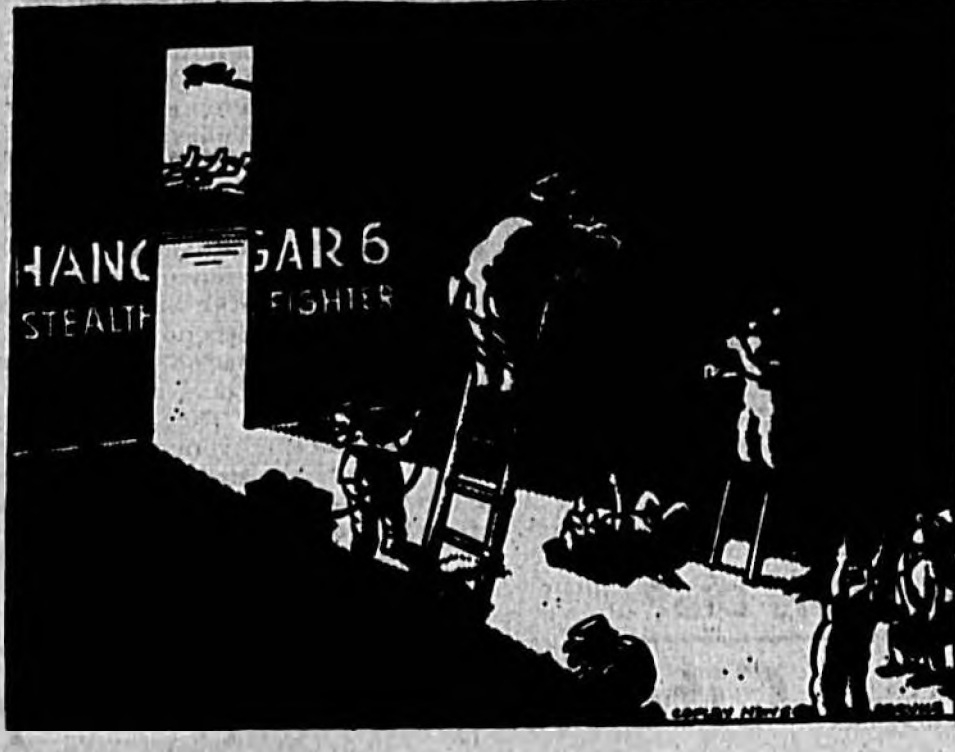

But you'd never guess any of that from the look of the place and the people. Everyone appears well-dressed, well-fed and well-housed. And vast numbers are driving well-polished cars, either new or very close to it. You very rarely see a vehicle here showing any wear and tear.

What you do see perhaps a bit too much of are Mercedes and BMWs hurtling down the Autobahns, on which there is no speed limit. Be advised not to spend much time in a passing lane unless you're prepared to join the speeding drivers. They can give tailgating a terrifying new meaning.

If nothing else, the experience gives you an idea of what it must have been like when the Panzers went charging through the Ukraine. And it may be that the Germans were just a bit premature with World War II. Had today's Autobahn drivers been in those tanks, the Wehrmacht might never have been stopped.

War is about the last thing the German countryside brings to mind. It is idyllic, one place that more than lives up to the travel posters. This is not so much a country as a vast, meticulously cared-for garden.

In towns usually so flower-bedecked and immaculate that it's painful, everything seems to have been built yesterday. A house needing a touch of paint is rarer than the unwashed car. The Germans, it seems, will go to any cost for appearances.

WILLIAM RUSHER

The U.N.: A Disaster

By William A. Rusher

If it is true, as reported in The New York Times of Sept. 14, that "After a wave of congressional budget cuts that could severely hurt the United Nations, the Reagan administration has quietly started a campaign to reverse that trend and bolster the organization," then I beg to differ very loudly indeed.

Fortunately, it may turn out that Mr. Reagan hasn't yet personally signed off on the new policy. Note that the Times story carefully identifies the United Nations' would-be rescuer as "the Reagan administration," not the president personally. Other paragraphs of the article carefully preserve the same distinction:

"...the administration has now focused on the United Nations as a key forum for American foreign policy interests and is asking Congress to restore at least some of the money."

"An administration official said, 'The executive branch will do its very best to get most of those cutbacks rolled back.'"

(The reference here is to congressional cuts and deferrals, amounting to as much as $149 million or 70 percent of the total, in various payments, that the United States is required to pay the United Nations next month.)

You can bet your bottom dollar that these anonymous "administration" sources quoted by the Times are in the State Department, where enthusiasm for the United Nations has always tended to run ridiculously high. Their campaign to restore the cuts Congress has made in U.S. payments to the United Nations ought to be stopped dead in its tracks.

The United States contributes a little under a billion dollars a year to the United Nations, or about a quarter of the entire budget on which it has become accustomed to living. In return for this, we provide the Soviet Union and other communist countries with a matchless excuse for littering the New York metropolitan area with spies in the guise of U.N. employees. (Gennadi F. Zakharov, the Soviet U.N. employee arrested recently for espionage, is merely the latest.)

We also furnish the unique backdrop of Manhattan and its matchless communications facilities to our enemies and the enemies of freedom everywhere, who now comfortably dominate the United Nations in proportions of 2 or 3 to 1, and who tirelessly bad-mouth us to the applause of their watching countrymen back home. It is not too much to say that, in the sickening light of hindsight, the United Nations was one of the most disastrous ideas ever hit upon by men of good will.

Of course, a determined search will usually turn up something good to say about almost any individual or institution. (Even Hitler, they say, was kind to animals.) A few agencies affiliated with the United Nations — e.g., the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna — are probably worthwhile. But they could be spun off and funded and operated separately without the slightest difficulty.

JACK ANDERSON

Favored Weapon Endangers Soldiers

By Jack Anderson

and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon will soon be picking a new anti-tank weapon, and the brass hats seem determined to choose the wrong one — again.

The new weapon will replace the notorious Dragon, a hand-held, wire-guided anti-tank missile that turned out to be a disaster. For one thing, the Dragon tends to miss the target. Second, even if it does hit the tank, the Dragon lacks the explosive power to penetrate thick armor.

From the GI's standpoint, the most serious flaw in the anemic Dragon is its wire-guidance system, which requires the soldier who fires it to guide it visually to the target. This means the soldier must stand or crouch out in the open for as long as 20 seconds after the Dragon's blast has alerted the enemy tankers — more than enough time for them to aim and fire at the exposed Dragonmaster.

After years of delay, the Pentagon has finally stopped buying more Dragons, and is testing two new technologies. One is a slight improvement over the Dragon. It uses a laser beam "rider" to hit the target, and the human spotter is exposed for no more than 10 seconds. The Army generals favor this one.

The other new technology was developed by the weapons designers of the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency. It's called the Tank Breaker, but soldiers would call it a lifesaver. It's a "fire-and-forget" weapon, a heat-seeker that homes in on the tank on its own. The infantryman can fire it and take cover immediately.

Yet when Rep. Les AuCoin, D-Ore., asked Gen. John Wickham, the Army chief of staff, what the status of the Tank Breaker was at a closed hearing last year, the general said he'd never heard of the thing.

Our associate Donald Goldberg has seen a DARPA study that demonstrates just how important the Tank Breaker's fire-and-duck technology would be. Conducted in West Germany and the United States in December 1984, the study focused on what the DARPA designers call the "flinch factor."

It was a three-stage test, using 15 soldiers who had proved they could fire the Dragon missile accurately. First they fired at moving targets about 1,000 yards away with no distraction. They scored hits 87 percent of the time on average.

Then the missile gunners were told that a harmless explosion might be set off nearby while they were guiding the Dragons toward the targets. They were assured that the blast would not hurt them, but would merely simulate the noise of a battlefield. Actually, the DARPA testers didn't set off any explosion at all in this second phase — yet the accuracy rate fell to 71 percent.

The third test was the most dramatic, showing the "flinch factor" at work. Three to seven seconds after the soldiers fired their missiles — and were still wire-guiding them — an explosion was set off 75 yards away that was roughly as loud as a Soviet artillery shell: 185 decibels. The soldiers had been assured that the blast was harmless, and it was.

But the hit rate fell to 27 percent. More than two-thirds of the missiles were fired into the ground when the gunners flinched at the harmless explosions. Furthermore, the gunners did not get used to the blasts when the test was repeated, even though they knew the explosions were harmless.

With this convincing argument for a fire-and-forget anti-tank weapon, why does the Army favor its laser-beam version of the Dragon? Congressional and Pentagon sources suspect it's a matter of turf: The Army designed the laser-beam rider, while DARPA conceived the fire-and-forget missile.

In the hope of assuring a fair test of the two missile technologies, AuCoin inserted language in the Defense appropriations bill giving a say in the final decision to the Marine Corps, which will not be swayed by pride of authorship.

BEN WATTENBERG

Unfamiliar Facts On Families

By Ben Wattenberg

Because "family policy" is now one of the key issues, it might be useful to understand just how complex the situation really is. Here are some facts that are rarely thought about:

Consider the case of mothers who bear out-of-wedlock children. It's a real problem. But one of the best-kept demographic secrets is that nearly all mothers of out-of-wedlock children end up getting married!

Arthur Norton of the Population Division of the Bureau of the Census says: "Mothers of children born out of wedlock end up with a marriage rate only slightly lower than the population as a whole, which is about 90 percent." In other words, many of those "illegitimate" children end up in whole families, at least for a while. That means that those children are likely to have more stability and permanence in their lives than we generally think.

Or consider the alleged disaster of "latchkey" children. Those are the kids whose parents are still working when the kids return home from school to an empty and allegedly lonely residence. Sad. Truly sad in some cases. Except that a study recently presented to the American Psychological Association reports that the children of working mothers scored higher on IQ tests, had better communication skills, scored higher in math and reading, and were more self-reliant than children whose mothers did not work! Mind you, it's still nice to have mom at home when a child returns from school, but apparently when that's not the case, the child can do quite nicely, thank you.

Or think about divorce. It's a real problem. It's true that about half of all first marriages will end in divorce. But what is not generally mentioned is that the divorce rate has stopped rising and about nine out of 10 divorced Americans get remarried. That's not exactly the portrait of a nation that's given up on marriage.

Moreover, it seems to me that the only thing worse than a very high divorce rate would be a very low divorce rate, as in many Third World countries. After all, a divorce is usually the joint and voluntary action of a husband and wife who have decided their lives together have become miserable.

Strict Code Enforcement Promised

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Code violators, beware! Longwood City Attorney Ann Colby has promised the city commission that beginning Oct. 1 there will be strict enforcement by the city's Code Enforcement Board.

Mrs. Colby, who was hired as Longwood's first full-time attorney July 7, told commissioners Monday night that she learned that the reason the Code Enforcement Board has not been more effective is that no cases have been brought to it by the Code Enforcement Officer Ed Ross since February.

Ross is returning to patrol duties in the police department and will be replaced by Peter Butt, who is employed in the water department.

Mrs. Colby said she planned a workshop with the code enforcement board to go over the procedure with the members and familiarize them with the new code enforcement bill which went in effect July 1.

She is also scheduled to meet with the new code enforcement officer and the secretary when he takes over Oct. 1 to explain how to prepare proper cases.

She said the new regulations will help the city cite persons who comply when cited and then repeat the same violation.

Mrs. Colby said when the code enforcement board begins hearing cases she will be acting in an advisory capacity and will not be able to assist in prosecuting individual cases.

She said the paperwork is extensive and many cases did not make it because technical requirements were not met. "It's important we do it right," she said. "Without proper training and instruction there will be more problems."

In other business, Fire Chief and City Safety Officer Charles Chapman told the commission he is concerned over liability and workman's compensation insurance costs to the city. In the fall

Ann Colby
...No cases since February of 1985 a safety review board was formed with representatives from each department and they have been reviewing claims by employees and trying to stem the rising costs while providing a safe workplace. "We have had no deaths or major injuries, but we've had a lot of nickel and dime cases," Chapman said.

He said Longwood has a 1.37 experience modification factor, which means the city has more than the average city for the number of employees and the figure is likely to go up. He says this stays with the city for three years causing higher insurance rates.

Commissioner June Lormann commended Chapman and the board. "I think the safety review board is doing a grand job," she said, "and I appreciate the information you are supplying to the commission."

● Voted to permit an independent Baptist congregation, which has been meeting temporarily at Woodlands Elementary School, to use the community building on a month to month basis at $35 a day. They will meet for three hours Sunday morning and one hour Sunday nights. On Sundays the building is already committed, the congregation will be permitted to meet in the council chamber.

Ms. Colby, when asked to comment, said the facilities are public and should be available to the church as they would any other group. She told the commission to make sure the church was charged the same as any other group and was not given a long-term agreement that would not allow others equal opportunity to rent the building. The church will also provide liability insurance that will protect the city should someone be injured on the premises.

● Gave tentative approval to changing the Future Land Use Plan and amending the Comprehensive Plan designation for property belonging to Rodney Weaver, owner of Energy Conservation Unlimited, Inc. north of Georgia Avenue and east of Seaboard Coastline Railroad, from low density residential to light industrial. Public hearings and final action are scheduled for Oct. 6.

● Tentatively approved an ordinance that creates a minimum of 10 weeks application review and processing time period for all land development, subdivision and site plan applications to be considered by the city. It also revises the public meeting notice procedure for land development applications to allow the staff to notify the applicant either in writing or by telephone prior to scheduled meeting of the city commission, historic commission, board of adjustment or local planning agency. The public hearing and final action are set for Oct. 6.

● Tentatively approved an ordinance permitting persons submitting an application for subdivision plat or land development plan approval or other requests, to designate an alternate agent to represent them before the design review board. The public hearing and final action are scheduled for Oct. 6.

● Tentatively approved an ordinance absolving the city or its employees and authorized agents from liability for any private costs to applicants that might result from the city's review, acceptance, processing, denial or rehearing of an application, development plan, plat or permit required by the city. Public hearing and final action are set for Oct. 6.

I-4, SR 434 Interchange Expansion Contract Let

A contract to expand the interchange at Interstate 4 and State Road 434 has been awarded by the Florida Department of Transportation.

C.A. Benedict, deputy assistant secretary for DOT's Fifth District, said Hubbard Construction Co. of Orlando received the contract and is scheduled to begin construction within 60 days. The contract amount is $1,991,237.

He said the northbound exit ramp on I-4 will be extended 1,800 feet and a second lane will be added. A second lane also will be added on both the northbound on-ramp and the southbound exit ramp. Dual left turn lanes will be built in both directions on SR 434 for traffic turning onto the Interstate and traffic signals will be updated.

move traffic through this busy and congested intersection faster and will improve safety," said Benedict.

He said construction is scheduled to be completed within 240 days.

"The construction will cause short term inconveniences and traffic delays in the area," he said. Motorists who can avoid the construction areas should use alternate routes.

Harvard Study Shows Non-Profit Hospitals Socially Inefficient

BOSTON (UPI) — Non-profit hospitals rely much more heavily on public subsidies than their profit-oriented counterparts without providing any additional social benefits, a Harvard study released Thursday said.

"From a social perspective, (non-profit hospitals) are less socially efficient," said Regina Herzlinger of the Harvard Business School. "They provide less of a return based on the amount of money invested in them."

In the largest and most detailed study of its kind, researchers compared about 150 non-profit and 450 for-profit hospitals owned by chains operating from 1977 to 1981.

Using a complex statistical analysis, the researchers found non-profit hospitals relied on public subsidies for 17 percent of their assets while for-profit hospitals relied on public subsidies for only 2 percent.

Yet the researchers found no significant difference in prices or care to the needy.

"Since (non-profit hospitals) receive such a heavy public subsidy, I wanted to see what society was getting for its money," said Herzlinger, a professor of business administration who co-authored the study.

"One thing they could do is charge lower prices. Another thing they could do is provide more care for the self-paid and Medicaid population. But when I looked at that I found the answer is 'no,'" said Herzlinger.

The report, which contradicted other studies that found for-profit hospitals charged higher prices and treated fewer of the poor, drew criticism from Dr. Arnold Reiman, editor of The New England Journal of Medicine.

"Anyone who says that the not-for-profit hospital are not giving free care just doesn't know what's going on," said Reiman at a seminar where the study was discussed.

Reiman questioned the methods used by the researchers to calculate the impact of non-profit hospitals' tax-free status, and said the study failed to consider that for-profit hospitals tended to be located outside urban areas where most of the needy require medical care.

"The fact of the matter is that the for-profits have not chosen to deal with the real health care needs of this country," said Reiman.

Herzlinger, however, defended her findings, which she said were based on a more accurate way of analyzing the efficiency of hospital than past studies.

Non-profit hospitals tended to have older, less valuable facilities and were too willing to sacrifice efficiency to placate doctors, she said.

For-profit hospitals were much more efficient in their use of labor and achieved greater turnover in their beds.

Herzlinger stressed the findings applied to community non-profit hospitals owned by chains and not teaching and research hospitals. But she said such hospitals are more common today.

"This is not to say they're not fine hospitals. But from the perspective of society, if we finance 17 percent of the assets, we'd like to get something for that," she said.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Japan Announces Limited Sanctions Against South Africa

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan today announced limited economic sanctions against South Africa in line with its Western allies, but backed off from harsher measures.

"The situation in South Africa, which shows no sign of improvement, has led to such a serious stage that some steps must be taken," said Chief Cabinet Secretary Masaharu Gotoda.

Gotoda announced a package of four measures that includes a ban on new imports of iron and steel, the immediate suspension of tourist visas for South African nationals and an order for government employees not to fly on international flights of South African Airways.

A foreign ministry official said the ban on imports of South African iron and steel, which does not apply to existing contracts, will be applied "as soon as possible," but did not say how it would be enforced.

The package, the second set of sanctions adopted by the government in a year, also "confirmed" a suspension of commercial air travel with South Africa that has been in effect for about 20 years.

Terrorist Suspects Identified

By United Press International

Witnesses identified two suspects in the latest of a wave of Paris bombings, and police in Beirut searched for the killer of France's military attache amid renewed threats against French officials and targets around the world.

French Prime Minister Jacques Chirac, at a news conference in Paris Thursday, called on Parisians to remain calm and vigilant in the face of a 10-day wave of bombings that has killed eight people and injured more than 160.

"If we get proof, and that will surely come, of who is behind these attacks, our response will be crushing and without weakness," Chirac said.

Witnesses to the deadliest of five bombings — a blast at a crowded Left Bank clothing store that killed five people and wounded 52 Wednesday — identified two men suspected of throwing the bomb from a black BMW automobile before driving off.

Police investigating the bombing at the Tati discount clothing store said witnesses who were shown more than 130 photographs identified the suspects as Emile Ibrahim Abdallah and Salim El Khoury, both believed to be members of the Lebanese Armed Revolutionary Faction.

The Lebanese guerrilla group is headed by Georges Abdallah — Emile's brother.

The Committee of Solidarity with Arab and Middle Eastern Prisoners, which has claimed responsibility for the recent bombings in Paris, has demanded the release of Georges Abdallah and two other Arab prisoners jailed in France.

A spokesman for Chirac said Thursday the government believes there is a link between the bombings and attacks on French military personnel in Lebanon.

Europe Security Pact 'Possible'

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — The Soviet Union said today it could accept 90 percent of the proposals at the European security conference and said it hoped a final document would be signed before the conference ends tonight.

A morning plenary meeting at which a final document was to have been approved was suspended until 10 p.m., as delegates rushed back into working groups to try to resolve two key issues that could wreck the conference.

"I hope we will perhaps be able to wind up tonight," Soviet chief negotiator Oleg Grinevsky said, but added the talks could go on into the weekend.

Earlier, a Western delegate had accused the Soviets of dragging their feet in the final hours of the talks, despite a key American concession on the nationality of planes to be used in on-site inspection.

"We have made this big step of indicating willingness to negotiate Soviet aircraft," the Western delegate said. "But the Soviets are not engaging in the issues despite this flexibility."

Soviets Seal Off 'Town Meeting'

YURMALA, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — The closing sessions of a weeklong U.S.-Soviet conference on superpower relations were marked by a tight ring of KGB security, apparently prompted by residents' efforts to talk to the U.S. participants.

"The awful thing is that they (KGB) are telling people we requested tightened security," Mark Palmer, deputy assistant secretary of state, said Thursday.

The five-day conference, almost canceled because of the arrest of American journalist Nicholas Daniloff on spy charges, was to end today.

For the first three days of the conference, hundreds of Latvians refused admittance to the town hall-style meeting gathered outside the conference center to talk to the 270 American participants. But on Thursday, plainclothes police moved in and blocked the road so they could not get to the area.

A few Latvian-American members of the U.S. delegation, however, came out to meet Latvians who managed to get through to the conference center Thursday.

"We are waiting for freedom and you are our only hope," said an elderly man in a crowd of about 50 Latvians gathered around Latvian-American delegate Mils Melngailis, 21.

Britain Starts 24-Hour Newspaper

LONDON (UPI) — Publisher Robert Maxwell, after studying the Detroit News, announced the establishment of Britain's first "24-hour" newspaper to begin publication Feb. 10.

Maxwell, the chief of Mirror Group Newspapers, said Thursday the tabloid-format London Daily News will have editions to compete with both morning and evening newspapers and that an initial circulation of 1 million is expected.

"This revolutionary concept, entirely new to Britain, implements my long held desire to provide Londoners with the best possible service from breakfast to the last train home," Maxwell told a news conference.

He said that an editorial consultant had just returned from Detroit, "where he studied on the ground the 24-hour concept of the Detroit News."

Cost To Housing Authority Top $5,000

SHA Ordered To Pay Legal Fees

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

A Federal court Monday ordered the Sanford Housing Authority to pay more than $5,000 in attorney fees to the legal aid agency that filed suit against the authority last winter after being banned from holding free legal clinics on housing property.

The suit was dropped after the authority allowed the clinics to resume, but the agency pursued receipt of suit-related fees.

The fee order was scheduled to be discussed by the authority board at a regular meeting Thursday, but the session was cancelled after only two of five board members showed up.

Chairman Alexander Wynn waited half an hour before adjourning the session. He and Vice-Chairman Robert Frazier were present. Board members Velma Williams, Bob Ball and William Long were absent, as was board attorney Ned Julian.

Attorney Donna McIntosh, who was to have sat in for Julian, said Thursday night was the first time she had seen the order.

After the cancellation, Wynn said he preferred to hold off comment on the order "until the full board has a chance to discuss this with our attorney."

The discussion is expected to be held when the authority next meets in regular session on Oct. 16.

The order calls for the authority to pay $5,423.80 in attorney's fees to Central Florida Legal Services to cover time the agency spent preparing its suit and costs related to the effort.

The suit was filed in the name of a housing tenant in December and dropped later that month after the authority board agreed to allow the clinics to resume. The twice-monthly free clinics had begun in August, 1985, at the Redding Gardens and Castle Brewer housing complexes.

They were banned by the authority in October on a motion offered by Wynn, who said he had only learned about them that month. Wynn has maintained the housing authority had to take care of internal "housekeeping" last winter before it should consider allowing the clinics.

The agency had been holding the clinics with permission from Authority Executive Director Elliott Smith.

After the suit was dropped, the clinics resumed in February, but were discontinued in April. The agency "has a lot of walk-ins" of housing tenants at its South Park Avenue offices and "didn't reevaluate" offering a new series of clinics on housing property after the last one was held April 24, said agency attorney Bruce Scott.

Receipt of the order for more than $5,000 in attorney's fees follows an offer the authority made in March to settle fee payment with the agency for $750. The authority offer was termed "insufficient" by Treena Kaye, the agency's managing attorney.

Instead, a motion for fees was filed with the Orlando division of United States District Court and after a series of cross filings during the spring and summer, the payment order was received by the agency and the Housing Authority Monday.

Union Charges Racism In Miner Death Benefits

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — A black labor union rejected employer claims of racial equality in death benefits for miners and threatened to sue for higher payments to families of 177 men killed in South Africa's worst gold mine disaster.

At Evander, 65 miles east of Johannesburg, miners searched through the night Thursday for the last person listed missing in the Kinross gold mine fire.

Mine spokesman Harry Hill said four men earlier listed as missing were found alive and well above ground Thursday. They had left the mine during the chaos of a rescue operation that saved 2,200 men Tuesday and early Wednesday.

The Chamber of Mines, an association of gold and coal mine owners, issued a statement saying the families of the 172 blacks and five whites killed would receive a lump sum and a pension for life.

Saying it did not discriminate against black workers, the chamber said widows of black miners would receive a lifetime pension equal to 75 percent of their husband's pay and a single payment equal to two years salary. Widows of white miners would receive a lump sum payment equal to two years of their husbands' pay and a pension equal to 60 percent of the miner's last monthly salary.

Marcel Golding, spokesman for the black National Union of Mineworkers, rejected the claim that there was no racial discrimination in the compensation.

"Compensation for black miners is based on wages that are appallingly low and discriminatory," he said.

"In relation to the hazardous conditions that black miners are exposed to, the compensation is totally unacceptable," he said.

The NUM said black miners earned an average of $140 a month — less than a quarter of the average earnings of whites.

NUM leader Cyril Ramaphosa, after touring the disaster scene Wednesday, said Gencor — the company that owns the Kinross mine — was negligent in using dangerous plastics underground and in allowing a welder to work without a fire extinguisher at hand.

Golding said that if the union's charges were verified, the union would go to court to have the death benefits increased.

The outlawed South African Congress of Trade Unions, a labor movement based in Zambia, said in a statement telexed to news agencies that Gencor's safety record was among the worst in the world.

Gencor officials repudiated the allegation, saying they had the best safety record in South Africa.

Moore has been involved with the development of the drug awareness program at the school for a year, and also oversees the athletic department as part of his duties. He said the school coaches were involved in the origination of the contract idea.

During last Wednesday night's session, school officials had a question and answer session with Dr. Phinney, Moore said. Questions about how to identify possible drug involvement warning signs, and how to handle suspected cases, were asked. Moore said Dr. Phinney called for the encouragement of community involvement with the program as a key to success.

"I think the meeting was very beneficial," said head football coach Harry Nelson. "There were a lot of pointed questions asked."

Nelson's team would be the first to play under the contract conditions. He has said he supports the program.

The contract portion of the school's drug awareness program has been threatened with a lawsuit by the American Civil Liberties Union, which said it violates students' rights to privacy. The school board did not object to the program, however, in spite of the threatened legal challenge.

will repay the money to the county from authority revenues including tolls and possible future bond sales available after all necessary expenses for operation and maintenance are paid.

The path of the expressway north from 426 is still being studied, but two routes have been mentioned. One would run north and intersect with a proposed eastern extension of Lake Mary Blvd. and the other would span Lake Jeap, and intersect with Interstate 4. The path intersecting with I-4 is about 16 miles long.

The Seminole authority also approved the application for a $500,000 fund advance from the Florida Department of Transportation's Toll Facilities Revolving Trust Fund to complete the northern path study.

About $500,000 of the department's money was spent during fiscal year 1986 for corridor analysis including alignments within the corridor and drainage basin mapping, conceptual design analysis, straight-of-way reservation maps, and revenue study. The new $500,000 will go for engineering and environmental data collection, more design analysis and right-of-way reservation maps, aerial photographs and preparation of environmental documents.

The authority also approved the recommended ranking of firms to be negotiated with to be the general consultant firm for the authority. The firms, in order of ranking are Wilbur Smith in association with Glatting, Lopez, Kercher and Anglin; Reynolds, Smith, and Hills, and Greiner Engineering. The ranking was recommended by the authority's consultant selection committee.

Leon Savetaky, the lawyer representing the Plainfield firefighter's union, said Sarokin's decision "will have a far-reaching impact on what other communities do with respect to the standardless, random drug testing of their public employees."

While calling a "laudable goal" the ensuring that public safety officials are drug free, Sarokin said, "The harassment, coercion and tactics utilized here, even if motivated by the best of intentions, should cause us all to recognize the realities of government excesses."

The firefighters were locked in city fire stations and required to submit a urine sample while under surveillance, the judge said, and firefighters whose urine showed traces of illegal drugs were dismissed without being informed the results of the laboratory tests.

Sarokin called the surprise testing a "flagrant violation of the firefighters due process rights."

The judge said urine testing invades "one of the most private" bodily functions and "frequently reveals information about one's health unrelated to the use of drugs."

Before a drug testing program may be implemented, Sarokin said, "its existence must be made known, its methods clearly enunciated and its procedural and confidentiality safeguards adequately provided."

Same City, Same Result: Titusville Holds Off Tribe

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor
TITUSVILLE — Same town. Same field. Different team. Different mistakes. Same result.
Draa Field, nestled on the westside of U.S. Highway 1, hasn't been much fun for coach Dave Mosure's Fighting Seminoles this fall. The Tribe has played there twice in seven days and has an 0-2 record to show for it.

A week ago, Titusville Astronaut broke open a 7-7 tie with four minutes to go and sent the 'Noles west with a disappointing 16-7 setback. Thursday night, Titusville High took control in the third quarter and held off a closing rush to frustrate the Seminoles with a 16-9 District 4A-5 victory before 2,501 fans.
"We had a good game from a lot of kids but we just mistaked our way out of this ball game," Mosure, whose 'Noles host Lake Howell next Friday, said. "That's exactly what we did."
Whereas, a high snap and poor punt coverage disappointed the 'Noles against Astronaut, six fumbles (three lost) and a crucial penalty accounted for the frustration against the Terriers.
Early in the second quarter,

with the game deadlocked, the 'Noles had a first-and-goal at the Titusville 7 but a botched exchange between tailback Dwayne Willis and quarterback Jerry Governal resulted in a lost fumble.

Late in the second quarter, with the Terriers holding a 7-0 lead, Seminole had a first-and-goal with 27 seconds left. Willis was stopped for no gain and on second down with 13 seconds left, tackle Randy Bryant jumped offside. J.J. Partlow kicked a 20-yard field goal as time ran out for a 7-3 halftime count.

"We had exchange problems. We had quarterbacks executing improper plays," Mosure said about the six fumbles.

The second one was more disheartening. "We had planned it that way," Mosure said about the race against the clock. "As we began to approach, we wanted to eat up the clock. That's just what we wanted."

Wanting and getting, though... "We didn't want the damn offside penalty," he said. "That right there had a big impact along with the other mistakes. That was a big turning point."

Titusville used two breakaways by Leon "Sugarfoot" Hamilton for a 7-0 lead. Pinned on its 14 with a third and four, Titusville sprung Hamilton when sophomore quarterback Lamar Campbell pitched "Sugarfoot" for 42 yards to the Seminole 44. Four plays later, the same sprint option broke Hamilton 35 yards down the same sideline for a touchdown. Andy Creamer's PAT gave the Terriers a 7-0 edge with 7:33 left in the first half.

It was Hamilton who did a pretty good tap dance on Seminole last year with 127 yards on 14 carries and two TDs in a 20-14 Titusville win. Last year, though, Hamilton used trap plays to cut his way to the yardage. This year, it was perfect pitches and all-out speed from the 5-11, 178-pounder.

"I don't know what it is. I just have good games against Sanford," Hamilton said. "(Fullback) Ray Griffin made some outstanding blocks and (quarterback) Lamar Campbell has the pitch down pat."

And it was the pitch which patted down the Seminoles for the night in the third quarter.

The Terriers exploited Seminole with the sprint option in the second half as Campbell released just as he was squashed and Hamilton turned the openings into 169 yards on 16 carries.

"They didn't make an adjustment," Mosure said about the second-half strategy. "They just went to a play which they were successful at in the first half."

"It's a quick lead option. There is no dive fake. We just were not coming up and we weren't getting any inside out fill from our safeties," Mosure continued.
Titusville coach Mike Dickey, who is 3-0 against Seminole, said the third quarter was the turning point in the game. "We came back and scored, then controlled the ball in the third quarter after they had controlled it the second quarter," he said.

Psyche Job? Lowly 'Dogs Tackle Rams

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer
Psychological warfare. DeLand coach Dave Hiss has used it a lot in the past few years. And his pre-game psyche jobs worked a good deal of the time as the Bulldogs posted a 7-3 record last season, winning their last seven games.

But, in 1986, Hiss says DeLand has one of its smallest teams ever and doesn't really look like a Class 5A squad. Hiss doesn't think the Bulldogs stand much of a chance against a powerful Lake Mary team Friday night, but only he knows whether he's completely serious or looking for another psychological angle.

"We don't have a chance," Hiss said. "I just hope Harry (Nelson) takes it easy on us and has sympathy for us. We're in very, very poor shape."

Both the Rams and Bulldogs go into Friday night's opening District 5A-4 contest with 1-0 records. Lake Mary demolished previously fifth-ranked Apopka, 19-7, while DeLand crushed Eau Gallie, 22-6. Kickoff is at 8 Friday night at Lake Mary High.

Lake Mary coach Nelson has seen Hiss' pre-game antics firsthand the past three years.

"The first year, they (DeLand players) all came out carrying cards with numbers on them saying that's the number of the guy they're going to get," Nelson said. "Then they came out in army fatigues and last year they rode in on hay wagons."

"If Hiss comes out with no gimmicks this time, I'm going to start worrying," Nelson added.

Hiss said DeLand has just five players on his 34-player roster who are 200 pounds or bigger while Lake Mary has 23.

"We've got the size on them and I think we're a better team," Nelson said. "But you know how high school football goes. You can upset people one week but you don't want to be upset yourself."

Nelson knows that very well: the Rams lost two regular season games last year, one to lowly Spruce Creek and the other to powerful Apopka.

In last week's upset of Apopka, it was Lake Mary's defense that paved the way, holding the Blue Darters to just 105 yards total offense. Nelson said he was particularly happy with the secondary which includes Juniors Sheldon Richards and Terry "The Cat" Miller and sophomore Carlos Hartsfield.

"I thought our secondary was unbelievably good against Apopka," Nelson said about Sanford's Academy Manor trio. "Miller, Hartsfield and Richards are really active, they're all quick, have good hands and like to hit people."

"I was also impressed with the tackling of the entire defense," Nelson added. "There were a number of times when it was one-on-one, open-field situations and our tacklers made the plays."

Senior linebacker Mike Smith led the Ram tacklers with a total of 14 (seven tackles and seven assists), while Hartsfield contributed nine (4-5), nose guard Robb Reddington had seven (3-4) and linebackers Doug Bandy and Matt Beck had six apiece. Bandy also added an interception while Richards picked off two Dan LaForest passes.

"Last year's secondary with Ray (Hartsfield) and Byron (Washington) was really strong," Richards said. "I don't think

Bovis Takes Battle — Hawks Win War

By Chris Flister

ORLANDO — Lake Howell's formula for success doesn't include each runner carrying a four-leaf clover or involve the practice of skullduggery. Confidence and dedication to a total team effort have thrust the Lady Hawks into the state's elite.

Thursday evening at the University of Central Florida, Lake Howell's "Pack Attack" continued to take on and level all comers as the top-ranked (4A) Lady Hawks claimed the Edgewater Invitational title with a score of 42 compared to 65 for defending state champion Winter Park. It was the first time the two teams have met since last season's state meet where Winter Park outduelled the Lady Hawks for the title.

Melbourne Palm Bay took third place at 130 followed by the tight pack of Lake Brantley at 143. Lyman High finished fifth at 170 with Lake Mary having one of its better performances in recent memory with a seventh-place score of 211.

In the individual battle, two-time defending state champion Kim Bovis of Winter Park held off Lake Howell's Lisa Samocki and Martha Fonseca. Bovis had Fonseca on her shoulder for the first mile and a half and then had to hold off the hard-charging Samocki at the finish. Bovis finished with a fine time of 11:35 while Samocki came in at 11:39 and Fonseca finished in 11:46 for third place.

Samocki's time was nearly 30 seconds better than her 12:06 at the Lake Mary Opener and reinforced the fact that she is back from a severe foot injury during track season.

"I gained a lot of confidence back today," Samocki said. "I'm no longer paranoid about getting hurt when I run. And I feel stronger than ever both mentally and physically."

Samocki, a senior, said coach Tom Hammonree is continuing to bring her along slowly in practice but, "I'm very impatient when it comes to racing," she said. "I was surprised I did as well as I did today. I knew they (Bovis and Fonseca) would take it out fast and I just tried to stay within striking distance from the start."

Fonseca, also a senior, ran the same time she did in winning the Lake Mary meet last week but said she now knows what to expect when going up against Bovis.

"It was the first time I really went head to head with her (Bovis)," Fonseca said. "I got really passive at the mile and a half mark and fell back some. I'm not really upset with my performance because I know what to expect now and I won't let it happen again."

Sophomore Jenny Bolt was Lake Howell's third finisher as she came in 10th with a time of 12:26. Senior Mary Fonseca was a few steps behind as she finished 11th at 12:29 and junior Bonnie Oliver rounded out the top five by taking 16th place at 12:36. Also running for the Lady Hawks were sophomores Tammy Bolt (20th at 12:49) and Michelle Lee (28th at 13:08).

Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots packed about as tightly as possible in finished fourth Thursday. Brantley's number five runner was just 14 seconds behind its number one runner.

Leading the way was Heather Camino who came in 26th at 13:02 and she was followed in the top five by Karen Kopp (27th at 13:05), Mindy Olinger (29th at 13:08), Jennifer Josephs (30th at 13:10) and Kristin Longmire (31st at 13:16).

"If we move up the pack a little bit we'll be in good shape," Brantley coach Mary Littlebrant said. "I'm hoping we can move up enough to catch Palm Bay."

Leading the way for Lyman was senior Julie Greenberg who Winter Park's Kim Bovis keeps Lake Howell's Martha Fonseca right where she wants her during the Edgewater Invitational at UCF. Bovis, a two-time defending state champion, won the two mile in 11:35. Fonseca was third while teammate Lisa Samocki took second.

Improved Attitude Helps Mary To 6th

By Chris Flister

ORLANDO — Searching for an answer to his team's peevishness in the early going of the season, Lake Mary coach Mark McGee called a team meeting before starting practice this past Monday. And it appears the Rams came out of that meeting with a new attitude.

The top four varsity runners and all but one junior varsity runner turned in personal bests Thursday evening as Lake Mary began its climb back up the area ladder with a sixth-place finish in the Edgewater Invitational at the University of Central Florida.

While Lake Mary improved significantly from its sub-par performance in the opening week, Lyman High continued to be among the leaders in Central Florida as it claimed third place at 77, just 10 points behind meet champion Melbourne Palm Bay. Lake Howell also kept pace with the area leaders as it finished fifth at 126 followed by Lake Mary at 165.

"Neither I or the team was happy with the way they ran last week," McGee said. "Before practice Monday, we went to my classroom and talked for an hour and half before we went out and ran. The talk must have worked because all the guys came to run today."

Eric Petersen, who had a disappointing performance in the opener, ran a strong race Thursday as he finished seventh with a personal best time of 15:31. Brad Smith continued to be the most consistent Ram as he took 15th with a personal best of 15:57.

Also running personal bests for Lake Mary were Paul Evans (32nd at 18:52) and Scott Plyler (46th at 17:19). Ashley Morasch rounded out the top five as he finished 74th at 18:43. Lake Mary is still without one of its top runners in Anthony Surles.

Leading the way for Lyman was junior Robin Rogers who took second place in the three-mile race with an excellent time of 15:15. The individual champion was Palm Bay's Jose Bonarrigo who blazed to a time of 14:56. In finishing second, Lyman's Rogers outduelled two runners who finished ahead of him in the Lake Mary Opener.

"Robin (Rogers) just gets better and better every meet," Lyman coach Fred Finke said.

Behind Rogers in the Greyhounds' top five were Nick Radkewich (10th at 15:38), Teddy Mitchell (16th at 16:02), Mike Mohler (20th at 16:18.7) and Darren Marshall (29th at 16:35.5).

"It's good to be in the third spot right now," Finke said. "Having Radkewich in there helps a lot. I'm satisfied as long as we're looking ahead and not back."

Leading the way for Lake Howell was senior Chuck Buster who finished ninth with a time of 15:37. Lake Brantley, which was 10th with a team score of 319, was Tim Iller who finished 49th with a time of 17:24.

laughing last week. The bizarre circumstance arose when Leasor dismissed one of his players from the team. The player had gotten into trouble the year before and had signed a "participation contract" which allowed him to play this year under the stipulation that if he broke one training rule, he would be dismissed.

"The player got into a fight," Leasor said. "I had to dismiss him from the team for disciplinary reasons."

The player then transferred to Daytona Beach Father Lopez and attempted to play football there. Leasor said since Mainland refused to sign a waiver release form, the player was ineligible for one grading period, according to Florida High School Activities Association guidelines.

"The player's group tried to appeal it to the board of education," Leasor said. "It should have been appealed to the FHSAA. Finally, it was determined that the FHSAA would hear it."

Leasor said the FHSAA ruled that the player would, indeed, sit out the grading period before he regained his eligibility. "I'm happy with the decision," Leasor said. "It teaches some people that you have to play by the rules."

Pressure was applied to Leasor either late Friday or early Saturday and he resigned. This didn't sit well with the team, though. The hard-working Leasor had turned football fortunes around at Mainland by running a tight, disciplined ship.

Another Volusia County coach said the football team demanded Leasor's reinstatement. "The players told the school if Leasor didn't return as coach, there wouldn't be any football program this year," the Volusia coach said.

All of which made Leasor eager to return. "I've been coaching over half of my life," the third-year Mainland mentor said. "It was a very tough time. There were innuendos flying all over the place. I'm just glad it's over and we can get back to football."

Lyman's eager to get back to the gridiron, too. Although no one can be too disturbed with a victory, Scott said neither the coaching staff nor the players was happy with the way it was accomplished.

"We made just about every mistake possible," Scott said. "If we do that this week, we will be in trouble."

Scott, however, made no mistake in getting the ball to Robert Thomas. Lyman's workhorse tailback toted the pigskin 26 times for 109 yards. He scored on a four-yard run and Kelly Greene booted the PAT which made the difference.

"Robert is the key to our offense," Scott said. "He can play better than he did last week, though. He has not hit his prime yet."

Although Thomas went over the 100-yard mark, Scott said that quarterback John Burton has to play better. Burton was 1 of 11 for five yards. "Burton has

Leasor Sheds Soap Opera, Tries To Get Ready For Lyman

By Sam Cook

If Lyman coach Bill Scott thinks he has problems, Daytona Beach Mainland coach Ted Leasor should audition for the lead role in As The World Turns. Life at Mainland the past few weeks for Leasor has been nothing short of a soap opera.

Scott may not have been too enthused with his team's season-opening 7-6 victory over Orlando Boone last week, but at least he was there for both halves.

Leasor, in one of the most peculiar happenstances in Florida prep football history, coached Mainland to a 7-7 first-half tie against Orlando Colonial-Friday night. The game then was postponed until Saturday due to torrential rain. Somewhere between late Friday night the resumption of the game Saturday night, Leasor resigned. He said Thursday his resignation was asked and was told it "would probably be in his best interests."

Mainland's assistant coaches took control of the team and went back to Orlando where the Bucs lost a 14-7 decision in the second half.
"With all the turmoil we've had over here, it's going to be tough to get things back together," Leasor, who brings his Bucs to Lyman tonight at 8 for the first District 5A-4 game of the year, said. "I can't believe it's a district game already and we aren't ready. It's just a very bizarre situation."

"But I promise you one thing, I will be there for the second half Friday," he laughed.

Leasor, though, wasn't

Williams Runs For 164 Yards, JV Rams Take 19th Consecutive

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

The Lake Mary junior varsity squad upped its record to 2-0 for the season and won its 19th in a row overall with a 22-14 win over Lake Howell Thursday night at Lake Mary High.

Lake Howell took a 7-0 lead and held the Rams scoreless till 38 seconds left to play in the first half when quarterback Joey Hunt pitched the ball to running back Ray Williams who tossed a halfback pass Jack Oberdas for a 30-yard scoring toss to pull the Rams within 7-6. Lake Mary's Art Bradford then went up the middle for the two-point conversion to give the Rams an 8-7 halftime lead.

The Silver Hawks, though, came back and took a 14-8 lead early in the third quarter before Hunt connected with Calvin Davis for a 50-yard touchdown knotting the score at 14. Alex Birle kicked the PAT for a one-point edge. Lake Mary went on to add another score in the fourth as Williams went on a 79-yard scamper around the end and Birle added another PAT conversion to ice the game and extend the Rams' winning streak.

Williams ended up with 164 yards on 11 carries for the night, while Bradford chipped in 72 on 11 attempts. Hunt went 2-3 for 80 yards. Lake Mary, coached by Charlie Reynolds, Bill McDaniel and Larry Brown, will play at Leesburg Thursday.

Pierro's 3 TDs Lead Brantley

Danny Pierro bolted for three touchdowns and a two-point conversion as Lake Brantley trimmed Lyman, 20-6, in junior varsity football Thursday night at Tom Storey Stadium in Altamonte Springs.

Pierro scored in the first from two yards out to push Lake Brantley ahead 6-0, but Lyman came back when Anthony Bailey punched it over from the 5 to tie the game at 6-6.

Pierro came alive in the fourth, however, scoring from the 3 and the 1, plus adding the conversion to ensure the Patriots the win.

Lyman falls to 0-1 and Lake Brantley upped its record to 2-0. Lyman will have next week off as Lake Brantley travels to Osceola next Thursday.

Delsing, Byrum Lead Milwaukee

FRANKLIN, Wis. (UPI) — The Tuckaway Country Club golf course received little respect in the first round of the $400,000 Greater Milwaukee Open.

Jay Delsing and Tom Byrum, a pair of pros who never have won a tournament, each carded 7-under-par 65s Thursday to lead a herd of golfers who shot better than par on the par-72, 7,010-yard course.

In addition to the co-leaders, 76 golfers shot 71 or better on a course softened by recent rains.

Corey Pavin, Frank Conner and Tom Purtzer were one shot behind the leaders at 66, and John Adams and Jim Dent were at 67.

Thomson's 65 Paces Seniors

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Peter Thomson shot a 7-under-par 65 to take a three-shot lead after the first round of the $200,000 Paine Webber World Seniors Invitational.

Arnold Palmer had redesigned the greens on the 6,819-yard Quail Hollow Country Club course to make it tougher for this year's tournament, but the 57-year-old Thomson burned them for seven birdies and no bogeys.

7-Eleven To Pull Sponsorship; Richmond Opts For Hollywood

Carl Vanzura

MOTOR SPORTS WRITER

Racing is losing one of its biggest sponsors after this year's season ends. The Southland Corporation, parent company of 7-Eleven chain of convenience stores, has announced that it is ending its financial participation in all forms of motorsport.

That will mean drag racers Bob Gliden, Billy Meyers, road racer Bruce Jenner and stock cars popular Kyle Petty will all be looking for new sponsors for the 1987 season.

Indications are that the Woods Brothers car driven by Petty may receive support from CITGO, the petroleum firm held by Southland.

The new movie, "Born to Race," due to be completed this month will make Hollywood stars out of some popular race drivers.

Tim Richmond is the only one right now with a speaking role. He plays a bartender. Other drivers in the movie are Kyle Petty, Bobby Hillin, Dale Jerrett, Jack Ingram, L.D. Ottinger, Tommy Huston and Robbie Moroso. Filming is being done at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Winston Cup car owner and champion Funny Car racer Kenny Bernstein became the first Funny Car driver to break the 270 mph barrier when he piloted his Budweiser

King Ford Tempo to a 271.41 mph run during the 32nd annual NHRA nationals.

Making his record breaking run during qualifications, he had the rest of the competitors shaking their heads in disbelief.

"Unbelievable, that's the feeling," Bernstein said after his run which bettered the previous track record by over six mph. Bernstein is only the third driver to exceed 270 mph in a quarter mile. The other two, Don Garlits and Darrell Gwynn, did it in top-fuel dragsters.

Three former NASCAR Winston Cup champions might be sitting in the top four of the current standings, but it's the guy who has never won motorsports most prestigious title who continues to cause much of the excitement.

Tim Richmond, who drives the Harry Hyde-prepared Folger's Coffee Chevrolet has finished first or second in 10 of the last 13 races, and has moved into second place in the Winston Cup standings behind Dale Earnhardt.

Richmond was tied for 10th place and was 385 points behind Earnhardt when his winning streak began. He now trails by 138 points.

Defending champ Darrell Waltrip fell to third place with Bobby Allison and Bill Elliott rounding out the top five. Surrounded by five Winston Cup titles, three by Waltrip and one each by Earnhardt and Allison, Richmond's best finish in the final standings was a 10th in 1983.

Picked up this little story in this month's Stock Car Racing magazine about NASCAR driver Eddie Bierschwale. It seems he is also a funeral director. His whole family is involved in the funeral business and it runs four chapels in Texas.

When Bierschwale was running his own race team, the race car garage was attached to one of the chapels. Not only was organ music piped into the shop, the windows were stained glass.

Dickey said despite Seminole's quickness on defense, he thought Hamilton could get around the corner. "I thought we could run the sprint option against them, especially when they gapped down," he said.

Dickey said Campbell sucked in the defense perfectly and the Terriers relied on quickness, rather than speed, to turn the corner. "The had good quickness but I felt we could get to the corner by the pitch. I didn't think we could sweep them but I thought we could by skipping down and kicking it out. Our fullback Ray Griffin blocked real well. Our quarterback (Campbell) took the lick from the end. He was willing to pay the price that's what makes it successful."

The Terriers marched 65 yards in eight plays with the second-half kickoff to take a 13-3 lead with 9:36 left in the third quarter. Hamilton's 15-yarder and Griffin's 12-yarder pushed the ball to the Seminole 10. Hamilton scored on the next play around the right side.

Early in the fourth quarter (10:37), Creamer kicked a 24-yard field goal to give the Terriers a seemingly safe 16-3 bulge. With five minutes to play, however, a shanked punt gave the Tribe the ball at the Titusville 41. After a third Goveallin completion, the Terriers were hit with a roughing the quarterback penalty which moved the ball to we're as good this year, but we have the potential to be."

Offensively, Lake Mary was held to 135 yards total offense by the rugged Apopka defense. John Curry led the ground game with 71 yards on 24 carries while Anthony Hartsfield bulled for 22 yards on eight carries. The passing game was practically nonexistent with Shane Letterio completing 1 of 8 passes for 10 yards.

"When you're playing against a powerful club like Apopka, you can look bad," Nelson said. "But I looked at the film and didn't think we were quite as bad as we looked on the field. We were a little sluggish, but there was some heavy contact."

DeLand has a solid running attack led by tailback Eric Gibson and quarterback David Hogue. Kicker Brian Roney is one of the best in the area as he booted a pair of 50-yarders last season.

"They've got a good tailback and their fullback's tough," Nelson said. "They're not big, but they're a scrappy ballclub with some good tacklers."

Hiss said his team is out-manned in practically every aspect and the team may be small but, "the kids work hard and try hard. All you can do is the best you can with what you have."

"We've had a terrible week of practice," Hiss said. "We've had sprains and bruises and pink eye and just about everything."

"Harry's got some animals and stallions over there at Lake Mary," Hiss added. "It's a shame we have to play 5A because we have no business playing anyone like Lake Mary. It's not even a fair contest."

"The girls team is coming on like guns afire," Lyman coach Fred Fike said. "They're really got great attitudes and are hard workers."

Lake Mary's seventh-place finish was highlighted by the return of Sue Kingsbury, who had not competed in a race (outside of the jamboree) since her sophomore season. The Lake Mary senior came through with an 18th place finish and a time of 12:42 which was over one minute better than her time in the jamboree.

"She did a lot better than I figured she would," Lake Mary coach Mike Gibson said of Kingsbury. "We were shooting for 13:00 and she beat that goal by 18 seconds."

Ebbert Faces Tough Debut Against No. 3 Evans

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

Anytime you play a team that is ranked third in state, chances are that you will be in for a heck of a battle. Losing your starting quarterback certainly will not help matters any.

That is the problem that Lake Brantley coach Fred Almon is faced with as his Patriots play host to the third-ranked Orlando Evans Trojans in the District 5A-5 opener for both teams. Kickoff is at 8 p.m. at Brantley's Tom Storey Stadium.

The Patriots lost a heartbreaker to Ojeda last week, 18-14. Quarterback Jason Lanham severely cut his lip on the first play of the game. "I really got nailed," Lanham, who also suffered a bruised jaw, said. Almon said he would miss tonight's game.

Stepping in for Lanham will be junior Greg Ebbert. This will be the first year that Ebbert has played football and it is the first start of his career.

"I have been nervous all week long," Ebbert said. "It is kind of a tough situation that I'm in. My first start is against the third-ranked team in the state."

Although Ebbert (6-3, 190) is a bundle of nerves, Almon said he has confidence in his left-handed QB. "Greg really looked sharp in practice," Almon said. "He's throwing the ball real well. Evans has a couple of good defensive backs, but I think we can throw on them."

Evans, which returns 13 starters from a 10-1 team, had a tough time early last week, but put it together in the second half, breaking a 12-12 deadlock to walk away with a 28-12 win over Orlando Jones.

Although Ebbert has thrown the ball well in practice, Almon said the Patriots would first attack Evans on the ground. "We'll line up and try to whip them on the ground," he said. "They just have a lot of talent. They're a good football team but I think they can be had."

Almon said if the ground lanes are closed, he won't hesitate to put it up, which Ebbert said would be all right with him. "I think that we will be airing it out," Ebbert said. "We have put in quite a few new pass patterns this week."

The Brantley offense is led by tailback Johnnie Griffin. In last week's loss, Griffin rushed for 85 yards and two touchdowns. This week the Patriots have been working on throwing the ball.

The Patriot defense is anchored by tackled Chris Mull and Randy Green. Mull was third in the SAC in tackles last week as he had three tackles and 11 assists.

"We will have our hands full tonight," Mull said. "It is going to take a heck of an effort to beat them."

The key to the game could be the Brantley offensive line. If the Patriots can give Ebbert some time to throw, Brantley has several fine receivers in Nigel Hinds, the county's leading pass catcher with four catches, along with Jason Puddicombe, Brooke Christian and Jerry Thurston.

If not, it will be a tough debut for Ebbert. "The offensive lineman promised me that would block well," Ebbert said. "I am praying that they do."

The Brantley defense will have to be at its best to control QB Tony White.

Blanton: Lions In Must-Win District Clash Against Crabs

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

It is only the second week of the prep football season, but district games begin tonight, putting the early season pressure on teams.

The pressure will be so thick that a machete may be needed to cut it tonight when the Oviedo Lions open District 4A-5 play against defending district champion Daytona Beach Seabreeze. Seabreeze was 4-0 in the district last year and 7-4 overall before bowing out to Auburndale in regional playoff action. The kickoff is set for Memorial Stadium in Daytona Beach at 8 p.m.

"We have to win this game," Oviedo coach Jack Blanton said. "In district play it is very tough to come back from a loss."

Seabreeze coach Rocky Yocam also feels that the game is of vital importance. "This game is extremely important," Yocam said. "It is really tough to play a district game so early in the season."

Oviedo was sluggish in a 18-14 win over Lake Brantley last week. "We simply didn't perform last week," Blanton said. "We are a very young team with quite a few inexperienced players. I think that the players learned a lot from that game."

Seabreeze won its opener 13-0 over Spruce Creek and played well defensively. "We are a defensive-oriented team," said Yocam about the Sand Crabs. "We played well defensively last week and we will need to play very good defense this week."

The motor that makes the Lions run is the play of tailback Willie Gaaney. Last week Gaaney rushed for 85 yards on 10 carries before being ejected for fighting in the third period. Gaaney gained 45 of those yards on a well executed flea-flicker that fooled Brantley and gave Gaaney an easy touchdown.

"We are going to do what we do best," Blanton said. "And that is to run the football."

Blanton said that a key to the game will be the play of center Gordon King and tackle Andy Palmer. "Our offensive line did not play very well last week," Blanton said. "I think that this week Gordon and Andy will step out and play the way that they are capable of playing."

Blanton said King and Palmer have spent time after practice in an effort to make up for last week's poor performance. "Gordon and Andy want to win this one," Blanton said. "There aren't a lot of kids that keep on working after practice is over."

Seabreeze has a veteran defensive club led by linebackers John Morrell (6-2, 210) and John Miles (6-2, 195). "We are as good as we were last year on defense," Yocam said. "Our two linebackers are returning as starters. They are the heart of our defense." Blanton said that he has a great deal of respect for the Seabreeze defense. "They are a good defensive football team," Blanton said. "We are going to have to play extremely well offensively in order to move the ball against them." The Sand Crab offense is led by quarterback Jeff Parker and tailback Gene Gaaney.

Oviedo did not throw the ball very often last week. Quarterbacks John Pettit and Willie Gaaney is the motor which makes the Lions' ground attack purr.

Mike McCurdy combined for a 2 for 4 outing good for 40 yards. Oviedo figures to throw the ball more often this week.

"We have been working a lot on throwing the ball in practice," Blanton said. "We will probably put it up a few more times this week."

Yocam said that the Lions run 'N Shoot gives the 'Crabs more problems than any other team. "Their offensive set is confusing," Yocam said. "They have a very good tailback (Willie Gaaney) and their sweeps are tough to stop."

The Line: BIG, BIG, BIG As Hawks 'Meat' Orange

Football

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

In a game that features two of the biggest offensive lines in Central Florida, crunch time figures to be all the time tonight as Lake Howell's Silver Hawks travel to Winter Garden to take on the West Orange Warriors.

"West Orange is BIG, BIG, BIG," Lake Howell coach Mike Blaccaglia said. "This should be a tremendous match-up of offensive lines."

Lake Howell enters the big early-season District 5A-5 contest coming off a convincing 27-6 win over Orlando Edgewater while West Orange dropped a 19-10 decision to Orlando Oak Ridge in its opener.

The running game was the Silver Hawks' bread and butter in the opener as the massive men up front cleared the way for 301 yards rushing by the backs, Cornel Rigby picked up a county-leading 144 yards on just 14 carries while Nate Hoskins contributed 87 yards on 15 totes.

West Orange has a pretty hefty defensive front that hopes to slow down the Hawks' rushing attack. Among the Warriors' defensive leaders are end Deondrie Clark (247) and tackles Robert Kenon (253) and Bull Loyd (235).

Should West Orange succeed in stopping the run, Lake Howell will look to quarterback Mark Wainwright to crank up the passing game. Wainwright completed just 1 of 9 passes for 28 yards against Edgewater with Craig Derington getting the reception.

West Orange also has a mammoth offensive line that looks to open holes for Leroy Kinard who Blaccaglia said is "one of the most highly regarded backs in the country."

The Warriors up front include tackle John W. Johnson (278), guard John F. Johnson (285) along with tackle Mike Stonica (220) and center Melvin Butler (215). Should the running game break down, the Warriors will go to the air with junior quarterback Brian Fox (6-5, 185).

Lake Howell's defense a week ago was anchored by linebackers Steve Trier and Jeff Harris. Trier led the unit with 13 tackles while Harris contributed 12. Marty Golloher led the linemen with six tackles.

..Lessor

worked very hard this week," Scott said about his senior QB. "He had a bad outing last week, but he'll get over it. This week should be a different story."

Scott said it's important Lyman gets off with another win. "There are not enough of them (district games) to be able to lose one," he said. "It will be tough to come back and win the district with a loss."

Despite Mainland's opening setback, Scott said he feels that the Bucars are a very talented team. "They have a big guy playing quarterback (Brian Morris) that can throw the ball well," Scott said. "They are a good offensive football team. They also look to be sound on defense. A few of their linebackers are very aggressive. They like to come out and hit people."

Morris, a 6-2, 215-pounder, teamed with Terry Anthony (Florida State) last year to give Mainland a devastating passing attack. This year, Lessor said Morris spreads it around among Lorenzo Peterson, Thomas Barnes, Terry Markins, Victor Wallace and David Bomany.

"Brian is throwing a few more shorter passes," Lessor said. "But I really don't know what we're going to do yet. We have two game plans: one is mixed and the other is all run."

Lessor said Lyman's secondary, spearheaded by Scott Radcliff and Johnny Luce, each of whom had two interceptions last week, impressed him. "They just ate Boone alive," he said. "Scott King does a good job at linebacker, too. We're going to have to watch out for him."

Lyman defensive coordinator Jack Bloomingdale said that he was satisfied with the way that the defensive unit performed last week. "I thought that the kids did a heck of a job," Bloomingdale said. "They read their keys very well."

Bloomingdale expects no change this week. "We haven't done anything special," Bloomingdale said. "We are just going to go out there and play our regular defense."

Boone was able to move the ball on Lyman, but the 'Hounds were up to the task on nine of the 10 times the Braves penetrated Lyman's 15-yard line. Bloomingdale said that's his favorite time of the game and the time when the Greyhounds get into high gear defensively.

"That really gets my heart beating," Bloomingdale said. "Once we get closer to our own goal line the kids seem to get tougher. Hopefully we won't be near our own goal line very much this week."

A shade different from all the others.

Ideal Growing Conditions For Seedlings Is Easier Than Imagined

Anyone who likes working with and growing plants should have a small greenhouse in their backyard. Even though we can grow an amazing variety of plants here, many of them the year-around, there is nothing that can substitute for a greenhouse. And, many gardeners are finding this out.

Alfred Bessonen
Urban Horticulturist
323-2500
Ext. 181

One reason they're becoming so popular is the flexibility a little greenhouse offers. You can start seedling vegetables long before outdoor gardeners can. And, you can raise all kinds of unusual and interesting plants. All of this, just because you have a greenhouse that will provide ideal growing conditions during the winter. You can easily control the three critical things in plant growth—light, water, and heat—if you have a greenhouse.

If you've ever considered building a greenhouse, why wait? Get started now. You'll have it completed before cold weather arrives. The first thing you want to consider is whether or not you have enough space, and a suitable location in your yard. Location is all important, both in relation to available light, and wind protection. Wind will affect your greenhouse. The structure must be strong enough to withstand high wind pressures and exposure to strong winds which will cause heat loss. Positioning your greenhouse so that it has protection from the most chilling winds will reduce the need for artificial heat, which is expensive.

If you want supplemental heat, gas equipment is recommended. It's clean, and is one of the least expensive to install and operate. If you don't have natural gas, you can use bottled gas or fuel oil instead. Whichever you choose, be sure you have adequate ventilation inside the greenhouse. Exhaust fumes must be vented outdoors. Other things to consider are access to water and electricity. You'll need water for the plants, and electricity to operate ventilation fans and lighting.

Greenhouses come in a variety of shapes and styles. Before you decide on a particular type, you must consider cost, availability of building materials, and the ease or difficulty of construction.

The simplest kind you can build is the quonset type. This is a semi-circular pipe frame driven into the ground, set into steel, or in concrete footings. A plastic covering is then placed over the pipe frame to form the top and sides of the structure. End walls, doors, fan openings, and shutters are usually built of wood.

A Gothic-type greenhouse is very similar to the quonset, except that the pipes are bent into a pointed, Gothic shape. You'll have more headroom with the Gothic type, and it makes a nice looking building. With either type, you'll need to provide good ventilation.

Another simple greenhouse design is the post-rafter. This design requires more wood or metal than the quonset or Gothic design. If you want a greenhouse of this type, you'll need to drive the posts deeply into the ground. This will provide protection from heavy winds, and give added support to the rafters.

The A-frame greenhouse, shaped like a tent, is a popular one. The only structural difference between it and the post-rafter type is that the A-frame has an additional beam, called a collar beam, between the rafters. This gives added strength to the structure. It's only shortcoming is that the interior space is reduced because of the slanting roof.

The most durable kind of greenhouse, and the one most often used in commercial designs, is the rigid-frame type. Basically, it's a post-rafter design, with plywood gussets nailed or glued to the connecting post-rafter joints. These gussets eliminate the need for a collar beam. So, the interior of the greenhouse is clear and roomy. The rigid-frame structure is set into concrete footings, rather than embedded into the ground. This provides extra protection from heavy winds.

These are the most common greenhouse designs, both for backyard and commercial use. Each has its advantages and drawbacks. Don't feel that your greenhouse must be complicated and expensive—it doesn't. You can make it as simple or sophisticated as you want.

If you plan to install raised benches in your greenhouse, be sure you make them at a comfortable height—usually about three feet up from the floor surface. Be sure that the plants you want to place on the benches have enough headroom. And, arrange the benches so the plants receive the maximum benefit from heating, ventilation, and available sunlight. Happy Gardening!

DEAR ABBY: Why all this commotion about being too fat or too thin? Ten or even 20 pounds one way or the other shouldn't make that much difference. It seems foolish to worry, even for reasons of health. There are no guarantees how long we'll endure in spite of determined efforts to keep fit.

Perhaps it's just as well that we don't know when we are going to be physically challenged.

refreshing to see questions about corn rather than so many sex-related letters."

So, Dear Readers, it's OK to pull back the husks to take a peek. It will not devalue the corn.

DEAR ABBY: Twenty-seven years ago I wrote to you for advice, requesting a personal reply. I was a pregnant, frightened, Ohio farm girl with no one to turn to. You sent me to the Catherine Booth Home for Unwed Mothers in Cincinnati and you added, "I care" on your letter. I can't tell you how much those two words meant to a young girl who felt like no one cared.

My daughter was born at the home and I placed her for adoption. I saw her only once, briefly, through the nursery window — then no more. Since she was born on the Fourth of July, I am reminded yearly of her birth in a "bang-up" way. I'm sure some people wondered why I cried while watching fireworks.

Well, my daughter found me after an eight-year search! What strong feelings surfaced after all those years. I was in a daze for a while. We sent pictures and talked on the phone, and now she, her husband and their two children are coming to see me! I want you to know about this, Abby, because I have always considered you an important part of my life.

Thank you, not only for your column, for the personal help you give people privately. I'm signing my name, but please don't use it.

YOUR FRIEND IN CALIFORNIA

(Is your social life in a slump? Lonely? Get Abby's updated, revised and expanded booklet, "How to Be Popular" — for people of all ages. Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Popularity, P.O. meters. At first I was devastated to consider that people would react with horror on seeing my skinny, meatless, bony legs. Actually no one noticed. I keep repeating a quotation of unknown origin that I would like to share with you:

Each day is made special
By what we can give it
By how we accept it
Then how we live in it.

ACCEPTING IT
DEAR ACCEPTING: A sobering thought. Sometimes being reminded of our mortality can cause us to re-examine our priorities, and possibly rearrange them. Thank you for sharing.

DEAR ABBY: Breast surgery is a bust indeed! I submit one man's observations for what they're worth: I am over 60, and during my lifetime I have made love to a number of women whose breasts have ranged in size from Dolly Parton look-alikes to "eggs over easy." One woman had a pair of 36s obtained by implants. Unfortunately, they were hard as rocks, and caressing a rock during lovemaking is a big turnoff.

Ladies, your reaction to being caressed is vastly more important than your shape. Satisfying sex has nothing to do with your measurements. If you don't leave your breasts alone, I will.

ONCE UPON A ROCK, SEABROOK, N.H.

DEAR ONCE: I am sure many of my more modestly endowed readers will find your candid observation both enlightening and encouraging. Women considering breast augmentation surgery should be advised of all possible negative results.

DEAR READERS: "Puzzled in Carmichael" complained about shoppers who pulled back the corn husks looking for "I don't know what." Although I was born and bred in Iowa, I admitted that I didn't know what the shoppers were looking for either.

Did I get letters? Shucks, I'm up to my ears in corny comments.

Dr. L. Lamoreaux of Portland, Ore., said: "Fresh corn is the sweetest. The only way you can test the freshness is by stripping back the husk and piercing a kernel with your thumbnail. If it squirts juice, it's young and tender. If it doesn't, leave it for the livestock. It's old."

Rosemary Polgar of Lomita, Calif., said: "You have to pull the husks back and look at the corn. If the kernels are large and yellow, the corn is tough. Smaller pale yellow or whitish kernels mean the corn is sweet."

From Edmonton (Canada): "The best corn is fresh picked, so if it's possible, buy it from the farmer. Old corn is gummy and sticks to the teeth because the sugar has already turned to starch, which also makes it higher in calories. Younger corn has fewer calories."

Mrs. A.L. Latta of Fort Worth, Texas (age 75), said: "I grow my own corn, so I know how fresh it is. And, by the way, it's re-

Humor Symposium Lots Of Laughs

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Good-natured gibes and barbs abounded Thursday on the opening day of a two-day symposium on humor and the presidency, and nobody appeared more amused than host and gaffe-master Gerald R. Ford himself.

"Oh, lots of belly laughs," the pipe-puffing former president responded when asked what he thought about the kickoff session, held at the presidential museum he founded in his former hometown five years ago.

Political comedian and perennial facetious presidential candidate Pat Paulsen got the proceedings under way by telling the gathering how delighted he was to be in the town that used to be the nation's Furniture City.

"It's really exciting to be here in Grand Rapids — if you happen to be a monk, I'm only here because I didn't want a tax audit," he cracked, as Ford chuckled in the audience.

Addressing the opening session, Paulsen explained just how hard it is to be the nation's chief executive.

"It's tough to be president," he said. "It means working 16, sometimes 20 hours a day ... Or for Ronald Reagan, two to three hours, maybe twice a week."

Looking back a few years, Paulsen reminded the audience that Lyndon B. Johnson was known for picking up a dog by the ears, showing his scars from an operation and conducting interviews in the bathroom.

"Was he trying to be funny or was there some serious brain damage here?" he asked, presumably in a rhetorical mode.

Another rhetorical question aimed at his host: "Does Gerald Ford work at being a pratfall artist or was it a gift from God?"

Jim Free, historian for Washington's satirical Gridiron Club, said 17 presidents have displayed their skills at political humor before the club over the years — and none better than Franklin D. Roosevelt, John F. Kennedy and Reagan.

JFK, in particular, was a master of humor, he said. Under attack because his wealthy father financed his entire campaign, Kennedy produced a telegram he claimed was from his father. It read: "Don't buy a single vote more than necessary. I'll be damned if I'll pay for a landslide."

Reagan recently told the Gridiron Club that he wasn't too worried about the deficit because "it's big enough to take care of itself."

Humorist art Buchwald said many of the humorists and cartoonists attending the first-of-its-kind symposium were responsible for kicking Richard Nixon out of office during the Watergate scandal.

"So Ford owes us a big debt because if it hadn't been for these cartoonists and humorists, he might not have been president," Buchwald said. "I think he's very grateful and this (symposium) is his way of showing it."

On a more serious note, political humorist Bob Orden said humor — when it veers out of bounds — can hurt the presidency.

"When you cross the line into ridicule I think it has a worldwide impact," he said. "When we start tearing down everything in this country, I think we're all in trouble."

Exceptional Children Council To Meet

The Seminole County Council for Exceptional Children (CEC) will show how micro-computers can be used to help exceptional children at home and at school at their first meeting of the 1986-87 school year. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. and the program will be at 7:30 p.m., Sept. 25, at the Winter Springs Elementary School on Route 434.

Dianne Mathews, a computer specialist at the Florida Diagnostic and Learning Resources System, will present the program.

CEC is the organization for professional educators in all areas of special education, for parents and also for citizens interested in services to handicapped children, perhaps with the goal of volunteering in these programs in the Seminole County Schools.

Regular program meetings are held throughout the school year and all interested people are invited to attend, participate and become members of the Seminole County Chapter of CEC.

For further information please call Marge Stewart, CEC program chairman, at 322-1791 or evenings at 904-734-2410.

Longing For The Days Of 'Nicer' Movies

Real Life Refreshed By Reel Life

Photos And Story
By Susan Loden
Herald Feature Writer

In reel life those who long for the good old days, when movies reflected a simpler time, have a glimmer of hope of seeing their favorite flicks now that some old-time major movies have been released in the home video tape market.

But, for those like Longwood's Bill Black, who has based his career as a creator and publisher of contemporary comic books on the impact he felt after being exposed to the fantasy world of B Westerns, the fodder of their fantasies is harder to find.

Black, 42, said he used to be part of a group of film buffs who got together and glutted their weekends with reel after reel of old movies. Locally, however, Black said he hasn't found any fellow film buffs. And, besides, he's really too busy to get as involved as he once was.

Black is busy creating a link between his comic book creations and top, old Western movies and his favorite television detective and Western television shows from the 1960s. In his comics he is working his all-time favorite film and comic book hero, the Durango Kid, played by Charles Starrett in films from the 1930s through 1952, into some of the super-hero comics he is producing today.

After Starrett, who was Black's friend, died at age 83 in March, Black, ran an editorial lauding his career and praising Starrett, the man behind the Kid, in his comic books. He is also running still pictures from some of the Durango Kid movies on the back covers of some of his comics.

If it sounds complex, bringing old-time movie cowboys to life in super-hero comics, it is. But Black has it all figured out down to a shootout that links his Captain Paragon character with the Durango Kid and other Old West heros. He even includes a detective character based on a combination of David Jansen's Richard Diamond and Harry O' television characters.

Longwood's Bill Black has his film collection to keep him content

Black takes the word fan to its origin, fanatic, when it comes to admiration of his movie and television heros. He hopes to revive interest in Westerns.

...Movies

He has a personal collection of 16 millimeter-filmed television shows and he has recently found another collector who has video tapes of "virtually everything I've ever wanted, all my favorite shows," Black said.

So he is sending his films to the man to be taped and in exchange the man is filling Black's personal video collection with tapes of his favorites.

"I've really been on a trip the past couple of months," he said.

When he sees his old film favorites, Black said, "I'm a kid again. I find myself reverting totally back to the '60s. In my life, I think that was my best time."

And Black, like many other old-film buffs, jongs for the days of "nicer" movies.

Today's movies are usually "too violent, have too much profanity," Black said. "I don't know if I want to say they have too much sex, but too much sex in the wrong places. It's nice that they have all the sex you want to look at, but there's certain movies when I think it doesn't fit, especially the language."

Black said the recent Lone Ranger movie fell into that latter category and broke with the clean-cut tradition that had been maintained by that masked hero as portrayed in previous decades by Clayton Moore. The profanity-filled Lone Ranger movie was a flop, Black said.

He did praise one of the few contemporary Western movies, Silverado. "It was really excellent and did quite well. We need more movies like that to get people interested in Westerns again." Black is so interested in Silverado that he has just about worn out his video tape of it.

If he could get it in 16 millimeter film and wide-screen, "I would wear it out watching it," he said.

Chris Rand of Sanford's Video Review said there are a lot of movie fans who feel as Black does and favor the old movies, although they don't make up the primary market in video tape buys and rentals.

Most popular with old-time video buffs are films like Casablanca and Gone With the Wind, Rand said.

But Black's favorites are a bit more obscure. His all-time favorite old film is The Durango Kid, released in 1940. He said other of the Kid's movies, those from 1948 through 1952 aren't available to film buffs, because Columbia Pictures hasn't released them. Earlier Durango Kid movies, from the '30s and early 40s can be seen today, he said.

Old obscure films and tapes of films and television shows, Black said, can be ordered through The Big Reel newspaper, Route 3, Madison, N.C., 27025.

Film fanciers also get together for annual conventions to meet with the old-time stars and see old films in Memphis, Tenn., and also in North Carolina, he said.

Of contemporary films, Black said, his favorite is the romantic, Somewhere in Time, starring Christopher Reeve, but not as Superman.

For Black there are no shows like the old shows. And more and more film buffs, with the availability of video taped movies, are moving in to check out these old favorites too.

George Washington's Psychic Told Him

He Limped, Had Bad Teeth, And Got Angry

By Mark Schwed
UPI TV Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — It may have started out as a joke, but when Barry Bostwick sought a psychic's advice for his role as George Washington, the response was chilling.

The psychic advised

Bostwick that Washington walked with a slight limp because a horse had once fallen on him — an image of the first president that had shown up nowhere in Bostwick's extensive research for "George Washington," an eight-hour, $20 million miniseries that

Barry Bostwick reprises his role as the father of our country.

CBS aired last year.

So when Bostwick ran into the psychic again just before starting the four-hour update, "George Washington: The Forging of a Nation," he couldn't resist asking for Washington's review.

"She supposedly has a direct line to Washington's spirit," Bostwick said. "So, when she went into her trance I asked her if Washington had watched the original miniseries. He said that yes, he had. Then I asked her if he liked it. The psychic said yes, Washington liked it, but there was one problem.

"He wanted me to be more angry," Bostwick said. "That was really strange because while we were filming the first part, there was a debate at one point about whether Washington should show some anger in one scene. I thought he should but they didn't want to do anything to harm Washington's image. So we left anger out.

"This time around, there's a little anger," Bostwick said.

"George Washington: The Forging of a Nation," airing Sept. 21, 8-9 p.m. and Sept. 22, 9-11 p.m. EDT, on CBS, WCPX-Channel 6, stars Bostwick as President Washington, and Patty Duke as his wife, Martha.

Both minis were based on the Pulitzer Prize-winning four-volume biography by James Thomas Flexner. The first chronicled Washington's life from age 19 to 51, through the revolution. The second carries on through Washington's presidential years, during the forging of a new nation.

Like many Americans, Bostwick grew up knowing little about America's first president, except that he fought at Valley Forge, Pa. and lived at Mount Vernon, that he chopped down a cherry tree and that he could not tell a lie.

But after he got the role, he immersed himself in Washington's life, and learned much about the man's personal side.

He has played Washington in his home and on his battlefields; he has read maps, letters and documents in Washington's own handwriting, and he has learned to eat an apple like a man with bad teeth and fix his hair as Washington would.

Mario Thomas has been nominated for an Emmy for her riveting performance as Marie Balter in "Nobody's Child." Will she win? Find out when "The 38th Annual Emmy Awards" airs Sunday, Sept. 21, on NBC, WESH-TV, Channel 2.

MOTORWEEK ILLUSTRATED

What's Happening?

By Nancy M. Reichardt

ALL MY CHILDREN:

Wade prevented Benny from taking an ailing Phoebe to a doctor. Erica told Jeremy that she had really called him from Cuba, not Seattle. Jesse realized that Roy is sweet on Hillary. Tad shared a smooch with Skye, who insisted that they can only be friends. Wade romped in the sack with Shelley, but daydreamed about killing her after Phoebe is also "eliminated." Stuart befriended a blind girl named Yolanda. Wade ordered Shelley in another Phoebe to death. Nina and Cliff relived some of their wedded past, but didn't fall into bed together. Wade put more pills into Phoebe's drinks. Brooke was jealous to see Tom comforting Skye over Stuart's disappearance. Nina was stunned when Bobby told her that Cliff is going to marry Amy. Matt taunted Jeremy that Erica must have a new man in her life. Tad and Robin failed to make Phoebe heed their anonymous warning that Wade is evil.

ANOTHER WORLD:

Peter, who knows Marissa's true identity, is desperate to get her out of Bay City. Cheryl stuck up for Scott, who told Vince that he was adopted by Reginald and Marissa. Adam and M.J. learned that Reginald had visited a hospital patient during the time that Mary had reportedly died. Michael foiled Peter's attempt to frame Jake on theft charges. A judge ordered Mac and Rachel to let Mitch spend time with Matthew. Vince didn't see Marissa, who watched while he prayed at Mary's grave. Mitch gave Felicia a ride home and then spent a platonic night at her pad, which had been trashed by an intruder. Rachel reacted with jealousy when she learned Mitch spent the night with Felicia. Mitch warned Reginald that he doesn't want anyone hurt during their caper in Bay City. An ailing Britanny flashed back to the night Peter had raped her. On Reginald's orders, Mitch removed more of "the trump" from the tunnel.

AS THE WORLD TURNS:

Dennis, who's receiving death threats, told Hal that if Tad were alive he'd be the one making the threatening phone calls. Beatrice took Barbara's son, Paul, on a tour of the dungeons and tunnels in Duncan's castle. Kim was shocked to learn Emily's mother, Susan, applied for a job at Memorial Hospital. Paul told Barbara that he saw someone in a monk's robe in the castle tunnel. Hensley found Tad's briefcase, which contained a cryptic note. A despondent Holden assumed that Lily wants to share her life with Dusty. Meg is determined to make Dusty see that they belong together. In Nevada, two thugs brandishing guns broke into Shannon and Harriet's hotel room. Mrs. Hatchley warned Duncan that Beatrice may be regaining her memory. Craig was re-manded to a maximum-security prison. Duncan lent Barbara a small fortune. Emma placed Barbara and Tonia at the site of Tad's murder.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES:

Roman tried to save Britta, who died after she was shot by a mystery person. Marlena's kidnappers ordered Roman to find the treasury plates or they'll kill Marlena. Marlena escaped from her captors, who work for Vaughn, the I.S.A. chief. Kimberly comforted Neil, who was despondent that Liz rushed off to Hollywood to film a movie role. Doug went to Europe to talk to Julie about a divorce. Ho and Hope split up again when he returned to work for Victor. Patch ran off into the night after Kayla told the cops that she heard him threaten to kill Britta. Kayla and Patch escaped from two thugs who took them captive then quizzed Patch about Britta. Frankie found the gun used to kill Britta. Gregory and Billings. The gun had belonged to Britta. Shane was unhappy when the I.S.A. sent Peachy away, then assigned him a new partner, Gillian. Mike decided to stay in Salem.

GENERAL HOSPITAL:

Tiffany bailed Sean out of the slammer before Monica could. In Port Charles, Frisco and Felicia found Edna lying on the floor in a warehouse. Damon, who realized that Duke is a traitor, warned Duke to follow his orders or Robin and Anna would be killed. Simon (Alan) told Charity that he wants to marry her. Convinced that Jake is in love with Terry, Bobbi called off her marriage to Jake. Lucy forged Kevin's name to a letter defaming Terry then sold the letter to a sleazy newspaper. Sandy and Jimmy Lee shared a passionate kiss. Robin phoned Robert in Australia after she overheard Damon threaten Anna's life. Sandy and Jimmy Lee are concerned that Buzz may be suffering drug withdrawal symptoms. Tiffany and Sean smooched after he refused to believe Monica, who said she didn't send him the "Dear John" letter. Patrick is beginning to distrust Lucy. Duke compiled a file of evidence about his crime pals.

GUIDING LIGHT:

Simon and Johnny rescued Jesse, who nearly died from lack of oxygen while hiding in the plane. Alan and India smooched after he said he'd help her adopt Dorie. Simon and Jesse were captured by the San Rios military who turned them over to their leader, Tito Montoya. A hospitalized Philip was ordered to rest or he'll be endangering his health. Calla's suspicious of why Vanessa's asking questions about Jesse. H.B. took a punch at Hawk, who tried to kiss an unwilling Lillian. Alex came out of her delirious state long enough to learn that she's in an isolated convent. Billy helped Roxie enroll in college. Ross pressured Johnny to return to San Rios to get Simon and Jesse. Philip didn't believe India, who lied that Dorie isn't Dinah's sister. Fletcher quizzed Louie and Marve about Ben's parentage after George. Louie's drunken cousin, said Louie doesn't have a cousin Ben's age. Vanessa learned Jesse is in San Rios.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE:

Jamie went bananas when Vince manhandled Susan, who died after she fell and hit her head. Jonathan caught male prisoner, Axel, trying to smother Dorian. Dorian said goodbye to Cassie, who went to Europe. Tina accused Maria of using Thomas to distract Vikki so that Maria can move in on Clint. Joy left with Cassie and Rob decided to follow them. Vince and Jamie made it look like Dan killed Susan. The police found Mitch's audio tape, which proved Dorian didn't kill Mitch. Dorian refused to leave prison so that she can get info on the crack ring. Vikki went into labor while at her mountain cabin with Thomas, who found a letter that indicated that he could be Joe's twin brother. Larry approves of Dan's relationship with Allison. Dorian realized Susan was killed because she knew about the crack ring. Allison, who's still programmed by Mitch, remembered that he wanted her to abduct Vikki's baby when it was born.

SEARCH FOR TOMORROW:

Sunny was surprised when Estelle said she's engaged to marry Bela, who's been romantically fixating between both women. Quinn showed Hogan the gold coins he found. Hogan told his mother, Kate, that he has explained Matt's death to Quinn and Cagney. Jo overheard coin dealer Mr. Klein telling Judge Henderson about the coins Quinn found. Judge Henderson and Hogan discussed a legend that claims there's a hidden treasure in Henderson. Wilma moved out of Stu's pad. Jerry's sure that the gold is in the McCleary home.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS:

Jack convinced Carl to investigate Sven after Jack said he thinks Sven tried to kill Jill. Casey kept mum about Nikki's illness when Nikki said she can't figure out why Victor is being so nice to her all of a sudden. Victor sent Matt on another South American business trip. Philip and Cricket are enrolled in some of the same college classes. Sven fits Leo's description of the man who saw Jack borrow Leo's gun. Sven held Jill prisoner after forcing her to come to his pad for a massage. Ashley returned from Paris, but she hasn't told Victor that she's pregnant. Sven forced Jill to phone Michael and call off the trip they planned. Cricket and a returned Danny celebrated the album that he cut out in Hollywood. Jack suspected that Jill's in danger after he learned that she has seemingly disappeared. Victor made a mysterious phone call to his divorce lawyer.

Waugh's Satire Returns To TV

By Al Webb
LONDON (UPI) — "Scoop," as any self-respecting journalist will tell you, is required reading for every aspiring war correspondent. Novelist Evelyn Waugh didn't plan it that way — and he certainly didn't intend it for television entertainment.

The irascible Waugh was venting his own frustrations in covering the run-up to Mussolini's invasion of Abyssinia when he chronicled the fictional doings of "Boot of the Beast," a gardening writer turned combat reporter through a case of mistaken identity.

The biting satire of his small novel does not lend itself easily to portrayal on the screen, large or small, which is probably why America's Paramount Pictures sat on the rights to "Scoop" for two decades or more.

But that was before London Weekend Television, an independent U.K. company, stepped in to rectify the situation. It acquired the rights from Paramount and is now spending $3.75 million to turn it into a two-hour TV movie.

"We thought about it for an awfully long time," conceded executive producer Nick Elliot. "It's a difficult novel, treading as it does a difficult line between satire and realism."

Money, or a lack of it, also posed a problem — until the Mobil oil company moved in to buy the American TV rights for an undisclosed sum. "It was a very handsome sale," said Elliot. "That was the real go-ahead."

The news will delight any journalist who has ever covered a war (in "Scoop" it is civil conflict in an African Fifth World country called Ishmailla) from a flea-bag hotel (the novel's Hotel Liberty, in Jacksonburg) and battled officialdom and communications every step of the way.

To them, Waugh's satire is reality carried to its logical absurdity. For the Hotel Liberty, read Hamdan Hotel in Basra, Iraq. For Ishmailla, read Nigeria, or Lebanon, or Uganda.

For officialdom and communications, try Guyana, where they hand out visas that expire 24 hours before issue — and where a photo transmission intended for New York once made it from a hotel room to a telephone in the adjacent room.

But the axiom is that the tribulations of journalists rarely make interesting reading, or viewing. Certainly "Scoop" is one of the lesser known works of an author whose contributions also include "Brideshead Revisited" and "The Loved One."

"It is one of my favorite books," Elliot said. "I just thought it deserved doing," a task he embarked upon three years ago.

Watch Out Mothers! Daughters Keep Winning

Dear Debra — I say that Ted Danson played the part of Mark Dalton on "All My Children" in the early 1970s and was replaced by Mark LaMura. My daughter doesn't agree. Who's right? — D.C., Jacksonville, Texas.

Mothers, please! Our daughters are going to get swelled heads if they keep winning these argumental Mark LaMura was the only actor to play Mark Dalton — one of my personal favorites on "All My Children." Danson did appear, however, on another soap and perhaps you're thinking of that. From 1974 to 1976, the future "Cheers" bartender and ladies' man played Tom Conway on NBC's "Somerset," replacing Michael Nouri in the part.

Dear Debra — One of my favorite actors is Tim Matheson. Can you possibly print a list of some movies he has been in so I might find them on video cassettes? — P.P., Amarillo, Texas.

How about "Animal House"? "Fletch"? "A Little Sex"? For the record, he was also in "Bus Stop," a drama on HBO. On network TV, he was in "Tucker's Witch." "Window on Main Street" and some westerns: "The Virginian," "The Quest" and "Bonanza."

Celebrity Corner

Debra Katz

Dear Debra — Please settle an argument my daughter and I are having. In the movie "Holiday Inn," with Bing Crosby, Vera Ellen and Rosemary Clooney, who was the male dancer? My daughter says it was Fred Astaire and I say it was Gene Nelson. Who is right? — M.S., Mt. Clemens, Mich.

Sorry, mom, but daughter knows best on this one!
