Japan To Spend $460,000,000 On Air-Shelters

Cabinet Passes Plan For Underground Havens For Officials

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24. (AP)—Japan, tightening her internal structure against the growing stress of war, announced recently a $460,000,000 program to provide permanent underground air-raid shelters for key government offices and stricter control over the population of major industrial centers subject to air attack.

A Japanese Domei news agency dispatch as recorded by the Federal Communications Commission said the Cabinet of Premier General Kuniaki Koiso, a target of increasing criticism at home for failure to adopt drastic measures, approved the program Friday.

The plan also gives the government control over "solidly built" structures capable of use as air-raid shelters. A recent Tokyo domestic broadcast said building officials in some cities had been barring crowds seeking safety during American air raids.

Domei said the program provides for speeding removal of old and young and of unproductive mothers from cities while restricting departures of war workers with a view to insuring the necessary numbers of personnel in war factories. The Japanese broadcast did not elaborate on the later provision.

Plane Plant Is Hard-Hit HEADQUARTERS OF 21ST BOMBER COMMAND, G-4, Jan. 24. (AP)—American Superfortresses which attacked the important Kawasaki aircraft plant in the Osaka-Kobe industrial area yesterday, scored at least 115 bomb hits in a 4,000-foot radius of the factory, all but obliterating the engine plant, photographs revealed today.

The raid was the most successful ever made by B-29s on a Japanese aircraft factory. It was the first time the Kawasaki plant, situated near Kobe on Japan's main island of Honshu, had been attacked, and photo- graphs revealed that two-thirds of the plant were completely burned out by fire and blast damage. In addition, a concentration of bomb bursts was reported in the engine assembly plant, warehouse area and dispersal area, which is a large airfield adjacent to the factory.

The Tokyo radio reported in a domestic broadcast that a single B-29 had made a reconnaissance flight about 8:30 a. m. (Japanese time) over the Tokyo-Yokohama area without dropping bombs, according to a recording by the Federal Communications Commission.

U. S. Quadruples Liquor Imports From Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 24. (AP)—Americans are not mixing liquor and politics, according to figures published here showing that the United States through suspending diplomatic relations with Argentina, last year quadrupled purchases of Argentine vermouth, gin, wine and other liquors.

A survey by the Buenos Aires branch of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, listed liquor exports to the North American neighbor during the first ten months of 1944 as 7,190 tons. Exports for the same period of 1943 were 4,330 tons.

During the last year, which marked the lowest point in United States-Argentine relations, Americans drank the greatest number of tons of Argentine liquor in history. In 1944 the export figures included 6,630 tons of vermouth, 6,020 tons of gin, 2,779 tons of wine, 578 tons of champagne, 126 tons of cognac, 91 tons of beer, 31 tons of brandy, 43 tons of medicinal and liqueur, 40 tons of other liquors.

Americans, unable to slake their thirst because of war-time liquor shortages, turned southward for further supplies and created a liquor production boom in Argentina. In 1943, total Argentine liquor exports were valued at 75,000 pesos ($18,530), none going to the United States which had ample European and domestic supply. In 1939 when war broke out the United States bought only one ton of Argentine liquor valued at 1,000,000 pesos ($248,400).

During the four subsequent years when European supplies were cut off and domestic production curtailed, Americans bought 14,940 tons of Argentine liquor worth 14,577,000 pesos ($3,620,016) or more than half the value of Argentina's total liquor exports estimated at 27,100,000 pesos ($6,753,499).

American war-time purchases of Argentine liquor up to last November totaled 31,141 tons. The value of exports to the United States up to last June totaled 29,250,000 pesos ($7,406,530), accounting for at least 45 per cent of the value of all Argentine liquor exports.

Low Chapman Anderson's expedition into central Asia (1921-1923) was the largest land ex- ploring expedition ever sent out from America, comprising 10 men, 150 camels and eight motor cars. The cost of the work was $300,000.

Cleveland, O., came very near to being the automobile capital of the United States, instead of Detroit, as more than 80 different makes of cars were built there during the early days of the industry.

Five rivers in Virginia were named after Queen Anne of England.

Realistic Warfare Is Practiced In Training Air Troops At Maxton

FIELD, N. C. All around the light would not glint on their planes. They had been out from their hangars late in the afternoon. The airframe troops had strung out, concealed the planes and fanned out into the woods.

The airframe troops in this case were advanced student pilot-crews taking a course in military training. As they traced down the muddy road in the darkness, they were not "lancers" and not

Troop Carrier Command had been

There are several hundred gliders in an airborne division.
That makes pilots and co-pilots a sizable body of men. We're teaching them to use hand tools to help out with the fighting while they're in the air. We're returning them to their units.

The major and his staff headquarters troops had "parachuted" into the drop area at 5 o'clock. A half-hour later two "scout"
gliders appeared. The gliders carried two paratroopers
each.
The

each.
The
gliders carried
two

Quickly, as dark fell, the troops established a "perimeter defense." This perimeter defense is an important thing in airborne warfare. It is a rifle, machine gun and mortar ring around the "airhead." It is maintained in a constant widening circle as the airhead expands.

Next day the tow-planes were to come back to drop "paratroopers" of supplies and pull the gliders out by the spectacular "pick-up" method.

In a real operation of this near-commando type, light engineering equipment would be landed by glider, and an airstrip cut out. Then C-47 transport planes could come in with heavy guns and come in with heavy guns and light tanks. (Paratroopers can bring in the 75-mm pack howitzer, broken up into several pieces, and the new C-10 glider can carry a 155-mm howitzer.)

If the operation were on the grand "development" scale now envisioned by some airborne warfare planners, however, things would not stop there. Heavier planes would land with even heavier engineering equipment after the first airstrip had been cut out.

At nearby Camp Mackall, I talked with Col. J.T. Dalbey, commanding officer of the Air-Force Center, where ground troops are trained for deployment by glider and parachute. Col.

Dalbey gave me some ideas about how airborne troops should be used.

For Strategic Use Only
To begin with," he said, "airborne forces must be attached to headquarters of the theater commander, to be used strategically in groups in battle at random by lower headquarters.

Ordinarily (he was speaking here of the semi-commando type of operation) they should be dropped only as far in advance as ground troops will be able to penetrate in three to five days.
When the ground troops catch up they should be pulled out."

Another principle "which Col.
Dalbey set out was that Airborne troops should never be used when the job can be done any other way. The cost in time and planning is too great. And when they are used they should be used in overwhelming force, with success assured as nearly as possible.

"It is important that after the end of the war British enterprise shall not concentrate on meeting immediate home demand." He promised that during the period of transition the government would help stimulate construction or consumption of both if the total demand for goods and services threaten to prove insufficient to keep the population at work.

Navy Privateer Tops Liberator In Speed, Range

Long, Roomy Single-Tail Search Plane Carries 12 Guns

SAN DIEGO Calif., Jan. 26, (AP)—The Navy this week unveiled the new four-engine plane Privateer, 65,000 pounds of dead-weight hitting power and stamina, which has just made its appearance in combat.

It is a built-for-the-job search plane modeled after the basic design of the Consolidated Liberator—the Navy's PB4Y and the Army's B-24—but it bears little resemblance to its predecessor.

The Privateer, known by the Navy designation PB1V, has greater range, greater speed, greater fire-power and carries considerably more equipment than the Liberator. It is considered one of the most efficient long-range search planes in existence.

One of the striking visible differences between it and the Liberator is its single tail, which provides larger cones of fire for guns firing aft, greater flight stability and less drag. The Liberator has a twin tail.

Japanese Have Seen It

Newspaper men were given their first look at the Privateer several weeks ago, but were not permitted to release details until the Japanese had seen it.

It was built to give the Navy a search plane with great endurance and one which could fight its way out of trouble. The PB1V Liberator has given excellent service on search missions but Navy airmen were not satisfied. They wanted greater search efficiency, more fuselage space and a different type of armament. The Privateer was the result.

Only potterable resemblance between the Privateer and the Liberator is the long, narrow wing. The new ship is seven feet longer than its predecessor. It can fly well over 3,000 miles and stay in the air as long as twenty hours without refueling. To accomplish this, the bomb bays have been designed to hold several combinations of auxiliary fuel tanks, bombs and depth charges, depending on the mission.

Bomb Match Liberator Load

It is equipped with six power-driven turrets holding twelve 50-caliber machine guns. Its bomb load is the same as the Army Liberator, but the new design allows the PB1V to carry larger bombs.

The power plant includes four Pratt and Whitney twin Wasp engines. These have been redesigned for low fuel consumption and to provide considerably more

Tannenberg's Battle History Traces To 1410

Captured East Prussian City Site Of Defeat In World War

(By Associated Press)

Tannenberg, captured by the Russians invading East Prussia lies in one of the most battle-scarred areas in the world. Tannenberg became famous in modern history, however, as the arena of the greatest victory achieved by either side at the outset of the first world war, and the battle had far-reaching effects.

Two Russian armies attacked Tannenberg in East Prussia in 1914, at the headwaters of the wars—the western Allies marshaled their strength. One Russian force struck at the Insterburg gap, the other, to the south, sprang from the Narwe river. The battle in the north was costly and inconclusive, but the Russians advanced in strength from the Narwe.

Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg took over the German command Aug. 26, 1914, when the right wing of the Russian drive from the Narwe was well across the frontier and its left came as the German province came mainly into the southern border. His forces were numerically inferior.

Hindenburg's chief of staff General Erich Ludendorff, decided to withdraw most of his units facing the north wing of the Russian attack and direct them against the more menacing drive in the south. On Aug. 26 he attacked simultaneously on both flanks in the south. The Russians fell back. He followed up the attack the next day, and Russian retreat grew to proportions of a rout.

The result of the four-day battle before Tannenberg, from Aug. 26 to 30, was annihilation of two Russian corps, reduction of three others to half their strength and demoralization of the entire Russian 2d Army.

The Battle of Tannenberg is known also as the Battle of the Masurian Lakes, because that chain of lakes, extending fifty miles from Augustburg in East Prussia to the Russian frontier at Johannsburg, formed a natural barrier bolstering the thinly held German line. In January, 1915, the Germans again defeated the Russian Army in the same lake area.

Tannenberg, on July 15, 1410, was the scene of a battle in which the Poles and Lithuanians completely routed forces of the Order of Teutonic Knights. The date is celebrated as the Polish national holiday.

The Teutonic Knights, who sprang from the Crusades as a military and religious order, were landowners in East Prussia for several centuries, and even after their defeat in 1410 they retained possession, although as vassals of Poland. The French Revolution deprived the order of all its estates, and in 1809 it was suppressed. It was resuscitated in Austria in 1840 as a semi-religious knightly order, closely associated with the Hapsburgs, but, the Encyclopaedia Britannica notes, the real heirs were the Hohenzollerns of Prussia.

Ronald Colman, as "Hafiz," King of Beggars, shows a couple of dobbing members of his clan a trick of the trade in this scene from the Ritz Theatre's technicolor picturization of "King of the Beggars," also starring Mariene Dietrich, opens Sunday at the Ritz.

mele of distinction in his life, when at one time there were so few prisoners in the City Jail, that temporarily free, he was hired by the City as cook for the jail. Wanderlust, as so often in the past, got the better of him however, and he left for more misadventures.

But it wasn't so extravagant as it seemed. Hats were bigger then—and also fewer. Mother's hand-made mauve velour was good for several seasons.

Today, Mother's hat bills may total as much or more than the price of that quaint old velour. But she gets many more hats for her money.

It's much the same with electric bills. If yours seem about the same as they did years ago, it's because you are enjoying so many more electric conveniences now. And you're getting far more electricity for your money than you ever did before—about twice as much today as you did 15 years ago.

Not only has the price of electricity come down steadily through the years, but it has stayed down while war sent other costs climbing.

Hard work and good business management by your friends in this company will continue to make electricity dependable, cheap—one of the big bargains of all time.

Four Principles To Guide Shipping Foodstuffs By Air

of fresh produce by air during the early period of air cargo development, Larsen asks, "What are the characteristics of a commodity suited to successful air shipment?"

(1) Of relatively high market value to prevent the cost of transportation from being an unreasonably large part of the retail price.

(2) Either so perishable that it is not ordinarily marketed far from the point of production, or an item which, through field-tipping, shows marked superior quality.

(3) Of high, uniform quality, attractively packaged, shipped when absolutely fresh and conspicuously identified as a delicacy.

(4) Sufficiently commonplace to permit the public to appreciate superior quality.

Possession of these qualities gives some assurance, Larsen believes, that a commodity transported by air freight can find consumer acceptance at a retail price sufficient to pay the increased cost of such shipment.

And this increased cost, he adds, will include not only the difference between air and rail rates, but also the costs of extra field packing, careful handling, packaging, etc.

"Any lack of responsibility (in the choice of commodities) on the part of grower, shiner or distributor would not only be poor business practice, but would make dupes of American consumers," Larsen asserts.

In describing the tests, still underway, through which the Detroit research group sought the most likely air freight candidates among a long list of commodities, Larsen cites as an example a comparison of California tomatoes shipped by rail with others packed when ripe from the same

John Philip Sousa Leaves His Library To Stetson School

DELAND, Jan. 22. (Special) America's "March King," the late John Philip Sousa of "Stars and Stripes" fame, has bequeathed to the Stetson School of Music by his will, which took effect last week, the contents of his extensive library of musical scores and manuscripts.

The Sousa library, packed in 30 crates, was valued at over $100,000 and has already been placed at Stetson University and catalogued in a new way.

According to Dr. W. F. Dink, director of the Stetson library, the collection of hand and printed music, including many original compositions and several compositions with dated marginal notes, is the largest collection of Sousa's music in the world.

36,000 Tons Of Food Shipped To Greece

NEW YORK, Jan. 22. (Special)—Shipments of more than 36,000 tons of urgently needed food, consigned to liberated Greece by the Greek War Relief Association, are expected to arrive in that country within a few days, according to officials of the National War Fund which finances the work of the Greek War Relief Association.

The food shipments were parts of the cargoes of six Swedish vessels which cleared a Canadian port during the last few weeks and are due to reach Greece in time to relieve the acute food shortage during the crucial winter months, said the report.

Included in the food shipments were 17,053 tons of dried vegetables, 9,059 tons of fish, 2,242 tons of concentrated milk, 2,510 tons of spaghetti and flour, 2,434 tons of sugar, 1,470 tons of concentrated soup, 1,152 tons of lard and oil, 1,927 tons of rice and 125 tons of oatmeal and VM compound.

In addition to the food supplies, the cargoes also contain 750 tons of clothing, comprising more than 2,250,000 individual garments, 4,000 blankets, and 300,000 pairs of shoes.

Medical and hospital supplies in excess of 1,300 tons, together with 30 tons of soap are also being shipped, as well as 40 beryls, 150 oil stoves, 100,000 needles and 2,500 dozen spoons of wood.

The report of the War Fund chairman also stated that first-hand reports from recently liberated Greek islands indicate that although some supplies are being received, there is a dire need for food, clothing and medicine to relieve the suffering and distress of thousands of men, women and children.

The average daily movement of fruits and vegetables from Florida is about 400 cars per day. More than 1000 cars were shipped on Monday, Jan. 22 the last day prior to the embargo order. Grows indicated that shipments would be about average 700 cars per day.

Steps are being taken by the Vegetable Committee to get permits to move refer cases which were placed at shipping points before news of the embargo reached the industry to avoid loss of vegetables already harvested.

FEPC Rejected In Manpower Legislation

would vote tomorrow afternoon on the George bill.
After that vote, he said, any committee member can move to take up the Wallace nomination itself.

Senator Pepper (D-Fla.), a Wallace supporter, said it looked as though a majority of the committee would vote for the George plan splitting up the Commerce and lending agency posts.

Wallace said he saw for himself an opportunity to handle both tasks as he is.

He provided 60,000,000 jobs at increased wages.
Set up new methods of financing for all business which he said has been squeezed even since the Federal Reserve System was established in 1913.

Wallace spent a large part of the morning on prepared testimony, but some questions were interjected by committee members in that session, and he was examined even more fully after a brief luncheon recess.

Senator Brewster (R-Me.) recalled President Roosevelt's letter dismissing Jones and frankly conceding the Wallace appointment was a reward for political services. He wondered aloud if Wallace would make loans to "serving Democrats."

Political Control
Wallace said he could "assume" Brewster that he would not operate on such a basis, declaring he would function as he did when he was Secretary of Agriculture. Then the even James A. Farley, former Democratic national chairman, "ever forced me" to accept a political appointment who did not possess the merit for the job, Wallace said.

At that point Wallace, former one hand with the index finger of the other, asserted that he would not want to take over the RFC until there has been an audit "to discover its exact financial status."

As to specific changes he might make in RFC policy, Wallace said that question from Senator McMillan (D-Ark.) was answered as "very off."

The questioning session ended at 1:45 P. M. and the committee immediately went into executive session.

Wallace's first public appearance since his Vice Presidential term expired drew as big an audience as assumed the room's exterior to hear the deposit of Jones.

Rev. Paul Yalm—Pastor of the Church of God—5th Street and Holly Avenue.

Remember the words of the Lord Jesus how he said—

Man shall not live by bread alone but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.

For some time now our little notes to you have been on the "Words of Jesus," and to that one, whose sins are under the blood, these words of Jesus are very precious, but to one who has not tasted of God's love, many of the words of Jesus are dark. First we must know the mind of God before we can know how to call on Him for salvation and the many other blessings He has for us.

We want therefore to bring to you after today the "Mind of Jesus."

What a study this is, to attain a dim reflection of it, is the ambition of Angels, higher they cannot soar.

To be conformed to the image of His Son, is the end of His Church from the predestination of His Church from all eternity—We shall be like Him, is the Bible picture of heaven.

Oh! how lofty, such a standard, how all divine perfection shrinks abashed and confounded before a living portrait like this.

He is the true Angel standing in the sun, who alone projects no shadow, may we not, however, seek at least to approximate, though we cannot adequately resemble.

It is impossible on earth to associate with a fellow being, without getting in some degree assimilated to him. So the more we study the mind of Christ, the more we are in His company—holding converse with Him as our best and dearest friend—catching up His holy looks and holy deeds—the more shall we be transformed into His image.

Consider, says a great apostle (literally says on Christ Jesus (Heb. 3:1) study feature by feature, lineament by lineament, of that peerless Exemplar, gaze on the Son of Righteousness, till, like gazing long on the natural sun, you carry away with you, on your spiritual vision, dazzling images of His brightness and glory. We must never forget that it is not the mind, but the work of Immanuel, which lies at the foundation of a sinner's hope.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY: PRAY FOR GUIDANCE THE LAST THING BEFORE YOU GO TO SLEEP: The Lord shall give thee what thy soul desireth in all things.—1 Tim. 5:7.

Gray Day (From The Christian Science Monitor)

This sky is a pigeon's leaden wing. Brick buildings brood; their purple cast. Gives them a look of pinched-with-cold. Sound is subdued; it seems aghast.

Many a person is going to live a lot longer because of certain wartime shortages, for instance, cigarettes.

The Tampa Times, incensed over the removal of Jesse Jones to make way for Henry Wallace, wonders if it isn't a bad thing thus to swap horses in mid-stream.

It now takes two red points to get a pound of lard. By the way, what ever happened to Goering? — Fort Myers News Press. We hope he's still filling his belly with bullets.

The State of Georgia seems about to have its own little private civil war over the question of repealing the poll tax. You'd think that was the only solution for the race problem.

New Yorkers are to have two "meatless" days a week as a counter-offensive to the meat shortage. Two meatless days a week won't hurt anyone. . . if you can get meat on the other days.

If you do not read the Herald classified ads, you are missing a good bet in these days of rationing, priorities and scarcities. You will find here lots of good bargains you can't find anywhere else.

Jesse Jones undoubtedly believes there are many men in the United States incapable of handling the job of lending billions of dollars to Uncle Sam's money, but of all of them he probably would pick Henry Wallace as the least capable. No one would question Mr. Wallace's honesty, but whether he has enough ice in his eye, enough stone in his heart, to make a good watchdog of the treasury remains to be seen.

A young naval lieutenant just returned from the Pacific where he did his full part toward eliminating the yellow menace reveals that he now rates a house where there is no rent ceiling for three times what the house brought just before the war, while his own home in California happens to be in an area where the OPA keeps rents down to the level of three years ago. One is forced to conclude that there is something unfair about that.

As the Russians drive closer and closer to Berlin there is a growing tendency to misconstrue their heroic military triumphs with testimonies for Communist. And on the other hand there is an increasing fear that we may be substituting one form of world dictatorship for another. It seems to me that one far wiser Russian success under a system of government which is admirably adapted to their own people without considering that such arbitrary and unscrupulous rule would work equally as well with us.

John Temple Grandin is another who objects to the word "liberal" by politicians, writers and commentators who seem to be primarily interested in the liberal use of other people's money. He suggests that "radical" is a better name for them since it applies simply to one who goes to the root of things for better or for worse. They probably would not like that name because it has the unpleasant connotation of going to the root of things for worse far more often than for the better. And as it is with liberals who believe in unbridled government so strongly that they think it has a cure for every-

Building Boom Coming

One thing sure about this country, when peace comes, is that there will be a lot of new building, and not necessarily where people expect it. Robert P. Gerholz of Flint, Mich., president of the National Association of Home Builders, has some interesting ideas on this subject. He says there will be immense struggles, in cities and settlement areas, over resettlement of American population, and out of them our people will create "a new pattern of living."

Many cities, he says, will face years of disappointment because they will lose their present war plants "through unpreparedness to assimilate the new population." In the first 10 years after the war, he believes, we are going to build an America that will be one-fourth new. This will take enterprise, courage and hard work but he thinks we can do it.

The most interesting and argumentative problem, he suggests, is whether the job shall be done by the government or the people themselves. From present indications it looks as if both will be on the job, with the government possibly taking the lead. In fact, according to Frank W. Cortright, executive vice president of the National Association of Home Builders, the Public Housing Authority is right now "the head of a going concern greater in size than General Motors, its assets in housing exceeding three billion dollars."

Power—For What? The most alarming fact, perhaps, in this war, is the immense power wielded by the combatants. And the most impressive fact in civil life is the almost incredible growth of modern communication.

The letter was foreshadowed more than 300 years ago by Shakespeare, whose "Puck" boasted of "putting a girdle round the earth in forty minutes." But it is not recorded that anyone in real life ever did so until the latter part of the last century, via the telegraph. Now we have not only the telephone and telegraph, but the radio and that mysterious "radar" which seems more remarkable than any previous method of communication.

But consider the immense and ever-growing power of present explosives. Cities are completely destroyed, by air or land, in a way that makes the ancient Huns and Vandals seem like mere children playing with dangerous toys. We now seem to wreak all this destruction rather lightly, with the easy assumption that what has been done by explosive power can be replaced as easily. And so it can, perhaps, in a material way. But what becomes of human confidence, security, and the great systems of life and thought that we have known as "civilization"?

The Tories have been maligned. For years the word has been used in the United States to indicate extreme reaction and stupidity. It was once said of the Bourbon kings of France, "They have learned nothing and forgotten nothing." Most people would call that a perfect picture of the British Tories.

Perhaps it is a wrong idea. A Tory nobleman, Viscount Hinchinbrooke, has published a party program whose very title "Full Speed Ahead!" runs absolutely counter to American notions of Toryism. He points out that in Britain the Tories have been the landowners' party, and their Whig and Liberal rivals have been the party of business.

LABOR AND THE FARMERS have often been neglected by the Whigs and the Liberals, and favored by Tory legislation. The great Tory prime minister Benjamin Disraeli even anticipated much of the work of our own New Deal. Lord Hinchinbrooke proposes to continue the Disraeli tradition.

There seems to be much truth in what he says, unfortunate as this may be since it may deprive the American political vocabulary of a handy term of abuse.

SANFORD FORUM

R. L. Dean, Editor, The Sanford Herald, Sanford, Florida. Dear Mr. Dean: In Wednesday's issue of your valued paper, I read the following item: "Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, is planning on going into the movies. Yes, and we're thinking of taking up singing."

As far as I'm concerned, there is no objection to Mr. Johnston going into the movies but I am greatly concerned with the possibility of your taking up singing.

I have often listened to the sounds that seemed to pour forth from your throat through your lips, at meetings of the local Rotary Club, and all I want to say is this: "Don't take up singing; just let it be." As a potential singer, I believe you are a fine editor. You may even be considered, for a man of your years, a capable and somewhat agile tennis player. But as a singer! I just can't hear you, at all.

Sincerely and harmoniously, Charles S. Morrison, Rotary Club Song-leader.

The ODER NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

In the years just past the war tides have lapped over many famous rivers, known in song, cherished for their beauty, or celebrated for their influence upon the lives of peoples. But the Oder, which surges as a possible barrier to the onrushing Red Army, a possible eastern moat for the German citadel, is one of the least familiar of these streams. Although its economic importance is considerable, it has none of the celebrity which made the Seine, the Rhine, the Dan and the Volga household names the world around long before this war came to their banks.

Through most of its 860 miles the Oder moves swiftly between low banks, a shallow stream in a wide, shallow valley. It rises in a portion of the Sudeten Mountain system, waters Upper Silesia—which is rich in minerals and in good agricultural land—and then apraws through the flat sandy plains of the north to empty through three channels, into Stettin Bay, an estuary opening out into the Baltic. It is connected by canals to many neighboring streams, including the Spree, which flows through Berlin, and with its tributaries makes up an important water transport system.

Military, however, it does not constitute a very serious obstacle certainly, armies which have stormed across the Draper, the Don, the Danube and the Vistula will not be checked by the Oder, unless that riverine is very strongly assisted by German engineers and powerfully held by German troops. Moreover, the Oder swings far to the west, coming within forty miles of Berlin at one point—too close for Hitler's comfort. The valley of the Oder has been the scene of many battles. It was laid waste in the Thirty Years War, when some three-quarters of the inhabitants of Silesia were killed, and a number of Frederick the Great's most famous battles were fought near the stream—his victories of Leuthen, near Breslau, in 1757, and, in 1758, of Zorndorf, near Kuetstrin, in the angle formed by the confluence of the Warthe and the Oder, and his worst defeat, which took place at Kunersdorf, near Frankfurt (the eastern city the Seven Years' War, when Frederick struck out at Prussia's clustering foes and in the end won a peace of exhaustion against great odds. But the frequent references which one encounters in the story of that war to the failure of the Russian commissariat and the slothfulness of the generals opposed to Frederick—which enabled him to survive several defeats and the fact that Berlin was twice captured—can hardly be repeated after this war. When Berlin is captured this time it will stay captured, another Hunersdorf in the Oder Valley would be the end.

Members of the Woman's Club and guests were escorted Wednesday afternoon on "An Airplane Trip Around the World" by Mrs. John L. Lee, "pilot" who introduced the performers with descriptive phrases about the customs and climate of each country visited. The program was under the auspices of the Fine Arts Department and Sponsored by Mrs. B. C. Moore, who introduced each person participating in the show, as a finale to the afternoon's entertainment. Mrs. George McCall, music chairman, assisted in planning the program.

As Mrs. Lee took her audience to each country, realistic sound effects of an airplane engine were heard, making the trip seem real. She first stopped in Italy where a quintet of young ladies, the Misses Roberta Evans, Sylvia Meich, Mildred Robson, Martha Page and Lucy Ward sang "Italian Street Song." Miss Ward rendered the solo and obligato parts and Mrs. Ruth Jackson, director of the Seminole High School Glee Club, of which the girls are members, accompanied the singers.

The quintet again sang, representing Russia, the well-known "Volga Boatman." Miss Evelyn Matthews, who faithfully played a harmonium "Gigue Bretonne" as the guests arrived in England. Greer Garson Again Makes Polio Appeal Greer Garson, often called "The Lady of the Screen" may soon have another distinguished title in the minds of the American public. She seems destined to be thought of as "The Lady of Mercy" for the March of Dimes.

In 1943 Miss Garson was chosen to appear on the screens of America in behalf of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Her appeal was so touching and brought such an outpouring of praise and donations, that she was chosen again in 1944 with even more amazing results.

This year Miss Garson makes the appeal for the 1945 drive which got under way locally yesterday at the Ritz Theater in a special film titled "Miracle of Hickory" based on the work the foundation did in the polio epidemic in Hickory, N. C.

The theater drive, lasting through Jan. 31, is headed locally by Dr. L. T. Doas, chairman of the Seminole County Foundation and Rev. W. P. Brooks, Jr., chairman of the appeals committee for 1945.

British Ambassador Speaks At F.S.W.C.

LORD HALIFAX, British Ambassador to the United States, visited the Florida State College for Women on Wednesday, Jan. 20, when he spoke to them Wednesday afternoon in the college auditorium.

The ambassador spoke briefly to the F.S.W.C. students in a specially arranged meeting on a crowded schedule of engagement, during his visit to Tallahassee as a guest of the city and of the state of Florida.

Lord Halifax, accompanied by Lady Halifax, was introduced to the students by Dr. Donk S. Campbell, president of the college. Endeavoring himself to the students with his wishes for their good luck on examinations, the ambassador reminded them that the place of learning in free countries based on a common "job of work" to do—that of training young people for world citizenship. As a chancellor of Oxford University, he expressed pleasure at visiting one of Oxford's sister places of learning.

"I have the honor to be ambassador of my country to yours," he said. "I do not know that there is any question more in contact than that your country and mine should understand one another, respect one another, and work together for the good of the world. It is the shoulders of your generation that the main burden of the world will rest upon in the years to come."

If I might wish, this large family of Dr. Campbell's one thing it would be that you may truly grow up to be good citizens of the great country, that when you go out into the world you will always remember that you have a great debt to pay to the college and the country, and that you will constantly see to it that the debt should be paying to the world the best citizen when it comes to the point of time.

First Survivor Of Bataan Joins U. S. Invaders

Haggard Corporal Escaped After "Death March" 3 Years Ago

AMERICAN BOMBER WING, HEADQUARTERS, Northern Luzon, Jan. 26. (AP)—Haggard and hungry for American chow, the first survivor from the Bataan "death march" to join his invading fellow countrymen on Luzon rested last Monday after hiding from Japanese and living on rice for nearly three years.

He was Corporal Gerald G. Wade, of Lexington, Mass., an Army Air Corps mechanic. He passed through the American lines at an undisclosed point and was brought here by plane.

"It's too good to be true," Wade declared as he stamped his feet in borrowed shoes, on the steel-matting of the airstrip. The shoes and a bad stone bruise made him limp. He was chalky-faced from malnutrition. He looked fifteen years older than his twenty-five but he was happy and hungry.

Buffered Blows and Taunts

Wade told how he and other prisoners who were surrendered to the Japanese at Bataan, on southern Luzon, April 3, 1942, were mistreated and made to march eighty-five miles north to a prison camp.

"They laughed and jeered at us," he said. "If they bashed us on the head with poles as they drove by in trucks. They reminded me of under dogs who finally had got the upper hand and didn't know how to act."

Wade said all he had to eat was a rice cake slipped into his hand by a Filipino boy. "The Japs," he added, "opened our canteens and ate the sugar and chocolate, and tossed the rest away. They would not allow us to pick it up."

Wade said he joined an Army tank unit just before the surrender and became a prisoner with it.

"This tank outfit we were with," he said, "had given the Japs potatoes, bell, and now they were getting even."

We were marched up a road and turned and marched back again, time and again.

Marched 132 Steps a Minute

"The third day after the surrender was the worst of all," Wade said. "We were forced to march 132 steps a minute while the sun was beating down on us and the sweat rolling down our faces. We were eating wet. Again we had no food nor water."

"I had a friend with the 31st Infantry and decided to fall in with them as we marched."

Wade said he located the outfit by asking countless men. He asked one grizzled, battle-worn soldier, "Do you know a boy named Sheely?"

"Yeah, you're talking to him," the soldier answered.

Wade couldn't recognize him, his appearance had changed so in those last terrible days.

Japanese officers who enjoyed talking in English told Wade with sadistic glee: "Americans have good autos, good machines, but no fighting spirit. They have too much girls, too much parties."

The Americans were worn out and dropping from exhaustion. Malaria, fever and chills beset them. Yet the brutal march went on at 132 paces a minute.

"We chewed sugar cane," the corporal said. "It kept a lot of us going."

2 Escape on Water Detail

They stopped at Hacienda where rice was stored. The Japanese for the first time. There were only two rice issues in six days.

At San Fernando, the second largest of rice was distributed. One Japanese officer gave some of the men a few cans of sardines to supplement their pitifully small rations. Then the Americans were loaded in small gasoline freight cars until there was no longer room to breathe and hauled to Odonnel, where a concentration camp was being prepared.

"I got out early from Odonnel," Wade said. "There were only three lookouts towers then and for some reason the water supply failed. Americans were sent out to fill cans of water.

One day the radio operator—call him Gilbert—and I were sent for water outside the barbed-wire fence which was being constructed. We dumped the cans and took off in broad daylight."

Wade told how he had been harassed by the guerrillas for some time and then went to live with a native family for four months. Then he went into the mountains where he heard eight Americans were living in a camp. But when he reached the camp he found most of the food was gone, so he roamed the hills and later returned to the village and lived for another year in the lowlands.

Elipio Ganaps Kill Friend

He learned his friend was killed by Ganaps, a pro-Japanese Filipino party once known as the Sakalistas, so again he wandered through Pampanga Province, with so real and little food. He kept moving.

"I've been living on rice for nearly three years," he commented. "I give you an apple. I devoured one meal—of beef and hash, potatoes, green beans and canned fruit; then he finished a second of fried ham with four eggs, six buns, milk and chocolate bars."

As he passed a long line of packed P-51 fighter planes, Wade said to Sergeant William M. Greig, of Port Huron, Mich., who had flown him here: "Our baking wire air force on Bataan never had anything like these."

Bishop Carleton Lacy To Speak On China

Bishop G. Carleton Lacy, bishop of the Methodist church in China, and head of the Foochow (Fokien) Area, will be the speaker at the First Baptist Church on Tuesday Jan. 30 at 8 P.M.

Bishop Lacy arrived in the United States in April, after a journey of almost five months from Interior China, to attend the General Conference of his church in Kansas City, Mo. He will speak on the Christian situation in China—under the strain of five years of Japanese aggression.

Bishop Lacy was born in Foochow, China. His parents, Dr. and Mrs. William H. Lacy, were among Methodist's pioneer missionaries in Fokien Province, China. The bishop's mother (deceased) who have served as missionaries to China.

Bishop Lacy was educated in Ohio Wesleyan University, Garrett Biblical Institute, Columbia University, and Northwestern University; Garrett made him a doctor of divinity in 1928. He served as a evangelistic and educational missionary from 1914 to 1929 in Nanking, Fuchow (Kiangsi) and Kukiang. For two years he was acting president of Yungchow University, Kiangsi.

He has been in the United States since 1931. He is the author of several books in Chinese.

"If ever there was an itinerant bishop, it certainly is Bishop Carleton Lacy," says a missionary who has been in action in recent months. "He is constantly on the move, and traveling under most difficult circumstances. I did not like to see him start out from here standing up in an open truck on a hot day. It was simply impossible to get a seat. Later he got one on that truck—sitting on some bundles of usper with his feet on a bag of salted fish. You know how they smell! I hope some day he will write about some of these trips he is making."

They Let Off Steam

In addition to the public "gripe" sessions the men here also participated in a more formal session sponsored by the Army Morale Branch where they let off steam about their experiences with officers, food, women overseas and other personal matters.

Officers here, as well as in Washington, said they are not too worried about complaints. Lieutenant Colonel James H. Mankin, commanding officer of the casual battalion, said he fought as an enlisted time since the Army took over the establishment last Sept. 8 that a full inspection was permitted.

Under the plan worked out by the Army the owners of the club receive a lump-sum payment for having as "guests" the battle-weary soldiers who have served two years or more overseas. No civilian guests are accepted, but the civilian atmosphere is maintained as much as possible.

Food served by several hundred pretty waitresses is as good, if not better, than that served before the Army moved in. Chambermaids who once made up the beds of wealthy vacationers now make the same beds for sergeants, corporals and privates.

One of two such redistribution stations serving this section of the country, the club is geared to serve 3,800 persons a month. Already about 6,000 soldiers have been sent here and 600 are living here now.

During the conducted tour of the club and the facilities, it was obvious that the peace-time standards still prevail and with this in mind, the reporters began interviewing the men from areas covered by the newspaper. The majority said they didn't like the place.

One common "gripe" was that the soldiers would rather be at home for the holidays, than anywhere else. Other soldiers, especially those who served in the cold regions of Italy or Alaska or Greenland, wondered why they weren't sent to Florida where they could swim and where they wouldn't see more snow.

Another group of New Yorkers declared they had never been on ice skates or skis in their life and asked how they could enjoy these sports; others complained that there were not enough girls on hand.

Americans Are Now Within Thirty-Four Miles Of Manila

1st. And 3rd Armies In Europe Also Reported As Making Substantial Gains

(By Associated Press)

Three American columns today bore down on San Fernando, the gateway to Manila while Superfortresses again struck Iwo Island on the sea road to Tokyo. A Singapore broadcast said 145 carrier-borne planes raided Sumatra oil refineries around Palembang.

Tokyo reported American bombers attacked Ichiho Island, 200 miles south of the Nipponese capital for the first time. Single incendiary-dropping Superforts were reported continuing their Tokyo excursions.

On Luzon, the Americans were only 34 air miles from Manila, three from San Fernando.

The European battlefront the American First and Third Armies gained from two to four miles on a 40-mile front, pulling within artillery range or closer to the Siegfried Line.

The First seized four towns northeast of St. Vith, getting within a mile of the German border.

The Third captured Maxwell, getting near or across the border down to Saarbrücken. American and French troops advanced two miles to within a half mile of the outskirts of Colmar, the capital of Upper Alsace.

Lieut. Gen. Hodges' First Army sprang a surprise attack at 4 A. M. in a hillside which heaped snowdrifts seven feet high. In the early hours the First overwhelmed startled garrisons of four towns northeast of St. Vith.

Veteran First division troops appeared in the attack, and with forces from other units charged through waist-deep snow, capturing Herchenheim, Valendör, Heppenheim and Heppenheim in a cluster of five to seven miles northeast of St. Vith. Hoppenbach is four and a half miles from the German frontier.

Nazis Begin to Hold

There was no advance artillery preparation. After the first surprise, the German resistance began to stiffen.

Snowdrifts and mines were the chief obstacles. AP Correspondent Hal Boyle said the drifts were so deep that trail-blazing units had to change off every 50 yards—so exhausted were those plodding through the snowdrifts.

The reopening of the First Army's drive came 43 days after Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt broke through the Ardennes in his December offensive.

Sanford State Guard Unit In Rifle Shoot

Capt. John L. Gallaway, Lieut. John Maich and 18 men of Company C, Florida State Guard were among those of the Fourth Battalion, who participated in a non-competitive practice rifle shoot in Pinecastle yesterday held under direction of Col. Cedric C. Bone, battalion commander.

This practice shoot was held in order to familiarize the men with the loading and shooting of the Enfield service rifles, and each man kept a record of his own scores, said Capt. Gallaway. He added that the practice proceeded very nicely, and the men were enthusiastic over their valuable training. It is hoped, he said, to have another practice within the next few months.

Sanford's Company C, Orlando's Company D, Leesburg's Company A and Eustis, Company B participated in the practice.

Men from Sanford included: Cpl. Tyre, Pfc. Howell, Pfc. Taylor, Pfc. Shoemaker, Pfc. Urie and Privates: Raborn, Jr., Jackson, Weeks, Johnson, Stacey, Reed, Wilson, Moore, Fenchel, Hines, Madson, Baker and Schenck.

Farmers Urge ODT To Lift Rail Embargo

Big Losses Seen For Vegetable Growers From Tie-Up And Manpower Shortage

Faced with possible heavy losses by reason of a week long rail embargo, which with harvest later shortage is causing daily increasing alarm among vegetable growers and shippers of Seminole County, local growers and shipping organizations wrote to the ODT and other officials in Washington to lift the embargo as scheduled at midnight tonight.

The embargo was put into effect by the ODT last week in the northeast area of the country to achieve acute and varied relief measures against the conditions of vegetable and fruit production and marketing. It is estimated that thousands of dollars of products now reaching maturity are for their delayed in reaching northern markets. M. L. Cotton, sales manager for Chase and Company said today:

"Vegetable growers here appreciate the necessity for this embargo," he said, "and want to cooperate without complaint. However, there already exists a shortage of labor for harvesting and processing these vegetables and every day further aggravates a situation that now spells thousands of dollars loss to growers."

Urgent appeals to the War Food Administration through the State Extension Division for additional labor from the Bahamas area have been made, he declared but no definite assistance as to when this labor will be available.

OPA Places Price Ceilings On Live Cattle At $17.25

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—The Office of Price Administration has today formally established price ceilings on live cattle ranging from $17.25 to $18.50 a hundredweight, effective tomorrow. The move is a part of the OPA's drive to eliminate black markets and stabilize prices of a wide range of retail goods.

The new ceiling is ordered several weeks ago by Economic Stabilization Director Vinson, to be cut by 50 cents all along the line on July 2.

OPA said it has established an "overriding ceiling" of 24 market zones which will be the legal limit for the sale of cattle and calves regardless of "choice, grade or commercial grade. Animals sold for breeding or commercial purposes and those sold by members of the F.H. clubs or other recognized farm youth organizations are exempt.

Further Action

In addition, OPA ordered:

1. Establishment of a "drive compliance" system under which dealers will be limited in the total amount they may pay in buying cattle during a monthly accounting period.
2. A maximum limit, on a percentage basis to be determined later, of the good and choice cattle slaughterers may kill during the accounting period.

Officials said the over-ruling price ceiling would assure a profit to wholesalers and retailers, many of whom have been forced to buy at prices higher than their own sale price under previously established wholesale and retail ceilings. It also will protect them from being out-bid for choice grades by "any unscrupulous operator who had purchased cattle at prices higher than those permitted by the previous order," they said.

Coupled with tighter restrictions on meat rationing, OPA said, the new ceiling should "give greater assurance to each housewife that she will receive her fair share of all grades of beef, including the top grades, at fair prices."

Price Schedules

Zones and top prices include:

- Zone 20, which takes in the eastern portion of Virginia, and some 24 which includes most of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida—$18.50.
- Zone 10, most of Louisiana east of the Mississippi—$18.00.
- Zone 14, Kentucky—$18.00.
- Zone 21, western Tennessee—$18.15.
- Zone 22, northern Mississippi—$18.00.
- Zone 18, western portions of Virginia and North Carolina and the eastern part of Tennessee, and some 23, eastern Louisiana, southern Mississippi, southern Alabama, western Alabama, western Florida and western Georgia—$18.50.

Rail Embargo Is Declared Serious To State Farmers

Director Wilson Laments Necessity For This Drastic Act

JACKSONVILLE, Jan. 29. (Special AP)—A critical condition on Florida growers with perishable vegetables maturing in high fields has been created by the government embargo on rail shipments.

"We do not question the necessity for this embargo, as we are confident the government would not have taken this drastic step if such action had not been imperative," he continued, "but we do feel, and strongly, that our growers should be compensated for the loss they will suffer."

The embargo has had a serious effect on the crops, though they are not yet harvested. They are delayed, following a late disaster, and now just as their crops are coming into production, this rail embargo prevents them from shipping.

"We have notified our congressional delegation that our State Markets are keeping a record of unshipped commodities in the hope that Congress will take notice of the plight of our growers and provide suitable compensation. From experience, a comprehensive program of compensation is the only practical approach to the situation."
