Painting fraud

SANFORD — Emmett Cottrell, 50, of Winter Park, has been arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies, charged in connection with fraud in home painting.

According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, Cottrell is accused of entering into contracts with homeowners in Seminole and Orange counties to paint their houses. He would then bid on the job at costs of $1,000 to $2,000.

McDonough said Cottrell would ask for half the money in advance, then either paint only a small portion of the home, or none at all, and make no effort to return the victim's money or finish the job.

Between January and May of this year, eleven homeowners have reportedly contacted the Seminole County sheriff's office reporting that they had entered into contracts with Cottrell but he had never completed the project.

Cottrell turned himself in at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility in Sanford. At this time, he has been charged with only one count of a scheme to defraud, a violation of the Florida Communications Fraud Act.

The charge is a third degree felony punishable by a maximum of five years in prison.

McDonough said Cottrell was released within a few hours after posting a $1,000 bond.

Health center eyes new location

By NICK PFEIFFER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Community Health Center, which has been located at 25th Street and Park Avenue for a number of years, wants to move. A new $2.2 million facility is now being considered, and the myriad of paperwork which will be required has gotten underway.

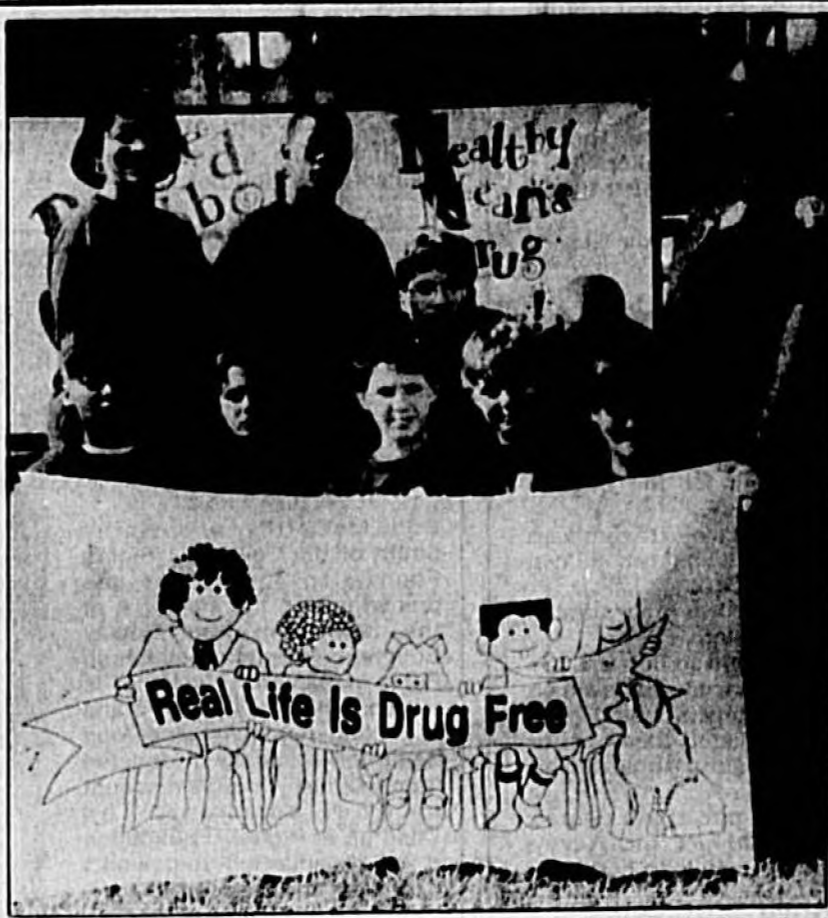

The proposed new site is near the northwest corner of E. SR-46 and SR-415, just east of Sanford and the Midway community. A new 20,000 square foot facility is being proposed. It is called a "primary care medical treatment facility." The facility is being proposed, "...to serve the needs of rural Seminole County and surrounding counties."

Executive Director Dennis Cahill said the present center, located on the northwest corner of Park Avenue and 25th Street consists of 8,700 square feet. "We have simply outgrown the space we have and we will have to move to a larger building," he said.

Cahill said the center does a great deal in serving the health needs of the community. "Actually," he

Parade pays tribute to veterans

By VICKI BOGGERMAN
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — As the nation remembers those who have served in the military to protect our freedoms, Sanford will be awash in the red, white and blue on Saturday in a celebration of Veterans Day.

The annual Veterans Day Parade will bring together members of all veterans' organizations to be cheered by those for whom they fought and to remember those who died in battle.

The parade will kick off at 10:30 a.m. on the traditional anniversary of the World War I armistice.

It will leave the parking lot of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce at First Street and Cypress. The procession will travel westward toward Park Avenue and then turn north toward the waterfront.

At the waterfront, below the billowing flag, a ceremony will take place to celebrate all veterans in attendance and to remember those who are no longer with us.

The parade is expected to include musical groups, representatives of the various veterans groups from across Seminole County, and dignitaries from the Sanford business community and government.

Mayor Bettye Smith is expected to be among those who address the crowd when the parade culminates at the waterfront.

Going for the Gold, 1995 Golden Age Games

You have to flip the pancake, run a few yards, flip it again, run farther, flip one more time, then turn around and do the same thing back to the finish line. If you can do that ahead of everyone else, you will win one of the Sanford Golden Age Games events. The annual pancake flipping competition was held Wednesday at Fort Mellon Park along Sanford's waterfront. Above, left to right, Lisa Jones, co-chairman of this year's games, starts her timing clock as Arlene Bremer, 75, of Ormond Beach, and Carla Conway, 75, of Alexandria, Virginia begin to flip and run. Conway took first place in the age category, with Bremer finishing second. While all of the pancakes used in the race were freshly made just prior to the event, Jones said regardless of whether they fell on the ground or not, they would not be used in any way as food. "Just for flipping," she said. See additional Golden Age Games photos on page 4A and 5A of today's Sanford Herald.

Firefighters uphold Gospel Sing tradition

From staff reports

SANFORD — With Thanksgiving fast approaching, thoughts of firefighters are turning, not so much to turkey dinners, but to good 'ole gospel music.

Friday, November 24, the Sanford Fire Department is holding its annual Firemen's Benefit Fund Gospel Sing. This will mark the 40th year that local firemen have called on the public to enjoy an evening of traditional gospel music, and at the same time help raise needed funds.

The Firemen's Gospel Sing became a reality in 1955 under the leadership of fire Chief Mack Cleveland, Sr. It has enjoyed the support of every fire chief since that time, including chiefs Harriet Galley, and present chief Tom Hickson.

In recent years, the sponsorship has been taken over by the Firemen's Benefit Fund. The fund was created to provide benefits to Sanford firefighters that are not covered under their current health plan. Some of the benefits provided by this fund are vision and chiropractic care.

Some of the groups to be featured in the show this year, have been favorites in past years, and have appeared several times.

This year's list of groups include the Florida Boys, the Dixie Echoes, Marshall Henson, River City, and Sanford's own Quiet Strength.

Even though the presentation is several weeks away, tickets are now being sold. They are available at all Sanford fire stations, Osborne's Bible Book Store, the Lake Mary/Heathrow Chamber of Commerce, or by phoning Ken Hicks at 331-0834. Tickets are $6 in advance and $8 at the door.

The Gospel Sing, on the day after Thanksgiving, Friday, Nov. 24, will be held at the Sanford Civic Center.

Case settled for multiple personality woman who worked with exotic animals

By The Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE — Diane Krug lost her job working with tigers, cheetahs and wolves because she possibly had multiple personalities.

Her employers at White Oak Plantation near Yulee claimed her condition prevented her from remaining alert when working with potentially dangerous animals.

which she claimed she was discriminated against because her employer did not make reasonable accommodations for her.

Her attorney, Archibald Thomas III, said Wednesday there's a confidentiality clause barring the parties from talking about specifics of the settlement.

Now she has settled her case filed under the federal Americans with Disabilities Act in animals from August 1985 until August 1992, according to court records.

As part of her job, she cared for and fed large carnivorous animals, took part in research and education projects and supervised other staffers.

On Aug. 28, 1992, she was unable to continue working because of psychological symptoms stemming from trauma she suffered as a child, the lawsuit alleged.

Court documents said a therapist later found Ms. Krug had at least nine different personalities or sub-personalities.

Thomas said Ms. Krug no longer has any symptoms of the illness and was "perfectly capable of resuming the same duties."

He said there was some dispute that she suffered from multiple personalities and acknowledged there is also dispute in the psychological community as to whether the disorder even exists.

She now works in another field, he said.

Scientists probe arsenic mystery

By The Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE — Two Broward County neighborhoods are being investigated to determine whether the residents are slowly being poisoned by arsenic.

"Arsenic poisoning of any kind is very rare," said Dr. James Creasanta, epidemiologist at the state's public health unit in Broward. "We'll be on kind of a detective mission there."

Linda Dixon, who spent three years visiting a dozen doctors to find out what was causing her headaches, stomach aches and the pins-and-needles feelings in her joints, was recently found to have arsenic in her blood.

At least two of her neighbors in the Broadview Park-Floral Heights area of central Broward have been found to have high arsenic levels as well.

The findings come in a neighborhood previously confirmed to have soil and ground-water contamination by cancer-causing chemicals from an old dump.

"Arsenic, a heavy metal, is fatal in modest doses. Low-level exposure can cause cancer and kidney failure."

Health and environmental officials said a harmless compound of arsenic found in food such as seafood and apple seeds could have caused test levels to be elevated.

But they are taking no chances because of the old dump, found in the late 1990s. Soil in the neighborhood was tainted with small amounts of arsenic. Drinking-water wells there were tainted with industrial solvents, though not arsenic.

If Ms. Dixon's arsenic proves to be environmental poisoning, health officials said they would swoop in to trace the arsenic source. More neighbors may be tested, too.

"The panic stage is not here," said Bruce Tuovila, of the environmental toxicology office of the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. "They're not going to die overnight, but they need to be alerted."

The mystery dates back more than three years when Ms. Dixon began getting aches. She sometimes felt weak. Her throat grew raspy. She felt tingling in her hands, feet and knees. Hair fell out.

She went to a dozen doctors. Each blamed her symptoms on nerves. A few referred her to psychiatrists.

When she started seeing spots this past summer, an eye doctor suggested she get a heavy-metal test. The results came in August: high arsenic.

Ms. Dixon immediately moved in with her mother in Miramar and is paying for 90 treatments to cleanse her blood. Her tests for arsenic since have been normal.

New president says his airline is ready to grow

By JACK JONES Associated Press Writer

WEST COLUMBIA, S.C. — The new president of Air South is looking for people who want to fly without going through Atlanta.

Roden "Rod" Brandt said Wednesday that taking advantage of markets with poor or overpriced air service will be the key to the Columbia-based airline's success.

"Air South is poised, right now, for expansion," he said.

The most likely areas for expansion are the Northeast, the Midwest and Florida. New York City and Washington, D.C., are a possibility, but it's too soon "to pick airports," Brandt said.

Some smaller cities with proper-only service might get Air South's jet service under the expansion plans. The year-old airline uses only Boeing 737-300 jets to serve cities in the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida.

He said he will study the routes to see if any should be dropped. He would not identify them but said the Columbia-Myrtle Beach route "may not be long for this world."

But Myrtle Beach has excellent potential as an Air South destination from the Midwest and Northeast and there is no thought of dropping Myrtle Beach operations, he said.

During the crackdown, CCIB agents arrested Dorien L. Armentrout, 36, of 114 Wicker Court, Sanford, at First Street and Palmetto Avenue when officers reported seeing an object falling from his pocket. He was arrested on a charge of possession of drug paraphernalia.

Members of the Sanford police QUAD Squad concentrated on drug activities. They reported arresting Judy J. Cain, 35, of 152 Bethune Circle, in the 800 block of W. 11th Street. Cain was charged with possession of cocaine, possession of drug paraphernalia, resisting an officer without violence, tampering with physical evidence, and sale in lieu of a controlled substance.

Traffic stops

• David Salvatore Ciulla, 38, of Casselberry, was stopped by Longwood police on U.S. Highway 17-92 at Grant Street Tuesday. He was charged with driving with a suspended license, attached tag not assigned, having an unregistered motor vehicle, expired tag, no proof of insurance, and possession of under 20 grams of cannabis.

Drug arrest

Longwood police arrested Eric W. Morrison, 28, of Longwood Circle on Monday. Officers said they were responding to a residence in the 600 block of Seminole Avenue regarding a burglary in progress. When they arrived, they said they found Morrison in the house, who reportedly told them he had moved out and had returned to get some of his property. After police reportedly searched the home and found what they believed were drug-related items, Morrison was arrested on charges of possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of a controlled substance.

• A 1989 Ford station wagon, license number PSQ-40U, belonging to a Deltona man, was reported stolen Tuesday from the 1400 block of Mara Court in Sanford.

• A Wildwood man told police he was in a parking lot at Lake Monroe Terrace Tuesday when someone approached his car, slashed tires and threw rocks at his car. He said he gave chase into Lake Monroe Terrace, where seven unidentified men reportedly came after him and threw rocks at him.

• An estimated $815 in fishing equipment and a trolling motor were reportedly stolen Tuesday from a shed at a residence in the 600 block of E. Third Street in Sanford.

The right to die?

Autopsy: Kevorkian's latest patient wasn't terminally ill

By BRIAN S. AKKE
Associated Press Writer

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. — With every suicide he helps along, Dr. Jack Kevorkian holds fast to his belief that the terminally ill have a right to end their suffering.

That justification was called into question when an autopsy on the 26th known person to die in his presence, a cancer patient, found that the woman wasn't terminally ill and had no trace of the disease.

"There was no cancer," said Dr. Kanu Virani, deputy chief medical examiner for Oakland County.

The body of Patricia Cashman, a 58-year-old San Marcos, Calif., travel agent, was found wrapped in a blanket in the back seat of an old car outside the morgue on Wednesday.

Virani said that while the woman had undergone a mastectomy on her right breast, he found no cancer in her lymph nodes, liver or other internal organs, where he had expected to see the disease. He did not examine the woman's brain and spinal cord.

Kevorkian lawyer Geoffrey Fieger called Virani's assertions "outrageous lies" and accused the doctor of an anti-Kevorkian agenda.

Fieger said Cashman had suffered for three years from breast cancer that had spread throughout her body, leaving her unable to walk, on morphine and afraid of ending up a vegetable.

"The body he has at the Oakland County Medical Examiner is bald because she was undergoing chemotherapy for metastatic bone cancer," he said.

He told CBS radio, "I promise you, and you can take this to the bank, she was dying of bone cancer, the most painful kind of cancer."

But Cashman's next-door neighbor, Barbara Allan, said she saw the woman last week at their mobile-home park and disputed the lawyer's bleak picture.

"She was standing at the door," said Allan, who knew Cashman was being treated for cancer. "She looked good. She was a heavy-set woman, but she looked fine and seemed to be in a good mood."

Dan Maier, spokesman for the Chicago-based American Medical Association, said Virani would have spotted the cancer if it were present in Cashman's body.

"We're absolutely appalled at Kevorkian's continual flaunting of the law," said Maier, whose group opposes assisted suicide. "I trust the pathologist far more than I trust Jack Kevorkian's lawyer."

The autopsy revealed Cashman died of carbon monoxide poisoning; the death was ruled a homicide. Prosecutors and investigators said they would wait for a final report before deciding whether to charge Kevorkian.

The retired pathologist has acknowledged attending 26 suicides since 1990. Most involved carbon monoxide.

Kevorkian, 67, already faces assisted-suicide charges in four deaths in Oakland County — two in 1993 and two in 1991. He could get five years in prison in each case. Prosecutors failed last month to have him placed under house arrest while he awaits trial next year in the earlier deaths.

Fieger would not disclose the circumstances or location of Cashman's death except to say that Cashman's sister was with her. Cashman was divorced and had no survivors other than her sister.

The way the body was left for authorities followed Kevorkian's recent pattern.

In the previous suicide in which Kevorkian took part, a woman's body was found in the same car outside a suburban Detroit hospital on Aug. 21. And on May 12, a man's body was left in Kevorkian's old Volkswagen van in the morgue driveway.

Kevorkian would rather help his patients die in a clinic, but authorities have thwarted his attempts to open an "obituary," Fieger said.

In a July 6 letter, released by Fieger, Cashman told Kevorkian that she "would go to almost any length to avoid ever being on pain pills again because of the terrible side effects that I suffered."

"Thank God that I now know you will help me," Cashman wrote. "What a load off my mind."

Actually, she has taken first place in her age division for a number of years, having been the only entrant even close to the century mark in age. With Peg is her friend Ellen Mitchell.

Tobacco industry

Governor Lawton Chiles is pushing to have some of the state's medical bills paid for by the tobacco industry. The State Supreme Court has heard both sides of the question, and is expected to make a decision within the next two months.

Chiles says the tobacco industry should be made more financially responsible for the damage to lungs and other parts of the human body, caused by the use of cigarettes. With all of the medical proof we have heard for many years, we have no doubt that tobacco is harmful to a person's health.

We believe however, that forcing the industry to pay money to the state to compensate for medical payments is not in the best interests of anyone.

Certainly, those treated for cancer caused by smoking are often faced with huge medical bills. But we believe this drive against one industry, if given the okay by the Supreme Court, will only lead to similar situations down the line.

Should we demand that the auto manufacturing industry foot some of the bill for persons injured in auto accidents?

Should we ask beer and alcohol manufacturers and/or distributors to fork over some money to help rehabilitate alcohol abusers?

Should Smith and Wesson or Remington be forced to pay for the medical treatments of persons who are shot?

Should the makers of airliners pay victims of a plane crash?

Yes, it can go even further. As churches are the representative of God, should various religious denominations be forced to pay some of the medical bills for persons struck by lightning or injured in a hurricane?

It sounds very far fetched, we must agree. If we allow this to start at the tobacco industry level, it may do some people some good. Basically however, we suspect it will be our state coffers, rather than individual citizens who stand to gain financially.

But if this is approved, what will the next step be? Perhaps not Governor Chiles, but some other lawmaker will see that there could be more money available if the state were allowed to sue manufacturers of other commodities. If the high court would support this, they wouldn't have any recourse but to support any other similar suggestion.

Let's face facts. It's not tobacco, cars, guns, airplanes or any other items which cause death and injuries. It's the people who use them (and abuse them). Can the governor come up with a solution to that problem? Many have tried over the years, and so far, nothing has been accomplished.

We believe the governor is barking up the wrong tree on this issue, and while it may sound good on the surface, look what it could bring about in the future.

LETTER

The conflict we face

From the bombing of the Oklahoma federal building, to the acquittal of O.J. Simpson, to the GOP Contract with America, to the Million Man March on Washington, history has been in the making all of 1995. This could and should be a turning point in the economic growth for the poor and the middle class of this nation. While social relations are getting all the attention, we need to come together and try to fight this political Republican revolution. If it comes about, economic growth and social relations will deteriorate. Now is the time for the poor and the middle class to use our collective voice and show that we will not be swayed in getting what is ours. The people need to work together in mass and vote to put people in office who will work for the voter(s) and who aren't out of touch with reality.

We have everyday concerns that don't even fit some politicians' agendas. That is the reason a lot of legislators are leaving congress, because they see things that are happening that never occurred in half a century. It has only gotten worse in the last 12-16 years and just when things seem to have turned around, the Republican revolution, along with some recent Supreme Court decisions and social events has brought about some serious division in this country. The militia movement is on the rise, because of obvious distrust in government and the authority it has and uses. Race relations are worse than anytime since the '50's and '60's, this came about, because of the segregation of a segment of the population, which in turn only hurts the whole population. The nation is in a precarious position. It is prime time for the poor and the middle class while we have the attention of the nation focused on race and social events; to voice our concerns in this coming election year. WE need to take advantage of this and bring about resolve in our economic situation and make this a better country for all.

P.S. If resolve doesn't come about the conflict we are now facing is only going to get worse.

JOSEPH PERKINS

U.S. Indians must help themselves

"What do we all want as human beings? We want our basic needs met -- food, clothing, shelter, jobs, health, education." So said Ada Deer, the half-white, half-Menominee tribeswoman who heads the Interior Department's Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Deer was in San Diego this week to make an appearance at the annual conference of the National Congress of American Indians. She spent much of her visit decrying proposals by the "mean-spirited" Republican Congress to reduce her bureau's funding by 10 percent for the 1998 fiscal year.

Deer is right when she says that the nation's 1.9 million Indians want their basic needs met like the rest of us Americans. But the big difference is that most non-Indians don't believe that the government is obliged to meet those needs for them.

In contrast, American Indians have over the past half century succumbed to an entitlement mentality. Since the white man forced them off their lands and onto reservations, most of the 555 recognized tribes believe that they have a "right" to taxpayer-subsidized food, housing, health care, welfare and employment.

But how can Indians make a claim on all the taxpayers when most Americans had nothing to do with the taking of their land? Indeed, one-quarter of the American population is black, Hispanic and Asian.

And much of the white population is descended from Italian, Irish, German, Jewish and East European immigrants who didn't arrive in America until after Ellis Island opened in 1892, long after most Indian lands had been surrendered.

So Indians today may be entitled to certain benefits from the federal government. But no more or less so than other groups of American citizens. And just as federal spending programs are being cut or slowed down that have an impact on various other interest groups -- be they racial minorities or farmers or seniors -- America's Indians must be prepared to share the burden of balancing the federal budget.

This may seem mean-spirited to Deer and to the tribal leaders who are gathered in San Diego, but actually the reduction in funding for the BIA may be the best thing that ever happened to the Indian population. That's because the dependency of most American Indian tribes on handouts from Washington has robbed them of their sovereignty and deprived them of self-determination.

We see evidence of this in the Third World conditions under which much of the Indian population lives. A third of Indians subsist below the poverty line. Half are jobless on the reservation. A third of Indian youngsters drop out of high school. One fifth of Indians live in homes lacking indoor toilets and telephones.

Indians have the shortest life-expectancy rate of any ethnic population in America. They have the highest rates of diabetes and tuberculosis.

It is noteworthy that, where there has been improvement in any of these problems or pathologies, the impetus has been provided not by a paternalistic Uncle Sam, but by Indian tribes taking control of their own future, practicing self-help.

Self-help, then, is the key to progress for the mass of American Indians.

MORTON KONDRACKE

Where is the GOP really headed?

Former White House aide Jim Pinkerton has written the book that House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., should have -- a revolutionary tract that openly urges dismantling two-thirds of the federal government.

Pinkerton's book, "What Comes Next" (Hyperion), also peers unblinkingly -- as Gingrich's "To Renew America" does not -- at the savage inequalities infecting American society.

The Pinkerton book is pungently written, whereas Gingrich churned out a typically turgid Washington policy tome that fails to match his often-visionary oratory.

It could be that Gingrich, with a legislative program to manage and a congressional majority to maintain, did not want to scare the electorate by showing where the "Contract With America" might ultimately lead.

Democrats already are airing ads, for instance, showing Gingrich declaring that this year's cuts in projected Medicare spending are just a prelude to the eventual dismantling of the program.

Pinkerton has no political ambitions or inhibitions. On the contrary, he made himself a pariah in the Bush White House by advancing the idea of a radical "New Paradigm," and his book explores the frontiers of policy and politics, recommending not only replacing Medicare with medical savings accounts, but also replacing most other federal programs through vouchers, privatizing, or block-granting to the states.

He'd also reform Social Security by means testing and taxing benefits, by freezing cost-of-living adjustments, by raising the retirement age, and by creating a forced savings program like one in effect in Singapore.

To his credit, he'd also -- first, in fact -- abolish programs like farm and corporate subsidies that benefit Republican constituencies. He's a staunch advocate of "shared sacrifice" and fears that Gingrich, like Ronald Reagan before him, will fail to attract a lasting national majority partly because his agenda is widely seen as unfair.

Congressional Republicans, Pinkerton charges, have "done little to unfeather their own nest" and have "proceeded to cut spending -- on the poor." He also fears that the GOP might not be bold enough in dismantling the government and charges that the party is weighed down by pro-life dogmatism.

Pinkerton is at his best describing what ails America. He's clear about where he wants to head, but the major flaw in his book -- as in Gingrich's -- is that he can't prove that his remedies will make things better.

While Gingrich portrays the new "Information Age" in optimistic terms, Pinkerton says that the cyberfuture of computerized capitalism is actually producing the grim world portrayed in "cyber noir" fiction like William

Gibson's 1984 novel "Neuromancer" and the 1983 movie "Blade Runner."

Already, he writes, society is splitting along class lines -- "the plugged-in powerful versus the unplugged powerless." The former live in privately policed, gated enclaves and send their children to private schools, while the latter are trapped in rotting cities.

"We can e-mail across the planet but are afraid to cross the street," Pinkerton writes. And he says that the situation will get worse, given the stagnation of middle-class wages, leading to what he calls the re-proletarianization of the American bourgeoisie.

Unlike most Republicans, including Gingrich, Pinkerton credits Democrats like former New York Gov. Mario Cuomo and Labor Secretary Robert Reich with chronicling the division of American society, but he says that Democrats are hopelessly wedded to the system that's producing the crisis.

Using old theories and new statistics, Pinkerton convincingly demonstrates that bureaucracies bloat, consume ever-increasing amounts of money in administration, and end up being captured by well-off interest groups rather than the needy that they are meant to serve.

Pinkerton's "New Paradigm" also calls for taxes on capital to be drastically reduced, either through a flat tax or a consumption tax, which he assumes will lead to explosive economic growth that will benefit all classes of society. What he can't prove is that the wealth won't continue to be claimed by rich capitalists and denied to average workers. From 1980 to 1995, the average wage of U.S. workers fell from $25,900 to $23,750, while the average CEO's income rose from $625,000 to $3.6 million.

Tellingly, Pinkerton calls for the revival of the Civilian Conservation Corps, the military-style work brigade that employed Depression-era surplus labor. The rest of the New Deal, he'd destroy.

Pinkerton makes a convincing case against bureaucracy, as Gingrich often does against the welfare state. They don't convince me, though, that without a strong government to protect the weak, the rich and the powerful won't treat them like trash.

To his credit, he'd also abolish programs like farm and corporate subsidies that benefit Republican constituencies.

JACK ANDERSON

Mandatory service

WASHINGTON -- More than two decades after the end of the draft, a member of President Clinton's Cabinet is supporting compulsory military service for all 18-year-old men and women to help teach that "freedom is not free."

Veterans Affairs Secretary Jesse Brown emphasized during a pre-Veterans Day interview with us that he was expressing his personal views and not speaking for the administration. In fact, Brown said he hasn't broached the controversial subject with Clinton, whose draft evasion during the Vietnam War continues to haunt his presidency.

"I would be in favor of a draft," Brown told us. "I believe that every American should have an obligation to contribute something to society. When I talk about a draft I'm talking about all Americans, including women. Everyone should serve their country two years and I think you would wind up with people having a better feel of the democracy in which we live."

Brown volunteered for the Marines in 1963 and served two years in Vietnam before a gunshot wound left his right arm partially paralyzed. He spent his entire professional career with the Disabled American Veterans, a veterans advocacy group, before his Cabinet appointment.

Brown has positioned himself on the front lines in opposing Republican budget cuts, which he warns would take a heavy toll on the poorest vets. Senior administration officials have privately complained that Clinton has granted Brown a virtual blank check despite budget cutbacks because the president is seeking to overcompensate for his lack of military service. Brown is one of the few Cabinet members who has been able to use the Oval Office as a court of last resort when Clinton's budget officials have tried to slash VA spending.

Congressional sources say there is no chance Congress would even entertain the idea of reinstituting a peacetime draft, something that no major figure of either political party favors. The all-volunteer military has won plaudits for professionalism, and the entire armed forces is in the throes of downsizing. Even Brown -- who would revive a GI Bill-style, free college education for two years of service -- concedes: "I just don't think it's going to happen."

The Pentagon maintains that a military draft would have to be reinstated only to support a prolonged and large-scale conventional war. Defense Department officials also believe that peacetime draft registration could be suspended without threatening national security.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich, who obtained deferments to avoid military service in the 1960s, has supported elimination of the selective service system, which has been reduced to 600 employees and a $90 million annual budget. But Clinton has called the system a "relatively low-cost insurance policy."

Brown's case for a draft is based on societal -- not security -- considerations. He views it as an admittedly high-cost social insurance policy that would help discipline and mold youth, and Brown believes it could help ease racial tensions -- as it has since Harry Truman integrated the military.

"You can take people from all over the country with different racial attitudes, but when they were in the Marine Corps or the Army they could not act on those attitudes," Brown recalled. "They were in a structured environment with a specific goal to achieve."

The president is seeking to overcompensate for his lack of military service.

telecommunications system. The bids were evaluated by the school board staff and assigned points based on the compliance with the bid requirements.
One of NEC's two bids was awarded 889 points; Siemens bid was given 892.8 points.
According to Shields, the NEC proposal would save the district $1,547,726 over the next decade compared to the Siemens proposal. Court documents also allege that the Siemens bid did not include much of the equipment specified in the bid. The system will cost about $10 million over the next ten years.
NEC filed a protest on Sept. 22 and an administrative hearing was held last week.
At that time, Shields said, NEC was informed telephone equipment had begun to be installed in the new facility.
"That is when we decided to sue for a temporary injunction," Shields said.
The injunction seeks to keep Siemens from installing their equipment in the building until the matter of the disputed bidding process is settled.
"If they put in their equipment and the ruling goes in our favor," Shields objected, "the taxpayers are going to have to pay to have all of that removed."
Shields and NEC are confident the ruling will go in their favor.
"There is no reason to believe Siemens will prevail here," he said. "I hate to have them put in that equipment only to have to take it out again."
Siemens' equipment is not compatible with that produced by NEC so the two could not be used together.
On Oct. 24, the school board approved the Siemens contract. They said, in order to facilitate the move to the new building as quickly as possible in order to get employees out of the Mellonville Avenue building, which they claim is the cause of many employee health problems.
NEC disputes their "declaration of necessity," saying it does not "portend that failure to move into the building by Dec. 16, 1995 would cause an immediate and serious danger to public health, safety or welfare" as required by the school board's own rules.

Atlas presented
The Sanford Museum was the site of a tour and social reception Monday evening for participants in the Golden Age Games. During the event, a door prize of an Atlas was offered to persons taking the tour. Evette Hartfield, right, presented the Atlas to Dee Capucille, whose name was selected for the prize as a result of the drawing.

In other words, Shields said, the school board should wait until the process is complete before they allow Siemens to install their equipment.
"There is no danger in waiting," he said. "In the end everyone will better off if we wait."
The board said the local company (Siemens) could provide better service for the system they would install.
NEC countered that was not the case and added that the Siemens bid did not even include all the items required in the initial proposal.
He noted, also, that a temporary telephone system could be installed while the process continues if the district officials wanted to be in the building by Dec. 16. It is not necessary, he said, to install the full integrated system Siemens and his company are competing to put in.
School board officials have said the dispute will not slow the work in the new building and they have no intention of stopping Siemens from pursuing the installation.
So, the installation continues at the new offices on E. Lake Mary Boulevard while the matter heads for court.

The Seminole High School JROTC is scheduled to join the celebration and to give a 21-gun salute to the veterans in attendance.
The theme of this year's parade is a salute to the 27 million living veterans who remain an active part of our communities nationwide.
The veterans organizations have invited young people, members of scout troops and school groups to take part in the celebration as they are the future of this nation.
The streets along the path of the parade will be closed as the procession winds its way, and the north end of Park Avenue and Seminole Boulevard in front of the flagpole will remain closed during the ceremony following the parade.

The celebration is expected to conclude before noon.
The public is encouraged to come out and cheer for those who served their country.

said, "we do so much more that many people don't even know about, that I consider the clinic's services one of the biggest secrets in Sanford."
In order to build a new facility, a loan in the amount of $2.2 million is being sought from the Rural Economic and Community Development division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (formerly Farmers Home Administration).
Cahill indicated he was very hopeful of obtaining the loan, and the property has already been purchased. "We expect to get the loan in the near future," he said, "and if we do, construction will probably start by the middle of this next year."

The center has been in operation in the Sanford area since 1977, and has been in its present location for the past 13 years.
As in most prerequisites for federal loans applications, other approvals must first be granted. One of them is to examine any impact such a facility would have, both directly and indirectly, on the floodplain and wetlands in what may be considered prime farmland.
The property at present is undeveloped, and uncultivated. It had been a heavily wooded area but was previously cleared out.
Following official procedures, the Rural Economic and Community Development (RECD) will hold a public hearing on November 21, from 2 until 4 p.m., at the First Church of the Nazarene Fellowship Hall, 2551 S. Sanford Avenue in Sanford.

Senate decides on hearings before vote on abortions

By SHANE DUSTON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON — Senators opposed to certain late-term abortions agreed to allow Senate hearings on the medical techniques they call disgusting, saying the public will see why it should be banned.
Abortion-rights senators said testimony from medical experts more likely would reveal that such decisions should be left to a woman and her doctor.
In a 90-7 vote Wednesday, the Senate gave its Judiciary Committee 19 days to hold hearings. The first will be Nov. 17, said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, the committee's chairman.
Hatch and many of his Republican colleagues are seeking the ban on what they call "partial birth abortion" and didn't feel hearings were necessary.

But Hatch and the bill's chief sponsor, Sen. Bob Smith, R-N.H., voted to send it to a committee on the advice of Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., after two days of debate showed considerable support for hearings among both Republicans and Democrats.
The House had one day of hearings before it passed the bill last week.
Sen. Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania, an abortion-rights advocate who is competing with Dole for the Republican presidential nomination, led the drive for Senate committee review.
The overwhelming vote is an indication of how the bill will fare once it gets back to the full Senate, where vivid descriptions of the abortion procedure made many senators uncomfortable.
Since the procedure is done in the late second trimester or the third trimester, the fetus can be large. The doctor uses a technique that collapses the skull, so as not to damage the mother when it is removed intact through the birth canal.
Abortion rights advocates say it is rare and used only when the life of the mother is in grave danger.
But Smith described the method as "grizzly" and "disgusting."
Sen. Bill Frist, R-Tenn., a heart surgeon and the only doctor in the Senate, said: "Physicians don't want new laws dictating their practice. But this procedure is so brutal, so inhumane, that this ban is justified."

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Powell won't run for president

WASHINGTON - The most intense decision of Colin Powell's life, one that riveted the political world for months, came down to his family's wishes and his own inability to "get the passion up" to run for president.

The retired general ended months of speculation Wednesday when he said he would not run for president or vice president in 1996 although he proclaimed himself a Republican and said he would continue to "speak out forcefully in the future on the issues of the day."

To run for president, he said, would demand "a passion and commitment that, despite my every effort, I do not have for political life, because such a life requires a calling that I do not yet hear." "For me to pretend otherwise would not be honest to myself. It would not be honest to the American people," said Powell, who was joined by his wife Alma at a jammed news conference.

Stopgap spending legislation

WASHINGTON - Stopgap spending legislation keeping the government running while Congress struggles to write a balanced budget is being taken up by the Senate today and then on to a veto-minded President Clinton.

The bill, adopted 230-197 by the House on Wednesday night, would put the government on a strict fiscal diet through Dec. 1, limiting spending in many programs to as little as 80 percent of the fiscal year 1995 level.

It also incorporates a controversial measure restricting lobbying by private organizations and companies that receive federal funds.

And, even before final action is taken on the GOP plan to carve $270 billion over seven years in savings from Medicare, it would raise Medicare premiums for doctors' bills and lab tests, effective Jan. 1.

The Senate, where many Republicans are less confrontational than House GOP freshmen, appeared likely to delete the much-disputed lobbying restriction, sponsored by Rep. Ernest Istook, R-Okla.

Billy Graham's son accepts challenge

NEW YORK - Billy Graham's oldest son was a teen rebel who drank and fought, was expelled from college and chafed at the expectations placed on the offspring of America's preacher.

Franklin Graham now accepts the challenge of being a voice on the crusade landscape. He has been picked to succeed his father in the nation's most coveted evangelical pulpit, the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association said Wednesday.

The association's board of directors elected the younger Graham to the new position of first vice chairman, with the right to step in should his father become incapacitated.

The 77-year-old Billy Graham, who has Parkinson's disease, said he will continue as chairman and chief executive of the organization he founded in 1950.

Last nuclear power plant

WASHINGTON - In a drama that has stretched over 23 years, the government is about to license the last nuclear power plant still being built. Critics call it a white elephant that long ago should have been mothballed, while supporters wonder why it's taken so long.

On the banks of the Tennessee River halfway between Chattanooga and Knoxville, the Watts Bar reactor stands as a symbol of both persistence and frustration and the tangled path has marked the nuclear industry.

First proposed in 1972, the plant is expected to be granted permission by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, perhaps as early as today, to begin loading reactor fuel and conduct low-power tests.

It could be in full operation by next spring.

'60 Minutes' kills controversial program

NEW YORK - CBS lawyers told "60 Minutes" not to air an on-the-record interview with a former tobacco company executive who criticized the industry, the network said.

In its place, the news show has substituted a report examining how cigarette makers try to prevent information from getting out.

"Like most news reports this one went through a process before it was ready for airing. For editorial and legal reasons, some changes were made during that process," CBS News spokeswoman Sandy Connors said Wednesday.

CBS' concern over the original interview wasn't the threat of a libel suit, according to network executives. The New York Times reported today.

The CBS bosses said they feared they might be held legally responsible because the executive had signed an agreement with his former company, Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp., not to disclose internal company information, the Times said.

VA begins new study on war illnesses

WASHINGTON - The health consequences of serving in the Persian Gulf War will be studied in a new Veterans Affairs study comparing veterans who were in the Gulf with those who served elsewhere.

The nationwide survey will seek information on the health problems of 15,000 Gulf War veterans and a control group of 15,000 who served outside Southwest Asia during the 1991 conflict.

"I need our veterans to help me get to the bottom of this issue," VA Secretary Jesse Brown said Wednesday in urging veterans who receive questionnaires to return them promptly.

The VA and the Defense Department have carried out a variety of studies on the illnesses that have afflicted thousands of veterans of the war with Iraq and the possible links to chemical, biological or environmental pollutants.

Rabin's assassin didn't act alone

TEL AVIV, Israel - Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's confessed assassin did not act alone, said police who today accused a second Jewish extremist of helping plan and carry out the killing.

At a hearing before a magistrate today, investigator Nissim Daoudi said police intend to charge Deir Adnan, a 28-year-old seminary student, with murder and conspiracy.

A search of his home Wednesday night in the West Bank settlement of Beit Hagi turned up "weapons that belong to a terror organization, including timers for bombs and grenades," Daoudi said.

Adnan admitted knowing the confessed gunman, 28-year-old Yigal Amir, but said nothing else at the hearing. Magistrate Haya Hefetz ordered him held for 15 days while the investigation continues.

Another suspect, 28-year-old Chad Shumrik of Tel Aviv, was brought before the magistrate later and accused of conspiracy. He was ordered held for five more days.

Both men are friends of Amir, who claimed he acted alone when he shot Rabin last weekend at a Tel Aviv peace rally.

Report: Education goals not met

By GALLY BUEZEE
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON - America's schools have made little progress toward meeting the ambitious education goals set five years ago by the nation's governors, a panel of governors and lawmakers says.

"If we're serious about preparing every child for success and good citizenship in the 21st century, we're going to have to redouble our efforts," Education Secretary Richard Riley said Wednesday of a report issued by the bipartisan National Education Goals panel.

High school completion rates have not improved since 1990, according to the group's annual study. Reading achievement has remained flat in grades 4 and 8 and has fallen among high school seniors.

And a large gap still exists between white and minority students' rates of college enrollment and completion, the study found.

In addition, more teachers report being threatened or injured by students now than in 1990, and more teachers say classroom disruptions are interfering with teaching and learning.

On the bright side, both elementary and high school students' achievement in math and science has improved, and more college students are earning degrees in those disciplines.

"These are tough goals, and there has been progress," said Indiana Gov. Evan Bayh, a Democrat who chairs the panel of governors, members of Congress and state lawmakers. "But there's a long way to go."

Supporters of the national goals say changes begun in the 1990s, including some states' requirements that students pass exit exams before graduation, have not filtered down.

Riley and others in the Clinton administration also argue that the math and science improvements prove that schools are slowly improving.

"If we do the same job with other areas that we have done with math and science, the level overall will rise," Riley said.

The national goals stem from a meeting of governors called by President Bush in 1989 amid worries that American schoolchildren were academically trailing their Japanese and European counterparts.

When President Clinton took office, he pushed to set the goals into law. His administration also implemented a federal program, called Goals 2000, that gives states money to help them to overhaul schools.

But Goals 2000 drew immediate suspicion from conservatives, who called it an attempt by Washington to usurp local control of schools.

Support for the goals effort has since splintered. Business groups and some Republicans still back the National Education Goals panel and its efforts to encourage tough state academic standards.

"This kind of work serves the states in a tangible way," said Republican Gov. John Engler of Michigan, the panel's incoming chairman.

But Chester Finn of the Hudson Institute, a conservative think tank, said many conservatives feel such an effort can never be free of federal influence.

"Education is a national priority, but that does not mean we need more federal programs," Finn said. "They took a national crusade and turned it into a federal program."

Will government save wild salmon?

By SCOTT BONNER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Saving wild salmon in the Pacific Northwest would require a variety of costly measures, such as cutting back ocean fishing and prohibiting logging and livestock grazing near inland mountain streams, the National Research Council says.

Pacific Northwest salmon are dying partly because the government spends too much time raising hatchery fish and not enough protecting native spawning grounds of wild salmon, the council said in a new report Wednesday.

In fact, "hatcheries unintentionally have contributed to the over-harvesting of wild stocks, ecological changes in the salmon environment and reduction of overall genetic diversity," said the research arm of the National Academy of Sciences.

Will Steffe, Northwest regional director of the National Marine Fisheries Service in charge of government efforts to save the salmon, said the agency already is moving away from the use of hatcheries.

The report said not enough attention has been paid to the unique biological traits that allow the wild fish to swim to sea and then return to their home stream, sometimes 1,000 miles from the ocean.

The study, titled "Upstream: Salmon and Society in the Pacific Northwest," warned that salmon are in such trouble - now extinct across 40 percent of their historic breeding range in Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana - that potentially hundreds of varieties eventually will be added to the U.S. list of endangered species.

Ironically, the hatcheries were constructed mostly over the past half-century to make up for spawning habitat lost to construction of hydropower dams, which hamper upstream travel of adult salmon and slow river flows that once helped flush young fish to the ocean in a matter of days.

The easiest, quickest way to increase the number of salmon returning to spawn is to strictly limit fishing for salmon, especially in the ocean, the council said.

Willies improved to 8-4 and a win against Bruce Masonry next week at 9 p.m. in the final game of the season will force a tie for second.

Kenny Tuttle had a big night for Toucan Willies, going 2-for-5, including a double, at the plate and driving in two runs. But his defense in left-center field was even better, as he made eight putouts and threw out a runner at the plate.

Other contributors were Ronnie Garner (3-for-4, run, RBI), Eddie Norton (2-for-4, two runs, two RBI), Ken Crawford (2-for-4, two runs, RBI), Lance Abney (2-for-4, run), Joe Brondon (single, run), winning pitcher Kelly Klukis (1-for-2, RBI) and Harold Hitt (two runs, RBI).

SAC teams tune up in jamboree at Lake Mary

By GARY COATMAN
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The girls basketball coaches in the Seminole Athletic Conference all feel their teams are all evenly matched this season. Wednesday night at Lake Mary High School, Seminole, Lake Mary and Lyman all earned token victories at the SAC jamboree as all six teams saw one half of action.

Seminole defeated Oviedo 33-22 in the first match up of the evening, and the Tribe held an 18-8 advantage over the Lions at the end of the first quarter. Seminole coach John McNamara had mixed feelings about the Tribe's performance on Wednesday night. Seminole won the SAC with a 10-0 record while posting a 27-5 overall mark.

"We did some good things and we did some bad things," McNamara said. "We have a young team, and we were playing without Mindee Hampton because she missed school because of illness."

The tribe lost guard Tennesha Eason (Valencia Community College) and forward Belinder Morgan from last year's SAC championship team. Haneevah Miller, Dana Merrick, Mindee Hampton, Shemekka Stokes and Felicia Henderson re-

Lake Howell's Allison Duncan (right) runs to try to cut off Lyman's Jamie Gioia during Wednesday's Seminole Athletic Conference Girls' Basketball Jamboree at Lake Mary High School. The Grayhounds edged the Silver Hawks 20-19 in the final half of the jamboree that featured all six Seminole County squads.

Winning pitcher Bob Wells Sr. scattered nine hits and drove in a run as Wells Contracting broke a three-game losing streak with an 18-5 victory over ASP Incorporated at Chase Park Wednesday night.

Hopkins Meats rally denies Crazy Wings

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — Hopkins Meats kept its hopes of a second straight championship alive as they rallied for four runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to deny Crazy Wings a clinching victory in the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Wednesday Night Fall Slowpitch Softball League at Chase Park.

Crazy Wings took an early 7-3 lead and was leading 9-6 going into the seventh inning. And things looked bleak as Hopkins had a runner on first, on a Manny Silvia single, with two outs. But a double by Bill Shaw, a two-run single by Jay Johnson, three walks, with winning pitcher Tom Saabo getting an RBI, and a game-winning RBI single by Tim Barkley gave Hopkins Meats a 10-9 victory.

In the other game, Randy Brown drove in eight runs as Wells Contracting broke a three-game losing streak with an 18-5 triumph over ASP Incorporated.

The loss was the first of the season for Crazy Wings (6-1) and kept Hopkins Meats, which won the Spring Wednesday Night title, in the hunt with a 4-3 record. Wells Contracting improved to 3-4, while ASP Incorporated fell to 1-6.

Next week, Wells challenges Hopkins at 7 p.m. and ASP tackles Crazy Wings at 8 p.m.

Doing the damage for Hopkins Meats were Bill Shaw (two doubles, single, two runs, RBI), Saabo (three singles, two RBI), Larry Chunet

Lovelady wins opening feature of 1996 season

By PAUL MARZULLA
Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — Lakeland's Raymond Lovelady started off the 1996 points season by winning the 25 lap Late Model feature event Friday night at Orlando Speedway.

Lovelady, who drag raced fellow pole sitter Dennis Misuraca out of turn one for the lead, led every circuit on his trip to victory lane.

Despite four caution periods that brought out new green flags, Lovelady kept his challengers at bay.

In tow behind Lovelady were Mack Hanbury, Ron DeCandio, David Higga and Ricky Wood. At the halfway point Misuraca pulled to the pits with engine problems.

Brian Bellaw, with an impressive run, raced to his first mini-stock feature win. Bellaw, with five laps to the checkers, dove to the inside of race leader Jared Allison to take the number one slot. Once in command Bellaw was never headed as he charged to victory lane.

Ted Vulpius finished in the runner up spot ahead of Conrad Grenier, Richard Newton and Keith French.

Randy Lewis held off a last lap charge by Michael Williams to win his first ever modified feature event.

Williams pulled to Lewis' rear bumper on the back straightaway going into turn three and coming out of turn four the lead duo raced wheel-to-wheel to the flagstand.

Lewis edged Williams by inches to take the checkers. Rounding out the top five, respectively, were Joe [See Speedworld, Page 28]

Middleton, Jimmy Winks and Terry Rozel. Paul Colgan took the win in the limited late model headliner. Colgan, who started the feature event from the sixth position, charged through the field and took the lead on lap number six. While Oster's Bobby Sears and James Erb battled for the runner up spots, Colgan pulled to a commanding lead.

With four laps remaining, Sears pulled away from Erb but ran out of race before he could catch Colgan.

Art Niergarth was fourth and Keith Miller was fifth.

Ted Head took the win in the sportman division with Jerry Poffinberger, Barbara Pierce, Hank Sanders and Jeff Crawford trailing.

From his eighth starting position Glenn Castro pulled to the outside groove and made it stick as he passed seven cars in four laps to take the lead in the bomber event. By the halfway point Castro had a 12 car-length lead on his competitors. A caution for four laps took the chechers bunched the field for a new start. Dave Waddell tried to race with Castro but came up short and would have to settle for second. Richard Richards was third with Doug Gould and Fred Fiedler trailing.

Wayne Hammond, using lapped traffic to his advantage, won the 35 lap American Winged Outlaw Sprints feature.

Hammond, who raced to his first win of the season, darted in, out and around the 25 car field to take the checkered flag ahead of David Steele. Stan Butler brought home third place money with Wayne Reutemann and Jimmy Kite filling the top five.

Stacy Tyler won the run-about feature with J.D. Lanester taking the win in the mini-bomber class.

turn from last year's team, and are joined by Lake Howell transfer Roseetta Jackson. The Tribe is in Class 5A-District 8, while the other five SAC school comprise Class 6A-District 4.

"Our strong point is speed and defense," McManis said. "Our goal is to make it to the final four. The conference championship would be nice to win, but our toughest competition should come from Satellite and St. Cloud in the district. We get a pretty good test with the 6A schools in the SAC, which has helped us over the years."

Oviedo, which posted a 16-13 overall record and a fifth place finish in the SAC, is coached by Tom Bieri. Lions assistant coach Ross LeDuk filled in for Bieri at the jamboree because the head coach was unable to attend because of a prior commitment. Overall, LeDuk was pleased by the season.

"This was very good for the kids," LeDuk said. "It lets us figure out where we stand. We're happy with the team we have, and we're happy with the way they played in the jamboree. We want to come together at the end, and we're not worried about the beginning."

Oviedo lost center Stephanie Noisieux, forward Lisa Liljenquist and guard Holly Duseworth from last year's team that was runner up in 6A, District 4 competition. The Lions are looking to forward Betsy Wymear and point guard Carrie McAuliffe for leadership this season.

"We expect a solid effort every night," LeDuk said. "We're also hoping to mesh together at district tournament time like we did last year. If our guards and forwards have another strong year, we should finish either first or second in the SAC."

Host Lake Mary defeated rival Paul Smith, 17-11, in a game that was a battle of attrition. The Rams jumped out to an 8-0 lead in the first quarter, but the Patriots trimmed the margin to 8-7 midway through the period. Lake Mary then pulled out to a 19-7 lead at the end of the first quarter en route to the win.

Lake Brantley 30-18 in the second contest of the jamboree. The Rams jumped out to an 8-0 lead in the first quarter, but the Patriots trimmed the margin to 8-7 midway through the period. Lake Mary then pulled out to a 19-7 lead at the end of the first quarter en route to the win.

Lake Mary, who finished 18-9 overall last season, finished third in the SAC with a 6-3 conference mark. Rams coach Carl Brown was pleased with the way his team looked in its first action of the season.

"Everybody on the team was a little bit nervous, including the coaches," Brown said. "I was impressed with the way we grabbed rebounds and ran the offense. We have a lot to work on, but everybody came out and worked hard."

Lake Mary lost point guard Laura Ragucci and forward Brian Gehl from last season, but freshman guard Ashlee Balance and forward LaDarius Bradley will try to fill the void created by the departures. The Rams return starters Debbie Duber, Lori Hammett (6-foot-3) and Courtney Harris from last year. Waiting of the bench are reserve players Whitney Aron, Carissa Sica, Ayesha Harrison and Murphy Culeppner.

"My goal right now is to play hard every night and see what happens," Brown said. "We also want to try and win the conference and the district, because if you win the district, you get to go to the playoffs. I'm hoping our freshman come through for us this year."

Lake Brantley posted a 5-22 record last season, which included 0-10 in the SAC. Patriots coach Karen Szwecyk only lost guard Christen Rogers from last year's team, and made it a point to get the entire Patriots roster into the action at Wednesday's jamboree.

"We still have a lot of work to do," Szwecyk said. "We're still a really young team. We've only been practicing two weeks, and that's not a lot of time. We have a lot to improve on, but we are doing some things well. Once our starting five gels together, we should be in good shape."

"We played like this was a jamboree," Cochrane said. "We worked on our defense, and we did some things well. Our major goal is to become a better defensive team. If we can get better on defense, the offense will take care of itself."

Reflections on Middle East peace

JERRY STEWART
'Especially'

Mr. Stewart: What do you see ahead for Israel? I am a Palestinian, now living in Central Florida, and I still have family living there. They live on the West Bank just outside of Jerusalem and I am very concerned that the "peace process" may not continue due to the unrest on both sides and factions that profess that one or the other is right and not willing to get along toward any settlement or peace accord. Will there ever be peace in my lifetime? I am a Moslem, so that makes you and I, Mr. Stewart, cousins whether we like it or not. Families should be together, don't you think?

Mohammed
Sanford

Dear Mohammed: Or should I say "cousin," because we are cousins. Although you are a Moslem and I am a Jew, we have Abraham as a common ancestor. I am appalled at abt death, especially an assassination such as that occurred last Saturday to Mr. Rabin.

Last week I experienced three deaths: first my aunt passed away, then Mr. Rabin and, finally, an old acquaintance (perhaps known by name to many readers as well), and that was

Eddie "Popeye Doyle" Egan. Egan was the actual police officer, along with Sonny Grosso, that actually broke up the famous French Connection case. (Gene Hackman played the part of Egan in the original film.)

Little known, though, is the fact there was no French Connection II story as was depicted, but the first one was highly accurate.

As for the Middle East peace process, that will continue regardless of any problems on either side. History has come too far to revert back to the status of no progress.

The importance of the port of Haifa, the United States' only natural entrance by water to that region, makes it equally important to all of us where concerns of oil, defense and regional representation are mandated in the type of world we live in today. Two thousand years of negative history won't find an answer immediately, however. Currently, the Israeli government is the 39th to rule Jerusalem. But, you see, this is a city in itself which is Moslem, Jewish and Christian. Truly no one faction can claim it for themselves without ruffling the feathers of the others.

True, the Moslems already have Mecca and Medina and the "third and final plum" would certainly be Jerusalem with the Dome of the Rock where Mohammed ascended to heaven upon his horse.

But this is also Mt. Moriah as well and it is equally important to Christians as Christ preached from here.

So how can any one religion make a justifiable claim to this multi-sacred place? Bealdea, I have prayed at the Western Wall myself and placed a message within a crevasse of its rock wall. The message was "Shalom" or peace, which also happens to be part of my own Hebrew name which I was given at birth. And will there be peace? Certainly, but at a cost that no one truly wants. But if we don't pay attention to the lessons of history, as the saying goes, then we are doomed to repeat it. We don't need any more veterans from any war or conflict(s). This Friday at 10 a.m. I will be the featured speaker at Veterans Day observances at Barnett Bank in Orlando, located behind the Central Florida Fairground on W. Colonial Drive.

I will be doing several pieces of original poetry in remembrance of those who made it possible for each of us to have our freedom and to enjoy our country. It is my hope that in the future that there are no "new veterans" and that the observance become one, more of honoring those departed yet alive, yet without the necessity to ever participate in a war again. Maybe the Hippies knew something when they chanted "Make love, not war." And doesn't it also say some place to "love they neighbor"?

Woman raises ruckus over Abby's poor usage

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
ADVICE

DEAR ABBY: Giving grammar lessons is not your forte (strong point), but I'm getting really bugged with the use of "reared" and "raised."
Abby, children are "reared" — not "raised" as are chickens, etc. And people are invited "to," not "for," dinner. (How do you want them — boiled or fried?)
BARBARA TABLER,
SANTA BARBARA, CALIF.

DEAR BARBARA: Thank you for your insight, however, in "The Careful Writer," by the late Theodore M. Bernstein of The New Yorker Times, is the following:

"RAISE, REAR: At one time, a war raged (and some skirmishes still go on) against the use of 'raise' to describe what parents do to children. The battle cry was, 'You raise pigs, but you rear children.' However, in this country at least, the war is over; we 'raise' both pigs and children, and some parents will testify that you can't always tell the difference."

And as for inviting people "to," not "for," dinner, we've come a long way since cannibalism was practiced, but in terms of word usage — you may be right.

DEAR ABBY: The gift-giving season is approaching, and I want to share an idea my sister hit on. Last year, "Jan's" three adult children asked for hints about gifts she would like for Christmas. Jan told them she would like each of them to do something nice for someone else and send her a description of their good deed.

Her oldest son is a recovering alcoholic, so he spent Christmas Eve making coffee and talking with the alcoholics at a center for alcoholics in California. Jan's middle child bought a bike for an underprivileged girl, and the youngest bought a bag of groceries and anonymously left it on the doorstep of a needy family. We decided to follow their lead, so this year my family will also become Good Samaritans. Two of our sons are in college and money is scarce, but they will offer an hour of community service. They will keep some money in their pockets but at the same time benefit their community. The rest of us are still in the planning stages — there are so many opportunities to do good that we're having a hard time choosing. JUDY IN MANSFIELD, OHIO

DEAR JUDY: Thank you for an upper of a letter. I'm sure many readers will thank your sister for a gift idea that embodies the true spirit of Christmas.

DEAR ABBY: I have waited and waited to see if there was any response to the letter from a reader who was tired of his or her windshield being bombarded by cigarette butts on the freeway. Since no response has appeared, I guess it's up to me to write one.

In the 60 years that I have been driving, a cigarette butt has never hit my windshield. The letter writer is obviously a hateranger opposed to smokers. If even one butt hits the windshield, I would suggest the driver take a course in defensive driving, because he (or she) was certainly driving too close to the other vehicle ahead.

As the writer did not sign a name, please do not use mine. Thank you. DEFENSIVE DRIVER IN INTERNATIONAL FALLS, MINN.

DEAR ABBY: I must disagree with your flip answer to "Ticked Off in Texas." It is clear that neither you nor any of your staff has ever been in the position of being a second wife where there are children from a prior marriage.

I agree, it is very important for the divorced parents to be able to discuss matters pertaining to their child (or children), but that is as far as it should go.

For a good cause
The Optimist Club of Sanford recently hosted a fundraiser for its various charitable programs by selling hot dogs and cold drinks in conjunction with the Sanford Kmart's Octoberfest celebration. The hot dogs and buns were donated by the Sanford Food Lion store and the cold drinks and wagon were donated by the Kmart store. On hand for one of the shifts in the weekend fundraiser were president Peggy Harsden, Ernie and Maude Butler and Audrey Ogden.

DEAR ABBY: When someone dies and the family requests that in lieu of sending flowers, a donation be made to a fund established by the family, is it not unreasonable to expect an acknowledgment or a thank-you note?

In this particular case, only contributions in excess of $100 were acknowledged. Since when does the amount of the gift dictate whether or not someone's kindness is to be acknowledged?

We, and many others, feel slighted and bitter over the appalling behavior of the family of the deceased. Nearly five months have passed since "Mr. X's" death, and hundreds of people who lovingly made their donations in his honor will never be thanked because the dollar amounts did not meet the family's criteria.

Gastronomic heaven: Julia Child presides over gourmet summit

By SUZY PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

PARIS — From foie gras to pigs' trotters or lobster, name your delicacy and it's on the table here this week — literally and figuratively.

Julia Child and more than 150 other cooking experts have gathered here for a week of eating, drinking and talking about it.

It's not just a pig-out for writers, restaurateurs, teachers and cookshop owners. This is the first time the 2,500-member International Association of Culinary Professionals has held its annual meeting in this gastronomic capital.

Others have been in Washington, D.C., San Francisco, Mexico and Italy.

"This is our great foodie bash of the year," said Ethel Hofman of Merion Station, Pa., the IACP president.

The prestigious event is centered at the Lutetia Hotel, with gastronomic celebrations at the top cooking schools: the Cordon Bleu, the Ritz-Escoffier, Princesse Marie-Blanche de Broglie's Cuisines de Marie-Blanche, plus workshop visits around town.

"They've flown in from all over — mainly the U.S., but also Japan, Australia, Italy and Norway," said Andre Cointreau, owner of the Cordon Bleu, who hosted a big reception Sunday night to open the conference.

"I began my cooking with the Cordon Bleu in the late 1940s," recalled Mrs. Child, the doyenne of cuisine in America and co-author of "Mastering the Art of French Cooking."

A stalwart food lover, Mrs. Child, 83, has been participating in as many events as possible of the dozens offered, including a trip to the huge central food market, Les Halles at Rue de la Vierge near Orly airport. It gets produce from France and all over the world, and dispatches it all over Europe.

This meant starting out at 4:45 a.m. Mrs. Child didn't flinch, and lasted the course, marching around for about five hours, "and it felt like 10 kilometers," she said. "But it was fascinating, particularly the fish and vegetable sections. I saw vegetables and fruits I'd never seen or heard of before."

"A bowl of onion soup and glass of red wine at the end in a little bistro was welcome, even necessary in the cold snap," she added.

The IACP's lectures and discussions are led by food critic-cookbook writer Patricia Wells of the International Herald Tribune, along with Alexander Lazareff, of the Conseil National des Arts Culinaires.

Lazareff is also involved in a national program to teach children about good taste, to wean them away from American fast food, nearly as popular with French kids as with Americans.

"Of course, the parents begin to suffer, as the kids require this and that after our testing courses," said Lazareff. He added that he permits his own young children a bit of wine now and then, "so they can develop a palate — not a craving — for wine."

Dozens of workshops offer everything from a visit to a chocolate-maker to liqueur-tasting in the Ritz Hotel's Hemingway bar.

Mrs. Child chose the luxury grocer-restaurateur-caterer, Fauchon, and found it a real eye-opener. "You can always learn something," she said, impressed by the operation run by executive chef Jean-Pierre Clement, particularly the reconstruction of a duck, stuffed with foie gras and cubed for cocktail servings.

The wine cellar was magnificent with its reasonable (about $11 for a good Cotes de Hermitage) to astronomical prices, up to $5,000 or so for a 1949 Premier Cru Bordeaux.

The IACP group heads out today for various regional food tours. Mrs. Child has chosen to sample some top restaurants of Burgundy from Anne Willan's Chateau du Fey (home of the La Varenne Cooking School), with Patricia Wells and a small group.

How about all this eating, not always low-fat or cholesterol?

"Well, if you don't have a doctor who enjoys good eating and drinking, change doctors," said Mrs. Child, who minces her parsley but never her words.

A gout regimen that really works

MEDICINE PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I just love you. When I see your picture in the paper, I see the face of an old friend. Now to business.

I have gout, and want to share with other readers who have this disease.

1.) Diet doesn't help. Allopurinol does.

2.) Don't use allopurinol for an acute attack. Ibuprofen works better.

3.) Stay away from aspirin, because it can bring on a gout attack.

DEAR READER: Your comments about gout, a form of acute arthritis, are right on the mark, especially the one (which I have, in the past, forgotten to mention) about aspirin.

Allopurinol is a gout preventive. Anti-inflammatory drugs (ibuprofen and others, including colchicine) are best for acute attacks. Aspirin can, indeed, cause (or worsen) a gout attack.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "About Gout."

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm in my early 20s and have a lot of unattractive moles on my face. Would laser surgery be a satisfactory treatment?

DEAR READER: That is a decision best left to a specialist, either a dermatologist or a plastic surgeon. In general, lasers are very effective in removing blemishes because the hot pinpoints of light cause very little tissue damage; hence, scarring is minimal.

Laser surgery is expensive because the equipment costs a lot and special skills are required to operate it properly. However, the laser procedure might solve your problem. Also, why not consider surgical removal, a more traditional therapy? Best of all, it's cheaper.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a healthy 41-year-old woman with a low-grade fever of 99 degrees that has been present for several weeks. A blood count, urinalysis, chest X-ray and chemical screening were all normal. Nonetheless, I'm afraid of what the fever might mean. My doctor dismisses the fever and tells me to "wait it out."

temperature is 97.6 degrees. Please advise me.

DEAR READER: There's a surprising variation in normal body temperatures: Healthy people often range between 97 and 99 degrees.

Therefore, I'm not at all sure that you do, in fact, have a fever. Ordinarily, a degree above or below "normal" is no cause for concern. You can be further reassured by the normal medical tests that you had.

Further, in the absence of symptoms - such as malaise, fatigue, pain, and so forth - you can relax. I think your doctor is correct: wait and see. Oh, by the way, keep your thermometer in the medicine cabinet; don't constantly be taking your temperature. Check for fever only when you feel ill.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Everyone learns how to play certain suit combinations. Take today's spade suit. With copious entries, you should lead a low card from the dummy toward your hand.

heart to his ace and ruffed his losing heart in the dummy. Then he ran the spade queen, hoping to win an over-trick. However, West produced the king. A moment later, South drew trumps and claimed, his diamond loser disappearing on a club winner in the dummy.

HOROSCOPE

Nov. 10, 1995 A number of important achievements are probable for the year ahead, especially if you link up with allies as competent as yourself.

might think you can entice someone to do things for you by appearing to be weak and helpless. Unfortunately, all you'll do is embarrass yourself.
