Body found on Lake Monroe

SANFORD — A nationwide search has begun for the boyfriend of a Sarasota-area woman whose body was found on the shore of Lake Monroe Monday afternoon.

Investigators believe Heather Lee Reitzel, 23, Nokomas, may have been killed and her body dumped in woods off U.S. Highway 17-92 near Interstate 4. The suspect in the murder is Gregory Mayes, also known as Gregory McAdams, 31, Sarasota. He is a black male, 5 feet 7 inches tall, 175 pounds with black hair and brown eyes. Mayes was last seen driving a stolen car, a gold 2-door Mitsubishi Eclipse with Florida tag M340351.

An autopsy was performed on Reitzel but the cause of death is not being released because investigators say it would jeopardize the investigation, sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough said.

Reitzel's mother identified the victim's body Monday night. She said she last saw her daughter and Mayes Thursday when they left on a car trip to Daytona Beach. Mayes has an extensive criminal record, according to McDonough.

The body was discovered about 2 p.m. Monday by a fisherman, who flagged down a Volusia County deputy.

Anyone with information about Mayes whereabouts can contact the Seminole County Sheriff's office, 407-330-8650.

Manley pleads no contest

SANFORD — A Sanford man pleaded no contest to aggravated assault Monday for his part in a fight which eventually led to a Deltona man's death in late 1993.

Mike Manley, 32, entered the plea in Deland for striking James Bradley on the head on Dec. 26, 1993 near Duck Lake in Deltona.

Manley and his brother, Mark, were involved in a fight with Bradley, his girlfriend, Tahnya Brooklyn and other teens. Bradley was knocked unconscious by Mike Manley but survived.

Jonathan Brooklyn was called by his daughter, Tahnya. Brooklyn found Mark Manley, whose truck had broken down on Saxon Boulevard. Police investigators claim during the confrontation, Mark Manley struck Brooklyn with the blunt end of a hatchet causing the DeBary pool repairman to fall into the roadway where he was hit by a car.

Sanford eyes QUAD unit

First step taken in battle against drugs

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Sanford City Commission has taken the first step in the battle against illegal drug activity at the privately-owned Seminole Gardens Apartments and the Sanford Housing Authority's residences in that area.

Last night, commissioners and representatives of the area residents, discussed the matter publicly before agreeing to "take a proactive stance" and to do what is necessary to solve the drug problem in Sanford.

Commissioners and police representatives stated they were doing what they could.

"But we have constraints," said commissioner Herbert "Whitey" Eckstein.

William Gorman, owner of the Seminole Gardens Apartments, did not wish to blame anyone for the city's ills. He only wanted, he said, to find solutions.

"I don't want any finger pointing," he told commissioners. "But if their (the police) hands are tied, the city commission has got to formulate a program to help get the job done."

At Mayor Bettye Smith's suggestion, the commission agreed by consensus to finance the formation of a Quick Uniform Attack on Drugs (QUAD) team to combat the drug problem in that area.

"We've got to get a QUAD unit in there," she said. "even if it means borrowing from reserves. I don't think we have a choice."

Following the commission's commitment to establishing the QUAD unit, Gorman was pleased with the step.

"I understand their hands are tied," he said. "But some decisions need to be made."

While assistant police chief Joe Dillard maintained it was impossible within present financial constraints to assign an officer to a neighborhood

Lake Jesup study granted $375,000 over 12 months

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Those who would restore Lake Jesup to its former beauty and strong ecological balance will be able to continue their efforts for another year.

As part of the state of Florida's budget approved by the legislature, the Lake Jesup restoration effort will receive $375,000 over the next twelve months to continue to collect data and formulate a plan.

The money will come from the Pollution Recovery Trust Fund.

That fund is made up of fines collected throughout the state from those who are found to be in violation of mandated pollution regulations.

"We're focusing on developing the story data by looking at the historic data and the present situation," said Jeff Cole of the St. Johns Water Management District. "Some good progress has been made. We're wrapping up the first year of this project and things are looking good. Right now, you won't see what we've done, but I can assure you

Lake Mary voters called to special town meeting

By NICK PFEIFER
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary City Commission wants to make decisions based on the will of the people. As such, a special town meeting is being called for June 22, prior to the city-wide referendum vote on Aug. 1.

City voters will be faced with making decisions on what could prove to be expenditures of $3,644,640. Through loans and other methods, the city hopes to be able to handle these projects without raising taxes.

The subject of the meeting will be to discuss, voice support and/or object to a massive community improvement plan.

City officials have attempted to contact local civic organizations and home owners associations, requesting a meeting at which to discuss the matter. City Manager John Litton commented, "However, we want to go one step further and ensure that all citizens have had an opportunity to hear the presentation and ask questions."

Litton said the city commission is unanimously committed to each of these improvements in an effort to enhance Lake Mary's total quality of life.

To be discussed, are three major categories: drainage/paving and Rinehart Road enhancements; public safety; and parks and recreation.

Briefly, the main points of the proposed projects are as follows:
• Drainage/Paving/Rinehart
• See Voters, Page 5A

County budget proposed

Increase in utility tax recommended

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The rosy picture of a balanced Seminole County budget with no property tax rate increase for 1995/96 may contain a thorn or two for residents of unincorporated areas and motorists cited for moving traffic violations.

County manager Ron Rabun transmitted the $337 million budget to the board of county commissioners Friday. The millage rate of $7.92 paid countywide and for unincorporated roads and fire funds would be unchanged from this year's level. The voter-approved millage to cover debt service would increase from .1984 this year to .2136 next year.

Rabun is proposing a 3-cent increase in the utilities tax for residents in the unincorporated areas of the county. Two cents would be used to help fund the Sheriff's budget and the third penny would be allocated for stormwater management. The county manager is also suggesting the county impose a $12.50 surcharge for

To the rescue

Paramedics Tommy White and Greg Lemieux checked for injuries before preparing the boy to be transported to the hospital for treatment.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Sanford Main Street wins 3 awards

SANFORD — The Sanford Main Street program is the winner of three awards from the Florida Main Street program. The Florida Main Street Awards were presented at the annual Florida Redevelopment Association Conference in West Palm Beach this week. Sanford's three awards accounted for slightly more than a quarter of the 11 awards presented to communities statewide. "We are very pleased that our Main Street program earned these awards," Mayor Bettye Smith said. The Sanford Main Street program, chaired by Helen Stairs, was awarded the honors for the Outstanding Economic Restructuring Program. Laura Strehla was the winner of the Outstanding Local Program Supported for her work with the Sanford program. And, finally, the Outstanding Building Rehabilitation Project was awarded to Barbara Farrell for her work on the Old Sanford Firehouse which is located at 109 S. Palmetto Ave. Smith said the Sanford Main Street program has been doing "wonderful" work in Sanford and the fact that the local program garnered so many of the state-level awards was proof of that fact. "I think this says a lot about our program," she said.

Education veto urged

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles is being urged to veto part of the state budget designed to shift more money into classrooms by cutting local administrative overhead. A coalition of teachers unions, districts and superintendents said the proposal would undermine local decisions about budgets and staffing and reverse efforts to shift authority from the state to local districts. "Some of us thought this sort of monolithic structuring and control had crumbled with the Berlin wall, but it has been reconstructed by the Florida Legislature," Aaron Wallace, president of Florida Teaching Profession-National Education Association, said at a Monday news conference. What remained unanswered is whether a veto of the proposal to reduce district administrative expenses would upset $5 billion in public school funding and force lawmakers back for a special session. The provision was placed in the budget at the insistence of the Republican-led Senate to get districts to spend more on teacher salaries. It affects about $127 million in the $5 billion formula used to determine how much Florida's 67 counties receive for each student. It is the single largest appropriation in the $39 billion state budget. Educators at a news conference railed against the entire education budget, calling it "a sham" and inadequate to handle the expected growth of about 70,000 new students this school year. But they said political reality prompted them to focus on only one part of the spending plan, which includes an average increase of about 3 percent per student. "We know we're taking a risk by even standing up and saying veto this money. We had to fight and scratch for the little that we got," said Melinda Piller Swaford, lobbyist for the Florida Education Association/United.

Red Tide still stinks

ST. PETERSBURG BEACH — Seven weeks after it showed up and a week after Hurricane Allison was supposed to help break it up, an unusual spring outbreak of the algae bloom called red tide persists. Documented in Florida since the 1800s, red tide is caused by dense concentrations of microscopic organisms that deplete oxygen in the water and can kill fish. The organisms also release a toxin that irritates lungs and eyes and can be dangerous for people with respiratory problems. The bloom has washed waves of dead fish up on Tampa Bay area shores. On Monday, the kills appeared worst along south Pinellas County beaches such as St. Petersburg Beach and Treasure Island. But marine experts said scattered kills were reported from Sarasota to Anclote Keys, about 60 miles, the St. Petersburg Times reported today. Marine experts said the current bloom is notable because spring outbreaks are relatively rare, but fickleness is common with red tide. Just when a bloom seems to be diminishing, another beach town must clean up a smelly mess. In St. Petersburg Beach, about 15 workers used pick-up poles to snag fish Monday. Two tractors dragged rakes to gather up a tangled, 3-foot-wide band of seaweed and fish. "It stinks," said David Barclay, a 12-year-old from Bowie, Md., who stood beside what appeared to be the remains of a 4-foot-long cobia. "There's people out there actually swimming," he said in disbelief.

Exclusive prep school planned for northern Seminole County

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Staff Writer

HEATHROW — A small group of parents in northern Seminole County, especially in the Heathrow community, have expressed dissatisfaction with public school education in this area. Now, they intend to do something about it. Rather than continuing to work within the system to ensure their children can get the best possible education in the public schools, they have laid the groundwork to open their own school. The parents have formed a group that will open an independent, non-sectarian college preparatory school in northern Seminole County. The group says they "want to see the public school system get better," but believe there needs to be a school that can meet the educational needs of the college bound student now. "The difference in the education, both public and private (between Florida and other parts of the country) is extreme," leaders stated. Parents discussed the need for a school based on college preparatory schools across the country, especially the Kent Place School in Summit, N.J., a nationally-ranked school. The need was determined to be great and, leaders said, so they began to formulate a plan. According to Roger Soderstrom, co-owner of Stirling International Realty, plans call for the exclusive school to be open in the fall of 1996. Stirling, who says his company has pledged support to the group, is currently involved in the site selection process. NorthStar Academy will be located in the Heathrow-

Markham Woods area and serve students who reside in Seminole, Orange and Volusia counties. "We are looking for a 25 to 40 acre site for the campus," Soderstrom said, "that will include classrooms, administrative facilities and sports and athletic fields." He said NorthStar Academy will open with classes for Pre-Kindergarten through 9th grade and add 10th through 12th grade over the next three years to coincide with the accreditation process. Class size will be limited to 18 students. As the number of applicants increases, school trustees said, additional classes of each grade will be added. They said that emphasis will be placed on personalized instruction and that all teachers will be fully certified for the subjects they teach by the Florida Department of Education.

The curriculum for the school at all levels will include math, English, social studies, science, computer, art, music and physical education. The program designed to "challenge each child to stretch to his or her potential," the Academy's written philosophy states. Foreign language instruction will begin in the first grade with studies in Spanish. Soderstrom said the NorthStar Academy's board of trustees intends to launch an area-wide fundraising effort within the next 60 days. He noted that his company is "very excited about working with the emerging academy." "We have one of the highest concentrations of executive housing in the Orlando area here, and one of the most frequent need we hear expressed is the need for a private college preparatory school."

Naturalists challenge nudity ban

Constitutionality of Brevard ordinance questioned in court

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

TITUSVILLE — A lawsuit questioning the constitutionality of Brevard County's nudity ban is holding up plans to arrest nudists at Playalinda Beach, the focus of the new law. Sheriff Jake Miller said he would wait for a court ruling before beginning enforcement of the controversial ordinance on the popular beach, which is part of the Canaveral National Seashore managed by the federal government. The lawsuit, filed on behalf of Marvin Frandsen, an official with the Central Florida Naturalists club, asks Circuit Judge Ed Jackson for a declaratory judgment on the law's constitutionality.

Orlando lawyer David Wasserman said he wants the judge to rule on whether the county has the authority to enforce a law on federal property and whether the National Park Service, which manages the beach, can determine where county laws apply. The action also challenges the law for vagueness. The sheriff had reluctantly planned to begin enforcement Monday, arresting at least two people who would then contest the law in court. That plan has been put on hold by the suit, filed Friday. "The sheriff is hoping this will move through the courts quickly and we will have a legal decision soon," said a sheriff's spokeswoman Stacey Hall.

The Brevard County Commission passed the anti-nudity law in May after holding public hearings at which residents complained that nudists were moving into areas of Playalinda traditionally used by families. Besides banning public nudity, the ordinance regulates the use of skimpy clothing throughout the county. The sheriff said citizens offended by wearers of revealing swimwear, such as G-strings or thongs, can fill out affidavits or make complaints that will be forwarded to prosecutors. Miller plans to leave enforcement of the law within municipalities to local police. Frandsen, an engineer at Patrick Air Force Base, said his lawsuit "asks the court to try the case on the merits of the law without anyone having to be arrested. It is a less punishing method for both sides." Meanwhile, the Central Florida group has joined an international computer network. The group has set up its own "home page" on the World Wide Web to rally supporters for the cause of nudism. "We are advising people on the ban, telling them when the sheriff will be enforcing it," group president Frank Cervasio said. "We are advising people and leave it up to them as to what they want to do." The page includes information on the club's history, a membership application, the club's code of conduct and a calendar of upcoming events.

2 children killed

Father charged with killing children in car

By Associated Press

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — An Illinois man whose 8- and 11-year-old sons were found dead in his car now faces first-degree murder charges following a botched murder-suicide attempt.

The bodies were found inside a white, 1977 Cadillac after the father called 911 Monday afternoon from a nearby convenience store. The car was behind a closed restaurant, which had recently been sold.

Steven Kirk McRae, 36, told authorities he had tried to kill himself and the boys.

"His face was red, which is consistent with someone who had suffered carbon monoxide poisoning, and he has been hospitalized in good condition. He has confessed to the incident and has been charged with two counts of murder," said police spokeswoman Karan Gilroy.

"He said that about 10 o'clock (Sunday) night he was trying to take his own life and his children's lives," she added. "He said he came to today and was still alive, but his children had died. He wandered around and then finally called police."

A white, collapsible hose extending from the rear of the car lay on the ground. The hose was believed to have been used to pump exhaust fumes into the vehicle, Gilroy told The Orlando Sentinel for today's editions.

Police would not release the boys' names. One child was found in the front seat, another in the back. There apparently was no suicide note.

McRae was hospitalized at an undisclosed location. The boys' mother died several years ago, Gilroy said.

Police were not certain when McRae left Illinois or when he arrived in Altamonte Springs.

On June 2, McRae's brother, Michael McRae of Glencoe, Ill., had reported him "missing and endangered," a designation usually given when someone is believed to be suicidal.

The license plates on the Cadillac belonged to Michael McRae, police told The Chicago Tribune. The newspaper was unable to reach him Monday night.

Steven McRae had been living in his brother's apartment in Glencoe since last fall, according to the manager of the building. The manager, who would only give his first name of Eugene, said Steven McRae was a good tenant and the children seemed like normal boys.

"They played like boys. Nothing unusual," he said. "The father was very nice. All the time, it was 'Hello, how are you?'"

Eugene last saw the family two weeks ago and a couple of days ago heard there was a police officer at the building looking for them.

A social worker reported that the boys did not show up for school on Thursday or Friday, so Glencoe police put their names in a national directory. Daytona Beach on June 7. Police Receipts found in the car were not certain why he had indicated McRae had been in come to Central Florida.

Detective probes new suspect in Walsh murder case

By Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE — A homicide detective said he is investigating a new suspect in one of the nation's best-known unsolved cases, the 1981 murder of 8-year-old Adam Walsh.

Adam's father, John Walsh, is host of the television show "America's Most Wanted." Joel Cantor, an attorney for Hollywood Police Chief Richard Witt, said John Walsh is opposed to full disclosure of the file.

During a Monday hearing before Broward Circuit Judge Leroy Moe, Hollywood Detective Mark Smith said he had identified the suspect within the past six months. The hearing was to determine whether Hollywood police should be forced to release the case file to a Mobile, Ala., newspaper reporter investigating the Walsh murder.

Adam Walsh was abducted from a Hollywood mall in July 1981. Two weeks later, his severed head was discovered in a canal 120 miles north, near Vero Beach. His body was never found and no one has ever been arrested.

Smith added that he was also examining one or two other "possibilities" as suspects during his 10-month review of the case, but didn't name any of them.

The Mobile Press Register was joined in the suit by the Sun-Sentinel in Fort Lauderdale and The Palm Beach Post.

Moe ruled that the case file should remain confidential to allow Smith to follow his leads and question his suspects without disclosures about the investigation in the media.

But the judge left open the possibility that attorneys for the newspapers could re-file their request for full disclosure in several weeks after Smith has had an opportunity to question his suspects.

"We'll be back," said Thomas Jullin, attorney for the Press Register.

But Mommy, didn't you say that you can sell anything in the classifieds?

Yes dear, but not your little brother.

Yes, the Classifieds are a great place to buy or sell just about anything under the sun. And yes, you can make money clearing out those no longer used items from your attic, basement or garage and sell them for cash in the Classifieds. But please note: you cannot sell little brothers through the Classifieds. (For that you'd probably have to take out a full page ad).

3 arrested in home invasion

By WICKI DeGOMMER Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Bobby Coffield, 24, 1612 Peach Ave., Sanford; Ulysses "June" Brown, 24, 1800 S. Mulberry, Sanford; and Steven Douglas Alton, 18, 1621 Strawberry, Sanford, were arrested in conjunction with a home invasion last week.

Two other suspects remain at large.

According to Sanford Police, the five suspects forced their way into the victim's home and choking him before taking $17,500 in cash from him.

On Friday, the three were located and positively identified by the victim.

According to police reports, Corey Pryor of Pohoee, Fla., had been staying with his cousin, at 1716 Mulberry St., while in town to work picking corn. He had his life savings of $17,500 in his possession, they said.

In order to protect his financial resources, he had asked his cousin to help him arrange the purchase of a handgun through a group of neighborhood men.

When the men arrived to show Pryor a selection of weapons, including a .357 Magnum, a .22 calibre with a screw-on silencer and a 9mm gun, he said he became nervous and sent them on their way.

A short time later, his cousin was out of the house when the men came back and took his money, they said.

Pryor and his cousin were able to identify Coffield from a police photo lineup and investigators spotted him in a red Mustang driving a short distance from the crime scene.

Brown, who was spotted across the street, was accused of choking Pryor during the robbery. He was positively identified by the cousins.

Alton, who was across the street with Brown, was accused of taking part in the crime as well and was positively identified as well.

Edwards, and another man known as Tommy Lee are still being sought.

Derby: Good family fun

This Saturday, youngsters will be competing in the Central Florida Soap Box Derby at Sanford's Derby Park. Over 50 youngsters are scheduled to participate, and tension is growing over who will win, and who will represent Sanford at the All-American races in Akron, Ohio.

When approached properly, the Soap Box Derby project can truly be a family affair. As a cooperative project, building the car and teaching driving skills could involve everyone from the youngster to grandpa and grandma.

Then, the big day arrives. There they are, two at a time, poised at the top of the hill at Derby Park, ready to make their run. Parents, relatives and friends and neighbors applaud and cheer for their favorites.

People can get a good feeling about family love and cooperation by just watching what goes on during derby day in Sanford.

The Sanford Parks and Recreation Department has so many trophies to hand out that there simply cannot be any losers. While not everyone will receive a fancy gold trophy, just knowing he or she participated in the event can be a point of pride in accomplishment.

This is an outstanding project for total-family participation. Everyone involved in the soap box derby activities deserves a great round of applause. Supporting the event through attendance at the event will be a strong indication that we strongly support family values.

There will be plenty of parking space, and admission is free of charge. With a good day of activities planned, what more could a person want?

Take, junior or little sis. Be together as you watch the racing. Whether you have a family member or friend in the race, or not, this Saturday's Central Florida Soap Box Derby race in Sanford can be the start, or continuation of something which can be good if you truly work on it.

Party a success

Thanks to the very generous support of the Longwood Police Department and Sheriff Ealing's Sheriff's Department, the Bon Voyage party for the eighth graders of Rock Lake Middle School was a huge success. The students had a memorable drug- and alcohol-free party which included pizza, door prizes, a deejay, and a slide show. After three years of middle school together, the students will head off in different directions to Lyman, Lake Mary, Lake Brantley, or various private high schools. This successful party was a culmination of many memories and a looking ahead to high school years. Without the financial support of the Longwood Police Department and the Seminole County Sheriff's Department, our students would have missed this great memory.

Gingrich-Dole race could wreck GOP

House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., is brilliantly exploiting the media's desperation to cover a 1996 Republican presidential horse race and could use the publicity to advance the House GOP's cause -- as long as he knows when to quit.

Candidate-like antics such as Gingrich's trip to New Hampshire with hordes of reporters in tow will help cement the House GOP agenda as the guiding vision of the Republican Party.

But if Gingrich actually becomes a serious (especially, a declared) rival to Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., it could wreck the party's chances of pushing through its legislative program and winning the White House in 1996.

As one Republican senator put it, "For the leader of House Republicans to be running against the leader of Senate Republicans would be an unmitigated disaster... a nightmare of gargantuan proportions. It's unacceptable. It can't happen."

"I've never seen a nominating contest in which the participants didn't get angry," the senator said. "To get our legislative agenda through, these guys have got to work together. They simply can't do it if they are taking out side against each other in New Hampshire."

Besides the airwaves, House-Senate conferences would become arenas of combat, according to several GOP senators and House members.

with every ideological and tactical argument over legislation converted into a game of presidential point-making.

"It will immobilize the Republican Congress and Bill Clinton will be the winner," said one senator.

One of Gingrich's top lieutenants in the House seemed to agree. "If they're running against each other, a wall of suspicion will develop that'll threaten our agenda."

He also fears that a Gingrich candidacy will set off a succession struggle in the House, especially for majority leader. "The jockeying will be a huge distraction," he said.

Actually, most of Gingrich's lieutenants in the House -- as well as Dole's allies in the Senate -- think that, in the end, Gingrich won't run for president unless Dole somehow collapses as a candidate or drops out of the race.

Instead, they think that Gingrich is publicly toying with a presidential run to put pressure on Dole to be more militant in pushing House "Contract With America" items through the Senate and to bolster support for the contract nationally.

According to freshman Sen. Rick Santorum, R-Pa., a former House ally of Gingrich's: "Newt is laying his claim to be the ideological leader of the party. He's the vision guy. He's going to New Hampshire to say, 'Here is the benchmark to judge all the candidates by.' When the other candidates go up there, they'll have to say what Newt says."

Santorum, who's endorsed his home-state colleague, Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., for president, says he doubts Gingrich will run and hopes he doesn't. "The action is here in Congress," he said. "The speaking is Newt's dream job. Why should he give it up for a miserable job where you're constantly exposed to all that scrutiny and press hounding?"

Newt Gingrich is brilliantly exploiting the media's desperation to cover a 1996 Republican presidential horse race.

DONNA BRITT

Parents just want a little help

WASHINGTON -- Phil Jackson almost had me going.

I was surprised recently to read that Jackson, coach of the Chicago Bulls -- who'd just lost their playoff bid to the Orlando Magic -- had responded to a question I'd posed in a recent column.

The column had discussed how Bulls star Michael Jordan, by switching his jersey number from 45 to his "retired" No. 23 for the playoffs, hurt the feelings -- and piggy banks -- of kids who'd bought the now-defunct jersey.

According to The New York Times, when a reporter asked Jackson, "How about all those parents who bought their kids No. 45 jerseys?" the coach's response was brief:

"Buy them books."

Frankly, I was still impressed. Buy children books, not jerseys. Encourage America's celebrity-addled kids to read novels as well as stat sheets, to find heroes between jacket covers, rather than between quarters, innings and halves -- where commercials are so clever, they make you almost forget they're all selling something.

Who wouldn't be down with that? Well me, once I thought about it, Jackson's answer was great as far as it went. But what about those parents -- many of whom do buy their kids books, and even read to them? Or the kids who spent $40 of their own money on a now-invalid jersey?

Naturally, Jackson didn't answer -- or suggest that his star or jersey-maker Champion refund customers' money, or exchange any No. 45 jersey for the current No. 23.

No, Jackson instead washed his hands of all responsibility, dumping it on parents. Like everyone else.

Parents alone, insist a landscape full of hand-washers, are responsible for their kids. If you can't stand the heat, don't become one.

Certainly, parenting has always been enormously difficult. But it's tougher in a world in which even adults feel constantly under assault.

By movies and songs celebrating barbarity, depravity and irresponsibility. By TV, which sends unfiltered messages of hatred, profanity and proud promiscuity -- and that's just on talk shows.

But, the hand-washers remind us: You don't have to let your kids go to the movies. You don't have to own a TV or a radio. You don't have to do anything.

Such responses ignore that even if you do everything right by your own kids, countless other parents lack the time, energy or good sense to do one-third as well. Many conscientious parents worry less about the kids they're raising well than about the millions being raised chiefly by the culture -- children whose parents don't monitor anything they hear, see or do.

The reality is that even the most inattentant responsibility-shirker shares space on the planet with such children -- and with the misguided adults they often become.

Sometimes even cash and celebrity can't protect us from them. Michael Jordan's father was slain by somebody who apparently hadn't a clue that he was parent to the biggest star around.

When I grew up in the '60s, my working parents' efforts to keep me on the straight and narrow included forbidding me to see "racy" James Bond movies -- now considered a model of corinness. My parents worked hard to raise me right, but they didn't have to closely monitor TV shows, movies or music. Most taught pretty good lessons.

Recently, I asked my mom if she'd like to be raising me and my brothers now.

"Not really -- it's harder now," she said. "Today, children see everything, hear everything, far beyond their ability to absorb what's right and wrong. ... Parents have to be more responsible. ... At the same time, (the media-) don't want to be accountable for what they put before children. And they are making millions off them. Everybody has to take responsibility."

Sure we do. I'm not interested in blaming Phil Jackson -- whose book comment made some sense and who only wanted to let his influential superstar do what he wished, no questions asked. I'm even sick of throwing stones at those whose blatant disregard for kids' hearts and minds really does seem criminal.

Forget blame, period -- I take responsibility for my kids, and for others who could be affected by what I write and do.

But I can't miss the irony in parents being called upon to be more careful, more vigilant, more ready to defy the culture precisely when they have fewer resources.

More mothers are working outside the home than at any other time in U.S. history -- not just to "find themselves," but to put food on the table. More fathers are either entirely absent or working so many hours that they've less time to spend with their offspring.

Parents alone, insist a landscape full of hand-washers, are responsible for their kids.

JACK ANDERSON

Takeover leaves chairman jobless

WASHINGTON -- It is said that even in war there are rules -- just ask Vincent Lane, who was recently deposed as the chairman of the Chicago Housing Authority.

The personal war is over for Lane, whose resignation was forced by the recent federal takeover of CHA by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. As one of the most troubled public housing authorities in the country, CHA is promised a new lease on life by a federal agency that itself has been targeted by some Republicans for elimination, or at least drastic cut-backs.

Lane's legacy -- part fatalist, part utopian -- were apparent during a four-hour visit with Lane -- who President Clinton once called a "genuine hero" -- to poor children -- before his tenure was terminated with coup-like suddenness.

He displayed fatalism in the way he coped with the epidemic of violence that makes CHA's domain resemble a mini-Bosnia in the city of broad shoulders. Some 150,000 people precariously inhabit 168 low-rent high-rises that ring the city's downtown. Only an unholly alliance between the CHA and the "gang-bangers" held out any hope of achieving a cease-fire in gang violence, which has been fueled by the $30,000 per week in drug trade generated by some buildings, according to Lane. The $72 million CHA spends each year on security hardly seems a match for the muscle a gang can muster.

Just as he negotiated with mechanics and masons in a hopeless fight to maintain dilapidated buildings -- plagued by an estimated 21,000 code violations at any given time -- Lane negotiated with the gangs to forge a "detente." This was Lane's equivalent of setting rules in the midst of an urban war where children are literally forced to bed down in bathtub to avoid becoming shooting statistics. (Was HUD Secretary Henry Cisneros humoring CHA residents when he promised "no diminution of security services" as he explained the recent federal takeover?)

Lane told us how the peace-keeping operation works, evoking eerie parallels with the futility of United Nations peacekeeping missions:

"As long as (the gangs) don't go after and injure innocent people it's fine. I can't stop them from using drugs. Everybody belongs to a gang. They are going to burglarize apartments to support their habits. You send a message. You don't say you can do these things, but over time they know that the only thing that's going to set me off is when they start hurting innocent people."

There's also a utopian side to Lane. He frequently expressed contempt for the concept of mass warehousing, which has been the blueprint for three decades of housing the urban poor. His dream was to bulldoze dense, high-rise public housing projects and replace them with smaller, mixed housing, giving rise to neighborhoods. He saw it as an expensive short-term proposition that would pay long-term dividends.

Time and money are in short supply these days. Although Congress appropriated $5.4 billion for public housing during the current fiscal year, the Republican Congress wants to rescind almost a third of that amount. Earlier this year, and only under duress, the Clinton administration unveiled a bold public housing voucher system that borrows heavily from Lane's blueprint.

Lane's legacy, part fatalist, part utopian, will endure.

Gehrig drug announcement draws investors, criticism

By PAUL RABUN
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK — A company's report that its drug had modestly slowed the effects of Lou Gehrig's disease drew an enthusiastic response on Wall Street and sharp criticism from a prominent neurologist.

The study released Monday showed that daily injections of insulin-like growth factor-1, or IGF-1, delayed deterioration in movement and speech by 25 percent when given to patients early in the course of their disease.

It was the first time scientists have demonstrated any delay in the inexorable progression of a degenerative disease of the nervous system, researchers said.

The drug's maker, Cephalon Inc., released the findings first to a group of stock analysts, then at a news conference. Minutes after the news conference ended, Cephalon stock doubled in value, soaring to more than $60 on the NASDAQ exchange. It closed at 18 1/2, up 7 1/2. As recently as April 5, it closed at $7.

Dr. Leon Charness, chairman of the Muscular Dystrophy Association's medical advisory committee, wasn't nearly as sanguine as Wall Street investors and analysts.

He said the study is flawed because some participants might have been able to figure out who got the drug and who got a placebo, in violation of standard research guidelines.

Besides, he said, the drug's benefits are at best modest, adding perhaps six months to the lives of people otherwise expected to live for two years.

Charness's organization is one of the major financial supporters of research on Lou Gehrig's disease, also known as amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, or ALS.

The criticism angered Cephalon President Frank Baldino Jr., who said the study was performed in line with accepted guidelines. He also said that adding six months to the lives of patients is a significant advance.

In response to Charness's criticism of the pre-publication release of the findings, Baldino said government regulations require him to disclose information that could affect the company's financial status.

"This guy Charness has never seen the study. He's dead wrong," Baldino said. "When you know the data, you have to put it in the public domain. You must."

The drug, which Cephalon calls Myotrophin, is not approved by the Food and Drug Administration and is not available except in research studies. The company said it hoped to apply for FDA approval by the beginning of next year.

moving traffic violations to help fund the new law enforcement radio system.

"The only exception to this status quo millage is in the area of voter approved debt, primarily in the natural lands category," Rabun explains in the transmittal letter. "To promote quicker and more cost effective purchases, the BCC at its work session on Natural Lands held on May 18, 1990, directed staff to proceed to expeditiously obligate the remaining $5.28 of the $90.28 million 1990 voter-approved funding to acquire environmentally sensitive and endangered lands. An anticipated $5.28 million bond issue in 1990 and minor revenue fluctuations in the library debt service fund will necessitate and increase in the voter-approved millage to cover debt service."

He adds the increase is less than the full .25 mill approved by the voters.

Rabun proposed increasing county reserve funds to buffer against unknown revenue fluctuations and unforeseen emergencies. By increasing the utility tax and imposing the traffic ticket surcharge, another funding source would be available rather than tapping general fund reserves.

Further, Rabun is suggesting the county exercise its option to impose a $12.50 surcharge on moving violation traffic tickets, which would generate $225,000. The manager notes that amount of money is budgeted in the general fund to offset the operation and maintenance of the sheriff's new radio system which improves communications with all law enforcement agencies in the county and surrounding areas.

Currently, a moving violation ticket costs, on average, about $110, according to a spokeswoman in the clerk's traffic division. Failure to pay the fine or resolve the issue in court results in a suspended driver license. The addition of the $12.50 surcharge could push the average ticket cost to $125. Many drivers who can't or don't pay the fines now continue to drive with suspended licenses and no insurance, hoping not to be caught.

With a 3.55% estimated growth in gross taxable values from new construction and re-appraisals, the countywide gross taxable value per one mill generates $10,531,000, based on a 95% collection rate. Each penny of utility tax paid by residents in the unincorporated areas of the county generates about $1 million, Rabun explained.

The budget calls for an additional 46 full-time positions, projected as being the magnet to targeted industries serving the city.

Additional Officers/Judicial and County Attorney.

The figure does not include money for rebudgeted projects which will be included in the final budget when it is considered in September. Commissioners begin budget work sessions June 15.

Road enhancements: Total cost for this portion is estimated at $1,688,840.

The city is committed to begin drainage and related paving improvements to a number of streets. One of the first areas to be addressed would be behind Lake Mary Elementary Schools, and include portions of Fifth Street, Washington and Van Buren Avenue, Fourth Street and major drainage improvements and repaving on Third Street.

Each abutting property owner would be assessed 50 percent, or approximately $3,500, plus four percent interest, to be paid over ten years.

The city has also identified the need for ultimately installing a new stormwater system in the downtown area, and beautification enhancements, primarily irrigation, to Rinehart Road, projected as being the magnet to targeted industries serving the city.

Public Safety: Total cost for improvements is estimated at $1.4 million.

Following recommendations of a Citizen's Building Committee, the city is recommending a new 10,000 square foot police facility at the current Rinehart Road site. There will also be renovations and additions to the current Public Safety Building, to be converted for primarily fire department use.

An Emergency Operations Center (EOC) will also be added to serve as a communications and command post during emergency conditions.

Parks & Recreation: Total cost of the entire project is presently estimated at $578,000.

Two needs have been identified in the Parks & Recreation area. The first is to provide a more user-friendly multi-purpose building which could be used for a number of activities as well as made available to the public for a variety of functions. The project would also include public restrooms and small maintenance facilities at the south end of the city's sports complex.

In his letter to Lake Mary registered voters, Litton wrote, "In establishing the above described projects, the commission has attempted to address community needs as a whole and not focus solely on any one particular area."

The town meeting on June 22 is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. and will be held at the Lake Mary City Hall commission chambers.

that work is going on.

Cole pointed out that significant progress will not be evident in the first few years of the program. While progress is being made on studies and the understanding of the condition of the lake, he said, the body of water appears the same.

"In a few years," he promised, "the studies will begin to show visible effects."

The infusion of money into the Lake Jesup project will allow the Friends of Lake Jesup and the St. John's River Water Management District to develop their restoration plan. The state legislature mandated that such a plan be formulated.

"It is extremely important that we continue the mission of identifying Lake Jesup's problems and that we determine how we can reverse those trends," Pat Harden, chairman of the Friends of Lake Jesup and the District Governing Board, said. "We've got a good start and it's important that we continue to move forward."

The 16-member Friends of Lake Jesup panel was formed of volunteers who represent government agencies, environmental organizations and homeowners from the central Florida area. The member organizations include the City of Sanford, Seminole County, the City of Winter Springs, the City of Oviedo, the North Lake Jesup Homeowners Association, Protect Our Water and the Friends of the St. Johns.

They have met on a monthly schedule since July 1994. They have worked closely with the staff of the St. Johns River Water Management District in order to determine the most environmentally sound and economically feasible methods of restoring the lake.

The group is still conducting studies and looking at the environmental history of the 9,000-acre lake, which is located along the middle basin of the St. Johns River in the heart of Seminole County.

Historically, Cole said, stormwater, waste water and effluents were dumped directly into the lake. Wastewater and effluents have not been dumped into the lake for more than 20 years, he noted, but that has not solved the problem.

The muck (decaying organic material) at the bottom of the lake is more than nine-and-a-half feet deep in some areas. The average depth of the lake is only four feet.

"That's a lot of muck," Cole said. Once the plan can be formulated, the Friends will make recommendations to the governing board.

"I wanted to make sure that the funding was not stopped mid-stream because Lake Jesup is certainly critical to the citizens of the district I represent," said Rep. Marvin Couch (R-Oviedo), who sponsored the 1994 legislation that created the Friends of Lake Jesup.

Initial efforts are focusing on developing historic data about the lake to combine with study information about the lake's current characteristics.

The studies are addressing water circulation patterns, stormwater runoff into the lake, the impacts of the State Road 46 bridge, sediments within the lake and land management plans for public properties.

substitution, despite Gorman's offer of a vacant apartment (with utilities paid) to use as an office. "We will do our best to increase patrols, but right now our man power is limited," Dillard said.

Eckstein suggested that the police resources be "prioritized" in order to make increased patrols possible.

Books on cats, cats on books, bottles and a whole lot more

From the moment that you enter LEGIBLE LEFTOVERS and THE CAT'S MEOW you are acutely aware of just how unique this 6,000 square foot store (at 706-712 N. Highway 17-92, Longwood) is. The bookstore houses literally thousands upon thousands of good used books on every subject imaginable. There are large easy chairs where the customer can rest while he decides if the book he has selected is the one for him, or maybe he can just "set a spell" or even nap.

If all the words in these books came to life, one could see ancient warriors in leather armor marching through Gaul, a Boer commando riding across the veldt, Patton's tanks racing to the Rhine, and the hell that was Vietnam. The history and war sections "tell it like it was," the vast Science Fiction collection tells it like it may be very soon, and the Religion and Self-Help sections tell it like it maybe ought to be.

There are stools throughout the store for the customers' use and most areas are wheelchair accessible.

When a customer's college student daughter was introduced to the store she exclaimed, "Oh, mama, there are so many books I want to bring my bed and stay."

THE CAT'S MEOW, occupying roughly one-third of the store, is a salute to the past. The bottle lady admits to owning more than 5,000 bottles dug from the earth or fished from the ocean. History lives in bottle as well as in books, and many have a story of their own. There are many from the 1800s, the early bitters bottle, the cure-alls sold by the "snake oil medicine men," old pickle and pepper sauce bottle, ink wells, wine, beer and whiskey. Each has its own story. THE CAT'S MEOW has thousands of other items, some old and some new. These include antique furniture, pictures and wall decorations, old pottery (and new pots), jewelry, dishes and glassware, Oriental vases (or vases) and anything we can find that resembles a cat.

Many folks spend hours just browsing and petting the three exceptionally nice and beautiful black cats. These are Foo (official greeter), Fee (customer relations) and Stuffy (dead bug impersonator and garbage disposal).

The auxiliary staff consists of Ruth (Cat's Meow and antiquarian books), Fred (fiction, westerns, science fiction, war), Jenni

Fred and Ruth with their cats; Foo, Fee and Stuffy.

(romance, mystery, biography, non-fiction) and Earl (part-time filing).

We have several features worthy of special mention (we needn't mention being the best used bookstore in central Florida. You can figure that out for yourself). We have a good selection of LARGE PRINT books; we have an excellent "Wired Romance" (time travel, reincarnation, vampires, etc.) department; and for those in a hurry, we the "Must Read" rack containing Mystery and Romance novels highly recommended by someone who reads all night.

So that we will have the best chance of making your acquaintance, we are open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. on Sundays. For more information, you can call 339-4043.

There is a plaque at the entrance to the CAT'S MEOW area that says "a stranger is just a friend we haven't met yet." Come on in, stranger.

Fun, not wins, should determine athletic success

One of the time-honored cliches in athletics, especially interscholastic athletics, is "these kids deserved to win ... they've worked hard and sacrificed a lot to get here."

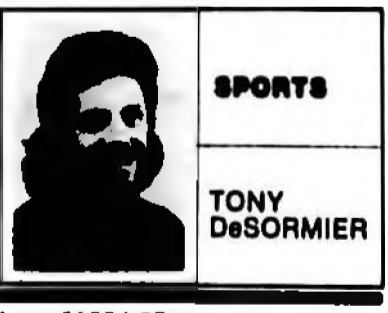

But for all the kids who snare the wins they "deserve," there are countless others who never experience the "success" they deserve.

This past weekend, there were hundreds of young men and women who "worked hard and sacrificed a lot" during their four years of high school but graduated without having won a championship.

Is winning all that high school (or college, for that matter) athletics are about? Not "No," but "insert your favorite curse here!"

The most any athlete can expect from his or her career is the under-appreciated but impossible to over-rate experiences of playing on and contributing to a team.

Two prime examples of how those experiences should be pursued and embraced are the Mendelsohn twins, Jamie and Jill, members of the Lyman High School graduating class of 1994-95.

No words of mine can better capture that spirit than those shared by Jamie while watching the a Lyman baseball game this spring.

"Sometimes I wonder if I should have stuck with one sport and really concentrated on it," said Jamie, who was a member of the Lyman volleyball, soccer, swim, water polo, softball, and tennis teams at one time or another during her career.

"But if I had, I don't think I would have had as much fun."

There's a radical concept — playing sports to have fun.

While that may sound frivolous to the athletically high minded, the Mendelsohns were anything but frivolous when competing, consistently working hard in practice and in games (or matches or meets).

"We had a good number of younger players this year," said Gary Barnett, who has stepped down as the Lyman soccer coach.

"The Mendelsohns are such mature individuals, they had a stabilizing effect on the entire team. Even though they may not have had a starting role, they worked as hard as they could every day.

"People didn't expect a whole lot out of us this year. But the Mendelsohns were so positive about the whole affair, taking things one day at a time. It rubbed off on the rest of team."

Barnett's assessment is shared by Christy Tibbetts Bryce, Lyman's volleyball and softball coach.

"They always have a positive attitude," said Tibbetts Bryce. "They contribute a lot of leadership, even if they're not playing. The thing is, while they cared if we won or lost, it was always more important for them just to be there and be a part of the team."

Lyman tennis coach Jack Bloomingdale is very succinct in his evaluation of the twins.

"They're great kids," said Bloomingdale, who paired the Mendelsohns as his No. 2 doubles team for the conference and district tournaments. "They're the kind of kids that make coaching fun."

There's that word again. Above all, that's what sports should be about, having fun. Give it all you've got and strive to succeed, but don't let winning and losing determine whether or not you had a good day/season/career.

If, like the Mendelsohns, you can look back and say, "I had fun," then all the effort you put into that activity, regardless of the outcome, was worth it. The opposing scenario is too depressing to consider.

Work hard, play hard, have fun ... the Mendelsohns didn't develop the philosophy, but they live it. Could you say the same?

Volunteer of the Week Christian Help: 'I really enjoy this'

By SUSAN WOODMAN
Herald Staff Writer

OSTEEN — Christian Help is a ministry devoted to helping the unemployed find jobs while providing for them materially and spiritually. The organization offers a job referral program, material support, spiritual support, and stress relief.

Mary Kelsey became involved as a volunteer with Christian Help two years ago through members of her church, Northland Community Church. Dick Wilson, who founded the program, was also a member at Northland and Kelsey read about the work in the church bulletin and felt she was called to be active.

Kelsey has been a resident of Osteen for 21 years. She has been married to her husband, Tom, for 24 years. The couple have two children, Jennifer and Amanda. They are presently members of University Christian Fellowship Church in Osteen.

Frank Hutsell, in charge of public relations at Christian Help, highly recommended Kelsey receive recognition for her unwavering work with the organization. In his words, "Mary Kelsey of Osteen, is one of the very important volunteers for the Christian Help organization located at 198 Concord Drive in Caseberry."

He continued by saying, "Mary, a very high energy person, serves as yard sale manager for the organization and puts in at least one full day a week at Christian Help and additional time when a yard sale is in progress."

Further commenting he said, "The yard sale consists of items donated to Christian Help and is a very valuable source of income. Mary's duties include the storage, display and pricing of items to be sold. She also determines which items are to be put in the sale and which items are needed (at no charge) by clients of Christian Help. Mary may decide to take items not sold at the yard sale to a flea market.

Kelsey shared her thoughts about her volunteer work. "It's like Christmas sometimes to go through all the items," she said.

"I really enjoy this. It's nice to know people are being helped. I had always wanted to do something to help others. I've always enjoyed yard sales, flea markets and auctions. This fills both needs."

She emphasized the "dire need of a thrift shop," Kelsey said. "We really need a thrift shop to house all these yard sale items. It is a lot of work to bring out items for the sale and price them. Later some items have to go back and be stored for the next sale. We'd love it if someone could donate a place or a break in the price of rental. The sales help so much in earning money to help the people coming to Christian Help for assistance. It would save a lot of monthly work."

For more information about Christian Help or to volunteer call the office at 324-4023 or visit the office at 198 Concord Drive in Caseberry.

Gardening: Flea control involves treating pet, home, yard

Most of us have seen pets are covered about head and the constant need to control them, especially now with warmer weather. This year promises to be another bad one for flea problems due partly to the mild winter that we enjoyed.

Fleas are small (1/16 of an inch) dark, wingless, blood-sucking insects. They attack a wide variety of warm-blooded animals including dogs, cats, and humans. The female flea lays her tiny egg onto the host's hair and the eggs fall off onto the ground, floors, bedding and furniture. Some fleas can lay up to 500 eggs over a period of several months. The eggs will hatch in 1-12 days. The larvae feed on particles of dead animal or vegetable matter present in cracks and crevices. Within 7-14 days, unless food is scarce, the larva spins a tiny cocoon, pupates and a week later, the adult flea emerges and begin searching for food.

Fleas can remain in the pupal stage from five days to five weeks in the absence of a host.

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

The adults emerge from the pupal case when vibrations from pets or people signal them that a host is near. This explains why people returning to an unoccupied home are attacked suddenly by an army of fleas.

Adult fleas must feed on blood in order to reproduce; however, they can live for long periods without feeding. The entire life cycle of a flea requires from 2 weeks to two years. Hot, wet summer months favor egg laying, while hot, dry periods favor the emergence of the adult. August and September usually produce the greatest number of adult fleas.

Fleas breed in large numbers where pets live. Infested pets will bite and scratch themselves constantly. The flea bites on people shows up as a small red spot. Some people are unaffected by flea bites while others suffer a severe reaction.

Control is difficult because it involves treating your pet, home and yard all at the same time. Treating only your pet will not control the pest because the pet is quickly reinfested when entering the untreated premises.

Control of fleas on your pet can be accomplished with over the counter products and products available from your veterinarian. Always read the label carefully and follow all directions when applying a pesticide. Controls include shampoo, flea collars, dusts, dips, repellents and oral medications.

Treat the premises and the pet at the same time for effective control. Control measures include both chemical and non-chemical procedures. Non-pesticide controls include thorough and frequent cleaning of your house. Vacuum cleaners will pick up the flea eggs. Empty the cleaner bags often. Infested furniture, pet bedding and carpets should be cleaned often to remove larval food.

Many flea control chemicals are available for home and yard, either over the counter or from pest control companies or veterinarians. Most, however, kill only the adult flea, and so soon as the new egg hatches, you have another adult laying more eggs and the cycle continues. Most controls require repeated spraying at 7-day intervals. Probably the most effective control for fleas inside the home is a product containing methoprene (Peron). It can be found in indoor mists or aerosols or from your pest control company. The methoprene, a hormonal pesticide, prevents the larvae from turning into adults, and has a residual effect for almost 3 months. Sometimes, the methoprene is used in conjunction with a residual spray to quickly reduce adult populations of fleas. Without adults laying their eggs, the life cycle is broken. For the methoprene to be effective, your pet must not have access to heavily infested areas outdoors as the adult fleas will be carried back indoors by the pet. For this reason treatment should include control measures on your pet and in your house and yard all at the same time.

Marriage is more than work

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have grown apart, literally. "Frank" has gained about 100 pounds since we married 15 years ago. He no longer participates in the activities that our two sons and I enjoy, such as hiking, hiking, tennis, baseball and swimming. He won't even go to the beach.

He gets winded just walking up a flight of stairs. Frank will find any excuse just to get out of doing the most routine chores around the house. Consequently, I do all the work while he sits in his chair with the "remote" in his hand.

He has a good job, which he considers his contribution to our marriage.

He usually falls asleep right after dinner. We no longer sleep together because he snores and kicks. No amount of subtle hints or nagging has been successful in effecting any change. Frank and I separated once two years ago, but I took him back because I felt sorry for him.

I am not sure if I want a divorce, but I want my children to be raised in a healthy atmosphere with positive role models, and I have lost my respect for him. He smokes (at work) and has a history of heart disease. He has no health insurance or life insurance.

I should probably leave him, but I have neither the guts nor the money. I need your objective reply.

UNHAPPY AND INDECISIVE

DEAR UNHAPPY AND INDECISIVE: You must make your husband understand how his weight and self-destructive behavior are affecting you and his sons. You will need the cooperation of his physician, whom he probably hasn't seen in years. Arrange an appointment for a complete physical. Alert his doctor beforehand to stress the danger of continuing his present lifestyle.

If Frank doesn't shape up, waste no time in preparing to support yourself and the boys should the need arise. It may be sooner than you think.

DEAR ABBY: I have a suggestion for a baby shower for a second or third baby.

For my second baby, each guest brought a home-cooked meal, which I promptly put in my freezer. Abby, these meals provided me and my family with dinners for four weeks following the birth of my baby.

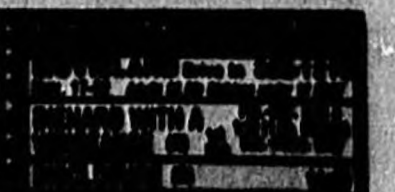

I cannot tell you how handy it was to be free from worry about what to have for dinner during that first month.

Every new mom and dad would be thrilled with such a gift. Pass this along to your readers.

NICOLE ANDREWS, SACRAMENTO, CALIF.

DEAR NICOLE: Thanks for a great idea. It's food for thought. (Sorry, I couldn't resist.)

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69444, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

Why smoking does not help migraine

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter, who is a smoker, suffers from migraine headaches. One doctor has indicated that smoking helps, since it affects the vessels in the temples. Is this true?

DEAR READER: No. The old theory about migraine was that the headaches were caused by stretching and dilation of the blood vessels around the brain; hence, any medication, such as nicotine, that constricted the arteries would help. This theory has been discredited.

Migraine is now believed to be due to an abnormal wave of brain electricity that releases certain chemicals, notably serotonin, from brain tissue. Smoking and nicotine will not help this.

Diet can be a factor in causing migraine; for example, red wine and cheese may trigger headaches in susceptible individuals.

Migraines are best treated by preventive drugs, such as beta-blockers, or by medicine, such as sumatriptan, that will abort a headache.

It's well-known that some migraines are initiated by stress. In such people, smoking may be of benefit because it relieves stress. However, the habit is not healthful and no authorities recommend it for controlling migraine.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband sleeps five to six hours a night. When he's in a deep sleep, he takes a breath and holds it. After about five seconds, he lets it out, moaning during the process. He's usually very hard to arouse during these intervals. Should he see a specialist?

DEAR READER: Your husband appears to suffer from sleep apnea. During sleep, he stops breathing until the level of carbon dioxide in his bloodstream rises and forces him to take a breath. This condition is potentially lethal because of possible heart stoppage. Sleep apnea is often caused by obstruction of the airway -- from obesity, a weak palate, tumors or nasal polyps. It is also associated with alcohol and drug abuse.

Your husband needs a complete ear-nose-and-throat exam by an otolaryngologist, because surgery may be necessary to relieve any obstruction. If your husband is obese, he should lose weight. If the ENT specialist cannot find a cause for the sleep apnea, your husband should be

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
The second book recently republished by Devin Press is "Sherlock Holmes, Bridge Detective" ($12.95; 800-274-2221). Author Frank Thomas takes hold of a magnifying glass and meerschaum pipe (unfit in this enlightened age, of course), dons a deerstalker and sets out to reproduce Conan Doyle's style as the great detective plays with Doctor Watson in a challenge match against Betty Castle and Harry Skurry.

Today's deal is typical of the 44 in the book, where textbook card-play techniques abound. How should South declare four spades against a diamond lead? Skurry won the first trick in hand with the diamond ace and advanced the spade queen. Holmes, sitting West, decided that the declarer couldn't be trying to pull a fast one with the ace-queen of spades. He played low, allowing his partner to win the spade ace. After Watson cashed the diamond king and switched to a heart, Skurry conceded one down.

"I'm surprised you didn't take your 10 tricks," observed Holmes.

"What do you mean?" growled Skurry.

"If you had played four rounds of clubs before touching trumps, you could have discarded your two low diamonds. Whether Watson ruffs with his ace or I ruff low, we use one of our natural trump tricks."

"I guess you're right but I have been having infernal luck lately with the shape of my hands."

Betty Castle regarded her partner with some irritation. "A bridge hand has distribution. I have shape!"

If you like Sherlock Holmes stories and bridge, you'll enjoy this book.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

By Bernice Bode Cool
June 14, 1995

There might be a number of important developments in store for you in the year ahead that could advance your self-interests. Don't think of a slow start as defeat.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Keep a lid on your temper today if a family member does things that aren't in accord with your wishes. There are strong indications that you will deal with this very poorly. Gemini, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and $ASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4485, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Although you are usually a reasonably forgiving person, today you might react harshly to someone because of something that occurred in the past.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try not to become financially involved with friends today. Money sometimes brings out the worst traits in even the best of friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Intimidation will be one way to get others to comply with your directives today. However, if used, the price you'll pay won't be worth the results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You might have a misunderstanding with a good friend today. If this occurs, bring it all out into the open and clear it up immediately.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could be a trifle more stubborn than usual today. This attitude could present problems, especially if you lock horns with an unyielding friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In endeavors requiring teamwork today, everyone's motives must blend harmoniously if you hope to accomplish much. If they don't, you won't get anywhere.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you are in a supervisory position, do not be unduly critical of workers today. Praise and encouragement will motivate them; insults will not.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Keep your nose out of a friend's personal affairs today unless you've been invited to intrude. This is a very delicate area which requires diplomacy and tact.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You and your mate might have difficulty achieving a meeting of the minds today on an important issue. Shelve it for a later discussion.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you don't want to clutter up your work space today, avoid starting tasks that test your patience. Once begun, they may never be finished.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Pressure from associates might tempt you to take risks today that you would ordinarily avoid. Stay away from anything that goes against your better judgment.
