BUDGET OF OPINION "JUST BETWEEN YOU AND ME."

EVEN THE GATE POST NOT IN IT

A CHIEF IS AMONG YE TAKING NOTES AND FAITH. "HE'LL PRENT 'EM"---SO SAYS SAUNTERER.

¶ Sometime ago I noted that a Sanford merchant would place his business upon a cash basis and hereafter nothing but the cash would go. The time is coming when all the merchants will do likewise and every other business will be cash down on delivery. When this is done all of us can take stock every night and find out just where we are in this life. The sooner the great American public gets on a cash basis the sooner the country will be upon a solid basis. George Fitch sizes up the situation as follows:

"Charge it" is the great slogan of the great American consumer.

Americans are great on peace, but they are also the most gallant chargers in the world. An American who cannot sleep for fear our standing is not good will have the country will rise early in the morning and charge meat, potatoes, shoes, gasoline automobile tires and diamond rings with an intrepidity which would cause unlimited awe in a Frenchman.

"Charge it" is the greatest substitute for money ever invented. It enables a man to spend his next month's salary with ease and safety, to ride in an automobile because he hasn't the ready cash to pay for street car fare and to cash his hopes of wealth into a large bale of "Balance Due" and "Please Remit" statements, renewed monthly.

"Charge it" is the modern Ala. Baba lamp. The worried citizen says "Charge it" and appears five minutes in joyful raiment, thus transferring the worry to the merchant. Armed with these two precious words an American citizen with a fairly good reputation can get down town with an empty pocket book and return home reeking with luxury.

It is now possible to buy food, houses, clothing, steam threshers, sealskin coats, corner lots, American beauty roses, baths, haircuts, operations, publicity, and balloons on account. It is also possible, though not always easy, to pay cash for shoes, coal, prunes, water, beefsteak and underwear. It is unusually easy to tell the difference between the man who says "Charge it" and the man who says "How much, please?" The former is better dressed, but the latter is much more visible on the first of the month.

¶ The people of Sanford should investigate the commission form of government and if it seems good and urge the board of aldermen to submit the new form to the legislature. Many Florida cities are climbing into the commission class and it seems good for them and they are not attempting to change into the old order of things. Among the latest to what is known the commission form is Gainesville and the Sun has the following to say on the subject:

Is Gainesville going to let another session of the legislature pass into history without having a commission form of government? It looks that way, as no one of the hundreds of taxpayers who have expressed themselves in favor of the change has manifested sufficient interest to take the lead towards accomplishing the desired object, and the old saying that "what's everybody's business is nobody's business" in Gainesville is as true as the gospel truth. However, the people of Gainesville have the power, under the present charter, to adopt a commission form of government without further action by the legislature in this respect. What is needed is a board of aldermen who will submit such new form of government to the voters, but it is not likely that such a body will ever initiate the same. Representative Adkins could not do the people of Gainesville a greater service than to pass a bill through the legislature submitting to the voters of this city a commission form of government along the lines adopted by the people of Orlando and the Sun trusts he will do so. We know he will if the people petition him in the matter, and it is to be hoped that someone will manifest enough interest in the cause of commission government to get busy and secure a petition praying the legislature to pass such a bill for the ratification or rejection of the voters. Who will take the lead in this movement to give Gainesville a practical business government and save the taxpayers from burdensome taxation?

The people are ready to follow the lead of a Moses who will champion their cause.

¶ It gives me great satisfaction indeed to read in The Herald that the Sanford cemetery will be improved and that this good work will continue until Sanford has one of the most beautiful burial grounds in this part of the state. Too long have we neglected the city of the dead. Taken up with our active duties of the living we have overlooked this necessity and this duty to our dead and it is high time that each and every one of us take up this work and assist in making it one of the beauty spots in Sanford. A cemetery should not be a neglected place of horrors. It should not be the place where we literally dump the remains into a shallow grave and depart from the place as a scourge spot. We should not form the idea that the cemetery is a place shunned and shunned until the time comes when we are forced against our will to attend the obsequies of a departed friend or a dear relative. We should not have the thought or the nightmare that at some future date our own remains will be interred at a place where even our friends would not like to visit and give their attention.

A cemetery should be one of the most beautiful spots that the city could show to the visitor. It should be a place where the visitors gather on Sunday afternoons or other days for a visit. It must be a place where the beautiful in nature is magnified by the hand of man to cooperate in making it a city of the dead. Our own city is not neglected to this extent and the cemetery should receive the same careful attention that a city park or a private park or the grounds around a residence receive.

In the years gone by the Sanford cemetery has not been the city of the dead except in name. Those who had it in charge probably did their best but your best is never up to the standard unless it has the sanction and support of all the citizens. All of us have neglected this duty and now that we have awakened to our duty the Sanford cemetery will receive the attention that it deserves. Let us all take the same pride and the same interest in the cemetery and it will become as beautiful as our living city has become. For many years I have resided in Sanford and it has been the dream of my life that my remains would repose in a decent cemetery in this city after death, but the thought has been abhorrent when I beheld the cemetery as it formerly appeared. I have decided time and time again to make my last request embody the burial of my remains in some other city that has a more respectable burial ground but now our new cemetery will be all that my heart could desire and Sanford will not only be good enough to live in but all right to die and be buried in and there is nothing more to be desired.

Let this great work go on and let every citizen assist in making our cemetery the most beautiful grounds in and around this city.

¶ In conversing with a party of friends the other day about the European war I made the statement that it was costing several million dollars per day to pay the expenses of the war. They did not concur with me on the figures thinking they were too large, but the following authentic figures have been compiled upon the subject and if any of these doubting friends will investigate the matter they will see that I was right, only my figures were small compared to the actual amount.

The cost of the war, estimated in the second month of the war at $32,000,000 a day, has now risen, according to official estimates, to $50,000,000 a day for the ten powers, and the figures are still going up.

All the nations are living upon their accumulated savings and wasting them at a rate unprecedented in the world's history.

The measureless human suffering and bloodshed cannot be estimated. It will affect all nations for generations to come. It is only on the material side that losses can be even approximately stated, and these are staggering.

The French minister of finance, M. Ribot, officially announced that the Bank of France has advanced to the government "for extraordinary war expenses, $580,000,000, and the Bank of Algeria has loaned France $20,000,000. These sums proved insufficient for the expenses of the campaign up to December 1."

The French finance minister they

CELEBRATION IN GREEK COUNTRIES

Intense Fervor and Devotion Shown in Easter Ceremonies—Places of Pilgrimage Numerous.

In all the Greek orthodox countries—Russia, Roumania, Greece, Bulgaria, Servia, Montenegro, and a large part of Austria-Hungary—Easter is celebrated with great fervor and devotion. The Easter kiss is a well-known incident of these celebrations. A curious story is told of Czar Nicholas II and the Easter kiss. On leaving his apartments one Easter morning he kissed the guard outside with the usual salutation, "Christ is risen," to which the response is, "He is truly risen." But the man answered, coolly, "He is not risen." The emperor was aghast, and shouted, furiously, "He is risen!" But the man, with the utmost composure, repeated his denial. He was a Jew! Only the emperor's sense of humor saved him.

Russia, as the premier Greek Orthodox nation, is very much in evidence in the Holy Land, and of late years has asserted her supremacy in the Christendom of the Orient in many ways—not only by generous contributions in magnificent buildings and financially, but also politically in strengthening the position of the Greek church. Especially at Easter it is interesting to observe the contrasts which take on a certain political hue between Latins, Greeks, Protestants and Gregorians (Armenians).

Protestant religious activity in Jerusalem, which at one time was largely English, has of late years been much strengthened by the influx of German colonists, especially Swabians.

Away from the ecclesiastical ceremonial the pilgrim in Easter time seeks the traditional places where our Lord spent his last days and nights. Of these Gethsemane is the principal goal, and here the difference in creed among the many visitors is obliterated by an earnest and quiet devotion which is unexpectedly free from the emotional.

Another figure has a prominent place in Easter celebrations in Jerusalem; that of Moses, whose liberation of the Jewish people from the yoke of Egypt is commemorated in the ancient Hebrew paschal feast. But it is not the Passover celebrated by the various Jewish colonies of Palestine—the older Spanish-speaking, the Turkish-speaking people from Bokhara and other central Asiatic regions, the Arabic-speaking Jews from Yemen, and the Polish, Russian and German Jews of Yiddish tongue. It is not the Jewish Passover that is the most remarkable celebration in honor of the great leader and the Exodus.

There is a very little known Mohammedan celebration which, though no longer so general as formerly, is still a most interesting one. To the Mohammedan, it must be remembered, Jerusalem is a holy city, like Mecca and Medina, and there is a saying among Arabs, "Syria is the blessed country, Palestine the holy land, and Jerusalem, the holy city, is the holy of holies."

The tradition is that Ommi Selma, wife of the prophet, heard these words one day from Mohammed, "He who makes the pilgrimage from Jerusalem to Mecca will obtain forgiveness of sins, past and future, and will earn paradise."

There is a pilgrimage at Easter time which does not go quite as far from Jerusalem as Mecca, but whose goal is the burial place of Moses—Nebi Musa—between the city and the Dead sea. Although, according to Christian and Hebrew belief, the Lord buried Moses, and his grave is hidden from posterity, the Mohammedans regard a certain ruined sanctuary, some three or four hours' distance from Jerusalem, as covering the remains of the prophet.

In cosmopolitan charm Easter in Constantinople almost equals that in Jerusalem. The capital of the Turkish empire is, of course, in itself highly cosmopolitan, and there is no other city in the world where so many languages are heard in the streets, not by foreigners but by the variegated native population. The background here is not Jewish and Mohammedan, as in Jerusalem, but Mohammedan and Christian, with a strong tinge of Spanish Jewry.

Of the native Christians the Greeks predominate, but there has always been a very numerous Armenian element in Constantinople. The magnificent Greek Orthodox ceremonial well reflects the towering strength of that church in the Levant, which for centuries, under the absolute rule of the Ottoman sultans, acted in the capacity of imperial overseer of the Christian peoples under Turkish sway. Until the comparatively recent rise of the Balkan nationalities—Roumanian, Servian, Bulgarian, Montenegrin—Greek was the language of all cultured people of orthodox faith outside of Russia and Austria-Hungary. Recent events have once more shown the force of the people of Greek speech. Through the breaking away of the Bulgarian church and the erection of a Bulgarian exarchate, Greek in religion, but Bulgarian in speech and political aims, it had been temporarily weakened.

CO. COMMISSIONERS INSPECT DRAINAGE

BLACK HAMMOCK DRAINAGE DISTRICT HAS BEEN COMPLETED

County Commissioners L. P. Hagan, L. A. Brumley, C. W. Hinzinger, J. T. McLain and J. A. Clark, Engineer Fred Williams and Editor Holly of The Herald spent Thursday in Black Hammock inspecting the district drainage system that now traverses every part of that fine body of land. Black Hammock begins near Oviedo and extends to the shores of Lake Jessup and the drainage district comprises 572 acres of what is undoubtedly the finest soil in the United States. The drainage operations have been in operation for one and one-half years, the contract having been let to W. B. Williams of St. Petersburg, who has made one of the best drainage systems in this part of the state and the canals are perfect and should be a monument to the honesty and integrity of Contractor Williams, who gave the people more than they paid for in good substantial ditches. As the work is completed the board of county commissioners wanted to see the ditches at first hand, thence the trip Thursday over about twelve miles of rough travelling on foot. The board expects to finish the work today, but if they do they will be minus an editor. It is too early for mountain climbing and after going over that vast territory yesterday we are fully convinced that the ditches are all right and as far as we are concerned the rest of the system is all that the contract specifies. The history of this magnificent system of drainage and Black Hammock lands will be given in a later issue of The Herald, as space will not permit it in today's paper. With the party yesterday on the inspection tour were Messrs. Wheeler, Browning, Swope, Beazley and McKenzie of Oviedo and Contractor Williams. The entire party camped at noon on the main canal and had dinner with Mr. Williams in true out of doors style and it was greatly enjoyed. The trip was a revelation to those who have seen Black Hammock in the wild state mostly under water and to see it now since the drainage canals have been cut out.

BRICK ROADS START IN SANFORD DISTRICT

THE WEST SIDE, CELERY AND SANFORD AVENUES WILL BE COMPLETED

The road builders are gathering in Sanford again and the brick roads have started on the west side. This will be good news not only to the people of this district but the whole county and the people who are compelled to use this road in travelling to and from the East Coast. For almost a year now this road work had been delayed by injunctions and other impediments but now that all these matters have been adjusted satisfactorily the brick roads will be finished in record time. Better brick has been shipped and the roads will be built in good shape as the contractors have all their machinery on the ground or will have it by the end of this week and all is in readiness for the work.

The brick on the west side will be laid nine feet wide for the greater distance and some of it fourteen feet wide. As soon as this part of the district has been finished the gang will go to Celery avenue and Sanford avenue and finish up the work and in a few months all the brick roads in the Sanford special district will have been completed.

This will give Sanford district about twenty five miles of brick roads and carry out the original length of roads. As soon as this work is completed the question of connecting with Orange county will be taken up as this is most important.

Orange county is starting the brick roads this way and when completed to the Seminole county line there will be a stretch of road intervening between the special Sanford district and the Orange county line of about eight miles. As there is no provision for this stretch to be bridged the question arises about whether this part of the county can bond for enough or not and the idea of bonding the entire county will again occupy the attention of the tax payers. Many are in favor of the entire county bonding for sufficient to build this road and also to build brick roads to Geneva and Oviedo and to the Lake county line, but the sentiment was against additional bonds until the Sanford district could settle the difficulties that seemed to block progress. Now that this is settled and the work is in a fair way to be completed the county will probably investigate the bond issue idea for the completion of all the county roads.

It is certainly gratifying to the people of this section and especially to the people of Sanford to see the work on the brick roads resumed, as it has been rather difficult to explain to the visitors and the people travelling through the district just why there appears good stretches of brick roads and then a lot of sandy roads in the middle of the district. This condition will soon give way to a completed chain of good brick roads and the Sanford district will again assume the appearance of a civilized community.

Gaines-McCall

The following is clipped from the Lake City Citizen-Reporter:

The following wedding invitation has been issued announcing the wedding of Miss Mary Gaines, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. H. T. Gaines of this city:

Rev. and Mrs. H. T. Gaines announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Evelyn to Mr. James Pinkard McCall of Quincy, Fla. The wedding to take place on the evening of April 22nd in the First Methodist church of Lake City.

Miss Gaines will be remembered by the people of Sanford as the family resided here several years ago, while Rev. Gaines was pastor of the Methodist church. Miss Gaines was a musician and soloist and had many friends here who wish her all the happiness that this world contains.

Sanford People in Miami

While in Miami last week the editor of The Herald was a very busy man but had time to see Charlie Leffler, A. C. Martin, Miss Adams and several other Sanford people whose names cannot be recalled.

Charlie Leffler went to Miami several years ago and has grown up with the Magic City, being a prominent business man and identified with all the progressive movements. He is vice president of the Board of Trade and is a Miami booster.

More Cold Weather

Just about the time that straw hats and Palm Beach suits were the order of the day the weather report called them all in again by a warning of frost for Wednesday night. It was a light attack but the night was chilly enough to dispel all thoughts of summer weather and the clothing stores are in despair of educating the public into buying summer suits in March. The following reports from other parts of the country show that the cold wave seemed to be general throughout the country.

Columbia, S. C., April 1.—A new record for late snowfall was recorded in Columbia this morning, when three-fourths of an inch fell before 8 o'clock. The local United States weather bureau, established in 1887, has no record of a snow fall so late in March as that which fell this morning.

Reports from widely scattered sections of the state indicate that the snow and sleet was general throughout the state.

Augusta, Ga., April 1.—A fall of snow, lasting between 45 minutes and an hour, occurred here between 7 and 8 o'clock this morning. There was considerable sleet before the snow. However, the temperature was considerably above freezing and the snow and sleet melted as it fell.

Washington, April 1.—Another wintry storm swept the southeastern states and early today, bringing snow over the Carolinas, Tennessee and north Georgia and general rains further south. Some crop damage from hail was reported from Alabama.

Fair weather is expected by tonight over the entire section with heavy frost or freezing temperature as far south as central Florida. Cold wave warnings were ordered by the weather bureau for the east gulf coast and storm warnings were displayed from Fort Monroe to Jacksonville and from Tampa to Mobile.

Father Bresnahan to Leave Sanford

Next Sunday Father Bresnahan, who for almost five years has been pastor for the local Catholic church will officiate here for the last time as pastor.

The Right Rev. M. J. Curley, during his recent visit requested him to return to the mission field, which is at present in need of an experienced workman and missionary. Father will make headquarters either in Jacksonville or Tallahassee.

His place here will be taken by Father O'Riordan, who has been stationed in Jacksonville for some years.

Father Bresnahan is loth to leave his many friends in Sanford but like all Catholic priests, when the Lord calls and his church orders he is ready to obey. He is glad that such a good zealous priest as Father O'Riordan is, will come here to take his place. The latter is expected to preach here for the first time on Easter Sunday night.

CITRUS FRUIT PRICES WILL BE BETTER

CHANCES ARE GOOD FOR MARKET TO IMPROVE NEXT MONTH

Tampa, April 2.—Continued improvement in the northern markets leads to a hopeful outlook on the part of the Florida Citrus Exchange that better prices will be secured during the remainder of the season.

At the present time the prices are better than they have been at any time previously this year. F. L. Skelly, sales manager of the Florida Citrus Exchange, declares:

"During the past week the markets throughout the country have all become very active on both oranges and grapefruit, and we have advanced our prices accordingly. The sales being made are more satisfactory than at any time before this season; this being particularly true in the southern territory, where the demand is very active.

"There does not seem to be any reason for a decline from the present price on oranges; in fact, a further advance would be more probable. Florida oranges are arriving in the markets in very satisfactory condition—there being little or no decay and the eating quality far surpasses the California orange. As long as this condition lasts, the trade will continue to demand Floridas.

"Florida midseason oranges will be practically cleaned up by April 1 to 10, after which time the Valencia will move. There is every indication at the present time of a good market for Valencia oranges.

"While the shipments of oranges from Florida the past week have been light, California continues to ship freely and are selling at fifty cents to $1.00 per box below what is being realized for Floridas.

"The exchange probably controls half a million or more of the oranges left in the state (this includes the Valencia) and from 200,000 to 250,000 boxes of grapefruit. It is generally conceded that the exchange controls, by far, the larger percentages of the oranges left in the state.

"There is a considerably better feeling in the grapefruit market and the demand is very active. If shipments are moved out moderately from now on there should be no reason for a decline in prices, but, if everybody rush off their grapefruit, and gets it on the market at the same time, there will doubtless be a reaction.

"On account of the extremely cold weather which has prevailed through out the southern states, which will retard the maturing of early fruits, it looks as though we will have an extremely long season on grapefruit; and it is probable that the best prices of the season will be realized in April and May, and possibly up into June. Those having grapefruit should move them cautiously and not overcrowd the markets."

Buying Fine Cattle

Mr. Doyle, manager of Dr. W. F. Blackman's Wekiwa ranch has just returned from a trip to Adek Ga., where he purchased 171 beef cattle at an average price of $38.75 per head. These cattle were selected from many herds, and in Mr. Doyle's opinion are among the best beef cattle in Georgia. It is Dr. Blackman's intention to stock his ranch with only the best grade of cattle. His equipment is such that he can put beef on the market that will compare to the western products. Our local market men will no doubt take advantage of the class of beef that Dr. Blackman will be able to furnish them and give the consumer the benefit of this saving.

New Laundry Agency

Next Week George Wise, formerly with the Sanford Progress Laundry will open an agency for the Towne Steam Laundry of Tampa with headquarters in the Imperial building with D. L. Perkins.

George will at once put on a wagon for delivery and collection of laundry which will go to all parts of the city. Being a former resident of the city and well known here it goes without saying that he will do well in his line in Sanford.

The St. Agnes Guild Supper

The St. Agnes Guild will have a chicken supper the 10th of April, the Saturday after Easter.

MIAMI, THE METROPOLIS

BEING AN APPRECIATION OF A NEWSPAPER MAN TO OUR HOSTS

BY R. J. HOLLY

The great Press Association of Florida may not interest the average citizen of the state who takes the newspapers as a matter of everyday life as he does his breakfast food and is not concerned with the personnel of the men who make the wheels go round, but to the men who compose this great body of the Fourth Estate and to the people in Florida who each year for three days act as host and become familiar with the members there is a fraternal feeling that occupies a large place in their hearts and thoughts and after the most successful meeting at Miami, in which the writer had the honor to officiate as president, we would be remiss in our duty to our hosts if the occasion should be slighted by an ordinary news note that the association met and adjourned in Miami.

That the association is growing and each year becoming a more potent factor in developing new ideas among the members, and enlarging their scope of usefulness may be one reason why each meeting seems a trifle better than the preceding one and the meeting at Miami to one who has entirely recovered from the three days of business, fun and frolic it seems one of the most successful meetings from every standpoint that the members have ever held. Miami and Miami people are partly and almost wholly responsible for this satisfied feeling for Miami offers so much to the visitor and the offer is made in such a whole hearted southern manner that the visitor, leaves with the feeling of regret that he did not carry off the city with him, but Miami transplanted in any other part of the state would not be the Miami that has the sulphur setting of lovely Biscayne Bay and transplanted to a less favored section would miss the firm rock foundation upon which it is built figuratively and literally speaking and would shrivel up and die. "Give me Miami or give me death" is the song of the Miami booster and he has carried the inscription upon his sleeve so long that he really believes in it and no Miami man is ever caught knocking his home town. The hardware stores sell nothing but hammers and hammers are used only in building one of the prettiest cities in the south and one that is destined in a few years to be the largest in Florida if the largess of nature can be supplemented by the beneficent government in the way of harbor improvements.

It is essential for a city to have a proper location, in order that it may grow and expand assisted by the efforts of the citizens and the gifts of nature, but there are a few instances of cities growing by the efforts of the citizens themselves, Atlanta being one of these. But where a city has a harbor, the inland waterways and the railroad facilities and all these are backed by the faith and works of the citizens, there is no chance for such a city to remain in the village class and it will grow and expand and progress and develop almost overnight once the start is made.

Such a city is Miami. This will it the Magic City down there and seem to be proud of the title. To the visitor the name is an acronym used in connection with the perfect location of a city that has received such loyal support of the enterprising citizens. The growth of the city may seem marginal to the citizen who has watched it grow from a fishing village to a metropolitan city of 16,000 people in twelve years, but to the newspaper man there is nothing magical in the rapid growth even of Miami after he meets the progressive citizen of Miami and learns that the recent consolidation of the Commercial Club and Board of Trade made a combined membership of 500 men who have pledged themselves to give $25 per year for dues and who do not need to pledge their best efforts for every man in Miami is expected to "do his duty" and does it without being commanded or forced.

During the past two years over five and one half millions have been spent in Miami in improvements in the building of new homes, public buildings, hotels, industrial enterprises and subdivision property. The population in one year has increased over 25 per cent and at this rate Miami will be a city of fifty thousand people in five years and from present prospects there is no indication of a slump and the reverse seems imminent and the figures will be larger.

The bank deposits of this wonderful city have increased in six months 42 per cent, the postoffice receipts 27 per cent. The valuations of Miami have increased in five years 440 per cent and a few days spent in the city will be sufficient proof of these statements. They do not talk about the new residences being built in Miami but simply say "there is another one," and you can ride for fifty miles around the city's environs and get dizzy counting the "other ones." Being a progressive city Miami was the first in the state to levy a publicity tax of one mill, giving the city over six thousand dollars for publicity and making the publicity fall equally upon the taxpayers instead of becoming a burden upon the few.

There are churches, fifteen of them and school houses, about twelve, and there are factories, ice factories, electric light and power plant of the best, twenty-five modern and splendid hotels and apartment houses and more of them building. A fine court house, a government building, yacht clubs, golf clubs and clubs for various nationalities that go to make up the cosmopolitan population. Miami is upon the mainland and is separated from the ocean by the bay of Biscayne and a peninsula that has recently been wonderfully developed.

A bridge almost three miles long connects the mainland of Miami with the peninsula and on the ocean side Cal Fisher and several other millionaires who made their pile are spending it on beautifying and making more perfect this peninsula property. Here there are many more residences and the property is being sold rapidly, not only to the northern tourist for winter homes but to the Miami people for summer homes. A large pavilion at the beach, a swimming pool and old ocean attractions enough but are supplemented by many others, all combining to make this ocean beach a popular resort.

It would take a week to describe all the beauties of Miami, both natural and those made by man, but this article would not be complete without a description of the ride given the editors one afternoon after a day at the beach. Seated in automobiles the visitors were taken from one paradise to another in the shape of elegant homes of millionaires, one of them costing three millions and several in the million class. Others that were dreams of art and beauty cost considerably less but all of them showed that in Miami the rich tourist has found the city of his dreams, where he can rest amid his luxurious surroundings made more perfect by the alternating beauties of nature.

The roads of Dade county surrounding the city of Miami are worthy of an article all their own, for there are miles of these roads seeming built out of the solid rock or with a macadamized surface or with the oil and sand surface. These roads within a radius of twenty-five miles have many places of interest aside from the handsome winter homes. The natural bridge at Arch creek is probably the only one in Florida. The punch bowl or natural well, the subtropical propagating station operated by the government where the subtropical fruits of all parts of the world are propagated, the demonstration farm for the Everglade lands at Davie tract, Coconut Grove, Lemon City and many other points that are at once a scene of beauty and a joy forever.

If you like a water trip there are innumerable spots on the Miami river, or the inland canal, or on the ocean that the visitor can take and see the wonders of the sea and the land and wonders that can be seen at no other point in America.

It is no wonder then that arriving home after seeing Miami and all that the city is, has been and will be, the editors feel that in Miami the state of Florida has a city in which there is a great future. Miami also has two of the best daily newspapers in the state and they are among the real boosters. Miami merchants realize the value of advertising and patronize their newspaper, thus helping themselves and aiding the newspapers materially in establishing fine homes and most up to date printing plants.

From all we could see of Miami there seems nothing to be desired in the way of improvements and keeping up the gait. They have everything with which to make a city, are making it and will continue to make it with their earnest little band of boosters led by the Chamber of Commerce and their newspapers.

May we meet in Miami again. Certainly that city and her people will be in our hearts for the remainder of our lives and if we never meet there again Miami will never suffer in our comparisons, even with our "own home town." Not Miami the Magical, but Miami the Made.

TRIBUTE TO RAILROAD OFFICIALS

SUPERINTENDENT HANSEL, TRAINMASTER MARLOWE AND ROADMASTER RENFROE IMMORTALIZED

FROM EUSTIS LAKE REGION

We were at Sanford recently and met several railroad men who impressed us most agreeably, notably Superintendent Hansell, Trainmaster Marlowe, and Roadmaster Renfro.

Last week we dropped the remark in these columns that "Superintendent T. W. Hansell, of the A. C. L. office at Sanford, was in Eustis yesterday and called at this office. He is a broad-gauge official and impresses us with his fairness, industry, wisdom and diplomacy, essentials in the make-up of a first class railroad man."

He began his brilliant career on the L. & N. railroad at Birmingham, Ala., doubtless when Jim McKinney was superintendent. We knew him and his poet wife "Katydid," and loved them both. We saw her slip and fall once at a skating rink in Richmond, Ky., destroying the illusion that a poetess was an ethereal creature—for when she sat down unexpectedly the whole house was shaken as if a caboose had jumped the main track.

Mr. Hansell was first a telegraph operator, but was so efficient, sober, and industrious he was rapidly promoted. He has been with the A. C. L. Ry. for twenty years and is now superintendent of the Jacksonville Division, with headquarters at Sanford, where he is making a great reputation for ability and fidelity.

Another railroad man whom we greatly admire is the popular Captain Stafford sometime well immortalize him in the Lake Region in Trainmaster Marlowe. Julia Marlowe is not more popular on the stage than this man. Captain Marlowe is on the rails. He is a sunburst, a joy-jumper, an iridescent dream, an antidote for the mulligrubt in blues, and he has a little daughter as pretty as a watch charm and a beautiful wife to whom to return when the sun goes down on Celerytown—Sanford.

If he and Col. Hansell had it in their power they would put ten passenger trains each way between Sanford, Eustis, Astor and Leesburg. They'd lay 90-pound rails and put on palace cars, electrically lighted. They'd straighten the curves, fill up the sage and trim off the hilltops. They'd build a brick depot at every station and sell tickets at one cent a mile. But as they cannot do all these things—some of which should be done—they try to smooth out the rough places by their personal tact and retain for their company the good and not the ill-will of its many-minded passengers.

Their diplomacy is a buffer and shield against many clashes between the A. C. L. and its patrons, and makes them of more value than retained attorneys to fight law suits in the courts.

In reading the always interesting Sanford Herald of Nov. 10, 1914, we clipped this compliment to Captain Marlowe and we reprint it now without his suggestion—as we do this entire article without the knowledge of anybody soever. The Herald says, in its appreciation of Captain Marlowe:

"The trainmaster of this division of the A. C. L. seems to me to be a candidate for the iron cross when the time comes for the road to give out medals. I noted his work at a wreck some time ago and know that he was working all night for several nights besides attending to his regular office routine and all of that without any office helper. He seems to be a young man and hardened by work and rose, I believe, from the ranks. There is none of your kid glove methods about this young fellow. He goes right to the bottom of trouble of all kinds and the traveling public is often assisted in many ways by his thoughtfulness and endeavors to give service. I do not know him but he looks like a Georgia Cracker to me, and this probably accounts for his efficiency and ability to do things."

We now turn briefly to Mr. Renfro, the good natured butt of many practical jokes by Captain Marlowe, who always introduces Mr. Renfro as "General Chilloconkarney, a deserter from the Mexican army of General Carranza."

Mr. Renfro does look like a Mexican "greaser," having the complexion of a copper skillet and the tawny hair of a Yaqui Indian.

Captain Marlowe asserts that Renfro started an insurrection in Guadalupe, with six Mexicans armed with brickbats. General Zapata quelled the riot and promoted Renfro to be roadmaster at Sanford, Fla. We don't credit this story, although Renfro never dares to contradict his superior officer, who, he thinks, would make a good head-brotherman for any denomination.

With three such popular officials at Sanford as those above mentioned, with Capt. Stafford on the trains daily, and with Agent M. E. Millikin, at Eustis, we feel like congratulating the A. C. L. upon its wisdom in choosing such men to care for the road's interests without giving offense to its patrons—the only class of people on earth who can really successfully serve two Masters.

Starting Unpopular Bird. Starlings are not liked in Australia, according to reports from the American consul at Melbourne. Besides being destructive to fruit, they are charged with turning valuable insect eating birds out of their nests.

Three Things to Remember. It is a maxim universally agreed upon in agriculture, that nothing must be done too late; and again, that everything must be done at its proper season; while there is a third precept which reminds us that opportunities lost can never be regained.—Pliny the Elder.

Real estate seems to be picking up every day and this means that there will be no dull summer months.

April first has passed and the brick roads are started which is two things to be very thankful for in this vale of tears and celery.

If Sanford people have any doubts about the wisdom of bulkheading they should go to Miami, where they are spending millions in bulkheading projects.

Again we repeat that unless Sanford builds a good hotel this summer that there is no need of advertising the city or endeavoring to get tourists here next winter.

Our notion of a really obliging proposition is a thermos bottle, hot when you want it and cold when you want it. Couldn't the same principle be applied to the weather?

Our tear down idea seems to have taken the state by storm and yet we do not see any perceptible changes around this little city of Sanford.

Nine divorcees with the divorcees all over 63 years of age were registered in Chicago in a week recently.

We hate to see the St. Petersburg Independent and the Clearwater Sun use such language toward one another.

Will the weather man please stand up and tell us what the next day will bring forth? We are prepared for anything but the weather this winter has rather worked on our nerves and we would like to know just what to expect.

Next week the Florida legislature convenes and despite the fact that many of the newspapers are poking fun at the law makers even before they start The Herald believes that this session will do more real work than any of the preceding sessions.

The State Press convention which met in Miami the last three days of the week was one of the finest ever held by the association.

C. O. Codrington, editor of the DeLand News was elected president for the ensuing year and Kissimmee will be the next meeting place.

RATE REDUCTION
Advice has just reached the office of the Florida Growers and Shippers League at Orlando that the Florida East Coast Railway placed in effect on March 15th rates from all stations to Jacksonville (when for beyond) on oranges and grapefruit, in bulk, straight or mixed carloads, minimum 24,000 pounds.

The League also announces a reduction of 5 cents per crate in the rate on celery from Florida to Colorado common points, such as Denver, Colorado Springs, Pueblo, etc.

THE LADIES' AUXILIARY
At the meeting of the Florida Press Association in Miami Editor Triplett of the St. Cloud Tribune proposed a Ladies' Auxiliary in conjunction with the Press Association for the entertainment of the wives and sisters and sweethearts of the editors at the meetings of the association. Editor Triplett was immediately accused of endeavoring to get rid of the ladies who accompany their husbands by relegating them to themselves, but Trip squared himself by explaining that he was only looking after the welfare of the ladies in order that they could cooperate with the ladies of each convention city and in a manner most pleasing and cordial to all concerned.

NEWSPAPER ERRORS

It gives some people much joy apparently to clip from a newspaper a paragraph containing a typographical error and send it to the office of that paper, accompanied by comment as derisive and humorous as the critic's ingenuity permits him to make.

A GOOD SUGGESTION

One of the best suggestions we have seen in regard to the improvement of our state insurance laws, comes from the Arcadia News, and as Editor Langford of the News is a member of the present legislature, we hope he will make a strong effort to have his suggestion embodied in the law with certain other proposed changes which are almost sure to be made.

"The law should prescribe that at least a certain portion of the premiums collected on insurance in this state shall be available for approved Florida securities, and any company failing to meet this requirement should be precluded from doing business in the state.

PRESS DOES GREAT WORK

In selecting officers for the ensuing year at the Miami meeting, members of the Florida Press association displayed wisdom in naming a man of the character of Chris O. Codrington, editor of the DeLand News, as president, for Mr. Codrington will make a most worthy successor to "Bob" Holly, editor of the Sanford Herald.

A HINT TO THE SOUTH

Prof. Moses E. Wood, of the Central State Normal School, Edmond,

Okla., writing to the Manufacturers' Record says:

"After a year in Washington, where I saw land selling for $200 to $800 per acre for agricultural purposes and from $600 to $1,200 for apple land without irrigation and without planting, and from $1,200 to $3,000 per acre for orchards in full bearing, I am more than convinced that the south is the country."

When the railroads and the people of the south, comments the Record, put forth the same broad energy and the same liberal expenditure of money to make known the resources of the south as have been expended in making known the resources of the northwest, the south will far more than duplicate the development of the Pacific coast.

But this doesn't count the cities with their population engaged in manufacture, trade and transportation, and the extra amount of products that these would consume.

By the last census Florida had three quarters of a million people, and now has nearly a million. If six million people lived in the state, the opportunities of each would not be less than now.

The Florida Press Association has not only done a great work for its members, in bringing them together for the study of up to date publication methods and establishing a stronger feeling of camaraderie among them, but for the state as well.

Bonds for Brick Roads

To the Editor Sanford Herald:
At a good roads meeting held in Sanford some weeks ago a committee was appointed, one from each voting precinct in the county to ascertain where it was advisable to build brick roads and the cost, etc.

In addition to the above every newspaper receives in almost every mail requests for sample copies from people outside of its territory, very seldom accompanied by even the cost of postage.

"I just got a letter from my friend X, of the A. C. L. R. R., and he says that the increased number of acres in cultivation in your locality is solely due to my efforts," said a prominent board of trade organizer to us the other day.

Instances of this nature can no doubt be multiplied by every newspaper in the state.—Dunnellon Advocate.

BOARDS OF TRADE VS. THE NEWSPAPERS

The Plant City Courier gives this definition which the Tampa Tribune and a number of others observing newspapers think is strikingly applicable to a great many Florida cases.

"What is a Board of Trade? A fictitious organization existing in many Florida towns, which the newspapers are constantly talking and boasting, while they themselves are doing ninety-eight per cent of the public welfare work of their localities."

And commenting upon this observation the Tampa Tribune says:

"A Board of Trade, whether it's a live one or a dead one has to depend upon the newspapers for whatever vitality it possesses. Yet few of them recognize this fact. There isn't a newspaper of any circulation or standing in this county that does not do more for the real advancement of its community in a month than its Board of Trade does in a year and the newspaper men do not get salaries for doing it either."

The Miami Metropolis in reproducing the above says:

"No, the newspapers get no salaries from the public, and often the public fails to appreciate the extent of the newspaper's service for the town it boasts, but still the good work goes on and the towns that grow the fastest and attract the greatest prosperity are those towns in which a faithful newspaper, in fair weather and foul, keeps up its optimism and its constant recordings of the things that encourage more people to do more worth while things.

"To tell the truth," he said, "I intend to do a lot of that this year, but one thing or another has always come up to prevent."

Yet the newspaper never misses an issue, and if its columns do not carry the story of a live town the blame is easily placed.

"I just got a letter from my friend X, of the A. C. L. R. R., and he says that the increased number of acres in cultivation in your locality is solely due to my efforts," said a prominent board of trade organizer to us the other day.

Instances of this nature can no doubt be multiplied by every newspaper in the state.—Dunnellon Advocate.

Skeletons of the Devil
By H. F. Lockhart
I piled a galley here the other day.
Before the blizzard paper went to press,
I picked the measly thing up right away.
And not it back together just by guess.
The make up man he checked it in the form;
The thing went through 'th' gully's what a storm!

John Smith will sell at 20 Prospect street
At the bride's home on Wednesday at
A high noon.
An only daughter, beautiful and sweet
With spotted feet, and coming two next June.
So help me, that's the way the darn thing
I saw it, and I nearly fell down dead.

That ain't the worst. The thing went on to say
"Mike Dolan died last night a full past right
No fire insurance carried on this day
Less total, but the value was not great."
You'd ought to hear the wailow wail and rave
It makes me sick the way some folks behave!

A son was born to Dr. Richard Vose.
A glossy black and weight a thousand fat
His mother was by Danby, out of How
With gloves to match and score a pretty hat."
The foreman threw three fits and clawed the air;
For once he got so mad he couldn't swear.
"The Park House burned to ashes Tuesday
The cause they say was softening of the brain;
The noble fireman made a gallant fight
In satin duchess, made with fish tail train—
Ain't that the everlasting limit? Gee!
The way the whole darned bunch jumped on to me!

The boss he had me on the carpet, too.
Gosh! He can dress a feller to the ground!
I sneaked in his office levelin' mighty blue.
When all to once I heard a funny sound.
The boss was all alone—I'd give my hat
To know just what that guy was laughing at!
Inland Printer.

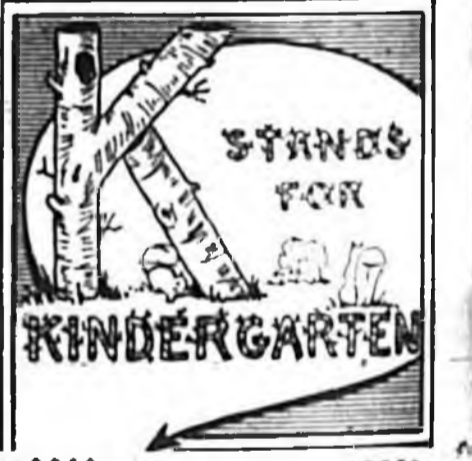

SUPPOSE there were no more
To sell us nuts and all.
Our shingle roofs would blow away.
Our dwelling's frame would fall;
We could not hang a picture up
To grace the parlor wall.

WE'D never screen the skeeters out
Or lock the silver in.
We couldn't run the fans away
In copper spoons or tin.
We'd split our kindling and a crack
And make the neighbors grin.

THE awful state of this old world
Without the hardware clan,
'Twould take a page to tell it all,
I'm sorry I began
O friends, let's honor and respect
The helpful hardware man.

The Boston Lyrics. Arrangements are being made for a large audience to greet the coming of the Boston Lyrics to Sanford. They will appear as the third Alkahest Lyceum attraction at the Baptist Temple the night of April 14th. There seems to be a wide felt interest in the coming of this popular musical company. Last year the Lyrics appeared at St. Johns Military Academy at Delfield, Wis. This year the Lyrics were requested to return but had no dates available. Finally the Academy took them on a Sunday date in order to get them. At Nashville, Tenn., where one of the greatest lyceum courses held in America is held in an auditorium seating 7,000 people, the Boston Lyrics appeared and were encored enthusiastically, time and time again.

Be sure to make your plans to be present at the Temple the night of the 14th and get the benefit of this great attraction. The prices have been so arranged that all may attend. Thirty-five cents for adults and 20 cents for children.

Bishop Curley in Sanford. Bishop Curley officiated at the Catholic church on Sunday last where he conducted a large class. In the morning at the 10 o'clock mass about 50 persons received holy communion from the hands of the Bishop. Early two-thirds of the number were men. At the 10:00 o'clock mass he preached a sermon which will not be forgotten for some time to come by the Catholics who were present. His subject was personal sanctification and he made an appeal to all Catholics to show their religion in their life. To be Catholics in fact and not merely in name.

His afternoon discourse treated of confirmation, the ceremonies of which he fully explained to an audience composed of Catholics and non-Catholics. In explaining why at the close of the ceremony he gives each person a slight blow in the cheek, he paid his respects in unqualified terms to those who make a business of insulting Catholics and trying to stir up religious bigotry. Especially did he tell what he thought of the new species of carpet bagger who has appeared in the southland and who behind closed doors is doing his best to drive citizen against citizen.

Bishop Curley is an eloquent speaker and well conversant with the subjects he discussed. His visit to Sanford has resulted in untold good. The following were among the confirmed: Mrs. R. H. Geiger, Mrs. Joe Daniels, Misses May Leonardy, Evelyn Berner, Margaret Berner, Helen Weth, Ida Ahearne, Florence Ahearne, Bertha Ahearne, Josephine Faeulo, Alberta Aycocke, Madeline Mallem, Alice Mary Oglesby; George Schaal, Alfred Weth, Philip Miles, Louis Rotundo, Rush Pitt, Bertram Shepherd, William Mallem, Alfred Berner, Merton Aycocke, James Schaal, Francis Britt, Charles Rotundo. Twenty-five in all.

Lake is Confident. Forrest Lake of Sanford declared here yesterday that he believes his chances of being elected speaker of the Florida House of Representatives this month are 100 to 1 strong. He spent the day shaking hands with his friends and he declared that he has the support of representatives from all sections of the state.

According to Mr. Lake, the up-building of Florida will be the uppermost thought in the minds of Representatives and Senators alike when the general assembly gets down to business next week. He stated that he is personally in favor of giving the cities and towns the right to amend their own charters and to so shape legislation that cities and towns can be allowed to run their own local affairs in their own way without clogging the wheels of the legislative body.

Mr. Lake declares that he is in favor of Senator Lou I. Farris' plan for a reconstruction of the legislative body as he believes a great deal of time and expense can be saved by this plan but there is little chance for the passage of such a measure this session. Jacksonville Metropolis.

The Church in Sanford. It seems to us that it is seldom a community has witnessed so delightful an exemplification of the 143rd Psalm as has been exhibited in our little city this good Passion Week.

"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!" The subject chosen for our union prayer meetings is one of the promises and most profitable as a source of blessing in God's word, the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

On this solemn and holy Good Friday let us turn back for a few moments and try to recall and make realistic that first great baptism in the upper chamber in Jerusalem.

The Master had told them to tarry. They were not in feverish haste to be disappointed, but were waiting patiently, persistently to tarry and to be sure not to close their protracted service until the baptism should come!

It must have seemed strange to men who had had such wondrous endurance bestowed upon them while the Master was still on earth that they would cast out devils, to be commanded to tarry for a greater access of power. What did it all mean? Hadn't the Master breathed on them the Holy Spirit? But there was the command to tarry.

And they were all "with one accord," in perfect sympathy, in loving harmony, no discordant note, no suspicion of motive, no reproaches. John was not saying to Peter, "Ah! Peter, how could you deny Him! And to think, how dreadful you cursed and swore that you never knew Him! O, brother, how could you be so false!"

And Peter was not reminding John of his angry passion when He prayed the Master to command fire to come down from Heaven and consume those careless Samaritans!

And nobody reproached Thomas for doubting. O, no, they were all with one accord. Maybe some sweet echo came to them—"I would Father they were one as we are one." They tarried. Was it to try their faith? Was it for a more thorough heart-searching? Was it for a perfect consecration? What kept back the flood of that wonderful outpouring? Are WE ready? Are the conditions for the baptism of power all fulfilled that we may bring forth the fruits of "love, joy, peace, meekness, long-suffering, temperance, faith and thereby be prepared to win men to the holy, blessed living Christ? ABOUT PEOPLE AND EVENTS... A RESUME OF SANFORD HAPPENINGS UP TO DATE.

Easter. Although still two days off, the Easter spirit is in the air, for the Easter egg hunt is on, east and west, from the lake to the Heights, the children are happy hunting for golden eggs or winning the little black rabbit, responsible for the gaily colored eggs the children are seeking, and even at the social functions of the older people the "egg" and the "rabbit" play a prominent part on the program and the menu. Easter is almost here. To this, the milliner and the dressmaker can testify, for are they not busy on the pretty hats and gowns that will be on dress parade Sunday? Lovely woman will be lovelier still in her fetching Easter creations and the Palm Beach suit and the Panama hat will rejoice too, for all the world is glad as Eastertide. In the churches the air will be sweet with the beautiful Easter anthems and Nunc Dimittis will be sung in gladsome strains.

There is no doubt that the announcement will bring out a big crowd of the young people on Tuesday evening.

Easter Egg Hunt. The pupils of the Seventh Grade were entertained yesterday afternoon by their teacher, Mrs. Geo. Dickenson with one of the first of the season's egg hunts. The girls enjoyed a happy time hunting for the eggs that were hidden in the grounds about the Dickenson home, and to Gladys Adams happened the pleasure of finding the greatest number of the pretty eggs. She was presented with an attractive little Easter basket. Gussie Frank and Vera Terheun found the next highest number, five eggs each. The decision was made by opening a book and the first letter on the page nearest A won the prize, the bundle that laid the eggs. Vera Terheun was the fortunate winner. Mrs. Dickenson served refreshments and the happy hour came to an end all too soon.

Children's Party. The Social Department of the Women's Club gave a charming children's party Tuesday afternoon at the club rooms, with Mrs. J. B. Starling, hostess. Assisted by Miss Kathleen Steinmeyer, who presided at the piano, music and games were the order of the afternoon and pleasure ruled the hour. One little lady was under the impression that this children's party was the invitation into membership in the Woman's Club and was greatly disappointed when informed that not yet but some time in the near future she might become a member. The color scheme of pink and white was effectively carried out with quantities of cut flowers, the pink and white of ice cream and the dainty little cakes iced in pink were very prettily served and attractive as well as tempting. The annual children's party given by the Social Department is one of the chief social events among the little folks. Fifteen children were entertained and all enjoyed a fine time. Others assisting Mrs. Starling were Mrs. C. O. McLaughlin and Mrs. O. E. Hayes.

HAIL MIRACLE OF DEATHLESS LIFE

Throughout the Ages the Spirit of Easter Has Voiced the Highest Aspirations of the Human Soul.

THE spirit of Easter had its birth in that dim past when man's wondering eyes first vaguely sensed the promise of the swelling seed, the mystery of bursting bud, the miracle of resurrected life in leaf and flower. Down through the countless ages have thundered the hosannas of vernal joy, peans of welcome to the reborn earth pregnant with its gift of immortality. In every land, savage and civilized, in every step of man's uplift from barbarism to culture, from prehistoric to modern times, each passing year has witnessed the passionate rhythm of waiting, lamentation and agonized despairing prayer for the dead god, until at a mystic moment, penitential sacrifice and fasting, weeping and mourning give way to transports of joy which hail the resurrected deity who has broken again the grim gates of death.

We Christians have no monopoly of the brooding "Easter" idea of death, resurrection and immortality, of a deity who dies to save the world and who rises triumphant from the dead. That has been the radiant principle of humanity's instinctive religion from the early dawn of man's spiritual life. The ancient temples of a hundred different religions have echoed to the lamentations for dead deities and their old altars have vibrated and thrilled with the joyous hymns in honor of resurrected gods. The germinal idea is found in almost all the myths of savage peoples. It was the prevailing idea in the faith of the old Hindus; it inspired the ancient Egyptian belief in immortality; in the pre-Christian religions of Babylon, Assyria and Asia Minor it was fundamental; while around this idea in Greece, Carthage and Rome centered the most sacred of rites and mysteries. Strange and sometimes horrible in sacrifice were the ceremonies which ushered in the reborn world, rituals of worship which drenched altars with human blood in imitation of the god who died that the world might live. In other places the great spring festival took the form of joy transformed into the abandon of license. But in all these perversions the central idea remained as an expression of man's attempt to fathom the secret of the universe and to adjust his little life to its awful mysteries.

We moderns of today can have no adequate conception of what the advent of spring meant in the child hood of mankind. In a way we have conquered the seasons and adapted ourselves to their changing moods. But even a few centuries ago, man was almost hopeless in the grip of a relentless, pitiless rhythm of superfluous plenty in summer and starvation and death in winter. It was only the strong and vigorous who survived the winter's fight with hunger. The ancient Lent was in vogue a period of waiting and lamentation, for at this time the gods seemed to have deserted mankind, and the earth itself, the great mother goddess of fertility and fecundity, appeared to have died beneath their feet. The coming of spring, the resurrection of fertility, meant that man's despairing prayers had been answered, that his sacrifices had been accepted, and that his battle with hunger was over. In the sharp prod of biting hunger which ancient man viewed as a punishment inflicted by the gods presiding over the various aspects of nature and the seasons, that can be found the reason for the "Lent" that seems strange and monstrous to us in the old religions.

Adonis was the god who represented the yearly decay and revival of life, an annual death and resurrection. His worship spread from western Asia throughout the Mediterranean littoral. He was pictured as bleeding to death with the red leaves of autumn and coming to life again with the fresh green of spring. Often Adonis was impersonated by a living man who was sacrificed upon the harvest field. In the great Phœnician sanctuary of Astarte at Byblos the death of Adonis was mourned to the shrill wailing notes of the flute, with weeping, lamentations and beating of breasts, but the next day the dead god was believed to rise from the dead and to ascend to heaven in the presence of his worshippers, amid hymns of joy and glad shouts of "Adonis is risen from the dead!" It is in the worship of Adonis, however, that occurs the most striking resemblance to many of the observances of the Christian Easter. Adonis was believed to have been miraculously born of a virgin mother and like Adonis to have died a violent death, rising from the dead at the time of the spring festival. Hideous orgiastic rites marked the ritual of Adonis worship in Rome. Days of blood and atonement preceded the hilarious joy of the great day of resurrection. While devout multitudes flocked to the sanctuary, the unsexed priests of Adonis and Cybele, to the music of flutes, drums and cymbals, slashed themselves with knives, and in wild, frenzied dances splattered the altars with dripping blood. The edgy of Adonis bound to a pine tree played an important part in the ceremony. "The Day of Blood" witnessed the period of mourning over the death of the god which was afterward buried in a sepulcher. The worshippers prayed and fasted in waiting and lamentation in preparation for the sacramental meal. But when night had fallen the grief of the worshippers turned to ecstatic gladness in the Festival of Joy. Suddenly a light shone in the darkness. The tomb was opened and the temple thrilled to shouts that told that Adonis had risen from the dead. And as the priest touched the lips of the mourners with balm he softly whispered in their ears the glad tidings of salvation. The resurrection of Adonis was hailed by his votaries as a divine promise that they, too, would issue triumphant from the corruption of the grave. A blessed sacramental meal and a baptism of blood were among other ceremonies for the initiates, a ritual which included a sacrifice of virility. It meant to them a new spiritual birth and remission of sins.

LAWS OF THE INCAS REMARKABLE FOR THEIR WISDOM.

Just Imposition of Taxes, and Beneficent Mandates Concerning the Unfortunate Principal Features of Ancient Civilization.

In the remote fastnesses of a huge mountain range, on a continent unknown to the civilized world of Europe and Asia 400 years ago—the Andes of South America—there existed a civilization so remarkable that the most famous of the historians of the conquest said of it: "Laws so beneficent have never been enjoyed by any country under any Christian monarch, or under any king, whether of Asia, Africa or Europe." That, writes C. R. Enock, in "The Secret of the Pacific," is not an exaggeration.

Among the most remarkable laws of the Incas were those concerning taxation. The principal feature of those laws was that the taxes were not paid in money, but in work and in produce, whether manufactured or grown. The Inca emperors thought it unjust to demand that taxes should be paid in any kind of commodity that the people could not produce by their own personal labor.

The people also paid another sort of tribute. They made clothes, shoes and arms for the soldiers, and for the poor, who could not work themselves, owing to age or infirmity. The cloth was made of wool from the flocks of llamas that abounded in the mountains. On the plains of the seacoast, where the climate is warm and they do not dress in woollens, the people made cotton clothes, the cotton being supplied from the crops of the emperor. The shoes were made in the provinces where aloes were most abundant, for they were made of the leaves of a tree called maguey. Each province furnished its own produce and no province had to supply any thing that did not belong to it.

There was a beneficent mandate that forbade beggary and destitution; that, of course, followed upon due provision in their laws. Every citizen was provided for, theoretically and practically. No man need be idle; no man need lack land or seed, or implements for cultivation; therefore, no one was permitted to beg. If any were found doing so, it was clear proof of idleness, for the incapable were provided for; and contempt and punishment were meted out on all tramps, vagabonds and idlers.

German Praises Dickens.

Dr. Rudolf Fuertel, the well-known German historian of literature, having recently criticized Dickens as an author who lacked ability to portray virtue, because he himself was devoid of love, Albert Finzer replies in the Vossische Zeitung by asserting that Dickens was "full of love and therefore deserves love."

"When," he says, "a contemporary writer or artist like Maeterlinck or Heider, whom we have rendered famous, now repays his gratitude to Germany by abusing her, then the man and the artist are not separated, and the door is to be shown to him, but our revenge should not extend to the heroes of the spirit of former times, to whom we owe our gratitude and who never caused us any pain. "Isaiah's 'Song of Hate' speaks out what millions among our people feel, present-day England as our foe, but when I wish after the heavy cares of the day to escape into the still neutral domain of the immortal works of the spirit of poetry, then I may be allowed to forget, in the company of Pickwick, Micawber, and other creations of Dickens' muse, that war is stalking through the world."

Physician's Responsibility.

An indictment charging a physician with manslaughter in the second degree because of negligence in the operation of an X-ray machine, as the result of which a patient received a mortal burn, has been upheld by the supreme court of Minnesota in State vs. Lester. The court said: "We must take judicial notice that X-ray machines sometimes inflict serious burns, and the indictment characterizes the instrument used as dangerous unless skillfully handled and presumptively known by defendant to be such, notwithstanding which he placed it too close to his subject, and also failed during an excessive exposure to give her the attention requisite to prevent injury. These allegations import criminal negligence, and the questions raised thereby are for the jury."

WHEN A NEW WIFE STEPS IN.

What is there in the value of life that so delights us as a wife? When friendship love and peace combine to stamp the marriage bond divine?

From the hour a man is bereft of his mate, left alone in a desolate home, his relatives and friends begin to worry about him. If he has a sister, aunt or distant cousin, she is quickly sent for. The household reins, suddenly dropped, are placed in her hands. A young woman who has little or no experience finds the care of a home thrust upon her, a trying ordeal.

No two keep house alike. The wife took a special pride in preparing the dinner with her own hands. The young cousin leaves all to the maid's judgment. Cook can not be blamed too severely for serving dishes needing the least cooking and not the most appetizing. The man comes home to find dinner has just been started or has been ready an hour or two before and is cold, dried out, not edible. He is told cousin went to a card club early in the afternoon. He finds the window of his room open wide, papers blown about in all directions. Household tabby, never allowed upstairs, was dozing on his pillow in which long rents had been clawed. The room was strewn with drifts of feathers.

Men may suit themselves to their surroundings. He who has had a happy home and finds it topsy-turvy under a new regime is apt to grow despondent. If he broaches the subject to his cousin, like a not she flares up and retorts angrily she is there to accommodate him.

Nine men would break up the home and go to boarding. The tenth solves the matter, concluding it's best the only way out of it—to marry. It's not easy to find a wife just suited to his needs. Two years that dragged heavily by brought him indignation, sleepless nights, dread of the morrow, conviction there's no place worse than home for a lone man. Women, God bless them, were apt to read discouragement in his face. He asked permission to call on them; they put forth home cheer to make him forget his dreary life. Usually it's the plainest, homeliest woman who strikes a chord in his heart. She has so much sympathy in her nature.

Cousin is having the time of her life. Her father, in his home, seldom gave her a dollar. In the widower's home ease, for the week's expenses is laid at her plate. Besides, there's a tidy sum for herself. She has her bank account, use of horses and carriage. She knows her cousin goes out of the house evenings. She's not troubling herself to make it pleasant that he may stay at home.

Unexpectedly he brings home a bride. Her value ends as a wife steps in. Once again home is as it was in the other days. His interest is studied and his comfort cared for, and there's no friction. A man is often driven into matrimony. His friends and relatives see after awhile that he took a wise course for happiness. A man has to live his life out. He yearns for serenity, peace and comfort. He who has been once wedded realizes the blessings of a wife's companionship to make his life complete.

ARE WOMEN DECEIVERS?

With them they bring long hot scenes of the past. Back to our view: Pictures of friendships not destined to last. Loves that grew weak 'neath adversities' blast. Painted anew.

When a poor man finds that in gathering a family about his knees they all turn out to be girls there is not one father in a hundred who does not indulge in the despairing wish that at least half of them might have been boys.

He has always heard that girls are expensive to raise; that more can be spent upon a girl's useless fardel in dress in a year than would be required to rig out a boy neat as a pin for five times that long.

He doesn't say anything to his wife about his disappointment. He absolves the good wife from all blame. Poor soul, boy could she help it that they had turned out the wrong way, shattering one air castle after another. Quite as soon as the girls are old enough to understand mother takes them into her confidence, and thenceforth they begin to plot and plan how they can retrieve themselves in father's estimation.

The mother determines that daddy shall be proud of them. They shall not grow up encumbrances to him, but aids. She knows the girls may have to earn their own living later and paves the way for it from the time they are knee high to a grasshopper.

She knows the value of the Red Cross nursing. She instructs the children in its mysteries quite as soon as they are able to comprehend. If one gets a hurt finger, one of her sisters is expected to give first aid. If it is done quickly and with dispatch a shining penny is her reward. The children are taught to watch for tears and rips in daddy's clothes, and when the rents are skillfully mended this calls for more shining pennies and fulsome praise from mamma. The child who discovers a break in the tablecloth or carpet and whose deft fingers make it as good as new receives so much praise as well as her penny that her mother hints they must look out lest she add mischief to labor by finding holes that shouldn't be there.

The sweeping, dusting, breadmaking and bed-makeup come in for their share of reward. Little by little the girls have acquired the rudiments of knowledge of housekeeping.

The careful mother does not think this is all she needs to do. On some particular occasion she surprises the children with a typewriter. It had been long used, but it almost seemed to be giving it away for that $5 which was the price she paid for it. What fun for the little girls. In a fortnight they had mastered its intricacies; were sending letters to every little friend they ever heard of. An old piano, purchased at auction, accomplishes like results. A mother may accomplish the rearing of them, sending them to the public schools, by the time they are about eighteen there's nothing a smart little family of girls can't turn their hands to. They have deceived daddy completely. Boys would have been married and gone. The girls are his staunch little band of supporters. It's due to the good judgment of the mother that the family is a credit to her. These are the girls who make sensible marriages. Had they been boys, the mother couldn't have guided them as well, perhaps. There's more heart and promise with one little girl in the home than of a baker's dozen of lads. What one man dislikes another man would go wild over. There you are!

PERIL IN CLANDESTINE MEETINGS.

Not that I wanted so far above myself as this great hope to dare, and yet I half-for-saw that love might hope where reason would despair.

All the world loves a lover, one of the kind that steps boldly forward and seeks an introduction, calls upon her and wins her in the regulation fashion and aboveboard. But all the world detests a cur who marks out a pretty, innocent young girl with a sinister intention of making love to her by stealth then leaving her to awake from a broken love-dream as best she can.

Nine times out of ten he manages to pick up acquaintance with a girl in a way which does not arouse her suspicion, contriving to meet her accidentally, as she supposes. He puts a thought in her innocent mind that their meeting has been a romance so sweet that no one else must share their secret. He asks the girl to meet him at a certain place. If she answers that she is not certain as to whether she can come, she will have to ask mother, he begins serious argument against her course, which fairly bewilders her. He assures her that mother would forbid their friendship and that would break his heart. The little demure maid takes the first wrong step when she consents to meet him without any one knowing it. Girls should know that an honorable man would not ask them to keep anything, no matter what it was, from their mother or close friends, who are for their interests first, last and at all times.

The man who coaxes a girl to meet him clandestinely is her enemy, with usually a dark past, which he could successfully hide from an inexperienced girl, but not from those more worldly-wise than she.

She who consents to meet a man clandestinely in a park or at some street corner, restaurant, or dance hall not only brings suspicion upon herself, but keeps respectable men from her side. She is apt to be taken for the kind of girl that she is not. The reputation would cling to her for years, long after the faithless lover who had brought all this disgrace upon her ceased to care for her. The man who insists upon meeting a girl clandestinely thinks very little of her if she consents to go. He is very apt to boast of his conquest over the heart of a stily girl in saloons, among comrades whom a girl would be terrified to see, let alone to be brought in contact with. If all this does not make a girl pause who has such a lover, I don't know what will. One can do no more than warn people of their danger.

Nice, pretty, attractive, modest girls can have no fear of going through life loveless by discouraging the worthless suitor. All in good time the right kind of a man will meet her, be charmed with her, and with the pleased approval of her relatives lead her to the altar, to be happy ever after, as the story book says.

Preparing for the Future.

An American visitor in Montreal recently saw a squad of boys whose ages ranged from six to nine being drilled by two little girls of corresponding age. Upon inquiry one of the drill sergeants explained that her father said the war might last 20 years, and that these boys might fight for the union jack while their fathers came home to rest.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Rubber Constantly in Demand. Semi-official estimates made in India of the world's production of rubber for several years to come indicate a constant increase, passing 200,000 tons in 1910, but never equalling the demand.

Canada and the United States. The area of the Dominion of Canada is 3,628,946 square miles. The area of Continental United States is 3,820,000 square miles. Canada is as big as the United States with a territory to spare that is as large as three German empires and the state of New York.

Symbols of the Easter Time

Lilies sound His praises at the Easter-tide,
Who from highest glory came to earth and died.
Lo! a-dying, quite defying Satan's mighty power,
Bands a-bursting, our Redeemer rises in His hour.
Can a pulsing, freshening lily show aught else beside
Happy, joyous welcome at the Easter-tide?

CONSIDER THE LILIES

THE cashier was alone. He drew a pencil and scratch pad from his pocket and figured rapidly. Yes, he could do it easily. Just a turn of the combination and the safe was open. His tip on certain stocks came from a man with inside knowledge, and to take the money from the bank would just be borrowing it. The stocks were scheduled to make a wild plunge upward within the next few days and then he could sell, replace the money he had taken from the safe before it was missed and have enough ahead to justify several of his intended moves toward social advancement. Why, it was all just the simplest thing in the world to accomplish! All the time he argued with himself he was not quite easy in his conscience, but his thought of the confidential position of the friend who had given him the tip made the outcome seem a certainty. An end that would surely justify the means. He pulled the blind, unlocked the safe, concealed the money he needed on his person carefully covering his tracks. Then he locked the safe and quietly let himself into the balmy April air.

It was past midnight when he stole silently out of his home for a little walk, being unable to sleep. The moonlight held the world in its thrall, bathing the spring flowers in its silvery light, but the cashier was oblivious to its beauty as he wandered aimlessly down first one street and then another, until his attention was arrested by the sound of a glad hosanna from a nearby church—the final choir rehearsal for Easter music. Scarcely realizing what he did the troubled man slipped into the vestibule of the big church, drawn by the lights, the music and the hunger for human companionship which gnawed his troubled heart. As he stood undecided what he should do the joyous anthem ended, the choir filed into the vestry room and the old sexton turned out all save the chancel lights. The cashier slipped quietly into the church and sank wearily into a seat, his eyes fixed on the lily-laden altar.

Easter lilies were everywhere. Great banks of them covered the altar, and from every nook and corner they gleamed white in the dim chancel lights. They were like a prayer—a mother's prayer for her children—pure, and clean, and white. Their delicate fragrance was pleasant to his senses, but above all else it was their whiteness which riveted his thought. He could not get away from it.

Suddenly he buried his face in his hands to shut the lilies away from his sight, while he went over the argument he had used to himself when he had taken the money from the safe. But, strangely, in the midst of his effort at justification, the whiteness and purity of the Easter lilies surged through his brain.

Then out of the stillness a sound was made. It was the sound of a voice, the voice of his mother. "Consider the lilies," it pleaded softly.

The cashier sprang to his feet and looked about him wildly. There was no one in the big lily-laden church except himself, himself and the voice. "Consider the lilies," came the advice to him once more.

The voice was unmistakable. Although his mother had been dead to these twenty years, he could never forget the gentleness of her voice. But that was not all. The admonition had a familiar ring which was not of the voice alone, nor yet of some long-forgotten reading. The words were borne in upon his senses now as in that long ago yesterday, when, as a little lad he had sat in the living room of his home listening to his father's heartbroken confession to his mother that he had failed in business. It was Easter then as now. On the broad easement of the low French window stood a row of exquisite white lilies. His mother had turned from his stricken father to regard them, and over her face had come that tender, confident smile the little lad had so loved. "Consider the lilies," she had told the man, "they tell not, neither do they spin, yet Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." And his father had taken her into his arms with a great sob, while the little lad had looked on, understanding only that his mother had somehow helped his father over a great crisis.

And now in the crisis of his own life, when temptation had mastered him, he sat alone in a lily-laden church and to the voice of his mother bade him "consider the lilies." Whence had it come? From the heart of an Easter lily? Or had it come into the house of God with him with a ray of moonlight? Or, was the voice in his brain alone—born of memories? He could not tell, and it did not matter. When he had laid her away twenty years ago he had not laid away the influence that had been hers, all through his young life, her faith in him, her smile, nor the memory of a certain day when he had been graduated from college and had promised her that he would seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness through all the days that he should live. And he had kept his promise—until tonight when the greed of gold became the dominating motive of his life; tonight, when the thirst for luxury had conquered him.

The cashier stood clutching the seat of the pew in front of him, his eyes fixed on the lily-banked altar. Then he squared his shoulders even as he had seen his father do in that long-gone year. And when the first soft flush of Easter day crept across the eastern sky the money was safe in the bank again. For the cashier kept faith with his mother.

Easter.

"She, supposing him to be the gardener—"

Dead is our Christ and our hearts cry

"Where?"

We would peer in the tomb behind thee.

Ah! Not there!

But as of old in the open air.

Out in the garden, Lord, we find thee.

SNAPS FOES' TRENCH

French Officer With Kodak Is Welcomed.

Tells Remarkable Story of His Experience in Getting Picture of the Germans—Men Seemed Quite Happy.

Paris.—Illustration, France's leading pictorial weekly, recently contained a remarkable story and a remarkable photograph of an incident which occurred in the famous forest of the Argonne. Both picture and narrative are the work of a French junior officer, who writes:

The general one morning said to me: "I want you to make your way to our first line, and if possible photograph the German trench, two yards away. Mind you keep your wrist about you, for the enemy shoots the first kept he sees and the moment he hears a sound."

And a mass of branches I perceived our late lieutenant, warned by telephone, was expecting me. In a penetrating whisper he said: "That's the only fifteen meters off. I soon reached a jagged hedge, and peeping through, with the aid of a field glass, I could distinguish a heap of fresh soil ahead. It was the German trench."

"Don't look too long," said the lieutenant, "a bullet will whip that peep-hole from your hand. What we'd like to know is whether they're bad boys or good boys?"

By bad boys he meant the Prussians, who fling grenades, bombs, or mince-wrecker shells morning, noon, and night, and by "good boys," the Saxons, who are lazier, and leave us in peace for hours at a stretch.

We kept as still as mice all the while, watching intently. Suddenly the lieutenant began to whistle a popular German song.

"I'm a little soldier, I'm a little soldier, I'm a little soldier, I'm a little soldier."

He stopped. We never moved a muscle. Then from the trench opposite came the concluding couplet, whistled in the same key.

"I'm a little soldier, I'm a little soldier, I'm a little soldier, I'm a little soldier."

It was a beautiful melody. At that moment a shell burst near us, but we were not hurt. The first we were again since the war began.

"Hold your tongue! Do you want to be bombardarded?" This from the lieutenant.

"Heavens!" pursued the soldier, whom artillery had made deaf, "there's a couple, one with a brown cap and something shining on it."

With my glass I could easily see two German heads just appearing above their parapet of earth—a sharp shooter and a Bavarian infantryman.

They saw the blue kepi of our infantry "plou plou." In gentle tones they called out, "in Morgen Kamera rade" (Good morning, comrade). Then other heads appeared. I counted five; one belonged to an officer. This seemed to be the psychological moment to get a useful and curious record. So I handed the lieutenant the camera and he held it above the trench and cried out "Photographieren!"

"Ja, Ja," called back the Germans, whose round faces broke into a broad smile.

I quickly sealed our trench, and getting possession of the kodak I stretched myself flat on the loose soil and focused the German trench. "Click," and with a salute to the enemy I dropped back into the trench, just as a cheery "Dank" came across the intervening space.

They seemed quite happy. One of them went so far as to throw us a packet of cigarettes. A hough stopped it, and instantly a German came out of his trench, apparently with the object of picking it up and handing it to us. But the lieutenant, with a grim smile, pointed a revolver at him; the Teuton returned, and the cigarettes stayed where they were.

Scientific Farming

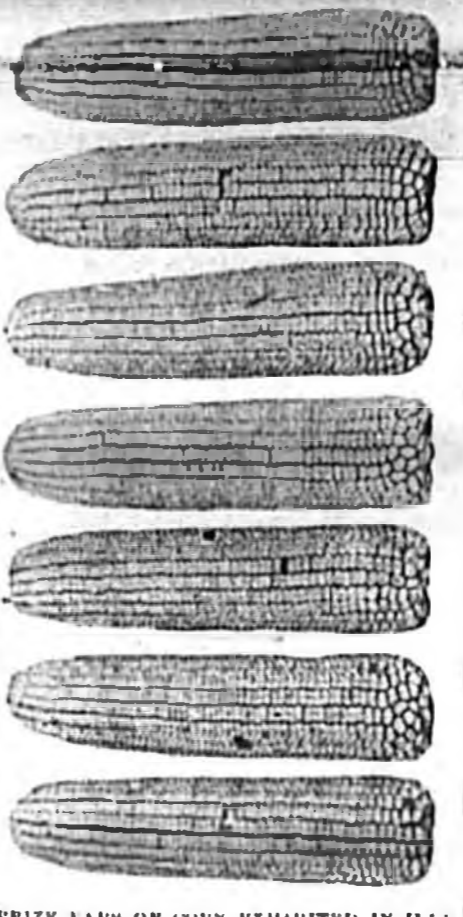

CORN WILL BE HIGH.

Early Planting of a Few Acres Advised by Kansas College Expert.

The chances are that corn will be high priced next July and August, believes C. C. Cunningham, assistant in co-operative experiments in the Kansas State Agricultural college. He believes that many farmers where the corn crop was short in 1914 will find the planting of a few acres of early corn profitable this season.

Growing a quick maturing variety of corn for early feed is sometimes a good practice. The farmer who is out of grain and has to buy high priced corn may cut down expenses by growing a few acres of early corn. An early variety planted as soon as seasonably conditions will permit will produce feeding corn from three to five weeks before the heavy yielding varieties of corn are ready to feed.

The larger growing, later maturing varieties of corn normally grown usually outyield the small growing, quick maturing ones because of the longer growing period of the former varieties. A considerable increase in yield must be obtained to make the growing of early corn under these conditions more profitable than planting the entire corn acreage to the varieties usually grown.

Ordinarily in eastern Kansas a standard variety of Kansas corn, which matures in 115 to 125 days, will outyield a ninety to ninety-five day corn ten or more bushels per acre, and on the average the growing of the larger varieties pays best because of the larger yield. It is only when the July or August price of corn is abnormally high and the following crop large, causing a decided decrease in price, that the early corn planting practice is recommended.

The usual practice in obtaining seed of early corn is to get it from the northern states. Early corn has to be grown in northern states because of the short season. In western Kansas a quick maturing variety of corn is necessary because of the low annual rainfall. Acclimated varieties of corn grown in western Kansas are hardy and vigorous growing. The indications are that those early varieties of western Kansas corn are better suited to eastern Kansas conditions than varieties similar in size and maturity from further north.

Winter Wheat and Spring Wheat.
The Indiana experiment station (central Indiana) finds that spring wheat yields half to two-thirds as much grain as winter wheat on the same soil. The time to seed is as early as possible, the quantity about six pecks per acre.

VALUE OF COVER CROPS.

A blanket of cover crops is needed in every orchard at least half the year. An old orchard on sloping land, which is inclined to grow heavy wood on the trees at the expense of fruit bearing, needs a thick cover crop, such as common red or mammoth clover. In some successful orchards alfalfa has been used, and, though it is not generally regarded as a desirable orchard cover crop, there are instances where the alfalfa in an old orchard has been pastured by hogs and has proved an advantage for a year or two. It is then turned under and the orchard cultivated clean for a couple of seasons, with winter cover crops of crimson clover or rye.

The barometer of the orchard condition is the growth of wood and the condition in which fruit is matured. If the cover crop is too heavy and is allowed to sap the ground of moisture in midsummer the fact will immediately be noted in slow maturing fruit and short growth on the terminal branches of the trees.

Many old trees need to be checked in their growth of wood to make them produce. The abundance of blossoms in an orchard is evidence that the heavy cover crop has had this effect—Country Gentleman.

Tallahassee, April 6th.—(Special)—With C. E. Davis of Madison as president of the senate; and Carey A. Hardee of Live Oak as Speaker of the house, the 1915 legislature will convene in regular session tomorrow.

The house caucus was organized at 8 o'clock tonight. Robt. T. Anderson of Pensacola placed the name of S. C. Harrison of Duval in nomination for temporary chairman.

The organization was then made permanent and the election of a Speaker pro tem, and attaches of the house was taken up.

Forrest Lake was nominated by H. I. Bussey of Palm Beach, and seconded by Arthur Gomez of Key West.

The senatorial caucus of the legislature was called to order at 5 o'clock. Hon. Charles E. Davis of Madison, senator from the Tenth district, was unanimously elected president.

C. A. Finley, secretary of senate called the roll and all were present except Senators Conrad of the 25th, Fogarty of the 24th and Roddenberry of the 5th districts.

Negro Killing Last Night

Brick Roads In Orange

Preparations for the county paving are progressing at a rate very satisfactory to the three contracting firms, and brick are being lined up on the roadway leading to Zellwood, stretching each way from Lake Fairview. On this road, which almost parallels the Seaboard Railway, the haul is short. The longest haul being made at the present time is on the five mile trip leading to Conway, where four mule teams are slowly moving the brick line toward Orlando.

Probably the most active work is being done on the thirteen miles of road leading to the Osceola county line. The delivery of brick was started at Pine Castle, and working toward Orlando and also toward Kissimmee.

This roadway is a part of the National Highway, the main backbone of the state, leading from Jacksonville to Tampa, along which are some of the most progressive towns in the state, Palatka, DeLand, Sanford, Orlando, Kissimmee, Lakeland and Plant City.

It is no longer idle talk, the O. & S. Transfer Company is rapidly stretching out the brick line leading south from Orlando. Soon after leaving this city, the motoring tourists are attracted by a wall of brick along the roadside, which is not lost to view until within less than a mile of the little town of Taft; teams are passed at intervals, all hauling brick the roadway which is soon to be paved by Alabama Paving Company, holding the city contract that has added some ten to seven miles of prettily paved streets to Orlando during the past few months.

The county contracts call for a total of fifty-seven miles of brick paved streets, and when completed, together with the city mileage will give Orange county seventy miles or more of brick highways.

Willard is the Champion The Willard Johnson fight started up much excitement here yesterday and hundreds of interested spectators watched the fight in front of the Herald office all afternoon.

Those who wanted reserved seats were inside the office and paid for the telegrams and those who wanted to know about the fight but did not want to pay for the privilege waited outside to see the bulletins. It was a most orderly and quiet crowd and even after the result became known there was but little demonstration. The following is the result of the fight:

At 10:30 p. m. on April 5, Willard knocked Johnson out in the twenty-sixth round here this afternoon, the fight being witnessed by a crowd of 17,000 persons.

It was Johnson's fight all the way, and the final outcome came as a bolt from a clear sky to the throng of excited fans that packed the grand stand. The knockout was a right swing to Johnson's jaw which sent the big black to the ground. After the fight the crowd tried to rush in the ring to get Johnson but the soldiers cleared the ring and gathered Johnson and escorted him to the city of Havana.

Johnson used every artifice known to fighting and had landed the greater number of blows on both face and body up until the ninth round, having forced Willard to the rope repeatedly. At the beginning of the ninth round, however, Willard assumed the aggressive, having gained confidence, and slowly gained on his adversary. At the beginning of the twenty-second round, Johnson began to weaken, due to the terrific pace he set at the opening of the fight, and in the twenty-sixth round the big black went down and the white man was declared the world's champion prize fighter.

MORE BUSINESS BLOCKS FOR LUCKY SANFORD

HOME PEOPLE HAVE GREAT CONFIDENCE IN FUTURE OF THIS CITY

The Build Now movement is strong in Sanford and that this city will have a number of new business blocks, apartment houses and residences built during the summer months is most gratifying to the people in general and especially to the winter visitors who have been unable this winter to procure suitable lodgings.

Among the first ones to start the building of business blocks are Frank L. Woodruff and B. W. Herndon, both Sanford gentlemen and both large property owners and have explicit confidence in the future of our progressive city.

Mr. Woodruff started his brick block on the Sanford House grounds on First street last week and the foundation and some of the sidewalls are already up. This building for the present will be one story but the foundation is made with the view of making it three stories in height later on and it may become part of the new hotel idea that is bound to take shape sooner or later.

The Herndon building will be on the southeast corner of Park avenue and Second street facing park. This building will be two stories in height and will have a frontage of 41 feet on Park avenue and extend back on Second street 100 feet.

This building will be of bull brick and will be an ornament to this street that is rapidly becoming one of the business streets of Sanford.

MANY NEW RESIDENCES FOR LUCKY SANFORD

LARGE NUMBER OF NEW HOMES BEING ERRECTED DURING THE SPRING

Many new residences are planned for this summer. Among the new ones started or to be started is the Brisson house on Magnolia avenue. This will be built for rental purposes as Mr. Brisson believes in Sanford houses and has already built several that were sold before they were finished.

The last one will be built on Magnolia between Ninth and Tenth streets and just north of the one built several months ago that was sold to Frank Giles. The house will be two stories and contain seven rooms and have all the modern conveniences.

D. S. Babbitt has just purchased two lots in the Garner addition to Sanford Heights and will immediately start the building of a nice two story home that he will occupy.

E. J. Taylor recently built a fine residence on French avenue opposite his business site, the Sanford Bottling Works on French avenue and is contemplating another house on the lot that will be for rent or sale. This part of French avenue is becoming very popular since the built head started and lake front homes will be the thing in a few years.

N. H. Taylor has started his two new houses on Magnolia avenue for rental purposes and all the new homes will add greatly to the appearance and also serves to hold the visitors here next winter. With all of the new buildings erected in the past the demand exceeds the supply and there is no better investment than good houses for sale or rent.

There are several more homes contemplated in the near future and the plans are now in the hands of the architects.

Install Picture Machine

Through the work and efforts of the Senior Chapter of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew of Holy Cross Parish a full size new model of "Dawson" Moving Picture machine has been installed in Holy Cross Church House. The first proof worth the new balcony in the Parish House have been the work of the young men themselves.

The general use to which this new adjunct of the Parish House work will be put is educational. There are many things concerning the church, church history, the Bible, missions, the state, and general instruction which can be better understood through the medium of pictures than in any other way.

On Wednesday nights, immediately after devotions in the church, pictures dealing with some phase of religion will be shown in the Parish House. This Wednesday (tomorrow) will be illustrations of missions and educational work among those people known as "Poor Mountain Whites" through the Virginias, North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky. No admission will be charged on Wednesday; but an offering will be taken.

On Saturday nights the young men intend having special reels of well known books or plays of standard values. These nights, usual admissions will be charged. To all pictures, on Wednesday and Saturday nights the public is most cordially invited.

Charles E. Snyder

Charles E. Snyder of this place died of cancer of the bowels at the home of Pearl Pughnion, Marion, Ohio Friday, March 25th.

Mr. Snyder came to Sanford four years ago and lived on a farm south of town. He was in poor health for more than a year.

A few months ago he underwent an operation. He continued to grow worse and seven weeks ago he was taken to Ohio.

The closing days of his life were made as pleasant as possible by the tender care of loving friends and relatives.

He was a kind and generous neighbor and loving husband. All who knew him loved him. At times his suffering was excruciating, yet he bore it all patiently and cheerfully. He was always appreciative of the kindness shown him by friends and relatives. He accepted Jesus as his redeemer.

Big Packing Plant

Sanford and Seminole county should feel a vital interest in the announcement made in Jacksonville papers that Armour & Company have decided to erect a half million dollar packing house in the state metropolis in the near future. The news was given out there by George Mason, who received his information from a close personal friend of Ogden Armour.

The Metropolis of that city said: "A large packing plant in Jacksonville has for a long time been discussed as one of the greatest needs of the locality and of great prospective value to the state. This arises from the fact that Florida's possibilities as a cattle raising state have been pronounced by authorities to be among the best in the world, and Mr. Mason has often cited instances where western beef has been raised and fattened on Florida ranges to be shipped to Chicago for slaughter and distribution. A great deal of the canned meat products are also composed of Florida raised cattle and the success of the venture is heartily endorsed and predicted by not only Mr. Mason, but a large number of others in the city and state."

As it is now, the cost of shipping cattle from Kissimmee to the packing houses in the north averages about $1.00 a hundred, or in round figures from $5 to $10 a head. When the shipments are made to the new packing house in Jacksonville the cost ought not to be more than 25 cents a hundred or about $1.25 to $2.00 a head. Approximately 10,000 head of cattle were shipped from Kissimmee last year, so that there is at once a saving of from $12,500 to $20,000.

This will mean an increased price to the cattlemen and will stimulate the feeding of cattle before shipping.

Congressman Sears Here

Hon. W. F. Sears, congressman of the Fourth district, Mrs. Sears and Joe Sears, Jr. were here yesterday for a few hours stop-over to their home in Kissimmee. Congressman Sears has been in Jacksonville for a few days going there from Miami and was joined in Jacksonville by his wife and son. While here they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Holly and left on the noon train for home. Congressman Sears will be here in a few days and address the Commercial Club on some of the important topics of the day, our government building, affairs at Washington and other vital questions.

The announcement will be given later. He is looking fine after his trip to Washington and will be busy with his visiting list until it is time to go back to the nation's capital. He will also take a look in at the Florida legislature some time in the next few weeks. From all the reports our new congressman made a most favorable impression among his colleagues at Washington and he will fit into his new position with no friction and we can expect great things from our Joe.

Guns for Sanford

On account of the war and rumors of war Sanford will fortify the harbor defenses and the war department has sent or will send at once two bronze cannon and ammunition. The following dispatch is from Washington.

The war department is preparing to comply with the provisions of the omnibus bill passed on the closing day of Congress, which provides for the distribution of obsolete cannon and cannon balls. Under the terms of the bill the following Florida distributions are to be made:

To Tallahassee, two condemned bronze or brass cannon or field-pieces and a suitable outfit of cannon balls.

To Gainesville, two condemned brass or bronze cannon or field-pieces, with their carriages and a suitable outfit of cannon balls.

To Sanford, two bronze or brass cannon with a suitable outfit of cannon balls, which may not be placed in the service, the same to be placed in a public park, building or square in said city.

Under the explicit provisions of the bill the United States government is not to be charged with any of the cost of transportation, which means that the communities which are to receive the donations must pay all freight charges.

Rev. R. E. Drisco spent several days in the city the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Davison. Mr. Drisco was Mrs. Davison's pastor in her New England home.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF HORTICULTURISTS

FLORIDA GROWERS WILL BE ENTERTAINED IN TAMPA IN TRUE TAMPA STYLE

Tampa, Fla., April 6.—On April 13 to 16, inclusive, there will be held in Tampa the 28th annual meeting of the Florida State Horticultural Society.

The entertainment committee will be composed of the following gentlemen who are preparing a splendid program for the entertainment of the visitors, the details of which are not as yet ready to give out:

Mr. D. C. Gillett, Buckeyes Nurseries; Mr. L. D. Jones, Florida Citrus Exchange; Mr. Walter Preston, Manager Fruit Co.; Mr. H. Guy Nickerson, Bayshore Development Co.; Mr. E. A. Wright, Editor Florida Grower; Mr. B. L. Hammer, Secretary Board of Trade.

There will be attendance over fifteen hundred of the most progressive growers of the state. The railroads of the state are giving very special rates from all points, and we anticipate the greatest crowd that has ever attended one of these meetings, says the Florida Grower.

The Florida State Horticultural Society is the oldest organization among the growers of the state, and it has been the father of every movement for the betterment of conditions in the groves of Florida. It is far reaching in its influence and it is one of the greatest factors in the citrus industry in the state.

Everyone, whether a grower or not, is eligible to membership in the society on the payment of $1.00. For this one dollar they not only have the privilege of attending these meetings and hearing the speeches made upon the various subjects and of participating in the discussions but they receive a printed book containing every word spoken at the meetings, and this book in itself is a valuable treatise.

It is hoped this matter will receive due publicity, as there is no institution in the state that will receive greater importance and none that is deserving of more encouragement, for the growers who attend these meetings and learn of the best practices in citrus culture, tend to aid in the prosperity of Florida by the production of higher quality of fruit and a greater quantity.

At this meeting there is going to be held under the auspices of the Florida Grower, an exhibition of every implement and device that is of interest to the growers of the state in their operations. There will be everything on display at this exhibition from packing house machinery to orange wraps, and it is given so that the growers may have an opportunity to see the most modern and up to date methods. This exhibition will be held in the city park and in the Tampa Bay hotel, which is official headquarters of the society.

County Division in Alachua

There has been a movement in both Levy county as well as in Alachua county tending to county division. We believe there will be little or no opposition from the voters of Alachua county to the division if the lines will be established so as to not take too much of the old county.

We also believe little opposition would be met with in Levy county if the different factions will get together and consult the mutual gain of the territory to be divided, and not figure self interest too much.

There has long been a desire in the north end of Levy county and in the west end of Alachua county to make a new county, which we believe would mean a great deal to this section. We are aware of the fact that there is but little common interest between the northwest of Levy county and east end.

We people in the west end of Alachua county understand that we cannot make a successful county without at least twelve miles of Levy county territory on the north end.

We sincerely hope that the people of Levy county and the people of western Alachua county can get together and make a new county. This new county would, without a doubt, soon be the Egypt of our Commonwealth.—Trenton West End.
