Martinez Launches GOP Administration

From Staff and Wire Reports
TALLAHASSEE — Republican Bob Martinez, with a Sanford delegation in attendance, became Florida's 40th governor at high noon Tuesday promising to "return to the basics" in a potentially radical reshaping of state priorities.

Martinez, former Tampa mayor and the first Hispanic elected to the post, was joined by his wife, Mary Jane, and family as he took the oath administered by Chief Justice Parker Lee McDonald.

His inauguration was preceded by the swearing in of veteran state House member Bobby Brantley of Longwood as lieutenant governor, and swearing in of the new Cabinet members.

Meanwhile, in Washington, former Governor Bob Graham took the oath of office of a U.S. Senator with 34 other November winners as the 100th session of Congress began.

Among those from Sanford attending the Martinez inauguration were Carl and Shirley Schilke, Donald and Jan Bauerle Sr., and Donald and Cath Bauerle Jr., William and Donna Adamson, and Lee and Ann Moore.

As Martinez completed his oath, four howitzers of the Florida National Guard thundered a 19-gun salute, which scattered the hundreds of birds who haunt the roofs of the buildings in the government complex.

Moments later, three fighter jets and four helicopters of the Army and Air National Guard swooped over the crowd that packed into the plaza between the old and new Capitol buildings to witness the launching of the first Republican administration in 20 years.

"Much has been said and written since my election about how different I am — that I am Hispanic, a Republican and a former mayor," Martinez said. "All of this is true. But I did not come here to be different. I came here to make a difference."

Every inauguration in recent memory was marked by chill and rain but the sun smiled on Martinez as temperatures rose into the 50s after the early morning cold.

"Sworn in before Martinez were Brantley and Secretary of State George Firestone, Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter, Commissioner of Agriculture Doyle Conner, Comptroller Gerald Lewis, Attorney General Bob Butterworth and Commissioner of Education Betty Castor.

Also present was Claude Kirk, elected to a single term in 1966 as the first Republican governor since Reconstruction.

In his address, Martinez offered kind words to Democratic leaders including former Gov. Bob Graham, who led the state for nearly eight years before resigning Saturday in favor of Wayne Mixson, his lieutenant governor. Graham took the

McClanahan Says 'Spying' On Citizens Should Stop New Sanford Commissioners Sworn In

By Karen Talley

In a cryptic acceptance speech he later said was pointed at City Commissioner John Mercer, A.A. McClanahan decried those who "spy on their neighbors" just moments after he and Whitey Eckstein took the city commission oath of office Tuesday night.

Mercer offered no response to McClanahan's statements during Tuesday's session. Afterwards Mercer said he knew the statements were directed at him and that McClanahan "is entitled to his own opinion."

McClanahan said his references were meant to criticize Mercer's practice of regularly turning in lists of potential code violations to the city's building department.

Mercer said his reports stem from suspected violations he calls he receives from residents who know about his code enforcement efforts and want to report possible violations. Mercer said he welcomes the contacts from residents because this enables them to remain anonymous and thus avoid possible hassles with the neighbors they're reporting.

McClanahan and Eckstein were sworn in during a brief ceremony Tuesday at Sanford city hall. The officers replace outgoing commissioners Milton Smith and Dave Farr. McClanahan defeated Smith for the city's District 3 seat. Eckstein defeated S. Sanford businesswoman Dot Meadors for Farr's District 4 spot.

Farr decided against a reelection bid after being named Sanford Chamber of Commerce executive director last fall.

Eckstein's statements after being sworn in were much briefer and subdued than McClanahan's. Eckstein offered public thanks to his family for their support during his campaign and said he plans a conservative posture when it comes to city spendings.

Smith and Farr said their goodbyes to city government after receiving resolutions of appreciation and silver plaques from their commission colleagues. Mayor Bettye Smith added a "personal" postscript, saying she had enjoyed serving with both men and benefitted from the experience they had brought to the commission. Smith served on the commission six years, Farr for eight.

The organizational meeting was a homecoming for McClanahan, who served as a city commissioner from 1972-78. In comments after being sworn-in, McClanahan did not mention

Myers Backs Off On Bribe Charge

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood Mayor Harold "Ed" Myers, who made a bribe allegation against an unnamed new city commissioner at Monday's meeting, said today, on the advice of an attorney, he has decided not to name the individual or pursue the matter further.

Myers told the press Monday night he would make a statement on tape Tuesday naming the person who offered the deal and giving all the details.

Myers said the attorney told him if he publicly accused someone by name the state Ethics Committee would not take any action should a complaint be filed.

Myers said he is going to drop the issue, but that does not mean a complaint will not be filed with the Ethics Committee concerning the alleged incident.

Someone else may file it, he said.

"I am willing to kiss and make up," he said. "I think I have made my point. I am willing to go to court and take a lie detector test. I know what I heard. I resent remarks about my hearing, because I spent $1,300 to take care of a hearing impairment."

Sherlock Holmes Fans Celebrate Centennial

LONDON (UPI) — British fans of Sherlock Holmes have started a year of international celebrations marking the centennial of the immortal fictional detective's first public appearance in fog-shrouded Victorian London.

To celebrate, Holmes' British admirers had dinner Tuesday with parliamentarian Merlyn Rees, who as a one-time Home Secretary was in charge of Scotland Yard, the police headquarters so often outclassed by Holmes in solving mysteries.

Rees told the 100 members of the British Sherlock Holmes Society at a dinner at the House of Commons that he too was a devout admirer of Holmes and of his creator, Arthur Conan Doyle, who apart from his writing was an influential behind-the-scenes political figure of the day.

A similar dinner was planned Thursday by Holmes fans in New York — The Baker Street Irregulars — and other celebrations stated by "Sherlockians" in Japan, Australia and throughout the United States testified to the continuing fascination the hawk-nosed sleuth holds for modern audiences.

Holmes made his public debut — supposedly then aged 33 — in a short story published in now-defunct Strand Magazine in 1887.

Called "A Study in Scarlet," it gave birth to a myth.

Holmes, with his violin, magnifying glass and reasoned thought applied to solving murders and mysteries and outwitting "Napoleons of crime," inspired four novels and 56 short stories by Doyle — plus 200 films and television versions and at least 40 major plays.

The myth is so enduring that 100 years later, the British Post Office delivers 40 letters a week from all over the world to Holmes' supposed address — 221B Baker Street.

The site is now occupied by the Abbey National savings bank. "I think it's amazing that he still is so popular," says Sue Brown, 32, whose job at the bank is to answer Holmes' mail.

"They are from all over the world, and they are from fans to express admiration, ask questions and just to see if they will get replies," she said.

One recent letter from a Texan asked if Holmes and his faithful assistant, Dr. John Watson, could "help my government to find out where the millions of dollars from the Iran arms deal went."

The Texan got the standard reply. "Mr. Holmes thanks you for your letter ... At the moment, he is in retirement in Sussex keeping bees."

Explosions Rock Chemical Plant

BATH, Pa. (UPI) — A series of explosions rocked a chemical processing plant early today, killing one person, injuring 20 and releasing fumes that prompted the evacuation of nearly 100 residents, officials and witnesses said.

A Northampton County radio dispatcher said the explosions began at 12:50 a.m. at the Savage Industries plant in East Allen Township, outside of Easton in east-central Pennsylvania.

The dispatcher said the blasts were followed by a small fire that released a noxious gas. Environmental Protection Agency officials were on the scene taking air samples to determine if there was toxic contamination.

It was unclear what causes the explosions. Martha Cusimano, a spokeswoman for St. Luke's Hospital in Bethlehem, said two employees of the plant were admitted for smoke inhalation and burns. She said eight firefighters who were the first on the scene were examined after breathing the chemical acrylonitrile at the plant.

Cusimano said acrylonitrile was not dangerous but could be lethal if it decomposes into hydrogen cyanide gas. Hydrogen cyanide is lethal in two parts per million.

Cusimano said no traces of hydrogen cyanide were found on the firefighters and they were released from the hospital.

"They were checked for fear of toxic inhalation even though they had on breathing devices," she said. "The thinking here is that the gas is not present."

Among those admitted to St. Luke's was David Godin, 33, who discovered the dead body of his colleague in the plant.

"He was distraught," Cusimano said, adding he was being treated for smoke inhalation.

The victim's name was not released. Kevin York, 25, who had been employed by Savage for four months, also was admitted for second-degree burns on his hands and face and "for some involvement with his eyes," Cusimano said.

Ten other people, including two policemen, one firefighter, an American Red Cross volunteer, a Savage employee and five employees of a nearby trucking company, were treated and released from Muhlenberg Hospital Center. Hospital spokeswoman Melissa Wright said they all were treated for chest tightness after possibly breathing sulfuric acid, which was released in the explosion.

Wright said sulfuric acid was a respiratory irritant but not dangerous.

A county dispatcher said only two or three people were in the plant at the time of the explosions.

Federal and state environmental officials ordered about 100 area residents to evacuate to schools in the Northampton County School District, which was closed to students today.

An Environmental Protection Agency official at the scene said shifting winds could pose a problem in spreading any fumes to a wider area.

Osteen Girl Still In Coma

Thirteen-year-old Alysia Kreinbring of Osteen, who remains in a coma following a Dec. 5 accident, is breathing on her own and making progress after more surgery, Gertrude Goodall, a close family friend from Sanford, said today.

Alysia suffered severe head injuries after being hit by a telephone van and pushed 167 feet on State Road 415 in Osteen.

Mrs. Goodall said although Alysia is still in a coma she is responding to pain "by pulling away," and her breathing apparatus has been removed. "She's breathing on her own, but breathing heavy, and she has also had a tracheotomy," Mrs. Goodall said.

She said the family is encouraged because "little parts of her seem to be waking up."

POLICE

Brandishing Handgun In Car Reported, Suspect Nabbed

Sanford police reported charging a Sanford man with carrying a concealed firearm after they received a report that the man was brandishing a handgun from inside a car at about 3 p.m. Monday.

The incident reportedly occurred at 19 Seminole Gardens in Sanford and a man told police that the suspect pointed a gun at him as the suspect drove a car past him.

Police located and stopped the suspect's car at Fifth Street at Seminole Gardens at about 3:13 p.m. and arrested Jimmie Lee Bailey of 1803 McCarthy Ave. after they allegedly found a .22-caliber pistol in his possession. He has been released on $1,000 bond to appear in court Jan. 26.

Charged With Littering Crack

A Seminole County sheriff's deputy who turned the spotlight of his patrol car on a man who was briskly walking west from Crabman's, 2104 Sipes Ave., Sanford at about 1:45 a.m. Tuesday, reported seeing that man throw something from his left hand into a ditch.

The deputy stopped the man and frisked him for weapons. The deputy reported he didn't find a weapon, but felt that he believed might be two pieces of crack cocaine in one of the man's pockets. The deputy didn't look inside the pocket.

Another deputy arrived and watched the suspect as the first deputy searched for what the man had thrown in the ditch. As the suspect was being watched he allegedly dropped something from his pocket to the ground.

The first deputy picked up what was dropped and reported it to be two pieces of crack cocaine inside a plastic bag. There was no report of the item thrown into the ditch having been recovered.

Augustus "Crabman" Malone, 50, the owner of Crabman's, who listed his address as the same as his business address, was arrested in the case. He has been charged with possession of cocaine and was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

First Noise, Then Drug Arrest

A man who was part of a group reportedly involved in a disturbance at 801 Magnolia Ave., Sanford, was charged with possession of cocaine and drug paraphernalia after Sanford police investigating the disturbance reported finding contraband in his possession.

The contraband was reportedly found in the suspect's coat pocket after the owner of the apartment invited police into investigate the disturbance.

Johnie Emanuel Tanner, 35, of 1810 Southwest Road, Sanford, was arrested at 10:06 p.m. Monday. He was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Fingerprint Leads To Arrest

A 27-year-old Orlando man, jailed since Nov. 21 in connection with a burglary on Lake Howell Lane, Winter Park, has had burglary and grand theft charges added in connection with an Oct. 14 burglary of another home on the same street.

The suspect allegedly burglarized the home of Violet Anderson, of 2652 Lake Howell Lane, taking 12 antique Indian carvings and a porcelain doll with a total value of $450. He also allegedly did $300 damage to a glass door which was broken in the burglary, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

The suspect was linked to the case after a fingerprint taken from the broken door was reportedly matched by sheriff's investigators to his fingerprints.

Hollis Dwayne Ramsey was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond in this latest arrest, which was made at the jail at 3:45 p.m. Monday.

Multi-Named Man Jailed

Casselberry police were called to the Crossroads Sporting Goods shop on U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry, to investigate a possible wanted felon attempting to buy a gun and reported arresting a suspect who had several forms of identification with various names and birth dates.

Police reported determining that the man was filling out paper work required to buy a gun when police arrived at the shop at about 4:45 p.m. Monday.

Police questioned him and reported he had in his possession several forms of identification including a suspended driver's license. There were various names and birth dates on the identification cards, police said.

Michael Owen Facyson, 27, of Orlando, has been charged with fraudulently getting a driver's license, obstruction by false information and possession of a suspended driver's license. It was also determined that he was wanted for violation of probation and he was being held without bond.

Burglary Nets About $7,000

A burglary Monday stole about $7,000 worth of items including jewelry, coins and silver from the home of Dorothy M. Weidman, of 2503 Dakota Trail, Fern Park, a sheriff's report said.

Jailed Youth Charged In False Bomb Report

A 16-year-old Sanford boy being held in the Seminole County jail on a burglary charge was arrested at the jail Monday and charged with making a false report of a bomb at the jail on Dec. 31.

Seminole County sheriff's investigator Dan Prast reported that the suspect, who was with three youths in a cell from which a telephone call was made from a collect pay phone in that cell to an telephone operator, has reportedly been linked to the call by witnesses.

The witnesses said they overheard the 7:30 p.m. call in which the operator was told "There is a bomb at the Seminole County jail and it will go off in 13 minutes and 53 seconds."

The operator "locked in" on the call and determined the telephone number of the call box. The call was reported to Sanford police, who traced it back to the specific telephone used in the jail. The investigation was turned over to the sheriff's office.

In the burglary case the boy is expected to be tried as an adult, but that determination has not been made in the bomb threat case. In the bomb threat incident he was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Sun May Shine In Seminole Sky

Staff And Wire Reports

The warming temperatures combined with increased humidity this morning to spread a shroud of fog through Seminole County this morning, Traveler's advisories along Central Florida highways were issued due to limited visibility. There were small delays in departures from the Orlando International Airport but no reported interruptions in arrivals.

The warming trend will continue with tomorrow expected to be in the mid- to high-70s. Winds are down and the beaches are back to normal. The sun should continue to play peek-a-boo with the clouds.

Emergency management officials hoped calmer weather forecast for today would bring to an end the pounding surf and gusty winds that belted Florida's northeast coast for two days.

Waves four feet higher than normal and winds gusting to 40 mph blasted the area Monday and Tuesday, eroding as much as three feet of the beach in some places and threatening property.

But the National Weather Service predicted seas, which were as high as eight to 12 feet Tuesday, would subside to four to six feet by early today and winds would drop to about 15 mph.

The hardest-hit area of Florida's east coast appeared to be the area just south of Jacksonville Beach, in southern Duval County and northern St. Johns County.

A western storm packing rain and mountain snow glazed roads in California and Nevada today and headed for Arizona and New Mexico in the wake of an earlier, more powerful storm that buried parts of the West under 3 1/2 feet of snow.

The new storm spread rain and mountain snow across much of central and southern California. Snow also fell in parts of western Nevada, and rain doused southern Nevada, the National Weather Service said.

Travelers advisories for snow and hazardous driving were issued for parts of Nevada and the Sierra Nevada in California. Travelers advisories were also posted for the mountains of Southern California.

By Tuesday night, the storm had dumped 4 inches of snow at the Mount Rose, Nev., ski area, and up to 8 inches was expected in the Lake Tahoe area.

The storm was expected to move into Arizona and New Mexico today and into the southern Plains Thursday, but forecasters said it was not as strong as a weekend storm that preceded it.

"It doesn't look like it will be anywhere near the intensity of the storm that moved across the Sierras and the Rockies over the weekend," said Bill Barlow, the weekend storm dumped 42 inches of snow at Alta, Utah, Park City, Utah, picked up 36 inches and the mountains of northern Arizona were hit with up to 18 inches.

Parts of Wyoming received more than a foot of snow late Monday and early Tuesday before the winter weather diminished as it moved northeast.

The storm, accompanied by wind gusts in excess of 60 mph in New Mexico and Colorado on Monday, was blamed for at least one fatality. The driver of a tractor-trailer loaded with steel was killed when his rig went out of control and crashed on a slick highway near Kanab, Utah.

Jail Inmates Swallow Razor Blades

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Two Seminole County jail inmates were under medical watch Tuesday awaiting passage of razor blades out of their bodies.

The inmates, who were cell mates, each swallowed a razor blade as a jail nurse watched on New Year's Day.

Jail administrator Jay Leman, said Tuesday so far there is no sign of injury to the inmates, who have been X-rayed at Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford.

Jail records show, Leman said, that at about 8:40 p.m. Jan. 1, Robert Kevin Sawyer, 32, of Charleston W. Va., stepped up to licensed practical nurse Shelby Box. He was to receive medication from Ms. Box in a routine distribution of medication to inmates who have had drugs prescribed for them, Leman said.

Sawyer displayed to Ms. Box a single edge razor blade taken from a disposable razor of the type issued to inmates and then confiscated after use. Sawyer wrapped the blade in a butter patty wrapper and put it on his tongue and swallowed it.

He stepped aside and his cellmate, Robert Lee Morgans, 19, of 849 S. Wymore Road #22-D, Altamonte Springs, followed Sawyer's example and the same procedure, Leman said.

By 8:50 p.m. both men had been transported to the emergency room of CFRH, where they were examined and X-rayed.

The X-rays apparently showed foreign objects inside both men, Leman said. A doctor said there was nothing to do, but wait and watch for the blades to pass through bowel movements, he said. Upon their return from a 4-hour hospital stay, the inmates were placed in isolation and the watch for signs of injury began.

Jail nurses, Leman said, will determine when and if the blades are passed.

Sunday additional X-rays showed the blades were still in their bodies.

Leman said the pair has not said why they swallowed the razor blades and they said nothing to Ms. Box when they swallowed them.

Leman speculated that the action was an attention-getter and a way to for the men to get out of their cells for awhile.

Sawyer was returned to Seminole County Aug. 7 to face a robbery charge to which he later pled guilty. Sawyer is awaiting sentencing scheduled Jan. 15.

Morgans, Leman said, has been jailed since Nov. 10 on Casselberry and Longwood charges of grand theft auto, reckless driving, fleeing to elude police and criminal mischief. He is awaiting trial.

Leman said because of medical records confidentiality rules he could not say what type of medication Sawyer and Morgans were to receive when they stepped up to Ms. Box and swallowed the razor blades.

NSC Valuable If It's Accountable

They're abolishing Ollie North's office at the National Security Council. High time. While they're at it, why not abolish the entire National Security Council?

That might seem an appealing fantasy to presidents' families who have had to live above the explosive basement office of the National Security Council. Recent presidents have used the National Security Council to give them a sense of security in the coordination of foreign and military policies. But if the office were named after its failures, rather than its objectives, it would be called the National Insecurity Council.

The NSC has accomplished what the Russians and the ayatollahs only wished for — a direct hit on the Reagan White House. John Poindexter's NSC was the political equivalent of a MIRV missile. While one revelation exploded in the president's face, another chased George Bush across the country and blew him up in the Iowa polls. Other NSC missiles are timed to explode when Congress reconvenes.

A man named Frank Carlucci has been appointed NSC director. Carlucci, a veteran of the State Department, knows more about world affairs than all of Reagan's past NSC appointees put together. He learned it the hard way, by experience, by living through crisis, by negotiation. He's not an egghead, like Carter's Brzezinski whose foolhardy raid on Iran not only lost American lives but helped eject Jimmy Carter from the Oval Office. He's not a gung-ho military man, like Poindexter and Robert McFarlane.

He's sound and reasonable. If anyone can restructure the NSC, to return it to its original advisory role, Carlucci can do it.

How should it be restructured?
The first step should be to define its role narrowly. It should coordinate action between the State Department and the Pentagon. It shouldn't serve as a third branch of government, a center for military-diplomatic derring-do. The CIA has that job, though its stumbling role sometimes makes us wonder if the Central Intelligence Agency isn't an oxymoron.

The NSC must not be viewed as a separate branch of government. It is part of the White House staff — and it should act like staff, not usurp authority. Presidents like to believe that the NSC is unbreakable. True, North did keep his operation secret for a time. But when it sprang a leak, it flooded the entire White House.

The problems of the NSC don't all begin in the basement. Some misdirectives may originate in the Oval Office. If Congress tells the executive branch to stop funding a guerrilla army, the NSC shouldn't be used to subvert the wishes of the legislative branch.

The founding fathers didn't say anything about how to structure the White House. But they did go to great lengths to ensure that civilians control the military — and not vice versa.

When you put military men in NSC policy-making roles and ask them to give alternatives, you risk getting military solutions to diplomatic problems.

The Iranian arms sale might have had a rationalization — but the secrecy gave our enemies secrets to blackmail the United States. The NSC shouldn't be involved in arms sales or ransom payments.

If Carlucci fails to restructure the NSC in such a way as to make it function smoothly, giving the president and the cabinet officers the direction of policy, then we have two suggestions for the NSC.

If the NSC is going to retain great power, the director should be given a Cabinet portfolio — and be confirmed by Congress. Or, if the NSC is not going to be given power, it should give up some of its parking spaces, its perquisites and its prestige to the people who ought to make policy — and who will be held accountable if they fail.

The White House is a difficult enough place to live, without the biggest danger coming from the basement. Let's abolish the National Insecurity Council and maintain a responsible National Security Council.

Have A Beautiful Year — Without Jogging

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here's something to think about while jogging around the block to keep New Year's resolutions: Exercise has been considered a beauty aid at least since the 19th Century.

According to a 1987 engagement calendar published by Virginia Slims, it all perhaps began with Harriet Hubbard Ayer (1849-1903), who wrote what may have been the first newspaper beauty advice column.

"The mainstays of her beauty advice consisted of fresh air, exercise and a healthy diet," the tobacco company added.

No mention is made of smoking, but since Ayer died at a relatively young age, perhaps it is just as well she wrote a beauty column rather than one devoted to longevity.

To achieve the latter, she might have been better off joining a bar association.

That same "Book of Days" says Myra Colby Bradwell (1831-1894), founder of the Chicago Legal News, was admitted to the bar after her 59th birthday.

I noticed, however, that all of the calendar's quotes of the month come from male authors. Oscar Wilde, for example, is quoted as having written: "Women represent the triumph of matter over mind, just as men represent the triumph of mind over morals."

Skeptics of whatever sex might join in asking where the English author's mind was when he was convicted on a morals charge.

At that, he might have known more than Emma Hart Willard, who in 1821 started the first all-female school. But to avoid any argument, let's get back to the quotations.

Wilde also was quoted as having written: "Wicked women bother one. Good women bore one. Tha them."

I also liked the quotation attributed to Ogden Nash, a poet who might have been a notorious male chauvinist. Anyway, he once wrote: "Women would rather be right than reasonable."

It might be safer, however, to quote another poet, Ruidyard Kipling, to the effect that "a woman's guess is much more accurate than a man's certainty."

That depends, I would say, on what woman is doing the guessing. Not Lucy Hobbs Taylor, certainly.

In 1866, she was credited with becoming "the first American woman to earn a dental degree."

That presumably put her beyond Kipling's ken. It may even have put her beyond Ken Kealing, a former senator.

Imagine that! A female dentist! What will they think of next?

The company tells us that Taylor "eventually married a painter who worked in a railroad car shop" and "after teaching him dentistry, the two of them set up practice together and lived happily ever after."

Happiness aside, I noticed that most of the feminine breakthroughs occurring in the last century were in fields already occupied by men.

In this century, I would think, "the first female" to achieve something also would be first human being to accomplish that feat.

New Year's resolutions apparently are wide open and someone must be the first to put a foot down against jogging as a beauty aid. Go to it, girls!

DON GRAFF

A Good Year For Freedom

What a difference a year can make.

With the beginning of 1987, more of the people on this planet live in societies that can reasonably be characterized as free than at any previous point in the past 15 years.

That is how long Freedom House, a New York-based organization devoted to the strengthening of "free societies," has been charting the yearly gains and losses in freedom throughout the world. Its latest "Comparative Survey of Freedom," evaluating developments during 1986, was released Jan. 1.

The survey finds that 37.1 percent of an estimated world population of just under 5 billion lives in countries and associated territories that meet the essential criteria of free societies. Free peoples remain runners-up to the not-free — 39.3 percent — but the gap is closing. The remaining 23.6 percent of the world's peoples are in a twilight zone categorized as "partly free."

Comparative figures for 1985 — the survey's second best year to that point — were 36.27 percent free, 40.43 percent not free and 23.29 percent partly free.

In determining the relative freedom of a country, the survey analyzes factors such as the degree to which fair and competitive elections occur, individual and group freedoms are guaranteed in practice, and press freedom exists.

It finds the most dramatic gains during the past year to have been in the Americas — but also some of the most notable setbacks. The most encouraging specific developments, however, were in Asia.

By the continents:
Americas: The ousting of the Duvalier dictatorship in Haiti, the easing of repression in Guatemala under an elected civilian government, Argentina's progress in institutionalizing a democratic society and Brazil's advances in a similar direction are the best news.

Not so good are the failures to open up societies in much of Central America — not only in Nicaragua, according to Freedom House, but also in El Salvador, Honduras and Panama.

Asia: The survey rates an "almost universally welcomed" shift in power in the Philippines as the most widely recognized advance in freedom during 1986. The most promising long-term trend is in the People's Republic of China where "(within the strictures of a 'not-free' Marxist-Leninist country, there is the recognition of alternatives to present policies."

JACK ANDERSON

Pugilistic Pat Had Early Brawl Training

BRAWLER BUCHANAN: President Reagan's bombastic communications chief, Patrick Buchanan, is the administration's most outspoken defender of Lt. Col. Oliver North, Buchanan, who is being touted by conservatives as a presidential possibility, says if North broke the law by arranging arms sales to Iran and diverting some of the proceeds to the Nicaraguan contras, it was all for the good of the country.

Buchanan's own brush with the law was more mundane: As a senior at Georgetown University, he "began to fight and kick" when police collared him after a traffic accident, according to court records. One cop was treated for trauma in the abdomen, a second for an injured left shoulder.

Like his hero North, Buchanan hired a good lawyer, and the two counts of assault on a police officer were bargained down to a misdemeanor charge of "disorderly con-

WILLIAM RUSHER

Howls For Sacrifice

In one of those roundup articles that proliferated at the end of the year, The New York Times' R.W. Apple marveled that "Mr. Reagan could not bring himself to ask for the resignation of Donald T. Regan, his chief of staff" in the face of the Iran/contras scandal.

Now, I don't know Donald Regan at all well, having met him briefly perhaps twice in my life. But I am bound to say that I don't see the point of tossing him overboard.

Of course, Regan — like anybody in his particular job — has both enemies and would-be successors, who will use any available stick to beat the dog. Their animosity (and advice) has to be discounted at the outset.

Then there are those — notably the Democrats and the liberal media — for whom the ultimate target is, of course, Ronald Reagan. Nothing will truly satisfy them but the total destruction of the Reagan presidency, and tossing raw meat like Regan from the sleigh will only increase their appetite. Sacrificing him to appease them, therefore, would be a waste of time at best and a positive stimulus at worst.

Is there, then, a case for firing Regan on the merits? The best that the aforementioned Times reporter could do along this line was to call Regan's departure "a minimum first step toward restoring presidential credibility." (Note that "minimum" by the way. Apparently presidential credibility, insofar as it is damaged, will not be restored even by the sacrifice of Don Regan. That is to be only a small down payment.)

But what did Regan have to do with the alleged loss of presidential credibility, so that firing him would be a step toward restoring it? The Iranian arms sales were the president's own policy, which Don Regan simply supported. And Regan, so far as appears to date, was as unaware of the apparent diversion of profits from those sales to the Nicaraguan contras as was the president himself. How, then, would presidential credibility be improved even slightly by the sacking of Don Regan?

In the minor German courts of the 18th and 19th centuries, there was a tradition that, when a high-born young princeling was naughty, a close (but less princely) friend of his age would be punished. The young prince, you see, was too noble to be spanked; so a surrogate had to be thwacked instead.

That seems to be the principle in operation here. The administration's enemies would dearly love to bring down Ronald Reagan, but they realize they can't do that — at least not yet. So they will settle (for now) for the scalp of Don Regan — not because they have established his culpability in any respect, but because his destruction would be widely regarded as a "minimum first step" toward their ultimate goal.

As soon as Regan was gone, the cry would go up for still another human sacrifice. Bill Casey was once tagged for that honor, but a brain tumor appears to have spared him. So it probably would be Ed Meese — one of the noblest Romans of them all. President Reagan would be well advised to refuse to preside over these preliminary slaughters at what, after all, is intended to be the altar of his own ultimate immolation. His credibility with the American people will be higher, not lower, if he is seen as unwilling to fire aides who are guilty of nothing but loyalty to him.

ROBERT WAGMAN

Hopefuls Vie For Big Bucks

WASHINGTON (NEA) — By March 12, 1988, both Democrats and Republicans will have chosen more than one-third of their convention delegates. This has become the dominant factor in everyone's campaign strategy, forcing all candidates to "get serious" earlier than usual.

In the jargon of politics this is called "front-loading" a campaign.

By way of comparison, in 1984 — a year in which many candidates and party officials complained the process began too early — less than a quarter of national convention delegates had been chosen by the middle of March. That includes delegates chosen on the so-called "Super Tuesday," March 13, 1984, when nine states held their primaries.

The upcoming 1988 "Super Tuesday" is now being called "Mega-Tuesday" by many. On March 12, at least 14 — and possibly as many as 16 — states will hold presidential primaries. All will be in the Middle Atlantic region and the South, except Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

This means serious presidential contenders must be well on their way to assembling national and state campaign staffs within the next 90 days and must begin making personal appearances in almost two dozen states by this summer at the latest. This is especially true of the many dark-horse candidates who, initially, must simply make themselves known to the party rank and file.

It also means that most candidates must begin media campaigns in the last quarter of 1987, especially those struggling to increase their name recognition. Already some campaign organizations are reserving TV time in key markets for next December when they will have to compete for time with retailers trying to lure Christmas shoppers.

In short, all the candidates will have to spend more money earlier than ever before. This has put an absolute premium on very early fund raising.

In past campaigns, with their more gradual schedules, a candidate could hope that an early success might be translated into fund-raising gains to finance later primary campaigns. But this time around, a candidate will have to have a war chest already built up by mid-1987, or else he will be in deep trouble.

United States, have been paying the fare for those members' delegates. But some nations charge that the rich folks are buying votes with their travel vouchers. A general travel pool might do the trick, but so far no compromise has been reached.

To help in this worthy endeavor, Foggy Bottom briefs its Beirut-bound diplomats on ways to thwart terrorists and kidnapers. And husband-wife teams are favored; presumably they're more likely to stay home at night, not looking for adventure, and they won't be as lonely as singles.

SAVE THE DELEGATES! The Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species was founded in 1973 with 24 nations as members. Now it has 92, but some governments either don't care enough or can't afford to send delegates to the annual meetings. So private environmental groups and better-off countries, like the MINFEDITORIAL: It's the morning after on the tiny Scottish island of Eriskany in the Outer Hebrides, but what a grand party it has been. Back in 1941 a ship carrying 20,300 cases of Scotch whiskey ran onto the rocks and broke up — but not before the hardy residents of Eriskany (population 200) had rescued the cargo and hidden it from snooping Sassenach officials. A movie — "Tight Little Island" — was made about the incident and tourism boomed on the bleak Atlantic fiespeak. Now the supply of free whiskey has run out, and a pub — hitherto unneeded — will soon open, named after the ship that brought such a glow to Eriskany.

FLORIDA

High Court Rules Against Hospital 'Patient Dumping'

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Private hospitals may no longer count on public hospitals to accept their indigent patients under a Florida Supreme Court ruling that effectively outlaws the practice known as "patient dumping."

The 6-1 ruling came Tuesday over a dissent by Justice Joseph Boyd, who warned of financial hardship to the private hospitals, their paying patients and insurance companies.

"I believe that the 'dumping' of indigent patients on public hospitals is far preferable to dumping them on the streets," Boyd wrote.

The American Hospital of Miami, Inc., the Federation of American Hospitals, the Florida League of Hospitals and 47 private Florida hospitals argued state law requires public hospitals like Jackson Memorial in Dade County to accept non-emergency indigent patients.

But a majority led by Justice Ben Overton said private hospitals have a legal obligation to bear their share of the burden. The majority rejected the hospitals' contention that public hospitals must accept such patients or reimburse private hospitals for their care, but invited the Legislature to address the issue.

Defense: Feds Ruined Cops

MIAMI (UPI) — Attorneys for seven former policemen charged with selling drugs they stole say the officers are victims of circumstantial evidence and a "Let's get the cops'" attitude by the federal government.

Defense attorneys said during closing arguments Tuesday that overzealous investigators ruined the officers' careers during the 15-week trial while trying to make a name for themselves. They said the government's key witnesses actually masterminded the scheme but were given immunity for their testimony against the officers.

Seven former Miami police officers are accused of ripping off drug dealers and then selling their cocaine. They face various charges of racketeering, drug trafficking and violating the rights of three drug smugglers who drowned in the Miami River in the most notorious drug rip-off.

Democratic Cabinet Inaugurated

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The spotlight was on Republican Gov. Bob Martinez, but Tuesday's inaugural festivities also saw the swearing-in of the six Democrats Martinez will work with on the Cabinet for the next four years.

Cabinet Dean and Commissioner of Agriculture Doyle Conner, with 26 years on the Cabinet, led the four returning veterans. Conner was joined by Incumbents Comptroller Gerald Lewis, Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter and Secretary of State George Firestone, plus newcomers Betty Castor and Bob Butterworth.

An estimated 4,000 people looked on and cheered as the six vowed to "protect and defend" the federal and state Constitutions. The six were sworn in just after 11 a.m. in the courtyard between the old and new Capitols.

Martinez and several of the Cabinet members have said they do not expect their party differences to interfere with their ability to work together.

Castor, the first woman ever elected to the Cabinet, has actually been serving as Commissioner of Education since Dec. 31, though Tuesday marked the beginning of her first full term. The former state senator from Tampa was named by then-Gov.

Bob Graham to finish out the term of Ralph Turlington, who retired a week early.

Castor was sworn in by Supreme Court Justice Rosemary Barkett, the first woman ever to serve on Florida's Supreme Court.

Castor was followed by Conner, who was sworn in by Supreme Court Justice Ben Overton. The inauguration was the beginning of his eighth term.

Butterworth, who overcame personal tragedy to become the new attorney general, was sworn in by Judge Miette Burnstein, chief judge of the 17th Judicial Circuit in Fort Lauderdale. Butterworth's ex-wife Sandra killed herself and the couple's 16-year-old son Robert on Nov. 3, the night before Butterworth was elected.

Firestone was sworn into his third term as secretary of state by Judge Vincent Hall of the 2nd District Court of Appeal, while Commissioner of Insurance-Treasurer Bill Gunter was sworn into his fourth term by Overton.

Lewis was inaugurated to his fourth term by Supreme Court Justice Joseph Boyd Jr.

All six Cabinet members took the same oath, promising to "support, protect and defend the constitution and government of the United States and the State of Florida."

Inaugural Parade Attracts 10,000

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The inaugural parade was thrown in honor of Gov. Bob Martinez — but he may not have been the one who enjoyed it most.

Unseasonably warm weather and a bright-blue winter sky brought an estimated 10,000 people to the two-hour event. Not surprisingly, many of them were from the younger set.

"It's great," said 10-year-old Tallahassee resident Richard Robbins. "I really liked the callopo and the horses (from Walt Disney World)."

More than 80 units took place in the parade, including high school bands from 26 counties, military and police units from around the state and a liberal sprinkling of commercial exhibits on wheels.

The event provided an unexpected break for a crew of construction workers building Leon County's new courthouse, right along the parade route. Dozens of workers put down their tools and lined the sides of the multi-story building frame to watch the fun.

"We're in there working, and we hear all this banging around," said construction worker Rick Tolson. "When a parade comes by, construction work tends to slow down."

Mostly, though, the parade brought out the children, many of whom had at least some idea of what all the fuss was about.

"It's for the government," said Tomis Desautniers, 7.

"He doesn't know as well as me," countered Tomis' older brother Paul-Leon, 9. "It's for the new governor. His name is Bob Martinez."

Martinez himself led the show along its 1 1/2-mile route, riding in an open convertible with Lt. Gov. Bobby Brantley. They were followed by the six Cabinet members, each in a separate car.

the Supreme Court justices, and legislative leaders from both the House and Senate, many with spouses or children along.

The parade began with a definite Tampa flavor, a nod to the former Tampa Mayor Martinez' political beginnings. The first band was from Tampa's King High School, where Martinez' wife Mary Jane taught for many years.

Sights And Sounds

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Here are some sights and sounds from Tuesday's inauguration of Bob Martinez, Florida's first for a Republican governor in 20 years.

Bob Martinez made the pilgrimage to Florida A&M University — traditionally the focus of the Florida civil rights movement and a potent symbol for Florida blacks — for a prayer breakfast that began his Inaugural Day. As the state's leaders munched scrambled eggs, sausage and fruit salad in bowls carved from melons, they received this reminder from FAMU President Frederick Humphries:

"We here at Florida A&M welcome you to our institution and remind all of us that there's a call for leadership. Along with the signs of prosperity of high tech we have the problem of a high dropout rate and all across our state the problem of black poverty. The issues of human development are more complex today than they have ever been in American society."

Bob Martinez is the second Republican governor elected since Reconstruction but Bobby Brantley is the first elected Republican lieutenant governor. The post had been abolished by the constitution of 1885 and was not resurrected until Florida's current constitution took effect in 1969. Claude Kirk, the first Republican elected governor since Reconstruction, reached into the Florida House and appointed Ray C. Osbourne to the new post. Osbourne was inaugurated on Jan. 27, 1969 and passed into the mists of history when the ticket went down to defeat in the elections of 1970.

Bob Martinez is the first Hispanic elected governor of Florida, but not the first man of Spanish descent to hold the post. That honor went to Pedro Menendez de Aviles, appointed by the Spanish crown in 1565 to administer "Pascua Florida" — named because of its discovery "in the time of the Feast of the Flowers."

Immediately after Bob Martinez swore to defend and uphold the constitutions of the United States and the state of Florida, the Great Seal that symbolizes Florida's sovereignty was passed to him by outgoing Gov. Wayne Mixson — who had received the prize himself just three days before.

Secretary of State George Firestone then handed Martinez what might be considered the Minor Seal: a small, white stuffed one modeled on the creatures that cavort at some of Florida's finer tourist attractions.

Stocks Open Mixed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened mixed today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 3.51 to a record high of 1974.83 Tuesday, was down 2.67 to 1972.16 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 500-378 among the 1,389 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 11,898,000 shares.

The stock market extended its trip into uncharted territory Tuesday, pushing the Dow Jones industrial average to its second record finish in two days.

A firm bond market and the absence of tax-related selling pressures, which fueled a 75-point gain for the market Friday and Monday were also factors Tuesday, analysts said.

Mid-session profit-taking in the bond market Tuesday encouraged similar moves in stocks. After trading slightly higher in the morning, bond prices finished little changed Tuesday.

"The market got a little tired on a short-term basis" in the middle of the session, said Gerald Simmons, managing director in the listed trading department at Smith Barney, Harris Upham.

The market had climbed sharply Friday in fairly light trading, but the advances Monday and Tuesday came on heavy volume.

Dollar And Gold Both Take Fall

By United Press International

The U.S. dollar opened lower against most major world currencies today but the troubled French franc was the focus of traders' attention. The price of gold moved slightly lower.

London traders reported a very nervous undertone in the foreign exchange market with the French franc under strong pressure within the European Monetary System.

The West German Bundesbank sold German marks against both the French franc and the dollar, traders said.

The dollar opened lower against most major currencies, although it opened higher against the Dutch guilder and the Italian lira.

In Frankfurt, the dollar drifted to 1.9155 German marks from 1.9239 and in Zurich, it opened at 1.6105 Swiss francs, down from 1.6145.

In Paris, the dollar rate was 6.3725 French francs, down from 6.40.

In London, the pound opened at $1.4782, against $1.4765 at the close of trading on Tuesday.

But the dollar opened higher in Amsterdam at 2.176 Dutch guilders, compared with 2.1729, and in early trading it was above 2.18 and "climbing rapidly," a Dutch banker said.

The dollar opened in Milan at 1,432 lire, up from 1,341.10 lire on Monday. The markets were closed Tuesday for a bank holiday.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar fell to its lowest level in 11 weeks in Tokyo. It closed at 157.70 yen, down from 159.18.

In early New York trading the dollar was slightly higher against major foreign currencies in light trading.

Gold opened 50 cents lower in Zurich at $401.50 and 25 cents lower in London at $400.75.

The morning fixing in London was $399.50, off $1.50 from Tuesday's close.

Silver opened unchanged in Zurich at $5.40 and lost 2 cents in London to $5.39.

In earlier trading in the Far East, gold closed at $400.50 an ounce on the Hong Kong Bullion Exchange, off $1.70 from Tuesday's close.

oath as a U.S. senator Tuesday.

But Martinez promised his administration would take a markedly different approach from the Democrats, whom he said focused more on problems than solutions.

Martinez — who acknowledges that public speaking is not his strength — spoke forcefully Tuesday, reading from two TelePromPTers mounted on the dais during a speech that was frequently interrupted by applause.

He offered few specifics, but revived his campaign promise to trim $600 million in waste from the state budget after appearing to back off the pledge during the transition period.

He promised a return of authority to local governments, a streamlined bureaucracy and a partnership with business.

"The reality is that state government cannot be all things to all people, because the people will not pay for anything and everything," Martinez said. "We must return to the basics — public safety, public education, public health and public works — and we must do these things well."

Martinez conceded the state must somehow raise the money to provide services to the nearly 900 new residents who pour across the border daily and who will make Florida the third largest state by the year 2000. During Graham's term, state spending rose from $6.2 billion to $16.5 billion.

"There is no need to be frightened by the challenges we face," Martinez said. "We can succeed and we will succeed if for no other reason than we must."

Martinez said as the state's population grows, economic activity increases resulting in prosperity.

He proposed more responsibility be given to local governments for the environment, jails, transportation and other planning matters.

"This will take a radical rethinking by many," he said.

The changing of the guard brought an estimated 10,000 well-wishers to the state capital. Martinez and Brantley motored to the event in modest sedans accompanied by a phalanx of state and local police, trailing the stretch limousines imported for his supporters.

The round of parties and ceremonies cost $500,000 donated by GOP supporters and began with the traditional "unity prayer breakfast" at Florida A&M University — the historically black college set atop the tallest of Tallahassee's rolling hills.

Martinez left the gathering with a Bible presented by Jack Eckerdt, the drug store magnate who lost a 1978 gubernatorial campaign to Graham. He also received some advice on the values of religion from League of Ministries President R.C. Sproul.

"God instituted the church, God instituted the state. Only God is sovereign. Every governor, every judge, every dog catcher, every person in a position of authority is under the sovereignty of God," Sproul said.

percent of the time.

McClanahan, 61, beat Smith by 215 votes on Dec. 16 to become the commission's District 3 representative. McClanahan is founding executive director of Seminole Self-Reliant Housing, a Sanford based public assistance operation that provides housing opportunities for lower income families.

Smith, 67, is a retired train master. On Tuesday Smith said he plans a vacation with his wife, and will then be available to commissioners should they request his services.

Eckstein, 41, a Seminole High School history teacher, defeated Ms. Meadors by 60 votes to take Farr's District 4 seat.

McClanahan and Eckstein will serve four year terms, with $4,800 annual salaries.

Mercer by name, but likened his actions to those of "an insignificant ex-corporal" who during the 1930's "convinced good citizens to engage in spying on their neighbors and reporting them for various so-called violations."

"Several of us know what the eventual outcome of that kind of leadership led to, because some of us got to serve in WWII."

"I purposely didn't want to dwell on him (Mercer) by name," McClanahan said after Tuesday's meeting. "But yes, it was him I was talking about. To me what he does is the wrong way to go and citizens shouldn't be encouraged to do it either."

McClanahan added he feels "there's a difference between seeing and reporting a definitely hazardous condition as opposed to going down an alley looking for minor violations."

Mercer, as well as his wife Juanny and scenic improvement board member Ruth Lee, submit lists of suspected violations to the city building department for follow-up inspections by salaried code inspectors.

Mrs. Mercer and Lee refer to themselves as the SIB's "Alleycat Committee."

The city's inspectors estimate more than 1,000 suspected violations have been handed in by the Mercers and Mrs. Lee during the last two years. They also estimate the reports pan out as valid violations between 95-98

Last week, Alyssia had brain surgery to remove the fluid on her brain. The draining tubes through the skull can only remain in about five days, Mrs. Goodall said, because of the danger of infection. But she said they have been taken out and an internal shunt put in to drain the fluid to the stomach.

Alyssia is in Halifax Medical Center in Daytona which is a 70-mile round trip for her mother, Connie J. Nickle Kreinbring, who is trying to hold down a new job at the Volusia County Budget Office.

A trust fund has been set up at Sun Bank in downtown Sanford to help pay for Alyssia's medical expenses. Donation are gratefully being accepted. NATION IN BRIEF

Senate Sets Up Iran-Contra Panel; House To Act Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senators had to overcome a partisan squabble in setting up a Watergate-style panel to probe the Iran arms-Contra aid scandal, but the House found the path smoother as it worked toward its own special committee.

After hours of haggling over release of a secret Senate committee report on the matter, senators voted 88-4 Tuesday to establish the new 11-member panel and allow it to study a rewritten version of the earlier report for possible release. The committee has a deadline of Aug. 1 to complete its own work.

The House was expected to follow with similar legislation today setting up a 15-member committee that also will probe the secret sale of U.S. arms to Iran and the possibly criminal diversion of profits to Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

Love Affair Blamed In Fire

CHICAGO (UPI) — Police say a man charged in an arson fire that killed seven people, including his wife and son, set the blaze because he wanted to leave his family for his girlfriend but did not want another man to take his place.

The suspect, Madison Hobley, 26, was to appear in Cook County Circuit Court today to face charges of seven counts of murder. He also could be charged with arson and aggravated battery, said Violent Crimes Lt. Philip Cline.

Authorities said Hobley, a delivery man, failed a lie detector test before he admitted he ignited the fire early Tuesday at the 32-unit brick building on the South Side, which also injured nine people, one critically.

Police said Hobley set the blaze — the city's deadliest since 1975 — to kill his wife, Anita Hobley, 24, and the couple's son, Phillip, 2. Police said Hobley told them he was being pressured by his girlfriend to leave his family.

Boy Calm After Hostage Ordeal

GRAPEVINE, Texas (UPI) — A plucky 10-year-old boy held hostage at gunpoint in an eight-hour airport standoff says he chatted with his captor during the ordeal and stayed calm by pretending he was playing a game with a toy gun.

While Delta Air Lines struggled Tuesday to return airline traffic to normal after the incident that disrupted travel for 6,000 people, Michael Caruso Jr. was telling reporters he wanted to turn his adventure into a book or a movie.

The boy held news conferences in two cities to say he was never frightened by the .38-caliber pistol held at his chest or back by a gunman demanding a plane to take him to Egypt.

Caruso was snatched from his parents Monday at a ticket counter at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport and held hostage near a Delta departure gate for eight hours. Solah Abou-Kassem, 26, who said he was from Damascus, Syria, was charged Tuesday with aggravated kidnapping and making a terroristic threat and jailed in lieu of $750,000 bail.

Roberts: Time Is Running Out

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Evangelist Oral Roberts says God has told him "time is running out" on his life unless his followers quickly contribute $4.5 million to his medical school's scholarship program.

During his television show last Sunday, Roberts said: "I'm asking you to help me extend my life. We're at the point where God could call Oral Roberts home."

"Extend my life," he said. "Let me live beyond March." He had said last summer God told him he would not be alive much longer if donors did not provide the scholarship money. Raising the possibility of his death, Roberts said, was God's way of getting the attention of his followers.

WORLD IN BRIEF

China Confirms Fighting Along Sino-Vietnamese Borders

PEKING (UPI) — China said today its troops had launched new "counterattacks" along its border with Vietnam but dismissed as "sheer boasting" Hanoi's claims of nearly 500 Chinese dead.

A Vietnamese Embassy official in Peking warned that China will incur "more heavy losses" if it persists in sending troops across the frontier.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Ma Yuzhen told a news briefing Chinese troops "counterattacked" in retaliation for recent Vietnamese provocations.

"In the last few days, provocations against China by Vietnamese troops met with forceful counterattacks by Chinese frontier guards," Ma said. "The so-called battle victories by the Vietnamese are sheer boasting. Their purpose is to deceive the Vietnamese people and world opinion."

6 Killed In Assassination Try

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A powerful roadside bomb exploded near former President Camille Chamoun's motorcade in east Beirut today, killing six people and slightly injuring the veteran Christian leader.

Among the dead were three of Chamoun's bodyguards and three motorists, police and hospital sources said. Another 35 people were wounded in the attack, which Chamoun described as an assassination attempt.

The Christian Voice of Free Lebanon said the 165-pound bomb, planted in a parked car in east Beirut, detonated by remote control as Chamoun's motorcade drove by at 9:30 a.m.

It blew off the windows of the former president's bulletproof car and destroyed several nearby cars, including a vehicle carrying Chamoun's bodyguards.

Stress Blamed In Soldier Suicides

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — At least five security officers stricken with "grief, hatred, fear and anger" killed themselves in Northern Ireland in 1986, authorities said.

Two more British soldiers died of gunshot wounds to their heads Monday. Inquiries were ordered into both cases, but authorities said no foul play was suspected.

Since the trouble erupted in Northern Ireland in 1969, British soldiers stationed in the predominantly Protestant British province have been targets of the Irish Republican Army, the Catholic guerrilla group fighting to drive Britain from the province and unite it with the Irish Republic.

Since signing of the Anglo-Irish accord in November 1985, which gives the Roman Catholic Irish Republic an advisory role in Northern Ireland, militant members of Northern Ireland's Protestant community have often turned on the security forces.

Road Work Irks Commissioners

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood City Commission, irked over county and city crews beginning work widening a city street without its knowledge or approval, has called for a work session on the proposed project with the county and city engineers at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 15 in city hall.

Seminole County engineer Frank Van Pelt III was on hand at the commission's work session Monday night to report on work planned by the county at the intersection of Longwood Hills Road and Rangeline Road and E.E. Williamson Road that is scheduled to begin in the middle of this month and would take 90 days to complete.

The county plans to install a traffic light upon completion of the project. Van Pelt said the county has $45,000 allocated for correcting the intersection in this year's budget, not including the cost of signalization. He said there have been 15 documented accidents at the dangerous intersection over the past five years and he couldn't imagine anybody not wanting the work done.

Van Pelt said he only discovered two weeks ago that the right-of-way on E.E. Williamson Road is owned by the city.

To make way for the road widening, the county encouraged city crews to move utility lines out of the way as soon as possible and city workers began digging up the right-of-way on Dec. 29. A total 15½ man days were put in on the project before the mayor and city commission became aware of what was going on and called a halt. The crews then filled in the trenches they had dug.

At one point, residents said the crew working on the right-of-way cut the cable leaving the homes in the area without power.

City Commissioner Harvey Smerilson said, "They (the county) started without the city commission knowing and work by city crews started without money being budgeted. It is major construction which will take away front and side yards, change sidewalk, and two holding ponds that can hold two feet of water for up to 72 hours. I am concerned about the safety of the children. It is a major project that should have been planned and brought before the city."

Van Pelt told Smerilson the holding ponds could be relocated or eliminated entirely if he objected to them.

Longwood City Engineer Charles Hasler said the cost to the city for relocating utility lines would be $21,000 for materials plus the labor. Hasler said they planned to take the money from $43,000 in the budget for capital improvements allocated to line extension.

Residents along the route wanted to know what is going to happen to their busted up driveways, uprooted shrubbery and property damage from large vehicles. City Administrator Ron Waller said he would take responsibility for it and see what can be done.

Deputy Mayor June Lormann said, "I would like to see the work done if we can find the money to do it."

In other business, the commission voted unanimously to approve a cosmetic change to design of the $4.5 million Plaza del Sol shopping center requested by developer Frank Schrimsher. In making the motion, Smerilson said he found the changes, which had been voted down previously by the commission because of objections from Harbor Isle Homeowners Association, beneficial because they provided better access to the fire department.

Work was halted on the revised part of the partially completed project until the city commission approved the change. The revised plans were previously approved by city staff. "There's nothing worse than a half-finished building," Smerilson commented.

Since the last commission meeting on Dec. 15, Schrimsher said he met with the homeowners and after agreeing to resolve some of their other concerns, such as a holding lane, additional landscaping and relocation of the sign for the center, the association had withdrawn objections to the revisions in the plan. Charles Kolos, president of the Harbor Isle Homeowners Association, spoke up on behalf of the changes, but there were a few holdouts present voicing complaints about the way residents polled. Smerilson told them, "It appears the homeowners have a problem they will have to work out among themselves, but it isn't the city's business."

Warning Signals Working

CHASE, Md. (UPI) — Initial tests show two track signals that should have prevented a Conrail locomotive from crossing in front of an Amtrak train were working properly at the time the trains collided, killing 15 people, federal officials say.

Joseph Nall of the National Transportation Safety Board said Tuesday investigators determined the signals posted 2 miles and 500 feet from Sunday's crash, the worst in Amtrak's history, "were functioning as designed."

Amtrak spokesman John Jacobson said investigators believe from tests of the warning lights 2 miles from the crash site that they properly signaled the Conrail engineer to slow down and prepare to stop at the upcoming switch.

The Washington Post reported Conrail engineer R.L. Gates told investigators the first warning lights gave him a "false clear" signal, telling him he could proceed onto the main line just ahead of the passenger train.

The Post also quoted sources close to the investigation as saying a shrill whistle on the Conrail locomotive designed to warn engineers they had passed signals telling them to slow down had been covered over with fresh tape, preventing it from sounding.

Gates has admitted seeing the "stop" signal farther down the track — 500 feet from the Gunpowder River Bridge cross-over where the two trains crashed — but said that by then he was unable to stop the locomotive in time. Nall told a news conference.

The Amtrak train Colonial was bound for Boston at 105 mph when it rear-ended the Conrail locomotive, reportedly going 60 mph, just south of the Gunpowder River near Baltimore, killing 15 people and injuring 175 others, authorities said.

Enough wreckage was removed from the crash site by early today to allow Amtrak to resume normal service in the nation's busiest rail corridor for the first time since Sunday.

"We have reinstated the full Northeast Corridor schedule — 80 trains a day," Amtrak spokesman Cliff Black said today.

The accident had cut off rail traffic between Washington and Philadelphia.

Tribe's Uprising Scalps Spruce Creek

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor
PORT ORANGE — Comebacks must be contagious. Sanford's Fighting Seminoles rallied from five points down in the last 23 seconds to salvage the consolation trophy at Ocala Vanguard's Kingdom of the Sun Holiday Classic last Wednesday.

Six days later, Port Orange Spruce Creek's Hawks stepped into the quarantined area. Trailing the seventh-ranked Hawks by 15 points late in the second quarter Tuesday night, Seminole rallied behind Reginald "Spook" Bellamy, Andre Whitney and Jerry "Stiek" Parker to stun the Hawks, 69-62, in District 4A-9 prep basketball before 401 fans at Spruce Creek's Dunne Gymnasium.

The victory was the fourth consecutive for the 'Noles and lifted their record to 10-4. They host Daytona Beach Seabreeze tonight at 8. Spruce Creek, which had lost only to Seabreeze, fell to 10-2.

"I knew we would come back," Parker, who tossed in 16 of his game-high 22 points in the second half, said. "They (Spruce Creek) had their heads down going into the locker room and we got our heads together."

The head direction, though, was quite the opposite in the first half. The Creek used a Levon Darthard-orchestrated spread offense to forge a 35-20 bulge with 2:13 left in the first half. Seminole, however, turned the contest into a full-court game in the last two minutes to pull within 37-28 at halftime.

"The kids played stupid basketball the last few minutes of both halves," Spruce Creek coach Jim Romaniszyn said. "Instead of using the clock, they were forcing the ball."

Seminole coach Bill Klein made two changes at halftime which turned the momentum. He switched Parker to Hawks' point guard Darthard and stayed with sophomore Bellamy who turned in the best game of his brief varsity career.

Darthard, a whirlwind ball-handling wizard with eyes in the back of his head, tried to push Seminole out of the gym in the first half. As soon as Spruce Creek grasped the early lead, it went four-corners with Darthard posting at the free throw line.

Basketball

The 6-0 senior was able to use his strength to overpower Whitney while dishing off for easy layups or taking the ball to the hole himself. In no time, Spruce Creek built a 20-12 first quarter lead. Darthard had five assists and four points.

The Hawks jumped the lead to 11 points midway through the second quarter and blew it out to 15 big ones when Trent Ivey dropped two free tosses for the 35-20 lead with 2:13 to play in the half.

Klein made his defensive move in the third quarter. "Parker was just bigger," Klein said about his 6-1 senior. "He could content with him. He didn't let him get the ball."

Parker's move to Darthard also freed Whitney for other activities. The junior guard was just an assist, two rebounds and three steals short of a rare quadruple-double. Whitney finished with 18 points, nine assists, eight boards and seven steals.

Parker also turned on his jumper in the third quarter. He connected on five consecutive buckets to shoot the Tribe into a 45-45 deadlock with 2:50 left in the third quarter.

After Seminole pulled even again at 49, the wheeled started to come off. Bell, who beat the Tribe Dec. 16 with a jumper in the last two seconds, rang down a three-point play for a 52-49 lead. The Hawks threw on a three-quarter court press to force a pair of turnovers which Ivey followed with a bucket for a five-point edge with 18 seconds left in the quarter.

Klein called for a time out and when Darthard charged Bellamy, the 'Noles got the ball with four seconds left. After the inbound, Michael "Spud" Edwards found Bellamy open at the top of the key. His took a couple dribbles and let fly from the foul line. It connected as the buzzer went off, pulling Seminole within 54-51.

"Bellamy made the difference," Klein said about his 6-2 forward's eight points, seven rebounds and five steals. "This was his kind of game. He was scrapping and fighting and taking charges."

After both teams traded turnovers to open the fourth quarter, Whitney pulled Seminole even with a driving three-point play.

After a Darthard free throw broke the tie, Henderson took the ball down the baseline and zipped it back to Whitney coming down the lane. He laid it home for a 58-57 lead with 5:22 left.

The lead seesawed until Bellamy took a big charging foul at the 3:49 mark. Colby Williams came back with a bucket for a 62-60 Creek lead with 3:10 left in the game, but it would be the Hawks' last score.

Henderson took it down the baseline to pull Seminole even at 62 with 2:47 to play. After Bell turned the ball over, Parker forced a shot at 2:15 to give the Creek another chance to tie.

Darthard went back to the high post and took the fed. Johnnie Cooks broke past him and Darthard found him with a no-look bounce pass but Cooks blew the layup.

Whitney then made the Hawks pay at the other end when his jumper pushed Seminole up, 64-60, with 1:43 left. After Darthard and Bell both missed shots.

Seminole ran off 18 seconds with a weave but Parker lost control with 41 ticks left. Sears, though, missed jumper from the left baseline with 35 seconds to play and Bellamy cleared the board to Edwards who quickly found Parker at the other end for a layup and 66-60 lead with 23 seconds to play.

Darthard then missed a free throw and stepped over the line on the second try. Edwards, who came up with four steals and five assists, dropped a charity toss with seven seconds left and Whitney notched two more with three ticks to play for the 69-62 victory.

SEMINOLE (69) — Whitney 18, Parker 22, Henderson 6, Walker 8, Edwards 5, Baird 2, Bellamy 8, Gadsden 0, Franklin 0, Hathaway 0. Totals: 27 15-23 69.
SPRUCE CREEK (62) — Darthard 11, Sears 12, Bell 13, Cooks 11, Lucas 0, Williams 7, Ivey 8, Scarborough 0. Totals: 26 6-14 62.
Halftime — Spruce Creek 37, Seminole 28. Fouls — Seminole 17, Spruce Creek 20. Fought out — Parker, Cooks. Technical — Sears.

Payne, SCC Seek Win At Lake City

The bus ride home from Lake City for Seminole Community College basketball coach Bill Payne has always seemed a little longer the past four years.

The return trek for the fifth-year mentor has always been accompanied by a loss.

Tonight, however, Payne and his Raiders are looking for a more eventful return trip on Interstate 75. They are coming from two tune-up victories which pushed them to 16-2 while Lake City has struggled recently, falling to 11-7.

"They got off to a great start (8-2), but most of those games were at home," SCC assistant Dean Smith said. "When they went on the road, they started to lose."

Although the Timberwolves will be in their den tonight for the key Mid-Florida Conference battle, Payne and Smith both hope the losing trend continues. Seminole, 1-1 in the MFC, can't stand too many more losses to stay close to 2-0 Daytona and Central Florida. Florida Community College-Jacksonville, Santa Fe, and Valencia are also in the hunt at 1-1. Lake City has lost its first two conference games.

The 'Wolves rely on 6-5 Benny Goettle and 6-0 Carmen Anderson for their scoring punch. Joe McDowell, a 6-7 brother of former Gator Eugene McDowell, lends muscle to the front line. Sanford's Chris Jackson, who graduated from Lake Mary High last year, walked on and made the team.

"Anderson lit us up last year," Smith said about the 6-0 guard. "He got 28 one time and 20 the second. We know he can shoot."

The Raiders, who have lost to Brevard and FCC-J, will counter with guards Darris Gallagher and Malcolm Houston along with the potent frontcourt of 6-8 Vance Hall, 6-3 James Morris and 6-7 Claude Jackson. Barry Dunning, a 6-7 freshman, and Robert Williams, a 6-5 freshman, provide more muscle up front.

Houston, the three-point gunner, is averaging 22 points per outing. He teams well with Gallagher, who averages 13.6 points and a whopping 10 assists. Hall contributes 17 points and eight boards. Jackson is also in double figures with 10 points and 7.2 caroms. Morris adds almost 10 points, too.

"Lake City is a lot like us," Smith said. "They like to press and run. But they can be pretty patient when they want to be. We'd like to finally get a win up there."

Cross-State Journey Turns Off Jayhawks

United Press International

Kansas could not have picked a worse time to make its first visit since 1955 to Wichita State.

Reeling from losses to No. 15 Pittsburgh and Ohio State last weekend in the Hawaii Rainbow Classic, the No. 18 Jayhawks were dealt their third loss in four games, a 54-49 defeat.

"I don't think any team would be easy for us right now," Kansas Coach Larry Brown said. "I don't know what the answer is. We haven't recovered from those other losses yet."

On the Shockers' home court, Kansas went to the free throw line only 6 times compared to 26 times for Wichita State. The Shockers slowed the Jayhawks' running game to a crawl, out-rebounding Kansas 17-10 in the second half to compensate for 33-percent shooting in the period.

Basketball

In other games, Villanova stopped Boston College 66-58. Connecticut whipped Seton Hall 77-68, and Southwest Missouri State upended Brigham Young 62-61 in overtime.

At Boston, Harold Jensen scored 17 points, including a pair of crucial 3-point field goals late in the game to lead Villanova to the Big East victory. The Wildcats are 3-0 in the conference. The Eagles, playing their league opener, dropped to 7-4. Kenny Wilson and Doug West each added 16 points for Villanova.

to enter the NFL draft this spring. "He and I will discuss his possible future participation at a later date."

"After further discussions with him (Bosworth), I am completely convinced his statements were sincerely from the heart and that he has experienced much personal remorse over his earlier actions," Switzer said Tuesday.

Bosworth was not immediately available for comment.

Mary Pressure Wilts Lady Pats

By Chris Fister Herald Sports Writer

LAKE MARY — Blowouts have been rare in the heated Lake Mary-Lake Brantley rivalry the past few years. Lake Brantley tried to keep it that way Tuesday night but the inexperienced Lady Patriots could not match the firepower of the awesome Lady Rams.

Lake Mary, ranked third in the state in Class 4A, used relentless pressure defense to build a commanding 22-5 lead after one quarter and went on to claim a 55-35 Seminole Athletic Conference victory before 201 Rams at Lake Mary High.

The Lady Rams improved to 13-1 overall with their 11th consecutive victory. Lake Mary, 1-0 in the SAC, hosts arch rival Seminole High Thursday night. Lake Brantley, 6-4 overall and 0-1 in the conference, is at Oviedo Thursday.

"I was real happy with the way we came out and took control right away," Lake Mary coach Bill Moore said. "But our biggest enemy still is we tend to lose our intensity when we get a big lead. We have to work on improving that."

Lake Mary pinned down the Lady Patriots its full court pressure in the opening period. With the score tied at 2-2, Lake Mary reeled off 11 straight points for a 13-2 lead. The Lady Rams made seven steals and forced nine Lake Brantley turnovers in the first-quarter blitz.

"We got hurt with the press early," Lake Brantley coach Cindy Frank said. "We were getting better at press break but the holiday layoff hurt us because we didn't get in much work. I know we're capable of playing a lot better."

Lake Brantley never recovered from the 22-5 first-quarter deficit as Lake Mary went on to take a 34-14 halftime lead and led by 26 points, 48-22, after three quarters.

Eleven of the 12 players on the Lake Mary roster scored led by senior guard Tonya Lawson's 10 points. Senior forward Cynthia Patterson and junior forward Sharon Bonaventure added nine points and seven rebounds apiece. 6-5 junior center Teri Whyte contributed seven points, six boards and four blocks and senior point guard Gabby Olden added seven points and seven steals.

Senior guard Ashley Thomas,

Basketball

who transferred to Lake Mary from Lake Brantley earlier this season, scored six points in her first game against her old team. Tonya Davis, Gina Dawson and Marnie Frey joined the scoring parade with two points each and Dena Mulholland added one point, four rebounds and two blocks.

Sophomore point guard Tracy Brandenburg led Lake Brantley with a game-high 13 points and she also shined on the defensive end where she took four charges.

Lake Mary will now turn its attention to Seminole High which comes in with a 4-6 record but has won four of its last five games.

"I've seen Seminole and they don't look as strong as they usually are," Moore said. "But I never count my eggs before they hatch. (Adrian) Hillsman is a very good ballplayer and Seminole has some girls who rebound really well. And Seminole always plays their best against us."

RAM JV RALLIES FOR WIN

Down by eight, 34-26, early in the fourth quarter, Lake Mary's junior varsity Lady Rams put on a late rally and came back to claim a 44-38 victory over the JV Lady Patriots Tuesday night.

Brantley, sparked by Christa Kranze and Barb Billmyer, led most of the game and took a 34-26 lead early in the final period on Billmyer's jumper. Lake Mary, though, led by Wileatha Hartsfield, Larra Hall and Tara Jackson, outscored the Patriots, 18-4, the rest of the way.

Jackson had eight of her team-high 12 points in the fourth quarter for the Lady Rams. Kranze led Lake Brantley with a game-high 15 points while Billmyer tossed in 14 including 6 of 9 free throws. Four of Billmyer's free tosses came as the result of a pair of "seat belt" technicals called on Lake Mary coach Mike Averill.

'Impressed' Switzer Cracks Door For Bosworth's Return

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said Tuesday he was so impressed with an apology by All-America linebacker Brian Bosworth he will leave open the door for Bosworth to return to the Sooners next season.

Switzer on Monday said the controversial linebacker would not return to Oklahoma for his final season of eligibility next year. Bosworth then issued a statement Monday apologizing for his outspoken comments this season.

Switzer, saying he was impressed with Bosworth's statement, said Tuesday if Bosworth does not choose steroids.

He joined his teammates on the sidelines and expressed his displeasure with the NCAA-imposed suspension by wearing a T-shirt with the words "National Communists Against Athletes. Welcome to Russia."

In a statement prior to the game, Bosworth compared life in Norman, Okla., to living in Moscow.

After Switzer's announcement Monday that Bosworth would not play football at Oklahoma during his senior season, Bosworth apologized for his actions in a statement released through the university's sports information office.

Bosworth said the past season "has been a once-in-a-lifetime experience for me. Coach Switzer has often said that I am an actor and that the lights are bright at OU. In that regard I have benefited beyond comprehension from my association with the university."

"My association with the University of Oklahoma and the Oklahoma football program has been a very positive one," Bosworth added. "I have been treated very favorably by Coach Switzer during the past four years and could not have attained the many honors and awards without his total support.

"I truly love the University of Oklahoma, the football program, my teammates and the many loyal fans of Oklahoma football," he said.

In the statement released Tuesday, Switzer said he is convinced Bosworth's apology was sincere.

"It is my hope that Brian can continue to reflect this positive image to all the fans who support him and our program," Switzer said. "I hope, too, that he and I can continue to communicate."

Collier Opposes Former Pupil Schottenheimer In AFC Finale

DENVER (UPI) — No matter who wins Sunday's AFC championship game between Denver and Cleveland, Broncos assistant coach Joe Collier can claim credit.

Collier, the mastermind of Denver's defense, is partially responsible for getting Cleveland Coach Marty Schottenheimer into the coaching profession. Now, Collier's former pupil is the only obstacle remaining in the Denver's path to the Super Bowl. "I don't think there's a better defensive coach in the National Football League," Schottenheimer said of his mentor, who has spent the last 18 years coaching the Broncos. "I think I'm familiar with about everything he does, but he knows I'm familiar with it so there's no advantage."

Collier was instrumental in getting Schottenheimer into the coaching business. After an unimpressive playing career as a linebacker, including a stint in Buffalo when Collier was the head coach there (1966-68), Schottenheimer found himself selling real estate in Denver in 1974.

"I don't know how successful he was that year he was living in Denver," Collier said, "because he spent an awful lot of time with me." Most of that time, Collier said, Schottenheimer spent "inside my head."

"I used to go to the Broncos offices and watch films with Joe and see how he put information together," Schottenheimer said. After Schottenheimer's expression of interest in entering the coaching ranks, Collier suggested he call Dick Coury, a former Broncos aide who was coaching the Portland Storm of the World Football League.

Schottenheimer moved to the NFL a year later, spending time on the coaching staffs of the New York Giants and Detroit Lions before being hired as an assistant coach in Cleveland in 1980. He guided the Browns to the playoffs last year, his first full season as a head coach. This year, he was named UPI's AFC Coach of the Year.

Collier described Schottenheimer as "a real intelligent guy, even when he was a player."

"When he got into coaching, I had a real good feeling that he was going to be a head coach some day, and I told him so," Collier said. Both teams have a healthy respect for each other's defense. Schottenheimer is especially concerned about Broncos All-Pro Ron Jones and Karl Mecklenburg. "The first thing we have to do," he said.

John Elway shook off a sprained ankle to lead Denver into the AFC title game.

JONES TOPS DEFENDERS
DENVER (UPI) — Denver Broncos defensive end Ron Jones, who set a team record for sacks en route to an All-Pro season, has been named the American Football Conference defensive player of the year by United Press International.

Gibbs Plans 'Package Defenses' For Giants

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington Coach Joe Gibbs says the Redskins must use a different formula to contend with the New York Giants in the NFC title game than they used to dethrone the defending Super Bowl champion Chicago Bears.

Washington shut down Walter Payton and the NFL's No. 1 ground game with regular use of five linemen and occasional use of the "46" defense, with as many as eight players on the line. In their 27-13 upset Saturday, Gibbs said the Redskins will use some of these "package" defenses against the Giants, but New York presents many more problems than the one-dimensional Bears. "I think it's a different approach with the Giants than it was with the Bears," he said. "The quarterback there (rookie Doug Flutie) was a young guy who had played only three real games there, so I think we were more conscious of the run against them. We were more willing to blitz to stop the run."

Against the Giants, the Redskins must contend with an offensive twin threat — quarterback Phil Simms and running back Joe Morris. "Any really good team like they are, you have a double-edged sword: Are you going to stop the pass and forfeit the run or vice versa?" Gibbs said. "I don't think you can do that. We stopped the run pretty good and lost because Simms did a great job throwing (three TDs passing in a Dec. 7 victory) and we've lost the other way (Morris rushing for 181 yards in an Oct. 27 triumph).

"I think we've got to be more balanced and do a good job of containing both of them. They're going to get some yards. You're not going to take a good football team like they are and shut them out. But our defense this year has been pretty good at limiting points."

The Redskins, 14-4, play at East Rutherford, N.J., Sunday (4 p.m. EST) against the Giants, 15-2, for the NFC championship.

The Giants, NFC East champs and winners of 10 straight, dunned the Redskins 27-20 in week 8 and 24-14 in week 13. New York has not lost to Washington at the Meadowlands since 1983.

After the Giants beat Washington Dec. 7, New York defensive coordinator Bill Belichick boasted his team out-coached Gibbs. Belichick has since recanted and apologized, but Gibbs took the comment to heart.

"We've got the talent, there's no question the Redskins have the talent," Gibbs said. "Matching up with them is the question. We don't match up very well against them — they beat us twice. So we've got to find some way to rise above and play better than what we played against them, better than the last two times."

The Giants have caused Gibbs more problems than any team the past three years. Asked what the Redskins need to do to stop New York this time, Gibbs laughed. "I'm probably not the right guy to ask. I haven't been able to beat them."

On offense, Gibbs said he will concentrate on protecting quarterback Jay Schroeder, who was pressured by Lawrence Taylor and the Giants' rush in the last game and was confused by a soft zone secondary.

Schnellenberger To Falcons?

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Falcons have refused to confirm or deny that Louisville Coach Howard Schnellenberger is in line to become the team's next head coach.

"That's speculation right now," Falcons spokesman Charlie Dayton said. "We haven't confirmed or denied any candidates."

Schnellenberger may interview for the job this week. The Atlanta Constitution reported Tuesday.

Hill Revives Towers, Knicks Blast Hawks

United Press International
Hubie Brown used Bill Cartwright and Patrick Ewing in the same lineup, and the tactic became a major issue in his firing. Bob Hill, having scrapped the idea to placate critics, has revived the formation, and the New York Knicks have won five of their last six games.

"When I came in as coach, this whole Twin Towers thing was blown up," Hill said Tuesday night after the Knicks routed the Atlanta Hawks 118-86. "It was like they were bigger than the team. I wanted to take the pressure off them, so I defused it, and then gradually got back into it."

Accordingly, the Knicks have gotten back to respectability. If they keep it up, they'll make the playoffs — and lose a shot at the lottery for the top draft pick. "We can turn it around quickly by beating the teams we're supposed to beat and sneaking in a few victories like this," said Cartwright, who had 15 points and 14 rebounds.

Behind 31 points from Ewing and 19 from Gerald Wilkins, New York avenged a 114-92 loss to the Hawks over the weekend. The 32-point victory was the Knicks biggest margin of the season, and their 118 points their highest total. Atlanta's 86 points was its season low. The Hawks went scoreless over the first 3:26 of the final period.

"They dominated the game in every area: They rebounded the ball, they ran their break and shot the ball well," Atlanta Coach Mike Fratello said.

The Hawks were led by Dominique Wilkins with 22 points and Cliff Levingston, who added 16. The Hawks shot just 35 percent from the field for the game (32 of 91).

Bullets 112, Clippers 97
At Landover, Md., Moses Malone scored 27 points and Jay Vincent added 23 in his Washington debut to help send Los Angeles to its 13th straight loss. The Clippers have the league's worst record at 4-28.

Bulls 99, Cavaliers 95
At Richfield, Ohio, Chicago

Basketball

limited Cleveland to 12 fourth-quarter points and Michael Jordan scored 27 points to hand Cleveland its fourth-straight defeat. Jordan has led the team in scoring in every game but one — a 113-90 loss to Milwaukee on December 13, in which John Paxson led the Bulls with 18.

Bucks 124, Nets 113
At Milwaukee, Ricky Pierce scored 17 of his game-high 27 points in the third quarter to lift the Bucks. The victory was Milwaukee's third straight while New Jersey lost its 22nd game of the season.

Pacers 101, Spurs 99
At San Antonio, Texas, Artis Gilmore's goaltending on Vern Fleming's driving shot in the lane with three seconds left in the fourth quarter enabled Indiana to pull out its fourth straight triumph. Steve Stipanovich scored 19 points to lead the Pacers while Fleming finished with 17.

Warriors 118, Rockets 100
At Oakland, Calif., Eric Floyd scored 31 points and handed out 11 assists to power Golden State to its third victory of the season over Houston. The Rockets' twin towers, Ralph Sampson and Akem Olajuwon, were limited to 6 of 22 shooting from the floor between them and finished with a total of 23 points.

Kings 112, Nuggets 104
At Sacramento, Calif., Eddie Johnson scored 22 points, including 2 long-range jumpers late in the fourth quarter to halt a Denver rally and a five-game losing streak. Alex English led Denver with 30 points but the Nuggets lost their fourth in a row.

Sonics 138, Suns 108
At Seattle, Tom Chambers scored 29 points and Xavier McDaniell added 28 to lead Seattle to their biggest offensive output of the season. The Sonics improved to 3-0 against Phoenix this season while the Suns lost for the fourth time in their last five games.

Lady Seminoles Bombard Creek

PORT ORANGE — Adrian Hillsman, Liz Long and LaShon Cash combined for 44 points while freshman Sherry Reddick hauled down a career-high 15 rebounds as Seminole drubbed hapless Port Orange Spruce Creek, 54-23, in girls District 4A-9 basketball Tuesday at Spruce Creek's Dunne Gymnasium.

The victory improved coach Charles Steele's club to 4-6. The Lady Seminoles face No. 3 Lake Mary Thursday night at Lake Mary. Steele said he expects Lake Mary to concentrate on Hillsman, but he feels Cash and Long are ready to come into their own.

"I know (coach) Bill (Moore) will devise something to stop Adrian," Steele said. "But LaShon played real well tonight and Liz hit most of her points from the outside."

Seminole broke to a 16-8 lead after one quarter and built it to 29-12 at halftime. Hillsman took several rebounds coast to coast while Long popped away from the 12-foot range and Cash also penetrated for her points.

Reddick, a 6-0 center playing her fourth varsity game, added four points to her 15 boards and limited the Lady Hawks to just one shot per possession. Long pulled down eight caroms while Hillsman had seven and Michelle Toombs yanked down six boards. Chineta Gilchrist chipped in four points.

Steele said senior center Yolanda Robinson has quit the team. Steele said he didn't give a reason.

JV LOSES ANOTHER
While the Lady Seminoles were victorious Tuesday, Seminole's junior varsity boys team dropped its seventh consecutive contest, 57-41, to Spruce Creek. The Tribe returns to action tonight against Daytona Beach Seabreeze.

Sean Roberts led the 'Noles with eight points. — Bam Cook

Perfect Pair: Earnest Pro, Sincere Pupil

How much is a lesson from a good teaching pro worth? How long should the lesson be? Should I change a stroke just because the pro tells me to? How long will it take me to get really good? Will I be able to beat my boss? I have never beaten him before.

These are a few of the many questions that people have when they are considering lessons or clinics with a tennis teaching professional. Good questions for sure, but, unfortunately, the answers do not always satisfy the prospective student.

To begin with, the value of a lesson from a teaching pro will vary from city to city or even club to club. I know of clubs where the pro charges up to $75 per hour. I also know places where you can get a private lesson for $5 an hour.

Extremes both. I just do not believe that any pro is worth $75 a lesson. On the other hand, if you take a $5 lesson you are likely to get five dollars worth.

I believe a fair price is $10-$20 per hour. Believe me, a good lesson is hard work for the pro as well as the student. It is not "play" for the pro, it is work when they instruct correctly.

It takes concentration and patience. A good pro puts a lot of mental and physical effort into a good lesson. If your pro seems distracted, always stopping to chat with people, is often late, and does not give you a good effort — get a new one.

There are some really good ones out there and there are some who will just take your money and "Run Venezuela."

A lesson should last at least 45 minutes. An hour is better. If the student is a beginner, there will be a lot of talking, so it will take at least one hour.

More advanced players often can get a good lesson in less time because they are running and hitting most of the time. (By the way, if students do not give 100 percent at all times, they are wasting their money. The students must try as hard as possible.)

One of the main reasons for taking a lesson is to improve your game. I have found over and over again that some students are very resistant to change. They pay a lot of good money to a pro so that their games will improve and then when the pro suggests some modifications in their strokes. They simply will not cooperate.

Look, there is only one guideline to go by in changing your strokes: "If it ain't broke, don't fix it."

In other words, if your backhand volley is sound, reliable and consistent, then you do not need to change your technique. You just need to keep hitting it to make a good one even better.

However, if you have a weak backhand volley, with poor control and no power, you should listen to your pro, trust his judgment and make some changes.

How long will it take you to be really good? Who knows? Each of us progresses at our own speed. Several factors are involved in how rapidly you improve. The two main ones have nothing to do with your pro.

The most important aspects in how good you become are:

- Your own natural ability.
- How much you practice and how hard you work when you do practice.

If someone you want to beat is on a really high level, it may be impossible to ever beat him. Your boss may have been playing for many years and his level may be considerably above yours. There just might be too much of a gap to make up.

What you might be able to do, though, is improve enough to make it closer and be more competitive and fun for you both.

A good teaching pro is worth a lot. Most are hard working, concerned about your game and very conscientious. Find a good one and get to work.

NCAA Studies 1-Game Showdown

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — With small, uncertain steps, the NCAA has agreed to study the possibility of a one-game national football championship which could take place as early as 1989.

The NCAA has launched a subcommittee which may present its findings to another committee by April. Then, the report goes to the NCAA council and then to an NCAA convention.

Given that the national title issue is one on which there are almost as many opinions as there are college presidents, the NCAA's caution is understandable.

Influenced by the success of the Fiesta Bowl where then-No. 2 Penn State beat then-No. 1 Miami to win the national championship, the Postseason Bowls Committee called for a study to see if a similar championship game should become an annual event.

Football

According to Purdue athletic director George King, chairman of the committee, such a game shouldn't be expected before January 1989 at the earliest — and then only if it survives opposition from schools who like the present postseason setup.

"There is no question there is considerable public interest in such a game but there doesn't appear to be as much interest among the institutions," King said. "The institutions are extremely happy with the bowl arrangements (which brought in $41 million this year)."

King appointed a subcommittee headed by Texas athletic director DeLoss

Dodd to study the idea of a one-game playoff to be held after the bowl games and report back to the full committee in April.

"I think the earliest we could expect to have such a game in place, if it is approved by the NCAA Council and the full convention, would be January 1989," King said. "It's possible that this could happen sooner, but the procedure takes time and I don't think anything could be finalized that soon."

King pointed out that a similar study, one that proposed either a two-team or a four-team playoff, but did not receive committee recommendation, was sent two years ago to the NCAA Council which turned it down in a straw vote.

"The public has a keen interest, there's no doubt about that," King said.

Big 10: No Freshmen

CHICAGO (UPI) — An overwhelming majority of Big Ten basketball coaches want freshmen players ineligible for varsity competition.

The coaches, polled in a telephone survey, said they would support such a move at this week's NCAA Convention in San Diego. Most said they would still like to see a red-shirt provision in which players retain four years of eligibility.

Six coaches supported freshmen ineligibility outright while three leaned toward adopting the measure. Indiana Coach Bob Knight, who in past has come out for freshmen ineligibility, did not participate.

Cook Of The Week

Depression Era Background Gives 'Mom' Lots Of Food For Thought

By Dorothy Greene
Herald Correspondent

"There's nothing in this world as good as your grandmother giving you a hot loaf of homemade bread with a bowl of butter," says Mary Tillis. "Fresh made butter." For our Cook of the Week, memories are made of things like that.

"We grew up in Depression times, of course, and you were supposed to be poor, but we didn't know it," she laughs. Recalling her carefree childhood days in Phillipi, W. Va., where she and her sister grew up, Mrs. Tillis adds, "My grandmother lived not very far away, and I guess we were little pigs — we'd eat at home, then go to grandmother's and eat again!" Sharing what you had was second nature to folks back then and if you had an abundance of something from your garden, you would trade with somebody else. "Everybody had a garden, and you'd work all summer growing things and canning and putting things away in the cellar," she says, "and just before Thanksgiving every year, all the families would bring all this food together and we'd have a big community party."

Perhaps one of the reasons our Cook is so well loved and thought of as a neighborhood "Mom" is because she still carries little bits of her childhood memories with her. "Of course, my sister and I were always in trouble," Mrs. Tillis says. "Every stray cat or dog we found we brought home. We used to bring home little snakes and leeches and fishes. One day we brought home a great big black snake and dropped it on the floor while my mother was cooking. Well, she almost made a hole in the ceiling! Needless to say, I got my bottom warmed. We were always doing things like that, but we had a ball."

Mrs. Tillis became a Floridian at the age of 12 when her family moved to Bradenton. It was there she met her future husband, Carl, who is a Sanford native and affectionately known by his nickname, "Shine." They were married while both were still attending Bradenton High School and have just celebrated their 47th wedding anniversary. "He's a very patient, dear man," says Mary Tillis, "to put up with me!" A wonderful family of three sons followed and the Tillises are proud of them all. Chris and his wife, Debbie, live in Brandon and have three children, Kevin, Tony and Heather. Michael and his wife, Debbie, live in Sanford and their three sons are Jeffery, Robert and Steven, and John and his wife, Misty, are residents of Vero Beach. Three more grandchildren, James, John and Christine, and two great-grandchildren, Brandon and Zachary, make family reunions a joyous gathering for "Mo" and "Po" Tillis.

Mrs. Tillis has had a major part in raising three of her grandchildren and that's a good reason for being surrounded by young people and sharing in their lives. "We have a parade of teen-agers all the time," she says. Even while her sons were growing up in Bradenton, Mrs. Tillis recalls that there were 17 boys in the neighborhood and they all congregated in her backyard. "A neighbor owned an empty lot in back of us," says Mrs. Tillis, "and he said as long as all the boys were in the neighborhood he would never build on that lot. They'd play ball on that lot, so they were always right there. And that's how it is here. They're always in and out."

Raising children and grandchildren has hardly slowed her down and Mrs. Tillis enjoys many of her homemaking hobbies as well as she enjoys cooking. "Where I grew up you knew how to sew," she says, "and in the wintertime everybody got together, brought food and quilted. I used to make all my boys' shirts, and I taught myself how to make slipcovers and drapes and all my own clothes. Of course, back when my boys were growing up, you could buy material for 15 cents a yard!"

Mrs. Tillis has been a member of the Garden Club of Sanford for 25 years and this is an interest that has been close to her heart for all those many years. "That's my first love," she says. "I've learned so much there." Presently, she is a member of the Magnolia Circle and has served as president of the club for two separate terms, 1970-72 and 1984-86. Her special interest in plants and flowers has enabled her to enjoy the benefits of learning artistic design, landscaping, flower arranging and working in tricolor mode with all fresh plant materials through the horticultural classes offered by the club. To her credit, she has won many blue ribbons and other awards for doing something she enjoys so much.

Our cook is also a member of the Woman's Club of Sanford, Inc., an affiliate of the Florida

Federation of Women's Clubs, where she is chairman of the Arts Department and chairman of the club's forthcoming Arts Festival on Jan. 28. "If you're going to join something," she says, "you should work at it and you should learn, not just sit there and take up space." Mrs. Tillis is also an avid reader and advocates reading as an important learning process. "Although I never finished high school," she adds, "I read all the time. I read everything! There's no reason for people not knowing anything because you can teach yourself. If you can read, you can do anything. That's how I learned to make slipcovers — I got a book and I taught myself."

Mrs. Tillis enjoys the fellowship she has shared with members of the Joy class at First Baptist Church of Sanford for the past 27 years. Weekly breakfasts and monthly meetings are always a pleasant occasion, she says.

A marvelous collection of woven baskets in many shapes and sizes decorates the dining room wall at the Tillis home, adding a touch of hominess. "I also like to collect cups and saucers and antique plates, many of which have been given to me by friends," says Mrs. Tillis.

Since retiring four years ago as an engineer at the Florida Power and Light Company's power plant, "Shine" Tillis has found a new source of energy in playing golf. "He plays golf every day, rain or shine," says Mrs. Tillis, "and he's earned it." Meanwhile, Mrs. Tillis relishes the camaraderie amongst her circle of friends who are close enough to volunteer each others' services when the occasion calls for a freshly baked cake, etc. "I have such very dear friends," she says, "and when you belong to these groups and work at it, you make a lot of friends."

It's a lucky neighborhood to have the Tillises in their midst, for the door is always open to the "kids" on the block. "They don't call us Grandmother and Grandfather," says Mrs. Tillis, "they call us 'Mo' and 'Po.' And my husband's been the neighborhood taxi for years," she says. "There'll be a knock on the door when one of the kids misses the school bus and he'll take them to school, or if someone needs a ride to work he'll get in the car and take them to work or pick them up." It's easy to see that Mary and Shine Tillis enjoy having young people around.

"I've had a wonderful life," says Mrs. Tillis. "Not rich, but you don't need all the things you think you do, so you get along." Part of the wonderful life that Mrs. Tillis has enjoyed also includes good food. "I like to try new things," she says. "I also like things that are quick and easy. There are certain things I'm never out of. I always have celery soup, mushroom soup, canned mushrooms, and I always have tuna fish — I wouldn't keep house without canned tuna fish!"

Some of Mrs. Tillis's favorite family and company recipes are listed below:

BARBECUED PORK CHOPS

From my daughter-in-law, Debbie, in Brandon. Select one good-sized pork chop per person. Brown pork chops and place in shallow baking pan. Place one slice of onion on each chop. Mix the following in bowl and pour over the chops the following: 2 cups applesauce, ¼ cup catsup, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 3 drops Tabasco sauce.

Microwave Cooking

Hearty Chicken And Vegetable Dish Tasty And Timesaving During Winter

These chilly winter days demand hearty meals. Here's a chicken-and-vegetable dinner that's tasty and timesaving — it's cooked in the microwave.

Created by the home economists at KitchenAid, this recipe shows off some of the best reasons to own a microwave oven. First, the bacon can be cooked with minimum mess and to maximum crispness. Next, the whole dish can be assembled using a casserole dish and only one bowl. And finally, the results — moist and tender chicken pieces and vegetables, bathed in a creamy herbed sauce, all done in under one hour.

Here's the easy step-by-step microwave recipe for "Chicken Supreme:"

CHICKEN SUPREME
5 slices bacon
1 can (10½ oz.) cream of onion soup
¼ cup dry red wine or dry sherry
½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1½ teaspoons chicken bouillon granules
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
¼ teaspoon thyme
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2-3 medium carrots, thinly sliced
6 small potatoes, peeled and quartered
1 frying chicken, 2½-3 pounds, cut up
½ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced

Place bacon on a paper-lined plate and cover with paper towels. Cook on high (100%) for 5-6 minutes, until crisp. Crumble and set aside.

In a small bowl, combine soup, wine, onion, garlic, bouillon granules, parsley, thyme, salt and pepper.

Place carrots and potatoes in bottom of 3-quart microwave-safe casserole. Arrange chicken pieces on top with thicker portions around outside of dish and thinner pieces in the center. Pour sop mixture over top.

Cook, covered on high (100%) for 30 minutes. Place mushrooms and crumbled bacon on top. Cook, covered, on medium-high (70%) for 10-15 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

Yield: 4-6 servings.

YANKEE SQUASH
2 acorn or 2 butternut squash (about 2 pounds each)
1/3 cup olive oil (conventional method only)

1 tart apple, pared, cored and cut up
4 green onions (scallions) or ¼ small onion
1/3 cup chopped parsley
¼ cup apple juice
1 tablespoon brown sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg

MICROWAVE METHOD:
Prick squash several times with fork. Microwave at High for 10 to 12 minutes until soft when pricked with fork. Turn once during cooking. Let stand 5 minutes. Cut in half and remove seeds. Place in shallow baking dish, cut side up.
Meanwhile, blend apple, onion and parsley. Then simmer in saucepan with apple juice, brown sugar, salt and nutmeg for 10 minutes. Spoon into squash cavities. Microwave ½ minute on High and serve. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 to 8 servings.

TURKEY TETRAZZINI

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 small onion, chopped
1 small red pepper, chopped
¼ cup sliced almonds, divided
1 can (18½ ounces) chunky creamy mushroom soup
2 tablespoons dry sherry or apple juice
2 cups cooked turkey cut into strips
8 ounces spaghetti, cooked and drained
¼ cup buttered bread crumbs

MICROWAVE METHOD: In 2-quart microwave-safe casserole dish, combine butter, onion, pepper and 3 tablespoons almonds. Cover. Microwave on High for 5 minutes or until tender, stirring once during heating. Add soup, sherry and turkey. Cover. Microwave on High for 5 minutes or until hot. In 12-inch-by-8-inch microwave-safe baking dish, spread spaghetti. Pour hot turkey mixture over spaghetti. Top with bread crumbs and remaining almonds. Cover. Microwave on High for 8 minutes or until hot. Rotate dish once during heating. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings.

Television Ads Show Influence Of MTV

Music video has revolutionized the look and style of motion pictures, series television and certainly, the top 40. But its outside the entertainment industry — in the straight-laced world of advertising. Almost overnight, television commercials assumed the sound and feel of rock video clips. Lately, it's hard to tell the program from the ads. Was that Phil Collins' new single or a Michelob spot? Is there a difference?

"Over the last four years or so, advertisers became aware of the success of these three-minute mini-epics," says Joe Lubinsky, chief executive officer of the HLC commercial production company, and one of the country's top jingle writers. "They saw that MTV sold product — records — by subtly framing the product in a three minute song-with-pictures."

"All of a sudden, advertisers who would never have accepted rock 'n' roll were coming to us saying, 'Give me something like you'd see on MTV,' or even, 'Give me something like Dire Straits.' Money for Nothing." Rock 'n' roll is no longer controversial music. You can now do an ad targeted at working mothers that sounds like anything from Bruce Springsteen to Van Halen."

One big breakthrough for music-driven TV commercials — and for Lubinsky's firm — was the phenomenally successful Levi's 501 jeans campaign. Singing the blues about your pants was a risky proposition at the time ("Who would have thought 'Let's make commercials that look lonely and sad?'" says Lubinsky), but it opened a floodgate of imitators.

HLC went on to create the music for hummable adds like McDonald's ("Two all beef patties, special sauce, lettuce cheese..."). Wheaties cereal ("Go tell your mama what the big boys eat"), Gatorade ("...is thirt aid"), Quaker Oats ("pour it on, Quaker fruit and cream") and hundreds more. Lubinsky writes about 20 30-second jingles a week, knocking off a tune in 15 or 20 minutes.

"The ones I'm most proud of are the ones that stay in people's minds," he says. Nothing pleases him more than hearing someone correctly hum one of those familiar melodies back at him, and say, "I know that one. That was you?"

"The idea is to create an emotional bond between the product and the music," Lubinsky explains. Except for the length of the finished product, there's little real difference between a jingle and a chart-bound single. In the end, the goal of both is to sell something. For most songwriters, it's a piece of vinyl. For Joe Lubinsky, it's a piece of denim or a tank of gas or a bottle of shampoo.

In advertising, the bottom line is what the sponsor will go for," says Lubinsky. "The influence of MTV gave us much more freedom to experiment, and created a new prevailing style in commercials. "But, interestingly, this should start creating its own backlash, because once everybody starts doing something, it's no longer creative and noteworthy," he says. "I think you're going to start seeing more and more commercials with one guy standing on a soundstage, pitching his product to the camera."

Sanford Woman Among 9 Top Blood Donors

It's not often that ordinary citizens have the opportunity to save lives. But on Jan. 11, Central Florida Blood Bank will honor 72 heroes at the Holiday Inn Crown Plaza in Orlando. They include nine 15-gallon donors and 83 10-gallon donors who have rolled up their sleeves over and over again to share their good health with hospital patients by giving blood.

For a donor to reach a 10-gallon or 15-gallon mark, it takes years of commitment to the volunteer blood donor system. One such donor is Sgt. Billy Rakes of the Orlando Police Department. Rakes first gave blood while stationed at an Air Force Base in London in 1968. After leaving the Air Force, Rakes joined the police force in Orlando where he would occasionally hear calls for blood donors over his police radio when a fellow officer was hurt. "But it really doesn't make any difference to me who my blood goes to. It's important that blood is available to whoever needs it," he said. Rakes, who lives in Apopka, reached his 10-gallon mark during 1986.

Central Florida Blood Bank pays tribute to 10-gallon and 15-gallon donors once a year, but the reward that keeps blood donors coming back is knowing they are sharing their good health with hospital patients who need blood to stay alive.

Those to be honored at the luncheon include the following: Fifteen gallon donor, Mabel A. Chapman, Sanford. Ten gallon donors, G. William Braceland, Sanford; S.B. Cogburn, Sanford; James C. Davis, Sanford; Vivian Cornell, Altamonte Springs; Billy J. Rakes, Apopka; Jack T. Sharkey, DeBary; Alfred S. Tolett, DeBary; Gail A. Lundin, Maitland; Jack Wiesenfeld, Maitland; Elmer L. Bellhorn, Oviedo; and Nancy R. Foley, Winter Springs.

Parents Panic At Toddler's Early Morning Disappearance

DEAR READERS: How safe is your child in his or her crib? Well, listen to this:

A 58-year-old California woman was taking her usual early morning walk when she spotted a tiny toddler in his pajamas, crawling, walking and toddling merrily on his way down the sidewalk! She immediately called the police who came at once and took the bright-eyed, happy little adventurer into custody.

It seems that Sean, a 20-month-old youngster, had simply crawled over the side of his crib and escaped through the doggie door, wandering a half-mile from home.

When his parents awakened at 7:30 a.m. to discover that their child was not in his crib, they searched the house, panicked, then notified the police. Eight patrol cars equipped with bullhorns conducted a street-by-street search in the area of his home, but were unable to locate him.

The parents never dreamed this could happen to them, but it did. Could it happen in your home?

By the way, they have not owned a pet in some time, and you can be sure that the doggie door has been nailed shut!

Now that nature has built

Dear Abby

more acrobatic and resourceful children, perhaps the manufacturers of baby furniture will build a better crib from which Houdini himself could not escape.

DEAR ABBY: On Saturday afternoon I drive three women from my apartment building to the market for groceries. A few months ago another neighbor, Mae (fake name), asked if she could join us. We all agreed.

Mae has become a terrible pain in the neck. She has turned our weekly trips into thoroughly disagreeable experiences. She talks, talks and talks until we are ready to scream. She has a loud, harsh voice, and interrupts constantly to turn the conversation back to some unclear personal anecdote. On top of that, she's one of the duller people I've ever known.

I've heard that she has complained to other tenants that we rush her too much and don't take her to the markets she (and only she) prefers to patronize.

She's a born complainer, although she tries to be a good neighbor and is basically a nice person.

We've tried all sorts of subtle suggestions to let her know we don't enjoy her dominating the conversation, but they've gone over her head. Is there any gentle way to solve this dilemma without hurting her feelings?

A MAN IN HOLLYWOOD

DEAR MAN: You are not going to change Mae, so either accept her as she is, or tell her she may no longer come along grocery shopping, and tell her why. It's just that simple.

DEAR ABBY: My mother and father were divorced 15 years ago. My father has remarried, my mother has not. I lived with my mother after the divorce, but visited my father, and we remained close.

I have been married for four years. My mother thinks that when I invite her to a party at my home, I should let her know if my father was also invited as she does not want to attend if he will be there. She attended my wedding with no complaints, knowing that my father was going to be there.

It's my house, and my party, and I don't feel I'm obligated to tell my mother who else is coming. Don't you agree?

THEIR SON

DEAR SON: You are not "obligated" to tell your mother who's coming, but since she asks if her ex-husband (whom she clearly does not want to see) will be there, as a kind and considerate host, you should tell her.

DEAR ABBY: Oh, those "dirty rats!" You know — the ones who get "mad as hornets" when they hear the expression, "Killing two birds with one stone." If they insist on revamping the English language because they read hostile feelings into harmless expression, let's be fair. Birds are no more sacred than God's other creatures, so why not stop saying "silly goose," "blind as a bat," "eats like a pig," "stubborn as a mule," "sly as a fox," "mean as a snake," "I'm so hungry I could eat a horse," and all the other similar phrases I could think of in five minutes?

RICHARD ANDERSON, BURBANK, CALIF.

DEAR RICHARD: Those time-honored figures of speech have been around since Pike's Peak was a pile, so here's one writer who is not about to "kill the goose that lays the golden eggs."

'Amerika' Is Not Beautiful, It's Propaganda

The Russians have caused us a lot of grief over the years, but I think this is the first time they've inflicted a 14 1/2-hour TV miniseries on us. Yet "Amerika," which ABC will air beginning Feb. 15, is their fault. When the network announced last year that it might make a miniseries about a Russian takeover of the United States, Soviet officials went nuts. They whined; they protested; they threatened to close ABC's Moscow bureau despite the fact that Soviet TV had just shown a series about a sniveling CIA spy. What was a red-blooded American network to do? Nobody's gonna push ABC around. It decided to make the miniseries. So there. If the Soviets had offered instead to cooperate with the production — to provide actors and technical assistance — ABC probably would have dropped the whole idea, and everybody would have been better off. I haven't seen "Amerika," but I have read the script, which was obtained with the help of a conscience-stricken person associated with the production. It's no masterpiece of literature. "All right" is consistently spelled "alright." There's total confusion about when to use "which" and when to use "that." At one point, a character says that something is "less than wholly successful."

The story takes place in the 1990s, after the Soviet Union has invaded the United States. Our flag shows crossed Soviet and U.S. flags with the United Nations symbol between them. The Pledge of Allegiance is to "a nation, indivisible with others of the Earth. Joined in peace and justice for all."

The country has been ruined. The media and the arts are censored. There's little food. Refugees wander around. Good people are in concentration camps. Schools teach children to hate American history and love "social humanism, where everyone helps everyone else," as one student puts it.

The United Nations, world unity and humanism are only a few of the far-right bugaboos woven into this sneaky show. How did the Soviets take over? It was because the wimpy liberals welcomed them, and the rest of Americans were too reluctant to use military might. In other words, ABC wants us to believe that the Maj. Bat Guanos have been right all along. Those one-worlders are commies — and they probably want to sap our precious bodily fluids, too. No need to tell you much about the story; the message is what's important about "Amerika." It's carried on a slow-moving plot involving an ineffective liberal politician, his former wife who betrayed him to the Soviets, her Soviet boyfriend, her collaborator partner who is governor of one of the new administrative districts, his wife, assorted relatives and lovers. Lots of lovers. Fortunately for American viewers, the Russians seem to prefer speaking English, even to each other. "Amerika" pretends to be about an imagined future Soviet occupation of the United States. But it's really about the contemporary American political debate over the nature and extent of our freedoms. And it idealizes a fringe participant in that debate, while associating everyone else with Soviet communism. There is, of course, nothing wrong with political advocacy on television, when it's open and feisty. But when political advocacy pretends to be something else, that's offensive. In fact, that's propaganda.

Food for Thought

by Bill Painter

Tiny bite-size pastry puffs are elegant filled with sour cream and as much caviar as you dare. With sparkling wine, of course!

Winter squash — acorn, butternut, Hubbard, etc. — are even sweeter and more flavorful than the summer varieties. They're high in vitamin A and beta carotene.

Savory cabbage gets sweet when it browns. Shred it and brown lightly in a non-stick skillet. Splash on a little soy sauce before serving.

Gorgeous glaze for turkey or game: maple syrup with an applejack kick. Baste often during the last 1 1/2 hours of roasting.

Who says slaw had to mean cabbage? Fine-slice celery diagonally; toss with red onion rings, sugar, vinegar, salt and pepper and a little mayonnaise.

The Nation's Child Care Crisis

By Patricia McCormack
United Press International

The lack of adequate child care is much more than a thorn in the side of America's working parents, child care experts say. It is a national problem that has reached crisis proportions.

The victims range from babies who suffer from neglect because of too few caretakers in infant care centers and elementary school children who face hours alone at home after school to parents whose careers suffer and employers who lose valuable man-hours because of child care problems.

The implications are wide ranging for both the workplace and America's future adults, say these authorities, who maintain the lack of a comprehensive national child care policy is largely to blame.

Experts from agencies such as the Children's Defense Fund, the Child Welfare League of America and university child development centers, say the child care available in America today is, at best, a haphazard patchwork.

"We must decide what resources are necessary to build a child care system that makes sense for the multiplicity of American families who need help in finding and paying for quality child care and fit these resources together in a logical system," says Helen Blank, daycare and family support services director at the Children's Defense Fund.

"The support necessary to weave our patchwork child care system into the whole cloth obviously has to be forthcoming from many sources: parents, state, local, federal government, the private sector and employers."

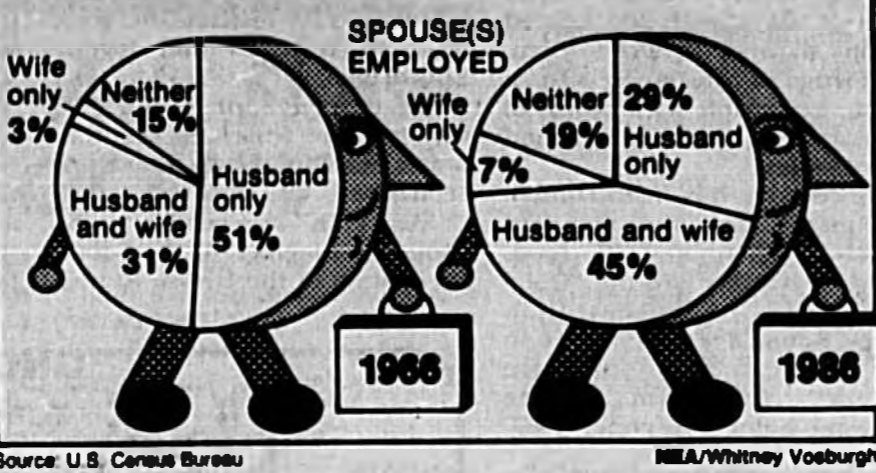

"The big story ought to be that we have a situation where in some places one worker cares for 10 infants," says Edward F. Zigler, director of the Yale Bush Center in Child Development and Social Policy.

"While we are all concerned, if we tolerate an infant in a crib all day staring at the ceiling, we are all participating in child abuse and neglect."

Zigler also points to the millions of children who are without before or after school supervision because their parents cannot afford or find adequate child care.

The National Organization for Women cites a recent Legal Defense and Education Fund fact sheet which found 7 million latchkey children under age 13, 1 million of those between 3 and 6 years

WORKING SPOUSES How patterns have changed

Source: U.S. Census Bureau
NEA/Whitney Voesbush

Work is becoming a bigger fact of life in America for husbands and wives. Both spouses work in nearly half of today's married couples - it was so for less than one-third of the marriages two decades ago.

The report noted the U.S. is alone among Western democracies in leaving the burden of child care solely with parents and cited only 2,500 U.S. employers that provide any kind of child care assistance.

The fact sheet finds the combined public and private facilities available fill only about 15 percent of the current childcare needs.

"If you think putting child care into place now is expensive," says Zigler, "wait two or three generations to see the problems we will have because we don't have child care."

Zigler predicts enormous growth in mental illness and criminality as part of the future price and believes there is already a link between the numbers of children unsupervised after school and the rate of pregnancy and drug problems among teenagers.

Dana E. Friedman, nationally known expert on child care issues and a senior research associate at the Work and Family Information Center of the Conference Board, says the plight of the one-third of all American children between 6 and 13 who are home alone after school is responsible for a new term - the three o'clock syndrome.

In a report in "The Harvard Business Review," Zigler, director of the Yale Bush Center in Child Development and Social Policy.

"While we are all concerned, if we tolerate an infant in a crib all day staring at the ceiling, we are all participating in child abuse and neglect."

Zigler also points to the millions of children who are without before or after school supervision because their parents cannot afford or find adequate child care.

Reactions to Stress Can Cause Problems

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT - When I get nervous, I repeat myself over and over. I'm alienating friends and family, which only makes me more self-conscious. Do you have any suggestions about how to manage this problem?

DEAR READER - You seem to be experiencing a type of stress reaction that feeds on itself: The more you repeat yourself, the more tense you become, since your self-confidence diminishes.

You could be helped by psychological counseling. This can help you to learn ways in which to reduce your nervousness and to discover new, more effective ways to handle stress-induced inappropriate behavior.

Although your problem seems stress-related, I'm sending you a free copy of my new Health Report on MENTAL AND EMOTIONAL ILLNESS, since it tells how to find treatment and explains how mental-health professionals differ.

DEAR DR. GOTT - Several questions in your column have addressed the problems of children with orthopedic diseases. Please tell your readers that the Shriners are very eager to help children with crippling disabilities, and at no cost to the parents.

DEAR READER - The Shriners' hospitals truly perform valuable services. Thank you for writing to remind me of the exceptional resources provided by Shriners.

DEAR DR. GOTT - About three years ago I had a serious liver infection. I still have days when I experience nausea, tiredness and diarrhea. Is this normal? How long does it take for the liver to heal?

DEAR READER - Liver infection (hepatitis) can make some patients susceptible to fatigue and intestinal symptoms long after the infection has healed and blood tests are normal. This may be due to a low-grade chronic virus infection, but no one is sure. The hepatitis that is sometimes associated with mononucleosis is notorious in this regard. With mono, the cyclic symptoms seem to be due to Chronic Epstein-Barr Virus infection, a poorly understood but real affliction.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
When East won the club ace and returned a club, declarer was right away confronted with choices.

the spades guarded, he had no choice but to throw his club 10 away and hope that East held the club eight. No such luck! Not only did South have the eight of clubs, but he also had been careful enough to watch the club spots, so he knew his eight was high.

Some things to remember. Leave open as many options as possible when forced to make an early discard. When you have 11 tricks and possibilities in other suits, the defenders are likely to get squeezed. In taking your high-card tricks, you should first take the tricks in blocked suits (in this case, diamonds), leaving yourself transportation between your hand and dummy in the other suits.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY JANUARY 8, 1986

Gains will be made in the year ahead through people with whom you share close, emotional ties. You might even enter into a commercial arrangement with a dear friend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't do things today just because everyone else is doing them if they're not in accord with your standards. Pull the plug on peer pressure. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) One of your loved ones may come under attack from an outsider today. Be sure to let this hotshot know where your true loyalties lie.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There is good in the worst of us and bad in the best of us. Try to keep this in mind today so that you view those with whom you associate realistically.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A situation is developing now that could be profitable to you, but if it isn't in accord with your business standards, it's best to pass the action.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today if you have a misunderstanding with a close friend, try to rectify it immediately. Left uncorrected too long, it might prove difficult to mend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone who has been kind to you in the past may be in dire need of your assistance today. If you make excuses for not helping, you'll regret it later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There's a possibility at this time that you might be a trifle jealous of a friend. If you don't monitor your behavior carefully today, it will be obvious to her and others.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The person you're expecting to help you with something of importance today might not be available. A pinch-hitter may step in, but he or she won't be as effective.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) When dealing with others today, graciousness and tact will accomplish your purpose. Heavy-handed methods won't do the trick, so don't try them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try to keep your financial affairs in proper balance today. If you rob Peter in order to pay Paul, you may end up with red ink in both areas.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be flexible today and try not to lock yourself into a course that will arouse opposition in others. Back off if you see unfriendly signals.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There's an obstacle to be cleared where your work is concerned today. If you hope to operate smoothly, get it out of the way early.

Host A Winning Party For Big Game Buffs On Super Bowl Sunday

On Jan. 25, it's Super Bowl Sunday and Americans from Pasadena to Pittsburgh and beyond will tune in for the Big Game. While the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Ca., is playing host to Super Bowl XXI, you can take advantage of the festive day and host a Super Bowl party of your own.

With help from experts, Kraft has put together party planning and entertaining tips and creative recipe ideas to help you throw a winning Super Bowl party, California-style.

Caroline Kriz, author of Cooking For Men Only and an authority on cooking and entertaining, and her fiancé Ronnie Bull, former star fullback of the Chicago Bears, know how to host a winning Super Bowl party with California flair.

"Super Bowl Sunday is a terrific time for a fun, low-key party," Kriz says. "This year's Pasadena location offers even more opportunity to pull off a successful party with a California theme."

If serving a full meal is part of your strategy, half time is the time to do it. Super Bowl half time lasts about 30 minutes, so serve foods that can be managed in that amount of time.

Kick off your half time buffet in true California style with Creamy Pistachio Fruit Dip, suggested by Parties Plus caterers. Made with salad dressing, sour cream and whipped topping and flavored with pistachio nuts and a hint of orange, this dip is perfect when served with a variety of fresh fruit dippers.

Sideline Salmon Supper, inspired by Celebrations caterers, features a mixture of flaked red salmon, mayonnaise, and pasteurized process cheese spread seasoned with dill weed. Served over pastry shells, it carries the California theme through deliciously.

Goal Post Potato Salad is a great side dish for a Super Bowl meal. Suggested by Someone's In The Kitchen caterers, it's made with unpeeled cooked red potato slices, salad dressing and zesty Italian dressing.

A suggestion from Along Came Mary, Banana Blueberry Cake with rich Philadelphia Brand cream cheese frosting and California pecans, caps off this truly California buffet in style.

Try these caterers' recipes at home to a 1d style to your Super Bowl Party.

SIDELINE SALMON SUPPER

- 1/2 cup celery slices
- 1 tablespoon margarine
- 1/2 pound pasteurized process cheese spread, cubed
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1 7/8-ounce can red salmon, drained, flaked

Serve pistachio dip, salmon supper and cake squares during half-time.

1/4 teaspoon dill weed
Dash of pepper
1 10-ounce package frozen puff pastry shells, baked
Sauté celery in margarine. Reduce heat. Add process cheese spread, mayonnaise and milk; stir over low heat until process cheese spread is melted. Stir in salmon, dill weed and pepper; mix well. Spoon into pastry shells. Six servings.

GOAL POST POTATO SALAD

1 cup mayonnaise-type salad dressing
1/4 cup zesty Italian dressing
6 cups cooked potato slices
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1/2 cup chopped red onion
Combine dressings. Add remaining ingredients; mix lightly. Chill. Six-eight servings.

BANANA BLUEBERRY CAKE

3/4 cup margarine
1 1/4 cups granulated sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup mashed banana
1 1/2 cups blueberries

Frosting

Beat margarine and granulated sugar until light and fluffy. Blend in eggs and vanilla. Add combined dry ingredients alternately with bananas, mixing well after each addition. Fold in blueberries. Pour into greased and floured 13 x 9-inch baking pan. Bake at 350° 35-40 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool. Frost with:

Frosting:

1 8-ounce package cream cheese, softened
1 cup sifted powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
3/4 cup chopped pecans, toasted
Combine cream cheese, powdered sugar and vanilla, mixing until well blended. Stir in pecans. 12 servings.

CREAMY PISTACHIO FRUIT DIP

1/2 cup mayonnaise-type salad dressing
1/2 cup sour cream
2 cups thawed whipped topping
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
1/4 cup chopped pistachio nuts
Combine salad dressing and sour cream; mix well. Fold in whipped topping, peel and pistachio nuts. Chill. Garnish with additional chopped pistachio nuts, if desired. Serve with fresh fruit dippers. 3 1/2 cups.

Sliced Winter Tomatoes Make Extra-Special Topping For Pizza

Sliced winter tomatoes make a special topping for a fresh tomato-olive pizza or blend well with pizza ingredients for a deep-dish pizza quiche.

Winter tomatoes are shipped pink so they'll reach supermarkets without turning to mush. For best eating and cooking results, allow the tomatoes to ripen at room temperature for a few days before using.

For a homemade pizza, use a prepared biscuit mix for the pizza crust and a deep-dish prepared pie crust for the quiche. The whole family will enjoy mozzarella-rich dishes with Italian-style ingredients and seasonings.

FRESH TOMATO-OLIVE PIZZA

1 1/2 pounds tomatoes

4 cups buttermilk baking mix
1 cup cold water
1/2 cup packaged Italian-style bread crumbs
2 cups shredded mozzarella cheese, divided
1 teaspoon oregano leaves, crushed
1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1 medium-size green pepper cut in julienne strips (1 cup)
1/2 cup pitted black olives, halved

Use tomatoes held at room temperature until fully ripe. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Core tomatoes and cut into 1/2-inch thick slices. In a medium bowl, combine buttermilk baking mix and water until smooth; form into a ball. Transfer dough to a floured board. Knead until dough is smooth, about 20 times. Evenly pat dough into a 15-inch-by-10-inch-by-1-inch jelly roll pan.

Sprinkle with bread crumbs. Then sprinkle with 1 cup mozzarella, oregano, black pepper and garlic powder. Arrange in any desired pattern the green peppers, olives and reserved tomato slices. Sprinkle with remaining 1 cup mozzarella. Bake, lightly covered with foil, until dough is fully baked, about 25 minutes. Uncover and bake until cheese melts and tomato slices are tender, 5 to 10 minutes. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 portions.

FRESH TOMATO PIZZA-QUICHE

2 medium tomatoes
1 (8-inch) frozen deep-dish pie

shell
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/2 teaspoon minced garlic
4 eggs, lightly beaten
1 cup half-and-half cream
1/2 cup shredded mozzarella cheese
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon Italian seasoning
1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper

Use tomatoes held at room temperature until fully ripe. Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Core and cut 4 slices from the widest portion of each tomato; chop remaining tomatoes. Set slices and chopped tomato aside.

Thaw pie shell slightly. Pierce pie shell on the bottom and sides with fork tines; bake for 10 minutes. Remove from oven; set

In a medium skillet, melt butter. Add onion and garlic; sauté until barely tender, about 2 minutes. Add reserved chopped tomato; continue to cook until tomato is soft, about 5 minutes. In a medium bowl, combine tomato mixture, eggs, half-and-half, mozzarella, salt, Italian seasoning and black pepper. Pour into reserved pie shell. Arrange reserved tomato slices over the top. Bake until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean, about 50 minutes. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 portions.

Culinary Celebration Ushers Start Of Carnival

By John DeMers
UPI Food Editor

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — To the rest of the world, Twelfth Night bids farewell to the extended Christmas season. To the late Germaine Cazenave Wells, it always signaled the start of Carnival.

On that day, intended to commemorate the arrival of the magi at that famous stable in Bethlehem, New Orleans has since the late 1800s begun a slow but steady descent into the madness that ends with Mardi Gras.

And few New Orleanians enjoyed that descent more than Wells, who for four decades ran Arnaud's, the landmark Creole restaurant her father founded in the French Quarter.

She even created a special recipe to reflect her passion for the city's pre-Lenten bash, packing into it several levels of richness and festivity, then calling it Cornish Hen Twelfth Night.

This year, for the first time, the Swiss-trained restaurateur who resurrected Arnaud's has designed a festive Twelfth Night menu that stresses the ties that bind Mardi Gras to the restaurant since its founding by Count Arnaud in 1918.

"Carnival is a celebration," said Archie Casbarian, who leased Arnaud's eight years ago and spent $2.5 million returning it to greatness. "This is our contribution, a culinary celebration ushering in the season."

As a tribute, the menu built around Wells' own Cornish Hen Twelfth Night could not be more appropriate. Count Arnaud was active in many Carnival "krewes" (secret social clubs that stage costume balls and raucous parades during the days before Lent).

Yet even he was a slug-a-bed compared to his daughter Germaine, who served as queen of 22 balls before her death in 1983 — more than anyone else in history.

Though the Cornish hen can be served with quite a few dishes on Arnaud's a la carte menu, Casbarian suggested his special quail consomme to kick things off lightly, Oysters Arnaud (a display of five different baked oyster dishes), the cornish hen with a small portion of fresh asparagus, and watercress salad with a creamy dressing created by Wells.

For dessert, fresh raspberries might provide just the right touch — or, for those with a bit of space left, the restaurant's Crepes Suzettes. Either way, a flaming cup of Cafe Brulot is a must.

Here is Casbarian's recipe for Cornish Hen Twelfth Night as prepared today at Arnaud's, a perfected version of the dish created by Wells. The basic preparation is not difficult, but it is a bit time-consuming.

The stuffing, of course, should be mixed in advance and refrigerated. The Bordelaise Sauce can be made a bit ahead, or if you're in a pinch, you might try one of the quality sauce mixes currently being introduced in upscale supermarkets.

CORNISH HEN TWELFTH NIGHT

6 boneless Cornish hens, approximately 8 ounces each
2 3/4 cups Stuffing (see recipe below)
1 cup red wine
1 1/4 cup Bordelaise Sauce (see recipe below)

1 1/4 cup veal (or strong chicken) stock
3 cups quartered mushrooms
2 cups diced tomatoes
Chopped parsley
6 parsley sprigs

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Stuff each hen with just under 1/2 cup stuffing and shape to look like the original small bird. To help the hen keep its shape during cooking, form a snug skirt with a 2-inch wide strip of parchment paper. Place the hens in a roast pan.

Add red wine, 1/4 cup Bordelaise Sauce, veal stock, mushrooms and tomatoes. Cover with aluminum foil and bake in the oven for 40 minutes. Remove the hens and keep them warm.

Pour the sauce into a saucepan and reduce over high heat to 2/3 its volume. Add the remaining Bordelaise Sauce, bring to a boil and reduce heat. Allow to simmer for 5 minutes.

Place each hen on a dinner plate and cover with the sauce. Sprinkle with chopped parsley, garnish with a parsley sprig and serve immediately. Serves 6.

STUFFING

7 ounces minced veal
7 ounces minced pork
4 ounces minced chicken livers
4 eggs
1/4 cup heavy cream
Salt and freshly ground black pepper
2 Tbsp brandy
2 Tbsp Marsala

1 cup chopped parsley
Place all the ingredients in a mixing bowl and mix at medium speed until the stuffing is smooth. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate until needed.

BORDELAISE SAUCE

1/2 stick butter
1/2 cup chopped shallots
2 cups red wine
1 bouquet garni
2 cloves
2 black peppercorns
1 clove garlic, skin on, cut in half
2 quarts veal (or strong chicken) stock
2 Tbsp roux (see note below)
Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste

Melt the butter in a pan over high heat, then add the shallots and cook until transparent. Add the red wine and bring to a boil, then add the bouquet garni, cloves, peppercorns, garlic and stock.

Reduce heat and simmer until the volume is reduced by half. Thicken with the roux until the sauce coats a spoon. Strain, then season to taste with salt and black pepper.

Note: Roux, the classical thickener and flavoring agent in both Creole and Cajun cuisines, is made by stirring together equal amounts of flour and oil until it turns brown. In this recipe, light brown is preferred to dark — removing the roux from heat as soon as the flour loses its "raw" taste.
