Seminole Residents Learn About Fire Protection

By DARLENE JENNINGS
Herald Staff Writer

This is the end of National Fire Prevention Week, and in Seminole County fire officials participated in a program to inform the public about protecting their homes against fire. Firefighting teams from the Seminole County, Longwood, and Altamonte Springs fire departments set up a display in the Altamonte Springs Mall, and talked to and passed out literature to the public.

Nationwide, every 45 seconds a home catches fire, according to the Insurance Information Institute (III) in Atlanta. Property damage is in the billions of dollars, and nearly 7,500 people die each year because of fire-related accidents.

In Seminole County, the county's fire district responds to 10 to 12 home fires each month, according to Joe McCluan, chief fire inspector. However, most of the calls the county responds to turn out to be smoke scares, he said.

Smoke scares occur when someone has food burning on a stove for example, and a neighbor sees smoke coming out a window and calls the fire department.

Property damage in the county has amounted to $3 million this year of which $1 million was attributed to arson, said McCluan.

According to charts designed by Ray Pippin, County fire investigator, mechanical fires are the most common types of fire accidents in the county, followed by arson and then electrical fires.

There have been 104 incidents of mechanical fires, 97 arson fires, and 64 electrical fires in the county this year, said McCluan, adding that the number of fires in the county — whatever the cause — increases each year.

McCluan attributes the increase to the increasing population in the county and to the "bad economy." "Many more arson fires are due to the state of the economy," he said. "As the economy continues to go downhill and people can't afford their house payments or car payments, they figure it's easier to collect on their insurance."

McCluan said one common type of electrical fire is one caused by leaving small appliances plugged in for many hours. "People will leave their toasters on around 8 a.m. and by 4 p.m. we're responding to a fire," he said.

In the last few years smoke detectors have become popular devices for early warning against the threat of fire in the home.

In Seminole County, smoke detectors have been required by local building codes to be installed in all new homes since 1975. One of the displays at the firefighters' booth — a burned smoke detector — symbolized how this inexpensive device saved the lives of a Wekiva family.

"The children and a babysitter were in another room when the TV set caught fire," said McCluan. "The smoke detector gave them plenty of notice to get out of the house."

According to National Fire Safety Council literature, fire has four increasingly dangerous stages. It is during the first stage that a smoke detector can do its job. During the first stage of a fire, the fire gives off invisible particles that can be detected by the device and the alarm will go off.

The fire smolders during the second stage and develops into a flame during the third stage, and by the time it reaches the fourth stage, the fire is burning out of control.

However, McCluan noted that during a fire flames are the last on the list of killers. Most people die from lack of oxygen and hot air.

Even though by 1980 nearly 40 million American families had smoke detectors in their homes, the people who are most likely to die in fires are the least likely to have detectors according to a federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) Report.

The FEMA study has identified these groups as the ones lacking smoke detectors: 67 percent of rented households; 66 percent of households that earn less than $10,000; 65 percent of non-white households, and 61 percent of households headed by a person aged 65 or over.

What's In A Name? Well, If It's Cinzano...

By TENI YARBOROUGH

Cinzano.

Catchy name, but it really doesn't mean a thing.

Still, T.G.I. Friday's restaurants throughout Florida, including the one in Altamonte Springs, opted for the name rather than use Cinzano, the correct spelling for the brand name of a popular wine and vermouth.

What the restaurants did, simply, is convert the "C" to an "O" with white paint, and each of their outdoor table umbrellas carries the name.

But why is that so interesting? Well, about half a mile from the restaurant, Noble Romans Pizza in Longwood, has the same umbrellas, but bearing the unaltered name Cinzano.

When a curious Evening Herald reporter asked a waiter at T.G.I. Friday's why the sign was changed, he was told there is a state law that prohibits advertising alcoholic beverages in the state. The restaurant's regional manager, Larry Preston, said the sign was altered to avoid violating the law.

Upon further investigation, it has been determined there is a law prohibiting an establishment from advertising alcoholic beverages on the exterior of the building. According to state Department of Beverage officials, the law does not include signs posted in windows yet visible from the exterior — only advertisements clearly on the exterior of the establishment. However, they said the umbrellas advertising Cinzano are in violation of the state law.

So it appears Noble Romans could be in violation of the state law and T.G.I. Friday's is in the clear, according to Perry Kirkland of the district Division of Alcoholic Beverages, Firearms and Tobacco.

"T.G.I. Friday's is not actually advertising Cinzano," Kirkland said. "Cinzano is a meaningless word as far as we are concerned. However, if upon investigation we find Noble Romans is using the signs with Cinzano displayed on the exterior of the establishment, they will be found in violation of the state law." But there could still be a problem for T.G.I. Friday's. Cinzano is an import distributed solely in this country by Coca-Cola through a subsidiary, the Wine Spectator, See WHAT'S, Page 2A

Taxes Tax Base Estimate Error May Raise Sanford's Property Tax

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford City Commission at a 7 p.m. meeting Monday will be faced with the task of raising its property tax rate for the second time in two weeks to fund the $7.8 million budget for fiscal 1981-82.

Two weeks ago the commission voted unanimously to adopt a tax rate of $5.88 per $1,000 assessed valuation, an increase of 23.6 cents per $1,000 over the 1980-81 rate of $5.64.

However, the city has received the bad news from Property Appraiser Bill Suber that the city has lost another $2.7 million of its tax base.

Suber's office told the city the lowered taxable property value is due to errors in the tax roll plus the fact that the Auto Train property went into receivership.

Assistant Property Appraiser Terry Goebel said a major reason for the reduction in Sanford's tax roll was the loss of Auto-Train which had a taxable value of $1.5 million. In addition, the tax assessment on some properties was reduced when those owners brought errors to the attention of the property appraiser's office. Other property appraisal figures were reduced by the local tax adjustment board after public hearings.

The new tax rate which the city must set to fund its budget for the new year is $5.95, an increase of 7 cents per $1,000 of assessed valuation. The new raise coupled with the raise two weeks ago will mean an increase in property taxes for city residents of 31.3 cents over last fiscal year's tax rate.

If a Sanford home is valued at $25,000 and the owner is not eligible for homestead exemption, he will be paying $7.83 more in property taxes than last year.

Property owners who have lived in the state for the past five years are eligible for a $20,000 homestead exemption.

Sanford City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles said the increase in the property tax rate is due largely to the vote of the people last year to increase the homestead exemption.

"Most Florida cities can look forward to similar property tax increases next year again when homestead exemptions go to $25,000," Knowles said, noting that the cities will also lose revenues as inventory taxes are phased out as a source of city revenue by an act of the Florida Legislature.

Cities will have further fiscal woes during the 1982 fiscal year when federal revenue sharing funds are slated to be reduced by 12 percent, Knowles said. This reduction will mean a loss of $44,191.20 in revenues to Sanford, he added.

The reduction in federal revenue sharing funds translates into a need to increase property taxes next year by about 21.3 cents per $1,000 assessed valuation, Knowles said. "Couple that with the increased homestead exemption loss and Sanford will be confronted with a 50 cents per $1,000 tax rate increase in its 1982-83 budget year even if a no-increase budget is maintained," the city manager pointed out.

Knowles said locally elected officials are caught in a very undesirable position with the public demanding services while it doesn't want to pay for the services with increased taxes and in fact is crying to eliminate property taxes all together.

He said on the other side the state Legislature limits the taxing authority of local government. At the same time the Legislature requires local government — cities and counties — to do certain things while providing no funding and initiates increased tax exemptions resulting in revenue losses. Examples of the state mandating that local governments undertake functions without providing funding, Knowles said, are: "comprehensive planning; quarterly water samples; annual audits according to state requirements on state forms; relocating city utility lines when the state moves a road and hundreds of others."

Knowles said both the public and the Legislature are ignoring the nationwide inflationary trend sending up costs for local governments.

Increased homestead exemptions have created a unique problem for local governments in Florida, Knowles said. "Many homesteads no longer pay taxes

Electric Bills Here's How To Reduce Them

By DIANE M. JEFFERSON
Herald Staff Writer
First of Three Parts

Want to lower your electric bill? That's easy — just turn off lights in empty rooms, take a bath instead of a shower, turn your air conditioner to 90 degrees when you leave the house to go to work. Right?

WRONG.

Turning off unnecessary lights is certainly a helpful idea, but lighting, cooking, and using small appliances like a TV set or a curling iron account for only 17 percent of the energy you use every month. It's just a small part of your total electric bill.

Most of your energy dollars are spent heating and cooling your home, based on Florida Power Light Co. (FPL) estimates. A whopping 64 percent of your electric bill comes from air conditioning and heating, with your water heater gobbling up another 19 percent.

The most effective way to reduce your heating and cooling costs is to insulate your home properly, says FPL's district manager, Bruce Berger.

Berger explains that many homes built 15 to 20 years ago do not have adequate insulation today because they were not constructed to be used with air conditioners.

"Homes were built then for air flow but not for air conditioning," he says. "They were constructed to let the air pass through the home. With air conditioning, you want to do just the opposite. You want to keep an air 'envelope' around your home, making it as airtight as possible. You don't want air escaping." An FPL consumer booklet, "Guide to Home Insulation," says there is little or no insulation in most Florida homes. It says that in homes made of concrete block it would be difficult to add insulation to the walls. Instead, try to better insulate your attic, it recommends.

Insulation resists heat flow. It keeps the heat inside a building in the winter, and outside in the summer. Instead of measuring the value of insulation by inches of thickness, its effectiveness is rated by a figure called an "R-value," which stands for the resistance ("R") of an insulating material to heat.

Different types of materials have different R-values. Just because a material seems thicker does not mean it will have a higher R-value.

Types of insulation include blankets, rolls of glass fiber or rock wool; batts, blankets pre-cut into four-foot or eight-foot lengths; blowing wool, loose insulation which must be blown in by a contractor; cellulose fiber, recycled paper particles treated with chemicals and blown in by a contractor; liquid foamed plastic, installed by a contractor; rigid foam plastic sheets or boards; and aluminum reflective foil.

If your home has a low-pitched roof, you may not have much space to move in and it may be difficult to install insulation yourself. The pamphlet recommends calling a reputable contractor to blow in insulation for you. However, be sure to tell the contractor you want a minimum R-value of R-19 for your attic. If he says, "I'll add six or nine inches," that is not good enough. Inches don't matter. The R-value does. The minimum FPL recommends is R-19. The higher the insulation's R-number, the higher the resistance to heat.

If your attic has a sufficient crawl space, you can install the insulation yourself. The pamphlet says if you have less than six inches of old insulation (you have no way of measuring the R-value), probably you need more to do the job properly. If you have none, or less than three inches, add a minimum of R-19. With three inches of insulation or more and insulation with at least an R-value of R-11. Values greater than R-19 can be helpful, because good insulation of the attic floor will partly compensate for poorly insulated walls, the pamphlet says.

If there is no insulation in your attic, lay R-19 batts or blankets between the beams (joists). The foil side is placed against the attic floor.

If there already is insulation in your attic, add new batts on top of the old, but slash the foil with a knife or remove it entirely. The foil acts as a vapor barrier, and you don't want a vapor barrier on top of the older insulation.

Be sure ventilation openings in the eaves are not blocked. For more information on the way to install insulation in your home, contact your area FPL representative.

Last, but not least, cracks around doors and windows let your precious heating and cooling dollars fly out the window. Weatherstripping around doors and windows will cut the loss of your conditioned air inside your home. Caulking around windows and moldings, where you "see the daylight through," keeps hot air in during cold winter nights and cool air in during the torrid summer months.

Some Nice Honeymoon

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UPI) — Wedded bliss was short-lived for Saunders Grim. He thought he was going on his honeymoon but ended up back in jail.

The 30-year-old prison camp escapee was arrested Wednesday — the day Kalamazoo County officials saw his name under the "Marriage Licenses" section of the local newspaper.

Two weeks earlier Grim had walked away from the Grass Lake, Mich., prison camp where he was serving a 10-year sentence for burglary. As a trusty at the camp he was given periodical furloughs.

FALL FOR ART

Art lovers began to gather early in downtown Sanford for the Fall For Art Festival which runs until 5 p.m. Saturday and from noon until 5 p.m. Sunday. Sponsored by the Sanford Downtown Business Association, the Sanford-Seminole Art Association, and the city of Sanford, the festival features prominent artists from the central Florida area as well as several bands and dance troupes.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Murder Investigators Focus On Moslem Fanatics

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI)—A defense Ministry investigation into the killing of President Anwar Sadat has focused on a Moslem extremist group that considers present Egyptian leaders to be "the dogs and scum of Islam."

Four years ago, the group made headlines by kidnapping and killing a former Cabinet minister who was also a renowned Moslem sheikh.

The group calls itself the Moslem Society, but government-controlled media refer to it as "Al Takfir Wal Hijra." Translated loosely, it means a group that considers society heretical and advocates retreat from it.

A Stocking Stuffer

NASSAU, Bahamas (UPI)—For the conspicuous consumer who has everything, a Christmas gift suggestion from the Bahamas: a week in what may be the world's most expensive hotel suite?

The Paradise Grand Hotel announced Friday it will open its penthouse early this winter with a daily rental of $4,000 a day, European plan.

Naturally it includes a private chef, maid and your own butler, but you'll have to furnish the food and drink.

Germans Protest Nukes

BOON, West Germany (UPI)—Tens of thousands of protestors opposing plans to put new U.S. nuclear missiles in Europe marched through the capital of Bonn today in the biggest demonstration in West German postwar history.

Signs carried by some demonstrators urged West Germany to "get out of NATO"—the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, which plans to place hundreds of new American nuclear missiles across western Europe.

...What's In

according to Pat Matala, the company's local marketing manager.

"I've talked with our legal offices concerning Friday's misuse of the name and, needless to say, they weren't real happy about it," Natale said. "We know about and agree with the state law interpretation concerning advertising alcoholic beverages, but it didn't make them happy to learn of the name alteration."

Natale said the company does not intend to take immediate action against T.G.I. Friday's, but "we will be watching to make sure this doesn't become a widespread practice with our umbrellas in Florida." Natale said any action against the restaurant would only "create more problems than it's worth at the moment."

T.G.I. Friday's officials could not be reached to determine whether the altered umbrellas will be removed.

Joe Greene, owner of Noble Romans Pizzeria, said he wasn't aware his restaurant was in violation of a state law.

"If I find out we are in violation and it's illegal to have the umbrellas out front with the name Cinzano on them, I don't have to wait to be told to take them down," Greene said. "I'll take them down. They are about worn out anyway and besides, we don't even sell Cinzano products. We just use the umbrellas for color."

When Greene was informed of T.G.I. Friday's alteration of the name to Cinzano, he said he would consider doing the same until the umbrellas could be replaced. But, if the Cinzano legal offices are planning to crack down on such misuse of the name, Greene said he would be hesitant to do so.

"If there's a problem, I'll just get rid of them," he said. If a company is in violation of the alcoholic-beverage advertising law, the Division of Alcoholic Beverages, Tobacco and Firearms issues a notice to the owner to remove or correct the violation, Kirkland said. If the company does not correct the situation, court action can be taken, resulting in the company's liquor license being revoked, or suspended or a fine of up to $1,000, he said.

"I have assigned an officer to investigate the two restaurants, and they should be getting to it real soon," Kirkland said. "We've been tied up with a court case, but the case was continued, so now we can get to this situation."

Damage Estimate $500,000

Apartment Fire Leaves 20 Homeless

Sixty firefighters from Seminole and Orange counties Orlando, and Winter Park responded to a blaze at the Carlton Arms apartment complex near Winter Park Friday morning which has left 20 people homeless—most of them elderly.

The fire started in a carport, engulfed 11 cars in flames, then gutted a building containing 12 town houses.

Damage to the two-story brick building and the 11 cars, including a reconditioned vintage Corvette, was estimated at an "extremely conservative figure of $500,000," according to Orange County Fire Department spokesman Jim Fitzgerald.

Although the fire was in Orange County, a Seminole County unit responded to the call at 9:54 a.m. Friday.

An Orange County firefighter was overcome by smoke and heat, and another was treated for minor burns, but no other injuries were reported, Fitzgerald said.

"The reason for the injuries being so low was that it happened in the daytime when most people are at work," said Fitzgerald. "If it had happened at night, the loss of life would have been great."

ARMED ROBBERY

A lone gunman entered the Walgreen's liquor store, 2942 S. Orlando, Dr., Sanford, Thursday at 6:25 p.m. and took an undetermined amount of cash and one bottle of cognac, according to Sanford police.

Richard G. Ducceschi, 24, the store clerk, told police a man came into the store and then left. A few minutes later the same man returned and brought a bottle of cognac to the checkout counter. Ducceschi said the man then pulled up the T-shirt he was wearing, revealing a tarnished handgun. The man ordered

TILES RIPPED OFF

Approximately 43 acoustic ceiling tiles and a 20,000 BTU air conditioner were stolen from two empty office buildings on S. Orlando Drive, Sanford, around 11 a.m. Friday, according to a sheriff's report.

The merchandise was valued at $479.

PIGGY BANK STOLEN

Nancy Riley, 49, of 715 Holly Hill, Casselberry, told Seminole County sheriff's deputies that someone entered her house between 1:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Friday and stole her plastic piggy bank which was half-filled with American coins.

The "bank robbers" reportedly came in through an unlocked bedroom window.

Ms. Riley told the sheriff's deputies she has seen several prowlers around her home in recent weeks.

Bow And Arrow Comes Of Age

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — As children, most of us have played Robin Hood or cowboys and Indians, and shot a bow and arrow at least once.

That is why a visit to Bear Archery's horseshoe-shaped, 165,000-square-foot manufacturing plant just west of Gainesville on Interstate 75 stirs memories of childhood fantasies.

The indoor wall murals depicting hunting scenes and the stuffed animals and animal heads throughout the plant add to the nostalgia.

But the kid's simple forked stick and string have given way to $100 fiberglass compound bows with blue magnesium handles, eccentric wheels to reduce the weight at full draw and aluminum arrows with interchangeable screw-in heads.

Founded by Fred Bear, a lifelong sportsman who will turn 80 next March, Bear Archery, now wholly owned by Walter Kidde and Company, Inc., of Clifton, N.J. (they also own Jacuzzi), supplies 40-60 percent of the world archery market.

Bear was born and raised in Carlisle, Pa., and began gun hunting with his father when he was 6. At 21, after learning the tool and dye business, he moved to Detroit, Mich., to work in the infant auto manufacturing industry.

During the Depression, the plant where he worked burned to the ground and he was out of a job.

About this time, Bear saw a film made by California sportsman Arthur Young recording a hunt in Alaska with bow and arrow. Bear was fascinated.

"I'd shot some game with guns, but there didn't seem to be much of a challenge," the lanky, 6-foot charmer of Bear Archery told UPI in an interview. "I wanted to try the bow and arrow."

But, as one Bear official said, "at that time, you could have fit all the bow hunters in the state of Michigan in a Model-T Ford." Bear could not find archery tackle, so he set about to design his own.

"We went hungry a few times," Bear said. "I not only had to make a product but also create a market. So I got in the promotion business."

Bear brought pictures of some of his kills — grizzly bears, mostly, but also moose, elk and deer — to the Detroit newspapers, which gave the novel photos of the bow-and-arrow hunter and his game prominent display.

The business grew and later moved to Grayling, Mich. Two years ago, pressed by rising labor costs, Bear Archery moved to Gainesville.

Bear has produced 20 films, appeared frequently on ABC's American Sportsman series and taken more than 100 big game animals, including six world records, two of which still stand — the Alaska brown bear and the stone sheep.

In his 1976 book, "The Adventures of Fred Bear," he describes how on May 10, 1960, he took the 1,200-pound brown bear, whose towering hulk stands stuffed in the tour lobby at the Gainesville plant.

"I took the lead and got up to within 20 yards of the brownie. He was standing broadside eating something as I loosed an arrow into his mid-section and the air was immediately full of action. The bear growled and spun around in circles. The hit was good and I felt sure of my bear."

Bear was a prime mover in getting states to open special bow-hunting seasons, which normally run as much as 10 weeks before gun-hunting seasons.

"You don't expect to get anything when you hunt with a bow," he said. "The success ratio in hunting deer with a bow is about 5 percent."

Bear has spent much time campaigning for "intelligent wildlife management," noting that "we're losing 4,000 acres a day to concrete and asphalt and a wildlife habitat the size of the state of Delaware every year."

"It seems we're called on to enjoy the outdoors at a lower cost to the deer population," he said. And that is where the bow and arrow comes in.

With the bow, the hunter must get close — within 20-30 yards if he hopes to be successful. The animal has an advantage over the "clumsy, two-legged, upright creature," the bow hunter said.

"You don't go hunting to kill, you go hunting to hunt ... there are hunters and there are killers," said Bear, whose trophies include a Bengal tiger from India, a Cape buffalo, an African lion and two Arctic polar bears.

"To the true sportsman, the kill is anti-climax."

ANWAR SADAT

Sadat Buried In Hero's Grave

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Anwar Sadat was laid to rest today in a hero's grave in a state funeral attended by three former U.S. presidents honoring the assassinated Egyptian leader who restored Egypt's pride in war, then made the first peace between an Arab nation and Israel.

As Sadat's widow Jihan watched, clutching a handkerchief to her mouth and sobbing, the coffin was lowered into a niche beneath the Unknown Soldier's memorial, which is to bear the inscription "he lived for peace and died for principles."

But the ceremonies for the 1978 Nobel Peace Prize winner were a somber contrast to those for his predecessor, Gamal Abdel Nasser, in 1970 when millions of Egyptians poured into the streets lining the funeral procession in a hysterical outburst of mourning.

Heavily armed troops kept all but the 800 invited mourners away from the funeral for the fallen 62-year-old leader, who was gunned down Tuesday by Moslem fundamentalists while he was reviewing the parade commemorating the eighth anniversary of the start of the Yom Kippur War.

A starkly simple prayer service in a mosque preceding the main ceremony was attended by only 30 male relatives and friends of Sadat, who stunned the world in 1977 by going to Jerusalem to plead for peace and then signed a treaty two years later with Israel.

Former U.S. presidents Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter were with the mourners watching the burial in which princes and foreign ministers, marched — in temperatures nearing 90 degrees — behind the horse-drawn caisson bearing the coffin of Sadat in the half-mile procession to his grave behind Egypt's Unknown Soldier Monument about 1,200 feet from where he was assassinated.

A surprise dignitary was the son of the shah, Shah Reza II, whose father was given refuge by Sadat when he was a pariah among world leaders and dying of cancer last summer. After the burial Mrs. Sadat kissed him on each cheek before driving off in a black limousine.

...Sanford Property Tax

to provide public services they are receiving," Knowles said. Meanwhile, the exemptions mean other homeowners are being taxed beyond the cost of services they receive to subsidize that loss, he said.

Knowles said, the 1980 census information for Sanford showed 9,035 housing units in the city. "If it is rationalized that homeowners pay the municipal property tax levy either directly or indirectly through service and product costs (for commercial properties), each Sanford homeowner would need to pay at least $136.55 as their equal share of the real estate tax, plus all other service fees and taxes," he said. Under the $25,000 homestead exemption, each homeowner to produce $136.55 in real estate tax revenue, would have to carry a taxable value of $47,941. This indicates a municipality should not annex residential properties with homes valued at less than $40,000, Knowles said, because those properties will require others to subsidize the costs of public operating services.

Another way to look at the problem would be to encourage multi-family apartments, commercial, and industrial properties to be constructed or annexed to carry the costs of public services, he said. "But you will find the existing public opposed to this type higher density, crowded, traffic generating, populous," Knowles said.

Local governments loss of revenue, through public, statewide, exemption vote, is further compounded by inflation, he said. To stay abreast of costs, local governments must continue to grow through new construction to add to their tax base. This route is a never ending cycle since new construction, while adding tax revenue, within a year becomes a user that increases governmental costs, Knowles said. Therefore, still further new construction must be generated and that cycle can not stop without creating economic difficulties, he said.

High interest rates for construction and mortgage money has the effect of slowing and stopping the building cycle. Yet low interest and ready money creates over-building which again slows the building cycle. Therefore, Florida communities must watch warily as the building construction surges and ebbs since the future will bring a time certain when the building industry can not be depended upon as a main stabilizing influence for local governmental services, Knowles said.

Local governmental officials must look and think now of ways to reduce governmental responsibilities to be all things to all people, he said. "This has grown over the prosperous years and it was popular. But people are becoming weary of paying taxes they consider might be the responsibility of others. This is not to say that certain services would not be nice or desirable, if someone else paid for them."

Instead, governmental officials need to consider the time here when they can be innovative and resourceful enough to take government out of non-essential services or to reduce drastically government's part in any non-essential service. Possibly local government may provide a facility that is turned over to a citizen group to fund the operation and maintenance," Knowles said.

It Was All Downhill For Bessie Love: Dead In '31?

LONDON (UPI) — She was a Texas cowpuncher's daughter and a rival to Mary Pickford as the darling of early movies, but she gave up the bright lights of Hollywood so long ago that even many ardent film buffs thought she had passed on.

In fact, a recent book of biographies listed Bessie Love as having died in 1931.

But beautiful Bessie, born Juanita Horton in Midland, Texas, in 1898 is alive and happy in her adopted London where she has lived since 1933 and become a British citizen.

She made brief trips to Hollywood in 1950 and 1977, but London has been her home for 36 years.

"I started at the top and worked down," she often describes her movie career with a laugh.

But the truth is that Bessie Love was one of the biggest of early Hollywood stars and some thought she, prettier than Mary Pickford and as good an actress, would become "America's Sweetheart", the title that descended on Miss Pickford.

She made 120 films, starring in most of them. Then she gave it up practically at the peak of her career after easily making the transition from silent films to the talkies and winning an Oscar nomination for her role in MGM's first musical "Broadway Melody." She came to London on a holiday, liked it, and settled in London with her daughter Patricia, the child her marriage to William Hawks, brother of famed screen director Howard Hawks. Her move to London came just after her divorce from Hawks.

Unlike other early movie stars who rushed into print with the details of their life stories, Bessie seldom talked her personal life and the personal lives of the stars she knew in those pioneer days despite lucrative offers to do so.

Miss Love endeared herself to the British by remaining through the bombing blitz on London and working for the Red Cross. She was so anxious to do her bit she worked for Michael Balcon at Ealing Studios as a continuity girl when no role was available. She never worried about billing, taking any part that came along, grateful to be working to an audience.

Among her Hollywood films were Conan Doyle's "Lost World", Donald Crisp's West Point drama, "Dress Parade", "Human Wreckage", "Hollywood Revue" and "Chasing Rainbows". But most of her silent performances were on perishable nitrate film and are gone forever. In Britain she played in the boxoffice film "Sunday Bloody Sunday", Vanessa Redgrave's "Isadora" as well as more than a score of plays.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Reagan Effort To Stem

Refugee Tide Begins Today

MIAMI (UPI)—President Reagan's interdiction program to slow the flow of Haitian refugees into south Florida begins today.

Capt. Ernest Allan, 7th Coast Guard District operations officer, said Friday the Coast Guard cutter Hamilton should be on station to begin its patrol operation in the Windward Passage between Haiti and Cuba late today.

He said the cutter's mission is to intercept vessels leaving Haiti and turn them back if they are carrying illegal immigrants to the United States.

No Water Restrictions, Yet

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) — South Florida water managers say that instead of imposing strict water use restrictions right now, they are going to lower water levels in canals.

But Sheila Middaugh, a spokeswoman for the South Florida Water Management District said the governing board of the 16-county district didn't "rule out the use of restrictions at a later date" during its meeting Friday.

She acknowledged that the lowering of water levels comes at the start of south Florida's growing season. But she said it puts farmers "on notice right at the start of the dry season. It was thought they could probably figure a way to work within it if they knew how we were going to operate."

Orange Crop Off Slightly

LAKELAND (UPI) — The Department of Agriculture has issued its first estimate on the 1981-82 Florida citrus crop and the effects of the January freeze on the orange crop are evident.

The USDA estimated the orange crop Friday at 166 million, a drop of 4 percent from the 172.8 million boxes harvested last year, but 18 percent below the pre-freeze estimate of 203 million boxes.

The USDA estimated the juice yield of the new crop at 1.36 gallons of concentrate per 1.35 bushel box, up from last year's freeze-lowered yield of 1.21 gallons, and down slightly from the 1.39 gallons-per-box the season before.

Home Loan Rates To Fall?

UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL.
A spot check of financial institutions around Florida indicates bankers and savings and loan officials are cautiously optimistic about the impact of all-savers certificates on home loan rates.

William Hussey, president of the Florida Savings and Loan League, says some institutions are reporting as much as 35 percent of their all-savers money has come from new money—meaning over the long run there should be more cash available for loans.

The all-savers certificates were created by the government to help prop up the sagging savings and loan industry. They are attractive to investors earning more than $25,000 a year because they offer tax-free interest up to $1,000 per individual and $2,000 per couple.

Gone With The Tide

ST. PETERSBURG (UPI) — Although a shellfishing ban remains in effect in three Gulf Coast counties, officials are hopeful this fall's red tide infestation won't last long.

"We are hopeful still it is a short-lived bloom," marine biologist Beverly Roberts said Friday.

She said samples taken both near-shore and off-shore from Pinellas County to Lee County Friday showed the heaviest concentrations of the fish-killing organisms were off Sarasota and Charlotte counties. But she said that on the whole, they were diminishing.

NATION IN BRIEF

Libya's Khadafy Ordered

Reagan's Assassination

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Reagan did not attend the funeral of Anwar Sadat because of reports Libyan President Moammar Khadafy ordered teams of former Green Berets to assassinate Reagan, NBC Magazine said.

CIA agents reported Khadafy ordered Reagan's assassination after two Libyan jets were shot down by U.S. planes on Aug. 19, 1981, NBC said Friday.

The FBI and the Secret Service the hit teams would try to kill Reagan and Vice President George Bush while they attended Sadat's funeral.

Bush: Khadafy Terrorist

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President George Bush characterizes Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy as the world's foremost terrorist who symbolized his attitude by rejoicing at the death Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Still Shrouded In Mystery

NEW LONDON, Conn. (UPI) — The image of a scourged, crucified body on the mysterious Shroud of Turin is that of a man, but the world may never know if it was the burial cloth of Jesus Christ, an intensive scientific study has found.

A group of 45 scientists who participated in the three-year Shroud of Turin project and gathered for a three-day symposium to discuss the study, said Friday the "unique and remarkable" image of a crucified man is not the product of an artist or forgery.

But despite exhaustive tests, the team of scientists has been unable to disprove or prove conclusively the 14-foot long linen is the 1st century burial cloth of Jesus.

LMHS's history.

The LMHS volleyball team recently earned its first victory. On October 1, they played against Lake Brantley and won by scores of 15-0 and 15-4.

The Cross County records are now as follows:

Top 5 boys — Mark Blythe, 17:57, 10th grade; Jim Shepherd, 18:24, (9th); Brent Blakely, 18:46 (10th); Mike Young, 19:03 (9th); and Mark Blackman, 19:24, (10th).

Top 5 girls — Kim Averill, 12:49, (9th); Andrea Beardslee, 14:36, (9th); Larra Hall, 15:05, (9th); Sara Karen 15:08 (10th); and Cindy Mill, 15:18, (10th).

Some of next week's events are: Monday, Oct. 12 — Seminole County Postal Run at Lyman High, 8 p.m. Volleyball match against Seminole High, Home, 3:30 p.m.

Wednesday, Oct. 14 — Freshman football game against Lake Howell.

Thursday, Oct. 15 — JV football schedule open. Volleyball match at Lyman — 3:30 p.m.

Getting Involved Is More Fun

Why do some students hate school while others love it? This has been a question that baffles many students as well as adults. If this question baffles you, ask some students at SHS why they like or dislike school.

The reasons vary. "I hate school because it's boring." "I hate school because the teachers don't care." "I just plain hate it." These are some of the reasons I was given.

That may depress you. If it doesn't, it should. Well, to cheer you up, I asked some other students why they like school. "I like school because my friends are here." "I like school because it is never boring. There is always something going on." "I like school at SHS because the teachers and administration are really involved with the students and the school." "I like being able to get involved."

Of course, the good outweighs the bad. If the students who hate school would get involved, they would suddenly find themselves loving school. All of the students who say they hate school are the ones who aren't involved. They just come to school, go to their classes, and go home. The ones who love school are the students who are in clubs, and other extra-curricular activities.

COMMENTARY

school years go by wasted. They're too precious.

As I look back over my past years at SHS, I have no regrets about being in any of the clubs, or going to any of the activities provided at SHS.

It's never too late to join in. Become involved. Have fun while you can. This might be your last chance.

One of the most exciting new programs at SHS this year is class for gifted students called Futuristics.

Every day during sixth period a group of 15 students led by Mrs. Anna McCarthy get together and explore the future. They do this by looking into energy, government, science, medicine, social roles, family and the entertainment of the 21st century.

The Futuristics class will have a number of guest speakers, field trips, simulation games, debates, and futuristic predictions. "Futuristics is a unique type of learning experience. I can't wait until we get further into the studies," said Patti Edgemon. A futuristics student.

The students enrolled in this course vary in their personalities. There are two football players, and all of the other students are outstanding not only in scholastics but also in school spirit.

The purpose of this class is not to set these students apart from the others at SHS, but to use their special skills to prepare them for the future. "These leaders of tomorrow will be prepared for the future," said Mrs. McCarthy.

Educators To Attend Meeting

Ninety Seminole County educators will participate in the 1981 convention of the Florida Council for Exceptional Children scheduled Oct. 15 to 17 at the Holiday Inn on International Drive, Orlando.

Co-chairmen for the convention, sponsored by Seminole County Chapter 921, are Martin Kirach of Longwood Elementary School and Sherrill Casey of Idyllwild Elementary.

Seminole County special-education teachers participating in the programs during the three-day convention include: Dr. Gail Davis, clinical psychologist with the school system, who will speak on "School Phobia — Is Homebound Placement the Answer or Is there a Better Way?"

John Dimitry of Lake Mary High School will speak on the productivity-employment program.

Jean Washburn instructor of children with specific learning disabilities (SLD) at Sanford Middle School, is a candidate for special-education teacher of the year.

Office Building Opens In Altamonte Springs

Feldman Brothers of Florida, builders for over two generations, have announced the opening of Atrium III, an office building in Altamonte Springs. Located at Palm Springs Drive and Crane's Roost Boulevard, the 24,000-square-foot building opened on Oct. 1.

Corporations such as NCR Corp., Thriftpak of Florida and Aloe International have chosen Atrium III as their new headquarters. Occupancy by tenants started Sept. 1 during the last of the construction of the new building. The property, situated next to the Altamonte Mall, had over 90 percent of the building occupied upon opening.

Companies interested in leasing space can contact Feldman Brothers at 499 Crane's Roost Blvd., Suite 200, Altamonte Springs 32701, or call 830-9090.

Hospital Wins 2 Awards

Winter Park Memorial Hospital has received two awards from the Public Relations Council of the Florida Hospital Association.

First-place recognition was awarded in the "Special Public" category for the publication "Physicians' Office Staff Manual." The book was written to assist Winter Park Memorial's staff physicians' office personnel with daily operational questions about the hospital.

In the "Total Public Relations Programs" category, Winter Park Memorial won a second-place award for the implementation of its logotype throughout the hospital. Uses of the new logo includes such numerous adaptations as stationery, trash cans, hospital vehicles, name pins, and T-shirts, to name a few.

Anti-Brucellosis Program

Some of Florida's more progressive cattle producers are now in a position to reap the first benefits of the accelerated program to eradicate the cattle disease brucellosis from the state.

"We now have more than 3,000 herds eligible for certification," said State Veterinarian Dr. C.L. Campbell. "That means owners of those herds were in the forefront when testing accelerated last fall, and are now going to be the first to also enjoy the fruits of the program with easier and less restrictive rules on selling and moving their cattle through the channels of commerce."

The 3,143 herds currently eligible for certification represent about 15 percent of the state's estimated 21,000 herds. To be eligible for brucellosis certification testing, all cattle in a herd must already have been tested negative once in the last 10 to 14 months. Another negative test now qualifies the herd for certification for one year.

REALTORS' NEW OFFICERS

Bob Caldwell, immediate past president; Hugh Alger, director; Carolyn Bryce, Realtor Associate chairman; and Roy Plocki, director.

Interest Rates Bugging You? Try This

Representatives of Central Florida's home building, real estate and automobile industries have urged residents to send keys to President Reagan and their congressmen as a symbol of discontent over persistent high interest rates.

A press conference at the Home Builders Association (HBA) of Mid-Florida's office in Orlando officially kicked off "Unlock the Economy Week," a national campaign to pressure President Reagan and Congress into acting to lower the interest rates.

HBA president Michael Ashington-Pickett said interest rates for new home loans in the 17-18 percent range are smothering the home building industry in Central Florida, as well as other credit-sensitive businesses such as automobile dealerships.

"High interest rates for home mortgages and construction loans have plunged the nation's housing industry into the deepest and most prolonged recession since World War II," Ashington-Pickett said. "Even in Florida, where demand is strong, starts are down by 30 percent because home buyers can't afford housing at these high rates."

To bring the interest rates down to an acceptable level, this national coalition of associations is urging a three-pronged approach, Ashington-Pickett said. They are asking that the federal deficit be held to $42.5 billion in fiscal 1982 and balanced by fiscal 1984; the Federal Reserve Board allow the money supply to increase at the high end of its monetary targets; and that the next vacancy on the Federal Reserve Board be filled by a representative of small business.

Cattle, Oranges Pace 1% Cash Decline

Lower prices for cattle and oranges contributed to a one percent decline in Florida cash receipts for crops and livestock in 1980, Commissioner of Agriculture Doyle Conner has reported.

The 1980 cash receipts total came in at $3.804 billion, down from the final 1979 cash total of $3.851 billion, Conner reported, based on an update from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service.

Much of the downturn can be traced to the decline in livestock prices in 1980, which were reduced by five percent from 1979. This was the first decline in livestock receipts since 1974. Livestock sales accounted for 25.1 percent of all cash receipts in Florida last year.

Richard Small, chief statistician with the Florida Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, Orlando, said vegetable marketings also dropped in 1980, by two percent from 1979. Lower prices received for tomatoes and cabbage caused that drop.

During the first seven months of this year, however, crop prices are rising by an estimated 11 percent over the same period of 1980, Small reported. For the period, crop receipts are estimated up about 12 percent and livestock prices are up about five percent from the previous year's similar period.

While 1980 prices were lower for livestock, oranges, cabbage, tomatoes, eggs and soybeans, Small noted, receipts rose for sugarcane which accounted for the gain in sales of all field crops despite lower yields for peanuts and soybeans. Sugarcane sales rose $37.1 million.

Lower prices for oranges during 1980 were largely offset by higher prices for grapefruit in the citrus category, while receipts also were higher in 1980 due to several specialty fruits such as tangerines and tangelos. Citrus accounts for 33.9 percent of 1980's cash receipts in Florida.

Reflecting a drop in demand for beef, cattle and calf marketings in 1980 declined by 18 percent from the previous year, Conner said. Total cattle and calf marketings returned $347.7 million to farmers in Florida in 1980, compared with $423.7 million in 1979.

In the livestock sector, new records were set in earnings for milk, broilers and hogs in 1980, Small said. Florida dairies sold $318.2 million worth of milk, compared with $286.8 million in 1979. Broiler sales amounted to $94.1 million, compared with the previous year's $77.6 million. Hog sales amounted to $53 million, up from $51.8 million in 1979.

All citrus accounted for $1.29 billion for 33.9 percent of all receipts; other fruits and nuts returned $52 million, vegetables and melons $750 million, field crops $401.7 million, greenhouse and nursery products $339 million, and livestock and livestock products $956 million.

HAPPY SNAPPERS

Celebrating their 10th anniversary in business, Bill and Connie Smith, owners of Smitty's Snappin' Turtle, 2506 S. Park Ave., Sanford, are preparing invitations to an appreciation dinner for their commercial customers. They are also reminding them of the booth they are sponsoring in the Home Improvement Show Oct. 15-18 at the Altamonte Mall.

HE'S A VEEP NOW

Kenneth Brookwell (left), a corporate finance and accounting executive for 19 years, has been named vice president of finance for Florida Residential Communities (FRC), Altamonte Springs, one of Central Florida's largest residential planners and home builders. Brookwell will be responsible for overseeing the entire accounting and financial operations at FRC, which currently has 10 residential communities in various stages of development in greater Orlando, Daytona Beach and Tampa, said FRC president Burton A. Bines. Prior to joining FRC, he served five years as controller for the Walter E. Heller Co. in Miami.

HONORED BY FLAGSHIP

At a recent employee meeting, Dee Roundtree (right) of Flagship Bank of Seminole's Downtown Office received the Teller of the Month award, which includes a check for $50. Debbie Carter, Susan Campbell (from left, above) and Pat Earle also were honored, for their completion of the first phase of Flagship's Teller Career Program.

Homes To Be Smaller?

"The home of the future will be smaller," says Theodore J. Pappas, chairman of the board of the Keyes Co., Realtors. The new single-family homes completed in 1980 were smaller than those finished in 1979, reversing the previous trend that has existed since 1975.

"This new trend," notes Pappas, "will not only help control the rising price of homes, but it should also provide buyers with more efficiency." A decrease in size can reduce the household's energy consumption.

Besides buying smaller and more expensive cars, many with diesel engines, to cut down on energy consumption, people are buying homes that are more energy-efficient, with triple-track windows, more insulation and less square footage. Energy conservation is definitely influencing the size of homes.

Another influence leading toward smaller homes is the number of employed persons per household. Since more persons in the household are employed, there is less time to devote to the maintenance of the housing unit, making the small home very practical.

In addition, some of the new small homes are especially designed to meet the needs of a new trend in lifestyle. New creative designs provide a type of compact housing that is entirely different and meets the need of what Washington's Department of Housing calls the "new family unit" — two unrelated people living under one roof, sharing space in order to afford shelter. These new-style homes will include two master bedrooms. Each bedroom will be a "full retreat" area, but the living room and kitchen will be shared.

The kitchen in the new style home is going to become one of the most important parts of the future home. It will be a gathering spot. As smaller footage dictates the use of space for double duty, kitchens will function as living rooms in many new houses and apartments. In the old country farmhouse, the kitchen was the center of energy as well as social activity. It is going to return to that in the 1980s.

"Small can mean more quality. Small can be more manageable. Small should be more affordable. So it is important that designers, architects, and manufacturers point their product toward this new developing market," Pappas concludes.

SET FOR THE WEEKEND

Tonja Simkanich prepares her wardrobe for a weekend at Grenelefe Golf and Tennis Resort in Haines City. Employees of Flagship Bank of Seminole played the role of Matchmakers (matching customer needs with bank services) during September, competing for weekly cash prizes. Mrs. Simkanich received the weekend as the grand prize winner for the month. She is employed at Flagship's Downtown Office.

On Reagan's Press Conference

From the moment President Reagan greeted media representatives and quipped a welcome to his "first annual press conference," he dominated the situation. In a deft performance, the President fielded a broad range of questions with an impressive command of facts, a sure sense of policy, and a disarming humor.

He never faltered; the reporters' questions seemed to have been anticipated.

The press conference was unusual for a number of reasons. It was only Mr. Reagan's fourth full meeting with reporters since taking office, and the very rarity of the occasion tended to enhance its significance. Adding to this was the timing, on the first day of the administration's first fiscal year. The economic program, therefore, was a natural theme that pre-empted much of the questioning, as Mr. Reagan undoubtedly hoped it would.

Even so, the diversity of questions fortuitously resulted in what appears to be the clearest, boldest, and most comprehensive definition of domestic and foreign policy yet brought together in one place by the Reagan administration.

On the highest priority issue of national defense and security, he made clear his determination to push the U.S. military buildup while simultaneously striving for an arms reduction agreement with the Soviets.

He turned a tricky question about whether he thinks a nuclear war is winnable to solid advantage in an answer that cuts through all the complexities and goes to the heart of the security issue: "It's difficult for me to think there is a winnable nuclear war, but where our risk falls is that the Soviet Union has made it clear they think it is winnable."

As to the Middle East, Mr. Reagan simply served notice to the world that the United States will not permit an Iran-type convulsion to threaten Western oil supplies in Saudi Arabia. "... We will not permit (Saudi Arabia) to be an Iran," he said in clear language that translates most readily into clear policy.

To be sure, the President was deliberately vague about what means the United States might employ, as indeed he should have been.

The Reagan domestic policy, already well-known, was nonetheless persuasively refined. The President positively relished fielding questions about his economic program, whipping out supportive letters and commentaries with glee. Yes, he conceded, there would be some hardships from his budget reductions, but for those totally dependent on federal assistance, "nothing will happen to them."

Yes, "It is true that we have had difficulty reconciling the stock market with the evidence we were getting from business and industry," but the inflation rate is coming down and interest rates will follow. Yes, he would hold his course on reduced federal spending and stimulative tax policies. Yes, he will veto any budget-busting legislation.

The press conference, the first full one since June, was perhaps Mr. Reagan's best to date. It stands in sharp contrast with the last one when he appeared to be poorly briefed and unprepared. If adverse reaction to his June performance caused Mr. Reagan to shy away from the full press conference in favor of less-spontaneous formats, as appears likely, it may be that after the recent personal triumph Mr. Reagan will return soon for another winning round.

BERRY'S WORLD

"I want you PR guys to change our image from an enormous multi-national corporation to a li'l ol' sagebrush rebel."

By DORIS DIETRICH

Maybe a busy body can't win them all, but even a loser can go down trying.

How the neatly typed note and attached clipping reached my desk is beyond me. But it was directed to me — with my name spelled incorrectly.

A good friend Bob (with friends like him, who needs enemies?) was jokingly lambasting The Herald for the picture of a classy chick, Gilda Chacey, in a garden shot to promote the Sweetwater Oaks Garden Club Festival.

"I don't know who your Garden Page editor is, but she must be a real ding-a-ling," the note reads. "Any gal in our area who came out in a garb like that would be drummed out of the neighborhood in 30 seconds."

The note invited me to come, armed with camera, to his neighborhood to see how gardeners dress in 92 degree heat with 80 percent humidity. He mentioned that gardeners "just don't do things the way you picture."

If I knew what type garden attire guarantees getting the work done and producing colorful blossoms, I would pass the word on. There must be many gardeners in the Mayfair section where Bob lives or in Sweetwater Oaks who would be interested.

I do recall several years back, though, when a widow and her beautiful daughter would don itchy-bitsy bare bikinis when the lawn needed mowing and the yard man didn't show. It didn't take but a few minutes of struggling with starting the mower before men on the block came to the rescue of the damsels in distress. They weeded the garden, washed the windows and even washed the dog once.

Now, that's called getting the job done. Years later, the same widow, now married, has a built-in-gardener. She wouldn't be caught dead in the garden now without boots, long pants, a long-sleeved shirt and a wide-brimmed hat to ward off wrinkling rays of the sun. And don't forget a generous application of insect repellent.

One early morning not long ago, this gardener was leaning on a post and the hoe when several crows flew overhead and dived down to survey the gorgeous roses and the life-like scarecrow performing sentry duty.

"We better beat it," the lead bird chirped. "I think this one is alive."

Before flying off, the other bird circled overhead and dived down within inches of the scarecrow's ear making noises that sounded like "ding-a-ling."

I suppose, by now, that one of those little birdies has flown down in Bob Daehn's garden and told him who the Herald's ding-a-ling Garden editor is.

That Mid-Life Surprise

"Late-in-life children are not ordered. They are sent."

That's how my friend, Carol, looks upon her "surprise package" born 11 years ago when she was 40.

She still remembers her disbelief at the first suspicion she was pregnant. Her sons were 14 and 16 and she was certain her days of child care were over. "We had even updated our wills and scratched the phrase 'any further issue of the marriage.' We were done with 'issue.'"

She was soon to be proved wrong.

Her initial reaction was about the same as the other mothers-at-40 I talked to; a reaction that can best be described as shock and hysterics.

Carol remembers a friend calling long distance to say, "I had this weird dream about you. You enlisted," to which Carol replied, "I didn't enlist but somehow I feel I've been drafted."

One mid-life mother, 39 at the time and already with daughters 9 and 12, said she just kept repeating, "It's impossible. It's impossible." Another said her husband, then 45, had as much difficulty accepting her pregnancy as she did. "He was looking forward to my finally being able to travel with him without worrying about a baby sitter. He said, 'I'm going to be second fiddle again just when things are easing up.'"

A 46-year-old whose caboose baby, now 4, was her sixth child, said, "I suddenly realized what women were talking about when they said they wanted control over their own bodies."

Two considered abortion and even discussed it with their doctors, but found they couldn't go through with it. All worried about the pregnancy because of their age and the fear the child would not be normal. (Luckily, all were.)

They also worried about the reaction of their older children, who ranged in age from 9 to 18, and were surprised at how well the news was received.

"The kids were marvelous," said one. "The day after we told them, the phone rang off the hook. They told everybody at school, of course, and everybody's mother called up to comment."

Said another: "I was pleased at the reaction of my kids because I'm not at all sure I would have been thrilled to have a demanding baby around the house when I was a teen."

In time, all the mothers adjusted to their mid-life pregnancy, and when the blessed event finally occurred, the entire family shared the joy. Kids sometimes sleepily stumbled out of bed to watch a 3 a.m. feeding, and after school brought their pals in for a look at baby.

A 17-year-old biked home for lunch every day just to see his baby brother, and two sisters thought helping mom bathe baby in the kitchen sink was the most exciting event of the day.

One family had a two-fold surprise — twin girls — to get used to. The unexpected event really shocked the 15-year-old in the family. "Well," she said disdainfully to her father. "Twins are very embarrassing. It's bad enough that my friends know that mother and you DO it at all. But Daddy? Twice in one night?"

As the years come and go, late babies turn out to be special treasures, it seems. "Unexpected gifts from the baby-dispatcher."

Employees Need Help To Expose Fraud

WASHINGTON — Federal employees who see things going wrong and decide to blow the whistle on their agency realize they won't endear themselves to their bosses in the bureaucracy. President Reagan has promised to protect whistleblowers who expose waste, mismanagement or outright fraud. I wish him success in this venture.

One whistleblower the president might want to listen to is Victor McKay, whose career with the Agency for International Development began back in 1973. McKay saw problems and reported them to his superiors; his reward was to be harassed continually as a "wavemaker," and eventually to be effectively blackballed from government service.

McKay was assigned to work with foreign students whose education in the United States is supported by AID funds. The idea is that these "best and brightest" will go home and

JULIAN BOND

Doing Good, Doing Well

Let's say you're the president of a multinational corporation.

Your product — a soft drink, say, or a candy bar — is priced within the reach of almost every American over age 12. But overseas it is a highly prized luxury. At home and abroad, your sales are brisk and your profits keep pace with your conservative expectations.

You are a lifelong Republican who voted for Ronald Reagan in 1980. Your company's political action committee contributed several thousand dollars to his campaign.

You liked candidate Reagan's style and occasional substance. You thought that Jimmy Carter had allowed the United States to become soft — her position weakened in the international community, her productivity diminished and her people uncertain of their future.

You thought, too, that America's social fabric was coming unraveled. Minorities had become a protected class. Women were demanding and receiving favored treatment. Morals were decaying. Our sense of community had been lost.

You endorsed the tax and budget cuts sought by President Reagan and Budget Director David Stockman. You think that government spending for social programs has damaged the economic system that enabled your company to reach the Fortune 500.

You like the president's treatment of organized labor. You wish you could deal with the unions in your business like Reagan dealt with PATCO.

As you see it, union demands and meddling government edicts promoting unqualified minorities and women have hurt productivity and angered the white men who started working for your company long before you did.

Then you learn that the giant Coca-Cola Co. signed a so-called "moral covenant" with Jesse Jackson, the black preacher from Chicago. You read that Coke is only the first on a long list of companies that Jackson plans to encourage to hire black workers and invest in black businesses.

You realize that your product line is susceptible to a "withdrawal of enthusiasm" by the 23 million black Americans and their sympathizers at home and abroad. And then your secretary tells you that a Mr. Jackson from Chicago is holding on line three.

What do you do?

You might do what one conglomerate has done: Review the peppy affirmative action agreements that the government made you sign, count the minorities in your employ, add up your contributions to the Urban League over the past decade and report to Jackson that you're already doing more than Company X.

Or you hire a high-priced Washington law firm to defend you against Jackson's assault. And you put out the word that you might charge the Windy City minister with extortion.

Or you simply tell your secretary that you will never be "in" when Jackson calls and hope that he moves on to the next targeted company.

That kind of tough talk and reluctant paternalism may go over big in the locker room of the country club, but it may not wash at your next stockholders' meeting. The stockholders are interested in profits, and your hard-line policy may dampen the dividend that you planned to announce.

Why not instead take a cue from Coca-Cola, which hasn't done badly selling sugar water all these years?

Coke weighed the costs and benefits of the "covenant" and asked itself whether doing business with Jackson was good for the company. The answer was yes.

With a smile, Coke then asked itself whether doing business with Jackson was the right thing to do. The answer also was yes.

Finally the company asked itself whether the tax cuts it had received didn't require it to demonstrate that the private sector could replace the heavy hand of government. Again, the answer was yes.

Said Coca-Cola President Donald Keough, "The free enterprise system is being called on to utilize some of its resources so that more segments of our society have not only an opportunity to purchase and consume but an opportunity to become producers of our products."

Similar talk could earn you the Urban League's "good corporate citizen" award next year.

Duke's Nixon Comedy

College professors are considered weirdos by much of the population, and the fact is that they keep justifying that opinion.

Consider the recent events at Duke University, without any doubt a great institution of higher learning.

Richard Nixon graduated from Duke Law School, and so Duke seemed to him as appropriate location for his presidential papers, some 63 million items.

Duke's resident Terry Sanford is so pure a liberal that he casts no shadow, but he knows a scholarly treasure when he sees one and he immediately accepted the offer.

Now a mass of primary material like these papers is of enormous value to a university. It would make Duke a scholarly mecca, drawing historians from all over to work with the papers.

This would have nothing to do with their affection, or lack of it, for Richard Nixon. They would be addressing themselves to such questions as the attitude of the White House toward the Vietnam War in 1969, or the argument over wage and price controls in the first Nixon administration — thousands of detailed questions like that.

The Nixon papers would provide the basis for countless Ph.D. dissertations by Duke graduate students. They would enhance the scholarly careers of the professors who edited them. And on and on.

But, strange to say, the Duke faculty voted 35 to 34 to reject the offer.

Now, you have to understand the strange metaphysics here. The Duke faculty would certainly not have rejected the papers of Cesare Borgia, the Renaissance scoundrel and poisoner.

The Duke faculty would certainly not have rejected the papers of Nero, Mao, or Stalin. They would have considered them, correctly, a scholarly bonanza.

But Nixon resides in a special category all his own.

A university faculty exists in a self-enclosed, hermetic world. What goes on within it possesses little reference to anything outside it. Those Duke faculty members would not have argued, exactly, that Nixon was worse than Nero or Mao. But hatred of Nixon is a ticket of admission to the hermetic, closed faculty world. The word "Nixon," indeed, sometimes seems to have little to do with the actual human being who just sold a home on 65th Street in Manhattan. The word

"Nixon" in these circles is rather like the magic password in a fairy tale. If you pronounce "Nixon" with proper expression of loathing and contempt, then you are ...in!

But all this has nothing to do with the real world, and the Duke trustees — whose job it is to deal with the real world — voted 9 to 2 to accept the Nixon papers.

As a seasoned observer of faculty behavior, I would guess that the shrewder professors among those who voted against the papers knew all along that the trustees would accept them. That way, they could enjoy the delights of voting against "Nixon," and get the papers anyway.

OUR READERS WRITE

Support Voting Rights Acts; Repeal Bilingual Ballot

I support extension of the Voting Rights Act as a whole, but I am for repeal of the Bilingual Ballot provisions of Title II of the Act.

Since the Bilingual Ballot law in 1975, we have seen a wave of public opposition to the steadily-increasing costs of government at all levels, federal, state and local.

In 1975, Congress had the luxury of trying to help minorities and the poor with a whole host of well-intentioned actions, of which the Bilingual Ballot was one.

In the same year, however, we saw the commencement of an uninterrupted chain of years of deficit spending:

— In 1974 the federal deficit was $4.7 billion

— In 1975 the federal deficit was $45.2 billion

— In 1976 the federal deficit was $66.4 billion

— In 1977 the federal deficit was $44.9 billion

— In 1978 the federal deficit was $48.8 billion

— In 1979 the federal deficit was $27.7 billion

— In 1980 the federal deficit was $59.6 billion

We are now engaged in a wholesale congressional review of the many praiseworthy programs which have contributed to these deficits following an overwhelming public mandate to do so in the 1980 elections. California voters, in Proposition 13, issued a similar overwhelming mandate to local government... insisting on a cut in local expenditures by cities and counties. It is on local cities and counties that the burden of Bilingual Ballot expenditures falls.

Costs to 36 of California's 58 counties for the Bilingual Ballot total $862,756.01 solely for the 1980 general election.

But let me point to a single small city in my congressional district, one of some 424 cities in California and one of 54 cities of 50,000 population or over.

Redwood City has a population of 54,965, of whom 8,622 are of Spanish origin. In Redwood City's separate municipal election in 1980, the City spent $1,784.59 for Spanish-language materials.

Of its 8,622 Spanish-origin citizens, only 60 requested Spanish-language materials and only 25 actually voted.

The resulting cost, $73 per Spanish-language ballot actually used, is clearly offensive to the taxpayer public.

I think it fair to say that the overwhelming opinion in the State of California is that the Bilingual Ballot law should be repealed.

The question is one of balance...between federally-imposed taxpayer costs on the one hand and a praiseworthy experiment in helping minorities on the other.

And are we really helping minorities by making it easier for them to vote knowledgeably in their native language?

For citizenship, we require applicants to pass a test on the U.S. Constitution and legal system in the English language. For children born here, to foreign-language parents, we provide several hundred million dollars a year in bilingual education funds. Why? Because we realize that equal opportunity in education, employment and thus earning capacity, requires a working use of the English language.

We diminish the ability of minorities to reach their full status of equality in the American economic system if we encourage them to neglect a diligent pursuit of excellence in the use of the English language.

Is there any one of us, moving to Mexico or Japan, who would not want to learn the Spanish or Japanese language in order to improve our economic and social circumstances? Would we feel voting in Mexico or Japan to be more important than earning a good living there?

Solely on principle, I think this law is wrong. It's bad for the very people it seeks to assist.

Let's repeal it now and hopefully thereby enhance the chances for extension of the far more valuable underlying Voting Rights Act.

Toll-Free Isn't Free

Recently, when giving a presentation about "Extended Area Service" to the Lake Mary City Council, I quickly realized that the general public needs to be told all the facts about this subject.

"Extended Area Service" means extending the local calling area, in this case Lake Mary to Orlando. For local calling many use the term "toll-free calling." This is very misleading since local calls are not free. The cost of local calls is being shared by all telephone customers.

Local calling areas have been established over the years based on a strong community of interest. Presently, the community of interest between Lake Mary and Orlando is not strong enough to warrant extending the local calling area. This is based on the criteria established by Florida's Public Service Commission.

Recent studies indicate that 5 percent of Lake Mary customers are making over 80 percent of the calls from Lake Mary to Orlando each month. If these were local calls, charges would be shared by all Lake Mary subscribers who would have to pay an additional $3 to $5 per month. In other words, 5 percent would benefit from the payments made by the other 95 percent.

You are probably wondering why Southern Bell should care who pays as long as someone pays it. From a purely financial standpoint, it makes no difference.

However, we have a responsibility to our customers to be sure that they know all the facts and that they are treated fairly. The vast majority of consumers want to pay for the goods and services that they use, not to provide a free ride for someone else. Why should telephone service be any different?

I should also point out that "Extended Community Calling," which gives a reduced rate for long distance service to Orlando, has been available since January, 1980. Compared with the regular flat rate charge of $10.65, for a basic residential rate of $13.15 a month, a Sanford-Lake Mary customer can have local service and 30 minutes of calling to Orlando. For any usage over 30 minutes the charge is 50 cents for each six-minute increment. This is substantially less expensive than the regular long distance rate to Orlando.

In summary, I would like to emphasize that Southern Bell is here to serve all of our customers. We are not perfect, but we will strive to serve each one fairly and responsibly.

Troy State Alumni Play

It's that time of year again! Time for all Troy State University "Sound of the South" band alumni to dust off their instruments and return to Troy State for the second annual "Alumni Band" performance Oct. 24 at TSU Homecoming.

The "Alumni Band" was a great success last year and we are looking forward to their performance again this year.

All band alumni should report to Long Hall at 10:30 a.m. Saturday Oct. 24 to go over music to be played at the performance. Color guard alumni should bring black pants and white shirts and majorette alumni should bring black shorts and white midriff tops and white tennis shoes. (If you still have white boots, please bring them too.)

If there are "Sound of the South" alumni in your area interested in performing they should contact Donna Reynolds, Office of University Relations, 566-3000, ext. 196 or Dr. John M. Long, Long Hall, 566-3000, ext. 281 by Oct. 20.

Anyone who has ever marched in the "Sound of the South" band is eligible to march in the "Alumni Band."

Taxpayers: Wake Up

Seminole County taxpayers "Wake up and smell the coffee" you have been had.

Remember the following county commissioners at election time—Bob Sturm, Barbara Christiansen, and Sandra Glenn. On 6 Oct. '81 these three county commissioners voted again to go ahead and lease valuable county property (worth $100,000) 3.7 acres on County Home Road and 17-92 to the Humane Society for $1 per year, not for 30 years as originally was authorized but 60 years in spite of original approval pending the donation of $200,000 from Tom Vanzant of Orlando which he reneged.

Commissioners Bill Kirchhoff and Robert Feather objected vehemently. Commissioner Feather stated 60 years is a loss of tax revenue amounting to half a million dollars ($500,000). Rip off to Seminole County taxpayers.

You should have a voice and this should be an issue for taxpayers to vote on, but wasn't. Sturm, Christiansen and Glenn place animal values above human values and above the wishes of the majority. They are completely ignoring the human right of established residents on Highway 427 and Sunland Estates who will be subjected to air pollution, noise pollution and possible contamination of wells of residents on 427.

Seminole County is in need of a health center and will have to purchase land for same. Isn't it a shame that the 3.7 acres could not have been used for a health center for humans instead of animals. If the site is not satisfactory it could have been sold and money would thus be available to buy a site. And the county would have received tax revenue from sale of such land.

To tie up valuable county property at the Five Points complex is absurd. I ask you taxpayers to remember these three county commissioners Sturm, Christiansen and Glenn and vote them out of office. Human values should be placed above animals. I love animals too, but humans first.

Crossroads Thanks

On behalf of the staff and myself, I would personally like to extend a thank you to you, Staff Writer-Jane Casselberry and Staff Photographer Tom Vincent, for your coverage of our open house to celebrate the one year anniversary of the Detoxification Unit of Crossroads Alcohol Treatment Center.

As we start into our second year of serving the residents of Seminole County, we are looking for civic organizations to help us at this time with fund raising projects. Since we are a non-profit organization, we rely on the community for our support.

Alcoholism is a treatable disease. We know — we've seen the success stories.

Roast Yields Brantley $12,000 Campaign War Chest

The roast held at Lord Chumley's Pub last weekend netted State Rep. Bobby Brantley's re-election campaign coffers $12,000. Some 310 persons attended the gathering.

Among those present were County Commissioners Robert G. "Bud" Feather, Sandra Glenn (one of the roasters), Bob Sturm (master of ceremonies) and Barbara Christiansen; School Superintendent Bob Hughes (also a roaster); School Board members Al Keeth and Pat Telson; Winter Springs Councilman John Torcaso, Altamonte Springs City Commissioner Lee Constantine; Altamonte's two mayoral candidates, incumbent Hugh Harling and Ray Ambrose; Winter Springs Council candidate Bill Jacobs, and U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum (another roaster).

Vince Fechtel, who represented Seminole County in the Legislature for many years and was Brantley's mentor, also was in the audience. Fechtel, involved in real estate since his defeat for Congress a year ago, had a newsworthy happening with his private plane recently.

It seems that while flying from the Everglades to Kissimmee, the engine of the plane developed problems and Fechtel had to land on "that 80-mile runway known as Interstate 4."

Parties & Politics

Donna Estes

Fechtel said he landed in front of a guy named "George", who was having a hard time staying awake. As George heard Fechtel's plane approaching, he woke right up, Fechtel said.

It's been a few years since Fechtel had the last problem with his private plane. At that time mud daubers stopped up the plane's gas gauge and Fechtel made an emergency landing at what he believed was the Lakeland Airport. Upon landing he found, however, the airport was at Gainesville.

At the Brantley roast, Carl Selph, president of the Florida Federation of Young Republicans, predicted that in the 1982 election Brantley is going to get a "turkey named Haltaway."

Brantley, a Republican, and Robert Haltaway, a Democrat, both members of the Seminole County legislative delegation, have had a running feud of sorts going for the last few years.

Seminole County's leading Democratic office holder, John Polk, on hand to roast Brantley and assure him of his re-election support, noted that his budget appeal will be heard by Gov. Bob Graham and the Florida Cabinet or their representatives on Wednesday.

A telegram was read from former State Sen. Mack N. Cleveland Jr. as part of the roast. Cleveland is also a Democrat. Other roasters included State Republican Committeeman Fred Streetman, Brantley's campaign manager in two previous campaigns, and Jim Stelling, organizer of the roast and treasurer during Brantley's 1980 campaign.

Women On Aging Agenda

We haven't heard much lately about the upcoming White House Conference on Aging. So we will bring you up to date. David Rust was recently appointed executive director of the conference, which will take place from Nov. 30 to Dec. 4.

Rust inherited from his predecessors in the Carter administration the 10 targeted issues to be addressed at the conference. These are:

1. Family, social services and other support systems.
2. Governmental structures for the aging.
3. Housing, transportation and physical environment.
4. Older Americans in a changing economy.
5. Physical and mental health.
6. Research.
7. Retirement income.
8. Social and health aspects of long-term care.
9. Special issues facing minorities.
10. Now comes the elected California delegation to the White House conference to demand an 11th targeted subject: the conditions of older women.

The effort to include this topic on the agenda has been led by the Older Women's League, which started in California and has grown to 42 chapters across the country.

The league supports its position by citing these statistics on older women in the United States:

- 85 percent of all surviving spouses are female.
- 50 percent of all women 75 or older

Growing Older

Harold Blumenfeld

live alone. (Only 21 percent of the men in that age group live alone.)

—72 percent of the elderly poor are women.

—60 percent of all widows are poor. Three times as many older women as older men live in nursing homes.

These are some of the conditions the league is eager to bring to the attention of the conference. The organization has called upon delegates throughout the country to insist that the agenda be made more specific on this issue.

If you agree, there are two things to do: 1. Write to the Older Women's League, 800 Harrison St., Oakland, Calif. 94611. Ask for more data about the problems of older women.

2. Circulate petitions declaring that older women deserve special attention at the conference. (Specifically, the petition should support the California delegation's request for "Policy Issue No. XI: Older Women" as the 11th targeted subject.)

Send the completed petitions—as well as other suggestions for improving the conference—to: David Rust, Executive Director, White House Conference on Aging, 330 Independence Ave. S.W., Washington, D.C. 20201.

Yes, there's still time.

AWACS And Tangled Mid-East Politics

The Reagan administration's plans to sell Saudi Arabia five airborne warning and control system aircraft (AWACS) is in jeopardy.

By the terms of the 1975 Arms Export Control Act, Congress may, by a concurrent resolution of both Houses, veto the sale of American arms to foreign governments. A resolution of disapproval in the Democratically controlled House of Representatives is certain. In the Senate, a bi-partisan group of 51 members has co-sponsored a similar resolution which their leader, Senator Robert Packwood (R-OR), plans to bring before the Senate for a vote.

The source of much of the administration's trouble is the manner in which it has presented the sale to Congress. It has contended that the sale is essential to its plans to develop a "strategic consensus" among the various states of the Middle East in opposition to the direct and indirect Soviet threats to the region.

No one in Congress denies that AWACS would enhance the capacity of the Saudis to defend their oil fields from air attack by Soviet proxies or by the Soviets themselves. What many Congressmen cannot understand is how the administration expects the sale to bring about the political rapprochement between Saudi Arabia and Israel which is essential to the success of any anti-Soviet "strategic consensus" in the region as a whole.

Without such a rapprochement, Israel cannot afford to abandon its opposition to the sale. American guarantees to the contrary notwithstanding, it can not assume that the Saudis will confine their patrols to areas distant from Israel's borders.

Nor can Israel assume that, in the event of another Arab-Israeli war, the Saudis will not place the planes at the disposal of their Arab neighbors and allies.

VIEWPOINT

For their part, the Saudis seemingly can ill-afford to take the political measures which would make a rapprochement possible. The Saudis would have to renounce their oft-repeated call for a "jihad" or holy war against Israel. They would have to abandon their financial support, at the very least, for the PLO. In siding with America and Israel, Saudi Arabia would in all likelihood have to oppose actively the designs of Moscow's ally, Syria, in Lebanon.

Each of these measures would place Saudi Arabia under severe political pressure from its more radical neighbors. Iran is a self-proclaimed enemy of any friend of the U.S. Libya is busy putting together an alliance with Yemen and Ethiopia in order to advance the cause of Moslem radicalism against Egypt, Sudan and Israel.

Colonel Kadhafi, the leader of Libya, would not hesitate to add Saudi Arabia to the list. The Saudis have always been concerned with the large number of Palestinians working in Saudi oil fields who could be formed into vanguard of an insurrectionary movement.

The Saudi royal family is not so strong that it could withstand the kind of internal pressures that brought down the Shah of Iran and seem now to be developing in Egypt. It was so badly shaken by the occupation of the mosque in Mecca by a radical Moslem faction in November 1979, and the poor performance of the National Guard in meeting the crisis, that it felt compelled to hire a sizable detachment of Pakistani troops to serve in the role of a palace guard.

Apart from these religious-political vulnerabilities, Saudi Arabia is the chief obstacle to a large increase in world oil prices. It has, almost single handedly, created the present glut of oil on the world market which has strained the fragile unity of OPEC. It is difficult to believe that the more radical members of OPEC would be sorry to see Saudi oil production sharply curtailed or cut off entirely.

Given these conditions, it is not impossible that the Saudis, however honorable their intentions, would be forced to use their AWACS against Israel. Yasir Arafat's suggestion that the Saudis should share strategic intelligence gathered by AWACS with the PLO is but the first of the pressures Saudi Arabia can expect to feel if Congress approves the delivery of the planes.

The administration has yet to demonstrate how the sale of five AWACS planes will overcome the peculiar political liabilities of Saudi Arabia such that it can enter into an anti-Soviet "strategic consensus" with Israel and the United States. Until it does, it is unlikely to find enough support in the Senate to overcome a resolution of disapproval.

Casselberry Paramedic Program Report Due

A report concerning the validity of a recent proposal for a city paramedic program will be presented at Monday night's Casselberry City Council meeting by City Attorney Ken McIntosh. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at city hall, 95 Lake Triplet Drive.

At last week's council meeting, McIntosh was directed to research the validity of the 704 signatures on a petition for an advanced life support (paramedic) program.

Questions arose concerning the petition's validity when council determined the name of one petitioner had been removed and another name added after several residents had signed the petition.

Firefighter Frank Stone, a petitioner of the program, said the change was made at the request of a petitioner who "supports the program idea but could not support the expense of the program." He also said he feels people signed the petition because they are in favor of the program not because of the petitioners.

The proposed program, if approved, will establish a 6-person paramedic-firefighter program within the Casselberry Fire Department, Stone said. The cost of the program will total $150,000 annually for equipment, training and salaries. Stone said funding for the program could come from a tax increase of $1.25 on every $1,000 assessed property valuation. Casselberry property owners currently pay $1.95 on every $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

Gator Skin Goodies Now In Demand

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Now that Florida no longer bans the retail sale of alligator skin products, stores are getting ready to stock their shelves with expensive gatorhide luggage, purses, boots, shoes and wallets.

Cartier Inc., the New York-Paris-London jeweler, sent a check for $300 to stock the products at its three retail shops in millionaire resort areas of Palm Beach and Bal Harbour.

Nieman Marcus, the posh Dallas department store chain, sent $100 for its Bal Harbour store.

Other applicants ranged from a shoe shop in Jacksonville and La Belle Trading Post in Hendry County to Boggy Creek Western Wear at Ruskin.

The nine-year ban, aimed at saving the alligators when they were in danger of being wiped out, ended Oct. 1. Applications for permits had already flooded offices of the Game and Fresh Water Fish which began mailing them out Oct. 3.

But the law permitting gatorhide products to be sold once again does not make it open season on the big reptiles, the commission warns.

It is still against the law to kill them in the wild. Only "nuisance" gators can be killed and then only by contract agents hired by the commission.

If Sheriff Wins Budget Appeal, '82 Taxes May Rise

By DARLENE JENNINGS
Herald Staff Writer

According to Seminole County Attorney Nikki Clayton, if the governor and the cabinet rule in favor of the Seminole County sheriff's budget appeal the county will be faced with four alternatives to cover the additional funds the sheriff has requested.

Ms. Clayton said Friday the county may either go to the commercial marketplace and borrow money at interest rates available to the county, take the money out of the already "conservative" contingency fund, subtract funds available for some of the county's departments, or raise taxes next year.

"The county does not have the money to pay the sheriff," Ms. Clayton has said. "If we go to the commercial marketplace, we will be borrowing at interest rates somewhere around 12 to 14 percent."

Sheriff John Polk has requested $330,000 over what the County Commission feels he is entitled to. The board granted him $5.7 million, but the sheriff has claimed he needs the additional money to fight crime in the county.

The county has adopted $670,312 for the 1981-82 budget in the reserved contingency fund, which falls under the county's general operating fund. The contingency fund is used by the county for unanticipated expenses and emergencies.

"Approximately ten percent of our total budget must be reserved to put into the county's contingency fund for a rainy day," said Ms. Clayton. "This money is used for unanticipated emergencies, such as if the county should be hit by a hurricane, and the money is used for unexpected expenses like unexpected road repair.

"If the county gives the sheriff half of what it has in the contingency fund, we will be just that much closer to not being prepared for an emergency," she said.

Another available alternative to paying the sheriff the money he wants, if he should win the appeal — the first hearing is scheduled for Oct. 14 in Tallahassee — is to take money from other county departments.

However, Ms. Clayton said, she believes the sheriff was given a "very favorable" consideration in the budget as far as the total budget review process is concerned.

"If he (the sheriff) wins, the money may have to come from other departments, which means that possibly a road may not be repaired if the money comes out of, say, the Public Works Department," she said.

One last consideration Ms. Clayton said she sees as a way to compensate for the sheriff's budget if he should win the appeal is for the County Commission to raise taxes next year. The county already has adopted this year's tax rate — $5.237 per $1,000 of assessed property value — and therefore cannot raise taxes this year, to cover a possible additional expense, Ms. Clayton said.

As a constitutional officer, Polk can ask the governor and the cabinet to rule on his budget request if he is not satisfied with the amount the board has granted him.

The tentative date set for a ruling on the sheriff's budget is Nov. 3.

Lyme Disease: A New Ailment On The Increase

ATLANTA (UPI) — There appears to be a growing public health interest in Lyme disease, an ailment of uncertain cause that produces expanding skin sores, joint abnormalities and in some cases nerve and heart disorders, the national Centers for Disease Control said today.

Lyme disease was first described in 1970 and was named after a town in Connecticut where clusters of cases were found in 1976 and 1978.

The CDC said so far 226 cases of the disease have been reported in 1980 and 1981. The cases were listed in 12 states, with infection probably acquired in 11 states, the CDC said.

A total of 512 cases occurring over four years in various parts of the country were summarized by the CDC in 1979. It said three state health departments reported cases last year and this "suggests a growing public health interest in Lyme disease, which has not been a subject of regular, official surveillance."

In addition to skin sores, joint abnormalities, nerve and heart disorders, other symptoms include a headache and stiff neck. Chronic arthritis infrequently results from the infection.

Seminoles Steam Roll Blue Darters 309-Yard Ground Attack Grabs Share Of Five Star Lead

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

When a Seminole football team steam rolls its way to 309 yards on the ground, it doesn't matter if the opposition has Arnell Lykes in the backfield along with Tony Dorsett.

Apopka's Blue Darters had neither Friday night as Coach Jerry Posey's Fighting Seminoles used its awesome running attack to blitz the hosts, 26-13, in Five Star conference action.

The victory moved Sanford into a first-place tie in the Five Star with a 2-0 mark. Lake Brantley has also posted a 2-0 ledger. Sanford travels to DeLand Friday. Apopka hosts Lyman.

Lykes, meanwhile, was suspended earlier in the day by Apopka Coach Chip Gierke. The Blue Darter coach refused to elaborate on the circumstances, but did suspend the quick-footed senior from school. He didn't know if he would play again.

While Lykes' absence was apparent, both coaches pointed out he would have had no effect on Friday's outcome. "He wouldn't have made any difference tonight," confirmed Gierke. "Seminole just put it on us."

That the Tribe did. And the Seminoles did it entirely on the ground and convincingly. Sanford put all of its points on the board in the first half. They were content to grind away the clock after intermission.

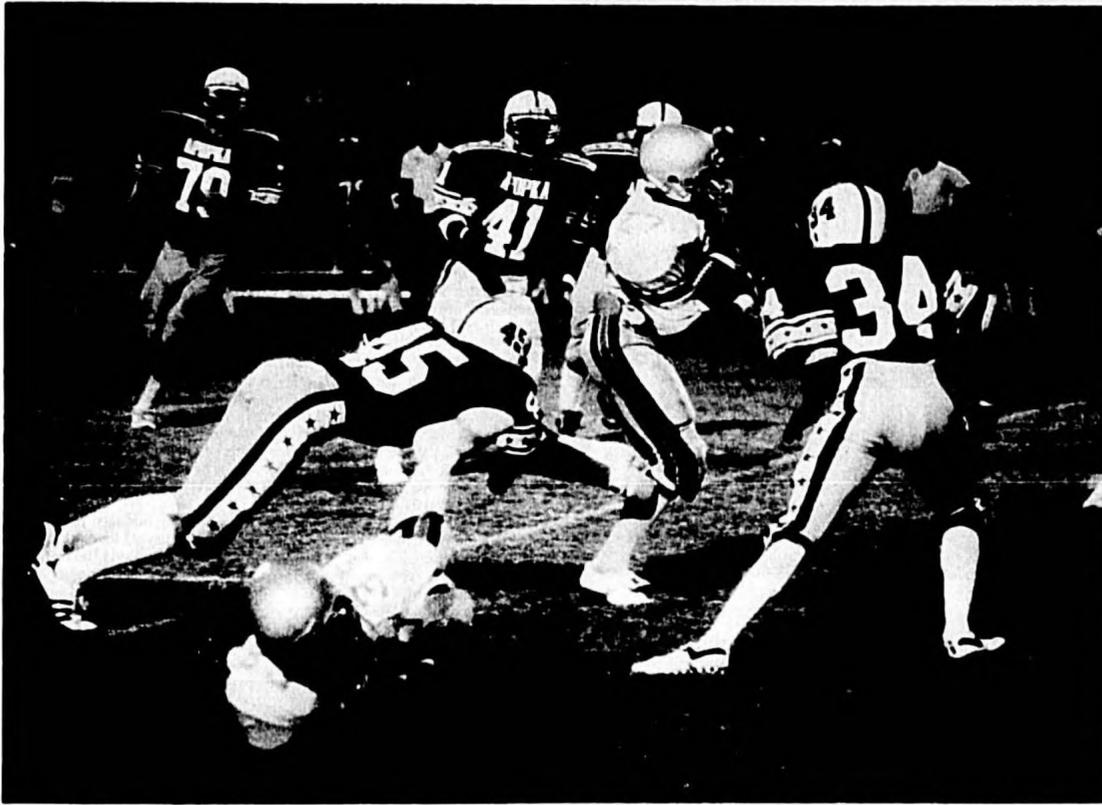

After a short punt (22 yards) by Apopka's Greg Daniels set up the Tribe at the Darters' 48, Seminole started churning out the yards.

Fullback Lenny Sutton picked up 14 yards in two carries and Johnnie Littles added 18 for a first down at the 38. After quarterback Jeff Litton threw incomplete, Sutton added rushes of three and four.

With a fourth and three staring Sanford in the face at the 13, Littles followed a nice trap block by Isaac Williams and Don Croly for 10 big ones and a first down at the three.

Litton followed center Jay Hauck over the goal line on the next play. Senior Alan Cahill's extra point was wide right, but Seminole led, 6-0, with 5:31 to play in the period.

Just four plays later, Daniels set the Tribe table again. After quarterback Brian Pitts misfired on three passes, Daniels had to leave his feet for a high snap from center and elected to pass the ball as opposed to kicking it.

Sanford's Victor Williams (middle) races for 18 yards against the Blue Darters.

A fierce rush forced a hurried throw which fell incomplete. Several ineligible receivers wandered downfield and cost the Darters half the distance to the goal and a loss of down.

Seminole took over at the Apopka 12. Littles bolted for nine on another well-executed trap play and Sutton bulldozed into the end zone from three yards out. This time Cahill converted for a 13-0 edge. Only 1:35 had elapsed between touchdowns.

"We put ourselves in the hole a couple of times," said Gierke, who was defensive about his defense which had allowed fifth-ranked Evans only 27 second-half yards. "But Sanford always has those good backs. They're tough to stop."

Pitts finally got the home team on the board early in the second period. A fumble by Littles on the Seminole 29 gave Pitts good field position. The slippery junior could muster only four yards from his backfield, so on fourth and six he took matters into his own hands and scrambled for a first down at the 19.

After Chuck Russell picked up three, Pitts rolled left, then cut back against the grain to outrance several Seminoles to the end zone. Mark Weellig added the extra point to pull the Blue Darters within 13-7.

What happened next may have determined the game. Posey and his assistants made note of the fact that Weellig wasn't wearing hip pads or tailbone pads, which is a direct violation of the rule.

"We tried to point it out to the ref," said Posey, "but he wasn't paying much attention. We told him before Seelig made the kick. That was one point they never should have had."

When the referee finally checked out Weellig, he found that, indeed, he was missing the pads. He immediately dropped a flag and penalized the Darters back to the 25 on the ensuing kickoff.

Despite the setback, Weellig boomed the kick all the way to the Seminole eight, where return man Freddie Howard back-pedaled and grabbed the ball over his shoulder.

Howard headed for the right sideline and never looked back as he scampered 92 yards for the score. "I thought they were going to get him," said Posey. "But Freddie just kept chugging."

The snap to center was high and Joe Calloway's pat pass was off. The Tribe, however, had improved its lead to 19-7 with 10:18 to play in the half.

"That kickoff return turned the game around," Gierke said flatly. "I thought it was a cheap call (on the equipment)."

Despite Gierke's appraisal, the call turned out to be very expensive for Apopka. After four Darter failures, Seminole took over at their 46 and put together an impressive, 10-play drive which Sutton climaxed by crashing in from the two. Cahill converted and with 2:48 to go until intermission, Apopka was down and out.

Sutton led the Sanford ground attack with 111 yards on 17 carries. Littles contributed 79 on 10 tries. Rendel Manley, who was inserted after Littles fumbled, raced for 50 on just five carries. Victor Williams chipped in 35 yards on seven totes.

The Tribe defense led by linebackers Antonio Davis, Greg Register and Byron Washington made things miserable for Apopka all night. They allowed just 30 yards rushing, including a minus five in the second half.

"I don't know beans about defense," laughed Posey. "I've got a coach (Dave Musure) for that."

And Friday night he had a team for it too.

Colonial Shocks 'Hounds With Fourth-Quarter Pass

By JEFF KERR
Herald Sports Writer

Gerard Caron's 32-yard touchdown pass to Brad Minear gave the Colonial Grenadiers an 8-3 victory over the Lyman Greyhounds in a battle between the Metro Conference and the Five Star Conference teams at Lyman High School Friday night.

The touchdown pass came on a fourth down and 10 with 2:28 remaining in the fourth quarter as Caron threw a "Hail Mary" pass that got over the outstretched hands of Lyman's defensive back Carl Quesinberry and into the hands of Minear, who turned around and took two steps into the end zone to give Colonial a 8-3 lead. The extra point was no good. The Hounds fell to 3-2 and Colonial upped its record to 3-2.

In the first quarter the Greyhounds got off on the wrong foot when on third down and three at their own 32-yard line tailback Vince Prealey was chased back to his 28 where he coughed up the football to the Grenadiers, one of seven turnovers the Greyhounds had on the night.

Colonial on their first possession, seemed to be moving the ball well as they got all the way to the Hounds 16 but a clipping penalty moved the ball back to their own 26. On second and long, Caron reeled off a 15 yard pass to wide receiver Bobby Lassiter to put the ball on the 11 with a third and five.

Caron's next pass was incomplete, though, and Colonial Coach Bob Williams sent in kicker Fernando Ortiz to attempt a 30-yard field goal only to see the ball hit the left post and bounce back onto the field. After exchanging a few punts each the first quarter ended tied 0-0.

Lyman started the second quarter at Colonial's 43, but three straight incomplete passes by Lyman Quarterback Jerry Axley forced them to punt. Punter Johnny Poor responded with a punt all the way to the 10 of Colonial.

Two good defensive plays by the Greyhounds forced Colonial back to their four. Colonial then elected to punt on third down and got a 48 yard kick from Doug Walker under an 11-man rush.

Lyman then started at their own 48 and on third down and eight Axley threw his second interception of the night this time to linebacker Cory Caslow who returned it to the 38 of Colonial.

Colonial unable to move the ball any more was forced to punt again. Lyman then started this time at their own 23 and seemed to be moving the ball well as they got to their 46 before Axley completed another pass to Colonial this time to linebacker Doug Walker who returned it 11 yards to the 47 of Lyman.

Colonial with the help of a personal foul against Lyman and a 14-yard pass from Caron to Tom Trent moved the ball to the Hounds 18.

Faced with a third and eight Caron threw an incomplete pass to force a field goal attempt on fourth down. The 32-yard attempt by Ortiz was short and the score remained 0-0.

Lyman's last scoring threat of the first half was set up by Quesinberry's interception which he returned 18 yards to Colonial's own 33-yard line.

Lyman, unable to run the ball, as they have totaled just 70 yards rushing in their last three games, was forced to go to the air again. The Greyhounds were in a position to go into halftime with a lead but a Chris Tschieder field-goal attempt of 41 yards was wide and both teams went into halftime scoreless.

The third quarter was more of a punt-a-thon as each team exchanged punts for most of the quarter, although Lyman had a chance to go ahead but a fourth and nine a field goal attempt failed because of a high snap, Axley the holder picked the ball up and ran around right end only to throw another interception to finish him for the night. The third quarter ended still 0-0.

The fourth quarter started with Colonial on their own four and on third and long from their goal Colonial elected to punt the ball and got a 29-yard kick to give the Hounds an excellent field position at Colonial's 29.

Lyman finally seemed to be moving the ball and this time on the ground as they moved to the seven and had a first and goal.

A stiff Colonial defense, however, didn't allow the Greyhounds any more yards as they were forced to settle for a 21-yard field goal by Tschieder to give Lyman a 3-0 lead with 5:23 remaining in the game.

Just when things looked good for the Hounds, Colonial took the ensuing kickoff 36 yards to their own 41. Moving the ball with some good running and passing and an offside penalty by Lyman, the Grenadiers moved all the way to the 32 of Lyman.

After three incomplete passes in a row, Colonial was faced with a fourth and 10 and that's when Caron found Minear for the game-winning touchdown.

Lyman had two more chances but with one second on the clock Dwayne Johnson was sacked in his own end zone for a safety to secure the victory for the Grenadiers.

Lyman travels to Apopka next Friday in a Five Star Conference match at 8 p.m. Lyman Coach Bill Scott was unavailable for comment after the game.

Bang, Bang! Wildcats Quick-Draw Patriots

Winter Park's Mike Sweeney lets fly as Brantley's Richie Smith gropes for a leg.

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Writer

Bang, Bang!
Winter Park's Wildcats were quick on the draw Friday night, firing off a pair of first quarter touchdowns en route to a 27-6 victory over Lake Brantley's Patriots.

Senior halfback Tim McDonnell artistically proved to be Winter Park's quick-draw artist, popping loose for three touchdown runs while enjoying a sparkling rushing effort good for 164 yards on the night.

McDonnell's first scoring portrait came on a picture-perfect 58-yard draw that pushed the Wildcats to a quick lead just four-and-a-half minutes into the game. Wildcat place kicker Mike Lively converted the PAT to push Winter Park out in front 7-0 at the 8:34 mark.

McDonnell struck again four minutes later on a 24 yard trap play. Lively's second PAT of the night gave the Wildcats a 14-0 lead before Lake Brantley's partisan crowd had snuggled into their seats.

With 9:30 left in the half, McDonnell took advantage of crisply-executed blocking to spring loose on an 18-yard trap play that sent the Wildcats to intermission with a commanding 21-0 bulge with the help of Lively's third PAT of the night.

"We wanted to establish the run and complement it with the pass," said Wildcat coach Larry Gergley. "We got some big blocks," understated the Winter Park coach. "And really got the momentum going in the first half."

Winter Park's superior offensive line play enabled the Wildcats to roll up 350 yards rushing against a Patriot defense that was averaging 120 yards and change going into the Winter Park contest.

McDonnell's backfield mate Darryl Ferguson made a solid contribution to the Wildcat attack with a 99 yard effort on 17 carries while the Wildcat offensive line gave quarterback Mike Sweeney enough time to connect on 5-10 pass at-

Lake Brantley

The victory improved the Wildcats season record to 4-1 while Lake Brantley, which returns to conference play next week against Spruce Creek, slipped to 3-2.

"I'm happy with the win, but we still need a lot of discipline on offense," commented Gergley. "Three fumbles is not a typical Winter Park performance and those fumbles helped Lake Brantley get back into the game in the third period, they're well coached and they really started getting the momentum in the second half."

Patriot bass Dave Tullis was pleased with the third quarter effort but not much else.

"It would have been easy for us to just roll over after being down 21-0 at the half," said Tullis. "We played better in the second half and had the ball most of the third quarter."

"But it's hard to come from behind against a good football team like Winter Park. Don't take anything at all away from them, they're a very good football team. I'm just disappointed we didn't play as well as we're capable of playing."

Lions Crush Lake Weir, 32-8

By BILLY STRIPP
Herald Sports Writer

Joe Montgomery's Oviedo Lions, who had trouble scoring in their first two games, found no trouble Friday night as they blasted the Lake Weir Hurricanes 32-8 at Oviedo.

Montgomery felt that this is the way they should play all year. "We were aggressive all game, and we got the key breaks," he said referring to a costly turnover in the end zone by the Canes.

The Lions upped their record to 2-2, while Lake Weir dropped to 2-3.

Georgia transfer Kirk Linder returned a Hurricane punt in the opening minutes which was good for 15 yards down to the Lake Weir 44.

The Lions took 11 plays to move the ball down to the Hurricane 15. Kipp Sopp, who won the game last week, failed on a 32-yard field goal to stop the early threat of the Lions.

The Lions would get the ball back right away on the strength of their Black Friday defense. Montgomery, seeing early if Lake Weir was sleeping, called for a flea-flicker from their own 41, the ball was batted away as the Lions didn't trick anybody.

Quarterback Karl Jones, went to work as he hit Chris Boston for 36 yards on a fly pattern, moving the ball just inside the 25.

Lamar Smith ran his way for a quick six yards, while senior Dean Preising was awaiting his turn, as he broke loose for 17 yards. He then plunged in for the score. The PAT was bobbed, so Jody Huggins found running room around the corner to give the Lions an 8-0 lead.

Perhaps the turning point in the game, came after Oviedo scored. The Canes would put together a long 78-yard drive in 17 plays down to the Lion two.

The defense forced Lake Weir to run up the middle on a third and goal call from the two. Joe Mills tried to sneak his way through the crowd of Lions, just as he thought he might score, the ball popped loose, and the Oviedo paws jumped on the ball in the end zone.

The fumble brought the ball out to the 20, midway through the second quarter. Oviedo would put together another nice drive, this time 80 yards in six plays.

Mike Oliver ran to the Lion 31. Then Preising, with exceptional speed for a fullback, burst for 18 yards.

QH Jones faked an option and picked up 17 yards to the Canes 32. Jones scooted for another eight before Lamar Smith flew around the right corner for a 24-yard TD. Sopp converted, as the Lions were up 15-0.

With 4:30 left in the half, the "storm" finally struck. Joe Mills returned the K.O. 45 yards, and QH Billy Mathews connected on 3-of-6 passes to lead the Canes to their first score. With Oviedo playing tough defense, the Hurricanes were faced with a crucial fourth down.

The drive continued as Oviedo was called for interference, moving the ball to the 11. With 2:33 left, Mathews hit Craig Brown to cut the Lions margin to one touchdown. Mathews found Ely for a two-point conversion.

Oviedo would be heard from before the half once more, as Mike Oliver raced for 50 yards on three carries. With 16 seconds left, Sopp booked a 24-yarder through the uprights to help his team to an 18-8 halftime.

Oviedo took the opening kickoff and looked as if they would blow the doors off Lake Weir as they ran down the clock on a 15-play drive. The big play was Jones to Hamilton for 54 yards. The drive stalled with Sopp missing another field goal.

Lake Weir couldn't generate a drive, so

Jones and company went to work from the Hurricane 49. Two plays later, Jones took advantage of the field position, as he spotted Kipp Sopp all alone in the end zone for a 34 yard play. Sopp hit his second PAT with 7:24 to play.

The Hurricanes tried to regroup in the fourth quarter, as Mathews would go to the thing he does best — pass. He moved from his 25, on 15 plays, but a fourth down play came up short, stopping the drive at Oviedo's 15.

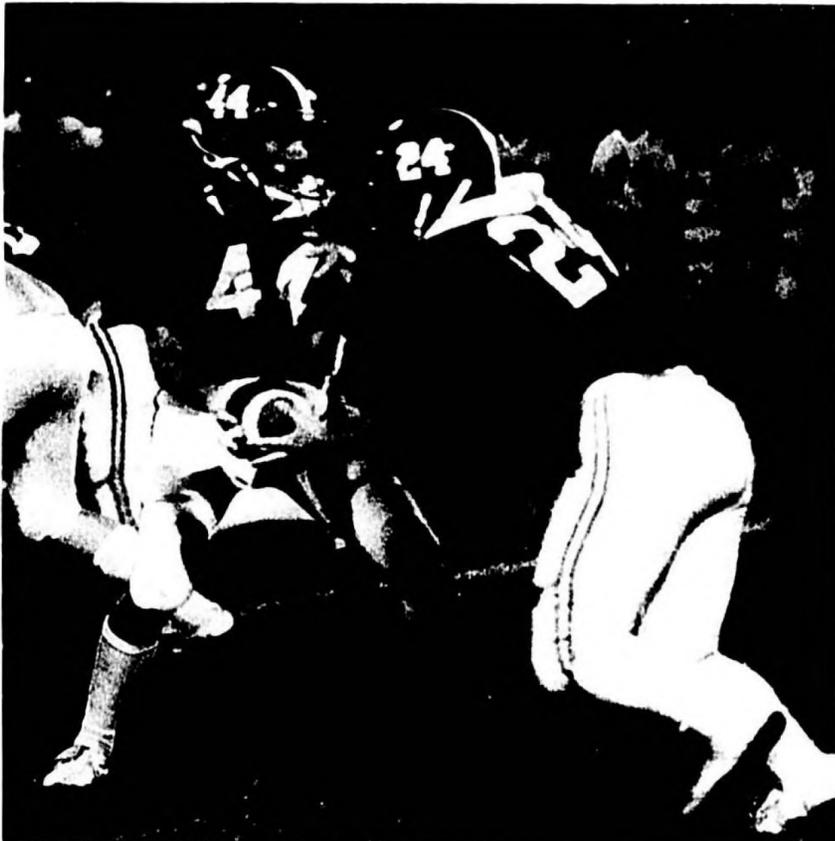

The last hurrah was given to the Lions fans, as Oviedo would score one more time to give the Lions a 32-8 victory.

J.W. Yarborough, got the call from Montgomery. He ran for 35, 38, six and six more yards for the touchdown. Sopp hit his third PAT.

Montgomery leaned toward the line. "They worked really hard this week, and did a fine job." "We still have a long way to go," he smiled happy his team is back in the fight for the Orange Belt Conference.

Ex-Expo Williams' Firing May Be Financial Bonanza

ATLANTA (UPI) — Being fired by the Montreal Expos last month may turn out to be a financial bonanza for Dick Williams.

New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner has expressed interest in hiring Williams as his manager and Thursday the Atlanta Braves put him at the top of their shopping list after announcing the firing of Bobby Cox.

Neither Steinbrenner nor Braves owner Ted Turner have been shy about offering fat contracts to people they want and a bidding war between those two could make Williams baseball's highest-paid manager.

Turner says the Braves aren't going to rush their selection of Cox's replacement. But Atlanta General Manager John Mullen revealed he contacted Williams several days earlier to inform him the Braves' job might be opening up "and he said he was interested."

Williams, 52, began his managerial career at age 35, coming into the major leagues with Boston in 1967. He spent three years with the Red Sox, three with Oakland (1971-73), three with California (1974-76) and had been with Montreal five seasons when he lost his job there on Sept. 7.

Mullen says he has "four or five people we are interested in." That list, in addition to Williams, is believed to include former New York Mets manager Joe Torre and Oakland coach Cleve Boyer, who both played for the Braves; former Kansas City manager Jim Freay; Eddie Haas, manager of the Braves' AAA farm club at Richmond, Va.; and 42-year-old knuckleballer Phil Niekro, longtime mainstay of the Braves pitching staff.

"Niekro and I talked for 45 minutes but I can't say he has any sort of inside track," said Turner. "It's very difficult to play and manage."

"I don't know who Cox's successor will be," said Turner. "John Mullen will interview a number of people in the coming weeks. There's no rush. We want to give it careful consideration."

"We'd like to have a new manager before the World Series so he'd be available to help us with any possible trades," said Mullen. "We're looking for someone who can get us out of the second division. We might find him in the next week or 10 days or it might take us as long as six weeks."

Turner, in announcing the Braves were giving up on Cox after four seasons, said the move was made simply for the sake of change and that if Cox had not been the outgoing manager he would be one of the leading candidates.

"A fresh face, that's all it was," said Turner. "If Bobby wasn't here, he'd be one of the leading candidates for the job. But a new broom sweeps clean."

Cox is reported being considered for two managerial jobs — the Mets and Toronto.

"It doesn't matter to me which league I wind up in," said Cox who was offered a scouting job by the Braves. "I just want to continue to manage. I understand Ted's decision. Sometimes you get into a rut and changes have to be made."

In the four years that Cox managed Atlanta, the Braves finished last the first two, fourth a year ago and fifth in both halves of this year's split season.

"Personally, I thought the '78 and '79 Braves were no better than an expansion team," said Cox. "But we had some good young talent coming along and next year the Braves could be a contender. I wanted to be manager a week ago when rumors that he was out began flying) and I still want to be manager because this club is so close."

"I thought I was going to be manager again until Ted told me otherwise Wednesday evening," said Cox who was a coach with the New York Yankees before joining the Braves. "You put in your time. You struggle. But I was under contract so I can't complain. It didn't hurt me personally."

Miami Battles Florida State

Central Florida football fans get a taste of some college junior varsity football action Monday when Florida State takes on Miami at the Tangerine Bowl at 2 p.m.

The Junior Hurricanes are 0-0-1, having tied the University of Florida. FSU is 1-0. Former Lake Howell wide receiver Scott Smith made the Miami team as a walk-on and has been seeing considerable playing time, but was sidelined by a separated shoulder last week.

Lake Mary Boosters To Meet

Lake Mary High School's Boosters' Club will meet Thursday night at 7:30 at the high school. The head coaches of each program will talk on their sport and explain its operation at the first year school. A football film will also be shown by Coach Roger Beathard.

Booster Club President Mike Averill urges all members and prospective members to attend.

Carner, Alcott Tie For Lead

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Jo Ann Carner admits she has had so many distractions at the $150,000 LPGA Inamori Classic that it's a wonder she is still tied for the lead.

Carner and Amy Alcott looked like they might make it a two-woman battle for the $22,500 first prize when they fired 68s in the first round, but both dropped to even par 73 Friday over the Almaden Course to wind up at 141 at the half-way point. That's still good enough for first, but now there is a whole herd of golfers a stroke or two off the pace.

Carner said "I was lackadaisical" during Friday's round. Not only was she trying to figure out how her beloved Oakland A's were doing against Kansas City, but she also felt "it was too nice a day."

But the most disconcerting thing of all for the popular pro was that while she was shooting her steady round, her playing partner, Cindy Hill, was shooting the lights out.

Hill was 4-over-par after five holes, but suddenly exploded for seven birdies in eight holes and eight birdies in the last 13 holes for a 69 that landed her one stroke off the pace at 141.

Carner said, "At least I got to see one of the greatest strings of golf I've seen in some time. Normally it pumps you up to see someone do that well, but I just couldn't get going."

Hill swore she did not feel that her swing was in the groove.

A's Dethrone 'Sloppy' Royals

Phillies, Brewers, Dodgers Alive

By United Press International
The Philadelphia Phillies, Milwaukee Brewers and Los Angeles Dodgers all managed to accomplish something Friday that the Kansas City Royals did not: stay alive in the divisional playoffs.

Kansas City, the defending American League champion, lost in three straight to the Oakland A's as a fatal mixture of poor hitting, sloppy fielding and clumsy baserunning dethroned the Royals. Oakland advanced to the championship round with a 4-1 victory.

Kansas City's hitting was a disaster. The Royals scored only two runs in three games and stranded 24 baserunners. George Brett, a .314 hitter in the regular season, went two-for-12 in the playoffs. Designated hitter Hal McRae managed but one hit.

But the Kansas City players didn't avoid questions like they did victory. Clint Hurdle, who was picked off base in the fifth inning to snuff out a potential Royals rally, summed up matters succinctly.

"We got killed," Hurdle said. "We committed three errors and didn't hit. We didn't do anything so we didn't win. Period."

Brett, who said that the Royals never played up to expectations, offered some encouragement for 1982.

"Maybe we should forget about everything," said the third baseman. "Hopefully by the time spring training comes around, I'll be hungry and thirsty."

But Hurdle could not be so easily consoled.

"I've been embarrassed before in baseball," Hurdle said. "The guy behind the plate (Oakland catcher Mike Heath) had a laser beam for an arm. Nobody said anything to me in the dugout. What could they say? I know I screwed up."

Rickey Henderson helped Oakland with two singles, two walks and three runs scored while Rick Langford pitched 7 1/3 strong innings despite a sore right elbow and an aching right ankle. Larry Gura started and absorbed the loss for Kansas City.

Henderson walked in the first and scored on an infield hit by Tony

Mini Playoff

Armas. In the third, Henderson singled and scored when Royals' second baseman Frank White committed a throwing error on Dwayne Murphy's infield hit.

Kansas City scored its only run in the fourth but Oakland quickly got the tally back in the bottom of the inning when Dave McKay blasted a solo home run. Murphy doubled home Henderson for the A's final run.

In other playoff games, Philadelphia defeated Montreal, 6-2; Milwaukee downed New York 5-3 and Los Angeles trounced Houston 6-1.

Phillies 6, Expos 2
Larry Christenson hurled six innings, striking out eight while allowing four hits and one run. The right-hander made his first start since Aug. 24, when he was relegated to the bullpen.

"I really have no comment," he replied when asked if he should have stayed in the rotation. "I don't want to get into trouble. Whether I'm relieving or starting, I'm still pitching."

George Vukovich, recalled from the minors just days before the players' strike, batted for Christenson and singled in Manny Trillo to give the Phillies a 3-1 advantage. Trillo also had an RBI single and Mike Schmidt broke an 0-for-7 slump with a single and double.

Brewers 5, Yankees 3

Paul Molitor led off the eighth with a home run and Ted Simmons, who had cracked a two-run homer an inning earlier, followed with an RBI single to keep the Brewers alive.

"We've got the momentum," said a happy Molitor, who had three hits. "It will take a little luck but it can be done."

The Yankees tied the game at 3-3 in the seventh off reliever Rollie Fingers as Rick Cerone and Willie Randolph stroked RBI singles. But Yankees starter and loser Tommy John allowed the homer to Molitor.

Randy Lerch started and took the victory, pitching six effective innings to celebrate his 27th birthday. He yielded only one run, on Bob Watson's RBI single.

The game was marred in the seventh when a fan jumped from the stands and tackled third-base umpire Mike Reilly, who had prompted a chorus of boos from the Yankee Stadium crowd after calling Dave Winfield out on a close play in the sixth. Reilly was not injured in the incident.

Dodgers 6, Astros 1

Steve Garvey's two-run homer highlighted a three-run Dodgers first as Los Angeles grabbed and maintained an early lead. After Dusty Baker doubled home Davey Lopes, Garvey blasted a Bob Knepper fastball into the left-field seats.

"It's about time our bats woke up a bit," Garvey said. "I think we've regrouped and can win the next two games. Pride is at stake, not just the division title."

Knepper took the loss, not getting much support from his hitters or the Houston bullpen. Reliever Joe Sambuto was tagged for three runs as the Dodgers tied the win. Houston scored its lone run on Art Howe's homer.

Don't Jump NFL Gun When Dealing With Statistics

It never pays to jump the gun when dealing with statistics. For the formula to be accurate, a good solid base of facts is mandatory. For this reason I have been using statistics from all of the 1980 games plus those of 1981 as they are accumulated.

Last year's facts can be abandoned when data of the current year is sufficient to support the formula, usually by the sixth to eighth week of the new season.

However, last week there were so many close ones scheduled that I abandoned common sense, took a chance on the meager stats of 1981 in three cases, and all three were losers. I have been humped back all week from kicking myself in the rear.

In addition to those losses, there were two others and a tie, which to me is the same as a loss. I tied the DUNKEL INDEX with eight winners for a winning percentage of 57, but HARRAH's beat me for the first time with nine winners. My season win record is now 45 out of 70 games for 64 percent.

This week's matches look some better, but I still singled out five games that have upset potential and are real CLIFFHANGERS. Division leaders are still struggling to hang in there, and most of these matches look good.

BEST CLIFFHANGER OF THE WEEK
MIAMI (4-1) AT BUFFALO (3-2)
The DOLPHINS have the best win record in the AFC EASTERN DIVISION, with the BILLS second. BUFFALO, despite losing twice, still has scored more points to date than any team in the NFL except PITTSBURGH and SAN DIEGO. The BILLS shut out the JETS by 31 points, while the DOLPHINS could only manage a tie with that same team. The BILLS also walloped BALTIMORE twice by a grand total of 38 points, and MIAMI had problems winning once by a field goal. Even so, MIAMI has scored an average of eight points per game over last year, and has won some tough ones.

This looks like another great game on Monday night, and appears to be the best match of the week. MIAMI's great defense has deteriorated the past two weeks, but if it improves this game could go either way by two points. There are upset indicators, but I have to stick to the basic formula which indicates that BUFFALO will win by 2 points.

CLEVELAND (2-3) AT PITTSBURGH (3-2)
The STEELERS are tied with CINCINNATI for first place in the AFC CENTRAL DIVISION. They bounced back from their initial two losses in true championship style, and have scored an impressive 128 points in five games to date—the second best record in the NFL.

Both teams are playing almost precisely on their last year's statistics. CLEVELAND upset CINCINNATI and ATLANTA earlier in the year to post their only two wins. This appears to be an excellent match, but I predict that the PITTSBURGH home field advantage will enable them to win by 10. CINCINNATI (3-2) AT BALTIMORE (1-4)

The COLTS managed a win by one point over NEW ENGLAND, while the rest have been grim. CINCINNATI on the other hand, has managed three wins by a total of 10 points and have given up a total of 112 points, exactly as much as they have scored.

They do seem to come up with a clutch play in the final minutes to seek out a win, or suffer a loss — either one by a small margin. They are playing 9 points better per game than they did last year, whereas BALTIMORE is scoring right on their last year's statistics. CINCINNATI should be able to win this one by 8 points.

MINNESOTA (3-2) AT SAN DIEGO (4-1)
SAN DIEGO is tied for the lead in the AFC WEST DIVISION with DENVER, while MINNESOTA is tied with TAMPA for the lead in the NFC CENTRAL DIVISION. The CHARGERS have a minus 5 home field advantage, but their statistics to date are too impressive to permit that to be much of a deterrent. The only past common enemy to these teams had been DETROIT, which the CHARGERS dispatched by 5 points, and the VIKINGS by 2 points. All indications are that SAN DIEGO win this one by 9 points.

DETROIT (2-3) AT DENVER (4-1)
The BRONCOS are surprising everybody this year by playing 3 points per game better than they did last year. They have already beaten OAKLAND twice, and SAN DIEGO once. They have the second best defense in the NFL, having allowed a total of only 54 points to be scored against them.

Their offense is not spectacular, but is very effective with an average of 20 points. Both these teams have played SAN DIEGO and OAKLAND, DENVER being clearly ahead by 16 points over to play each game with what you have. Plunkett has had his difficulties this season. Although he has completed 58 percent of his passes for 713 yards, Plunkett has also been intercepted seven times. He was pulled from the Denver game in favor of second-year man Marc Wilson.

All this leaves the Chiefs with a good shot at handling the Raiders' third straight loss. But Kansas City Coach Marv Levy isn't building a false sense of security.

"Paul Richards used to say, 'If you

Cliff Nelson
Football
Prognosticator

DETROIT in the scoring. I wouldn't be surprised to see the BRONCOS end up in post season play this year. I predict DENVER will win this one by 13 points. PHILADELPHIA (5-0) AT NEW ORLEANS (1-4)

Not much can be said about this mismatch. Except for their upset of LOS ANGELES, the SAINTS are simply outclassed by every team in the book. PHILADELPHIA should yawn, and still win this one by 19 points.

TAMPA BAY (3-2) AT GREEN BAY (2-3)
TAMPA and MINNESOTA are tied for the lead in the NFC CENTRAL DIVISION, while GREEN BAY and DETROIT are tied for second. Both these teams have played MINNESOTA and CHICAGO earlier in the season, with TAMPA faring slightly better. The statistics for both teams are nearly even, but I predict that TAMPA BAY will win by 4 points.

LOS ANGELES (3-2) AT ATLANTA (3-2)
LOS ANGELES, ATLANTA, and SAN FRANCISCO are all tied for the lead in the NFC WESTERN DIVISION. Both teams played NEW ORLEANS and CLEVELAND, and ATLANTA came off with much the better scoring record. ATLANTA statistics are also better than LOS ANGELES for points scored against them, which to me indicates that the FALCON defense is superior. LOS ANGELES is coming on strong, however, having won their last three with impressive ease. There are upset indicators, but I believe that ATLANTA will win this one by 5 points.

SURPRISE CLIFFHANGER OF THE WEEK
DALLAS (4-1) AT SAN FRANCISCO (3-2)

At first glance this looks like another nothing game with the ever-powerful COWBOY machine simply grinding up the 49ers as they have done year after year with boring regularity. That could still happen, of course, but this year several things are different.

First, the 49ers are in a three-way tie for the lead in their division, the first time in ages that they have been in the lead for anything either as individual players or collectively as a team. Second, Joe Montana, the 49er quarterback, has been doing a super job keeping the 49ers clicking, and team morale is very high.

Statistically over the past 150 NFL games or so, the 49ers are no match for the COWBOYS. They never have been, having ended up near the bottom of their division for many years. Oh, they were in the playoffs in 1971 and 1972, and lost both times to — you guessed it — the COWBOYS. In 1981, however, the statistics are different. SAN FRANCISCO has been playing above basic formula predictions by an average of 4 points per game and are improving, whereas DALLAS is below prediction by 6 points and getting worse.

The 49ers have won their home games this year by an average of 9 points, and the COWBOYS have won their away games by 9 points. Point averages for the two teams at home and away are also essentially the same, being only 1 point in favor of the COWBOYS, who also have a 3 point advantage in overall point average.

Late this week the COWBOYS will be boarding their jet, laughing and cracking jokes all the way to SAN FRANCISCO, where a re-vitalized group of 49ers are primly reviewing their game plan and secretly dreaming their individual impossible dreams. I believe DALLAS is by the superior team, and predict that they will win by 2 points.

I also believe that this game isn't going to be the 59 to 13 rout of last year; that the COWBOYS are going to have a very busy Sunday afternoon; and that they are going to be much more subdued on the way home.

This is idle speculation, of course, but maybe — just maybe — the 49ers can hold the COWBOYS to a Mexican standoff for four quarters and realize their impossible dream. A very long shot, certainly, but I wish I could be there.

Punchless Raiders Shuffle Offensive Lineup To Break Shutout String

By United Press International
The time has come to break up that old gang in Oakland.

The defending Super Bowl champion Raiders, shut out in their last two games, will shuffle their offensive lineup Sunday when they meet AFC West rival Kansas City at Arrowhead Stadium.

Gene Upshaw, the seven-time All-Pro left guard, will be benched after playing 207 consecutive games in favor of top draft choice Curt Marsh, who was just activated. Also, tight end Derrick Ramey replaces Raymond Chester, a 12-year veteran, as the Raiders try to add some life to a dying offense.

However, it should be remembered that at this time last season, the Raiders also were 2-3 before quarterback Jim Plunkett took over for Dan Pastorini, who had suffered a broken leg. The Raiders then went on to become the first wild card team to win the Super Bowl.

The Raiders were being stung by injuries to running back Mark van Eeghen (pulled hamstring) and wide receiver Bob Chandler (spleen). On defense, the Raiders are without nose tackle Reggie Kinlaw (knee injury), linebacker Bob Nelson (shoulder separation) and safety Mike Davis (broken leg).

But Oakland Coach Tom Flores is not about to offer any excuses.

"You hate to think your team is pressing," Flores said. "We've won before and there's a lot of pride involved. Some players are trying to do too much. You can fabricate excuses for losing two games in a row. We've had a lot of injuries; we could use that as an excuse. But you've still got to play the game. Injuries are a part of football. You've got to play each game with what you have. Plunkett has had his difficulties this season. Although he has completed 58 percent of his passes for 713 yards, Plunkett has also been intercepted seven times. He was pulled from the Denver game in favor of second-year man Marc Wilson.

All this leaves the Chiefs with a good shot at handling the Raiders' third straight loss. But Kansas City Coach Marv Levy isn't building a false sense of security.

stay in baseball long enough, something will happen that's never happened before," said Levy. "It's the same in football. This is a good example."

Kansas City is coming off a 33-17 loss to previously winless New England. Quarterback Bill Kinney hit just 9-of-20 passes for 108 yards and was intercepted three times. Running back Joe Delaney rushed for 101 yards for his first 100-yard game.

Kansas City has also been hammered by injuries but has handled that adversity much better than the Raiders with a 3-2 record and a second place standing in the West.

The Chiefs have lost three starters on defense: All-Pro end Art Still and linebacker Thomas Howard with knee injuries and linebacker Frank Manumaleuga with a pinched nerve in the neck. On offense, Kansas City has lost leading rusher Ted McKnight with an ankle injury and three reserves.

Elsewhere Sunday, Dallas is at San Francisco, Detroit at Denver, Cleveland at Pittsburgh, Los Angeles at Atlanta, Philadelphia at New Orleans.

Lyman cross country coach David Huggins likes to tell his runners to "come out easy because the others will come back to you."

The easy-going Greyhound coach, however, doesn't mind when his super sophomore Doug McBroom turns a deaf ear to the veteran coach's successful philosophy.

McBroom, a blond-haired phenom, ran his own race Friday at the Seminole County Championships at Trinity Prep and headed a Lyman boys contingent that captured the county trophy by 20 points over runnerup Lake Howell.

The smooth-running soph cruised the three-mile layout in 15:42, which was 23 seconds better than Lake Brantley's Tommy Palmer. Another Greyhound, Adam DeMino (18:12), was third, while Lake Howell's Joe Cordero (18:18) finished fourth and Oviedo's Marty Phillips (16:26) rounded out the top five. The top eight finishers made the all-county first team.

Phillips' finish helped Oviedo land in third place with 86 points, just one ahead of Lake Brantley. Seminole, paced by junior Mike Wooten's 14th place finish, was fifth with 134 points. Trinity Prep with 148 and Lake Mary with 185 completed the field.

In the boys' junior varsity, the young 'Hounds adhered to Huggins' theory and romped to an easy 17-64 victory over Lake Brantley. Howell (75) was third, Oviedo (128) nabbed fourth and Mike Gibson's "The New Lake Mary" (185) grabbed fifth.

John Natalie led the near-perfect (15) Lyman squad with a 17:22 clocking over three miles. Keith Mooney (second), Mike Grant (third), Russ Emerson (fifth) and Marc Overbay (sixth) headed the strong Greyhounds.

Lake Brantley's Bruce Snyder kept the Cross Country

'Hounds from perfection with a fourth place spot in 17:51.

Trinity Prep's Tommy Matthews, just a freshman running varsity, turned in a 16:50 clocking for the Saints' best show. While Wooten's showing earned him a second team all-county spot, Coach Ted Tombros felt the Tribe would have done better in the team standings with Richard Grey available.

"We might have gone as high as third," said Tombros. "I know Richard would have been third best for us." Grey had to go to Jacksonville for some U.S. Army business. He plans to go into the Army after graduation.

Although McBroom dusted off the county competition in the boys varsity, just the opposite was true in the girls event.

Lake Brantley senior Tracy Bonham puth on a furious 50-yard kick to edge Lyman's Dawn Bender at the tape to win the girls varsity run of two miles and help the Pats to the team title.

"I got her by a chin," laughed the blonde-haired senior. "It helps to have a big chin when it's close."

While Patriot Coach Jim Marshall wasn't buying the "big chin theory," he did feel that Bonham's training as a half-miler during the track season made the difference.

"She leaned through at the end like you're supposed to do," pointed out Marshall, whose talented Lady Pats have won three invitationals this year.

Brantley is ranked second in the state behind Jacksonville's Orange Park. The Patriots will get a shot at Orange Park and the state's other top three teams Saturday at the DeLand Invitational.

"Everybody wants to run that meet," informed Marshall. "That's where the state meet will be held and everyone wants to get used to the course."

Following Bender into the chute was Brantley's Ellen Stern (12:25) and Lake Howell's one-two combo of Kerry Ryter (12:33) and Cathy Compton (12:39).

The Patriots tripped Howell, 38-47, for the title. Lyman (89) was third, Trinity Prep (101) fourth, Oviedo (143) fifth and Lake Mary sixth. The Sanford girls did not have enough girls to tabulate a team score. Senior Brenda Davis was first across for Nate Perkins' Tribe.

"We didn't run that well," appraised Hawks' Coach Tom Hammontree. "We had hard workouts all week and it really showed. I think we've hit a plateau."

While Hammontree's girls were tired, Trinity's ladies were among the running wounded. "The flu has killed us," said George Austin. "Andrienne Politowicz and Shannon McNulty both came up with it and Mary DeNily as at a tennis tournament.

"It's tough to be competitive when your top three runners are missing."

The competition was also lacking at the girls JV level, team-wise, anyway. Howell and Brantley turned it into a dual meet with freshman Lyn Lucas leading the Baby Hawks to a 27-38 win.

Lucas cruised the two miles in 13:38, four seconds ahead of teammate Debbie Vanorden. Lyman's Lori Carroll was fourth in 13:53, while Lake Brantley's Joanne Hayward (13:59) was fourth and Pat teammate Kim Lubenow (14:02) was fifth. The Patriots' Beth Glassbrenner (14:19) took sixth.

Well Tennis Fans, Castle Is Back

Well tennis fans we've decided to bring back the ol' tennis column and hopefully keep area tennis buffs up to date on what's happening in the world of tennis. Lately, as a matter of fact, a lot has been going on as far as tournaments are concerned, so the following are a few results that you might have missed.

In the Annual Fall Classic at Vistana this past weekend over 75 of the top men players from around the state entered. This is one of the top clay court tournaments in the state and always attracts a quality field.

The men's winner in singles was Mike Pernfors. Pernfors from Malmo, Sweden defeated number three ranking men's player Mike DeFranco in the final 6-3, 6-4. Pernfors is a freshman at SCC and looks like a star of the future.

In the men's doubles Pernfors and Andy Castle defeated Aye Svansson and Greg Miller in an all SCC final. Castle is from Sussex, England and Svansson is from Sweden. Miller is one of the top junior players from Illinois. Out at Bayhead Racket Club this past weekend David Holt won the Men's Club Championship by defeating Lee Holt in the final. David beat Jim Shupe in the semi's and Lee got the best of Ben Burnette. In the Women's Finals Betty Reagan defeated Candy Crocker in straight sets to take the Women's Title.

In the UCF Fall Classic played recently top area pro Mike DeFranco defeated SCC student Necvet Demir in the final. This was a strong tournament held for the first time, and the UCF folks hope to make it an annual affair.

Another tournament coming up is the Sanford Recreation Department and Optimist Club of Sanford Junior Tennis Tournament slated for Nov. 7-8.

Opening round play will begin at SCC at 8 a.m. Nov. 7. The cost is $5 for singles and $3 for doubles per person.

All divisions are limited to 32 singles and 16 doubles.

There will be three divisions each for girls and boys singles and girls and boys doubles. Checks may be payable to: City of Sanford Recreation Department, P.O. Box 1778, Sanford, FL 32771-0211. For further information call 322-3161 and ask for Jeff Monson.

Elizabeth Paulucci Helfrich, brought up on the iron range in Minnesota, spent about seven years at home on the range in Sanford, testing select recipes for her cookbook, 'Cooking From A Melting Pot.' The book required 'a lot of reading, researching and reminiscing to put together,' the author says.

Cookbook Combines Love And History

By DARLENE JENNINGS
Herald Staff Writer

"It's a combination of love and history," said author Elizabeth Paulucci, Sanford, about her first cookbook, which publishers Grosset and Dunlap Inc., New York, began selling on the national market last week.

Miss Paulucci's cookbook, "Cooking From A Melting Pot," offers approximately 400 recipes of international cuisine, but the book also adds a touch of history about the hometown where the author was reared.

In the book, the author describes the blending of the many cultures from such countries as Bulgaria, China, England, Greece, Scandinavia, Ireland and Italy to Hibbing, Minn., a small iron mining town in northwestern Minnesota.

"I classified the recipes according to the order of how each of the nationalities arrived in Hibbing," said the lady with the warm smile. "The last chapter is entitled U.S., U.S. because we have become a microcosm of our own individuality," she added.

Miss Paulucci's parents were part of the immigration to the new land along with the other immigrants from 25 nations who lived and worked in side-by-side communities.

"Liz Paulucci has chosen the most interesting and tempting recipes from the vast store of cooking techniques those cultures brought over and adapted to American methods and ingredients," according to a promotion released by the author's agent.

The new author will be autographing her book at an autograph party hosted for her by Gifts by Nan, Sanford, on Oct. 14.

Irish Colcannon, French Escargot, Greek Pickled Octopus, Jewish Cheese Cake, Latin American Tostadas, American Indian Golden Cornbread and U.S. Molasses Bran Brown Bread are just a few of the recipes described in the easy-to-read book.

Also listed in the book are several of her own "specialties" like "Liz's Italian Fried Chicken" and "Spaghetti With Meatball Sauce," and some of her mother's favorites like a recipe for Antipasto and Pesce Piquante (spicy fish).

"This book has required a lot of reading, researching and reminiscing to put together," Miss Paulucci says.

The book is also featured in her publisher's list of 1981 fall adult books, and the writer speculates the book might even be offered to a book club.

The cookbook is listed in the same company as the "Mafia Kingpin," by Reparata Mazzola and Sonny Gibson; "Finding Marilyn," by David Conover; and "Vincent Price's World of Monsters," by Vincent Price.

"It took me seven years of choosing recipes I wanted to include in the book, classifying them and testing them to put it all together," she said.

Two hundred of the 400 recipes in the cookbook were given to the author from friends and relatives during the years she was preparing her 288 page manuscript, she said. She then spent the next two years sending her "wares" to prospective publishers.

But selling the cookbook to a publisher wasn't easy, she admits. "I learned a lot about the publishing business, though," Miss Paulucci said pleasantly.

"I spent two years sending the manuscript here and there, and I must have had 12 rejections during that time," she said. "One publisher said he liked the book but he didn't want to deal with an unknown writer," she remembers — slightly miffed.

"Then finally a publisher in Virginia suggested I come up with a 'gimmick' for selling the book. She suggested the theme for my book and told me to lay out the cookbook according to how the immigrants arrived in history to my hometown," the writer said.

Miss Paulucci said that she took the publisher's advice and she picked up an agent to help promote her book — another bit of helpful information passed on to her — and pretty soon she launched her successful cookbook campaign.

"We sent out a 'goodies kit' to sales representatives for different publishers to get their interest," said the self-admitted Julia Child fan.

"In the kit, we included English fruit rocks, Scandinavian oatmeal cakes and Irish shortbread. It turned out that Grosset and Dunlap's editor-in-chief was enthused about the theme of the book," she said.

Married to Dr. Norman A. Helfrich Jr., Winter Park pediatrician and her business manager, Miss Paulucci is also the sister of Jenò Paulucci of Jenò's pizza fame and founder and former owner of the Chun King Corporation.

The cookbook is dedicated to the author's mother, Michelina Paulucci, and her brother, Jenò.

It was Jenò who first told his sister that she should write a cookbook.

"Several years ago I confided to my brother that I would really like to either sing or write a cookbook," she said. "He said that as long as I couldn't sing, I might as well write the book," she laughs.

Miss Paulucci has studied cooking at a Cordon Bleu School and has judged local cooking events, but her interest in cooking began at a very young age.

"I started cooking in my mother's kitchen when I was very young," reminisces the small woman of Italian descent. "Mother would sew on her treadle sewing machine and tell me to go stir the pot before something sticks," she recalls.

Miss Paulucci, very comfortable in her own kitchen today — with its four ovens and its good luck witches watching over every preparation — said she started out cooking French and Italian meals (naturally), which she favors in her cooking today, as well as Oriental dishes.

But the delicate lady is not just a successful author of a cookbook, she also enjoys working in the kitchen and seeing the recipes develop into beautiful meals.

"I do a lot of testing and tasting," she said cheerfully. "In fact the neighbors ask what I'm bringing over next," she smiles.

Sitting comfortably on her plush sofa surrounded by beautiful and ornate objets d'art, Miss Paulucci said she cooks "nice" meals all the time for her and her husband.

"When we were first married eight years ago, my husband was used to going out to eat at nice places every night. It was a challenge to me to feed him the way he was used to eating," she revealed.

Good food is always a primary interest for the Helfrichs — even when they travel internationally.

"We take frequent medical trips to Europe and we're always looking for good places to eat. I wrote a letter to a friend one time from France and she replied, 'you took a two-week trip to France and all you've mentioned was the food,' she laughs as she remembers her friend's letter.

Miss Paulucci said she is continuing to collect and file recipes and said that she's always interested in cooking-related activities. She even hints there may be a second edition to "Cooking From A Melting Pot," in the future.

New York Glitter, Hum Of Detroit And Now Back Home

By DIANE M. JEFFERSON
Herald Feature Writer

Cosmopolitan New York glitters after sunset and Detroit hums with a pace all its own.

But Sanford-born Dwight Bowes left both behind him to take a post as general manager of the Orlando Opera Company. He began his new position Aug. 1.

"I still think of Sanford as home," explained the former director of the New York City Opera Theater. To his right a poster of the Michigan Opera Theater in Detroit splashed vivid red hues on the white wall. Bowes had been director of productions in Michigan before accepting the post in Orlando.

"There are a lot of people I know in Sanford, and the house I grew up in is still there," Bowes reminisced.

He sat further back in his chair and thought about his childhood. Dressed immaculately in white shirt, blue, red and white striped tie and sporting an impeccably trimmed mustache, Bowes looked like a Madison Avenue executive amid the piles of theatre programs and stacks of books in his small windowless office.

"Sanford was an interesting town to grow up in. I would much rather grow up in Sanford than New York," he said. "The sense of community and the feeling of belonging to a place as a human being is much more important (than the cultural opportunities of New York). You can expose yourself to culture as an adult."

With a smile, Bowes said the library was an important part of his childhood.

"The older women who were librarians there really encouraged a kid who liked to read," he said. Other influences were Latin teacher Nellie Coleman, his parents, drama and journalism teacher Catherine Lee and close friend Tad Deans.

Bowes said his future career in theater and opera was foreshadowed early in his life.

"I was the black sheep in the Methodist Church Christmas Pageant for four years," he chuckled.

Bowes decided to go into theater after Catherine Lee staged

"The Importance Of Being Earnest" by Oscar Wilde, and cast Bowes as Earnest. He later went on to graduate with honors from Tulane University, where he majored in theater arts.

Bowes never expected to find himself working in opera, although it had been an avocation since age 14. In 1968, Bowes and friend, Tad Deans, "decided at the ripe age of 14 we just had to see an opera." They bought tickets to Madame Butterfly and caught a performance at the Bob Carr Auditorium in Orlando. Bowes was fascinated. And Deans later would work in the opera field himself with the New York Metropolitan Opera Company.

Bowes said he feels too often opera is viewed as "elitist," as an art form reserved for intellectuals. He is looking forward as general manager of the Orlando Opera Company to changing that image of the arts in the Central Florida area.

"We will try to do things to encourage people not to be afraid of opera, that it is not elitist, that anyone can enjoy an opera. Why, an opera has a lot of the same appeal as television — the sex, the violence. There is a lot of singing and dancing, a lot of entertainment. Look at what you have in Faust, which we are opening Oct. 30. You have an infanticide, a rape, Satan and spectacular supernatural effects. It's got the same elements as the movies showing today."

Deeply involved with the New York City Ballet's education division while in the Northeast, Bowes looks to education to build a solid Central Florida audience. He plans on working with students in opera workshops, including pieces in a season's repertoire to give the cast a chance to develop their own artistic skills and putting on a festival at one of the local colleges to provide a performance outside the confines of the traditional enclosed stage.

In charge of the business aspects of the opera company as well as its artistic leader, Bowes hopes to lure new subscribers until 75 percent of a season's seating is sold out in advance, on a subscription basis. Pieces he would like to do for

OURSELVES IN BRIEF

General Mills Gives $70,000 To Art Center

A record crowd of over 1,100 art enthusiasts filled the Loch Haven Art Center Oct. 3 for a reception celebrating the opening of the Paul Harris Sculpture, Certain Pieces, 1958-1980 and the General Mills Art Collection exhibitions.

A highlight of the event was the announcement by Joe R. Lee, president of the Orlando-based General Mills Restaurant Group, Inc. of a $70,000 donation to the art center. This money was given specifically to purchase a piece for the permanent collection, according to Marena Grant, executive director.

This $70,000 makes a total of $70,000 given to the art center by General Mills and the General Mills Foundation. This unprecedented support helped make the two exhibitions possible.

Symphonata Reservations

The glitter and glamour of "Metallic Montage" will dominate the 20th annual Symphonata sponsored by the Florida Symphony League. The Symphonata, a fashion show and gourmet lunch is scheduled for Oct. 23 at the Tupperware Auditorium, Orlando. The event is held each year to benefit the Florida Symphony Orchestra.

A reception will start the event at 11 a.m. with luncheon at 12 and climaxed with the fast paced show. Reservations for attending the Symphonata may be made by calling Mrs. Jean Pennington, Longwood, 339-1853. Reserved seating is available at $35 per person with other seating at $25 per person.

Trinity 'Autumn Daze'

Trinity Preparatory School will hold its fifth annual Autumn Daze Sale on Friday, Oct. 23 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and on Saturday, Oct. 24, from 9 a.m. to noon, at the school, 8400 Aloma Ave. in Goldenrod (East Orlando).

The Trinity Angels, a parent service organization, are sponsoring the event. Featured will be "nearly new" clothes, Christmas crafts and boutiques, white elephant items and bakery goods.

The Office of Community Services at Seminole Community College will offer a course "Nutrition for Better Health." Class will begin Oct. 14 on Wednesday afternoons from 2 to 4 p.m. Registration fee: $4.00.

For information call the Office of Community Services at SCC, 323-1450, ext. 304.

League Of Voters To Meet

If your family is awaiting the arrival of a new member, the South Seminole La Leche League meeting, "The Family in Relation to the Breastfed Baby," may interest you. Informal discussion will center on how to manage those first hectic weeks with emphasis on the entire family as well as timely tips for mother and baby.

The meeting will be held Tuesday, Oct. 20, at 9:30 a.m. at 803 Caloosa Trail, Casselberry.

For information call 329-2770.

200 To Show In Festival

An international selection of more than 200 artists and craftsmen has been invited to show at the Oct. 17 and 18 Maitland Arts Festival at Lake Lily.

Creative people from as far away as Maine and The West with art educations spanning the globe will present displays in five primary disciplines for prizes and purchase awards totaling more than $7,500.

Ariola recording artist Tim Coons and WDIZ radio personalities will provide a performing arts lineup to complement the Rotarian-sponsored fine arts exhibition, the fifth annual.

'Wizard Of Oz' Coming

The Theater for Young Audiences Series of the Council of Arts and Sciences opens Oct. 19 and 20 with four performances, 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. both days, of "The Wizard of Oz" at the Carr Performing Arts Centre. The Prince Street Players of New York City, brought to Florida by Story Theater Productions (Vilma Bufman, producer), will present this children's classic.

Recommended for grades K through 12, this production is for school groups as well as parents and their children. For reservations, call Erin Miner at the Council, 843-2787. Tickets are $2.25 per student.

La Leche Meeting Called

The Seminole County League of Women Voters invites interested persons to an orientation cheese and wine festival at Warren's, 114 Live Oak Lane, Altamonte Springs, on Thursday, Oct. 22, from 5 to 7 p.m.

If you have never been aware of League activities, left League membership behind in another city, or are just curious, you are needed. For information, call 869-5881.

Infantry Division Reunion

The 81st Infantry Division (Blue Devils) Association's south-eastern chapter is having a three-day mini-reunion and chapter meeting at the Langford Resort Hotel in Winter Park on Oct. 16, 17 and 18.

Homecoming Week

Something old and something new are in store for the University of Central Florida during this year's Homecoming Week, which kicks-off Nov. 1 with the traditional bonfire at Lake Claire on the UCF campus.

For the more than 11,000 UCF graduates living in Central Florida, and countless fans in the area, all events lead to the Nov. 7 tilt between the football Knights and Hampden-Sydney College at the Tangerine Bowl.

For specific information on places, times and tickets, call the UCF Alumni Relations Office, 275-2233.

In And Around Lake Mary

UF Honors Dr. R.S. RiCharde

Dr. Marvin R. McMillan, Assistant Dean of the College of Education, University of Florida, Gainesville, has announced that Dr. R. Stephen RiCharde of Lake Mary, produced the outstanding dissertation at the College of Education for the 1979-80 school year.

Dr. RiCharde's name has been inscribed upon the plaque and is displayed in the Norman Hall Library at the College of Education, University of Florida.

The award carries a monetary value of $500 for Dr. RiCharde.

Dr. RiCharde and his wife, Lee, are currently in Germany where he is teaching college courses in Educational Psychology under the auspices of the University of Maryland and the military government of the United States.

His travels in this capacity have carried him to Spain, Turkey, Portugal and Germany. Dr. RiCharde is a graduate of Seminole High School and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S.M. RiCharde Jr., of Lake Mary.

The Chamber of Commerce met Oct. 5 at city hall.

After the business meeting, president DeLora Lash introduced the guest speaker State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood. He gave a slide presentation on prisons in Florida and the weapons that are used and made by the prisoners.

He also told of witnessing the execution of John Spenklink. A question and answer period followed the slide presentation.

Refreshments were served to the many citizens attending.

Vince and Gwenne Butler recently returned from a trip through the northeastern states.

They toured Connecticut, New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine, visiting Vince's brother in southern Maine. They went to Mt. Washington, Hershey, Pa. and Spartanburg, S.C.

Gwenne says she enjoyed most the colorful scenery in Mt. Washington.

The Garden Club reminds members of the regular meeting Oct. 14 at 12:30 p.m. at the Presbyterian Church.

New members are welcomed and all who are interested are invited to join them at this meeting.

Linda Teeter celebrated her birthday Oct. 1. Her husband Rick took her shopping for western wear and son, David, took her to dinner.

Linda is membership chairman for the chamber of commerce and she and her husband Rick are the owners of Lake Mary Lawn and Garden.

The sixth Annual Christmas Drive has begun and the city hopes to make this year the biggest ever.

Representatives from the city, police department and the fire department have been to several businesses in the area seeking donations for this project.

On Dec. 20, representatives hope to have Santa at city hall to pass out filled stockings to the children. On Dec. 24, Santa will be on his float riding through the city with toys for the children.

Anyone wanting to donate, may take their donations to city hall.

Residents of the Forest and the city would like to express their deepest sympathy to Blanche Elliott over the recent loss of her husband, Bill Elliott. Originally from Pennsylvania, Bill and Blanche moved to Lake Mary in 1975.

The Lake Mary Presbyterian Church is holding its annual bazaar on Nov. 14 from 9-4 p.m.

Handmade crafts and Christmas items will be sold. Baked goods will also be served with a lunch of sandwiches. Refreshments will be sold throughout the day.

They are also holding a rummage and bake sale Oct. 9 from 9-5 p.m.

NCR and Stromberg Carlson ended their week long festival activities with their annual picnic and auction. They auctioned donations made by local merchants and profits made have been donated to United Way and the Lake Mary Christmas Fund.

Canoe racing, refreshment booths and a dunking booth helped to make the day very enjoyable for all that attended.

The fire department reminds members of their regular meeting Tuesday, at 8 p.m.

The Homemakers Club will hold its regular meeting Tuesday, at the Agricultural Center, at 9:30 a.m.

Son May Feel Blessed In Giving What He Receives

DEAR ABBY: My son (I'll call him John) graduated from our state university with a master's degree in business administration, but it's been a year now and he hasn't found a job. He had very little money saved, except for a small $5,000 inheritance from his grandmother.

John was raised a Catholic, but he wasn't happy in that church, so he quit and joined another one. I didn't object because John had always been a "loner," but he had made a few friends at his new church and seemed much happier.

My shock came about six weeks ago when I was cleaning John's room and on his desk I saw a check that he had written for $900 — made out to this church! I became curious and looked into his checkbook, which was also on his desk, and found that John had already given the church three other checks totaling $3000!

I called the church and spoke with one pastor, who referred me to another pastor, who referred me to a bookkeeper. I tried to tell them that my son had been unemployed for a year and couldn't afford to give them this kind of money. I was told they never question anyone's ability to give, and all donations were voluntary.

I spoke to John about it, and he said the church was wonderful, deserved all the help he could give, and that nobody took advantage of him. I called the church again and tried to get the people there to refund at least a part of the money, but they refused. I begged them to quit accepting money from my son, but they told me again that all donations were voluntary.

Abby, what can I do? How can I get the church to listen to reason? I am not saying my son is "crazy," but this church has got him so involved he can't be thinking right. Please help me. I'm a widow with very little money. Thank you.

NOWHERE TO TURN

DEAR NOWHERE: You can't stop a church from accepting voluntary contributions, but if you have reason to believe that your son isn't "thinking right," you should start with a doctor, and end up with a lawyer. If your son is psychiatrically examined and found to be mentally sound, he can give the gold out of his teeth to whomever he chooses, and there's nothing you can do about it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband recently applied for a job where I am employed. He went in for an interview last Monday and was told that he would be notified at the end of the week whether or not he had been hired for the job.

By Friday my husband had not heard anything, so he asked me to call and find out what the situation was. I refused, saying I didn't think it was proper for me to call, and if he wanted to know, he should call himself.

He said that my refusal to call showed that I had no interest in his career. I tried to tell him that I am interested, but there are some things a person should do for himself. Who is right? CONCERNED WIFE audiences include operettas like "Show Boat" and "The Student Prince."

"Opera should be sold like peanut butter. You sell it with pizzazz," he stated.

The outreach educational program for young children Boves is planning will give him the opportunity to help touch the lives of other Sanford and Central Florida children in the area, he believes. This is one of the most important projects he is considering.

"A program like this can make a remarkable difference in the life of a child," he said. "Your 3-year-old Mary Jane does not have to grow up to be a check-out girl. She can be an opera singer, a star, if she wants to be. The opportunities are available, and there are more careers in this field than people think."

Boves yawned. He leaned over to take a call his secretary had put on "Hold." His watch read 10:30 a.m. but his day would stretch well into 7 p.m.

After 4 p.m. he sat with Orlando Opera Company Music Director Al Savia and others to judge the efforts of singers hoping to become members of a resident repertory company that Boves is forming.

Tucked inside the darkness of the Fred Stone Theater on Rollins College Campus, Boves listened to young men and women of the area auditioning from serious works to light operetta.

A shapely blonde sang a piece in Italian. Boves tapped a pencil absently in front of him, his chin resting in his hand. Maestro Savia looked up from the musical score he had been following.

"Fine, fine," Boves said. Then: "Do you dance?"

With the instinctive precision hallmarked the blend of artist-executive titled "general manager," Boves was already thinking of an operetta he might direct, casting the young woman in the part.

Friends' Recipes Feature Of Newly Released Book

Liz Paulucci Helfrich is sort of floating on Cloud Nine these days since the release of her book, "Cooking From A Melting Pot," by publishers Grosset and Dunlap Inc., New York.

The Sanford author has several autograph parties coming up including one at Powers Department Store, Minneapolis, Minn., on Nov. 9. Locally, an autograph party is scheduled at Gifts By Nan, Sanford, on Wednesday, beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Featured in the exciting collection of good things to eat are favorite recipes from Liz's friends including the following Seminole countians: LaRene Ball, Vivian Buck, Doris Dietrich, Bill Gielow, Arlis Grailing, Edith Harrison, Dorothy Karns and Jerri Kirk.

Also: Nancy Kirk, Susan and Dennis Kirkwood, Winifred MacPherson, Dorothy McReynolds, Dorothy McWhorter, Elizabeth Martin, Lourine Messenger, June Moore Ramsey and Mary Schmitt. Also: Sophie Shoemaker, Pat Southward, Tom Stevenson, Florence Trepanier, Martha Yancey and the late Georgianna Allen.

J.S. "Red" Cleveland and his bride, the former Eloise Collins, have been entertained at several parties since their marriage last month.

Betty and Tony Russi entertained the newlyweds at a cocktail party at their home in English Estates. The Russis' "stood up with" the bridal couple at the wedding in Ormond Beach.

On Tuesday a group of Sanford friends, Dorothy McReynolds, Ann Brisson and Martha Yancey, honored Eloise at a surprise champagne luncheon at the Cavalier Restaurant. The vivacious bride was presented with a gift of crystal.

Invited guests included: Liz Helfrich, Vida Smith, Jerri Kirk, Melba Cooper, Esther Levere, Nellie Coleman, Lourine Messenger, Pat Foster, Doshia Brown, Bunny Taylor, Bill Gielow, Jean Fowler, Carolyn Cornelius, Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole Board of Directors held the annual "welcome" dinner Sunday night for the 1981-82 company dancers and their parents.

Entering its 14th year, an ivory theme was carried out at the dinner held in the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce banquet room.

A piano keyboard was depicted on the table cloths and a large overhead banner read "keyed for success."

BGS president Pat Scott introduced the 25 dancers and presented each with an ivory piano key keyring.

The large room was filled to capacity with excited dancers, parents and board members. A decorated sheet cake was cut after the dinner, catered by the board and auxiliary.

Mary Blair was the overall chairman, assisted by Gail Bell, Pat Scott, Jonnie Butler and Larry Blair.

The guild's artistic directors and choreographers, Valerie Weld and Miriam Wright, were on hand to answer questions about the forthcoming season, which they speculate as "fantastic."

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald (Claudette) Behrens spent two months hunting and fishing in the wilderness of northern Idaho and then on to Alaska.

"Beautiful country -- just beautiful," Claudette repeated several times.

The couple's son, Ward, joined them in Idaho for nearly three weeks when the name of the game was hunting elk. This was his first plane trip and his first elk. The bottom line is that Gerald bagged a six-point elk with Claudette's five-point elk placing second, and Ward's four-point elk coming in third.

Claudette says the highlight of the Alaska trip was "cutting the first salmon." They visited the University of Alaska where they conferred with a doctor experimenting with roses. "She was using some of the same roses I grow," Claudette says.

The Behrens drove a truck with camping gear and "roughed it" while in the mountain country, but stayed in hotels in the cities. Claudette said she took her pressure cooker and canned some of the clams they dug. They also brought back plenty of elk meat which had been frozen at one of the paradise outlets for hunters.

They missed an earthquake in Anchorage, Alaska, by just one day. Claudette said food was expensive, "1.50 for a glass of milk." She also mentioned that Alaska King Crab was "higher there than here."

Claudette says she has thoroughly enjoyed these trips for many years. But all good things must come to an end to make room for her own activities on the homefront — tennis, gardening and such.

Nancy B. Terwilliger reports a wonderful trip to Kansas City, Mo. where she was delegate to the International Chapter of the PEO Sisterhood. Nancy was among the 1,200 delegates representing 215,000 PEO members in the United States and Canada.

A special feature of the convention was a day's trip to Cottey College, Nevada, Mo., a liberal arts junior college for women owned by PEO. Delegates participated in the rededication of the renovated Main Hall and toured the campus, among other activities.

A surprise awaited Nancy when she checked into her hotel room — a beautiful bouquet of roses from her husband, Jim, back in Sanford.

Larry Strickler, manager of Southern Bell in Sanford, and chairman of the Pilot Division of the United Way of Seminole Inc., entertained the UW chairmen of the businesses in his division at a cocktail party Thursday at the Greenhouse in Lake Mary.

Several highly motivated UW supporters were on hand including Dick Fess, this year's county campaign chairman, and his wife Linda; David Joswick, president of UW; and Jack Horner, a former campaign chairman and president, among others.

Gingerbread N' All That

If you've sat around talking with friends, as we have, about the need for someone to develop a gift or souvenir item that is unique to Florida, you'll appreciate this incident.

The day after we opened a Christmas shop at Inside Outside House on Church Avenue in Longwood, two ladies from the area arrived with a sack full of most charming gingerbread made from palm-tree trimmings. Each one was lovely and each one was different. The ladies are Julie Kelly and Carole Bolton. They have been perfecting their craft for the last two years. They take truck and chain saw to get the trimmings. Being careful not to harm the trees, they remove the base which is left on the trunk after the trees fall.

In the truck, they take their harvest back to their workshop for the process of treating and drying before the creative work begins. It was fascinating to hear them talk of the way each little creature develops its own identity and personality as it emerges.

Their comments reminded us of a conversation we once had with a Cherokee Indian about his craft. He told us that all he did was to release the little creatures God put in the wood.

Truly, with the little creature displayed in a group, you can see the differences in them.

We wanted terribly to buy the whole lot at once, however, friend Lois in the Max's nest is specializing in the line handcrafts area. It seemed only fair that she have the opportunity to add these charms to her wares.

With assurances that we would buy them in the future, we saw Carole to the store to see the inside of the Inside Outside House. Lois touched the gingerbread and they discovered the Runcible Spoon Tea Room where they stopped for lunch. It was obvious that they liked the tea room as much as we liked the gingerbread. They left vowing to return every Saturday.

We'd like to see you any day, Tuesday through Saturday, at the Tea Room. Lunch is served 11 to 2:30, with snacks before and after. You can browse the shop from 10 to 5.

P.S. Julie and Carole are in need of more palm-tree to rob. They offer free trimming in exchange for the trimmings. If you have a shaggy palm-tree and want it groomed on their terms, give us a call at 811-4481, and we'll put you in touch.

Dear Abby

DEAR WIFE: You're right. CONFIDENTIAL TO "BIDING MY TIME IN RENO, NEV.": Revenge may be sweet. But it almost always comes too late.

Muriel Scott, R.C. Kline Repeat Vows

Muriel Knox Scott of Sanford and Lake Toxaway, N.C., and Robert Charles Kline, Cincinnati, Ohio, and New Smyrna Beach, were married Sept. 26 at St. Andrews Chapel, Lake Toxaway.

The Rev. Dr. Virgil Bryant, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Sanford, was the officiating clergyman at the mountain-top, outdoor ceremony.

Nuptial selections were provided by Joseph Bailey, Scottish piper who played the bagpipes dressed in traditional attire of Scotland.

The bride chose for her vows a pale pink gown and carried a bouquet of heather and pink roses.

Attending their mother as matrons of honor were daughters, Debbie Johnson of Georgia, and Maureen Robinson of North Carolina.

The bridegroom's best men were Hank Kline, his eldest son, Cincinnati, and Richard Boesch, Maitland.

A reception was held at the Red Lion Inn followed by a dinner at the bride's home for family and friends.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Charleston, S.C. They will divide their homes between Sanford, New Smyrna Beach and North Carolina.

TOUCHDOWN

TOUCHDOWN... we all know the thrill that lifts us to our feet when OUR team scores. We cheer, we sing and shout. It takes teamwork to put a man over that goal line. The whole team must work together to move that ball down the field... "the right way." The guards and tackles must hold the line. The ends must be "on target" to receive passes. The quarterback must know his plays and execute them with speed and skill.

Briefly

Good News For Sharing Is Topic Of Film Series

Leighton Ford's six-part film series, "Good News Is for Sharing," will be presented by the New Life Fellowship Church, Tuskawilla Road at Lake Drive, Casselberry, beginning this Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. The first film will be entitled "I Found It-But Who Needs It?" One 25-minute film will be presented each Wednesday through Nov. 18.

Future titles include "Bad News and Good News," "Why God Uses Ordinary People," "Making the Connections," "But What Do I Say?" and "Sharing Naturally."

In this practical new series, Ford, an associate evangelist with the Billy Graham Team and chairman of the Lausanne Committee for World Evangelism, explains a natural approach to evangelism for ordinary people.

'Vaudeville' Show

On Friday, Oct. 16, at 7:30 p.m. there will be a Vaudeville Show at Sanlando United Methodist Church on State Road 434 in Longwood. Acts with talent and those without are included in the light-hearted entertainment. Proceeds will go towards the church piano fund.

Film To Be Shown

A special showing of the film, "Heavenly Deception," will be held at First Baptist Church of Deltona this Sunday, at 7:30 p.m. The church is located at 1200 Providence Blvd. The film is the true story of Chris Elkins, a man caught in the web of a cult and struggling to get free. The public is invited to attend. A baby nursery will be open for babies and very young children.

Lalty Sunday

Lalty Sunday will be observed this Sunday at Community United Methodist Church of Casselberry at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services. Speaker at the 9:30 service will be Rita Thomas, whose topic will be "Fair Exchange" and at the 11 a.m. service speaker will be Gary Andersen, who will speak on "What is your Response to Love?"

Other laypersons participating will be David Grimm, Bob Richardson, Barbara Richardson, Glenn From, Paul Banfield, George Watt, Howard Jefferies, Herb Langston, Henry Basinger, Emreette Watt and Shilla Van Wormen. The chapel choir will sing at 9:30 and the Cherub Choir at 11.

There will be a prayer and praise service at 7 p.m.

Ann Marie And Jackie

Ann Marie Weiss and her ventriloquist figure, "Jackie" will be at the First United Methodist Church in Sanford at the 8:30 and 11 a.m. services Sunday and will meet with the Children's Division of the Sunday School between services. Mrs. Weiss, who lives in the Winter Park area, became a ventriloquist in 1973 and has traveled across the nation and in foreign countries with this evangelistic ministry. She has written several books, made four motion pictures and recorded three albums. She is in the process of making a children's television series.

Deacons Emeriti Honored

Deacons Emeriti of First Baptist Church, Sanford, will be honored during the 11 a.m. service this Sunday and presented certificates. Those to be honored include R.F. Cooper, S.J. Davis Sr., A.C. Madden, A.K. McNab, J. M. McGee, C.E. McKee, H.C. Moore, L. Burke Steele, Martin Sincleifer, R.A. "Bob" Williams, George Hires and Roscoe Oll.

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes of Seminole High School is scheduled to attend the 11 a.m. worship service.

Old Fashion Day

Sanford Church of God, 801 W. 22nd., will have an Old Fashion Day this Sunday with an old-fashioned brush arbor service at 6 p.m. on the church property. There will be singing, testimonies and preaching with all ages invited to wear old-fashioned outfits.

Focus On The Family

The first film in the James C. Dobson "Focus on the Family" series, "The Strong-willed Child," will be presented this Sunday at 6:15 p.m. at the Longwood Hills Baptist Mission, 1255 E. Williamson Road, Longwood. Other films will be shown Oct. 18 and 25, Nov. 1, 8, 15 and 22. A nursery will be provided and the series is open to the public.

Stewardship Emphasis

Seminole Heights Baptist Church will begin its annual stewardship emphasis Tuesday with a covered dish dinner at 6 p.m. in the Sanford Women's Club. Dr. R.V. Rogers is stewardship chairman. Two major features of the emphasis will be adoption on Oct. 25 of a new church budget, which will be reviewed this Monday by the church deacons. The 1982 Ministry-Action Budget will be presented to the congregation on Oct. 21.

The dinner will take the place of the regular midweek prayer and Bible study.

Wycliffe Translators Speak

Pat and Melinda Edmiston, of Casselberry, Wycliffe Bible Translator linguists scheduled to leave next month for Australia and Papua New Guinea, will be speaking Sunday at the Upsala Presbyterian Church at the 9 a.m. Sunday School hour. He will also speak at the 10 a.m. church service.

Prophecy Crusade

The Rev. B.R. Minton, nationally known authority on end time Bible Prophecy and the books of Daniel and Revelation, will hold a four day prophecy crusade at First Assembly of God, 304 W. 27th St., Sanford, using his giant 33-foot Bible Prophecy Chart. Meetings begin at 6 p.m. this Sunday and at 7 p.m. on Monday through Wednesday.

Duncan To Speak

Dr. Pope Duncan, president of Stetson University will be guest speaker at Ravena Park Baptist Church on Sunday in the Church Training hour at 6:30 p.m. and the 7:30 p.m. service.

CHOIR PRESENTS CONCERT AT SANLANDO

The Western Carolina University Concert Choir and Early Music Ensemble will present a program of secular and sacred classics this Sunday at Sanlando United Methodist Church, State Road 434 at I-4, Longwood during the 11 a.m. service. The choir is on its fall tour with performances scheduled at several Florida cities and Disney World under the direction of Dr. Robert A. Holquist, director of choral activities. Lalty Sunday will be observed in the 8:30 and 11 a.m. services and at 7 p.m. members of the church's Halls mission team will give a slide presentation describing their recent trip.

Furor Over Working Mothers

By bringing up the subject of working mothers, Pope John Paul II has reopened a discussion (if not a controversy) that a "mother's place is in the home?"

In his encyclical letter to the Roman Catholic Church on Sept. 15 on the subject of work and human dignity, the pope said that workers' wages should be high enough so that men can support their families on their earnings alone, and permit mothers to stay at home and take care of the children.

While some will say that the pope's wording ("make it possible" for her to stay home) allows mothers who want to work the option to do so, others will interpret the pope's remarks to mean that, in his view, a woman's primary role is that of wife and mother.

"We have some concerns about the pope's statement because many women have to work out of necessity," says Mary Ann Stanton, staff person for the Department for Marriage and Family Concerns of the Catholic Diocese of Cleveland, Ohio.

"It isn't only that the husband's income won't maintain a household. Many women are divorced or widowed or have been abandoned and must work to support themselves and their children."

Ms. Stanton — calling attention to one of the pope's remarks in the encyclical that "work enhances the dignity of the person" — says the woman who "has a sense of professional vocation and the ability to contribute to the welfare of society should be allowed to do so, for this adds a dimension to her own dignity and fulfillment."

It is possible, says Ms. Stanton, for a working mother to make a "creative contribution" to society's work force without neglecting her children.

"What it would require is some modification of the work environment," she says. "Work schedules could be accommodated to a mother's obligations at home."

"In some foreign countries, factories have their own daycare centers attached to the working place. We could do that in this country."

Mrs. Eileen Richvalsky, of Avon, Ohio, Catholic lay-woman and married mother of four teen-age children, believes women have the right to make their own decision on whether to work outside the home.

But she adds, "If one chooses motherhood, it probably would be in the children's best interests to provide them with the kind of quality motherhood which comes from being at home when the children are there."

Mrs. Richvalsky, who didn't work when her children were

SAINTS AND SINNERS

small (she now works full-time in a drug store "to help with their education"), says that even though all her children are now teen-agers, "they still hate coming home after school to an empty house."

Some mothers believe it is not only all right for them to work but that this actually benefits the children.

"Several studies show," says one working mother, "that children who have mothers who work are more mature, self-reliant and able to make responsible decisions at an early age."

An article in a denominational magazine takes another approach.

"Few parents," says the author, "would willingly admit to neglecting their children. But after interviewing 250 children in several U.S. cities, sociologist Sarane Boocock concluded that the ties between today's children and their mothers are surprisingly weak."

Parents deposit their two- and three-year-olds for hours at a time at a variety of day-care centers, the article notes, "despite voluminous research indicating there are no 'good' child-care arrangements for children of this age other than parental care."

There is some doubt, of course, that Catholic women will pay any attention to what the pope's views are about working mothers.

"The biggest news of the Karol Wojtyla papery thus far," says Father Andrew Greeley, priest-columnist writing in TV News, "is that while Catholics at the grass roots may cheer loudly for the papal personality, they reserve the right to make their own decisions about papal teachings."

Greeley says, "Even a charismatic pope can govern only when he has the consent of the governed. For all his world travels, his kissing of the earth and of babies, his warm smile and his personal charm, John Paul has not even begun to get that consent."

Registration

Opens For Kindergarten

Feb. 1, 1982 has been set as the opening date for a preschool kindergarten to be sponsored by the Community United Methodist Church, Highway 17-92, Casselberry.

The kindergarten will be held from 9 a.m. to noon, Monday, Wednesday and Friday for children 3-5 years old.

Registrations are now being taken. Anyone interested may call Sue Ebaugh, the director, at 831-7630.

Family Night

"Fun and Surprises" will be the theme of this month's family night fellowship supper at 6 p.m. Sunday at First Presbyterian Church of Sanford.

The Limit Of Our Consent

I want to share with you what I will call the limit of our consent. Paul says, "Unto him who is able to do exceeding abundantly above all we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us..." Ephesians 3:20.

Paul is saying that here is a matter of letting the power that is within you actually meet the need. He says that all power needed by anyone (in touch with Christ) is already within himself.

The need you feel so keenly and the power you need are close neighbors. We have them both. It is the matter of the two getting together.

Paul says that we may expect that power in the Holy Spirit. He in Himself is all the power of God. He is now inside each of us. He comes through the open door of our faith. He reproduces Christ's own character in us, so far as we let Him have sway.

The big thing He does is to fill our hearts with that tender, strong passion—the love of Christ. This comes to include every other needed trait of character. Paul sums it all up in this verse when he says He is able to do, not simply what we ask, but what we are thinking about that we wish He would do.

The apostle Paul piles things up in a rare way. He is able to do "above" that; then "abundantly" above that; then "exceeding" abundantly above that. That is a tremendous climax.

The one outstanding character of this power is love. Love controls the power. The measure of the limit up to which we may expect this power is put in these words, "According to the power that worketh in us." Of course, the power itself is without limit but the Holy Spirit always works with our consent.

The gospel appeals to man's mind, man's conscience, man's will. It does not appeal to a thing or a mere animal, but to a man. The efficiency is of God, not of man.

The Holy Spirit does only as much as we will let Him do. So, the limit of the working is the limit of our consent.

National Bible Sunday Scheduled Nov. 22

NEW YORK — Nov. 22 is Bible Sunday, according to an official announcement by the American Bible Society.

This year's theme is "God's Word Open for All," and across the nation churches are being asked to recall that the Word of God, though plentifully available here, is in short supply in many countries around the world.

"Along with many other of life's essentials, the world is now faced with a crucial shortage of Scriptures," said Miss Alice Ball, an ABS General Secretary, adding that the African nation of Ghana was one example where the Scripture "cupboard" was almost totally bare.

This year's theme, said Miss Ball, expresses our desire to reach every man, woman and child on earth with the open Word of God.

"We are asking lay and clergy alike to focus on God's Word — to tell their congregations and friends that the Bible Societies are working with sister churches and mission agencies around the world to remedy the deficiency for millions who cannot immediately obtain a copy of God's Word," said Miss Ball.

There are millions of people in Indonesia, Eastern Europe, Ghana and the Dominican Republic among others, who do not yet know God's love and power, and our purpose is to give them every opportunity to find it through God's Word," she said.

"Despite our best efforts there are still millions of people who have not one piece of Scripture in a language they can understand, and we want to remedy that as fast as we possibly can," said Miss Ball.

Last year ABS helped to make possible the distribution of nearly 100 million Scriptures at home and abroad in partnership with fellow member Societies of the United Bible Societies.

Yet, according to reports reaching the American Bible Society, millions of people still do not have the Scriptures in their own languages despite the more than 500 languages into which the Word of God is currently being translated.

Bible Sunday is one of the country's great traditions. It seeks to focus attention on the world's spiritually impoverished. Thousands of lay people across the country will share their experience of changed lives.

Society Of Friends Holds Essay Contest

More than $1,000 in cash prizes is being offered by the Orlando Religious Society of Friends (Quakers) in the fourth annual Peace Essay Contest.

For the first time, Seminole County senior high school students, as well as Orange County high school students, are eligible to enter the contest. Preferred length of essays is 500 words, but other lengths will be accepted.

Writers should enclose with their essays a separate sheet giving name, address, telephone (if any), age, number of words, school and name of teacher.

Suggested subjects are "How Can the Nuclear Arms Race Be Reversed?" "How Can People Be Made Constantly Alert to the Danger of Nuclear War?" "How Can People Learn to be Friends with Other People of the World?" "How Can Citizens Influence Their Governments to Plan for Peace?"

First prize is $500, second prize is $300, third prize is $200 and fourth is $100.

Essays must be mailed or delivered by Dec. 1 to the Orlando Friends Meeting House, 316 E. Marks St., Orlando, FL 32803. For more information, contact G. Conditte, 425-3255.

Weekend Features Shedd And Paul Stookey Concert

The First Presbyterian Church of Orlando is sponsoring a "Fun in Marriage" workshop Oct. 23-25. The workshop will be conducted by the nationally prominent author, Charlie Shedd. Included in the weekend will be a concert Saturday evening by Noel Paul Stookey and the Bodyworks Band. Paul Stookey was formerly with the "Peter, Paul & Mary" trio.

Special events and activities are planned for children of all ages, including a special workshop led by Charlie Shedd for senior high and college age youth. Infant care will also be provided.

Registration includes an ice cream social Friday evening, lunch Saturday, and the concert Saturday evening. Concert tickets may be purchased separately at First Presbyterian Church, Fashion Square Ticket Agency and Bandwagon Music. Registration deadline is Oct. 11.

For further information regarding the fee schedule and registration, call 423-3441.

Coping With Reality

Barbara Lee Johnson, director of Total Life Ministries, will conduct a seminar for women only, "Coping with Reality," at the Malland Civic Center on Oct. 28 at 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

She will conduct sessions on "Coping with your Illusions," "Coping with Depression, Loneliness, Sorrow, and Trials," "Coping with Fear, Worry, and Anxiety," and "Coping with Yourself."

For more information on registration fee, call 831-8130.

Organ Concert Series

Features World-Status Artists

The 1981 organ concert series dates have been announced by the Trexler Memorial Foundation. Three world-status artists will perform on the 5-manual, 85-rank Fratelli Ruffatti organ in the penthouse sanctuary of St. Paul Lutheran Church (18th floor of Orlando Lutheran Towers), 300 East Church St. Orlando.

Gillian Weir is the first artist featured in this, the second annual series. Hailed in her native England as "extraordinarily exhilarating," Miss Weir has played to rave reviews throughout the North American continent. She will perform on Nov. 6.

Christopher Herrick performing next in the series on Jan. 29, 1982, is organist at Westminster Abbey.

Performer-composer, John Weaver, organist at New York City's Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, will appear on April 16, 1982.

All concerts begin at 8 p.m. Reserved seat tickets for individual concerts are $10 each or $25 for the series. All proceeds benefit the Trexler Memorial Foundation, a non-profit organization. For ticket information and reservations, contact the Concert Series Office at 300 East Church St., Orlando, Fla. 32801 or call (306) 425-6060, extension 7118.

Centerpoint Course Set

"Centerpoint," an 18-session course geared toward helping participants gain new insights into themselves and to explore together new ways of opening communications between the conscious and unconscious, will be offered at Holy Cross Episcopal Church, at Park Avenue and Fourth Street, Sanford.

An informational meeting about "Centerpoint" will be held at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, in the church lounge.

Here is another hand from International Popular Bridge in which the author, P. F. Saunders, pokes a little fun at himself and at the 12-14 point potrumpt that is still played by some of our British friends.

The play by South is as neat a swindle as we have ever seen and we consider it well worthy of our friend, the well-known "Generous George."

The bidding is of the catch-as-catch-can nature and there is no real play for the contract, but our "generous" British declarer found the play to make it. He covered the jack of hearts with dummy's queen.

East took his king and led back the nine of hearts. Wouldn't you? South promptly discarded his ace of diamonds on dummy's heart ace. Then he led the queen of diamonds for a ruffing finesse. It didn't matter when East played his king. South would ruff and play three rounds of trumps winning the third lead with dummy's nine. Then he would discard any remaining high diamonds and make the slam.

Note that East could have beaten the slam by leading back a club or diamond at trick two.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sunday, October 11, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 October 11, 1981

You should have no fear of being innovative in the year following your birthday. Experimenting with new inventions, material, methods or techniques could bring financial rewards.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Devote proper time and effort today to unfinished tasks which are important materially. After completion, switch your attention elsewhere. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're capable of skillfully managing most of your involvements today. However, in financial matters your grades aren't likely to be too impressive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your greatest pleasure will come today from that which you do to help others, not from advancing your own interests, as you may initially think.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is a possibility you may be a shade too self-conscious at social gatherings today. Once you relax, you'll really enjoy yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't make this a purposeless day. You're in a good achievement cycle, so you should set goals which will give you something worthy to shoot for.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be flexible today. Your initial approach to solving problems may not produce optimum results. Success comes after some slight modifications.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't let your emotions influence your judgment today in matters which require practical evaluations. Your feelings may oppose your logic.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Subdue today temptations to reveal information told to you in confidence. Should the impulse arise, change the topic of conversation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This is not a good day to too your own horn. Someone who is a trifle jealous of you may turn your boasts around and use them against you.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Make a decision today to either work or play, but don't have a foot in each camp. Doing one thing and worrying about another will spoil your fun.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Before doing for others today, look out first for those you're responsible for. Only after their needs are met, help elsewhere.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Rely more heavily on your own decisions today regarding things which affect your self-interests, rather than on the suggestions of associates.

FOR MONDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 October 12, 1981

This coming year you are likely to form several partnerships for collective ventures. Where your association is wise, success is likely. Where your choice is faulty, problems may result.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Select companions today whose interests are in harmony with yours. Persons who don't operate on your wavelength could prove to be especially frustrating. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually you're realistic, recognize conditions for what they are and deal with them accordingly, but today you may treat a serious situation far too lightly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Make it a point to steer clear of negative thinkers today. Being with the wrong types could dampen your enthusiasm for something good you have going.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be careful today of a tendency to take your frustrations out on an innocent bystander. If you do you'll cause two problems for yourself, instead of one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't use as a sounding board one who always sees faults in your ideas, instead of

China Chutists Set To Compete

ZEPHYRHILLS, Fla. (UPI) — An 18-member team from the People's Republic of China apparently will compete in the World Parachuting Championships beginning Saturday after first threatening to boycott the meet because South Africa also will take part.

When registration ended Thursday night, tournament spokesman Jerry Healy reported that the entire Chinese team had "signed up and paid their money" along with 23 other teams. Only the team from Finland failed to register, he said, adding that the Finns apparently plan to observe and practice. The Chinese offered no explanation why they had changed their minds, Healy said. A team spokesman was unavailable for comment late Thursday.

When the Chinese team arrived at the Zephyrhills Parachute Center Wednesday, a spokesman said it was the first time they were aware South Africa was competing and they would not compete.

"Our government has a very firm policy about that," said Cui Hanqing, head of the Chinese team and a retired army general. "There is nothing we could do."

Richard Charter, spokesman for the South African team, said it "came here to participate and, under any circumstances, will participate."

"They knew we would be here," he said of the Chinese. The Chinese approached at least two other teams about withdrawing from the competition unless South Africa is excluded.

Brian Shanahan, spokesman for the team from New Zealand, said the team had talked with the Chinese but said there was "absolutely no chance" it would withdraw.

Ian Pringle, captain of the team from Zimbabwe, said it also had been contacted and the country's embassy in Washington had been advised. He said he was awaiting word from embassy officials.

Healy called the incident Wednesday "unfortunate because most of the competitors want to compete against the Chinese and see how well they do."

South African sports teams have been subjected to demonstrations and violence in a number of international competitions because of that nation's racial segregation policies.

One of the most recent incidents involved the Springboks, a rugby team visiting the United States. In addition, South Africa was banned from the 1976 Olympic Games at Montreal because of the nation's racial policies.

The parachuting championships, sponsored at this mostly rural area northeast of Tampa by the U.S. Parachute Association, involve four and eight-man teams.
