MINE WARFARE BREAKS OUT IN OHIO VALLEY

Troops Sent To Hocking Fields To Stop Riot Which Brought Death To Miner, Boy

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Troops once more patrolled the Hocking Valley coal fields yesterday in answer to a fresh outbreak of warfare between miners and operators which within the past 24 hours has claimed two lives.

Governor White rushed a detachment of national guardsmen into the area following the killing of an 18-year-old high school boy during an early morning engagement between miners and mine guards at the No. 267 mine of the Ohio Collieries Co., near Hollister.

Last Sunday night, Bob Vincent, 45, an active strike agitator, was shot and killed at Luhrig by Dash Tadrow, a working miner, who told authorities Vincent had threatened his life.

The high school youth, Clement Headfield, was fatally wounded as he headed with his mother and three younger children in their home for protection against bullet.

Two guards were arrested yesterday on manslaughter charges filed by Prosecuting Attorney Belin after an investigation of the shooting.

Governor White ordered the mines closed until he deemed public safety was assured.

"If there is any shooting to be done, it will be by the national guard," he declared.

The Ohio Collieries mine refused to accept the strike truce effected by Governor White, and ratified two weeks ago by union representatives and operators. As a result of the truce, the seven months strike in southern Ohio fields was ended at an end and troops recently were withdrawn for the first time in several months.

Yesterday's disorders at the Hollister mine followed lesser troubles last week after mine officials decided to operate independently of the governor's peace program.

Palmer, Miami drogelist during an attempted holdup last New Year's Eve. His death warrant was read to him and was placed in a straight jacket and shackles to prevent in-

Greece Visited By Quake Killing 150

The village of Stratoniukion was reduced to ruins and casualties there were placed at 60 dead, 100 injured. Fifty persons were killed at nearby Ierissos where numerous houses collapsed.

GEORGIA DUMP MILK, VIOLATING FEDERAL ORDER

Farmers Continue Protest By Blocking Roads Near Forsyth

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Angry farmers halted several milk trucks near Conyers and Forsyth, Ga., yesterday and dumped milk, despite a federal injunction against violence in a dairyman's war for higher prices from Atlanta distributing plants.

At both places, the milk was headed for Atlanta, where the Georgia Milk Producers Confederation, Inc., and some milk distributing plants, are at odds.

Barricading the highway near Conyers with railroad ties, 42 farmers stopped several trucks.

The Dodge Dairies of Atlanta asked Federal Judge Eugene Deaver at Macon to issue citations for contempt of court against persons involved in the dumping.

Judge Deaver's temporary restraining order against violent interference with milk shipments to Atlanta was issued in Macon late Saturday on petition of the Dodge firm.

The dairy firm instituted another injunction proceeding in Fulton Superior Court here. In this action, it was granted a temporary order restraining agents of the State Department of Agriculture from enforcing prohibitory sale in Atlanta of milk that is more than 24 hours old.

This evidently was aimed at efforts of distributing plants to bring milk here from other states.

Just how much the Atlanta milk supply has been cut down by the milk car could not be learned, but a decrease in receipts, especially those coming in by truck, was reported on official.

Milk was delivered as usual to citizens and business houses yesterday, and several milk carriers said they had "just enough" to meet the demands.

Speed To Be Paramount Consideration During Hoover's Campaign Tour

The first of the addresses is scheduled Oct. 4 at Des Moines, another Mid-West address, it was said, would be in either Minneapolis or Cleveland. Boston is under consideration as the place for the third.

For the 1100-mile journey to Des Moines, the President will be absent from his desk in Washington only about 60 hours. There will be no stops en route, and platform appearances at railroad stations will be held to a minimum.

SANFORD MEN TESTIFY AT RATE HEARING

Scott, Hutchinson Tell I.C.C. Examiner Why Growers Object To Rates On Products

DAYTONA BEACH, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Georgia growers of Florida seem to have had a very profitable time of it for the last five years according to testimony of W. M. Scott, division manager of the American Fruit Growers, Inc., presented yesterday at the hearing of the Interstate Commerce Commission. He testified that his company had received since 1926 on 200 acres of fruit land a net return of only $8.24 per year for each acre. This represented an income of less than seven-tenths of one percent on their investment, he said. All costs of production, including shipping charges, were deducted to obtain this figure.

His petition for lowered freight rates for Florida vegetables was added to those of J. Curtis Robinson, executive vice president of the Florida Growers and Shippers' League, and Major Joseph Hutchinson, sales manager of the Sun-Diamond Truck Growers Association, who was called to the stand yesterday morning.

Hutchinson stated that he wished to correct a statement made by him previously that two earlier freight bills a charge of $3 and $3.16 respectively had been made for unloading. This, he said, should have been designated a "terminal" charge.

Huge Italian Liner On Maiden Voyage To U.S.

GENOA, Italy, Sept. 27.—(AP)—An 11-story sea skyscraper, the 60,000 ton liner Rex of the Italia Line was ready last night for her maiden trip to New York, and was expected to do the crossing in six and a half days, a record for the Southern route.

Several hundred distinguished guests and hundreds of other passengers arrived late yesterday for the voyage.

Among them was United States Ambassador John W. Garrett and Mrs. Garrett of Baltimore, Maryland. Francesco J. Speranza, recently appointed auxiliary bishop of Boston, Mass., Monsignor John Mark Cannon, Bishop of Erie, Pa.; Father Mayno James J. Walker of New York, Maestro Gatti-Casazza, director of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York and Signora Gatti-Casazza.

The captain of the Rex is the veteran Italian navigator, Francesco Tarabotti, long commander of the liner Augustus.

Roosevelt Continues Tour After Sojourn On Ranch; West Is Won, Says Daniels

WILLIAMS, Ariz., Sept. 27.—(AP)—With his private train set on a siding in a little lumber and cattle town, Franklin D. Roosevelt's "base" when the Democratic presidential candidate was assistant secretary of the navy in the Wilson cabinet, and here yesterday "the West has been won" to the New York governor.

He left the train to motor to the ranch, few miles from Williams, where Mrs. Roosevelt joined him after making the trip from Albany.

Today Roosevelt went to Albuquerque and Las Vegas, N. M., on the final leg of his long journey back to Albany.

The Democratic presidential nominee received a report by Charles Vanderbilt of an editorial survey he is making of sentiment in the country.

Vanderbilt, who has traveled many thousands of miles already in the partially completed survey in which he is talking with newspaper editors and political leaders, and that of the states he has visited so far the ones principally in doubt were Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wyoming, Kansas and Vermont.

"Condition are better in the West right now for Roosevelt than they were in Wils," said Daniels, who directed the Wils in publicity campaign in 1912.

He left his speech in the West, Daniels said, and will be interviewed by reporters in California. President Hoover's home state, does not give its elect col. vote to Roosevelt and even in Iowa, Hoover's vote is running very strong.

WASHINGTON, Ia., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Senators Smith W. Brookhart, for eight years a storm center of Iowa and national politics, returned to the political wars yesterday as a third party nominee for reelection.

Defeated for the Republican nomination by Henry Field Shand, Brookhart's seed dealer and radio station operator in a 1916 election fight last spring, Brookhart announced his candidacy yesterday.

He left his speech in the West, Daniels said, and will be interviewed by reporters in California. President Hoover's home state, does not give its elect col. vote to Roosevelt and even in Iowa, Hoover's vote is running very strong.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

HAVE THE MIND OF CHRIST
—Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus. Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves.—Philippians 2:5, 3.

Tammany Hall promises to support Roosevelt but Al Smith remains silent.

The spread of nudism is a perfectly natural sequence to a depression in which practically everyone lost his shirt.

And then there was that girl swimmer in the recent Olympics who regretted that she had but one companion to lose for her country.

President Hoover is trying to negotiate the sale of 15,000,000 bushels of American wheat to China. The difficulty is in finding men in China who can pay for it.

Now that Richard Washburn Child, former ambassador to Italy, has agreed to head the New York Roosevelt for President Club, we presume a proper Democratic slogan would be "A little child shall lead us."

The American Federation of Labor says that unemployment during August was checked, but that doesn't mean the 10,000,000 unemployed were actually put back to work. Need for charity and relief organizations will be greater next winter than last.

Today's Best: Sentiment on the bonus is pretty evenly divided between those who do not believe it should be paid and those who have one coming.—Judge Tampa Wilson. Oh no, not altogether.
There are plenty of veterans with one coming who are against it.

The so-called Republican Senator Norris is scheduled to take the stump for Gov. Roosevelt, but will do Roosevelt as much harm as good. In 1928 Norris stumped for Al Smith. The difficulty which Gov. Roosevelt has in this campaign is in keeping too many radicals like Senator Norris and Tinny Long from climbing on his bandwagon.

Franklin Roosevelt has completed the first lap of his campaign with victory almost assured in the November election. Crowds cheering him at every stop indicate almost as much opposition to President Hoover as there was in 1928 against Al Smith. Probably never before in the history of the country has there been such a complete reversal of nation-wide public opinion.

Fortune says Hoover's personal income (earned and unearned) amounts to approximately $90,- 000 annually, while Gov. Roosevelt's is reported as $42,500.
President Hoover receives $75,000
a year as president, and Gov.
Hoover is paid $25,000 a year
as governor of New York. So their unearned income, interest
and dividends on stocks and bonds, can hardly be made an issue in this campaign.

Premier Hitler insists that Germany is seeking to arm so as to digest "with one thrust the designated adversary." It would be strange if the German government were not seeking to arm.
Germany is in greater danger of war today. It is dangerous split between many power-holders. It is virtually divided into two "camps" which are every German's concern. On its eastern border there is Nazism and communism of which that implies. Not only would he like a bigger territory, but he wants to have it.

Let's Do Something!

We hear a great deal in these days of hunger and unemployment about changing forms of government, even to the point of socialism, communism and other radical experimentations. Any period of hard times breeds desire for something new and untried. To do something, even if it's wrong, is pretty apt to be the popular sentiment when the only suggestion of what to do has to be found in the frantic question, "Why doesn't somebody do something?"

If we can find anything in that question, we find socialism. Without the slightest question of doubt there is a pronounced leaning toward socialism throughout the entire country, in fact, the whole world. People are looking to socialist doctrines for relief from knotty economic laws. Any fair-minded political observer will admit that the Socialist candidate, Norman Thomas, and the Communist candidate, William Foster, will receive more votes in the November election than ever before, perhaps even so many as to make them real factors in the campaign.

Furthermore, we have the spectacle before us today of the candidates of the two major parties flirting, at least, with socialism. President Hoover has sponsored legislation which it carried to its ultimate conclusion, may result in government ownership not only of railroads and utilities, but also of banks, insurance companies, building and loan associations, innumerable farms, and many other private and semi-public enterprises. Gov. Roosevelt has gone the president one better by asserting publicly what President Hoover must have had in mind when he sponsored such legislation; namely, that the industries of the country, as well as their resources, belong to the people, whether they have paid for them or not.

We are glad to see that at least one organization has definitely proclaimed its opposition to the government in business. The United States Chamber of Commerce declares, "The government's operations can be and are carried on without regard to the elements of profit or loss, which are unavoidable in private business. The government can and does, furnish the funds which are employed, largely from taxation, without requiring, or expecting payment of interest, let alone dividends, out of business. Public property used by the government in business is free from any burden of federal taxation and is removed from taxation by the state, county and town in which it is situated. It is obvious, therefore that in any field of business in which the government chooses to enter, private business will be proportionately eliminated."

Whether or not it is advisable, or beneficial to a majority of citizens, to thus eliminate private business is a moot question. Karl Marx thought it was. George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, and Alexander Hamilton did not think so. In countries and communities where it has been tried, it has not proved satisfactory. An immediate consequence of such action, the preclusion of all tax collections is obvious. If all business is owned by the government, then no business can pay taxes, for the government can hardly be expected to pay taxes to itself.

Government ownership of business, then, must be made profitable, since only in this manner could the government derive any revenue at all for the maintenance of the army and navy, its court costs, and the other requirements of government. Just how difficult it is to make any private business profitable can be ably testified by any of the directors of the United States Steel Corporation, the railroads, or any of our other large industries which for several years have been faced with enormous deficits. So, too, can any Main Street merchant or business man testify to the same thing.

Whether the government throughout the years could operate a business profitably where private enterprise fails is exceedingly doubtful. Where the corner grocer has a very pressing and powerful reason for trying to make his business pay under private ownership, there is small likelihood that he would exert the same energies were the business operated by him actually owned by the government. The experience of the government thus far, in operating the railroads during the war, or in operating the postoffice at any time, does not indicate any greater degree of success than private initiative.

It is then problematical, in a socialistic state, what would happen in the event the government could not put any and all of its varied business enterprises on a paying basis. A hard task-master such as Stalin or Trotsky might wield heavy whip, cut superfluous men off payrolls, drive workers through long arduous twelve-hour days, and avoid bankruptcy, but we doubt if he could at the same time avoid governmental overthrow. Between revolution and national bankruptcy there is little to choose.

A NEW JERSEY man, despondent over business conditions, and stranded in Miami, decided to quit trying. He carefully prepared himself for the ordeal, went down to the Bayfront at 3:00 A. M. and, bidding good-bye to a cruel and heartless world, deliberately jumped overboard. Then something happened. No one knows whether it was the sudden chill of the water, or thoughts of evil doings in days of long ago, but anyway he changed his mind about committing suicide. He decided to postpone his judgment day. To his amazement, however, high concrete bulkheads are not easily scaled, and there he was, floundering about in the water unable to get out. For six hours he hung desperately to some pilings, until a fisherman, happening by, rescued him. That should be a lesson to other suicide addicts. Be sure to give yourself time to think it over. Don't shoot! Jump overboard!

KING GEORGE WILL ATTEND CABINET MEETAttendance At Crucial Session Finds Ruler Repeating 1931 Act; Free Traders Rebel

LONDON, Sept. 27. —(AP)—King George, whose holiday in Scotland last year was interrupted by the cabinet crisis which resulted in the formation of the national government, will repeat himself this year by returning to London Friday, it was announced yesterday.

On Wednesday the cabinet will hold a crucial meeting at which the tariff agreements reached at the Ottawa Imperial conference will come up for final discussion. In political circles it is taken for granted the free trade liberals in the ministry, headed by Home Secretary Sir Herbert Samuel, will resign.

A year ago the King played a quiet but important part in the dramatic political events which resulted in the death of the labor cabinet and the retention of Bald Eagle that you have, as it was my privilege sometime back to capture a young Bald Eagle from its nest in the wilds, and as emblematic of our great nation and king in the realm of birds, it has a fascination other birds cannot command."

The conduct of newspapers in this country "in a year which tested the character and resources of every human activity" had not only established the right of recognition as a profession, Dean Ackerman said, but had also proved that journalism as a business is a public service unique in America's economy.

His findings were contained in a survey of the press for the past year as a part of his first annual report on the school to President Nicholas Murray Butler.

"Journalism is advancing as a necessity in commerce and industry, the press will grow as a business by serving the basic economic function of bringing buyers and sellers together anywhere at any time."

"Our confidence in the future of journalism is founded upon these fundamentals."

As a gauge of the newspaper's maintenance of reader service the survey cites the volume of the press association's reports.

"In spite of the depression," it states, "there has been no apparent decline in the volume of news as sent out to the newspapers of the country by the leading press associations. Statistics furnished by news services reveal that the total volume of news transmitted by word-of-mouth in the same time as in 1929."

"Within the limits of time and human efficiency the press is developing greater independence, impartiality and accuracy day by day and year by year," he says.

Discussing "possibilities when reporters and editors are not fully informed by those whom they serve or their sources," Dean Ackerman predicted that "some day in the not far distant future the rights of the public represented by the reporter will be recognized as superior to the rights of the individual corporation and the press will have more accurate and more reliable sources of information."

An example given by him told of how a carload of beans and a carload of celery to New York from Sanford would cost more, if the carloads were broken up and mixed. Each car would then cost, he said, $287, while the proposed rule would set the price at $266.
