Trims in budget leave Seminole 'better off'

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Although Seminole County has trimmed more than $1 million from it's $222.7 million annual budget to make up for lower-than-expected tax and feecollections, the county's chief budget officer says the county's better off than it was six months ago and than it will be in another six months.

We feel we are a lot better off than we were a year ago," said county budget director Don Carrer. "We still have some major challenges facing us next year."

Commissioners approved a mid-year budget adjustment of about $1.4 million, reducing the overall county spending budget to $221.3 million. Still, unspent money from last year's projects and other "leftover" money prevented the county from the type layoffs forced last fall to balance the

Needles used to jab students safe

MIAMI - Initial test results indicate hypodermic needles used by three elementary pupils to jab seven classmates were not contaminated with AIDS or hepatitis, a school official said. However, James Fleming, associate superintendent of schools for Dade County, said health officials must still conduct further tests.

"The Health Department qualified the test results with saying that while they found no evidence of HIV or hepatitis-B. they didn't have enough serum or plasma on the needles to be absolutely certain," Fleming said Wednesday.

The Aliapattah Elementary School students found the used

Man acquitted on alien-smuggling

FORT LAUDERDALE - A federal jury acquitted a Bahamian man on alien-smuggling charges, despite claims by eight Haltians they paid him $2,000 each to bring them to Florida. Stephen Sweeting, 27, was acquitted Tuesday by the 12-member jury on all 11 counts of alien smuggling. Five Haitians took the stand in the trial and three others gave depositions against Sweeting, claiming they paid him to smuggle them from Hopetown. They said they were dropped at Palm Beach on Oct. 1, 1989.

In his closing arguments, defense attorney Marc Nurik urged the jury to reject the Haitians' testimony. "There were two crimes committed in this case: The first was when the aliens washed up on the shores of Palm Beach: the second was in this courtroom when five aliens by testimony and three by deposition perjured themselves."

New product keeps flavor in gum

HOLLYWOOD - The chewing gum won't lose its flavor on the bed post overnight using a patent announced by Columbia

The pharmaceutical company obtained a federal patent for the sustained-release of flavor ingredients in gum, and the time element can be tailored to the product, said Columbia vice president Helen Witters. "It can last a long, long time," she said Wednesday. "In early testing, we had one that lasted five hours."

The company does not plan to get into the gum business and has not contacted any gum makers. Ms. Witters said.

The patent was the result of research that showed an insoluble, microscopic polymer carrying the flavoring can be impregnated into gum, said Ms. Witters.

House, Senate units OK lean state budget

By CURT ANDERSON Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - The poor, the sick and those with drug and alcohol problems are likely to suffer most from cutbacks included in similar versions of next year's state budget approved by House and Senate committees.

The potential impact of the lean $28 billion-plus spending plans adopted Wednesday will hit Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services programs hardest, lawmakers sald.

"Very agonizing," Rep. Elaine Gordon, D-North Miami, said of the spending reductions forced on the social services budget by lack of money. "It still falls far short of meeting the workload increase and increased costs.

Each budget grants minimal increases in a host of social service programs, including just between $7 million and $8 million for a juvenile justice reform plan that originally carried a $52 million price tag. Small increases were given to major child care. drug and alcohol treatment and elderly

The budgets cleared the two Appropriations Committees without a negative vote and virtually no amendments. Each raises less than $300 million in new taxes and fees, give 3 percent pay raises to teachers and state workers and try to keep pace with growth in demand for education and social

Both legislative budgets continue the $750 million in cuts made this year because of tax collection shortfalls caused by the national economic recession. The Senate cut another $183 million from government programs, while the House chopped $137.3 million more.

"I sort of get the idea that we're on a ship that's sinking and we've just unloaded all the ballast," Rep. Ben Graber, D-Coral Springs, said.

Differences between the Senate's $28.9 billion plan and the House's $28.5 billion budget will be worked out by a conference committee that plans to begin meeting April 5. Floor votes on the budget are set for April

Associated Press.

TALLAHASSEE - Millions of gallons of water could be saved each year if a water conservation bill is passed by the Florida Legislature, water managers

The bill, which is being debated by legislators, suggests the use of rain sensor devices for all sprinkler systems after Oct. 1. 1991. A sensor automatically turns off a sprinkler system when it starts to rain.

"A measure like this will save large amounts of water a year.' sald Bruce Adams, who heads water conservation efforts for the South Florida Water Manage. ment District.

The legislation also proposes that local governments consider ordinances that would require xeriscaping, or low-water-use landscaping, at all public facilities within five years.

NASA sets April 5 for launch

By MARCIA DUMM AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL - NASA said Wednesday it will attempt to send the shuttle Atlantis into space with five astronauts and a huge astronomical observatory April 5.

Mission managers set the launch date following a flight review at Kennedy Space Center that began Tuesday.

The 9:18 a.m. EST launch will be the first shuttle send-off of the year. Discovery was supposed to go up in March, but large cracks on two door hinges delayed the military flight until late April.

Atlantis also has cracked hinges, but the splits in the aluminum mechanisms are too small to be of concern, officials said. The hinges will be repaired following the five-day flight.

"With the delay in Discovery. the (Atlantis) team had a challenge to meet and they came through right on schedule," said NASA shuttle director Robert Atlantis' crew will release the Gamma Ray Observatory 279 miles above Earth on the third flight day. The 17-ton ob-servatory is the heaviest civilian spacecraft ever carried by a shuttle.

The $600 million observatory will circle Earth for at least two years in search of gamma rays emitted from extremely hot stars and other objects. Such radiation, the most energetic known. is invisible from the ground.

A day after the spacecraft is deployed, astronauts Jerry Ross and Jay Apt will take the first U.S. space walk in more than

Records Say woman is 115 years old

Associated Press

ORLANDO - She may be the oldest Floridian - and could possibly be the oldest person in the nation - but Mary Thompson was just happy to celebrate her birthday at an Orlando nursing home.

Records submitted to the Social Security Administration trace her life back to 1876. which would have made ber 115. Wednesday, Mrs. Thompson's not sure where or when she first saw the light of day, but she's willing to accept that.

"I was born in slavery times." Mrs. Thompson said at Florida Manor nursing home. "In a wooden house. We had no stove. no nothing. I don't know which state that was.'

Longevity claims are hard to document because of missing records, but officials at Florida Manor were told that the federal agency recognizes her birth date as March 27, 1876.

This would make Mrs. Thompson the oldest resident of Florida, according to most records, since the woman widely recognized as having that title. Carrie White of Palatka, died last month at the age of 116.

A billion enough?

Is a billion dollars enough for Exxon to pay for the remaining damage that its 1989 oil spill has done to Prince William Sound? Should the U.S. Justice Department and the state of Alaska have held out for more?

Those questions are likely to be debated for years to come. But, overall, the negotiated settlement of the Alaskan oil spill case deserves some limited applause for establishing a valuable precedent on corporate responsibility without putting Alaska and the nation's taxpayers — not to mention the oil company's shareholders — through the uncertainty and expense of years of further legal proceedings.

The $900 million that Exxon has pledged to pay out over the next decade for environmental restoration comes on top of the estimated $2 billion it has already spent trying to clean up the spill. The adequacy of that commitment can't be fully assessed for many months, possibly years, not until scientists have had a chance to go through all of the detailed data on the impact of the spill that Exxon, Alaska and the Justice Department had been amassing for their arguments in

But what may matter more than the money in the long run is the fact that most of that information is going to be made public, despite Exxon's efforts to keep it secret. That's good news for the plaintiffs in the more than 300 pending civil suits that weren't covered by this agreement, because they will need that information to support their claims.
And it's good news for the nation as a whole since the data will help officials prepare for the next big spill.

In addition to the funding for restoration. Exxon will pay $100 million in penalties for its negligence. That affirmation of the company's criminal liability, as Attorney Goneral Richard Thornburgh pointed out, sends a necessary warning to other companies that they can't treat environmental degradation and the neglect of public safety as an incidental cost of doing business. Not

Prince William Sound itself, two years after Exxon's tanker ran aground, isn't the wasteland that environmentalists predicted. but it hasn't snapped back to health the way Exxon's publicists kept saying it would. Some fisheries, for example, are flourishing once again while others may never recover their health entirely. The consequences for national policy are equally mixed. As a result of Exxon's blunder, American shipping is finally going to get the double-hulled tankers that Congress and the oil industry once declared should be a prerequisite for opening the Alaskan oil fleids to development. But the introduction of those safer ships is going to go very slowly under the far too lenient pace that Congress has defined.

The Exxon disaster wasn't an isolated incident; spills, large and small, happen almost monthly. But there's no evidence that the Coast Guard's traffic control authority for coastal shipping is going to get the kind of improvements that the Exxon disaster showed to be necessary.

For all of the coastal communities along the routes the tankers follow, in Florida, New Jersey, Texas or from Alaska south to California, that means that the threat of the next spill, and the ones after that, will remain a constant and inevitable danger.

To be young, black and forgotten

Reading about the Senate hearings on the endangered status of young black males in America, I realized that my son, Charlie, and I have besten the odds twice. We haven't been brutalized by a police officer trained in the Daryl, F. Gates method. And we have had reasonably successful careers.

My father, Charles Sr., didn't beat the odds. The first black man to graduate with honors from Springfield College, he later became a successful business executive before becoming a statistic embalmed in a perpetual alcoholic haze. Statistics can do wonders. They alibi legislative impotence and provide a catharsis of satisfaction to senators. Listen to the litany of ills faced by males who are young, black and forgotten:

Twice the unemployment rate of young white males, Triple the narcotics arrest rate for white

Quadruple the chances of being murdered compared to white males.

"The crisis of black males has been one of the enduring facts in the history of America," Samuel L. Meyers, head of the University of Maryland's Afro-American Studies program, mournfully informed the senators. "Why an

"Now" because two circumstances collided to lay bare the crisis: the horrible nationally televised beating by white cops of an unresisting black man, and the murder in Detroit of a black veteran of the Persian Gulf War.

At this point, I am constrained to recall the young black minister who was fire-and-brimstoning. As he checked off each deadly sin, members of the congregation counterpointed like a Greek chorus: "Preach, Reverend, pre-

The young minister then looked dolefully out at his congregation and thundered, "And now, I'm going to talk about the affairs

It is easy to condemn. some of y'all been having with each other." To which an elderly sister replied, "He done stopped preachin' and gone to meddlin'." I am about to meddle.

It is easy to condemn the self-destructiveness of young black males or denounce the systematic violence of Los Angeles' white cops. But neither exists in a vacuum. Black men in this society grow up oppressed by the cumulative effects of racist insults and humiliations.

Most white people don't believe this. But in Beverly Hills, Washington, D.C., and my hometown, Hartford, I have been stopped by white policemen and asked, "What are you doing in this neighborhood?" In many cities, it's standard operating procedure for white cops to harass young black males.

The pattern is legitimized by a racial mindset that is fostered by eminently respectable opi-nion-molders such as George Will and Charles Krauthammer, both of whom subconsciously lump all black males together and further ghettoize them.

Last July, for example, Will indicted only black male rap singers in 2 Live Crew and the accused rapists of the Central Park Jogger as the progenitors of what he called "America's slide into the sewer."

"We're going to drill here. We need money to pay for the environmental disaster we caused in Alaska."

Senate races are heating up

OAKLAND - In most parts of the country political activity is at something approaching a historic low — except in California. Here both political parties are maneuvering frantically in anticipation of highly unusual dual Senate

U.S. Senate elections are important, megabuck contests here. In 1992 both of California's U.S. Senate seats will be up for grabs. Democratic Sen. Alan Cranston — ill and under a cloud from the S&L ethics investigation - has announced that he will not seek a new term. Meanwhile a special election is being held to fill the last two years of the Senate term of newly elected Gov. Pete Wilson. That seat is now filled on an interim basis by Republican appointee John Seymour. Simply put, just about every major political figure in the state has either already jumped into, or is thinking about entering, one or the other

Among Democrats, former Gov. Jerry Brown has announced for the Cranston seat. Already he is facing current Lt. Gov. Leo McCarthy and popular Rep. Bob Matsui. Announced for the Wilson/Seymour seat is former San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein, the narrow loser to Wilson in the 1990 gubernatorial rate. Undecided in the wings are Reps. Barbara Boxer and Mel Levine as well as State Controller Gary

All were present at the recent Democratic state convention here in Oakland. Most of the audience was made up of party activists who are considerably more liberal than the party rank-and-file, let alone California voters as a

Clearly Rep. Boxer was the crowd favorite. She has a charisma and appeal, based on emotional issues she supports, that had this crowd roaring. But whether that can be translated into enough primary votes to win either contest is an open question.

The most amazing showing was Feinstein's. She turned a lagging gubernatorial campaign ugainst Wilson into a near miss by firmly grabbing the middle ground and running far to the right of what passes for the Democratic mainstream here. Apparently she plans to do the same in her Senate race; she came to the convention clearly bent on picking a very public fight with her hosts.

Her topic was the Gulf War. At a general breakfast session she chided the delegates for not supporting President Bush and for not displaying a yellow ribbon on their lapels like she was. Her speech drew boos from what quickly became a hostile audience, but it appeared to play well on television and in the next day's newspapers.

She was also on solid ground. Her staff distributed copies of polls showing that 75 percent of Californians who identify themselves as Democrats approve of George Bush's handling of the war.

Meanwhile, on the Republican side, Seymour - a former state senator - has announced that he will seek to finish out the last two years of Wilson's term. But already he is being challenged from the GOP's right wing by Rep. Bill Dannemeyer - about as conservative as they get in California politics. He all but condemns Seymour as a closet liberal out of step with the "real" California

Other announced candidates are starting to line up for the six-year seat. Rep. Bob Dornan, conservative and former television commentator, has declared his intention to run. So has Rep. Tom Campbell, a former Stanford law professor, who is popular with party moderates. Others are waiting in the wings and likely to enter one or the other GOP race. One is conservative television host Bruce Hirschensohn, who has a major local following. Another is former baseball commissioner Peter Ueberroth, who has a major California reputation thanks to his successful managing of the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics.

In 1992 both of California's

U.S. Senate

seals will be up for grabs.

Republican senatorial infighting turned the GOP's recent state convention in Sacramento into something of a free-for-all. If attendees at the Democratic convention are to the left of the Democratic rank-and-file, then the average GOP convention goer is to the right of the party faithful. It was clear that the hero of the GOP gathering was Dannemeyer.

Dannemeyer and his conservative followers managed to move the California GOP to the right in the course of the three-day convention. Gov. Wilson, in the first weeks of his term. should be the party's hero. However, convention delegates passed what came close to a no-confidence resolution aimed at Wilson's support of a $1.7 billion tax increase to help dig the state out of a massive potential deficit caused by the recession.

Then the convention came within a few votes of adopting a resolution put forth by Dannemeyer, a longtime, outspoken opponent of homosexuals, supporting what Dannemeyer calls a "heterosexual ethic," which condemns homosexuality in biblical terms. Dannemeyer has said he will use this as a major theme in his Senate campaign.

Mismanagement of grants discovered

WASHINGTON - A federal program that issues grants to promote democracy around the world has confused democracy with rampant free enterprise. Taxpayers' money has been used to make personal loans, buy office decorations and line pockets. In one case, federal grant money was used to help someone rent a car for use in a drug crime. That may be the American way, but it isn't democracy.

The National Endowment for Democracy was created by Congress in 1983. It receives federal tax money that it then spreads around in the form of grants to pro-democracy groups worldwide.

A congressional investigation shows that NED is riddled with mismanagement and spending abuses. American taxpayers are being taken to the cleaners in-the-name-of democracy.

Our associate Scott Sleek obtained a copy of the investigative report, yet to be released by the General Accounting Office. It says the endowment has failed to keep track of where all the money goes. Some recipients have kept the interest earned on their grants instead required to do. They are also supposed to keep their NED money in separate accounts. but many grant recipients have not, making the money harder to track. We have investigated questionable practices at the NED ever since its inception. including high-priced junkets to exotic places and duplication of programs already being done by other federal agencies.

From 1984 through 1990, NED got about

$152 million, which went into 533 grants. The NED board of directors has 16 members coming from labor, business, political parties, Congress and private organizations. The money is funneled to foreign groups through a handful of American private organizations. In the process the NED may have lost control over the money

The GAO found glaring examples of how the NED money is misused:

☐ Two recipients failed to prove how they had spent more than $38,000. In one case, the NED should have taken back $23,000 in unsupported expenses, but didn't. The recipient mixed NED money with other funds and then used the money for personal credit card payments and transfers into a personal checking account. In one case expenses were billed to the NED grant when they were already paid from other contributions to the organization. The recipient has since refused to repay the money and said NED would have to sue to get it back.

☐ One group operating in South Africa made personal loans of at least $6,400 from endowment funds to employees and others. some of which have not been repaid. It loaned about $1,700 to one employee for a down payment on a house, but the employee resigned before repaying the $800 balance on the loan. The organization loaned $1,200 to another group to repair a vehicle, and then loaned $2,000 to someone else to start a car repair business. The same South African grant recipient also signed for a rental car for someone who then was arrested for drug trafficking while driving the car. The car was impounded and the grant recipient ended up paying about $1,500 in rental fees before the car was released and returned to the rental agency.

Another group in South Africa used $18,000 in NED money to make office renovations when the money was originally earmarked for an international conference.

An organization in Brussels has failed to pay NED any of the interest it has earned on $6.5 million in NED grants over the last five

'Training wage' bill bound in red tape

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) - Few companies pay the lower minimum "training wage" for teen-agers pushed by the White House, government records show, and some executives accuse Congress of hamstringing the program with red tape.

'It's an administrative nightmare." said John Meritt, senior vice president of public affairs for Hardee's restaurants. where none of the chain's 1,400 outlets use the training wage.

"There's so much bureaucratic registration and verification, you'd have to add three paperwork. No one wants to do a minuet with the federal government," Meritt said.

On Monday, the year-old training wage will increase 27 cents per hour, to $3.82, while the minimum wage climbs 45 cents to $4.25.

Many major employers of young people, including McDonald's and Kentucky Fried Chicken, say they don't use the training wage because it is too restrictive, requires too much paperwork or is irrelevant because competitors are paying the full minimum wage or more.

Thousands of businesses are eligible to pay the sub-minimum more employees just to do the training wage to first-time wage.

But only 10 companies have sought Labor Department authorization to use it for the full aix months allowed under the law, said Bob De Vore of the agency's wage and hour division.

When Congress was debating the training wage in 1969, the Bush administration insisted it was needed to provide opportunities for young people and to help offset job losses caused by raising the minimum wage.

Democrats opposed the training wage but were forced to concede the issue to President Bush to get a higher minimum

Meritt, blaming restrictions added by Congress, called the training wage a "cruel joke and

But Richard Detwiler, director of public affairs at Kentucky Fried Chicken, based in Louisville, Ky., offered a different reason why none of his company's 1,400 outlets uses the training wage. "It's simply too difficult to attract people at that wage," he said.

Stephen Hart, a White House spokesman, declined to analyze why few businesses use the training wage. The administration considers it a "very meritorious" way to soften the blow of an increase in the minimum wage, he said.

The AFL-CIO is pleased at the minimal use of the training wage, contending that two-tier wage systems create animosity between workers.

"I think employers find it very difficult to pay two people doing the same thing different wages, especially for jobs that it takes about 48 hours to learn," said Rudy Oswald, chief economist at the 14.2-million-member labor federation.

Oswald said he doesn't think the administration ever really expected the training wage to be used, but pushed it "more on ideological grounds than on any practical grounds."

Under the law, businesses can use the training wage for 90 days for youths under age 20 who are holding their first-ever job. Businesses can use it for another 90 days if they show its final report due this summer. they have a specific youth training program.

The Labor Department re-ceived 10 applications in the past year from companies seeking to use the lower wage for the second 90 days. No figures are available for companies using it for the initial 90 days allowed under law, De Vore sald.

However, one possible indication that few companies even use it for three months is that the Labor Department has received just 27 complaints about it over the past year. About 60.000 other minimum wage and overtime complaints were received, De Vore said.

Governor's candidacy cheers

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Virginia Gov. L. Douglas Wilder's decision to test the waters for a 1992 presidential race is being welcomed by a beleaguered Democratic Party that promises a more crowded field of candidates by fall.

Wilder, the nation's first black elected governor and a leading voice among moderates urging the party to shed its tax-andspend image, said Wednesday he had authorized a presidential exploratory committee.

He insisted he planned to serve three more years as governor but said nonetheless he was interested in gauging national support for a 1992 White House Jackson's liberal message and Wilder's call for a 'New Mainstream" party dedicated to fiscal conservatism are often at odds. Still, analysts said, Jackson might have to move up his decision if Wilder took serious steps toward a candidacy and began locking up support among minority voters, a key Jackson core constituency.

"Jackson would have to be concerned if Wilder began to win an overwhelming number of black votes, as well as secure a decent share of the white vote," said University of Virginia political scientist Larry Sabato.

400 diplomats flee devastating fire at U.S. Embassy in Moscow

By ANDREW KATELL Associated Press

MOSCOW - Fire engulfed most of the U.S. Embassy today, forcing more than 400 diplomats and other employees to flee the 10-story building that a congressional delegation once called a firetrap.

One Marine guard was treated for smoke inhalation, according to embassy spokesman James Bullock. Several Soviet firefighters apparently also suffered respiratory problems. But no other injuries were reported.

Flames emerged from the building's eighth floor and roof, the top six floors appeared heavily damaged, and the blaze was still burning six hours after it began. A dense cloud of black and gray smoke rose above the building, which is just under a mile from the Kremlin.

Bullock said the alarm sounded at 10:15 a.m. and that everyone inside the building was quickly evacuated. Soviet firefighters were granted immediate access to the interior, Bullock said.

Several embassy employees said the fire began in an elevator shaft that was being renovated.

Although U.S. officials declined to comment about how embassy operations were affected, the fire appeared serious and likely to close sections of the building for a long time.

Smoke was seen coming out of the residential wing of the building, but the extent of damage there was unknown. Bullock said emigration documents in the north section of the embassy were not damaged.

The structure, which has housed the U.S. Embassy since 1953, has been the source of controversy for several years.

Two members of Congress said in April 1987 that the building was "a firetrap and unsafe by accepted standards for general working condi-

A major renovation was under way when the fire broke out. Embassy employees have described difficult conditions trying to work in the deteriorating structure during the overhaul.

Expressway exchanges lanes

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — By next month, the Seminole County Expressway will become State Road 417.

The Seminole County Expressway Authority Wednesday unanimously approved giving the completed half-mile expressway to the state for approximately $6.8 million. Expressway director Gerald Brinton said the transfer could be completed in about two weeks.

The $6.8 million figure represents a series of controversial loans the county made to the expressway authority during the past four years to help build the first section of the expressway. Expressway critics have maintained the expressway authority was unable to repay the loans to the county and the payments amounted to a county subsidy.

As part of the deal worked out with state road officials last year by authority officials. the state will repay the county's loan for the authority in return for taking over the completed expressway and building the next 12 miles from the current terminus at Aloma Avenue to U.S. Highway 17-92 at State Street. The state will own all

Brinton said the expressway will lose the Seminole County Expressway moniker and probably replace It with the state road designation. Eventually, the entire central Florida beltway will become known by one name, in other action, expressway members approved the sale of the New Tribes Mission chapel in Oviedo to the Mission Road Church of God in Chirst in Oviedo for $10. The church was the only bidder for the 8,500-square-foot structure. Pastor Larry Perkins said the one-mile move to their church's grounds will cost $100,000 and will require the building to be cut into three pleces. The structure will become their congregation's new chapel, he said.

WASHINGTON - President Bush says it's up to the four-star general who ran the Gulf War to back up his claim that he had argued for "a battle of annihilation" rather than a cease-fire

Study: home radon monitors overestimate risk

By DANIEL Q. HANEY AP Science Writer

PHOENIX - Americans are exposed to only about a third as much radon inside their homes as monitoring kits indicate, and many people have probably spent money needlessly to get rid of the gas, a study

The Environmental Protection Agency recommends that homeowners put radon monitors in their basements, where levels of the odorless gas are likely to be highest.

Now, a researcher has performed the first study to see how much radon people rather than basements - are exposed to. She found human exposure was about 30 percent of the radon levels found in the basements.

"I don't think you should remediate a home based on basement levels," said Dr. Naomi H. Harley, a radiological health expert at New York University Medical Center. "A single basement reading is not representative of personal exposure.' She presented her findings Wednesday at a meeting sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

Radon gas can cause lung cancer. The EPA estimates that radon gas causes 20,000 cases of lung cancer annually in the United States. The figure is based on lung cancer rates among miners who are exposed to high levels of radon.

That's right. The census is more than numbers and politics. It's also big business.

And while the congressional district you live in and the money your city gets from the federal government may touch your life, the census numbers really hit home only after they've entered the American marketing system.

"It's sort of your Big Brother syndrome," said Taylor Bond. director of market analysis for Domino's Pizza, the Ann Arbor, Mich., company that built home delivery of pizza into a national business empire. "The more we find out about you, the more we can larget you to meet your

Opposition grows on national achievement test

Seminole County PTA hasn't taken positioin.

From staff and wire reports

WASHINGTON - Many education and civil rights groups expressed disdain on Wednesday for a proposed nationwide achievement test for high school students, saying it could be manipulated politically and yield uscless data.

The Seminole County Council of PTAs has not voiced any opposition to the proposed testing method, though president Judy Smith did say that the group had little information on the test. "We've never even talked about it," Smith said this morning.

On the national level things are different,

"You don't learn to play a piano on the basis of a multiple-choice test," Arnold Fege of the National PTA said at a news conference.

More than three dozen groups and individuals signed a statement opposing the proposal earlier this year of Educate America, an organization headed by Thomas Kean, former Republican governor of New Jersey and now president of Drew University. That group called upon Congress to require universal achievement testing by Fege said such a test could be open to political manipulation. "How could you not get a political test with politicians writing the test?" he asked.

"As groups concerned about both quality and fairness in our schools, we need to stop destructive testing proposals and promote said Dr. Beverly Cole, education director for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Ms. Cole did not say how such a test would be destructive. "At the present time it's not stated clearly what will be the consequences," she said.

Other groups signing the statement included the National Education Association, the National Association of Elementary School Principals, and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Tribe sweeps Invitational

By PHIL SMITH

Herald Correspondent

SANFORD - The Seminole Fighting Seminoles proved rude hosts Wednesday evening, winning both the boys' and girls' competitions in the Seminole Track and Field Invitational at Seminole High School's Thomas E. Whigham Stadium.

"This year's meet was a little smaller than past meets," said Seminole boys' coach and meet coordinator Ken Brauman. "But this was still a very good meet that saw a number of outstanding performances. The meet went very smoothly and finished ahead of schedule."

Seminole's Willie Williams earned the Outstanding Athlete Award for runners with victories in the 120-yard high hurdles and the 330-yard intermediate hurdles. New Smyrna Beach's Sam Hill won the award for field competitors by winning the high Jump (6-9) and the triple jump.

According to Brauman, Hill's effort of 49-21/2 in the triple jump is the best this year in the state.

Vivian Jones of Lake Mary won the girls' field events award with victories in the shot put (36-9) and discus-(109-5) while Jackie Young of Winter Haven won the runners' award by winning the 100-meter dash (12.3) and the 220-yard dash (26.5).

The Tribe's boys team won 10 of the 16 events including all of the sprint races. Carlo White won the shot put with a throw of 57-8, Brenard Sparrow finished first in the discus with a throw of 150-3 while Andre Scott won the long jump with a leap of 21-64.

Silver Hawks beat Patriots, move into SAC's top spot

From staff reports

WINTER PARK - Lake Howell squeeked past defending state champion Lake Brantley and intofirst place in the Seminole Athletic Conference baseball standings with a 3-2 win over the Patriots on Wednesday afternoon.

Silver Hawk starting pitcher Andre Johnson improved his record to 6-0 with one save.

'One person doesn't win ball games." said Lake Howell assistant coach Bob. Addonizio. But Andre Johnson pitched an outstanding game. His strike-to-ball ratio was 3:1. And any time you have a pitcher that's throwing strikes and a defense that gels, it's a good ball game."

The win gives Lake Howell (13-4 overall, 7-2 in the conference) a half-game lead over Lake Brantley (8-8 overall, 6-2 in the conference).

Lake Howell now takes a break from its conference schedule to compete in the Apopka Lake Brantley Tournament next week.

"That was a tremendous win," said Addonizio. "It does two things for us: one, it gives us the lead in the conference, and two, It gives us a head of steam going into the Apopka Tournament."

Lake Howell took the lead by scoring three runs in the bottom of the third inning. Mervyll Melendez and Bob Coleman led off with singles. After Melendez was forced out, John Ball singled. With two outs in the inning, Robert Bologna and Jason Rasmussen delivered RBI singles.

Lake Brantley scored its two runs in the top of the fourth inning, Jeff Livernois walked and Brad Righy singled Livernois scoring on a wild pitch and Rigby coming in on Dennis Harney's single.

In the seventh inning, the Patriots had runners at first and third with one out. Johnson fielded a ground ball up the middle and caught the lead runner in a run down. Lake Brantley then managed to load the bases but Johnson ended the threat by getting the third out on a pop up.

Lake Howell, which had been struggling offensively lately, was presented a peculiar dilemman by Lake Brantley - a rotating pitching staff where a new pitcher is brought in at about every two innings.

"We did hit well today," said Addonizio. "We had been struggling at the plate the last couple of weeks. But we came around in the second half of the game Tuesday fan 8-4 win over a team from Ohiol and we got a head of steam in the third inning of this game.

Lake Howell plays next on Tuesday in the Apopka Tournament.

DEAR ABBY: Many times I have read in your column, "Go back to school no matter how old you are." I took your advice.

Three years ago. I had a choice to go on welfare or go to school. Since I didn't want to raise my children on welfare, I chose school. It was hard for me to think of going to school, as I had dropped out at 16 and didn't want to go back with a bunch of younger people. I started college and worked on my G.E.D. at the same time. I also found out that people of all ages went to school. Going back wasn't as hard as I thought it would be because it was what I really wanted.

I'm proud to say that I will be graduating from the Mohave Community College on May 10 at the age of 36.

Please keep telling people to go to school. It's the best thing I for myself. Thank you. Abby.

Cheryl has started to date again, and she expects my wife and me to take care of our grandchild. We don't mind. except that Cheryl comes in at 3 or 4 a.m., and when her boyfriend comes to our house she takes him upstairs to her bedroom. She also lounges around in her nightclothes and lets him put his hands all over her regardless of whether my wife and I are in the room. This goes on right in front of her

Complication from chronic bronchitis can't be cured

DEAR DR. GOTT: In the past you wrote a health report titled "Living With Chronic Lung Disease." I've had chronic bronchitis for many years, and my doctors say they can't cure me. You say chronic bronchitis is curable. Please advise.

DEAR READER: Chronic bronchitis is curable: its major complication - emphysema ie not.

To a large extent, the degree of cure depends on the definition of the disease. In England, chronic bronchitis is often lumped together with emphysems; therefore, treatment is rarely curative. In the United States, however, chronic bronchitis is defined as a lung disease associated with bronchial irritants (such as infection and pollutants), marked by excess mucus secretions and bronchial inflammation, leading to thickening bronchial walls and persisting cough with sputum.

In the Western world, chronic bronchitis is almost always due to cigarette smoking or the inhalation of industrial pollutants, such as smog, smoke and soot. Once the bronchial lining is irritated by these substances, it is more susceptible to infection.

If a person with chronic bronchitis stops smoking, avoids air pollution and obtains antibiotics for infection, the condition can be cured: Mucus secretions lessen, cough disappears and breathing becomes more normal.

Obviously, as untreated bronchitis progresses, structural lung damage, which is incurable, results. This includes airway obstruction from permanently thickened bronchial walls and, in severe cases, actual destruction of lung tissue.

At this point, patients are said to suffer from chronic obstructive bronchitis or, in the latter stages, chronic obstructive emphysema. The term "emphysema" refers to irreversible alterations in pulmonary tissue. including loss of alveolt, the tiny air sacs where oxygen and carbon dioxide exchange takes

I assume from your comments that your long-standing chronic bronchitis has progressed to obstructive bronchitis/emphysems. Therefore, your doctors are probably right: Your condition is incurable.

By James Jacoby

P. Hal Sims, one of the greatest and most colorful players of the '30s and '40s. always boasted that he had never misguessed a two-way finesse. But one day, when faced with a tow.f., he thought for quite some time before was right! Someone had doctored the deck just to see how he would react to "misguessing" a two-way finesse.

The secret to improving your odds with a two-way finesse is to delay taking the finesse for as long as you can. Find out as much as possible about the other suit distributions first.

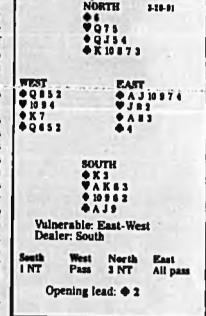

After West has led the spade two to East's ace and East has returned the spade jack, you as declarer have your back against to bring home three no-trump. But before you attempt to play that suit, it is right to cash the heart tricks. Play off the A-K of hearts and then cross to dummy's queen. Here you learn that the sult is divided 3-3.

the wall. You must run the clubs

Assuming the opening lead is exclaiming, "Damn it — both of a true card, you also know that you have the queen." And he West started with four spades a true card, you also know that and East with six. This means you know seven of West's cards and nine of East's. That leaves six spaces in West's hand for a possible club queen, whereas East has only four spaces. The percentage play is to cross to your ace of clubs, cash the 13th heart and run the club jack through West. With the given layout, that works beautifully and you bring home an overtrick.
