Agriculture News

According to information received from Curtis J. Green, eligible farm owners in Seminole County may borrow from the Farmers Home Administration to build or repair farm houses and other essential farm buildings. Curtis Green is Farm and Home Administration County Supervisor, serving local farm families.

He said the farm housing loans were made available under recent legislation. A total of $50,000,000 has been provided for these loans. Interest on the loans will be four per cent per year on the unpaid principal. Repayments will be scheduled over periods up to 33 years. A housing loan will be secured by a mortgage on the borrower's farm.

The local Farmers Home Administration County Committee will determine whether or not an applicant is eligible for a housing loan. To be eligible, an applicant must be the owner of the farm, be unable to obtain suitable credit for dwellings and other buildings from other lenders, and have enough income from the farm or from the farm and other sources to meet family living and farm operating expenses and repay his debts.

Further information on the loans may be obtained at the County Office of the Farmers Home Administration located at Room 418, Sanford Atlantic National Bank Building, Sanford.

The program at the Seminole County Farm Bureau meeting will be a public speaking contest on the subject of What Conservation Means to You. Charles T. H. Clark has been named Junior High and Jimmie Williams, FFA from Seminole High will compete for the $25, first prize, provided by the Seminole Soil Conservation District. Second and third prizes are $15 and $10, respectively.

The meeting starts at 7:30 at the Seminole High School Vocational-Agricultural Building. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

The old and the new have long been in conflict. Points of deep historical interest and values are constantly challenged by those who march under the banner of "Today and Progress."

Why let the old stand in the way of the new? Progress means change. We cannot live in the past. We must consider the present and its demands.

It is an old, old story and will probably continue as a conflict until the end of time. America, because of its youth, cannot compete with Europe, Asia and other sections from the standpoint of historical interest.

This is all the more reason why we should preserve the historical interests we do possess, guarding them zealously against those who would destroy them in the name of "progress."

Florida is fortunate in that we possess historical points of interest that go back farther than those of any other state or area. So old are they in fact that our cities of St. Augustine and Pensacola clasp each other and tear their hair over the question of which is the older.

In any event we can trace our history back 400 years or more and countless millions of tourists and visitors have been thrilled to visit the ancient landmarks and vision their relationship to America's present day achievement.

The St. Augustine Historical Society is up in arms, and justly so, over a proposal to destroy the old city waterfront to make way for a highway. Perhaps a bottleneck does exist from the Old Fort to the Bridge of Lions but let's not lose sight of the fact that this is ST. AUGUSTINE. It is fitting that traffic slow down and motorists dodge surreys with fringe on top.

Four-lane highways are splendid, but there is a place for them. Move fast traffic around the city if we must but let's do nothing that will change the ancient setting of the Old Fort, the City Gates, the seawall. These are St. Augustine.

The Ancient City is planning to celebrate its 400th anniversary in 1963. Let's hope that when this date arrives it will still retain its historical character unspoiled by four-lane highways.

All St. Augustine needs today is a STOP sign that will prevent any move that would further destroy its ancient historical heritage.

Early Treatment Cures Many Breast Cancers

By HERMAN M. BUNDEIN, M.D.

SEVENTY-FIVE per cent of breast cancers can be cured if treated early.

Since breast cancer is one of the most common forms of this dread disease—it is responsible for 3.2 per cent of the reported cancer deaths—we can deal a heavy blow to the rising cancer toll by detecting it early.

By early, I mean that it should be reported to your physician within a few days or few weeks at the most after the appearance of the first lump.

Don't Delay

A wait of two or three months before you seek medical treatment may be too long.

It's easy for you women to examine your breasts. In fact, at least 94 per cent of the women who develop a breast tumor find it themselves.

These examinations should be carried out systematically once every month. If more women would follow this procedure, we could cure a lot more cases of breast cancer.

Surgery can cure most such cancer cases providing they are discovered early enough. When surgery is not possible, radiation treatment sometimes is very effective.

Breast cancer should be purely a problem of medical research. It will become just this when women finally learn techniques of self-examination and see their physicians at regular intervals.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Q: I have the feeling that there is something in my eye all of the time. I keep rubbing the eyeball constantly. Could this be a cataract?

A: The feeling that there is something in the eye does not occur in cataract.

This symptom is usually an indication that an infection of the lining of the membrane over the eyeball and eyelid is present. It is known as conjunctivitis. A careful examination by your physician will indicate the right treatment.

Graham Preaches Sermon On Ten Commandments

NEW YORK — Billy Graham today preached a fiery sermon on the Ten Commandments—with emphasis on adultery and murder—before an audience of 17,500 that included former racketeer Mickey Cohen and two bodyguards. Graham said before his sermon that although he knew Cohen was in the audience his words would be directed specifically at the 45-minute car of the West Coast underworld. After the sermon, Cohen and Graham had a brief private meeting in Billy's office and then Cohen and his two bodyguards dashed off to catch a plane for Chicago. An estimated 600 persons came forward to make "decisions for Christ" following what may have been the 38-year-old revivalist's most effective of seven Madison Square Garden sermons to date. A crusade official said Graham's exhortations on the Ten Commandments invariably "got a tremendous response."

In the first track of Graham's New York Crusade, 4,815 persons have come forward to "accept Jesus Christ." More than 117,000 had heard Graham in the first seven nights of his crusade.

All bids were rejected yesterday by the Board of Seminole County Commissioners following a three-hour hassle over the type, price, quality, and need for radio equipment designated for use by the office of the Seminole County Sheriff. The equipment, on which two bids were received, would tie in the Sheriff's department with an 18-county area and a part of the Civil Defense communications set-up. "We need the equipment now," Sheriff Luther Hobby told the Board of Commissioners yesterday. "I have been putting off the

Magnesium Flares Rip From Jet Wing Over Local Area

The Navy mustered ground parties today to search for a pod of 32 "extremely dangerous" magnesium flares which ripped from the wing of a jet plane over central Florida. "One of these flares would light up Times Square so bright you couldn't even see the lights of Broadway," chief journalist Bob Ohi said at the Jacksonville Naval Air Station. The pod, wherever it lies, may be triggered by the slightest impact or even a hot sun, Ohi said. He said the 32 flares would have a total brilliance of more than 2,000,000 candle power. The four-foot, streamlined pod dropped from the wing of an F8E-AP Cougar jet piloted by Lt. JG Edward Chorlton Tuesday night about seven miles southwest of Lake George, the Navy said. Ohi said it was believed unlikely the pod fell near any developed property but said it was feared likely to touch off a fire in the Ocala National Forest if triggered by an animal or by the sun. The pilot intended to release the flares one at a time while photographing the impact zone of a target area at Pinecastle Air Force Base, Ohi said. Each flare would light up a five-mile area, he said. "Civil Defense Director for Seminole County took exception to the statement by Commissioner Swofford when he said 'If there is any inference that these bids are fixed I would like to inform you that there are no bids,'" he said. Civil Defense Director for Seminole County took exception to the statement by Commissioner Swofford when he said "I am not going to say anything that would jeopardize our program."

Senate Defeats $250,000 Market Guided Missile Explodes, Burns At Patrick AFB

The bill to appropriate $250,000 to aid in rebuilding the Sanford State Farmers Market apparently passed in the Senate Appropriations committee today. The House approved the bill Tuesday. Senator Douglas Stinson said this morning in Tallahassee "The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday defeated our appropriations bill for the Farmers' Market. The committee took this action after Lee Thompson, Administrative Assistant to Nathan Mayo stated that the Agriculture Department had sufficient funds to build the market from the $127,000 insurance proceeds and the $125,000 from department funds, totaling $252,000. He said 'Thompson told the Committee that this amount would provide a concrete and steel structure of substantially the same size except under as the former market and would provide modern accommodations. "The Committee did not feel," said Senator Stinson, "that funds should be appropriated from the general fund of the State for the first time in market history if the market could be built as before from department of Agriculture funds as stated by Mr. Thompson." Said Stinson "The committee also killed three other bills sponsored by Senators Johns, Edwards and Knight for market facilities out of state general funds." The Seminole delegation will continue to work with the Department of Agriculture to get the market rebuilt with a modern structure, said Senator Stinson. "We will receive, in addition to the $252,000 appropriation, $100,000 in paying from the State Road Department," he said. "We have been advised that our new market can be ready for the fall season," Senator Stinson added. Stinson also released the text of a letter from Nathan Mayo.

Bill To Permit Local Harness Racing OK'd

TALLAHASSEE — The Senate Miscellaneous Legislation Committee today approved bills to permit harness racing in Seminole and Broward counties. However, the bills still must go to the Finance and Taxation Committee. The Broward County measure, validating a harness track at Pompano Beach, has passed the House. The Seminole bill validates a previously-issued harness track license about three miles from the Sanford-Orlando dog track. Both bills were fought by horse and dog racing interests which claim the new tracks would cut down on their attendance and jeopardize the state racing revenues.

Spending Is Too High

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower said today he will never agree to a tax cut until the government has a much bigger budget surplus in sight than it has now. Eisenhower told his news conference that the federal budget is now in what he called a precarious state of balance. He said vehemently that we are not yet at the point where we can even talk about tax reduction. He said spending in some government departments is running seriously over budget estimates in spite of all the administration can do to hold down expenditures. He said he will do his best to keep the current fiscal 1957 budget and the budget for fiscal 1958, which ends July 1, in the black. But he said he would never agree to tax reduction when the budget is in such a state.

His Defense Cut He sharply criticized the $2,384,775,000 cut in defense appropriations voted by the House Appropriations Committee Tuesday. The President said about half of the reduction was nothing but a book-keeping operation that will not reduce fiscal 1958 spending by one cent. But he warned the other half of the cut would directly affect key defense programs. He reported that White House mail, which was running heavily against his budget proposals early this year, has gradually swung around in sentiment and today is very much in favor of his stand against crippling economy cuts.

Wants GOP Congress The President was asked whether he might show "more enthusiasm" in the 1958 congressional campaign in backing GOP senators and congressmen who have supported his program than those who have fought him. He said he hopes he is never accused of being so namby-pamby that he does not have degrees of enthusiasm between those who stand with him and against him. He said he wants a Republican Congress because he believes in party responsibility. To that extent, he said, he is for whatever candidate Republicans of any district nominate. He said the United States is trying to keep an open mind in the current big power disarmament talks in London and will try to be especially careful to get an adequate inspection system when we are dealing with a country which has a long record of broken agreements.

Air Castle

NEW YORK (AP)—It is well known that a man's house is his castle. Now he can have an air castle. Home was never like this.

This abode is not of the stuff that dreams are made on. It's for real. The basic structural component is just plain atmosphere.

Far from being a dream, the so-called "air house" is a solid well... fairly solid reality built of an interior mass of low-pressure air, courtesy of two air conditioning units; an igloo-shape covering of vinyl-coated nylon fabric, courtesy of U. S. Rubber Co.; brainwork, courtesy of that old demon of international architecture, Frank Lloyd Wright.

There is no record that anybody is living, yet, in one of the things. I walked through one of them—a huge two-roomer—at an exhibition here and watched one of them being deflated a man merely unzipped a doorway and let the air ooze slowly out, as if from a big balloon.

Revolving Door
It may have been my imagination, but I thought my ears popped just slightly, as they do with a minor change of pressure in an airplane, when I walked through the revolving door. With that kind of door, incidentally, there isn't much chance of losing any great gulp of air and having your house billow down around you.

The two rooms looked like two tremendous inverted cups, connected by a small passageway, inflated by the air conditioner, they were sturdily erect and purportedly able to resist strong winds and snow loads. The domes were anchored to the ground by an encircling base tube filled with water. There were no metal or wood supports anywhere.

The interior, of course, was filled with expensive exhibition-type carpets, furniture, and decorations. In the middle of the large dome there was an imitation fireplace with a flue running almost to the ceiling.

Good Question
Outside, a man connected with the exhibit was asked: "Is that supposed to be a fireplace and flue in there?" He said it was.

"Well, what happens to a real flue—wouldn't the air pressure go up it?"

"That's a good question," said the man, grinning. "You'd have a real roaring fire in the fireplace."

Presumably, however, you would have air conditioners that blew both hot and cold, thus providing heat in winter. Those on the demonstration house were automatically regulated to turn on when the pressure got below a certain point.

"There is one man, up in Massachusetts," the man said, "who has put one over his outdoor swimming pool and now he swims all year around. However, there's one expense problem.

What's that?"

"Costs him a buck an hour to keep the pool water warm in winter."

the Snapshot Guild

Flower enthusiasts find a camera a happy addition to their notebooks for record keeping.

Take Notes With Your Camera

Someone once said, "There are few phases of human activity in which a camera cannot serve as a friendly companion—and the best of all possible notebooks."

Today we're suggesting you put your camera to use to record your special interests. Let's say you have an entry in a dog, horse, or livestock show—or maybe it's a model competing in the model aircraft meet—or perhaps you're off on a garden tour or at a business convention. Only with a camera in hand can you really bring home a complete account of the events you attend.

If you collect china or glass, mineral specimens, old guns, coins, or almost any other type of small object, your camera with a close-up lens can provide pictures to exchange with fellow collectors. Should your special collector's items be documents, your camera will be invaluable as a means of copying. With a facsimile record of each item, the original need not be marred by handling.

As a student of nature, you'll appreciate color film and a close-up attachment for picturing specimens in their natural habitat before you bring them home. If your hobby is model aircraft, you'll find your camera a real help in recording each step in construction. And if you're still in school, snapshots can illustrate term papers and laboratory projects—as well as record your student activities and associations in a personal "yearbook" of your own.

In family projects, such as building a new home, a day-by-day picture record is desirable, too—and sometimes can settle disputes about any phase of the construction. Remodeling and landscaping operations also merit the full "before and after" picture treatment.

In business as well as leisure-time activities, a camera can perform worthwhile services for you. Many businessmen have found pictures to be a quick, handy system of note-taking. A few clicks of the shutter—and they have a permanent memorandum of methods of doing a particular operation, business ideas, window displays, store signs, and the like. Today, a great number of artists like to carry cameras to supplement their sketchbooks; hunters and explorers do as much shooting with film as they do with firearms.

PHIL'S GETTING BIG

LOS ANGELES (AP)—When Phillip Alderette, 15 months old, yowled and screeched in imitation of his grandmother's cat everybody thought the performance pretty convincing. But Phillip's feline charade ended when he tried to go through the cat's private exit outdoors. Firemen freed the boy from a small hole cut in the door of his grandmother's house.

Citizens' Support, Help Needed To Get Docks, Terminals Project

Sanford and Seminole County will not doubt join all of America's inland merchant marine areas this year to make a greater contribution to the expanding economy of the county's transportation system.

Even though "white hot" conversation about the possibilities of a Docks and Terminals project has simmered down to a mere "warmth" in the past few weeks—the project is still one of the most important to the economy of Sanford, Seminole County and all of Central Florida.

The bulk of the nation's industrial expansion in recent years has been along the navigable rivers and canals of the nation—and yet the eyes of those who control the economy of the community—those who must plan for the future of the community seemingly cannot reach out and grasp the importance of this almost absolute necessity.

According to Chester C. Thompson, president of the American Waterways Operators, Inc., the man who stays in closer touch with the transportation industry than almost any other person in the nation, said today in Washington that his association had listed 1400 multimillion dollar industrial expansion projects on the inland waterways in the last three years.

That one statement is a direct challenge to the community of Sanford and the Seminole County area.

The total of 870 of these huge projects were constructed in 1956 alone . . . more than one a day—bringing untold wealth in payrolls, thousands of new citizens to the industrial communities, and an increase in economies that could not be reached in any other manner.

Sanford and Seminole County have only one outlet to increase their economy—the one outlet they have neglected for so long—practically nothing is being done to bring about a realization that the potential is standing ready for the first move to build a docks and terminals project. Sanford's economy is now dependent upon its waterways—it is the only solution through which bonded warehouses, a shipping and receiving center, a distribution center for Central Florida can be created.

Less than one thousand dollars can put the City of Sanford on its way to realizing that the docks and terminals is the most important project they can undertake. It is with this small amount that one of the most outstanding engineering firms of the day can be put to work to prove that the docks and terminals are necessary to Sanford—to Seminole County—to Central Florida and even further into the Florida community.

Each city, wherever it is located, inland or what have you, has an economy peculiarly its own. It cannot be compared to other cities even though a river is involved. People are different, governments are different, incomes are different, even the thinking of the people in each community has a pattern all its own. Therefore—one community cannot be compared with another that one might say "the Joneses did it this way so we must do the same." Municipal businesses, municipal governments, municipal projects, municipal thinking just doesn't operate that way.

We have to stick to the same old story that has been said time and time again—not only in this column but in thousands of others—if we're going to be big we must think big!

Sanford has started on its climb toward becoming big—and to keep it going the momentum must not be lost—the thinking must not begin to get small.

Some commissioners have even been guilty of saying "We want to start with something little . . ." and then try to impress on listeners in the audience attending the proceedings that . . . We've got to get started doing big things for Sanford now!

Well—let's get this straight right now—no one is going to do big things by acting little and doing little—the big jobs have to be tackled by someone!

The Sanford City Hall should be packed every Monday night that there is a Board of Sanford City Commissioners meeting—demanding that the Docks and Terminals Project be started as quickly as possible. Not until this project is underway will the businessmen of Sanford and Seminole County realize that transportation costs can go down instead of up—instead of lowering the prices of merchandise—as some competitive communities have been doing because of having low freight rates available—Sanford merchants are forced to keep their prices high! And it's that little margin of transportation costs that make the prices higher than prices in other communities in competitive areas.

Perhaps Sanford and Seminole County citizens believe that the Docks and Terminals project will be built because so many people are in favor of it. Surely, it is known that more and more people are becoming convinced of the necessity of such a project every day—but when the subject is broached at city commission meetings, only those who are against the project show up to have something to say about it!

Rarely—and then only on important occasions when seemingly something big is going to happen—will the proponents of a Docks and Terminals project show up at the commission meetings. There should be hundreds attending those meetings . . . literally hundreds of Sanford and Seminole County citizens with just one big shout on their lips "We Want The Docks And Terminals Project!"

For nine long years there have been measures and resolutions, good intentions and backslappings, project after project has been considered—but in the end, what has been accomplished to date—NOTHING!

A football game or a baseball game can't be won by sitting on the sidelines! The coaches, the captains, the players, the substitutes, the cheerleaders, and the enthusiasts must all join in together and shove in one direction—to the goal! Let's get behind and push!

Heed Early Warnings That Might Be Cancer

By HERMAN H. BROWN, M.D.
CANCER of the genito-urinary tract takes a heavy toll in human life. One of the most common forms of cancer in men, particularly those beyond middle age, it accounts for nearly one-third of all male cancer deaths.

Yet, like most other forms of this disease, genito-urinary cancer usually can be cured if it is treated promptly.

Early Symptoms
The danger lies in the fact that you may fail to recognize the vague early symptoms. These symptoms sometimes are so slight that doctors cannot persuade patients they need treatment, even after a positive diagnosis is made.

Like virtually all forms of cancer, cancer of the genito-urinary tract is pretty much a mystery to us. However, statistics show us that elderly persons most often are the victims. We also know that the cancer sometimes is associated with certain substances in the urine.

Foreign Material
The urine contains many foreign waste materials which enter your body through the mouth, lungs and skin. The American Cancer Society points out that long exposure of the tissues of the urinary tract to certain of these substances has been shown to be associated with an increased incidence of cancer.

We also believe that chronic irritation of the lining of the bladder may possibly be contributing factors in cancer of the genito-urinary tract and in other parts of the body, too.

Take cancer of the bladder, for example. There chronic irritation from disease or a long-standing infection might be an important factor in developing cancer.

You have a good chance of preventing serious trouble if you see your doctor as soon as you notice anything unusual. Blood in the urine is a warning sign that should never be ignored.

Even more important for you men past the age of 40 is a complete examination at least once a year. You should not wait for danger signals to develop before seeing your physician.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
John M.: What causes dimness in a person in whom apparently nothing else seems to be wrong?
Answer: Dimness is caused by various conditions, among which are constipation, high blood pressure, heart disease and kidney ailments. It may be due to defects of the eye or semicircular canals in the ears.

You are in need of a careful study by your physician to find the cause before the proper treatment can be suggested for correcting the condition.

Casual Jokes

By DON QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK UP — The time has come again to point out how much suffering goes on in this fair burg through the medium of the casual joke that fair weather friends thrust upon you without pity.

The awful things are piling up once more.

Like the rumor about Julia Andrews, the female lead in the tremendously successful musical "My Fair Lady" who sings the "Wouldn't It Be Lovely" number, among others. The story is that she has written her autobiography. Title: "Lady Lovely's Chatter."

And then there's the one about the television quiz program which as its grand awards offered the following: First prize, a week in Chicago; second prize, two weeks in Chicago.

That's the end of the joke. Chicago is used here only because it's a big, strong city with a wide-tough enough to take some kidding. The story can be used to deflate any city of your choice. It's especially recommended for politicians in St. Paul, Fort Worth,

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF
A GERMAN industrialist appeared at a party recently attired in a black suit, black tie, black homburg—with a bright yellow flower in his lapel buttonhole. "Why the mourning outfit—and the yellow flower?" he was asked. "The costume," he explained haughtily, "is for my factory which burned to the ground. The flower, is because, fortunately, the factory was fully insured."

A sturdy patron had just consumed his seventh consecutive cup of coffee in a roadside restaurant. "My pen sure must like coffee!" observed the waitress. "I certainly do," he agreed. "That's why I'm willing to swallow all this hot water to get a little of it."

A convict's wife visited him once a month in prison. One visit he asked anxiously, "What's the news on the governor's pardon?" "It couldn't be better," she answered brightly. "He's getting out next Tuesday!"

Psychologist Says Hypnosis Can Bring Out Beauty

By GAY FALEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK UP — A psychologist says beauty is more than skin deep. Sometimes it is so buried, it takes hypnosis to bring it out.

The man is John Kollich, a professional hypnotist introducing something new in the beauty salon business. Kollich is using the mental approach in trying to improve the physical appearance of customers at Larry Mathews' all-night beauty shop in Times Square.

Kollich said he doesn't guarantee customers who choose to come under his spell will walk out looking like Elizabeth Taylor or Marilyn Monroe.

"But all of us live by what we think," said the Vienna-born Kollich. "And what we feel and think is what we are."

"Women want to feel young. What is beauty anyway, but serenity, harmony and happiness?"

"We know we can help a person control weight by suggesting hypnosis; make a person blush or turn pale," he continued. "It follows that we can make a woman feel young, set and look younger."

Before all of us rush to try the hypnotic route to glamor, a word of warning. Kollich doesn't promise miracles.

"Some wrinkles do disappear with a change in woman's thinking," he insisted. "But there are lines which have formed and are physical . . . these will remain. I only help a woman happily overlook them."

The nation's first lady has turned to prints for additions to her summer wardrobe.

Mollie Parnis, the New York

designer, said Mrs. Eisenhower preferred small patterns. Typical of her purchases is a dress and jacket combination with small white daisies on a black background.

Mrs. Eisenhower also has ordered a few cottons, with low, cool necklines and short sleeves. All are with full or gored skirts.

"She doesn't like the heavy," said Miss Parnis. "And she doesn't buy a whole new wardrobe each season. Mrs. Eisenhower just fills in as needed . . . She doesn't waste clothes."

Fashion of the future note: Fifty years hence, we gals may own one dress as an all-purpose costume, eliminating the need for wearing girdle and other under-apparel. Designer Adele Simpson has put together such a garment, made of a new elasticated fabric. "The fabric is body conforming," Mrs. Simpson conceded. "But I figured 50 years hence, most women will have such good figures they can wear it . . . what with all the vitamins we eat and exercise we get."

SHS Will Hold Spring Training Intra-Squad Game Friday Afternoon

Next year's football edition of the Sanford Seminoles will hold their Spring Training Intra-Squad game Friday afternoon at 4:30 on the practice field behind Seminole High School.

Running from the straight T, the Seminoles will pit the Oranges against the whites in a gruelling game that will go a long way toward planning next season's strategy.

David Stanley, and Tommy Brown have been pointed out as the most outstanding candidates for the two week spring training program that will culminate Friday afternoon with the annual intrasquad battle.

Athletic director Fred Ganas has said that there will be ample viewing space for the anticipated huge crowd come Friday afternoon.

The teams have been selected for an almost equal balance and all candidates, including next year's freshmen who have been out for spring training will participate in the highlight of the two week gruelling conditioning.

The Orange team will boast a well balanced team with both youth and experience.

Swain will handle right end, Gerald Jones left end, Fred Jones will man the right tackle post, Kelley Lake the left tackle; right guard will be Teddy Walker, left guard Tommy Henson; quarterbacking the club will be Cecil Dandridge; Lineal Blaser will plough from the fullback spot; Al Collins will run from right halfback and Henson will run from the left halfback.

The White team consists of being ferocious and tough up front. Right end will be Walter Middleton and Duke Schirard will post the left end position; Bill Tyre and Charles Regan will play the tackle posts. David Stanley and Al Alford will lead the way from their guard spots while veteran Jack Stetson operates as pivot man. Big Mike Tammy will quarterback the Whites and will have support from hammering Harold Stone at fullback and Cliff McKibbin and Tommy Brown at halfback spots.

First rank alternates for the Orange team are: Nolley Dann, guard and tackle; Ronnie Russel, halfback; Bob Fox, tackle; and M's Roberts, quarterback.

First rank alternates for the White team will be Tommy Arnold, halfback; Rick Erikson, quarterback; Fred Jones, guard; and John Duller, end.

Mentor Dave Laude said that all candidates who came out for the spring training program will play during the game. Kickoff time is 4:30 p.m.

Moore Must Defend Title By July 7

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. UP — Archie Moore, growing more deliberate in his waning years, is under a new edict to defend his title by July 7.

"If Moore fails to defend by July 7, we will take the necessary measures to vacate the light heavyweight title," Floyd Stevens, president of the National Boxing Assn. and chairman of the Michigan Boxing Commission, said Monday.

"There is no chance the deadline will be extended. If Moore doesn't defend by July 7, he will then be suspended for 30 days. As far as we're concerned, Moore is signed to meet Tony Anthony Jun 7 in Detroit," Stevens said.

Stevens latest threat of action against Moore, a coy 41 despite his mothers claim he is 43, came after the ancient one signed for a boxing exhibition in Germany June 2.

Only time will tell whether Stevens' latest prodding of the lightweight champ will stick anymore than the previous prods didn't. The NBA first told Moore to get busy on the title fight last December when he was being clobbered by Floyd Patterson for the heavy title.

Then it ordered Moore to sign by March 15 and it was announced Moore would fight Chuck Spieser April 5 in Detroit. But Moore got this postponed to June 7 and signed a "contract" witnessed by boxing officials. Tony Anthony upset the appointment by knocking

Semi-Pros To Take On Pinecastle Thursday

The Sanford Semi-Pros take on the cream of the Central Florida Baseball League crop Thursday night when they travel to Tinker Field in Orlando with Pinecastle AFB as their foe.

Andy Bracken, lefty hurler who has yet to yield a hit either in practice or a regular game, is scheduled to start on the mound for Sanford. His left handed wide breaking ball and dancing knuckle ball is expected to spell trouble for the undefeated Pinecastle.

Meanwhile, W. C. "Red" Hires, through whose personal efforts Sanford has fielded the mighty baseball team, is having trouble picking the starting pitcher for the Sanford Semi-Pro debut in Memorial Stadium Sunday afternoon at 2:30 against Orlando. He has four top notch hurlers to pick from ranging from Jim Krider, who has done a remarkable relief job for the Sanford team so far, through Stetson University pitcher Jim Hawkins to Lloyd Swain and Bob Winnauer.

"They all shape up well," Hires said. Hires said he may have to pick the hurler according to the physical conditioning and the weather condition Sunday afternoon when the Semi-Pros make their first appearance of the season in Memorial Stadium. "If it's as hot as 2:30 as it has been for the last few days, we older fellows will have to play a limited game and leave the long hauls for the ones who are in the best shape."

Both lefty Bracken and catcher Dave Laude have registered complaints about the hot afternoon sun and remarked that they were kicking too many years to go the full route without deleterious effects.

Crosby Open To Be 4-Day $40,000 Event

DUNDEEN, Ill. — Bill Crosby's national pro-amateur golf championship "will be expanded into a four-day $40,000 event" next year, the Professional Golfers Assn. announced.

PGA headquarters here said the tournament will be expanded to include a 72-hole PGA co-sponsored tournament. The tourney is set to begin Jan. 9 on three courses on California's Monterey Peninsula.

Today's Sport Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Vic Wertz has admitted that he still feels the paralyzing figures of polo but the man who made it back farther than most make it forward still plans on "at least two more years" of baseball.

The burly first baseman of the Cleveland Indians was stricken with the disease in August, 1933 and for a frightening week could move only his head. Yet Wertz battled back last year for one of his finest seasons.

But his comeback, and his fast pace this year, are even more remarkable when you consider that even now he lives in the shadow of a nightmare. "It's alright as long as the weather is hot," he admits. "Then I don't feel any traces of it. But in cold weather I notice it in my back. When it's cool, the back stiffens up."

Enough To Finish
The fact that he is 32 doesn't worry Wertz. It is, you feel as you talk to him, the imponderable — such as the attack which laid him low two years ago. It was enough to finish the career of most.

And he played again. Vic had his best year in home runs last season with 32 while knocking in 106 runs. Only a kidney infection late in the year whittled down his batting average to .251.

This spring there was more trouble. He was bedded a week in the spring with influenza. Right now he is nursing a set of sore ribs because he "piled up a knee" while sliding into second base at Kansas City a week ago.

Despite the aches and pains and cold weather stiffens, Vic is happy. He is doing what he likes and there is added satisfaction in his current .340 batting average.

Plans To Produce
"As long as I can play well and as long as I get a good contract, that's how long I plan to be around," Wertz analyzes. "But once I can't produce, you can bet I'm not going to stretch it out sitting on the bench."

Yet even then Vic won't turn his back on the game. "I wouldn't want to coach," he says. "But I would like to maintain my interest in the game and stay in touch as a part-time scout or something along those lines."

"After all," he adds slowly, "baseball has been good to me." And he, it might be added, has been good to and for baseball. Inspirational figures such as Vic Wertz don't come along very often in any sport.

Giants Stomp Cubs 7-2; Tigers Beat Pirates

The Rotary League Giants clobbered the Cubs, 7-2, in a game jammed with miscues while the Pirates and the Tigers went into an extra inning before the Reds moved out in front, 3-2.

The Bruins jumped into the lead in their half of the opening inning when Casabe tallied after getting a single and being pushed in on a bingle by Christensen. They couldn't mark again till the fourth frame when Christensen crossed home plate after being put on second by two errors. The Cubs had three men on the bases in that turn at bat but couldn't shove them in as McKibbin racked up strikeouts for the final outs of the inning.

The Giants scored Evans in the second inning to knot the count and ran the bases for three runs in each of the next two frames. McKibbin and Gracey each tallied once in each of these sessions at bat, with Evans punching in the second time for him in the day and Emerson making the other run.

The Pirates had no respect for the league-leading Tigers and stormed them for two runs in the first chucker. After Mann went out, second to first, B. Davis walked and M. Davis was safe on an error. Both leads marked to put the Cubs out in front, 2 to 0.

The Tigers evaded the count in their next turn at bat. Summersill walked, stole second and came home on Adam's hit to left-center. Adams pilfered the next sack and came in on Powell's knock to right.

The winning run came in the sixth when Lundquist drew life on an error, took a second breath on another bobble at second base and raced home on Summersill's tall fly to left field.

Mike Gracey and Ray Lundquist pitched nifty games. The Tigers support was better in spite of two bobbles. They had nine assists, four of them by Johnny Threault and three by the chucker himself.

The winning run came in the sixth when Lundquist drew life on an error, took a second breath on another bobble at second base and raced home on Summersill's tall fly to left field.

Graham said the number who came forward at the end "was the biggest we've ever had on an opening night."

WASHINGTON, CP — The Rural Electrification Administration REA observed its 22nd birthday anniversary this month with an account of its achievements in behalf of rural America. About 4,300,000 rural consumers are served electricity on power lines financed by REA. New consumers are being added at the rate of about 100,000 a year. Use of power in rural areas is increasing at the rate of about 13 per cent a year.

Residents Urged To Report Medical Frauds In Mail

Postmaster Joel S. Field today urged residents of Sanford to report promptly to their post office any instances of medical frauds involving use of the mail, or offensive advertising material involving apparent medical quackery that enters their homes. Field said his suggestion was prompted by newest reports he has received from Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield and Chief Inspector David H. Stephens that use of the mails for medical quackery is at an all-time high. The local post office, Postmaster Field explained, under instructions from the Postal Inspection Service, turns complaints of medical fraud, as well as all other complaints of other types of mail fraud — which are also welcomed — over to postal inspectors for prompt investigation.

PURE WATER is distributed in a typical scene duplicated many times in the flood-ravaged areas of eastern Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia. To meet the recent flood situation which had cut off 10,000 families from drinking water supplies, four dairy firms put their eight plants to work preparing 2,500 gallons of safe water in cardboard milk cartons and milk tank trucks. It was the first time the Federal Civil Defense Administration's plan for emergency water distribution had been put to practical use in a disaster.

Apple pie with cheese or ice cream is a choice dessert.

These Tips Can Make Night Driving Easier

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
GOOD night vision is an important asset to night-time driving. And since almost everyone drives at least a little during darkness, I think you might appreciate a few tips which can make the job a little easier. Alcohol and gasoline—you have heard this time and time again—don't mix. This is especially true as far as seeing in the darkness or near darkness is concerned. Heavy Smoking Alcohol, even in the hangover stage, impairs the sight because it slows the rate of oxygen absorption by the blood. So does heavy smoking. For this reason, it is best to shun both liquor and chain smoking, particularly when you have to drive. It will be a lot easier to see at night if you become dark-adapted before you begin your drive. Don't forget, it takes about half an hour before your eyes become adjusted to the darkness. If you have to use a flashlight in the car, placing a piece of red paper over it will help prevent night blindness. You can go right back to normal vision in 30 seconds by looking at a bright light.

When the rural electrification program started in 1935 with only 10 per cent of our farms electrified, we thought of electricity in terms of lights and just a few household appliances. That's the way we build our systems. Today we think of electricity in terms of power—to pump water, to move heavy loads, to grind our feed, to run our repair shops, to irrigate, to do the milking, power to do many of the back-breaking, time-consuming chores of farming. REA and the electric systems are advancing from the light bulb era to the power-for-production era. We are keeping pace with the ever-growing demands. Financially the rural electric systems are in good shape. REA's rural telephone program also is making good progress. One hundred additional companies and cooperatives received REA loans last year to extend and improve dial telephone service.

EXTERMINATION—SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Robert Mathis made a carbon monoxide trap of his automobile Tuesday by running a hose from the exhaust pipe through the rear window. "Suicide" What suicide? He asked excited sheriff's deputies. "There's a trickster in there that's been driving me crazy. I'm gonna get him one way or another."

COPS, NEWSMAN AGREE—NICOSIA — Greek Cypriot newspaperman John Lemonatus, 22, agreed today the police were correct when they arrested him as he sat in the press section of Nicosia Central Court Tuesday covering the murder trial of newspaperman Nicos Sampson. Lemonatus escaped only last week from Paphos jail where he was being held on a forgery charge.

So far this year, postal inspectors have prepared cases for consideration by the Department's general counsel which, conservatively, represent an annual loss to the public of $50 million. Under Federal statutes, postal inspectors are charged with investigating any fraudulent activity in which the U.S. Mails are used. The most prominent fraudulent activity conducted through the mails today is in the field of false medical cures. Mr. Summerfield has reported the promoters and quacks are so persistent that a unit of inspectors is maintained in Washington, D. C. to coordinate investigations of these rackets. Field noted. In addition to handling public complaints by the thousands, the local postmaster noted, inspectors take materials offered and submit them for extensive examination by medical and chemical experts. The Department has a working agreement under which it contributes to the salary and expenses of doctors and chemists employed by the Food and Drug Administration for this purpose. They make tests and examinations to determine whether medical materials and devices offered through the mails are misrepresented. If the evidence indicates that formal action should be undertaken, a complaint setting forth charges of fraudulent misrepresentation is filed with the Chief Hearing Examiner. The promoter is named respondent, and arrangements made for him to appear with his attorneys at a formal hearing at which both sides of the case are heard on record. If fraudulent use of the mails is proven, a fraud order is issued by the Postmaster General by Post Office Department General Counsel Aho Goff. When a fraud order is issued, a promoter can receive no funds through the mail, and for all practical purposes his operations are shut off. All mail sent to him is returned to sender marked "Fraudulent," except that which on its face is clearly not connected with the unlawful enterprise. In the past 12 months, 46 fraud orders have been issued in medical fraud cases. "However," Mr. Summerfield continued, "rather than attempt to defend the indefensible, 104 persons or firms signed stipulations agreeing to discontinue their questionable enterprise. These phony schemes altogether were known to be taking in at least $225,000 daily. Is it any wonder new frauds spring up every day? In addition to administrative action in cases involving fraud, postal inspectors also present cases to United States Attorneys for consideration of criminal prosecution. If the United States Attorney agrees that there is a basis for criminal prosecution, he will present the evidence to a Federal Grand Jury and if indictment is returned the case will be set for trial. In these circumstances, the postal inspectors lend technical assistance and contribute extensive evidence. The conviction rate in such going to trial is very high, about 95%.

Conning The News

Here are authoritative answers from the Veterans Administration to questions of current interest to former servicemen and their families:

Q. I bought a house with a GI loan, and I had to sell it in 1950 because my employer transferred me. Since my loan was not paid off, I could not get my GI entitlement restored. If the purchaser should now pay off the loan, would I still be eligible for restoration of entitlement?

A. Yes, you still may be eligible to get your entitlement restored, even though you sold your house several years ago. The original GI loan, of course, would have to be repaid in full.

Q. I took out my GI insurance policy on February 29, during leap year. In years other than leap year, what will be considered the anniversary date of my policy—February 28 or March 1?

A. During years other than leap year, Feb. 28 will be considered the anniversary date of your policy.

Q. Under the War Orphans Education program, will monthly allowances be stopped if a student's progress is not satisfactory?

A. Yes. They may be resumed only if VA finds that the cause of unsatisfactory progress has been removed, or if the student changes to another course more in keeping with his abilities.

Q. How is Korean GI Bill entitlement used up in the case of a veteran taking flight training?

A. For GI flight trainees, entitlement is used up at the rate of one day for each $1.25 paid to them

Challenge For Dr. Mays

CHAPTER 22
THE NEXT afternoon Lacey took Jimmy to the park. He was delighted to see his friend again, and at his first opportunity broke away to tell the sandbox crowd about his new dog.

Lacey walked slowly, over would almost along the main around the blue bush—and sat down quietly beside the man staid like a board against a bench.

"Chad," she said softly stopped, and started again. "I wanted to see you, to talk to you about—"

Her voice faded, and died. All the rest of her resolution faded blinched out and she was left alone with her hunger for this man's touch, his word, his understanding—and with her fear that he would misinterpret the reason why she had sought him out.

"Chad . . . ?"

"Yes, darling?"

The endearment almost threw her, but she recovered. "I read an article about Dr. Wilkins-Smith."

"So did fifty thousand other people. About a tenth of them will write me letters, or phone."

"What will you say to them?"

"Nothing, mostly," he said, smiling at her. Then the smile widened, and warmed. "But if you're troubled . . ."

"I am. I mean, I thought I knew about the clinic, but so many things that he brought out—"

He shrugged. "You don't think I should let Wilkins-Smith call the dance, do you?"

"No—not if he's wrong."

Chad tipped his head back, stared up at the twiddling leaves for a minute. "Let's see. He suggested that forty-five minutes was a very short time in which to make a complete check-up."

"Was he right?"

"Oh, yes. He was dead right."

Lacey stiffened to shocked attention.

"You can't test for cancer and T. H. in that short time," he went on, quietly.

"But, Chad . . ."

"It goes this way, dear," said the young doctor gently. "The clinic's purpose is screening. Screening for symptoms of sickness. We want to discover disease in their early stages, so that people will not become ill—bedridden, that is—for years, or die prematurely. For the work we're doing forty-five minutes is plenty long enough to detect many symptoms of trouble."

"Your ideal," she said softly.

"to help as many people as possible—or rather to persuade them to help themselves."

"I get paid for the job I'm doing," said Chad bluntly.

"Chad," she ventured after a minute's thought, "why don't you practice?"

"I know it."

"No, because if you did, why would you be so anxious to help those same people?"

"Oh, that's science. The work I do for these clinics can be resolved to statistics and predictions. Results? I'm interested in that sort of mental exercise."

He turned on the bench to look earnestly into her face. "The one thing I don't like about the work, I'm afraid, is the fact that I have to need to sell myself. Dr. Chadburn Mays must make speeches, talk to civic groups and medical societies. And it makes a big difference if I dress in a shirt and tie or show up in a general advertising paint. I not only have to sell the clinic, I have to sell me—especially when there's a character like this Wilkins-Smith involved. He's a personality rather than an idea, so I'll have to fight him on that basis. Overcomes his personality with my own."

"What about Mother's party?" she asked abruptly. "Are you coming to that?"

"Must be," he said respectfully.

"You see—Mother's doing it for a purpose. It's to be a tea for the Women's Club . . ."

She went on to explain, briefly and clearly, that her mother was moving the battle into enemy territory by inviting the members to meet Dr. Mays.

"Will I meet this Wilkins-Smith?"

"No. Just those he has indoctrinated."

He sighed mightily. "Tell me what to do," he said gloomily.

So Lacey told him, and on the day of her mother's tea, Chad arrived, handsomely boyish in a well-cut suit of blue-gray sharkskin, a white shirt and fresh tie. His shoes were polished to a gleam.

He was so successful a Non that Mrs. Castleberry, the Club President, made uttering at—tempt to keep him close to her, to guide his progress across the terrace.

He made a complete job of it, but it was no feat to be merely kind or condescending.

Lacey was pleased with him. When the party was about over, and nearly everyone had told him how she was to meet you, Dr. Mays, she came to him, with love shy in her eyes, and pride glowing in her heart. "You were wonderful, Chad. So sweet—especially to the tiresome ones. I loved you for it."

"Don't praise me," he said. "I did it because I wanted to. I was the same way in school. I found it much more interesting to fall in love with a cross-eyed girl than a pretty one."

The words struck her with the heavy clamor of a copper gong. He winced and drew back, her hands going up to her throat in an automatic gesture of warding off further hurt. Chad stood watching her, his eyes dark.

"Did you . . . ?" she asked softly. "Did you try to hurt me, Chad?"

"You shouldn't have been hurt. I was just telling the truth."

Lacey stood very still, stem, straight and clean. "Do you always tell that kind of—truth?" she asked, gently firm.

"Well, why not?" He watched her as alertly as a child would watch an unknown animal. "Better, isn't it, than telling a lie, better than pretending right now that I was being big-hearted or noble? Honestly it's always better. The whole universe—" his arm swept up, outward and around to include the terrace, the shadowy street, the world beyond "is much better if sham doesn't exist in anything."

Lacey turned and walked toward the house.

"Must it?" he asked after her, he called after her.

"No," she said over her shoulder, and almost indifferently.

Chad looked honestly puzzled. After a minute he went swiftly down the terraced lawn to the highway, swiftly along its shoulder. That time he'd tried to explain—and still he'd hurt her. Didn't she know that it was phobias at which Chad tilted his lance? These days a man with a lance had a tough enough time wielding it, he shouldn't have to explain about it. Not to someone who loved him, he thought stubbornly.

If she did love him. He must ask Lacey about that, some time.

New Floor Styling Features Polished Oak

Always a favorite with homeowners, polished oak floors are the center of attraction in many of the most tastefully decorated new homes these days. Leading designers are advocating the display of oak's matchless natural beauty, set off with rich area rugs. The plan boasts practical as well as aesthetic values inasmuch as floor of oak are easy to keep shining. In the average home they remain gleaming when cleaned and waxed only two or three times a year. Occasional polishing between waxings helps them look their gleaming best. Extra-apple wax has preservative, rather than soap-and-water scrubbing, are recommended for cleaning. Daily sweeping with an antiretard dust mop further "guarantees" oak's sparkle.
