2,800 More Seminole Students Daily Enjoy Lunch

By MICHEAL BEHA Herald Staff Writer

The number of students buying lunch in Seminole County schools has increased by an average of more than 2,800 per day over the past 18 months, a school official said.

And that number should continue to increase as more schools are equipped with finishing kitchens, said D.F. Kirkpatrick, assistant food service director.

Kirkpatrick said more diverse menus and more popular items have increased the daily lunch participation from 13,387 in September 1981 to 16,331 in January 1983. There is an average increase of 2,000 students per day since September 1982 when 14,156 students bought their lunch.

Increasing school lunch participation has been a high priority of the school board over the past few years. A report compiled by a committee of educators, administrators and parents showed that the quality of food available to students was poor and the lunch facilities at some schools was either inadequate or non-existent.

One of the changes prompted by the report was the inclusion of salad bars. Each high school in the district was equipped with salad bars last year. This year they were placed in middle schools and have proven to be immensely popular, Kirkpatrick

Additionally, he said, Teague Middle School in Altamonte Springs, Lyman High School in Longwood and South Seminole Middle School in Casselberry now have soup and salad bars. The soup has become a good supplement in the winter months when the temperature drops and vegetables for the salad bar are not as plentiful.

Five days have been set aside each month as manager's choice menu days. The school food managers plan the menus those days, with emphasis on foods that are most popular at the individual schools.

"At some elementary schools they're working with the classes to see what the students like the best." Kirkpatrick Seminole County School Board members will consider funding a finishing kitchen for Eastbrook Elementary School in Maitland at their 2:30 p.m. Wednesday meeting at the board office at 1211 Mellonville Ave. in Sanford.

One finishing kitchen already has been installed at Jackson Heights Middle School and Kirkpatrick estimates the cost of the Eastbrook kitchen at $5,000.

Superintendent Robert Hughes has recommended board approval of the plan.

The food service committee also has recommended that at least five other schools be equipped with finishing kitchens next year - T.W. Lawton Elementary School in Oviedo, Rock Lake and Milwee middle schools and Woodlands and Wekiva. Also, if Crooms High School is retained for students a new kitchen is recommended.

Dining facilities also are recommended at Lawton and Bear Lake Elementary School near Longwood, and Longwood, Lake Mary and Casselberry elementary schools.

Hopper Elementary School in Sanford had its dining room restored this year.

In the high growth period of the 1970s the school board decided to eliminate kitchens in the individual schools in favor of a satellite lunch program in which meals are prepared in nine kitchens around the district and then delivered by truck to

As school lunch participation plunged, board members grew concerned and the committee was formed to explore the

That report found that many schools had cold food, the consistency of the food was poor and the overall quality was poor. In some of the schools, the dining rooms had been converted into classrooms, forcing students to eat in hallways or covered picnic shelters.

The recommendations are designed to eliminate the problems with facilities and to improve the quality of the food being served. The finishing kitchens, smaller than a total kitchen, will be used to put the finishing touches on the meals and keep food hot until it is served. For the time being, meals will still be prepared at the satellite kitchens. But the effects of the finishing kitchen should increase lunch participation further.

"It's psychological. If the kids know the food is cooked there they're more likely to eat it."

The finishing kitchens are less expensive than a full kitchen. The cost of the finishing kitchens is about $4,000 each while the full kitchens is $35,000.

New schools, such as Alan F. Keeth Elementary School now being built in Winter Springs, will all have full kitchens.

But the planned improvements could be jeopardized by the tight budget situation facing the school district. A 5 percent cut in state funds was recently passed onto the schools.

"Money problems are going to have a definite unpact," he said. "I'm not saying I expect problems. I'm saying they'll have to give serious consideration to those problems."

Goat Lady Brings 7 Pets Home

Seminole County's "Goat Lady," who was jailed last year after she lost a fight to keep her goats at her Oak Drive home, has brought back seven of the pygmy goats to her home.

Ingeborg Morris today said she definitely will keep them there or go back to jail.

Morris, 47, an East German native, today, said, "My animals are pets and they are not livestock. They are not for commercial use and they are not being used for slaughter.

"A good neighbor minds his own business," she commented. "This is an invasion of my privacy. I want to be left alone. If people cannot leave me alone I will go to jail. If I have to go to jail then I will go."

The seven Butler, knee-high goats were seen by neighbor Don Sutton Monday afternoon and he made a complaint to the Seminole County Commission.

Assistant County Attorney Randy Hillman confirmed that Sutton said he had seen the goats in Morris' back yard.

"We were told by Mr. Sutton that there were goats there. We sent an inspector in charge of enforcing zoning regulations out there and he has confirmed that there were seven goats there. We are at the point of drawing up a motion that Mrs. Morris will be held in contempt of an order preventing her from keeping the goats," he said.

Hillman said he did not know when the hearing would be held. If Morris is found to be in contempt of the court order, the judge could send her back to jail, he said.

Morris said she had draped sheets and blankets over the chain link fence around her back yard. She denied it was to keep people from seeing the goats, and said she covered the fence because she likes to sunbathe in the nude.

Lindenfeld Out

Mental Health Board Fires Center's Chief

Herald Staff Writer

Dr. George Lindenfeld, executive director of the Seminole County Mental Health Center, Inc., has been fired, he said today

Lindenfeld, who had told the agency's board several months ago he wanted to resign from the $36.311-a year post in June, said he has not submitted his resignation to the board.

"It looks as if they have released me," he said. "That's all I can say about it. I have to seek legal counsel."

In a prepared statement issued by the agency this morning, board members have decided to end Lindenfeld's employment immediately.

The release said Lindenfeld will be devoting full time to his private practice. Lindenfeld was named to the post in July

After hearing that Lindenfeld was planning to resign the post in June, the board hired a consultant to determine whether he should be offered more money to stay on. The consultant visited the center's offices two weeks ago.

William Fernandez, president of the agency's board of directors, said the board determined "it was not tenable to continue with an executive director who had already announced his intention to go out on his own."

Fernandez said the directors' main responsibility is to hire a director and then review his performance.

"One of our concerns was whether it was viable to continue with a 'lame duck," he said.

Lindenfeld was adamant in his plans to go into private practice and the board felt it was best to allow him to do that immediately rather than in June, Fernandez said. He wanted to develop a more family-oriented practice.

"When your goals are turned elsewhere it's hard to perform at your best," he said.

Fernandez said the board considered the ethical questions which could arise during the transition before it made the decision to terminate Lindenfeld's

"The board thinks Dr. Lindenfeld has excellent qualifications. He will do very well in private practice," Fernandez than job productivity." said. "But our primary concern is the center and its patients."

He said the morale and management problems at the agency were not a prime consideration in Lindenfeld's firing.

"Sure they had to be considered. We don't work in a vacuum," he said. "But our prime concern was Dr. Lindenfeld's announcement that he was resigning in five months."

Management problems have plagued the center for the past year.

salary hike was given to Lindenfeld as characteristic of management problems at the center.

Rape's resignation letter said "the closed shop administrative style prevents program managers from being effective and makes a mockery of the chain of command."

The center's staff was been reduced from 112 to 60 since 1980. Rape said administrative and computer costs were "draining the center financially and if not corrected will ultimately cripple the

Board determined director already was a 'lame duck.'

Rape and three other staff members were suspended following the resignation of Fleischmann. They were later reinstated. But Rape said the investigation was "a headhunting mission born out of paranoia. Herald Staff Writer "The Chamber and Me in '83" is the theme of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce annual membership drive, kicked off this morning by 90 chamber members.

At a breakfast meeting at the Chamber of Commerce building on First Street at Sanford Avenue, Bruce Berger, manager of the Florida Power and Light Co. office in Sanford and chairman of the drive, said the goal is to reach a membership of 1,000 individuals and businesses.

The teams will visit Sanford businesses that are not already chamber members during the campaign which began today and is slated to end at 5 p.m. Thursday.

Goals of the drive, in addition to reaching a membership of 1,000, are to increase membership renewals and to "have fun," Berger said.

The individual members and the teams which sell the most memberships will be treated to a steak dinner cookout at the chamber scheduled for 6 p.m. on Thursday.

The team which sells the most memberships, in addition, will be treated to a moonlight cruise on the Bay Queen. Each of the teams performed skits or made special remarks at today's breakfast meeting. Each member of the four teams which performed the best skits were given tickets for dinner

Federal Employees Fight Social Security Inclusion

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Federal workers and postal service employees adamantly oppose a plan to include new government employees in the Social Security system, arguing it will bankrupt their own civil service retirement funds.

Kenneth Blaylock, president of the American Federation of Government Employees, told the House Social Security sub-committee Monday federal workers are "justifiably paranoid" Congress will not protect their pension plan.

Representatives of several other federal employee and postal worker unions were testifying today before the panel, in its second week of hearings on the financial problems of the Social Security system.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - The nation's largest lawyers group is sticking with its ethics code that limits when an attorney must reveal a client's secrets

The American Bar Association's policy-making body Monday rejected changes in the lawyers' ethics code that would have expanded the circumstances under which attorneys could break client confidences.

Delegates were urged to require lawyers to disclose client secrets to prevent fraud, serious financial harm. or imminent physical danger. The current lawyer's ethics code, adopted in 1969, asks lawyers only to disclose confidences to prevent a crime. The only other exception to the client secrecy rule is when a lawyer is disputing fees with a client.

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) - Mount St. Helens erupted in a burst of lava, gas and steam that shot 14,000 feet in the air, forming a new lobe on the east side of its volcanic dome today and putting scientists on guard for more eruptions.

IN BRIEF Florida Taxes Again Bring In More Than Was Expected

TALLAHASSEE (UPI)-State taxes produced $26 million more than expected in January-the second windfall in two months after lagging revenues forced Gov. Bob Graham and the Cabinet to cut the budget.

Graham still may have to recommend, however, tax increases to help fund the 1983-84 budget proposal he submits to the Legislature next week.

General revenue collections for January totaled, tentatively, $485.3 million, about $26 million more than projected for the month in state government's official revenue estimating forecast. The sales tax, the biggest single revenue source, produced $371.7 million, $16.5 million more than expected.

The healthy January collections probably mean that the 1982-83 budget is balanced and Graham and the Cabinet members won't have to make any further spending cuts.

They slashed $360 million from the spending plan last fall when revenues weren't producing enough to cover all of the appropriations made by the Legislature.

Early March Launch Seen

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)-The installation of a replacement engine into the space shuttle Challenger this week should allow the space agency to shoot for an early March launch, officials said Monday.

"I don't see any reason why we can't make a March 7 launch," said Lee Solid, manager of engine operations at Kennedy Space Center for Rockwell International's Rocketdyne Division.

Ground crews will install the new engine Wednesday, Solid said. The new engine arrived at the space center over the weekend. Engineers spent Monday attaching an oxidizer pump to the new engine and making numerous checks.

The Challenger's maiden voyage, originally scheduled for late January, was delayed when leaking hydrogen was discovered during a December testfiring of the shuttle's main engines.

IN BRIEF Group Calls For Israel

Minister's Resignation

JERUSALEM (UPI)-Israel's inquiry commission into the Beirut massacre called today for Defense Minister Ariel Sharon to resign for his "grave mistake" of ordering Lebanese Christian militias into two Palestinian refugee camps.

The commission did not recommend that Prime Minister Menachem Begin resign but said his "lack of involvement in the entire matter casts on him a certain degree of responsibility" in the Sept. 16-18 slaughter in

St. Johns' Wetlands Purchase Begins By DONNA ESTES

Herald Staff Writer

It will probably be 10 years before the problems with decreased flow and increased pollution in the St. Johns River are solved, but work on the permanent solution has begun.

Michael Gray, a Sanford attorney, who represents Seminole County on the St. Johns River Water Management District board, said the most crulcial thing has begun. He said that is the acquisition of wetlands for water storage and cleansing during the wet season and for release of that water during the dry

An added advantage of the overall plan is that farmers will in the upper basin of the river - Indian River and Brevard counties will not be releasing water into the river through channels for transport to the ocean during rainy times. That water will instead be sent to the wetlands as part of the overall plan for saving the river, Gray said.

Full implementation of the district's plan for the river - the acquisition of more wetlands through state and district funding and approval of federal funding to build some dams and levees and to remove others - will probably take 10 years, he said.

Water will be stored during the wet season and released during the traditional February to May dry season, Gray said, adding that in the process of being stored the water will be cleansed.

"In the long term the river's water quality will be protected," Seminole County's representative said.

Gray, officers of the water management district, members of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, St. Johns River Task Force, Sanford elected officials, conservationists and county officials met at the chamber this week to discuss the progress made in saving the river.

The water management district plan is to be voted on by the district's board of commissioners Wednesday at Palatka. The process calls for the U.S. Corps of Englacers to evaluate the plan and send its report in a general memoranda to all concerned agencies of the state, Gray said.

Those agencies will send back comments and recommend approval or denial of the plan and then the plan will go on to Congress for approval or denial of federal funding.

The federal funding will be used for constructing dams and levees and the removal of some existing levees, Gray said.

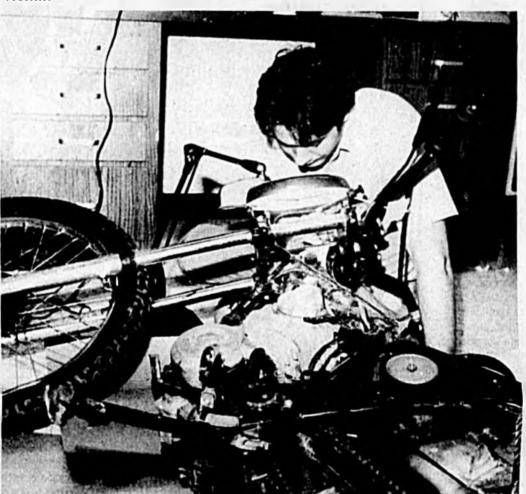

Gray said the historical flood plane, such as swamps, which served for years to collect, hold and cleanse the river water has been encroached upon by people building homes or industries and farmers using the land. This has brought about a reduction in the areas for collection and storage of water.

"We (the St. Johns River Water Managment District) are committed to a 10-year wetlands acquisition plan and I'd be surprised if it doesn's take 10 years for the entire plan to be implemented," Gray said.

He added, "The crucial thing is to get it

Florida Truck Traffic 'Normal'

United Press International

Florida's truck traffic in the second week of the strike by independents apparently has returned to normal, with sufficient numbers of drivers available to carry the state's produce, a spokesman for Gov. Bob Graham said.

In Fort Myers early today, truckers staged a convoy to show support for the eight-day-old nationwide strike, which was called to protest hikes in the fuel tax and user fees. The Independent Truckers Association of Southwest Florida had predicted some 75 to 80 rigs would take part in the 90-mile convoy to Tampa along Interstate 75. But no more than 40 showed up, said Fort Myers police Sgt. Pat

No traffic delays or other problems were reported. Most of the rigs made the haul "bobtail," without trailers.

Eric Schengel, spokesman for the Florida Independent Truckers Association, said the convoy was to "show solidarity with the independent truckers nationwide. It will be a show of non-violence," Schengel said.

Only three incidents of violence related to the strike were reported in Florida Monday, said deputy press secretary Pat Riordan. Riordan said a check of weigh stations revealed that the number of trucks on Florida's highways Monday was "approximately" normal.

Crime Lab Role Key

Expert analysis of drugs provided by the crime lab has helped in gaining convictions for drug offenses, which in turn has had the domino effect of making Central Florida, a risky area in which to unload drugs.

"The state of Florida has a push on against drug dealers and we are finding that they are starting to unload in South Carolina and North Carolina," Trubey said.

. This is one way the crime lab can provide valuable back-up to law enforcement agencles. Perhaps not so obvious is the dogged determination and detection methods. One such case is cited by weapons expert Gary Rathman, analyst who spent two weeks of intensive investigation matching up knife marks on a door lock.

Rathman had been called in after a woman was raped in the Fort Lauderdale area about 18 months ago. The rapist had used a serrated steak knife on the door lock. To prove that it was the same knife found on the man and used on the lock, Rathman conducted tests on the serrations for two weeks. He was almost at the point of giving up when he found the scratch marks on the door matched perfectly with the seventh tooth on the steak knife.

He was able to conclusively prove that it was the knife that had been used to open the door before the rape. Unfortunately, because a police officer had not properly marked the knife as evidence, the case was dismissed on a technicality.

Rathman said: "That was really an important case but the judge would not let me testify and the man got off."

Color photographs of the knife scratches hangs in his lab opposite a wall filled with rifles and a large assortment of handguns. Every weapon produced has its own characteristics which allow weapons experts to establish a unique "fingerprint" for that

No other gun will have the same lands (the raised area of the barrel) and grooves (the grooved area). All weapons that fire bullets detonated by a charge have a rifling of the barrel. The rifling gives the bullet a spinning action allowing it to leave the barrel at high speed. To find out which bullet has been fired from a murder weapon, Rathman fires the same caliber bullet from the weapon. If the scratch marks on both bullets match exactly, then that is the weapon that has been used in the murder.

"Every bullet that passes through a particular weapon will have its own identical marks and we are able to find out which bullet is fired from each weapon because it has its own fingerprint," said Rathman.

Different types of weapons are rifled in different ways to make the bullet twist to the left or to the right when it enters the barrel. It does not matter which way the weapon has been rifled, experts like Rathman can still prove conclusively which bullet was fired from which weapon.

The lab stores about 300 different caliber bullets for use in their test firing. This is done into a tank of water or a long box filled with cotton wool. This stops the bullet and does not cause additional marks, which may not allow a match to be made.

With the use of highly sophisticated microscopes and scanning machines like the Scanning Electron microscope which can magnify human hair, skin and fibers many times, the analysts at the lab have been able to play an important role in the fight against

"It is a science but there is also an art to finding the answers. Our work is based on scientific fact and tests . That is why a computer could never do our job," Rathman said. "It is common sense, logic and perseverance. An important part of our job is to explain to the jury in terms they understand," added Rathman, who next year will have to oversee the move of the crime lab to Orlando.

The wounded adviser, Green Beret Sgt. Jay T. Stanley, of Towson, Md., also was flown out of El

Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., a member of the National Commission on Social Security Reform, said he did not realize "there were quite so many instances" of dead people getting checks. He called for stiffer penalties against those who fraudulently cash the benefits.

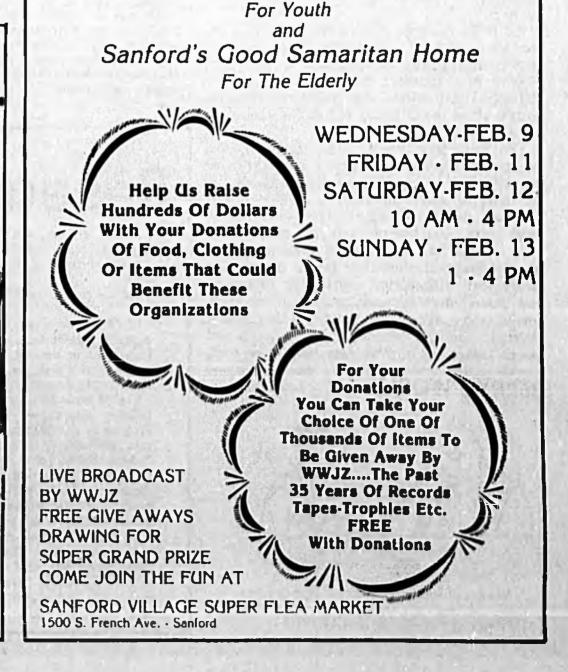

"They ought to be prosecuted," he said. "It's nothing but embezzlement or larceny on the part of those people."

But Pepper also criticized the Social Security Administration, saying, "They must tighten up their enforcement procedures and they must become more efficient in the administration of this great program."

Europe Borders Are Our Borders

President Reagan effectively played a taking trump card recently by his dramatic invitation to Soviet leader Yuri Andropov for a summit meeting to "ban medium-range nuclear missiles from the face of the earth."

When Vice President George Bush voiced this offer in Berlin, it grabbed Europe's attention and hopefully made an impact on the West Germans for whom the missiles are a paramount issue in ANTHONY HARRIGAN their national elections on March 6.

That vote could determine European defense strategy for the foreseeable future and even seal the fate of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Andropov's fast "nyet" simply means the Soviets see no reason to concede missile superiority now when there is a chance that West German voters will hand them what they want on a silver platter.

A clever Soviet propaganda campaign in West Germany portrays President Reagan as a warmonger even though his zero-option pledges the United States to forgo deployment of intermediate-range nuclear missiles in Europe in exchange for elimination of all corresponding Soviet weapons.

Meanwhile, Andropov dangles deceptively attractive arms reduction offers that would merely perpetuate the current Soviet advantage in Europe.

The medium-range missiles have become the transcendent West German election issue with Christian Democratic leader Helmut Kohl committed to deploying the new missiles in Europe this year, while continuing arms negotiations with the Soviet Union.

On the other hand, Hans Jochen Vogel, the Social Democratic leader, plays the dangerous game of flirting with the Russians and opposing missile deployment.

Equally disturbing, the new Green Party, its main plank nuclear disarmament, could become an influential part of a new coalition government by obtaining 5 percent of the vote.

Should the Kohl government fall at the polls, West Germany could be neutralized.

Robbed of German strength, other Western European nations would undoubtedly rush toward an accommodation with the Soviet Union, thereby dismembering the Atlantic Alliance.

Moreover, not much would be left for the United States in the way of meaningful arms reductions. Conversely, a Kohl victory would reinforce NATO and prompt the Soviets to begin serious arms reduction talks.

Ironically, it was West Germany and other Western European nations that originally requested the Pershing missiles to counter the Soviet missile warheads that now number in the thousands.

These weapons are not required for direct defense of the United States.

Europe, at the heart of the Western World, is a prize that must not fall within the Soviet orbit. That's why its borders have become our borders.

Fingerprinting

Something seems awry when hundreds of New Jersey youngsters of grade-school age are lining up to be fingerprinted by sheriff's deputies. We associate fingerprinting with, at best, an intrusion Into our privacy or, at worst, being a suspect in a

But there are good reasons why parents have decided to take the fingerprints of their children in a voluntary program sponsored by the Union County, N.J., sheriff's office. An undersheriff developed the program after reading a magazine article about the difficulty of locating and identifying missing children.

The fingerprint cards will remain in the possession of parents, so there is no invasion of privacy or amassing of a government file. But if anything happens to the children -- a kidnapping, runaway, or other disappearance - the fingerprint record could be of significant value.

It is appalling that 100,000 minor children simply disappear from their homes in America every year. Fingerprints supplied by parents to law enforcement agencies could help locate or Identify the missing. The program in New Jersey tleserves study by parents, school officials and police authorities in other communities as well.

Foreign Aid's Waste

By MICHEAL BEHA

One can be sure that the 98th Congress will produce a variety of formulas for economic recovery, most of them wrong. The election season pronouncements of many candidates who won election were shot through with the same errors that produced the recession.

There are correct formulas that could be utilized if Congress develops some understanding of the nation's situation. Alice Widener, president of USA Magazine and a wise commentator on economic affairs, recently discussed this subject in a publication of the American Economic

"Why not demand," Mrs. Widener suggested, "that Congress make multi-billion cuts in foreign aid financing, in financing military aid to rich Europe and Japan, in financing trade with the Soviet empire? The very first and best step we must take is to learn how to say 'no' to all foreign demands for unprofitable economic aid to anyone anywhere."

The Executive Branch is as much at fault as Congress in calling for huge foreign aid outlays at a time when American business finds it extraordinarily difficult to finance its operations. The Reagan administration's penchant for foreign aid has been a surprise and a source of dismay to its supporters.

Mrs. Widener stated that "If we were to use 10 percent of our giveaway foreign aid funds for debt reduction here at home, the psychological effects on the market would be tremendous. And, I believe, interest rates would start to come down. As a matter of fact, any tangible evidence of intent to reduce debt would be confidence-building."

The American people hear an enormous amount about the plight of countries in the Third World. They are urged to continue financial aid to the countries that already owe billions of dollars to the United States. Americans hear very little about profligate spending by the ruling elites of these coun-

Mrs. Widener noted, however, that President Mobutu of Zaire, which owes billions to America, recently occupied the entire 35th floor of the Waldorf Astoria hotel in New York City. He had 80 persons in his entourage, including 21 children he took sightseeing at Disney World. This is the kind of funnybusiness for which American taxpayers pick up the tab.

It's time to change all that by cutting off the foreign aid and helping restore prosperity in ministration is about to release an official that includes any form of outspoken report which will indict the Soviet Union for widespread use of slave labor.

The report is the result of months of study by experts from the White House, the CIA, the Pentagon and the State and Labor Departments. Their findings will come as no surprise to anyone who has plowed through Alexander Solzhenitsyn's "Gulag Archipelago," but their report will give the U.S. government's imprimatur to disclosures of political and religious persecution throughout Soviet society.

The study was made in response to an inquiry by Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo. He wanted to know if forced labor was being used to build the natural gas pipeline from Siberia to Western Europe.

As it happened, the intelligence on that specific project was scant, and the experts disagreed over exactly what constituted work on the pipeline, sources told my associate Lucette Lagnado. So the interagency group decided to expand its study to include all Soviet slave labor and put the whole issue on the record.

The experts estimate that there are about four million slave laborers in the workers' paradise, a huge drop from the 20 million historians figure were enslaved by Stalin. Although superficial changes have been made in the past 30 years, forced labor is still an Important factor in the Soviet economy, and it is still used as a weapon against political and religious dissidents.

The report illustrates the lawyerly techniques used by the authorities to deny civil rights supposedly guaranteed to all Soviet citizens. Free speech, for example, is obliterated by a law making it a crime to

WASHINGTON-The Reagan ad- "libel" the Soviet system-a blanket term A particularly useful Catch-22 is the charge "parasitism," which is used when a dissident is prevented by the authorities from holding a job and then arrested for not working. The interagency report documents individual cases of Soviet dissenters railroaded into the labor camps on questionable grounds. Here are a few cited in the report:

-Ilya Zviagin was charged with disseminating two documents that allegedly libeled the Soviet system. He was convicted and sentenced to two years' forced laboreven though the documents in question weren't presented as evidence in court.

-Herbert Murd, an Estonian Methodist, was convicted for doing church work among young people. He was released after a year at forced labor, but was soon rearrested for failure to pay alimony—a failure that was due directly to his inability to hold a job because the authorities repeatedly had him fired. He was eventually convicted of "parasitism."

-Georgiy Mikhailov was an amateur art collector sentenced to four years for engaging in a prohibited occupation. He was accused of selling art slides to friends, but his real "crime" was patronizing artists the authorities disapproved of. He was convicted even though the prosecution's expert witness refused to testify that Mikhailov had engaged in prohibited activity.

-Ida Nudel, who was both vociferous and persistent in her criticism of the authorities, recently completed a four-year sentence in Siberia. But she is forbidden to return to her nome in Moscow, and is forced to wander around the country looking for places to live.

WILLIAM A. RUSHER

Reagan Stands Firm

NEW YORK (NEA) - The most striking fact about President Reagan, as revealed in his State of the Union message to Congress, is how little his convictions and his policies have

His critics in the Democratic party and the Washington press corps (as if there's a difference) will try to portray this as blind stubborness in the teeth of disagreeable facts. But, in truth, they would have been much happier if he had changed course, for then he could be pictured as staggering haplessly from one policy to another, without either a clear notion of what is wrong or the foggiest idea of how to correct it.

Beat in mind that the name of the game in Washington is money - your money: how much of it to take away from you, and what to spend it on. At the very outset of his administration, and despite the urgent need for a fast and expensive build-up in our deteriorated defenses, Mr. Reagan demanded, and got, sharp, across-the-board decreases in income taxes for the next three fiscal years. That reflected his firm conviction that the government was taking far too much money from the American people for either their health or its own. He also demanded, and got, impressive reductions in the rate of growth, and in some cases in the actual level, of domestic spending.

Unluckily for Mr. Reagan, the outset of his administration coincided with the onset of a major recession in this country, partly reflecting worldwide trends and partly induced by the double-digit inflation and 21 percent interest rates generated by the reckless policies of decades of Democratic Congresses. This development frustrated Mr. Reagan's perfectly reasonable hope - which he had expressed repeatedly during the 1980 campaign - that a quick economic upsurge, stimulated by the prospect of lower taxes. would bring in enough tax revenues, even at the lower rates and despite higher defense expenditures, to balance the budget. Instead, projected budget deficits ballooned to record dimensions.

This gave those who favor increases, or at least no further cuts, in domestic expenditures (and broadly speaking that means the Democrats) the handle they had been looking for. Professing to be appalled at the size of these projected deficits, they have called for the reduction or elimination of Mr. Reagan's tax cuts. In this, they have had the cooperation of a good many conservative economists, businessmen and Republican congressional leaders who sincerely fear that the projected deficits will reignite inflation. drive up interest rates and derail the nation's economic recovery.

The trouble is that Democrats like Tip O'Neill haven't the slightest intention of using the revenues a tax hike might generate for any such unexciting purpose as reducing the budget deficit, least of all in the administration of what O'Neill regards as an "enemy" president.

Researcher Disagrees With Anderson

I must strongly differ with Jack Anderson's recent column describing ethylene dibromide (EDB) as a deadly

Let me present some facts which your column failed to mention: 1.) EDB is not a spray as you indicated. It is used to furnigate fruits and vegetables in airtight fumigation chambers. It is never sprayed on any agricultural commodity. 2.) EDB has been the mainstay of the USDA's Quarantine Fumigation Program for over 30 years. It has been used extensively by trained State and Federal inspectors at all ports of entry for foreign fruits and vegetables requiring furnigation, without illness or injury. The USDA prefers to continue the use of EDB for this purpose.

3.) Epidemiological studies have been carried out at EDB manufacturing plants both here and abroad. None of the studies have shown the cancer rate among plant workers to differ significantly from that of the

has been used in organic chemistry laboratories to demonstrate the important dehalogenation reaction. Hundreds of thousands of college sophomores majoring in the sciences and in predental, premedical, preoptometric and pre-veterinary programs have handled EDB, some have spilled it on their skin, but none have "turned green and rotted before they died."

5.) The two deaths in California resulted from a horrible industrial accident in which the men entered a tank containing several different chemicals in liquid form, one of which was EDB. This was akin to a head on collision between two automobiles or the explosion of a gasoline tank, not to the use of chemicals in the accepted

6.) The scientists and agricultural experts favoring the continued use of EDB, properly controlled and regulated, include both federal and state regulatory officials and 4 past presidents of the prestigious American Society of Toxicologists.

7.) Now the reason for my interest, the Florida citrus industry has been threatened with the cancellation of EDB even though the Japanese government requires that all Florida grapefruit entering Japan be furnigated with this chemical. Even after a decade of continuous research on radiation, cold treatment and other fumigants. there is no proven substitute for EDB for this purpose. Florida ships more than 6,000,000 cartons of grapefruit to Japan annually, 20 percent of all the grapefruit sold in fresh form in the 1980-61 season. The loss of this market would be devastating to us and would eliminate one of the few commodities for which the U.S. has a trade surplus with Japan.

8.) Florida Department of Citrus scientist Dr. Muhamed Ismail and myself spent several days in Tokyo in November 1981. Although the Japanese are more environmentally conscious than the United States, we found that the Japanese Ministry of Health and Welfare (MHW) is completely satisfied with the safety of Florida grapefruit entering Japan. In most cases they do not find a detectable residue of EDB associated with the fruit, and they use the finest analytical instruments known to man. EDB is the commodity fumigant recommended by the Japanese government for use in Japan.

9.) Of all the EDB manufactured, only 3-10ths of 1 percent is used for grapefruit fumigation.

Mr. Anderson, I'm afraid that the person who researched your column was misled. In the interest of fairness and objectivity, I hope you will present the facts which were missing from your story.

Will Mantle Join Mays In Exile?

NEW YORK (UPI) - They're in this together now and the greatest comfort Willie can offer Mickey is - it only hurts for a little while.

Back in October 1979, Willie Mays was ordered to disassociate himself from baseball by Bowie Kuhn for signing a 10-year contract with Bally International, a gambling hotel casino in Atlantic City.

Mays had two years left on another contract with the Mets, whom he served as a good-will ambassador and part-time coach. His new association automatically ended all that.

Mickey Mantle is doing much the same thing. They're having a gala news conference for him here today and it'll be announced he's officially joining the Claridge Hotel and Casino in Atlantic City as director of their sports promotions. What that means is he'll shake hands with their patrons and run their golf tournaments for them, which is similiar to what Mays does for Bally. What it also means is, Kuhn will notify Mantle he's all through with baseball.

Kuhn has no other choice, he has to be consistent. In Mickey's case, it will mean he no longer can serve as an instructor with the Yankees in spring training as he has done for a number of years. Mantle knows what to expect. Mays can tell him a little more from experience.

"Mickey and I are friends and have been for a long time," Willie says.

"I can't really tell him whether he's doing right or wrong because it's hard for me to decide for other people. I know what's right for me, but I don't know what's right for him"

Mays gets $100,000 a year from Bally. Mantle will make at least that much with Claridge.

"I don't think anybody should be able to tell someone else how to make a living," Willie goes on. "I'm not hurting baseball at what I do spending time with kids, going to schools and making talks - and I'm sure Mickey isn't gonna do anything to hurt the game, either. We'll be working around the corner from each other. I think it'll be wrong to put him out of baseball, the same way I think it was wrong what they did to me."

Mays participated in the Bing Crosby national pro-am in Pebble Beach, Calif., last week. He's talking now from his home in Atherton Calif.

"I don't know how much it means for Mickey to go to spring training," Willie says. "I used to enjoy going there with the Mets. After the commissioner made his ruling on me, the first year was very difficult. I was very upset. I was afraid how the kids would take it. But they've been all right. The people at Bally also have protected me very well. They see to it that I have nothing whatsoever to do with gambling.

"I don't know what the commissioner will do about Mickey, but imagine he'll do the same thing he did to me. Then he'll be following the guideline he believes in. But sometimes you have to wonder if there isn't some kind of double standard. They wouldn't let this guy in Chicago buy the White Sox because he owns a race track, but now look at the questions being raised over the sale of the Pirates. Who are Warner Communications and what are these stories I've been reading about some of their executives being convicted?

"Baseball was my life. It still is. I never did anything to harm it."

The fact is, Bowie Kuhn has a soft spot in his heart for both Mickey and Willie. Nonetheless, he's going to keep calling 'em as he sees them for as long es he's commissioner.

Whether you agree with Bowie Kuhn or not, he is to be saluted for standing there and facing the storm. There is no question he has the welfare of the game at heart.

"If watching that recent PBS documentary on professional football taught me anything, it taught me that Bowie Kuhn's greatest strength is the way he has preserved the integrity of the game," declares Ballard Smith, the San Diego Padres' president.

"There has never been any hint of impropriety or scandal in baseball since he has been commissioner.

Insufar as some of his decisions are concerned, I can't honestly see much wrong with them. Personally, I'd much rather err on the side of being too strict than being too lenient."

Roessler Riddles Edison With 35 Point Explosion

By CHRIS FISTER Herald Sports Writer

Usually, when you have more than one outstanding player on the same team, you can expect that when one has a bad night, the other will take up the slack. But, when both players have exceptional nights, the opposition had better take

Such was the case at Seminole Community College Monday night as SCC's Val. Roessler and Katrina Andersson combined for 54 points to lead the Lady Raiders to a 91-75 rout of Edison.

Roessler was virtually unstoppable, left alone, she would hit the outside shot with uncanny accuracy. Guarded closely, a quick head fake and a move inside resulted in two points. Roessler riddled the Edison defense for a seasonhigh 35 points and Anderson added 19 as the Raiders improved to 11-13 for the SCC, which was playing without injured point guard Mindy Patrick, got a big boost from reserve point guard Mary Jo Miller who chipped in with 14 points and a game-high eight assists.

"Mary Jo took over for Mindy (Patrick) at point guard and did an outstanding job," SCC coach Sol Batoon said. "She doesn't usually play more than three minutes a game but she came in tonight and really added to the game with her penetration."

The Lady Raiders got off to a blazing start by hitting 8 of its first 10 shots to take a 16-11 lead with four minutes gone in the first half. Anders son had 10 of SCC's first 16 points while also playing tough on the defensive end of the floor.

SCC led by as much as 12 points in the opening half, but Edison's Lori Oldham kept her team in the running with a phenomenal 23 first-half points. SCC, behind Andersson's 17 and Roessler's 16 points took a 47-41 halftime lead. The Raiders hit on 22 of 36 shots from the floor the first half for 61 percent while Edison made 19 of 29 field goals for 65 percent. "We weren't consistent enough defensively in the first half," Batoon said. "Overall, the defense did a better job the second half but we need it the entire game." The Lady Raiders hustled on both ends of the floor to open the second half and built an 18 point lead, 64-46, with 11:36 left to play on a layup by Roessler. About five minutes later, SCC took a 20 point lead, 76-56, on two free throws by Sue Winternhelmer.

Edison finally got rolling and outscored SCC, 10-1, in the next minute and half of the game to pull within 11 points, 77-66, with 4:33 left to play.

Miller came back and hit two unanswered baskets to put the Raiders back up by 15 points with four minutes remaining. The closest Edison got after that was within 12 points.

Edison was able to get within 12 after two technicals were called on Batoon, giving him three for the game. Batoon felt he had a pretty good reason to be angry. Batoon was whistled for the technicals after Miller was kneed in the chest by an Edison player. Fortunately, Miller left the floor under her own power, leaving Batoon and the Lady Raiders sighing with relief.

"They (the officials) let it get out of hand," Batoon said. "The girl (Miller) was deliberately kicked right in front of an official and nothing was called." For an excessive amount of technicals, Batoon was ejected from the game.

Sharyn Henderson hit two of the three technical shots for Edison to cut SCC's lead to 83-71, but Edison could get no

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Knicks' 5-Minute Stretch Turns Back Pacers, 105-99

NEW YORK (UPI) - Indiana's Coach Jack McKinney will not have to look at the game films in searching for an answer to Monday night's 105-99 loss to the New York Knicks, in the only NBA game scheduled.

"The five-minute stretch in the third period was a nightmare," he said. "There were loose balls on a lot of turnovers (five) on our part."

That stretch turned a 68-67 Pacers' lead into an 86-72 Knicks' advantage as New York went on a 19-4 scoring

It was the Pacers' first loss to the Knicks after three triumphs.

"We don't own the Knicks," McKinney said. "I think our biggest margin over them was seven points. New York is a much improved team." Indiana rookie Clark Kellogg led the Pacers with 20 points and 20 rebounds, five assists and three steals while Herb Williams added a game-high 24 points, 14 rebounds and four assists. Indiana had been severely weakened by the offseason loss of guards Don Buse (to Portland) and John Davis (to Atlanta) plus forward Louis Orr (to the

"Kellogg and Williams are the two best remaining players," McKinney said. "There is no pressure on them, but they do have to be on target most of the time for us to win." Indiana suffered its third straight loss, while New York won its fifth in a row and has reeled off eight wins in its last nine games. The Knicks were led by Bill Cartwright with 22 points and Orr with 20 points. The Knicks had a well-balanced attack with four others in double figures, Paul Westphal with 15, Sly Williams 14, rookie Trent Tucker 12, and Truck Robinson with 10 points.

McDonald Wants To Fill Nets

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) - Lanny McDonald, who is likely to have as good a chance as any to fill the nets tonight in the 35th NHL All-Star Game, dismisses any thoughts of taking it easy during the game.

"We've lost six of the last seven games," McDonald says of his Campbell Conference AllStars, "and we'd like to change that, for sure. We're here for only one

McDonald is enjoying his finest season, scoring 48 goals for the Calgary Flames, and his center tonight on the starting Campbell team is Wayne Gretzky. But then again, in the nets for the Wales Conference is Pete Peeters, the Boston Bruins' red-hot goaltender with a league-leading save percentage of .911.

"I'm ready," Peeters said after arriving late Monday night, just in time for the league's annual All-Star banquet. "I think I can handle anything they throw at me."

The snowstorm that dropped more than 3 inches of snow on the Long Island area also hit other NHL cities and created travel problems for some players, including Peeters, Philadelphia defenseman Mark Howe and Quebec right winger Marian Stastny.

Goalie Richard Brodeur of the Vancouver Canucks, who was voted to the Campbell team, is unable to compete and veteran John Garrett of Vancouver was named to replace him. The Campbell and Wales Conferences have faced each other eight times in this series, with the Wales winning all but one. "It's a fun thing," Mike Bossy says. "We all have our pride here, though."

Roger Neilson, coach of the 1982 Stanley Cup finalist Canucks, will head the Campbell team. Al Arbour of the Islanders will coach the Wales.

Kelley Swapped For Schayes

DENVER (UPI) - The Denver Nuggets Monday traded veteran center Rich Kelley to the Utah Jazz for center Danny Schayes and other considerations.

Schayes, 6-foot-11 and 245 pounds, averaged 7.9 points and 5.2 rebounds while playing in all of Utah's 82 games as a rookie, and eventually worked his way into the team's starting lineup for the final 10 games of the

"I think Danny will give us a good, tough player who can help us make a run at the playoffs this year, and I also feel he has a chance to develop into a fine center for the future," Nuggets' President and General Manager Carl Scheer sald.

Kelley missed 12 games because of injuries, but played well enough to average 4.6 points and 4.5 rebounds in 14.9 minutes while playing in 38 games.

Cleveland Trades Edwards

RICHFIELD, Ohio (UPI) - The money-starved Cleveland Cavallers traded center James Edwards to the Phoenix Suns Monday for center-forward Jeff Cook, cash and a third-round draft choice in 1983.

The trade, which had to be approved by the NBA league office, also has the teams swapping first-round

Edwards, 26, 7-foot-1 and 230 pounds, averaged 16.7 points per game for Cleveland last season, but missed several weeks this season with a knee injury.

Raiders' Fan Files Suit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - An attorney and a law student filed a suit requesting the deal bringing the Raiders football team to Los Angeles be invalidated and $675,000 in rent and outright payments to the team

Century City attorney Dana Cole and UCLA student John Shur of Marina del Rey filed the suit Monday in Superior Court.

Cole said he is a Raiders' fan but is convinced the $6.7 million to be given the team in their first four years in Los Angeles constitutes an illicit giveaway of public

"I love the Raiders," said Cole. "I think they're a great team. I'd like to see them stay in Los Angeles. I just don't like the deal made with their owner, Al Davis."

Cole said neither he nor Shur is acting on behalf of any of the parties contesting the Raiders' move from Oakland or the terms of their Coliseum agreement.

The suit, filed against the Collseum Commission and the Raiders, asserts the commission has "acted in collusion with the Raiders and Al Davis to create the subterfuge and fiction of a $6.7-million loan for the tax benefits of the Raiders and Al Davis." when in fact the money is "a gift of public funds to the Raiders."

Champions' Olson, Rawls, Likens Lead Lake Mary Into Mat Region

By SAM COOK Herald Sports Editor

Every team needs a leader. Lake Mary wrestling coach Frank Schwartz feels lucky, he has three.

With juniors Bob Olson (142), Robert Rawls (UNL) and Jack Likens (109) each grabbing an individual championship in the District Tournament Saturday at St. Cloud, Schwartz feels he has three pretty good reasons to look forward to Friday's and Saturday's Regional Tournament at Lake Mary.

"I think all three of them can be regional champs," predicted Schwartz while digesting some clams Monday night. "(Bob) Olson is really coming on. They (the coaches) ranked (Lorenza) Chicken Rivers in the seeds and Bob wanted to kill him."

Fortunately for Osceola's prized football running back, he was beaten in the semi-finals and Olson had to settle for Wymore Tech's William Chappell who he mauled, 22-5. Chappell disposed of Rivers by eight points earlier. The victory upped Olson's record to 20-

Tarheels Retain No. 1, Eye Big Game With Cavs

NEW YORK (UPI) - North Carolina may find life at the top of college basketball's ratings to be a bit precarious before next Monday rolls around.

The Tar Heels hung on to the top spot Monday in the weekly United Press International's Board of Coaches ratings, but must face two of the toughest teams on their schedule within a space of four

North Carolina, 20-3, and winner of 17 consecutive games, plays host to No. 2 Virginia at Chapel Hill Thursday night and entertains No. 14 Villanova Sunday on national television.

North Carolina was far from a unanimous choice for No. 1 in this week's ratings but held a comfortable lead over Virginia. The Tar Heels received 26 firstplace votes and 585 points from the 41 members of the coaches board who participated in this week's ratings, to outdistance Virginia by 35 points. Virginia, 19-2, received six first-place votes and 550 points to retain the No. 2 spot and unbeaten Nevada-Las Vegas, 20-0, got eight first-place votes and 496 points to hold on to the No. 3 spot.

Indiana, UCLA, Houston and Missouri each moved up two places from last week. Indiana, 17-2, climbed to No. 4 after turning back two Big Ten Conference foes last week; UCLA, 16-2, advanced to No. 5 after downing two Pacific-10 Conference rivals; Houston, 18-2, moved up to No. 6 after beating two Southwest Conference opponents and Missouri, 18-3, jumped to No. 8 after defeating a pair of Big Eight Conference foes. The Cougars received one firstplace vote.

St. John's, 19-2, split a pair of games during the week and dropped three places to No. 7 and Memphis State, 17-2, fell five places to No. 10 after splitting a pair of games. Arkansas, 18-1, remained in the No. 9 position.

Heading the second 10 was Louisville, week to advance one place. Kentucky, 14- second half-

5; Georgetown, 15-5, and Minnesota, 14-4. each advanced three places despite splitting a pair of games during the week. Kentucky moved from No. 15 to No. 12; Georgetown climbed from No. 16 to No. 13, and Minnesota advanced from No. 18 to No. 15.

Villanova, 14-4, also split a pair of games during the week and tumbled three places to No. 14. Illinois State, 17-2, won two of three outings during the week but dropped two places to No. 16, in a tie with Syracuse, 15-4, which returned to the top 20 after a one-week absence.

Purdue, 15-4, made it back into the top 20 for the first time since the first week of the season by taking over the No. 18 spot and Georgia, 15-4, made it into the select list for the first time this season, in the No. 19 position. Tennessee, 14-5, climbed back into the ratings in the No. 20 slot after a two-week absence.

Louisville Rips FSU

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) - Carlton "Scooter" McCray scored 20 points, grabbed eight rebounds and had five assists to lead the 11th ranked Louisville to an 89-63 romp over Florida State Monday night in a Metro Conference game at Freedom Hall. The 6-9 senior, who was red-shirted one year because of injury, will celebrate his 21st birthday Tuesday, and it was his basket, with 6:11 remaining in the first half, that gave the Cardinals their first half, 34-22. Louisville never trailed again.

Four other Louisville players scored in double figures. Scooter's brother Rodney McCray added 11 points and a game-high 14 rebounds. Starting guard Milt Wagner chipped in 13 points, as did 6-8 freshman Billy Thompson. The other Cardinal in double figures was 6-4 reserve freshman Jeff Hall, with 14 points as he connected on seven of nine shots. Florida State was paced by 6-5 senior

Mitchell Wiggins who scored 20 points. Teammate Granville Arnold had 14 points and substitute Michael Johnson added 12. Florida State took an early 4-0 lead and led much of the first half before Louisville took command and went ahead at the half 41-34. Louisville opened up a 18-3, which won two games during the 12-point lead, 58-46, midway through the special plans for St. Valentines Day. "Be My Valentine" is the theme for their "Valentine Sweetheart Ball" being held at the Malson Et Jardin Restaurant in Altamonte Springs on Feb. 12.

Due to the response of this year's ball, tickets have already been sold out. According to Ginger Bowman, club president, last year only 40 tickets were sold so they were not prepared for this year's "overwhelming response."

Ginger said that next year a larger number of tickets will be made available. A crowd of 180 people, including club members, local residents, and guests will attend. The ball will begin at 7 p.m. when cocktails will be served.

At the Feb. 1st meeting of the Longwood Rotary Club, the guest speaker was Mary Wiley, of M.A.D.D., Mothers Against Drunk Drivers. Mary gave an informative look as to what is being done to keep drunk drivers off this nation's highways.

The Rotary Club, according to club president Bill Harkins, will now meet at H.P. Cassidy's Restaurant on Markham Woods Road. The club meets every Sarasota presented two plays for the Tuesday morning at 7:30.

DEAR ABBY: "Disgusted With Egomaniacs" wrote to say that she always gave a phony name or telephone number to strange men who came on too strong.

Thanks, Abby, for saying, "What's wrong with looking them straight in the eye and saying, 'No, you may not have my name or phone number because I really don't care to see you

I wonder if it ever occurs to the person who gives a phony number that the "phony" number may actually be someone's real number? I have had to change my phone number because apparently some woman had given it out as her own. For weeks I was pestered by the same man at all hours of the day and night. He even called me from another state - collect! I refused the call while he kept trying to convince the operator that I was the party he wanted. (This was at 6 a.m. on a Sunday morning!) Changing numbers is an expensive procedure. It's also timeconsuming and a nuisance. So, Miss Van Buren, please inform people who make up phony numbers that they may be giving someone the right to harass an innocent party.

PESTERED IN LA. DEAR PESTERED: Read on for another view:

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "Disgusted With Egomaniacs" was totally wrong. When a man is told that he may not have a woman's phone number because she doesn't care to see him again, it only adds to the challenge and heightens his interest. And since most of these contests take place in a drinking atmosphere, the accne can get ugly.

Before I grew up, in my tomcatting days, after one such ioust with a woman. I finally talked her into giving me her number and felt that I had scored a victory. When I tried to call her the next day, I got a recorded message informing me of the weekly bus schedule!

Do you think she was trying to tell me something? BENCHED IN FLAGSTAFF

DEAR BENCHED: Yes. "Hit the road, wise guy!" DEAR ABBY: Every year at Christmas, my in-laws give my husbard and me separate gifts of money.

My husband gets $150 and I get $25. During the holidays I try to forget about it, but after the celebrating is over, I feel very hurt and insulted.

I'm on very good terms with my in-laws, and they know that I manage money well, so I don't know why they do this. I feel like telling them how much it upsets me, since the same feelings linger every year. What do you suggest?

DEAR HURT: Your husband should suggest that his parents lump together their cash Christmas gifts and address a single gift to both of you. That should avoid the "hurt" without mentioning it.

Wines Big Ad Bonanza

NEW YORK (UPI) - The flowering romance of Americans with white wines is bringing a bonanza to the advertising world. Both domestic vintners and importers are spending many millions of dollars to cash in on the trend which saw white wines jump to 54 percent of the market in 1980 from 17 percent in 1960 while red wines dropped from 74 percent to 26 percent.

This trend is picking up speed, said Frank S. Berger, head of Viceroy Imports of Ramsey, N.J., which is spending $5.5 million to launch Champs D'ore, a new popular-priced French sparkling white wine, in the United States.

"By 1985," Berger said, "white wines will be outselling red wines in America by three-to-one instead of the present two-toone margin." He expects sparkling wines to grow faster than still white wines, even though imports of French champagne fell 9.9 percent in 1981 because of a poor harvest and the current no-growth, high-price policy of the Champagne Producers Federation.

Berger is a former president of the House of Seagram and of Seagram Distillers and has been in the wine and liquor business 20 years. He has seen great changes in the industry. He said many domestic producers were slow to see the developing trend toward whites and continued to grow too big a proportion of grapes for red wines, thus helping the importers. The growth in popularity of table wines has been mainly at the expense of hard liquors but imports of port, sherry, musca tel and other alcohol-fortifled dessert wines have been halved.

Berger said successful marketing of Blue Nun, which is an old Rhine white wine known as Liebfraumilch put out under a new name and skillfully advertised, alerted European wine growers' and marketers to the vast potential of this new Berger said the marketers of Blue Nun still are spending $3 million a year on advertising. But that's small compared to the $11 million a year spent on Riunite, the importer of Italian wines, or the $13 million a year spent by Brown & Forman to advertise Cella and Bolla imported wines. Seagram's spends $7 million annually to advertise its imported wines. Schenley spends about $3 million on Mateus, the popular Portuguese rose wine. About $2 million a year is spent to advertise Martini & Rossi vermouth in America. Andre spends $3.5 million and there are literally dozens of importers on the air and in the print media daily plugging many brands of imported wines to the tune of half a million to $1.5 million a year.

These advertising outlays on imported wines may seem modest compared to the $21 million a year of Gallo, the $16.5 million of the Taylor group, Almaden's $10 million, Inglenook's $8.7 million, Colony's $8 million and similar outlays of other domestic producers but Berger said, at present, advertising for the imports seems to be getting the greater results.

Is Not Just lmage Builder

Annual Report

Evening Herald, Sanford, Fl.

NEW YORK (UPI) - Those elaborate, glossy, six-color corporate annual reports are not just image-building exercises or ego trips for management, says Al Ross.

Tuesday, Feb. 8, 1983-3B

Ross, his brother David, and Richard French run Shareholder Graphics, an integrated firm that designs and prints annual reports for blue chip companies such as ITT, TRW, Bankers Trust and INA, to name a few. They've been at it ever since the trend to elaborate annual reports first set in about 20 years

"The big annual report is a marketing tool and a capital raising tool and the current recession is making it even more so," Ross said.

And, chimed in French, it is not necessarily as expensive as it may look. He said that on press runs of 100,000 or more for web press printing, the difference between black and white and full color in the cost per copy shrinks rapidly.

SEC rules require a copy of the annual report to be mailed to every stockholder and companies will print perhaps a 25 percent surplus for promotional purposes. The AT&T annual report with a press run approaching four million is the biggest job of all.

Ross says the recession and changes in the social and political climate in the country are affecting the content of annual reports significantly.

"In the 1970s, the reports tended to be people-and consumeroriented," Ross said. "Besides the required financial data, the chairman's letter and some text and pictures on the company's products, services and technology, they contained much discussion of the company's employee relations, pension plan and its dedication to social programs - all things having little to do directly with the bottom line.

"Frequently, these social topics got more attention than anything else because the company wanted to project the image of being socially responsible and public spirited."

But Ross believes that, for the next five years, annual reports of blue chip companies will put a lot more emphasis on things that contribute to earnings and growth and that this will make the annual report a better marketing tool and more useful in helping to raise capital.

He thinks research and development, high technology in manufacturing and processing, involvement with defense, reinvestment in plant and equipment with emphasis on the problems of replacement values, will be the priority topics in the reports. And of course, there will be continued emphasis on products and services.

Even though it is a leader in the field and a fully integrated company, Shareholder Graphics does only a dozen to perhaps 18 annual reports a year.

"It's about a six-month job to do a major annual report," he said. "You have to begin your consultations with client management by midsummer for a report to appear in February." When the trend to elaborate reports mushroomed in the 1960s, a lot of firms were created to specialize in turning them out for corporations. Ross said there has been a big shakeout among these firms and only a handful are left of any size. The reasons for failures are the same as in other business: lack of true expertise, insufficient integration, inadequate capital or wasteful management, he said. There still are a lot of regional firms that prepare or assist in preparing annual reports and a great many companies, both small and large, do the job themselves, simply farming out various parts of it.

By itself, preparing annual reports is not a big enough field for a sizable firm, so Shareholder Graphics also designs capability brochures, product brochures and such things as quarterly publications for employees.

Oldsters Like Direct Selling

NEW YORK (UPI) - Older Americans are going into direct selling these days and doing well at it. For many, it makes retirement active and happy instead of dreary.

President James E. Preston of Avon division of Avon Products told United Press International that between 1978 and 1981 the number of Avon salespersons over 65 in the United States doubled.

President Neil Offen of the Direct Selling Association in Washington, while he didn't have figures for the whole industry, said the number of older direct selling people has gone up much faster than the 4 percent growth of the overall sales force, now about 4.7 million.

"Ever since Congress liberalized Social Security rules, allowing people on Social Security to earn more without losing benefits, more and more of these people have been turning to direct selling," Offen said.

Changes in the nature of direct selling have made it easier for older persons, Offen explained. While plenty of house-tohouse canvassers still pound the pavement and ring doorbells, most of the selling now is done by making telephone appointments in advance for house calls, selling directly over the telephone for repeat orders and by holding sales parties. The sales party is the most successful modern direct selling technique. So the modern direct seller doesn't need to be young and rugged. Offen said even Consolidated Foods' army of Fuller Brush salespersons is now 50 percent female and of all ages. For years, the Fuller Brush man was a husky youngster who trudged along carrying a heavy suitcase of samples. Avon's Preston said one great advantage to older persons of direct selling is that it enables them to beat the age discrimination barriers to employment that still exist in a lot of American business and it lets them work at the hours and pace they desire.

Preston said many older workers take up direct selling about as much for social and psychological reasons as for the money. "Selling for Avon gives older persons a reason to call on their neighbors, gets them involved on what's going on in the community and, above all, restores their sense of selfworth."

Offen agreed with this and said, even though so many married women go out to work, it appears about 45 percent of married women still are at home in the daytime at least some weekdays and are willing to talk to salespersons. Direct selling is a $7.5 billion a year domestic industry, composed of 200 major marketing companies and an awful lot of little firms. There is considerable turnover in the sales forces so opportunities are limited only by ability and tem-

Among the other bigger companies in direct selling are Amway, Tupoerware, Shaklee, Mary Kay, Encyclopaedia Britannica, Princess House, Kirby and Electrolux. About 80 percent of the total direct selling workforce is female and only a little over 10 percent work full time at it. The range of products sold is not as large as some might guess. The more popular lines include clothing, cookware and tableware, health and personal care items, cosmetics, food supplements and some foods, cleaning supplies, nursery shrubs and plants, personal and home security products, books, toys vacuum cleaners, travel club plans.

Computers Could Hamper Arsonists

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - A new computer system - the first of its kind in the country - could help cut down the incidences of arson in the city, which caused more than $4 million in damage last year, fire officials said.

New Orleans was the first city in the country selected to test the Arson Information Management System, purchased in December with a $7,000 grant from the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Fire officials hoped the computer system will give them an edge over arsonists operating in the city.

The computer system allows fire department officials to cross check files, maintain a history of fires at particular locations and even predict where fires will occur, said fire department administrator Walter Dupiere.

"What it will allow us to do is computerize the details we've been keeping all along," he said. "Those details, including names of arson suspects, homeowners, witnesses and even insurance investigators, have always been kept manually.'

New Orleans was the first city selected by FEMA for the computer program. Other cities chosen were Baltimore, Los Angeles, Houston, Miami, Cleveland and Atlanta, Duplere said.

The fire official said the federal agency selected New Orleans to test the system because of the city's high number of arson arrests last year. Out of 267 arson fires in the city in 1982, 102 arrests were made, Dupriere sald.

The number of arrests last year was a 30 percent increase over 1981, when there were 205 arson fires and 68 arrests, he said.

Dupriere said the computer program was a pilot effort on the part of FEMA but could be expanded throughout the United States if found to be helpful in catching arsonists or preventing intentionally set fires.

He said the computer would allow the fire department to do speedy summaries and scans of blaze scenes and help identify fires by neighborhoods. It also would determine the number of times a parcel of land has changed hands, would list outstanding taxes and provide a general idea of whether the property was a potential arson site.

Dupriere said those factors often played a role in arson.

He said the computer has been operating since Dec. 28, 1982, and should be fully programmed within six weeks.

Stone Takes Caribbean Job In Administration

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Former Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., has accepted a job as spokesman for the Reagan administration's policy on Caribbean and Central America. published reports said Monday.

Stone, now a Miami lawyer, will defend continued U.S. backing for the government of El Salvador and the Caribbean Basin Initiative, the Washington Post reported.

The Post said the appointment has upset Assistant Secretary of State Thomas O. Enders, who has frequently been the administration's spokesman on Central American affairs in the past.

Stone will be seeking to develop what one official called "a more effective explanation of foreign policy objectives.'

State Department spokesman Alan Romberg declined comment on the report. Stone, in a re-election bid, lost in Florida's 1980 Democratic primary to State Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter. Gunter was defeated in the General Election by Republican Paula Hawkins.

Acid Rain Study Is Near End

TAMPA (UPI) — A $2.6 million study on acid rain in Florida is in its third phase determining how specific sources of pollutants contribute to acid rain and Investigating its environmental impact.

Environmental Science & Engineering (ESE) of Gainesville is conducting the four-year study on acid rain for Florida Electric Power Coordinating Group, Inc., (FCG), an association of 37 of the state's electric utilities.

Dr. E.R. Hendrickson of ESE said Thursday the second phase, which was completed in September and sent recently to the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation, gave researchers a base for acidity levels in Florida which they have not had before. The report also reviewed techniques for determining sources of pollutants and how they contribute to acid rain, and looked at the lake and soil chemistry of Florida to evaluate how to understand the effects of acid rainfall on the environment.

"The analysis of rainfall collected at the 14-station monitoring network for one year generally shows that rain acidity levels range from a pH of 4.3 in northern Florida to a pH of 4.7 in southern Florida," Hendrickson said.

He said the lower the pH number, the higher the relative acidity. But he said because no base levels have existed before, researchers cannot draw any conclusions until the final phase is completed in two years.

Hendrickson said researchers generally have accepted a pH of 5.6 in the past as the norm for natural rain and that more acidic rain was caused by industrial, power plant and automobile pollutants.

The Senate may soon begin consideration of a bill to force power plants in 31 states, including Florida, to be fitted with expensive equipment for removing sulfur dioxide emission from stack gases because sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxide can potentially lead to acidic rainfall when mixed with water vapor and other oxidizing agents in the 1983.
