Board calls special meeting

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary Parks and Recreation Advisory Board will hold a special called meeting Tuesday.

"One of the big items we need to deal with," said Parks and Recreation Director John Holland, "is evaluating the proposals for concessionaires at the new Lake Mary Sports Complex."

"We've had several excellent proposals," he said, "and we need to determine which one to choose, then get moving on it so we can have the stands operational in the near future."

Holland said since the opening of the sports complex several weeks ago, activities are going almost continuously every night of the week.

Other items to be discussed during the meeting include a proposed scoreboard/sign for the Lake Mary Lady Rams. The sign had previously been approved by the Lake Mary City Commission, with the stipulation that proper signage be determined prior to construction.

The Advisory Board will also be selecting a new chairman to serve during this new year.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Mar. 16, in the city commission chambers of the Lake Mary City Hall, 100 W. Lake Mary Blvd.

Sanford man charged with kidnapping, robbery, assault

SANFORD — South Florida police say a Sanford man and his brother held two women and two children hostage while forcing a pawnbroker to whom they had taped explosives to pay them $75,000.

Robert Ryan of Sanford, has been arrested in Port Charlotte, Florida. His brother, Teddy C. Ryan, Jr., was arrested in Cumberland, Md., where he had just been hired as city manager.

According to Major Bob Miller, with the Bureau of Law Enforcement in Port Charlotte, the case started when the brothers, along with a female real estate agent, Joyce Zirco, her child, and another child went to a house offered for rent by Steven Duke, owner of Westchester Gold, a pawn shop in Port Charlotte.

"They then called Duke to the house, and when he arrived, one of the brothers held the women and children hostage, while the other reportedly taped explosives to Duke, and forced him to drive to his pawn shop. He forced Duke to open the safe, and took in excess of $75,000," Miller said.

"Both men then fled from the area," Miller said, "and no one was injured in the incident."

Sheriff mulls next step after 'panty raid'

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD-Seminole County Sheriff Don Eslinger said Friday he would consult his attorney before making any decision on how to proceed with court cases seeking temporary restraining orders and permanent injunctions to close two lingerie modeling shops.

On Feb. 26, Eslinger filed civil court cases against Robert D. Morgan owner of Fantasy Lingerie and Kenneth R. Ricklick owner of Tezlin Lingerie attempting to shut the businesses down.

At a court hearing Friday, Judge Newman Brock determined through questioning the attorneys that neither store is open for business. He told attorney Dan Broderson, who represents Eslinger in the case, it would be up to the petitioner (Eslinger) to determine how he would like to proceed because closing the stores was the intent of the civil suits.

"I've got to get with Dan Broderson to discuss what happened," Eslinger said. "Before I make any statement, I need to get together with Mr. Broderson and determine the avenues available to me."

An attorney appeared for Morgan at the hearing and requested a continuance because he had not been notified of the suit until recently and had not had time to prepare a case. Attorney David Wasserman representing Morgan told the judge his client had not operated Fantasy Lingerie for about two weeks. He told the judge he could not speak about Morgan's future plans, but said for now, the business is closed.

Broderson told the judge certified letters notifying the defendants about the cases against them had been mailed to the business addresses, but that the return receipts had not been returned. Notices were also posted on the business doors, he said.

Two teen-age boys arrested in death of German tourist

By The Associated Press

HOMESTEAD — Two boys were being held today on charges they fatally shot a German tourist who intervened as they to steal his wife's purse, police said.

It was the latest incident of violence against tourists which has fueled recent criticism of Florida as being unsafe for visitors.

Jorge Schell, 62, and his wife, Sonya, 55, were returning to their hotel room in this South Florida city about 9 p.m. Thursday when two boys approached them, Metro-Dade police said.

The boys, ages 16 and 17, were arrested late Friday for the slaying and robbery after detectives linked them to another robbery earlier Friday, said spokesman Israel Reyes.

Schell was shot to death he got involved in a struggle with one of the boys trying to rob his wife, police said. The two boys fled the scene.

He was taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital, where he was later pronounced dead. Ms. Schell was uninjured, said Detective Jo Ann Norris. The couple's hometown was not being released, she said.

Florida Gov. Lawton Chiles has cautioned visitors to take the same precautions they would at home, such as not walking alone at night, but insisted the state is safe to visit.

"We know they are as safe in Florida as they would be if they had stayed home," Chiles said last month.

However, early last month a rash of violent crimes against tourists prompted the Canadian Automobile Association to issue a warning to its members visiting Florida.

The statement followed two slayings of Canadians in South Florida.

Casselberry chiropractor sued to recover unpaid student loan

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

ORLANDO-A Casselberry chiropractor has been sued for nearly $15,000 by the U.S. Attorney in an attempt to recover an unpaid student loan.

U.S. Attorney Robert W. Genzman filed the civil suit in U.S. District Court against Wayne P. Brouseau, D.C. Friday.

The suit claims Brouseau applied for and received a $7,198 loan from the Health Education Assistance Loan (HEAL) Program while he was a student at the Life Chiropractic College in Marietta, Georgia. The complaint claims that upon graduation, Brouseau failed to pay back the loan.

"Although numerous demands have been made against Brouseau to repay these funds, he continues to avoid this obligation while providing full time chiropractic services from his office in Casselberry," according to a U.S. Department of Justice news release.

The case seeks to recover $14,447.92 from Brouseau.

Breast feeding is a natural act

The Florida Legislature and Gov. Lawton Chiles have put the mystique of women's breasts back where it always belonged.

A new law signed Tuesday makes Florida the first state in the nation to guarantee a woman's right to breast-feed in public. Breast-feeding mothers can no longer be charged under any Florida obscenity, lewdness or public nudity laws.

Chiles was prudent to divorce breast-feeding mothers from nude dancers and nubile bare-breasted thong-suited babes on the beach, infractions still punishable under public nudity laws. Sexually explicit conduct is far removed from the act of soothing and caring for a crying, hungry infant.

Somewhere along the line, long after pioneer mothers lovingly fed their young while blazing trails across America, long after gentle ladies early in this century fed nature's perfect food to whimpering babies at church services and socials; the concept of breasts changed.

Movie producers, advertising directors and men's magazine moguls mad for mammary glands lumped all female breasts into one titillating thought: Sex objects sell.

But the breasts at which babies nurse are not sex objects. They represent nature's mysterious power to allow us to feed our young. They represent human bonding in its simplest, most beautiful form. They represent motherhood.

Chiles, with some prodding from a daughter who has breast fed, signed the bill that endorses breast-feeding as the preferred way to nurse an infant, stating its goal is to end ignorance based on archaic and outdated moral taboos.

Moral taboos only dreamt of in the latter half of this century. Chiles, with the stroke of a pen, joined pioneer mothers from 100 years ago with mothers today pioneering the right once again to feed their babies in public.

Bike racks needed

We are new residents to Sanford and the Chamber of Commerce should hire us as cheerleaders! We live on our boat at Lake Monroe Marina. This places us in the center of town. The huge seawall with viewing benches, many parks, the county buildings, all well kept and beautifully landscaped, makes this a remarkable place to live. We do not plan to leave for summer therefore becoming "snow birds." We have a post office box, a family doctor, checking account, library cards and hopefully will find work in the near future.

I asked one of the merchants why there seems to be no bicycle racks available for customers in front of stores or restaurants. The shop owner stated "we don't want ruff-raff on bikes to park their bikes and collect aluminum all over our public places." We who depend on bike transportation are not allowed on the sidewalk and really are subject to rudeness and inconsideration from some merchants. If we park our bikes without them being attached to a stand or something secure, we stand the chance of someone throwing the bicycle in the back of a truck and taking off, even though the bike may be locked.

Maybe the "ruff-raff" could be discouraged by placing a few signs stating "parking of bikes for patrons only."

We love this place, we want to become your neighbors. Please give us a few well-placed bike racks so we may dine and patronize downtown Sanford.

Accolades to our noble educators

How wonderful it is to be recognized by your peers, as a master teacher. Congratulations are in order for all of Seminole County teachers selected as teacher of the year, this year, and in past years.

Education is the noblest of professions. The future of generations is entrusted to those who train our children. Master teachers possess a quality that encourages youth to explore learning as "the adventure" of their life. These teachers facilitate the acquisition of knowledge and simultaneously the development of a savoir de savoir (thirst for knowledge). This becomes the catalyst to freeing children to question theories and make in-depth explorations.

Anyone who knows a master teacher notes the unselfish expenditure of time devoted to: preparing lessons, reading the written assignments, grading papers and all of the little things that are necessary to promote a positive learning environment equipped with multiple resources.

Master teachers are not only in charge of formal learning but the informal learning that transpires as children develop skills for living together with dignity and respect for one another.

During these times of great societal changes

SEMINOLE OPINION

there is a growing need for more young men to become educators. Positive male role models will be helpful to youngsters robbed of the presence of a male role model in the household, by the absence of a male role model in the home or in a single-parent household.

I happen to know one of the master teachers selected this year who is a very positive role model in this community. He is a lifetime resident of Sanford. He is Art Woodruff, Principles of Technology teacher, at Seminole High School. I recall how excited and enthusiastic Woodruff was last summer when he was selected to participate in a national program that focused upon experiential learning as opposed to classroom lecturing. Hands on learning brings back recollections of John Dewey's learn by doing theory.

Gretchen Schapker, principal of Seminole High School, believes that the Principles of Technology course has benefited students immensely. Next year they will be introducing Bio-Technology and Applied Communications. Bio-Technology will prepare students for continuing their education at the community college. Applied Communications will focus upon career preparation and employability.

Woodruff not only is held in high esteem by his peers, but also by the members of the congregation of First Presbyterian Church. Woodruff has been a lifetime member. Unlike many young college-trained men who do not affiliate with a church, Woodruff has actively participated in the life of his church.

He has just completed his tenure as an elder, a position he was elected to by the congregation. He is the leader of 20'something, a young people's group and serves on the Pastor Nominating Committee.

Accolades to all of the teachers cited as teachers of the year and particularly to Art Woodruff.

Spending out, sacrificing in BOSTON — No one recorded the exact moment when the motto of the 1980s — You Can Never Be Too Rich or Too Thin — was thrown into the trashbin of history. But we do know that too rich has now been dubbed greedy and too thin has become anorexic.

Living Well is no longer the best revenge, but a sign of profligacy and proof of shortsightedness. It may even be a warning sign that sends you to a 12-step program.

To put it simply, spending is out and sacrifice is in. What was once morning in America has become a good time to start saving for the rainy day.

The same people who were trying to raise their credit-card ceiling in the '80s are struggling to pay it off in the '90s. The same people who were parlaying one house into the next are trying to keep a roof over their heads.

We have a public that is — courtesy of Perot and his pie charts — learning the difference between deficit and debt. We have a president who has asked Americans to tighten the national financial belt and has won their approval.

We even have a Congress that is trying to one-up the White House by cutting-down further. Just this week, the budget writers are offering to trim $63 billion more in spending than the White House planned. Can you bottom that?

The era of cheap chic has even hit the best-seller list. During the 1980s, this list was inhabited by big-time entrepreneurs strutting their stuff, telling us how they rolled a shoestring into a billion. The latest entry is a book about how to live on a shoestring while making puppets from old socks.

If the government is out to cut billions, Amy Dacyczyn — pronounced "decision" — is pinching pennies. But she may be a moral guru for the economic '90s.

In "The Tightwad Gazette," the self-described Frugal Zealot and mother of six will tell you how to recycle pickle juice, how to compost dryer lint, rescue the environment, and save a buck. How tight is the woman who saved her newsletters to make a book? When she listened to an Oprah Winfrey show trashing cheapcakes, she took copious notes on their savings.

The paperback itself is an amusing mix of the sound and the absurd, the sensible and the obsessed, the '30s Depression and the '90s recession. She chronicles the money to be saved on homemade school lunches, on reusing half the coffee grounds for the next pot, and on ironing crayon shavings into gift-wrapping paper.

In short, she makes my grandmother — who died in possession of 1,649 rubber bands — look like a spendthrift.

If the Frugal Zealot worked for the Department of Energy she would direct long debates on whether it's cheaper to turn the lights off when you leave the room or leave them on. If she worked for health care reform, her plan could be summed up in a phrase: "As a general rule the best approach to a cold is patience."

No, the "Tightwad Gazette" isn't an economic recovery program. This is still a country that measures "consumer confidence" by how much we are buying, not how well we are making do. The budget makers on Capitol Hill won't find $63 billion in savings on these pages. But they may find an everyday, downhome sign of the changing ethic.

After all, it's not tightwads that are buying this $9.95 book. A true tightwad would borrow it or wait to get it in a yard sale. It's not people who are saving egg cartons as a way of life. It's people who are reading all about it as a "lifestyle."

Up and down the economic spectrum, Americans who recently doted on the lifestyles of the rich and famous are now focused on living within their means. People who were driven to earn more are now, exhaustedly, trying to figure out if they can spend less.

We're not just making virtue out of necessity — although the author can barely hold her tongue at the sight of pricey Frost Loops. We're making a positive trend out of a need.

This signal could mean that the passion to pare down debt and control the deficit will be more than a frugal flash in the political pan. The willingness to save for the future may last more than a fleeting moment.

Or maybe Amy Dacyczyn is part of that economic stimulus program the president is also offering. Her best-seller could just be a delicious entry into the American annals of entrepreneurs: How to make a mint writing about saving a buck.

What's an author as cheap as the Frugal Zealot going to do with her royalties? Maybe she'll build an addition for all those leftover frozen juice lids.

But we do know that too rich has now been dubbed greedy and too thin has become anorexic.

Reno is complex, controversial

MIAMI — To her local supporters, and they are the vast majority, Dade County State Attorney Janet Reno — Bill Clinton's choice for attorney general — is fair, scrupulously honest and an innovator. To her detractors, however — and they are more than a few, including some in her own office — she is aloof, rigid, vindictive and often a zealot.

To put this in perspective, Reno is beyond doubt the most popular elected official in South Florida.

She has won re-election five times, all by large margins, and she could probably win election to almost any office in the state.

Critics, however, say that while she has become a popular, unbeatable politician, she has operated her prosecutors' office in less than model fashion.

Some of the statistics are surprising. Only 2 percent of people arrested and charged with felonies at Reno's Dade County office come to trial. This compares to 3.6 percent statewide and 5 percent in neighboring Broward County, a jurisdiction with a similar crime rate.

A logical conclusion might be that Dade is receiving more guilty pleas as part of plea-bargaining arrangements, thus eliminating the need for trials. However, this is not the case. The same study found that in Broward, 88 percent of felony arrests resulted in guilty pleas, about the same percentage for Florida as a whole. Dade County, however, only received guilty pleas in 72 percent of its felony arrests.

By several other measures Dade County lagged behind prosecutors' offices in other Florida counties. One national study done by the Justice Department shows that Miami lagged significantly behind comparable cities in most categories — cases brought to trial, guilty pleas, guilty verdicts. On serious crimes — murder, rape — Dade lagged well behind comparable jurisdictions.

Critics say this is because Reno runs her office more like a social service agency than a criminal investigation and prosecution operation. Reno has long believed that one of the best ways of fighting crime is by solving the social problems that are often the root cause. Over the past 15 years her office has instituted anti-poverty programs, youth initiatives, child-welfare programs, programs to aid the homeless, and even a program to help people with AIDS.

Nearly a decade ago, for example, Reno noticed that an unusually large number of cases passing through her office were high-school dropouts. So she instructed one of her chief assistants to begin a year-long, in-depth study of the problem to determine why so many kids were leaving school before graduation.

The result was a massive effort, run out of Reno's office, to provide sports leagues, after-school programs, tutoring and other services to support kids who want to stay in school.

Another tactic employed by Reno has been the use of special grand juries to investigate the non-functioning of government and the failure of its programs. "We have used grand juries to right wrongs that affect the community as a whole," says Kathy Rundell, one of Reno's chief assistants. "It has been most effective in relieving community anxieties."

Even some conservative Republicans say you should not judge Reno's effectiveness as a prosecutor by the broad social agenda she pushed. "You would be making a basic error if you believe her to be a social worker and not a very tough law-enforcement officer," says local U.S. attorney Robert Martinez, a Republican and a big Reno supporter. "I think she will make an excellent AG."

To put this in perspective, Reno is beyond doubt the most popular elected official in South Florida.

"I've got facts," he said leafing through the folders. "We have been getting promises, but nothing else."
Jackson said he is frustrated with inaction, with unequal treatment and with being used.
"The sheriff shut down these lingerie shops as a public nuisance," Jackson told the group. "Well, who's got more public nuisance than us?"
Drugs and crime are rampant in Sanford and nothing is being done to make any changes, he said.
Lenford Sutton, secretary of the Westside Community Homeowners Association, said that conditions in the Goldsboro area are deteriorating. She reported that some insurance carriers are falling to renew policies because of the unsafe conditions. Pizza deliveries are being refused. And some assistance programs, such as Meals on Wheels, are not available in the community.

"We've got to do something," she said.
Mike Gray, a Sanford attorney, said marching and protests were not the best path to change.
"You have to use the tools available to you," he told the group. "You have to take advantage of the political process. I believe that when you protest or attend meetings, you're in the position of asking. You need to look at being in the position of being asked."
Jackson countered that 72 percent of the black males in Seminole County are not eligible to register to vote because they have been convicted of a felony, especially on drug charges.

While Gray questioned the figures, he admonished the group. "You have to get yourselves organized, registered and elected. One Bob Thomas is not enough."
The Rev. Amos Jones invited Jackson to join him at a meeting of the Seminole County Ministerial Association.
"Meet with this group before you hang up your gloves," he said. "We've got to get more people in key positions to join your effort."
Jackson asked those in attendance to sign up if they were interested in continuing the efforts to make a change.
"I don't want people who are just interested in going to meetings," he said.
All those who were at the meeting, signed on to continue the effort.

A few blocks away Danny Ledford pulled a branch from the front seat of his car. Pieces of the tattered convertible top peeked from under the branch and flapped in the wind.
"Geez," he said. "It looks like a hurricane was through here. What a mess."
Ledford said that he heard the branch crash from the tree about 5 a.m. Saturday, but didn't see the damage to his car until he went out about two hours later.
Freddy Parlier reported his family was about to eat lunch at their Magnolia Avenue home when a giant oak tree crashed across the sidewalk into the yard.
"All of a sudden there was a loud shaky noise outside. My son looked and yelled 'Holy cow!'" percent of the Jacksonville area, and FPL, the state's largest utility serving 35 counties, planned rotating blackouts starting Sunday morning. FPL asks customers to conserve during peak morning hours Sunday and Monday to avoid lengthy, widespread blackouts.

In Deltona, Baldauff Funeral Home burned to the ground after being struck by lightning, according to the Volusia County Sheriff's Department. No injuries were reported.
Forecasters at the National Weather Service in Orlando reported that temperatures in Sanford would be dipping into the upper 20s or low 30s early Sunday morning and that they would not warm to much above 50 degrees Sunday. Further predictions call for even colder temperatures Sunday night.
Gusty winds are expected to continue, but they should not be as strong as they were Saturday morning.

They added that Florida will continue to be lashed with one of the worst late season storms in memory this weekend.
Twenty-one counties have been covered by a state of emergency declared by Chilea, and the National Guard was sent to help with evacuations in four Tampa Bay area counties. Levy, Lake and Putnam counties were the hardest hit by the storm, state officials said. The governor asked President Clinton for a disaster declaration Saturday, which he issued Saturday night.
A hard freeze was indicated across the panhandle into North Florida early Sunday as freezing readings dipped south into central Florida. Even colder readings were expected Sunday night as high pressure builds in from the west and the winds gradually subside.

at a howling alley in Orlando, with the help of Orange County sheriff's deputies.
"When we brought Robert in," Miller said, "he had in his possession, a badge from a police commissioner in Stoneham, Mass. We checked the badge and found it belonged to his brother Teddy, who had recently been fired as city manager of Stoneham."

"We found Teddy had just been hired as city manager in Cumberland, Md., and we arrested him late this week," Miller said Friday.
Each of the brothers has been charged with five counts of kidnapping, five counts of aggravated assault, and two counts of robbery.
Robert Ryan is being held in the Charlotte County jail. As of Friday, Teddy Ryan was being held in Baltimore, Md., pending extradition to Florida.

According to a check of law enforcement records in Seminole County, as well as the warrant listings, Ryan was not believed to have been involved in any criminal activities in the local area.
Police list Ryan's Sanford address as 100 Crescent Road. The brothers were recently listed as family survivors following the death of their father, who's address was listed at 100 N. Crescent Blvd., Sanford.

Though the weather forced organizers to abandon plans to hold the event in Ft. Mellon Park, the event moved in and around the civic center where young people played games, chatted, were entertained by clowns and viewed a variety of exhibits by area law enforcement departments.
"This isn't how we originally planned this event," said Sidney Brock, minister of youth at Sanford's First Baptist Church, "but it is working out very nicely."

Lauren Littles of Deltona said that the youth group at her church had decided not to make the drive to Sanford for the youth blast because the weather reports had been very discouraging.
"But I wanted to come so I got my mom to bring me," she said.
Tamara Stephenson of Lake Mary and her friend Joanne Stewart of Longwood came to the Youth Blast for the first time last year and enjoyed the fellowship.

"We don't care about the games and the cop stuff," Stephenson said. "But we like getting together with the other kids who want to have some good, clean fun."
Laura Masters of Sanford said she was kind of disappointed with the Youth Blast this year.
"I know it's not their fault, but it's just too cluttered here," she said. "I like it when we've got the whole waterfront park."
She said she would return next year, however.
"They've got some good barbecue and that's makes it worth it," she said.

Commission to conduct hearings

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The Longwood City Commissioners will conduct two hearings at their Monday night meeting, one dealing with budget transfer, the other routine land transfer. Both ordinances are scheduled for second readings.

The budget transfers include $12,000 to be taken from the reserves and contingencies fund to be used for capital improvements in the fire department. The money has been designated for the roof and a bathroom.

In all, the commission is considering $23,332 in general fund transfers including money for software licensing and updates, improvements at city hall and annex II and temporary employment for the police department.

City administrator Jim McFellin is also requesting $6,000 from the contingency fund to cover unanticipated expenditures in the remodeling of three city buildings. The cost of rerouting and repair of telephone, electrical, computers lines as well as heating and air-conditioning repairs during recent remodeling has resulted in a $2,900 deficit in the repairs and maintenance account.

McFellin is seeking a $6,000 transfer of funds to cover the deficit and provide $3,100 in the account for repairs and maintenance during the remainder of the budget year. The transfer request is in ordinance 93-1128 which is scheduled for first reading at the commission meeting.

The commissioners will also consider several proclamations and other business including reports from each commissioner.

Lipton postponed

KEY BISCAYNE — High winds Saturday at the Lipton Championships forced the postponement of all 54 scheduled matches.

The matches were all rescheduled for today.

Winds exceeding 50 mph caused a power outage at the tennis complex, and the west side of the 13,500-seat temporary stadium lost most of its vinyl backdrops. When the powerful gusts continued into the afternoon, officials decided to cancel both the day and night sessions.

"We can have the site ready in a few hours," tournament chairman Butch Buchholz said. "But we canceled, because to play tennis in these conditions would be a farce."

Weather problems may persist. Temperatures were expected to plummet overnight, with a wind chill factor in the 20s predicted for today.

TALLAHASSEE — Catcher Mike Martin singled in the tying and winning runs to lead Florida State to a 6-3 victory over North Carolina in Atlantic Coast Conference Friday.

Winning pitcher Paul Wilson scattered 12 hits, struck out eight and walked one, going the distance for his second straight outing and improving to 5-0. North Carolina starter Derek Manning (2-2) took the loss.

The victory improved Florida State's record to 14-3. North Carolina fell to 9-4.

ATLANTA — Dominique Wilkins scored 35 points and Kevin Willis 26 as the Atlanta Hawks matched their longest winning streak of the season at four with a 110-92 victory over Orlando on Friday night.

Wilkins, who has scored at least 30 points in six of eight games, led the Hawks in scoring for the 28th time in 30 games.

Willis also had 17 rebounds as the Hawks halted a four-game losing streak against the Magic, including a 41-point defeat on Dec. 19.

Shaquille O'Neal made only 7 of 20 shots and had 22 points and 13 rebounds. Nick Anderson led the Magic with 33 points.

Leafs blitz Lightning

TORONTO — Glenn Anderson and Wendel Clark scored two goals each as the Toronto Maple Leafs extended their home unbeaten streak to nine games with an 8-2 victory against the Tampa Bay Lightning on Friday night.

The Maple Leafs took advantage of shaky goaltending by Pat Jablonski and Wendel Young, scoring on six of their first 12 shots to win their fifth straight on home ice.

Tribe gives record-setting performance at Edison

From Staff Reports

FORT MYERS — Setting meet records and personal bests almost at will, the Seminole High School boys' track team trashed the Edison Relays Friday night at Fort Myers High School.

Winning seven events and setting four meet records while recording three personal bests and a school record, Seminole compiled 81 team points to claim the team title. Nappes-Baron Collier was named MVP.

Sarasota-Riverview (38), and Sarasota (31).

"We ran our best times of the season," said Seminole coach Ken Brauman. "We had a pretty good night. During the day, the guys were jumped into a 20, 25-mph head wind. But the wind had died down by the time we started running the finals in the evening."

"It was an excellent meet. Everyone was happy with way they performed."

Seminole's two-mile relay of Ricardo Allen, Terrance Jones, Gary Rowe, and Aswad Duval set a meet and school record with their winning time of 8:14.0. According to Brauman, it was their best time of the season by eight seconds.

The Tribe swept the sprint events. Cory Wilson winning the 100-meter dash with a meet-record time of 10.5 seconds; Brent Deese coming in first in the 200-meter dash with a personal best time of 21.8 seconds; and Rowe setting a personal record of 49.8 seconds while winning the 400-meter dash.

Deese and Wilson also combined with Charlie Finner and Bryant Moore to win the 300 relay with a meet record time of 42.2 seconds. Duval, Deese, Rowe, and Jones won the 4 x 400-meter relay with a time of 3:29.0.

Allen finished fifth in the 800-meter run at 2:02.0.

Richard Peterson, competing in only his second meet of the year since the end of the wrestling season, scored in both hurdle events, finishing fifth in the 120-yard high hurdles (a personal best 14.8 seconds) and third in the 330-yard intermediate hurdles (40.7 seconds).

Jones came in fourth in the 330-yard intermemediate hurdles with a time of 41.1 seconds.

As usual, Seminole dominated the triple jump competition. Despite the head wind, Andre Scott logged three jumps over 50 feet, winning the competition with a meet-record effort of 51 feet, 1 inch.

Teammates Tyrone Williams and Troy Chapman were second and sixth, respectively, with jumps of 42 feet, 8 inches and 41 feet, 8 inches.

Scott also placed second in the long jump with a leap of 21 feet, 2 3/4 inches. It was the first time this season that Scott had competed in the long jump.

Brauman said that the performance of his squad is even more impressive when you consider that he had all the athletes competing in several events and that most of the Seminoles are nursing some small injury.

"We've been training real hard," said Brauman. "We've been doing a lot in practice and some of the kids are getting a little beat up."

WINTER PARK — After rallying in the bottom of the seventh to tie the score, the Lake Howell Silver Hawks knocked off the visiting Oviedo Lions 3-2 in eight innings to move into second place in the Seminole Athletic Conference baseball standings.

The loss was third in the row (all conference games) for the Lions.

"This was a big game for us," Lake Howell coach Birto Benjamin said. "We're talking conference now. We're 2-1 in the conference. We had to have this game in order to stay on pace with the other people in the conference."

"Our kids dug down and got that little extra that you need to win ballgames and we showed some guts, we really did. I called them over and said, 'Hey people, if you've got anything left, this is the time to dig down and get it.' They went down and got it and came back to

Warzocha's arm, bat lifts Pats

From Staff Reports

LONGWOOD — In a game that was dominated by the offenses, it was a stellar pitching performance that decided the outcome.

With host Lyman trailing 7-5 with the bases loaded and no one out in the fourth inning Friday night, Lake Brantley head coach Mike Smith turned to his shortstop, Brent Warzocha, to try to save the important Seminole Athletic Conference baseball game.

The sophomore responded with a strike out and a double play ball to get of the inning, then retired nine of the last 10 men he faced as the Patriots whipped the Greyhounds 13-6 at Lyman Field Friday night.

Lake Brantley had taken a 7-0 lead heading into the bottom of the third inning, but the hosts came up with five runs in the third to chase Patriot starter Sean Goldstein and one in the fourth off of Chris Tibbetts to keep things interesting.

"The way we were hitting the ball and the way Goldstein was pitching, I just thought we were going to put them away in five innings," said Smith. "Then all of a sudden, they scored five in the third inning."

"Lyman is always good. They are always well-coached. Every time we play them, they swing the bat as well as we did tonight."

But as quickly as the Greyhounds got back into the game, Lake Brantley took them out of it, coming up with its second five-run inning of the game in the fifth.

"Baseball is 85-percent pitching," said Lyman head coach Bob McCullough. "When you can't send anyone out there who can stop them, then you're not going to win a lot of ball games."

The Patriots put a pair of runs on the board in the first inning. Jason Jailet and Randy Stegall had back-to-back singles to open the game, but Jailet was picked off second. Jeff Butler drove in the first run with a triple to straight away center. Then, after a walk to Frank Harmer, Ed Doyle lifted a sacrifice fly to left to score Butler.

Lake Brantley increased the advantage to 7-0 with a five-run third. After a pair of walks, Harmer tripled to right and scored on a double by Doyle. Wes Iler bunted for a single, but Doyle was out trying to steal home with Iler going to second. A wild pitch put Iler on third and Warzocha scored him with an infield hit. Matt Wood's double to left completed the scoring.

The Greyhounds got on the board with five runs on seven consecutive hits in the bottom of the third inning.

Neither rain nor snow, but this is ridiculous

By FRED LIEF
 AP Sports Writer

The killer winter storm that bombarded the East Coast on Saturday produced one of the most disruptive days in sports.

Tennis, golf, auto racing, baseball, horse racing, basketball and even ice hockey felt the fury of the storm on a day better suited to sled-dog racing. There were 6-foot snowdrifts in the South, gusts exceeding 100 mph in the Keys, killer tornadoes in Florida and hail the size of quarters on the Gulf Coast.

St. Louis Cardinals manager Joe Torre called it the worst weather he has seen since he began going to spring training more than 30 years ago.

"I hope it's the worst I ever see," he said after his team's game was called off at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Three NBA games were called off: Denver at Philadelphia, Indiana at New York and Cleveland's matchup against Washington at Baltimore.

The NHL also pulled a hat trick: Pittsburgh at the New York Islanders, the New York Rangers at Washington and Los Angeles at Philadelphia.

"It would be crazy to play on a day like this," Islanders general manager Don Maloney said.

The Flyers-Kings game in the Spectrum at Philadelphia already had begun but flying glass in the concourse brought a suspension after one period. The game, tied 1-1 when it was halted, will be replayed from the start. Fans booed the decision and threw cups of soda on the ice.

"We couldn't be sure the building was safe," said Ron Ryan, the Flyers' chief operating officer.

The 76ers' Jeff Hornacek had come over to watch the hockey game before the scheduled NBA game. He agreed with the decision to cancel.

"I mean, it's a game," he said.

Cynthia Cassanova Brown raised her voice as a baby in such a howl that her mother, Rosa Cassanova, knew that Cynthia would one day become a singer.

Cynthia sang in her church, the Providence Missionary Baptist Church of Lake Monroe, when just a kid standing on a box so she could be seen. As she grew and attended school she was selected by Choir Director Earl Minott to sing in the school choir. She said her family couldn't send her to New York after graduation to pursue a career in professional music so she attended Seminole Community College and became a secretary.

Desiring to continue using her beautiful voice, Cynthia sang at churches, conventions and weddings and was asked to be in musical productions. Her desire to continue her education saw her going back to school to receive her degree from Bethune Cookman College and become a teacher of business courses at Seminole High School.

After having the opportunity to work with children, it was still in her mind to become a full-time singer. Her dream was answered when a member of her church urged an agent from the newly opened Universal Studios to come and hear her sing one Sunday morning at Cynthia's church.

After hearing Cynthia sing, the agent asked her to make a tape and send it to the studio at the Orlando theme park.

Sending the tape, Cynthia said, indeed made her dreams come true. She was invited to audition in person and she sang one of Aretha Franklin's songs. And now, Cynthia Cassanova Brown can be seen performing at Universal Studios where she plays the part of Aretha Franklin in the movie "The Blues Brothers."

Cynthia said the excitement of doing the part and being able to mingle with the audience and sign autographs and pictures gives her a great thrill. She said it feels like being in heaven. Her life-long dream did come true and she has been able to see the world by working for Universal Studios.

Cynthia left this week for her fourth trip to London, Berlin and she will appear at the Quasimodo Theater. She also gets to see many sights while on her two-week trip for Universal. Her talent and celebrity status has not changed Cynthia; she can be seen still singing in her church choir on Sunday.

She recently sang at the city of Sanford celebration of Dr. Martin Luther King's birthday banquet. She has recently appeared in the play "From Sun to Sun," the 60th anniversary production of Zora Neale Hurston's play that was staged at the Annie Russell Theater, Rollins College.

On her return Cynthia will be appearing at the World Day of Prayer Breakfast in Tampa-St. Petersburg. Cynthia says she still is reaching for the stars and dreams of a recording contract and a movie.

Her husband, Henry, and her children Johnny, Phillip and Arlie are very proud of her and enjoy her success.

The Central Florida Chapter of the International Black Women's Congress held a first membership celebration for the induction of their members. The celebration was held in the meeting room of Morrison's at the Winter Park Mall, Friday evening, Mar. 5, with the group being welcomed by Cynthia Martin Butler.

The evening's celebration continued with the presentation of the dear sisters of the Central Florida Chapter being presented to the national president, Dr. LaFrancis Rodgers-Rose of Newark, N.J., president/founder of the International Black Women's Congress. lure. The scouts from Troop 854 who attended the camporee were Stephen Humburg, 17, an eagle scout and a student at Seminole High School, Justin Gebhard, 16, a life scout and Lake Mary High School student; Fred Badke, 14, Greenwood Lakes Middle School; and Harry Ellis III, 12, Idyllwilde Elementary. The scoutmaster of the troop and scribe for the camporee is Marshall Smith and the assistant scoutmaster is Harry Ellis Jr.

Right after breakfast, everyone headed to the tomahawk throwing. In the competition, contestants throw a tomahawk approximately ten feet at a card tacked to the end of a log which is set up approximately five feet off the ground.

The ace of the troop was Thomas Humburg, still a scout, who was the only one to hit the card and stick the tomahawk in the tree.

The rifle range was next on the list as the boys were taught how to fire a black powder rifle. Jimmy Peagler and Marshall Smith, both experts on the black powder rifles, were there to give the boys a lecture on safety with the rifles. The boys were set up to first watch a firing of a rifle to familiarize them with the noise and smoke that is involved with the firing. They are then sent to a second range where they are lined up to shoot a target with live ammunition.

At that site they are taught how to load the gun with powder, wad and ball. One boy, Thomas, shot alone as he had had never shot a rifle and could only shoot a blank this time out.

Finally the rest of the boys were deemed qualified to fire the rifle. What a bang as all four of the rifles went off in unison.

All the competitions shut down at noon so everyone could find a bite to eat. After a few hot dogs the boys headed off to the Indian Village to check out the exhibits. JoAnne Peagler presented to the scouts a replica of an actual Indian tent and just how everything would have looked if you had run into an Arapaho Indian village 100 years ago.

The teepee was a 16-foot tent made out of cotton. She explained, "When the Indians made their tents they would trade their furs for the cotton material because it was much lighter than the leather." The inside of the tent was covered with deerskin rugs and painted with the actual paints and designs used by the Arapaho many years ago. All around were the arrows, spears and rattles that were actually used by the Indians.

The mountainman run came about in the early afternoon. It was explained in the following manner and the scouts would be graded on the solutions that they proposed.

The patrol is in hostile Indian territory trying to make its way to Fort Cassia without being caught or detected. The slightest sound may be disastrous to the patrol as it comes across a strange sign carved in the ground to indicate that it contains an important message that has to be decoded.

Darkness had fallen and the patrol is headed toward Fort Cassia in the dark. One of the patrol members twists his ankle and cannot walk on it. He must be carried and because the patrol is in Indian territory, therefore no light can be shown. The troop was required to bandage the bad ankle, load and carry the injured party in an appropriate manner and move out and go north for 25 yards.

Finally as they approached the fort they had to signal their presence by starting a small fire, keep it going for one minute and then extinguish it. They had only flint, steel, char cloth and tinder with them to accomplish this task.

The scouts were graded on everything and a final determination would be made after on the day as to where the troop placed in the competition.

As evening drew near the troops retired to their camping areas and fixed the evening meals in the campfires built in the field. Many of the troops had brought along Dutch ovens which they would use to cook cobbler and the many types of stews that are prepared camping out. The evening ended as the leaders of the troops and their scouts all talked and sang over the campfires until there was no more light available.

Everyone had to retire to their tents after a hard day of many fun activities and exhibits of life and how it used to be before the modern age set in.

Happy birthday

If you should happen to see Leo King, wish him a happy belated birthday, although March 13 was his actual day.

Leo has been seriously ill for a long time, when he battled for his life. Whatever he did (probably a lot of praying) paid off. He has been up and about a lot lately. Good for you, Leo.

Flowers, anyone

Did you notice the lovely fresh floral arrangements in several stores downtown this week?

They were compliments of Jayne Myers and Tim Donahoe of Sanford Flower Shop, who created the arrangements and then photographed them for their portfolios with AIFD.

A nice touch from Tim and Jayne. And of course, none of the businesses were the least bit offended at the lovely gesture.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY March 14, 1993

Material deprivations that you've experienced in the past year could be diminished or eliminated in the year ahead. It looks like you're going to be able to get some of the nice things you've been wanting.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your abilities to accurately assess challenging developments might not be functioning too well today. Don't get yourself involved in a situation where you're overmatched.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Kind words won't serve as a substitute today if a friend comes to you for help. You must demonstrate your compassion in tangible ways.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There are indications that you're likely to go along with the group today, instead of taking an independent stance toward something you feel strongly about. Don't desert your principles.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If possible, try to work alone today, unless you're absolutely certain that the people you're involved with are focused on the same objectives as you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your popularity continues to be at a high point in this present cycle. However, if you ignore your responsibilities for the sake of a good time, you'll have to pay the consequences later.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Although your heart is likely to be in the right place today, your methods and procedures could prove to be counterproductive. You may complicate things for a person whom you're trying to help.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Small domestic disagreements could get blown out of proportion today if they are not stifled at the onset. Be a conciliator, rather than a combatant.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It might prove wise to temporarily shelve a tedious mental project. Your powers of concentration aren't up to their usual standards today.

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY March 15, 1993

A major change could be in the offing for you in the year ahead. Although this might set you off in a direction that is different from the one you intended, the end results could still be all you hoped for.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Partnership arrangements should work out rather well for you today, provided you, and not your counterpart, is the initiator. Assume the leadership role.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Assist your associates today without making a big deal about it. Your deeds will have more impact if they are carried out unobtrusively.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In your endeavors with friends, it is usually easy to get your way, but upon occasion it isn't. Today you should have very smooth sailing in this area.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Substantial achievements are feasible today, so aim for meaningful objectives. Even if you can't do the impossible, you may be able to do the very difficult.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your good judgment can be enhanced today if you review mistakes you made in the past. This preventive measure could save you from repeating them.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's important at this time that you figure out ways to eliminate existing obligations before assuming new ones. This can be done if you set your mind to it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be careful in developments today that require skillful negotiating. You'll come out OK if you don't allow yourself to be pressured into making hasty judgments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Financial indicators are in your favor today, so give priority to matters that could increase your earnings. There is one in particular that might be bountiful.

Instinctively, you're a fairly good utilizer of your time, energy and resources, but today, these could be three of your weakest areas instead of your strongest ones.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might be so set upon doing things your own way today that you'll fail to take the needs of others into consideration. This is a sure-fire formula for controversy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Others want to be helpful towards you today, but they are likely to draw the line when it comes to doing things for you that you should be doing for yourself. Be self-reliant.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Just being your natural, charming self is what it takes to favorably impress and influence others today. Affections or airs could be self-defeating.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

The Senior Life Master had asked his students to suggest topics for this class.

The most important question I received (began the SLM) was "When should declarer draw trumps?" Being able to answer that question correctly is critical to accurate declarer-play.

The simple answer is that declarer draws as many rounds of trumps as he can afford. If he holds ample high-card winners to make his contract, he should draw trumps as quickly as possible. Otherwise, maybe an opponent will ruff away one of those winners.

Alternatively, if the declarer has losers to ruff, he must make sure he has enough trumps available.

Let's look at this deal. The auction was aggressive but well conceived. North's three-diamond cue-bid showed at least a limit raise in hearts. South's point-count was low but his excellent controls justified the slam-try. North conveyed that he held good major-suit cards with his jump to five hearts. South had an easy bid of six.

After winning the first trick with the diamond ace, South checked his losers. He had none outside diamonds. So, as long as he could ruff two diamonds in the dummy, he would be home.

In order to organize these ruffs, South immediately returned a diamond. Drawing one round of trumps could cost the contract if West had 0-4-6-3 distribution. West won with the diamond nine and led another top diamond, but declarer just ruffed it with dummy's heart king. A moment later South claimed, having ruffed his last diamond with dummy's heart ace and drawn trumps.

Mica visits LMHS government class

LAKE MARY — This week Lake Mary High School's Advanced Placement American Government class received a visit from a very distinguished guest.

Fresman Republican congressman, John Mica, who represents the newly-created District 7 stopped in to talk to the class.

Congressman Mica lectured to the class about the functions of the House and Senate.

He spoke about the job he has been doing in representing the district where his constituents live, as well.

Congressman Mica also spent some time explaining how legislation is created. He spoke about how it is sent through committees and how it is, finally, voted on by members of the House.

Following Mica's lecture, students were given the opportunity to ask questions and to talk to the congressman in an informal setting.

The question and answer session included questions about the troubled space program, about the national health care reform and about Republican strategies to block the Democratic majority in the U.S. Congress.

As a former lobbyist, Mica was also asked about his opinion of how much money he believed Political Action Committees, or PACs, should be allowed to give to political candidates.

This was the only question that Mica specifically addressed in detail.

He said that he believed that PAC money should definitely be limited.

Following his visit to the Lake Mary High class, Congressman Mica returned to Washington, D.C. where he will continue to take part in his first legislative session.

Community ready to assist Seminole

SANFORD — Our educational system is in need of a commitment and dedication of the community. Education must not be last on the list.

There is too much emphasis on the present and not enough on the future. There are many dedicated teachers, administrators and community volunteers who do not receive the support or the funds needed to truly prepare the students of today for the responsibilities of tomorrow.

Yet, the educational system itself is taking steps so that the community may become aware of these problems and be more sensitive to them.

On Tuesday, March 16, Seminole High School will be participating in the Teach-In '93. It is where the businesses and other parts of the community spend a small amount of their time teaching in various classrooms at Seminole High.

They will expound on their careers, their hobbies and their experiences. They will be aided, if needed, by the school coordinator at Seminole High School.

The community volunteers will also be open to questions from the students.

As it stands, there are 40 persons of various professions participating in the program. The list includes lawyers, a surveyor, persons in the health field, various community workers and many others.

AAA is participating, bringing a car that can give the driver the best way to reach one's destination from wherever they are located.

The purpose of the Teach-In program is to demonstrate a commitment to education and to generate an awareness of the difficulties of facing our educational system.

After the day-long Teach-In, there will be a dinner in the evening. The main theme of that dinner will be education and where the "teachers" can tell what they learned and their experiences.

The money raised from the dinner will go to the Foundation for the Advancement of our Community Through Schools (FACTS), which supports public education in Seminole County.

This is a great opportunity and a perfect learning experience for all involved.

Upcoming school board meetings set

SANFORD — The Seminole County school board will meet the following times over the next month:

- Monday, March 22 1:30 p.m. Contracts and Expulsions
- Tuesday, March 23 4 p.m. Work Session: Communications Plan
- Tuesday, March 23 7 p.m. Board Meeting
- Monday, April 12 1:30 p.m. Contracts and Expulsions
- Tuesday, April 13 3:30 p.m. Board Meeting
- Monday, April 26 1:30 p.m. Contracts and Expulsions
- Tuesday, April 27 7 p.m. Board Meeting

Lee County to be first to offer students AIDS test

FORT MYERS — The Lee County school system, which last year became the first in the nation to offer AIDS testing for 18-year-old seniors, now plans to expand the program to include every high school student.

The school board's 3-2 vote Tuesday night followed a heated public debate on the issue.

"This is the first step in a longer journey," Bob Schwartz, president of the area's AIDS Task Force. "It's been said our children will die, not in large numbers, but in significant numbers if they don't change their behaviors."

The program was initiated last year after health officials reported nine teens had developed full-blown AIDS and another 110 people in their 20s have the disease or have died of it in this Southwest Florida county since 1983.

But some who spoke out at the hearing said the school board had overstepped its bounds.

"Their mission should be to teach kids how to read, write and think," Billie Neese, a Fort Myers parent. "It is just another example of the state usurping parents' rights."

Under the plan, parents would have to give permission to students to attend the once-a-year health fairs where the tests would be offered.

The program is voluntary for both students and the schools. School district spokesman Allen Caraway said two or three of district's seven high schools should participate in the program's inaugural year, making the tests available to about 4,000 of the district's 10,000 high school students.

"The other schools want to see how it goes in the first year," Caraway said, adding that the first school is set to make the tests available next month.

All test results are confidential and efforts will be made to keep students from knowing which students even take the blood test.

Medical care personnel arrived in a medical evacuation helicopter at Pinecrest Elementary School recently to speak to students about their profession. The youngsters were fascinated with the airborne ambulance and had many questions for the pilot, the flight paramedic and the flight nurse.
