Big port expansion

$133 million yacht plant and 300 jobs

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Rex-Meyer Yachts Inc., manufacturer of the prized "Midnight Lace" yacht, plans to locate a $133 million, 300-job manufacturing facility at the Port of Sanford, a port official confirmed today.

"This is the largest facility in our history," said

Dennis Dolgner, executive director of the Seminole County Port Authority. "This will definitely attract other ancillary services here as well."

Dolgner said the company, based in Dania, Fla., has already begun moving molds into a 23,800-square-foot facility at the port to fill current orders of 40-foot boats. Midnight Lace yachts are known for their sleek black hulls. The yachts are now manufactured in Brazil and previously in Hong Kong, Dolgner said.

The yachts are ordered customized for the buyer.

"They start out with the hull and the customer orders the upholstery and all the trimmings," Dolgner said. "Staterooms can be moved around; whatever the customer wants."

Under design is a 39,000-square-foot facility which will enable the company to begin building a 60-foot boat. Dolgner said by the second year of operation, more than 100 people will be working at the facilities. Many of the workers will be hired locally, Dolgner said.

Future plans call for construction of an even larger facility on the St. Johns River within the next five years to build a new 100-foot yacht, Dolgner said. More than 300 people will eventually be working at the three facilities, Dolgner said.

Fees slated for school land improvements

By VICKI DESORMER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County School District will spend $918,000 of money collected in impact fees to purchase land to expand three schools and to make improvements on 11 others.

"The estimates are a little high," Richard Wells, assistant superintendent for facilities, said regarding the dollar amounts given for some of the projects.

The bulk of the money, $700,000, will be used for the purchase of additional land adjacent to Lyman High School, 1141 S.E. Lake Ave. in Longwood; Lake Howell High School, 4200 Dike Rd. in Winter Park; and Lake Mary Elementary School, 132 S. Country Club Rd. in Lake Mary.

Both Wilson Elementary School, 985 Orange Ave. in Sanford, and Lyman High School will be connected to the municipal water systems in their respective cities at a cost of $25,000 each.

Lyman High School is currently undergoing some expansion and Wilson is one of the fastest growing schools in the district.

About 1,100 students are expected to be enrolled at Wilson this fall in a facility, including portable classrooms, designed to hold 954. Nearly a dozen portables are on the site which has not been connected to the Sanford water system.

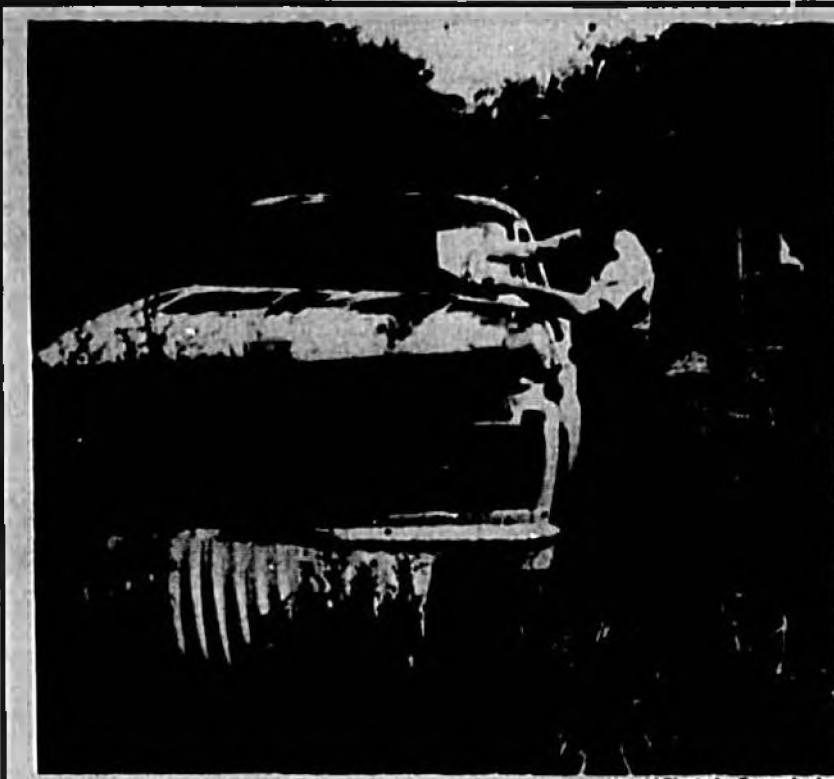

Lyman is expected to house 2,200 students this year. With the 10 portables currently on site, the facility can house 2,273 students.

Sidewalks will be put in near Bear Lake Elementary School, 3399 Gleaves Ct. in Apopka; English Estates Elementary School, 299 Oxford Rd. in Fern Park; Lake Mary High School, 655 Longwood-Lake Mary Rd. in Lake Mary; Greenwood Lakes Middle School, 601 Lake Park Dr. in Lake Mary; Midway Elementary School, 2251 Jitway in Sanford; Tuskawilla Middle School, 1801 Tuskawilla Rd. in Oviedo and Jackson Heights Middle School, 141 Academy Dr. in Oviedo.

The total cost of the sidewalks is $63,000.

Junk patrol

Deputy Tom Wise posts notice on Sanford, saying the vehicle truck parked in high weeds in violates county ordinance.

Deputy seeks to rid county of junk cars

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — "It's only been sitting there 18 years. Why are you doing this now?" a Sanford woman asked as a Seminole County sheriff's deputy posted a notice on her dilapidated truck showing the truck violates the county "junk car" ordinance.

The truck, in disrepair, was parked in high weeds in the woman's backyard.

Deputy Tom Wise has gotten that same response in the last month from about 150 county residents who have been told to clean up eyesore and inoperable vehicles that create a safety hazard parked on private property. See Junk Cars, Page 6A

Developer lashes out at city

Dispute over tree, expansion delays Oaks building project

By AMY WILSON
Herald intern

LAKE MARY — The city commission and planning and zoning board of this city are driving away developers, says Stan Sandefur of Sandefur and Companies, Sanford, who is trying to expand his Oaks shopping center, located at Longwood-Lake Mary Road and Lake Mary Boulevard.

Sandefur, who has been working through consultants with the city planning department for six months to expand the center eastward towards Seventh Street, said he was "insulted" and "embarrassed" by the city commission's actions at its July 19 meeting.

The commission was supposed to vote on certain conditions for the use of the land submitted by the planning and zoning board. Instead the issue was See Oaks, Page 6A

Candidates reveal net wealth, debts

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Bob Desmond, seeking the District 2 Seminole County commission seat, leads county commission in wealth, reports filed in the elections office reveal.

Desmond reported a July 1990 net worth of $408,000, including assets of $478,000 and debts of $70,000. Larry Furlong, seeking the District 4 commission seat, reported the second-highest personal wealth with $390,867 with no debts.

Candidates were required to disclose the sources of income when they qualified for office this month.

Desmond, of Sanford, is seeking the District 2 seat now held by Bob Sturm. Desmond challenged Sturm in the 1986 Republican primary, garnering about 41 percent of the vote.

Desmond listed his prime source of income for the last year as Diversified Data Corp., a $250,000 computer consulting business he owns. Desmond listed a 1989 annual income of $30,000 from the business.

Desmond also reported owning a quarter of another computer consulting business, Diversified Technology Solutions, a share worth $100,000, he reported. Desmond said his partners are Phil Anthony, Sam Bellamy and Grant McEwan.

Desmond listed two debts, $35,000 owed to See Wealth, Page 6A

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Dog does business with Pompano dealer

RINCON, Ga. — A drug dog answering nature's call helped Effingham County police make their biggest-ever crack cocaine bust.

Police say E.C., a golden retriever, headed straight for a drunken driving suspect's car when a deputy let her out of the jail to relieve herself. Police searched the vehicle and found 66 1/2 grams of crack in the tail-light assembly, worth about $13,500 on the street.

Police charged Larry Donald Marshall, 30, and Tony Maurice Morris, 22, of Pompano Beach, Fla., with cocaine trafficking. Marshall also faces drunken driving and speeding charges.

A police officer stopped the two men in Rincon early Friday. Rincon Police Chief Wade McGaha says the suspects apparently came through the town to avoid Interstate 95.

Bertha heads out to sea

MIAMI — Hurricane Bertha, the first of the 1990 Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season, kicked up high surf along the southeastern U.S. coast Sunday as it churned toward the open sea, posing no threat to land, forecasters said.

Bertha, born as a tropical storm from a depression early Saturday off the Florida coast, was moving on a northeasterly course into the Atlantic Ocean at a speed of 10 mph, the National Hurricane Center said.

Maximum sustained winds were 75 mph, 1 mph above the threshold for a minimal hurricane. Hurricane-force winds extended outward as far as 25 miles from the center, with tropical storm force winds extending out as far as 300 miles in the storm's northeast quadrant.

Bertha was expected to lose strength throughout the day, forecasters said.

At noon, Bertha was centered at latitude 31.9 north, longitude 71.7, or about 325 miles east southeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C.

Kimball: 'I am sorry'

OCALA — Bruce Kimball, the former Olympic diver serving a 17-year prison sentence for a drunken driving accident that killed two teenagers, has broken two years of silence about the incident to announce, "I am sorry."

"My attorneys advised me not to talk, but I think my silence has hurt me," Kimball said in an interview for Sunday editions of The Tampa Tribune.

"By my not saying anything, they (the public) thought I wasn't remorseful. But it's a daily struggle to deal with it. There's not a day that goes by that I don't think about it," he continued.

"I want people to know that I am sorry for what I've done and I'm trying to change my life. I didn't take it in stride. For a while, I've been wanting to come forward, but it's very difficult to talk about these things."

"These things" began Aug. 1, 1988, when Kimball drove his car down a dead-end street in the Tampa suburb of Brandon where a crowd of teenagers had parked their cars to party. The broken bodies created a scene one sheriff's deputy compared to Vietnam.

Diver presumed drowned

HALLANDALE — A Hallandale scuba diver was missing and presumed drowned after a weekend lobster hunting dive off Bakers Haulover Cut.

Sandy Heckman was diving for lobster with her husband William on Saturday, the first day of the two-day lobster mini-season.

She surfaced after the dive, stuck her head out of the water and told her husband she was drowning, said Coast Guard Lt. Robin Kane.

"Then she was gone," Kane said. Heckman's husband and a friend on the boat jumped in to save her but were unable to find her. Friends with a cellular phone called the Coast Guard, which searched the area until nightfall.

Civilian boaters and several other divers joined the search but none found no sign of the missing woman, the Coast Guard said.

Boy recovers from pellet gunshot

OCOOE — An 11-year-old boy was recovering from a gunshot wound to the forehead, apparently inflicted by a pellet gun left in a treehouse.

The .22-caliber pistol was hidden under a mattress in the treehouse in the woods. When two playmates jumped on the mattress Sunday, the gun went off, hitting Ernie Michem in the forehead.

It was loaded with "rat shot," which sprays small pellets instead of a single bullet.

Police do not know who owns the guns because the serial number was not discernable.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Six convicted in Noriega scheme

By VICTOR GALVAN
United Press International

TAMPA — Ousted dictator Manuel Noriega's personal banker and five other businessmen were convicted Sunday of laundering drug money in a scheme federal authorities said involved $32 million.

In addition to the money laundering convictions, the six were also found guilty of conspiracy.

The jury deliberated seven days after nearly seven months of trial.

The deliberations were interrupted last week when one of the jurors made a phone call to purported drug dealers in Colombia, using a number from an address book that had been submitted as evidence.

He told the judge he acted out of "simple curiosity," U.S. District Judge Terrell Hodges dismissed that juror, and the 11 others continued deliberating. The defendants were a Colombian aircraft broker and five former officers for the Bank of Credit and Commerce International, with headquarters in Luxembourg.

Amjad Awan, who worked for BCCI in Miami, once served as personal banker for Manuel Noriega. He was convicted of conspiracy and 14 counts of money laundering.

As the verdicts were read, many of the defendants' relatives began to cry. After the hearing ended, one woman collapsed briefly in the spectators' gallery and another said, "Lies, dirty evil lies." One man walked out of the courtroom muttering, "America evil. This is evil."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Mark Jackowski said the case proved that even those "ivory towers" who don't touch drugs will be convicted if they help smugglers skirt the law.

"The United States of America takes the drug trafficking problem very seriously," Jackowski said.

Through its London office, the bank released a prepared statement Sunday saying, "BCCI is sympathetic to the families of its former employees. It is important to note that the evidence presented in the trial by the U.S. government established conclusively that the offenses charged were contrary to the expressed written policies."

Law officer killed by own gun

United Press International

POMPANO BEACH — A Pompano Beach policeman was killed when an assault suspect wrestled the officer's 45-caliber semiautomatic gun away from him and shot him twice in the stomach, police said.

K-9 Officer Scott Winters, 28, had been working an off-duty security detail with his police dog, Baron, Sunday night. He was asked to help look for a man who had assaulted a 33-year-old woman with a rock as she rode her bicycle.

Winters spotted the suspect about 7:30 p.m. in the parking lot of a John Deere store and stopped.

"There was a struggle," said Pompano Beach Police Lt. Dave Cannell. "He was shot with his own handgun, we believe at this point. Numerous witnesses at the scene observed the shooting and immediately phoned police."

Winters, who was wearing his uniform and a bulletproof vest, managed to radio for help. Rescue workers airlifted him to the North Broward Medical Center, where he died about 8:30 p.m. Sunday.

"Both bullet wounds were located on his sides, just below and beneath the bulletproof vest," said Cannell.

Police arrested the suspect, Antonio Rivera, 38, on charges of first-degree murder of a police officer, armed robbery for stealing the officer's gun and possession of a firearm in commission of a felony. Police said other charges would be filed against Rivera concerning the assault on the bicyclist.

Trailer accident

Traffic traveling on East State Road 46 this morning had to be directed around a truck whose trailer collapsed near the Marina Isle fish camp today. No injuries or other vehicles were involved in the mishap, according to police. Florida Highway Patrol is investigating.

Man drinks tainted Colombian soda

United Press International

MIAMI — A Miami man remained in a coma Sunday after drinking a Colombian soda laced with cocaine, and federal agents found two other tainted bottles containing up to 200 times the lethal dose.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration office in Miami warned consumers not to drink Pony Malta de Bavaria until tests are completed on samples taken from stores.

Malta beverages, similar to heavy non-alcoholic beer, are popular among Hispanics.

Maximo Rene Menendez, 26, has been in a coma since Thursday morning, when he drank half a bottle of Pony Malta de Bavaria for breakfast. He was on a respirator and was listed in critical condition Sunday at AMI-Kendall Regional Medical Center.

His stepfather, Antonio Rabaza, said Menendez drank about half the malta and then put it down and said, "This is poisoned, it's bad stuff." Almost immediately, Menendez suffered convulsions, vomiting and cardiac arrest, officials said. Paramedics revived him and took him to the hospital.

FDA officials were contacted and ran tests on 14 sealed bottles found at Menendez' home west of Miami. The FDA also tested samples taken from local distributors, wholesalers and retailers, including the Sedano's supermarket, where Menendez bought the drink.

Two other tainted bottles, both taken from Menendez' house, were found. One 8-ounce bottle contained 54 grams of cocaine and the other contained 37 grams, FDA spokeswoman Estela Brown said.

There was no evidence of tampering in either of the two bottles, Brown said. Hospital officials did not know how much cocaine was in the bottle Menendez drank. As little as 25 milligrams can be lethal in liquid form, said Dr. Rafael Crespo.

Grocer charged with drawing gun on children

United Press International

FORT LAUDERDALE — A grocery store manager was charged with threatening three little girls with a loaded .357 revolver because they were 2 cents short paying for some bubble gum, police said.

The children ran home from Sami Food Mart and told their mother, who called police.

The store manager, identified by police as Abdullah Shaheen, was arrested Sunday and charged with three counts of aggravated assault and one count of extortion.

According to police and the children, the girls picked up the bubble gum and put 3 cents on the counter. They said Shaheen told them, "Put 5 cents up there."

The girls told him they always paid 3 cents for the gum. The manager pulled out the gun and pointed it in 7-year-old Donetta Curry's face, the police report said.

"I didn't say nothing," a frightened Donetta said. "He took out the gun and pointed it at me. So I put 5 cents up there."

I ran and told my mama. I was scared he was going to shoot me."

The other children were Donetta's 4-year-old sister Melissa Tisdale and their neighbor, Avice Reed, 11. They backed up Curry's story.

"He told her if you don't pay the 2 cents, something is going to happen to you," Reed said.

Sheryl Tisdale, Donetta's and Melissa's mother, said the children came home trembling and terrified. She questioned the clerk, who denied the children's story.

Police questioned each girl separately and their stories were the same, a police report said.

"They all gave me a perfect description of the gun, even the 4-year-old," said Officer Keith Abrahamson.

Shaheen at first denied pulling the gun on them. But police took the girls into the store and asked Shaheen, "Are you saying they are lying?"

"I can't say that," Shaheen responded, and he was placed under arrest.

Abrahamson said Shaheen burst into tears when he was arrested.

Police arrest intrusion suspect

LONGWOOD — A man who allegedly pushed his way into the house of Walter and Nancy Witt, of 533 Birdsong St., rural Longwood, demanding to see another individual, was arrested when he returned to the scene after Seminole County sheriff's deputies arrived.

The incident occurred at about 11:20 p.m. Sunday and the arrest for burglary was made at 12:27 a.m. today, deputies said. The Witts said they told the intruder to leave their house after he allegedly took a "menacing" stance against them. The man backed out, and returned to be arrested after deputies arrived. Samuel Arthur Cavanaugh, 18, of 711 Avery Lane, Apopka, was charged in the case.

Howell Place apartments to be sold

By NICK PAPPAS

SANFORD — Pending approval of a bond settlement, Howell Place of Sanford, 300 West Airport Boulevard, will be purchased from Barnett Bank by Winter Haven Homes, Inc., headquartered in Atlanta.

The contract is contingent on Winter Haven being able to refund the presently outstanding bonds issued by the City of Sanford in 1983.

The bonds have been in default since 1985. Chris Brogdon of Winter Haven Homes, in a letter to Mayor Betty Smith and City Manager Frank Faison said, "The project is a good viable project but just had too much of a debt burden to allow it to run profitably. The debt service we will have will be approximately $300,000 a year versus $645,000 a year on the original bond issue."

The 94 unit retirement facility, near U.S. Highway 17-92, has an occupancy of 60 percent. Winter Haven Homes actually began managing the facility on the first of July. If the city approves the repayment of the bonds as suggested, Winter Haven plans to refurbish the facility, including new carpeting, painting, wall papering and improved outdoor landscaping.

City Manager Frank Faison said, "This was an economic development bond, authorized under the municipal bonding power, and if the this is approved, there won't be any expense or liability involved on the part of the City of Sanford."

Earlier this year, Winter Haven Homes purchased a similarly distressed retirement facility in Titusville. The purchase was financed through Brevard County exactly as now being requested of the City of Sanford. The Titusville facility had 32 residents when Winter Haven purchased it, and within six months, the number of residents had almost doubled.

Howell Place is up for sale.

It is expected that the request will be placed on the agenda for the next Sanford City Commission meeting, scheduled for Aug. 13.

Double time history

Mikhail Gorbachev's reluctant ascent to a unified Germany's membership in the Western alliance may be an anticlimax, given its inevitability, yet it's no less historic for that. Within a few years, under the agreement announced by Gorbachev and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, the 45-year Soviet occupation of Eastern and Central Europe will come to an end.

Much of the credit must go to Gorbachev. In the face of criticism at home that the Soviet Union is giving away what it won at such great cost in World War II, he is gambling by taking Western leaders at their word that they no longer see Moscow as an adversary and are willing to help his country, economically and politically, to play a major role in a future Europe. At the same time, members of NATO are taking risks by finally accepting that the Kremlin's objectives have changed fundamentally, that monolithic communism in the Soviet Union is gone, and that the time to pare the mightiest arsenals ever built is now.

Some in the West fear that, as the Soviets withdraw their troops from what is now East Germany, and as unified Germany reduces its force levels by nearly half, a fully sovereign Germany will ultimately decide that it needs no foreign troops on its soil. That's possible, but if it happens within the context of an increasingly stable and less fortified Europe, it would be but the logical consequence of a process that the victorious wartime allies thought they were beginning in 1945.

With the Soviet-German accord, and with the quick six-power agreement to guarantee Poland's border with Germany, the next step is for the Western allies to give up their residual occupation rights over Berlin, and for East and West to complete talks to reduce conventional Soviet and Western forces in Central Europe to meet a November deadline. If that happens, Germany can be united by December, a breathtaking prospect if one recalls that, just months ago, there were serious doubts that German monetary union — which became a reality only weeks ago — could be achieved in less than several years.

Some Americans fret that U.S. economic problems, and the Bush administration's caution toward the headlong pace of history in Europe, have reduced the United States to the status of bystander. That's only marginally true; America remains involved in Europe in many ways, and must continue to play an important role. The fact that it can no longer call the tune there has less to do with its relative wealth than with the ultimate success of the mission it undertook in World War II, which was to save Europe from barbarism.

Today, Europe is reclaiming its right to put its own house in order.

LETTERS

Logging is misunderstood

I am a logger in the state of Washington. I would like you to please print this letter in your newspaper for loggers and sawmill workers of the Pacific Northwest. We are losing our jobs due to the Spotted Owl and log exporting controversy in this country.

I am a logger... (and) also an environmentalist. This may surprise some people: that a logger can be both, but he can. I belong to Green Peace and The Nature Conservancy. I am very concerned about global pollution and the destruction of the Rain Forest.

Although, there are several huge myths going around today, which people seem to believe. They are not true.

First, that we have cut all the trees down in the Pacific Northwest. Wrong — come out to western Washington and see for yourself. Washington State is not called the Evergreen State for nothing.

Second, myth is that we do not replant our trees when we harvest them. Not correct, by federal and state law we are required to replant. We replant four trees for each one we use. We have been replanting trees for over 50 years. Come see for yourself and look at our beautiful tree plantations. We have tree plantations in every stage of development. They are quite amazing and beautiful to look at.

Third, myth is that we harvest every tree and it goes overseas. Once again, not true. Three out of four trees cut down in this country are processed in this country. How would you like to have those odds if you were gambling. One log out of four goes overseas. If a politician won by 75% of the votes, he or she would call that a mandate, and that is what it is. A mandate of logs stay in the United States to be processed.

Fourth, myth is that we have not set aside land in the state of Washington for camping and hiking. Not true — we have 5.4 million acres of preserved state and wilderness areas.

I would like to invite anyone who is concerned in America to come to western Washington and look at our magnificent trees. Look how green and lush it is around here. Western Washington does grow trees and it is quite a sight to see. Stop by the Chamber of Commerce in Aberdeen, Washington; or call either of these phone numbers for information: 206-532-1924 or 1-800-533-6618; they will put you in touch with tours, videos and literature on how we grow trees here.

So, make plans for a vacation and come see our area this summer. Also, if you get a chance, stop by and see the Tall Ship. It was made from wood grown in the Pacific Northwest. Have a nice summer and enjoy a vacation in the Pacific Northwest.

U.S. slush funds invite corruption

WASHINGTON — Just in time for Washington's midsummer scandal season, here's a new outrage from the nation's capital: $100 billion worth of taxpayer-financed "slush funds" that are routinely tapped by various federal departments and agencies to pay for unauthorized projects.

"This is an open money sack," says Sen. David H. Pryor, D-Ark., who worries that the accounts offer "an invitation to corruption." Similarly, Rep. John Conyers Jr., D-Mich., says the slush funds "present an almost unlimited opportunity for mischief and fraud."

Indeed, one midlevel financial officer at the Agency for International Development alerted his superiors to the potential for abuse of one such fund, then took drastic action on his own when the warnings were ignored.

He embezzled more than $1.3 million from the account and used the funds to pay for five new cars, expensive jewelry, a luxurious home, exquisite furnishings and extensive improvements to the property including a swimming pool and gazebo.

Most disbursements from the slush funds don't benefit federal employees personally, but they're often used to finance projects of dubious value that probably would be rejected during the conventional authorization and appropriation process.

Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., complains that allowing spending priorities to be set by government bureaucracies without any congressional approval or independent oversight is the equivalent of "delivering wheelbarrows full of $100 bills."

The slush funds exist because at the time federal budgets are prepared and approved, Congress and the White House can't know exactly how much money will be needed for many goods and services the government buys.

An example: An appropriations bill, enacted by Congress and signed by the president, empowers the Air Force to spend $100 million on jet fuel.

But because oil prices are lower than expected, only $65 million is spent from that account during the year. Moreover, that total includes $5 million worth of fuel that is ordered at the end of one year but not delivered until the start of the next year.

"This is an open money sack."

Because it's absurd to require authorization and appropriation legislation covering thousands of contingencies and commitments that were initially unrecognized, understated or inaccurately estimated, a 1986 law authorized the establishment of two new types of accounts to handle such transactions.

"M" Accounts contain funds to pay for financial obligations incurred in prior fiscal years but still outstanding. Merged Surplus Accounts hold funds to pay all other expired appropriations balances, such as the $15 million in the jet fuel example above.

The balances in those accounts were supposed to be modest but now total more than $100 billion. The Defense Department alone has $33 billion in its Merged Surplus Accounts and $18 billion in its M Accounts.

When the inspectors general of various departments last year audited M Accounts, they found a phenomenally high proportion of invalid payments — including 90 percent at the Department of Health and Human Services, 57 percent at the Department of Housing and Urban Development and 74 percent at Labor.

Bush: Just say no to Soviet aid

WASHINGTON — You need not be an economics expert to know that President Bush has one piece of his Soviet policy exactly right. Even a first-time visitor to the Soviet Union, like this reporter, can see and hear enough in three weeks to know that Bush is correct to reject massive U.S. economic aid to Mikhail Gorbachev's government.

The scale of the country and the depth of its problems dwarf any conceivable package of American grants and loans. If West Germany's Helmut Kohl thinks he must offer such aid as the price for Gorbachev's acceptance of German reunification, so be it. But Bush is right to say that until Gorbachev gets serious about dismantling the structural barriers to rational market decision-making that decades of communism have erected, pouring money into the top of the Soviet Union would do little to relieve the privation of its people.

When aid is given, it should, as Bush says, be in the form of technical assistance. What Bush does not yet seem to grasp is that in most cases, that aid can be most usefully given, not to the slow-moving, rigidified, status quo ministries of Gorbachev's central government, but to the local and regional officials now on the cutting edge of change in the Soviet Union. Doing that will require the Bush administration to shift its narrow focus on dealing with Gorbachev to a more broadly conceived effort to establish links with the next generation of leaders in what is certain to be a more decentralized Soviet Union.

Just how laggard the United States is in making this shift in its perspective and policy, I learned on a visit to Leningrad. The consulate there — our only diplomatic outpost outside Moscow — serves "the Baltic states of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia and the Leningrad area, all of which are historically and geographically linked to the West."

The independence forces in the Baltics and the non-Communist city government in Leningrad are pushing private enterprise as hard as they can, with burgeoning numbers of joint-ventures and cooperatives. But the overworked U.S. consular staff includes no commercial attache nor anyone with business or economic background.

The able U.S. consul general, Richard Miles, estimates that he has seen at least 1,000 visiting American businessmen in his office in the past two years, but fewer than a dozen of them have come back through a second time in pursuit of contracts or work. By contrast, he said, the Japanese are building contacts by placing Russian-language trainees in Leningrad and Baltic factories, and German bankers are ubiquitous return visitors.

Part of this is the familiar tale of American business' inability to see the usefulness of investing time, talent and resources in places where the payoff will be years away. But part of it is also the Bush administration's reluctance to encourage even private business to bypass Gorbachev's centralized bureaucracy. So worried is our government about Gorbachev's survival that we are neglecting opportunities to encourage those who are far more venturesome in the only kind of economic reform that can offer hope of ending the Soviet people's endemic poverty.

Bush is understandably preoccupied with doing as much diplomatic business with Gorbachev — on arms reduction and resolution of regional conflicts — as he can, while the crafty Soviet leader is still calling the shots. Only last week did Secretary of State James A. Baker III say for the first time that the United States is beginning to cultivate contacts with some of the independent political movements in the Soviet Union.

But the administration is running behind the curve of change. Even an official of the Communist Party Central Committee, Igor Malaschenko, told me, "The decline of the central government is inevitable. It is impossible to reform from the center. The new designs for confederation and for the economy will be drafted largely in the republics."

Yet the U.S. Government persists in acting as if everything depended on Gorbachev's fate. The point was made best by 40-year-old Victor Acsyuchits, head of the fledgling Christian Democratic Party, when I went to see him in his shabby, 11th-floor apartment on the edge of Moscow.

"Where the West makes a mistake," he said, "is to declare Gorbachev the initiator and leader of the democratic forces. It is not so." Acsyuchits argued that the current U.S. policy does not even serve Gorbachev's long-term interests. "When the West bets only on Gorbachev, they do him no service; they dig his grave. They ratify his position as the head of the most reactionary force in this society, the Communist Party."

"The only way for the West to help Gorbachev is to help foster a civil society by aiding the non-party groups that Gorbachev could rely on to govern, instead of the Communist Party."

"The depth of its problems dwarf any conceivable package of American grants and loans."

Democrats' dream ticket problems

WASHINGTON — Democrats are fantasizing about their dream ticket for the 1992 presidential race — New York Gov. Mario Cuomo and freshman Nebraska Sen. Robert Kerrey. For charisma, the duo would be hard to beat — Cuomo, the thinking person's candidate, and Kerrey, the handsome, heroic Vietnam vet who romances actress Debra Winger.

But looming over by White House aspirations that Kerrey may have a few mistakes in Nebraska that show his decidedly unheroic side.

The most recent involves Kerrey's support for development in Nebraska of a radioactive waste dump — a political and ecological time bomb. Some irate Nebraskans are fighting the project. But Kerrey's brother-in-law and a key political aide are helping to promote it through a company that Kerrey helped start.

A five-state government agency known as the Central Interstate Low-Level Radioactive Waste Compact Commission is pushing the proposal in Nebraska. To help raise support, the commission hired Bates Video Production to do a promotional video that is clearly designed to quell fears about radioactive waste dumping.

Kerrey and his brother-in-law, Dean Raasmussen, were original investors in Bates Video in 1987, along with their friend Rodney Bates, who handled publicity for Kerrey's 1988 Senate campaign. When Kerrey decided run for the Senate, Raasmussen bought him out of Bates Video, but that was after the deal was signed for the video promoting the waste dump. According to a spokesman, Kerrey opted out of Bates Video to avoid a conflict when he decided to run for the Senate.

Raasmussen told our associate Scott Slick that Bates runs the business and does not consult with him about choosing particular clients.

Kerrey has only recently decided that strong support of a nuclear waste dump in one's home state is not a smart idea. He had been firmly behind the compact's proposed dump site, but this month he backed off and said there were too many unanswered questions. Critics said Kerrey is belatedly trying to distance himself for political reasons.

This isn't the first time that Kerrey has mixed business and politics. In fact, he has admitted that he used poor judgment in some business ties he made early in his career. In the mid-1980s, a business he owned took a low-interest loan from a financing pool that he helped create as governor. In 1986, at Kerrey's urging, Nebraska lawmakers created the Nebraska Investment Finance Authority to give low-interest loans to homeowners, farmers and certain businesses. One of the businesses was Kerrey's, which got a low-cost loan to build a sports center in Lincoln. Nebraska Republicans raised a stink, but the state legislature declined to investigate.

Raasmussen handles the trust that manages Kerrey's business interests. He told us that Kerrey knew the company was applying for the low-cost loan. But he said, Kerrey trusts him to manage his money with business sense, not political motivations. Kerrey's name also belongs on the list of politicians with their hands in the savings and loan scandal. The Republicans are looking for more Democrats to blame, and White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater recently put Kerrey in that company. Fitzwater's reference was to a major banking crisis in Nebraska when Kerrey was governor. Two state-chartered thrifts in Lincoln, Neb., failed.

"He has admitted that he used poor judgment."

Of My Dear Husband
 SEPTEMBER 2, 1989

Paul H. Harris' labor in life ended 7 months ago this week when he died September 2, 1989. That life really was not a labor for Paul Harris, because Felicia died by his side. For 50 of his 79 years, Felicia was his partner. She saw him through four of his seven years of military service. Paul served in the 33rd Ordnance Company of the US Armed Forces from April 28, 1938 until he was honorably discharged April 27, 1945. He then enlisted in the Marine Corp. as a Corporal for 4 years, honorably discharged September 27, 1945.

Little did I know that day The sorrow that life would bring. The end was sudden, the shock severe. To part with you, the one I loved so dear. I did not know the pain you had, but as I heard your final sigh, I only knew that you had left me when you said your last goodbye. In life I loved you dearly, in death I do the same. Many a lonely heartache after a lonely tear. You have passed beyond my love and care, but not beyond my thoughts and prayers. When days are dark and nights are few I long for you, my darling husband, how I long for you.

They're committed," Dolgier said. "A five-year lease is about as committed as you can hope for."

Dolgier said the fight fought hard for the Rex Meyer contract, agreeing to a "about $3 per square foot price."

We struggled against several other facilities in the state," Dolgier said. "We finally won out."

Dolgier said state economic studies have shown that for every 100 jobs created in a community, another 64 are created to provide services to the new jobs.

Studies are currently underway to determine if $10,000 will be needed to install a traffic signal at Woodlands Elementary School, 1420 E.E. Williams Rd. in Longwood.

labeled until City Attorney Noel Julian could decide if the expansion itself was legal, saying Sanderfur may have to rezone the land as two separate lots—one for the present center and one for the proposed shops.

Sanderfur said he had spent $30,000 on consultants to determine traffic impact on the surrounding area and environmental experts to plan a shopping center that would save as many trees and natural vegetation as possible. Instead, the consultant refused to listen to the traffic engineer at the July 19 meeting, which was a public hearing on the issue, and told his company to save a 30-inch diameter centennial oak which his own consultants had found and planned on preserving.

We've worked on a site plan for over a year. We redesigned it four times to accommodate the city's needs," Sanderfur said.

What happened at the commission meeting was extremely disheartening. They wouldn't even let my consultants and engineers speak on my behalf.

Sturm Richards, chief environmental professional and consultant to Sanderfur, said he was hired five months ago to investigate the area and assist in drawing up a plan that would save certain laurel oak trees which the city pointed out. Richards said, however, that trees the city had selected were diseased or dying.

I told them these trees are not significant, and they should be concerned about the 30-inch oak on the other side of the site.

Richards said they (planning and zoning) didn't even know that there was a centennial oak there.

Tony Gamm, member of the planning and zoning board, said Richards did point out the 50-inch oak, but the board never saw a revised site plan to save the tree. In fact, she said, the developer's engineer, almost had a nervous breakdown when Richards brought up the tree at their last meeting.

Tony Rockett, chairman of the planning and zoning board, said the board had only been working on recommendations to the use of the land and hadn't even gotten to the site plan yet. He said the board has not seen any revised plans to save the tree.

City Planner Matthew West agreed that Sanderfur has not yet submitted a plan to save the tree, and said the whole issue has been put on hold until Noel Julian, city attorney, returns from sick leave. If he recommends that Sanderfur rezone the lots, it could take months before a plan is submitted to planning and zoning, and finally presented to city commission again.

This legal issue just popped up at the last minute," Sanderfur said. "I'd already been approved by planning and zoning—and now they have to write a legal opinion as to whether or not I can add on."

I'm probably one of the largest taxpayers in Lake Mary. Now I'll have to pay my consultants again for the next meeting when I go back. Let's hope they're in a good mood.

Junk Cars

Wise started his enforcement efforts four weeks ago after it became apparent the county commission department's enforcement efforts over the last several years weren't meeting the standards county residents who kept their communities cleaned up. Wise said.

When these unscrupulous new junk vehicles on private property and on the street, the ordinance will decrease, he said.

When issuing the bright red notices, the bright red notices will be handshakes of the offending vehicles, which may have expired or no license tags and be partially dismantled. In addition, if such vehicles are found on private property, a list of addresses will be provided.

We want the junk people to be out of the streets. Instead of the address given, the minimum 30-day period, usually more, to allow them to make the vehicle safe. We'll see appropriate enforcement of the ordinance. We'll make it enforceable and we'll make sure we're going to enforce it. We'll make the streets cleaner and safer.

Wise said he will keep the streets clean and safe. He said he will make sure the streets are clean and safe.

back. The lien holder may or may not want the vehicle. If it isn't claimed within 15 days of being towed, he said, the vehicle becomes property of the tow company.

In checking the county for junk vehicles, Wise said he has found several cars filled with garbage. Snakes and rats have made homes in some. The cars are a draw to children and sometimes youngsters are in mind playing on such vehicles, he said.

It's about time," Wise said, is the response from neighbors when such vehicles are dealt with properly, and the cleanup is extending into other areas of some communities, such as Midway.

On Magnolia Street at Sanford Avenue in rural Altamonte Springs, Wise said he brought the cleanup of a man's yard where 14 vehicles were in various stages of repair. He spotted it while on his own. Only one vehicle was towed, Wise said.

It's a nice block area of Midway. We've been successful, but only if the junk is towed following a complaint by the owners. At one point, junk in the county, Wise said, has been a four-hour period. He said it's a good problem to be dealt with.

Wise said he will continue to work on the problem. He said he will make sure the streets are clean and safe.

Wise said he will make sure the streets are clean and safe. He said he will make sure the streets are clean and safe.

Last week, you helped power Florida.

FPL saw a situation developing last week that might have led to a brief power shortage.

We asked our customers to cut back on electricity so there'd be enough to go around.

The media delivered the message and made sure everyone in Florida knew how they could help conserve.

What happened next was impressive. And more than a little inspiring.

Businesses inconvenienced themselves, reducing their energy needs so others could stay open.

Private citizens endured a little discomfort so no one would have to endure a lot.

People all over Florida put the good of the community over their own interests.

And a power shortage was avoided.

To everyone who helped — thank you.

IN BRIEF

MARTIAL ARTS

Locals score at U.S. Open

ORLANDO — Six students from Menefee's Martial Arts Academy in Sanford traveled to the Orange County Civic Center for the 17th Annual United States Open Karate Championships this past Saturday.

Kenny Kaiser, the No. 1-ranked martial artist in the men's intermediate class in the state of Florida, finished third in fighting in the middleweight class (170 pounds).

Also placing were Mario Roberts, third in fighting in the 8-9 year olds; David Yaretagayeh, third in the boy's 10-12 age group; and Tonya Pierce, fifth in the women's middleweight.

"This was one of the biggest tournaments in the nation," said Langston Menefee, director of Menefee's Martial Arts Academy. "There were competitors from Peru, Guatemala, Latin America and South America, as well as from all over the United States."

"This tournament helps seed our students for the Florida Karate Championships coming up in Orlando in November."

For more information, contact Coach Mike Gibson at 333-2380.

YOUTH BASEBALL

Babe Ruth All-Stars tumble

SARASOTA — The Southeast Seminole Babe Ruth All-Stars from Oviedo had a rough weekend as they lost both games in the Sarasota Invitational.

The Babe Ruth All-Stars (14 and 15 year olds), coached by Eddie Norton, led the opening game Saturday 7-5 but Sarasota scored three runs in the bottom of the sixth inning and held on for the 8-7 win.

Southeast Seminole did not fair quite as well Sunday, dropping an 11-4 decision to the host team.

Miguel Rodriguez had the hot bat for Southeast Seminole, going 5 for 9 with three runs scored and seven stolen bases (including five in Saturday's game).

Also hitting well were Louie Traeger (4 for 7, RBI), Jose Gonzalez and Charles Nieme (3 for 7 and two doubles each), Mike Hernandez (2 for 8, double, two RBI) and Edgar Aviles (single, five walks, three runs scored, four stolen bases).

Aviles also had a very good weekend defensively, playing second base, third base and shortstop.

DIVING

Kimball apologizes for accident

OCALA — Bruce Kimball, the former Olympic diver serving a 17-year prison sentence for a drunken driving accident that killed two teenagers, has broken two years of silence about the incident to announce, "I am sorry."

"My attorneys advised me not to talk, but I think my silence has hurt me," Kimball said in an interview for Sunday editions of The Tampa Tribune.

"By my not saying anything, they (the public) thought I wasn't remorseful. But it's a daily struggle to deal with it. There's not a day that goes by that I don't think about it," he continued.

"I want people to know that I am sorry for what I've done and I'm trying to change my life. I didn't take it in stride. For a while, I've been wanting to come forward, but it's very difficult to talk about these things."

"These things" began Aug. 1, 1988, when Kimball drove his car down a dead end street in the Tampa suburb of Brandon where a crowd of teenagers had parked their cars to party. The broken bodies created a scene one sheriff's deputy compared to Vietnam.

Oviedo Junior All-Stars open state tourney play

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald sports writer

ORANGE CITY — The Oviedo Junior Little League All-Stars, recently crowned Section I Champions, will attempt to take the next step toward a World Championship when it opens play in the State Tournament at Bill Thompson Field in Orange City tonight.

Oviedo will take on Section IV Champion Seminole (from St. Petersburg) at 7:30 p.m. The opening game will pit Section III Champion North Brandon against Division II winner Vero Beach at 5 p.m.

The winner of the double elimination tournament will advance to the Southeastern Regional at Dr. Phillips (Windermere) next week. The winner of the Regional will travel to Taylor, Mich., for the Junior League World Series.

Oviedo has won six games in a row since dropping its opening game in the championship series of the District 14 tournament to Altamonte Springs American All-Stars.

After advancing out of the losers' bracket and beating Altamonte Springs twice in 24 hours to claim the district title, Oviedo rolled through the sectional tournament virtually untouched outscoring their opponents 41-14.

The team will be looking to improve on the finish of last year's Major All-Stars. Consisting of many of the same players on this year's 13-year-old Junior All-Star team, the Majors (11 and 12-year-olds) won the sectional title, then lost their first two games in the state tournament.

Manager Rich DiTore has three top flight starting pitchers at his disposal. His own son, Richie, pitched a one-hitter against Altamonte Springs in the districts and struck out eight in pitching a complete game victory against Eglin Air Force Base in the sectional final.

Also, Byron Coffie was the winning pitcher in the sectional opener, tossing a three-hitter and striking out, while Todd Bellhorn was the winning pitcher in a three-hit, 15-8 triumph over Arlington in the sectional semifinals. Brian King, Jason Fore and Mike Duncan are available for relief.

Coach DiTore is not afraid to use anyone from his roster at any time as everyone has contributed at one time or another.

Also on the roster are Mike Bergman, Aaron Church, Jason Fore, Nelson Lecour, Brian McMahon, Mark Metcalf, Phillip Moss, Scott Root and Marvin Wilson.

East Coast gets into Lake finals

From staff reports

SANFORD — The East Coast All-Stars from Volusia County split with the Florida Baseball School Academy on Sunday at Sanford Memorial Stadium, earning the right to face Adcock Roofing in the Buddy Lake Summer Baseball League championship series next weekend.

The All-Stars started play Sunday with an 11-5 record while the FBS Academy had an 11-6 mark. Needing to win just one of the two games, the All-Stars took care of business in the first game, beating the Academy 8-6.

Things got ugly in the second contest as the Academy scorched East Coast 13-2 in a game that was stopped in the fifth inning when the All-Stars forfeited after an argument over an infield fly that saw East Coast catcher Bill Winn ejected.

In the first game, East Coast got started with a four-run first inning, then had to fight off a comeback effort by the Academy (highlighted by a four-run third inning).

The McCall brothers sparked East Coast's first-inning explosion with lead off singles. The duo scored on an error and a sacrifice fly by Stanley Evans. Rob Powers and Bill Winn capped the scoring with singles.

East Coast made it 5-0 in the second thanks to a pair of Academy errors.

But the Academy would not give up their hopes for a playoff berth. With East Coast lending a helping hand (contributing five walks, two pass balls, a wild pitch and a hit batsman), the Academy got back into the game by scoring four runs in the third inning.

East Coast got a run back in the bottom of the third as Evans doubled and scored on a ground out. The All-Stars stretched their lead to 8-4 in the fourth, when Kevin McCall led off with a walk and scored on Johnny Wright's double. Wright later scored on a Bill Coleman single to complete the East Coast scoring.

Then, with the game just about in the bag, East Coast handed the Academy a run in the sixth on three walks and a pass ball.

While it went unnoticed because of all the runs being scored, Evans and Wright were combining on a no-hitter for the All-Stars. But Wes Iler dashed that with a single to open the seventh inning.

After Mark Bellhorn doubled Iler to third, Brandon Hanahaw lifted a sacrifice fly to center field to score Iler. But the rally ended here as Bellhorn was called out for leaving second base early on the fly ball.

In the second game, Matt Diemer kept the potent East Coast bats at bay, tossing a three-hitter. He also led the Academy's 13-run outburst by scoring three times himself.

The All-Stars self-destructed in the second game as their five pitchers — four of whom had never pitched before — issued 10 walks and hit two batters in a game which lasted only two outs into the fifth inning. In the fifth, East Coast scored two runs in their only solid inning of the game. Everything came unglued when, with runners on first and second and nobody out, Winn lifted a fly ball into short right field. The Academy second baseman camped under the ball but still dropped it.

When the umpires ruled that Winn was out on an infield fly, he flew into a rage and refused to leave first base. He eventually left the field but continued yelling at the umpires from the dugout. Finally, he went too far and was ejected, prompting East Coast manager Norman McCall to come out and argue Winn's case.

After a few short, intense words, McCall forfeited the game.

Winn's ejection will be felt by the All-Stars during their best-of-three playoff with Adcock this weekend. He has also been suspended for the championship tournament.

Rinker can keep dream from becoming a nightmare

Have you ever wanted something to happen so badly that you willingly overlooked major problems just to make it happen?

Couples buying their first house fall into this trap. They're so intent on owning their dream home that they will ignore obvious structural defects like cracks in the wall, a roof that leaks or bad plumbing. It's only after they buy that they see their dream house for the nightmare it really is.

That's the way a lot of cities around the country are acting as Major League Baseball plays hard to get while deciding what municipality will be blessed with an expansion team. Local governments are ignoring obvious problems in land use and being the site of a professional baseball team. One city in Florida even went so far as to build a stadium even after Major League Baseball told them not to. Weird.

It's easy to laugh and point fingers. But when it was learned last week that a new off-season league — the Winter Baseball League — was eyeing Sanford as a possible site for one of its teams, I found myself falling into that same trap. Because I so want to see some version of pro baseball played locally, I chose to ignore the potential pitfalls.

Basically, the Winter Baseball League would be a Florida alternative to the Caribbean leagues, someplace for rising minor leaguers to play along with rehabilitating Major League veterans and some not so over-the-hill retired Major Leaguers.

Sal Algieri, deputy commissioner of the WBL, outlined the entire concept, complete with the financial structure they have put together for prospective owners. Maybe because it was what I wanted to hear, but it sounded good. There didn't seem to be any reason why the league format wouldn't work. And Sanford seemed a natural site for such a team.

Luckily, we have Wes Rinker.

There may be no one in Seminole County who wants to see some kind of professional team call Sanford Memorial Stadium home more than Rinker. Because he has the stadium on a long-term lease from the city, Rinker is the absolute master of what happens at the facility as long as it doesn't break any local or state statutes. A pro team would be the crown jewel of his various endeavors at the complex.

In the past, Rinker has brought in different minor league teams to play games at the stadium. He revealed last week that he has been working with the Senior Professional Baseball League to move the Orlando Juice franchise to the stadium. Failing that, he's trying to get three or four SPBL games played in Sanford.

So he was naturally interested that a league would consider putting a franchise in what is essentially his stadium.

But just like the relative with a background in construction that you bring with you to look at a house you're thinking of buying, Rinker can look at the deal dispassionately and see the flaws. And he says there are a few in the WBL's proposal.

It's like being told your dream house has a bad foundation. You don't want to hear it, but in the long run, you're glad you found out.

To carry the allegory out, we have Insecticides, herbicides, fungicides. These are terms that home gardeners frequently hear recommended by the nursery or garden center. But how do they differ and what is the right time to use each one?

Pesticide is a general term for products used to eliminate pests in general — from insects in your pantry to unwanted weeds to fungus diseases.

Insecticides control insect pests like cockroaches, chinch bugs or caterpillars. They usually eliminate insects in one of three ways — as a stomach poison, as a contact poison or as a pathogen or disease that kills the unwanted pest.

Stomach poisons are insecticides that must be ingested to be effective. They are applied to the leaves or other plant parts that the insects are eating and kill when consumed. Therefore, they are most effective on chewing insects like caterpillars and bugs.

Contact poisons kill by being absorbed through the shell or skin of the insect. They are most effective when drops of spray land directly on insects. They also control rodents as the insects crawl through insecticide residues on leaves and twigs. Insects that crawl around like cockroaches are best controlled with contact poisons.

Disease-producing organisms kill insects by affecting their internal organs. These are the latest technological advances made in the area of pesticide research and are called biological controls. Researchers have just isolated the disease and mass produce it in a form available to the public. And since they are naturally occurring, they are usually safer than traditional pesticides. Growth regulators are in this category since they usually control the pest by interrupting the life cycle.

Insecticides are available in different formulations which enable the home gardener to control their pests most effectively on a variety of plants — in lawns, on shrubs, trees and vegetables. A popular lawn insecticide may come in a liquid concentrate for diluting in water and applying in a compressed air or hose-end sprayer or a granular formulation applied in a spreader and watered in. Common all-purpose garden insecticides may come in liquid, granular or dust formulation. Bait formulations are usually just the pesticide impregnated in a food.

Multi-purpose insecticides control a broad spectrum of insects. By using them, a home gardener does not have to be an entomologist to recognize the insect which may be harming the landscape. On the other hand, they are effective on beneficial insects as well and may end up killing the harmful insect's predators as well. There are many, many more beneficial insects compared to harmful ones.

Herbicides are chemicals that kill unwanted vegetation. In the past, most herbicides were non-selective meaning that they killed all plants including the cultivated ones. Herbicides like Round-up and Kleen-up are some of the non-selective herbicides available at the garden center.

Today, most herbicides are selective meaning that they are only effective on certain groups of plants like grasses or broadleaf weeds. Most herbicides are effective only on young tender plants rather than mature plants, but non-selective herbicides must be absorbed by green, actively growing tissue.

Fungicides are effective against fungus diseases, but most of their action is preventative. Three conditions must be present for a disease to happen: a pathogen, a host plant and ideal environmental conditions. By eliminating any of these three factors, you will not have disease development. When applying a fungicide, you are basically applying a protective coat that prevents the fungus from developing. Bactericides are just like fungicides but are effective on bacterial diseases.

If you are planning to use a pesticide, it can be a big help to bring a sample into the Agriculture Center for diagnosis as to whether you have a disease, insect or other problem. Every Monday morning from 9 a.m. until 12 noon, there is a plant clinic at the Agricultural Center which is located off 17-92 across from Plea World. There are Seminole County Master Gardeners available to help you with your problem and to help you make the best choice in a pesticide in the event that you need to use one.

Outcast from the In crowd finds happiness at reunion

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "It's My Turn in L.A." the girl who was snubbed by the "in group" in high school and had no desire to go back for her class reunion, inspired me to write. I was just another girl who was not part of the "in group." I wore glasses, had "zits" and never had a date.

At the time of my 10th reunion (in 1983), I was a successful pharmacist and faculty member at a state university. I threw hurt and anger to the wind and decided to attend the reunion — alone. Well, it just so happened that another classmate decided to do the same thing — so he went stag.

An hour before the evening ended, we "discovered" each other. He walked me to my car, holding hands, and I felt like I was back in high school again — with the same excitement and "jitters." One thing led to another, and we married a year later.

Now I have a wonderful husband and three lovely children.

WENDY WEINGART BENNEWITZ, MILWAUKEE
DEAR WENDY: Congratulations. Your letter was a welcome "upper." This office loves happy endings.

DEAR ABBY: I know it's a little late, but I wanted to report on another miserable Mother's Day. It started out OK, but when my husband and I stopped off at a local ice cream shop, the clerk asked, "Are you a mother?"

When I responded "No," I was told that if I had been one, I would have gotten a free ice-cream cone. How wonderful! I can understand stores wanting to share in the Mother's Day celebration, but I resent it. I cannot have children, and I don't need it rubbed in by some clerk reminding me on Mother's Day that I am not a mother and therefore not entitled to an ice-cream cone I didn't want in the first place.

ADVICE

My heart goes out to those other childless women who may have miscarried or lost their only child to death. It's thoughtless to bring to mind a subject that is never far from the surface, especially on Mother's Day.

If shops want to celebrate the occasion, why don't they just give their small gift to any woman of childbearing age (and up), and let it go at that? The pain that is caused to those of us who are not mothers is unforgivable.

BARBARA
DEAR BARBARA: You make a point that I had never considered, and I thank you for it. Moral: Just because you're celebrating, don't assume that everybody else is.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 96440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.)

Garden of the Month
Spreading oak trees surrounded by blooming impatiens, caladiums and spider plants catch the eye at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Simon, recipients of the July Garden of the Month award from the Garden Club of Sanford. The Simons live at 125 Keywood Dr. Sago palms mark the entrance of their home and at the side are palms with society garlic and geraniums at the base of the trunks. The selection was made by Mrs. L.A. Albritton and Mrs. Joe Corley of the Rose Circle for the Garden Club.

Be wary of easy cures for disease

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been told that persons from the United States have gone to Canada to a physician who treats their cancer with enzymes. He apparently has had a high success rate. Do you have any information on the subject to enlighten your readers?

The human race is cursed with many diseases, including cancer, for which treatment is unsatisfactory. However, stupendous strides have been made by legitimate scientists. Witness the breakthroughs in treating (and curing) childhood leukemia, lymphoma and a host of other malignancies that were uniformly fatal afflictions 10 to 15 years ago.

(C)1990 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

DEAR READER: No, I don't. But I have several comments.

Ours has been termed the Age of Communication, and nowhere is this phenomenon more apparent than in medicine. A treatment developed in one country is reported in the medical literature and is simultaneously available to doctors the world over.

Worse (or better) than this, researchers in one field usually know what their colleagues around the world are doing long before results are published. Therefore, new cures — if they are valid — don't remain a secret very long. In the unlikely event the Canadian doctor were onto something, cancer specialists in New York, Detroit and San Francisco would be using it, too.

In the second place, cancer patients are often desperate for a cure. In their frantic search, they are sometimes indiscriminate. They may be willing to try any method of treatment — regardless of expense and risk — in a vain hope of success.

Desperation makes such patients easy victims of unscrupulous snake-oil salesmen. This is tragic not only because of victimization but because these patients may unknowingly be depriving themselves of more scientifically proven, effective treatment.

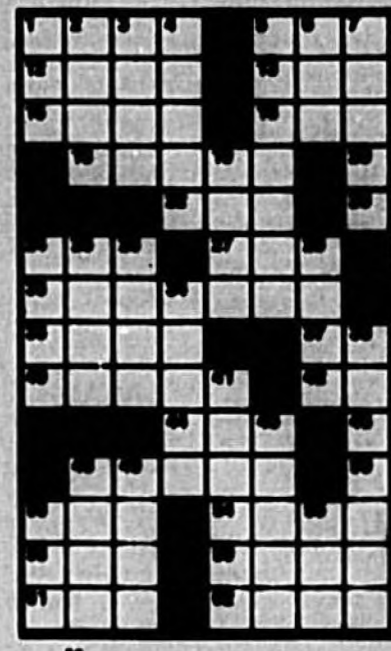

Hardly a week goes by that I don't learn of a self-styled miracle worker in Mexico, South America or Europe who claims to have discovered a cure for something. These flash-in-the-pan con artists make their enormous profits and then fade from notoriety to live out their lives on tropical islands or as heads of their private sanitariums.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

High on the list of common bridge mistakes is failure to play for just the number of tricks needed for the contract. North cue-bid three hearts to show a big club raise after his previous competitive response of one no-trump. East doubled, and South passed to show minimum values. North then confirmed his club support. If South's spade king were the heart king, he would go on to five, but knowing that three of his high-card points were wasted kept him at an apparently safe level. When the heart jack was led, declarer could see that a 3-2 club split along with a 3-2 diamond split would likely let him score an overtrick. So he won the heart ace and played A-K of clubs and then played on diamonds. Alas, East's J-T-U-x-x provided a stopper, and declarer had to ruff the fourth diamond. When declarer played a spade back to his king, West won and played a low heart to East's queen. East then cashed the jack of clubs, and the defenders made another heart trick to set the contract. Four clubs is easy to make. Declarer must suppress his greed for a paltry overtrick and play low on the opening heart lead. Regardless of the subsequent defense, the communication lets declarer make 10 tricks easily. As declarer actually played, good splits in the minors might not help. If the defender with the long club also has the doubleton diamond, he will ruff the third diamond anyway. East-West will then take two major-suit tricks to hold declarer to 10 tricks.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 31, 1990

Exciting times could be in the offing for you socially in the year ahead. New involvements with interesting, new people are likely. However, don't let them overshadow your old friendships.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you are presently on an expense account, keep an accurate record, because you may be called upon to justify your expenditures. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Companions might sense there is something bugging you today, but they may find it difficult to identify the offense. Chances are you won't be sure of it yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Confidential matters pertaining to your company should not be discussed in an environment where what you say could be overheard by the wrong people.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Pressing a friend to repay a favor could be an unwise procedure for you today. What you ask may be small, but the way you do it might prove irritating to your pal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Even though your ideas may be superior to those of your associates today, you could still meet with resistance, so don't expect to get any standing ovations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually you are a rather open minded individual, but today you might ignore the helpful suggestions of another just because you dislike the person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A close friend might ask your opinion about something today, but don't take it as an invitation to be too candid. He/she wants approval, not objective evaluations.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't let insignificant disagreements between you and your mate get blown out of proportion today. The trivial issues over which you may argue now won't even be remembered tomorrow.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Occasionally we can goof off a bit and get away with it, but this may not be the case today. Too much time at the water cooler could arouse the wrath of the boss.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There's a possibility you might do what is the most expeditious today and not that which serves your best interests. Short cuts you impatiently take could turn out to be roots for the long way around.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If there is an unpleasant atmosphere at home today it might be due to your propensity for issuing directives to everyone while doing very little yourself. Be a doer instead of a demander.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be grateful to those who come to your assistance today instead of criticizing the way they do things. If you are a nit-picker, the next time you ask for help, no one will respond.
