Safe landing

SANFORD — The pilot of a twin engine plane apparently couldn't wait to set down in Sanford this morning.

The unidentified man took his plane down safely on the eastbound lanes of Interstate 4 at shortly after 10 a.m. and was escorted off the roadway less than an hour later.

An investigator with the Federal Aviation Authority (FAA) was on the scene looking into the matter. While the investigation was not yet complete at press time, it appeared that the starboard landing gear had failed to engage as the pilot made his approach to the Orlando-Sanford Airport in Sanford.

The damage to the plane appeared to be minimal and the pilot was walking around unassisted following the crash.

Traffic in the westbound lanes was not affected by the event, though many drivers slowed to look at the scene. Traffic on the eastbound side was re-routed to the breakdown lane since the wing of the plane was hovering above the travel lanes.

Nation gets a look at Sanford

Historic district is 'great location' for TV commercial

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Steve Ross says Sanford is a "beautiful example of Americana" that the Bob Evans restaurant division wants to continue to incorporate into their promotional productions.

Ross and a film crew are in Sanford this week filming commercials for the national restaurant chain at a number of locations.

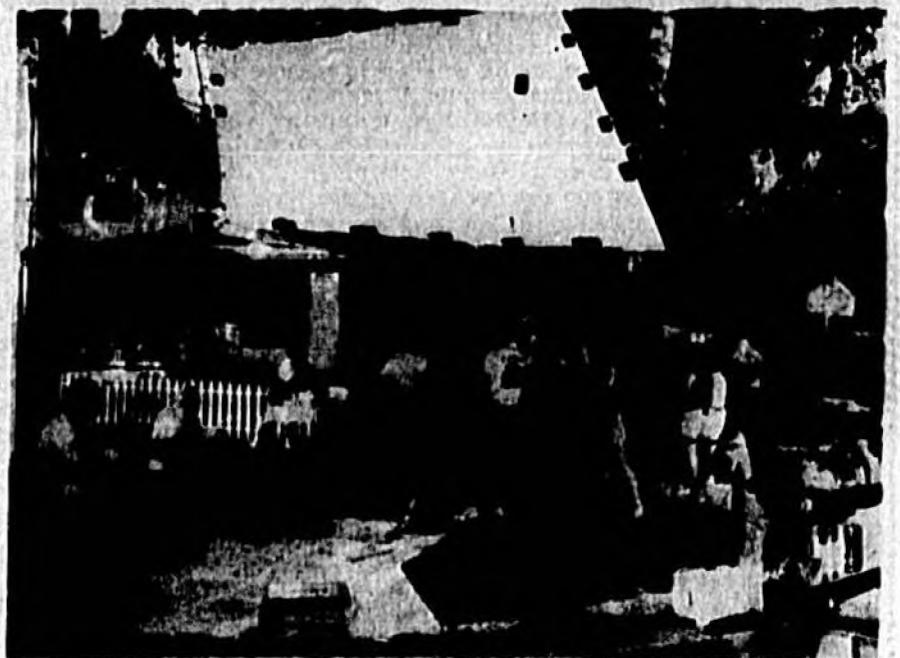

This morning, the crew had set up a card table on the sidewalk in front of the white picket fence at the rectory for All Souls Catholic Church on Oak Avenue. On the table, a pitcher of lemonade sparkled under the lights as a handful of plastic cups were arranged beside it. Potted plants were being placed on the porch by a score of assistants.

"This is a beautiful location," Ross said. "The picket fence, the cobblestone streets. It's a real neighborhood. And the weather is perfect."

Ross, the producer, traveled from Chicago to work with Eire Productions on the commercial. The weather in other parts of the country is too unpredictable for the

SANFORD — A luscious green hideaway is the perfect setting for many vacationers who want to experience the finest in Southern hospitality.

Such a place was the subject of a recent article in "Country Inns Bed & Breakfast." And, that luxurious locale is in Sanford.

The city has made the "big time" of luxury travel publications through the spectacular gardens of the Higgins House Bed & Breakfast, 420 S. Oak Ave.

"We were very excited when we were contacted," said Walt Padgett, who owns and operates the establishment with his wife Bert. "(Country Inns) is THE magazine in this industry. It is a primo publication."

Behind and to the north of the blue Queen Anne-style house, trimmed in cream, there is a green oasis splattered with a wide array of colors.

Murder: Woman Indicted

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A Sanford woman was indicted Tuesday in the 1992 stabbing death of an elderly man in his Castle Brewer Court apartment.

Carmelia Y. James, 30, 612 E. 11th Street was indicted by a Seminole County grand jury for premeditated murder and armed robbery in the Aug. 30, 1992 death of 82-year-old William Hawkins.

The victim was found in his bedroom between two beds covered with a blanket. He had cuts and stab wounds to his chest, arms and behind his right ear.

Police believe robbery was the motive in the slaying. An investigator said the man's pockets were turned inside out when his body was found. Sanford police were called to Hawkins' residence by a neighbor because she had not seen the elderly man for several days. The medical examiner determined after Hawkins' autopsy

Controversial development plan is back

By NICK PFENAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Like a boomerang, the proposed development of property along Country Club Road next to the Mayfair Country Club, keeps coming back.

In the proposal stage since last year, the matter has yet to clear the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission.

This Thursday night, it's once again on the agenda.

When the original proposal was made, citizens in the area surrounding the proposed development voiced strenuous objections to a proposal to build 104 single family homes on the 20 acres of land. Some were based on an expected increase in traffic, others on the lot sizes and land values a few saw diminishing because of the new developments.

Nearby residents not only turned out at the meetings to voice their complaints, but signed and submitted petitions against the development.

Most recently, the only proposal has been a conditional use request for "...the purpose of construction of wastewater and stormwater related facilities within the secondary protection zone."

Director of Planning and Development for Sanford, Jay Marder, said the proposal at this stage is only to protect and preserve the potable water wells in the nearby areas, through the installation of drainage facilities and underground lines. The city's well fields are located in the area near the Mayfair Country Club, which would be bordered on the south by part of the proposed multiple family residential dwelling area.

This same proposal was made on April 6, but tabled. It was placed on the April 20 meeting agenda, and was tabled again.

Marder said one of the early tablings was at the request of the applicant, who reportedly could not attend the P&Z meeting. The other came from the attorney representing nearby residents who were objecting to the matter. His request for postponement was due to the fact he had other commitments at the time and was unable to attend the hearing.

Added to the April 20 meeting, and to be presented again this Thursday, was the result of a study conducted by Yovalish Engineering Sciences, Inc., issued on Jan. 5. It concluded that development of the site "will not pose an undue hazard or intrusion on the safety and water quality within this area."

The study was the result of questions regarding whether or not a new development in that area would interfere with the city's water well supply.

The request for consideration of a conditional use for construction of wastewater and stormwater related facilities is listed as the first item on this Thursday's meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.

Alabama reinstates chain gangs today

By JAY BARNES
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, Ala. — The governor's get-tough prison policy takes a step into the past today as Alabama reinstates chain gangs.

About 400 inmates from Limestone Correction Facility were to be shackled together in groups of five and ordered to pick up trash along Interstate 65 near the Tennessee line.

The chain gangs are part of a directive from Republican Gov. Fob James that inmates be put to work and denied TV and other privileges. The goal: that their experience in prison is so unpleasant, they never come back.

Some critics have charged that shackling prisoners together and making them work is inhumane and will cause problems in the state's 18 prisons, which hold nearly 30,000 inmates.

"Somebody is enjoying the dichotomy of this. But it's creating a lot of resentment and morale problems," said John Hale, a longtime Department of Corrections spokesman who retired last month.

Alabama is the first state to bring back chain gangs, which were a common sight until public opinion was stirred by the 1985 movie "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang," about an innocent man brutalized on a Southern chain gang.

Donald Claxton, spokesman for the governor, said the new shackles were lighter and more modern. "Take the image you have from the 1930s and dismis that. These aren't the ball-and-chain things," he said.

But some prisoners forced to wear leg chains during tests complained that being shackled was uncomfortable and demeaning. Like Hale, they predicted worsening discipline problems inside prisons.

No one at the state Corrections Department can recall exactly when, or why, Alabama did away with chain gangs.

Alabama and many other states already use minimum-security inmates, without shackles, to pick up litter and perform other duties. But the chain gangs will allow nearly 10,000 medium-security inmates to qualify for work details.

State Rep. John Knight, D-Montgomery, has introduced legislation to ban the shackles, and the American Civil Liberties Union has promised to sue to block the use of chain gangs.

Claxton disagreed with the argument that the state was creating an image problem by putting shackled, shuffling inmates along a main route for tourists driving to the Gulf of Mexico.

"If anything," he said, "tourists coming down the highway will feel safer when they see inmates out working and cleaning up the roads."

Alarm brings police

Thomas Marley Connor, 26, no local address, was arrested by Sanford police just after 8 a.m. Tuesday for burglary in a structure and retaining without violence when he ran from officers after being told to stop. Police were called to Pine Crest Elementary School by a silent alarm. Connor was inside a fenced construction area, according to the arrest report, and ran from police. Further investigation showed a trailer door had been pried open, setting off the alarm. A computer check also revealed there was an outstanding misdemeanor warrant for violation of probation/willful, wanton reckless driving.

Domestic violence arrests

• Simon James Harper Jr., 21, 206 Zenith Court, Geneva was arrested at a Seminole Gardens apartment for aggravated battery after he had a fight with his girlfriend. The victim received a scratch on her hand and a small bump on the head but did not need medical attention.

Suspended license arrest

William Howard Kidd, 21, 2620 Southeast Hawthorne Road, Gainesville was arrested in Lake Mary Centre April 30 by a Seminole County deputy sheriff after spotting his vehicle while having a gas station. A computer check showed Kidd was driving while his license is suspended and he was arrested.

Retail theft charged

Ellise Campbell, 17, 1821 Arden St., Longwood, was arrested by Sanford police for retail theft at Wal-Mart after being detained by store security for leaving without paying for a pair of sunglasses.

Expired tag leads to arrest

Adam Shawn Martinez, 25, 715 Sugar Bay Way, Lake Mary was stopped on Matthews Avenue for an expired tag Monday. A computer check showed an active Osceola County warrant for Martinez for violation of probation/burglary to a structure and expired tag.

Warrant arrests

Dexter Cornelius Brown, 22, 1901 DuBola St., Lake Monroe, failure to appear/tag not assigned/unlawful speed and expired tag.

Larry Oliver, 22, 405 Cedar Creek, Sanford, failure to appear/failure to pay fine.

Anthony Philip Christensen, 31, 915 Maple Avenue, Sanford, failure to appear/worthless check.

For your health and safety

So you think you're healthy. You may walk two miles every morning, refrain from alcohol and tobacco, and eat the proper foods. Yet, one never knows for certain, does one?

This Friday, the City of Sanford and the Central Florida Regional Hospital are holding a Health and Safety Fair at the Civic Center. The event will be underway from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

New in its sixth year, the fair is an annual event some people look forward to. For those who may never have bothered going, we suggest trying it this year. Take everyone in the family from grandma to the little darlings.

No, you won't have a complete free physical check done by a doctor, but there will be enough experts available willing to discuss problems with you, and enough pamphlets and brochures, yours for the taking, to give you a wealth of important knowledge about your health and that of your family.

Regarding the safety part of the event, again there are information pamphlets, exhibits and displays for everyone. If you take the time to look into all of the offerings and study the pamphlets, you may learn something which will help protect life and property.

This Friday's Health and Safety Fair is free of charge. The pamphlets are free. Parking is even free at the Sanford Civic Center.

Several dozen booths and displays have been arranged.

All it takes now, is you. Don't miss this opportunity.

Sheriff's open house

We would like to take this opportunity to commend an organization that often gets no recognition or praise, but is deserving of both. We attended the Open House on April 8 at the Seminole County Sheriff's Office and John E. Poff Correctional Facility. We would like to express our appreciation to a few of the outstanding officers who gave their time to this project though all who participated deserve applause.

Corrections Officer Nancy Muller was informative as she explained items and color-coded wristbands that are issued to incoming inmates. C.O. Anthony Litwin was on hand to answer any questions about the impressive weapons display and Officer David Smith explained bomb squad disposal procedures and equipment. We would like to extend a special "Thanks" to C.O. Kevin Lewellen. Upon arriving at the correctional facility, we learned that the last tour had just ended. Officer Lewellen offered to give us a private tour even though his shift had just ended.

We certainly hope this will become a regular annual event. It gives the public a chance to see first-hand the perils our law enforcement officials face on a daily basis.

Left has its share of angry voices

Clinton desires voices of extremists. So read the headlines accompanying a news story this week detailing the president's speech to educators in Mississippi. The president blamed hateful talk for creating the climate behind the heinous Oklahoma City bombing.

"We have so many loud and angry voices in America today," Clinton declared, "whose sole goal seems to be to try to keep some people as far apart as possible and the rest of us all torn up and upset with each other."

The president did not specifically name these purveyors of social unrest, but he vaguely alluded to "things that are regularly said over the airwaves."

One needn't be a regular attendee of Renaissance Weekend to figure out that Clinton was referring to such nationally syndicated, conservative radio talk-show hosts as Rush Limbaugh, Oliver North and Bob Grant.

This goes to show the shallow political depths to which Clinton will sink to malign those who disagree with his policies, who are counterparts of his presidency.

Rush and Oliver and Bob have been hard on the president, as have other conservative talk-show hosts, as have conservative columnists like yours truly.

But there is a difference between spirited opposition, as practiced by conservatives in the media, in the political arena and on the grass-roots level, and extremism, as practiced by such right-wing terrorists.

Spirited opposition, based on political principles and social values, produced the resounding election of last November. Extremism, founded in violence and anarchy, produced the carnage in Oklahoma City.

There simply is no connection between the two. Yet the president insists that there is.

And as if the president's denigration has not been sufficiently divisive at a time when Americans need to come together to set aside partisan differences, the left-leaning political media has politically exploited the Oklahoma City tragedy as well.

The president blamed hateful talk for creating the climate behind the heinous Oklahoma City bombing.

The kind of folks who massacred the innocents in Oklahoma City "insult the federal government," according to a Cox News Service story last week. "They run against gun control, abortion, those good things."

Well, many, if not most, Americans believe the federal government needs to be reformed from top to bottom. But they're not out buying fertilizer and fuel oil.

Half of American households own guns and feel that the 20,000 gun-control laws already on the books around the country are enough. But they don't plan to join paramilitary groups.

Most Americans feel that far too many unborn babies are aborted, but they don't go out and kill abortion doctors.

The media left would have us believe that people who hold conservative views on government, gun control, abortion, those and other are kindred spirits with extremists like the alleged domestic terrorist Timothy McVeigh. It's the kind of media smear - this kind of blanket condemnation of conservatives - that truly aims to keep the public paralyzed and torn up or upset.

A realtor responds to story

Being a third generation Sanford native, never have I been so outraged and insulted as I was on Sunday morning (April 23) when I glanced at the headline in the Sanford Herald (Realtors pass on tour of Sanford). With very deep heartfelt roots, I found that I not only was personally offended, but empathized with the feelings others in our hometown must have experienced.

This letter will flow from my heart and soul, with the thoughts being conveyed as I felt them. The day started peacefully, with my usual nine-mile bike ride down along the lakefront, greeting the serenity of the morning, feeding the ducks, and just being grateful for the wonderful lifestyle that Sanford offers, in its own unique way. I thought of the couple who just purchased a wonderful 67-year-old home in Bayfair from me, a home I sold the other "It made it my own until it sold." The wonderful couple had never been to Sanford before. But, the home and Sanford were both special. We closed the transaction successfully, but only after more than 20 sets of prospective buyers looked at the home ... and four offers were made. All because of the value, the charming location, and the feeling Sanford conveyed ... historic, quiet, neighborly, a waterfront community with no pretense.

I thought also of the young couple with whom I have been working for nearly a year, both of whom live and work in Orlando, who have been attracted to all we have here and who appreciate the growth, yet value the wonderful architecture we have to offer. The young family that resides in Orlando come to mind. We continue to search for that special home, so that they can call and move out of the congested area to the north.

As one exercises, the mind is cleared and the emotions soothed. My outrage, after reading the article, was channeled into clarity that needed attention. And, I purposely did not address this letter on Sunday. I have learned the value of "stepping back, taking the emotion out" before responding. But, I felt a response was in order for a number of reasons. First of all, I am very proud to be a Sanford native. My grandfather, Ed Higgins, was instrumental in the growth and development of Sanford, and we are all proud of our heritage. Indeed, the comment by Beverly Luchinsbach stating that "there is nothing in Sanford but old junk," was an incredibly insensitive and prejudiced remark that was an injustice to everyone making their home and their living in Sanford, the truly historic area of Central Florida, an area that many are discovering and appreciating, including the realtors of Orlando, of which I happen to be one of, and yet I choose to reside here. I can tell you that there are a lot of my fellow realtors who have found Sanford, appreciate its value, and are showing and selling properties here. In this business you serve the customer (buyer) and the client (seller) according to their needs and interests more so than ever before and I assure you that quality is perceived differently by all, as are most things.

"Perception indeed is reality ... unless of course you are wrong! The article conveys a very erroneous perception of Sanford, and most certainly conveyed, in my humble opinion, the wrong impression to buyers and homeowners (nationals) in our area. I firmly believe that one can never make a second first impression! And, over the past seven years, I have worked hard, along with other realtors, to dispel these perceptions. I was also taught that how you say something is extremely important! Facing such an article on the front page as headline news devalued the perception of everyone in Sanford, in a sense. A backyard in Sanford is not ... and every area has setbacks that have some problems. I am reminded of a couple who purchased from me several years ago who dropped the realtor they were working with because they did not feel they were being shown appropriately in this area. The article had been seemingly the reason! However, little did the realtor know that this family had other family living in Sanford and they liked the area. After receiving their call, I said thank you and wish them well in four days. Both the husband and wife work out of town, but commute daily so that they can enjoy Sanford.

And lastly, Mr. Farr and the education committee of The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, need to remember the importance of "doing it right the first time!" Computer networks and fax machines are not the appropriate ways to issue invitations to a party as the article states. Would you have thrown napkins along the lakefront, with remarks about a picnic in the park, in an attempt to catch passers-by? You would, no doubt, give your invited guests a bit more respect, thus catching their attention and creating interest, and thus assuring a degree of success. The real estate business today is more regional, than local in nature. A professional marketing plan for Sanford is paramount and establishing a bridge of communication and consistent education with realtors is critical to the development of this area. You cannot blame your party guests for its failure!

Leadership and vision are the necessary foundations for change! And, it is leadership, vision and change that must be chosen if we are to grow and meet the future, yet retain our unique charm!

The McPlot to privatize world

Remember the global privatization conspiracy I first exposed in November 1987? The plot by three American companies to seize control of the planet, sell stock in it, and rent the world's governments and infrastructures back to the people?

Well, according to a bunch of hot docs recently left on my doorstep, the plotchists have had some problems but they have not gone away. Most informative is a memorandum marked SECRET/SIZZLING STUFF/SHRED AFTER READING/DON'T FORGET TO RECYCLE. It is written by a person code-named "W1/Wal-World" and is addressed to someone code-named "M-1/McWorld." with a copy to "M-1/BellWorld." This remarkable document reads as follows:

"I regret having to say the things I am about to say, but damn it, they have to be said.

"With the astounding turn of events last November, we should be riding a tailwind, but here we are stuck dead in the water. Newt and the Newtoids are FUSHING privatization, for gosh sakes. In a few years, the entire Defense Department will be contracted out to Lockheed and the White House will be sponsored by a toilet bowl cleaner. But here we are, still sitting on our original World Privatization Project target date of Jan. 1, 2015. Our agents can't make a move for fear of drawing attention. That's because you, M-1, are gumming up the works. You guys can't seem to stay out of the damn papers.

"You haven't been reading about BellWorld stirring up any flames, have you? That's because they've gone about their duties quietly. Soon, they will be pumping television signals into every home in America and we will be controlling the cranial content of couch potatoes from Bangor to Burbank.

"You haven't heard a peep from us folks at WalWorld, have you? That's because we calmly throw up a new star every two or three days and pretty soon we will control the national supply of bathroom tissue and disposable diapers and then, by gum, we'll have them where we want them.

"But you, M-1, you have to cease an elderly lady with your lava lava and get your hands used for $2.5 million. And now there's somebody in Delaware who wants a few million dollars for a coffee burn, and you've got this guy in London who is suing because, he says, the filling in your hot apple pie spoiled 'like again' all over his arm and blistered it.

"Here you are, leading our effort to extend our tentacles around the globe and everywhere you set up an operation, it seems, something goes wrong. Why are you suing two environmentalists in England? So what if they called you McGreedy, McProffits, McWasteful, McGarbage. People always root for the Davids to beat the Goliaths. Even if you win, you lose.

"And why did you stir up the Israeli populace by erecting a restaurant in the shadow of the Memorial to the Fallen of the Golani Brigade, a revered national shrine? You should be happy you won the battle to serve cheeseburgers in a country that doesn't mix meat and dairy, but oh, you have to push your luck.

"I have seen your last quarterly report and am aware of your accomplishments. Fourteen thousand outlets in 70 countries is a lot of billions served, and I am very impressed that you continue to find cows in cans.

"Today, Earth, Tomorrow, McEarth.

The Defense Department will be contracted out to Lockheed and the White House will be sponsored by a toilet bowl cleaner.

 local PTA, according to Carl Buge, Seminole County chairman for the program. Buge said the purpose of the program is to let art and general education, placing arts in the context of culture and learning. Students may participate in the program individually. Some schools choose to incorporate "reflections" into the regular classroom curriculum. In other cases, each school's PTA sets the guidelines of the school's program and judges the entries that are submitted.

The theme for this year's contest was "Dare to Discover." Buge said Seminole County students submitted 274 entries this year, in four categories: visual arts, literature, photography and music. These were passed down by a panel of five judges and a maximum of 12 in each category are submitted to the state competition. Each category is broken down in levels such as Primary, kindergarten through third grade; intermediate, fourth through sixth grade; middle school, seventh through eighth grade; and high school, ninth through twelfth grade. Each entry is judged on a grade-appropriate basis. Literature entries, which are the most numerous, are judged for content and not for grammar, as appropriate to the grade level.

I Discovered Rock Climbing

By Anderson, Anderson

We drove and drove and drove....

I thought we would never get there. It was dark and really cold! I live in Florida where it is very hot and the beaches are covered with sand. This was my first visit to the mountains and Mom and Dad told me that they were very hot and made of rock. When I woke up and looked outside the window I saw dirt in the pond and knew that they were very high up on the mountains. I wanted to see the Blowing Rock but the wind wasn't blowing that day. We went to the very top of Grandfather Mountain over a mile high up in the sky. I could see dirt. I went rock climbing. It was great! We also walked on a swinging bridge. It was funny when the wind hit us. The wind was really blowing up there. I got a chance to climb into Split rock too and Mom took my picture.

I felt like a spider....

The views are beautiful, and the colors of the trees are like looking at fruit. When we went inside a cave I could see that the mountains are really made of rock. Mom and Dad were right. I discovered rock climbing in North Carolina. As fast I thought it was easy! Everything is easy the first time.

intervention because, Anderson said, she had never seen mountains. Anderson's mother, Brenda, said she was "surprised when she chose to do the story, because she does a lot of drawing." Anderson said, "I like writing," but goes on to say that she has been drawing pictures to go with stories ever since kindergarten. She later told her father, Brenda said, she wanted she had drawn a picture instead of writing the story and her father replied that she had, she had drawn a picture with words. One of Anderson's hobbies relates well to her story theme: the children's route. Her mother said she finds an interesting rock as a memento of her travels. Anderson has been to Washington DC, Virginia, Michigan and snow skiing in Colorado, where they family was vacation in the February and witnessed an earthquake.

"Students' entries for the literature category can be typewritten, so Anderson did most of the typing herself with the help of her mother. A handwritten copy also has to be submitted.

Other winners from Hawthorn Elementary, in the Primary category were Kimberly Morris, visual arts; Brandon Barrett and Kimberly Morris, honorable mention winners in the intermediate category. Florida East was the visual arts and Visual arts, with its visual arts. Ashley Brock, elementary; Pam, Traci Lee received honorable mentions in literature and Jenny Cole Reed received an honorable mention in visual arts.

Anderson, Sheth, Poor and Leah's entries were chosen by the county judges to send on to the state competition.

On the state level, seven Seminole County students received honors, besides Anderson. They are Matthew Anderson, Oviedo High School, second place in literature; Jennifer Ferguson, Lake Howell High School, third place in literature; Kimberly Morris, Tawana High School, honorable mention in literature; Geoff Castellucci, Tawana High School, third place in music; Alyson Nelson, Lake Mary Elementary, honorable mention in music; and Christopher Work, honorable mention in visual arts.

SANFORD — A town steeped in history, Sanford has developed some activities of late that are destined to become traditions in future years.

For the last several years, the Higgins House Bed & Breakfast has announced the return of their annual Mother's Day extravaganza which includes a tasty lunch in the beautiful setting of the Victorian-style inn and a lovely carriage ride through the downtown Sanford downtown historic district with its ancient oaks and beautifully restored homes.

Lunch will include a honey glazed ham, turkey, country-style vegetable and home made desserts.

"It's a Mother's Day event people have really started looking forward to," said Walt Padgett, who owns and manages the Higgins House along with his wife Ruth.

The Higgins House has been in business for four years. Many of their guests are repeat visitors who come back once a year or more.

Local, who don't have the need to stay overnight in the inn, look forward to the special events, like Mother's Day, where they can enjoy the elegant charm of the Higgins House.

The Mother's Day event will be from 4 to 8 p.m.

Tickets for the extravaganza are $10.00 per person. They are limited and may be purchased at the Higgins House, 408 S. Oak Ave. For more information, or to make reservations, call the inn at 324-6888.

shopping centers, but will need federal money.

"The city of Miami is not responsible for these people that are arriving from Guantanamo," said City Manager Cesar Odio, who helped manage the Mariel boatlift crisis in 1980. "This is a federal responsibility and they'll have to send dollars down here to make sure Jackson Memorial Hospital and the school system can cope."

Republicans in the state's congressional delegation immediately criticized the new Clinton policy as an unfair burden on Florida, a sign of weakness and a sign of the end of the Reagan era.

"The president has been wrestling with a Cuban migration policy since last summer, when more than 25,000 boat people tried to reach Florida on homemade rafts.

federal money would be essential.

In New Jersey, heart of the highest concentration of Cuban-Americans outside Miami, the reaction was mixed.

"It's very good news for families who have been torn apart from their families," said Democratic Assemblyman Rudy Garcia, who was 4 years old when his parents came to Union City, N.J. from Cuba. "There is the opposite argument that it restricts further immigrants from coming to the United States, but you can't have it all."

Joy at the promise of freedom reigned at Guantanamo.

Carlos Rafael Pedrono, 23, has spent nearly eight months at Guantanamo with his wife, Lilia. "There is a big cause line here," he told the Sun-Sentinel of Fort Lauderdale. "I know there is an end to it."

Four Cubans found floating on a small raft were rescued by the U.S. Coast Guard and transported before noon Tuesday to Guantanamo — the last group destined for the so-called safe havens.

"An of noon today the new policy took effect," said Lt. Cmdr. Jim Howe of the Coast Guard station in Miami. "The plane are to directly repatriate back to Cuba anyone else that's picked up from now on."

ing, as he said his own.

No psychiatric counseling was ordered and the boy was not placed under watch. That very night, Shawn hanged himself.

Bryant didn't feel guilty about what had happened, Wyke testified. "He threw his hands up in the air... and he said he did everything he could."

Wyke's attorneys contend another administrator, assistant principal James Butler, was aware of a separate suicide attempt also the day before Shawn's death when a cafeteria worker caught the boy in a bathroom trying to hang himself using a cord and a wire hanger.

knew nothing of the failed suicide attempt.

"Shawn Wyke took his own life," Connor told the jury Monday during opening statements. "He took his own life at his home. He took his own life after school was over in the night-time. He was in the custody of his mother."

Shawn's motive remains a mystery. There was no note, no hint of any involvement with drugs or alcohol.

Connor acknowledged Polk County did not have a suicide prevention plan in place at the time of Shawn's death, but was developing one.

Wyke's attorneys maintain such a plan is intrusive on behalf of suicidal students could have saved Shawn's life.

Tax

magazine subscriptions sold by schools and non-profit organizations, printing supplies, and blood banks.

The tax-break package faces an uncertain fate in the House, where Speaker Peter Rudy Wallace, D-St. Petersburg, has expressed concerns about the number of giveaways when lawmakers are scrambling for money to finance education next year.

Gov. Lawton Chiles also has said he isn't thrilled with the volume of proposed exemptions.

Senate Commerce Chairman John Mackey, R-Bredovino, defended the legislation as a way for the state to compete for jobs with states such as Georgia and Alabama.

"Sales tax exemptions are an appropriate method for stimulating economic activity," he said.

Sens. Malcolm Beard, R-Seffner; Matthew Meadows, D-Fort Lauderdale; and Betty Holsender, D-Jacksonville, voted against the bill.

The Senate also voted 50-1 for tax credits worth about $2 million to lure the Brewer's Cup Championship to South Florida, where the races were run at Gulfstream Park in Hialeahville in 1986 and 1988.

Sen. Roberto Coats, R-Hialeah, said the tax breaks would be more than offset by the business generated by the thoroughbred races. Sen. Ron Silver, D-North Miami Beach, was the lone dissenter.

That bill (CS-88 734) also faces an uncertain future in the House.

It includes a long-disputed issue — rating rates for the three South Florida tracks within 18 miles of one another: Gulfstream, Hialeah and Calder.

Legislation to revamp a state program to help defense contractors convert to non-military production cleared the Senate on a 59-0 vote.

The bill (S 2088) would increase the total amount of tax refunds the Department of Commerce could dole out to contractors from $10 million a year to $25 million, although lawmakers have only provided $1.5 million in next year's budget.

A similar bill (CS-HB 1985) is pending in the House.

A wide variety of herbs and vegetables that often make their way to the Higgins House dining table, back in the sunny, enclosed back yard.

"Bert and I do all the gardening," Padgett said. "I hadn't realized how good the gardens were until they contacted us."

Padgett said that a freelance photographer, Eric Dunsberry, had visited the inn about a year and a half ago and had taken some operative photographs of the property, especially the gardens. He hoped, he told the Padgetts, to sell the pictures to an industry magazine.

"When they (Country Inn magazine) contacted us and said they had seen the photographs and were interested," Padgett said, "we were extremely excited."

The resulting magazine article, entitled "B&B Botanica" by Francesc Hayeslett focuses primarily on the gardens, which she says "elegantly mirrors their attentive, but unpretentious hospitality."

summary look of this series of commercials that is being done.

"Selling lawnmowers on the corner wouldn't work with the kind of weather that's in Chicago right now," he said. "Yesterday it was in the lower 30s back there."

Sanford's friendly residents and beautiful locations have become popular with filmmakers in recent months, Rees said.

"I've heard nothing but good things about this area," he said. "Bob Evans shot a commercial in this area a while back and they really like it, too."

This morning's scene at company spokesman Don Evans (Bob's brother) walking down the street and stopping at a neighborhood lawnmower stand for a refreshing drink. The afternoon shoot will have him in the field talking about tasty summertime desserts.

Rees said that Tuesday afternoon a Sanford backyard was the site of another commercial in which Evans was at the grill cooking up some All-American favorites.

"Sanford is perfect for this sort of project," he said. "He didn't know if film production would have any other interest in Sanford as a future

There is more mention, however, of Sanford's historic past as a center for trade and agriculture.

In scattered spare moments throughout the day, Walt might be found watering the ferns or pruning a plant here or there in the yard. Bert might be tending to the vegetables or gather some herbs for a culinary treat.

The gardens are not, Walt said, the focus of their work at the inn. Growing things is not a skill that is difficult for either husband or wife, however.

"But it is something we are proud of and that we both enjoy," he said.

Padgett is "thrilled" with the international attention the magazine will bring to both the Higgins House and to Sanford.

"It gives us some real credit within the industry and among travelers," he said.

The magazine caters, they state boldly on their cover, to the "sophisticated traveler. That, of course, Padgett said, is the type of traveler Sanford would like to attract.

San location, but he said he would suggest a return if the project called for such a backdrop.

"I think this is a great location," he said.

the man died sometime the morning of Aug. 30.

Cmdr. Dennis Whitmore said police located James near a business at 8th Street and Sanford Avenue late Tuesday afternoon and she was taken into custody.

"We were concerned she might leave the area," Whitmore commented. "If she leaves the street certain individuals testified before the grand jury."

James was arrested shortly after the indictment was returned. She will make her first court appearance this afternoon. She is being held without bond at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Investigators questioned James after the elderly man's body was found. She told investigators she knew Hawkins. Recovered clothing and a bloody shoe print linked James to the scene, investigator Barry Little said.

Skinheads detained in Moroccan's death

PARIS — Police detained 29 skinheads today for questioning about the drowning of a Moroccan immigrant who was pushed into the Seine River during a march by far-right supporters. Police made the arrests shortly before daybreak in Paris and several of its suburbs, authorities said. There was no immediate word whether any of those in custody would be charged.

The Moroccan, 29-year-old Brahim Bouarram, was accosted by three skinheads Monday during a march through Paris by about 15,000 supporters of the far-right National Front. Bouarram was pushed into the river, and his body later was retrieved by police divers.

Witnesses said the assailants, after attacking Bouarram, mingled back into the throng of marchers.

National Front leader Jean-Marie Le Pen said his party, which advocates the deportation of 3 million immigrants, was not to blame. But politicians from the mainstream right to the far left insisted the group must share responsibility because of the racist and anti-foreigner overtones of its rhetoric.

Leftist political parties, trade unions and anti-racism groups were organizing a march this evening in Paris to protest the death.

Gas blast death toll rises to 101

SEOUL, South Korea — The death toll from a gas explosion in the provincial capital of Taegu rose to 101 today when a carpenter died from injuries suffered in last week's blast.

Police have blamed the accident on construction workers who mistakenly drilled into a gas line, causing gas to leak and build up for 30 minutes at a subway construction site before it was ignited by a stray spark.

But civic groups say police are covering up the fact they failed to investigate a complaint of a gas leak last Thursday, the night before the explosion. The groups demanded the construction sites not be restored until all investigations have been completed.

The leading opposition Democratic Party boycotted the National Assembly session for the third day, demanding the legislature hold an inquiry into the explosion.

Nearly half those killed were students en route to nearby middle schools.

New blasts heard in Zagreb

ZAGREB, Croatia — Explosions resounded through downtown Zagreb today, a day after Serbs targeted the capital with rocket-propelled cluster bombs that killed five people. Some injuries were reported and authorities announced a general alert.

Tuesday's attacks by Serbs shocked the Croatian capital, which has been relatively removed from the carnage and suffering occurring elsewhere in the former Yugoslavia.

At least five explosions, two loud ones and three smaller ones, were audible shortly after noon today.

Independent radio 101 quoted officials as saying three projectiles had landed, one on a suburb and two in the city center. There was no confirmation of the report.

Ambulances and fire engines raced through the city center, and people deserted cars and trams to scurry for cover in shelters and doorways.

Witnesses driving past the Academy for Dramatic Arts near the National Theater downtown said the academy appeared damaged and one or two people were injured.

The main hospital said wounded had begun to arrive, but gave no figures.

Under Serb attack in retaliation for a Croat offensive that began Monday.

The Croatian offensive, the largest since 1991, aimed to seize a section of the key Zagreb-Belgrade highway and isolate one of the four large chunks of territory held by Serb rebels.

Croatian troops entered Okucani, a Serb stronghold on the highway, sending Serbs streaming into Bosnia. A Croatian statement Tuesday said Serb rebels had "stopped giving organized resistance" around the highway.

U.N. officials reported that, amid the confusion, fourteen Nepalese peacekeepers were still missing.

Six hundred Serb soldiers surrendered Tuesday following talks that ended after nightfall in the nearby town of Pakrac. Their commander promised to turn in all their heavy weaponry by tonight and all other arms within five days.

But the immediate price the Croats paid for their military success was high. Croatian Serb gunners just 30 miles from Zagreb turned their rocket launchers on the city.

Package explodes at post office

FRANKFURT, Germany — A package handler was killed and 11 other postal workers were injured today when a package exploded at a Frankfurt post office.

The explosion occurred shortly before 8 a.m. when a postal employee placed a package on a conveyor belt and the package exploded, said police spokesman Manfred Best.

"We don't know whether this was a bomb, or chemicals that exploded because of faulty storage or whatever," Best said.

A woman working in the area died of her injuries, police said. Three of the wounded were in serious condition. Eight others were lightly injured or suffering shock and hearing loss. All were taken to hospitals.

Frankfurt Police Chief Wolfhard Hoffmann said no threats or warnings had been received about bombing a post office.

Bomb experts examined other packages in the one-story building that houses Frankfurt's main package distribution facility. The rest of its 300 employees were evacuated.

All of the injured were working near the conveyor belt when the explosion occurred. No customers were inside at the time.

The damage, estimated at $21,000, was confined to the package distribution area.

An important step

A large group of scholars, ranging in age from their late teens to middle age, earned their GED (a high school equivalency diploma) at Seminole Community College recently. Some of the graduates will go on to classes at SCC, others simply wanted to have the certificate for employment purposes. All the students were hard working and worthy of the praise they received at the graduation ceremony.

Prospects look bleak: U.S.-Japan auto talks

By MARTIN CHRISTENSEN
AP Economics Writer

VANCOUVER, British Columbia — Prospects for a breakthrough in long-stalled auto talks between the United States and Japan are dimming with the two countries at log-jams over a key point.

The issue is whether Japanese automakers should commit to extending their three-year-old "voluntary purchasing" plans designed to increase the sale of U.S.-made parts to Japan.

The Japanese have blasted this approach as managed trade and said they don't intend to extend agreements made during then-President Bush's trip to Japan in 1992.

But the Clinton administration just as adamantly is insisting that without purchasing commitments, the United States won't be able to make significant progress in the biggest trade problem it faces with Japan.

Autos and auto parts last year accounted for nearly 60 percent of the record $66 billion U.S. trade deficit with Japan.

U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor and Japanese Trade Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto were scheduled to meet today for what could be the climactic showdown in the arduous two-year negotiating effort. But given the lack of progress during two days of lower-level talks this week, there was not much likelihood that the two would be able to achieve a breakthrough.

Still, Kantor insisted to reporters after arriving in Vancouver late Tuesday night that some progress was being made in resolving differences.

He said the current discussions reminded him of an old

Woody Allen joke about being forced to choose between two forks in the road, "utter despair and total annihilation. I don't think we are at that point yet."

In addition to new purchasing commitments, the U.S. side was demanding, and increasing, the number of dealerships in Japan offering U.S. vehicles for sale and a relaxation of stiff inspection regulations that make it hard for U.S.-made replacement parts to be sold in Japan.

Hashimoto insisted that the two sides could reach agreement on the dealership and regulation issues if the United States would drop its demands on the purchasing plans.

But the administration has stood firm, even going to the extraordinary step of convening a special meeting of the president's National Economic Council to show solidarity among the president's top economic advisers that any agreement would have to cover all three areas.

The administration has indicated that without progress in the negotiations, it will publish a list of trade sanctions against Japanese products that will top $1 billion, the largest action of its kind. The punitive tariffs of up to 100 percent would go into effect after 30 days.

The NEC was expected to meet this weekend to consider what its chairwoman, Laura Tyson, described as "other options" if the talks in Vancouver fail to produce results.

Drifters are dead end

OKLAHOMA CITY — Two drifters who had been the focus of a nationwide manhunt in connection with the bombing of the federal building turned out to be an investigative dead end.

Gary Alan Land and Robert Jacobs, whose recent movements roughly paralleled those of bombing suspect Timothy McVeigh, were held for 18 hours Tuesday at FBI offices in Springfield, Mo. They were apprehended by dozens of heavily armed agents in a dawn raid on a cheap motel in Carthage, Mo.

Shortly after midnight, the two men reclaimed Land's white 1981 Thunderbird and drove away from the M&M Wrecker Service in Carthage.

"We didn't do it. We're clean. We just got questioned. That's it," Jacobs told reporters through his car window. "The FBI ain't stupid. We haven't done anything."

Land said he and his friend took a polygraph test and passed it with flying colors.

The men said they did not know McVeigh, the only person charged in the bombing of Terry and James Nichols, friends of McVeigh's who are being held in the investigation but haven't been charged.

An FBI official in Oklahoma City said he had no knowledge about their release. FBI officials in Washington and Kansas City had no comment.

Meanwhile, the death toll stood at 141 today, including 15 children. Workers searching for about 40 missing people took their first night off since the April 19 explosion, halting the search from 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. because of the instability of the federal building.

Foster works hard to sway Senate critics

WASHINGTON — With straightforward, fact-filled answers and folksy stories of his life, Dr. Henry Foster is working hard to sway the opinion of Senate critics who say his abortion record and lack of credibility should disqualify him as surgeon general.

"I am a doctor. I have never experienced anything like the media scrutiny that I attracted following my nomination," he said apologetically on Tuesday, the first day of his Senate confirmation hearing.

The Tennessee obstetrician-gynecologist was trying to clear up concern over discrepancies in his statements on how many abortions he has performed.

Later, increasingly at ease in the crowded hearing room, he told homespun stories about his early days when he worked in rural Tuskegee, Ala., as the only obstetrician within 50 miles.

But after more than five hours of testimony before the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, it was unclear whether Foster had made headway in securing crucial Republican votes.

To win the committee's backing, Foster must have the votes of all seven Democrats and at least two of the panel's nine Republicans.

Conferences on aging

WASHINGTON — The idea of official White House conferences on aging is to meet every decade, measure the progress and push for more. This one is shaping up as a defensive action merely to hold ground.

The reality that congressional GOP budget-cutters are not exempting America's graying population has robbed this conference of the headlines of earlier times, when federal programs for the elderly were on the march.

On the eve of today's official opening of the meeting, dozens of delegates warmed up by standing to denounce Republican plans to save money from Medicare, subsidized housing, food and other programs — "a breach of contract with the American people," as one called it.

The conference, the fourth of its kind since 1961, offered a "speak out" session that gave people a chance to let off steam on any topic. But it became a drumbeat against "cuts that never heal."

NYC officers face corruption charges

NEW YORK — The 48th Precinct has become the city's latest rogues' gallery.

About two dozen police officers have been implicated in a year-long investigation that uncovered evidence of officers shaking down drug dealers, busting into apartments without warrants and ignoring corruption, law enforcement sources said.

Six officers from the Bronx precinct were arrested at their homes Tuesday night, and 10 more were to be arrested today, said a source who spoke on condition of anonymity. Indictments were to be unsealed today.

About seven officers were expected to be suspended for ignoring the corruption, the source said.

Neither a police department spokesman nor a spokeswoman for the Bronx District Attorney's office would comment.

There has been a string of police corruption scandals in New York City's other boroughs, and citizen complaints against officers citywide are at record levels. More than 30 arrests have been made in Harlem's notorious 30th Precinct.

The 48th Precinct "is not an organized band like it was in the ... 30th," one source said. Violations in the 48th were "more opportunistic than it was organized corruption."

Legislature OKs Geneva Bubble bill

By SANDRA BLANETT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Gov. Lawton Chiles is expected to sign into law a bill protecting the fresh water source for residents of Geneva and east Seminole County. Both the House and Senate legislature unanimously approved the Geneva Bubble bill.

"This is a good day for the residents of Geneva," Rep. Marvin Couch (R-Oviedo) said Tuesday. Couch sponsored the bill in the House. Sen. John Ostalkiewicz (R-Orlando) sponsored the bill in the Senate.

"The people of Geneva have worked very hard for several years to protect their sole source of drinking water. I'm glad we were able to give them a little more assurance," the legislator said.

The Geneva Lens, sometimes referred to as the Geneva Bubble, is a unique phenomena of fresh water floating on top of salt water. Estimated to cover 32 square miles, the bubble supplies water for the eastern part of the county.

Couch incorporated recommendations from the Geneva Lens Task Force in the bill. Past development was thought to threaten the recharge area which is not part of the Florida Aquifer.

The Seminole County Board of County Commissioners opposed the bill because they felt unfunded mandates would cost the county millions. The bill was amended to make it clear the county would not be forced to spend any local monies on the protection. After the funding issue was resolved, the commissioners express support for the measure.

"The language, however," did not relieve the county from enacting protection which does not have any fiscal impact," Couch noted.

Seminole County Manager Ron Rabun received the final copy of the bill late this morning.

"It does reflect the amendments we asked for," Rabun said. The bill directs the appropriate agencies to implement recommendations, and does not require any funding by the county.

Rabun said he does not know if funding provisions were also approved. "That's their problem. It specifically exempted us," Rabun explained. "That's all I care about. They'll have to figure out how to fund it."

County officials opposed the original language of the proposed bill claiming that if the measure passed, the county might face about $10 million in costs.

"That was our point all along," Rabun explained. "It was just the cost of some of these actions were going to be unreasonable from the stand point of Seminole County."

Senate waging internal battle over tax cuts

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The chairman of the Senate Budget Committee will present a deficit-reduction plan next week that leaves tax-cuts for later, but conservatives are insisting that now is the time to lower levies.

Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said Tuesday that he plans to present his panel with a fiscal outline on Monday that omits any tax cuts, at least for now. Domenici and other senior Republicans believe balancing the budget will be tricky enough without also paying for tax reductions.

But Domenici is facing opposition from conservatives, particularly Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, insisting that they want the Senate to approve tax cuts similar to the $189 billion five-year package the House has already approved. Gramm, who is vying for the GOP presidential nomination, said Tuesday that he will fight to include the tax cuts either at the Budget Committee or later on the Senate floor.

In an attempt to find middle ground, Domenici said his budget will include language that would allow tax cuts after the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office certifies that lawmakers have approved enough spending reductions to balance the budget by 2002.

Congress is expected to pass a budget this spring outlining savings needed to eliminate the deficit, and then work on a separate bill in the summer and fall containing the specific spending cuts. The second measure would have to be completed before tax cuts would be permitted under Domenici's plan.

The plan would allow the amount of tax cuts to equal the "economic bonus" Republicans say the government would enjoy as a result of balancing the budget, thanks to lower interest rates and increased economic activity.

Report cites lack of standards for sensitive technology exports

By JOHN BRANNON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Countries that could try to develop nuclear, chemical or biological weapons may be refused access to sensitive technologies by one Western exporter government, only to be granted them by another, according to a study today that calls for standard safeguards.

The United States, Britain, Japan, and Germany list different countries as "sensitive" to the possible receipt of exported weapons technology, the London-based research group Safeworld says in the study.

Of 72 countries that could import key chemical, biological or nuclear weapons technology and are designated as sensitive by one of these four major powers, 16 appear on only one country's list while 18 appear on two. Some countries considered risky by the United States are apparently not so regarded by others of the four powers.

"If export controls are to have the required effect of restricting the supply of sensitive dual-use technologies to potential proliferators and regions of tension, they need to be applied consistently and on a multilateral basis," the report concludes.

Safeworld, an independent research organization that investigates common approaches to international security problems, released the report as an international conference in New York approaches a decision on extending the 1970 nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty.

With the conference beyond the halfway point, a solid majority of signatories favors unlimited extension, the option sought by the United States and other nuclear powers.

While the Safeworld report appears to favor the longest possible extension of the NPT, it raises questions about the effectiveness of international efforts to control the spread of nuclear, chemical and biological weapons.

Examples of the disparities in including nations on restricted access export lists include: Lebanon, Bahrain and Kuwait, which appear on U.S. and Japanese lists but not those of Germany and Britain; Taiwan, listed only by Britain and the United States; and Argentina, which appears only on Britain's list.

In addition, the significance of a "sensitive" listing varies among the four powers, according to the report. Countries designated as being of concern may still receive arms exports.

"The disparities between the lists operated by the four exporting nations do little to foster international restraint," said Liz Clegg, co-author of the report. "Governments with less stringent controls will exploit the differences which exist. This will eventually prompt the other governments to reduce their controls to the same lower levels of restraint."

In addition, it may be getting easier for countries to develop arsenals that include weapons of mass destruction.

Both the costs and the amount of time needed for a nation to develop nuclear weapons are decreasing, according to the report. Chemical weapons, because they can be made of non-exotic materials, are even more difficult to control.

Scientists search for source of high-energy cosmic rays

By CLIFF EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer

"This is totally inexplicable," said Nobel laureate James Cronin, a physicist from the University of Chicago. "We've learned so much about the sky and about the cosmos, but this is a puzzle. The scientist is always extremely interested in looking at things that are totally unexplainable."

Cosmic rays are nothing new. They are made up of protons — usually contained in the nuclei of atoms — that are shot out of supernovas from within the Milky Way galaxy. The particles bounce off magnetic clouds in space and gain energy as they go along. Many reach Earth, where they constantly bombard humans at nearly the speed of light.

The atmosphere filters some out, and earth-bound creatures have developed a general tolerance to those that get through. Still, scientists believe the constant radioactive bombardment is partly responsible for the genetic mutations that occur in nature.

High- and ultra-high-energy cosmic rays, however, defy explanation. The particles striking Earth have 100 million times the energy produced by the world's most powerful particle accelerator, at Fermilab in the Chicago suburb of Batavia.

Scientists know of no source — not supernovas, not black holes — that can produce such energies. They believe they come from outside our galaxy.

Scientist Pierre Auger first speculated about the possibility of high-energy cosmic rays in 1936. It wasn't until 1961, however, at an experiment in Utah, that an ultra-high-energy cosmic ray was recorded — and it had six times more energy than was believed possible.

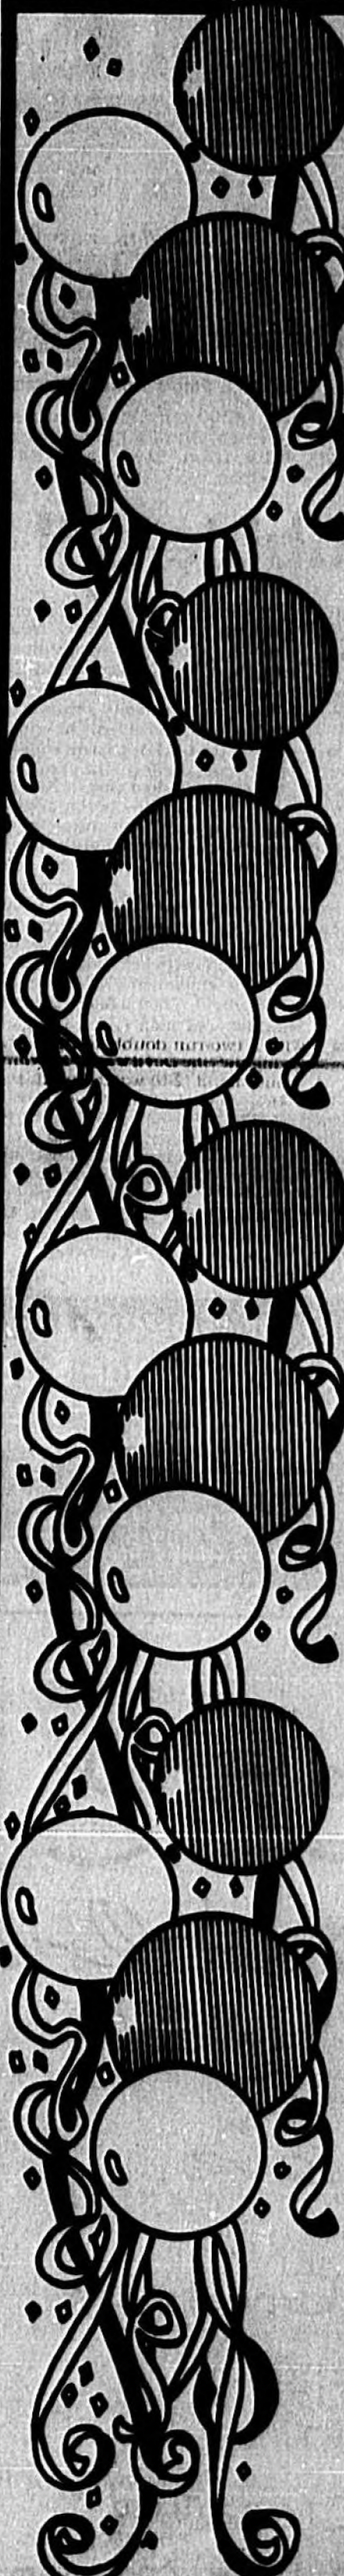

Since high-energy cosmic rays are rare — the particles strike any given square kilometer about once a century — harmful effects are probably nonexistent, Cronin said Tuesday. Alan Watson, professor of physics at the University of Leeds in England, said the team of about 100 scientists hopes to design two devices to detect the rays and provide insight into where they come from.

"(Each) will cover an area of land about the size of the state of Delaware, one in the northern hemisphere and one in the southern hemisphere," Watson said.

Direct observation of cosmic rays is possible only above the earth's atmosphere. Because the high-energy cosmic rays are so rare, a space-based detector has been ruled out. The ground-based detectors, about 3,000 clustered together, over 5,000 square miles, will be solar-powered.

winner will play in the championship game at 8 p.m. Friday at Lyman.

The ease of Oviedo's victory, if not the 10-0 score, was surprising because Lake Mary had beaten the Lake Wales during the regular season and had one of the county's best pitchers, Chris Tibbets, on the mound.

But Oviedo jumped on Tibbets (who has been sick with the chicken pox) and three relievers for 10 hits and led 8-0 after two innings of play. Brian King ended the game with a long home run into the trees beyond left-center field leading off the sixth inning.

"We had a lot of confidence because we felt like we gave them the two wins (in the regular season)," said Oviedo coach Kenne Brown. "Our goal all season has been to get better for the tournament and not worry about the conference or district race."

"I'm proud of the team for what they've done this season. No matter what happens the next two days, they can be proud of themselves. They're a great bunch of guys."

Buchanan struck out nine and gave up the single run, on a balk, in the third inning to run his record to 6-2.

Providing the offense for the Lions were Mark Metcalf (3-for-4, two doubles, two runs, four RBI), Mike Bergman (2-for-3, double, two runs, two RBI), King (2-for-4, home run, two runs), Adam Neufeld (double, run, two RBI), Rich Wright (single, RBI), Carlos Martinez (three runs) and Josh Frost (run).

Providing the offense for the Patriots were Moises Navarro (double, run), Manuel Rojas (double) and Sean Arago (single). Veasey struck out 11 and walked just two to run his record to 6-4 for the Rams.

"Veasey was in total command," said Lake Mary coach Kenne Brown. "He never floundered. He had a couple of out-of-control plays behind him, but he was mostly in charge. You need a performance like that around district time."

Doing the damage for the Rams were Jay Reynolds (2-for-2, triple, two RBI), Rene Perez (1-for-2, run, two RBI), Scott Bryan and Nick Sooa (both 1-for-3), and Carey Hobbs and Brent Wehmeyer (one run each).

a heads-up play by backup second baseman Kevin Neas.

After Paul Larson hit into a fielder's choice, Neas being thrown out at home by Lyman third baseman Jason Shipley, Nick Neglio followed with a shot that Hensch managed to knock down. Neas quickly picked up the ball and beat Larson to second base for the final out.

Lyman followed that with a seven-run explosion in the home half of the inning. Mike Paulus driving in two runs with a single, Teddy Koller drawing a bases-loaded walk, Shipley ripping a three-run double, and Neas plating Shipley with a ground out.

Shipley capped the game with a two-run double in the fifth inning.

Leading the Greyhounds were Shipley (two doubles, two runs, five RBI); Paulus (three singles, two runs, two RBI); Rob Bruce and Bogeagle (each with a single and a run); Fred Young (two runs, RBI); Koller (run, RBI); Wes Hunter and Jason Dax (each with a run) and Neas (RBI).

The Silver Hawks found themselves down 3-0 and facing elimination in the bottom of the sixth inning of their game with the Mainland Buccaneers.

But thanks to some help from the Buccaneers (who contributed a couple of walks, a couple hit batters, and a crucial error), the Silver Hawks rallied for seven runs and the win.

Brandon Bowen, Bryan Lowe, and Kevin Knorst each had a single, a run, and an RBI. Andy Baker doubled and scored a run. Winning pitcher Mike Johnson added a single, Peter Gill, David Nillie, and Brad Butterfield each scored a run. Rick Lieflander had an RBI.

1 cup seedless green grapes, cut in half
6 oz. mixed salad greens

In a small bowl combine yogurt, ginger and cinnamon; set aside.
In large bowl combine turkey, nectarines, bananas, strawberries and grapes. Fold yogurt mixture into turkey-fruit mixture.
To serve, divide salad greens on each of 6 plates and top with turkey-fruit mixture. Garnish with kiwi fruit, if desired.

Sauces can turn ordinary foods into something special

A sauce can be the perfect solution for turning an ordinary food into something special. Meats, vegetables, pasta and rice all can be enhanced by combining or adding a sauce. A dessert sauce can be more than just a topping for ice cream. Dress up cake, fruit and puddings with a fruit or custard sauce. There are several advantages to preparing sauces in the microwave. They do not stick or burn and it is easy to prepare small quantities. You can reheat leftovers in seconds to enjoy it another time. Stirring is the important technique. If you don't stir, the sauce will be lumpy.

Use this sauce to enhance the flavor of poultry, fish, pork, or vegetables.

CREAMY WINE SAUCE

1 Tbsp. butter or margarine
3 Tbsp. flour
1 cup milk
1/4 tsp. instant chicken bouillon
1/4 tsp. salt

MICROWAVE MAGIC

MIDGE MYCOFF

3 Tbsp. dry white wine
1 Tbsp. snipped fresh parsley
Microwave (100 percent) butter in 2-cup glass measure 30-40 seconds or until melted. Blend in flour until smooth. Stir in milk, bouillon and salt.
Microwave (100 percent) 3/4-3 minutes or until mixture boils and thickens, stirring once. Stir in wine and parsley.

Scallops and vegetables prepared with a sauce can be elegant without being laden with a heavy calorie and fat rich sauce that is usually associated with such a dish.

8 oz. fresh mushrooms, sliced
1 Tbsp. olive or canola oil
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 oz. rinsed and drained bay scallops
2 cups cut fresh asparagus
3 Tbsp. flour
1 Tbsp. soy sauce
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. dried tarragon
1 Tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese

Combine mushrooms, oil and garlic in 2-quart casserole. Microwave (100 percent) uncovered, 3-4 minutes or until mushrooms are just tender, stirring once. Add scallops, asparagus and flour mix lightly. Stir in soy sauce, salt and tarragon. Cover. Microwave (100 percent) 5-8 minutes or until scallops are firm and opaque, stirring once. Stir in Parmesan cheese. Serve with cooked rice or pasta.

Spoon this sauce over steaks and burgers.

1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1 clove garlic, minced
1 Tbsp. margarine or butter
3 Tbsp. flour
1 cup milk
1/4 tsp. instant beef bouillon
Dash pepper
Combine mushrooms, garlic and margarine in 2-cup glass measure.
Microwave (100 percent) uncovered, 3/4-3 minutes or until mushrooms are tender. Blend in flour, stir in milk, bouillon and pepper.

Microwave (100 percent) uncovered, 3/4-4 minutes or until mixture boils and thickens, stirring once or twice.

Hollandaise sauce is easy in the microwave, but needs to be watched carefully after the egg yolk is added. Too much cooking and it will separate and curdle.

SOFT ALMOND SAUCE

2 Tbsp. butter or margarine
1 Tbsp. water
Dash salt
1/4 Tbsp. lemon juice
Microwave (100 percent) butter and water in uncovered small dish 30-60 seconds or until boiling. Beat egg yolk and salt with fork in 1-cup glass measure hot mixture. Blend in remaining hot mixture.

Microwave (100 percent) uncovered, 7 seconds. Stir and continue microwaving in 7 second increments until slightly thickened, stirring every 7 seconds. Blend in lemon juice.
About 1/4 cup sauce.

ALMOND CUSTARD SAUCE

1/4 cup sugar
1 Tbsp. cornstarch
1/4 tsp. salt
2 cups milk
3 egg yolks, beaten
1/4 tsp. almond extract
2 Tbsp. margarine or butter
Combine sugar, cornstarch, salt and milk in 4-cup measure; stir well. Microwave 100 percent 5-6 minutes or until mixture boils and thickens slightly, stirring twice. Blend some of hot mixture into beaten egg yolks. Return to hot mixture, blending well. Microwave (100 percent) uncovered, 45-75 seconds or until edge just start to bubble, stirring every 15 seconds. Stir in extract and butter until smooth.
About 3/4 cup sauce.

SWEET-BOUN BEETS

1 can (16 oz.) sliced beets
1 Tbsp. orange marmalade
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
Dash dried marjoram
Place beets with liquid in 1-quart casserole. Cover.
Microwave (100 percent) 4-5 minutes or until boiling. Drain.
Combine marmalade and lemon juice; add to beets. Sprinkle with marjoram and mix lightly.

DRESS UP CANNED PEACHES

With pretty rhubarb sauce and non-fat yogurt.

RUBY PEACHES

1 1/4 cups cut rhubarb
3 Tbsp. honey
4 canned peach halves
1 carton (8 oz.) non-fat peach yogurt
Combine rhubarb and honey in 2-cup glass measure. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave (100 percent) 4-5 minutes or until tender, stirring once. Uncover and cool. Arrange a peach half in each serving dish. Top each with rhubarb sauce and yogurt just before serving. About 4 servings.

Handshakes can be painful

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing about your response to "Unshakable in Milwaukee," the woman who asked how to avoid handshakes, which caused her great pain in her arthritic hands. You suggested, "... very quickly say, 'No handshake, please. I have arthritis.'"

Abby, she may not want to announce to someone she's just meeting that she has arthritis. Also, many people won't hear her quickly enough, as handshakes are automatic.

My suggestion would be to take a cue from Sen. Robert Dale, who carries a felt-tipped pen in the hand of his paralyzed right arm: Always carry something in your right hand. And when someone tries to shake your hand, offer your left hand — but horizontally, with your palm facing the floor.

This works well for a man I know at church. People automatically clasp his left fingertips from below with their already extended right hands, rather than squeezing his knuckles together from top to

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

I hope this helps "Unshakable" and others. And please don't use my name, because I don't want it publicized that I'm getting arthritis either!

GETTING ARTHRITIS AT 60 IN TEXAS

DEAR GETTING: Thanks for the suggestions. I'm printing your letter for everyone who needs to pain off an unwanted handshake.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby, For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 6849, Los Angeles, Calif. 90068. All correspondence is confidential.)

Chess is contest of respect for students in rough town

By FRANK FISHER Associated Press Writer

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. — A.M. Jackson Elementary School, a haven for gifted students in one of America's poorest cities, is looking for respect as a chess contender.

Eight members of the chess team will test their skills against 1,000 players May 12-14 at the National Junior High Chess Championships.

To get there, Jackson had to defeat five other local public schools, two private schools and plenty of stereotypes.

"Coming out of East St. Louis, people don't want to recognize us as being as good as we really are," said 13-year-old Jason Russell.

"We are really the best team in Illinois and Missouri, but no one wants to accept that."

Jason, considered the team's top player with 12 wins and two losses in league play this year, spends two hours a day practicing the game with about 50 classmates.

Their school is considered the district's math and science academy for about 370 gifted students. Children study Latin, trigonometry and pre-algebra, but the computer lab is closed because of a teacher shortage.

In a district as broke as the state took it over, the best chessboards available are worn-out plastic sheets.

"They do have some problems here in the district and the city, but we try to get around that with something positive," said James Grady Jr., who has been the team's volunteer coach for two years.

"Chess keeps their mind focused on something positive. It starts them out early and that way they don't want to hit the streets."

Grady also keeps tabs on their school work, and players have called him several times at home with chess questions.

Fo 8-year-old Richard Mann, the drive to win is personal. He recalls a white player refusing to shake his hand after being defeated.

"It made me feel mad, because I won a match and I should get the respect of a handshake," said Richard, who is black and has been on the team three years. "I think it's determined me to be better."

Respect is a goal shared by most of the team. "I think a lot of times we go into places and they underestimate us because we come from East St. Louis," said 12-year-old Mikah Dorich, who dreams of becoming a musician, nuclear physicist or pediatrician.

"We want to show everybody what we can do if they give us a chance."

The Jackson school stands as an exception to the city's overwhelming urban blight. Dilapidated homes and empty, overgrown lots strewn with garbage surround the brick school building.

"I suppose you could say that it would be unusual for them to do as well as they do because of their environment," said Charles Zeller, the chess league's executive secretary.

But chess is an equalizer. You sit across the board from somebody, and it doesn't matter what economic background or culture they're from."

The team almost didn't make it to the national competition in Dearborn, Mich. With only two weeks to go, Grady was $1,800 short of the $3,500 needed to send six players, a chaperone and himself.

The district managed to find about $1,000, a funeral home chipped in $500 and a hospital another $300. Together with private donations and $1,000 from the Casino Queens riverboat, $3,500 has been raised — enough to take eight players.

Regardless of how the team does in Dearborn, Jason already has learned a lesson from the game.

"Chess shows you how life is not always fair," he said. "Like, on the chess board, you can be losing, but if an opponent makes a mistake, you can capitalize on it. Just like life. Nothing's free."
