SANFORD = Inside Mary Edna Hurst's cheery nouveau cracker house, a small group of neighbors sat clustered around the coffee table. Heads shook, lingers pointed out toward the pristine lake and surrounding trees that tilled the landscape south of the house.

Hurst was joined in the sitting room by her neighbors Dr. Beverly Booth, Mary Tucker and Lance Abney, Attorney Ralph V, Hadley III eased comfortably into an overstuffed chair to listen to the group's concerns. "It's unbearable," Hurst said, crossing her arms across her chest. "I was building this house as an heirloom for my two sons. It will be ruined if she is allowed to do this."

The "she" is Jane Chase. The "this" is Chase's request for a zoning change on the 40 acres of laud across the lake from their homes from SRIA (single family homes on acre lots) to MD-10 imulti-family dwellings with 10 homesites per acre). # Water bill surprise?

By SANDRA ELLIOTT Herald Stall Writer

SANFORD - A proposed 19 percent increase in the water and sewer rates beginning in 1996 took Seminole County Commissioners by surprise Tuesday when unveiled as part of a draft rate plan during a work session.

For an average household using 10,000 gallons of water a month, the increase would cost an additional $8.50 a month. The study says 69 percent of the bills to county customers are for 10,000 gallons or less per month. The proposed rate increase would be the first in three years.

County manager Ron Rabon told the three commissioners at the session, the rate increase would help equalize the cost of water and sewer treatment. Bills are calculated on a base service charge and usage charge. Increased connection fees are also proposed costing about $500 more for each single family home. The recommented fee would go from the existing fee of $3,091 to $3,510.

In addition to help finance the capital improvement program, a $24 million bond issue is recommended in 1997 and an additional issue of $5-$6 million may be required in 1999.

Shuttle launch set Sunday

CAPE CANAVERAL - NASA will try for the fifth time Saturday to launch space shuttle Columbia on a laboratoryresearch mission.

Columbia has been grounded for the past two weeks by a leaky engine valve, aluggish hydraulics, and most recently, a failed computer signal-relay box. Hurricane Opal also caused one delay.

Mission managers decided Tuesday evening to try again this weekend to launch Columbia on the 16-day mission as opposed to letting Atlantis fly next.

Atlantia is due to lift off Nov. 1 on its second trip to Russia's space station Mir; this mission will be delayed about a week if Columbia soars to allow enough time between the two flights. NASA requires at least five days between shuttle landings and launches.

Techniciana this week replaced one of Columbia's two master events controllers, needed to relay critical computer commands to the solid-fuel rocket boosters and external fuel tank. The primary controller failed a half-hour before liftoff on Saturday.

Launch time this Saturday is 9:46 a.m.

Once in orbit, seven astronauts will grow semiconductor and protein crystals, study fluids and set small controlled fires in Columbia's laboratory module.

Man flushed from home shoots self

FORT LAUDERDALE - After holding police at bay for more than 14 hours, a man who fired shots near school children was flushed from his home with tear gas, then shot himself in the head.

Augustus Williams, 59, was taken to Broward Medical Center, where he was in very critical condition late Tuesday. No one clac was injured.

"Ultimately we had to use tear gas try to get Mr. Williams to come out. He refused all of our attempts to contact him by telephone." said George Crolius, a Broward Sheriff's spokesman.

After authorities fired several rounds of gas, Williams came out armed. Before anyone could react, he shot himself, Crolius said.

Handmade signs on his home proclaim his insurance company owes him money and the power company wrongly shut off his electricity. The telephone company also stopped service.

Deputies went to Williams' home after receiving a call early Tuesday that he was firing shots near children en route to school. Deputies determined Williams had only fired into the ground. He fired another shot when officers sent a robot to the door.

A special weapons assault team composed of two dozen officers surrounded the house and cordoned off nearby streets, preventing neighbors from returning home during the standoff.

Press secretary signs up with Dole

MONTGOMERY, Ala. - Gov. Fob James' press secretary, Donald Claxton, has announced his resignation to take the same position with the Bob Dole presidential campaign in Florida.

"It's one of the things I've always dreamed about doing." Claxton said Tuesday.

Claxton, 29, served as assistant press secretary to former Gov. Guy Hunt until his conviction and ouster in April 1993. Then he became press secretary to Republican gubernatorial candidate Winton Blount. After Blount lost, Claxton joined James' campaign and then became his press secretary in January.

Claxton said he sent a resume to the Dole campaign in the spring and was approached about the Florida job about two weeks ago. When he discussed it with James, "He said, 'We're going to mise you, but go if you think it's the right opportunity.

New job strategies Lawmakers to try again to create jobs

By ADAM YEOMANS Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Economic development will be one of the top issues for the 1996 Legislature but many lawmakers still aren't sold on the governor's plan to use a public-private organization to attract new jobs.

Gov. Lawton Chiles asked legislators earlier this year to allow Enterprise Florida, a partnership of business leaders and politicians formed in 1992, to take over many of the economic development duties now handled by the Department of Commerce.

The effort passed the Democrat-led House but died in the Senate.

McKay, R-Bradenton, said the major problem last year was few lawmakers realized what the organization was trying to accomplish.

"Virtually no one in the Legislature understood Enterprise Florida. It's still quite difficult to understand. I'm on it, and I'm still trying to figure it out," McKay said after committee members heard presentations Tuesday from Enterprise Florida officials.

McKay said he has met with Lt. Gov. Buddy MacKay about the organization. "I nave told him this is not partisan. It isn't even bipartisan. This is nonpartisan. It is about jobs for my three children." McKay said. "We are trying to find a way for the House, the governor's office and the Senate to all go in the same direction."

In the last session, Chiles asked the Legislature to spend $17 million in public money for Enterprise Florida instead of the commerce department.

Lawmakers asked how the public-private partnership would be accountable and how to measure its success. They weren't convinced that a atrategic plan, performance "benchmarks" and annual financial reports like those produced by publicly held corporations would safeguard taxpayers' money.

Allen Lastinger, vice chairman of Enterprise Florida and president of Barnett Banka Inc., told the Senate panel that the organization's primary purpose is to increase wages and attract more high-paying jobs.

The program, based in Orlando, serves as an umbrella for subsidiaries that handle job training programs, financial capital for new or expanding businesses, and programs to foster high-tech jobs and busines

In the past two years, state government has contributed $20 million. Private sector companies and organizations have kicked in another $112 million in cash and in-kind contributions such as office space and equipment.

Lastinger said Enterprise Florida needed a stable source of funding like that received by regional economic development groups such as the Beacon Council in Miami. Then, officials wouldn't have to return each year to the Legislature.

"I'm not sure whether more money is needed but a different form is desirable." he said.

Search still on for Jimmy

TALLAHASSEE - A month after 10-year-old Jimmy Ryce got off a school bus and vanished, Florida officials said the search is widening to every Wal-Mart and Amtrak station in the country.

Greybound is also posting pictures of the boy at bus stations but police have few leads and fear he met with foul play, Florida Department of Law Enforcement Commissioner Tim Moore told a news conference Tuesday.

"It is critical that as many people as possible across the state and nation see Jimmy's picture and recognize that he is in danger," Moore said.

Jimmy vanished after he got off a school bus Sept. 11 a few hundred yards from his family's home in the Redland area of south Dade County.

PEMBROKE PINES - Louise Bishof, 74, is angry at Congressional Republicans for their alleged plan to use $270 billion in Medicare savings to compensate for tax cuts for wealthy Americans.

She heard House Minority leader Richard Gephardt and Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala on Tuesday accuse Republicans of wanting to rob the poor of health care to reduce the tax burden on the rich.

"This whole thing is ridiculous," said Mrs. Bishof, a widow. "If they said to me, 'I'm going to take that money, and we're going to, in seven years, get rid of the national debt, I'm perfectly willing to do that. But I don't want one penny as a tax to lobby against it. Even as they spoke, the debate over the GOP health care proposal began in carnest on Capitol Hill. Votes on slightly different versions of the measure are expected in the House and Senate within two weeks. President Clinton has said he will veto it.

'You don't need to do a $270. billion cut in Medicare and a $182 billion cut in Medicald to balance the budget." Gephardt said. "(The Republicans) have a tax cut in their budget that's equal to their Medicare cut. So my first suggestion is: drop the Gephardt said support from the elderly is crucial if Democrais are to defeat the proposal. He and Shalala also spoke to a group of elderly people in Tampa carlier Tuesday.

Gephardt stressed the plan would double monthly pre-miums from $45 to $90, which brought murmurs of disapproval from the audience. Republicana have said premiums will increase by $4.

> "This fight is your fight," Gephardt said. "Your voice is as important as mine. ... If you think these cuts to Medicare are wrong, you should speak out."

Republicans want to trim Medicare and Medicaid to help balance the budget by 2002. Medicare cuts form the centerpiece of the GOP proposal to House Republicans say their package would allow the elderly to stay in traditional, fee-forservice Medicare, but give them the option of switching to new, private "Medicare Plus" plans that might offer better benefits in exchange for restrictions on their choice of doctors.

Democrats charge Republicans are proposing to cut three times more than necessary to preserve Medicare, and the proposal would be a cruel blow to the poor. The savings will not be plowed back into the Medicare Trust fund but used to fund the proposed $245 billion in tax cuts for the rich. Democrats say.

Republicans accused Democrats of engaging in a "Medi-Scare" campaign.

Spaziano case goes to highest court

By The Associated Press

ORLANDO - Joseph "Crazy Joe" Spasiano, a former Outlaw motorcycle club member and convicted killer, has a new case before the U.S. Supreme Court while his lawyers argue for his life before Florida courts.

Michael Mello, the attorney removed from Spaziano's Florida appeals by the State Supreme Court, asked the nation's highest court Tuenday to give him access to a state investigative report on the death row inmate.

Meilo, a law teacher in Vermont, claims the report of a Florida Department of Law Enforcement investigation will clear Spasiano, sentenced to death for a 1973 murder.

Mello also wants to remove Florida Attorney General Bob Butterworth's office from the case. He contends Butterworth has a conflict of interest because he serves on the state clemency board.

Spaziano, 50, who has survived five death warrants, is seeking a new trial in state courts.

Mello was taken off the case last month after refusing to cooperate with other lawyers and attend a lower court hearing he called "a sham and a travesty of justice." The high court had refused him access to the FDLE report.

"I am asking the U.S. Supreme Court (to decide) whether Florida can continue to evade its duty to turn over exculpatory material." Mello said Tuesday from his home in South Royalton, Vt.

Spaziano's last death warrant was signed by Gov. Lawton Chiles after he ordered the FDLE to investigate claims made by trial witness Tony DiLisio. DiLisio, the only witness linking Spaziano to the murder of Orlando teen-ager Laura Harberts, recanted his story publicly earlier this year.

Chiles ordered the FDLE investigation as part of clemency proceedings, which are confidential. The governor also has cited concern for the safety of witnesses as a reason for not publicly releasing the report.

An evidentiary hearing has been rescheduled for next month, and Spaziano has new Florida lawyers.

Greg Thomas of Holland & Knight, the law firm now appealing Spaziano's death sentence, said his office would not comment on Mello's action before the U.S. Supreme Court. "it's a different court and a also different issue." Thomas said. offic Chiles' counsel, Dexter Douglass, said there was nothing in the FDLE report he believes would exonerate Spaziano. He also said the attorney general's office has not seen the report. Mello said he was not challenging his removal from the case, "but I may very well be raising this issue later on in the U.S. Supreme Court."

Do unto others

The Golden Rule. Do unto others as you would have others do unto you. Nothing holds truer these days than helping people who have suffered tragic losses as the result of Hurricane Opal.

A number of areas in the Florida Panhandle were severely hit when the winds, some times over 100 miles per hour, struck the coastal area. Read the story in today's Sanford Heraid. It says that the American Red Cross estimates 8,385 familys lost their homes, with 750 of them totally destroyed.

Organizations such as the American Red Cross, Salvation Army and others are all urging citizens to give whatever they can to help these people. They are asking for financial donations as well as various canned foods, baby diapers, and other needs which are part of the daily routine for our citizens.

Addresses and phone numbers are con-tained in the story. Use them.

Thankfully, Sanford and Seminole County aren't along the Atlantic or Gulf. We are sufficiently inside the state to where hurricane winds striking the coastline will have begun to subside by the time they reach us. That is, in most cases. At times, hurricanes are so strong that going over land requires a great deal more area before winds become lower.

In Hurricane Donna, several decades ago, Sanford received winds of 93 miles per hour, well above hurricane stage. In subsequent years, Dora and a few others also had winds over the 74 mile per hour classification.

In judging what we should do to help the people in the Panhandle areas, we must consider what they might do if we, here in Seminale County, would be struck by those disastropy winds and raine.

What would we, as individuals need? Drinking water, diapers, food which wouldn't require refrigeration (no power), batteries for our portable radios and lights, and many other items.

Simpson's juice gets him off

O.J. Simpson has proven himself deserving of his moniker "the Juice." In South Central Los Angeles, home to most of the black Simpson trial jurors, it means someone who has power. And by beating a double-murder rap last week, Simpson proved that he truly has juice.

JOSEPH PERKINS

If Simpson were an ordinary brother from the 'hood, he'd probably be doing 25 years to life right about now. But because he had the juice to hire the best defense that money could buy, he's back at his Brentwood mansion sipping champagne.

The Simpson case has laid bare for all to see the reality of criminal justice in America: If you are rich enough and f famous enough, you very well can get away with murder.

We have seen this more-than-equal justice play out in celebrated cases involving such wellheeled white defendants as John De Lorean. Clause von Bulow, William Kennedy Smith, and Lyle and Eric Menendez. And now O.J. Simpson has proven that rich black guys can also benefit from platinum justice.

There are several other lessons that may be drawn from the trial and verdict of the century:

- Cameras corrupt, A murder trial is supposed to be a solemn proceeding, but the omnipresence of the television camera transformed the Simpson trial into a surreal spectacle.

My friends in the TV news business disagree. They argue that the public would have been transfixed by the Simpson case. would have reached near hysteria awaiting the verdict. whether or not they were bombarded with daily gavel-togavel televised coverage of the trial. But that's a disingenuous argument. Remember a month ago when the Washington Post and the New York Times jointly published the 30,000-word manifesto of the so-called Un abomber? The American public barely noticed.

Elf you are rich

you very well

can get away

famous enough,

Now imagine if Dan Rather. Tom Brokaw. Peter Jennings, Bernie Shaw and every local news anchor in America read the Unabomber's diatribe live over the air. It would have jolted Americans into paying attention. And that's precisely what the saturation TV coverage of the Simpson trial did.

In the wake of O.J., judges throughout the country are starting to look askance at cameras in the courtroom. That's why the judge in the Susan Smith baby-killing trial barred live televised coverage. That's why the judges in the Menendes brothers re-trial and the Polly Klass murder case are expected to follow sult.

- Imbalanced scales. Most Americans were shocked, shocked (in the wake of the Simpson verdict) to find that justice really is not blind. That juries don't always decide cases strictly on the merits of the evidence presented at trial.

This phenomenon is known, in legal circles, as 'jury nullification.'

Many blacks consider this the "big payback" to the white criminal justice system for the injustice that blacks have suffered at the hands of bigoted whites. But jury nullification is wrong. whether it is practiced by racially motivated whites or blacks.

JACK ANDERSON Seniors' mail-grams

WASHINGTON - A sobering lesson is emerging from the political circus surrounding the Medicare debate: Beware of seniors' organizations bearing "message grams."

As House Commerce Committee Democrats were protesting the GOP's effort to slash $270 billion from Medicare over the next seven years, one of America's largest seniors organizations wanted to give their Republican allies a boost. With television cameras watching. staffers from the Scniors Coalition strode before the committee carrying several grams" from senior citizens in support of " Baving' t Medicare system. the

Democrats meanwhile, eventually became so distraught that they walked out of the hearing in protest. But before they Beware of stormed out. Demoseniors organizationa cratic committee staffers scooped up a bearing message grams. sampling of the message grams which were identical form letters containing a vague set of principles with a signature underneath. They were, in reality, ghost-grams. When Rep. Bart Stupak, D-Mich., looked at a sampling of "about 75" of the letters, he found that several of them were returned with the word "deceased" written across the top, while others were returned with no signatures or simply marked "contributor." One letter was returned by the widow of a man who has been dead for more than a year. Still other "message grams" were returned with hand-written messages scrawled in the margins or on the back. One letter called for a "single-payer," government-run health system. while an Arizona woman felt compelled to add, "I don't want to be forced into an HMO!!" Seniors Coalition officials say there was no intent to deceive anyone with the letters, adding that they are currently sorting through all the mail so it can be delivered to congressional offices. And while Stupak found 12 questionable letters among the handful that were anatched, a Seniors Coalition spokeswoman says the group found only about 1 percent of the letters were marked deceased or had no signature. "I think it's terrible that (the Democrats) are using people's misery for political gain," the spokeswoman said.

lost everything. An additional 1,821 residents lost most of their belongings, possibly their houses as well.

People need help, and we must follow the Golden Rule. We should give hurricane relief assistance to others, as we would want them to give to us if we should suffer a similar diaster.

Call the Salvation Army and Red Cross. Look for businesses which are providing drop-off points for donations. Become involved. The people in the hurricane damaged areas may never know your name, but in a time of crisis, who cares, as long as the help is there.

Good ole boys

Thank you for Wednesday's story and editorial regarding the fishers on Sanford's public waterfront and the good ole boys who want nature reserved only for them and their friends.

Either businessman Eoghan Kelly told politician Daryl McLain that his personal lakefront was being cluttered up by people who didn't even have businesses and, therefore, no right to a waterfront of their own - or Ole Daryl noticed it on his own and decided that it was his duty as a public servant to boot the public out of Ole Eoghan's space. So Ole. Daryl just "mentioned" it to Whitey Eckstein, who immediately brought it before his city commission to right this obvious wrong. According to Ole Whitey, why, Ole Eoghan couldn't even see his lake from his office for the fishermen and their vehicles. And none of them were new Lincolns or Cadillacs.

So Ole Eoghan, we are told, "couldn't see the lake." Did Ole Whitey check to see if anybody to the south of Ole Eoghan's place might not be able to see the lake because of Ole Eoghan? Did Ole Whitey show the public Ole Eoghan's deed to his place that guaranteed him his view and his lake? Must have been an oversight.

So, which neighbors would we rather have? Friendly fishermen enjoying their lake or good-ole-boy politicians enjoying their campaign contributors? Like the fishers, I enjoy visiting the lake for the view and the greenery and the peace it's one of the reasons I moved here. I am old, like most of the fishermen. I am crippled; some of the fishers are, too, I am alone, as are some of the fishers. I couldn't enjoy our lake if I couldn't drive there and park, because I can't walk very far: neither could many of the fishers.

I enjoy the lake, and I enjoy the people who enjoy it. I detest the people who would take it away. The clitist arrogance of these clowns is the reason why politicans are beloved and revered by everyone everyone who wants to steal from everyone else.

BOSTON - I don't suppose very many people in Omaha saw the play last fall. It was experimental theater, and a political drama at that. A show with a deliberately provocative plot that asked the question. "What if?"

What if a pro-life band of true believers kidnapped a pregnant woman to prevent her from having an abortion? What if they went beyond harassing women at abortion clincs and "rescued" a fetus by holding its vessel captive until she delivered? It was deliberately far-fetched, a mind-teaser.

But what the audience didn't know, what the actors couldn't have known, was that a real-life version of this play was being performed 25 miles away.

In the small town of Blair, Neb., a 15-year-old pregnant girl had become the object of a "rescue." Only this wasn't the action of some fringe group: it was the collaborative act of local officials.

The stunning plot, as outlined in the lawsuit filed recently by the girl's family, began when this high school girl discovered that she was pregnant. Her parents, Connie and Carl Scott, assumed that they and their daughter would deal with this crisis privately. That, after all, is the law.

No law allows a husband, let alone a 16-year-old boy, the right to decide - either to forbid or to force an abortion. No legislation requires the boy's parental consent.

The girl, who has always had irregular periods, discovered that she was 23 weeks pregnant. Together with her parents, she made an appointment with a doctor who performed abortions.

Second-trimester abortions are the most controversial. We don't know what decision the teen-ager, her parents, and the doctor would have made at that point if they'd kept the appointment. But the central issue of this drama is whether a town can write and enforce a private set of laws.

Act II and Act III as described by the Scotts' lawsuit were more terrifying. Knowing of the pregnancy, the boy's mother and stepfather, Kathy and John Tull, did what the Operation Rescue folks might call so benignly "an intervention." According to the complaint, they barged into the Scott's home.

When the Scotts called the police to protect them, an off-duty deputy came with antiabortion literature while an on-duty officer asked the girl if in fact she had an appointment to have an abortion. The Tulls then got a letter from a doctor who had never seen the girl saying that an abortion would be dangerous to her health - a recurrent claim that even C. Everett Koop, the pro-life surgeon general, dismissed. Yet armed with that bogus piece of paper, the police sent out - what shall we call it, a posse? - for the Scott girl.

Imagine the next scene. In the middle of the night, a fleet of patrol cars surrounded the house where the family was staying. The posse took the terrified teen-ager into custody and off to the jailhouse for questioning.

Hours later, they sent her to a foster home in order to protect her, the county attorney claimed, from her parents. Their criminal neglect? Helping her make an appoint. ment for an abortion. Forgive me if the drama becomes courtroom melodrama now. A second doctor determined that the teen-ager was 27 weeks pregnant and the family agreed it was too late to abort. Still the judge released the Scotts' daughter to her parents only on the written condition that "no abortion shall be performed on the subject's un-born child."

So, in a n astonishing set of circumstances, this family was stripped of the legal right to make this decision privately. The 15-year-old was a captive to what the ACLU's Janet Gallagher calls "an official vigilantism." The unofficial vigilantes of the town merely drove her out of school and drove the family out of town.

play was being performed 25 miles away.

There are many reasons why the Scotts might have let this drama end there. Einotions still run dangeorusly high; on the day the suit was filed, the Scott's old house in Blair was vandalized.

But this family cannot forget that, in Gallagher's words. "their daughter was kidnapped from her family under the color of law, with the connivance of the local police and authorities." The love for a granddaughter they are helping to raise doesn't mute that memory of injustice. Or the knowledge that it could happen to anyone. 15 or 35 years old, 23 weeks pregnant or six.

This is not the first time that a boyfriend has tried to influence an abortion decision. Nor is this the only small town where anti-abortion sentiment runs deep.

But in Blair, the undisputed facts describe town authorities who twisted the law to fit their own sentiments. And a drama about what if' has now become a docudrama about "what is."

Seniors Coalition President Jake Hansen said his group might not have participated if they knew what kind of circus would ensue. "I have never seen any kind of committee procedure that was that wild." Hansen told our associate Jan Moller. "And I recognize that we played a part in that. I wish that this whole issue could be handled in a little less heated manner."

While the Seniors Coalition has conducted a largely respectable lobbying effort, other conservative-minded seniors' groups are mainly making their founder rich. As we reported last week, two groups founded by direct-mail guru Richard Viguerie - 60-Plus and United Seniors Association - have signed contracts with Viguerie's for-profit company. American Target Advertising. which call for ATA to receive as much as 50 percent of all money sent in by seniors. In 1994. United Seniors managed to raise $6.7 million, finishing the year $844.484 in the red.

Under the contract with United Seniors, Viguerie's company also retains 100 percent ownership of the group's mailing lists, which allows ATA to use United Sentors' membership rolis on behalf of other clients, Viguerie did not respond to our phone calls.

The change in zoning will surely bring mimimum housing quality, neighbors said. They believe developers will soon purchase the land from Chase and put apartments that meet the 600-square-foot minimum size requirements on the land at the rate of the maximum 10 units per acre.

"There will be 400 units out there, right across the lake," Boothe said. "The environmental impact on this lake and on this area will be devastating."

Boothe said the rezoning matter had been scheduled to come before the city commission on Oct. 5, but it was postponed when it was discovered that the contiguous landowners had not been informed about the matter.

"I live 60 feet away from the property." Abney said. "I live in the city and I was not given notice.

Abney said he has spoken to Chase regarding the matter since he found out about it. He said she spoke openly about the matter and answered his questions "honestly."

Abney said she told him that the change in zoning would "enhance the value" of the properties around it. He said, also, that she had iold him a decade ago when he purchased the property from her that the surrounding properties would be single family houses from now on."

Chase has been unavailable for comment on the matter.

The neighbors are concerned that drainage problems, already leaving standing water after afternoon downpours, will become severe with the addition of 400 additional housing units. They worry that the 1,600 or so additional

NBC will squeeze the Juice for info

LOS ANGELES — A spellbound public never heard but a few words from him during his televised murder trial. Now, finally, O.J. Simpson is ready to speak out — and tens of millions of eager TV viewers are expected to tune in.

Simpson's first post-arrest interview tonight on NBC promises to be a ratings bonanza for the network. It also has drawn criticism, scared off advertisers and forced other networks to change programming. Simpson, who declined to take the stand during his yearlong trial, will be asked about evidence, domestic abuse and other key issues, NBC News President Andy Lack said Tuesday.

We're going to ask the questions on everybody's minds, and they're tough questions," Lack said. But, he cautioned, "we're not prosecutors, we're not interrogators in the courtroom SCH5C.

Roxanne ravages Cozumel

CANCUN, Mexico - Hurricane Roxanne ravaged the Caribbean resort of Cozumel with 110 mph winds, cutting off all communication, then plowed into the tropical lowlands of Yucatan Peninsula today, gradually losing strength. As fierce waves pounded the hotel beachfronts here, some 10,000 tourists fearing a direct hit from the hurricane evacuated to higher downtown hotels.

But the storm charged by to the south and within hours, shopkeepers had removed boards from windows, some restaurants reopened and buses were hauling tourists back to their original hotels.

There were no immediate reports of injury or damage. But there was an ominous stience early today from Cozumel, where its coral reefs and luxury hotels attract tourists worldwide.

More fighting

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina - What was promised today was a cease-fire, perhaps the last that Bosnia would require before diplomats sew up a plan to end 31/2 years of war. What happened, instead, was more fighting. The Bosnian government backed away from a cease-fire that was to go into effect just after midnight. The Bosnians proposed a 24-hour delay while Sarajevo was more securely connected to the country's battered electrical grid.

Restoring the capital's power was a key condition for the truce to take effect. But what seemed more important in the delay was the fighting on four fronts, where the Muslim-led government or its Croat allies were pressing rebel Serbs.

Serb-held Mrkonjic Grad in western Bosnia was reported to have fallen to Croat forces and Serb sources said Sanski Most. 28 miles to the northwest, was close to falling.

letter contained two important messages. It warned people of all ages about the possible danger of being bumped repeatedly for "fun" in a high-impact amusement ride. Also, violently shaking an infant in a misguided attempt to discipline the child can cause serious injury or death.

DEAR ABBY: 1 am hoping you can clear up some confusion that has been going on for some time. Many years ago, my parents divorced and my father married my mom's sister, "Nancy." They had a daughter together and named her "Kirsten." Everyone in the family is on friendly terms, and my relationship with Kirsten is super. Technically, what is my relationship to Kirsten? BAFFLED BARBARA.

BOLSROOK, N.Y. DEAR BAFFLED: Kirsten is

your half-sister/first cousin. I am pleased that you get along so well - relatively speaking.

P.S. To complicate things further, your Aunt Nancy is also your stepmother - which reminds me of the old song. "I'm My Own Grandpaw."

DEAR ABBY: I have found that unavailable men (married lining, bouncing back and forth men) are advertising in single romance columns in magazines and newspapers. The men state they want a "committed relavived, due to good genes, good tionship" possibly leading to doctors and good luck. Someone marriage.

> Speaking from the heartbreak of experience, I would like to make two suggestions: Request to meet his family, and see his place of residence. If these reguests are not fulfilled within the first month, you will know that the man probably is living a double life.

My advice would be to stop seeing him immediately. Above all, hold yourself in high esteem and demand honesty on his part. Excuses or lies - or any kind of deception - should not be tolerated. And lastly, try not to be bitter, because decent single men looking for decent women do exist.

You have permission to use my name.

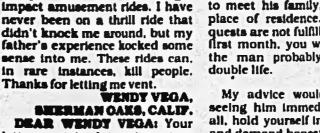

from someone who speaks from firsthand experience.

DEAR ABBY: It's been six years since I lost my child to Sudden Infant Death syndrome (SIDS).

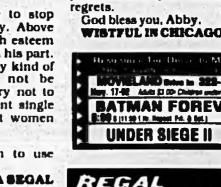

Nevertheless, I was moved to tears by a poem in your column. It was titled "To My Grown-Up Son" by Alice E. Chase. The last line read, "I wish I might go back and do the little things you asked me to."

Abby, please tell parents that that line sums up the essence of

Critically low-achieving schools: None in Seminole

By YICKI De80 Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - Though there were no schools in Seminole County on the state Department of Education's list of "critically low-achieving" schools, the school district is not resting on it's laurels.

The state earlier this week named 164 schools in a report of schools which had failed to meet minimum standards of basic skills instruction.

Elementary schools made the list if fewer than one-third of their students scored above the 50th percentile in reading and math on national achievement tests given in fourth grade. Also, fewer than one-third of students scored at least a 3 out of 6 on a state writing test given in fourth. eighth and 10th grades.

Middle schools made the list if fewer than 40 percent of students scored above the 50th percentile in reading and math and fewer than 50 percent accred 3 in writing.

High schools got on the list if fewer than half the students scored above the 50th percentile on reading and math and fewer than two-thirds scored 3 in writing.

Politicos lining up to run

By CANDRA ELLIGTT Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The county election is more than a year away but candidates are already lining up to run. Seven candidates, including five incumbents, have opened campaign accounts, reports Supervisor of Elections Sandra Goard.

A former Longwood city commissioner and mayor has announced he will challenge the incumbent Seminole County Commissioner from district 5.

Paul Lovestrand announced Wednesday he will qualify as a Republican and run against GOP incumbent Daryl McLain in the primary.

"I'd like to bring financial responsibility to the county," he states, "and my platform will be based on my record of austerity vs. the liberal tax and spend record of the in-cumbent."

Lovestrand also anticipates that he will sign the 'Contract with the County.' He agrees with the conservative principles in the contract such as: term limitations; no new taxes without voter approval; no borrowing without voter approval: no automatic pay raises for county commissioners: less government regulations, an end to county occupational licenses and an end to corporate welfare programs paid for by small businesses and taxpayers.

Meg's father, John Cullen Murphy of Boston, draws the Prince Valiant comic strip. Her brother Cullen Murphy writes the strip, and Meg handles the lettering and coloring. The stamps are presently on display at the Sanford Museum in a special exhibit area, complete with the background story on the development of Prince Valiant, originally created in 1937. The comic strip is carried in the Sanford Herald.
